UN Command Critical Of 'Neutral' Indian Conduct

Big 4 Talk Pressure Rises

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States stood fast today against mounting world pressure for a Big Four chiefs of state meeting until the Soviet Union demonstrates in lower-level conferences that it means to work for peace.

was sounded on two fronts yesterday. The proposal is known to have support from a number of U. S. allies. British Prime Minister Winston Churchill in a special statement, said he has not changed his opinion that such a meeting would be profitable and should be scheduled.

The British and Indian position is believed to be in line with Soviet hopes. In a reply to an earlier Western invitation to a Big Four foreign ministers conference on Germany and Austria, the Soviet tried to enlarge the proposed meeting to include Red China and discuss broader subjects.

Eisenhower Expected Name Supreme Court Appointee Tomorrow Gov. Warren Said Chosen

By JAMES F. DONOVAN United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Responsible administration sources said today that President Eisenhower will announce selection of Gov. Earl Warren of California as chief justice of the United States at his news conference tomorrow.

Warren who has announced he will not seek re-election next year, has been the most frequently mentioned, even by recess appointment, before the court convenes next Monday for the 1958-59 term.

Apparently final details of the Warren appointment were worked out Sunday in Sacramento, Calif., between the governor and Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr.

Nothing to say at this time. Some experts here promptly regarded the Brownell trip as evidence that Warren had been selected as Vinson's successor. Other experts, however, were more cautious.

Eastern N. C. Bankers Review Agricultural Problems

"More Millions of Dollars for Your Area" was the theme of a meeting of Eastern North Carolina bankers and agriculture economists here yesterday attended by more than 80 bankers from 27 counties of this section.

Emphasizing that most farms are under capitalized and therefore not as profitable as they could be if ready capital was available for improved practices, the agriculture economists asked the bankers to give careful study to the farm and proposed improvements during the survey in order that they might decide at the discussion meeting to follow later, whether or not they would consider it sound banking practice to extend the theoretical loan.

Under Capitalized Emphasizing that most farms are under capitalized and therefore not as profitable as they could be if ready capital was available for improved practices, the agriculture economists asked the bankers to give careful study to the farm and proposed improvements during the survey in order that they might decide at the discussion meeting to follow later, whether or not they would consider it sound banking practice to extend the theoretical loan.

Low Income Problem C. Erice Ratchford, of State College, declared that one of the great problems of the agricultural areas at this time is the tremendous movement from the farms. He pointed out the low total cash income of farmers and farm workers because of lack of full productivity.

He emphasized that bankers must scrutinize every loan from the bankers standpoint; but based on expert study and methods already put into practice in certain test areas, reasonable capital advancement for farm improvement is proving not only a sound investment from the bankers standpoint but is bringing greater prosperity for the communities.

Legion Auxiliary Hears Reports On Girls' State

The American Legion Auxiliary held its first regular meeting of the new year Thursday evening, Sept. 24, at the lovely country home of Mrs. L. W. Cherry. Roses and other fall flowers added much to the attractiveness of the rooms. Twenty-six members were present.

Mrs. J. C. Lamm, the new president, called the meeting to order and presided. The meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Mrs. M. C. Sermons, of Winterville, chaplain, read from the scriptures and led in prayer, after which all united in recitation of the preamble. During the business session which followed, Mrs. W. C. Eagles, secretary, and Mrs. L. L. Rives, treasurer, gave their reports. A note of gratitude from Mrs. M. L. Windley, area vice-president, who was dinner guest in September, was read. It was voted to increase the Library and Educational Funds each to five dollars per year. Special thanks were given to Mrs. Frank Taylor, Mrs. A. B. Corey and Miss Annie Turner for the attractive year books which were passed. Mrs. Lamm gave the highlights of the state convention which was held in Wilmington in June.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Arthur B. Corey, who presented Miss Lou White Winstead and Miss Lenna Rose, who were selected to represent the local unit to send as citizens of the Fourteenth Annual Tar Heel Girls' State, which was held at Woman's College, U.N.C., in Greensboro, June 26 to July 3, with an enrollment of 300 citizens. The project is well known for its value and the enthusiastic reports of the girls were the feature of the evening's program.

Both girls expressed their gratitude for the high privilege of becoming citizens of Tar Heel Girls' State and for the honor bestowed on them. They gave detailed and glowing reports of the full week of activity and entertainment which was provided and told of the knowledge, information and practice in citizenship which they received. They had a wonderful time, they said, learned a lot and counted it a rare opportunity to be members of a youth group which is dedicated to a study of state democracy and inspired by nobility in citizenship, with an overall outlook toward world government.

Mrs. Corey and Mrs. Lamm each responded by thanking the girls for their splendid reports and telling them wholeheartedly that the Auxiliary considered it their good fortune and privilege to have two such fine girls as Lou White and Lenna to send to Girls' State this year in order to train for citizenship and leadership, and that they had been happy to feature them as returned citizens on their program.

After a prayer led by Mrs. Lamm and followed by a period of silence in memory of our war dead, the meeting was declared adjourned and a social hour was enjoyed, during which a sweet course with coffee was served.

Those assisting Mrs. Cherry as hostesses were, Mesdames Hicks Corey, J. L. Evans, C. R. Flye, C. J. Allgood, Martha Forrest, Bert Green, H. A. Hudson and Mattie Tucker.

several songs, and then entertained the group by leading them in what was termed a "silver service symphony" in which knives, forks and water glasses were used as instruments. Dr. Robert Gray of the East Carolina College faculty rendered several trombone solos for the entertainment of the group.

Teachers who have been on the school faculty for one or more years were introduced by Johnny Frisco who used humorous individual character traits in introducing each of the faculty members to the new teachers in the city school system.

New Fund-Raising Plans By Park Committee Mapped

The Elm Street Park Project Committee met at City Hall last night to discuss plans to raise funds for completion of the recreation building at the park.

Upon completion of the building the project will be completed, according to Louis Gaylord, chairman of the project committee. It was estimated the building is two-thirds completed now.

Gaylord told the group last night that finishing the roofing, plumbing, wiring, and heating would put the building in top notch shape.

Two drives have netted $13,526.92, but approximately $5,000 is needed to finish the work.

Many suggestions were heard from the audience and discussion was held before the group decided which method of raising the final funds would be used.

A supper and auction on the park grounds was approved and Gaylord appointed the following committee to that project: Connor Eagles and Mrs. Ernest Cassich, co-chairman; Heber Tripp, John R. Carrington, and Boley Farley.

A local talent show broadcast by WOTC was suggested if the local station would give the time. Tyson Bilbro and Elvy Forrest were co-chairman with Mrs. J.B. Cummings, Mrs. Carrie West, and J.B. Newman appointed to that committee. A major league barnstorming game was suggested by Boley Farley, and he was told to find out if they could schedule a game for Greenville.

Gaylord is to check with local tobacco companies to see if they would assist in still a fourth method of completing the needed funds. Another meeting is scheduled next Monday night to hear progress of the committees who were appointed last night.

Lions Hear Proponents Of Bond Election Speak

The needs of the Pitt County educational system and the part the impending bond election for more schools and better mental institutions in the state would play in the county, were outlined last night to members of the Greenville Lions Club.

Joe Moyer, chairman of the bond promotion drive in Pitt, last night spoke to the club along with Representative Frank Kilpatrick of Ayden, calling for support of the forthcoming bond election.

Moyer cited the needs in Pitt County to bring the school system up to meet the crowded conditions which now exist as being 54 additional white class rooms and 94 Negro units.

It has been estimated that over seven million dollars would be required to build the needed units in the county and there is less than $100,000 to meet the needs from funds now.

Kilpatrick noted the rapid growth of the population in the mental establishments over the state and the great need for improved facilities at once.

Pitt County ranks second in the state in needs for new school construction and would stand to benefit to the tune of over $300,000 if the proposed bond election goes over the top.

The speakers were introduced by W. E. Harvey.

Influence Of Metals On Affairs Of World To Be Discussed At Meeting

The challenge offered by the unequal and limited distribution of metals in the earth will be discussed by J.O. Derrick of the East Carolina science department at a meeting of the Faculty Lecture Club of the college Tuesday, October 6, at 8 p.m. in the Flanagan auditorium on the campus.

The talk by Mr. Derrick will be the first in a series of six programs to be given during the 1953-1954 term. Organized in 1946 by a group of thirty faculty members at the college to encourage exchange and discussion of ideas, the club presents each school year five lectures by members and a talk by a visiting speaker.

Mr. Derrick will emphasize world problems created by the unequal distribution of metals in common use, including copper, tungsten, zinc, chromium, and tin. He will also discuss elements likely to become commonplace in years to come, such as beryllium, germanium, titanium, and tantalum.

According to custom, club members extend an invitation to attend the October 6 meeting to all who are interested in the discussion.

Fishing Factory Razed By Blaze

BEAUFORT (UP) — Owners of a fishing factory on desolate Melt Lee Island in the Newport River near the Morehead City - Beaufort causeway today surveyed damage wrought by a disastrous fire which raged through the plant.

The blaze raged for almost three hours last night, and flames against the sky were visible for several miles.

The property was owned by Llewellyn, Jasper and H. O. Phillips of Morehead City. Llewellyn Phillips said the plant had an appraised value of $150,000.

All of the plant was reported destroyed with the exception of a boat dock and elevator. The plant consisted of a large frame building filled with machinery for processing fish and three or four additional frame buildings, including living quarters for factory workers, dining room and foreman's house.

No one was on the island at the time of the blaze and no injuries were reported in fire-fighting attempts. The factory has operated each fall during the menhaden fishing season.

The announced change of ownership will become effective when the Federal Communications Commission approves the transfer of the radio station's license.

The newspapers with a combined circulation of 54,882 will be published by a corporation known as the Asheville Citizen-Times, which also will operate the radio station, it was announced.

Elias will continue as publisher of the newspapers and direct function of the organization, it was announced. Officers of the corporation will be Roger Peace, board chairman; Charlie Peace, president and treasurer, and Sisk, vice-president and secretary.

Burden Once More Rests Upon Voters

Four more days and the people of North Carolina will have decided whether or not the state should issue $72,000,000 in bonds for public schools and mental institutions.

When the polls close Saturday night, the voters of the state either will have stamped their approval on the bond issue, or turned down flatly two of the most pressing needs of the state.

It will be the people who cast ballots in Saturday's referendum who decide the important issue. The people who support the bond issue, but do not cast ballots Saturday will not have a voice in the decision.

Unless North Carolina is to fall hopelessly behind its needs and demands for public school facilities and mental institutions, the people must vote in favor of the bond issue Saturday. It is true that after conferences with the U. S. "ex-but the needs of the state's schools and mental institutions are even greater than the amount of the bond issue might indicate.

In Pitt County alone, officials have said that 90 more classrooms were needed to handle the enrollment this year. Throughout North Carolina, school systems needed more than 7,000 more classrooms than were available when school opened this fall. Even more important is the fact that school enrollment in the state is continuing to rise, and more and more facilities will be needed in the next several years.

Certainly no function of the state can be considered more important than its public school program. The education of the youth of the state is an important factor in the development of the state because a community's youth compose its greatest asset.

Benson Caught In Another Cross Fire

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is finding himself squarely in the middle over the low price of beef at the stock markets and the high price of meat on the meat market.

The recent swing through a large part of the farming and beef production regions of the nation by a congressional agricultural committee pointed out the dissatisfaction at the price of beef at both ends of the cycle — the producers and the consumers.

It seems to be the general consensus that cattle prices are too low for the producers, and beef prices are too high for consumers. The Secretary of Agriculture, as a result, finds himself on the unpleasant hot spot.

He says he is going to look into the middle-man position in the beef business to see what's keeping the consumer price up when the producer price has taken a decided drop. Whether he will find a satisfactory answer to the question remains to be seen.

Secretary Benson, it seems, is finding himself confronted with rather complicated and baffling questions from agricultural interests from time to time. So far he has run the gauntlet in good form; but in our opinion, he may expect rougher going before the sailing becomes smooth.

He is the man in the administration the farmers are looking to for a positive program to stop the decline of farm prices and stop the decline of the farmer's relative position in the nation's economy. Unless the positive program is produced, the Secretary of Agriculture is going to find himself under increasingly heavy fire.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
PAST AND PRESENT

Earlier this year one of the striking news events on both sides of the Iron Curtain was the sudden downfall of Lavrenti Beria. One day, it seemed, he was next in power to Malenkov in Russia. The following day he was through.

Perhaps it is significant that one important step in Beria's rise to power was his preparation of a falsified history of the Communist Party. Instead of giving an objective account of what happened, Beria's history invented important past roles for those then in power. And he was highly rewarded for his task.

Most of us would probably be glad of a chance to rewrite our own personal histories. Who has not frequently left undone those things which he ought to have done, and done those things which he ought not to have done? But life does not work out that way. What is done is done, and we cannot change our past mistakes. At the best, if we are wise, we can learn from them.

Christian living is not built on regret for the past; it is built on rebirth in the present and the future. Trying to remake yesterday into a more presentable picture is wasted effort; making today better, and dedicating ourselves to make tomorrow still better—that is what counts.

'Shockers' In Social Security

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The nation's annual bill for supporting the needy, aged and Social Security beneficiaries over 65 is approaching the astounding figure of $5 billion, despite the greatest period of prosperity in our history. This sum exceeds the amount of money required for running the Federal Government in Herbert Hoover's day.

Although no Administration dares to permit the system to go broke, the current re-examination of its operations by a House Ways and Means Subcommittee, headed by Representative Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, suggests that it will need radical revision.

Payments by employees covered by the insurance may have to be boosted far higher than the 2 per cent effective next year, possibly to 4 or 5 per cent. Congress may eventually be forced to appropriate millions of dollars annually for the fund in order to keep it solvent.

SHOCKS FOR SOME—Although Curtis will not open public hearings on this problem until November, his able staff has almost completed its studies. And it is a certainty that his revelations will produce many shocks to those who boast, for partisan or economic reasons, that the Social Security program as now organized and financed guarantees what its name implies for those unable to work.

No Place For Tearful Melodrama

Though the federal government has not yet officially replied to the American Legion proposal that mothers be sent to Korea to talk to their American sons who have rejected repatriation, The Reflector doubts soundness of such a plan.

We do not doubt the influence of the mothers with their boys who have decided to remain with the Reds; but we see little that can be gained by such a move. More than likely it would result in more mothers returning with broken hearts than it would with mothers returning with their sons.

The 23 American soldiers who have decided to cast their lot with communism rather than return home, have been thoroughly indoctrinated with communist cold bloodedness. Tearful pleadings are not likely to do anything but give them greater delight in the stand which they have taken against their former freedom and their former homeland.

If the 23 Americans can not be induced the amount of money involved is large; after conferences with the U. S. "explainers" during the 90-period, they had best remain with their newly acquired communist comrades. If the 23 cling to their decision to reject their God, their country and their families for communism, after hearing the words of free men during the 90-day period, there is little that can be done for them.

Somebody Told Me

Parking Problem Still Present

A news story elsewhere in tonight's Reflector will reveal this fact: the Courtesy Parking Plan in Greenville is under fire! Yesterday afternoon I attended a meeting with City Manager James Hughes, City Councilman Wesley Harvey, Merchants Association Director Ercell Webb, and George Franklin, General Counsel of the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

It has been brought to light that the present plan is unlawful when it comes right down to the letter of the law. The spirit of the law is another matter, but the decision lies with the City Council.

The Merchants Association representation was called into this meeting because the Association originated the plan, sold it to the Board of Aldermen, financed it, and now operate it in cooperation with the Police Department. So if any revision is necessary, City Manager Hughes is wisely starting with the originating organization.

Parking is a problem that concerns all of us, for the simple reason that there is one car for every three people in North Carolina. This figure continues to rise and the parking space remains the same.

The highlight of this meeting was the presence of George Franklin. In his job as General Counsel of the North Carolina League of Municipalities he has been concerned with this problem for years. "The only real solution," he said, "is off-the-street parking, and a zoning law requiring new business to have parking facilities in order to get a license to operate."

To illustrate the importance of parking, Mr. Franklin pointed out that Sears and Roebuck will not put a store in a city unless there is one parking space available for every 200 square feet of floor space in the building.

A very logical suggestion was made at this meeting one that is not new. That is, the receipts from the local meters should be turned into a fund to buy lots for off-the-street parking.

A building for parking was built in Washington, D. C. at a cost of $4,500 per parking space. In a city like Greenville, it would take about $1,000 per space provided.

An experiment conducted in Charlotte revealed that the average shopper will walk only 560 feet from his car to his destination. And in smaller towns, the footage goes down. The average parking time, another survey revealed, is 40 minutes.

With the parking problem hanging in the balance, it was a valuable experience to have an expert like Mr. Franklin to pass on his wealth of information about the fund.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE PLUMBER'S STILL A PLUMBER
(Wilson Times)
Martin P. Durkin was a Democrat when President Eisenhower named him Secretary of Labor. He was on record as being bitterly opposed to the Taft-Hartley act. In such circumstances, it's no wonder Taft circled the appointment "incredible." Being a Democrat and wanting apparently to give that party some ammunition, he resigned when he said Eisenhower backed down on the suggested revision of the Taft-Hartley act. In short, then, he was taking the position Truman took. In no way was it in keeping with the Republican policies.

To say that he was a plumber among eight millionaires is putting a melodramatic touch on things. Not because he isn't a millionaire, but because he was a Democrat and an opponent of the Taft-Hartley act, he shouldn't have been appointed in the first place. Now that he's out of the administration, however, he's doing what he can to embarrass it. That was shown by his St. Louis talk the other day, a talk incidentally that was considerably at variance with what he said at the time of his resignation. In St. Louis he said that Eisenhower had personally agreed to the 19 changes he had recommended. In Washington, he said that Eisenhower's spokesmen had agreed. A lot of persons have hinted at reasons for the appointment, but no one has turned up with an adequate explanation. Was Eisenhower trying to drive a wedge between the A. F. of L. and the CIO? If that were his purpose, he most assuredly could have picked a Republican, for surely in the labor movement there's at least one. However, Durkin has had his opportunity. Now that he's abused his right to sit in the cabinet, he apparently intends to make the most of it politically. His St. Louis speech indicated that. It merely goes to show how near Taft was right and how near Eisenhower was wrong.

Around Capitol Square

Will North Carolina Let Maryland 'Steal' Proud Claim?

TREASON! It was not only treasonable action against Great Britain at the time, but it borders on treason in North Carolina to mention it now. The Declaration of Independence of Harford Town, Maryland, is the item in question.

A Tarheel visiting in Baltimore a few days ago tore a sheet out of the directory of the Chesapeake-Potomac Telephone Company. Whether he wanted to keep it as souvenir or just get it out of circulation is of little consequence. Anyhow, he got it. And one of the incidents of local history interest recorded thereon is THE FIRST DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

"On March 22, 1776, a group of revolutionary patriots gathered at Harford Town, now known as Bush, in Maryland, and signed a Declaration of Independence. This preceded the declaration of Mecklenburg, North Carolina, by two months, and the Declaration of Independence by the Continental Congress, July 4, 1776, by more than a year. The original manuscript of the Harford town declaration is still in existence."

What about it, Mecklenburgers and Tarheels all? Are we gonna let 'em get away with this? The Maryland folks do recognize the Mecklenburg Declaration as a historic document.

Harford Town incident in this category without further information.

The next move seems to be up to the descendants of Captain Jack and the Alexanders and Morrisons et als of Mecklenburg.

UMBRELLAS — The stolen telephone directory fly leaf claimed another first for Maryland. It seems that a near riot was occasioned in 1772 when a citizen of that community walked down street with an umbrella. He had bought it off a ship recently arrived from India, and it is believed to be the "first umbrella to be used in America."

That recalls the advertising of Gans Bros., a Baltimore umbrella manufacturing concern of some years ago. The catch-phrase slogan was "Born in Baltimore, Raised Everywhere."

EAST-WEST — The time was early morning of what had prospect of being a dull day for news. The scene was Fayetteville street near the State Capitol. The state-setting was the casual encounter of a reporter and a business man lawyer from the Piedmont, experienced in politics. For purpose of the ensuing dialogue (which is approximate rather than direct quotes) "R" will stand for the reporter, "P" for the Piedmont.

Majority of the votes are in the area commonly designated as the "Populous Piedmont."

P: It is true that the votes are concentrated in the central part of the state, but a good many of us not ready to discard the plan of rotating Governors and picking one Senator from the east, one from the west.

R: Aren't the qualifications of the candidate more important than place of residence?

P: Of course that is true. But I am not willing to say that neither the east nor the west provide capable and suitable men. Nobody knows exactly where to draw the dividing line, and there is plenty of material for good officials in the central area, as well as in the extremes.

R: Would you say that geography should be the major factor?

P: Certainly not; but it should be given important consideration. It is more important for people living definitely on one side or

Big Carousel Ride

It is beginning to look as if the cost-of-living index is the price of horseshod. But it may come soon. Most American horseshod is grown along the Mississippi River in Illinois and Missouri. Dry weather this year out the crop to around 25 per cent of normal and higher prices for the prepared seasoning are coming fast.

AMERICANS SPEND LESS (But MORE FOR CANDY)
Each American is spending less for candy, according to a survey by the market research division of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors. Each man, woman and child spent an average of $10.56 on candy and confectionery products in 1952, compared with $10.72 in 1951.

DRUGGISTS SELL MORE BUT MAKE LESS
Druggists' sales volume has increased but profit margins have declined, Prof. S. B. Jeffries, of the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy of Long Island University, told the Pharmaceutical Council of Greater New York.

Food prices ordinarily fluctuate in the same direction as does total income and, except for the supply-demand factor, so do rents. Certainly, food and rents never rise when wages and other income are dropping.

So, with higher wages resulting from a rise in the index, workers can be expected to bid up prices higher. This will move the index up further, leading to more rises, leading to more bidding up in prices, leading to—"I'm dizzy, aren't you?"

Big City's Happy Hunting Ground

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The fall hunting and trapping season is now on in Manhattan.

The denizens of the great concrete jungle foregather at a thousand water holes at dusk—in a dimming light they look better to each other—and begin the night pattern of life and death in the big city forest.

They call these watering places cocktail parties, but if they water the cocktails very much the creatures present roar about it in resentment for days afterward.

Many people claim cocktail parties bore them. The truth is the reason they go to them is they are already bored. I love cocktail parties.

You can see in two hours the whole story of evolution unwind backwards. The guests arrive as people. Three martinis later they are children, and from then on you can watch them turn from children into animals. Why, it beats Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

There usually is a new author present, the social lion of the evening. But after he has made only two trips to the watering trough, some guests already don't think much of him as a lion, doubt whether he can write his name, and are certain he is acting like a jackass.

As to the other birds and beasts—
A middle-aged dowager who strutted like peacock when someone praised her dress gets mad as a wet hen when she sees her mousey husband has turned into a wolf who paw without pause at a sweet young girl, who is acting like a coy mink in search of a new coat.

The distinguished elderly politician is now a tired old buffalo, belching sadly about how he lost the herd in the last election. Three brokers in a corner have become a bear and two bulls, growing and bellowing about the business future. The young man from Princeton who would like to work for any or all of them has attached himself like a leech to the group, and breaks out in hyena laughter.

The fat lady on a diet who wasn't going to nip a calorie is wrist deep in the imitation caviar thick-lensed glasses—an owl condescended to her fate.

The playboy who thought himself quite a shark is being played for a sucker by a fading actress, whose made-up face has fallen into cow shape except for the tiger glint in her eyes.

The plain, frightened housewife whom nobody talked to is now a barnacle on her husband, and the way he struts her off you can tell he's a rat.

An ex-jazzman idol, secretly fretting over whether his loupes is slipping looks worriedly around like a wrinkled monkey. An elephant-sized banker complains his feet are dog-tired.

A music composer peers through thick-lensed glasses an owl confused. A ballet dancer springs about like a muscle-bound gazelle. Yes, they are all here at the watering trough, the whole animal kingdom. From the book critic with the long nose—an anti-eater looking for a target—to the fashion designer in the zebra skirt.

And moving warily amidst the shrieking, howling, coughing, grunting, whining, whimpering, rearing, bellowing, stamping, barking chaos of jungle sounds are the keepers of this menagerie—the waiters, holding out a tidbit to a claw here, a drink to an eager muzzler there.

It's a great place to study animal life, a Manhattan cocktail party. When you get home, you can't help glancing in the mirror and wondering: "What resident of the zoo did I look like?"

But you'd just as soon not know.

Colorful Program Arranged For ECC Alumni Homecoming Day

East Carolina alumni who return to the college Saturday, October 10, for the colorful Homecoming Day celebration held annually on the campus will participate in a full program of events now being planned for their enjoyment.

James W. Butler, alumni secretary at East Carolina, has the cooperation of a faculty committee and of representatives of the Student Government Association in making arrangements for the occasion. Invitations have been mailed to several thousand college alumni.

James Whitfield of Raleigh, president of the college Alumni Association and state editor of the Brasidie News and Observer, will preside at a meeting of the Alumni Council at 11 a. m. in the Austin building. Attending this opening event of the Homecoming Day program will be association officers and presidents of chapters both in and out of the state.

Afternoon and evening events include a luncheon in the North Dining Hall at 12:30 a parade along campus driveways and through downtown Greenville at 2:30, an open house for alumni and other guests at 4:30, a football game between Eion and East Carolina at 8, and a Homecoming hop in the Wright building after the game.

Following tradition, students will make the campus gay by decorating the facade of dormitories. The Industrial Arts Club Plaque, awarded for the first time in 1951, will go to students living in the dormitory having the most attractive and original display.

Fifteen floats entered by various organizations at the college will lend color and interest to the parade. Queens chosen by campus dormitories will ride in decorated automobiles. East Carolina's Marching Band, made up of 72 student musicians, will also participate.

Members of the college staff who are now working with Alumni Secretary Butler on plans for Homecoming Day are Dean of Women Ruth White, Director of Student Personnel Clinton Frewett, Director of the Bureau of Field Services E. J. Carter, Mrs. Ruth Garner, Eunice McGee, Elisabeth Hymen, and Louise Williams. Charles A. Kluttz, senior from Henderson, heads the Homecoming Day committee of the Student Government Association; and Charles R. Nielson, Kinston junior, is chairman of the Parade committee.

First In Line To Buy His Ticket

NEW YORK (UP)— Charles M. Kierst of Auburn, N. Y., snoozed on a blanket in front of Yankee Stadium today, confident he would get a seat for the opening game of the World Series.

Kierst was first in line before the bleacher box office for the Series opener Wednesday between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Shortly after Kierst settled down at the gate Monday to await his 17th Series, he was joined by another faithful fan, Ralph J. Belcore of Chicago, who was assured of seat No. 2.

Pays Up, But No Big Enthusiasm

FLOYD, Iowa (UP)— Farmer Art Debban paid the Charles City Fire Department the standard country call fee of $100 to put out a fire in his barn, but not without a grumble.

The sparks Debban saw in his barn were fireflies.

September Bride

Mrs. Robert L. Sinclair, who before her marriage September 12, was Miss Ruby Irene Padgett daughter of Mrs. J. W. Padgett of Greenville. Sgt. The couple will then make their home in Boone, Iowa.

Sales Volume On Old Mart Down

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)— Sales during the opening week of the Old Belt tobacco markets were lower in volume this year but showed a higher average.

The 20 Old Belt markets sold only 13,937,698 pounds for an average of $1.76 per hundred. The first week last year sold 24,781,180 pounds for an average of 48.95.

A strong demand showed yesterday on the Old Belt markets, and prices were up from 50 cents to $6.50 over quotations of last Friday. Most increases ranged from $1 to $3.00 with the greater gains going chiefly for lower and medium qualities. Only a few small declines were recorded. Volume was "light to medium," and most warehouse floors were cleared by noon.

The U. S. and North Carolina departments of agriculture reported average prices continued fairly steady on South Carolina and Border North Carolina markets. Leaf offerings were mostly $1 to $2 higher than Friday. General quality improved and volume of offerings was fairly heavy.

Most grades on the Eastern North Carolina markets brought steady to slightly higher average prices. The Federal-State Market News Service reported gains generally amounted to $1 per hundred, compared with last Friday. A heavy volume was on most floors and better quality offerings increased slightly.

Quality was the best in several days on the Middle Belt markets and prices were fairly well in line with last Friday. Variations in averages of mostly $1 to $2 occurred with losses outnumbering gains by a small margin. Volume was medium to fairly heavy.

Correct, Except Trousers Absent

PHILADELPHIA (UP)— Police radio-car patrolmen John Duffy and Paul Shoe pulled over to the curb Monday when they saw a cane-twirling man on a street corner dressed like a perfect gentleman except for the absence of trousers.

"Where are your pants?" Duffy asked. "In the cleaners," the unidentified man replied. "I'm waiting for them and I'm not dressed any differently than a six-day bicycle rider."

The policemen took him home while a friend picked up his trousers.

The climate and the average rainfall of the south make it one of the nation's best pasture and grassland farming areas.

Phantoms Have Rough Drill; Pirates Take Things Easy

Kittrell Sends Team Into Rough Session

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Coach Bill Kittrell worked his Greenville Phantoms long and hard yesterday afternoon as he began ironing out mistakes made in last Friday's 14-13 loss to Kinston.

Kittrell and assistant coaches Jack Benzie and Marshall Tatum drilled the squad on downfield blocking and tackling in a long bruising session. Later, the first team line and second team backs combined to drill the second team linemen in a scrimmage session.

The bone-rocking session sent several Phantom players into the dressing room with bruises. Among those who went in early were fullback Billy Semmons, captain and end Bobby Conway, halfback James Speight, and quarterback Pat Sawyer.

Kittrell once again had senior Bobby Nunn at quarterback. Nunn, the top quarterback on the team at the first of the year, was moved to guard last week and played at that position against Kinston.

Center Doug Morgan was unable to dress for yesterday's drill because of a knee injury. Morgan had hurt one knee in practice last week and received a hard knock on the other one in the game with the Red Devils.

The injuries might have serious effect on the outcome of the Phantoms' game Friday night with Washington. The strong Pam-Pack here for the annual homecoming game, dumped Elizabeth City 19-7 last week and showed power that had not been revealed in three previous contests.

The Pam-Pack was led in the victory over the Yellow Jackets by quarterback Mickey Cochran and halfback Charlie Bishop. Both went the distance in the game and figure to be in the starting line-up against the Phantoms.

Catawba Loses To Newberry, 14-2

NEWBERRY, S. C. (UP)—Newberry's Indians today opened preparations for their second game of the week after breaking into a 1953 win column last night with a 14-2 victory over Catawba before 1,500 fans.

The game was postponed from Saturday night due to heavy rains and high winds. Newberry plays at Lenoir-Rhyne Saturday.

Baseball Council Accepts Requests

NEW YORK (UP)—Commissioner Ford Frick and baseball's executive council have recommended the adoption of six player requests but referred two of the most important requests to "study groups."

Player requests that the legal salary minimum be increased from $5,000 to $7,200 and that three changes be made in the current pension plan will be submitted without recommendation to the owners' annual meeting next spring.

Player representatives Allie Reynolds of the Yankees and Ralph Kiner of the Cubs expressed disappointment that the decisions would be delayed but the meeting apparently was friendly. J. Norman Lewis, the players' counsel, sat in on the meeting.

The three requests concerning the pension plan were:

1. That pension payments be raised from $80 to $100 a month now paid to $80 for five-year men up to $150 a month for 10-year men.
2. That annuities be readjusted to begin at 45 years of age instead of at 50.
3. That personal player contributions be reduced from $45 for first-year men up to $400 a year for 10-year men.

The recommendations won by the players were:

1. Players' moving allowances of $500 will be increased on east-to-west moves to $600 with sectional moves receiving a flat $300.
2. Players living outside the hotel during training season will be paid the full hotel rate as if living with the team. Previously those living outside paid their own board or got only meal money.
3. Players are not required to take treatment for illness or injury contracted outside baseball. Previously this had to be done at the players' expense.

4. Players are to receive $8 daily meal money while travelling. This League clubs but some American League clubs pay only $6.
5. Veteran status to be obtained after eight playing years instead of 10.
6. Two-night doubleheaders will not be scheduled after a night game except in the case of postponement or playoff games.

Barnes Joins Injured As Bucs Work Light

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

The East Carolina College Pirates, fresh from a 34-0 stomping of Lenoir-Rhyne, took things easy in practice yesterday.

The Pirates worked on their timing, brushed up on the close-quarters blocking fundamentals, and got a look at some new plays. They stayed completely away from rough work.

Halfback Teddy Barnes watched the entire proceedings from the sidelines as a result of an injury in the Saturday victory over the Bears. Barnes will be out for more than a week because of a shoulder injury. Before he was injured Saturday night Barnes had turned in an outstanding game at defensive halfback against the defending champs.

Barnes joined two other left halfbacks who are slowed down by injuries that have almost cleaned out the position. Both Topsy Hayes and Jack Britt are still hampered somewhat by injuries but they are expected to be able to play Saturday when the Pirates travel to Catawba to meet Coach Clyde Bigger's Indians.

The obvious heir to the starting post at left halfback with Barnes, Britt, and Hayes out of full-speed action is little Emo Boardo. The scabback scored twice Saturday night against Lenoir-Rhyne and played a good defensive halfback in 1952, his freshman year. Boardo has averaged more than 20 yards per carry in the few times he has carried the ball this year.

Right end Larry Rhodes also obviously cemented the hold he got on his position when Al Habit went out with a sprained ankle. Rhodes was outstanding on both offense and defense against the Bears. He is one of the better pass receivers on the squad and also has a thorough knowledge of defensive play.

His name is Johnny Podres, and he doesn't figure in the Dodger plans for the first two games. For they will send Carl Erskine, 20-game winner, against Allie Reynolds, the Yankees' money pitcher, in the first game with crafty southpaw Preacher Roe and Ed Lopat dueling in the second.

But the key—when teams have split the first two games—usually has been the third contest and that is the one in which the Dodger manager, who is fond of gambling when the chips are down, hopes to come in with his "sleeper"—Podres.

Johnny, a young fellow as baseball age is measured, hasn't been much of a "phenom" this season, although his record shows nine victories against four defeats. Dressen brought him along slowly, picking his spots, and the young southpaw measured up. Besides, he was particularly effective against the Yankees in spring exhibition games and in the annual city series game between the clubs in mid-season.

Both Dressen's and Casey Stengel's pitching was all set for the first two games. It will be Erskine (20-6) against Reynolds (13-7) in the first game and in the second Roe (11-3) against Lopat (16-4). Stengel has put his finger on Vic Raschi, who like Reynolds and Lopat is 35, as his third-game pitcher. Dressen would not go beyond Erskine and Roe, pointing out that he may need one of his other starting pitchers in relief.

But he admitted that if you had to guess, Podres would not be a "bad one."

"Certainly I'm thinking about him as a starter," Dressen said. "He's a definite possibility. But you don't know what goes on in the mind of a 21-year old."

Stengel, shooting for something no major league manager ever has done—five straight World Series championships—said he first planned to start 18-game winner Whitey Ford and Lopat against the Dodgers at the stadium, where the fences are much longer than at Ebbets Field.

"But when Ford took his lumps at Boston I had to change my mind," he said. "I had hoped, because he was young, that I could open with him at the stadium, figuring I could use him to start two games—if the Series goes that long. For he is young and strong."

"Now I thought maybe I could save Reynolds for the bullpen and maybe in one start," Stengel continued. "Well, the way it is now, I have to count on Reynolds to start two, if the Series goes that long, and maybe I'll have to call on him in relief, too. But instead of backing up my pitching with Reynolds, I now have to lead off with him."

Hayes worked his Buckeyes hard on passing and punting today as the Scarlet and Gray drilled for its nationally televised game with California in Berkeley Saturday. He said that he was somewhat disappointed with the Buckeye passing attack as Ohio State walloped Indiana in the opener Saturday, 36-12.

About pass receiving, Hayes said the rule was to first get the ball, hold it, and then think about running.

"I liked the way George Rosso held the ball," Hayes said in recalling the Pittsburgh halfback's play against Indiana. "He did what he should have done, got the ball and then ran."

The receivers who make the crowds go "ah" and "oh" generally don't deserve any sympathy, Woody explained, because "they're usually looking ahead to their headlines and not to catching and holding that ball."

Bums' Secret Weapon Might Win Fall Classic

NEW YORK (UP)—Chuck Dressen appeared ready to call on a secret weapon today in his bid to bring the Brooklyn Dodgers their first world championship.

His ace in the hole against the five of Casey Stengel's New York Yankees for an unprecedented fifth consecutive Series championship was a young left-hander whose 21st birthday falls Wednesday—the day the Series begins.

His name is Johnny Podres, and he doesn't figure in the Dodger plans for the first two games. For they will send Carl Erskine, 20-game winner, against Allie Reynolds, the Yankees' money pitcher, in the first game with crafty southpaw Preacher Roe and Ed Lopat dueling in the second.

ACC Might Sign Bowl Pact To Meet Big Seven Champs

Duke Way Down In UP Poll Of Top Grid Teams In U.S.

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Notre Dame's impressive opening game performance against Oklahoma earned it the accolade as the nation's No. 1 college football team today in the first weekly ratings of the United Press Board of Coaches.

Michigan State, 1952 mythical national champion, was ranked second, UCLA third and Ohio State fourth in the ratings of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press board.

The Fighting Irish, whose 28-21 victory over Oklahoma showed they have made an excellent adjustment to platoon-less football, received 25 first place votes and 325 out of a possible total of 350 points.

All 35 coaches listed Notre Dame among their top 10 choices only one voter selecting them lower than fifth. In addition to the 25 first place votes, five coaches voted the Irish second, one third, two for fourth place, and one each for fifth and ninth.

Michigan State, which beat Iowa, 21-7, in its season opener last Saturday, attracted four first place votes and 264 points; UCLA with victories over Oregon State and Kansas already this season, had three first place votes and 213 points, while Ohio State, 36-12 conqueror of Indiana in its '53 debut, had 167 points.

Southern California, Maryland, Michigan, Oklahoma Baylor and Georgia Tech rounded out the top 10 teams in that order. Southern California and Michigan each attracted one first place vote and was chosen for every place vote from first to 10th in the voting. Baylor was the only other team to receive a first place vote.

Southern California, which boasts victories over Washington State and Minnesota, had 148; Maryland also with two victories, had 122, while Michigan, 50-0 victory over Washington in its opener, ranked seventh with 113 points.

Oklahoma was eighth despite its opening game setback by Notre Dame and had a total of 99 points, just one more than Baylor. Georgia Tech, held to a scoreless tie by Florida last weekend, was 10th with 89 points.

The top 10 thus was made up for four teams from the Midwest, two each from the Pacific Coast and South, and one each from the Midlands and Southwest.

Mississippi State headed the second 10 teams with 66 points, followed by Duke, Louisiana State, Texas, Rice, Georgia, Mississippi, Army and Wisconsin. There was a three-team tie for 20th place among Holy Cross, Pennsylvania and William and Mary.

Others among the 25 teams that received consideration in the first week's voting were Mississippi Southern, West Virginia, Cornell, Florida, Missouri, Princeton and Utah.

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—The new Atlantic Coast Conference hung another scalp to its belt today amid speculation that the ACC champ may become one of the Orange Bowl participants.

The possibility that the ACC may work out a deal to provide one of the Orange Bowl teams gained in strength yesterday when a "Big Seven" committee was named in Kansas City to study a proposed arrangement whereby the two conferences would provide the South Florida grid fare on New Year's Day.

The new scalp was added to the conference belt by South Carolina's Gamecocks who won a delayed victory over The Citadel. The game played last night was postponed Saturday by the effects of hurricane "Florence."

Halfback Carl Brazell stole the show as the Gamecocks spurred The Citadel, 25-0, despite a case of fumbleitis by some of his team-mates during the contest. Some 15,000 fans watched South Carolina dominate the play. They were never forced to punt.

Brazell scored two of the touchdowns quarterback Johnny Clarkling passed to end Warren Clark for the third, and Harold Lewis tossed to Larry Gosnell for the fourth South Carolina tally.

The Cadets were able to move into South Carolina territory only once, to the 49-yard line.

Meanwhile an undefeated ACC member was singing the injury blues, something about the need for more quarterbacks. Star field general Worth Lutz and a reserve fullback-quarterback, Sam Eberdt, were taken to the hospital after Saturday's contest with Wake Forest. Coach Bill Murray of Duke said both may not play against Tennessee Saturday.

If both men were out, Murray would be left with Jerry Barger and senior Charles Mason, who has never played in a varsity game. Barger, however, conducted himself admirably in Saturday's contest, scoring one touchdown personally.

Coach George Barclay of the University of North Carolina, perhaps with tongue in cheek, said the Washington and Lee Generals may be tough Saturday, following their walloping by Maryland last week. Barclay, while watching moves with his aides and spotting mistakes in the North Carolina State game said the Generals, whom he formally coached, would likely be "determined."

The Wolfpack of N. C. State, meanwhile, licked its wounds and began preparing for the Georgia Washington Colonials at Alexandria Va. Coach Horace Hendrickson, like rival Barclay, looked over movies of last Saturday's affair and then pointed out mistakes in a short drill and scrimmage.

Baltimore Makes New Bid For St. Louis Browns Team

NEW YORK (UP)—The St. Louis Browns at long last seemed certain today to be moved from the home they have occupied for more than a half century—to Baltimore, Md.

President Will Harridge of the American League said "The time has come for us to make a decision and we are getting closer to a solution. I think by nightfall we will have a new home for the Browns."

"Baltimore is the only city that has made us a concrete offer," he continued. "Los Angeles did not. With Los Angeles, it is a long-range proposition but we do not want to hang on this way for another two or three years."

The Baltimore group, headed by attorney Clarence Miles and backed by such civic interests as Mayor Thomas D'Allesandro and his entire council, again offered to purchase the Brownie stock at a price of $2,400,000.

The American League clubowners, weary of their "no decision bouts" with Bill Veeck, president of the Browns, appear to be ready to do an about face and accept Baltimore instead of Los Angeles and its group of supporters headed by Del Webb, vice president of the New York Yankees.

"I think the major accomplishment in our meeting last night was the decision that the league will not consider St. Louis in 1954," Harridge said.

Veeck had no comment to make other than that he felt a solution was near.

"Maybe I have said too much already," he said.

The showdown was scheduled to come today when the owners go into a fourth meeting beginning at 4 p.m. e.s.t.

Indians Need New Help To Win Flag

NEW YORK (UP)—Manager Al Lopez, signed to a new two-year contract, listed three "basic requirements" today if the Cleveland Indians are to overtake the New York Yankees in 1954.

"We'll never catch 'em until we get a right fielder, a first baseman and a relief pitcher," Lopez said.

General Manager Hank Greenberg praised Lopez as "the best manager in baseball" when he announced the two-year pact and said "At no time did we consider not renewing Al's contract."

Highway Chirman Urges Check On Driveway Entrance Rulings

RALEIGH, N.C. — Highway Chairman A.H. Graham today called on all property owners who plan to build service stations, drive-ins, motels and other commercial establishments adjoining State highways to first familiarize themselves with the Commission's regulations on driveway entrances to highways.

He said some misunderstanding had existed in the past and that some property owners were not aware of the Commission's regulations on driveway entrances to highways. The Commission's 20-page booklet, "Minimum Standards for Entrances to Highways" is available upon request from Robert Burch Traffic Engineer, State Highway Commission, Raleigh, and from any of the Commission's highway offices throughout the State. The booklet clearly states the Commission's requirements for entrances from service or commercial businesses to the highway. Inside the booklet are eleven easily-understood sketches dealing with the proper location of service stations or commercial establishments adjoining a main-line highway.

Graham explained that any property-owner desiring to construct a driveway or driveways connecting with any State highway must first secure and fill out an application for a driveway permit. These application forms can be secured from the State Highway Maintenance Supervisors who are located in each county, or from Resident Engineers, or from District or Division highway offices. An application for a driveway permit must be submitted to the District Engineer for his written approval.

The booklet, "Minimum Standards for Entrances to Highways" says: "Any driveway or approach constructed by a property-owner for the bona fide purpose of securing access to his property and not for the purpose of parking or servicing vehicles on the highway right of way."

Later, "The construction of parking areas on the highway right of way is specifically prohibited. Those places of business requiring parking space for their customers shall provide same on their premises."

And, "All entrances and exits shall be so located that vehicles approaching or using them will be able to obtain adequate sight distance in both directions along the highway in order to maneuver safely and without interfering with traffic."

At the same time, Graham said that the Commission's engineers throughout the State were being instructed to watch closely for indications of property-owners building commercial establishments too close to the State's highways. To inconvenience the builder as little as possible, the engineers are striving to contact and acquaint the property-owners with the Commission's specific driveway regulations.

Where gasoline pumps are located immediately adjacent to the highway's right of way line, it is not permissible for the owner to pave a service lane within the right of way and pump gas into cars which are parked in this area. This means that a service station owner must place his pump fully 12 feet back of the highway right of way line if he plans to service cars between his pumps and the highway; nor shall other establishments use the highway right of way for parking vehicles.

PRINCE'S OPTION—Holland's Prince Bernhard wears odd combination of impeccable riding garb and out-of-shape felt hat in place of silk topper in hand, at Rotterdam Horse Show.

Should the property-owner insist on constructing his driveway so that cars will be serviced on the highway's right of way, Graham warned that the owner can be restrained from doing so by court order. The owner will be notified first that he will be restrained and that should he persist in constructing the drive before the restraining order is served, the Commission may then place posts or other obstructions on that part of the driveway which is used for servicing, loading or unloading vehicles on the highway right of way so that it cannot be used.

Graham emphasized that ornamental posts, advertising signs and walls for entrances may not be placed under any condition on the highway right of way.

Old Muscle Man Hackenschmidt Still On Scene

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP) — After 35 years of study, George Hackenschmidt, the almost legendary "Russian lion," believes he has found the key to a long and happy life for practically everyone—a secret that might be summed up as "life begins at 80."

Now in his 79th year, Hack, a top candidate for the "greatest athlete" title, looks like walking proof of his theory. His round face is unlined, he moves his 215 pounds like a lightweight, the neck that sprouts from his mighty shoulders still takes a size 21 collar.

"A lot of people seem to think I am dead," said the world wrestling champion of grandfather's day. "This shows the comparative value the world places on brains and brawn. When I was wrestling my name was in the headlines every day. But now that I am a philosopher, people say 'Hackenschmidt? Oh, he died years ago.'"

Athlete To Philosopher
You can't blame the public. Hack made one of the most extraordinary switches of all time when he abandoned wrestling 40 years ago to write about philosophy. His career as an athlete was fantastic.

A prodigy, he ran 1,500 meters at the age of five, carried four schoolmates around at 13, and cleaned up 12 of the world's finest wrestlers in his first international competition in a total time of 43 minutes. And in those days wrestling was really wrestling!

Born to a poor family in Riga, Latvia, Hack thrived on what would be considered a deficiency diet these days—mostly potatoes. He developed a 52-inch chest, 19-inch biceps and 24-inch neck.

He was so strong he set world's lifting records at will and crushed the Indian giant, Madrali, unconscious with a bear-hug in 50 seconds in one of the most thrilling bouts in wrestling history.

Then he damaged a knee and had to quit wrestling.

Writing New Book
"So," said Hack, "I decided I had used my muscles long enough. Now I would use my head. I wrote books on man and the cosmos and other subjects along that line lectured at various universities and got quite a name for myself among scholars. "But always I concentrated on learning how to husband the vital force of all of us so that chronological time will become less and less important."

"What does it matter if a man is 79 or 89, provided he looks and feels far younger. I am writing a book embodying my beliefs on this subject. I have been using myself as a guinea pig for 35 years. "Here I am approaching 79. I can still wrestle. My appetite is excellent. I have no aches or pains. This is no accident. I am setting down exactly the mental and physical regime I have followed. It is a sort of testament to humanity for the wonderful life I have had."

Truman Urges America To Oppose Isolationists

NEW YORK (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman urged Americans Monday night to stand up against new "isolationists" who attempt to sow seeds of distrust and division at home and abroad.

Mr. Truman denounced such "false prophets" as threats to freedom in a speech accepting the annual Four Freedoms award at a dinner attended by 1,400 persons at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

"All across our country there are people at work, stirring up suspicion of the United Nations, of our allies, of our own public servants, of our fellow citizens," he said. "All across our country there are zealots clamoring for somebody's head."

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson presented Mr. Truman with the award given each year by the Four Freedoms Foundation to an individual fostering the freedoms set forth by the late President Roosevelt in 1941. They are freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

Acheson said "No honor which can be conferred on Mr. Truman can equal the honor he has won for himself."

The former president in his speech made no mention of personalities and refrained from attack on the Eisenhower administration or the Republican Party. However, he denounced the "investigating frenzy" in Washington, "book burners," those who attack the United Nations because "it is full of foreigners," and those who would cut taxes "whether the danger is over or not."

He called for nonpartisan support of "really strong defense," while at the same time maintaining a willingness to solve differences with the Communist countries through "patient and peaceful negotiation."

Florida's Young Governor Dies In Brief Illness

TALLAHASSEE (UP)—Charley Johns, president of the State Senate, takes control as acting governor of Florida today succeeding Democrat Gov. Dan McCarthy who died last night.

Johns called for official mourning for the popular young governor who was elected by the biggest vote ever given a candidate for chief executive of the state.

The new governor indicated he would carry out McCarthy's sweeping "clean up" policies which he had partly opposed.

Johns, a railroad conductor, insurance man and ice company owner, supported McCarthy for governor but fought him in the Legislature on every issue.

McCarthy, 41, a scholarly looking but robust six-footer, died at a hospital at 9:55 p.m. (EST) of a heart disturbance complicated by pneumonia.

McCarthy had never been seriously ill until he suffered a heart attack last February.

Physicians, friends and members of his family, including his wife, two brothers and a sister, were at McCarthy's bedside when he died following apparent improvement.

A close friend said McCarthy commented, "You know, for a while I didn't think I was going to make it," then cried out and complained he hurt all over. He gave a long sigh and died.

In the lobby of the hospital Dr. G. H. Garmany announced the news in a shaky voice.

Johns takes over as acting governor in ceremonies set for 2 p.m. (EST).

McCarthy was forced into semi-retirement by the heart attack last Feb. 25 only 48 days after taking office.

McCarthy promised as Florida's 31st governor to rid the state of "dirt, rust and corrosion" in government and pledged a "morally clean, rock-ribbed efficient dynamically progressive" administration.

Despite McCarthy's absence from his desk the State Legislature enacted more than half of his program of overhauling the state government, increasing teacher salaries and tapping the dog tracks for $2,100,000 in additional revenue.

Red Heads Don't Cry

By ROY L. FOLEY

SNOPSIS
When Phil Stanley stepped into Humphrey Charles' law office to collect another sizable legacy due him, he stepped right into Nancy Kelly's life. Inquired by the sparkling wit and the lush red hair of this young woman serving as Mr. Charles' secretary, Phil ventured to ask Nancy to lunch with him, and she accepted. It would be seen at the University club with the city's most eligible young millionaire bachelor. His name had been linked with that of many a socialite miss, including Linda Van Vliet, a new-comer, whose charm and brunette beauty had become the toast of the town.

CHAPTER TWO
OFFICER Eugene Brennan's whistle shrilled eloquently that Phil was holding up Saturday's noon traffic. Linda Van Vliet just managed to get herself and her platinum mink out of the path of another car. Phil's car sped forward. "That was Linda Van Vliet," "Pretty—who is she?"

If Phil answered, Nancy didn't hear. He was suddenly preoccupied with some mechanism on the elaborate dashboard of his car. The roadster stopped at the East Wells street entrance of the University club. Nancy looked up at the elegancies of the Georgian building, scene of so many brilliant social events.

Teas for the debs and sub-debs. service club affairs. The Harvard club dinner. Cotillions, balls. A world of glitter and wealth that Nancy had never known.

Only this very day the society columns were filled with descriptions of the gowns worn by society girls at a Service club affair held at the University club. Patsy Monte, one of the debs, was described as slender and brown-haired, with sequin sprinkled frock of white silk. Barbara Johnsons in a precious chiffon frock with a pleated skirt. Rosemary Roscoe in a white marquisette trimmed with blue paillettes.

Nancy hadn't taken two steps across the threshold of the club when she felt panicky, and worse than that, shabby. In the dining room, its crystal chandeliers reflecting a thousand lights, rose and green, blue and diamond white Phil Stanley asked for a table for two.

Easily, gallantly, he pulled a chair for Nancy as though she were the Duchess of Windsor. He reached to help her with her coat. The lining was worn. He couldn't help seeing it, yet she hoped desperately that he wouldn't.

"Hello, Anne. H're you, Ken?" Phil greeted a couple at a nearby table. Nodded to others. "Now then, for the caviar and the pate de foie gras, eh, Miss Kelly . . . or shall I call you by your other name—Nancy?"

"Don't mind, but if you don't mind, this menu says there's corned beef. Suits my name better than caviar."

"That's the spirit. You do have spirit, I can see it in your eyes, in that pert nose. Tell me about yourself." Phil leaned toward her, his arms on the table, his dark eyes drinking in every detail of her fresh good looks. Her hands were in her lap. He could put his arms on her lap, despite the rules of etiquette. He was on his own ground. It was so different when the Phil Stanleys of the world were on their own ground.

"They could break the conventions and nobody cared. They were secure." "I repeat, tell me about yourself." "First tell me about yourself."

"Nothing much to tell. Kicked out of college and landed in Dad's business. Farm implements, tractors, plows, mining machinery and all that romantic sort of thing. Crazy about redheads and have a passion for corned beef and cabbage."

"What else?" "Oh, boats in summer. Skiing in winter. The club." "Playboy?" "Now, now—I'm not an idler. I have ambitions."

"I have ambitions too." "What?" "To make more than forty dollars a week. To stop pounding a typewriter. To give Humphrey Charles two weeks' notice. To get into some kind of—I'd like to work for myself—I'd like to start a dress shop."

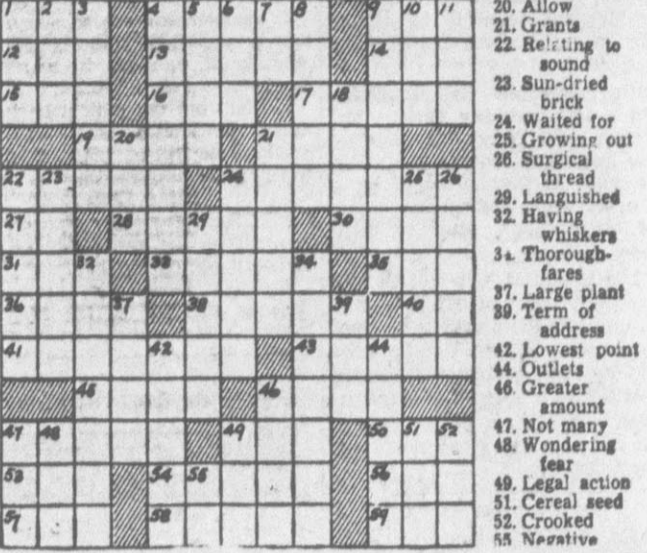

"That should be easy." "On forty dollars a week?" "No, not exactly. I've helped back a show, why not a dress shop. The show flopped but I'm not discouraged. Let's be partners. My backing, your wits, and that red hair!"

"And I suppose the climax of that pretty offer would include champagne for two, a moon, soft lights and sweet music from the ante room . . . on the butler's day off. You overwhelm me." "I mean to."

He recognized Phil Stanley. Larry knew everybody of importance in town, though everybody of importance didn't know Larry. "Nancy, what the—what the—?"

The Kelly household, always extreme in the degree of its merriment or gloom, this Saturday was in a particular purple state of the latter.

Nancy dashed up the porch steps and into the house. Her blue eyes were dark with excitement now, the sheer excitement and daring of her escapade.

She had enough money now plus that which Mother Kelly had been hanging onto against demands of the butcher and grocer, to stave off the landlord for another thirty days.

Three dejected countenances greeted her merry one. Timothy Kelly, her father. Her mother. Brother Tom.

They spoke in that order. "It's better you'd be cryin' than singin' this very day."

"Yes, it 'is." "What's the idea, coming home in a Cadillac. Who's your millionaire boy friend?"

Nancy flung down her hat, her purse. "Mother, Dad, Tom. What now?" All the exultation of Nancy's little hour with Philip Stanley began to melt.

"Your sister Moira's run away with that good for nothing gambler fellow."

"Pa's lost his job." "And Tom's lost his." "You're the one that will have to be supportin' the lot of us."

UN Agency Now Teaching 3 R's
AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—The United Nations has started a vast program to teach the three Rs to the children of around half a million Arab refugees now in Jordan. The program has been set by the United Nations Relief and Work Agency (UNRWA). The U.N. agency is in charge of the welfare of refugees who fled the Palestine war in 1948.

At present plans call for primary education only during this coming year. UNRWA officials here estimate the most urgent task is to prevent thousands of refugee children to grow up as illiterates.

Complex Job In Laying Pipeline

ST. IGNACE, Mich. (U.P.)—"Operation Big Pull," the laying of a four-mile pipeline across the Straits of Mackinac, is described as the most complex engineering job ever undertaken in Michigan.

The Straits connect Michigan's Upper and Lower Peninsulas and run 240 feet deep in places. In addition, there are tricky currents, and engineers were hampered by the many freighters passing between Lakes Michigan and Huron.

The actual laying of the pipeline began early in August and was completed in about a week. The 20-inch pipe was laid out in eight sections, each 2,500 feet long.

A winch located on the opposite side of the Straits was used to pull each section into place.

Champagne Christening
The pipeline has a capacity of 120,000 barrels of crude oil a day.

The Straits of Mackinac section is a link in the main line which carries oil from Canada's fields in Alberta to refineries at Sarnia. Nearly six months of planning were required before the $8,500,000 Straits project could be started.

The construction company in charge first had to build roads, set up a telephone network and install its own electrical system. Nearly 500 engineers, workers, newsmen and spectators were on hand when the first section was laid.

At the end of the week-long "pull construction company officials "christened" the line by breaking a champagne bottle over the final section welded into place.

Quickly, he strode up to Zimmerman, slapped him on the face and walked back out the door.

They're all talking "best deal in town" BUT WHO'S GOT IT?

Are you really sure that the car dealer who gives you "the best deal in town" really gives you the best BUY in town?

As you well know, the best BUYS are based on value.

Because value lasts longer than any other quality—and, in automobiles, that means longer motoring pleasure, greater safety, lower upkeep, and a better trade-in allowance later on.

"The Buy of the Year!"

The new Packard CLIPPER has made news all year long as "the buy of the year." Way back last winter, the "insiders"—men of recognized automotive experience and instinct—tagged the CLIPPER as the car of the year in the medium-price field. A real, old-time PACKARD value.

You know very well that you never bought an automobile right off the printed page. You bought it ONLY after a demonstration when features either come to life or amount to nothing.

So we urge you: before you take that "best deal in town" . . . take a demonstration in the new Packard CLIPPER and value-check the features with which we challenge all other cars!

Did you know that you can own a new Packard CLIPPER for as little as $2,654. * Plus state and local taxes, if any. Optional equipment, including white sidewall tires, extra. Prices may vary slightly in nearby communities due to shipping charges.

Cheesemakers To Stage Festival

SUGAR CREEK, Ohio (UP)—County cheesemakers will "swing by the britches" this weekend at the first Ohio Swiss Festival.

Truman Urges America To Oppose Isolationists

NEW YORK (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman urged Americans Monday night to stand up against new "isolationists" who attempt to sow seeds of distrust and division at home and abroad.

Mr. Truman denounced such "false prophets" as threats to freedom in a speech accepting the annual Four Freedoms award at a dinner attended by 1,400 persons at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

"All across our country there are people at work, stirring up suspicion of the United Nations, of our allies, of our own public servants, of our fellow citizens," he said. "All across our country there are zealots clamoring for somebody's head."

Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson presented Mr. Truman with the award given each year by the Four Freedoms Foundation to an individual fostering the freedoms set forth by the late President Roosevelt in 1941. They are freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

Acheson said "No honor which can be conferred on Mr. Truman can equal the honor he has won for himself."

The former president in his speech made no mention of personalities and refrained from attack on the Eisenhower administration or the Republican Party. However, he denounced the "investigating frenzy" in Washington, "book burners," those who attack the United Nations because "it is full of foreigners," and those who would cut taxes "whether the danger is over or not."

He called for nonpartisan support of "really strong defense," while at the same time maintaining a willingness to solve differences with the Communist countries through "patient and peaceful negotiation."

Florida's Young Governor Dies In Brief Illness

TALLAHASSEE (UP)—Charley Johns, president of the State Senate, takes control as acting governor of Florida today succeeding Democrat Gov. Dan McCarty who died last night.

Johns called for official mourning for the popular young governor who was elected by the biggest vote ever given a candidate for chief executive of the state.

The new governor indicated he would carry out McCarty's sweeping "clean up" policies which he had partly opposed.

Johns, a railroad conductor, insurance man and ice company owner, supported McCarty for governor but fought him in the Legislature on every issue.

McCarty, 41, a scholarly looking but robust six-footer, died at a hospital at 9:55 p.m. (EST) of a heart disturbance complicated by pneumonia.

McCarty had never been seriously ill until he suffered a heart attack last February.

Physicians, friends and members of his family, including his wife, two brothers and a sister, were at McCarty's bedside when he died following apparent improvement.

A close friend said McCarty commented, "You know, for a while I didn't think I was going to make it," then cried out and complained he hurt all over. He gave a long sigh and died.

In the lobby of the hospital Dr. G. H. Garmany announced the news in a shaky voice.

Johns takes over as acting governor in ceremonies set for 2 p.m. (EST).

McCarty was forced into semi-retirement by the heart attack last Feb. 25 only 48 days after taking office.

McCarty promised as Florida's 31st governor to rid the state of "dirt, rust and corrosion" in government and pledged a "morally clean, rock-ribbed efficient dynamically progressive" administration.

Despite McCarty's absence from his desk the State Legislature enacted more than half of his program, increasing teacher salaries and tapping the dog tracks for $2,100,000 in additional revenue.

Red Heads Don't Cry

By ROY L. FOLEY

SNOPSIS
When Phil Stanley stepped into Humphrey Charles' law office to collect another sizable legacy due him, he stepped right into Nancy Kelly's life. Ingrid by the sparkling wit and the lush red hair of this young woman serving as Mr. Charles' secretary, Phil ventured to ask Nancy to lunch with him, and she accepted. It would be fun, she reasoned, to be seen at the University club with the city's most eligible young millionaire bachelor. His name had been linked with that of many a socialite miss, including Linda Van Vliet, a new-comer, whose charm and brunette beauty had become the toast of the town.

CHAPTER TWO
OFFICER Eugene Brennan's whistle shrilled eloquently that Phil was holding up Saturday's noon traffic. Linda Van Vliet just managed to get herself and her platinum mink out of the path of another car. Phil's car sped forward. "That was Linda Van Vliet," "Pretty—who is she?" If Phil answered, Nancy didn't hear. He was suddenly preoccupied with some mechanism on the elaborate dashboard of his car.

The roadster stopped at the East Wells street entrance of the University club. Nancy looked up at the elegancies of the Georgian building, scene of so many brilliant social events.

Teas for the debs and sub-debs. Service club affairs. The Harvard club dinner. Cotillions, balls. A world of glitter and wealth that Nancy had never known.

Only this very day the society columns were filled with descriptions of the gowns worn by society girls at a Service club affair held at the University club. Patsy Monroe, one of the debs, was described as slender and brown-haired, with a sequin sprinkled frock of white net.

Barbara Johnstone in a Grecian chiffon frock with a pleated skirt. . . Rosemary Roscoe in a white marquisette trimmed with blue paillettes.

Nancy hadn't taken two steps across the threshold of the club when she felt panicky, and worse than that, shabby.

In the dining room, its crystal chandeliers reflecting a thousand lights, rose and green, blue and diamond white Phil Stanley asked for a table for two.

Easily, gallantly, he pulled a chair for Nancy as though she were the Duchess of Windsor. He reached to help her with her coat. The lining was worn. He couldn't help seeing it, yet she hoped desperately that he wouldn't.

"Hello, Anne. H're you, Ken." Phil greeted a couple at a nearby table. Nodded to others.

"Now then, for the caviar and the pate de foie gras, eh, Miss Kelly. . . or shall I call you by your other name—Nancy?"

"Don't mind, but if you don't mind, this menu says there's corned beef. Suits my name better than caviar."

"That's the spirit. You do have spirit. I can see it in your eyes, in that pert nose. Tell me about yourself."

Phil leaned toward her, his arms on the table, his dark eyes drinking in every detail of her fresh good looks. Her hands were in her lap. He could put his arms on the table, despite the rules of etiquette.

He was on his own ground. It was so different when the Phil Stanleys of the world were on their own ground.

They could break the conventions and nobody cared. They were secure.

"I repeat, tell me about yourself."

"First tell me about yourself."

"Nothing much to tell. Kicked out of college and landed in Dad's business. Farm implements, tractors, plows, ming machinery and all that romantic sort of thing. Crazy about redheads and have a passion for corned beef and cabbage."

"What else?" "Oh, boats in summer. Skiing in winter. The club."

"Playboy?" "Now, now—I'm not an idler. I have ambitions."

Complex Job In Laying Pipeline

ST. IGNACE, Mich. (U.P.)—"Operation Big Pull," the laying of a four-mile pipeline across the Straits of Mackinac, is described as the most complex engineering job ever undertaken in Michigan.

The Straits connect Michigan's Upper and Lower Peninsulas and run 240 feet deep in places. In addition, there are tricky currents, and engineers were hampered by the many freighters passing between Lakes Michigan and Huron.

The actual laying of the pipeline began early in August and was completed in about a week. The 20-inch pipe was laid out in eight sections, each 2,500 feet long.

A winch located on the opposite side of the Straits was used to pull each section into place.

The pipeline has a capacity of 120,000 barrels of crude oil a day.

UN Agency Now Teaching 3 R's

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—The United Nations has started a vast program to teach the three R's to the children of around half a million Arab refugees now in Jordan. The program has been set by the United Nations Relief and Work Agency (UNRWA). The U.N. agency is in charge of the welfare of refugees who fled the Palestine war in 1948.

At present plans call for primary education only during this coming year. UNRWA officials here estimate the most urgent task is to prevent thousands of refugee children to grow up as illiterates.

back last winter, the "insiders"—men of recognized automotive experience and instinct—tagged the CLIPPER as the car of the year in the medium-price field. A real, old-time PACKARD value.

You know very well that you never bought an automobile right off the printed page. You bought it ONLY after a demonstration when features either come to life or amount to nothing.

So we urge you: before you take that "best deal in town" . . . take a demonstration in the new Packard CLIPPER and value-check the features with which we challenge all other cars!

Did you know that you can own a new Packard CLIPPER for as little as $2,654.

* Plus state and local taxes, if any. Optional equipment, including white sidewall tires, extra. Prices may vary slightly in nearby communities due to shipping charges.

We challenge them all on a value check of the following points

- Modern contour styling. Check it for greater all-around visibility, wider doors, more room, more luggage capacity.
- Famous Packard-built engine.
- Famous Packard ride—"Rides like a Packard" is the highest compliment you can pay any car.
- Famous Packard Ultramatic, designed and built by Packard for Packard CLIPPER—the smoothest power shifting of all—no whish, no whirrrr, no jerk, no jump.
- Famous Packard-built power brakes† and power steering†.
- Famous Packard CLIPPER back-saver seats.
- Top trade-in value.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

Teen-Agers are now doing things to architecture and our houses. To believe this (except for wear and tear) may be difficult for some of the youngsters' critics. But there is plenty of evidence. And this evidence may be of value to you if you are planning a new house or a remodeling job.

Consider the number of house plans you see nowadays with so-called multi-purpose rooms. These rooms are virtually second living rooms. Often they include a fireplace. Frequently they are paved with asphalt tile for heavy usage. Informality is their keynote—something like the rumpus room of prohibition days.

Well, authorities blame—or credit—the rambunctious teen-agers for bringing about the multi-purpose room for spurring the demand for finished basements and finished attics, for indirectly selling a lot of tough-wearing floor coverings and acoustical ceiling materials.

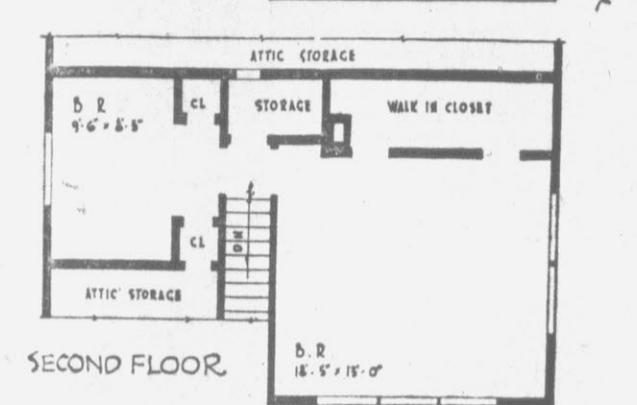

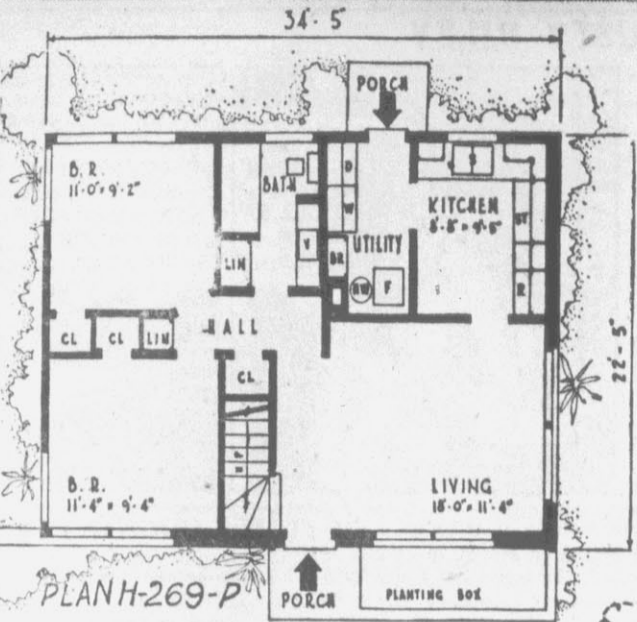

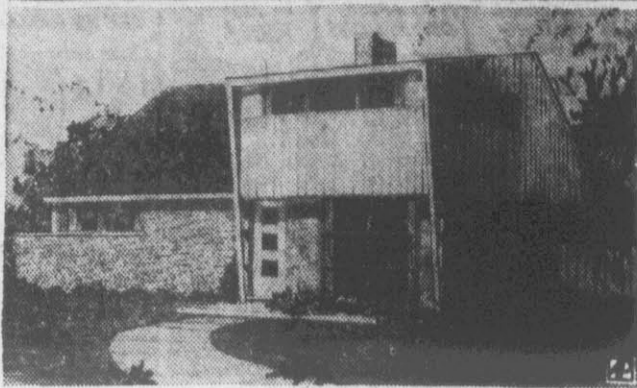

For instance, W. Wadsworth Wood of Chicago, who knows a lot about trends in houses and ways of living, contends that teen-agers "will gather wherever they're made welcome—to sing, dance, hear music, talk and generally express their health and high spirits—whether it's a roadhouse or your own home."

As publisher of Small Homes Guide and the new magazine, Home Modernizing, Wood has some very definite opinions on the influence the adolescent is exerting over architects. He thinks the typical youngster has a "recognized right to stomp and holler and let off steam."

"For many homeowners," he says, "the problem is not 'Should we fix up a teen-age room?' but rather 'Where? And how?'"

Everybody doesn't have a basement, especially among the newer houses, and everybody doesn't have an attic, or a barn or garage to convert into a recreation

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures

FUNCTIONAL SIMPLICITY distinguishes this smartly modern and economical house with a lot of room—four bedrooms. Generous storage space and a combination laundry-utility room off the kitchen eliminate need for basement construction. Shoulder height bedroom windows provide a maximum of wall space for furniture placement. This is plan H-269-P by the Homograft Co., 11711 East Eight Mile Road, East Detroit, Mich. The house covers only 769 square feet.

hall but Wood is convinced that some livable arrangement can be made. This can be a problem for the family handyman to solve.

"You can turn over the kitchen and living room to the thundering herd while you and your wife go to the movies; or you can fix up a separate room that won't suffer from high-spirited activities, leaving your good furniture undisturbed and leaving you and your wife as a controlling influence in the background."

An interesting solution to the problem of space, where no basement is available, is offered by Robert N. Marling of Madison, Wis. The Marlings built a "Happy Hut" in their back yard. Measuring 26 by 23 feet, it comprises one big room with a fireplace, complete kitchen, television, coat closet and lavatory.

"When it outwears its usefulness as a playhouse," says Marling, "it can be converted into a guest room or two-car garage—when the kids are grown up and gone."

"There's an eye to resale value for you, too. But in the meantime the Marlings seem to be getting their money's worth out of their Happy Hut."

"We celebrated its completion with a 16th birthday party," Mr. Marling says. "Since that time we have had many kid parties (and a few adult parties) climaxed by a crowd of over 150-teen-agers cast and stage hands, after the high school play."

"The beauty of it is that we still have the privacy of our home and can clean up the playhouse the next day, or when we can find the time and there is no damage to treasured possessions."

Now you can get out your hammer and nails and bless those teen-agers' hearts.

POLICE CASUALTIES
NEK BRITAIN, Conn. (UP)—An unwanted visitor at the Fafnir Bearing Co. traded "shots" with three policemen before they killed him. But all three of the officers were hit before they dispatched the skunk.

Do's And Don'ts On Hospital Visit

CLEVELAND, O. (U.P.)—Worried by the strain put on both patient and hospital staff by large numbers of visitors, the American Hospital Association has made this list of suggestions for those who go to the hospital to visit a friend or relative:

1. Look good. The patient likes to have other patients and the nurses admire his friends. Besides, he's tired of looking at white gowns.
2. Be prompt. It's depressing for a bed-ridden person to hear footsteps approach his door—and then go right past it, especially if he knows the visiting hour has arrived.
3. Use common sense in any gift you bring. Make sure the patient will like it, can use it, and that the doctors approve.
4. Don't tell the patient he looks awful. He knows that, and he wouldn't be flat on his back if he were in blooming health.

Bring News

5. If there are more than one of you, sit on the same side of the bed—but not on the bed.
6. Don't smoke. There comes a time in the life of the heaviest tobacco addict when he doesn't want to smell the stuff, and this may be it.
7. Come in full of news. The patient feels isolated and tidbits of news, especially if they concern him, are most welcome.
8. Don't ask for a detailed report on the accident or sickness. Many persons are quite willing to talk and will do so endlessly. Others would rather say nothing.
9. Don't tell your worries to the patient. He's not in a position to walk away.
10. Skip the belly-shaking humor until the patient is able to enjoy it without straining his stitches.

The association added that the act of visiting is more appreciated than the length of stay, and a visit after returning home is even more welcome.

Nuisance Value Baldly Illustrated

BRISTOL, England (AP)—If you want to be a success—make yourself a nuisance. That was the advice given by Sir Hugh Casson, designer of London's coronation decorations, to students at the Royal West of England School of Architecture here.

"It's the poets, artists, lunatics, maniacs and cranks who really get things done," he said. "You can cultivate the art of making yourself such a nuisance that you will get what you want from people, who will say, 'all right—anything to get you out of the way.'"

Gremlins Touch Electric System

ELKHORN CITY, Ky. (AP)—Fiery gremlins skipping across power lines gave the Little Beaver Creek community a shock it will long remember. Unexplained electrical disturbances caused this havoc: Herby Sloane's furnace caught fire from the electrical circuit and Sloane needed hospital care for burns suffered when he tried to turn off the stoker. Luther Salyers' television set broke out in flames. He put them out, helped Sloane with his difficulties and then learned his own furnace had caught fire. A store building was ignited by the mysterious hot wires. Fluorescent fires shot up around the utility pole ground wires. Later, everything was all right, but residents were reluctant to touch anything electric for several hours. The Union of South Africa has three capitals: Pretoria for the executive department, Cape Town for the legislature and Bloemfontein for the national judiciary.

Longshore Union Calls Strike On Atlantic Coast

NEW YORK (UP)—The die-hard International Longshoremen's Assn., already embroiled in a bitter membership battle with a rival AFL union, today called a strike of its 40,000 Atlantic Coast members for midnight tomorrow unless shippers meet its wage demands. The I.L.A. negotiating committee threatened a walkout at 12:01 a.m. Thursday that could tie up cargo on the vast New York-New Jersey waterfront and at every port from Portland Me., to Hampton Roads, Va. The strike deadline coincides with expiration of the union's contract with the New York Shipping Assn. I.L.A. negotiators, who last week appeared to be "softening" in their wage demands, last night abruptly raised their figure by three cents an hour and demanded acceptance by noon tomorrow.

Robert A. Peary unfurled five flags on his first trip to the North Pole — that of Delta Kappa Epsilon, his college fraternity; that of the Navy League; a "World's Ensign of Liberty and Peace"; a U.S. flag and what he described as a "Red Cross flag," a white maltese cross on a red background.

Airliner's Crash Kills 22 Persons

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Investigators of the Civil Aeronautics Administration today inspected the burned wreckage of an Army-chartered plane which crashed at Standiford Field here yesterday, killing 22 persons and injuring 19.

The two-engine C46, operated by Resort Airlines, stalled several hundred feet from the ground as it came in for a landing and dived nose first into a soy bean patch. With a crew of three, it was ferrying 38 soldiers from Camp Kilmer, N. J., to Fort Knox, Ky.

The injured were in critical or serious condition suffering burns, broken bones, head or internal injuries. The dead crew members were the pilot, Capt. Whorton Moller, 33 and the co-pilot, John Dewitt Pickel, 31, both of San Antonio, Tex. Stewardess Dorothy Jean Bush of Miami, Fla., was injured critically.

It was the first fatal crash at Standiford Field, the city airport, since it opened in 1944. Witnesses said that just before the plane touched down the pilot apparently seemed to sense something was wrong and pulled up sharply. When the plane hit the field, both engines caught fire, but the flames were quickly extinguished by airport emergency crews.

The forward section of the plane and the left wing were smashed into fragments. The rest of the fuselage remained fairly intact, but twisted and pierced with holes. Lt. Col. Henry Stiebel, Ft. Knox transportation officer, said the soldiers were en route to Ft. Knox for processing — either discharge from the service or reassignment.

The plane was one of five chartered by the Army for the 140-man troop movement. One already had landed and the others were sent to nearby fields.

Local Clubs Have Gambling Stamps

Two Greenville organizations today were listed among the 20 in North Carolina which have purchased $250 federal government stamps for the operation of coin gambling devices between July 1, 1953 and June 30, 1954.

According to the office of the Director of Internal Revenue in Greensboro, federal stamps for the operation of coin gambling devices have been purchased by the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, No. 1645, Greenville, and the Greenville Golf and Country Club, Route 2, Greenville.

Public records at the office of the Internal Revenue Bureau in Greensboro showed only the names of the organizations which had purchased federal gambling stamps for the operation of coin gambling devices, but did not show the actual number of slot machines for which each purchaser received licenses.

Of the 20 organizations in North Carolina which have purchased at least one $250 slot machine stamp this year, six are veterans' clubs, six are fraternal orders, seven are country clubs, and one is a cafe.

Measurers For Revaluation Task Being Trained

Measurers are being trained for the revaluation of Pitt County property, Leon A. Marshall, supervisor of the E. T. Wilkins & Associates, announced today.

These measurers are being trained here in Greenville, but will move to Fountain and Grifton after understanding their work. Measurers will sketch the house or property giving the dimensions so the appraisers will know something about the property when they arrive to appraise it.

Marshall stated that the measurers are mostly local helpers.

Rotary Members Discuss Impact Of Club Services

Rotary in Greenville was discussed by 12 members of the local club Monday evening at the weekly meeting presided over by President F. Badger Johnson.

Arranged by Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, chairman of the Rotary Information Committee, the Rotarians discussed matters of club policy, service to the community, and objectives of the organization for the coming year.

J. B. Kittrell Sr. defined a Rotary Club as an organization fostering and encouraging the ideal of service through acquaintanceship and fellowship, followed by the Rev. Leon Russell who declared that a club's existence is justified by the holding of high ideals for its membership.

Rotary provides not only service to youth and community by active projects, declared Jasper E. Winslow, but it also provides incentives for broader operations beyond the local level, citing the contribution of Greenville Rotarians to the organization of the North Carolina Farm Bureau and other agencies interested in the advancement of agriculture.

Others speaking on the program included Johnny Overton, lauding Rotary's contribution in the field of human relations; Ercell S. Webb, touching on the cooperation with other civic groups; J. Herbert Waldrop, reminding the club of its job in improvement of club property and civic advancement; A. W. (Bill) Bryan, discussing the classification principle as a basis for membership.

Haywood Dall commended the club for its fellowship and its absence of selfishness, while Sam Underwood expressed gratification at the advancement of community and international goodwill.

Alton Johnston and Harding Sugg pointed up the areas in which "home town boys" have grown into an appreciation of Rotary, and Floyd Hendrix suggested that with the tail
