HST Disavows Gov't By Crony

Voices Confidence History Will Uphold Moral Character Of His Administration; Admits Disappointments, But Proud Of Overall Quality Displayed

PROVO, Utah (UP)—President Truman issued a stinging rebuke to critics of his administration's moral character today and said he was "confident that history will bear me out."

"I hear a lot of talk about government by crony in Washington," the President said. "That's sheer poppycock—and politics."

"I try to find the best qualified people I can. Most of the people I have brought into government have stood the test with flying colors."

Mr. Truman defended the moral fiber of his administration in a political address in the Brigham Young University stadium.

"I have done my best, these seven years, to keep the quality of the federal service high to attract good people and keep them in their jobs, to defend them against unfair and improper attacks," the President said.

"I have had some disappointments, now and then along the way, but, overall I am proud of the result, proud and confident that history will bear me out."

Mr. Truman said when a trusted employee had broken his confidence "it has hurt, I can tell you, it has hurt me personally."

"But fortunately for me and for the public service," he added, "it hasn't happened often."

The President continued to hammer away at his theme that the Republican party is "the same old Republican party, no matter who may carry the banner out front."

"It's the same old party that has opposed every progressive step these past 20 years," he said.

Whistle-stops were scheduled for Salt Lake City and Hepler, in Utah, and for Grand Junction and Rifle, in Colorado.

Mr. Truman set aside his campaigning against Dwight D. Eisenhower Sunday and relaxed most of the day.

His special campaign train left Oakland, Calif., at 10 a.m. p.m. and the President rested up from a strenuous week of cross-country stumping for the Democratic ticket.

Although he stuck to his custom of not politicking on the Sabbath, Mr. Truman and his daughter Margaret stepped out on the rear platform at 4 waved at crowds that turned out at seven brief California stops—Niles, Stockton, Sacramento, Marysville, Oroville, Keddie and Fortola—and one at Winnemucca, Nev.

The crowds ranged in size from 400 at Keddie to 15,000 at Sacramento, California's state capital.

Mr. Truman topped off the first half of his two-week, 8,500 mile coast to coast swing with two hard hitting attacks on Eisenhower at San Francisco and Oakland Saturday.

The President, grim and unsmiling, charged at Oakland that Eisenhower was partly to blame for the Korean war and the Russian blockade of Berlin in 1948.

Mr. Truman refused comment on Gen. Curtis LeMay's statement in New York that the President had full responsibility for arranging American atomic bombs on Berlin. A spokesman said the President would stand on his Oakland speech.

Adlai Advised To Talk Prosperity In Southern Tour

Sen. Fulbright Says Economic Growth Of Dixie Best Talking Point

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, who is at odds with some southern Democrats on civil rights and Tidelands oil, was urged today to stress the economic growth of the South in his swing through Dixie.

One of Stevenson's newest campaign advisers, Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, told the Democratic presidential nominee that he could find effective campaign material in the South by drumming away at prosperity and growth enjoyed under 20 years of Democratic administration.

Stevenson spent the day working on speeches for his next swing through the country, which begins Tuesday and will take him to Michigan, Wisconsin and Missouri and then to the South. His aides called "the hill before the storm."

Meanwhile, the head of Volunteers for Stevenson said he would file a protest today with the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters questioning the "ethics" of a proposed Republican radio and TV "blitz."

George W. Ball, executive director of the volunteer group, compared the forthcoming GOP "blitz" to the controversial senatorial campaign in Maryland two years ago. Ball said "deception" was used in both races.

Ball said that the Republicans plan to use deception in the final weeks of the campaign by presenting radio and television programs which depict Dwight D. Eisenhower answering voters' questions on election issues.

He said that Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, has already made some radio and television recordings answering questions that had never been put to him, by persons he had never seen. Ball said that technical tricks of broadcasting would be used to make it seem that Eisenhower was answering questions from the electorate directly.

Ball used such terms as "secret negotiations" to suggest that the GOP plan calls for some illegal, or extra-legal, collusion between the Republicans and the broadcasting industry and the big advertisers who would release air time for a whirlwind, saturation campaign.

The Republican "blitz" plan, which Ball revealed last week at a news conference, calls for a rapid-fire series of "spot" radio and TV announcements concentrated in areas and counties which might swing the needle to the Republican side in 12 crucial and "doubtful" states during the last three weeks of the campaign.

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—They met only a week ago, but Charles Featherstone, 90, and the former Mrs. Evia Phegley, 70 were honey-mooning today.

They were introduced by a mutual friend and married here Saturday.

"We've got years yet . . . years and years," the new Mrs. Featherstone beamed.

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (AP)—American marines gave whole blood transfusions today to comrades wounded in an unsuccessful attempt to knock the Chinese off an outpost northeast of Panmunjom.

Marines stationed behind the lines showed up at the medical company a few miles from the outpost, ready to give blood on call.

Said Pfc. William Gant of Waxhaw, N. C., "Maybe they'll do the same thing for us one of these days."

Pfc. Charles Harmon, St. Petersburg, Fla., said he volunteered because of the help he got when he was wounded twice.

Navy doctors said the fresh blood gives a wounded man more strength than whole blood flown from the U. S.

NEW YORK (UP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway warned the nation today against underestimating the position of potential aggressors in Europe.

In a film delivered to his country by his North Atlantic treaty headquarters, Ridgway said the idea that unfriendly nations are unprepared for war is "unjustified and dangerous."

The film was shown last night at the 11th anniversary dinner of Freedom House. The organization awarded Ridgway and James B. Conant, Harvard University president, its annual award after the film was shown.

"The NATO nations still stand in peril," Ridgway said.

He said Western Europe's military strength is "dangerously inadequate" and that NATO's commitments for 1952 would not be met in full.

"I feel there must be an unceasing recognition that the military

Urges Check On Campaign Costs

Senator Says Soon Only Rich Man Can Run For Congress

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Guy M. Gillette said today that unless some check is placed on campaign expenditures it will become impossible for "a man of moderate means" to run for Congress.

The Iowa Democrat, who resigned recently as chairman of the Senate subcommittee on elections, said the present limitations on "no control at all" over campaign contributions.

The present law limits campaign expenditures by political committees to $3,000,000, by senators to $25,000, by congressmen to $10,000 and individual contributions to $5,000. But Gillette pointed out that there are several "loopholes" in the law which allow both political camps to spend "huge sums" in excess of the legal limitations.

Gillette discussed the problem of campaign funds in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U.S. News and World Report.

He said rising campaign expenditures pose "a desperate situation" which is threatening to "debate the electoral process."

"The only solution," he said, "is to centralize responsibility" for reporting contributions and expenditures on the individual political candidates.

Ask Communists Allow Prisoners To Get Parcels

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations again asked the Communists today to let war prisoners receive winter parcels.

The proposal was made in a letter from chief U.N. delegate Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison to North Korean Gen. Nam Il.

Harrison suggested the Reds permit U.N. prisoners to receive parcels of specified size and contents. He said the U.N. felt "concern" for the welfare of Allied prisoners and pointed to the "increase in hardships cold weather will bring."

The U.N. also offered to deliver to Communist war prisoners held by the U.N. any parcels their government or relatives wish to send.

Border Guards In New Uniforms

BERLIN (UP)—East German Communist border guards blossomed out today in military-type, olive green field uniforms.

Heretofore the guards, which Western officials have described as a disguised Communist army, have worn police-type blue uniforms.

The uniform switch was interpreted as a sign that the East German government soon would announce formation of an army.

They Gave Blood

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (AP)—American marines gave whole blood transfusions today to comrades wounded in an unsuccessful attempt to knock the Chinese off an outpost northeast of Panmunjom.

Marines stationed behind the lines showed up at the medical company a few miles from the outpost, ready to give blood on call.

Said Pfc. William Gant of Waxhaw, N. C., "Maybe they'll do the same thing for us one of these days."

Eisenhower Tour Goes Into Public Power Area

Will Attempt Convince Northwest Voters He And His Party Will Not Destroy System Built Up Over 20 Years

SPOKANE, Wash. (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower set out today to attempt to convince the power-conscious voters of the Northwest that he and his party will not destroy the federal dams, power projects and conservation developments of the last 20 years.

Eisenhower's tour through Washington state was bent on nullifying the effects of President Truman's recent whistle-stop trip through the same area.

Mr. Truman passed this same way trumpeting charges that Eisenhower was a helpless "front man" for private power lobbies out to axe federal power and water projects.

Eisenhower, who spent Sunday making "non-partisan" but anti-administration speeches across Montana, was scheduled to speak here today shortly after 9 a.m. p.m. Then he will whistle-stop aboard his campaign train through Ephrata, Wenatchee and Everett before reaching Seattle, where he makes his main speech of the day on conservation and public power projects.

The Republican presidential candidate will speak from the Civic Ice Arena in Seattle at 9 p.m. p.m. tonight.

He will have a series of large crowds at Montana stations that he intended to do so campaigning on Sundays.

"When I started the campaign—I decided one thing: That on Sundays I would not be a candidate," he told 5,000 at Billings.

But later at Bozeman, where 2,000 turned out to see the general, he said "I can say this much of politics, even on Sunday:

"I do hope that, if you put the responsibility of the presidency on me, that you will send all of these men you have just met to similar posts so they can take part of the burden and be part of the team."

"These men" included Sen. Zales N. Ecton (R-Mont.) who is running against Rep. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Wellington D. Rankin, GOP congressional candidate from the First Montana District.

Eisenhower also spoke at Livingston and Butte and urged his audiences to vote Republican to combat "atheistic" and "amoral" influences in government.

U. S. Grand Jury Begins Inquiry In Terror Wave

MIAMI (UP)—More than 40 witnesses, including 12 alleged KU Klux Klansmen, appeared today before a federal grand jury investigating a wave of terrorist bombings which was climaxed by the murder of a Florida Negro leader and his wife.

The grand jury will decide whether there is sufficient evidence to return indictments for violations of the federal civil rights statute in the following cases:

A series of dynamites, including a blast which caused $20,000 damage, of Miami's Carver Village housing project if it was offered in part to Negro occupancy.

A series of bombing and attempted bombings of Miami synagogues, Jewish community centers and Catholic churches.

Gen. Ridgway Says NATO Nations Still Are In Peril

NEW YORK (UP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway warned the nation today against underestimating the position of potential aggressors in Europe.

In a film delivered to his country by his North Atlantic treaty headquarters, Ridgway said the idea that unfriendly nations are unprepared for war is "unjustified and dangerous."

Fairgrounds Hum In Preparing For Opening Tonight

Over 500 Individual Exhibits Entered; Livestock Show On Wednesday

The Pitt County Fairgrounds were humming with activity this morning and this afternoon in preparation for the grand opening of the Pitt County Agricultural Fair tonight.

A pre-opening to the Fair was staged yesterday afternoon at the airport when Irish Horan and his Hell Drivers thrilled hundreds of spectators with next to impossible driving feats. One of the outstanding features of the show was the shooting of a car from a cannon.

This morning, entry clerks were busily engaged in entering over 500 individual exhibits of all types of agricultural interests. Judging of the exhibits will take place tomorrow, and Wednesday will be a big day for 4-H boys in the county when their livestock is judged.

Strates' Model Shows caused much interest yesterday afternoon when it arrived by railroad cars. Workmen were busy this morning constructing the 36 sides and 15 shows which will be featured on the midway.

Another feature of the midway will be the Hollywood Skyrockets high act which will be performed every afternoon and night. Also on the midway will be a fireworks show at 9 o'clock every night.

Legionnaires will be admitted free tonight on presentation of paid-up Legion cards and two days have been set aside when city and county school children will be admitted free to the fairgrounds. While children in the city and county schools will be admitted free Friday afternoon all Negro school children will be admitted free Wednesday.

Planning Board Meeting Called

Mayor Lester D. Page this morning called a special meeting of the City Planning Board for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The mayor said the planning board will meet in the aldermen's room at the city hall for the purpose of discussing possible alterations in the city's fire district.

"At that time, a request from The King's Daughters that the old Vine house be removed from the fire district will be brought up," Mayor Page said.

At Thursday night's meeting of the board of aldermen, a delegation from The King's Daughters appeared and made that request because they "wished to sell the property for use as an apartment or office building."

Draft Rejection Percentage Over Country Rising

WASHINGTON (UP)—Forty-two per cent of the young men called up by draft boards during the Korean war have been found unfit for military service.

Selective Service records show that 1,128,000 youths have been rejected for physical, mental or moral reasons out of the 2,700,000 ordered to report for induction since August, 1950. During World War II, when physical standards were about the same, the rejection rate was only 36 per cent.

A spokesman for the surgeon general's office offered one possible explanation. The first men called up after the start of the Korean war were those closest to their draft-post 26th birthdays. Many of these same men had previously been screened for military duty in World War II, and either deferred or rejected.

Non-Stop Flight Of Jets Arrives

HICKAM FIELD, Hawaii (UP)—Forty-two of 75 U. S. Air Force F-84 Thunder jets making a mass trans-Pacific flight have arrived here after a non-stop journey from Travis Field, Calif.

They were to be joined today by the other 37 planes. All of them make up the 27th fighter escort wing which will replace the 31st wing in Korea.

It was the second mass flight across the Pacific in three months. The Thunder jets were refueled in the air.

Knew How To Rent Apartment In Hurry

Mr. J. R. Cahoon of 508 East Second Street, Greenville, ran a "For Rent" ad in The Daily Reflector classified ad section. He had a four room apartment for rent.

This was the second time Mr. Cahoon had advertised this apartment. The first time he put the ad in the paper to run for six times and got results the first day. The second time the ad ran until notified, which was only two days.

This is just an example of the good results The Daily Reflector classified ads bring you. Put in your ad today. Phone 8177.

Marines Forced Back From Hills After Hard Fight

Battled Way To Peak But Forced Off; ROKs Vainly Bid For Height

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—United States Marines and their South Korean allies have been forced back from two hills on the western front after hours of determined attack, the 8th Army announced today.

In the air, United Nations Sabre jets damaged four Russian-made MIG-15 jets in two dogfights.

American leathernecks attacked a hill northwest of Koranpo, a few miles from the Panmunjom truce center, at 6 a. m. after a 15-minute softening-up barrage by their artillery.

They battled to the peak but were forced back by overwhelming enemy fire.

To the west, the South Korean Marine corps which was trained by and fights with the American Marines, battled all day Sunday in a vain attempt to recapture a lost hill.

Navy headquarters in Tokyo disclosed 263 planes from the American carriers Kearsarge, Princeton and Essex teamed with Air force bombers yesterday in an attack on a Communist supply center at Hoeyung south of Wonsan on Korea's east coast.

It was the biggest Navy air effort since Sept. 1 when 259 planes hit a Red oil refinery at Soji in northern Korea. In yesterday's raid, pilots claimed to have destroyed 12 supply buildings, 39 supply shelters and 20 trucks. An estimated

U.N. Sabre jets damaged two Communist MIG-15 jet fighters in a morning battle today. The F-86 pilots sighted about 50 MIG up to noon, but only four dared to meet the Sabres in a fight.

The marines, whose presence on the western front was disclosed today by the 8th Army, launched their attack against a height north of Koranpo at 4 a. m. P.M. EST Sunday. They moved up cautiously and made their first contact with the Reds three hours later.

Supported by tank fire, the Marines fought to the peak under "intense" mortar fire. By 9:25 a. m., an Army spokesman said, the fighting was "very heavy."

The Marine commander reinforced his men twice, but the Reds stepped up their artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire and the marines were forced off the slope.

Church Services Are Disrupted

BELL ARTHUR — A drunk and disorderly youth this weekend caused a disturbance that broke up services at the Negro church near here, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said this morning.

According to reports, James Lee Atkinson, 22-year-old Negro, came around the church drunk and caused such a commotion that services were discontinued.

Sheriff Tyson said Atkinson was arrested and placed in jail but was released on $300 bond. He will be tried in County Court Tuesday, October 14.

East Carolina College staged for its Homecoming Day celebration Saturday a parade which attracted much attention in the city. Beginning at three o'clock, the line of march proceeded along campus driveways and through downtown Greenville, where hundreds of spectators lined the streets.

East Carolina's Marching Band directed by Herbert L. Carter of the faculty participated in the event. Walter Noona of Norfolk, Va., and five attractive majorettes headed the group.

The crack drill team of the college Air Force ROTC unit, composed of seventy cadets, followed the band in the line of march. In command were Cadet Major Eugene B. Williams of Kinston and his staff, including Cadet Captain John R. Farley of Greenville, Cadet Lt. David G. Williamson of Whiteville, and Cadet Lt. Martin A. Byrd of Tabor City. Colors were marched between the two flights of the drill team.

Twelve women students serving as sponsors of campus dormitories and organizations rode in decorated automobiles. Participants and the groups they represented were Joyce Smith of Wilson, Jane Eason of Statesburg, Anise Kelly of Mount Olive, Wills Dean Lindsay of Clinton, Joyce Ellen of Raleigh, and Hilda Grace Moyer of Snow Hill, representing women's dormitories, Carolyn Clapp, Greenville, day students; Frances Woolard, Washington, N.C., Phi Sigma Pi; Pauline Blalock, Timberlake, Circle K Club; Bettie Hendrix, Greensboro, Alpha Phi Omega; Mable Ann West, Roseboro, EPO; and Jacqueline Phelan, Arras, France, escorted by Air Cadet Jean Hourdebaigt of Pau, France, now in training at Kinston, Sigma Pi Alpha.

College officials and officers of the Alumni Association and of various student organizations rode in cars decorated with the college colors. The cars were provided through the help of Badger Johnson of Greenville by various city business concerns. The Merchants Association and other Greenville organizations also assisted in staging the parade. According to Alumni Secretary James W. Butler, who was in charge of arrangements of Homecoming Day.

Fourteen floats, lavish in their decorations, added color and interest to the parade. The theme of many of the floats focused attention on the evening's football contest between the East Carolina Pirates and the Catawba Indians.

The EPO float was judged winner in a contest among entries to the parade. Winner of a dormitory decorations contest was Jarvis Hall, women's dormitory, residents of which received a handsome trophy given annually by the Industrial Arts Club of the college.

Leaders Of Universalists Speak On Liberal Religion

Dr. and Mrs. Clinton Lee Scott, spiritual needs of contemporary living. It freely accepts the historical views of the Bible; the findings of biological evolution; the growing knowledge of child guidance; and the methods of science. It allows, he said, for a restatement of creeds, from day to day, in the light of present conditions. Its teachers are of the present as well as of the distant past, and its thinking is drawn from many sources.

Dr. Scott made clear that Universalism, bound to none of the man-made creeds of ancient times, or to the doctrines of the pre-scientific age, is free from the necessity of keeping religion in a separate compartment of the mind. Indeed, he said, Universalism is a way, not of formulas, but a way of thinking and living. Children nurtured in the Universalist faith do not have to "unlearn" their religion when exposed to truths in other areas of learning.

The Study Group plans to give

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Estelle House of Durham and Mrs. Hazel Harris of Henderson; four sisters, Mrs. Lula Nobles, Mrs. Lena Whitehurst, Mrs. Penney Dudley and Mrs. Addie Meeks, all of Pitt county, and one brother, Frank Tyson of Georgetown, S. C.

Service Plates Dedicates In Sunday Rites

During the morning worship service at St. James Methodist Church yesterday, collection plates and a baptismal font were dedicated.

The brass plates were gifts of Miss Lill Wilson and were given in loving memory of her mother, Mrs. Martina Brown Wilson. The silver font was also given by Miss Lill, as she is affectionately known in the community, to honor her great niece, little Miss Studie Mann Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson.

The service pieces were dedicated in a brief ceremony which preceded the sermon. Taking part in the ritual were the Rev. Ed Eshenhardt, pastor; W. H. Watson, superintendent of the Adult department; Miss Lill and Studie Wilson.

The plates are inscribed with the following: In loving memory of Mrs. Martina Brown Wilson, by her daughter, Lill Brown Wilson, September 27, 1952.

The new church will be erected in the near future on land which is closely adjacent to the birthplace of Mrs. Wilson and which originally belonged to her family.

NOSE, THROAT,

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields—10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."

Moye Family Reunion Held Yesterday

The combined ages of the above 12 children of Josephus and Martha Anne Smith Moye totals 695 years. They and their descendants gathered at the old home-place at Frog Level yesterday for the annual "Moye" family reunion. Pictured, left to right, are: front row, Mrs. Eva Fleming, Mrs. Linda Sutton, Mrs. Martha Braxton and Mrs. Clemie Flake; middle row, Meekin Moye, Mrs. Katie Baldrée, Mrs. Louie Braxton and Mrs. Polly Nobles; and back row, Bill Moye, Jeffrey Moye, Joe Moye, and Ed Moye. The annual event was begun as a birthday celebration for their mother, Mrs. Martha Anne Moye, who died in 1937. (Reflector Photo by Jess Poindexter).

The most cherished ambition of a loving Pitt County mother of 14 children was to see her little "brood" grow to maturity and become self-supporting before her death.

And before 77-year-old Mrs. Martha Anne Moye succumbed in 1937 she had realized her lifetime ambition, because she had raised 14 healthy children — nine daughters and five sons — and seen them all safely married.

Yesterday, in perpetuation of a celebration that began as a birthday dinner for their mother and evolved into the "Moye" family reunion, 12 of the surviving children and dozens of their descendants met at the old Moye home-place at Frog Level for an annual outdoor dinner.

Increasing Numbers
As they have done since their mother's death in 1937, a family steadily increasing in numbers met at the old homeplace to spread a sumptuous dinner under the great trees planted there by Josephus Moye when he brought his young bride there long before the turn of the century.

Two of the daughters have died since their mother passed away in 1937. They are: Mrs. Alice M. Harrington, who died in 1944; and Mrs. Bette M. Flake, who died last year. Mrs. Flake followed in her mother's footsteps and mothered 10 children in her own family.

Some of the grandchildren and great-grandchildren were not present yesterday, but all of the 12 surviving children of the Moye family were in attendance. The combined ages of the seven daughters and five sons present yesterday is 695 years.

18 Barrels
Bill Moye, one of the sons, recalled when his father bought 18 barrels of flour each year to feed the large family. "It seems funny to me," Moye said, "my daddy raised 14 children and provided for them and its all I can do to raise two."

Josephus Moye, who died in 1914, and Martha Anne Smith Moye reared 14 children. Their descendants number 45 grandchildren, 94 great grandchildren and 16 great-great grandchildren — totaling 169.

Although all descendants were not in attendance, more than 125 persons gathered on the lawn for dinner yesterday. Friends and more distant relatives stopped in for a few minutes and remained through the afternoon, reminiscing and introducing new babies.

Surviving Children
Moye children present yesterday and their ages, were: Eva M. Fleming, 61; Linda M. Sutton, 47; Martha M. Braxton, 55; Clemie M. Flake, 69; Meekin Moye, 49; Dattie M. Baldrée, 65; Louie M. Braxton, 59; Polly M. Nobles, 57; Bill Moye, 50; Jeffrey Moye, 52; Joe Moye, 64; and Ed. Moye, 67.

Candidates Of Demo Ticket Subject Of Talk

The Aries Book Club members enjoyed their first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. A. W. Bryan on Thursday evening, October 2.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Astor Richardson. Minutes were read and approved, and dues collected.

Mrs. Steve Bartlett, chairman of the book committee, reported that she had turned in the books to the Sheppard Memorial Library and part of the books went to the hospital library. She presented an interesting and varied array of books for the club members to read this year and reported these would be turned over to the Carver Library at the end of the year.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. M. L. Starkey, who presented a most informative and thorough program on Adlai Stevenson and John Sparkman, the Democratic presidential and vice-presidential nominees. Mrs. Starkey talked about Stevenson, the man; how he was nominated, qualifications as a president; Sparkman as a vice-president; and the Democratic platform, using material from the August 1st issue of "U.S. News and World Report."

Among the many interesting facts concerning Stevenson Mrs. Starkey pointed out that if Stevenson is elected the people may expect the following: that labor will still be strong but not near as strong; there will be some tax relief, if possible; spending will decline; business will get a hearing; Europe will receive aid; farmers will be helped with subsidies as in the past; politics will be toned down.

Mrs. Starkey pointed out that the actions of Stevenson and his statements are studied lengthily before he reaches his conclusion. In conclusion she urged the club members to vote for the candidate of their choice and to be sure to go to the polls and vote.

A sweet course of cake with coffee was served by the hostess. Mrs. June Mustain was a guest for the meeting.

Budget Talks In Secret Session To Ponder Action

RALEIGH (AP)—The Advisory Budget Commission met in secret today to ponder over the budget recommendations it will make to the 1953 General Assembly.

Last week the commission finished its public hearings of heads of various state agencies and departments. The department heads asked the commission for 423 million dollars to keep the state government going for the next two fiscal years beginning next July 1.

They also requested an additional 126 million for new buildings and other permanent improvements. Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw has estimated state income during the upcoming biennium will total 383 million dollars.

After going to work with their paring knives on some requests, they probably will ask L.D. Moore, head of the Budget Bureau, to prepare a budget based on their recommendations. When Moore completes his work, the Commission probably will meet again for further paring and revising, before submitting its recommendations to the Legislature, which convenes in January.

Speech Association Plans East Carolina Workshop

Teaching speech in the public schools will be discussed at a meeting of the North Carolina Speech Association at East Carolina College Saturday, October 11. All who are interested are invited to attend.

Dr. Meredith N. Posey of the department of English at East Carolina, who is arranging the day's program, has announced that the meeting will be conducted as a workshop. Topics scheduled for discussion include the use of recordings in teaching, speech, speech work — the elementary and the high school levels, and types of speech handicaps and work in speech correction.

Program meetings will be held at 10:15 a.m. and 2 p.m. in Room 208 of the Austin building. A luncheon at 12:30 will take place in the 1st Dining Room at East Carolina.

Prof. Hall Swain of State College will preside at the morning session. Tape recordings will be used to demonstrate recurring errors in speech. Participants in a panel on how to correct these errors include Lois Grigsby and Dr. Posey, of the East Carolina department of English, and Prof. Joseph Wertherby of Duke University.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of East Carolina, Prof. Norman Mattis of the University of North Carolina, and Prof. Franklin Shirley of Wake Forest are scheduled as discussion leaders in a second panel during the morning. They will base their remarks on recordings of prose and poetry by speech experts.

Comments on "What is Done in Speech Training Together With What Should Be Done" will close the morning session. R.B. Stirling of the Greenville High School and W. H. Wagoner of the Washington High School will make suggestions on work in the high school. Frances Wahl, principal of the Training School at East Carolina College, will discuss speech work in the lower grades.

Polynesia Trip Upset By Police

NEW ORLEANS (UP) — Two teen-aged boys headed back to the "violent complexity" of life in Park Ridge, Ill., today after police foiled their plans to go live "among the happy, peaceful Polynesians."

Byron Scott and Donald P. Redheffer, both 17, ran away from their Park Ridge homes and came here on a motorcycle to board a ship for the South Sea Islands. It was going to be an adventurous trip, but—

All the shipping companies said "no" when the boys asked permission to work for their passage on a ship to the Polynesian Islands. Undaunted, they got a job on a Mississippi River tugboat to make money to pay for their tickets.

Meanwhile their parents reported their disappearance to Park Ridge police and authorities traced the boys to New Orleans. Police here found the youths at a rooming house, took them to the Missing Persons Bureau and lectured them. Reluctantly, the boys agreed to take their motorcycle and return to home and high school in Park Ridge.

"We wanted to live among the happy, peaceful Polynesians, away from the violent complexity of the society we have known," Redheffer, a high school senior, explained to officers.

Seven Student Announcers Are Chosen For Radio

Student radio announcers who will participate in broadcasts produced at the East Carolina College Radio Studios during 1952-1953 were chosen at auditions held this week.

As a result of the tryouts seven students have been placed on a tentative list of announcers and are ready to begin work. They are William F. Taylor, Robersonville; Larry Thompson, Princeton; Patricia C. Odwin, Havelock; Royce Jordan, Washington; Julian Vainwright, Greenville; O'Brien Edwards, Chocowinity; and Jimmy E. Dunn, Ayds.

Tape recording equipment has recently been purchased by the Campus Studios and will be put to immediate use, according to Mrs. Marguerite A. Perry of the faculty, chairman of the college Committee on Radio.

Strength for the Day

"AUTHORITIES"
On June 1, 1813, as the warship Chesapeake was being raked by enemy fire, Lieutenant William Cox took the famous Commodore James "Don't give up the ship" Lawrence below deck for medical aid.

The military, desiring a scapegoat for defeat, accused Cox of abandoning his post of duty during an engagement, stripped him of his commission, and discharged him. President Truman, 130 years later, signed a bill which restored his commission to Lieutenant Cox, dead now, of course, for generations. Although it did the injured officer no good, it constituted a vindication for his descendants.

We all remember what happened to General Billy Mitchell who dared to speak up in favor of the military use of air power. Right at the close of World War I, a plumber in England sent to the War Department a sketch of what is called today an army tank. A military "authority" wrote across the sketch, "The man is mad," and filed it away.

Beware of the so-called "authorities." These people who speak as if they have at last discovered the truth which all in the past have sought in vain to discover are usually the laughing stock of succeeding generations. We have many of them today in government, in academic circles, in scientific societies, and in church councils. Take them and their findings with a grain of salt.

A Campaign With Real Hay-Makers

There is nothing like a political campaign to make politicians conscious of the short-comings of the government.

The "ins" and the "outs" alike almost overnight hop out of their arm chairs and begin looking for things and doing things. The "ins" start action after action pointed to improving the government; and do not hesitate to point braggingly to their brain storms which would be no less sensational, in their estimation, if they never had been thought of before.

The "outs" begin shaking out mistakes of the past and shortcomings of the past until one wonders just how the country has gotten along as well as it has with all the mistakes of commission and omission.

It boils down to a race between the "ins" and the "outs" to see if the former can plug holes before their existence can be called to the attention of the people by the latter.

Such a case, we think, has come up in the sudden decision of the Justice Department to deport some 100 foreign born racketeers. To do so, say administration officials, will be to "tear out the roots of crime" in this country.

Well, its good news to the law abiding people of the country to know that the government is finally recognizing the root organized crime in the United States lies to a large extent in the group against which the current action is being taken. Yet, the same action could have been taken at most any time during the past 20 years. For practical purposes, the same group has been on the government black list of racketeers over that period of years.

Could it be that politics and the current presidential campaign caused the "ins" to pick this particular time for action against the racketeers? Or could it be just a coincidence that the "right" time for such a move came in the heat of a presidential campaign even though politics was not taken into consideration?

We'd hate to think the "ins" would wait years or even months to take a step for the nation's welfare in order to make political hay with it. We'd hate to think the "outs" would wait a similar period of time to call attention to a shortcoming to make political hay out of it.

Needed, More Meetings With 'SRO' Sign

The City of Greenville would be better off, and its citizens better informed on what goes on in local government if there were more Board of Aldermen meetings in which there were "standing room only."

That was the case last Thursday night when an unusual number of citizens had things on their mind they wanted the aldermen to do, and they went to the meeting to state their cases.

As is usually the case, most of the individuals left the meeting after the particular matter in which they were interested was taken up. At the vast majority of aldermen meetings in Greenville, there are only a handful of spectators left by the time local officials get down to the meat of their sessions.

We've heard about cities in which a large number of citizens are usually present at meetings of the municipal governing body; not because something special is to be taken up, but just because they are interested in seeing how the officials handle the problems which come to their attention.

There are no statistics available on the number of local citizens who have attended a meeting of the board of aldermen, but we believe it is a safe guess that more than 80 per cent of the citizens of Greenville have never been to a meeting of the aldermen. Probably far less than 10 per cent of the citizens have taken the time to sit through an entire meeting of the board.

Then we wonder about all the unanswered questions the citizens have about the operations of local government.

When the aldermen of Greenville have a meeting, they are together to discuss and make decisions on the business which belongs to every person who lives in the city. The meetings are open to all the citizens. Yet only a few ever go to the trouble to find out first hand what the "board of directors" of this big business called Greenville do in a monthly meeting.

Unfortunately, the same situation exists in regard to other local government boards and commissions which are charged with the responsibility of handling public affairs.

It would indeed be a boon to better government if more individual citizens took personal interest in what goes on at various government board meetings—if they observed more closely the operations of local government.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—"Are you better off now than you were in 1932?" and "Don't let them take it away!" have become Democratic chants in the current campaign. The outcome of the election may hinge on how the voters respond to those slogans.

President Truman and Governor Stevenson maintain that twenty years of Democratic rule have produced a "prosperity" which, like Hoover in 1928, they proclaim to be permanent. They argue that Democratic politics and good times are "kissing cousins."

General Eisenhower promises a "prosperity" not based on war. He implies that present conditions are based on the tremendous military, lend-lease and foreign aid expenditures that began in 1939 with Hitler's invasion of Poland. He also holds out hope for a shake-up in expenditures, including budgets and taxes, that will rest our economy on a more enduring basis.

PROSPERITY—Although the candidates may distort the picture for partisan purposes, official statistics suggest that the debate is a standoff, and that the issue is entirely irrelevant. They show clearly that no party can produce prosperity like a rabbit out of a top hat because economic changes derive from circumstances which politicians cannot foresee or control.

These same figures also indicate that prewar, war and postwar expenditures, including those by our allies, private industry and Uncle Sam, contributed most heavily to our present "abundant life" and high living standards.

Recent discussions by our most expert economists, bankers and industrialists reflect concern as to the permanency of our present state. Many do not agree with the Truman-Stevenson contention that prosperity will last forever, if only the Democratic nominee is elected.

They wonder what will happen to the present level of wages, unemployment, prices and general business activity when, if ever, the annual cost of $60-billion in military and foreign aid can be reduced to half that amount.

"DISPOSABLE INCOME"—In this connection, the official figures on the American people's average annual disposable income for the past twenty years, 1932-1952, as well as other measures of our economic status, are enlightening.

"Disposable income" consists of an individual's spending and saving total after Federal, state and local taxes. It does not include such heavy taxes as real estate, sales or special assessments. The figures given below have been adjusted so that they represent depreciated 1951 dollars, which have fallen a bit further in value during the last twelve months.

FIGURES—Here are the per capita disposable income figures for the years pertinent to the Stevenson-Eisenhower debate:

1932, $764; 1939, $1,035; 1946, $1,417; 1951, $1,458. These figures show that, despite Federal relief and subsidy payments from 1933 to 1939, the per capita income in that period was only $271. The largest boost, $382, occurred during the war years, when government and industry poured out more than $500 billion.

During the postwar period, and despite billions expended by Washington for defense, foreign aid and domestic subsidies, the per capita increase was only $41.

SAVINGS—Official statistics on long-term savings during this era present an equally murky canvas. These include investments in insurance savings deposits and government savings bonds. They do not include currency on hand, checking accounts, private securities or home equities. Here are the key figures: 1932, $690; 1939, $810; 1946, $1,300; 1951, $1,180. The increase during the war period, of course, is accounted for by the fact that people could not spend their income because of rationing and the scarcity of consumer goods. The $120 decline from 1946 to 1951 reflects the unusually large amount of money spent to satisfy wants unfiled during the war.

TOMORROW MORTGAGED—Meanwhile, heavy debts—individual, corporate, state and municipal, Federal—have been incurred. Tomorrow is heavily mortgaged for the present and future generations. Secretary Snyder recently said that he doubts if the public debt can ever be paid off.

And no wonder! It has jumped from $26.8 billion in 1932 to $260 billion at the present time, with an annual interest charge for paying the bondholders that is greater than the entire 1952 budget.

Instalment debt has reached new peaks, and is rising since removal of Federal curbs on credit. Mortgage commitments on one to four-family houses have leaped from $21 billion in 1929 to $47 billion in 1952. All forms of indebtedness, corporate and agricultural, are skyrocketing.

ECONOMIC ENIGMA—In short, there are so many ifs, ands and buts in any analysis of economic progress—and even Federal statisticians concede they do not know all the whys and wherefores—that it should not be a campaign issue. Nobody can say whether it is really "better off" from a long-term viewpoint, and anybody who wants to "take it away" should have his head examined.

But so surcharged with emotion is a man's pocket-book—or its contents—that the election may be decided on this artificial issue.

Maybe Nixon Was Honest—

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
DIFFERENT — The programs are almost identical and the subject matter of the speeches very much the same at all of the Democratic congressional district rallies now being held throughout the state. Each district has some individual features setting it apart from the others.

The first rally held was a Murphy, in the most westerly county of Cherokee, bordering both Georgia and Tennessee and home of J. M. Bailey, chairman of the State Republican committee. The third was at Morganton, near the middle of the tenth district, the one in which the Republicans fully expect to win. The nine others to follow will each have distinctive features, but local distinctions will be more nearly "normal."

HANGOVERS — There are almost no hangovers from the primary spree in the three western districts. Occasionally an individual would voice disapproval of the primary winner whom he had not supported, but the party leadership is behind the nominees. Olive folks are just as enthusiastic for Unstead as are his original backers. Governor Scott was given an even bigger ovation at Marshall than at Murphy, although a few months back in Madison county folks were mighty mad because of his failure to allocate highway money to the French Broad route for a new road into Tennessee, but did give half a million to the Pigeon River project. The Democrats in the mountains take their general election politics seriously. When the next primary comes they may recall some of the things that made them sore last spring, but for the present they are together.

EISENHOWER — For the same reason there is no evidence except in the larger towns of Eisenhower support beyond the straight Republican party lines. There is a lot of it around Asheville and in the larger counties bordering the South Carolina line from Mecklenburg westward.

STRAIGHT — Democrats in the mountain rural precincts and small towns manifested some concern over reports from down east—and for many of them the east begins at the Blue Ridge. Almost unanimous opinion as appraised by your reporter is that there will be very little difference in the vote for Eisenhower and the vote for the local Republican in the counties of Avery, Mitchell, Yancey, Madison, Swain, Graham, Cherokee, Clay, Macon, Jackson and Transylvania. Several Republicans concurred in that appraisal. The difference in Democrat and Republican viewpoints is that both claim they will carry the counties all the way from "President to Contable."

MIX'D — In Buncombe, Haywood and Henderson counties there is considerable sentiment for Eisenhower among people who usually vote the State and local Democratic ticket, and expect to do so this time. That is the situation in the eleven district counties of McDowell, Cleveland and Gaston; and throughout the entire tenth district except Avery and Mitchell. There is wide divergence of opinion about the extent of this independent sentiment for Eisenhower in excess of that for the whole Republican slate.

APPRAISAL — It is particularly hard to appraise the situation in the tenth district. Charles Raper Jonas of Lincoln, the Republican candidate is giving the veteran Congressman Hamilton C. Jones the hardest fight he has encountered in his political career. There was evidence at the Morganton rally, supported by interviews with several Burke County Republicans, that efforts of both parties will be concentrated on congress. One Republican said he would regard it a greater victory for his party to break into the congressional delegation than to give the electoral vote to Eisenhower. Some Democratic leaders in the district also seem to feel that the rest of the state will take care of Stevenson, but it is entirely up to them to save Ham Jones. Such a background situation makes it difficult to determine just where the lines are being drawn for other candidates.

POTPOURRI — There was (Continued on page two)

What Other Papers Are Thinking

PRESIDENT OF DIGNITY
(Durham Sun)

President Truman's favorite terms, companions of the bourbon glass and the poker table, include "damn lie," "damn liar" and an intimated expletive. Yesterday he declared the Republican claim that a sizable tax cut is possible without reducing defense expenditures is "just a damn lie." He applied the term generally only it gave opportunity, upon which some writers seized, to recall that General Eisenhower is among those who have made the claim and that Mr. Truman was therefore, calling the General "damn liar."

Actually, the hope that taxes can substantially be reduced without curtailing defense and rearmament programs in exceedingly remote in the collective opinion of some discerning American leaders, but Mr. Truman's coarse vernacularism offend more than they convince.

It seems inescapable that Mr. Truman is an uncouth vulgarian who belongs not in the Stevenson entourage but with the McCarthy-Jenner-Brewster-Nixon crew. Truman and Nixon appear to be the hatched men of their respective parties and both are doing more harm than good. It seems something of a tossup as to which will alienate more voters.

However, Mr. Nixon is only an upstart young demagogue. Mr. Truman is President of the United States. What the country needs among other things, is another President of dignity. Impulsive language is for private, not public, explosions.

remember that the Republicans far outnumbered the Democrats in registrations. In 1932, when Roosevelt was elected for the first time, it was on an orthodox platform. Indeed, in that year he campaigned against what he called a spendthrift government.

In his first four years in office, however, he completely sold out to labor, winning over practically all the important leaders. And as a result of that sell-out, the first and second generations foreign born, the coal miners and a boy of our factory workers switched from Republican to the Democratic party.

Now the position of the parties has been reversed. But at what a price to good government! The labor leaders are not only Democrats, but they sit in the convention and dictate many of the party's policies. Only a few days ago, William Green, the head of the American Federation of Labor, came out for the "friends of labor" which means the Democrats. That includes "Soapy" Williams and Blair, Moody of Michigan and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., of New York. It includes a lot of the same sort running in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois. In short, then, it includes enough that if the workers follow the labor leaders' dictates, Stevenson with the South can easily win.

But who are the true friends of labor? Who made the jobs for labor in the first place? And who will make the additional jobs if they are ever made? Most assuredly it was the labor leaders. For they're as ruthless in the handling of the men in their organizations as the old bosses ever were. To our way of thinking, the true friends of labor are the men who work to protect labor, not from the bosses only, but from the labor leaders as well; the men who work to protect labor's jobs. For it's far more important to have a job than to have a labor leader. Perhaps America will awaken to that fact some day.

THE NEW BIBLE TRANSLATION
(Washington News)

The modern translation of the Bible about which we have heard so much of late promises to be a topic of interesting conversation for a long time to come.

Some will say that the "real" word beauty of the bible has been lost. Some will say the literary value of the Bible has been diminished. Some will say that the Bible's appeal has been lessened.

This generation of people now living will more than likely adhere to the King James version still because it is what has been taught from the cradle. And the teachers of today will have a difficult task of adapting themselves to the new version.

The youngsters of today will have less difficulty if the elders will accept the new version. "For all back in 1611 when the King James version was printed, it was in the modern language of that day."

There is one factor which looms large in our thinking. Scholars and outstanding church leaders have put a lot of time and effort in giving the world this new translation. It will not suit a lot of people. But people a lot smarter than this writer have made it possible, and there is no doubt in our minds but what the new translation will meet with more popular approval as time goes along.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Granters of consumer credit are being a little more cautious, judging from reports many sections of the country. They are examining applications for installment credit more carefully and turning down a few more than they used to.

Principal reasons for this tightening are:
Payments have slowed down in many areas. Much of this has followed strikes and resulting lay-offs. As a rule, when strikes end, arrears are quickly cleared up. However, an applicant whose income comes from an industry threatened by a strike may still be granted credit, though perhaps not as much as he wishes.

There is a lot of talk, some of it loose, about defense production passing or about to pass the peak. This makes granters less willing to grant long-term credits unless the applicant's income looks as if it would not be affected by a decline in defense production.

Bankers who furnish funds to small loan companies and who finance dealers who sell on credit are becoming more cautious. To an extent, they are doing what the Federal Reserve Board used to do under Regulation W; they are insisting on substantial down payments and shorter maturities. Outstanding credit is at an all-time high and while bankers as a rule do not regard the total as dangerous, they are interested in preventing it from becoming so.

Louis J. Asterita, New York Deputy manager of the American Bankers Association, summed up the bankers' point of view at the association's convention in Atlantic City this week when he said, "Inventories are in good balance and no need is evidenced to extend terms on a loose basis. There is plenty of evidence to show that credit policies are becoming more restrictive, however, as many banks are urging a more selective approach."

"Increased equities in the purchase of consumer durable goods tend to insure better and less expansive collections. With volume at an all-time high, a review of credit policies now would make for a safe and sound operation in the future."

Consumer buying has been picking up. That and the fact that inventories are down make it unnecessary to offer "nothing down and years to pay" inducements to move goods.

INCOMPETENCE FREQUENT

CAUSE OF FAILURE
Incompetence is the largest reason people fail in apparel and furnishings business. Dun & Bradstreet reports after studying 600 failures in that field in 1951.

That cause, plus lack of experience in the line, lack of managerial experience and unbalanced experience was responsible for a 87 per cent of the bankruptcies. OLD PROMOTER PLANS TO BUY UP OLD BUTTONS
"If you have any capital 'laying around,'" began the Old Promoter. "You may want to invest of your investment in—any of your projects is limited to exactly one cigar," we replied. "Here it is. Tell us about the PAC."

"Just like the War Assets Corporation deal in surplus war goods, we are going to deal in surplus political goods. We are going to buy up undistributed Ike and Adlai buttons, stationery, banners, booklets, speeches, speech writers and so on."

"What good will they be?"
"Well, the Government has brought back a lot of the material that War Assets sold. Maybe four years from now the boys will want to buy back some of the Political Assets stock."

GAS RANGE MAKERS NOW SEE GOOD YEAR
Gas range manufacturers, who had a dim view of this year's sales a few months ago, are now predicting they will top last year's mark. Sales turned up on the normally slack months of June, July and August, leading to hopes that total sales of 2,356,000 units in 1952 can be equalled or passed. August shipments were 179,000 units, compared with 168,100 in August.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—I once knew the proprietor of a shooting gallery who never let his wife work with him.

"I just don't like the thought of her standing there by the guns when I turn my back to fix the targets," he explained. "Even the best of women shouldn't be tempted to look."

There is a less dramatic reason why there are so few successful husband-and-wife teams in the bright world of the theater—the clash of temperaments, the offstage noises they make at each other.

"My dear," murmurs hubby cuttin' "were you sayin' your lines, or tryin' to gargle them?"

"You stepped on my foot again in the kissing scene, you ox, you do your nose off to bite the end of your nose off and throw it at the audience!"

Four quarrels later they tell it to a divorce court judge, and from then on they act on separate stages.

But Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne long have been a shining example of how two great stars can marry and pursue a career together. Now a new and younger team, Rex Harrison and Billie Holiday, hope to match their enduring success in harness.

A play, "No Time for Comedy" brought them together in London in 1941. Since their marriage they jointly starred in two more plays, three films, and an offstage production they are proud of—their son, Carey, born during a German air blitz on the British capital.

They cited their latest film, "The Four Poster," a tender tale of married life in which they share top billing with a bed, as evidence of the advantages of such teamwork.

"We were able to finish in in 23 days because we were able to rehearse at home together," said Lilli, a lady with magnificent eyes who was once told by a drama coach, "You've no charm — you're like a school-marm."

"We couldn't have done it so quickly unless we were married," she added. We agree always on points of performance—well, practically always.

"Yes," broke in Rex. "You can't be compatible on the stage and incompatible off-stage if you're married."

Wedded in art, they avoid possible marital monotony by pursuing different hobbies. Lilli paints and water skis. Rex likes golf and fish. One hobby they share: collecting old Dutch delft porcelain.

"We're read, at least 50," said "our" Ricky. "You find two possible ones out of a hundred," said Rex. "And even then it is always a guess."

The task is to find a drama tailored to both.

"It's not only that it is more practical to work together because we can share our no-does," said Lilli.

"It's more fun," finished Rex.

As a husband he knows all the right answers.

But both know they must face the facts of a profession that takes little heed of the private lives and personal wishes of its followers. The play is still the thing.

"Nothing stands before a good part," said Rex.

"An actor must follow his role, wherever it is," agreed Lilli resolutely.

But there is always the villa at Portofino waiting for them on the hill.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Women who are jealous of their husband's secretaries are just plain silly. That is what Mrs. Mary Barrett, president of the National Secretaries Association, thinks.

"We're hired to do a job, and we're doing it to the best of our ability because we feel we are a part of the business," Mrs. Barrett told me. "Besides, about 50 per cent of us are married."

Accompanying Mr. Barrett to the capital, where she presided over the association's annual convention, was her husband, Carlton A. Barrett, a consulting engineer in Pittsburgh, their home town. He's a staunch roofer for the "Girl Fridays."

More than 1,000 secretaries from the association's 300 chapters attended the sessions. Everything from personality improvement to world affairs were discussed. Principal concern, however, "as the group's Certified Professional Secretary program. Through the efforts of the association to establish professional standards for their occupation, the first national CPS examination was given last August. It was passed by 62 of the 287 women applicants. More than 850 women have signed up to take the examinations set for this October.

The association maintains an institute under the direction of Dr. Irene Place, School of Business Administration, University of Michigan, which with a board comprised of six secretaries and six industry and six university leaders, helps prepare the examinations. The examinations are open to any secretary who is at least 25. If not a high school graduate, a candidate must have had at least seven years of secretarial experience; if a graduate, six years. If a graduate of a business or junior college, she must have had four years secretarial experience. College graduates are required to have had three years. All candidates must submit the names and addresses of employers for the past seven years if they've worked that long.

Mrs. Barrett says the ability to get along with people and be diplomatic is the chief asset of a good secretary. She must also be ready to accept responsibility and show a willingness to further herself in her job.

"The good all-around secretary will have already mastered the basic skills such as typing, shorthand, letter-writing format and business law," Mrs. Barrett explained, "but she must go beyond that if she seeks advancement in her career."

To Vote, A Citizen Must Be On Registration Books

By JESSE POINDEXTER
 Reflector City Editor

As a native of Pitt County and a potential voter, are you definitely certain your name is officially listed on the registration books?

The goal set for Pitt County by the County Democrat Executive Committee is a minimum of 15,000 votes cast in the General Elections to be held Tuesday, November 4.

Elections Board Chairman J.H. Harrell of Greenville declared this morning the most important single contributing factor toward achieving that goal is for all voters to be certain they are officially registered.

Cautioned Voters

Harrell reiterated previous references to the large number of voters turned away from the polls during Primary voting in May, and cautioned every voter in the county who is not positive he is registered to check registration books in his precinct to make sure.

"Several people were turned away from the polls in precincts all over the county," the chairman said, "but most residents who found themselves unable to vote in the Primary lived in Greenville township. He explained that peculiar situation by citing the new registration held throughout the county in October, 1950.

The new October registration was held in precincts all over the county but the greatest confusion arose in Greenville township, where three new precincts were created. Prior to the October, 1950, registration there were only four precincts in Greenville; now there are seven.

Three New Precincts

Harrell asserted the creation of three new precincts was not the only confusing factor of the registration. "Many people became confused because the new registration came between the Primary Election in May and the General Elections in November," he stated. "Many people voted in the Primary who did not vote in the Fall elections."

Along with the creation of new precincts came changes in registration and voting places, the chairman said, and many voters became so mixed-up in the involved complication that followed that a great many never did re-register. It is the rather large number of potential voters that is causing the committee such concern. Both Harrell and John G. Clark, chairman of County Democrat Executive Committee, are urging all voters to check with registrars to determine if they are on the books, and if not, to register and vote this Fall.

Predict 5,000 Votes

Party officials are agitating for 15,000 votes in the General Elections in November. Only a little more than 8,000 votes were cast in the Primary earlier in the year, but Pitt County obviously has a much larger vote potential because more than 12,000 votes were cast locally in 1940.

The above drawing shows Greenville Townships seven voting precincts as created in October, 1950, and currently in effect. Each of the individual precincts is numbered and boldly outlined in black. Black circles denote registration and voting places in each precinct, and specific locations are identified by name. The outer perimeter of Greenville Township is not shown, but it should be understood that lines extending off the above map lead all the way to the adjoining township. All potential voters living inside those specified areas should familiarize themselves with their registration and voting places.

Registration books will be open at voting places in all precincts during the 1952 registration period. Books will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until sunset on three successive Saturdays prior to the voting day — October 11, 18 and 25.

In view of the fact that most of the confusion relative to voting centered in Greenville township, Chairman Harrell today delivered a specific explanation of where each individual precinct is located in Greenville.

Greenville Precincts

The seven voting precincts, and voting places composing Greenville township are:

1. Precinct No. 1 — the voting place for Greenville No. 1 will be Farmers' Warehouse, and the precinct will embrace all of Greenville township lying north of Tar River.
2. Precinct No. 2 — the voting place for Greenville No. 2 will be the Pitt County Courthouse, and the precinct will embrace all territory lying south of Tar River, east of Greene Street, north of Fifth Street and highway 264 to Allen Road, and west of Allen Road extended to Tar River.
3. Precinct No. 3 — the voting place for Greenville No. 3 will be Third Street School, and the precinct will embrace all of Greenville township west of Greene Street, south of Tar River, and north of Fifth Street and highway 264 leading west toward Falkland.

4. Precinct No. 4 — the voting place for Greenville No. 4 will be West Greenville School, and the precinct will embrace all of Greenville township south of Fifth Street, highway 43, and west of Greene Street, Dickinson Avenue and highway 11.
5. Precinct No. 5 — the voting place for Greenville No. 5 will be the city hall, and the precinct will embrace territory south of Five Points lying east of Greene Street, Dickinson Avenue and highway 11, and lying west of Cotanche Street and highway 43 toward New Bern.
6. Precinct No. 6 — the voting place for Greenville No. 6 will be Gold Leaf Warehouse, and the precinct will embrace territory lying south of Fifth Street, east of Cotanche Street and highway 43 to Bell's Fork, and west of Allen Road.
7. Precinct No. 7 — the voting place will be Eastern Pines Community Building, and the precinct will embrace all territory south of Tar River lying east of Allen Road and Red Banks Road leading to Bell's Fork, and extended northward to the way of Tar River.

Harrell said for the registration, the books will be open October 11, 18 and 25 at the established polling places in each of the precincts. He emphasized the importance of registering this year — as well as voting if already registered.

The first North State Conference football game between East Carolina College and Catawba College turned into a duel between Harold Carter of the visiting Indians and Claude King of the Host Pirates but neither of the two was able to do any scoring which would break a 7-7 tie.

The teams scored early in their Saturday night homecoming battle in College Stadium and then rocked back and forth for three quarters without any more point making.

Carter, a scrawny looking sophomore tailback from Lexington, swivel-hipped the Pirates stily. He personally accounted for 123 of the 206 net yards credited to the Indians. The 153-pound tailback ran the ball 30 times for an average of 4.1 yards per carry. In addition, kicked out to the 41 and the Indians began their scoring march. Carter completed two passes—to Crane and Roy Pickens—which moved the ball to the East Carolina 25. Then the speedy scabbard faked a pass and went straight up the middle to the 13 for a first down. Pickens went around left end on an inside reverse which carried to the four and Bill Klutz took the ball over from that point. Harvey Stratton kicked the point and the Indians had completed their scoring for the night.

The Pirates took advantage of a Catawba fumble later in the first quarter to get their touchdown. The Bucs had received the kickoff but were unable to make any headway against the stout Catawba defense which was led by tackle Bill Endland and end Terrell Hall. They punted to the Indians with King putting the ball out of bounds on the Indian seven.

Catawba ran the ball out as far as the 23 but lost possession when Carter fumbled and Willie Holland recovered for the Pirates on the 11. Pirates Score

On the first play from that point Harold Yarborough failed to gain at right end but the Indians were caught offside and penalized to the six. From that point, quarterback Dick Cherry rifled a pass out to Paul Gay in the left flat and Gay stepped across the goal line for the Pirate touch-down. Hank Grissom kicked the extra point and the scoring for the night was completed.

The scoring play for the Pirates was one of the few times they were able to move the ball in the first half. They only had the ball for 17 plays in the first half and gained only nine yards on the ground and six yards (the scoring play) via passing. The one bright spot in the first half play by the Pirates was King punting and the manner in which the defensive line got rough when the chips were down. The defense stopped a Catawba threat late in the second quarter by holding for four downs within the five yard line.

In the second half, the Pirates clearly had the upper hand but they couldn't find their scoring punch and even had to call upon the defensive line again to hold back the Catawba threat.

The Indians came closest to scoring in the second half but they lost their chance late in the fourth quarter when Stratton missed an attempted field goal. Stratton was kicking from the 12 yard line but his placement sailed wide to the left and the Pirates took over.

The running of King and Carter kept the crowd of 8,000 yelling throughout the second half. King had the most spectacular run of the night when he went off-tackle for 52 yards on a delayed buck which was stopped only when four Catawba tacklers climbed the 190-pounder's back. Carter's running didn't have the power of King's but, rather, depended upon elusiveness and sheer speed.

Defensively, the honors in the game were divided between East Carolina's Algie Faircloth and Catawba's Terrell Hall. Faircloth's play was especially outstanding when it is considered that he played the entire game with eight stitches in his upper lip. Hall, a sophomore from Barium Springs, was beginning to feel right at home in the East Carolina backfield by the time the game ended and had personally accounted for most of the 35 yards the Pirates lost rushing. The game was the first of the year for Catawba in North State

Dodgers Defeat Yanks 6-5 On Snider's Blow In 11th

Rookie Billy Loes Will Attempt To Dethrone World Champion Yankees At Ebbets Field Today

BILLY LOES

Chance For Glory

BROOKLYN (UP) — The "old champs" were on the ropes today and a dazzling young opponent was moving in for the kill, confident that there would be a new champion of the baseball world by nightfall.

Manager Casey Stengel, his dream of becoming the second manager in baseball history to pilot four consecutive world champions all but shattered, chose veteran Vic Raschi to make the New York Yankees' "last stand" against the Brooklyn Dodgers in the sixth game of the World Series at Ebbets Field today.

Manager Charley Dressen, meanwhile, countered with a brash, 22-year-old right handed fireballer named Billy Loes to give the Dodgers their first world championship in six tries.

A crowd of about 34,000 was expected at Ebbets Field to see Dressen's truly spectacular young defensive club, which took a 3-2 lead in the series with a 6-5, 11-inning victory Sunday, attempt to apply the knockout blow.

The odds-makers favored the Dodgers to win the Series at 2-1 odds but rated the Yankees 8-5 favorites to win today and force the Series into a seventh-game showdown.

If a seventh game is necessary, strong-armed Allie Reynolds will oppose rookie Joe Black in their third man-to-man meeting of the Series. Black defeated Reynolds, 4-2, in the opening game of the Series and Reynolds beat Black, 2-0, in the fourth game.

The Dodgers, in addition to trying to win their first world title and end the Yankees' three-year reign over the baseball world, were also attempting to become the first National League team to win a Series since the Cardinals defeated the Red Sox, four games to three, in the 1946 classic.

The Yankees, although battered and bruised, were expected to be at full strength for their "last stand" but left fielder Andy Pafko, who pulled a muscle in his left leg Sunday, is a doubtful starter or the Dodgers. If Pafko can't make it, left handed hitting George Shuba will replace him in left field.

In Raschi, Stengel is going with a World Series-tested professional who will be gunning for his fifth Series triumph and who struck out nine and limited the Dodgers to three hits while beating them, 7-1, in the second game of this Series. He had a 16-6 record during the season.

Dressen, on the other hand, is able to risk an eager, young fast-baller with a definite chance to beat the Yankees but under no pressure to have to do so.

Loes had a 13-8 record during the National League campaign. The Sunday game, one of the best played in a World Series in the fifth inning. The Dodgers had taken a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Robinson walked, took second on Shuba's infield hit, stole third and scored on Pafko's "punched hit" to right field. A walk, Erskine's safe bunt, a sacrifice by Coy, and Se's outfield fly and Snider's two-run homer had built the lead to 4-0, in the fifth.

Snider also produced the tying run, after the Yankees had taken the lead with their five-run inning, when his single scored Cox in the seventh inning.

Mize previously had hit his third home run of the Series to put the Yankees in front, 5-5, in

Socialists To Blame If European Unity Falter

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
If present plans and hopes for the unity of Europe fail, a great deal of responsibility will lie with a breed of politician which we in the United States find hard to understand.

They come under the general heading of "socialists."
Their views coincide in many ways with the views of Communist Russia with one very important difference. They take no vow of allegiance to the Kremlin. In general, they favor closer relations with Soviet Russia, including an early four-power conference for a unified Germany.

But, within their own boundaries, they frequently are Communism's bitterest foes.

They advocate the welfare state and government ownership of basic industries. But they also cling to the same sort of extreme nationalism which led to two world wars between 1914 and 1939 and which could again break Europe down into a series of armed camps, each behind its own steel barricade. Their strength should not be underestimated.

For example:
In Britain this week, left-wing socialist leader Aneurin Bevan won a stunning victory over former Prime Minister Clement Attlee. His candidates won seats in the Labor party's Executive Committee over Herbert Morrison, long-time No. 2 man in the party, and Hugh Dalton, another veteran socialist.

Both Morrison and Dalton were members of the conservative Labor wing.

The Bevanites seek to reduce Britain's rearmament program and want a foreign policy more independent of the United States.

If not actually in power, socialist parties at least hold the balance in Britain, France, West Germany, Belgium, Austria and Italy.

In Britain, France and West Germany it also may be said that, whatever their motives, their program is such as to wreck either any hope for a unified Western Europe or any possible defense against Russian aggression.

Another example cropped up in France this week.

French socialists have held the balance of power for years and have not hesitated to wreck governments any time their own aims were thwarted.

On Monday, Edouard Daladier, socialist leader and the man who as premier signed the infamous Munich Pact with Hitler, urged that France pull out of Indo-China, oppose West German rearmament and press for a Big Four meeting.

France is the key to West European army plans and if Daladier's recommendations are followed, it means the end of the European army treaty and with it the end of a plan upon which U. S. hopes and foreign policy have been built. Bevan's loyalty to Britain and Daladier's loyalty to France have not been questioned. But, from the standpoint of European unity, their wisdom may be.

Install Jukebox Inside Church

HARRISON, N. J. (UP)—The last place you'd expect to find a jukebox would be in a church, wouldn't it?

But walk into St. John's Lutheran Church anytime from 7 a. m. until 7 p. m. and you will find one—a real juke-box with a fancy red top and a line of push buttons. The music is free.

All of the selections are hymns, psalms and short sermons. The juke box was put there for those who like hymns as a background for prayer, or who like to hear Biblical readings.

Took His Fire To Fire Station

TEMPLE, Tex. (UP)—Temple firemen wished they had more cooperative customers like one city garbage truck driver.

He could not put out a fire on his truck, so he drove a mile and a half to the fire station where the blaze was doused in a few minutes.

It is estimated that the coal reserves of Europe are about 700 billion tons, those of America 7.7 trillion tons and those of Asia, 2.5 trillion tons.

Pupil Talks To Ayden Rotarians

AYDEN — Connie Lou Dunn, high school freshman, who was voted Citizen of the Week, told Ayden Rotarians about the work of the Ayden Glee Club and its future programs.

She told the Rotarians that the high school chorus was preparing a concert to be given at Christmas. She said the chorus would also participate in the Music Festival which will be held in Greenville in the spring. Officers of the glee club are Jackie Little, president; Steve Farish, vice-president; and W. O. Jolly, secretary.

Mrs. J. B. Spillman, executive secretary of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, and Julia Fisher, supervisor of nurses, presented a movie which demonstrated the work and effectiveness of nurses in a local county.

Bob Denton, who is with the Dupont Company, was presented by Bob Booth as his guest. Roy Turnage won the On Time prize and W. J. Bullock won the Fellowship prize.

It is estimated that diamond-back rattlesnakes are responsible for about a third of the snakebites injurious to human beings in the United States.

T-Bone Cause Of Two Blow-Outs

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Two city motor patrolmen today had a bone to pick:

While cruising in a squad car Sunday, they suddenly became victims of a blowout of the left rear tire. A close inspection showed the cause of the blowout was a well-chewed T-bone.

TOUGH COP

By JOHN ROEBÜRT

Chapter Eight

The big hands worked over the neck muscles, then the back, then beat a climactic tattoo along the spine. Devereaux sat up, blinking contentedly with sun spots in his eyes and on his cheeks, then knotted a towel around his waist.

"Mister, what hands," he said admiringly, sliding off the table.

The muscular Finn grinned over his hands, then punched Devereaux's midriff. "Loose, like a woman," he said reprovingly.

"Middle age," Devereaux said dolefully. "But I'll work it off," he promised.

"Now shower," the Finn ordered, enjoying his moment of eminence and authority.

Solowey came in and surveyed the scene wryly. Devereaux gestured the masseur out of the room.

"Nice place to conduct detective business!"

While Devereaux dressed, Solowey chuckled over an open newspaper. "This clever Phillips. So clever, and such a misanthrope. Listen to his paragraph about an opening last night." Solowey read, "The theatrical season opened last night to prove once again that innocuousness is a special virtue of the human species. Safe Harbor made its point admirably. Take it away, Hollywood."

Devereaux made a face. "What about Phillips' background? Find out something about him?"

"Very little, my friend," Solowey shrugged. "Two men worked all day producing a blank page. An expensive day, and for nothing. Libraries, newspapers, colleagues, nothing. Phillips is a man without a past."

"Exactly how much of his past is obscure?"

"Everything until a book of criticism published ten years ago. After the book, Phillips began to GETTING ABOUT IN A HURRY — Passenger craft, with hydraulically-operated "wings" which lift hull from water, churns up Lake Lucerne, Switzerland, at 50 miles an hour.

SALE—Sudie Tucker Corey Farm

TAKE NOTICE that J. Hicks Corey and J. P. Corey as agents for the Sudie Tucker Corey heirs will sell at public auction for cash the Sudie Tucker Corey farm, consisting of 86 acres more or less with 11.4 tobacco acreage allotment, 45 acres cleared land, there being a quantity of mill timber on said farm, 2 houses, 4 tobacco barns with oil curers, two-story pack barn, two-story stock barn and other outbuildings, at 2:30 p. m., Wednesday, October 22, 1952.

Said sale is to be held on the premises, located about 1 1/2 miles east of Simpson, Chicod Township, on the road leading from Simpson to Greenville—Washington Highway via the Brick Kiln Road. The terms of said sale to be cash, 10 per cent deposit will be required and said sale will be accepted or rejected by the sellers within 48 hours from the hour of 6 p. m. on October 22, 1952, the balance of purchase price is to be paid within 15 days from the date of said acceptance.

become somebody. About Phillips the critic and essayist, there is much. There are articles about him, newspaper pieces, but no personal information, no background. It's like Phillips was born with the first book he published.

"No record of a marriage?"

"We haven't found one yet. About the daughter, except for one picture printed in Harper's Bazaar three years ago, also no record."

"What was the occasion for the picture?"

"A horse show given by a New City, Rockland County, Country Club. Phillips and the girl were in riding habit. The caption read: 'Martin Phillips and his daughter Jennifer.' I'm having a photostat made for the files." Solowey made a gesture. "Anyhow, my men are still searching."

Solowey turned some pages back from the theater page of his news paper. "Also, Devereaux, a few changes were made in that story you told me yesterday." He tapped a news column.

Devereaux arrested the knotting of his tie and craned toward the newspaper. "That old lady wasn't murdered," Solowey said. "A heart attack was the cause of death."

Devereaux frowned thoughtfully and Solowey continued, "And nothing was stolen, according to the police. Nothing they could determine, anyhow. A sum of money, about six hundred dollars, some trinkets, a watch, and some antique jewelry weren't touched."

"ut the room was sacked."

"Sacked, yes. So Longo was looking for other things, maybe, when he hid in that closet."

Devereaux's eyes widened. How do you know it was Longo?"

"I found out the same way you did. But with far less violence." Solowey smiled. "Like you, I guessed a man with sharp wits must also have sharp eyes. So I questioned the room clerk. He was at first reluctant, but he finally talked without too much persuasion."

"After I softened him up," Devereaux said grimly.

"Perhaps," Solowey caught Devereaux's eye. "Another curious need in you, my friend. This need to be a tough cop. That was a pretty savage beating you gave the hotel clerk."

The implication irked. "The city's a lot cleaner for my twenty years of being a tough cop, Solowey."

"Cleaner, perhaps. But is it a lot wiser?"

"Look," Devereaux began irritably. "Violence is the only language hoodlums understand."

"There are ways better than fists, my friend. Far better ways. Every time you use your fists, Devereaux you lose something. You prove that you're a tough cop, sure. But you prove something else, too."

"Prove what?" Devereaux frowned.

"Another time, maybe I'll dare tell you," Solowey smiled. "Meanwhile, one favor I ask. Don't turn the room clerk in."

"But he's taking numbers bets."

"A little cog in a big wheel. You should arrest the bankers, Devereaux."

"I caught the room clerk," Devereaux said grimly.

"He has a wife and a four-month-old infant."

"The man's a habitual offender."

"He'll quit, Devereaux. He took an oath with me."

Devereaux shook his head. "He's lying."

"Perhaps. But a man who swears to God should be believed once, and maybe even once again. Being believed helps a man develop self-respect."

Devereaux shook his head. "No good, Solowey. I'm not playing judge and parole officer. Never have, never will. I'm a cop, and an arrest is an arrest."

Solowey sighed. "You make me think just a little bit less of you, my friend."

Devereaux pursed his lips. "What do you know about Nick Longo?" he said after a while.

"Next to nothing. A subway pickpocket, from what I know.

We're checking further."

Devereaux got into his coat, then reached into an inside pocket. "Drop Longo, for now. I'll go after him." He held a photograph out. "Know the man seated with Phillips?"

Solowey said, "No. But if I had time—"

"You've got all morning, at least. What would you say went on at that table, from the expressions in the picture?"

Solowey said promptly, "Thieves huddled together. They've reached some crisis and are conferring on strategy."

Devereaux nodded. My impression exactly. Phillips hurried to meet the other fellow after I shot a little fear into him."

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks moved within a very narrow range early today in dull trading. Price movements throughout the list were very small either way. A number of pivots either were unchanged or failed to trade at all in the first hour of dealing.

Trading was at a snail's pace with the reporting ticker standing idle for seconds at a time. Sales in the first hour totaled only 200,000 in the same period last Friday.

Western Pacific Railroad was one of the few stocks that moved out of the narrow range. It rose 3/4 points to a new high of 60 1/4. General Railway Signal preferred was also a feature with a gain of 1/2 points to 117.

Elsewhere, oils firmed with the exception of Amerada Petroleum which fell 2 1/2 points to 195. Standard Oil (N.J.), Texas Pacific Land Trust and Shell Oil improved fractionally.

Steel shares were quiet and virtually unchanged. Automotives moved irregularly.

Four Auto Collisions In Greenville On Saturday

Four motor vehicle collisions in Greenville Saturday resulted in nearly $1,000 property damage. Police arrested three drivers. No one was injured.

Police reports listed them as follows:

A car driven by Mrs. Virgil Ward of Washington and Walter L. Lee Jr., 100 Park Drive, Greenville, collided at East Fifth Street and Rotary Avenue Saturday at 4:30 p.m. Lee's car collided with Ward's parked car while leaving the college campus. No arrest. Damage to the Ward car, $150; Lee's car, $30.

Two cars collided at Fourth and Greene Streets Saturday at 7 p.m. One was driven by James Danks, college student; the other by Aubrey Tilley, 407 Park Drive, Greenville. The police report states both drivers were arrested on the charge of failure to stop at a traffic light. Damage to Danks' car, $150; Tilley's, $150.

A pickup truck and car collided at Second and Greene Streets Saturday at 8 p.m. Polk P. Burroughs of Greenville collided with the rear of a vehicle driven by Howard W. Allen of Greenville while it was stopped for a red light. The police report quotes Burroughs as saying his foot slipped off his brakes. Damage to Burroughs' vehicle, $150; Allen's $50.

Saturday's fourth collision of motor vehicles occurred late Saturday night when cars driven by Sam B. Stocks, Route 3, Greenville, and Roscoe Nobles, Route 2, Greenville, crashed at Dickinson Avenue and Washington Street. Damage to Stocks' car was $150; Nobles' car, $100. Police arrested Nobles on the charge of failure to keep proper lookout.

Now 50 Entries For Horse Show

It was reported this morning there are now 50 entries in the Jaycee Horse Show to be held in Greenville Sunday, October 12.

That number of entries is more than twice as many as were entered at the same time last year. Entries have been received from Virginia and Western North Carolina, and officials say this year's show will be better than the one held here last year.

One of the highlights of entries thus far is one received from the "grand old lady" of Fine Harness, Mrs. L. B. Jenkins of Kinston. Mrs. Jenkins has won numerous prizes for showing at Madison Square Garden, and has submitted an entry in the Fine Harness Championship Stake here.

Prize money for this year's show has been increased to $675, which is more than twice the amount offered last year.

Teen-Age Club Officers Named: Policies Adopted

At a meeting of the Teen-Age Club last week, officers for the year were elected and club policies were adopted.

Boots Teel was named as president of the club and Billy Bost was elected vice-president. Other officers are Nelson Blount, secretary, and John Brooks, treasurer.

Included in the policies adopted by the 125 youths attending the meeting were the following: No membership cards; standing committees to be named for each teen-age function; temporary committees to be named for planned programs; and the operation of the snack bar by the teen-agers.

The constitution for the teen-age club will be drawn up tomorrow night at a meeting of the executive committee.

'National Guard' Proposed In UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—The creation of a 60,000-man United Nations "national guard" has been proposed by U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie as part of the world organization's growing system of collective security, it was revealed today.

Lie proposed that a volunteer reserve be organized and trained throughout the free world for U.N. service on the model of the United States National Guard or the British territorial army. Such units, according to Lie, would supplement the armed forces U.N. members have pledged for use by the U.N. in the event of aggression.

Lumber Yard Has Small Fire; But Caught In Time

A possible serious fire was narrowly averted late Saturday afternoon when a fire at the Garrison Evans lumber yard was nipped in the bud before it could get out of hand.

Firemen were summoned to the yard just before four o'clock Saturday afternoon when a small fire broke out in the mill.

However, all of the fire was on the outside of the building and no damage resulted.

Firemen prevented the fire from spreading to the highly inflammable lumber and scrap piled near by. Origin of the blaze is unknown.

Dealers To Hold Meeting Tuesday

The Greenville Furniture Dealers Association of the Merchants Association will meet tomorrow night at 7 p.m. at Respass-James, Barbecue House at West End Circle.

W. H. Taft, chairman of the furniture association, said business will include the election of a vice-chairman, the distribution of copies of the association's by-laws as adopted at the September meeting, and the checking into out-of-town persons selling furniture in this section.

Plans No Inquest In Death Of Aged Negro Saturday

WINTERVILLE—Aron Hammon, 75-year-old Negro, was found dead in bed here late Saturday afternoon, apparently from natural causes.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse reported this morning the body of the aged Negro was found by a son, Hoyt, who had gone to the dead man's house on Pitt Street to see why his father had not been out that day.

The coroner said all doors to the house were locked from the inside and the son had to break in to gain entrance. He found his father's body stretched across a bed, dead.

"He had apparently been dead approximately 10 hours," Coroner Rouse said. "It appeared to be a natural death and no inquest will be held."

The deceased lived alone in the house.

Slashes Husband At Nightspot Saturday Night

PACTOLUS—An irate wife caused pandemonium for a few minutes at Ben Little's nightspot here Saturday night, when she stabbed her husband once and slashed him twice across the arm and chest.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, in reporting the incident, said this morning Isabel Reid, Negro, cut her husband, Richard Reid, following a heated argument at the Negro "nightclub."

The sheriff said Isabel was arrested and placed in jail on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, but was released on $300 bond for appearance in County Court Tuesday, October 14.

The husband, Reid, is not thought to be seriously injured, as a result of the affray.

VFW Post Host To District Meet

The Charles Gray Morgan Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be host to district members at a district meeting to be held at the local VFW clubhouse Sunday, October 12. The meeting will open at two o'clock and will be concluded by a dinner at 6 p.m. which will be prepared and served by members of the Auxiliary.

R. R. Newton of Farmville, commander of District Two, will preside.

R. R. NEWTON
District Commander

Guests will include: Edna Baumgardner, state president of the VFW Auxiliary; Ruby Rheinhardt, senior vice president of the State VFW Auxiliary; Forrest Dunstan, department senior vice commander; Cole Cogburn, past department commander; Earl Knauff, past department commander, and Bill Boyette, Third District commander.

Post Commander George Johnson has announced a "get acquainted" meeting on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and urges all members to attend. Johnson also stated that during the week of October 6 through October 11 the local VFW post invites members of the American Legion to visit and make use of the facilities of the VFW clubhouse which will be open from 6 p.m. to 12 M. Admittance will be by membership cards.

more color in the woods around Marshall than anywhere else visited by the Democratic caravan last week. The most beautiful color in the eyes of Madison county Democrats was the big red letters on the street banner announcing that the district meeting was being held in the courthouse, and the small placards on each of the 82 automobiles in the motorcade which met the visitors at the county line. The rain that fell on the nearby fields, although it did not rain at the fishery in Marshall, did more to get Democratic votes than any of the speeches, according to one local farmer. The 11th district meeting was snappy and relatively short, due partly to the statement by Congressman Woodrow Jones that a newspaper reporter had told him if he talked over ten minutes his name wouldn't appear in the story. He

PACTOLUS—An irate wife caused pandemonium for a few minutes at Ben Little's nightspot here Saturday night, when she stabbed her husband once and slashed him twice across the arm and chest.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, in reporting the incident, said this morning Isabel Reid, Negro, cut her husband, Richard Reid, following a heated argument at the Negro "nightclub."

The sheriff said Isabel was arrested and placed in jail on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, but was released on $300 bond for appearance in County Court Tuesday, October 14.

The husband, Reid, is not thought to be seriously injured, as a result of the affray.

Plans No Inquest In Death Of Aged Negro Saturday

WINTERVILLE—Aron Hammon, 75-year-old Negro, was found dead in bed here late Saturday afternoon, apparently from natural causes.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse reported this morning the body of the aged Negro was found by a son, Hoyt, who had gone to the dead man's house on Pitt Street to see why his father had not been out that day.

The coroner said all doors to the house were locked from the inside and the son had to break in to gain entrance. He found his father's body stretched across a bed, dead.

"He had apparently been dead approximately 10 hours," Coroner Rouse said. "It appeared to be a natural death and no inquest will be held."

The deceased lived alone in the house.

Dealers To Hold Meeting Tuesday

The Greenville Furniture Dealers Association of the Merchants Association will meet tomorrow night at 7 p.m. at Respass-James, Barbecue House at West End Circle.

W. H. Taft, chairman of the furniture association, said business will include the election of a vice-chairman, the distribution of copies of the association's by-laws as adopted at the September meeting, and the checking into out-of-town persons selling furniture in this section.
