New City Policies Recommended By Hughes At Meeting

By BOB BOYETTE Reflector Staff Writer - City Manager James S. Hughes recommended several new city policies for action by the City Council at their regular monthly meeting last night in City Hall.

The city manager told the Council he believed that an Insurance Advisory Committee, composed of people in the insurance business, should be appointed to work with him on the city's insurance.

The city manager reported that the low bid for painting portions of City Hall was $1,000. This included the lobby, the stair walls, and both sides of the second floor including hallways and offices. No action was taken.

City Manager Hughes read a letter from the East Carolina Airport Authority requesting $35 from Greenville for their share in operating the authority. The Council agreed to send a check.

Building Station at Risk It was brought to the attention of the Council that the building of a new station by Standard Oil Company on East 5th Street had some misunderstanding regarding the issuing of a permit.

Chamber of Commerce Requests A letter from the Chamber of Commerce requesting that the City Council take action on providing the city with a swimming pool, widening Greene Street and Dickinson Avenue, and purchasing property at Boyd Avenue and Greene Street for a playground with more discussion at the next meeting.

Department showed 86 businesses had 102 awnings that were against the city ordinance that required awning frames to be seven feet, six inches high with the awning drooping no lower than seven feet. The Council decided to write the awning companies telling them they must comply with this ordinance for future installation in the city, but action was deferred on present violators.

A study of trees, shrubs and grass plots that restricted motorists' view on corners in the city showed 16 such places. The Council asked that letters be written to owners asking them to clean the corners and help alleviate the driving hazard the obstructions cause. The Council also asked that a letter be written to K. W. Cobb telling him that since the tree he had asked to be removed on Bonner's Lane is not on city property, the city could not remove it.

Agreement Reached For 1953-54 Fiscal Year Road Work Priority Set

Pitt County Commissioners and officials of the second division of the state highway commission this week gave official approval to road work priorities in the county for the 1953-54 fiscal year.

The agreement between the two bodies set forth road work which will be done in the county in keeping with funds already available, and likewise gave priorities to tentative projects provided additional funds are available.

The 9.5 miles of paving to be done under federal aid projects included: a road connecting highways 43 to 264 southeast of Greenville; three grade crossings; 4.1 miles between Wentworth and the Greene County line.

She volunteered to answer any questions that anyone wished to ask, and while the hostesses were serving delicious nuts and pie with hot coffee, Mrs. Striplin was kept busy giving explanations of the various questions asked.

Coronation Is Topic Of Mrs. Moore's Talk At Club Meeting

The poets stress the sorrow of parting but are neglectful of the joys of reunion.
For the most part, pursuing divergent ways during the summer, there is always a happy time when the Sans Soucis come together for the first session in the fall. How they chatter and clasp hands!

In her friendly home, beautifully decorated with colorful autumn flowers, Mrs. G.B.W. Hadley was the gracious hostess.
The staff of officers headed by Mrs. H. S. Ragdale, always at her best when presiding, were all present to function most capably in the various roles. Only three members failed to respond to roll call.

Business being dispensed, Mrs. Hadley presented her guest speaker, Mrs. J.H.B. Moore, who has delighted so many audiences with her accounts of her recent extensive foreign tour.

Mrs. Moore was scheduled to speak on "Highlights of the Coronation" which she had the wonderful privilege of witnessing.
She portrayed it very vividly, and it was especially interesting to hear her tell of many details and personal observations that did not reach us through the press.

Although dwelling mostly on England and the Coronation, Mrs. Moore gave a few glimpses of other highlights of her trip which added much interest. Her very attractive presentation was most enjoyed by all present.

After passing the books, Mrs. Hadley served a delicious salad plate, the club then adjourning to meet next with Mrs. F. L. Blount.

Bass Shocked In Dietary Studies

CARBONDALE, Ill. (U.P.)—A zoology student has spent the entire summer fishing with a variety of weird equipment, including an electric shocking device and a series of metal cones.

He let all of his catch of 552 bass go—after peering into the fishes' stomachs with a borrowed miner's lamp.

The student, Harry Dubets, Buckner, Ill., was studying the feeding habits of large-mouth bass in southern Illinois lakes. He was working on a research project for his graduate zoology studies at Southern Illinois University.

Dubets caught his fish by shocking them electrically then scooping them into the boat when they rose to the surface.

Then he quickly inserted an appropriate-sized metal cone in the fish's mouth; flicked on his miner's lamp and peeked into the stomach. He recorded what he saw there and let the fish go.

Dubets said more than half of his 552 fish had empty stomachs, indicating the bass does not always have an easy time finding a meal. The rest had the remains of various types of fish and other water animals bass feed on.

Dubets said his study would be helpful in managing bass populations in southern Illinois lakes and streams.

Air Force Cadets Taking Indoctrination Flights

Indoctrination flights for cadets in the AF ROTC Wing at East Carolina College are now being held, and many of those concerned are having their first experiences in the air, as well as their first flights with the Air Force.

Sixteen cadets participated in a flight October 3. Departing from the Greenville Airport, the cadets were flown to Washington, N.C., and return. En route, local landmarks were pointed out, and each cadet was given the opportunity of flying the aircraft, an Air Force T6G, used as a primary trainer in the Air Force flying program.

Col. Roger G. Fuller, PAST at East Carolina, and Capt. Thomas W. Harper of the AF ROTC staff, piloted the aircraft. Capt. William Young and Capt. James Barnett, also of the staff, gave cadets a ground briefing before the flight.

A similar flight is now being arranged for Saturday, October 17, when, weather permitting, sixteen additional cadets will participate in an indoctrination flight.

Those who took part in the initial flight were: Giles Dall Jr., Kinston; Theodore Smith, Roxboro; James Alexander, Columbia; Frank Hammond, Wilmington; Walter Straughn, Rocky Mount; Ralph Smiley, Greenville; Joseph O. Clark, Greenville; Lucious Butt, Hertford; Dalton Manna, Manns Harbor; Phillip Mellon, Winterville; Corbett Daughtry, Clayton; Robert

'Small Operator' Is Big Nuisance

ROANOKE, Va. (AP)—The "small time operator who tries to act big time" is the biggest headache in air travel, says Miss Shirley McManus, of Washington, an American Airlines stewardess.

She describes a "small time" operator as a person who has traveled little and tries to make everyone think he is a globetrotter. Annoying habits are snapping fingers at stewardesses and addressing them as "Dearie."

Easiest air traveler to please? Average service man. Business men who travel regularly are an easy second.

Speedsters Fail To Trick Radar

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (U.P.)—Think you can beat a radar speed-clocking meter?

People here, where radar has been in use for 14 months, certainly have tried. They have put tin foil and steel marbles in auto hubcaps, dragged steel chains behind their cars and put lead shields between grille and radiator, all in the hope of disrupting the radar clocking.

None of the schemes has worked. Police St. William Hamill said no one has yet been arrested for seeking to obstruct justice but more than 2,000 have received summonses based on the results of the radar speed detector.

Only One Solution
The apparatus, now used in 40 states, throws a microwave beam that records, instantaneously, the speed of passing vehicles.

Hamill said the devices on cars are discovered when traffic motorists insist the radar does no work. Hamill said he lets such motorists sit in the police car and he drives by in their autos. The speed is accurately recorded, as usual.

Of course, a motorist could "win" by buying a transmitter and sending signals as he drove past the radar station. But the transmitter would cost more than $500 and the user would be violating Federal Communications Commission regulations.

The easiest way out is just not to speed, Hamill said.

Too Much Sugar For The Market

MANILA AP)—An official of the National Federation of Sugarcane Planters says the world sugar market faces a bleak future due to over-production. Dr. Jose Mirasol, executive secretary and technical adviser of the federation, declared world sugar production this year is far ahead of consumption.

Mirasol, who attended the Eighth World Congress of the International Society of Sugar Technologists in the British West Indies, declared it was too early to determine the effect of this trend on the Philippine sugar industry.

Parking Survey Shows Violation Rate Took Jump

Violations among Greenville's parking meters took a big jump yesterday, according to a followup survey made by the reflector.

Previously, on Monday, a Reflector survey showed that around 50 per cent of all the meters in use on the city streets at the time a check was made were in violation. Yesterday's survey, made at a different time of the day in order to provide a true picture of the actual situation showed that 86 meters were in violation, while 86 showed time left on them.

The number of meters surveyed yesterday was the same as the previous day but more vacant spaces were found yesterday.

The check further revealed that there was only two courtesy parking tickets issued to the 113 violators and no regular city parking tickets.

The courtesy tickets were distributed one on Fifth Street, the second on Evans.

In the survey, Evans yesterday had 39 violations while Fifth Street was found to have 22.

Fourth Street, which in Monday's survey had been apparently the best street for time on meters, yesterday turned up with the most violations. There were 13 violations with only three meters showing time.

Several meters included in the survey were found with time on them but with the clocks not working.

DONALDSONVILLE, La. (UP)—Jerry, John and Lance Duhe faced charges today of "nabbing lizards in the night time."

No Workers' Paradise In Czechoslovakia Coal Mine

By DANIEL F. GILMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
VIENNA (UP)—What is it like to work as a "free" miner— as opposed to a forced laborer—in the Ostrava coal pits in Czechoslovakia?

The answer, given in independent reports by miners who have escaped to this listening post on the fringe of the Iron Curtain, goes far to explain why production is dropping drastically, as the Communists themselves admit:

"Miserable housing... nauseating food... ignorant technicians and supervisors... perilous working conditions in gas-choked tunnels" ... and the June currency "reform" which robbed millions of people of their money.

The accounts the miners gave are considered reliable, since they were made separately by men from different pits and they agree in detail.

"Free" miners work a 48-hour week, eight straight hours with no rest period. One Sunday each month they must "volunteer" to work extra.

During the harvest the miners, after their day down in the pits, do forced "volunteer" work in the fields at slave wages.

When they are not working, the miners are subjected to hours of lectures in Communist doctrine. When a miner does get a few hours of actual leisure he falls into bed exhausted.

This is the situation in an important coal field in the most advanced and most highly industrialized Iron Curtain country.

Single men live in barracks, four men to a small room. They get a change of bed linen once a month.

Breakfast consists of coffee with out milk or sugar and two rolls. Lunch and supper consist invariably of dumplings and gravy, with a piece of spotted meat thrown in occasionally. Never vegetables or fruit.

The refugees said the food situation has deteriorated steadily during the past year and "is now at the point where it will just sustain a man."

Then came the June 1 Communist currency "reform."

Before that miners and other heavy industry workers got special rations at subsidized prices.

The currency decree wiped out the savings—if any—of the average Czech. It also abolished the ration card and threw the entire nation on the free market. Hardest hit were the heavy industry workers, and especially the miners.

Hold Up After Receiving Help

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Two men drove into a gasoline station, bought a tank of gas and then couldn't get their car started.

Attendant William Terrell obligingly gave them a push.

Their engine had hardly kicked over when one of the men hopped out, stuck a gun into Terrell's ribs and robbed him of $45.

A Free Press And A Free People

A free press in a free nation has been one of the primary factors in building a great nation of the United States, and maintaining the rights and integrity of the individual citizen.

The slogan of American Newspaper Week this year — "An Informed Press Means an Informed People" — should not be taken lightly by the people of Pitt County or the citizens in any other part of the nation.

The press of the United States remains free today, in spite of encroachments upon this freedom made by governmental units on all levels, which have sought to keep the facts from the people. The press has remained free not only through its own efforts to preserve those rights guaranteed under federal and state constitutions; but through the efforts of many millions of citizens across the nation who fully realize that the moment the press of the nation loses its freedom, the individual citizen will likewise lose his liberty.

As thoughts turn to this annual newspaper week, The Reflector takes this opportunity to express to the citizens of Pitt County its sincere gratitude for the support they have given this individual newspaper during the past year; and for the support they have given to the freedom of the press as part of their great American heritage.

The support given this newspaper by the people of Pitt County has been a great factor in enabling the newspaper to keep Pitt citizens informed on local happenings. The support given the freedom of the press by millions of Americans everywhere, has enabled large and small newspapers from coast to coast to keep their readers informed on happenings from near and far.

As long as channels to the sources of information in local, state and federal governments remain unobstructed by red tape and closed doors, government activities will be bathed in the cleansing light of public scrutiny. Corruption and misuse of government powers will be kept at a minimum. Once the paths to the facts are blocked, the people will be left in darkness and confusion. Their freedom will no longer be secure.

Strength for the Day

OUR GREAT ERA

The human element always remains the most important element in everything. We look at a manufactured product, and the thought occurs to us that the price we had to pay for it was due to the material it contained. This is wrong. What we pay for chiefly is skill, know-how, and the labor involved in making the material and putting the parts together.

There is only ten cents' worth of steel in an electric razor which costs $30.00. There is less than fifty cents' worth of steel in an electric iron which costs $12.00. There is only about $225 worth of steel in a $2000 automobile. There is less than $14.00 worth of steel in a $350 refrigerator.

Our century is a century of labor-saving machinery, yet the human element still remains the factor of greatest significance. Men may appear to have become robots, and some probably are, but no robot ever designed a jet engine or a precision instrument. Even the men who put the parts together work under requirements of skill which were unknown a hundred years ago. The idea that in the old days everything was artistically done and today everything is done carelessly is a mistaken notion.

We live in a great era. Stop maligning it.

Oratorical Job For McCarthy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Despite President Eisenhower's reported distaste for the idea, Republican political strategists in Capitol Hill intend to assign a leading oratorical role to Senator "Joe" McCarthy in the 1954 Congressional elections, which are already underway in several Middle Western states. Party managers figure that "Joe" may mean the difference between Republican or Democratic control of House and Senate.

If there had been any doubt about capitalizing on the most controversial figure in American politics today, it was resolved when Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon announced that he would vote with the Democrats on organization of the upper chamber, if that party made a good showing in next year's Congressional contests. Senator McCarthy, the Communist's nemesis, would be a natural foil to the Pacific Coast "liberal."

In view of the pain which Morse had caused the White House and the GOP, even Joe may appreciate the irony of a McCarthy-Morse clash.

MCCARTHY TO STUMP—The fact is that the question of letting Senator McCarthy loose on the stump has been taken out of the President's hands. For the man who will decide the matter is the chairman of the Republicans' Senatorial Campaign Committee. And he happens to be the McCarthy type of ultraconservative nationalist—Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen of Peoria, Illinois.

In view of the almost even strength of Democrats and Republicans in both legislative bodies, Dirksen estimates that he must defeat several opposition incumbents. And it so happens that the Senators he aims to retire, in his opinion, are peculiarly susceptible to a McCarthy attack.

Besides being strong supporters of the Truman-Acheson foreign policy, they have shown scant sympathy for the Wisconsin member's campaign against subversives inside and outside of Government circles.

TARGETS FOR "JOE"—The Senators selected as McCarthy targets represent Middle West and

The continuing battle to maintain the freedom of the press on local and national levels is not the responsibility of newspapers alone. The individual citizens likewise share in the responsibility.

A free press and a free people are inseparable. Without the support of a free people, the free press in this country would have long since disappeared. Without the support of a free press, liberties of the individual citizen would have long since been blotted out by power crazed tyrants.

The free press and the free people must stand together—or they will fall separately under the heel of oppression here in the United States and around the globe.

Time For Prolonged Study Is Now Past

There comes a time when prolonged study, discussion, evaluation and commentary must be reduced to decisive action. That time should, if sanity prevails, be at hand in matters dealing with civil defense.

The problem of what-to-do about atomic attack dangers has been before the various echelons of our civil defense authorities since well before the outbreak in Korea. As of today, there has been no practical step taken toward meeting the danger.

The armed services are, and have, set up a radar screen yet incomplete. Interceptor aircraft units are kept at a constant alert; but military chiefs glumly pronounce that there is no assurance yet that enemy aircraft cannot reach their targets.

All this has been evident and appreciated ever since the state of relations between Russia and the United States became strained.

Yet, the alternative (or combined) solutions of dispersal and "going underground" remain fully as far from realization today as they ever were.

The Civil Defense Administration, led by Val Peterson, must be aware that it will be too late when, and if, Russia decides to strike. Preparedness is the only salvation of scores of millions of people now living and working in priority target areas.

They are not expendable.

Congress, too, must know that the survival of our nation and hopes of all free men lie on what is done now . . . in preparedness measures . . . to shield the lives and industries that are the backbone of resistance to aggression.

Literally millions of lives are open to needless sacrifice unless steps are taken to protect them.

It will do no good to then say that "Congress should have" done this or that; or, "Val Peterson should have" done something before hand.

For if it falls, that first blow will make Pearl Harbor look like a tea party by comparison.

Somebody Told Me

To The Defense Of Salesmen

Last week I wrote a column typing the various salesmen who come into our store. Probably the most forceful statement in there was that 90 per cent of them misrepresent their products in some way.

Charlie Marston, district representative for the Belknap Hardware Company, took friendly issue with me on the column by defending his profession. "You should read," he told me, "an anonymous description I have called 'The Salesman'."

To give Charlie a fair hearing in defense of salesmen, I did. Frankly, I don't see how anybody could write anything quite so accurate and then not put his name on it.

"It has been said," the description says, "that salesmen are a big problem to their bosses, their customers, their wives, to conservative credit managers, to hotels, and sometimes to each other.

"Individually and collectively they are cussed and discussed in sales meetings, conventions behind closed doors, in bathrooms, bar rooms and under one's breath from as many angles and with about the same fervor as the daily headlines of the Square Deal.

"They make more noise and mistakes, create more cheer, correct more errors, adjust more differences, cause more divorces, spread more gossip, explain more belligerents and waste more time under high pressure without losing their temper than any other class we know.

"And yet salesmen are a power in society and public economy. They draw and spend more money with less effort and return than any other group. They come in at the most inopportune time, stay longer under more opposition, ask more personal questions, take more for granted than any other group, including the U.S. Army.

"Yes, brother, you said it. With all their faults they keep the wheels of commerce turning and the current of human emotion turning. More cannot be said of any man. Be careful whom you call SALESMAN, lest you flatter him."

Charlie's description, anonymous as it might be. He adds, "The real guide to a salesman in doing the customer right is that he must come back the next trip for another order."

And I thank Charlie.

UNCLE SAM CHARGES HIMSELF FOR POSTAGE

(The Atlanta Journal)

Almost every citizen uses the United States mails. Most of us send letters and packages frequently. The cost of postage, small on individual units, amounts to large totals in a year's time. The Post Office department operates at a deficit, and Congress is considering an increase in postage rates.

For example, every letter may require next year a 4-cent stamp instead of a 3-cent stamp. That is why the public is directly concerned in any plan for better business management of postal affairs. The decision to charge Congress and other departments of the Federal Government for their own use of the mails is a step in the right direction. It will help to allot governmental costs properly, and to place the blame for postal deficits where they belong. For generations federal officers and offices have used the postal service free of charge, merely marking their envelopes with a printed frank to indicate the communication is one of government business.

Since the cost of operating the Post Office department comes out of the same treasury as does the cost of operating other departments, some people might think it needless to bother with any change. Merely a matter of book-keeping, taking out of one pocket to put in another, they say. But the reason is a valid one. It is the same reason that causes well-managed business firms to have a careful system of cost accounting among their various departments. They charge one department for the services of another, because that management must know who and what is responsible for all expenditures.

The same thing should be true in government. It is not fair to blame the public for all the postal deficit, if handling government mail is responsible for much of it. Also the mere fact that costs are being recorded and analyzed should warn government officers and employees to use the mails more carefully and sparingly. One word of caution is necessary in connection with this basically sound innovation: The government's own system of accounting for its postage charges should not be so complicated and cumbersome as to cost taxpayers more than the wasteful use of mails does under the franking system.

Ideas Or Principles Inspire Few To Cast Their Votes

By LYNN NISBET CASWELL — A number of other counties gave the school bonds a larger margin, both in actual votes and in percentage, but in Caswell apparently holds the record for the largest vote in proportion to population and registered voters.

The reason was that Caswell also had an election on ABC stores the same day. According to unofficial tabulations, the total vote in the liquor store election was 110 more than the total cast in the school bond election—2,472 and 2,362 respectively. The school bonds carried by almost exactly seven to one, the hospital bonds by slightly less. The ABC vote was much closer, the ratio being about 53 per cent to 47 per cent in favor of legalized liquor.

Caswell's population in 1950 was 20,870. The vote was well above 10 per cent of the total population and was only 45 below the vote for Governor last fall. By way of contrast Rutherford county cast 2,360 votes in the bond election out of a population of 46,356 and compared with a vote for Governor of over 16,000. Other counties with bond votes comparable to Caswell were Iredell 2,161 from 56,306 population and Pitt with 2,471 from 63,788. Beaufort county with population almost double Caswell and a publicized courthouse bond election going on cast only 2,962 votes for the school bonds.

ABC STORES — Caswell becomes the 30th county to authorize ABC store sale of hard liquor. In addition there are six municipalities operating stores by authority of elections held under special acts.

Some of the folks around Capitol Square first thought the upon three amendments to the State constitution. The vote ranged from 805,502 down to 679,090 for an average of 732,281.

In other words, almost half a million Tarheel voters who were already at the polling places to vote for or against persons did not bother to mark the ballots given them relating to material changes in the basic charter of State government.

One State official, who asked that he not be quoted by name, had something to say about that situation. He professed sincere belief that not less than one million North Carolinians would volunteer to take arms this week against any proposal to change our form of government from constitutional law to an absolute monarchy. Deep down in their hearts, he says, our people believe the constitution is above any person or official; and that schools are more important than executive officers. He sadly confessed they don't vote that way.

REVENUE — The monthly report on general fund revenue collections for the State treasury box shows a substantial drop from receipts listed in September of last year. The report was about two days late this time, and suggestion has been made that the delay was deliberate because the top officials did not want the publicity to get out before the bond election.

That is generally believed among Capitol Square folks as unfair. The delay was caused by absence from the State of Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw, who must approve and sign the report. He had been attending a national conference of tax administrators.

While resenting implications of deliberate withholding of the re-

Business Today

Paid By Consumers

By ELMER ROESSNER
Possibilities of a manufacturer's excise tax loom very large and real now. In spiking the idea of a Federal retail sales tax, President Eisenhower obviously increased the probability of the manufacturers' tax. Furthermore present excise levies are so uneven and so discriminatory that about the only way to bring any fairness to the situation is to replace them with a uniform and moderate levy on all manufactured goods.

However, there are certain things that should be realized about a manufacturers' excise:

1. It is not a tax on manufacturers. It would be levied at the time the manufacturer sells the goods to the consumer, but paid eventually by the consumer.
2. It would be, therefore, a tax on sales and this may be a very poor time indeed to restrict sales by taxes.
3. It would cost consumers much more than the Government would collect.

That is true because the per cent mark-on system is built into the American economy. It may have different names in different lines, but it is always there and always will be. And because it is, any tax at the manufacturers' level will cost consumers the tax plus all normal mark-ups along the line.

That isn't just theory. It's happening right now. The Government collects a 10 per cent tax on the manufacturers' price of quite a few manufactured articles right now. Let's assume that the dealers gross margin is 25 per cent on a specific article.

If the manufacturer sold it for $1,800, then a $240 selling price would give the dealer his normal margin. But when the Government slaps 10 per cent on the manufacturer's price, then the dealer has to pay $1,980 for the article and has to get $2,640. The Government's $180 tax costs the consumer $240.

The dealer gets the difference. But he is entitled to it because his investment in inventory, his insurance, his commissions, his rent, if he has a percentage lease, and many other costs have been increased. And he has to work harder to sell an article for $2,640 than he would at $2,400. So let's not kid ourselves about a "manufacturers' excise tax." It is a tax on consumers and then some. If such a tax brought in $3 billion to the Government, it would cost consumers about $5 billion.

FAST AMORTIZATION FOR GRAIN STORAGE

It may pay contractors and building material suppliers to call farmers' attention to a little-noticed amendment to the tax law, passed in closing days of the last session of Congress. It permits any grain producer who has built or builds a corn crib or grain bin after December 31, 1952, to amortize the costs, for tax purpose, over 60 months.

AVERAGE STEELWORKER HAS ONLY ONE CHILD

The American Iron and Steel Institute has announced that it has made a survey that shows the average steelworker has only two dependents, presumably a wife and one child. Of 483,000 steelworkers surveyed, less than 83,000 had more than three dependents. Some had none.

In announcing its findings, the manufacturers' association said, "The Government's Bureau of Labor Statistics issues a 'minimum but adequate' budget for a urban family of four which is widely assumed to represent the average in the United States. . . . Taking the entire country as a whole, with over 80,000,000 individuals gainfully employed out of a total population of 160,000,000, it is obvious there cannot be an average of three dependents for each person gainfully employed."

It is not quite clear what the Institute is driving at. But it better be careful in tossing around its proof that steelworkers average only two dependents. First thing you know, the Steelworkers Union will be demanding a big pay increase on the grounds that present wages are so low that workers can't afford more than one child.

Opinions Of A Pavement Plato

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone opinions of a pavement Plato: Marilyn Monroe is the only girl I ever met who could shrug without moving her shoulders.

There is nothing wrong with the average college graduate that couldn't be cured by a good education.

The surest sign of inflation I know of is that the kid in my old neighborhood who used to swallow grasshoppers for a penny now has a son who won't even look at a worm for less than a dime.

The greatest freedom in the life of a middle-aged woman is the feeling she gets the second she takes off her girdle. With a middle aged man, it's the moment after a belch. There is always some kind of difference between the sexes.

Money can never buy love, and alimony is the price most men pay for finding this out.

A wise man learns early not to wear himself out by repeating his pleasures too often. What is more enjoyable than a single sneeze, or more exhausting than hay fever?

I feel sorry for a color blind man because he has been robbed of the three most glorious sights in nature—a rainbow, the splendor of an autumn landscape, and the beauty of a red-haired girl in full foliage. A man who has never fallen in love with a red-haired girl can only know the bliss that goes with ignorance.

(Editor's note: We hasten to assure our blonde and brunette lady readers—any blue-haired girls in our town?—that Boyle's remarks about women are always strictly his own, and rarely reflect, coincide with, or even come close to the views of this newspaper.)

(Boyle's note: Well, I'll admit that many girls who pass as red-heads today are more of a sight on some days than on others. But Rembrandt probably had his bad days, too.)

Why does every generation of man pick one on one that succeeds it? The reason probably is the absent-mindedness of age. Folks who say this crop of teenagers is the worst in history are simply forgetting themselves.

The way many grownups act today you can't help but wonder if the two greatest differences between adults and adolescents aren't just time and pimples.

Our way of life is getting both simpler and more complex. If you forget to buy an item at the drugstore, you can always pick it up at the supermarket. Many drugs now are regarded as foods, and many foods are being enriched with drugs. The only thing separating the big grocery store from the drug store is a gentlemen's agreement that one won't fill prescriptions if the other refrains from selling raw meat.

While this does make shopping easier, it also makes for harder decisions at home. Where really does the vitamin-fortified bread belong—in the bathroom medicine cabinet beside the aspirin bottle, or in the kitchen can box above the fresh vegetables? We pause for science's answer.

Once upon a time there was a man in a phone booth who completed his call and then by mistake had his dime returned. This fellow was so honest he put the dime right back in the coin box on the grounds it would be unfair to a big corporation if he kept it himself. That's one thing about fables. You can always tell what they are in the first four words.

A man who showers catnap on a restaurant hamburger before he even takes his first bite isn't necessarily either a good or bad judge of cooking. He may be just a fine judge of horseflesh.

Several Greenville Men At Industrial Promotion Talks

Several Greenville citizens representing the Chamber of Commerce and other business interests attended an industrial development forum in Scotland Neck last night. The meeting was the sixth of 10 such forums being conducted in various sections of the state with a view to helping communities attract more industries to North Carolina.

Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges in a brief address emphasized the need for more industries as a means of increasing the per capita income of the area. He declared that the state faces the need for more taxpayers or higher taxes if the present expanded state services to the people are to continue.

George J. Hartnett, Jr., superintendent of works of Babcock and Wilcox Company, Baberton, Ohio who have recently established a boiler plant in Wilmington, told of what industries look for in a community in which they wish to locate a manufacturing plant.

Walter L. Dolbear, vice president in charge of area development of Virginia Electric and Power Company, told of the part the power companies play in the industrial development of a community.

Judge V.D. Strickland, president of Rich Square Chamber of Commerce described how his community went about to procure a new industry that is now beginning operations.

Col. George W. Gillette, executive director of North Carolina State Ports Authority talked on the value of the state ports at Wilmington and Morehead City as an aid to the industrial development of the state, especially the eastern section.

Ben E. Douglas, head of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, summarized the discussions and emphasized that communities must want industries and be willing to cooperate to the fullest extent if new industries are to be attracted.

The meeting was presided over by Leo Harvey, of Kinston, vice chairman of the Commerce and Industry Committee of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Those from Greenville attending the meeting included Reginald Gray, J.B. Kittrell, Martin Swartz, Elmer R. Browning, W.W. Speight, Stanley F. Anderson, Willard T. Kyzzer and D.J. Whitchard.

One of the most important discoveries of cobalt in recent years was made recently at Moa Bay on Cuba's northeast coast.

Art Collection Is Brought To U. S.

HOBOKEN, N. J. (UP) — A $4,250,000 collection of Van Gogh paintings and drawings was to be unloaded today from the Holland-American liner S. S. Ryndam.

Prof. John G. Vangelder, trustee of the Kroller-Muller State Museum at Otterlo, Holland arrived yesterday with the 96 paintings and 85 drawings by the Dutch master.

He said the collection, which includes such well-known works as "Sunflowers," "View of Arles" and several self portraits of Vincent Van Gogh, would be exhibited as part of the centennial celebration of the Dutch artist's birth March 30, 1853.

Greensboro Man Obtains Local Bottling Franchise

The Greensboro Nehi Bottling Co., Inc. owned by N.D. Sowerby, president and treasurer, has bought the Greenville franchise of the Nehi Bottling Company.

Sowerby purchased the franchise from the Fale Dawson Corporation and plans to begin operation here by Monday. He will distribute Nehi flavors and Royal Crown Cola in Pitt and five other surrounding counties.

Sowerby bought machinery from Kai Marshall, who formerly operated a Double Cola plant, here, and plans to have Greenville his headquarters in an expansion plan for Eastern North Carolina.

He plans to give up the plant and operate entirely from the site of the old Double Cola plant at 1127 South Evans Street. E.H. Proffit will manage the plant here with N.C. Sowerby, Jr., coming here to work the Eastern North Carolina district after his discharge from the Army in December.

The Greensboro man said he decided to expand in this part of the state after closely surveying the area. He said Greenville would be his headquarters, but refrained from giving more of his plans, until a later date.

Sowerby has been in bottling business for 31 years. From 1923 to 1938 he was Southern General Manager for Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc. From 1938 to 1941 he was Division manager for the Nehi Corporation from New England to North Carolina. In 1941 he bought the Greensboro Corporation and has been there ever since.

The bottling executive is married, has three children, and is a Shriner, a member of the Kiwanis Club, the Forty and Eight of the American Legion, and other organizations.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

YOU CAN CHANGE YOUR MIND after this house is built. A swinging bookcase wall makes this a compact and economical three-bedroom, complete family home. Or swung open, the hinged library merges the ample living-dining room with adjoining den. A Dutch door pass-through between kitchen and dining area is an attractive feature. This is Plan 348-T by Edward Tyler, 586 Macon Place, Uniondale, N.Y. The house proper covers only 1,040 square feet without breezeway and garage — a handy figure for estimates.

3 Sailors Face Assault Charge

BEAUFORT (UP)—Three Navy hospital corpsmen today faced charges of assaulting Swansboro Police Chief E. O. Ballard with intent to commit highway robbery.

The three men, stationed at Camp Lejeune, were bound over to Carteret Superior Court yesterday under $1,000 bond each. They are Al J. Lortz, Raymond D. Walsh and Robert L. Fugar.

Ballard testified that he went to the Riviera Club after he had heard that someone was planning a robbery. He said he hoped to get information to relay to Carteret Sheriff C. G. Holland. He said he was wearing civilian clothing and driving his private car.

The police chief said the three men followed him from the club to an isolated spot about four miles away where they attacked him. He said he managed to get the drop on Lortz with his pistol and then rounded up the other two men and forced them to accompany him back to Swansboro where the sheriff was called.

No evidence was offered by defense attorney Henry L. Grady Jr. at the preliminary hearing.

The "Spanish Main" originally referred to the Spanish colonies on the mainland of South America, but the term was extended to include the islands and waters of the Americas which were under Spanish control.

Dorothy Lamour To Salve Wounds

DENVER, Colo. (UP) — Movie star Dorothy Lamour said today she is buying an advertisement in a Paris, Ill., newspaper to salve the marital wounds left there by a publicity stunt that failed to take human nature into account.

The stunt, designed to plug Miss Lamour's appearance with a variety revue in Paris Oct. 28, consisted of "intimate" little postcards addressed to every third man in the area around the Illinois town.

"They read: 'Darling, don't forget our date at 8 p.m. Oct. 28 (signed) Dorothy.'"

Miss Lamour, who was not responsible for the notes, said she was genuinely sorry about the bombshell effect of the plan.

One woman headed straight for a divorce lawyer and another kicked the picture window in her house to smithereens in an argument with her husband. Still another jealous wife flagged down a train to give her locomotive engineer husband, who was once married to a woman named Dorothy, a tongue lashing.

The actress-singer said here yesterday that she had never been so upset over anything during her entire career, and denied knowing anything about the stunt.

The Paris Exchange Club has admitted one of its members dreamed up the trick to boost ticket sales for her appearance.

Two Separated Siamese Twins Gaining Weight

NEW ORLEANS (UP) — The Siamese-born Mouton twins have gained two pounds each and are recovering rapidly from unprecedented surgery to sever their linked lower spines, a physician reported today.

Dr. L. L. Wissmiller, director of the Ochsner Foundation Hospital where the history making operation was performed on Sept. 17, said the pretty, brown-eyed girls are "doing very well."

Carolyn Anne weighs eight pounds, 4 1/2 ounces, and Catherine Anne weighs eight pounds, 9 1/2 ounces, he said. At birth they weighed a total of 16 pounds, 14 ounces.

"Their surgical wounds are healing rapidly, although some plastic surgery may still have to be performed," Dr. Wissmiller said. "I expect they will be going home by Christmas."

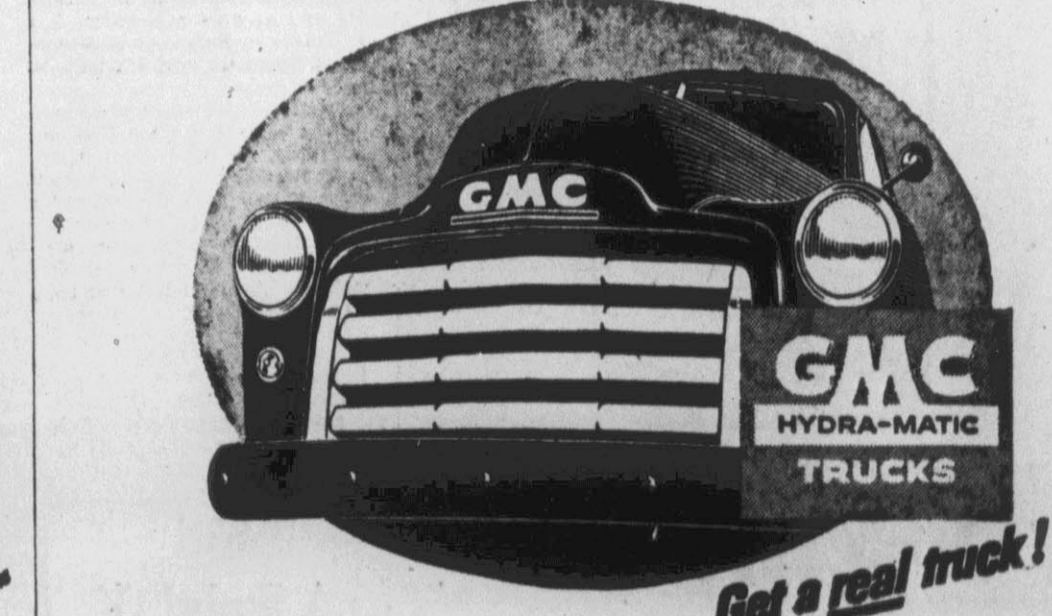

The girls are daughters of Mayor and Mrs. Ashton Mouton of Lafayette, La.

Devils Step Out To Meet Purdue

DURHAM—Duke's Blue Devils step outside the Southern territory to take on a tough Purdue team that is defending co-champion in the Big Ten and nationally ranked here Saturday afternoon in Duke Stadium.

The game will be Duke's Homecoming contest and should offer the returning alumni information as to just how good the current Duke squad really is.

The Boilermakers lost to Michigan by 20-12 and were tied once by Minnesota 14-14 in six Big Ten games last year, trying with Wisconsin for the league championship and just missing a Rose Bowl invitation. The Purdue team whipped such strong Big Ten teams as Ohio State (21-14), Iowa (41-14), Illinois (40-12) and Indiana (21-16). Against national champ Michigan State last year the Boilermakers lost by only one touchdown, 14-7. It will be the first appearance of a team from the Western Conference in the Southern area and Duke athletic officials expect a big crowd for the contest. Plenty of tickets remain, however, and fans are urged to get theirs early this week.

Gene is the ace passing combo of Dale Samuels to Bernie Flowers, but Coach Stu Holcomb, the former Ohio State star back and Army assistant coach, has 20 good lettermen returning. Leading the returnees are such outstanding stars as 205-pound fullback Max Schmaling, who has rolled up 1,017 yards and 13 touchdowns in two years, and Rex Brock, a junior halfback who picked up 415 yards rushing last season in his first year on the squad.

Terps Have Test In Meeting Dogs

COLLEGE PARK, MD.—Undeclared Maryland is host to the strong Georgia Bulldogs Saturday in Byrd Stadium at 2 P. M. in a battle that looms as a big hurdle for Jim Tatum's all-conquering Terrapins in their quest of staying near the top of the nation's football powers. The game, featuring a quarterback who has been tabbed as "football's greatest passer" in Edmund Raymond Bratkowski, marks the first Wally Butt's eleven to meet the Terps at College Park.

The Bulldogs have made one other appearance in Byrd Stadium, however. That was in 1950 when they met and were defeated, 40-20, by Texas A&M in the Presidential Cup game, the first and last game of its kind. Maryland has been rolling along as expected with victories over Missouri, 20-6; Washington and Lee, 52-0; and Clemson, 20-0. Georgia missed by two extra points and less than two minutes in bringing an undefeated record into the Terp game as they lost 14-12 to Texas A&M last Saturday. They opened the season with a 32-19 win over what was then labeled a strong Villanova team; then defeated Tulane 16-14.

Harvard Trend Picked Up By BC

BOSTON (UP)—Indifferent Harvard, playing football for the fun of it, apparently was establishing a New England trend today that promised to give the game back to the boys.

Fresh from their season-opening 16-0 victory over "minor league" Ohio University, the Crimson Fanthers heard the anguished cries of "de-emphasis" from across the placid Charles River on the campus of usually bow-minded Boston College.

"Our inter-sectional games will be cut sharply from now on," announced John P. Curley, graduate manager of athletics at the Jesuit college that Frank Leahy left to gain fame at Notre Dame. Smarting under a 42-6 walloping at the hands of Louisiana State University that followed a 14-14 tie with Clemson, Curley indicated B. C. would follow the lead of ancient Harvard.

"It is my hope to keep Holy Cross and Fordham as annual opponents, with other dates to be filled by colleges in our class," he said. "I'm all for it," said Coach Mike Holovac, an All-American at the college that landed in Cotton, Sugar and Orange bowls in the past.

It was an echo of the pronouncement of Paul Buck while provost at Harvard following the 1950 season. In 1949 the inept Crimson traveled to the West Coast and a 44-0 slaughter at the hands of Stanford, Columbia, Cornell, Army, Dartmouth, Princeton, Brown and Yale followed. Saturday after Saturday of suicide for Harvard that lived strictly by the amateur rules. Only Stanford was missing from the 1950 schedule. Then policy changed. Springfield, Washington University and Davidson appeared. Buck said Harvard would not abandon football like Chicago did. He would "play the game" against colleges whose educational standards and strength was similar. There would be no "over scheduling."

First Team Runs Against Defense By Frosh Players

BY WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

The East Carolina College Pirates banged heads for two hours yesterday as they continued to search for ways that lead to a victory Saturday night.

The Pirates moved onto the turf in College Stadium as they stepped up preparations for the Homecoming bout Saturday with Elon. First and second team members did most of the ball carrying against defensive units composed of freshmen and other reserves.

Three second-team backs ran the ball well in practice yesterday with halfback Tom Allbrook of Scotland Neck taking the lead. Allbrook, a stand-in for Paul Gay at right half, shook loose on several long runs in the extra-length workout. Fullbacks Bubba Matthews and John Daughtry also ran the ball well although Matthews had to leave practice early because of a minor leg injury.

Running in yesterday's first-team backfield were Dick Cherry, quarterback; Jim Stanley, left halfback; Paul Gay, right halfback; and Claude King, fullback. Stanley was moved in ahead of Topsy Hayes, Jack Britt, and Emo Boado. He is a sophomore from Washington.

The game Saturday will be the seventh meeting of the teams. Elon has won six of the games and it was only last year that the Pirates were able to come through with a victory. That was the big one, however as they spoiled an Elon Homecoming 25-9 when Dick Cherry came into his own as a top-flight college quarterback.

Added significance has been given the contest Saturday night in that both of East Carolina's coaches are graduates of the Elon system. Head Coach Jack Boone was, of course, one of Elon's all-time greats in his playing days at the Alamance County college. Line Coach "Jim Maljory" resigned last spring as Head Coach at Elon to take his present position with the Pirates.

Some tickets are still available for the game although a capacity crowd is expected by game time. Information regarding the tickets available can be obtained by calling either the College Athletic Office or the College Alumni Office. At Elon yesterday, Head Coach Sid Varney had the Christians working behind closed gates. Assistant Coach Doc Mathis gave further information from his scouting reports and the Christians worked on defensive formations with reserves running East Carolina plays.

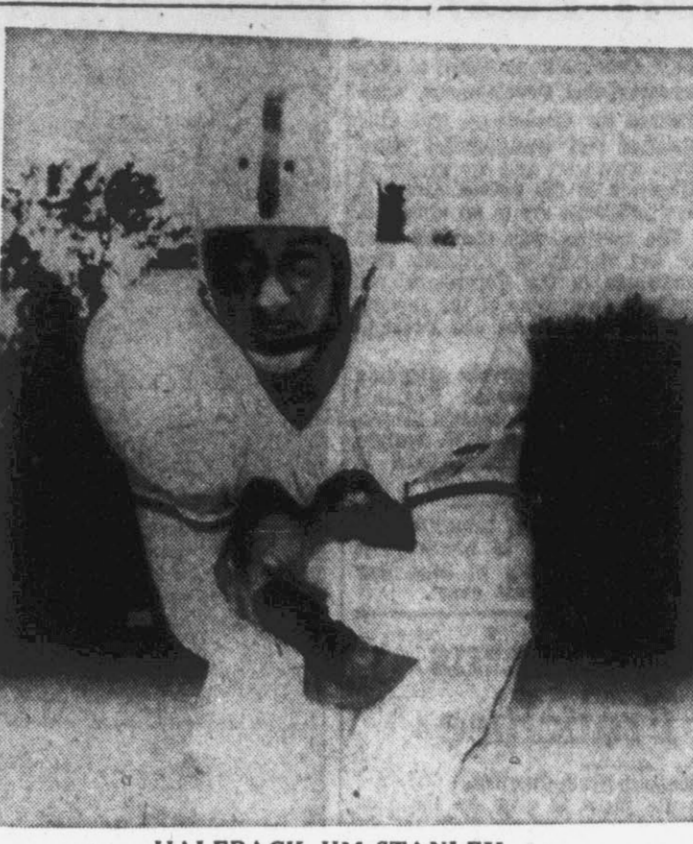

White, Red Teams Battle To 6-6 Tie

The Red and White teams battled to a 6-6 tie yesterday in Midweek Football League play at Elm Street Park.

The White scored their touchdown in the first quarter when Peanut Nun picked up a loose ball and ran 50 yards to paydirt. He was sprung loose by a good block by Howard Garner.

The Red got their touchdown in the fourth period on a pass from Mack Roebuck to Phil Davis. The play covered 10 yards.

Both teams missed extra point attempts. Outstanding offensive men for White were Bobby Edwards, Peanut Nun, Howard Garner and John W. Hudson. Defensive standouts were Jeff Fountain, Alf Forbes, Mokey Lassiter, Garner, Nun and Bill

Touring Ed Lopat Expects Undefeated All-Star Team

NEW YORK (UP)—Ed Lopat, puffed on a cigar, rested his feet on a desk and said today he expected to remain undefeated as a manager for the second straight year.

"I've got quite a managerial record—never lost a game," the 35-year old southpaw of the New York Yankees chuckled. "I figure to make it two straight years undefeated, too."

Casey Stengel, only manager ever to lead five consecutive world champions, glanced at the roster Lopat held in his hand and seemed inclined to agree. "With the team you got you might be able to beat both the Dodgers and the Yankees and claim the championship of the universe," Stengel said.

Lopat's squad which will take off Thursday on a tour that winds up with 18 games in Japan probably would sweep through a regular American or National League 154-game schedule with 110 or 112 victories. Lopat, who led the American League with a 16-4 record and a 2.41 earned run average this year, is one of the pitchers—but he doubts that he'll get into many games.

"I guess I'm the No. 5 man on the staff I got," he quipped. Lopat's staff is headed by Robin Roberts, the Phillies' 23-game winner, and also includes Philadelphia's Curt Simmons (16-13) and Cleveland's Bob Lemon (21-15) and Mike Garcia (18-9).

That all-star staff is backed up by an infield of Ed Robinson at first base, Yankee World Series hero Billy Martin at second, rookie-of-the-year Harvey Kuenn at shortstop and Ed Matthews, Milwaukee's homer-hitting sensation, at third. His outfield consists of Enos Slaughter, veteran Cardinal great, Jackie Jensen of the Senators and Hank Sauer of the Cubs, the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1952. His catchers are Yogi Berra, who hit .429 in the Clapp. Offensive leaders for the Red were Bobby Pridmore and Mack Roebuck. Defensive leaders were Joe Moyer, Shelton Conway, Charles Roberts, Louis Arthur, and James Earl Henderson.

Feature of game was the passing combination of Roebuck-to-Davis in the Reds' offensive maneuvers. Next game will be tomorrow between the Gold and Blue teams.

ACC Has Good Chance For Orange Bowl Pact

Free-Swinging Turner Favored

DETROIT (UP)—Free-swinging GI Turner, the No. 1 welterweight contender, was a heavy favorite to turn back Halo Scortichini tonight in his 19-round bout at Olympia.

But Scortichini, a native of Milan, Italy, who doesn't speak English, is primed for an upset. The dark-haired Italian knows that the welterweight championship might soon be up for grabs and a victory over Turner would boost his stock in case Kid Gavilan decides to abdicate the throne and advance to the middleweight division.

Scortichini, who likes to punch it out as much as Turner, stayed 10 rounds with Gavilan here earlier this year although dropping a decision. He's lost six of 39 professional fights, but he's never been knocked down.

Turner, the potent puncher from Philadelphia, is the most likely successor to Gavilan's 147-pound title which he thinks the Cuban Kid will vacate very soon.

"Gavilan is having plenty of trouble making 147 pounds," Turner said. "I figure he'll move into the middleweight division before I get another shot at him."

Turner's record shows that he's one of the most active boxers in the business. A polished veteran at 22, Turner has had 44 fights since he left the amateur ranks three years ago.

He started his professional career with 15 knockouts and was unbeaten through 31 bouts. Gavilan ended the string last year in a title match and Bobby Dykes followed with a victory.

Turner gained revenge in a rematch with Dykes and hasn't lost since. His most recent victims included Johnny Saxton and Ramon Fuentes. It was Saxton's first setback.

The Turner-Scortichini bout will be televised nationally at 10 p. m. e. s. t.

Free-Swinging Turner Favored

RALEIGH (UP)—Atlantic Coast Conference teams had more incentive today to try for a good record the remainder of the grid season.

There appeared to be a good chance the champ would go to the Orange Bowl come New Year's day, said.

Although the possibility was not a new one, Orange Bowl officials had taken concrete action by naming a committee to negotiate with representatives of the ACC and the Big Seven Conference concerning a contract.

The president of the Orange Bowl, W. Bruce MacIntosh, said "The Orange Bowl committee authorized the president to appoint a special committee to discuss a tieup with the Big Seven and the Atlantic Coast Conference in the Orange Bowl game. There is no date place or time set for the meeting. We hope it will be held in Miami. It will be subject to the mutual agreement of the three parties."

Eddie Cameron, ACC bowl committee chairman, said last night he had not heard of the Orange Bowl's action in naming a committee. But he stuck to an earlier statement that a decision may be made on the tieup proposal "by middle of October."

Meanwhile, ACC teams were looking at matters more directly at hand. Wake Forest and the University of North Carolina continued preparations to meet each other Saturday. And in a scrimmage at Chapel Hill, a third-string combination running Wake Forest plays almost got the best of the first and second teams.

The third stringers—Employing hook passes, bucks and sweeps—crossed the goal line several times from within the five-yard line. Duke's Blue Devils also had trouble with pass formations designed to imitate the attack Purdue will launch Saturday. The plays clicked with too much regularity against the varsity squad.

Clemson and South Carolina also had trouble with freshmen running plays expected to be used by the enemy Saturday. The Gamecocks met Furman at Columbia and Clemson tangles with Miami (Fla.) at Miami.

North Carolina State worked in preparation for Davidson and the Maryland Terps continued to get ready for what might be the toughest assignment of all Saturday, a tussle with the University of Georgia Bulldogs at College Park.

Memberships In Pool Set-Up To Expire Saturday

Dr. Charles G. De Shaw, of the physical education department of East Carolina College, announced today that memberships in the college swimming pool for Saturday privileges for the fall quarter are closed.

He said persons holding tickets that expire during the quarter may continue their membership to the end of the quarter, November 21, by paying 15 cents per swim. Registration of memberships in the winter quarter for swimming pool privileges will begin in November.

Royals went on to win 10-0, collecting 12 hits off four Kansas City hurlers. The International League champions won the second game 6-2 and the third 3-0 over the American Association representatives.

Casey Uses Straight Face To Say Yankees Need Help

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UP)—Casey Stengel insisted today that his world champion Yankees "need help" and what's more, he said it with a straight face!

Disregarding the snickers which greeted his statement, Stengel said he saw certain signs of future trouble because of the advanced age of his pitching staff.

"Laugh if you like," he said, "but the fact is that fellows like Allie Reynolds, Ed Lopat, Vic Raschi and Johnny Sain ain't exactly kids any more."

"We're gonna have to make some changes in our pitching staff because of its age. Those fellows just can't pitch as often as they used to any more and that's all there is to it."

Working himself into a worrying mood, the Yankee manager said he was sure there would be "a lot of deals" among the other clubs this winter.

"Sure, we need help," he declared, "but who's gonna give it to us? The other clubs will probably deal among themselves this winter and they'll all be strengthened. But you can't expect any of 'em to help us."

Stengel, who cleaned out his desk drawer at Yankee Stadium Tuesday, finding in them such assorted trivia as good luck charms, newspaper clippings, ancient letters and lineups and even a package of bubble gum, said he would remain in town for a few days before flying to his home in Glendale, Calif.

"I'm not so sure we'll have any cake-walk to the pennant next year," he said, "but I heard that my players figure we're 'in' again in 1954 and I'm glad to know that they're so confident."

"Of course," he added, seeing the brighter side finally, "that outfit of mine will be even better next year and with Gerry Coleman back, the infield still looks good."

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

How to get your house ready for next winter is going to be a problem so many advertising men are going to be figuratively standing around kibitzing. This is because new products are being introduced—and reintroduced. The home handyman is certain to put the local hardware dealer or building supply house on the spot by asking what product is the most important.

New heating plants are rated as X per cent efficient. Insulation is supposed to save you X dollars. Weatherstripping, according to the University of Minnesota's Institute of Technology, Engineering Experiment Station, should cut your fuel bills by 24 per cent!

So weatherstripping is something you are going to pay for every month before you get it. You will pay for it in your fuel bills without realizing what you are doing. If you like to pay fuel bills, you can save time for writing your checks by not reading this column.

But if your house already is weatherstripped, don't be too quick to smirk. When a stiff wind is blowing, hold a match or candle up to the edges or corners of your windows and doors to see how much your house leaks air. A need for renewed weatherstripping is not unusual.

Interlocking metal weatherstripping—a costly installation—is generally conceded to be the best—when it's put in right. This writer had such a type installed in a new house a few years ago. The job was done by professionals. Yet, the breeze that blows in at lower corners of the front door is enough to put goose flesh on your ankles.

The idea of weatherstripping is to reduce air leakage around windows and doors. It's not a matter of hermetically sealing a house. It's just getting things down to who's boss—you, or the weather. When you want ventilation you can get it, but you don't want to spend the winter with one window half open all the time.

The Weatherstrip Research Institute says that ordinary windows are so loosely fitted that the clearance around the sashes is equal to a hole 4 inches square. The last version we heard of that story was that such leakage equalled a hole 3 inches in diameter. Not knowing how to square the circle, we never were able to check up. But it is obvious that either version means we all get a lot of free air through something that is not a wise crack.

Now a new kind of flexible, easy-to-apply weatherstripping is being distributed through retail stores. Designed along the lines of the window seals used on modern automobiles, it relies on a wool pile to keep the weather out.

Instead of this wool pile—like a dense "rush"—being embedded in a metal strip as it is in automobiles and airplanes, it is sealed in a flexible, narrow plastic strip. Ivory colored, this plastic strip is indented for tack holes at regular intervals and tacks of a matching color are supplied.

Made by Schlegel Manufacturing Co. (277 No. Goodman St.) Rochester, N.Y., and Oakville, Ont., Canada, the material called Adjusto-Seal, is expected to sell at hardware and department stores for about 10 cents a foot.

In the past, the main objection to flexible versus metal weatherstripping has been that flexible forms are bound to wear out in time. The handyman undoubtedly is prepared for this. Knowing the cost of metal types and the difficulty of proper installation, he is likely to settle for an efficient flexible job for as long as it lasts.

Incidentally, C.F. Schlegel, president of the manufacturing company, says weatherstripping sales are increasing in southern states where air conditioning requires keeping cool air inside and warm air out.

Closest Allies Are Pressuring U.S. For Non-Aggression Pact

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
The United States is being pressured by Britain and France to offer a non-aggression pact to Russia. If this seems like a ninth-round handshake between two prize fighters who then will attempt to batter each other's brains out, attached to it are a peculiar set of circumstances in which the United States joins reluctantly.

One is the increasing pressure from Britain and the European Allies for one more all-out attempt to reach a settlement with Russia which would ease world tensions. Prime Minister Winston Churchill started it last spring when he proposed a high-level four-power conference. He has not abandoned the idea.

Another circumstance is a growing belief among the United States' allies that Russia must be offered some kind of a price.

And a third is the suggestion that Russia really does feel herself threatened and therefore should have guarantees.

Churchill set the pattern on May 11 when he said that Russia has the right to feel assured that "the terrible events of the Hitler invasion will never be repeated."

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has suggested a possible treaty between the European Defense Community countries and those of the Eastern bloc.

On Sept. 17, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles joined with a statement in the United Nations that the "United States does not want to see Russia encircled by hostile peoples."

On Sept. 25, French Deputy Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann told Russia in the U.N., "I can assure you, you will find us ready to seek a system of guarantees against the modification of boundaries by force."

This week a drafting committee of the United States, Britain and France will meet to formulate a reply to the latest Russian note which stalled a Western invitation for a resumption of negotiations on peace treaties for Germany and Austria.

A non-aggression pact with Russia is expected to be one of the subjects explored.

This week also Churchill is expected to make his first speech since illness postponed his Bermuda meeting with President Eisenhower and French Premier Joseph Laniel. It will be an opportunity for him to renew his previous suggestion.

The idea in all of this, of course, is to get Russia off dead center and to get some concrete move started toward world peace. On past performance, however, it would seem to be wishful thinking.

Even assuming that Russian tactics are based more on fear than on dreams of world conquest it seems unlikely that she would accept any pact without attaching impossible conditions.

However, the offer of a non-aggression pact to Russia might serve one good purpose. Acceptance or rejection would offer a clue to her intentions for the future.

Dragnet's Theme Finally Sounded

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—While local residents have been up in arms over a murder-rape in this area, newsmen have refrained from calling it a dragnet.

But early today it happened. While officers were busy answering prowler calls, the police radio suddenly blared out the boom, boo, boom theme of the popular song "Dragnet."

Buff tail tips distinguish the Rio Grande wild turkey from other types.

Tests For Hostesses Of Today

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Every hostess needs some ready formulas for handling problem guests. Doing what comes naturally—or the best you can on the spur of the moment—does not always produce the best results; do a little thinking beforehand and be ready.

There is the problem of the over-friendly neighbor who loves to "drop in for a few minutes" and remains a few hours. Shall you let her absorb the time you need to spend on housekeeping chores or mending the children's clothes? You may if you wish, but you will be a far happier woman if you meet her at the door the next time she makes an uninvited appearance and say in a friendly way:

"I'm so sorry to miss a chat with you, but I'm just starting dinner and I can't stop now. Perhaps we can do it another day."

The trick lies in saying it courteously and with an air of real regret but in holding your ground firmly. If you do it well enough and often enough you can discourage entirely these long-winded visits and gain a great deal of much-needed time for yourself.

Then there is the problem of the unexpected guest your husband brings home to dinner. This is actually a test of poise, sportsmanship and family teamwork. So don't make a hardship of it; make the most of it to enhance your reputation as "a wonderful wife."

A little forethought and planning will make it possible. Sit down and plan a simple appetizing dinner that can be stocked on your shelves, then order plenty of it and have it ready for such an emergency.

If that emergency finds your house a little upset, don't apologize. You weren't expecting guests. Quietly do what needs to be done to set the living room in order and let the rest go.

Don't try to rush the best china and linen to the table for the occasion, either. Use your everyday service, produce the best dinner you can, serve it with an unflustered air and a warm welcome—and your guest will depart envying your husband and remembering with pleasure the hours spent in your house. How much better to have it that way, than to have him wince with embarrassment at the recollection of irritation on your part and flustered preparations for dinner!

Another guest problem for which you should be prepared is the last-minute telephone call from the friend whom you have invited to your dinner party, asking if she may bring an unexpected house guest. All things considered, this request, reasonable enough if it concerns a cocktail party, should not be made concerning a dinner. But your friend does it anyway.

What should you do? Do the kindest thing. Tell her to bring the guest, wedge in an extra place at table—even if the silverware does not all match and the food has to be stretched—and let everybody have a good time. Your easy relaxed handling of the situation will do more to establish you as a successful hostess than the most perfectly appointed dinner you could produce.

The shy guest presents another problem calling for both kindness and tact. Many people are shy because they are afflicted with self-consciousness, and the best way to dissipate this is to deflect their interest to something else. You may be able to bring your shy guest out of her shell by asking her to help you. If you can't do this, don't let her cling to a corner alone. Draw her kindly into the group, even though she does no more than listen while the others talk.

Mrs. Seaton was baby-sitting a group of eight children when the fire broke out. The young mother rushed into a bedroom and rescued Dennis Bohl, 8, a neighbor's child, and Cathy Jean Hecock, her stepfather's two-month-old daughter.

The Hecock's four other children, Carolyn, 6, Diane, 5, Marilyn, 4, and Earl Jr., 1, perished in the blaze with Mrs. Seaton's nine-month-old son, Roger, and Lucille Bohl, 9.

Filmed Denial Of Germ Warfare Charges Readied

The United States today made ready filmed denials of Communist charges of germ warfare for the U.N. General Assembly debate on the matter.

Sound motion pictures of the personal experiences of five American airmen forced by the Communists to "confess" to waging germ warfare were among the documentary proof the United States had to refute the Red charges before the U.N.

The films, made in San Francisco, were screened Tuesday for top U.N. diplomats at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. Soviet-bloc delegates, who stressed the "confessions" in earlier U.N. meetings, were invited to the showing but none attended.

Dr. Charles Mayo, who will handle the germ warfare issue when the item comes up for discussion at the current General Assembly session, said the reputations were "additional evidence that the U.N. and we, the U.S., have never engaged in bacteriological warfare."

The five airmen made it clear that the "confessions" were extracted by the Communists by means of mental and physical torture. All five of the "confessions" were circulated by Soviet delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky earlier this year as official documents and "evidence" that the Allies were waging bacteriological warfare in Korea.

Personal reputations of the "confessions" were given by Col. Frank H. Schwable of Arlington, Va., and Maj. Roy H. Bley, of Cavalry, Mo. U.S. Marines and Air Force Lt. John S. Quinn of Altadena, Calif., Floyd B. O'Neal of Fairfax, S.C., and Paul R. Kniss of San Antonio, Tex.

SCHULENBURG, Germany (UP)—German POW Johannes Otto returning from nine years in Russian prison camps, smiled when he saw his name on a "killed in action" memorial.

His smile faded when he walked home and found that his wife had remarried and has borne four children by her second husband.

Otto said he would live nearby so that he could visit his own two teen-aged children.

Governor's Wife Is Safe In Train Crash

By RAY JOHNSTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
KNOXVILLE (UP)—Runaway freight cars slammed into a halted pullman car late last night and Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, whose wife was flung unhurt from her berth, "thanked God" on his knees for a narrow escape.

Mrs. Clement said she had insisted on travel by train so she would "feel safe." The Clements reboarded with the other passenger when the train continued its run to Washington after a slight delay. W. A. Brown, division special agent for Southern, said the string of eight cars broke loose at a repair shed, possibly because their air brakes failed, and hurtled over three miles of track to the depot at 25 miles per hour.

Tough Schooling Given French Civil Servants

By LEN PROBST
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS (UP)—American government workers complaining about two-hour I.Q. tests can't wring a tear today from their French counterparts.

Elite French civil servants have to go to school for 39 months. The intensive study and on-the-job training were instituted in a drive to break the nightmarish inefficiency of the French traditional bureaucracy, long ridiculed all over Europe.

But even now civil service methods appear antiquated to an American.

There seem to be as many "hulsters" — porters with mysterious functions even they can't explain — as secretaries in some government buildings.

Long corridors which in Washington would be echoing with busy sounds of typing and business machines, are strangely silent. Strangely silent, that is, until it is realized that more than 75 per cent of the work is still carried out with steel-nibbed pens. And French handwriting is as individualistic as the Gallic soul.

The Program
Telephones are relics, rickety and rarely functioning. This makes for miles of walking daily to conduct business.

But all of this is gradually changing. Spearhead of the attack is the French National School of Administration. For the benefit of the more than 2,000,000 American federal workers, here's what is behind the reform for their 966,300 French opposite numbers:

in are relaxed. These candidates headed for the "Grands Corps," as the top brackets are still called, start with 12 months' job-training to give them a taste of what is to come.

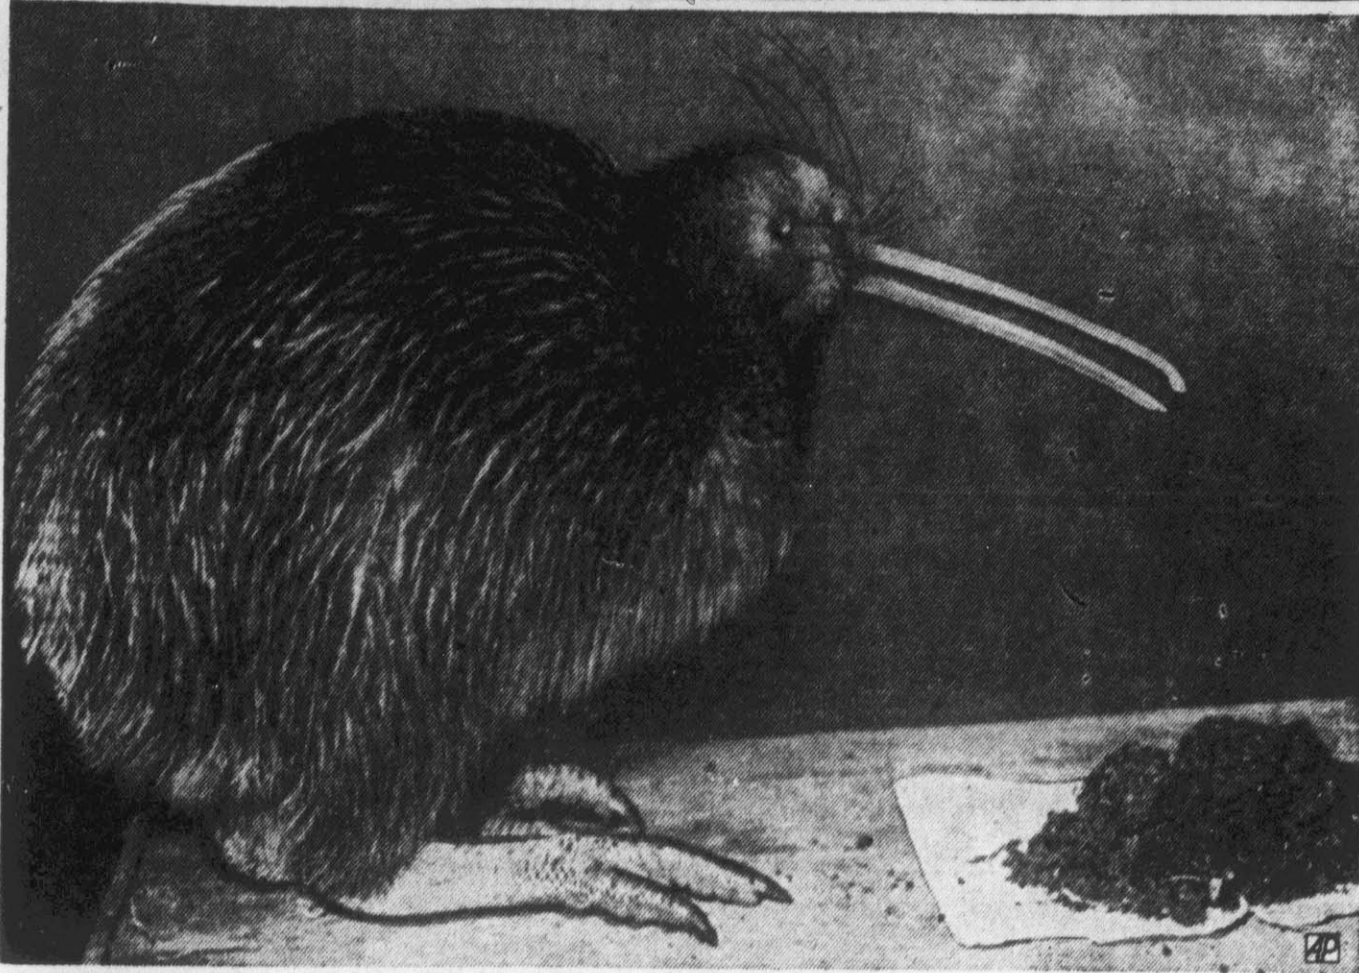

It may be in a local governor's office in the provinces. Or in some bureau in the still vast French Empire — Pnom Penh, Cambodia; Ajaccio, Corsica; Dakar, West Africa; Casablanca Morocco.

The second year is spent in hard study at the school on Paris' romantic Left Bank. There are four main areas of learning — general administration, economics and finance, social affairs and foreign policy. At the end of the year there are more thorough exams to separate the bright from the not-so-bright. This determines the students' branch of service.

The third year is spent in specialized work — like a college "major" — in the chosen branch. The three final months pass in practical work to bring the student in contact with ordinary life. This may be in a factory, bank or newspaper.

Salary for the whole 39-month period is $1,400. Top graduates, since the 1945 reforms starting the program, head for the Quai D'Orsay, Finance or Treasury departments, or the judiciary. Second-best go into regional governors' offices (prefects), other ministries or nationalized industry like tobacco or matches.

TEEN TALK

Dear Ducky

AP Newsfeatures
If you've ever dreamed of being in Paris in the spring or England in fall or Scandinavia for the ski season, and then looked at your piggy bank and sighed, consider how you can get there by "cashing in" on your school books.

All you have to be is a top student to see the world. As an exchange student from America you can choose your country, apply for the scholarship, and keep your fingers crossed.

Such a break came to pretty Elaine Smith, 20, a Queens College student now enroute on the big ship Queen Mary to France. Elaine, one of 242 students going to France on a Fulbright scholarship, says that any bright college student who uses her noggin may have a similar adventure. Says she:

"I was lucky to win the French trip because there are so many competing for that country. Egypt and Iran are two countries that go begging. It seems all the kids want to go to France. Every student should talk to the dean of her school and inquire as to the qualifications. It'll be well worth the effort."

Elaine who loves music and art, majored in psychology and applied to study literature and research abroad. After an interview by a faculty member she just kept her fingers crossed, and presto she was elected one of the lucky students.

Her year abroad will reward her with museums, art centers, music. "Every European town has a good theatre and orchestra," says Elaine. Her scholarship insures her a modest living allowance in addition to tuition.

When she arrives at the University of Bordeaux, after her indoctrination in Paris, they will arrange for her to live with a French family. This idea she adores since it will give her an opportunity to improve her high school and college French. Another thing Elaine will enjoy is relaxation. Says she:

"Everything in America is rush-rush. But from all I've heard and read the French appreciate leisure times — relaxation over food, recreation, etc., and I'm looking forward to it."

Elaine knows that she will work hard, too — and she wants to. She anticipates going to the University of Berkeley (Calif.) when she returns. She knows, too, that France isn't going to be all cultural and fun. She is prepared for no central heating with warm night-clothes and woolen underwear for a rough winter. She knows too that she might bathe in a wooden tub and live primitively with her French family. The social life, however, might be, smarter than here. Says she:

"Simple clothes are in order for daytime wear, but I understand when a French girl goes out she really shines. On these happy occasions one really dresses to the teeth."

Elaine is looking forward to that, too, and a trip to Spain, perhaps, but she is so serious about enjoying France as a nation and being a little ambassador to boot that she hasn't given a thought to boys. Besides she's sure American boys are tops and can't be beaten by the most suave Frenchmen.

Red Heads Don't Cry

By ROY L. FOLEY

SYNOPSIS
Phil Stanley, popular young socialite bachelor, had fallen in love with Nancy Kelly, his attorney's keen-witted, red-haired secretary. He'd taken her about, introduced her to his friends, including Linda Van Vliet, a brunette beauty who'd long ago set her cap for Phil. At home tonight, he found Nancy busily typing extra copies of an important, confidential document which will figure in a law suit pending against the Stanley Construction Company, owned by Phil Stanley's high and mighty kin. On checking her work next morning, Nancy finds one of the copies missing and is gravely alarmed. It could be a dangerous weapon in the opposition's hands. Sam Sykes, her brother-in-law, whom she dislikes and distrusts had been in the room with her while she worked and so had Dave Armstrong, a would-be suitor for Miss Kelly's hand.

CHAPTER NINE
PHIL came back into the outer office.
"How would you like to do a little ice boating this afternoon? At Oconomowoc lake. There's a good stiff breeze."
"Ice boating? Me?"
"Yes, ice boating. You."
"Why, I haven't the—the clothes. Besides, I—"
"Now, now. My place at the lake is full of logs, women's logs, men's logs. All kinds of logs. That excuse won't do. Just for a few hours. I must be back by six."
That noon Lucy Wardle on her way home stopped at the Kelly home to tell Mother Kelly that Nancy had to work all afternoon, that she expected to be home around six.
Lucy wasn't much to look at, but she was a kind soul.

She worshipped Nancy and would do anything for her, even tell a little white lie.
The thirty miles to Oconomowoc was covered by Phil's roadster in almost as many minutes despite slippery roads and a stiff northeast wind that whipped ominous leaden clouds across the sky. Phil kept looking at the sky.
"There's snow coming. I hope it lays off until we can get at least one sail around the lake."
Icy particles whirled against the windows of the car. They seemed to protest the snug warmth inside. What if? Nancy settled back, determined that for a few hours she would run away from Cass Street . . . boiled potatoes and codfish . . . ogre of demanding creditors. For a few hours, until six, she would go flying over the ice in Phil's boat at sixty miles an hour. He had told her the boat, the "Northwind," could do that with one sail behind its back.
Nancy wondered if any one else would be at the lake at the Stanley lodge. She ventured the question.
"Perhaps."
Phil leaned forward to wind the clock in the dashboard and as he did his face came close to Nancy's. She was possessed with the thought that he might try to kiss her. She began musing what she would do if he did try—other men had. Men of his type were used to taking what they wanted. They thought money could buy everything. Oh money, money—
She must be on her guard.
"A penny for your thoughts, Nancy."
"Oh, I was just thinking of—nothing."
They were driving over a nar-

"These ought to do you. You dress and I'll get the boat ready."
In one of the bedrooms, where Phil had logs blazing in another fireplace, Nancy changed clothes. Why was she trembling so? She wasn't cold now. She tried to stop and she couldn't.
Over the ice they skimmed at forty, fifty, sixty miles. Nancy had the sensation that the boat was stationary, that it was the hills and trees that were flying past. The wind shrieked like demons. Phil yelled things to her, she could only catch a few words. He pointed to a great patch of open, black water. She thought he said that parts of the lake never froze. She couldn't hear his words but his lips seemed to say "springs."
He shouted.

row, hilly road, through deep woods now. The spitting ice particles were coming faster. Frozen branches were creaking in protest against increasingly cold wind. The sky was laden with snow-filled clouds.
It was eerie in the woods. Nancy ventured the remark that maybe they had better turn back it was getting dark.
"You're not afraid are you?"
Nancy WAS afraid, but she wasn't going to admit it.
"Afraid with me? Nothing to be afraid of."
Phil swung the car into a sharp turn.
"There's our place—the boat-house is to the right, under the hill."
Set high over the lake, Nancy beheld for the first time one of the Stanley lake homes. It was a large, rambling house that spelled comfort and easy living despite the forbidding effect of its shuttered windows.
Phil helped Nancy from the car and dug deep into his pocket for a large, old-fashioned key.
"Our other place is across the lake. This just the lodge where we keep the boats and other junk."
"Oh."
He led her through a hallway and into a large, oak-beamed room, one side of it which was occupied by the largest fireplace Nancy had ever seen. In front of it were great piles of logs all the paraphernalia for a quick fire. Phil had the fireplace roaring with flames in no time. He told Nancy to stand close to the warmth while he hunted up some things for her to wear boating. He left the room.
How still it was. The chill of the room was beaten back before the roaring fire. Nancy pulled a large chair to the fireplace and curled up.
"A place to dream, to live, to—"
Phil came back his arms loaded with sweaters, a fur lined helmet, snow pants, a pair of lady's buckskin boots.

"Had enough?"
It was almost dark now.
She shook her head. This was the thing she had always dreamed of—to fly away on the wings of the wind, away, away—
The storm broke with a blinding suddenness. They were making straight for the open water. Phil was helpless before the fury of the wind. He was fighting desperately to control the boat. It swung around on the very brink of the open water and spilled them both onto the ice. Nancy was hurled across the ice. She lay flat on her stomach, choking with snow. She had lost her helmet.
The boat whirled in another blast of wind and slipped into the water, a top sail sticking above the edge

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks edged irregularly higher in quiet trading today, with a few strong features, notably the aircrafts which had paced yesterday's decline.

Gains in the aircrafts ranged to 1 1/4 points in Douglas which moved up to 67 1/2 after touching a new low yesterday at 66 1/2, off 1 1/4.

Glenn Martin, active and lower yesterday, recovered 3/4 to 15; Boeing 3/4 to 43 1/2, United Aircraft 3/4 to 40 1/2.

Pressure on this group stemmed from reports in one of the financial papers that the Defense Department had decided to slow down the rate at which it makes so-called "progress payments" to aircraft and other defense industries. Such a decision could force some companies to drop out of the defense production picture since the costs of borrowing necessary working capital could affect profits severely.

On consideration, however, Wall Street concluded such a plan was unlikely in the face of the country's need for a strong defense against attack.

American Car & Foundry featured with a 3/4 gain to 31 1/2. Elsewhere movement was extremely narrow with a long list of leaders unchanged, among them Anaconda at 30 1/2 and Kennecott 62 1/4, in the coppers; Chesapeake & Ohio 33 1/2, New York Central 19 1/4, and Southern Railway 40 1/4 in the rails; Goodyear 47 in the tires, Standard Oil (N.J.) 68 1/2 and Texas Co 51 1/2 in the oils.

Homes of the Famous-12

1804, Gen. Wm. H. HARRISON'S House, Vincennes, Ind.

AP Newsfeatures

This fine old mansion was built in 1804, by General William Henry Harrison, later to become ninth President of the United States, but at this time, the governor of the Indiana Territory, which appointment he had received from President Thomas Jefferson in 1800. The house was probably the first, west of the Alleghenies, to be built of burned brick, and was a solid structure, with basement walls 24 inches in thickness. The wood-work of the interior, the sash, doors, mantels and stairs were of black-walnut, said to have been made in Pittsburgh. These were troublesome times, with constant fear of attack from hostile Indians and, in view of this contingency, on one side of the large cellar, there was an entrance to a tunnel, leading to the Wabash River, 600 feet distant. By this tunnel, the Governor and his family, if hard pressed, could escape to a canoe on the river bank, or could obtain food and water. In recent years, the mansion faced destruction, but has been saved and restored by the Francis Vigo Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and is open to the public.

East Germany's Chief Re-Elected

BERLIN (UP)—The Communist East German parliament today gave rubber-stamp approval to another four-year term for East Germany's Soviet puppet President Wilhelm Pieck.

The ailing, 77-year-old Pieck was re-elected as Red East observed its fourth anniversary. Heavily reinforced West German police patrols guarded the U. S., British and French sectors of divided Berlin against the possibility of demonstrations or "invasion" attempts by Communist hot-heads.

The anniversary of the founding of the East German Red regime was marked by a pledge to increase the Communist campaign for re-unification of Germany on Soviet terms.

Pieck himself, in an article in the Russian, German-language newspaper Tagliche Rundschau, said East Germany would step up its drive for "peaceful settlement" of the German problem.

Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov, Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Marshal K. E. Voroshilov, sent separate congratulatory messages to Pieck, Premier Otto Grotewohl and new Foreign Minister Lothar Boltz.

Near Accord In Suez Discussion

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Vice Premier Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser said today "There is an understanding" between Egypt and Great Britain on the issue of the Suez Canal Zone.

Nasser, who heads the Egyptian delegation in talks with the British, added, however, "We do not want to be over-optimistic."

Nasser made the statement to newsmen before today's meeting of Egyptian and British negotiators. The negotiators met at the Cairo residence of Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, chief British negotiator.

Reliable British sources reported earlier this week that agreement in principle had been reached under which Britain will withdraw 80,000 troops from the strategic canal zone, leaving only 4,000 technicians to guard and maintain the defenses.

The informants said the agreement in principle provides that British troops would be evacuated within 18 months. British troops, however, would be permitted to reoccupy the base in the event of "certain defined emergencies."

Special facilities would be granted to British warships at Port Said on the northern end of the canal and Royal Air Force planes would be permitted to refuel at the base at Fayid on the canal about midway between the Mediterranean and Red seas.

The largest city in North and South America for many years was Potots, Bolivia.

Western Cotton Growers Given Support Terms

WASHINGTON (UP)—Western cotton farmers will be offered price supports on 1953 cotton which must be stored on the ground because of warehouse shortages.

The Agriculture Department said growers will be eligible for support when the cotton "if warehouse facilities" and are moving to transfer cotton to other points for storage.

Normally, price support loans are available only on cotton for which the farmer can guarantee proper storage. However the "in-the-open" storage provision has been made in the past because of inadequate facilities.

A spokesman said the outdoors storage loans apply generally from the high plains of Texas westward, through Arizona, New Mexico and California.

Panel Indicates Community Is Place For Fighting Alcoholism

By CHESTER WALSH

An "Open Forum On Alcoholism" at the Woman's Club last night, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, developed the point that "alcoholism is a disease and that it should be treated in a scientific way."

A panel of three nationally known experts in the field of alcoholism conducted the forum under direction of M. E. Cavendish.

The first speaker was S. Kinion Proctor, executive director of the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center at Camp Butler. Dr. John Ewing, psychiatrist, and Dr. Norbert Kelly, education director for the program, followed him.

Proctor said alcoholism is an illness affecting many people. "It has roots in the personality characteristics of the individual, but its symptoms transcend the personality and affect the body, the family, the community, and all society. Alcoholism is both a social problem and a community concern. An enlightened public is the most effective force in combating the spread of alcoholism," the speaker declared.

He stressed the point that the community should take some action concerning alcoholism as a disease, and "not pass the buck to state authorities." He advised parent-teacher associations, civic clubs and other community groups to study the situation and approach the problem from a scientific standpoint.

Dr. John A. Ewing, psychiatrist at the N.C. Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, graduate of the University of Edinburgh, described methods of treating alcoholism at the Rehabilitation Center. He said the alcoholic invariably is suffering from some form of emotional instability. Millions of people drink and do not fall, and yet there are millions who succumb to the lure of alcoholic beverages. "Alcoholism is a community problem—it is a disease," he declared.

"The problem of alcoholism has been with us since cave men inscribed hieroglyphics on the walls of the caverns they inhabited, and we still have it," Dr. Ewing said with emphasis, and he advised communities to approach the problem of alcoholism from a scientific standpoint. He said the stimulation of alcohol gives a person a false sense of security. He suggested that the craving for excessive quantities of alcohol may result from some physical defect in the drinker.

"In our institutions we need to study the problems of alcoholism and seek ways and means of eliminating it or preventing it by more congenial living conditions. We are doing this very thing now and we earnestly solicit the interest of PTA and civic club and other groups in studying the causes of alcoholism.

"We all have the hope that some day we may find the means of preventing alcoholism," the psychiatrist said in concluding.

Dr. Norbert Kelly, social scientist and graduate of Carnegie University, gave a word picture of how alcoholism affects the individual, the family, the job and the community.

"There is no known panacea for alcoholism," he declared, "because we do not know all of the factors in the problem. He said the community can do much to eliminate alcoholism—a widespread illness that should be treated as a disease.

He said disseminating knowledge about alcohol, its danger as a beverage and the illnesses—mental and physical—that it causes should be a prime objective in all of the community groups and organizations.

He suggested parental education and reminded the audience of advertisements encouraging people to drink alcohol. The speaker noted parents and school teachers are the most important people that children contact. Their influence would be felt if they regularly disseminated the information that alcohol is dangerous. The speaker suggested the use of mental hygiene clinics at stated places in the state, "and you need one here in Greenville," he advised.

Dr. Kelly described the value of directed recreation, and said "You have gone very far toward elimination of alcoholism if you do something to make children happy and contented."

Dr. H. Glenn Haney, pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church, said the invocation. More than 100 persons attended the meeting.

The three speakers answered questions by the audience and the Veterans of Foreign Wars distributed literature.

Governor Sees Deeper Cracks In South By GOP

CHICAGO (UP)—Louisiana Gov. Robert F. Kennon, who supported President Eisenhower in the last election, predicted yesterday that the GOP may open deeper cracks in the Solid South in 1954 and 1956.

Kennon told a news conference that it would be "easier" for Southerners to support Eisenhower because the "break" had already been made.

"I was for General Eisenhower, I am for him, and I expect to be for him," Kennon said. "The Sept. 14-15 Democratic conference here was not the time to discuss national politics. It was out of season—no good could be accomplished."

The governor was here to address the National Food Editors conference.

Kennon and Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas broke with the Democrats when Eisenhower promised to turn the tideland oil areas over to the states.

"Certainly if the Democratic program and control in 1956 are as in 1952 you can expect Jeffersonian Democrats to be for the Republicans," Kennon said.

Special Memory For Guardian Of Deposit Vaults

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Edward Barton custodian of safe deposit vaults at Union Trust Co., says it's no trick at all to remember 5,000 names and faces. He proved it the other day by remembering the name of a man who had been away seven years.

Barton 13 years at his job, works his memory trick this way: When a customer comes to the vault room his mind recalls the number or position of the man's box. The name comes by association.

"I started by remembering the numbers and locations of the dozen or so directors' boxes," he says, "and just accumulated the rest."

But Barton is not infallible. Sometimes on his way home to West Suffield, Conn., he forgets errands his wife asked him to do. And once for the life of him he couldn't remember his automobile registration number.
