Forced To Doubt Armistice Compliance, Says Dulles

By BRUCE W. MUNN United Press Staff Correspondent UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the United States is "forced to doubt that the Communist side really wants to comply with the armistice" in Korea.

He warned the United Nations General Assembly that the Oct. 28 deadline for the start of the Korean political conference "is rapidly approaching without any possibility of making the necessary time-consuming preparations."

armistice and face up to the problem of withdrawing their forces from Korea and creating a united and independent Korea.

The secretary of state appealed for "peaceful change" in the "Soviet camp of dictatorships" which has taken in 800,000,000 people of some 15 nations since 1929, but added: "Our creed does not call for exporting revolution and inciting others to violence."

Dulles made these other points: Korea: "The U. S. itself seeks no pretext for using Korea as a place for building up a military outpost on the Asian mainland. We are eager to bring our troops home. The Republic of Korea has no ambitions which run beyond Korea."

Atomic weapons: "Physical scientists have now found means which, if they are developed, can wipe life off the surface of this planet. Those words can be taken literally. The destructive power inherent in matter must be controlled by the idealism of man's spirit and the wisdom of his mind. They alone stand between us and a lifeless planet."

Germany: "It was never intended that Germany should be indefinitely partitioned. The division of Germany cannot be perpetuated without grave risks. The European Defense Community will merge German military strength into the structure of a non-aggressive European community. That is a result which Soviet leaders should welcome if they honestly want peace."

and Polish delegate Julius Kautsky clashed sharply Wednesday with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. on the charter revision issue in debate before the assembly's Steering Committee. Malik lambasted Dulles' August speech in which he called for a watering-down of the Soviet-abused veto power.

Officials To Give Public Facts On U.S. Security

Consider Outlining Peril

By DONALD J. GONZALES WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and his cabinet have decided to give the nation the blunt facts about the danger to American security posed by Russia's growing atomic and air strength.

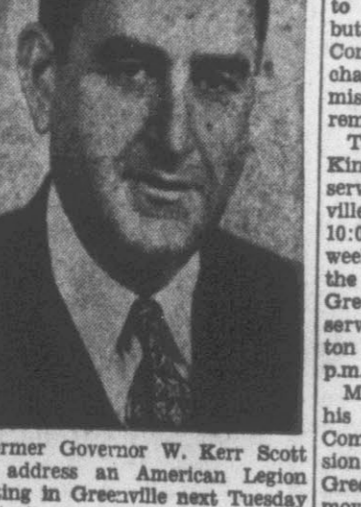

Other officials contend that the broadcasts are needed to whip up public support for the still-largely defense budget which the administration plans to send to Congress next January. Implicit in the thinking of this group is the fact that Mr. Eisenhower may have to recommend a national sales tax or other new taxes to pay for the defense program.

plan under which the President himself would make several "fireside chats" on security this fall or early winter. Present plans call for the "Safety of the Republic" series to include graphic reports on the damage that Russian atomic bombers could do to American cities. The public also would be given a rough idea of the size of the U.S. atomic stockpiles and this country's air defense capabilities.

Sharply Attacks Refusal To Admit Red China

NEW DELHI, India (UP)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru today sharply attacked the United Nations of "sheer bigotry" in refusing Red China membership in the world organization.

Nehru Assails UN 'Bigotry'

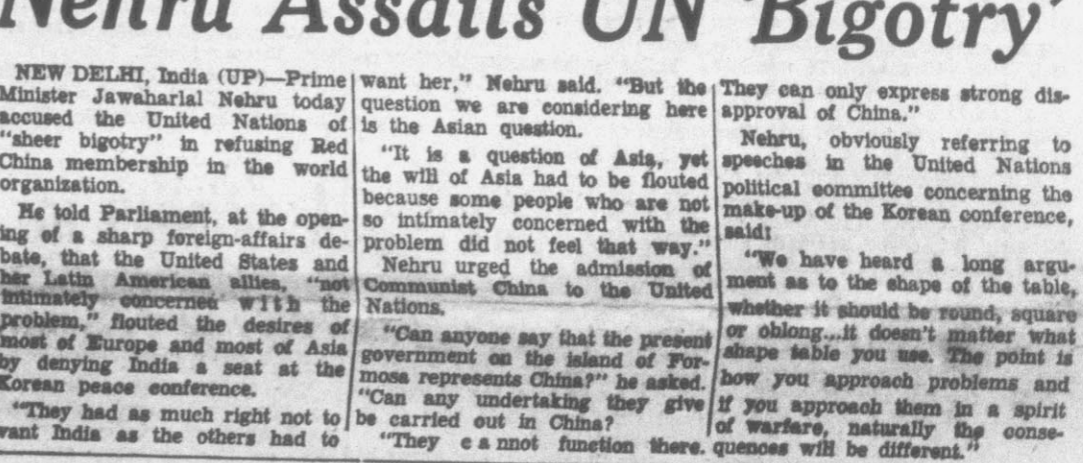

They can only express strong disapproval of China. Nehru, obviously referring to speeches in the United Nations political committee concerning the make-up of the Korean conference, said: "We have heard a long argument as to the shape of the table, whether it should be round, square or oblong. It doesn't matter what shape table you use. The point is how you approach problems and if you approach them in a spirit of warfare, naturally the consequences will be different."

Renew Campaign Against Religion

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP)—A months-long campaign of officially tolerated demonstrations against Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox clergymen appeared today to have ended.

More than 100, including 12 bishops, were beaten and several seriously injured during the 10 weeks of anti-clergy violence.

Wednesday night, for the first time since the incidents began July 6, a high-ranking party official publicly condemned the demonstrations as "illegal" and inconsistent with Communist Party directives.

Milan Smiljanic, Orthodox priest in Belgrade, reported he had received official assurances that the metropolitan bishop of Sarajevo could safely return to the diocese of Tuzla where he was severely beaten by demonstrators in a monastery courtyard last month.

Smiljanic is a parliamentary deputy and head of the Yugoslav Priests Association.

The weeks of official silence was broken Wednesday night when Gjuro Pucar-Stary, Poluburo member and head of the Bosnian state government, branded the violence as "illegal attacks" committed by "individuals or small groups through unawareness or insufficient political maturity."

Navajo Rodeo Is Annual Occasion

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP)—Cries of "Ya-ta-heh" mark the Navajo rodeo season in July and August. A Navajo rodeo turns out the population. A wagon encampment moves to each as the families make it a celebration that eventually includes a night-long square dance and other activities. At least one community plans a rodeo each week end. Often as many as three will stage them at once.

When a contestant fails to throw his calf, a light-hearted spectator will usually leap into the arena and toss the critter. The rodeos have all the regular events, but side-lights peculiar to the Indian shows set the crowds to whooping. Such an event is the wild mule saddling, in which three-men teams try to manage six mules captured from the range.

Even the curious white man will turn up at a Navajo rodeo, where he's always welcome. The language barrier isn't great. In fact, one word—Ya-ta-heh—will make him one of the crowd. It means "Hello" and "How are you?" It also means "great show." And it means a good time.

Employ Handicapped Week Plans Prepared

Organizational plans for Pitt County participation in the National Employ The Physically Handicapped Week, Oct. 4-10, were laid here last night at a meeting of the county committee which will conduct the local activities.

Present at the discussion meeting, held at State Employment Offices here in Greenville, was North Carolina Chairman for the NEPH Week, J.H. Rose of Greenville.

According to Committee Chairman W.H. Brown of Greenville, the group discussed purposes and aims of the nation-wide program, and adopted tentative plans for the forthcoming NEPH Week.

State Chairman Rose pointed out that the purpose of the week program is to encourage employers to hire handicapped people and to enlighten prospective employers to the fact that skill and ability is more important than physical disabilities.

The State NEPH Committee met last week in Raleigh, added Rose, and Governor William B. Umstead will issue a proclamation concerning NEPH Week in the near future.

Brown emphasized that the NEPH program is not merely restricted to one week during the year, but is something which must be considered continually.

Discrimination Complaint Going To Top Committee

AIKEN, S.C. (UP)—A complaint of discrimination against Negroes at the Savannah River H-bomb plant probably will be heard soon by President Eisenhower's Contract Compliance Committee.

A spokesman said Clarence Mitchell, Washington director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, had asked that this and other complaints be made first order of business.

The committee, which has had these complaints on file since before the administration took over last January, met last Monday for the first time under the direction of Vice-President Richard M. Nixon, its chairman.

Committee To Talk Fair Plans

The Agricultural Committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce will meet here this afternoon at 5:00 o'clock, announced Chamber of Commerce Manager W. T. Kyzer today.

A. R. Barrett of Greenville is chairman of the committee, which will discuss as one of its main subjects this afternoon the co-sponsorship with the Pitt County Fair of this year's Junior Purebred Livestock Show.

The 5 Points office will be the scene of today's meeting.

Between 1931 and 1951 the number of Scots able to talk Gaelic dropped from 12.4 per cent to 6.7 per cent.

Mitchell charged that Negroes were barred from certain training programs in the plant centered at Aiken, S. C., and operated by the E. I. duPont de Nemours Co., and at other atomic installations.

He said the NAACP has received complaints that Negroes were "shunted into the least desirable jobs" although qualified Negroes received jobs requiring high skills in a few instances.

A spokesman said the complaints probably will be considered at one of several work sessions scheduled to be held by subcommittees between now and Oct. 19, when the full committee meets again.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The California Department of Corrections has begun an intensive supervision experiment in an effort to reduce the number of parole violators.

Fourteen experienced parole officers have been assigned to a special unit authorized by this year's legislature. Each will be responsible for about 15 paroled prisoners. Normally parole officers supervise 90 persons each. The close supervision will continue for 90 days. Then the paroled prisoners will be transferred to the regular program.

The experiment was prompted by the fact that the parole violation rate is highest the first three months of freedom.

An Example Of Future Planning For City

More often than not, people are prone to put off thinking about or planning for things they are going to be forced to do sometime in the future — particularly if it is a thing that is going to cost a considerable amount of money.

Right now, however, that is not the case down at Greenville's city hall when it comes to one item in particular. That is a matter of a sewerage disposal plant.

The issue is not a pressing one at this time; but with the progress being made by the state toward the prevention of stream pollution, it is handwriting on the wall that the day is not too far in the future when practically every municipality in the state will be required to have a sewerage disposal plant.

Cooperation Important In Revaluation Program

Cooperation of the people of Pitt County is going to be needed when field work actually begins on the county's revaluation program.

So far in the program of mapping the entire county as a preliminary to the revaluation program, officials in charge of the mapping have said the citizens of the county have been most cooperative. Certainly that has meant a great deal to the firm preparing the maps for the county government, and indirectly the cooperation of the people with the program has meant just as much to the county government itself.

Unless there is a change from the present program of the revaluation program, sometime within the next two weeks, field work will actually begin on the revaluation program. The cooperation of the people of the county with the people doing the actual revaluation of property will be just as important as has been the cooperation with those doing the mapping program.

The cooperation of the citizens of the county will play an important part in Pitt County's revaluation program.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
ON GOING TO COLLEGE

You should have in store for you one of the greatest of all experiences. Mark Twain once said in his quaint way that soap and education are not as sudden as a massacre, but they are more deadly in the long run. Educated men and women are more and more entering into the leadership of our country. Fifty years ago the big corporations looked with suspicion on college-bred men; now they send representatives to colleges early in the senior year to sign up the most promising men and women.

What should you get out of an education? Information, of course. Fellowship. Breadth of outlook. Mental development. Culture—whatever that is.

But above everything else you should develop within yourself the power to keep on growing. The word "commencement" is very significant. When college is over, education has really just begun. College can clear the ground. It can put arms in your hands to resist life's evils and tools that you may be creative. It should make your soul more like the image of the One who created it.

College is a marvelous opportunity if one makes it so.

Tax Loopholes To Be Closed

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The discovery that public office proved to be the path to private, nontaxable wealth for such exemplary figures as President Eisenhower and ex-President Truman virtually guarantees sharp tax cuts for ordinary citizens and great corporations at the next session of Congress.

Although technically legal, these Presidential bonuses for their literary efforts have produced an immediate and sharp reaction at the Treasury and on Capitol Hill.

Eisenhower had every legal and ethical right to pay for the $635,000 income from his memoirs on the basis of capital gains rather than regular income, thereby saving himself several hundred thousand dollars. But the Internal Revenue decision was so thin and questionable that Congress promptly adopted an amendment plugging this loophole. It is known as the "Eisenhower law."

LEGAL LOOPHOLE—Truman took advantage of another legal leak by arranging the terms of payment in such a way that he will increase his profits by $165,000. Again, the ruling was within the law. But it required the advice of tax specialists and lawyers whom the average citizen cannot afford to engage, even if the sum involved justified it.

In both instances, as 30,000,000 taxpayers noted, Internal Revenue officials gave full co-operation, the Democrats to Ike and the Republicans to Harry.

"CASUAL" WRITINGS—The theory behind Internal Revenue's findings is that both men's writings were "casual" efforts. In other words, Ike's profession is soldiering, and not the production of books. Truman is running for and holding office, and any literary off-giving is accidental rather than in line of duty.

However, in view of Washington politicians' and military experts' pathological eagerness to toss off memoirs and magazine articles, the ruling has its questionable aspects in the minds of humble but oppressed taxpayers.

Congress reacts as expected, reducing individual, excise and corporation levies from their present high rates next year. The Treasury's total loss from the Eisenhower-Truman transactions will be about $8 billion. That is the amount which these taxes now produce for Uncle Sam.

INCONSISTENT BEHAVIOR—The Truman affair points up a certain inconsistency in his behavior as President and as a private citizen trying to make a fast buck like the rest of us. It raises the question of why he can receive and profit from the active help and advice of Government officials, while he denied similar treatment to business and industry during his Administration.

Attorney General Brownell, for instance, is now mulling over the problem of whether the Department of Justice and other Federal agencies may give advisory opinions to corporation lawyers and officials on proposed mergers and reorganizations. Frequently, the line between compliance with and violation of anti-trust and other statutes is a barely discernible boundary.

A COSTLY PROCESS—To withhold co-operation, and then to prosecute vast combinations for a technical and unintentional offense, is a wasteful and costly process, destructive to our highly complicated economic system. There seems to be no reason why Department of Justice experts cannot engage in these preliminary consultations, but without guaranteeing any immunity, just as Internal Revenue told Truman-Eisenhower lawyers how to squirm through legal loopholes.

But Truman stubbornly opposed this suggestion on the ground that it would be a "rape of the people." And the timid Republicans, fearful that a reversal of this policy would be assailed by the Democrats as another "big business giveaway," may feel compelled to follow the precedent which the Missouri author now disregards.

APPROVE IKE'S MONETARY POLICIES—Bankers throughout the nation generally approve the Eisenhower Administration's financial and monetary policies. But they believe that Secretary Humphrey and fellow Cabinet members, including the President, have provoked needless criticism by "doing a poor selling job in the field of public relations." Washington correspondents agree.

According to a poll by Washington News Features, a private financial service, 67.9 per cent of 700 large and small bankers polled think Ike is "doing all right." "Doing fair" is the comment of 27.9 per cent, and 4.3 per cent believe he is "doing poorly." The delay in balancing the budget and too violent deflationary moves are the principal complaints, even from friendly financiers.

Hails Business Competition

The other day I had an interesting discussion with L. A. Stroud of Quinn, Miller and Stroud Furniture Co. Mr. Stroud has been in business almost 41 years in Greenville and 10 years in Winston-Salem prior to coming here. He is the oldest active furniture dealer in the line of service in Eastern Carolina, having almost 51 years in the business.

About competition, Mr. Stroud said, "I love it. It keeps us going. When I came here there were only two other furniture stores here and now there are 14. But I have never regretted seeing a store go in business. Competition inspires us; keeps us alert."

Through acquaintances in the furniture business, Mr. Stroud knows men in all parts of the state. One item he frequently discusses with other businessmen is the comparison between sections of the country that rely wholly on agricultural income with those relying on industrial income. "The ideal situation," he says, "is to have income from both. But if I had to make a choice I would definitely take the agricultural situation we have here in Pitt County. When the factories shut down the people in industrial regions are in bad shape."

Mr. Stroud made interesting remarks about Greenville's growth during the 40 years he's been here. "During the first 20 years of my 40," he says, "Greenville's growth was rather slow. The people in this area had not yet realized the potentialities in the soil. Our growth has been mainly in the past 20 years. Rocky Mount jumped ahead of us because during that first 20 years I mentioned they were thriving on the railroad repair shops there."

Forty years ago the streets of Greenville were paved only from the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to the Court House. "When I came here," he says, "J. B. James was Mayor and two of the board members I remember were D. W.

Hardes and Joe Moyer. Captain Smith (Van Fleming's grandfather) was chief of police. George Clark was his assistant."

"The population at that time was 4,500. There were five tobacco warehouses."

Mr. Stroud said, "You can mention that Cotanche Street used to be called the Buzard's Roost; that is, on both sides of Fifth Street. It was so called because of the dives that were located down here. Also, there were fish markets and beer parlors. If you say that," he continued jokingly, "remember that you're talking about the street where you and I are in business."

Putting Mr. Stroud on the spot, I asked him about his business success throughout the years. "I lost money three of the 41 years in Greenville," he said. "Two of those were the depression years of 1920 and 1932."

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

GOOD SCHOOLS ARE A PRIME ESSENTIAL IN THE PROSPECTUS OFFERED INDUSTRY (Charlotte Observer)

Better schools and mental care facilities are the primary goals in the statewide bond referendum that is scheduled in North Carolina October 3, but the election outcome will have its impact in other fields as well.

As former State Treasurer Brandon Hodges told a Wake County audience the other day, the proposed $50 million investment in schools will have its effect in attracting new industry, and hence new wealth, in the areas where the schools are built.

"The problem confronting all of North Carolina," he said, "is the low per capita income. And the only way that individual income can be increased is through further diversification in agriculture and spreading manufacturing establishments to the rural, under-developed areas."

State Ports Authority Accomplishments Going Ahead

PORTS — The State Ports Authority accomplished a good deal at its meeting in Raleigh Monday afternoon. Action on determining the status of Col. George W. Gillette as ports director was deferred for another 30 days, although some members thought that was the chief purpose for which Monday's session had been called. There is definite cleavage among board members on this point, and the vote was divided on almost every other item. Absence of Chairman A.G. Myers, who is recovering from an operation, obviously handicapped the authority.

DIRECTOR — The question involved in the director's post is impersonal. Col. Gillette is an engineer and admittedly has done a fine job in building the ports facilities. At least some of the members say that construction having been completed the job calls for a business promoter rather than an engineer.

The ports authority is not marking time to the same extent some other agencies have done because of the situation, but there can be no doubt that activities have been materially slowed down by reason of the chairman's illness and the "uncertain status of the director."

DELAY — Action had been expected Monday on the matter of providing storage space for export tobacco. J.D. Holt, manager of the Morehead City terminal, reported on a recent survey of tobacco exporters. The board asked for further data and for more information in hand showed preference for Morehead City as place for tobacco storage. Col. Gillette and Avery Thompson, Whiteville member, insisted upon further survey of the South Carolina and border areas, and additional consideration of the stabilization corporation's needs for storage.

BUSINESS — The discussions clearly demonstrated the dual nature of the ports authority. As a State agency, it is amenable to budget and personnel regulation and in many other respects must conform to general State policy. It is also a business — getting out in competition with ports in other States and to considerable degree with private enterprise in North Carolina.

This conflict in operative methods was emphasized by the question of whether the authority should rent office space in a building owned by a stevedore company. By a three-two vote the leasing of office space was authorized. It was also suggested that the tenant might be expected to do whatever remodeling may be required.

There is precedent for leasing State offices and buildings to non-governmental tenants, but the stance is not general. One instance is the cafeteria in the new highway building at Raleigh.

Another issue is whether the authority can condemn land needed for auxiliary port activities. That question, along with others, having to do with leasing rail sidings, was passed along to aid be extended by their richer neighbors.

As Mr. Hodges said, "The under-developed areas of the state are not wards of the state by choice. And, with the help of the state through providing better educational facilities, it is thought that they may be lifted from their unfavorable position and their economy improved to the extent that they are no longer wards of the richer areas."

That is a reasonable prospect. It's evident, too, that the urban centers of wealth and trade will benefit, through a broader and more prosperous market, as the economy of the under-developed sections is made more stable.

Thus the proposed investment in schools, vital to the educational sufficiency of North Carolina to economic progress throughout the state, that's a thought to take to the polls.

Earth-Moving Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER
Regardless of the course of the rest of the economy, manufacturers of earth-moving equipment are counting on a boom. Every rise in wages of manual workers makes earth-movers proportionately cheaper and the growing expansion of toll roads assures a rising market, and if there should be a recession, pumping governmental projects will make new markets.

The manufacturers of these machines have been doing very well this year. The Census Bureau, reports that shipments of excavating and earth-moving equipment in the second quarter of 1953 were valued at $235,000,000, nine per cent above the first quarter. Shipments of road construction and maintenance machinery were $38,000,000 in the second quarter, up 9 per cent. Shipments of contractors' off-highway tractors were $16,500,000, up 47 per cent, and those of track-laying tractors were $97,000,000, up 10 per cent.

That top business management expects good sales is indicated by recent mergers in the field. General Motors purchased Euclid Road Machinery; International Harvester is handling Bucyrus-Erie attachments; Allis-Chalmers has merged with Buda Co., and R.G. LeTourneau, Inc., has become LeTourneau-Westinghouse. Ford is expanding its line of road-building machines.

Big company interest in machines to change the face of the earth may be partly due to the decline in demand for farm machinery. Prices for farm products have been declining and farmers have been buying less machinery. A Department of Commerce report shows that farm income dropped about 10 per cent during the first half of this year and that purchases of machinery and nonresidential construction by farmers dropped a like amount.

Meanwhile, the companies to which recent mergers hold a threat of more intensified competition have reacted aggressively. Many of them have increased their advertising programs.

Do You Need A Stuffed Gazelle?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Does your living room need a fresh decorative touch, a mounted gazelle over the fireplace or a cozy stuffed rhinoceros charging out of the book shelves?

Well, I've got the facts and figures on how you get them. The statistics were supplied by Frank "White Hunter," and his wife, Muriel, who have found brightest Broadway noisier and less comfortable than darkest Africa.

They came here for a visit after organizing a six-month safari during which MGM filmed "Mogambo," which is reported to be a native word for "the greatest" or "passion." So if you see "Mogambo" and don't think it is truly mogambo the MGM people will fly into a terrible magambo.

"It was three times the size of any other African safari," said Bunny. "I doubt if there will ever be another like it. At one time we had 500 natives in camp."

This wall of loyal flesh protected Clark Gable, Ava Gardner and the other Hollywood stars from the rude gazes of all but the very boldest jungle beasts.

However, if you plan to go to Africa merely to collect a few old animal heads, you can get by nicely with a small platoon of natives rather than a battalion.

The average motorized safari for two or three men requires only 15 natives, lasts a month and costs about $3,000," said Bunny. "Of course, there are a few 'extras.' An overall license, permitting you to swat everything from a tsetse fly to an elephant, costs $400. And naturally you'll have to buy your own cigars and Scotch whisky. But Scotch sells for less on the African veldt than it does at your liquor store at home."

Bunny uses the money he earns on safaris to stock a 500-acre farm on the slopes of Mt. Kenya with pure-bred Jersey dairy cows. Mrs. Allen plans the safaris.

"It is like preparing a small army for a small war," she said. "There are so many details. You know you don't have to rough it any more."

"After a day in the bush, you come back to a hot tub, change into pajamas, have a cavat canape, if you choose, and a highball or two before dinner. The natives are wonderful cooks and can prepare almost any dish you have at home."

Certainly there is ice for the highballs. You wouldn't go into the heart of Africa today without a refrigerator, would you?

Bunny is now in his 20th year as a safari leader, and never lost a passenger. He is one of only 10 full-fledged professional hunters. This uncredulous profession also has only about 24 apprentices, who must spend at least two years on safaris before they can lead on themselves.

"If you lose a client, you lose your profession," said Bunny crisply. "The clients all have one thing in common—they like to go home alive."

Ninety per cent of the clientele today are Americans, and the No. 1 weapon of many now is the camera rather than the gun.

"Most hunters go for the poor lion," said Bunny ruefully. "It has sex appeal. But a great many are interested only in bagging an elephant. I have observed that a very short man is often very keen on getting a very big elephant."

You locate an elephant by its tummy rumbling, a sound that Allen says "will carry for half a mile if the wind is right."

Both Bunny and his wife hate to see lions killed, as the big cats are their favorite animals. Bunny brings live chickens along on the safari for food, but, as his wife remarked, they usually become his pets, so he brings them back.

"I'm proud of Bunny. He's not only a fine hunter. He's kind, gentle and modest. He loves flowers, trees and rivers."

Mrs. Allen gave one final tip to would-be hunters: "Do bring along a sweater, as it is often cool in the evenings. But you never have to wear evening clothes—never. Of course, some people do."

So just pack your tux or leave it behind, as you choose. There is still a touch of informality in Africa. You don't have to dress up to kill an elephant.

Wife Of 'Missing' British Diplomat Suspected Of Having Joined Husband

By PETER UEBERSAX
United Press Staff Correspondent

GENEVA, Switzerland (UP)—The wife of a long-missing British diplomat left her car at a garage in Lausanne "for a week" last Friday and vanished with her three children, police learned today.

Mrs. Melinda MacLean departed from her home in Geneva Friday to spend a week-end with a "Mr. Robin, a friend from Cairo," at a resort about 50 miles away. Donald D. MacLean, her husband who disappeared more than two years ago—possibly behind the Iron Curtain—was once stationed in the Egyptian capital.

A search started for "Mr. Robin" and a mysterious "round-faced" woman who sent a telegram yesterday in Mrs. MacLean's name to her mother in Geneva saying "all extremely well."

The garage attendant identified a photograph of the 37-year-old American-born mother as the woman who drove up in a 1952 black Chevrolet with her three children and asked to leave the auto for a week. He said she then entered the nearby railroad station.

"The lady seemed extremely nervous and impatient," attendant Marcel Michell said. "Afterward I watched her and the children enter the station. I noticed she had no luggage whatsoever."

Police also announced that Mrs. MacLean apparently did not send the "I'm all right" telegram which her mother received yesterday at the Geneva home where they were both living.

"A lady who was not Mrs. MacLean" filed the telegram from the post office at Territet, Switzerland, yesterday five days after Mrs. MacLean disappeared, Geneva Police Chief Charles Knecht said.

When Mrs. MacLean left Geneva Friday with her three children she told her mother she was going to spend the week-end with "a man I know" at Territet, a resort outside Montreux and near Lausanne across Lake Geneva from Geneva. The address she gave for the friend turned out to be non-existent.

Mrs. MacLean's mother said her daughter had mentioned meeting a "Mr. Robin, a friend from Cairo," in the Geneva market place and said she was going to see him in Montreux. Knecht said Mrs. MacLean looked "very happy" to her mother after the sudden encounter with "Mr. Robin."

Mrs. MacLean's husband, former head of the British Foreign Office department on American affairs, was stationed in Cairo for a year and left when he had a breakdown there.

Knecht refused to speculate whether "Mr. Robin" could actually be Donald D. MacLean, 40-year-old missing diplomat.

The new developments strengthened beliefs of diplomatic observers that Mrs. MacLean may have gone to join her husband at a secret rendezvous—possibly behind the Iron Curtain. But there was no direct evidence for the theory.

The disappearance of Mrs. MacLean, the former Melinda Marling of New York and Massachusetts, has revived and deepened one of the biggest mysteries of cold war diplomacy—what happened to her husband, Donald D. MacLean, and Guy Burgess, British Foreign Office employees who vanished May 25, 1951.

The Chevrolet found today was not locked. Police found a few empty cardboard cartons, two children's books and a toy shovel inside.

Michell told police: "Last Friday at about 10 minutes to seven I saw a black car stopping in front of our garage. A lady and three children got out and the lady asked me whether she could put her car with us for a week."

"I said 'yes, of course,' whereupon she said 'I will come back a week from now.' Consequently she ought to come for her car tomorrow."

Michell recognized a photograph of Mrs. MacLean instantly as the woman who stored the car.

Her mother, Mrs. Melinda G. Dunbar of New York City, said the telegram she received was similar to one sent two years ago and signed with the name of her son-in-law after he vanished.

The post office clerk at Territet said the telegram was sent by a "heavily made-up" woman with "a very round face" who did not look like the photograph of Mrs. MacLean.

Police took the original and showed it to Mrs. Dunbar. She said the handwriting was not her daughter's.

It was written in English but in a style taught in Swiss and central European schools some 20 years ago.

Lower California is experiencing a development boom says the National Geographic Society.

HIS HEART STOPPED:—Dr. William N. Henry checks the heart beat of his smiling patient Paul W. Carmody, 26, whom he said "died" in the operating table in a hospital in Wickenburg, Ariz. He was revived 4 minutes and 45 seconds later. Dr. Henry said Dr. Fred Shannon opened the man's chest, massaged his heart, and injected a drug. The heart started beating again. Dr. Henry assisted in the operation. (AP Wirephoto)

First Negroes Are Enrolled By College

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—North Carolina State College today extended a "welcome" to the first two Negro graduate students it had ever accepted, one a 43-year-old scholar who sent his wife to college before earning his own degree.

Robert L. Clemons, Durham, N. C., city water department chemist, said he sent his wife to school for four years before World War II because "she was younger and it seemed more promising."

Following wartime army service, Clemons said, "I came back knowing I had an opportunity so I took advantage of it," by obtaining a bachelor of science degree through study at several colleges.

The other Negro is Hardy Liston Jr., Greensboro, N. C., son of the president of John C. Smith University for Negroes at Charlotte, N. C., and a graduate of Howard University at Washington, D. C.

Dr. D. B. Anderson, associate graduate school dean for the Consolidated University of North Carolina, announced acceptance of the two Negroes late yesterday, declaring both will be "welcome."

Anderson said both had excellent scholastic records and fulfilled all regular entrance requirements. Clemons, enrolling for a masters degree in electrical engineering, was graduated with highest honors last year from the A. and T. College for Negroes at Greensboro.

Both the Negroes plan to continue living at their homes and to commute to classes here. Liston will seek a masters degree in mechanical engineering.

Anderson said their applications were accepted on grounds that the state does not offer equal facilities for their special fields at its Negro graduate schools.

Several Negroes have previously been admitted for graduate study at the University of North Carolina, another division of the consolidated university.

Propose Thistles As Farm Crop

HERMISTON, Ore. (AP)—Thistles are being suggested as a cash farm crop instead of wheat. Dr. Carl Larson of the Umatilla Field Station says the safflower, a member of the thistle family, might do well on Pacific Northwest lands being taken out of wheat production under the new acreage controls program.

The suggestion came originally from George Penrose, Union Pacific Railroad agricultural agent at Portland, Ore. He said safflower oil is used in paints because of its high protein content.

The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of 1.7 per cent per year.

Success Hinges On Many Things

CLEVELAND, O. (U.P.)—Here's one man who benefited from the depression, having a "dough-head" as a chief engineer, and a 100-year-old idea.

D.H. Prutton now happily recalls that odd combination which started him on the way nearly 20 years ago "when the bankers took over the factory I was working in and put up a 'dough-head' as chief engineer."

Prutton quit and went into business for himself and now operates the D.H. Prutton Machinery Co. here, which turns out machines for threading screws and bolts at least 10 times faster than any other type. A newer model "planetary thread roller" can thread hollow metal pieces 20 times faster than conventional equipment.

The father and his two sons, Edward, 20, and Howard, 25, drew on a century-old idea of Edward Croft of Waterbury, Conn., who "thought of building a rotary machine like ours, but was ahead of his time," Prutton explained.

Not only did the Pruttons manage to build the "impossible" machine, but they operate their neat factory with 20 employees in an unorthodox fashion.

Beside a profit-sharing scheme, Prutton operates on a democratic basis. Whenever a problem arises, bosses and workers meet.

"We do what the majority decides is right," he said.

Rare Mule Foal Expected Soon

SYDNEY (AP)—An Australian mule is expected to give birth to a foal soon. The mule is a six-year-old named Jenny, and is owned by Fred Johnson of Warren, New South Wales.

A mule had a foal in the Northern Territory of Australia last May, and, as far as is known here, that was only the eighth such foal recorded in the world.

A mule is a hybrid offspring of a horse and a donkey, and is usually sterile.

Catches Child In Four-Story Fall

NEW YORK (UP)—Police said today they could not recall a more incredible rescue than that performed by Louis Sarno.

Sarno, a 42-year-old construction worker, was working on a scaffold on an elevated highway project in Lower Manhattan when he noticed the figure of a small boy on a fourth floor window ledge of an apartment house 200 feet away.

Sarno climbed down from the scaffold, dodged through traffic to cross the busy East Side highway and sprinted to the building. He slid to a halt under the window just in time to score a perfect catch.

Francis La Madrid, 2, landed in his arms.

"I was always a pretty good ball-player. I just put my arms out and prayed," said Sarno, a Brooklyn Dodgers fan.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Louisa La Madrid, 25, had left Francis and his 6-year-old brother, Edward, alone in the apartment to take another son, Michael Jr., 7, to school. When she returned and heard of the accident, she fainted and was taken to a hospital for treatment of hysteria.

Verbal Lesson In Offering Toast

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Are you one of those uninformed persons who raises a glass and says "Skold?" Well, Capt. K. Vadum of Norway, skipper of a freighter Grindesjell which is touring the Great Lakes, says you might as well say "Glass." It'd be the same thing.

"Skold" is the Norwegian word for a big wooden bowl from which ancient Vikings once drank, saying "Skold" as they lifted it. So, the next time you drink from a crock, for instance, be accurate say "Crock."

If your drinking partner doesn't figure you're calling him a "crock," he'll doubtless be impressed.

Frankie And Ava Make Up Again

NEW YORK (UP)—All was lovey-dovey again between Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner today.

The singer moved from his bachelor quarters at the Waldorf Astoria to his actress-wife's suite at the Hampshire House on Central Park South. Since they came to New York Sept. 7 they had not been on speaking terms.

A friend said Mrs. Natalie Sinatra, Frank's mother, acted as go-between to patch up the quarrel. Ava told her mother-in-law her troubles, and Mrs. Sinatra got Frankie to call up Ava and talk it over.

"One thing led to another..." the friend said.

Exercise Before Carrying Mails

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (AP)—Thirty-five years a mailman, Charles E. Renfro, 70, frequently plays 36 holes of golf before making his daily 15-mile round.

"That's to keep in trim," he explains.

He uses a bicycle to cover his mail delivery route and believes he was the first bicycle mailman in the United States.

He is to retire soon because of age. That's when he plans to play a lot of golf because he will miss his postal activity.

Hoing Machine Good For Cotton

ALEXANDRIA, La. (U.P.)—A new era in cotton farming may be heralded with the granting of a patent for a new machine to a farmer of Avoyelles Parish.

Jacob A. Deville has received a patent on a cross-row cultivator that is, in effect, a mechanical hoe. Deville applied for a patent in 1948 and since then has just used the machine in his own field and has proven the machine effective and economical.

Attached to a tractor, the cultivator can hoe more than 15 acres a day. Deville said the cost of hoeing his 22 acres of cotton this year using the machine was $24.25. He added that the cost by hand would have been $500.

Deville said the patent was so slow reaching him because he had to prove the machine was unlike any other machines already patented, including 19 others, two from Australia.

He said his invention probably will eliminate the hard cultivation job in cotton fields and added that the machine can be manufactured for about $300.

Deville expects to manufacture the machine himself at a plant in Alexandria or Marksville.

Two Injured In Tuesday Collision

BALLARDS—Two persons were injured, one seriously, in a two-car crash one-half mile from here Tuesday afternoon around 2:40.

Investigating officers, W. W. Joyner and Cpl. C. E. Whitfield, listed the drivers as being Clarence C. Summrell, 48, of Route 1, Ayden, and Elbert Mosley Pittman, 23, of Box 47, Hookerton.

According to the officers, the car driven by Pittman rounded a curve and sideswiped the Sumrell car, then traveled down the highway for 585 feet.

Pittman was removed to Pitt Memorial Hospital with a badly mangled left arm and internal injuries. He was moved Tuesday night to a Veterans Hospital in Durham in a critical condition.

Investigation of the accident is not complete pending outcome of the Pittman boys' condition, Joyner said.

Cpl. Whitfield said today that Summrell was injured and treated at the hospital and then released to his home where he is now confined.

Road Closed By Strolling Bears

TUPPER LAKE, N.Y. (AP)—Jay-walking bears created a traffic problem at the American Legion Mountain Camp near this Adirondack village.

So many bears began wandering across the road connecting the Paradise Point and Horseback Lake camping areas to get at edible refuse left by campers and motorists that the Legion decided to close the private road.

It will be reopened, the Legion said, after the bears have been enticed away from the Camp premises.

Elephants Said More Economical

JERUSALEM (AP) 8 Elephants are more economical than camels and donkeys at least in field work — according to the Indian Commercial Attache in Alexandria who has recommended importing them to the Middle-East, the Arab Jerusalem-Oid City daily "A-Diffa" writes.

Jordan agricultural experts have apparently agreed. The Amman Chamber of Commerce has invited its members to file their orders for the animals.

Bridge Is 'Fine'; Color Is Wrong

OMAHA (AP)—"This structure is one of outstanding design and warrants more admiration than it gets," wrote the Nebraska State Highway Department of a graceful bridge which arches above a busy transcontinental highway just west of Omaha.

But, the highway department asked Douglas County commissioners, please paint the bridge black or dark green.

That way motorists won't be looking up when they should be watching the road.

Nine In Pitt Convicted Of Insurance Claims Fraud

By CHESTER WALSH
The North Carolina Security Commission's report for District 3, for the period ending August 31, 1953, shows that the department has "cracked down on chiselers of unemployment insurance."

Nine Pitt County workers—eight Negroes and one white—were tried and convicted in magistrates' courts and the judgments ordered that the defendants refund money paid to them under false representation.

C. A. Dees of New Bern, employment security claims deputy in District 2, which includes 12 eastern counties—Craven, Pamlico, Jones, Carteret, Onslow, Duplin, Wayne, Greene, Lenoir, Beaufort, Hyde and Pitt—shows in his report for a 14-month period that 37 workers were tried and convicted of fraud and ordered to remit money illegally paid them.

The Pitt county workers tried and convicted of violating the security employment insurance law were:

Negroes—Stephen Tyson, 116 Acton street, Farmville; Hattie Ellis, 504 Main Street, Farmville; Jennie Harper, 309 Wallace street, Farmville; Della Gatlin, Chirood; Gertrude Vines, 307 East Third street, Greenville; Lena H. Wooten, 422-A Tyson street, Greenville; Beulah Bennett, 1315 South Railroad street, Greenville, and Percy Crews, 407 Cadillac street, Greenville. White—Ben Jones of Pitt County, address not available.

The following workers of other counties in the district were tried and convicted of fraud in connection with obtaining illegal unemployment insurance payments:

List Statistics For Corn Silk

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Department of Agriculture says there are about 180 feet of silk on an ear of corn—or about 300 miles per acre of corn.

It seems a bit silly to lay all the corn silks now growing in New England end to end, but if you do the department says—they'd make a cord nearly eight million miles long. Wait a minute, there's more.

That cord would be long enough to encircle the earth at the equator more than 250 times.

No Crime When Theft 'Needed'

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—An Argentine judge has ruled that a mother who steals to pay medical expenses for her sick child is not a criminal.

Judge Juan Jose Antor Wednesday dismissed charges against Mrs. Eduarda Teteofora Olase, saying that when she stole her employer's watch she was not a thief but only "obeying her maternal instincts."

Plan Monument To 'Heroic' Duck

FREIBURG, Germany (UP)—The city parliament has voted to erect a monument in city park to a duck that died a hero in World War II.

The duck woke up citizens of Freiburg shortly after midnight on Nov. 27, 1944, by quacking loudly. Bomb-jittery residents were so upset by the off-schedule quacking that they ran for their air raid shelters.

Five minutes later a surprise raid by Allied bombers hit Freiburg. The duck was killed in the raid.

Bookkeeper Uses Ancient Abacus; Beats Machine

VANCOUVER (AP)—A bookkeeper in a West Vancouver business house has a simple adding device which is not conducive to gaining the favor of the adding machine salesman.

In fact, Woldemar Janz showed recently that the modern adding machine is no match for his ancient Russian abacus, which consists of seven horizontal rows of 10 beads. With the aid of his manual calculator, Janz defeated an adding machine in a straight test for speed and accuracy.

At one time Janz used his abacus to compute the payroll for 600 employees in a west coast logging camp. The Lynn Valley resident says his Russian abacus, which is much simpler than the more famous Chinese abacus, "requires almost no mental effort." In fact, he says: "Anyone with common sense can quickly learn to use it. Speed can be attained very quickly."

Seaman Slept For 28 Hours

GALVESTON, Tex. (UP)—Milton Reider, a 48-year old seaman, was awakened by a doctor late Wednesday after sleeping 28 hours.

Reider fell asleep with his head on the counter in a Galveston bar Tuesday. Bartenders couldn't wake him, so they carried him home. When he awoke Reider said he had been taking sleeping pills to steady his nerves.

Try Separation Of Tiny Siamese Twins

By CHARLES OHL
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS (UP)—The tiny Mouton twins, joined at the lower spine, undergo surgery to separate them today in a pioneer operation climaxing six weeks of preparation by a team of specialists.

"It will be the first operation of its kind in medical history," a spokesman at Ochsner Foundation Hospital said. "We hope for the best but the attempt will be extremely hazardous."

The operation (starting at 9:30 a.m. e.d.t.) was expected to last two or three hours. The hospital said it would issue bulletins at 20-minute intervals.

"It's very difficult to predict the outcome," the spokesman said. "We have no case records to follow. If the operation succeeds, the twins should have a good chance to live normally."

The girls, Carolyn Anne and Catherine Anne are the pretty, brunette daughters of Mayor and Mrs. Ashton Mouton of Lafayette, La.

The parents said they were definitely in favor of the operation. The hospital spokesman said the girls are "normal in every respect" except that their fourth sacral vertebrae are fused and they share the same lower portion of the intestinal tract. They were born June 22.

The Moutons, parents of two elder children, a girl, 9, and a boy, 6, have been at the hospital for the past few days.

"There's a history of twins in our family and we were betting on them," Mouton said. "But when the doctor told me they were Siamese after the birth, I can't describe now how I felt then. So much happened and the news was so startling."

A preliminary operation was performed July 31 on the intestinal tract to lessen the possibility of infection during the operation to separate them.

The Brodie twins of Chicago, one of whom died shortly after the operation to separate them, were joined at the skull. Rodney Dee survived and celebrated his second birthday Wednesday.

The Brodie surgery was the only successful one of that type, although only one twin survived.

Pledge Support To Winner Of New York Race

NEW YORK (UP)—Three Democratic borough leaders who supported Mayor Vincent Impellitteri in his unsuccessful bid for nomination in Tuesday's New York Democratic primary pledged their support today to the winning candidate, Robert F. Wagner Jr.

Impellitteri maintained silence on whether he would run as an independent in the November city election.

Kenneth F. Sutherland of Brooklyn, James A. Roe of Queens and Jeremiah A. Sullivan of Staten Island, the mayor's campaign leaders in those boroughs, said they would "accept the mandate of our party" in supporting Wagner.

Sutherland said the three conferred with Impellitteri yesterday and in vain tried to convince him to give up ambitions for another term and support the Democratic nominee.

Steps were taken by Impellitteri supporters at Albany yesterday to protect the name "Experience Party," under which banner the mayor was elected in 1950. However, an Impellitteri aide said the action was taken only as a precaution and did not mean the mayor had decided to run again on that ticket.

The pledge of support by the three leaders came on the heels of a statement by Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell in Chicago urging New York Democrats to patch up the factional fight which gave the city its hottest primary election race in recent years.

Urging support of Wagner, who beat Impellitteri by a margin of almost two-to-one in the primary, Mitchell said:

"I hope all groups and elements in the Democratic primary will get behind him. He is entitled to their support as a Democrat. I don't hold with this running off on another ticket."

His mention of "running off on another ticket" was seen as a reference to the possible candidacy of Impellitteri as an independent as well as the candidacy of the Kefauver Crime Committee who is a Democrat but is running for mayor on the Liberal Party ticket.

Says Nation Full Of Secret Poets

CHICAGO (UP)—One of America's leading poets said today this country is full of "secret poets."

Poet Karl Shapiro, editor of "Poetry," a Magazine of Verse, said thousands of people write poetry and don't let their best friends know it.

"An average of 10,000 persons send us 50,000 poems every year," he said. "Of these, we find only about 200 worth publishing."

"In most cases, I'll bet the husband or wife of the would-be poet doesn't know their spouse is writing verse."

Shapiro thinks it would be well for more people to write verse because "poetic composition is good discipline for anyone who wants to learn to write."

The author of "V-Letter and Other Poems" leaves next week with his pretty blonde wife Evelyn and their three children on a six-months' fellowship to Italy.

Shapiro says poetry is beginning to move "back to the language and the understanding of the people." Poets, he said, are bearing away from the "obscurantism" that made much of it unintelligible.

The present period, he said, is a "very good one for poetry."

Grain For China To Be Doubled

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Peiping radio says Communist China intends to double its annual grain production within the next ten years to reach an output of 300,000,000 tons a year.

The figure was announced by Teng Tzu-twei, vice-chairman of the Financial and Economic Affairs Associated Press in San Francisco. He said the production increase could be accomplished only by mechanizing China's agriculture through big-scale farm collectives.

Long Docket Wednesday In Greenville Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found probable cause in the case against William R. Murphy, 1007 Chestnut street, charging grand larceny.

The court ordered that he be held under $2,500 bond for the grand jury.

Testimony was that Murphy picked up a wallet containing $607, belonging to Grover Lee Smith, 1306 Cotanche Street. The incident is alleged to have occurred when Smith temporarily laid his wallet down in a Dickinson avenue store. Police Detective N. E. Byrd investigated the case.

Judge Whedbee sentenced Rebecca Korneygay, Negro, to 30 days in jail or pay costs for contempt of court and malicious and frivolous prosecution. She had sworn out a warrant against James Earl Korneygay, her husband, charging him with assault, and then decided not to testify, the judge stated.

William Mitchell, Jr., Negro, paid $5 for driving to the left of center of a highway.

Sophie G. Newton, Negro, was not guilty of following another vehicle too close.

Robert L. Jones, Negro, was not guilty of following another vehicle too close.

Lester Acklin, Negro, failure to yield right of way, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, to be suspended on payment of $5 on court costs. The judgment provides that he is not to drive a motor vehicle for six months unless he makes restitution to Rufus L. Dudley for property damage. Acklin gave notice of appeal.

W. D. Hardee, Negro, failure to stop at a stop sign, was sentenced to 30 days in jail or pay $5 on court costs. The judgment provides that he is not to drive a motor vehicle for six months unless he makes adequate restitution to Jerald D. Smith for property damage. Hardee paid $15 for driving without an operator's license.

Thomas E. Smith, 1808 Cotanche Street, charged with driving drunk and possession of non-tax paid whiskey, requested a jury trial and the case was transferred to Superior Court.

In the case of Robert Lee Pollard, 1012 Ward street, larceny of parking meter heads, the court found probable cause and bound him over to Superior Court. Pollard was also bound over on the charge of larceny of an automobile from Wagner-Waldrop Motors, Inc.

Probable cause was found in the case in which Junior Evans, Negro, is charged with bigamy. The case was sent to Superior Court. His wife, Mrs. Charlotte Evans, is the prosecuting witness.

Grace E. Stocks, 2614 Lafayette Boulevard, Norfolk, Va., paid $15 for driving without an operator's license.

Rufus Stepps, drunk, 30 days in jail or pay $20 fine.

Johnny R. Taylor, drunk, was sentenced to three months in jail, sentence to be suspended on payment of $15 on court costs. The judgment also provides that Taylor is to remain of good behavior and not violate any law. This case was retained for further order of the court.

Camera News

A VACATION VISIT to the zoo brought this photographer's normal view of a young miss feeding pop-corn to an aoudad. How else could it be taken? See below.

HERE'S the aoudad's view of a young miss with a handout. It was taken from a corner of the cage with camera lens between the bars. P. 5. To be tried only with tame animals.

The vacation theme is still dominant with camera fans, so here are a few added notes on the topic. A couple of new guide books for shooting pictures around the country are now available. If your vacation is in the area they talk about, you will have at your disposal a ready-made blue print of photogenic highlights you shouldn't overlook.

"Vacation U.S.A. with Your Color Camera" is a Kodak booklet (50 cents) which gives practical tips and covers a lot of territory. The specific areas covered are: New York City, New England, the old South, Washington, D.C. and our National Parks: Bryce Canyon, Glacier, Grand Canyon, Mesa Verde, Rocky Mountain, Yellowstone, Yosemite and Zion.

Definite exposure suggestions for color Kodacolor, black-and-white and movies are included for each locale. Vantage points for the best camera angles and special features of terrain or local color are also mentioned.

The text also points out where special equipment, haze or color filters or a tripod will be necessary. Glancing through, here are a few tips of general interest.

When part of the breath-taking quality of a scene lies in its height, depth or distance, you may lose this quality in the picture unless you include an object of familiar size, a person, animal or your car. Most such scenes need at least two or three pictures: 1— from a distance to include the whole scene and so establish its location and extent; 2—made closer to show the significant feature, and 3—a close-up to show detail.

In taking air views from a plane, the best seat on an airliner is in the rear, on the side away from the sun. The camera should not touch any part of the plane or window, due to vibration. It should be focussed on infinity and used with the highest shutter speed possible.

Waterfalls are generally improved by including colorfully clad people. Many falls create their own rainbow, usually at a certain time of day. Movies exposed at 24 frames show the action of falling water better than at the normal speed of 16 frames per second. If you have to pan to include the entire falls, do so with the flow of water—that is, pan down, not up the falls. All panning should be slow and steady.

For sunsets follow the time-tested rule: "If you can look at the scene without squinting your eyes, it can be photographed in

Life Term Given Slayer Of Pair

EDENTON (UP) — A jealous husband who pleaded guilty to killing his wife and "best friend" was sentenced to life imprisonment by Chowan Superior Court Judge Chester Morris here yesterday.

The confessed slayer, Wesley E. Halsey, 37, of Roper, said "I just couldn't stand having my wife running around with my best friend." He shot down his wife and L. Thurston Dunbar, 35, of Edenton with a .25 caliber pistol in front of a Negro school house.

Halsey first entered a plea of innocent, but later changed it to guilty and accepted the mandatory life sentence.

Halsey, looking down at his wife's body, was quoted as saying, "She lied to me—she lied to me. I meant to kill her, but now I don't want her to die."

Both Mrs. Halsey and Dunbar were pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital. Dunbar was found crumpled in the girl's rest room of the school where he had sought refuge after Halsey chased him through the gymnasium and shot him while a class was in progress on the gym floor. No children were hit.

Halsey first entered a plea of wife had gone to talk with Dunbar while he was working at the school. Mrs. Halsey had confessed to him that she had been "running around" with Dunbar, Halsey said, and they had agreed to a reconciliation after "talking things over."

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UP)—Actor Lewis Stone, famed Judge Hardy of the movies, was buried yesterday following funeral services at his home attended by many Hollywood celebrities.

Stone, 73, died of a heart attack last Saturday while he was chasing three teen-age youths who threw garden furniture into his swimming pool.

Stone's acting career spanned 35 years. He was widely known for his portrayal of Judge Hardy in the "Andy Hardy" film series.

Members of the movie family were present at yesterday's services. They included Mickey Rooney, Fay Holden and Celia Parker.

Other film personalities present were Louis Calhern, Donald Crisp, Otto Kruger, Robert Young, Charles Ruggles and directors Mervyn LeRoy and Frank Lloyd.

Dr. Ernest Holmes, founder of the Institute of Religious Science, described Stone as a "great friend, a great citizen and a great artist."

H-Bomb Plant's Work Week Cut

AIKEN, S. C. (UP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced today nine hours are being chopped off the work week of employees at the vast Savannah River H-bomb plant.

The AEC said beginning Sept. 28 the work week for AEC, Du Pont and subcontractor employees will be reduced to 45 hours per week.

The new schedule will be mostly a five day week with few employees working on Saturday.

The construction force employed at the plant at present is 21,300, the AEC said. At the peak of construction a year ago, the plant employed 38,223 construction workers.

New power developments at Niagara Falls will operate at night and in the off season to cut the flow over the falls to about one fourth of the normal volume, but will permit almost full flow when sightseers are likely to be present.

Hornsby Fired

CINCINNATI, O. (UP) — Rogers Hornsby today was relieved of his duties as manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

An announcement by the club said that the 37-year-old Hornsby would not accompany the team to Milwaukee. Buster Mills, a coach, will handle the team for the remainder of the season.

Seek Cause For Airliner's Crash

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP)—Investigators tried today to find what caused a twin-engine American Airlines Convair plane to crash in flames near Albany airport yesterday, killing all 26 persons aboard.

The plane, circling for a landing, plunged to earth a few yards from a crowded trailer camp after clipping two fog-shrouded radio towers. Three crew members and 23 passengers were killed instantly.

Joseph O. Fiset, regional chief of the Civil Aeronautics Board, flew here from New York to take charge of the federal inquiry. He said it was "too early to give out any statements" and added the investigation would take from 10 days to two weeks.

State police guards were posted around the scene as a light rain fell on the twisted and scorched wreckage last night. Most of the wreckage was strewn in a 200-foot area and only the tail section held together.

Airport officials refused to release a record of the radio conversation between the tower and the plane. One official said, however, that witnesses told him the plane "was apparently in trouble" as it started to land.

The plane was bound for Chicago from Boston.

Map Offensive Against Threat Of Port Tie-Up

NEW YORK (UP) — Federal, state and city mediators meet here today to map a joint peace offensive against a longshore strike threat which could shut down all East Coast ports on Oct. 1.

Frank H. Brown, regional director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called representatives of New York, New Jersey and city mediation groups to his office for today's meeting.

They were expected to coordinate peace-making efforts and presumably to get up a series of conferences with the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) and the New York Shipping Association. Negotiations between the two parties are deadlocked.

The union has threatened to call out longshoremen along the entire East Coast if agreement is not reached before the present contract expires Sept. 30.

Blames Congress For Failing To Provide Housing

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Rich J. Gray, president of the American Federation of Labor's building and construction trades department, has charged that millions of low-income families will be unable to get decent housing even if the federal housing program is continued.

Gray, who was appointed Saturday by President Eisenhower to a special advisory committee on housing, addressed the department's convention here yesterday.

"Congress has failed to enact legislation to provide housing for middle-income families," he said, "and the low-rent public housing program, already severely limited in past years, has been faced with outright extinction."

He said opponents of public housing have tried "to wipe out the program by securing riders to congressional appropriation bills."

Piece Of Cake Won't Be Eaten; Came Long Way

APPOMATTOX Va. (AP)—It was quite an operation—getting this piece of cake to Mrs. John C. Moore. But eat it? Not on your life.

The 4 by 6 inch slice of fruit cake topped with lemon icing is something special. Here's how Mrs. Moore happened to get it:

She received the cake from Mrs. Annie Truman of Beckley, W. Va., whose daughter married Mrs. Moore's son, Mrs. Truman has a sister who lives in London and her son is a member of the guard at Buckingham Palace.

And the cake is a slice of the one baked especially for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. Each guardsman was given a slice and this particular guardsman's mother sent it to Mrs. Truman who sent it to Mrs. Moore.

One Last Fling For President Before Return

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower planned to take his last crack at Colorado's trout population today before his vacation ends with a flight back to Washington early Saturday morning.

The President planned to motor to the Bal F. Swan ranch near Pine, Colo., and skip going to his summer White House offices at Lowry Air Force Base here.

Mamie Eisenhower, meanwhile, was scheduled to meet with three Denver girls scouts and three adult scout leaders in one of her last Colorado appointments. She is to have coffee with the group at the home of her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, at 1:45 p.m. and later pose for pictures with them.

Today's fishing trip follows a busy day at the summer presidential headquarters.

Churchill Takes Riviera Holiday

NICE, France (UP) — British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and members of his family landed here today on a commercial airplane flight from London to begin a Riviera vacation.

Churchill was travelling as "Mr. Hyde" in a gleeful but unsuccessful attempt to arrive at this vacation center incognito.

His only "disguise" was the absence of his familiar cigar.

But his round pink face and the familiar Churchill smile won cheers from crowds that saw him leave London and greeted his arrival here.

Nixon To Outline Mission Plans

WASHINGTON (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon scheduled a news conference today at 3 p.m. e.d.t. to disclose details of his goodwill mission to the Far East and Asia next month.

The tour, planned at President Eisenhower's request, was announced by the President last July. At the time, it was thought the tour would last about two months.

Nixon was expected to make public a complete itinerary of his trip as the President's representative.

Offers Prisoner New Ripping Job

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The prisoner was known as "the Beaver," police told the judge, because of his talent for ripping his way into stores with his bare hands. He admitted tearing a hole in a jewelry store roof with his hands, climbing out again with $5,500 worth of watches.

"Well," said the judge, "let him try his talent on some steel bars."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks firmed after an irregular opening today.

At the end of the first hour the industrial and rail averages showed gains of a few cents. Utilities would have been unchanged except for an ex-dividend which cut the average by two cents.

Trading fell off further. First hour sales of 230,000 shares, smallest since Sept. 10, compared with 410,000 shares yesterday and 710,000 shares on Tuesday.

Opening prices showed a majority on the losing side. It was an extension of a decline that started late yesterday but failed to wipe out earlier gains of that session. The subsequent steadier tone resulted when the dip failed to bring in new liquidation.

Railroad issues stood out on the upside with gains running to nearly a point in Illinois Central. Amerasia gained a point in a firm oil group. Steels and motors made fractional gains.

French Gov't Bows To Demand For Wage Hikes

PARIS (UP)—The government, bowing to labor union pressure, boosted the wages of more than 300,000 nationalized workers today in a move that private employers probably will be forced to follow.

Premier Joseph Laniel's cabinet authorized raises for 302,000 low-paid employees of nationalized industry in line with promises which settled last month's widespread strikes.

The government boost is expected to inspire immediate wage demands from some 3 million low-bracket private employees. Management spokesmen promptly warned of the dangers of a general wage increase in inflation-ridden France.

The wage increases authorized today included an $8.55 monthly increase for 122,000 workers now getting $55 to $60 a month. Some 180,000 "higher-paid" workers who get $60 to $80 a month receive smaller raises on a sliding scale.

'Good Neighbor' Traits Paid Off For Man, Wife

CLARINDA, Ia. (UP) — Being "good neighbors" paid off for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shields, farmers near here. Mr. and Mrs. Shields both were suffering from tuberculosis. They had to go to a sanitarium for two years so they put their household goods and farm equipment up for sale at auction.

Auctioneers donated their service and friends and neighbors got together to push bids to levels that were amazingly high. In addition the neighbors bought $1,100 in U.S. bonds for the Shields' two daughters, Nancy, 8, and Jo Ann, 6, who will live with their maternal grandparents.

Neighbors said the Shields long have been active in organizing "good neighbor" activity for other farm families.

Golf Course Was Jousting Site

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Across the Blitmore Forest Country Club's golf course, deputies sheriff trailed 10 hoof marks of horses. Upon the greens they found the turf rent by iron shoes. From a nearby pond they fished up the bridles. In shrubbery they discovered hidden saddles. The tracks led back to the Blitmore Forest Estates, where doors stood ajar.

Deputies finally ferreted the facts: two young knights of 1953 unnumbered by warriors' mail, plumes or swords, had swiped the animals, across the course and jostled in the starlight, using flag-staffs of the green markers as their lances.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Kern County supervisors boast that they carry more weight than any other five-man board in California.

They average 250.8 pounds. Vance Webb of Taft is the biggest supervisor, 6-4 and weighing 272. Charles Salzer of Bakersfield is the "baby" at only 205.

Incidentally, Kern County is California's leading potato producing area.

Phantoms To Meet Fayetteville Bulldogs Tomorrow

Reynolds Tabbed As Yanks' Best Hurler

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Allie Reynolds will pitch the World Series opener for the Yankees if Casey Stengel heads the tip passed on to him today by the last place St. Louis Browns.

Stengel reportedly is torn between starting Reynolds or south-paw Eddie Lopat in the Sept. 30 opener against Brooklyn.

The Browns got a look at both pitchers Wednesday night and they unanimously agreed "Reynolds is the best bet to beat Brooklyn if they let him work the first game."

Browne catcher Clint Courtney, never exactly a "Reynolds fan"—particularly after that famous St. Louis battle of June 6—declared that the fast-balling Yankee right-hander "was better than I've seen him all season" as he beat the Browns, 3-2, in the second game of a twin-bill.

Even Dick Kryhoski, who got two of the eight hits off Reynolds, pronounced him the Yankees' best bet in the opener against the Dodgers.

"Don't let anyone tell you Reynolds has slowed up," Kryhoski said. "When he reaches back for that little 'extra' on the ball, you can't touch him. My two hits off him came on a change-up and a curve but he struck me out on his fast ball."

That was one of Reynolds' eight strikeouts, a total matched by Brownie rookie Bob Turley, who hurled a four-hitter in losing, and won ample acclaim from the Yankees himself.

"Reynolds' fast ball isn't merely good," said Vern Stephens, who has battled against him since 1942. "It's excellent. True he walked four and his control was a little off but he was experimenting a lot."

The Browns weren't quite so impressed with Lopat who they literally knocked out of the box in the first game. Trailing 2-0 in the fourth, Lopat was hit on the right instep by a hot smash off Don Lenhardt's bat. Taken to a local hospital, Lopat submitted to X-rays which revealed no break. He was charged with the Yankees' 5-3 loss.

Brooklyn, using some second-stringers just as the Yankees, bowed to the Cardinals, 5-4, as Preacher Roe dropped his third game against 11 victories. Gerry Staley gained his 17th triumph although he was routed by Roy Campanella's two-run pinch homer in the ninth.

Elsewhere in the National League, Eddie Mathews got Milwaukee off to a flying start with his 46th homer with one on in the first inning and the Braves went on from there to defeat Pittsburgh, 7-3. Home Pollet, although nicked for homers by Stan Lopata and Willie Jones, was credited with the Cubs' 7-4 conquest of the Phillies, while Dave Kozo of the Giants scattered seven hits to beat the Redlegs, 4-3, as Al Dark hit a two-run homer.

In the American League, Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers collected his 200th hit of the season and Ted Gray picked up his 10th victory as Detroit beat the Red Sox, 8-3.

Washington third baseman Eddie Yost celebrated his "night" by hitting a double and a single and scoring two runs to help the Senators' Connie Marrero beat the White Sox, 4-2. Virgil (Fire) Trucks trying for his 20th win, was the loser.

Homers by Larry Doby and Wally Westlake gave Bob Feller his ninth victory as Cleveland topped the A's, 7-2.

Bobby Nunn Still Out; Drum To Be Starter

Former Greenville Player Bill Aycock To Start At Quarterback For Eastern AAA Team; Game In ECC Stadium

By WAYNE BISHOP

The Greenville Phantoms went through a brief scrimmage session yesterday afternoon as they put on finishing touches to their attack and defense before meeting the Fayetteville Bulldogs tomorrow night. The game will be the third of the year for the undefeated Phantoms.

Assistant Coach Jack Benie sent the backs through a signal drill and Head Coach Bill Kittrell directed the linemen after a long calisthenics session. The groups had separated workouts for the first part of the day's session but concluded the drill with a snappy scrimmage.

Quarterbacks Jerry Drum, Pat Sawyer, and Tommie Kay Norris directed the Phantoms split-T attack in the absence of regular starter Bobby Nunn. Nunn was in full equipment yesterday but he did not participate in any of the heavy work. It was the first time in a week that he had been in full dress and his playing status for tomorrow's game is still doubtful.

Bucs Check Offense, Line In Long Pre-Season Drill

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

The East Carolina College Pirates began putting on the finishing touches yesterday as they checked both offense and defense in a two-and-a-half hour drill in College Stadium.

Head Coach Jack Boone and assistant Jim Mallory checked both veterans and newcomers in the session with particular attention paid to defense. Various defensive formations were checked in the long drills with goal-line defensive work getting special play.

On the offensive side of the ledger, the Pirates worked on their timing and pass patterns. Quarterback Dick Cherry continued to run in the number one slot and did most of the passing to ends and halfbacks.

Working in the left halfback position yesterday in the place of the injured Topy Hayes was sophomore Teddy Barnes. Barnes took over when Hayes went out of action Tuesday with an injured knee. Hayes was in light equipment yesterday but he did no running and will remain on the sidelines until Saturday. He is expected to be able to play.

With Cherry and Barnes in the top backfield yesterday were right halfback Paul Gay and fullback Claude King. King did some punting and extra point work in addition to his running. He is only recently returned to the squad himself after being sidelined for a short while with a forehead wound.

Running with the first team yesterday in the line were ends Bobby Hodges and Al Habit, tackles Willie Holland and Johnnie Brown, guards Don Burton and Dave Lee, and center Louis Hallow. That group is expected to start Saturday against Wilson Teachers College although Larry Rhodes might start in place of Habit who has been having recent troubles with an old hand injury. Rhodes alternated with Habit yesterday.

Tom Rogers Pleased With Deacons' Play

RALEIGH (UP)—Coach Tom Rogers of Wake Forest began to be pleased today with the looks of his first team, only two short scrimmages away from Saturday's opening game against William and Mary and at Richmond.

Halfbacks John Farham and Bruce Hillenbrand and fullback Jimmy Bland broke loose consistently for long runs as the first team practiced its attack against the freshmen. Quarterback Sonny George's passes to end Ed Stowers also clicked well.

William and Mary plays run from the frosh in their turn at offense went practically nowhere against the first team defenses. Again coaches praised the outstanding linemen of tackle Bob Bartholomew and guard Tony Trentini.

Duke's Blue Devils began tapering off on the workouts earlier than expected before their Saturday opener against South Carolina.

Coach Bill Murray held contact work to a minimum during the single practice yesterday afternoon although the team wore full gear.

Backs Lloyd Caudle and Jack Kistler were sidelined again and Capt. Howard Pitt, the number one right end, worked out only in sweat suits.

The University of North Carolina squad concentrated on defense as the Tar Heels dropped to a schedule of one drill a day.

First string fullback Billy Williams and fullback Dick Lackey booted the punts while teammates practiced downfield blocking and tackling of the receivers.

Coach George Barclay threw the second and third teams alternately against the first team defenses in a 30-minute scrimmage and appeared pleased with their miserly yield of yardage.

Thad Eure of Raleigh was promoted to the first string tackle slot and coaches said the 200-pound senior has showed vast improvement during fall practices.

Coach Horace Hendrickson announced a revised starting lineup for his North Carolina State College Wolfpack although further changes were possible before next week's opener against North Carolina.

The number one backfield included quarterback Eddie West, halfbacks Colbert Micklem and Chris Frauenhofer and fullback Don Langston.

Along the line Hendrickson listed ends Paul Smith and Henry Brown, tackles Ken Urvogitch and Ben Kapp, guards John Bagonis and Al D'Angelo and center Dick Ponn.

The team did a good job of "moving the ball" during yesterday's workout, Hendrickson said.

South Carolina's Gamecocks worked out lightly again today with all rough stuff behind them before Saturday night's meeting with Duke. Yesterday's session featured both offensive and defensive signal drills.

Clemson had non contact workouts today after yesterday's final scrimmage session which featured varsity defense against Presbyterian pass patterns run by the reserves. Don King, Jimmy Wells, Kenneth Moore and Don Ross will probably make up Clemson's backfield in the Saturday night opener against the Presbyterian Blue Hose.

Weiss Says Casey Is Great Manager

NEW YORK (UP)—Casey Stengel earned recognition as one of the great managers of all time and the first to guide a team to five straight pennants because of "an unusual ability to handle young players," according to General Manager George Weiss of the Yankees.

"There is no point in discussing whether Casey is one of the great managers," Weiss said. "His record is on the books for anybody to read. The point that is interesting is why he is one of the greats."

Roll back the calendar to early 1949. Popular Bucky Harris, who led the Yankees to a pennant in 1947, had been fired at the end of the 1948 season. Then the Yankees started the baseball world with the announcement that Stengel—who never had come close to winning a pennant as a big league manager—was their new manager.

The man who was to lead the Yankees to their greatest accomplishment came to the team labelled as a clown—"baseball's funny man."

It was Weiss who suggested that Stengel be appointed the new manager but the self-effacing general manager insists on using the pronoun "we" when recalling the steps leading to Casey's appointment.

"We completely disregarded the derogatory things that were written and said about Stengel," Weiss recalled. "We knew he was one of the finest baseball men in the country. He lives it 100 per cent baseball. He lives it day and night and has no outside interests."

"Moreover," Weiss continued, "we knew that Casey was willing to place unlimited confidence in young players and we required a manager who was skilled at working with young players. Harris was not fired because the Yankees lost the 1948 pennant. He would not have been retained even if the Yankees had won it."

"Stengel's problem throughout the succession of pennant winners was to work the young players coming up from the farm system into an aging team and at the same time continue to win. The fact that he managed to do it is one of the great managerial feats of baseball history."

Harvie Ward Bounced Out In National Amateur Meet

By ED FITE
United Press Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—Five Walker Cup stars, a Coast Guardsman, a sandpaper salesman and a textile executive stood out today amid the debris in the wake of the upset earthquake which struck the National Amateur golf tournament.

One of the cup aces was John L. Morgan, a 35-year-old Welshman who wore the heavy burden of being the only foreigner left among the 16 survivors of the fourth and fifth "sudden death" rounds over the sun-blasted Oklahoma City Country Club course.

When today's double-round firing cuts the field to four by sundown, at least two of the five cup stars are bound to be watching from the sidelines.

Morgan met Gene Littler, one of the U.S. team members, in the fifth round this morning.

And if Bill Campbell Huntington, W. Va., gets by the sandpaper salesman, ex-pro Dale Morey of Indianapolis, Ind., he probably will run headlong into 1950 champion Sam Urzetta, another cup member from Rochester, N. Y. Urzetta, however, first must get by Angelo Santilli, East Greenwick, R. I.

Jim Jackson, who is the fourth survivor from the U. S. team, faced the man who wiped out 1946 champion Ted Bishop's hopes Wednesday. He was Ray Palmer of Grosse Ile, Mich.

Arnold Palmer, the 24-year old Coast Guardsman from Latrobe, Pa., who knocked out defending champion Jack Westland and cupbearer Ken Venturi, apparently had a fairly easy path today. Don Albert, Purdue University student from Alliance, Ohio, was his first foe and either Irving Cooper or Huntington Beach, Calif., or Robert Kuntz of Larchmont, N. Y., lay ahead if he gets by Albert.

Kuntz, however, is the gent who eliminated copper Harvie Ward after Ward had disposed of his

Flanagan Begs For Big Fights

CHICAGO (UP)—Del Flanagan, an erstwhile boxer turned tiger, begged matches today with Chuck Davey, Johnny Bratton or even Kid Gavilan to prove he's "a puncher who can take care of myself."

"I knew I had him from the fourth round on," Flanagan said to describe his experiment with a rushing two-fisted attack against rookie Alan Moody in the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

"But when I hit him with that right hook, that was the fight," the St. Paul, Minn., scrapper said. "I knew it, and played it safe. Then he got against the ropes and I hit him a right and left and then four or five punches and he stayed down."

Moody, suffering his second defeat in 36 pro matches, was still groggy 30 minutes after the knock-out, at 2:39 of the seventh round in a scheduled 10-round television battle.

"I don't know what happened," the Chicago Negro said. "I was beating him and then I just don't know. I didn't get tired or anything. He just hit me. But I couldn't see anything out of the left eye after the fourth round."

Neither Flanagan nor Moody, a 20-year old former Golden Gloves scrapper, could explain why Moody couldn't see.

"It might have been a thumping," Moody's manager, Sam Pian, said. "But the loss did him good. He learned something. We'll give him a rest, and then see what happens."

feelings greatly ruffled."

Kentucky feels it has been persecuted by the Southeastern Conference," he said. He added that Kentucky "is better suited geographically for membership in the new organization."

Denies Report On Cats' ACC Hopes

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UP)—A published report that Kentucky "definitely will bolt" the Southeastern Conference and try to enter the Atlantic Coast Conference was denied today.

President J. T. Penney of the newly formed ACC said he believed the idea resulted from an erroneous report of a speech he made yesterday.

Sports editor Maylor Stone of the Birmingham Post-Herald last night published a report that his paper had been reliably informed Kentucky would withdraw its football team from the SEC.

Penney said he had told the Junior Chamber of Commerce in a speech yesterday that "we had three applications for membership" but "I did not say any of them were from the SEC." He added that "none of them are from there."

Stone indicated a different source, however, saying it "has been whispered for weeks" that Kentucky would withdraw "with its

Cummings Re-Elected To Head ECC Athletics Group

Professor J. B. Cummings was re-elected chairman of the East Carolina College Interscholastic Athletics Committee at a meeting of the group yesterday.

James W. Butler, Alumni Secretary at the College, was re-elected secretary and Dr. John Reynolds was re-elected Budget Chairman. Norman Cameron, a member of the 16-member committee, was appointed assistant secretary.

Four new members of the group were officially welcomed yesterday. They are Miss Nell Stallings of the Women's Athletic Faculty, Dr. A. D. Frank and Dr. James Stewart, and Dr. Charles Risher.

Among items of business discussed yesterday were last-minute plans for the football season which will open Saturday night. The committee discussed the new seating arrangements and took measures to wipe out existing difficulties.

A 19-game basketball schedule was presented by Dr. N. M. Jorgensen and approved by the committee. The schedule includes 16 conference contests against North State Conference teams.

Members of the committee are Dr. J. D. Messick, Dr. Leo Jenkins, F. D. Duncan, Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, Jack Boone, Howard Porter, Dr. John Reynolds, Norman Cameron, Dr. Fred Irons, Herbert Carter, James W. Butler, J. B. Cummings, Miss Nell Stallings, Dr. James Stewart, Dr. A. D. Frank, and Dr. Charles Risher of the college administration and faculty and Alumni Representatives George Willard Jr. of Wilson; Amos Sexton of Kinston; and Garlan F. Bailey of Grimesland.

Browns All Set To Move Holdings

CHICAGO (UP)—Bill Veck had preliminary approval today of his plans to move the St. Louis Browns to another city, but it was understood that three American League members, enough to prevent it, were opposed to any shift at this time.

An informed source revealed that New York, Boston and Washington opposed Veck's proposal and that the "loose ends" which he hoped to clear up before the next meeting of the league Fact Finding Committee, probably Monday, Sept. 28, would be to convince them of the need for the transfer.

The Fact Finding Committee representing four clubs Wednesday approved Veck's plan to shift the club, but they specified that they recommended only a transfer from St. Louis with the new city to be selected later.

Veck's plans have called for movement to Baltimore, the same site on which he was rejected in March when the league voted, 5-2, against a shift.

"In compliance with the request of the St. Louis Browns," a statement said, "the committee will recommend to the American League that the franchise be transferred to a city to be later determined. Another meeting of the committee will be held just prior to the World Series."

Ayden Meets Bucs In Season's First

AYDEN — The Ayden Tornadoes will open their 1953 season tomorrow night against the Vanceboro Pirates in Ayden Stadium.

There are few veterans from the 1952 squad but the practice sessions thus far have given the team an even balance. W. O. Jolly, one of the holdovers, will direct the offensive tactics of the Tornadoes from his quarterback position. He calls all the plays for the Ayden attack which runs from the single wing, double wing, and T-formation.

Outstanding candidates for the squad are co-captains Harry Ross and Bill Davidson, Wilbur Jackson, Milton Worthington, Bobby Barfield, Steve Farish, Elwood Stokes, Douglas Worthington, Marshall Tripp, Bobby Harris, and Latham Dennis.

The Tornadoes are coached by Stuart Tripp.

Athletic Group Discusses Rules

Coaches and principals of county schools which make up the Pitt County Athletic Association discussed rules and tournament plans for the coming season at a meeting Tuesday night.

County Superintendent of Schools D. H. Conley joined in the discussions of the evening. The meeting was the first of the year for the group.

Podie Hodges of Chocod is president of the organization and presided at the meeting. Other officers are Stuart Tripp of Ayden, vice-president; Ed Warren of Falkland, secretary; and Jack Edwards of Stokes, treasurer.

Kuenn Gets 200

BOSTON (UP)—Shortstop Harvey Kuenn of the Detroit Tigers is the first American League rookie in 10 years to collect 200 hits.

Kuenn brought his total to that figure with two hits in Wednesday's game against the Red Sox. The Dick route to get 200 hits was last Wakerfield, also of the Tigers, who had exactly 200 in 1943. The record for rookies is 233, set by Joe Jackson of Cleveland in 1911.

The Velvet Hand

By HELEN REILLY

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

WILDER had very effectively choked his caller off. McKee took the phone and rang the desk. The call, a dial call, had been made from somewhere in Denfield, that was all the girl at the switchboard could tell him. It hadn't been made from the Haven house. McKee gave the number and George Corey answered. Everyone there was in the living-room and had been for the last quarter of an hour. McKee asked: "Who's everyone?" Corey said: "Mr. Haven, Miss Haven, Miss Tallis, Mrs. VanKreef, Mr. Grant and myself."

McKee hung up, and he and Strait went leaving a badly shaken Wilder behind them. When they were a sufficient distance away from Wilder's door, Strait said: "What did you make of that, McKee? Was that Libby's whispering man who called Wilder?"

Instead of answering directly, McKee said: "Did anything about the voice strike you? I don't mean the whispering part of it. That's easy enough to reproduce. Try it yourself sometime—I mean the tone of the voice."

Strait said: "It seemed, it didn't seem—particularly threatening. McKee nodded. "No it wasn't threatening, it was friendly, kidding."

"Then Wilder's lying. He knows the man who took Libby Tallis— McKee shook his head. "Not necessarily. It needn't have been Libby Tallis's whisperer. But the man who just called Wilder would be very interested to know how he knows—and who he is."

In the Haven house three miles to the north, the evening was at an end. Shortly after McKee's call George went, and the two girls started for bed. Kit went with Libby to her bedroom, going in first and switching on the lights and turning down the bed. Libby was starting to undress. Her sudden cry jerked Kit around.

"Look, Kit!" Libby was pointing to the dressing table. Kit looked. The missing glove and cleansing tissue had been returned. They were there, the tissue a crumpled ball on top of the glove. They were sprinkled with drops of redness. Spreading them to the dressing table, a knife stood up straight, its point buried in the wood.

At breakfast the next morning, Philip, Kit, Libby, Miriam and William didn't speak much, and when they did it was matter-of-factly. The web was drawing in tighter, many silky threads wrapping each one of them in a clinging gauze, hiding them from each other under the manipulating touch of a velvet hand. It was Hugo's phrase. It stuck in Kit's mind.

The immediate aftermath of the tissue, the glove—and the knife—had resolved nothing. The knife was a cuticle knife belonging to Libby's manicure set. The drops of simulated blood sprinkling the sacrifice were mercurochrome. There was none in the house. The work could have been done in advance, or if there had been a bottle in one of the medicine chests, it had been disposed of.

The inspector had come and had talked to them separately and together. The glove and the tissue hadn't been in Libby's room when she left shortly before 6 o'clock. They had all been upstairs in the course of the evening, even George, he had changed a tire and wanted to wash his hands. No one had seen or heard anything alarming. But people could have got in easily without being seen.

"Come and take a look for yourself, inspector," the state trooper patrolling the grounds had said. He had pointed out the five unlocked doors, the tree shadows that surrounded the sprawling house, the pool of blackness beyond a rear door that led directly to the back staircase from a vestibule off the kitchen.

Breakfast over, Philip retired into his study. William took the 10 o'clock train for New York and Miriam disappeared kitchenward to plan menus.

Before McKee went, he told Kit about the telephone call Wilder had received in his room at the Denfield Inn warning her to keep it to herself.

He also told Kit about the blackmailing racket in New York that had taken at least two lives, and that Tony Wilder admitted having known one of the victims, the last, a woman named Margery Adams, who had jumped off the George Washington bridge. It was anything but conclusive. He said: "Tony Wilder seems to be attracted to Miss Tallis. He's just plain no good, whether or not he's done anything criminal."

Kit said: "I'll try to talk to Libby, inspector, but you know how it is, I may simply put her back up."

In the middle of the morning the two girls went outside together. Kit said, "Libby, I want to talk to you seriously about Tony Wilder."

"What's the matter with Tony?" The demand was irritable.

"Well, the inspector says— At that Libby flew into a rage. "Who gave the inspector the right to choose my friends? I'll see Tony all I want to." Eyes sparking in a flushed face, she went back into the house and up to her room.

A little later Kit went into the house. Libby's bedroom door was locked and she wouldn't unlock it. She said in a muffled voice that she had a headache and was going to try to sleep.

Kit had asked the inspector whether it could have been Pedrick who had made that phone call to Tony Wilder. He said it could have been, but there was no proof of it. He had also said that someone in the house or someone with access to it was at the bottom of the whole horrible business. Anita was closely connected with the house and through Anita Samuel Pedrick. She went to the phone. Anita didn't answer. She might be in the garden. Kit told the maid that if anyone called, Miss Tallis was lying down with a headache and wasn't to be disturbed, and went through the orchard and across the road.

Anita Stewart was in Pedrick's power. His hold over her was strong. Was it possible that he had used Anita as a tool? In plain words, could he have made Anita steal the tissue and the glove, and later put them back in Libby's room as a ghastly and final warning?

The ranch house was empty. The front door was locked, the windows were down, and no toys littered the lawns or the sand-box. Kit went around to the kitchen ell. The back door was locked, too, and Anita's car was gone. There were three freshly washed milk bottles outside the back door. A note protruded from one of the bottles. It said, "No milk until further notice."

Kit was dumbfounded. As she started for the driveway, a shadow crossed her field of vision obliquely; she was level with the front of the house. It was the inspector. He was on the doorstep and began using the knocker vigorously. McKee saw Kit. He didn't pay any at-wouldn't or couldn't. Her head was against the inspector's arm. Her eyes were half open and she looked young and innocent—like a child. She was talking in a drowsy voice: "It was the money . . . There will be enough now . . . Bobby will have it . . ." Suddenly she yawned widely and her eyes closed and her whole body slumped.

McKee gave Kit quick orders; the kitchen, an emetic, mustard and water would do. Kit mixed the nauseous stuff and they got some of it down Anita's throat. Then Terry came rushing in and McKee told Kit to go into the living-room and wait there.

Behind-Scenes View Of Summer White House

DENVER (UP)—Backstairs at the summer White House: Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado has been pushing an idea with President Eisenhower, but not having any spectacular success.

Thornton's theory is very simple: "Move the nation's capital to Denver and make Washington a national park or a national historic shrine."

During World War II President Roosevelt, plagued by sinus in the Washington summer humidity, said quite seriously, "It would make a lot of sense to move this entire Washington operation to Denver." But F.D.R. added, "I suppose, however, the Daughters of the American Revolution would never stand for it."

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty recently had a vacation on a vacation. With his attractive wife, Marge, Jim stole away for a week at a ranch near Gunnison, Colo. Didn't read a newspaper or listen to a newscast for the entire time.

Big boom here for Western Union. Reporters following the President have filed 500,000 words from Denver about the goings on at the summer White House.

Just before John and Barbara Eisenhower left here last Sunday, they made a quick visit to the gift shop at Stapleton Airport. While the President and his wife waited with parental patience, John and Barbara bought six old-fashioned glasses decorated around the rim with cattle brands and each glass nestled in a leather holder.

Quote of the week from Robert S. Lutz, pastor of the Corona Presbyterian Church where the Eisenhowers worship when they are in Denver:

"Love sometimes is a matter of bill and coo—the fellow gets the bill and then goes coo-coo."

Aksel Nielsen, just about the No. 1 chum of the President in Denver, said on a radio show recently that he had no idea of ever accepting a federal job. Three days later, Nielsen was made a member of the President's Advisory Committee on Government Housing Policies and Program.

Rumor of the day: The President and Mrs. Eisenhower may come back to Denver to spend Christmas.

Breakdowns Came Often, Regular

GUTHBERT, Ga. (AP)—When the weekly Outburst Times appeared late recently, Hal Herrin, the editor and publisher, printed this front page notice:

"We're a few hours late with the paper this week.

"The linotype broke down Friday, the press broke down Tuesday, and we broke down Wednesday."

Horse Tramples Wolf To Death

CLINTON, Mo. (AP)—A dog-hating horse that can't tell a hound from a wolf earned some satisfaction for itself and $5 for its owner.

J. H. Mays, a farmer in this vicinity, said the nag chases any dogs that venture on the pasture. Recently one did venture—chasing a young wolf. The horse took out after both of them.

It ended, Mays said, with the horse trampling the wolf to death and then chasing the dog from the pasture. "A grandstand play if I ever saw one," the farmer said. "And besides, I got the five-buck wolf bounty out of it."

Choco Indians Of Panama Get Hep

WASHINGTON (UP)—The primitive Choco Indians of Darien, after centuries of stubborn resistance to change, finally are beginning to adopt some of the innovations of the white man's 20th century.

This finding was reported by Dr. Matthew W. Stirling, ethnologist of the Smithsonian Institution. Stirling conducted an expedition into the little Panama province last winter. His was the first study to be made of the Choco culture in 25 years.

The Chocos have not taken up the clothing, housing, or food of the white man, but they do make use of many items which make their traditional pursuits easier. For instance, the blowgun with its poison darts has given way in many cases to the .22 rifle. The outboard motor and nets of European manufacture greatly increase the catch of the native fisherman.

Game and fish are not cooked on the open fire of old, but on portable pressure stoves. Nor does the fire provide the only light, now that many of the inhabitants have discovered the "magic" of the kerosene lamp.

Both sexes still paint their bodies and faces in elaborate designs, the stains being obtained from local plants. But even here there are European influences for the native stains have been supplemented by lipstick and indelible pencils obtained from traders.

The Chocos have a reputation for hostility toward outsiders and this belligerency has kept out most scientists and traders. Many natives have visited the outside world, however, some even learning languages other than their own, and it is from this contact that the changes have come.

NICKEL COURTESY MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—A Tunicia, Miss., motorist found that neighborliness goes a long way in Memphis. The visitor left two nickels on his car windshield. A passerby, seeing the parking meter had expired, deposited one of the nickels for the absent owner.

France, Germany Again Deciding Europe's Fate

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

Once more, Europe faces a moment of decision.

As has been true throughout modern times, how that decision goes rests upon France and Germany.

Like a woman, history cannot be rushed, depending rather upon moods and impulses. The impulse, this time, came from Germany.

The decision is whether there is to be a European army.

The mood, except in France, is that there should be one. Not at some distant point in the future, but now.

Therefore the pressure is on the French. It comes primarily from two sources, either of which both frighten and infuriate the French—namely, the United States and West Germany.

After last week's elections, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer emerged undoubtedly as the strongest voice on the continent of Western Europe.

Adenauer had campaigned on a clear-cut issue of cooperation with the West. His election cut the ground from under French charges that the Germans were dominated by nationalism alone.

Adenauer's electoral mandate was for four years and he lost no time in exploiting it by demanding immediate action on the European Defense Community.

Back of Adenauer's demand was the threat that if France refused to join the EDC, then Germany, possibly with United States' backing, would go ahead with an army of her own.

Scarcely were the German elections over when the United States cut further ground from French objections to the EDC.

Though the EDC originally was a French proposal, French opinion later had swung to the opposition on the grounds that the EDC would give Germany the chance to dominate the continent, that French economy, already bled white by the war in Indochina, could not afford the expense of the EDC.

Last week, in Washington, the National Security Council proposed that the United States increase its aid to the French in Indochina by nearly $400,000,000. It would mean that the United States would assume almost the total cost of the Indochinese war.

The two developments have placed France in a most unfavorable position. Her condition is such internally that she is in little shape to settle problems externally.

But the betting now is that the French assembly next month must at last face up to the EDC. Therein lies Europe's moment of decision.

Double Feature For Mother And Her Daughter

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — A mother and her daughter each became mothers in the same delivery room here less than two hours apart.

Baby Donna Joy was born to Mrs. Margaret Kanthack at 2:53 p.m.

At 4:46 p.m., baby Teresa was born to Mrs. Marlene Rose Lindstrom, the Kanthacks' only previous child. Frank J. Kanthack, 45, a shop supervisor at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, and his son-in-law, Ralph E. Lindstrom, took turns congratulating each other.

"Both Ralph and I were there, of course, for the 'double feature,' wasn't really scheduled that way at all."

He explained that Donna Joy arrived a week early and his new granddaughter wasn't expected for several weeks.

It is believed the Chinese were first to produce an alloy of nickel, copper and zinc which they called "paktong," but which was later called German silver and is now called nickel silver.

Ardent Foe Of Communism Has Fresh Optimism

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, the Russian-born woman who has spent most of her adult years fighting Communism, has returned from a two-months tour of Europe with three optimistic beliefs.

1. Communism is on its death bed.

2. The Russians are scared to death of war.

3. There is a revolution cooking up behind the Iron Curtain and it will start at the top.

The predictions of the 69-year old countess daughter of the famous author Leo Tolstoy, were made in an exclusive interview after her visits to France, Switzerland, Italy and Germany.

"No one can say when the revolt will start," said the head of the Tolstoy Foundation, Inc. "We may wake up to it tomorrow, or it may be three or four years away."

The countess, who came to America in 1931 and now is a United States citizen, is head of a foundation which gives material and spiritual aid to Russians who have fled the Soviet regime. She also has just completed her second biography of her father.

She said three events behind the Iron Curtain point up the weakening of Communism — the death of Stalin, the East German revolts, and the purge of Lavrenti Beria, former boss of the secret police and minister of interior.

"All these have moved the Western cause many steps forward," she said. "When the next step comes, we do not know."

"West and East Germany are united more strongly than the West thinks," the countess said. "Italy is slow to shake off Communism, France is wavering, but things are in our favor."

The change in Western Europe, she said, is only one indication the Red way of life has had it. The other is in Communism itself.

"Its followers no longer have anything to follow," she said. "They've had 36 years of the great experiment... it failed and left them with no purpose to pursue."

She said the Russian leaders are scared to death of war because it might be the springboard for internal revolution.

GOP Doubt Seen In New Maneuvers

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The current move to stack the Senate Republican Policy Committee with Taft men indicates congressional doubts about some of President Eisenhower's advisers. The recent White House merry-go-round with Taft-Hartley Act amendments may be a factor in the situation.

Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) sponsored the plan. He failed to put it over early in the last session of Congress. The late Sen. Robert A. Taft was Senate Republican leader then and in a position to hold the line if necessary against the eastern faction of the party captured by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and well represented among White House intimates.

With Taft gone, Capehart has revived his plan with better prospects for its adoption. It would add to the powerful Republican Policy Committee all among those who would join the policy group are: Sens. Joseph R. McCarthy (Wis.), William E. Jenner (Ind.), and John W. Bricker (Ohio).

Sen. Homer Ferguson (Mich.) is policy committee chairman now. Other members are: Sens. Eugene D. Millikin (Colo.), Leverett Saltonstall (Mass.), Styles Bridges (N.H.), William F. Knowland, the Republican leader, (Calif.), Milton R. Young (N.D.), Guy Cordon (Ore.), Henry C. Dworshak (Idaho), Andrew F. Schoepel (Kansas) and Margaret Chase Smith (Maine).

Adding legislative committee chairmen to this group would give the Midwest, for which Taft was the chosen spokesman in foreign and domestic affairs, as firm a grip on party policy in the Senate as the late leader ever could have.

sought. Taft, in fact, went far to compromise his own views to the convenience of the Eisenhower administration.

The policy committee as desired by Capehart would contain a powerful bloc as likely to fight as to compromise policy questions with the White House.

The episode of the Taft-Hartley amendments jolted the Taft wing of the party although it ended in the resignation of Labor Secretary Martin P. Durkin.

Denied but still not disproven here is the story that the 19 amendments were to have gone to Congress as a presidential message on July 31 and that plans were changed only because Taft was dying.

A leak permitted publication of the amendments three days later and from supporters of the Taft-Hartley Act there came a startled blast of protest.

If this incident failed to cause conservative distrust of some of Mr. Eisenhower's advisers, then the evidence is misleading.

Woods Fire Sure Way To Be Found

OAK RIDGE, Ore. (AP)—There is one sure way of attracting attention in Oregon's vast timberlands in the summer, start a fire. That's what Don Lewis, Kitson Springs fisherman, did when he lost his way. After hours of traveling in circles and getting nowhere, Lewis decided that one of the several forest lookout stations in the area would see the smoke of a fire.

So he set a blaze. Sure enough, it was spotted by a watcher at Rigdon Guard Station. In a few minutes emergency fighters were on the ground. They extinguished the blaze after it had spread over part of an acre. It could have developed quickly into a fire that threatened thousands of acres and millions of feet of valuable timber.

The forest service sympathized with Lewis, but not to the extent of condoning a fire. He was taken to justice court and fined $20 and costs.

Even so, Lewis figures he came out ahead.

Bible Words to Live by

PHILIPPIANS 4:19 - "And my God shall supply every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus." (R.S.V.)

The source of supply is God who cares for all our needs. He supplies our needs, not necessarily our wants. Out of the abundance of his riches in glory our spiritual necessities are met. From Christ Jesus by faith we receive salvation from sin! In Christ Jesus we have solace in sorrow, in Christ Jesus we have succor in our stumblings and in Him we have strength for service.

We can choke the supply lines of God by our disobedience or we can keep the channels of grace open by our surrender.

This scripture applies to material needs as well as spiritual blessings. If we meet the conditions of being recipients of his mercies we must put the Kingdom of God first, remembering the words of Jesus "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness (right standing with Him) and all these things (referring to food, clothing and shelter) shall be added to you."

Christian Science Radio Series To Be Released

A new series of weekly 15-minute radio programs illustrating the power of prayer in everyday life will be released September 19 by the Christian Science church, it was announced today.

Each program presents a firsthand, documentary narrative in which a guest tells of his own religious experience — how his problem was solved or how he experienced physical healing through prayer in Christian Science.

The thoroughly verified accounts are being tape recorded from persons of many different walks of life from all over the United States, Canada, Europe, Africa, Australia and other parts of the world.

Following the narrative a short inspirational message will be presented on how the listener can solve his own problems through prayer.

The programs — carrying the series title "HOW CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALS" — are produced by The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, according to announcement by Fred H. Hasty, Christian Science Committee on Publication for North Carolina.

They will be heard on about 600 radio stations throughout the United States, Canada and Australia, and at points in Latin America, Africa, Europe, and New Zealand.

The musical portion of the programs to be heard in coming weeks presents former Metropolitan Opera Association tenor, Frederick Jagel, accompanied by Ruth Barrett Phelps at the console of the great 13,228-pipe organ of The Mother Church. Commentator in the opening series is Harry C. Browne, for many years member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship and a former president of The Mother Church.

FAMILIAR WITH ALL THE EXCUSES
AKRON, O. (UP)—Ever think you had the perfect excuse that would get you off from a parking ticket charge? Don't try it here, because Art Wigley police cashier, and his assistant, Mrs. Dora Ritchey, have faced everything—even the motorist who wasn't a bit angry.

"We get a lot of wild ones," Wigley said. "We have to get a policeman to cool 'em down."

Practically no one believes he is in the wrong when he finds one of those discouraging tags stuck under his windshield wiper, according to the clerks.

Probably the man who was nearest right was the one who got a ticket for parking across a driveway—a driveway that happened to be his own, but "How could the officer know that?" Mrs. Ritchey said.

The chagrined motorist was caught two ways, because it turned out his driveway was too narrow for his car, so he had to park in the street. He vowed to have curbing put across it so it would cease —officially—to be a driveway.

Threats of political repercussions are common, as are the vague threats, such as "I'll get him some day. . ." The clerks tend to consider these as just so much steam being let off.

Says Japan Still Is Pro-American

TOKYO (AP)—A Mainichi Shimbun editorial says a strong pro-American feeling still prevails among the Japanese people.

The newspaper, one of Japan's largest, publishes in four cities with a reported combined circulation of six million. A recent editorial declared:

"We do not think x x x the greater part of the Japanese people have anti-American sentiments. Rather, we say that there still exists a strong pro-American feeling."

The editorial added, however, that "We must frankly admit there has been a slight change in Japanese feeling."

It attributed this change to a reaction against the pro-American policies of the Japanese government, the affects of anti-American propaganda of the Japanese Communist party, and concern over the effect on economics and education of continued operation of U.S. bases in Japan.

The editorial asserted anti-American feeling among Japanese intellectuals could be traced to "McCarthyism" in the United States.

Midnight Ride To Shift 'Rain'

STANTON, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Yuell Winslow, a pretty young woman, gets up at midnight every night and drives 28 miles to move a sprinkler system.

It's a system that makes three inches of "rain" on 90 acres of pastureland grass every 15 days, and it makes the grass green for the cattle Mrs. Winslow and her husband own.

The sprinklers are on their ranch 14 miles out from town. They have to be moved every six hours to keep up the irrigation schedule.

Henry Self, truck foreman, makes three of the sprinkler moves every 24 hours, but the Winslows take the midnight trip.

The sprinkler pipe is 1,050 feet long and mounted on wheels.

Special Course On 'Paper Bullets' For Army Men

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Paper bullets, the Army calls them.

Young officers are being trained to "shoot" them at Georgetown University here.

The formal name for what these men are studying is psychological warfare. It's a kind of war of the printed and spoken word.

The young officers at Georgetown are being taught how to launch psychological attacks against enemy troops, factory workers, farmers, and city-dwellers.

The course includes training in radio, leaflets, the spoken word—all aimed at persuading an enemy he couldn't win and had better give up.

The officer-students are college-bred. They range in rank from first lieutenant to full colonel.

Doctor Likes To Sail, And Does, In Small Yawl

VANCOUVER (AP)—In five years of sailing his 33.5-foot yawl, Dr. John Evans, physician and mariner, has sailed in his Stortebeker III from England to New Zealand and from New Zealand to Canada, going where his fancy pleased him with no set itinerary.

If he liked a port or its people he stayed there until he felt like moving on.

His Norwegian crew member, Frank Jensen, has been with him throughout the journey.

Dr. Evans said he plans to lay the yawl up for the winter at Victoria and in December will return to England by rail and steamer for a short visit.

The yawl is sturdy, admirably suited for single-handed or two-man sailing. She has a mahogany hull, oak frames and measures 24.5 feet at the waterline by 8.4-foot beam. An auxiliary gas engine is used only for entering harbor.

Power Boat Will Aid Handicapped

Most of them fought in World War II or in Korea.

Some of them worked in newspaper offices and in radio script writing. A few are advertising copy writers, promotion, and movie folk. There are even a few lawyers among them.

Knowledge of human nature is their best asset, for what they are studying is a sort of postgraduate course in the art of persuasion.

Because Russia is the country that appears most likely to start a war these young men are busy studying the methods of domination, national characteristics and cultures of the Russians and their satellites.

The men now taking the course at Georgetown will finish in January. Another group will follow them.

The military feels the taxpayers' money is being well-spent at Georgetown. "Paper bullets" have helped to win wars before, and it war comes again these young men will be ready to play an important role.

Forced To Land; Earphones Gone

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—When it comes to reasons for forced landings, Pilot Ray W. Barr, 34, of Jacksonville, Fla., holds claim to one of the strangest.

Barr, flying into the Charleston airport during a heavy rain storm, stuck his head out the window of his light plane for better visibility. His radio earphones blew off.

Out of contact with the airport, he landed on an unfinished strip of U. S. 90, waited out the storm and took off again.

NO BOUNCE

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—State Highway Commissioner G. Albert Hill calmed motorists who feared their automobiles would "bounce like tennis balls" on a stretch of experimental rubber highway at Middletown this fall. "That's not the case," said Hill, explaining that only about five per cent rubber will be added to the concrete.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (U.P.)—A theater porter has invented a small power boat that he hopes will enable crippled children to share in water sports.

The versatile boat, which may become valuable as a sports and military landing craft as well as hydrotherapy equipment, is powered by a silent electric motor operating from a storage battery and is kept buoyant by air spaces.

The operator holds to a steering bar at the stern and is towed through the water faster than a man can swim. To keep the boat moving, he must apply a slight pressure to the bar.

Accidental Idea
James B. Waters, the inventor, believes the craft has infinite possibilities for the handicapped or persons who have never learned to swim.

For such persons, the boat has a safety feature which tinders it motionless when the operator loses his grip on the steering bar. The boat stops until the bar is grasped again.

Waters, a Negro, who also operates a barbecue stand, stumbled on the idea 25 years ago while working on a one-man airplane that proved to be impractical. By accident he placed two wing-ribs together which formed a contour suggesting a boat.

The inventor kept the idea in mind until an electric motor suitable for operation of his boat was developed.

While Waters has patented his craft, he has not gone into production of it.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

Many home craftsmen are doing finer work in furniture finishing than some professionals, who can't afford to invest the time and pains and still stay in business. The most intricate techniques are now studied and developed in the amateur's modern home workshops.

Yet, it is surprising how few handymen understand the advantages of wet sanding. Apparently they have not watched automobile body workers develop perfect surfaces and high finishes by using soapy water in their between-coat abrasive work.

This type of sanding with the new waterproof production papers was recently referred to in this department. Mention was made of lubricating oil used on varnished wood surfaces for wet sanding, with soap and water recommended for rubbing down finishes on metal. This got a rise out of J.F.R. of Washington, D.C.

"Heaven help the metalsmith who puts soapy water on metal when sanding," he wrote, "and to the poor woodworker who uses lubricating oil when sanding wood — I can just see all the housewives this morning with a can of lubricating oil in one hand and waterproof sandpapers in the other, trying to take out cigarette burns and scratches."

Well, you don't have to take this reporter's word for it. We'll quote an expert — Rog Nestande of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing — a company that makes the near-diamond hard crystals used on abrasives.

"Evidently critic J.F.R. has never been in an auto repair shop where quantities of water and waterproof sandpaper are used for finish sanding on all parts of the auto body," Nestande observes. "It would be erroneous, however, to wet sand on bare metal — where, just as in the case with wood the sanding would be done dry with no need for a lubricating medium. Waterproof production paper is used with soapy water lubricant when sanding the finish, or in-between coats on metal."

Here is how wet sanding comes in for removing a cigarette burn or small scratch on a fine table top:
 If the damage is too large or too deep, the entire surface should be refinished. But for a small burn or small scratch, the area can be sanded dry with "very fine" production paper. This sanding is done very lightly, over only the area of the blemish, and is continued until the mar is removed. The sanded area is then stained to match the original finish. When the stain is dry, a medium-heavy coat of sealer is applied. This is allowed to dry for at least 4 hours. Then the area is dry sanded again with "very fine" grade paper on a rubber sanding block to level the sealer.

You are now ready for the top coat. Since it is very difficult to blend a damaged area perfectly with the surrounding surface, it is usually best to re-coat the whole surface with varnish or lacquer. When this has dried, wet sanding begins.

Light lubricating oil is used for this process with grade "super-fine" black waterproof sandpaper on a rubber block. This wet sanding will produce a perfectly level and satin-like finish.

If you want a high luster, rub the entire surface with rotten stone and oil until you get the luster you desire. The surface is then cleaned with a furniture polish and cleaner.

Try it.

New Type Radar Given Priority; Big Advantages

WASHINGTON (UP)—The armed forces are developing a new kind of radar which may revolutionize U. S. defenses against surprise atomic attack, it was learned today.

The secret new equipment, known as "doppler" or "audio" radar, may be the forerunner of a completely automatic air warning net stretching far into the Arctic wastelands.

A high Defense Department official said the Eisenhower administration has assigned a top priority to development of the new plane-detection apparatus as one of the answers to the pressing problem of air defense.

The administration is known to be gravely concerned about the need to improve U. S. air defenses now that Russia has an A-bomb arsenal and has conducted an H-bomb test.

Development of the new type radar, however, is the first publicly disclosed decision resulting from numerous official studies of the subject, and is an indication that the administration is relying heavily on technological developments to meet the air defense problem.

Conventional radar would differ from audio radar in that it would give a "ping" or an audible sound—instead of a "pip"—or a visual mark on a screen—when sky-sweeping electronic beams detect a plane aloft.

The advantage of the new type lies in the reduced number of men required to man a radar network across the top of the American continent.

The defense official said it had been determined that it would be impossible just from a manpower standpoint to set up a "sufficient" warning network against an enemy air attack using present-day radar.

The "doppler" radar has the added advantage of being more accurate than present radar in determining the number of and types of planes flying overhead. Informants said it is so good it can tell the number of propellers on a bomber.

Brightest Pair In Class Are Wed

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UP)—The smartest pair in the University of Kansas school of pharmacy have joined forces.

Walter Haskins married Margaret Follett recently. They are seniors who almost have a corner on scholastic honors in their chosen field.

Haskins has a scholastic average of 2.96 of a possible 3.00. An outstanding high school athlete at Kansas City, Kan., where he set and holds the record in the discus throw, Haskins has made all 'A's' at K.U. His lone "B" came while he was a pre-pharmacy student at Kansas City Junior College—and he graduated first in his class.

No Rivalry
 Mrs. Haskins has a 2.90 average. She made two 'B's' in three years of college work at the same two schools.

In K.U., the then Miss Follett took top honors in the sophomore class, while Haskins went ahead in the junior year.

Who will win this year?
 "We don't care," Haskins said. "Our main object in school is to learn as much as we can and do the best we can."

The couple expects to live in Lawrence the next three years while Haskins works toward a Doctor of Philosophy degree in chemistry. The bride expects to graduate next spring and then work as a pharmacist.

Student Pianists In Recital On Sunday

Walter Noona of Norfolk, Va., and Rachel Mundine of Newport, N.C., pianists and students of music at East Carolina College, will appear in recital Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Austin building on the campus. The program, sponsored by the college music department, will be open to the public.

These two gifted students played by the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra in Chapel Hill. Sunday's program will include concertos which they presented there. They will use a Steinway grand piano acquired this week by East Carolina College. Both are pupils of Robert Carter of the college faculty.

Mr. Noona will play Beethoven's Emperor Concerto. Miss Mundine will present Mozart's E Flat Piano Concerto. Appearing at second piano at the recital will be Mr. Carter, with Mr. Noona, and Christopher Giles of Wake Forest, with Miss Mundine.

Mr. Noona, a senior, has given recitals on the campus has played as soloist with the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra, and has appeared in programs before civic, cultural, and social organizations throughout the state. Last spring, he received recognition of his ability as a pianist when he won state and regional awards offered by the National Federation of Music Clubs and top rating in the National Piano Recording Festival sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers.

Miss Mundine, a freshman, will appear Sunday for the first time under the sponsorship of the college music department. Before coming to East Carolina, she studied music under Mrs. Charles Abernethy of New Bern. Her performances as a pianist have attracted favorable attention in music contests over this state.

CIVIL WAR PENSIONS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UP)—The Civil War still cost Kentucky $25,000 last fiscal year in pensions paid to widows of Confederate veterans. The finance department said it had 35 widows on its pension rolls. There were no surviving veterans listed. Each widow received a pension from the state of about $50 a month.

The late John D. Rockefeller Sr., who was one of the richest men in the world, started work at $3.50 a week.

Divided Loyalty Finds Solution

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Three years ago Buddy (Kekilapale) Young came to Kansas City from his native Hawaii to attend school. While attending the University of Kansas City he got lonesome for Hawaii and returned to the Islands.

Soon after his return, he began to long for Kansas City. Back he came, got a job and enrolled again at the university. He graduated in 1952 and then went back to Hawaii. Yes, he got lonesome again for Kansas City and came back. He decided he never would be able to make a final choice.

His solution?
 Young found a job with a travel agency here and conducts tours to Hawaii four times a year.

New Wing Of Men's Dormitory Now In Use

Completion of a new wing for Ragsdale Hall, East Carolina College dormitory, has provided this fall additional and much needed living quarters for men students on the campus.

At present 190 men have rooms in Ragsdale. Sixty of them live in the recently completed wing, and 130 in the older sections of the building.

Ragsdale Hall was built originally as a dormitory for women faculty members and was so used for many years. Two years ago it was converted to a student dormitory when a new faculty apartment building was completed.

The new wing at Ragsdale was completed this summer and was ready for occupancy at the beginning of the present school term. This addition to the dormitory forms the east wing of the building. It is similar in construction to the west wing and is separated from it by a court.

Extensive improvements have also recently been made at Ragsdale. New copper water pipes have been installed throughout the dormitory, and additional plumbing fixtures provided. Modern locks have been put on the doors of rooms occupied by students. The interior of the building has been painted, and asphalt tile laid on the floors.

Ragsdale is now, according to college Business Manager F. D. Duncan, "one of the most modern and desirable dormitories on the campus."

In addition to living quarters for students, Ragsdale includes a two-room apartment in the northeast corner of the first floor. It is occupied by a faculty member who serves as counselor to students.

The report said 2,004 children were of mixed Caucasian-Japanese extraction, 400 have Negro blood and 86 are listed in other categories. The report said there were 2,943 children of acknowledged American paternity, 104 of Australian paternity, 35 Filipino, 23 British, 29 Russian, 14 Indian, 11 Italian and 8 Canadian.

RATTLES TREATMENT

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (UP)—Cowboys on the huge King Ranch have a new technique for eliminating rattlesnakes. They blow cyanide into the snakes' nests and then cap the entrance. Officials reported 27 dead snakes were removed after one such operation.

Republicans Line Up Top Stars For Coming Rally

By JOHN L. CUTTER
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (UP)—The Republican Party lined up cabinet members and other dignitaries for their coming pep-rally today as Democrats left town well pleased with their own two-day gathering and the publicity it got.
The Democrats played with their whole first team—former President Harry S. Truman, Adlai E. Stevenson, Sam Rayburn and a host of other bigwigs—and felt they had made important gains in the coming congressional elections.
"It has been marvelous," said Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell of the publicity the Monday-Tuesday rally received.
The Republicans were already taking steps to glorify their own meeting, starting Friday, but their biggest star, President Eisenhower, will not be on hand.
Republicans already gathered here indicated that the GOP was not likely to make an all-out and direct attempt to answer Democratic charges that farmers were suffering under the new administration.

The Democrats made the farm question one of the most important single factors in their offensive to recapture Congress in 1954.
It was noted that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, who announced at Denver yesterday that he would present a new farm program to Congress next session, will be pleading the administration's cause in a speech Saturday at the national plowing contest at Russell's Corner, Wis.
Although the GOP gathering is actually regional in nature, a session of more than a thousand Midwest and Southern women and 21 Midwest and Mountain State chairmen, it was getting good attention from party brass.
The speakers will include Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and leading congresswomen.
GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall was scheduled to make the keynote address but he is ill with a virus infection and cannot attend. Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, new chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, has even been named to take Hall's place.

Miss Bertha S. Adkins, head of Republican women's activities, held a news conference yesterday but found little fault with Stevenson's major foreign policy speech Tuesday night.
"It seems to me Mr. Stevenson was not really finding fault with the administration," Miss Adkins said. "He was pointing out things we all recognize to be true—when you sit down to negotiate with the Communists you have to be extremely careful."
But some of the more rough-and-tumble Republicans were expected to be a little harder on Stevenson and Mr. Truman during the coming rally, with the task of answering Democratic charges possibly falling to Dirksen, an old-style orator.
Miss Adkins, asked her opinion on so-called "McCarthyism," said she was "for the good of the Republican Party." She added she felt that many congressional investigations had done a lot of good.

Republicans 'Satisfied' By Demo Developments

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican strategists added up the week's political score and found considerable satisfaction today in developments within the Democratic Party.
The Republican slant is that in their Chicago harmony rally the Democrats disposed of none of the issues dividing them even though they did avoid a ruckus.
Mayor David L. Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was named chairman of a committee to find a way out of the angry dispute over the loyalty rule imposed on protesting southerners at the 1952 Democratic national convention.
That is a method of meeting an issue which the Democrats themselves called "government by postponement" when criticizing President Eisenhower's creation of study groups on various controversial issues. Whatever success the Lawrence committee may finally achieve, it will not be dealing with the bitter issue which persuaded Democratic New Deal Fair Deal elements to ram the loyalty rule through last year's convention.
The loyalty rule merely is a symptom of party disunity. The cause is civil rights and the manner and timing of ending segregation in the South. Republicans noted with satisfaction that most of the conservative southerners who bolted the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket last year were absent from the Chicago meeting.
There were some other rather significant absences. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), for example, and Sen. Richard B. Russell (Ga.). Administration politicians count all of this as favorable to their aggressive campaign to establish the Republican Party in the South.
If it is true that many conservative southern Democrats found little to cheer about in the news from Chicago, they found less in news from New York. The New Deal-Fair Deal wing of the party ran away with New York City's Democratic primary.
That means New York's fat delegation to the 1956 Democratic convention probably will be as effective then as last year in shaping a party platform hateful to

March Of Dimes Worker Indicted For Bank Fraud

BATON ROUGE, La. (UP)—A bank executive, recently praised for his "fine work" with the "March of Dimes," today faced criminal prosecution after admitting he embezzled $93,674.79 in 12 years.
Spellman M. Kling, 51-year-old assistant vice-president of the Louisiana National Bank, admitted to the FBI yesterday that falsifying records got out of hand after a minor original theft.
He was charged specifically with an $800 shortage alleged to have occurred about last Aug. 28. Bank officials said the entire loss was covered by insurance.
"He didn't seem to have a care in the world," said Preston Kors, another vice-president. "Just recently he was written up for his fine work on the March of Dimes."
Kling, freed under $5,000 bail after waiving a preliminary hearing, said when he found himself unable to replace the first amount he "borrowed" from an account he began heavy drinking, and that led to further thefts.
In his confession Kling told the FBI he perfected a system of covering the embezzlements by mailing seven large depositors one set of statements while he filed different statements with the bank.
Kling made his confession when one discrepancy was traced to him after the account of one depositor was found to have insufficient funds to cover a $3,500 check he had written.

Rodney Dee Has Happy Birthday

CHICAGO (UP)—Rodney Dee Brodie, celebrating his birthday like any happy little boy, hugged everyone within reach and beat out time with a spoon to hillbilly music.
The birthday marked another year in the life of Rodney Dee, who was separated from his Siamese twin, Roger Lee, in an historic operation last December.
Roger Lee died a month afterward, but Rodney Dee has continued to progress and is given a chance to achieve an "effective life."
His birthday cake yesterday had three candles, one for each of the perilous years of his life and "one to grow on."
His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royt Brodie, came from their Ferris, Ill., farm to attend the party at University of Illinois hospital.
The hospital ward was decorated with gay crepe paper as Rodney Dee's ward playmates, nurses and doctors gathered to sing "a happy birthday."
His mother brought the cake, but though he laughed and tried to blow out the candles he needed the help of a playmate to put them out.
He got gifts of toys, clothes and books from his family. He liked best a wooden pull cart filled with blocks.
Rodney Dee was joined to his twin at the top of the head. Today jabberings are normal for a two-he has a happy disposition, and his year-old.
He is somewhat retarded in physical development and constant physical therapy is needed to develop his muscles which got little use during the 15 months he was a Siamese twin.

Tombstone Tells Artist's Rancor

WELLINGTON, O. (U.P.)—Otis G. Pratt was bitter over treatment he had received as an artist and sculptor, so he had his resentment carved on his tombstone.
The stone, standing over the grave of Pratt and his mother in Greenwood Cemetery here, attracts many tourists. Pratt died in 1921 at the age of 76. The inscription reads:
"Stranger, I lived in an age when corruption was in our government and the ballot box was begged for. When martyred presidents and riots echoed over our land. When law and respect clung to the rich and shunned the poor. When money and fashion had the brains and talent went over the water for want of free schools of art supported by our government. Such were the conditions which caused my landscape to decay with me as nature shows it. Farewell."
Pratt himself spent a good deal of time in Europe studying art. When he came back he earned a tiny income by sketching portraits of townspeople and selling them for a pittance.
He painted murals on the inside of his house but just before he died he destroyed them all.

Old-New Movie-Making Process Makes Its Debut

NEW YORK (UP)—A movie-making process invented a quarter of a century ago made its public bow at the Roxy Theater Wednesday night when 20th Century-Fox presented "The Robe," made with its wide-screen Cinemascope technique.
Present for the gala event along with many stage and screen celebrities and other notables was Prof. Henri Chretien, the 77-year-old French inventor whose filming method gathered dust until 20th Century-Fox officials bought it almost on sight last December, shortly after the dimensional revolution hit the screen.
Chretien came over from Paris for the premiere.
The specially invited first night audience saw "The Robe" displayed in brilliant technicolor on a curved screen two and a half times the size of the conventional flat screen.
Often there was the illusion of depth on the concave screen. Notable were scenes of pageantry in this story of the time of Christ, with extras in them standing out clearly instead of just being unidentifiable figures in the background.
"In Cinemascope," said Frank Ross, producer of the picture, "extras become actors. They are no longer anonymous blurs."
The huge size of the figures on the screen did not make impossible intimate scenes between two persons either.
"With Cinemascope we can get the effect of a closeup without a closeup," Ross added.
Because the length of the movie preclude additional entertainment, the Roxy management abandoned its stage show policy of long-standing and dismissed the house orchestra. Pickets from Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, (AFL) carried signs charging the management with unfair tactics.

Employees Given Highest Priority

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Missouri Farm Bureau Federation here, alarmed at the lack of parking facilities in this small but busy state capital, leased a downtown parking area for the free use of its employees.
Lots of outfits have done things like that. But the MFBF put in a new twist. The federation figured the lowest paid employee would have the least money to spend for commercial parking. So it gave the folks at the bottom of the payroll first crack at the free parking.

Waives Delay In Issuing License

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UP)—The marriage license clerk waived the five-day waiting period when James A. Maples, a retired salesman, and Mrs. Pearl C. Lapham applied for a license.
"After all," clerk Charles Mack said, "when a man is 83 and his girl friend is 73, they've waited long enough."

Rita Hayworth's Wedding Is 'Set'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Film star Rita Hayworth and crooner Dick Haymes today planned a Sept. 24 wedding, although the singer faces a deportation hearing only four days later.
Haymes can arrange a continuation of the scheduled Sept. 28 hearing, he'll take the suitry red-haired actress to Philadelphia for a honeymoon.
Meanwhile, private detectives and sheriff's deputies guarded Miss Hayworth and her two children while the FBI investigated letters that threatened the family with harm unless 3-year-old princess Yasmin is returned to her Moslem father, Prince Aly Khan, Rita's former husband.
A spokesman for Miss Hayworth and Haymes said the wedding date was tentative, pending the outcome of divorce suits by both the singer and his estranged wife, Nora Edgington Haymes.
Haymes has a 10-day engagement at the Latin Casino in Philadelphia to squeeze in with his honeymoon. He faces possible deportation to his native Argentina on charges he illegally re-entered the United States this summer after a trip to Hawaii to visit Miss Hayworth.

Postal Officials Await Complaint

WASHINGTON (UP)—Postal officials said today they will make a "thorough study" of the new Kinsey book if anyone files an official complaint against it.
So far no one has, although the Post Office department has received a number of letters asking informally that the book be barred from the mails.
Without an official complaint, the department cannot rule whether Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey's report on "sexual behavior in the Human Female" is fit for the mails, a spokesman said. Until a complaint is presented, the department won't even read the controversial book.

Graham Hopes To End Controversy

RALEIGH (UP)—Highway Commission Chairman A. H. Graham made it clear today that he plans to end the controversy over the firing of Miss Ronnie Sheffield as director of women's prison at a scheduled meeting with her in his office here Friday.
But the ousted women's prison director has stressed that she didn't request the meeting as a conclusive trial. She said she wanted only to learn the charges on which her dismissal was based, with a "hearing" to come later in the event the charges constitute an attack on her "personal and professional character."
The woman he ousted July 21 protested in reply that Graham's letter "conveys the impression that you expect to have persons present... who are prepared to testify against me."
"Surely, you as a lawyer, can appreciate that elementary justice requires that I first be informed of the accusations against me and then be afforded an opportunity to make my defense," she wrote.
But Graham told reporters "I'm going to bring this thing to a head" at Friday's meeting.
"It's my intention that the hearing on Friday will be the final word on it," said Graham.
He mailed her a special delivery letter stating that his plans for the conference were unchanged and that she still was welcome to bring with her five friends wishing to speak in her behalf.
Upon receiving it, Miss Sheffield wrote again — her third letter — last night and reiterated that she be presented with written charges and then given an opportunity to defend against them at a later hearing.
"Your suggestion of a hearing before I have the charges in writing is highly unorthodox and I must insist upon my right to know the charges in order to refute them," Miss Sheffield wrote last night. "Therefore, I repeat that if furnished this information in writing I shall expect you to agree to a hearing at a time mutually agreeable," she added.
