RUSTY RILEY

The Velvet Hand

By HELEN REILLY

Returning to his home in Denfield, Conn., after a long absence in Mexico, Philip Haven, a writer, finds his young niece, Libby, who also served as his secretary, missing from the house. Believing that she may be visiting her cousin Kit in New York, Haven phones the latter's apartment only to learn that Libby had not been there. Kit hastens by train to the Denfield house where she and her Uncle Philip, and her Aunt Miriam, a neurotic, are joined by Hugo Cavanaugh, an attractive young attorney who once had courted Kit, but who had switched his affections to Libby. Search of Libby's room reveals a note, urging her family not to worry, promising that they shall hear from her soon. An unfamiliar cigarette butt in the room might indicate that Libby had had a male visitor. Kit's thoughts fly to classically handsome Tony Wilder, whom Libby had met at a party in New York, how she'd seemed completely overwhelmed by that god-like young man's charm. The next day Kit returns to New York, hopeful of locating Libby, a trail which leads her at last to the abandoned apartment of Tony Wilder in Greenwich Village. Here she is startled to find Hugo Cavanaugh prowling through the rooms, "looking for clues," he says. Tips from a charwoman and others, lead Kit and Hugo to the lush up-town home of Eleanor Oaks, a bizarre middle-aged former actress, whose hussy poses vanishes when Kit bluntly states that Libby may have eloped with Tony Wilder.

CHAPTER SIX
KIT AND HUGO didn't speak in the hall or in the elevator. They quarreled under the canopy outside the revolving door while they waited for a cab. "Say it," Kit said.
Hugo said: "All right. What was the point of antagonizing that woman?"
"Kit was stung. "That will cover it, Hugo. It's terribly nice to feel I'm understood."
He said: "You believe in using an axe. But that's not the way to handle women comfortably settled without portfolio in Park Ave. apartments—particularly when they turn out to have criminal records."

At her sharp glance, he heard "What?" he nodded.
"Ex-actress. Not Broadway—Newark and Poughkeepsie. I remember it quite well; you're a little too young. The wife of Eleanor Oaks' leading man died under suspicious circumstances. I think it was sleeping pills. The husband was convicted and got life. She got off. We'll have to go."

He stopped talking. His eyes were riveted on a car standing at the curb near the corner. It was a yellow convertible with the black top belonged to Eleanor Oaks.
They gazed at each other. Eleanor Oaks had lied about the degree of her intimacy with Tony Wilder, as she had lied about not knowing his address which she had given to Kit earlier. She hadn't lied to them, she had lied for the benefit of the man she called Sweetie, who had come silently and suddenly into that room up there.

It would be interesting to know who Sweetie is," Hugo murmured. Kit didn't answer. She was staring across the avenue. She said: "Over there, Hugo, near the church. I think—yes, I'm right. William is in that green taxi, the one parked behind the laundry truck."
Kit, Hugo and William were in a little restaurant on 57th St. They were in a booth, where it was easy to talk. Kit and Hugo had joined William in his parked taxi across the street from Eleanor Oaks' apartment and come straight here. William had been frightened at being discovered and then, defiant, stammering, his plump cheeks ashen, his near-sighted dark eyes blinking nervously behind his glasses, he admitted having followed Kit to the Kelvoston St. house and been up there. "I wasn't in."

"Handsome fellow, medium height, blond hair, Kit? Yes. I met him a couple of times. He was at Bolo's studio on a job. Bolo was going to use him as one of those old gods—Apollo, I think it was. What makes you ask, Kit?"
Kit hesitated. "My cousin, Libby falls—"

Anita gave her a quick sideways glance. Angie said decisively: "Wilder's no good. People don't like him. I can't tell you why, but I know it. That fellow's a wrong guy all the way through the alphabet."
Kit's depression deepened. Angie went on. "Why doesn't your cousin marry George Corey?"
Kit stared blankly at Angie, getting nimbly out of a butterfly dress and into black linen shorts and a white sweater. "George?" she said faintly.

"Yes. I saw them together at the Pink Angel one night a couple of weeks ago and they certainly looked—what's the matter? Have I put my foot in it?"
Anita laughed. "Angie, you're an incorrigible romantic. All you have to do is to see a man and a girl together once and you have them married."

BABY CARRIER—Shown leaving Health Department offices to make a quick trip to a home in the county. Nurses Goldie Hemingway and Addie P. Griffin typify the ever ready facilities of the county organization. This time their services will help somebody not quite old enough to say thank you. Mrs. Griffith is holding a premature infant carrier used to transport premature babies from home to hospital.

OUCH, IT HURTS!—That's what 8-months-old Johnnie Lee Jenkins might say if she were old enough to talk. Pictured above as she receives her first immunization shot, the little girl stares fixedly at the approaching hypodermic as Pitt County Health Department Nurse Lula Harris applies the needle. Johnnie Lee's brother, 2-year-old Jimmy Ray Jenkins, stands tearfully by; he just got his shot. Shown with the children is their mother, Mrs. Lucy Mae Jenkins of Black Jack. Health Department immunization services cover a range of ailments from whooping cough to tetanus and typhoid.

WHAT DO YOU SEE?—Health Department Superintendent of Nurses Julia Fisher tests the vision of a young county school child. The petite miss, 7-year-old Alma Pope of Route 3, Greenville, is receiving one of the department services which are aimed at better health in Pitt County schools. (Alma called them right, every one.)

Among the numerous hard-working but generally unrecognized organizations devoted to the prevention and cure of disease in North Carolina and in the nation are county health offices and centers.

Such an organization is the Pitt County Health Department.

The weathered brick building on the southeast corner of East 3rd and Greene Streets here in Greenville is known officially as the Tucker building, but to many Pitt County folks, it is "the place you go to see the nurse."

Each Wednesday and Saturday during the regularly scheduled weekly clinics, the second-floor offices in the Tucker Building fill with people waiting to see one of the nurses or County Health Superintendent Dr. Walter C. Humbert.

A visit to the Health Department during one of these clinics will find a wide variety of activity, ranging from distribution of informative pamphlets to immunizations and x-rays.

If you had happened to drop by last Saturday, you could have seen over a hundred children, escorted by their mother or father (and sometimes both parents), waiting patiently in line for pre-school immunization shots provided free of charge by the Health Department.

During a typical clinic, in addition to the immunization for school children and adults, food-handlers are x-rayed and examined in another safeguard of local health. Blood tests are performed.

All these services, and more, are available at these weekly clinics. Once a month, maternity and infancy clinics are held. Expectant mothers receive advice and instructions in pre-natal care, as, nearby, infants are weighed and examined by the competent nurses.

But these clinical services make up only one part of the work of the Pitt County Health Department.

The staff of 9 nurses, directed by Supervisor of Nurses Miss Julia Fisher, doesn't limit its services to Wednesday and Saturdays.

They go out into the county, into the homes, to administer drugs and medicines and care and advice. The nurses are assigned certain towns and outlying districts in Pitt County, where they provide medical care for many people.

The county school health program is another department responsibility. In the fight to provide every county child an adequate chance to lead a full and disease-free life, nurses from the Health Department are assigned to the schools, where they work in close cooperation with the teachers. Physical examinations are provided for those children who need them and nurses may make recommendations on cafeteria and food-preparation conditions when necessary.

No brief article can fully describe the services provided by the Health Department. But the idea can be put across, perhaps, why Pitt County owes a vote of thanks to its health offices.

Unfortunately, although there is more than enough "work" to go around for the nurses and doctor, there are people here in Pitt County who need help and have not or will not get in touch with the Health Department. Some of these look upon the department as a "charity" or "welfare" group—set up to serve only the indigent and helpless citizens.

The services of the Health Department are free only because they are already paid for—by the taxpayers of the county, state, and nation. Funds of this work come from these sources.

Health Department benefits are open to all, whether they are rich, or poor, and regardless of race, creed, and religion.

Charity is not the objective. The real goal is ever better health in Pitt County.

With cooperation from county citizens, cooperation from those who stand to gain the most, the Pitt County Health Department will reach this goal.

OSTEO CASE—In another example of service outside the clinic, Health Department Nurse Nan M. Nobles bandages the leg of little Patricia Ann Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Anderson of near Greenville. The 5-year-old girl suffered from osteomyelitis and has only recently returned from an operation at a Raleigh hospital.

SUSPICIOUS—Margaret Dyer of Greenville looks rather doubtful about the whole thing as Health Department Nurse Lucille B. Tucker draws a sample of vital fluid for a blood test. The test is a routine part of many examinations done by the staff at the Tucker building offices.

INSPECTION TIME—The throat of Snerwood H. Allsbrook of Greenville is the subject of close attention above as Pitt County Health Superintendent Dr. Walter C. Humbert makes an examination. Allsbrook, employed by Cold Storage, Inc., handles food in the course of his job, and must therefore be examined regularly and receive a health certificate. These free examinations of food-handlers are one part of the tax-supported services of the Health Department. Nurse Nan M. Nobles stands nearby to assist Dr. Humbert.

REGULAR CARE—Smiling up at the camera, tuberculosis patient Leathia Jenkins lies quietly in bed at her home here in Greenville as she is given a medicinal injection by Health Nurse Hannah Brown. Nurses of the Pitt County Health Department regularly visit and care for many TB cases in the county.

Bright And Dark Sides In The Robbery

Eastern North Carolina is composed of a good many small cities, town and communities; but when a major crime is committed the various branches of law enforcement officers go to work with big-city cooperativeness and efficiency.

This was amply demonstrated in the case of the Williamston bank robbery Friday. Within a few minutes after the two youths had held up the bank, law enforcement officers of the state, several counties and several cities and towns had joined hands in the effort to catch the criminals.

Their efforts were not fruitless.

On the other hand, there is the less encouraging side to the story. That is the fact that misguided youths such as those who staged the robbery yesterday are not soon enough brought to realize they can not get away with criminal activities even in a small community.

The bank robbery in Williamston obvious was a hastily planned job by inexperienced bandits. In a few rash minutes the youths committed an act which will follow them the rest of their lives; and an act which will cost them several years of their lives behind bars.

THE INDWELLING PRESENCE

The New Testament is full of teachings regarding the things Christ has done for us. He came into the world to save men's souls, and his coming is known as the Incarnation. The power by which he rescued us from sin is known as Regeneration. His death on the cross which purchased our salvation is called the Atonement. The New Testament also tells of his Resurrection and his Ascension. These are the things Christ did for us.

But the things Christ did for us is only half the story; the other half consists of the things he does in us. What are the things he does in us?

The first thing he does in us is to make his presence known in what we call our conscience. The second thing he does in us is to illuminate our minds, causing us to see with clarity the difference between right and wrong. He guides us in making decisions. He gives us peace when the world seems in turmoil and we know not which way to turn. His spirit comes into our hearts and fills them with quiet joy. When things get to the place where we feel that we are completely defeated, the living presence of Jesus Christ opens vast new reservoirs of power and brings us to triumph at the very moment when we thought defeat inevitable.

Try trusting this unseen power. Millions have done so and have had their lives made over thereby.

Selected Shorts

In a recent speech, Dr. U. G. Dubach, professor of political science at Lewis and Clark College, Portland, Oregon, made this cogent observation: "We want the budget cut, but we don't want cuts for appropriations affecting Portland."

He added that this generation, unlike that of Patrick Henry's time, has a philosophy of "Give me subsidy or you can't have my vote."

Many a scholarly article has been written describing the workings of the supply-and-demand system. But you needn't be an economist to understand the salient feature of the system as it affects the consumer. Under it, the price of any commodity in the free market tends to rise when supply is short, while the price tends to decline when supply is heavy.

Outside Criticism And Supervision

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 8306 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"I notice," writes S.M. of Haverhill, Mass., "that the Air Force Association, which consists of some of our most distinguished fliers—Spaatz, Doolittle, etc.—has created a committee to watchdog the President's national defense program and expenditures. Doesn't that amount to a criticism of the man in the White House and the Joint Chiefs of Staff?"

Answer: It certainly does, and in my opinion, it amounts to a needed criticism and supervision. Because of partisan, political considerations, personal jealousies and service rivalries, the White House and its so-called military experts have frequently failed to provide the defense establishment which this country needs.

NONPOLITICAL GROUP OF EXPERTS NEEDED—I admit that the Spaatz-Doolittle group are suspect because of their bitter reaction toward the Eisenhower-Wilson slash of Air Force appropriations. But how a worthy movement has been born of selfish motives, and that could be true in this instance.

We need a group of nonpolitical experts to alert the country and the Congress against secret sabotage of our armed forces through unwarranted withholding of defense funds.

BRADLEY CRITICAL ARTICLE—General Omar N. Bradley's recent "Farewell" published in a national weekly magazine, proves my point.

Bradley, now that he is retired, admits that both Eisenhower and Truman reductions in the military budget made us wholly unprepared for war. We were down to bare bones when the North Koreans attacked in June of 1950.

But Bradley kept silent during this political skeletonizing of our armed forces. He did not dare to speak out and warn Congress or the American people. His explanations for his inaction are extremely feeble.

tion and the hunt for the robbers are to be congratulated for their work. Also the individual citizens who gave a helping hand in the case are to be congratulated for their efforts.

It is shocking when a crime such as the one in the Williamston happens in this part of the state; but when it does, criminals find their chances of escape are just as slim as they are in larger cities where major robberies are more frequent than in Eastern North Carolina.

A Fine Line To Be Drawn

Where should the line be drawn between what the American people should be told about atomic weapons and what they should not be told about atomic weapons?

That discussion is now in the hands of government leaders.

Obviously the whole story of nuclear weapons and explosions can not be made public because of the information it would give the enemy. Yet if new developments in potential atomic warfare are kept strictly secret, it is likely that the American people will be little impressed with the necessity of learning to protect themselves from atomic attacks.

When the first atomic bombs exploded over Japan, interest in the new weapon was extremely high. It stayed that way for a relatively long period of time. But as more powerful atomic bombs were developed, and even the hydrogen bomb exploded, people began to sort of take the developments in stride.

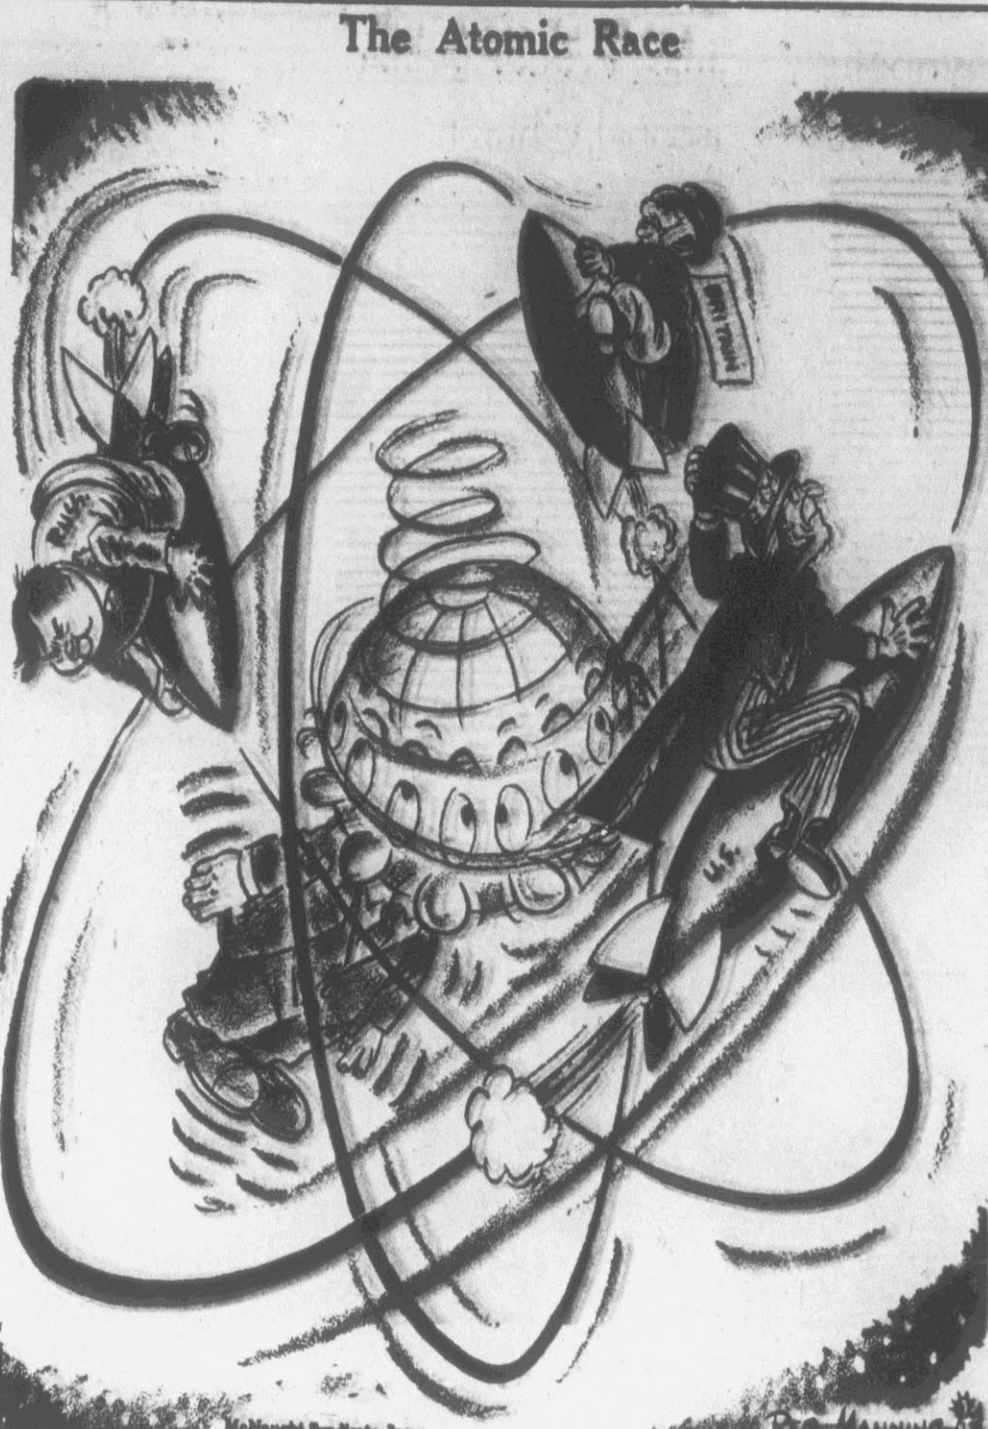

The words "atom bomb" or "hydrogen bomb" do not send a shudder through the American people as they once did. People apparently are less impressed now by what an atomic or hydrogen bomb explosion could do to a city than they were 18 months ago.

Apathy toward the civil defense program across the nation very well can be attributed to this attitude.

When considered realistically, it is apparent the American people must prepare themselves for an enemy attack at any time. Yet in the minds of most individuals this possibility is more remote now than two years ago. Actually, the possibility is less remote than it has been in the past.

While it would not be a good idea to try to set the nation in panic over what the explosion of atom or hydrogen bombs could do to the nation, the results of such attacks should be sufficiently impressed upon the minds of average citizens.

If more information on atomic weapons can be given the public without revealing any valuable secrets to the enemy, we believe it would be in the interest of the nation to do so.

Somebody Told Me

Annual Visit To Tobacco Sale

Yesterday I made my annual visit to the function that brings the long green stuff into Greenville, our tobacco market.

Each year this trip teaches me a little more about this fascinating sale. Yesterday I especially enjoyed the antics of W. C. "Billy" Clark and the buyers. After some effort to get somebody to help me identify the buyers (I knew only Jimmy Jenkins of Imperial and Conner Merritt with Picklen by sight), a Negro on the floor identified the others as being with Greenville Tobacco Company, Person - Garrett, Liggett - Meyers, American, Reynolds.

At the end of the last year yesterday, Bill Clark started chanting like I've never heard before, not even on the Lucky Strike Hit Parade. His chant was quickly changed into a melody and one of the buyers commented, "You can certainly tell that Bill's on the last row."

Then Jimmy Jenkins shouted, "Bill! Go into high C!" To oblige, Bill's voice increased its pitch. In a few minutes Jimmy said, "Bill, go into the whispering campaign!" Accordingly, Bill's voice decreased in volume to almost a whisper and to give him a charge, buyers who had been bidding with a wrinkle of the nose started shouting their bids. That was the only time I could actually tell who was bidding. Jimmy Jenkins said, "It gives the buyers some variety."

Somebody Told Me that every buyer has a different manner of raising the bid, but in general they use fingers. If the warehouseman starts off the bid at 50 cents a pound and a buyer wants to come down, he holds up four fingers indicating 40. If he wants to raise he will hold up one, indicating 51. He signals a raise if the bid gets to 60 by forming one with his thumb and forefinger.

It's amazing how many people around this town have never followed a sale. If you're working for somebody and tell the boss that you've never had the opportunity, I would venture to say that nine out of ten Greenville bosses would allow such an absence for an hour. It would be worth your time. There are so many interesting phases to the game. For example, yesterday I talked to a man who works for a speculator. "My job," he said, "is to pull out fleas (double handfuls of tobacco) and tap it off (square it up for resale). When I asked him a general question about speculators he gave me a simple, to-the-point answer: "A speculator buys when he thinks he can resell the same tobacco later for a higher price. Sometimes he loses and sometimes he makes. But most often, he makes."

To me, buying seems to be a job with endless responsibility. The buyers have from 15 to 100 grades to know, and must know when to buy what. With so many dollars at stake, it seems like a big job. And I thank you.

JACK EDWARDS

(Carroll News-Times)

SONS OF NORTH CAROLINA ARISE!

(Carroll News-Times)

Tar Heels to the barricades! For more than 75 years we have meekly submitted to a pretty piece of carpet-bagging. The time has come for us to rise in majestic power and obtain justice.

Those countenances appear on the tobacco excise stamp? A North Carolinian's? A Southerner's? No. A man connected with the glorious history of cigarettes and flue-cured weed? No.

DeWitt Clinton, four-time governor of the State of New York and Father of the Erie Canal, is immortalized on every pack of cigarettes that leaves our great State. As far as our diligent research in the Americana can determine, the closest Clinton ever got to tobacco was a cigarette store in Albany.

Cigarettes pay most of the tobacco excise tax; North Carolina produces most of the cigarettes; most of the excise tax is collected in North Carolina; all of the tax stamps glorify a Yankee.

Things were somewhat better before 1875 and Reconstruction when Thomas Jefferson was on the stamp. He was bounced to the tobacco stamp. Simple justice indicates that a North Carolinian and a man connected with tobacco should be selected to replace Mr. Clinton. A proper and fitting memorial for the New Yorker might be a figurehead on the prow of tugs.

Our candidate for the post is

James Buchanan Duke. Born on a farm near Durham in 1857, organizer of the American Tobacco Company in 1890, innovator and titan of the cigarette industry, philanthropist, and imminent North Carolinian. (Sp to New York; he died there.)

The only possible objection to Mr. Duke would come from the rabid set at Chapel Hill, but one of their songs admits that "Duke was started by the seed of the filthy weed." Objection overruled.

We urge every true son of North Carolina, particularly those sons who hold political posts in Washington and Raleigh, to get behind this campaign. Meaning no disrespect to New York and the Erie Canal, let's get Clinton off and Duke on the cigarette stamp.

Around Capitol Square

Cooperation: Key Word In Seeking Out New Industries

stead and members of the State cas. Information Office, Department of Conservation and Development.

NEED - These who are directing the stepped-up campaign to bring more industries into North Carolina and thus provide more tax revenues for State and local purposes are mingling words in asserting that the task must be a cooperative one if it is to produce the results Governor Umstead and members of the late Board of Conservation and Development hope for in this new approach towards solving a most important problem. And quite conscious of the importance and the magnitude of the job they have as Director Ben E. Douglas of the Department of Conservation and Development and his aides in this big State agency.

CLEAR - Governor Umstead, Chairman Robert M. Hanes of the O&D's commerce and industry committee, and Director Douglas made the need for constant and close cooperation crystal clear in the first of the series of "Industrial Development Forums" held recently in the bustling town of Zebulon, where steps have been taken by residents of that Wake town to do something about balancing its important agricultural life with industrial employment. And what Zebulon is doing and wants to do is being emulated by many other cities, towns and communities in the Tar Heel State as the realization grows in the minds of thinking people that if North Carolina continues to provide and increase its services to its people more tax monies must be had. Or, as Governor Umstead has so plainly stated it, present taxes will of necessity have to be increased unless new tax revenues are obtained.

REASON - There are many good reasons for holding these forums throughout North Carolina. The principal one is that the people must be made aware of cold and brutal facts that industry today simply does not come to this State or any other State because it has no other place to go. Principal purpose of the forums is to bring industry-minded citizens together and acquaint them with the plans Governor Umstead and the men he has selected to help secure more industries and with them more jobs for Tar Heels. And in acquainting the forward-looking people of the State with the plans for industrial expansion, the State's Chief Executive and his O&D aides are frankly asking for their full support.

KEEN - It has been well said by those in a position to know that competition in trying to obtain industry on the part of the community is keener today than at any other time in the history of this nation. It has been found there are more than 4,000 communities in the United States that have a population in excess of 2,500 and, according to industrialists who know their way around, the vast majority consider themselves equally suited to each other for new industry. This, the experts say, is not always true insofar as possible plant location is concerned. There are many factors involved in plant location and modern industrialists are not selecting sites in a hit or miss way.

SURVEYS - Fully cognizant of the need for more payrolls in their growing communities, forward-looking citizens in many sections of North Carolina have formed organizations to seek new industries and are working closely in many respects with State and county groups in their combined efforts to provide more employment in their areas. These groups are generally composed of merchants, industrialists, and other civic leaders, who may be representatives of a local Chamber of Commerce or similar organizations, but all are organized for a common purpose: GET MORE INDUSTRY. These groups are taking long and close looks at their respective communities and are making surveys of their needs and what they have to offer in desirable plant locations. In the process they prepare descriptive literature, outlining the advantages of their town and area and studying ways and means of going after new industries in the proper way.

COMPLEX - It has been said that the problem of selecting a community for a manufacturing plant may appear rather complex. Those who are familiar with such procedures readily admit it is a complex problem. It is no secret that modern industrialists want to know they make any appreciable investment in a plant to manufacture their particular products. Having the answers to these questions and being

The Synthetic Fibers

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the reasons for the huge carry-over of cotton is the rise in synthetic fibers. The cotton carry-over on August 1, according to preliminary estimates by the Census Bureau, was 5,501,942 running bales.

The rise in end-use consumption of manmade fibers in the 14-year period beginning in 1937 was put at 993,000,000 pounds. It is not practical to compare 1951 end-use consumption of synthetics with 1953 carry-over of bales of cotton, but it seems reasonable to estimate that if synthetics were not gobbling up such a large share of the market, the cotton carry-over would be half of what it is.

That, of course, does not make a villain of synthetics. Without them, there would have been serious shortages in years past, including the war years when vast poundages were used for military purposes.

However, synthetics have been gaining faster than cotton, wool, linen and silk, according to the du Pont study.

In the years checked, the end use of all fibers rose 35 per cent. But end use of natural fibers rose only 15 per cent, while that of synthetics rose about 300 per cent.

In the same period, the population rose 20 per cent. The average American therefore used more fiber in 1951 than in 1937, but actually used less natural fiber.

While manmade fibers made important gains in all classes of clothing, they made even greater gains in the industrial market. In 1937, synthetics had only 1 per cent of the industrial market, but in 1951 they had captured 23.5 per cent of the market. On the other hand, cotton's share fell from 94.7 per cent to 68.2 per cent. Wool's share held steady at just less than 4 per cent. FEWER TURKEYS.

MORE CRANBERRIES

There will be fewer turkeys for Thanksgiving this year but more cranberry sauce. Farmers are raising 55,746,000 turkeys this year, more than one bird for every three persons in the country, but the number is 8 per cent under last year. Meanwhile, the New England Crop-Reporting Service says that cranberry production will top one million barrels for the first time.

KRAFT PAPERBOARD PRICES GOING UP

Kraft paperboard is going up in price. Two large mills making this primary material for shipping and other containers have raised the price at $17.50 a ton and other producers are following the example. The increase was announced as partial compensation for rises in labor and freight costs since 1950, when the last increase was made. Backlogs of mill orders are reported to be a third higher than at this time last year.

STEEL MILLS NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD

Steel mills report declines in orders for the fourth quarter of this year, but they had a whopping first half.

A six-months record of shipments was made then—a total of 42,356,861 tons of steel products, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute. Shipments in June set a new record, too, with 6,850,050 tons.

SUGGESTS ELECTRIC LOCKS ON ICE BOXES

The recent death of nine children in abandoned ice boxes has had many repercussions. Dealers in several cities are conducting drives to round up old boxes and several municipalities are considering laws requiring their destruction or, at least, the removal of locks.

N. H. Hauber, Arlington, Va., appliance dealer, has come up with an ingenious idea in the trade press. "Why don't manufacturers put electric locks on all new refrigerators?" he asks. Then when a refrigerator is disconnected, it couldn't be locked either by accident or design.

Back From Korea, Dissatisfied

By BELMAN MORIN

For Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Capt. Benn Price of the U.S. Marines, walked into the office the other day, fresh from Korea.

Naturally, I asked, "What do your guys think of the armistice?" "Not much," said Benn. "They are not satisfied to have it end this way."

He went on to say that the war could have been carried to a complete military decision—in our favor.

Coming from a Marine, of course any other report would have been a surprise. But there is more to it than the insignia on his cap. Price had the unusual experience of serving in Korea twice, in two totally different roles.

On his first hitch he was a correspondent. He went over early in that hot summer of 1950, covered the retreat and then the siege on the line laid down by Gen. Walker. After the North Koreans collapsed, and the war disintegrated into a pursuit and mop-up, Benn came home.

He had been in the Marines in the second World War, however. So a year or so ago, Uncle Sam called him and presently he was on his way back out to the old stamping ground, this time in uniform.

In short, he has seen the war from more different angles than most of us ever could.

"What we should have done," he went on, "is smash up the Chinese defenses, and then destroy their armies in Korea."

The Chinese have boasted of their depth — defenses, presumably a system of bunkers, trenches and emplacements going back four or five miles, solidly.

"We didn't think much of the depth defenses," he said. "Every time we punched through the outer crust, they would react quickly and retreat. But it didn't look to us as though they had the means of moving troops and material around quickly enough to seal off a real breakthrough."

This coincides pretty well with the opinion of Gen. James A. Van Fleet. When he came back, some months ago, he told this reporter, "The Chinese are nothing once you get 'em moving backward."

"Then why didn't we open a real offensive?" I asked Benn. "I don't know," he said. "Nobody could make sense out of it. We would take one of their positions, and then pull back to order."

He said the Marine officers reasoned that they were losing more men in the stationary war than finally developed than would have been lost in an all-out push.

"Which officers," I asked. "The big brass?"

"All of them," he said. "Any 2nd lieutenant would tell you we should be pushing instead of sitting."

So if you drive up to the Fajro River again, then what? It would still be necessary to keep the whole army more or less intact, guarding the long border, even though the fighting had stopped.

Benn conceded that. But he said, "You're going to have to keep most of the army ready anyway. And if we're going to stop, the river is the spot, not down where we are."

"In the first place, the problem of unifying Korea would then be solved automatically. In the second, it would be a lot better to bargain with the Chinese on their own border than down at the 38th parallel."

These ideas are not confined to the Marine Corps. A good many Regular Army officers feel the same way.

Kostopolus-Stasinas Vows Pledged 30 Years Ago In St. Pauls Episcopal Church

The Episcopal Church was the setting of a candlelight ceremony Sunday afternoon, July 12, 1953, when Miss Mini Stasinas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stasinos became the bride of Evangelos Kostopolus, Va., son of Mr. Demetrius Kostopolus and the late Mr. Kastopolus of Greece.

The Rev. George Stafanos, Raleigh, assisted by the Rev. Constantine Pappas of Wilmington, N. C., officiated at the double ring ceremony. Prior to the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Carolyn Clapp as organist and Mrs. John Moss as soloist.

The traditional wedding March from Lohengrin by Wagner and from "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn were used as professional and recessional.

White gladiolus and tall white candles were used for decorations. Mr. Tony Vourdoukakis of Harrisonburg, Va., was best man and Mr. Tony Vourdoukakis of Harrisonburg was the officiant.

Mrs. Tony Vourdoukakis of Harrisonburg, Va., was matron of honor and Miss Elizabeth Stasinos, sister of the bride was maid of honor. The matron of honor's gown was of rose lace with matching hat.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was of chantilly lace with nylon tulle set in a cascade of pleats in front, with lace applique edging the tight fitting bodice and long sleeves ending in a point over the hands.

Mrs. Stasinos, the mother of the bride, chose for the wedding a rose lace gown with matching hat and black accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. George Gal-

Warren Spahn Takes 19th; Early Wynn Defeats Yanks

Milwaukee Manager Rates Serious Consideration As National League Manager Of The Year

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP) Milwaukee's pennant dreams have been abruptly interrupted by Brooklyn's alarm clock but Jolly Cholly Grimm rated serious consideration today as the National League Manager of the Year with his transplanted Braves.

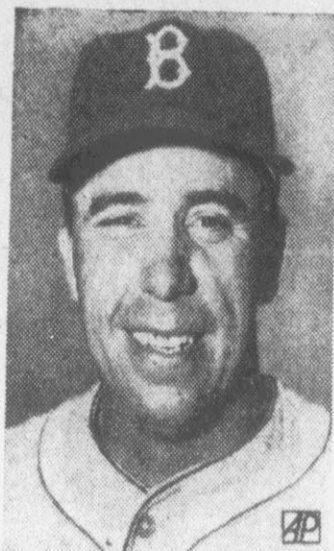

It is a matter of simple mathematics. Not only have the Braves moved up from seventh to an almost assured second place finish in the race for the greatest improvement of any club but they have improved on their 1952 final percentage by 191 points as of now. Not even Brooklyn has done that well although if the Dodgers continue at their present pace they will finish with the best won and lost record since the 1942 Cardinals. They are 58 percentage points better than in 1952 and the two clubs, the Dodgers and Braves, have dominated the league so well that all other clubs but last place Pittsburgh are down from their 1952 paces.

The Phillies are six percentage points off, the Cardinals 19, the Giants 129, the Reds four, and the Cubs 119. The Pirates who couldn't do much but go upward from their frightful 1952 finish are 35 percentage points better at the moment.

Lefty Warren Spahn, one of many key men in Milwaukee's great surge upward, pitched a five-hit 3-1 victory over the Giants for his 19th triumph Friday night and also belted the game's only homer. That put him within one game of a coveted 20th triumph which would make him the first National League pitcher since Carl Hubbell to hit that figure in five different seasons. Spahn also hit two singles. It was his second homer of the year and the other also was hit in the Polo Grounds.

Brooklyn kept up a pace to discourage even the hardest of Milwaukee rooters, staying 9-12 games in front with a 9-8 triumph over Cincinnati in which Peeewe Reese's second homer of the game was the winning margin. Roy Campanella hit his 33rd homer and Carl Furillo his 20th. Furillo was the fourth Dodger to hit 20 or more homers, tying a National League mark set by the 1947 Giants.

Curt Simmons pitched the reviving Phillies to their seventh victory in the last eight games, blanking the Cubs, 5-0, on five hits while Red Schoendienst drove in two runs with a pinch single in the seventh to give the Cardinals a 10-9 victory at Pittsburgh. Richie Ashburn of the Phils hit safely in his 12th straight game and raised his average to .331 third highest in the league.

Early Wynn became the first pitcher to beat the Yankees four times as Cleveland made it two in a row over the champs behind his six-hitter with a 3-2 triumph but the White Sox in second place remained 9-12 games back when the Red Sox edged them, 4-3. Vic Wertz drove in the winning run for the Browns with a fifth-inning triple and they scored four more to make it sure in the eighth as they took their third in a row from the Athletics, 8-3. Mickey Vernon boosted his league leading average to .329 with a homer and two singles.

Al Rosen hit his 34th homer of the season in the triumph over the Yankees in which Wynn yielded only one earned run. Young Don Henry held Chicago to six hits in the Red Sox triumph which was enlivened by some fist swinging by catcher Gus Niarhos of Boston when Al Carrasquel of Chicago and Jim Piersall of Boston tangled in a play at second base in the third. Niarhos thought Carrasquel was going to throw a ball at Piersall who had spiked Carrasquel in his side and tried to hit him but other players broke up the melee.

Physical Exams Interrupt Phant Drills Yesterday

By WAYNE BISHOP

After having the morning practice interrupted by physical exams the Greenville Phantoms came back to a snappy scrimmage session to end the week's work yesterday afternoon.

Coach Bill Kitzell had his defensive first team against the thrusts of the reserves in the afternoon workouts. The defense was spearheaded by Guard Jerry Phillips, Linebacker Billy Arnold and Halfback Bobby Langston.

On the offensive side Right Halfback Joe Taft and Fullback Billy Sermons did most of the ground gaining against the defensive unit. Left Halfback Mitchell Johnson fell victim to the injury jinx again yesterday when he received a cut on his chin which required stitches. Johnson had just recovered from a pulled muscle.

Tommy Key Norris, a sophomore quarterback, has reported for practice and is expected to give more depth to that position. Norris missed last season due to a head injury. The Green Phantoms will continue drills Monday morning at 8 o'clock and then have a scrimmage session Monday night at 7 o'clock at the Rose Athletic Field.

Henry Block, Caden, N.J., apprentice who led the jockeys during the Charles Town meeting, is riding at Atlantic City. He's 19.

Region Five Director
WILLIAMSPORT Pa. — Little League's World Championship has returned to Dixie!
Birmingham, Alabama's fine team representing Region Five, gained a 1-0 victory over Schenectady, N.Y.

here yesterday afternoon in the tightest title contest of the seven played. A capacity crowd of nearly 9,000 watched as righthander Joe Sims pitched a strong one-hitter to secure the victory.
Joey, who put on a display of bubble gum blowing almost as skillful as his pitching was in trouble in only the first inning, but his alert teammates averted a New York threat with some fine defensive play.

Garry McKee walked to open the inning for New York, after Alabama had taken a 1-0 lead in the first half of the inning.
Jim Barbieri bunted past the charging third baseman, but McKee rounded the bag too far and was picked off at second base. Then Barbieri stole second, but was thrown out going for third as the catcher's toss went through to centerfield.

In its first game, Sims pitched his team into the final, as he tossed a five-hitter at Dade City, Fla. in the semi-finals. The score read 4-1. The Alabama lads took the Southwest Pinellas, Fla., in the final contest 2-0 behind the pitching of Bruce Gordon.
Among the celebrities from the baseball world at the final game were Spike Briggs of the Detroit Tigers; Cy Young and Big Ed Walsh, Hall of Fame pitchers; Tommy Richardson, president of the Eastern League; and Charley Segar, representing Commissioner Ford Frick's office.

Champion Seixas Opens His Drive For Tennis Title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP) — Wimbledon champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, handicapped by a knee injury, opens his drive for the U.S. tennis singles championship today in a first rounder against a foe from his own home town, Morton Stern.

The best tennis of the day in the 37 men's and 12 women's matches on the opening schedule probably will be produced when little Ken Rosewall of Australia tangles with southpaw Bernard Bartzan of San Angelo, Tex., but how the top-seeded Seixas fares on his gimpy knee is vital to America's chances of regaining the title won the last two years by Frank Sedgman of Australia.

Third-seeded Gardner Mulloy of Miami, the nation's ranking player for the year because he reached the U.S. final a year ago, drew Hugh Sweeney of Los Angeles; fourth-seeded Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., the 1950 winner, was paired against Mario Llamas of Mexico; sixth-seeded Straight Clark of Pasadena, Calif., drew Steve Potts of Nashville, Tenn.; seventh-seeded Budge Patty of Los Angeles was matched with William Clothier of Valley Forge, Pa., and eighth-seeded Tom Brown of San Francisco played Donald Flye of Tacoma, Wash.

Only scattered action was scheduled in women's singles with Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, the only seeded stars listed for play.

Farmville Squad Works For Jamesville Opener

Coach Charles Tucker's Farmville High School Red Devils have been running through for-both fundamentals and conditioning exercises for nearly two weeks in preparation for its conference opener with Jamesville September 11.
The Red Devils have had very little rough work thus far, however the squad is rounding into shape, and several scrimmage sessions are scheduled for next week.
First team All-Conference center, Jack Allen has been looking good in early drills. The six-foot, two-inch senior will use his 185-pound frame once again this year in helping back up the Farmville line.
Moving from fullback to quarterback is Sigbee Dilda, who has looked good in early drills. Dilda had been working on his passing. Ends Tull

Taylor and Freddy Thorne have been pulling in Dilda's aerials.
Two of the squad's fastest runners are occupying the halfback slots. They are All-Conference Teddy Allen at left half and Jess Joyner at right half. Doing the power running at fullback has been Mack Holmes.
Jimmy Allen, a senior, and Carroll Wooten, a sophomore, have been in the tackle posts. Playing guards are Mark Owens and William Allen.
Coach Tucker stated that B. L. Bateman, Curtis Worthington, Aeron Eastwood, Wilbur Robbins, and Jack Lewis will probably see a lot of action.
Sam Stell is back with the team as assistant coach this year, and Tommy Bullock has been working with the tutoring chores.

Notre Dame Coach May Stir Football Controversy Again

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UP) — The college football controversy which was "straightened" out last winter may be stirred anew today by Coach Frank Leahy's denunciation of the "old days type of football" in store for the coming season.
The Notre Dame coach, speaking at a luncheon held Friday in connection with the Little League baseball championship said "we are playing directly into the hands of the professionals and we had better do something about it."
"Under the old rule, we gave more boys opportunity to play for a longer period of time," he said. "It looks now like we are going back to the old days when the coach would empty the bench in the last few minutes just to give some of the boys a chance to make their letters."
Obviously nettled at the change in the rules which bans the wholesale substitution of players, Leahy said, "when deterioration sets in on college playing standards, the people are going to spend their money to see the pros play instead."
The veteran coach predicted that there would be more injuries under the new rule and also complained that it was "legislation against small boys."

Twin Combination Receives Orders: Report Sept. 10

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Johnny and Eddie O'Brien, the Pittsburgh Pirates' bonus shortstop and second-baseman twin combination, have been ordered inducted into the Army Sept. 10.
The 22-year-old Seattle University graduates will make their last appearance with the Pirates Sept. 6 here against Philadelphia.
Both former college basketball stars, the O'Briens, from South Amboy, N.J., took over steady starting jobs in the Pittsburgh infield this season to become the first twins ever to have played on the same club in the major leagues.
The Pirates lost another infielder today when it was disclosed Paul Smith, Wilkesburg, Pa., rookie first baseman was suffering from a double hernia and would be available only for pinch-hitting duties.

Newsome's Birthday Party Pinpoints Age Situation

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:
The laughable situation concerning the ages of baseball players was pinpointed again at a birthday party for Louis (Bobo) Newsome.
Where Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees admits that he is two years older than it says in the record books, Bobo insists that he is two years younger than the 46 at which he is listed... but the fact remains that on his birthday cake it said "48".
Buddy Parker, whose Detroit Lions are up to defend the National Professional Football League championship this year, isn't claiming the title but he is outspoken in his belief that "We will have an even better team than last year." And from the way Bobby Layne passed as the Lions walloped the college All-Stars, it is easy to believe him.
Speaking of ages, America's top 10 seeded stars in the U. S. National Amateur Tennis Championships starting today show why Australia's 18-year-old whiz kids are such heavy favorites here and in Davis Cup play. The years are catching up to the Yanks when you consider the ages of the top 10 in order: Vic Seixas 30, Tony Trabert 23, Gardner Mulloy 9, Art Larsen 28, Ham Richardson at 20 being by far the youngest, Straight Clark 28, Budge Patty 29 and Tom Brown 31.

The one-platoon system to be used on college gridirons this fall will demand better quarterbacking, according to Indiana Coach Bernie Crimmins.
"The messenger service from the bench to the field has been disrupted," Bernie explains.
And in case you don't think Pennsylvania still is turning out its old quota of college football stars, Michigan State fullback Ewan Sionac and Tennessee fullback Andy Kosar are next-door neighbors in St. Michael, Pa., population 1,829.
J. C. Pollard was watching the recent Saratoga yearling sales and, as the auctioneer chanted "I'm bid four, do I hear five?" Pollard flicked an annoying fly which was buzzing around his ear. "Sold," chanted the auctioneer, "to J. C. Pollard for $5,000."
The moral, of course, is never sweat flies at an auction.

WAITING FOR LINE-UP—Cashier D. V. Clayton and several employees of the Williamston bank which was robbed of well over $18,000 yesterday, are shown waiting to enter the Martin County Court House to identify the bank robbers from a line-up of youths. Clayton and the other workers at the bank pointed out the robbers from the group at first glance.

ROAD BLOCKS—A network of highway road blocks were set up all over eastern North Carolina last night in order to foil any escape attempt by automobile of the remaining bandit who was believed to have the $18,000 taken from the Guaranty Bank of Williamston Friday. The third man in the trio now being held, was captured early today. The heavily armed Patrolmen above are Bill Whitehurst, James Boykin and Corporal C. E. Whitfield.

HELICOPTERS AID SEARCH—A Marine helicopter from the Cherry Point Marine air base helped law enforcement officers yesterday in their search for the bank robbers who held up the Williamston bank. The last of the bandits was captured this morning, but the money has not been recovered. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Entertainment plans for the 1953 Farmers Festival here in Greenville on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 8 and 9, were given additional emphasis yesterday when it was announced that Arthur Bowen and his Bar-X Boys had been signed to perform for the annual event. According to John Barnhill, Entertainment Committee Chairman, the Bar-X Boys are the third featured group to be contracted for this year's Farmers Day. Previously signed have been Grand Ole Opry performer Cowboy Copas and his Oklahoma Cowboys, and Clyde Moody with his Carolina Woodchoppers. Bowen, known as the Backwoods Loverboy, will star in his act, along with comedian Slim Short, the "hilliest hillbilly that ever walked a hill," and the other Bar-X performers. Featured in Bowen's show will be "Myrtle," played by female impersonator Tom Bailey, supported by his brother James Bailey and Slim Short. In an interview yesterday afternoon, Bowen said that the Bar-X Boys, now doing a 3-times-weekly radio show over WOTM, Wilson, had appeared in several states as well as TV and stage spots in New York City. Barnhill said definite scheduled times for appearances of the newly-signed performers will be announced soon.

Kiwanis Club Has Informal Program Treat

At the Kiwanis Club's supper meeting last night it was "autobiography night," and Past Lieut.-Gov. Eli Bloom conducted the historical session. The program was informal and designed to stimulate a better acquaintance among the Greenville Kiwanians. Seven members gave a history of their lives - where they were born, where they came from and how they happened to come to live in Greenville. In order, they were Bloom, Tige Gardner, Judge Dink James, Dr. Elmer Lansche, A. C. Dadlock, Hunter Keck and Berry Bostic.

Quitman and James Earl Strickland were arraigned before a U. S. commissioner in Rocky Mount last night and were ordered held for trial over $25,000 bond each.

Quitman pleaded guilty to bank robbery charges, and James Earl, who did not enter the bank here, pleaded not guilty. They were held for trial Oct. 26 at Washington, N.C. Adrill Strickland was captured five blocks from the bank he and his brother robbed.

He was run down by FBI agent Art Lee and highway patrol Lt. Tom Brown.

Brown said Adrill admitted the holdup and said he had tried unsuccessfully to steal three cars here last night. He said he reached Williamston about 11 p.m. after walking in along a dirt road and a railroad from the woods where his brother was captured yesterday.

After being spotted early today, he was chased about half a block until the two officers closed in on him.

As the chase began, he threw away a pistol used in the holdup. It was picked up from some bushes.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Showing of the movie hit "From Here To Eternity" has been banned throughout the Navy because it is "extremely critical" of Army life. A spokesman revealed Navy officials ruled against the film after deciding it unfairly implied that most soldiers spend their spare time drinking and that officers and non-coms are sadists.

It was considered "derogatory of a sister service and a discredit to the armed services," he said, and was rejected for use on all naval ships and shore stations.

Paradoxically, the Army is showing the movie at its bases even though a Pentagon official said it was "shocked" at the description of military life.

This official said the Army was more or less "stuck" with the film after helping Hollywood make it. It had cooperated in the production, he said, in the hope of "softening" possible criticism of the Army.

The movie was adapted from James Jones' novel of the same name. It deals with life in the peacetime Army in the Hawaiian Islands.

Exchange Club Stages Picnic

The Greenville Exchange Club entertained the coach and members of the club's Little League team at a picnic supper at Elm Street Park last night. Vice-President Ed Harris presided.

The president thanked Coach Neeley James and the players for their good work during the season. Each player and the coach received gifts.
