GRIMESLAND—In a candlelight service in Grimesland Methodist Church on Sunday, August 30, at half after four o'clock in the afternoon, Miss Pansy Sue Edwards became the bride of Lyman Lewis Edwards with the Rev. Noah B. Hill Jr. conducting the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Roy Edwards Sr. and the late Mr. Edwards of Simpson. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyman Edwards of Grimesland.

The organ used was an heirloom, having belonged to the bridegroom's great aunt, Mr. Bennett said "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Thru The Years." For the benediction, he sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Vance Harrington presided at the bride's book and also said the goodbyes.

Others assisting in the house were Mrs. J. R. Godley and Mrs. Roy Edwards, and Misses Jane Edwards, Nell Blount Edwards, Muriel Sugg, Rebecca Ann Pate and Betty Jean Turner.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lyman Edwards entertained the Edwards-Edwards wedding party, members of the immediate families and out-of-town guests at their home near Grimesland after the rehearsal on Saturday night, August 29.

The home was decorated with summer flowers, which were also used on the porch in the living room and dining room.

Greeting the guests at the porch entrance were the hostess and Mrs. Johnnie Briley of Greenville. The bride-elect was presented a bridal corsage of white asters on arrival. Lloyd Pate of Kinston. The table, placed on the porch, was covered with a yellow linen cloth and the centerpiece with the punch bowl encircled with a garland of greens and pastel dahlias.

One end held a crystal bowl filled with white mums and tuberoses and crystal candelabra holding lighted white tapers. A three-tiered wedding cake of green and white topped with a miniature bride and groom graced the other end. Mrs. Harry Tugwell of Manteo served the cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice. Assisting at the table to serve the open-faced sandwiches, ham biscuits, cheese waters and nuts was Mrs. John Adams of Washington.

Members of the wedding party were presented gifts by the bride couple. The bride couple was given a chest for their silver and two place settings in their selected silver pattern by the host and hostess.

Group singing was enjoyed by all with Elbert Bennett leading. Advice was also given to the bride-elect. The hostess presented a wall flower plaque saying "Never Hurry, Never Worry."

She wore a waltz length dress of Nile green net with strapless bodice, matching stole over Nile green satin. Her headdress was a pleated bandeau of matching net and satin. She carried a colonial bouquet of bronze and yellow mums tied with matching ribbon.

Mr. Harry Tugwell of Manteo, uncle of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Charles Elks of Pantego, cousin of the bride, and Billie Goodson of Greenville, and U. S. Coast Guard, friend of the bridegroom.

Playground Will Be High In Sky

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The top floors of new apartment buildings erected in Rio de Janeiro soon may all be children's playgrounds. Mayor Dulcideo Cardoso has appointed a four-member commission to consider such a project.

The measure is prompted by a shortage of parks in the more densely-populated parts of Rio.

Stern Law For Teen-Age Drivers

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Connecticut is considering a sterner policy towards law-breaking teenage drivers. Too many of them says Motor Vehicles Commissioner Charles F. Kelley, are being arrested for reckless driving. Usually, their licenses are suspended for 15 days. Under consideration, said Kelley, is a proposal that they be ordered off the road for one to three years.

Said Kelley: "The teenagers we are after are the absolutely undisciplined and irresponsible, and are fresh and disrespectful."

Pigeon Took Up Residence There

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A pigeon dropped into the United Cigar Store in downtown Youngstown with a couple of buddies to lunch on peanuts spilled on the floor. Manager Lou Unger informed the pigeons they were not wanted around there, so the persistent pigeon's faint-hearted friends left.

But the persistent one hopped behind a magazine rack. Then he found he was stuck there. Clerks saw a hole in the rack but the pigeon stayed on.

After all, you can't starve a guest, so the clerks now put regular rations of peanuts and bread in front of the hole, waiting for the pigeon to decide to leave.

Stadium Seats Open To Choice Of Club Members

Beginning Thursday morning, members of the East Carolina Pirates Club will have the privilege of designating their reserved seats in the college stadium for East Carolina's home football games this fall.

Club President E. E. Rawl Sr., in a letter to club members today, said all Pirate Club members may pick their stadium seats for the coming football season by going by or contacting the athletic office on the East Carolina campus. Club members will have priority on stadium seats for personal selection through September 10.

After that date, sale of season home football games will go on public sale to non-members of the Pirates Club, Rawl said.

In his letter to members of the club, the president said new sales arrangements have been made for Pirate Club members to reserve their seats on that side of the stadium. Those club members who do not designate their selection of seats by September 10 will be assigned their reserved seats in the Pirates Club section at the stadium by the college athletic office.

Rawl added in his letter, "Your season tickets may be picked up at the athletic office any time up to the 19th; however, bear in mind you only have until the 10th to personally select your seats. If, after the 10th, you have not made your wishes known to Dr. Jorgensen, you will be assigned the best possible seats available under your Pirates Club protection; and should you not be able to pick up your tickets before the game on Saturday, September 19th, you may pick up your tickets at the North gate by presenting your Pirates Club membership card."

Out-of-Greenville members of the Pirates club, the letter said, will be assigned their seats in groups according to towns.

Fate Of The Party In The Balance

Deep wounds opened in the Democratic party at the heated National Convention a year ago have not yet healed as many party leaders hoped they might.

It is apparent from the cross-fire already beginning as a preliminary to the mid-September party rally in Chicago, that bitter feelings are still harbored by some of the more conservative and more liberal party leaders as a result of the last campaign.

A few of the Southern Democrat leaders who broke with the Democratic nominees in last year's campaign will not be attending the Chicago meeting. In some instances these men say they have previous commitments and can not attend. In some instances rally committee spokesmen have asserted some of the Southern leaders who bucked the party in 1952 have not been invited to the rally.

The rift in the Democratic party caused by the hot North-South battle in the 1952 National Convention was carried over to the November election as was evidenced by returns. In the past 12 months since the National Convention, the wounds have healed to some extent; but it is likely that they will be reopened next week by radical elements of the Northern wing of the party.

The liberals who insisted on the party loyalty oath at the '52 convention will probably be more determined than ever that the oath should be imposed on every delegation to a national assembly of the party. Those from Southern and border states who lean more to the fundamental principles of the Democratic party, than to the liberalistic teachings of some of the party radicals, are probably more determined now than in 1952 that no such binding oath will be imposed upon them by a minority group within the party.

To be sure, there is time before another presidential election year for the wounds of the Democratic party to heal, provided they are not reopened every 12 months.

The mid-September meeting in Chicago should give an indication of whether the differences between the elements within the Democratic party can be compromised, or whether the liberal wing will demand an unconditional surrender from the more conservative element within the Democratic party.

Dollar Diplomacy For Iran Too

With Iran's new government solidifying its position of power, the United States and Russia are mapping programs with which each hopes to win the friendship of the new government.

Russia is chagrined by the fact that the communists' attempt to gain control of Iran in the Mossadegh-Shah battle failed. Likewise communist attempts thus far to set the Iranian people against the shah have failed.

Now Russia is seeking the back door into Iranian control — through gifts and favors to the new government.

Obviously, the United States is on the inside track with the new Iranian government; but even so, this nation also is seeking to turn favors Iran's way in order to make sure the friendship grows stronger rather than weaker.

Iran needs money badly. It also needs assistance to reinstate its world trade, and to return its priceless oil fields to full production. Such assistance doubtlessly will be forthcoming from the United States.

In spite of the costliness of the dollar diplomacy of the United States, international relations of this country have now reached the point that American friendship to many countries is measured in dollar marks rather than less tangible — but nevertheless more lasting and more important terms.

For the United States to deny Iran dollars, even at the same time of offering it friendship, almost without question would lead to that nation's eventual control by Russia.

SENTIMENT AND COMMON SENSE IN RELIGION
I heard my good friend Dr. Ralph W. Sockman say recently that most people know very little about the Bible as a whole. Their attitude toward the Bible, he said, is the sentimental attitude. They treat it as they do a wedding cake—they break off a little piece and sleep on it.

It is indeed amazing to see the reverence with which the Bible is regarded by many people who never take the trouble to find out what is on the inside of the covers. Many people keep a Bible lying on the living room table, the assumption being that somehow it will bring good luck to the home. It is like the horseshoe which in olden days used to be put above the front door. For others the Bible is an arsenal of proof texts. Still others pick out a verse here and there, memorize these and never seem to relate them to the larger passage of Scripture out of which they were taken.

The word Bible means "library." The Bible is not a book but a collection of books. It is the history of a great people and how God spoke to them through their national experience. Above everything else the Bible is a book of promises, for the word "Testament" means among other things a promise.

Take a sensible attitude toward the Bible, not a sentimental attitude. It is a book—not a piece of wedding cake.

Trying A Businesslike Approach

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—What's good for business is good for the United States!

This phrase of Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's reference to the intimate relationship between national and General Motors prosperity lies behind the Eisenhower Administration's plan to organize a new kind of economic intelligence system, based on periodical reports to the White House by key businessmen and industrialists.

Wilson was not indulging in smugness, selfishness or cynicism with this remark before the Senate Armed Services Committee, although he was severely assailed on that ground. With G.M. spending hundreds of millions annually for labor, raw materials and finished products, the Secretary of Defense was simply uttering an economic truism.

MISUNDERSTOOD OUTBURST—The withdrawal of General Motors from the market as consumer and producer would be a severe blow to Detroit and to hundreds of communities throughout the nation. It would reduce Federal revenues by many billions over a long period. And Wilson, as he has since explained, had in mind the contributions which all industry and business make to the general welfare, not simply his own firm's role.

It is not too widely appreciated, but if any single principle animates the Eisenhower Administration, differentiating it from the Roosevelt and Truman regimes, it is this: misunderstanding outburst by the automobile engineer and executive.

The belated grasp of Wilson's broader meaning may explain why there has been almost no criticism of the Administration's latest proposal to rely on the advice and cooperation of private enterprise interests in framing major policies. The lack of complaint indicates that American business and industry, by the public as well as by the politicians, have been released from a 20-year-old doghouse.

Pirates Club Needs More Members

For those Pitt Countains who want to see good college football at home this fall and at the same time support East Carolina College, membership in the East Carolina Pirates Club are still open.

When the organization was formed last winter its purpose was designated for the support of the entire athletic program at East Carolina.

A charter membership goal of 1,000 members of the club this fall are receiving along with their membership, season tickets to all the home football games at the college. The money from Pirate Club memberships is going not only for the support of the athletic program at the college, but also for the purchase of additional seats which will be in use at the college stadium this fall.

Somebody Told Me

Yesterday I caught Bernie Jenkins while on a flying trip to Greenville and cornered him about his very interesting job. Bernie is one of the several Greenville people who have gone up the ladder in the field of journalism. He's make-up editor of the Washington Post, circulation 205,000, which he says is the third-ranking Washington paper in circulation but first in prestige.

Bernie first became interested in journalism at Greenville high school, where he was editor of the newspaper there, Green Lights, during the school year 1940-41. He was editor of the East Carolina College paper, then called the Teo Echo, twice: 1942-43 and 1946-47.

In Durham Bernie was reporter, sports editor and later telegraph editor of the Durham Sun. From there he took a job in Jacksonville as editor of the weekly there for one year. For four years Bernie was in Wilmington editing the News as a reporter, city editor and finally managing editor. Somewhere in this chain of progress Bernie married Georgia King of Durham and they have two daughters.

As make-up editor it's Bernie's job to place the stories on at least 20 pages and sometimes over 50. This requires skill in selection and the ability to cut stories so they fit in the holes. "My job is making decisions, and that's what I enjoy," he says.

The Post has four editions and for the one that hits the streets the headlines are made larger to attract attention on the street. To make this change, Bernie has to cut every column on the front page to allow for the bigger heads.

In order to get a start on the Post, most men who aspire to be reporters start as copy boys at $35 a week. "And most of them," Bernie says, "have MA degrees." With luck they are promoted up the chain.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

AMERICAN QUISLINGS IN KOREA
(Rocky Mount Telegram)
It is not definitely known yet just how many Americans will refuse repatriation. The Defense Department has estimated about 200. The Chinese Communists have been boasting about as many as 400, although some of these undoubtedly are men in the Chinese sentenced illegally to prison terms for not being "cooperative."

Around Capitol Square

State's Governmental Units Seem More Closely Knit

TOUR—Your reporter spent most of the past week in the mountains with members of the State Highway and Public Works Commission. The itinerary began with a formal meeting of the commission at Asheville at which Col. Williams F. Bailey was elected director of prisons and a new set of rules and regulations governing prison administration adopted. The tour included Fontana, Cherokee, Hendersonville, Old Fort, Black Rock and Boone. The official party was entertained by local chambers of commerce, civic clubs and promotion groups at every stop. The trip did not cost the taxpayers anything and the officials had small personal expenses due to hospitality of the communities. The occasion gave your reporter an opportunity to interview many people in the west, as similar trips to Morehead City and Nag's Head had maintained contacts in the east.

IMPRESSIONS—This report in impressions gained from the attitude and conversations among the people rather than a running news story of happenings. Three commissioners from the central part of the state were not able to make the tour, but Graham and Chief Engineer W.H. Rogers Jr., assumed representation of every section. On three public occasions Governor Umstead made surprise appearances—the formal session and the luncheon at Asheville Thursday and the luncheon at Hendersonville Saturday. That gave the occasion a definite all-state atmosphere.

UNIFIED—The most significant impression is that North Carolina is perhaps more closely knitted as a governmental unit than it has been for some years, despite the obvious political factions and a livelier rivalry among sections and local communities. People in all of the 100 counties, which have been grouped into 12 congressional districts, 14 highway divisions, 21 judicial and 33 state senatorial districts, seem to be thinking more in terms of state interest than for sectional advantage.

RIVALRY—The heavier emphasis on state unity does not deter any county or community from eagerly seeking political recognition and economic progress for itself. There were occasional complaints that some sections had been favored with multiple appointments or had gotten new industries more because of discriminatory favoritism than because of genuine merit. There are many Asheville folks ready to remind all and sundry that Hendersonville got both a special judge and a highway commissioner, and so did Durham, while Asheville got neither. And there are plenty of people in neighboring counties who answer the Asheville complaint by noting that not so long ago that city had a regular superior court judge, two special judges and a highway commissioner.

BALANCED—Another impression is that while North Carolina may have lost the status accorded by national authorities a few years ago as "the best balanced state," it still is pretty well balanced so far as its own activities are concerned. The highway commissioners from the eastern marsh lands and from the western rocky cliffs face much higher construction costs for the same type of road than do the mid-state fellows. At the same time, they recognize that the mid-state area has such heavy concentration of people and industry that dual roads and four lane construction necessary to handle traffic tend to balance the problem. Governor Umstead indirectly admitted that balance in his brief comments to the commission when he commended the Asheville meeting and western tour, and suggested that in the near future similar attention be given to a commission visit to the east.

SUPPORT—There was substantial support for the idea in numerous off-side and off-record discussions among the highway folks themselves. Commissioner June Scarborough of Statesville, for example, was from Commission-er Emmett Winslow of Hertford that it would be necessary to pull plings 75 feet deep to furnish base for a street extension at Elizabeth City. Winslow was just as surprised to hear and see how much it cost to get a mountain out of the way for a road.

POLITICAL—There were some political implications in most of the off-side conversations. Opinion prevails that the people of the western counties will give substantial majorities to the school and hospital bonds in the upcoming election. There is far less certainty as to outcome of the senatorial contest next year, conceded to be a race between ex-Governor Kerr Scott and Senator Alton Lennon. Scott has not fared so well in the mountains in other elections, but he is stronger now. Lennon is not known and

Business Today

Do-It, Don't Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER
At the moment, the only thing hotter than the do-it-yourself idea is the don't-do-it-yourself idea. On one hand, merchants are selling millions of dollars worth of goods to people who paint their own furniture, hang their own wallpaper, build their own rumpus rooms and draw their own pictures.

On the other hand, merchants (often the same ones) are selling other millions of dollars worth of goods to people who don't want to mix their own waffle batter, spin their own pizza pies, bread their own shrimps or measure the ingredients for their own cakes.

The rise in sales of unpainted vanity tables parallels the rise in sales of cake mixes. We may not be the only nation that can charge off in two different directions at once, but we are the only one that can make millions at it.

A housewife will buy a quick-frozen, cooked meal to save herself an hour over the stove; she'll spend that hour laying new linoleum in the breakfast nook. With the money she saves on the linoleum job she probably buys more frozen food. There's a story going around about one woman who bakes her own bread, but who hires a contractor when she wants the ceiling painted. Neighbors are writing anonymous letters to Senator McCarthy about her.

More seriously: A number of large merchandising organizations have been reviewing their position in the do-it-yourself field. The theory has been advanced that, in promoting the sale of unpainted furniture and power tools, they are losing more profitable sales of quality furniture and household articles.

In fact, some manufacturers of finished goods and purveyors of services have complained about the promotion of do-it-yourself items. If there have been any radical decisions on this question, they have escaped this department's attention. Sales of both finished goods and d-i-y materials have both continued to rise, providing doubly good reasons for postponing decisions.

MOST U.S. TIMBER SALES TO SMALL BUSINESSES
Sale of timber from national forests is beneficial to small business, according to the Department of Agriculture.

Of 22,000 individual sales of timber in the year ended July 1, 20,978 were for timber valued at less than $5,000 and 19,000 were for less than $500.

In all, the government sold a record of five billion board feet for $70,616,025.

RESEARCH SPENDING $3.5 BILLION IN YEAR
A total of $3.5 billion was spent in scientific research and development last year, according to a survey by the National Industrial Conference Board. About half this sum was spent by the government and half by industry.

However, private industry carried out 87 per cent of the research, the government 25 per cent, and colleges and universities 8 per cent.

FTC APPROVES CODE FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS
Photographers who make phony "special offers," issue fraudulent coupons or make false claims may find themselves in trouble with Uncle Sam—if they do it in interstate commerce. If they confine their genie's rackets to a state, they have only state or local laws to reckon with.

The Federal Trade Commission has approved a set of trade practice laws designed to thwart shyster studios. Among the practices forbidden is that of telling prospects they have been "specially selected" for a special offer when such is not the case.

Troubles Bring Out The Best

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Nothing brings out the best in men like trouble.

This is what is wrong with mankind—these curious, upright creatures who so often find a horizontal death while seeking peace by fighting wars.

When times are worst, they are at their best. It's been like that since gentlemen first adjusted their differences with stone hammers against each other's skulls. And now entire civilizations are able to destroy each other at a blow, as individual did to individual long ago. Now progress does improve the breed.

As one of the world's oldest teenagers—teen 40 and the grave—I am accustomed to the fact that life sometimes deals the bottom card you don't want from the top of the deck.

It doesn't fit in your hand. Worse, it doesn't fit in your dreams. But you have to play it or get out of the game. To me, and I don't criticize those who have a different idea or even choose a midnight exit, it has always been fun to stay in the game and trade an old disappointment for a new card.

But why do we as a species of life have to stack the deck against ourselves so often? We never get more joy than we do from one another, and one destroyed in anger is one less to share the pleasure with. When Cain killed Abel he not only lost a brother. He set a precedent that diminished a small world, a world no larger yet for all the growth and passions of the centuries.

All the money and all the land on earth cannot give you the fun that people give you. Can a bought acre make you laugh? Can a $100 bill? At 42 I would mortgage myself to a bank for many years back for even a moment of the companionship alive again of a few flesh-and-blood friends—remembered friends who died, for one reason or other, in this deadly business of living.

Who has known loss, and doesn't feel that way? But as toil exercises the muscles of our bodies so does trouble stretch our minds. We grow by loss as well as by gain. Some times we become higher as life erodes the altitude of our ego away.

So many people can look at the human race—priests, philosophers, businessmen and scientists, social or otherwise—and come up with a ready answer. And the world still reels through wrong toward what, we hope, is right. But the only pattern humankind has achieved is that of father and mother and child—the trinity of existence that rules both mouse and man. And rules them.

What a thing man is—depth without height, height without depth: One foot in the hell he makes himself, and does little to change, and the other foot unhappy except on Mt. Everest. A fall and a failure, a reach without reason.

You give a fellow a fair place of peace and he'll go to war to get more. He he'll go, businessman or warrior, male or female. He has always been willing to gamble the safety of the Garden of Eden to try to grab a rocky pasture outside, or buy an apple just to see what kind of worm is in it.

Master speculator, universal dunce, laughter of animals, pitiful prisoner of himself, time, space, and that fourth dimension—God—what a restless thing man is: He can change everything on earth except himself, make rivers run backward, tear down mountains with a molehill mind. But he cannot call back one of his kind who is gone.

Man mouths a cry for eternal peace and is never more industrious than he is while destroying his own kind, then weeps for what he has lost, and those he has lost.

New Dwellings In City Under Way

Permits for the construction of six dwellings and four duplex apartments valued at $70,000 were granted by building inspector George Gardner last month. In addition, permits for two alterations valued at $4,500 was included in the month of August, the monthly report shows.

Commercial buildings. Total new construction for the year now stands at 76 dwellings, 22 duplex apartments and 12 commercial buildings valued at $1,348,000. New construction in the city is running nearly parallel with that of last year, Gardner pointed out.

55 East Carolina Gridders Begin Football Practice

26 Lettermen, 20 Frosh Report For First Drill

Twenty-six lettermen were among the 55 football candidates at the first practice session of the East Carolina College Pirates yesterday morning and afternoon. Twenty of the reporting griders were freshmen.

Under the terrific heat of the morning sun, causthetics were the order for the opening minutes of work. Working in full gear the first day, the boys really felt the heat.

Head Coach Jack Boone then took the backfield members, numbering approximately 25, and gave fundamental drills. Line Coach Jim Malory had the forward wall doing light contact work and blocking. According to Boone, the remainder of the week will be devoted to these exercises.

Morning drills are held each day at 9:30 and afternoon workouts begin at 3 o'clock. Skull practice is held at the College Gymnasium in the evening at 8 o'clock. Each of the daytime workouts is slated to last for about an hour and a half. By the end of the week Coach Boone says that he hopes to have his units together.

Lost from last year's squad, which compiled a six won, two lost, and two tied record, were 14 lettermen. Nine of the lettermen were lost by way of graduation, two entered the service, two were dropped because of grades, and one decided to go into the ministry.

Coach Boone commented that Freshman standout Frank Turner, who left school to enter the ministry, will be greatly missed by the Pirates. Seven other starters—All-Conference and All-State—End Dwight Shoe, Guard Bill McDonald, Tackle Doc Smith, Center Frank Madigan, Halfbacks Iliard Yarborough and Jack Benzie, and Quarterback Sandy Siler—were lost by way of graduation or either by having played up their eligibility. Extra point converter Hawk Grissom and defensive End Red Painter also have played out their college careers.

Earl Smith will help the JV's this year, as well as scout for the varsity Buccaneers. He will assist both Boone and Malory in their coaching chores.

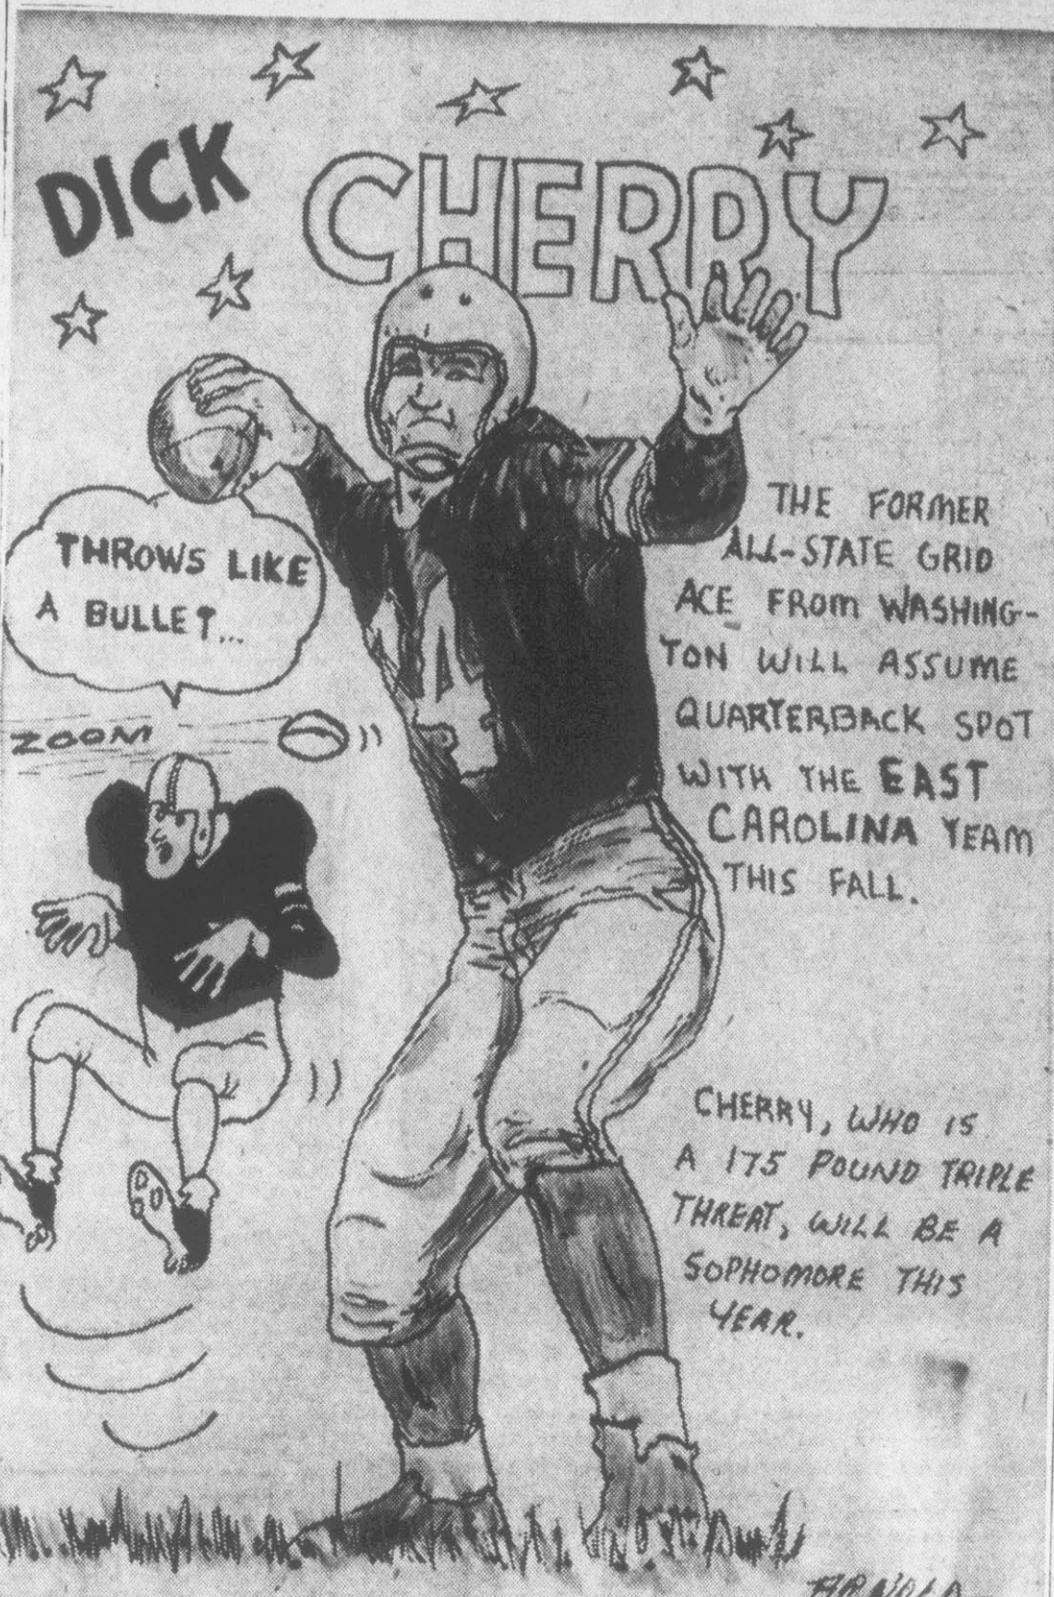

The Pirates will open its 1953 season here September 19 when they meet Wilson State Teachers College from Washington, D.C. Lenoir-Rhyne will play here the following weekend in the first conference game for the East Carolina griders. Lenoir-Rhyne handed the Bucs one of their two losses the only conference loss, last season when they edged ECC 7-6.

In regular season play last year the Pirates opened with a loss to the Naval Air Station in Norfolk, Va. 13-7. The second contest was the Lenoir-Rhyne game and the Pirates came back after the two losses the next week to trounce Naval Apprentice 37-6. In the Bucs' Homecoming game Catawba tied the ECC 7-7.

Playing the next weekend in Elon's Homecoming the Pirates spoiled things for the Christian alumni by coming from behind 4-0 and going to win 25-9. Western Carolina's Homecoming was fouled up by the Bucs, who won 21-7. Coach Boone and Clyde Biggers used everything but the bench in walloping Guilford 41-0.

The true toe of Hawk Grissom gave the Pirates a 22-19 decision over Appalachian Grissom's field goal was the deciding factor in that game. Traveling down to Stetson University in Florida for the first time, the Pirates scored two TD's late in the final period to tie the Hatters 19-19 and spoil another homecoming.

By virtue of their overall season play the East Carolina griders were invited to play in the Lions Bowl in Salisbury. Clarion State Teachers College left a smear on the Buccaneer record as they won 13-7.

Dodgers Collect 17 Hits To Wallop Cardinals 12-5; Milwaukee Braves Trail By Eleven Full Games

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP)—The high-riding New York Yankees blithely turned to making plans for the World Series today now that they have just about snuffed out the last flickering pennant hopes of the Chicago White Sox.

Whatever forlorn hopes the Sox may still have been cherishing were practically annihilated Tuesday night when Mickey Mantle's homer and Johnny Sain's clutch relief hurling gave the Yankees a 12-5 win over the Sox before 45,003 always-hopeful fans in Chicago.

The arc-light victory gave the Yankees a two-to-one triumph in the crucial series and boosted their league lead to a whopping 9 1/2 games. Moreover, it reduced the "magic number" for the Yankees to 15 — they can clinch the pennant by winning 15 of their remaining 24 games.

In that commanding position, Manager Casey Stengel was frankly eyeing his World Series strategy today as the Yankees moved into St. Louis for a series with the last-place Browns.

Stengel indicated that the series is what's on his mind now when he said that veteran Allie Reynolds would start tonight's game against the Browns. It's a long-expected move, a step in the re-conversion of Indian Al from a bullpen ace, which he's been most of the year, back into a starting pitcher who can handle the same brilliant role he did in last year's World Series.

Whitey Ford, a leading candidate for the job of pitching the opening game of the series, was Stengel's nominee in Tuesday night's playoff battle with the Sox and he emerged with his 16th victory. However, he needed some brilliant help from the veteran Sain to gain it.

Phil Rizzuto's two-run single in the fourth inning and Mantle's 17th homer in the seventh had given Ford a 3-1 margin, but he was derailed when the Sox loaded the bases with none out in the seventh. Sain came on and retired the side with only one run scoring to preserve the victory. Virgil Trucks was the loser.

That was the only night action in the major leagues, but the chief drama game saw the Dodgers go on a 17-hit spree to whip the Cardinals 12-5, and go 11 full games ahead of Milwaukee in the National League race. The "magic number" for the Dodgers now is 13.

For once, the Bums didn't get any homers but Pee Wee Reese and Jackie Robinson each whacked a double and three singles to lead the assault. Preacher Roe pitched the route for Brooklyn to gain his 10th, and perhaps oddest, victory of the season. Roe served up five, count 'em home run balls, but very thoroughful: served every one of them with the bases empty.

Roe is a candidate to open the World Series, too, and Dodger manager Charley Dressen showed that, like Stengel, he's thinking about the series when he remarked, "aw, four of those homers would have been just fly ball outs in Yankee Stadium."

The Dodgers open a two-game series with Milwaukee tonight that could be Milwaukee's last chance. It's Russ Meyer hurling for the Dodgers tonight against, probably, Warren Spahn.

In other National League games Tuesday, the Giants beat the Cubs, 10-9, when De Fondy's error set up an unearned run to settle a slugfest which had seen homers by Ralph Kiner, Roy Smalley, and Bubba Church of the Cubs and Dusty Rhodes of the Giants.

In American League games, Al Rosen clouted his 36th homer and Early Wynn fanned 10 batters in gaining his 16th win as the Indians beat the Red Sox, 13-3; and Ray Herbert's relief pitching led the Tigers to a 5-3 win over the A's, despite Gus Zernial's 36th and 37th homers for the A's.

Promoters Of Pro Tennis Offer Connolly Big Money

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UP)—The professional tennis promoters are waving a $50,000 bundle under the pert, tipped-up nose of little Maureen Connolly and everybody in tennis believes — and her distraught rivals hope — that she'll grab it after winning the U.S. amateur title again.

There is a distinct probability, too, that the winner of the men's singles title in the championship currently under way will be lured into professional ranks. The only exception would be Tony Trabert, who, according to pro informants, still needs the big buildup obtainable in amateur tennis to ultimately lure dollars through the indoor turnstiles.

But when Maureen would be worth the heavy sugar, and her opponents are praying that she takes it.

For the chunky little doll from San Diego has dominated women's tennis of late with all the ease of a weight-lifter learning to bend pretzels. As example, if she wins the U.S. title this week, it will be her third in a row and her second straight Wimbledon-U.S. grand slam.

This year, as added evidence, she took the Australian and South Australian championships, the French championship, the Swedish title, the U.S. clay court and also won at Kent, La Jolla and Essex. Everybody still is wondering how she lost the Italian title to Doris Hart, for her only setback.

One of the hurdles she may have to take in the current championship is a new factor since her rise to power. This obstacle is Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont who held the title three times and is making a comeback this year after two years on the sidelines. Many of the experts predict that Mrs. Dupont has the deep, angled game to possibly upset Little Mo.

From here it looks like wishful thinking.

Both are in the same half of the draw, which means that if she gets past Mrs. Du Pont she probably still will have to face Doris Hart, the titan of the other bracket, in the finals. Little Mo walloped Dan-

Wrestling Card Features 2 Title Matches Tonight

Two titles will be at stake tonight when the weekly wrestling card is run off at the New Enterprise Warehouse. The three-match program begins at 8:30 p.m.

Vicious and malicious "Red" Roberts will defend his title against challenger Joe Tangaro. Roberts is the junior heavyweight champion of the Southern States.

The Negro heavyweight champion of the world, Big Jack Clayborne, also risks his title here Wednesday night. The rugged Hollywood, Calif., giant will meet Buddy Jackson, a leading contender for the title. Jackson weighs 215 and hails from Columbia, Ohio.

Both of the title matches, according to official regulations, must be scheduled for two best of three falls with a 60-minute time limit. The matches will be conducted under the national association's rules.

Besides the double-main events there will be an attractive supporting match in the preliminary. Tinker Todd, the clever contortionist of the ring, will meet Jim "The Bull" Austeri in a 30-minute affair.

Hollywood Stars Sandy, Durando Do Battle In 10-Round Fight Tonight

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Dusky Randy Sandy and Ernie (The Rock) Durando were fit and ready for their 10-round middleweight test at the St. Louis Arena tonight.

It will be a big fight for both of them but for different reasons. Sandy, a 21-year-old scrapper who is working on a winning streak of five straight fights, has plenty to gain with a victory over the hard-punching ring-wise Durando.

The New York Negro, who started as a pro just two years ago, has dropped only one decision in 14 fights, that one a knockout by Willie Troy. If he can add Durando's name to a hit parade that includes victories over men of the caliber of Lee Sala and Tuzo Portugez, he will move a long step up the ladder to a championship shot.

Durando, starting the year as a fourth ranking contender has since lost key encounters to Joe Giardello and Paddy Young. Those defeats dropped him from the top 10 middleweight contenders and left much ground to be regained.

Although both are from the New York area, Durando from Bayonne, N.J., they have never met before and their styles should add up to a fine fight for a national TV audience.

Sandy has had 53 professional fights in a career that takes in eight of his 26 years. He won 35, drew three and lost 15.

Titles At Stake Today As Service Marksmen Shoot

CAMP PERR, O. (UP)—The Marine Corps Cup and Scott Trophy were at stake today as service marksmen raised their sights in the second day's shooting of the national high-power rifle championships here.

In Tuesday's firing, M-Sgt. Maxim R. Beebe, U.S. Marine Corps of San Diego, Calif., led the race for the service rifle division and won the Navy Cup with a score of 98 out of a possible 100.

P. M. Sawyer of Dayton, O., who led the field in the sporting rifle division with a score of 98, lost out to Beebe in a shootoff as he failed to match Beebe's 10 shots in the bull's eye within the bull's eye. Sawyer placed seven.

The junior championship race was led by Richard Roberts of Toledo, O., with a score of 99. Mrs. Alice Bull of Seattle, Wash., led the women's field with a 95 score.

The two-a-day drills ended yesterday with the start of school today. The Green Phantoms will practice under the lights tonight at 7 o'clock.

Phantoms Put On Finishing Touch

By WAYNE BISHOP
Coach Bill Kittrell sent the Greenville Phantoms through a rugged practice yesterday at the NYA Center, as he put the finishing touches on the offense for Friday night's home game against Wilson.

Two Wake Forest College freshmen football players helped Kittrell in the drills yesterday. They were Skippy Cswaykus and Charley Kittrell, both just out of the service.

Cswaykus put the squad through a long and rigorous calisthenics drill in the morning and then helped coach the backs in the afternoon.

In the afternoon Kittrell worked with the linemen while Cswaykus and assistant Coach Jack Benzie drilled the backfield.

A brief scrimmage wound up the day's work. The scrimmage consisted mostly of practicing pass patterns, with Quarterbacks Bobby Nunn and Jerry Drum hitting the ends and halfbacks with their passes.

The two-a-day drills ended yesterday with the start of school today. The Green Phantoms will practice under the lights tonight at 7 o'clock.

Concern Revealed Over Time Devoted To Video

CHICAGO (UP) — A Northwestern University expert says parents and teachers are worried about the increasing amount of time school children spend watching television.

The parents and teachers are seeking ways to influence children to select better programs and leave more time for reading, said Dr. Paul Witky.

Witky is professor of education and director of the university's psycho-educational clinic who has just made his fourth annual study of television's influence on the habits of children.

Elementary pupils, he said, now average 22 hours a week television viewing compared to an hour a week in 1950. High school students watch TV 17 hours a week compared to 14 hours three years ago.

Might Affect Recreation

Witky said parents and teachers fear that excessive time spent watching television will "influence reading and study habits adversely" and cause youngsters to read less and "choose materials of inferior quality and doubtful value."

"Moreover," he said "some parents and teachers believe that excessive interest in TV may divert the child from participation in wholesome recreation and in desirable physical activities."

Witky's observations resulted from a study of the TV habits of 8,000 elementary and high school pupils and their parents and teachers in the Chicago area.

Twenty-eight per cent of the teachers and 30 per cent of the parents fear that TV might ultimately result in nervousness, lack of other recreation, and disinterest

Educational Programs

Thirty-eight per cent of the parents and 34 per cent of the teachers said children in elementary schools read less now than before television.

Many asked for more educational programs and the presentation of more children's programs at favorable evening hours when television is at its peak.

Parents asked for fewer murder, western, crime, mystery and horror stories, but asked for more programs showing circus acts, zoo animals, kindergarten classes, and comedy.

Teachers favored more current events, music, travel, history and literature, while parents asked for better movies more music, education, drama and history.

Up to Parents

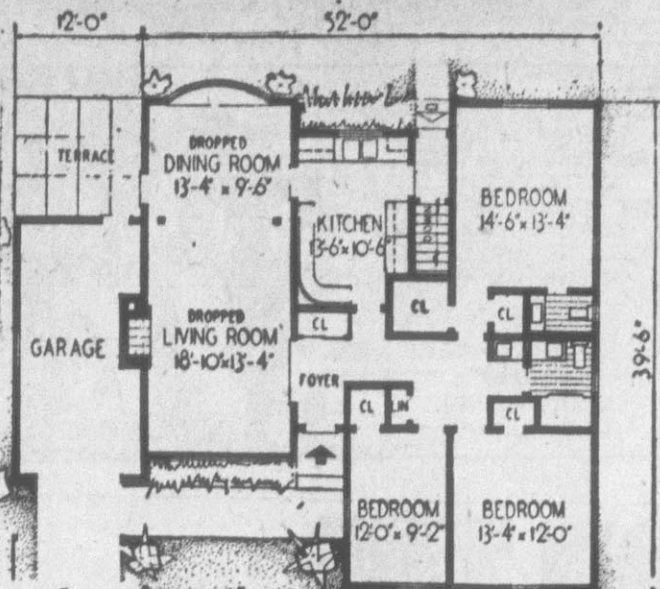

The pupils themselves also offered suggestions. High school students asked for more humor, drama, musical program and new movies. Younger pupils favored comedy, cartoons, science and dramatization of favorite books.

Witky offered parents and teachers some suggestions for meeting the problem.

He said they should offer boys and girls abundant opportunities for varied play activities and creative pursuits. Parents, he said, should suggest effective ways of budgeting time and how to establish criteria for selecting TV programs.

Both the parents and teachers should discuss interesting books with children and try to relate favorite TV programs to good reading, he added.

Lonely Carolina Coastal Area Is Rapidly Becoming Tourist's Goal

By WILLIAM D. HALL
United Press Staff Correspondent
BUXTON, N. C. (U.P.) — This once-lonely outpost in the Atlantic, one of the few undeveloped areas along the coast, is rapidly awakening to a booming tourist business.

Only two years ago a trip down the colorful outer banks of North Carolina to the famed Cape Hatteras lighthouse and the beautiful fishing grounds was for the more adventurous traveler only.

There were two ways to reach the settled part of the island. One was a three-hour ferry ride across the open water of Pamlico Sound from the mainland to the fishing village of Hatteras on the southern tip of the island.

New Road

The other lay along a deep-rutted sand trail from Oregon Inlet south to Rodanthe where a paved road began, although it was often washed out when an angry sea washed over the narrow strip of sandhills. The wrecks of ships, some of them early sailing vessels, still line the route.

But now a hard-surface road reaches all the way from Oregon Inlet to Hatteras. This combined with rapid ferry service at the inlet, has contributed greatly to the budding tourist business here.

The tourist finds modern cottages and restaurants where once only limited facilities catered to hardy fishermen who came to fish in the Gulf Stream and the surf off famous Cape Point.

National Park

Another feature attractive to the vacationer is establishment by the U.S. Park Service of the nation's first seashore national park.

The Park Service now owns 13,000 acres of the narrow strip of sandy waste-land and forests and plans to acquire another 20,000 acres, all of which will be kept in its natural state.

For the islanders, the national park development is a mixed blessing. Many of them own land which eventually will be bought up by the Park Service, land which they feel they should be allowed to develop to their own advantage.

But the Park Service maintains that this is the only strip of beach along the Atlantic coast not overcrowded with commercial development and should be retained for the general public.

Land Value Rises

The national park should work to the advantage of those who are able to retain their land, since it will eliminate the possibility of overcrowding and make this area more attractive to the vacationer who is seeking to "get away from it all."

Land values have increased accordingly. George Fuller, who owns a small group of summer cottages, said his tax rate had increased 15 times in two years.

The islanders, most of them descendants of ship-wrecked sailors who still speak with a strong British accent, are rapidly awakening to the possibility of a better income from tourist dollars than they

Recruiting Office Sets New Schedule

New recruiting schedules for Greenville and Washington were announced yesterday afternoon here by SFC A.G. Atwood, Army Recruiting Sergeant.

Some interesting facts...

for the man who thinks
"all good gasolines are about the same!"

This is such a common idea in people's minds, that you may be interested to know that it never was true... and isn't now!

Take a minute now to read why this is so... and you may be on your way to getting more for your gasoline money for years to come.

Here's the story... short and sweet!

First, it is true that all reputable gasolines today are good products and good value for your money.

Second, it is true that "premium" gasolines, at slightly higher cost, do give added performance values in most cars.

But... it is not true that all "premium" gasolines give the same amount of extra value for the higher price. Differences, in fact, are surprisingly great in many cases.

And... it is also true that Esso Extra gasoline meets the highest standard of all-round, year-round performance quality that exists!

Proof? It starts by taking these eight performance qualities which automotive engineers agree are basic in importance to a good gasoline.

1. Sheer Power;
2. High Anti-Knock;
3. Long Mileage;
4. Clean Engine Operation;
5. Quick Starting;
6. Fast Warm-Up;
7. Hot Weather Anti-Vapor-Lock;
8. Cool Weather Anti-Stalling.

Using this "yardstick" Esso Extra is tested scientifically for all these qualities against the best competing brands. And time after time in these tests Esso Extra meets the highest standard of overall year-round performance quality.

So... when you pay a little extra for a premium gasoline why not see your Esso Dealer?... why not get the most popular and largest-selling premium gasoline in the area served by Esso Dealers?... why not get all the extra benefits that await you all year 'round at the Esso Extra pump? That's what "Happy Motoring" really means! See your Esso Dealer today and regularly!

Esso Extra meets today's highest standard of year-round gasoline performance!

SYNOPSIS

Philip Haven's niece, Libby was missing from the house when Philip returned home to Connecticut after a long absence in Mexico. Libby had left a note in her room urging the family not to worry, promising they'd hear from her soon. Her cousin Kit and Hugo Cavanaugh, an attorney, once devoted to Kit but now Libby's swain, start out to find the missing girl. They visit the meagre New York apartment of Tony Wilder, a classically handsome young man of whom Libby had become enamoured. But Tony, like Libby, is nowhere to be found. They proceed to the splendorous home of Eleanor Oaks, a bizarre and terrified lady, who seems greatly agitated when Kit suggests that Tony and Libby may have eloped. Samuel Pedrick, a tall macabre figure, is present as they chat. Her search fruitless, Kit returns to the Connecticut house. Hugo tells her that he is a wealthy figure in the New York underworld. Late that night Kit discovers a light left burning in the kitchen, but reaching it she finds the room empty, the kettle singing merrily on the stove, a window open, a garden ladder reposing beneath the window of Libby's room.

CHAPTER NINE

KIT RAN to the window of the empty study and thrust her head and shoulders over the sill. The stars were bright and there was a slice of moon low in the sky. The lawn, the sycamore, the stone walls—you could see clean to the edge of the orchard. Nothing moved. There was no one in sight. Kit shut and locked the window and started for the stairs fast. Mounting, she slowed. Philip might have left his window open, but he couldn't have placed the chair against the door from the inside. Undoubtedly someone had broken into the study. Her uncle was tired and needed sleep, but she'd have to get someone to help her make the rounds and see forbid." At his expression, she the middle of it. Lying on the white rug, beyond the foot of the bed was what looked like a decapitated human head, the power mower awoke her. It was William guiding the new machine over the grass; just as later he would go for a 10-mile walk for his health and after that take Miriam for a drive in the big car, whether her uncle wanted it or not. At least, that was William's usual routine when he came to Denfield on weekends. Routine? Nothing was routine now. Dressing hastily, she went downstairs. George had gone back to New York. He had left a message with the maid saying that he'd call Kit later. Hugo had probably gone, too. He wasn't anywhere around. Evidently the intruder of the night before had not returned. Philip was in his study working. She would tell him about last night as soon as his typewriter stopped pounding. She was drinking coffee on the porch when William came tramping dolefully into the house with a tale of broken bushes and nurserymen. "Those bushes should be charged to them. They should be made to pay." Kit said: "For heaven's sake, William, who cares about a few bridal wreaths? There are masses of them anyhow."

"Not the bridal wreaths," William said, "the rhododendrons, under Libby's window." Kit was outside in record time. They went around to the west wing. "See?" William waved. He was right. Some one had plunged roughly through the thick planting of rhododendrons, directly under Libby's window, the one to the north. Branches hung brokenly. Staring at the crushed leaves, the fresh breaks, Kit was puzzled. Philip's study was at the other end of the house. You might have expected damaged shrubbery outside the window there if someone had jumped through it last night, but here—she pushed rhododendron branches aside. In the soft earth, a little out from the wall, there were two deep indentations. They had been made by a ladder. The ladder was there on its side 10 feet farther along. William said: "I told you so. It was those nurserymen. They broke those valuable bushes and they should be made to—" "Beg pardon, mister?" One of the nurserymen had approached, unheard. He had come for the ladder; the rest of the dead wood on the apple trees at the edge of the orchard had to be pruned. The man, Joe Gauntlet, had put the ladder where it now was before leaving yesterday. He looked at the ladder. "Yes, I put it here—but not the way it is now. The other side was up. Someone must have been fooling around with it after we went, that's how the bushes got broken. Yes sir, someone stood that ladder up against that wall and broke them branches. Not me."

A ladder against the house in the night, a ladder that must from the marks in the ground, have rested under Libby's window. Kit ran inside and up the stairs with William at her heels. Miriam heard them and hailed William. She wanted him to take the car and go to the drug store and get her new medicine. "I phoned the druggist and it's ready." "Just a minute, aunt," William called back. "There's something that needs attention—" Miriam said: "I need your attention—now. My water pitcher's empty and I want it filled." William stood still. He had always seemed devoted to his demanding—and perhaps wealthy— aunt. Swinging around the end of the stair railing, Kit caught a glimpse of his face. It was livid. He went toward Miriam's room, his head bent, his shoulders slumped. He looked as though he could wring Miriam's neck. Interesting. Kit had no time for it then. She ran on to the end of the hall and around the jog and opened Libby's door. The north window was down, the one below which the ladder had rested and nothing seemed to have been disturbed. She could no longer smell the perfume but the air was stuffy. Kit started across the floor and stood stock-still in

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARUTNER, AP Real Estate Editor

The do-it-yourself movement, ordinary household chores and home workbench hobbies are going high-brow. It seems that the home craftsman doesn't have a complete workshop without a library. Bookstores and news stands are stocked with literature telling the handyman how to do everything, including how to buy another house when he runs out of room for improvement. This supply of brains for our brown is so extensive that Business Week magazine recently called the attention of industry in general to the number of publications which are enticing us amateurs to make trips to the local hardware store, paint store, building supply house and what not. One of the most sensible of the new books, which has come to our attention, is "The Home Owner's Complete Guide to Remodeling" by Hubbard Cobb (Houghton Mifflin Co.). You'd think that individual houses vary so widely that a practical book on remodeling would be next to impossible. But Cobb has done so much work around his own house in Connecticut that he has a sixth sense for information of use to others. His book is easy to read, because he writes exactly as he talks. "Power Tools for the Home Craftsman" by Edwin G. Hamilton (McGraw Hill Book Co.) is especially timely with basements and garages now humming with machinery. What power tool to buy first, and why, how to use it and what you can do with it are subjects that make Hamilton's book a valuable contribution to the amateur. "Household Mechanics" by Earl L. Bedell and Ernest G. Gardner (Grosset & Dunlap) has been out for some time now, but certainly deserves notice. For fundamental care and repair of the home, it would be hard to beat this volume as a handbook and guide. Henry Lionel Williams of Sherman, Conn., who earns his living rebuilding old houses and old furniture, has written "The Calendar Guide to Home Repair" (Simpsons-Boardman Books). He outlines a year-round weekly program for home maintenance, which he says can save you at least 60 percent on costs, while you spend an hour or two a week on upkeep chores. Williams contends that preventive maintenance is as important to your house as preventive medicine is to you.

"How to Build your Own Garage" (A.A. Wyn, Inc.) is a book that ought to find a wide audience. So many small homes have been built without garages that garage building is booming. Philip H. Scheller, the author, is technical editor of the Family Handyman magazine. After you get all the work done, which is outlined in these books, and you're looking for new fields to conquer, take a look at "How to Buy a House" by Frazier Forman Peters (Garden City Books). This is a popular reprint of the author's "Buying a House Worth the Money" (Little, Brown). It's a sound companion to Walter Rostenberg's "House for Sale" (Stravon Publishers), which tells how to sell a house. And if you would like to get away from all of this, see "One Million Islands for Sale" by Robert Froman (Duell, Sloan and Pearce). It covers all the islands you can buy along the coasts and in the lakes and rivers of both the United States and Canada.

Many Cases Heard By Superior Court

A plea of nolo contendere was entered today by Ronald Ned Crawford, 24-year-old Pitt County man indicted in the knife-slaying last month of a Greenville youth at a service station just outside of town.

Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, in a ruling of manslaughter, ordered that Crawford be confined to a state prison for a period of not less than 12 nor more than 15 years.

Crawford's plea came at about 10:45 this morning following a grand jury bill of indictment returned yesterday. He was sentenced in the slaying of 18-year-old Frank Braxton on July 26.

The court disposed of other cases in Tuesday's session as follows:

James Oscar Wilks pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking, entering and larceny and was given two years on the roads, the sentence to run concurrent with one now being served from a Farmville court judgment.

Hattie Brown was sentenced to 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of the costs by next Monday, on a jury verdict of guilty of attempted assault. Their action reduced the severity of the original charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Judgment was suspended for Eddie Thurlow Albert, charged with abandonment and non-support, on his plea of guilty to non-support. The judgment was conditioned on a settlement by the defendant and his wife and on his payment of the costs.

Charles W. Horton was ordered confined to jail for three months and assigned to the roads upon his plea of guilty to a forgery charge. The sentence was ruled to begin at the expiration of a present sentence now being served from a Wake County court.

Jury verdicts of "not guilty" were returned in the following cases: Rosa Lee Sessom, charged with possession for the purpose of sale and sale of non-tax-paid whiskey; and Woodrow Taft, charged with carnal knowledge of a minor.

The grand jury returned true bills in the following other cases: Charged with breaking, entering, and larceny; Leroy Walston, Fred Lee Leggett; Jack Dail, charged with embezzlement; Dalton W. Bailey, charged with larceny; and David Chadwick, charged with murder.

Edward Hunter, 46-year-old Negro of the Venters Crossroads section, was sent to the state prison for "not less than 12 nor more than 15 years" in Superior Court here yesterday.

Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, presiding, entertained Hunter's plea of guilty to manslaughter in the recent death of Sylvester Phillips, Negro of the same section.

Evidence was presented in the case with Hunter agreeing to proceed without benefit of attorney.

The defendant's version of the shooting at Hosen Adams' house near the crossroads differed with that of five other witnesses who said they had been at the house at the time. Hunter testified an altercation had ensued during a card game and that Phillips had "come at me" with a knife.

The other witnesses disclaimed knowledge of there having been a card game. At least two said Hunter had entered the front door, fired a pistol, and backed out of the door.

Phillips, wounded over his left ear, was carried to the hospital where he died the following night.

In other cases heard in Tuesday's session, Bruce Cox was sentenced to six months on the public roads for resisting arrest and 30 days each in two separate cases of drunkenness, the two terms to run concurrently.

Leroy Walston was sentenced to two years in jail on a plea of guilty to breaking, entering and larceny with a reduction to 18 months on prompt payment of restitution for goods taken.

A true bill has been returned by the grand jury in the case of David Chadwick, 22-year-old Kinston Negro, accused of fatally shooting William Stanley Gorham of Greenville last June.

Trial was postponed until later this week on request of Defense Attorney Jesse Jones who was called out of town due to illness in his family.

Dr. Marshall To Attend Session

Dr. W. E. Marshall, professor of social science at East Carolina College, will attend the national convention of the American Political Science Association in Washington, D. C., September 10-13.

Leaders from all over America attend these meetings to discuss important problems of national importance. Henry Cabot Lodge of Boston, Mass., is to be the principal speaker. Belt's Tobacco Price Averages In Slight Drop RALEIGH (UP)—Average fluctuated to tobacco prices dropped slightly from Monday's season records on the Eastern, Border and South Carolina belts yesterday, but were well above the 1952 opening day on five Sandhills markets which began season sales.

Monday's sales set records for this year on the Eastern, Border and South Carolina belts. The Eastern Belt sold 12,224,442 pounds at an average price of $54.80 per hundred 54 cents above the previous high. The other two belts sold 10,465,729 pounds for an excellent average of $59.45 per hundred with the border markets averaging $60.06.

Bidding was less active on the Eastern Belt yesterday and prices dropped $1 to $3 per hundred pounds in most cases. The largest declines occurred for medium to lower quality marketings.

Eastern Belt volume was fairly heavy at most points. A small increase was shown in the percentage of nondescript offerings. Poor to good leaf, fair lugs, low primings and nondescript made up around 75 per cent of the sales.

Price declines were only $1 per hundred in most cases on the Border and South Carolina belts. There were several small increases and a large number of grades were unchanged. Volume was heavy on some markets but some of the small auction centers reported light sales.

The increased proportion of low lugs, low cutters and nondescript lowered the general quality. Principal offerings were poor to good leaf, low and fair lugs, low and fair-cutters and nondescript.

The five Sandhills markets of Aberdeen, Carthage, Ellerbe, Piquary-Varina and Sanford recorded a practical top of 69 per hundred in the opening day of sales.

General averages were estimated at $50 to $55 compared with $49.64 on opening day last year.

Quality was a little lower than last year and volume was medium to fairly heavy by markets. All grades averaged higher than last year except top qualities.

Demand was especially good for smoking tobaccos with increases ranging from $1 to $17 per hundred pounds with half of the gains from $6 up. The other half amounted to $1 to $5.

Nondescript, low and fair quality primings and low lugs showed the most improvement. Cutters were $1 to $2 under the previous year. Highest price paid by a company was reported as $75 a hundred while the lowest was $2.

Considerably more nondescript and priming; lowered the general quality but the percentage of cutters increased. There was less leaf, smoking leaf and lugs this year. Principal offerings consisted of low and fair quality primings, nondescript, fair and good lugs.

Receipts of the Stabilization Corp. under the government loan program were estimated at one to three per cent of the baskets offered. Last year, 14 per cent of gross sales was delivered to the corporation on opening day.

Farmville Market Looks For Two More Full Sales

FARMVILLE—The Farmville tobacco market through its sales yesterday has established a season's average of $53.30 for 5,368,972 pounds of leaf sold.

Yesterday's sale saw 449,210 pounds sold for $275,858.96 for an average of $52.50.

Sales Supervisor Fred C. Moore said that mostly tips and leaf were offered on the Farmville market yesterday, with the quality fair.

Sales today were expected to run over 500,000 pounds with full sales anticipated for Thursday and Friday of this week.

Load of tobacco after load were being unloaded in Farmville's warehouses for the closing sales this week, the supervisor reported.

City Treasurer Can 'Look Back'

W. C. HARRIS
Observes 21st Anniversary In Post

By HOWARD LINDSAY
Reflector Staff Writer

W. C. Harris has seen eight mayors come and seven go in the last two decades since his appointment as treasurer for the city of Greenville.

Yesterday marked the 21st anniversary of the active Pitt countyman's selection as holder of the city's purse.

"A lot of things have changed in town since those days," Harris said yesterday. He recalled that operation of the city was "pretty much of a small affair when I first went in."

By way of contrast, the treasurer's name will go on more than $400,000 in city general fund expenditures anticipated this year. Back in the early 1930's, the general fund hardly was more than $50,000.

A life-time resident of the county, Harris returned to Greenville in 1919 after service with the army during World War I. Prior to that time, he had resided in Farmville.

Taking a post with the National Bank of Greenville, he remained with this firm until 1924 when he went into the insurance business.

In 1932, he was notified by E. C. Flanagan, mayor at that time, of his appointment by the council to the office of city treasurer.

During his faithful service with the city, Harris has kept up his insurance interests. In addition to maintaining his own agency, he recently has been made secretary-treasurer of the Pitt county branch of the Farmer's Mutual Fire Insurance Company here.

A graduate of the old Winterville high school, Harris studied law for a time at Wake Forest College and passed the North Carolina bar examination in 1917 prior to entering the army.

In 1918, he was married to the former Miss Eva Berry of Elizabeth City. They have two children, W. C. Harris Jr., of Racine, Wis., and Mrs. Joseph S. Lennon.

Plans For Farmers Day Parade Readied

The Exchange Club has announced that the Farmers Day parade will form at 2 p. m. Wednesday, September 9, at Dickinson avenue and 10th street, near the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

The parade will start at 3 o'clock. It will move down Dickinson avenue to Five Points and thence north on Evans street to the National Guard Armory near the courthouse and disband there.

The Pope Field Air Force Band will lead the parade. Bands from several neighboring towns will participate in the Farmers' Day parade.

The float that represented North Carolina in President Eisenhower's inaugural parade will be in the parade. Other floats in the parade will be sponsored by various stores and manufacturers. All local clubs and other organizations are invited to enter floats.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the three best floats entered. First prize is $60, second, $40, and third, $20.

Information about the parade may be obtained from Ed Harris, phone 4636, and Robert S. Moye, phone 3547. The Exchange Club is making arrangements for the parade. Other clubs have other assignments.

The beauty contest will be held the night of Tuesday, September 8, preceding Farmers' Day.

Dislikes Onions; Hailed To Court

OTTAWA (UP)—Milton Little, 17 was brought into court on a charge of creating a disturbance at the Central Canada Exhibition.

When asked for an explanation Little said: "I just don't like onions on my hamburgers."

He was fined $10 and costs.

THIRD TRY
COLUMBUS, Ind. (UP)—Elmer Dean, 67, and Mrs. Anna Dean, 32, applied for a marriage license for the third time Tuesday. They were married and divorced from each other twice previously.

Red Oak News

Over 100 people attended a shower in honor of Miss Jean Jones and Mr. Hubert Garris at the Red Oak Community Center last Friday evening. The hostesses were Mrs. James Allen, Mrs. Jarvis Tripp and Mrs. B. L. Tyson.

The building never looked prettier than it did with its arrangements of lovely late summer flowers. A centerpiece of white flowers flanked by six burning white candles, sprays of ivy with white wedding bells and ribbons were used on the gift table and also on the refreshment table.

Mrs. Hubert Crawford, Mrs. F. L. Allen, Mrs. James Allen and Mrs. Edgar Denton, assisted by Mrs. Tyson, led the group in singing rounds, action songs, games and stunts. Piano and accordion music and some readings rounded out the evening's entertainment.

A beautiful array of china, silver and crystal in the bride's chosen patterns, linens and many useful gifts attested to the high esteem in which this young couple is held. They will be married on Sunday afternoon, September 6, at the Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville, and the reception will be held in the Red Oak Community Center.

Refreshments of chicken salad on lettuce, minis, nuts, cookies and fruit punch were served by Mrs. Edgar Denton, Mrs. Spooky Morgan and Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Jr.

Everybody is cordially invited to come to the "Fun Night," sponsored by the Young Married Couples Class, at the Red Oak Community Center on Friday night of this week, September 4. Supper of sandwiches, ham biscuits, hotdogs, home-made cakes, home-made candy, ice-cold drinks and home-made ice cream will be served from 7 o'clock on.

Everybody is invited to come dressed in their "tackiest." Three judges from Greenville will present prizes for the "tackiest" dressed man, woman, boy and girl.

There will be a policeman there to keep order. We will have a "jail" set up and you had better bring along some pennies and nickels to pay a fine for no doubt you will be arrested for some offense before the evening is over.

You will no doubt wonder what the "Wonder Tree" is. Bingo and many other contests will be enjoyed by those who like to play. Each member of the class is asked to bring a small gift to be used as bingo prizes.

This will be an evening of good clean fun and if you come and enjoy it you will be helping a good cause. Remember the date, Friday night, September 4th.

Saturday afternoon, September 5, at 3 o'clock has been designated as "work day" at the church and community center. Mr. Sam Winchester as chairman of the hand-spacing committee and B. L. Tyson as co-chairman has called a meeting of all able-bodied men and women of the church to come and help with this work. There will be several men there with their tractors, hoes, smoothing harrows, etc., and the grounds surrounding the church and community will be given a "face-lifting." We want to have everything spic and span for Homecoming Day.

Work will begin on this project at 3 o'clock and supper will be served to all workers at 6:30. The women are asked to come and bring chickens and ham to be barbecued and fried, cake, bread, vegetables, etc. Let's show our men-folks that we stand beside them one hundred percent in what they are planning to do.

Have you forgotten to turn in your coupons for the Christian Orphanage in Atlanta? The Sunshine Class of Red Oak is sponsoring this project. So far they have received about 800 coupons. If you have any that you would like to donate, please contact some member of Red Oak.

Citizens of Red Oak community are very proud to have Miss Jane Winchester be their representative in the beauty queen contest on Farmer's Day. This will be the first time our community has ever had a representative. Jane is a junior in the Greenville High School.

She is the eldest daughter of our Pitt County farm agent and his wife. They have been living in our community for nearly three years.

Jane is a member of the Sunshine Class of Red Oak; she is the organist for all church and Sunday School services and is pianist for the "Little Ladies Choir" which has sung in several sections of the state. Jane is a very attractive brunette, quiet in manner and has endeared herself to all the folks in our community. We are indeed proud to have her represent us!

The next two Tuesday nights, September 8 and September 15, have been set aside for choir practice nights. Mrs. Moye Dail of Greenville will be with us and we hope to have all of our choir members present on those two nights.

Restored Faith In Mendel's Laws

DENVER, Colo. (UP)—Dr. Joseph McGill's wife gave birth to a boy Tuesday and restored McGill's faith in mathematical odds.

McGill already the father of six girls, studied Mendel's laws of heredity and stated, cautiously, before his son's birth the odds were 100,000 to 1 against another female in the family.
