Some 150 Motor Vehicle Owners in Pitt To Get Subpoenas Soon Will Be Called To Explain Why Property Not Listed For Tax Purposes

Some 150 Pitt Countians will be receiving subpoenas in the near future to appear at the county tax office to show cause why they have not listed motor vehicles for county tax purposes.

Earlier this week the subpoenas were turned over to the sheriff's office after they were checked by the County Commissioners at Monday's session.

County Auditor Reginald Gray said the official notices being sent to Pitt citizens came as a result of failure to list for county taxes motor vehicles which apparently were owned by the people on January 1 of this year.

All motor vehicle registration licenses for 1953 issued by the state to residents of Pitt County were checked by the county tax office against the motor vehicles listed for taxes in the county.

Gray said between 2,000 and 3,500 motor vehicles which appeared on the state list for Pitt County did not appear on the county's tax list. Letters were mailed to alleged owners of the vehicles, and a total of 1,052 late tax listings resulted from the letters. These late listings represented more than 1,052 motor vehicles, Gray explained.

Gov. Umstead To Meet With New Agency Friday

RALEIGH (UP)—Gov. William B. Umstead's new commission on reorganization of state government will meet with the governor tomorrow to hear his plans for revising North Carolina's state agencies and administrative setup.

Umstead said when he appointed the nine-member group Oct. 1 that one of their first tasks will be to work out a plan for separating the state prisons system from the Highway and Public Works Commission, but it is only "one among many agencies of the state government" that will be studied with a view toward achieving more efficiency and economy of operation.

Plans To Include New Tar Bridge

Highway Commissioner H. Maynard Hicks, commissioner of the second highway division, said yesterday afternoon the survey of a proposed bypass from highway 11 north of Greenville to highway 264 near the southeastern limits of the city has been completed.

The proposed bypass would include the construction of a new bypass highway, and the construction of a new bridge across the Tar River at Greenville.

Hicks emphasized that even though the survey of the proposed bypass has been completed, the line to be followed by the bypass has not been officially approved, and is still a tentative line.

The bypass, as shown in the survey of the proposed route, would connect with highway 11 north of Greenville near House Station and in a straight line through a portion of the Pitt-Greenville air-traffic bypass, and connect with existing highways at the junction of highway 43 and the hospital road.

Britain Willing To Talk Peace At Any Level With Soviet

MARGATE, England (UP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that Britain is willing to discuss peace with Russia "at any level" from Premier Georgi Malenkov on down, and to guarantee that the proposed European army will never "threaten Soviet security."

The gaunt foreign secretary got a tremendous ovation when he strode to the speakers' stand at the Conservative Party's annual convention here to begin his first major speech since illness forced him into temporary retirement earlier this year.

Eden told his fellow Conservatives that "We should pursue all the methods open to us to reduce international tension from a four-power meeting at the highest level to negotiation of even small issues. But we should not abuse our allies if they do not share our views."

Hasty Bandits Get But $2,664 From N.C. Bank

MAIDEN (UP)—FBI agents intensified a search for two young bank robbers today while officials of a branch bank here counted a loss of $2,664 in a lightning-quick robbery.

Two men were picked up and questioned by local authorities a few hours after the robbery shortly before noon yesterday but an FBI spokesman said federal agents were not holding the men.

In answer to questions the FBI said there were "no developments" in the case which started this small Catawba County town with its second bank robbery in a little more than three years.

The two pistol-carrying bandits, one over six feet tall and the other a stocky young man, found two employees alone in the Maiden Branch of the Northwestern Bank of North Wilkesboro counting a new shipment of money in a tellers cage.

Don Mauney, a teller, said the holdup men threatened him and Mrs. Elaine Cook and demanded the money. Mauney said he handed it over and he and Mrs. Cook were forced to lie on the floor while the bandits escaped.

Mauney said the men made no attempt to get in the bank vault just behind the tellers cage. He said the whole thing was over in about two minutes.

May Leave Trieste To Two Rivals

U. S. and Britain Propose Withdrawal Of Troops From Disputed City

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States and Britain today proposed withdrawing their troops from Trieste in a new effort to settle the Italian-Yugoslav dispute over the Adriatic area.

Occupation of Zone A in Trieste would be turned over to Italy "at the earliest practicable date."

Officials said this transfer probably could take place in a matter of weeks or perhaps a few months. Zone B would continue to be occupied by Yugoslavia. Italy and Yugoslavia then would be free to settle the dispute finally.

The U. S.-British position was outlined in notes delivered to Italy and Yugoslavia.

In a joint statement released here and in London, the United States and Britain said they have tried to reach agreement with other signatories to the Italian peace treaty for setting up a permanent regime for the free territory of Trieste. This was provided in the Italian peace treaty.

However, the joint statement said "for reasons that are well known" it has been impossible to reach agreement on establishing the free territory envisioned. The primary reason was failure to reach agreement with the Soviet Union on a governor for the territory of Trieste.

The joint statement said the United States and Britain have tried to get Italy and Yugoslavia to settle the controversial problem themselves but "unfortunately it was not possible to find a solution acceptable to both sides."

Zone A, including the great port city of Trieste, is occupied by the United States and Britain.

"They (the United States and Britain) have therefore decided to terminate the Allied military government to withdraw their troops, and having in mind the predominantly Italian character of Zone A to relinquish the administration of that zone to the Italian government," the statement said.

Officials said both Yugoslavia and Italy have been informed of the United States and British action. They added that neither Yugoslavia nor Italy is expected to be completely satisfied with the action.

Prices Are Firm On Leaf Market

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee today reported medium and common grades of tobacco still selling at un-heard-of prices with green grades still above $60 and trash grades ranging from $60 to $70 per hundred pounds.

He said that farmers continue to average between $70 and $80 per hundred for their entire sale. He reported the second bill from one warehouse this morning showed Woolard and Woolard of Beaufort County sold 2624 pounds today for $1898.72, an average of $72.36 per hundred. His price for different grades ranged from $51 to $76 per hundred. "This was not fancy tobacco," Whedbee stated.

Whedbee said there was approximately 1,500,000 pounds of tobacco on the floor for today's sale with approximately 2,000,000 pounds expected for Friday.

U.S. Presses For Concrete Reply As To Site, Date Of Meeting Urge Korea Talk Speed-Up

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—The United States sent a four-page message to the Far East Communists today telling them "there can be no reason for your side to refuse to get on with" the Korean peace conference.

The United States again pressed the Peiping and Pyongyang governments to give a concrete reply to the American proposal that the parley meet Oct. 15 in Geneva, Honolulu or San Francisco.

The note, transmitted through the Swedish government, said: "Our side wishes to complete the preliminary arrangements as soon as possible so that the conference can begin on that date or as soon thereafter as practicable."

"The U. S. representative," the message said, "would be prepared to agree on a time and place for a conference and to exchange views looking toward early agreement on procedural, administrative and related questions as to arrangements which it might be appropriate to discuss before the conference begins."

It was not clear from this language whether the preliminary conference would be able to take up the key matter in the impasse—the Communist demand for inviting India and other Asian neutrals to the peace parley.

Today's note repeated that the August U. N. decision for a two-sided belligerents-only conference still stands and argued that it was "entirely reasonable." But it was known, through highly-reliable sources, that discussion of an invitation to India at the preliminary face-to-face talks was not ruled out.

"Our side is prepared to negotiate in all reasonableness and good faith," today's message said. Today's message was the fourth sent to the Reds by the U. S., as a whole.

U. N. diplomats were anxious over the fate of the Korean armistice. The U. S. representative, the message said, "would be prepared to agree on a time and place for a conference and to exchange views looking toward early agreement on procedural, administrative and related questions as to arrangements which it might be appropriate to discuss before the conference begins."

complete building huts for Red "brain washers" in four days or let the Communists finish the job. Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya said in a letter he must know by 10 a. m. Friday (8 o'clock e. d. t. Thursday) whether the United Nations Command was "ready and willing" to finish construction by next Monday.

The buildings, when completed, will be used by Communist "expansionists" who will attempt to lure 25,000 anti-Red North Koreans and Chinese back to their homelands before the Dec. 24 deadline.

Communist authorities have demanded extension of the deadline, but the United Nations Command has refused to permit the talks to be dragged on after the final date fixed in the armistice agreement.

The U. N.'s adherence to armistice terms was believed to be one of the reasons why Thimayya demanded completion of the brain-washing huts so the long-delayed "explanations" can begin.

Even if the UNC accepts the NTRC's ultimatum and makes the facilities available to the Communists next Monday, the Communists will be at a disadvantage.

Observers pointed out that the Reds have lost 30 of the 90 days allotted for "explanations" and must interview 22,500 men, with the Allies have to deal with only 354 recalcitrant prisoners, including 23 Americans who say they don't want to go home.

Thimayya also rejected a UNC claim that the "majority" of the anti-Communist prisoners do not want to return to Red rule.

He also thumbed down a Communist complaint that the Allies had terrorized the Chinese and North Koreans into refusing repatriation.

"The commission is not prepared to work on either of these assumptions," Thimayya said.

Responsible Allied officials meanwhile said the United States has taken no steps to prevent South Korea from freeing the anti-Communist prisoners, even though the Reds have warned that such a move would wreck the truce.

The disclosure followed the UNC's "100 per cent" guarantee to prevent the South Koreans from taking action against Indians charged with guarding the anti-Red prisoners.

At that same time, it was pointed out that South Korea has made no attempt to carry out its threat to release the men.

Decision On Appointment As Labor Secretary Said All But Final Stassen Believed Durkin's Successor

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON (UP)—The United Press Staff Correspondent said today that the decision was all but final at the White House today to make Harold E. Stassen secretary of labor.

There was no firm word on when the appointment would be announced. There could be some delay.

He would succeed President Martin P. Durkin of the AFL-CIO union. Durkin left the Cabinet complaining that President Eisenhower broke a promise in a dispute over amendment of the Taft-Hartley Act.

and decisive presidential ballot, July 11, 1952, at the Republican National Convention.

It was Minnesota's switch of Stassen's 19 votes that put the general over, and the switch was part of a deal made some hours earlier to the effect that Mr. Eisenhower would get the votes if Stassen's feeble chance flickered out.

Political writers predicted that Stassen would have a fat and prominent spot in the Republican administration if Mr. Eisenhower were elected. As FOA director, Stassen has sat with the Cabinet and the National Security Council.

There was considerable opposition from the conservative wing of the party to any reward to Stassen.

Vast Dragnet Established To Track Down Third Man In Greenlease Kidnap-Murder

By CHARLES NETHAWAY
United Press Staff Correspondent
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—A nation-wide dragnet was spread today for a tattooed man accused as the kidnap-killer of little Bobby Greenlease, but police believed they might already have the murderer in the nation's most shocking abduction in a generation.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation launched a cross-country search for Thomas John Marsh, 37, a stocky, blue-eyed man with his name tattooed on his right forearm and a dagger and snake on his left.

Marsh, a "wino" who has served time for molesting children, was accused by the man who engineered the kidnaping—after two years of planning the crime—as the triggerman who put a bullet through the six-year-old child's head.

a Kansas attorney, did the shooting himself.

Hall and his plump girl friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, were being held in a St. Louis jail in lieu of $100,000 bail after being arraigned on a federal charge of extorting $600,000—by far the largest kidnap ransom in history—from the child's 71-year-old millionaire father, Robert Greenlease.

They faced first-degree murder charges in St. Joseph, Mo., where Bobby's brutally beaten body was found Wednesday in a lime-lined grave behind a honeysuckle hedge at Mrs. Heady's home. They were to be moved to Kansas City, scene of the extortion, as soon as papers could be made out. The St. Joseph arraignment was set tentatively for Monday.

Also being held as a material witness, at the request of the FBI, in a private cell here was Sandra O'Druid, 22, a 168-pound blonde prostitute. The FBI imposed secret; only federal officials could see her.

Hall had spent a night with her in St. Louis on a drunken spending spree. Police who arrested him there Tuesday night found $209,972 in his hotel suite. He said the O'Druid woman took the rest while he slept.

He said he gave her $1,000 and told her to leave for California and "mail a letter to a man in St. Joseph." A third version was that he gave her $2,000 or $3,000 but that it might have been more because he was too drunk to know.

The O'Druid woman left St. Louis hurriedly Tuesday morning. She was arrested here, and the FBI drew a veil of secrecy about her.

It's an even bet that he and the woman carried out the kidnaping and murder themselves.

The same official said it was the "consensus of the department" that Hall and Mrs. Heady had the remainder of the money hidden somewhere.

The huge kidnap sum had been hastily gathered together from Federal Reserve banks by Arthur B. Eisenhower, Kansas City banker and brother of President Eisenhower, within two days after Bobby was spirited from an exclusive day school Sept. 28.

At the behest of the frantic father, Eisenhower, vice president of the Commerce Trust Co., one of the city's largest banks, procured 40,000 pieces of money—$200,000 in 10-dollar bills and $400,000 in 20's.

package weighing 85 pounds.

Two business associates of Greenlease, who had maintained contact with Hall by telephone and letter while the police stayed out of the case in hopes of getting Bobby back safely, staged a cloak-and-dagger delivery of the ransom.

They dumped the money off at a bridge on a country route about a mile off U. S. Highway 40 near Kansas City. The bag dropped 40 feet into a perfect hiding place in a heavily wooded section.

The nearest farm house is an eighth of a mile from the bridge. Hall picked up the ransom in the dark hours of Monday morning.

Today, the distraught parents faced the tragic task of identifying the clothes of their son. The ransom money was to be brought here from St. Joseph—the small shoes, shorts, socks, shirt and trousers.

Funeral services for Bobby will be held at St. Agnes Catholic Church here Friday morning. Wednesday, as the news broke of the tragic end of the most horrible kidnaping and murder since that of the infant Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., 21 years ago, Bobby's little schoolmates were in the chapel praying for him.

The day—the Feast of the Most Holy Trinity in the Catholic Church—had been designated as a day of French Institute of Notre Dame de Sion.

The dentist who went to St. Joseph to identify the body, Dr. Hubert Everstull, suffered a heart attack on his return here and is in critical condition.

It was when the examination of the body was made that it was disclosed that Bobby, slain the same day—a week ago Monday—that Mrs. Heady had lured him from the school by a ruse had been beaten.

His abductors struck him in the mouth before they shot him through the back of the head and buried him in the shallow grave, over which they planned flowers. A coroner said two of the child's lower teeth were knocked out, a third loosened, and both lips cut.

Hall's story was that all of this was none of his doing—that he planned the kidnaping, duped Mrs. Heady into posing as the boy's aunt by telling her the child actually was his, and turned him over to Marsh for the trip to St. Joseph. When he arrived there, Hall said, he found the child dead.

He said he buried the boy and brought the murder weapon, a snubnosed revolver which was found in his hotel room, to St. Louis with him on the motor trip to pick up the ransom. Mrs. Heady, once charged with helping in the Oklahoma jail break of the notorious O'Malley gang in the mid-1930's, said she knew nothing about the murder or kidnaping until she read about it in the papers.

Mrs. Spilman Reviews Play Before Chatham Club

Mrs. Luther Bowling was gracious hostess to the Chatham Book Club on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30.

Assisted by Mrs. C. A. Bowen and Mrs. R. W. Stark, the hostess served a delicious salad plate with coffee and cake.

As it was the first meeting of the new year, the president, Mrs. W. P. Moore, welcomed everyone back from summer vacation and expressed the hope that the club was about to embark upon another enjoyable and informative year of study on a variety of subjects.

The roll was checked and only three members found to be absent. The treasurer's report was given, and dues collected. The new books were distributed and the committee commended for their fine selections. Mrs. Bowling presented Mrs. J. B. Spilman who reviewed a current Broadway play.

Mrs. Spilman has recently returned from New York where she attended several plays, among them "Wonderful Town," "Porgy and Bess" and "Picnic" by William Inge to present to the club since it won both the New York Drama Critics Circle Award for 1953 and the Pulitzer Prize.

Mrs. Spilman explained that the author had chosen commonplace people and ordinary situations to weave into a very clever vehicle, which, superbly acted, made a prize winner.

After hearing this splendid review, so ably and interestingly presented, the club could readily agree with Brooks Atkinson that "Picnic" is a dramatic achievement of the first rank. "It is a fluid drama flowing with life—humorous, casual—a real work of art."

Mrs. Gidley Entertains Club At Luncheon

Mrs. Dale Gidley was hostess to the members of the Cosmos Book Club at a luncheon at her home on Eastern Street Tuesday, October 6, at 1 o'clock.

The dining room table was centered with a lovely arrangement of white chrysanthemums. Mixed fall flowers were used throughout the house.

Upon arrival guests were served a delicious luncheon. Mrs. Gidley served individual cakes for the dessert course. Inside a number of the cakes were charms. Each member who received a charm was asked a question by the hostess concerning the Cosmos Club and for all correct answers a prize was given.

The business part of the meeting immediately followed with Mrs. E. E. Rawl Jr., president, presiding. The new books were discussed and distributed. Mrs. K. B. Pace was a guest for the meeting.

Three Hostesses Entertain Club At Dinner

Mrs. Wiley Brown, Mrs. Milton White and Mrs. J. E. Winslow were hostesses to the Ladies of the Round Table at a dinner meeting at the Episcopal parish house Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock.

Lovely arrangements of fall flowers were used throughout the house. Following a delicious turkey dinner Mrs. Winslow introduced Mrs. J.H.B. Moore, guest speaker for the evening. Mrs. Moore, who has recently returned from a six months tour of the Mediterranean and Europe, chose for her subject the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth. Mrs. Moore also gave some very interesting highlights of her cruise of the Mediterranean and Europe.

Mrs. Robert Fountain, chairman of the library committee, passed the new books for the coming year. Guests for the evening were Mrs. J.H.B. Moore and Mrs. Leon Russell.

Somehow that bobbed hair fad doesn't seem to know it's dead. Finishing touches on the golf course of the Country Club is nearing completion. The links, limited to six holes, will have an additional three added, and a larger course is expected to be ready for play sometime this week. Part of the World Series this year will be played in baseball's greatest playground, Yankee Stadium, the first wonder of the baseball world, built on the Bronx side of the Harlem River by the New York American League club at an estimated cost of more than $2,500,000.

Poorer Tobacco Grades Hit Price

RALEIGH (UP)—About two thirds of the grades of tobacco moving on the Eastern North Carolina Belt yesterday averaged lower than on Tuesday.

However, the Federal-State News Service reported small increases in several grades on the Middle Belt, with increases ranging up to $5.50 per hundred for nondescript grades. Poorer quality pulled some grade averages downward. Offerings were light on all but one market. The average price was $52.78, considerably better than Tuesday's seasonal low of $48.97.

Most average prices were steady to slightly higher on the Old Belt. Increases were more numerous for lower quality offerings, but some grades declined. Average prices dropped $3.91 below Monday's average and was the lowest of the season at $50.85.

Prices about in line with Tuesday's quotations were reported on South Carolina and Border North Carolina markets. A few increases of $1 to $2 per hundred showed. General quality was poorer.

Timmonsville, S. C., markets will close Oct. 8. Lake City, S. C., and Whiteville, N. C., will close sales on Oct. 14.

Ship Terrorized By Tiger Escape

OSAKA, Japan (UP)—A 480-pound tiger enroute from the jungles of Thailand to a Tokyo zoo broke loose from his cage, clawed a seaman, killed a dog and terrorized the crew of a Japanese freighter before being delivered to an Osaka importing firm.

Today the importing firm learned the Tokyo zoo wanted a female tiger, not a male.

Commander Forrest will be given a free trip to the 1954 national convention of Veterans of Foreign Wars in Philadelphia. His post was the first in the state to report 100 per cent of its 1953 members secured for 1954.

Following is a list of the teams competing in the membership contest:
Team No. 3—(George Johnson and Bob Carson)—333 points.

Team No. 5—(James Allen and Horace Vincent)—319 points.
Team No. 1—(Malcolm Williams and Larry Averette)—209 points.
Team No. 2—(Sherman Parks and Walter Lewis)—164 points.
Team No. 4—(H. E. Cavendish and J. A. Joyner)—151 points.

Individual members standings are as follows:
James Allen—195 points.
George Johnson—110 points.
Bob Carson—100 points.
Malcolm Williams and Sherman Parks are tied for fourth place with 90 points each.

Financial Problems Said Divorce Cause

By NORMA MOHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (U.P.)—Judge Julius H. Miner, "mender of broken marriages," believes money problems account for more than 60 per cent of divorces.

Sexual incompatibility is "very infinitesimal" in its contribution to broken homes, he said.

Miner, a judge of the Cook County Superior Court, has been credited with saving hundreds of marriages through reconciliations. He is the author of Illinois' new "cooling off" divorce law, which he hopes will help save more marriages.

Financial troubles often lead directly to legal justifications for divorce, Judge Miner said.

It happens this way:
"The man makes just barely enough money to make ends meet. The wife wants a new dress but he can't afford it. She starts to nag. It gets unbearable for him. He hits her. That's cruelty. So she's got grounds for divorce."
"Or maybe money problems lead him to the tavern every night.

That's drunkenness.
Character Plays Part
"Or the man can't face the burden of financial arguments. He leaves home and it's desertion."
"Lack of character" in a wide variety of forms is in second place as a home-breaker, Miner said. In this category he puts "aloofness, selfishness, domination, and callousness."

Other reasons for divorce are only minor, Judge Miner said. "Sex is highly exaggerated. Not even as many as five per cent of divorces can be blamed on bad sex relations," he said.

Differences in religion also have a small role as a home destroyer, Miner said. "If a difference in religion has become so important that it makes the man and wife want a divorce, something much deeper is behind the dispute," Miner said.

60 Days To Consider
Miner's new "cooling off" divorce law went into effect in Illinois courts July 1. A resident of the state who wants a divorce, or a legal separation or annulment, must file a "declaration of intention" to sue with the court clerk and wait 60 days before the action may be entered.

During this period Judge Miner talks to each couple in his chambers, first separately, then to the husband and wife together.

Often he gives them a tongue-lashing.

"I think you're just too arrogant," he told one wife. "You'd better give him another chance. After all, it's not going to be a cinch finding another man who'll want to support those two children."

Miner said 75 per cent of the couples he talks to go back home together to make another try.

Judge Miner has no formula for happy married life. "Mrs. Miner and I have our fights," he told a couple, "but there are the children to think of (the Miners have three) so we just stick it out and soon the argument is forgotten."

Definite Policies: Good News For City

Definite policies toward street paving in Greenville, minimum requirements for subdivisions to be admitted into the corporate limits of the city, and other policies in the making should be good news to Greenville citizens.

Although definite city policies regarding a number of important matters are still in the formative stages, it is encouraging to see that City Manager James S. Hughes and the City Council are going to set up standing policies relative to important matters in the city's development.

In spite of the fact that the city governing boards of the past have set various policies from time to time regarding paving, admissions to the corporate limits of the city and other matters, most of the policy-making was done as the governing board acted on individual matters brought for its consideration.

Very few rigid policies were set regarding those important matters and followed in each and every instance.

In a growing municipality like Greenville, it is necessary to set up and adhere to minimum requirements for areas to be taken into the corporate limits; definite minimum requirements for paving and other similar work. Otherwise, the city finds itself — as Greenville now does to too great an extent — with a great deal of repair work to do on streets, traffic problems where streets are not adequately laid off, and many other problems.

The city manager and the city council are taking a step in the right direction of further long range planning for the city by giving study to definite policies which need to be set.

By working in conjunction with the Planning Board, it should be possible for the City Manager and the Council to come up with a good, sound, modern set of such policies which will mean a great deal to the future development of the city. Such policies, at the same time, should serve to avoid in the future many pressing problems which now confront city officials.

Much To Be Desired In Saturday's Voting

Judging by turn-outs of voters in other counties in North Carolina last Saturday, Pitt County may be prone to do a little boasting about the ballot cast here in the state bond election.

Judged on the basis of its past voting record, however, it is apparent that many Pitt citizens totally neglected their responsibility of good citizenship by not casting a ballot in the referendum.

Less than 2,500 voters cast ballots in Saturday's election. Fortunately those voters were overwhelmingly in favor of the bond issue. But by comparison, a vote of 2,500 people in Pitt last week compares very unfavorably with a vote of more than 12,000 last November.

Many eligible voters have methods all their own of judging which general elections are important enough to bother about casting a vote in, and which ones can be left to the other voters.

More realistically, it must be admitted that any matter which is taken to a vote of the people for decision is of sufficient significance to demand an expression from every conscientious citizen.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
CHILD IMPORTANT

Society pretends to put the child at its center and this of course is sound Christian doctrine.

Yet we might just as well face the fact that we do not put the child at the center of modern life. We put our own selfish love of indulgence, our comfort, our love of money, gaiety, and power at the center of our national life. We point with pride—and rightly so—to our system of public instruction, but we wash our hands of most of the responsibility to be teachers of our children in the home and say, "Let the school do it." We spend hours taxing our children from one place to another, yet probably in an overwhelming majority of American homes little is ever done to instruct a child in the teachings of the Christian faith.

We have taller, heavier, healthier, and more mature children in the United States and Canada today than at any time during the history of these nations. But many a parent, if he or she faced reality, would have to admit that the child is not at the center of modern life. If the child were at the center, then the things at the center of the child's existence, namely, the things having eternal spiritual significance, would come in for first consideration.

National Whirligig

FBI Chief May Be Called On

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has placed indirect blame for failing to fire known or suspected Communist front key Government posts on former President Harry S. Truman and three former attorneys—Francis Biddle of Philadelphia, Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark of Texas and J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, former Democratic National Chairman.

As usual, Senator "Joe" McCarthy, of Wisconsin, has a leading role in this new act in the drama that really began with the expose, indictment and conviction of Alger Hiss. As a result of his prolonged and persistent investigation of alleged Moscow agents or sympathizers inside and outside the Government, McCarthy has been accused by hostile critics of being a headline seeker.

CRITICS' OPINIONS—He has been told to his face that there was no need for three simultaneous investigations of Soviet espionage in the United States — his, the Jenner and the Velde inquiries. It has been argued, again in his presence, that the task could be performed more efficiently and quite as effectively by the heads of Federal agencies in which the subversive individuals or groups were serving.

In other words, according to this critical viewpoint, he should turn over the job to the so-called Presidential "loyalty boards." Finally, it was suggested that the Senator and his like-minded colleagues were casting aspersions on the ability and vigilance of J. Edgar and his staff of sleuths.

It was then that McCarthy exploded with repercussions that will re-echo when the McCarthy, Jenner and Velde groups resume their digging after Congress returns in January. It is almost a certainty that the three committees will stage a race to place J. Edgar on the stand and get from him the lowdown on basic responsibility for the Red influx.

HOOPER PRAISED SENATOR—According to Senator McCarthy, who has been praised highly by Hoover as a result of their close association in the pursuit of Reds, the FBI Director always notified the heads of executive departments, commissions and other agencies when he had assembled evidence against employees or applicants for a position. Although Hoover cannot hire or fire outside his own office, he can give advice and information after investigation. That is part of his job.

McCarthy says that Hoover's warnings were neglected time and time again—in fact, almost invariably during the Truman Administration. Even after he and his undercover agents, including FBI men who risked their lives to join Communist cells, had turned their unquestioned proof over to Cabinet members and the chairmen of the alphabetical agencies, the suspects were retained.

In many instances, they were promoted or transferred to more important and strategic positions. Hiss himself is the most notorious example of this strange practice.

WHAT IS INCONCEIVABLE—Now, it is inconceivable that Hoover, a Department of Justice subordinate, would forward such a grave warning without consulting his immediate superior, one or the other of the A.G.'s mentioned above. And it is also inconceivable that the nation's top legal officials did not relay their information at Cabinet meetings, or in their private conferences with former President Truman.

If Hoover did not inform his superiors of his findings, he was derelict in his duty. In fact, it could be charged that he was insubordinate. If the three Attorney Generals, in turn, did not notify the President, who is also the Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces, they were equally derelict and primarily responsible for the incalculable damage which the Reds in Government service did to the United States.

If and when any of the three committees place Hoover on the witness stand, they may get from him a story that will rank with Whittaker Chambers' expose of Hiss and his Communist pals at Washington.

But We're So Very Busy

Somebody Told Me

Now It's The Buyers' Turn

Salesmanship is an explosive subject. Some months ago I wrote a column about Greenville's salespeople, quoting a Winterville reader. Repercussions came from every direction.

Last week I wrote a column on traveling salesmen, typing the ones who call on our business houses, and set off another chain reaction. All are in defense of the traveling salesman.

Yesterday it was a salesman's wife who wanted a hearing on the other side of the story: the buyer's attitude. After hearing her story I had to admit that her point was well made.

"Many buyers just let a salesman stand around for an hour or so without even giving him a hearing," she said. "I know, because I've traveled with my husband."

She went on to say, "One executive I know in a large department store once told his salespeople, 'Don't send any salesman back to my office, I don't care who they are.'"

It boils down to simply this: If you aren't going to buy the least you can do is save the man's time by telling him so. "I'd like to show you our program," they tell us at the store.

"We'd be glad to look as time allows between customers," we say, "but frankly I think you're wasting your time. We have been buying the other brand for years, get good service and have excellent customer acceptance. We see no reason for changing."

After hearing that, spoken in friendly, even tones, no salesman can be offended. Some fold, but others are interested in showing us the product just in case we might ever be interested. All seem to appreciate our frankness.

Many times you can save a salesman grief by suggesting that he go ahead and make his other calls, explaining that you don't have time for him at the moment but perhaps will later.

The original column I wrote typing salesmen still holds in my opinion. Many of them fail to fulfill their promises. But admittedly, this lady has a point: the average buyer's attitude could be improved on.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

NORTH CAROLINIANS WORK A MARVEL
(Herald County Herald)

The section and county have joined the rest of the state in overwhelmingly approving the issuance of 72 million in school and mental health bonds. The vote here, as everywhere, was light, but perhaps that is as good a sign as the over-whelming approval. The general consensus of opinion about folks who stay away from the polls is that they are satisfied that the vote will be favorable.

North Carolinians are developing a sense of duty to their schools and other agencies of government service that serve to lift up the State's people mentally and economically. There were no great howls of financial anguish when the idea of issuing the school and health bonds came up. This despite the fact that the bill to allow the referendum came out of a legislature that was at least the most "conservative" in the past six years. Certainly many were not deliriously happy over the idea, but most saw the necessity and the urgency, and put people and services ahead of finances. The heartening way the people as a whole gave approval to the issuance of the bonds should be a sign to all that the people of the state have no qualms when a needed program is at stake.

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot was marveling editorially the other day about the fact that "those liberal North Carolinians" were going to get a chance to vote on the issuance of 72 million in bonds.

Political Significance Appraised In Return Of Waynick

POLITICS—There have been some very significant political developments in North Carolina during the past few weeks, some of which may have not been accorded adequate consideration by either the politicians or the political commentators. One such instance is the return of Capus M. Waynick to North Carolina.

Waynick's most recent assignment was United States ambassador to Columbia. He had been ambassador to Nicaragua, from which post he was called by President Truman to set up and organize the Point IV plan in the overall international cooperative support program. Before his appointment as ambassador and his assignment to the Point IV job, he had served as associate manager for Kerr Scott's successful campaign for Governor in 1948, and earlier than that he had been State senator, director of purchase and contract and chairman of the Highway and Public Works Commission and had served in other important government and quasi-governmental positions. And he had a fine record as editor of the High Point Enterprise.

Political gossip during the past weeks has been generally along the lines that having been so closely identified with the Scott gubernatorial campaign in 1948 he is likely now to take over management of the Scott for Senate campaign.

The fact is that Waynick has made no commitment as to where he will be in the upcoming campaign. He is credited with ambitions to be Governor or Senator in his own right. To borrow an expression from the society columns he is said to be tired of being always a bridesmaid and never a bride.

He may sit out the current "dance" or he may throw his

Trade Stamp Study

By ELMER ROESSNER

The economics of trading stamps are critically examined in a study by Paul M. Sears, of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of New Mexico. Trading stamp plans are riding a wave of enthusiasm in Albuquerque, seat of the university, and other parts of the southwest.

Stamp plans, Mr. Sears notes, are simple, at least on paper. Retailers usually pay $15 for 5,000 stamps and give one with every 10 cents worth of purchase. Thus, they cost the merchant 3 per cent of his gross business. Under some plans the costs are only 2 to 2½ per cent, and costs can be reduced further by giving stamps only on request. Sometimes the cost of handling them such as slowing up checking counters—is a factor. Some merchants, Mr. Sears found, raise the price of their goods to cover the cost of the stamps.

The customers turn in books of stamps, usually representing a total of $120 in purchases, for articles at a redemption center. The books have a purchasing power of, roughly, $2 to $2.50, giving the shopper 1.67 to 2 per cent of her spending.

In summary, Mr. Sears says, "Trading stamps evidently create no useful product. They probably do entice people to save who otherwise might fritter their money away. But in the tedious process of selling, saving and redeeming stamps, so much time and effort is wasted, and so much cost is thereby added to the final transaction, that stamps appear to be an expensive way to save."

"Stamps in many cases increase the merchant's business and, if he is enterprising, this may be in large part a permanent gain. Whether the stamps benefit all or

Ernie Pyle Far From Forgotten

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) Ernie Pyle lives on.

The din of the second World War is dying in the distance of time, as the world wheels on to fresh woes and wars and new truces. Many of the heroes of the great conflict are slowly being forgotten.

But Ernie Pyle, the man, has become a legend, and the years have put no tarnish on the luster of his name and fame. People in thousands of homes across America still cherish scrapbooks in which they pasted his stories, and they still get them out and read them.

Why are they so loyal to him eight years after his death? I think it is because he was so loyal to them, and their sons, brothers, fathers or sweethearts in uniform during his lifetime. He was the greatest typewriter tourist guide in history. Nobody before him or since has ever been able to take the home folks by the heart and lead them up to the front to realize the hell their loved ones were going through.

In a National Newspaper Week ceremony Monday they put up a plaque at his old school, Indiana University, in his memory. Ernie became the ninth of America's famous newspapermen so honored by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity.

His old friend, Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley, paid him tribute in the main address, and Ernie would have liked that. But if Pyle, the little man who wasn't there, could have heard the praise he would probably have chuckled later in the general's ear, "Brad, you're never going to get anywhere until you pull yourself together and learn to quit telling such whoppers."

For Ernie wouldn't have been able to keep his elfin face sober at the ceremony, particularly a ceremony honoring himself. He always thought people managed to make themselves look ridiculous on solemn occasions—like bears riding bicycles. Yet he had a vast sense of the true dignity of man. For all his fun and warmth and sympathy, his own skinny 112-pound frame had an unshakable dignity, and all you had to do was to see the purpose in his blue eyes to be aware of it. And that gave the real power to his writing.

Ernie Pyle wasn't the first reporter to make a hero of the infantryman. He did much more than that. He was the first to make the nation aware of the immortal dignity of the doughboy, who on every battlefield keeps the stature of a man in the face of the indignities of danger, dirt and death, hunger and hardship.

To Ernie the infantryman wasn't a hero because he fought and killed the enemy. He was a high-er hero, one who endured suffering that would deprive an animal and yet remained a human being, still moved by love and pity and charity.

That made the doughboy a figure of awesome grandeur to Ernie, and that is Ernie's greatest legacy—that he was able to make America realize the spiritual height of the soldier in combat. And as he suffered with them, he became taller, too.

To the job of war reporting Ernest Taylor Pyle gave his health, his hope of a happy home, his dream of ultimate personal peace, and finally at 44 his life. Whether, if he had it to do all over again, he would take the same path I don't know. I'd guess yes. But anyone who wants to know what war is really like can do no better today than go to his books-or go to war. Nobody ever told it better or more honestly.

A young lady who wants to become a newspaperman asked me, "Everybody says what a wonderful guy Ernie Pyle was. What did he have, anyway?"

I didn't know where to begin. You can't wrap Ernie in a phrase. "Well, he had many things." I finally told her, "But I think his greatest gift was understanding. He was lonely, and knew everybody else in the word was lonely, in the same way, and somehow he was able to communicate this feeling that he understood them, and therefore everybody felt he was a friend."

Even in his grave they still do.

Pitt County Fair Opens Its Gates Monday Afternoon

BY CHESTER WALSH
The Pitt County Agricultural Fair opens at the "Pitt Grounds" near the Greenville airfield next Monday, afternoon, October 12, at 4 o'clock. It will continue through Saturday night.

The Ayden, Farmville and Greenville American Legion posts sponsor the fair. Its slogan is "Pitt County on Parade." This will be Norman Y. Chambliss' fifth year as manager of the annual event.

The fair is offering this year $3,500 in premiums and all exhibits will be made by Pitt Counties. All exhibits will remain intact until Saturday night.

Premiums will be paid to all exhibitors Friday afternoon, October 16, except junior exhibitors of swine and livestock.

Miss Martha Forrest is again entry clerk. She will be in the main exhibit building, W. Connor Eagles of Greenville is general supervisor of exhibits.

The junior pure bred livestock show exhibitors will receive their checks and awards at a Chamber of Commerce Banquet for the 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America boys and their dads at Repess Brothers barbecue place Wednesday night, October 14, at 7 o'clock.

"One of the big features of the Pitt County Fair this year will be the tobacco exhibit—a display of Pitt County tobacco that would win first prize at the North Carolina State Fair," Manager Chambliss stated.

Prell's Broadway Shows, which appeared at the Pitt County fairs in 1948, 1949 and 1950, will play a return engagement here. The shows consist of 22 modern riding devices and 10 up-to-date shows, and clean concessions, Chambliss stated.

There will be a free high act at the fair daily at 4:30 and 9 p. m. when the Les Geraldos appear in thrilling feats. There will be fireworks nightly at 9:30.

Manager Chambliss said there will be adequate parking space near the Fair Grounds and inside the park.

Special days for Greenville and Pitt county school children will be announced later.

President J. Howard Moyer and the Executive Committee handle all business details of the fair. The committee members are J. T. Frank Taylor, W. T. Kyzer, W. C. Eagles, all of Greenville; State Senator Paul E. Jones of Farmville, and C. E.

Hart of Ayden. Chambliss said he is receiving 100 per cent cooperation from the county agents, S. C. Winchester, S. J. Weeks and C. J. Goodman; Mrs. Sue Brickhouse May, home demonstration agent and the county vocational teachers and others.

He said James M. Goode, Negro county farm agent, and Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Negro home demonstration agent and others in that department are giving splendid cooperation at the fair.

Sec. McKay Will Tour Tidelands

LAFAYETTE, La. (UP) — Interior Secretary Douglas McKay planned to make an aerial tour of Louisiana tidelands today after promising oil leaders the government will deal justly despite "give away" charges.

McKay, who reaffirmed the administration's stand on the tidelands issue, planned to inspect offshore drilling operations in a tidelands area south of here.

In a speech before oil industry leaders last night he said the government will "handle this problem honestly and with justice" without being disturbed by the "usual charges" of "give away."

"I am sure the people understand the only thing we are trying to do is to restore to them their own share in management of their own affairs," he said.

The "primary concern" of the Interior Department, he said, is the management of the continental shelf and the "rights and privileges" of Louisiana and other coastal states.

Admits Title Of Dept. Is Lengthy

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby admitted today the title of her "Department of Health, Education, and Welfare" is somewhat breathtaking.

She said she once had suggested it be called "Department of General Welfare," but the late Sen. Robert A. Taft objected on the grounds "that's what I've been trying to get away from." So the long title stuck.

Bullock-James Vows Spoken In Candlelight Ceremony

In a candlelight ceremony Friday evening, September 25, at 8 o'clock, Miss Barbara Ann James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. James Jr. of Bethel, Route 3, became the bride of Howard C. Bullock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bullock of Greenville.

Rev. William Clifton of Greenville officiated using the double ring ceremony in the presence of all the immediate families and a few close friends.

For her wedding the bride wore a blue suit with navy accessories. Her flower was a purple throated white orchid.

The living room was decorated with greenery and white gladioli. On the mantel was English ivy and burning white candles.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride's parents entertained informally at a reception. The dining room table was covered with a Madeira cloth, centered with a bridal arrangement of white asters, white pom poms and fern. In crystal holders were white burning candles.

At one end of the table was a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, which was served after the bridal couple had cut the first slice, by Mrs. Alice James Teel, aunt of the bride. At the opposite end, Mrs. Mayo J. Rogers, aunt of the bride, presided over the punch bowl.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Bullock left for a wedding trip to the western part of North Carolina.

Mrs. Bullock graduated from Stokes High School in 1953.

Mr. Bullock attended Greenville City Schools and graduated from Bevoir in 1953. He holds a position with the DuPont plant near Kingston.

On their return they will make their home on Route 3, Bethel.

Panic Prevention Also Important, Says Fire Chief

This is National Fire Prevention Week, but Fire Chief George Gardner has a better name for it. Gardner today said that much is said yearly about fire prevention, which is well and good, but now it is time for something as important or more so, that being Panic Prevention, and the saving of lives.

"Whenever large crowds gather we have the potential hazard for a panic such as have claimed hundreds of lives in other parts of the country and world," While the disasters have been very remote, it could happen at any time, provided we have not prepared for such an emergency in advance, Gardner said.

"The basic rule for safe escape from a building in the event of fire or some other disaster, such as a storm, is to form a mental picture of the exits from which you can leave the building in the event of need," the Fire Chief pointed out.

"This rule should apply not only schools, public building, movies, but to hotels and even your own homes.

"It is common custom for untrained persons to make a mad rush for the doors by which they entered, thus putting all of the occupants at one or two exits.

"Another rule to remember, is in the event of a fire, remain seated, until you can pick out a clear route to an exit and not run the risk of being trampled to death by the crowd.

"Always carry a good flashlight when traveling and you will have a source of light to see by in the event of an emergency and you must travel over unfamiliar rooms and halls.

"When staying in hotels, rooming houses and such, check to find where the nearest fire escapes are located.

"Two means of escape from a building should be known at all times, in the event that one might be blocked."

In the more recent disasters, more lives have been lost by panic than by fire itself, Gardner pointed out.

Gardner pointed out that the regular fire drills held by the city schools teach children how to conduct themselves in the event of a fire. They practice with blocked exits and thus know how to overcome panic.

"I would like to congratulate the city school facilities for the fine work which they have done in preparing the school population for any emergency," Gardner stated.

Lost Stradivarius Found In Washington Music Shop

(Editor's note: Mrs. Thomas Crosthwaite mentioned below is the former Mary Moyer Savage of Greenville.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A "lost" Stradivarius that may be worth a fabulous price to a collector has turned up here at the shop of Willis M. Gault, 606 Fourteenth St. NW.

The violin, sent here from Hong Kong, is the only one made by Antonio Stradivari which departs from the usual form of the violin.

It is made in the shape of a guitar and is believed by some experts to have been the model for the rounded violins made by the Elder Chanot of France.

The violin has been certified as a Stradivarius by William E. Hill and Sons, of New Bond St. London, the world's foremost authorities on such instruments, Gault said. Even without the Hill certificate, however, Gault added, any violin expert can tell the instrument was made by the famed violin maker of Cremona, Italy. Since the instrument is not included in the latest list of 619 Strads known to be in existence, it must be classified as a "lost" instrument that has turned up again, Gault said.

Violin on Display
The violin is owned by John V. Braga, who is with the China Light and Power Co., Ltd., of Hong Kong. It was sent by Braga to Mrs. Thomas Crosthwaite, 3753 Kanawha St. NW, thru her husband, who is a stockbroker in Hong Kong. Mrs. Crosthwaite is an employee of the National Capital Planning Commission.

The violin is now on display to musicians and collectors at Gault's shop.

The violin was described by Gault and other experts, including R. B. Bierly of 6411 Colesville Rd., University Park, as having the fullest tone of any instrument they ever heard. The added resonance is due to the lack of corners in the base of the instrument.

Too Many Songs For The Society

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UP)—The East London Caledonian Society has decided to sing only "Auld Lane Syne" at the close of its meetings.

The Scottish group stopped singing "God Save the Queen" and the Afrikaans "Die Stem" because three national anthems are too many to sing at the close of a meeting.

Gault said the value of the instrument was "relative." The fact it is the only guitar-shaped Strad known to exist may add or detract from its value to a collector, he said.

Violins made by Stradivarius have sold from a few thousand dollars to more than $75,000.

History Traced
In its certificate of authenticity, the Hill company stated its experts believe the violin was made about 1726. They have been able to trace its history from the present back to the year 1859. The owners and whereabouts of the violin for the preceding 133 years are unknown.

Pirates Prepare For Homecoming With Long Session

Deacons And Carolina Should Please Fans

By ED GOINS
United Press Sports Writer
RALEIGH (UP)—Followers of Wake Forest and the University of North Carolina should get a better idea Saturday of the relative strength of the two teams.

The Deacons were upset in the opening game by William and Mary but only by two points. They lost to Duke by three touchdowns. But Duke is ranked as one of the ten best teams in the nation. Then, last week, they appeared to be on the comeback trail by beating Villanova by one touchdown.

North Carolina, on the other hand, has two victories. The Tar Heels were three touchdowns better than North Carolina State, and they ran roughshod over Washington and Lee to the tune of 39-0. But neither State nor W&L are considered great football powers this year.

Coach George Barclay must be cooking up some new magic to use against the Deacons. He took his squad into Kenan Stadium yesterday and locked the doors to all comers. It was the third "highly secret" workout this week.

Barclay did say, however, after Tuesday's private session that guards Miles Gregory and Chris Carpenter will be used Saturday. Also quarterback Albert Long is expected to be back in action. The only regular still on the injured list is center Bill Kirkman who has two broken bones in his left hand.

Meanwhile, coach Jim Tatum was warning his Maryland Terps that they will face some top grid talent when they go against Georgia. However there was an encouraging note in the Maryland camp in that Tom Breunich, who was hurt in the Clemson game, and worked out with the team and apparently was in condition to go against the Bulldogs.

Clemson worked on signal drills and covering and receiving kickoffs in a final workout before departing for a Friday night game with the Miami (Fla) Hurricanes. Coach Frank Howard said Don King and Gressette will be on the 39-man squad but that both will probably see only limited action.

In other practice sessions, Duke continued to work out for Purdue, N. C. State for Davidson and South Carolina for Furman.

Stanley And King Running Well In Offensive Drills

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor
The East Carolina College Pirates banged out another long offensive, drills yesterday with only two squad members looking on because of injuries.

Halfbacks Harold O'Kelly and Ted Barnes were the two injured players who had to watch the second straight day of heavy scrimmage. O'Kelly has a side injury, suffered last week against Catawba, and Barnes is still out with a shoulder injury, a relic of the Bucs' 34-0 victory over Lenoir-Rhyne two weeks ago.

One bright spot in the long workout yesterday was the return of veteran center Gailther Cline to full-time work. Cline has missed all heavy work this year because of a summer operation that has been slowly healing. He was the top offensive center on the 1952 team and his return gives the Pirates three top-flight centers when he is put with Louis Hallow, the present starter, and Waverly Chesson, presently the number two man.

In yesterday's workout, fullback Claude King and halfback Jim Stanley both ran well. Stanley has been alternating in the first team backfield in practice this week and is expected to see more action Saturday night against Elon in the Pirates' annual Homecoming Game. King is the first-team fullback although Bubber Matthews and John Daughtry both continue to look good in practice work.

One freshman lineman continued the rise he has been making and is expected to see more action than usual this week. He is tackle Charles Smith of Fairmont who has been looking good in defensive work against the first-team backs.

Tickets for the Homecoming game are still available although a full house is expected for the Saturday night contest. Ticket information can be obtained by contacting the Athletic Office at the college.

Phantoms Work On Defense For Game With Mount Airy

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
In yesterday's scrimmage sessions, Coach Bill Kittrell set up defensive plans for the Greenville Phantoms game with Mount Airy tomorrow night. The drills yesterday concluded the rough work for the contest with the Western team.

Two Phantoms are counted out of action in the game. Halfback James Speight and second-team fullback Billy Sermons are both sidelined with injuries received earlier.

Four other Phantoms who have been on the injured list have recovered and will be at near-top strength for the contest. They are fullback Bob Langston, halfback Bob Howell, guard Thomas Whitaker, and quarterback Pat Sawyer.

George Sideris, Bobby Nunn, and Pat Sawyer will handle the quarterbacking with Langston back at his old post at fullback.

The remainder of the line-up will probably have Harold Edwards and Bobby Conway at the ends, Dixie Hogood at one of the tackle slots, Thomas Whitaker and Billy Arnold at the guards, and either Billy Johnson or Sam Winchester at center. One tackle starter has not been decided as yet although Gene Hudson and Howard King are the leading candidates. Both have looked good in practice sessions.

The Phantom defense, which has limited the opposition to an average of 85 yards rushing per game, must be at top strength for the Granteers who are noted for their crushing single-wing power. The single-wing was enough last year to turn back the Phantoms 20-6 in a game played in College Stadium.

The Phantoms will leave for Mount Airy tomorrow at 7 o'clock. They will spend the night in Mount Airy and return home Saturday. On their way home they will stop in Durham to see the intersectional football game between the Blue Devils of Duke University and the Boilermakers of Purdue University.

Correction

Guard Jerry Phillips and tackle Tommy Smith will be returned to the Greenville High School football squad following the Mount Airy game tomorrow night.

In an article printed in Tuesday's edition of The Reflector it was said that neither Phillips nor Smith would be permitted to return to the team after being suspended by Coach Bill Kittrell. This was an error and The Reflector Sports Department is happy to make the correction.

Odds-Men Rating Big Games Close

NEW YORK (UP)—College football should present some evenly-matched games this weekend, in the opinion of the odds-makers.

Three contests are rated even and four other games list one-point favorites in the prices released by a Minneapolis publication which sizes up the games each week.

The "pick 'em" affairs include a nationally-televised meeting between Oklahoma and Texas at Dallas, Tex., Saturday. Other rated as even are California at Pennsylvania and Marquette at Indiana.

The one-point favorites are Kansas over Colorado, Northwestern over Minnesota, Oregon over Washington State, and Texas A & M over Texas Tech.

Notre Dame, the nation's No. 1 team, is idle this week, but second-ranked Michigan State is expected to remain on the Irish heels, being quoted as a 21-point choice over Texas Christian.

UCLA, ranked third nationally, is a 13-point choice over Wisconsin in their intersectional meeting at Los Angeles Friday night. In other Friday night contests, Miami (Fla.) is six over Clemson, Southern Methodist is six over Missouri and Houston is 13 over Detroit.

Saturday's intersectional games find Duke quoted a seven-point favorite over Purdue, Pitt 13 over Nebraska and Alabama 20 over Tulsa.

Here is how other Saturday games shaped up, by sections:

East: Harvard 6 over Colgate; Syracuse 6 over Fordham; Penn State 7 over Boston University; Navy 13 over Cornell; Yale 13 over Columbia; Army 20 over Dartmouth.

Midwest: Kansas State 7 over Iowa State; Michigan 13 over Iowa; Ohio State 14 over Illinois.

South: North Carolina 6 over Wake Forest; Mississippi State 7 over Auburn; Mississippi 7 over Vanderbilt; Georgia Tech 7 over Tulane; Maryland 13 over Georgia; Louisiana State 14 over Kentucky.

Southwest: Baylor 13 over Arkansas.

Far West: Southern California 13 over Washington; Stanford 19 over Oregon State; Utah 14 over Utah State; Wyoming 6 over Colorado A&M.

In the only Sunday game listed, Villanova was favored by six over Boston College.

Sensational Sophs Showing Heels To Rest Of Nation

NEW YORK (UP)—Soph sensations Joe Uhm of San Jose State and Joe Mastrogianni are showing their heels to the rest of the nation's football stars as far as individual records are concerned.

Uhm, a 190-pound fullback, is off to the most amazing scoring start in modern collegiate history, according to official statistics released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

The San Jose State ace has reeled off 10 of his first 13 touchdowns in their first three games to leave the rest of the field far behind in the scoring race. At his present pace, he would far outstrip the total of 18 touchdowns that Billy Vessels of Oklahoma scored in 10 games last year to lead the nation and would shatter the all-time season record of 26 TD's set by Jim Leech of Virginia Military in 1920.

Uhm "hit paydirt" three times in the opening 34-6 win over Idaho, scored all four of San Jose's touchdowns in the 28-25 victory over Brigham Young, and three in last Saturday's 27-21 triumph over Fresno State.

Bob Watkins of Ohio State leads Uhm's pursuit with 36 points on six touchdowns, four of them against California. Jack Parker of Mississippi State last year's top scorer and Mastrogianni are tied at 32 and Ralph Cecere of Villanova, Frank Branham of Utah, and Johnny Mapp of Virginia Military have 30 points each.

Mastrogianni clung to his ranking as the top individual yardage gainer when he ran and passed for 128 yards against Utah State on Saturday to run his three-game total to 458 yards. With a total of 243 yards gained rushing, he also took over first place in that department.

Paul Larson, who gained 231 yards for California in last week's televised loss to Ohio State, soared up the rankings to take second place in total yardage with 434. In third place was Sandy Lederman of Washington with 403 yards.

Lederman is the nation's top passer, completing 32 passes for 393 yards, but figures being best on the country. Ken Buck of College of the Pacific ranks as the top pass-catcher, having nabbed 22 passes in three games, more than twice the total of his nearest rival.

Sammy Morrow of Texas Christian ranks as the top punter, having averaged 51.6 yards on his five punts in two games.

Yankees, Bums Rewarded With Rich Series Shares

NEW YORK (UP)—The world champion New York Yankees were rewarded today for their latest World Series triumph with the fattest pay check in series history, while the fosing Dodgers were consoling with a losers' check that almost equaled the previous record for a winner.

The Office of Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick revealed that the Yankees split up a pot of $390,563.48, while the Dodgers sliced up $193,575.65.

The total players pool, including the amounts going to the Yanks and Dodgers and the much lesser sums going to the second, third, and fourth place teams in each league was a record $691,341.61. The reasons for the new mark were threefold: (1) Jam-packed crowds at each of the first four games, which are the only ones the players share in; (2) increases in ticket prices; and (3) $83,000 from pre-game television.

What each player received as his share of this pot was determined by a player vote held before the series began.

The Yankees voted 29 full shares, plus 16 fractional shares. A full share was worth a record $8,280.68. The Dodgers also voted 29 full shares, worth in this case $6,178.42 each, plus six smaller shares.

Each team remembered players who were with the team part of the season but were gone by series time, and the Dodgers even voted a flat $500 to pitcher Don Newcombe, their big star who is in the Army. Yankees Bobby Brown and Tom Morgan, also in service, did not receive anything from the Yankees.

Here are the fractional shares voted by each team:

Yankees: Three-quarter shares ($6,210.50)—pitcher Billy Miller, infielder Willie Miranda, and clubhouse man Peter Sheehy; two-third share ($5,520.44)—pitcher Art Schallack; half-share ($4,140.34)—Pitcher Ewell Blackwell (retired), pitcher Steve Kraly and catcher Gus Triandos; one-third share ($2,760.21)—pitcher Jim Brideweser (sent to minors), outfielder Art Schult (sent to minors), infielder Jerry Coleman (played one month after returning from service); one-quarter share ($2,070.17)—clubhouse man Pete Previte; also: $1,500 to groundskeeper Walter Owen; $500 each to outfielder Bob Cerv (sent to minors) and Frank Verdi (sent to minors); $400 each to batboys James Carrieri and I. Manzideli.

Dodgers: Three-quarter share ($4,633.81)—outfielder Dick Williams; half-shares ($3,089.22)—batboy Charles DiGiovanna and clubhouse man John Griffin; quarter-share—pitcher Erv Falcha and Ralph Branca (traded to Detroit); $500 to pitcher Don Newcombe (in service).

The Yankees' and Dodgers' shares accounted for 70 per cent of the players' pool. The remaining 30 per cent went to the second, third, and fourth-place teams in each league.

The second-place Indians and Braves each split 7.5 per cent, amount to $51,850.62 for each team. The White Sox received five per cent, $34,567.08. The fourth-place Red Sox received $17,283.54. The Phillies and Cardinals, who tied for fourth place in the National League, each received $26,525.81.

Full winning Yankee shares went to—Hank Bauer, Yogi Berra, Don Bollweg, Andy Carey, Joe Collins, Whitey Ford, Tom Gorman, Bob Kuzava, Ed Lopat, Mickey Mantle, Billy Martin, Jim McDonald, Gil McDougald, Johnny Mize, Irv Noren, Vic Raschi, Bill Renna, Allie Reynolds, Phil Rizzuto, Johnny Sain, Charley Silvera, Gene Woodling, Manager Casey Stengel, coaches Frank Crossetti, Bill Dickey, Ralph Houk, and Jim Turner; trainer Gus Mauch; and traveling secretary Bill McCorry.

Dressen, Noren Fined $100 For Series Outbursts

NEW YORK (UP)—When Dodger Manager Charley Dressen and Yankee outfielder Irv Noren open their World Series pay checks, they'll find $100 missing.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick disclosed today that he has fined each man that sum as a result of separate outbursts during the series—Dressen for a fourth-game incident and Noren for a sixth-game incident.

Dressen was fined for arguing loud and long when plate umpire Art Gore ruled that Phil Rizzuto had fouled-pitched a two-strike pitch. Noren was penalized for waving a towel from the Yankee dugout to protest an official scorer's decision that gave Junior Gilliam of the Dodgers an error on Billy Martin's first-inning grounder, instead of giving Martin a hit.

Frick also said that he had not issued any special sentence order to either Dressen or Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees re-

Sande Rides Again

NEW YORK (UP)—Earl Sande, $100 richer since he launched his riding comeback Monday, will pilot Hirsch Jacobs' Hy-Sue in the first race today at Belmont Park.

The 54-year-old jockey great, still hunting, his first comeback victory, has accepted four mounts thus far this week at $25 a mount. All have been lossshots.

Sande finished 10th with Saflo, a 12 to 1 shot, in Wednesday's opening dash at Belmont and wound up fifth with Zig Away, a 7 to 1 pick, in the fourth event.

garding their series dealings with umpires. And he defended the barring of the press from dressing rooms for five minutes after each game as a "cooling off period" in which the players could blow off steam.

Eppes Vs. Oxford

Eppes High School will take on a new opponent Friday night when they play Mary Potter High School of Oxford.

The Eppes Bulldogs have played three games this season and have been defeated in as many encounters, but Head Coach Daniels says that the spirit of his team is still high and believes that Friday night will mark the change in the scoring column.

The team has experienced no injuries of importance in its last two games, therefore, should be ready to stop Mary Potter. This is a conference game.

New electric utility plants to be built in the United States by 1956 will consume 46 million tons of coal annually.

RUNNERS REPORT

CHAPEL HILL—Members of the University of North Carolina cross country team reported to Coach Dale Ransom recently to start training for the coming season. After being floored by the polo cancellations early last year, the Tar Heels finished strong and are looking for a winning record this fall.

Red Heads Don't Cry

By ROY L. FOLEY

SYNOPSIS

Phil Stanley, popular young socialite bachelor, had fallen in love with Nancy Kelly, his attorney's keen-witted, red-headed secretary. He'd taken her about, introduced her to his friends, including Linda Vaa Vile, a brunette beauty who'd long ago set her cap for Phil. At home tonight, we find Nancy busily typing extra copies of an important, confidential document which will figure in a law suit pending against the Stanley Construction Company, owned by Phil Stanley's high and mighty kin. On checking her work next morning, Nancy finds one of the copies missing and is gravely alarmed. It could be a dangerous weapon in the opposition's hands. Sam Sykes, her brother-in-law, whom she dislikes and distrusts had been in the room with her while she worked and so had Dave Armstrong, a would-be suitor for Miss Kelly's hand. Later that week Nancy accepts Stanley's invitation to go ice-boating with him. A sudden storm wrecks their little craft, leaving them marooned together over night, in a snow-bound cottage remote from all communication.

CHAPTER TEN

NANCY KELLY heard the words telling her she couldn't call home and fear clutched her heart. Her mother would be frantic if the night passed and she didn't come home. Lucy Wardle was the only soul in the world who knew where Nancy was. By now Lucy would have told that white lie. If Nancy didn't come home that night the white lie would be turned into a black one. Nancy would be disgraced in her mother's estimation and she herself would be remorseful for having deceived Mother Kelly.

"Oh Phil, but we must. We've got to get out of here, somehow, this—is this terrible."

"What's so terrible about it? I think—"

His words were lost in a new onslaught of screaming wind. A pine knot in the fireplace sizzled, then snapped like a pistol shot. Nancy jumped.

Her fright seemed a huge joke to Phil.

He laughed and grasped her hands in his. He looked down to her feet three times. His hands were warm and strong. Their warmth and strength seemed to pour into Nancy's cold ones like a stream of fire in that instant before she tried to pull herself free of his grasp. Her effort was useless. He tightened his grip. She might as well have tried to release herself from handcuffs.

"Let me go, please. Please, can't you get to a neighbor's, isn't there a caretaker or someone?"

"There isn't a neighbor for miles. There is no caretaker. Would you have a fellow go out and die in the drifts, and have you stay here alone and starve to death—or something?"

He was facing the fire. The flames were dancing like imps in his dark eyes. He released one of her hands.

"But it won't ever be said of Phil Stanley that he wouldn't try. Come on."

He led her across the big room and into the hall. A little mountain of snow whipped beneath the door, was whirled into their faces.

"Let's take a good look. Convince yourself."

He threw back the old-fashioned bolt on the heavy door and opened it a few inches, then leaned against it with all the force of his 180 pounds to hold it against the howling gale.

Nancy looked out into the wilderness of driving snow.

Phil had all he could do to close the door and slide the bolt while Nancy fled back to the warmth of the fireplace. She was followed by Phil's crisp black hair wearing a mantle of snow. Little rivulets of melting snow were running down his cheeks.

"That's what I call a 'neaster. God help the sailors—We're in for it, little lady."

"In for what?"

"Starvation. Maybe we'll die of thirst. Can you imagine the surprise when our skeletons are found next spring?"

"Stop! You're enjoying this."

"Of course I am. It's only once in a lifetime that a man gets imprisoned with such charming company. But we're not going to starve. Neither are we going to freeze, or die of thirst. There's a raft of canned food and a range in the kitchen, and an artesian well in the basement. We could go on living here all winter."

"There are books to be read. A little love, a little kiss—"

That half boyish, half man-of-the-world smile was playing about his lips again.

Nancy turned to the fire. She knew that she would have to meet Phil Stanley's recklessness with all the control she could muster. There was a full moment of silence, except for the onslaught of the wind and the whine in the great chimney. Nancy felt that Phil's eyes were devouring her. She felt that she must be making a grotesque appearance in the bulky snow pants and the too big buckskin shoes.

There had never yet been a situation that she hadn't been able to meet. She would meet this one—but why was she trembling like this? She thrust her hands into the deep pockets of the snow pants. That would help. She tried to tell herself that she was shivering with cold, not trembling.

Phil put his hands on her shoulders, turned her around.

"How about some coffee? I'd like to see how well you can cook. I'll get the kitchen fire going."

Nancy curled up on the lounge in front of the fireplace. She could hear Phil singing and the rattle of stove lids in the kitchen.

Phil had a deep, pleasant singing voice.

Nancy listened to his song and pondered why in nature's scheme of things some people had everything. Life, undoubtedly, would always go on being a song for Phil Stanley. He had wealth, the physique of an Adonis, the admiration of women. An inheritance of brains he must have if he would ever stop thinking life was a grand lark, that living was just reaching out to grasp things because what he wanted was always there.

Nancy's thoughts raced pell mell. How far from the Kelly world was the world that Phil Stanley would always know. How far from the world of her brother Tom who thought that men like Phil were good for nothing wasters and the Stanley Construction company an industrial monster that was the enemy of its own workers.

How far from the world of Dave Armstrong.

Dave was as good looking as Phil Stanley but in a different way. He was ambitious, fighting to educate himself all the time he was driving a truck for Phil's father's company.

Phil would spend as much in an evening on a party as Dave earned in a week.

Phil would take what he wanted from the world, charmingly, easily. That seemed to be his destiny. Dave's destiny would have to be carved out by his own hands without the backing of wealth.

Nancy loved Dave's rugged determination but she knew in her heart that even such determination as his sometimes can be beaten against the rocks of destiny.

Dave had been on the verge of asking her to marry him half a dozen times. Nancy knew that Dave didn't suspect her woman's intuition had guessed what was in his mind. She knew that her mind worked more swiftly than his, but she told herself that perhaps her mind wasn't as thorough.

Dave was a dear, some day she would—

Her reverie was broken by Phil's cheery call from the kitchen.

"All right, Goldilocks. It's warm out here now. I've found some coffee and a case of corned beef. Enough for all winter."

Phil had been conservative.

When Nancy arrived in the kitchen he threw open a cupboard door. There in neat rows were supplies to feast a king. There even were half a dozen tins of caviar.

Phil said he was sorry but there didn't happen to be any pate de foie gras.

Nancy always said she was a crank about coffee. In ten minutes during which she heated canned tomatoes and beans and discovered a package of crackers, she had coffee ready to tempt the palate of a king. At least that's what Phil said.

Nancy drank two cups, Phil drank three. Under the stimulus and the warmth of it she found that she had stopped trembling. In her busy efforts to prepare the food she had forgotten terror, forgotten home, forgotten everything except that she was sitting across the table from Phil Stanley and that he was telling her delightful things.

He had been to Bermuda, had skied in Switzerland, ridden the surfboards at Waikiki. He had crossed on the Normandy . . . had been in Paris in the spring.

Nancy thrilled at the very mention of these places. She had never been farther from home than Chicago in her life.

Accident Toll In China Said High

HONG KONG (AP)—It appears that the people of Red China, as in other countries, fall to "stop, look and listen" when they cross railways. The death toll is too high, says the Peiping Peoples Daily.

The Communist paper reports 216 deaths in a five-month span in the Harbin, Manchuria, district and 74 accidents in the Peiping district last year.

"These accidents mostly occur due to the masses' lacking common sense about railway traffic," was the paper's sharp comment.

The 80-pound animal, found frisking in a pasture, has fawnlike markings and is thin-legged though it otherwise resembles a calf.

While the Fultons report seeing deer with cows on their farm, livestock experts at Kansas State College say they don't believe cows and deer inter-breed.

Two Rugged Problems Facing Steel Industry

NEW YORK (UP)—The steel industry this week found itself confronted with two problems that could develop into king-sized headaches, according to the magazine Iron Age. The national metalworking weekly noted that steel supplies are easing while competition is growing more acute. Of major concern to the steel companies are the slump in shipments to the automotive industry, the No. 1 consumer of steel, and increasing imports from "steel-glutted" Europe. Automakers' steel stocks rose sharply as seasonal production cutbacks and the General Motors transmission plant fire came "almost simultaneously with a considerable loosening of steel supply," Iron Age said. As a result, it added, "There has been a rush to cancel October, November and even December orders."

the correction period tapers off," it asserted. Along the East Coast, the publication disclosed, Europeans are underselling American steelmakers on carbon rods, nails, barbed wire, and even on seamless tubing. Iron Age noted that some European mills are shipping to this country "some of the products around which stiffest competition already has developed here." Growing competition within the steel industry has resulted in absorption of some freight charges and price cutting on stainless steels and pig iron, the magazine said. Meanwhile it added, the scrap iron and steel market appears to be steadying. The magazine's steel scrap composite index fell only 17 cents this week to $31.33. "While this is the 10th successive week of decline," it added, "tapering off of the current dip showed up a glint of hope in the market." Many of the most civilized countries of the world have death rates of around 10 per thousand per year, but are expected to have slowly rising death rates in the years to come as death takes an increasing toll in the aging populations.

Europe's Miners Eat Horse Meat

BONN, Germany (U.P.) — West Germans eat twice as much horse meat as mutton, an official government report shows. Nevertheless, horse meat represents but 1.4 per cent of the total annual meat consumption of the West German. Sixty per cent of the meat eaten by West Germans is pork. For some reason not quite clear to the experts, coal miners appear to be the chief eaters of horse meat, not only in Germany, but also in Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, France and Britain, the report said.

Indian Artifacts On Barren Island

LOS ANGELES Calif. (U.P.) — On barren San Nicolas Island, 55 miles off the southern coast of California, a large Indian population lived before Columbus discovered America, anthropologists from the University of California at Los Angeles report. A survey of the island recently completed by Dr. Clement Meighan and Hal Eberhart of the university's anthropology department said approximately 68 pre-historic village sites were identified on the island. The population was believed to number about 1,000 before the Spaniards came to California. Experts said the Indians were known as Nicolones and may have come from Shoshone stock. They settled on the 22-square-mile island about 1000 A.D. All but one female survivor died in Spanish missions on the mainland. She had been left behind when the Spaniards took the group to the missions. The woman lived alone on the island for 18 years but in 1835 she was found and taken to Santa Barbara, Calif., where she died soon afterward.

Given Time To Think It Over

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—John Reid, 27, stepped on the gas and let 'er rip through Charlotte's business district. People ran for their lives. Three cars, one pedestrian and a telephone pole didn't quite make it and were hit by the plunging automobile. Finally captured, Reid said: "I don't know why I done it." A judge gave him three years in prison to figure it out.

Chain Reaction To Flat Tire

GAFFNEY, S. C. (AP) — A flat tire on a moving automobile caused this chain reaction here: The car stopped on the highway. Another auto stopped behind the one with the flat. A third car stopped behind the first two vehicles. A fourth car came along and crashed into No. 3, ramming it into No. 2. Two people were painfully, but not seriously hurt. A trailer truck stopped to avoid piling on, and a second trailer truck rammed into it. It took Highway Patrol Cpl. Frank Martin two hours to get traffic moving again. In the meantime, the flat was fixed. Engineers say that a temperature difference of only one degree between the walls of your home and the warmer air in the room will cause dirt and dust to settle on the walls.

Can't Put Out Continuous Fire

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP)—Chillicothe has a fire they can't put out. It started in a big sawdust pile behind an old rake factory. It's been smouldering for years and probably will continue for years to come. Fire Chief Virgil Lindsey says it won't do any harm if surface debris is kept away.

Uncertainty As To Russian Plans Plagues U.S. Chiefs

By LYLE C. WILSON
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP)—There is vigorous discussion within the Eisenhower administration today on basic policies relating to defense spending and foreign relations.

The situation arises from official uncertainty about the answers to a couple of fundamental questions.

1. Is the Soviet Union ready for H-bomb warfare?

2. If so, what should be done about it?

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson gave the problems a new slant in a late news conference Tuesday. He believed the United States was about three years ahead of the Soviet Union in bomb and bomber airplane development.

"In other words," Wilson added, "it would be perhaps three years before they had a reasonable number of such (hydrogen) bombs and any airplanes that could deliver them."

"There is no reason why the Americans should be panicky over the fact that the Russians do have the H-bomb although, of course, it does present a continuing problem to the point of absolute."

Wilson's was the latest of a series of official and semi-official statements about Russia and the H-bomb, some of them contradictory that must be realistically recognized.

But the basic questions confronting the administration remained without official and satisfactory answer.

United States relations with its European allies are deeply involved in the administration's H-bomb uncertainty. The mere fact that the Russians have developed A-bombs and H-bombs has thrown a scare into Western Europe sufficient to turn the thoughts of those allies considerably from mutual armament toward some kind of negotiations with Moscow. Wilson's assurance that Americans need not be panicky could fall somewhat short of reassuring Europeans 3,000 miles away.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill in London wants a top level four power conference. The idea appeals to the French who at the same time are balking at a unified European army which would contain large German elements.

This obvious trend of European thinking brought from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Tuesday a carefully hedged suggestion that the Soviet Union might be offered a non-aggression pact of some kind. Dulles' news conference discussion of such a pact was not illuminated by much hope of achievement.

A sound source familiar with administration spending problems told the United Press that a tremendous struggle is now going on over next year's defense program, and that no top decisions have been made so far. When these decisions are made the administration then can decide what kind of a tax program it will try to get through Congress.

Advocates of more defense spending were arguing for a bigger and better "continental defense" system designed to intercept Russian bombers if they come. The cost would be tremendous.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN THE EATING SELL THE REMAINDER OF YOUR CROP IN GREENVILLE

W. L. WHEDBEE, Supervisor

Backstairs View At White House

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—Backstairs at the White House:

The three grandchildren of President Eisenhower were so excited by the Indian costumes given them by the president of Panama that they literally wanted to sleep in them. It took all of Mrs. Eisenhower's persuasion to divest the kids of their colorful costumes at bedtime. And at the crack of dawn next day, they were up demanding to be clothed immediately as Central American Indians.

One of the busiest men in the White House is Max Raab, chief assistant to Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President. Raab worked nearly all night one evening last week preparing the executive order by which the President invoked the Taft-Hartley Law in the East Coast dock strike.

And on the same night, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty and his assistant, Murray Snyder, were handling telephone inquiries from their homes into the early morning hours.

Yet, all of these staff members were on deck for another day's work at 8 a.m.

Someone at the White House certainly has an aversion to letting reporters and photographers get close to distinguished visitors. When callers leave the White House proper by the north portico, they are protected by a heavy iron chain strung from portable metal stanchions. Gentlemen of press, radio and television are not permitted to stray beyond this formidable barrier.

This is decidedly an invasion. Previous administrations did not find such precautions necessary.

The White House possibly feels Colorado this summer—and without that they don't make presidential visitors as durable as they once did. The chain barrier on the north portico certainly can't be to protect the President, who appeared to be quite safe and comfortable in the midst of the same reporters and photographers when he was in a chain.

The committee arranging the "birthday party" for Mr. Eisenhower at Hershey, Pa., Oct. 13 had to change a number of its plans at White House suggestion. Their plans were becoming elaborately complicated until the White House supplied some clarifying ideas.

Announcing that Mr. Eisenhower would accept a 200-pound halibut as a gift from the American fishing industry, Press Secretary Hagerty explained to newsmen that after the presentation ceremony, the fish would be sent to Emergency Hospital here.

"What's the matter?" inquired a reporter. "Is the fish sick?"

Doctor Turns Up Gout Remedy

NEW YORK AP)—Dr. Louis Graniter reports finding an anti-gout substance in blood obtained from women after child-birth. Few women suffer from gout, and never have the ailment during pregnancy. Dr. Graniter isolated the anti-gout substance from women's blood. Given it to eight men with gout. Seven quickly improved, and had no new attacks for three to eight months.

EARLY START

BOSTON (UP)—All but nine of Massachusetts' 277 public high schools now offer students courses in automobile driving. Introduction of such instruction into high school curricula was begun in 1948 by the State Motor Vehicle Registry in the interests of highway safety. More than 40,000 students have taken the courses to date.

Kidnap Suspect Sought In Iowa

ANKENY, Ia. (UP)—A man resembling Thomas John Marsh, the tattooed, hard-drinking sex degenerate wanted for questioning in the Greenlease kidnaping case, was sought on Midwest highways today after an excited barmaid said she saw him here.

The bar visited Wednesday by the thin-lipped stranger with a high forehead much like Marsh's is near Highway 69, a busy route between Kansas City, Mo., and Minneapolis Minn.

Carl Austin Hall, kidnaper of little Bobby Greenlease, told police that Marsh was the man who shot and killed the child. However, some officers believed that Hall was actually the killer himself.

Mrs. F. A. Mitchell, who owns a tavern here, was so excited she could hardly speak when she opened her afternoon newspaper and saw a picture of Marsh.

Mrs. Mitchell said the man hid his hands as much as possible and talked again and again about the kidnaping.

State police at Des Moines answered no when asked if they had blockaded Route 69, but it was possible that they were keeping quiet about the search and in contact with the FBI. The Omaha, Neb., office of the FBI, which covers Iowa, would not say what steps were being taken to cut off the man here.

The Minneapolis state police were informed of the Ankeny development early today by the United Press, but said they had not yet received formal notification from Iowa.

When It Hurt, People Objected

SPARTANBURG S.C. (AP)—For years it's been against the law to park on the streets here between midnight and 6 a.m. The idea was to help street sweepers, but no one paid any attention.

Suddenly the police started enforcing the law. Parked cars were towed to a garage. Then, the howls went up.

The mayor and councilmen stood it for six weeks. Then, they repealed the law.

Didn't Believe In Road Signs

HERINGTON, Kan. AP)—Two Abilene fishermen, bound for a favorite stream, ignored a "road closed" sign and kept on going.

Two miles farther down the road they ran into a washed-out bridge. On the way back they saw the other side of the "road closed" sign. It read: "So there smartie, it was closed, wasn't it."

BACKFIRE

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Mrs. B. B. Brown had the last laugh on a "joker" who sent her a sweet potato for a Christmas present last year. She said she planted it, then reset the vines it grew. "I got almost a half bushel of sweet potatoes," she said.

Hatred Of Communism Shown 24 Hours A Day

By FRANK JORDAN

INDIAN VILLAGE, Korea (UP)—Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, 22,500 North Korean and Chinese war prisoners show their hate of Communism.

Their "neutral zone prison camp is a combination of ominous silence and ear-splitting din.

Only the patience and durability of Indian guards keep them in check, and the strain on the Indians is terrific.

A visit to the five square mile camp just inside the demilitarized zone showed how the atmosphere has changed since newsmen were last allowed inside more than a week ago.

All day long the Communist-hating prisoners either sleep or gird themselves against the hated explanations, which probably will get under way in about a week.

The anti-Reds, 500 to a compound, drill and exercise in the warm October sun or attend classes in a anti-communism conducted by their leaders. Some of them use their spare time to fashion makeshift weapons, particularly daggers, from any pieces of metal they can find.

Messages pass constantly from compound to compound, from enclosure to enclosure. The anti-Reds communicate by notes wrapped around a rock and tossed over the fence, by flag signals and even by messages shot by bows and arrows.

Darkness brings no relaxation for the 5,500 Indian guards under Maj. Gen. S. P. Thorat. The compounds take turns keeping them awake.

"It usually starts about one a.m.," Thorat said. "They set up a terrific din. They must have lungs of leather."

It was Thorat who single-handedly

Farm Planners Look For Beauty

LINCOLN, Neb. (U.P.) — Farm planners here say it takes a lot of work to turn out a properly landscaped farm.

They say much attention should be given to the beauty of a farm, and to its "utility value," which is described as arrangement of buildings, feed and landscaping so that the greatest possible efficiency results.

For instance, a farm driveway should enter on the north or west side of the house and the house itself should face the driveway.

The planners say this permits use of the front door, and leaves the front of the house for window space.

The parking area, according to the experts, should be located opposite the farm house. Farm buildings should be arranged around a court, located behind the house. This permits the farmer to end his daily chores at the house.

The experts say the source of livestock feed should be located between the large animal consumers, usually hogs and cattle, and near the poultry house. A windbreak should be to the north and west of the farm buildings and no closer to them than 100 to 125 feet.

Careless Pigeon Fell In Chimney

FORT PIERCE, Fla. AP)—A pigeon made a recent county commission meeting one for the birds.

The careless pigeon attempted to alight on the roof and fell down the chimney, emerging in the county commission's meeting room.

The session was recessed while Chairman Harry Kiebler chased it down and took it outside to freedom.

"I hope it was a dove of peace," commented the chairman.

Rained Cats In Front Of Store

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—It didn't rain cats and dogs here — just cats.

During a shower, Barbara Crook, a restaurant employe, went outside and let the awning down. Six kittens promptly fell on her.

The mother cat apparently had tucked her family in the awning for shelter.

Complete 13 Miles Of Pitt Paving In Month

During the month of September work was completed on the paving of 13 miles of roads in Pitt County, it was announced today by H. Maynard Hicks, commission of the second highway division.

The 13 miles of paving which was completed in Pitt County was part of 27.6 miles of road improvements completed in the eight-county district during the month of September.

Work last month in Pitt brought to completion the bypass of Langs' Cross roads via Marlboro to Lewis Store, which comprised eight miles of paving; 4.2 miles of work on NC 102 from Ayden to the county line near Scuffleton; and 8 miles of work on the Big Oak road.

Hardsurfacing finished during the month included work in the following counties of the district: In Beaufort County, the Camp Leach road, 0.7 mile; in Greene County, Taylor road (near Shine, 3.8 miles, Buck road near Scuffleton, 3.4 miles US 258 just northward from Contentnea Creek, 0.73 miles. Streets in Snow Hill and roadway along railroad right of way 1.37 miles, and a bypass near Lewis' Store, 0.4 miles; in Jones County, form a point near Maysville to NC 12, 4.2 miles.

US 258 and NC 102 is part of an overall program to modernize the state's outmoded primary highway system, Hicks' statement said.

R. Markham of Greenville is the division engineer for the second division.

HOLYOKE, Mass. (UP)—A young man serving a three-month jail sentence here apparently takes pride in his press notices. When he was stopped for driving an uninsured automobile without a license, police found in his wallet a press clipping that showed he had been in court previously for the same offense.

This New Tobacco Pest Found In County

A new insect pest, "the white fringed beetle," has been discovered in Farmville by the Bureau of Entomology of Goldsboro.

According to Neil Downing of the Bureau the beetle is believed to be of South American origin. It feeds on leaves of broad leaf plants, and has been known to eat 380 different varieties of plants.

In his description of the bug, Downing stated that it is about one-half inch long, dirty gray in color, with a gray line reaching the length of the insect. It somewhat resembles the cotton boll weevil except it is considerably larger.

The bugs are above the ground in the summer when they lay their eggs on the soil or on material that contacts the soil. The eggs hatch into a small white larvae within two weeks, which bores into the ground. They then begin feeding on roots of plants and continue to do this into the winter. After a resting period the adult beetle emerges the following summer.

The non-flying insects are all females capable of laying seven to eight hundred eggs per season. The pesky insect has not done any appreciable damage in Farmville. It is mostly found in vacant lots but are doing some feeding on shrubs and flowers. They were found during a routine inspection for white fringe beetles being carried on by Downing, T. E. Kinsey, and David Bowen of the Bureau of Entomology.

The beetles have been known to damage tobacco, but they work mostly in thickly planted fields. The larvae of the insect does the damage to tobacco roots, and it is not known if the adult beetle would eat the tobacco leaves.

Downing said the infested area in Farmville included the area northeast of Church Street reaching to Little Contentnea Creek, east to the city limits. This is the first found in Pitt County, although it has been found in other counties of North Carolina. He reported only a very small acreage infested in Farmville.

As a precaution to check for these insects Downing said that if plants begin to turn yellow they should be dug up and see if the small white larvae is working the root. If the small grub is located the Bureau should be contacted direct or through the county agent.

Downing asked that homeowners to refrain moving plants or nursery stock from the infested to non-infested area in Farmville. If such movement is necessary arrangements can be made by contacting the Bureau.

For control of larvae by soil treatment ten pounds of DDT per acre should be applied uniformly to the soil surface as a dust by hand or mechanical distributor, or as a spray. It should then be disked or cultivated immediately into the top three inches of the soil.

To control the adult beetle yards, vacant lots, idle fields, shrubs, flowers and other plants not used as food by man or animals should be sprayed. The spray should consist of one-half to one pound of DDT per acre in a water suspension or an emulsion. It should be sprayed every ten to 15 days during the beetle season.

Downing met with Sam Winchester, Pitt County Agent, Sam Weeks, Pitt Assistant County Agent, John W. Grant, Greene County Agent, Paul Thompson, Greene Assistant

Twelve Banks Aided In Providing Ransom

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Money had to be obtained from 12 federal reserve banks to amass the $600,000 in $10 and $20 bills demanded as ransom in the Bobby Greenlease kidnaping.

It took 80 persons working overtime to count the money and assemble it for delivery in an Army duffelbag to the kidnapers.

Arthur B. Eisenhower, vice president of the Commerce Trust Company here, told at a press conference Wednesday night how the anxious father of the kidnaped boy arranged to meet the ransom demand.

Eisenhower, brother of the President, disclosed that the FBI entered the case "almost immediately" and federal agents stood by in his bank while the money was counted. He refused to say whether serial numbers of the bills were recorded in an effort to trap the kidnapers.

Robert Greenlease, the boy's father, went to see Eisenhower at the bank the morning of Sept. 29 with Robert Ledterman, his business partner. That was just 24 hours after the kidnaping.

Eisenhower said Ledterman, who did most of the talking, asked if the bank had $600,000 in cash. "I said 'Yes,'" Eisenhower told reporters. "We have much more than that."

"We mean in 10s and 20s," Eisenhower quoted Ledterman.

"I replied 'No,' since that had to come from 12 Federal Reserve banks, not necessarily in equal amounts," Eisenhower said. The money was obtained that afternoon and at 9:30 a.m. the next day, Wednesday, Sept. 30, it was ready.

Eisenhower said 80 persons had to work overtime to count the money and he tried to keep them from knowing why it was being assembled.

"They had a good idea of what they were doing but we tried to keep it a secret," he said.

The ransom was broken down into $200,000 in $10 bills and $400,000 in $20 bills, a total of 40,000 pieces of money. The 20s were placed in one canvas bag and the 10s in another, and those bags were placed in a new duffel bag obtained from an Army store.

The huge sum then was placed in a bank vault while the Green-

WHATEVER YOU SAY SPOKANE, Wash. (UP)—James Mudge, 38, a transient, surrendered to police and asked to be jailed so he could recover from a drinking bout. Metals In World Affairs Discussed At Faculty Club

Unequal and limited distribution of raw metals in the earth's crust and the impact of this condition on the world affairs, especially on the position of the United States, afforded the topic of discussion at the East Carolina College Faculty Lecture Club Tuesday night.

J.O. Derrick of the college department of science, speaker at the first meeting for the school year, pointed out that 73 of the 92 naturally occurring elements constitute only 0.47 per cent of the face of the earth. "Even Gulliver in his travels," he stated, "found this 'error of nature' to be a real cause of wars."

Mr. Derrick addressed an audience of approximately fifty club members and guests. He was introduced by C.A. Scruggs of the science department. Dr. James now finding practical applications," Dr. Derrick discussed the properties, uses, and sources of such metals, including antimony, beryllium, columbium, cadmium, gallium, and zirconium.

He cited the importance of metals in modern industrial advancement and emphasized the idea that we are "world dependent for these many metals to carry on the program of maintaining our own high standard of living as well as the program of lifting other nations above their present low standards."

Annual Rally And Fall Roundup For Scouts Planned For Friday

An annual rally and fall roundup for Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts of the Pitt district will be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Elm Street park here.

The roundup and rally will feature a number of events involving scouting skills in which cubs, scouts and explorers will participate by dens and patrols for standard ratings.

Officials planning tomorrow's rally explained that each den or patrol will participate in the competition as a unit, and each will be awarded points for its participation.

In order to receive the rating of "standard", each den or patrol must enter each event in the rally and obtain a specified number of points.

Sherman Parks, who is in charge of the rally for the Pitt district, said that the rally will be held at the Elm Street park here.

Relocation of the club's meeting place was brought about by increased growth of the club over the past months making it impossible for the club to be taken care of at its old meeting place.

Complete reports on the recent Jaycee Horseshow will be made at the meeting tonight. Early indications are that the show was a complete success.

urged all cubs, scouts, and explorers to attend the gathering at Elm Street Park, and urged them to wear their uniforms. He said a special invitation is being issued to all parents of youngsters in the scouting movement to attend the rally, and added that boys who are not members of the Boy Scouts are also invited to attend with their parents.

Eight participation events will highlight the rally. The first event in which the scout units will be judged will be uniforms and attend-

The First Division chairman has written to district commanders of the division urging them and post commanders to report the names of all members signed up for 1954. McLawhorn hopes to have these names by the time the Legion's "Go-Getters" banquet is held at Woodland on October 23.

Other events will include signaling, den sack race for cubs, patrol knot tying, three legged race for cub dens, patrol first aid for scouts, den dressing race for cubs, and fire by flint and steel for scouts.

Parks urged scouts and cubs to bring to the rally materials they will need in the various events.

British Trade With Red China Remains A Sore Point In U.S.

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

British trade with Communist China continues to be a sore spot in Anglo-American relations. The subject recently was reopened by Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), who has just returned from a globe-circling fact-finding tour and again by the liberal Manchester Guardian, one of England's most respected newspapers.

The Manchester editorial was a friendly one — a refreshing change after the "hate America" theme of the British Labor Party conference — but it challenged charges that British trade with China is a "moral outrage" and it added: "We wonder at the hypocrisy which ignores American trade with China, which last year was almost as great as ours."

Here are some figures as supplied by the United States Commerce Department and the British Board of Trade.

In 1952, the United States reported no exports to Red China, but its imports from Red China totaled $27,725,000.

In the same year, Britain exported $10,774,167 in goods to Red China during the first 11 months, while imports in the same period totaled $6,032,091.

For 1952 then, total U.S. trade with Red China was greater than Britain's.

In 1953, the trend has been reversed. Through July of this year, British exports to Red China totalled $10-

175,000 and imports $14,000,000. The U.S. reported no exports and imports dropped to $4,027,000.

Without attempting to defend either position, it may be pointed out that figures are comparative and may be misleading.

If British trade with China continues at its present rate, it will approach $60,000,000 for the year. However, that figure may be compared to the interest and principal paid off by Britain each year to the United States on its postwar loans. Those payments which the British are keeping up to date total $119,336,000 annually.

While Britain's dollar balance has shown encouraging gains she still is far from out of the woods financially and she has made no secret of her eagerness to increase her Red China trade where she can without violating her agreement against shipment of non-strategic goods.

However, in the long run the extent of Britain's trade with the Iron and Bamboo Curtain countries is more likely to be determined by their ability to pay rather than by any U.S. protests.

Without attempting to defend either position, it may be pointed out that figures are comparative and may be misleading.

If British trade with China continues at its present rate, it will approach $60,000,000 for the year. However, that figure may be compared to the interest and principal paid off by Britain each year to the United States on its postwar loans. Those payments which the British are keeping up to date total $119,336,000 annually.

Urge Organizing Of 'Skin Bank'

CHICAGO (UP)—A civil defense and Air Force adviser today called for the creation of nationwide "skin banks" for use in the thousands of critical burn cases an atomic attack would bring.

The skin, taken from bodies rather than living donors, can be used as a sort of "biological" dressing that relieves intense pain, protects burn areas and prevents disfigurement, as well as actually increasing survival chances.

It would be "invaluable" because of the major fires sure to follow an atomic blast in any American city, according to Dr. James B. Brown of Washington University, St. Louis.

He admitted that Americans would have to be "enlightened" to the humane necessity of donating skin from their backs when they die. It could be written into wills or close relatives can approve the removals before burial.

Because of the new technique, Brown said, "we don't have to rive up on a single patient with severe burns."

The civil defense and Air Force adviser described the new dead skin technique here yesterday at the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons.

One of its most beneficial properties is its ability to ease the almost unbearable pain associated with severe burn cases.

This Is The Time To Winterize Your Outdoor Tools

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Calling all outdoor housekeepers! Now is the time to give your outdoor equipment a fall house-cleaning.

Line up your shovels, spade forks, barbecue grills, tables, chairs and the like, and get them set for their winter vacation.

All you need is soap, water, brushes, shellac and maybe a little paint, and you can ready that garage-shed for the winter.

Shovels and spades should be cleaned and patted equipment to a slick. Here's how as suggested by cleanliness experts and Gordon Ohrig, industrial designer.

Take all your slightly rusted shovels, spades, pruning shears and clean them with steel wool, sharp edges with a good file and coat with shellac. Use some brilliant paint like red, shocking pink, orange or yellow to brand the handles. Besides making your tools stand out for easy discovery in garden weeds next year, it will remind your neighbor to return that borrowed tool in short order.

Now for your furniture — dust rattle, wood or iron with a good stiff brush. Wash with a mild soap and warm water (not hot). When furniture has thoroughly dried in the warm autumn air, coat it with thin shellac. Make sure legs are completely dry (by turning upside down in sunshine) as this is where moisture settles.

Wrap freshly cleaned or painted furniture in wrapping paper or covers made for the purpose. If there are several parts, label them distinctly for convenience in putting them together again next year. Cover the labels with cellulose tape so the writing will not smear or fade.

When storing nylon, duck or canvas covered materials, brush out loose dirt with a whisk broom, then apply a good thick suds of green soap with sponge or cloth. A solution of alum will help to waterproof canvas for its service next spring.

All outdoor cooking equipment should be put away clean. A greasy pan or utensil should never be stored. A drip pan coated with grease should be soaked overnight by pouring a solution of soap suds with a few drops of ammonia added. Then use a small wire brush and fresh suds to scrub the entire surface. This applies to long skewers, forks and holders, too. After scrubbing and drying your outdoor barbecue grill put on two thin coats of shellac and one coat of black outdoor enamel.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK - OCTOBER 4-10

Landslide Buries Homes In Norway

OSLO, Norway (UP)—A hillside in suburban Oslo slid into the sea today, burying homes and a busload of rush-hour commuters.

Authorities said eyewitness reports of heavy casualties had been exaggerated.

Police said the landslide killed four persons and injured nine aboard the bus.

A commuter train from a railway junction nearby closely escaped running into the landslide when the engineer noted that signal lights along the railway had begun to flicker.

He quickly stopped the train, which was bringing several hundred passengers into Oslo.

The landslide covered a three-block area and cut the main rail and road connections between Oslo and Sweden.

Eyewitnesses said the scent resembled a World War II bombing raid as broken houses and stores gaped toward the sky. At least five automobiles were reported buried under the mud.

A police officer in charge of rescue operations said inhabitants of demolished houses in the area were removed and 1,000 school children were evacuated from their school, which apparently escaped damage.

Road worker Olav Hansen gave the first report of the disaster. "I was working on the road as usual when I suddenly noticed that the soil was beginning to quiver under my feet," Hansen said.

"Hardly had I become aware of that before the earth began to crack and large crevices opened up around me. Suddenly I heard a thunderous roar and everything around and beside me disappeared.

"The last thing I saw was a heavy truck coming at great speed from the road, out onto the stricken area and being flung into the sea."

Railway officials said the slide was discovered in time to prevent trains from running into the area. They were diverted to the Stockholm railway.

Raises Question Whether Goose Is Mere Poultry Or Regular Employee

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—Does a goose have to be a goose? Couldn't it be a farm hand? Walter L. Pool of the Norfolk County board of supervisors, raised the question after the board received a bill for $301 from Greenbrier Farms for 86 geese killed by stray dogs.

Greenbrier Farms, a nursery, imported the geese from Africa for use as grass cutters. The nursery says an African goose plucks grass but will not touch shrubbery. This makes the critter pretty important to nurserymen.

But are these geese poultry? The question is vital to the county's finances. State law requires the county to pay its citizens for loss of poultry killed by stray dogs. Pool said poultry is something you eat. The geese in question, he said, are "employees of Greenbrier Farms." Pool suggested the nursery stop billing the county and try to recover its loss through the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The board of supervisors voted to withhold payment pending a decision. The board also instructed the commonwealth's attorney to prepare an amendment for submission to the state legislature which would completely depoultize Afri-dent: Greenbrier Farms says it is so pleased with the work of its African geese that it plans to import 10,000 more of them next year.

Bells For Cats
May Be Required

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Bells for cats? Yes, said Marin County Supervisor George Whiteley, who declared he would propose an ordinance requiring cats to wear bells.

"I know I'm letting myself open to attack from all cat owners," Whiteley said. "But I think we'll have more quail and wild life in Marin if the cats are not allowed to roam around uncontrolled."

"They're worse than dogs. They just roam around and eat everything."

Akihito's Pan-American plane left San Francisco International airport at 3:15 a. m. PST.

A few months earlier, Akihito had taken off in another plane that had to turn back because of an over-heated bearing. The crown prince appeared untroubled as the four-engine plane swung around and headed back to the airport.

Before leaving, Akihito thanked his "many friends and well-wishers in America" for their "warm friendship and sincere hospitality."

Akihito arrived in the United States September 8 after attending the coronation of Queen Elizabeth and touring Western European countries. He visited most major cities in the country, spending a week in the San Francisco area.

Raise Estimate On Cotton Crop

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department today forecast a 1953 cotton crop of 15,596,000 bales, up three percent from last month's estimate.

The report, based on crop conditions Sept. 1, confirms the certainty of federal marketing quotas or next year's cotton crop to head off surpluses of the fiber.

Secretary Ezra T. Benson — authorized to cut output to 10 million bales—is expected to announce the 1954 quota level soon. Farm law requires he announce his decision by Oct. 15 and have farmers vote on it by mid-December.

If cotton producers turn down quotas, cotton supports drop from 90 to only 50 percent of the so-called "fair price" parity level. The crop forecast today compares with production last year of 15,136,000 bales and 10-year average output of 12,215,000 bales.

The crop reporting board estimated yields on this year's crop will average 315.4 pounds of lint an acre compared with 282.7 pounds last year and 10-year average yields of 271.4 pounds.

The board estimated conditions of the crop on Oct. 1 were 77 per cent of normal compared with 71 per cent at the same time a year ago and a 10-year average of 73 per cent.

When added to an estimated 5,500,000 bales of cotton carried over in storage from previous year's production, the crop forecast today would bring total supplies this season to 21,096,000.

That's well above the estimated 17 million bales required to satisfy domestic and export needs and maintain adequate reserves — the level at which the secretary is forced to ask for quotas on the crop.

'JOLLY GOOD FELLOW'—Thomas F. Rickert, 61, (center) executive vice president of the Ecambia County Bank of Flomaton, Ala., is flanked by U. S. Marshal's deputies as he walks out of the Federal Building in Mobile, Ala., following arraignment on embezzlement charges. H. O. Hawkins, agent in charge of the Mobile FBI office, said an incomplete audit revealed shortages of $85,901, and that Rickert had admitted taking over $50,000 in small amounts over the last 13 years. The FBI officer said Rickert reported in a statement he spent some of the money in his role as a "jolly good fellow" and that he "always picked up the check on hunting and fishing trips." One Bandit Met Wrong Cashier

MEMPHIS (UP)—Authorities today sought a bandit who escaped with $6,000 in one bank holdup and praised a brave bank cashier who thwarted another attempt.

The object of the search was a pistol-waving, "shaggy" haired man who held up the bank of Welner, Ark., about 75 miles from here yesterday.

Harold E. Winters, vice president of the bank, said the man forced three women tellers to shove about $6,000 to him, then said "that's enough" and fled.

The other bandit, listed by the FBI office here as Milburn Wetherington, 42, of Pontiac, Mich., made the mistake of selecting cashier James H. Frasier to hold up at Enville, Tenn., about 90 miles from here.

Frazier, weary of desperadoes after being held up three times in the past 14 days, handed Wetherington a paper sack containing about $1,000 and then tried to reason with the man at gunpoint.

Wetherington, weighing 190 pounds, lowered his gun and Frasier, weighing 155 pounds, grabbed him. Together they rolled down the bank steps crashed through the plate glass doors and by the noise attracted town Marshall Luther Emerson.
