The Midway Emphasizes It Is 'Fair Time'

The sprawling midway, framed by high towering ferris wheels and resounding to the chants of barkers, makes it plain that it's 'fair time' in Pitt County again. Opening day crowds and favorable weather have lent encouragement that the 60,000 attendance record officials are seeking will be reached. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Proposed Ordinance Studied

A proposed ordinance to govern the type of sewerage to be accepted in the system of the Greenville Utilities Commission was taken under consideration last night by the commission.

The six-man commission previously has authorized a study of the problem and asked an ordinance be recommended by Superintendent Martin Swartz.

Last night Swartz turned the recommended ordinance to the commission for consideration and study. Action is to be taken on the ordinance at a later date.

The superintendent reported that work on the installation of fire protection facilities for the Elmhurst section has been completed, and with the exception of a few places scattered throughout the city, the installation of water mains and fire hydrants has been completed.

Swartz also told the commission the high voltage electric circuit to serve the business district of Greenville and an area south of the city has been completed and is in operation.

A letter from the Chicago Bridge and Iron Company informed the commission the water tank recently ordered for Greenville may be available several months ahead of the original 400-day shipping date if the commission will furnish final details specifications for the tank.

Explosion insurance for gas facilities of the commission came up for discussion last night also, and Swartz reported work is rapidly being completed to make the city gas facilities comply with the requirements and to continue the work to make the local facilities comply with the insurance requirements, and continue to investigate the matter.

The financial statement of the commission for the month ending September 30 was presented by Business Manager Larry Brown, and showed a net revenue for the month of $41,578.

None of the reorganization moves will go into effect until about the first of the year, Benson is asking for interested comments by Nov. 1 and then allowing additional time for further preparations by the experts assigned to carry out the reorganization.

Radar Data, Other Documents Turned Up In East Germany

U.S. Secrets In Red Hands

NEW YORK (UP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy said today that top secret government documents concerning radar and other vital matters have turned up in Russian East Germany and "were used by the Communists."

McCarthy's Permanent Investigation Subcommittee is investigating the disappearance and possible theft of the defense documents from the Army Signal Corps laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

The Wisconsin Republican opened the third day of hearings into security leaks at the secret Signal Corps installation by calling two former Fort Monmouth civilian employees, who were recently suspended as security risks.

The witnesses were Hyam G. Yarnins, 43, of Newton, Mass., a radar specialist who acted as liaison man to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Harold Duore, 34, of Long Branch, N.J., an electronics engineer.

McCarthy refused to reveal how his investigators located the documents. He said, however, that the disappearance of the documents "definitely involves espionage."

The Interior Department also announced Tuesday it had suspended six employees, not identified, for "security reasons." There was no indication whether the suspensions were connected with the Fort Monmouth investigation.

McCarthy said in New York Tuesday the Signal Corps radar investigation "definitely involves espionage." He said the subcommittee heard testimony that a sizeable number of Army documents concerning radar had disappeared from Fort Monmouth and would be "extremely dangerous" to national security if they fell into enemy hands.

The Chicago Tribune today quoted Sen. Everett Dirksen as saying 26 out of 57 top secret documents missing from the Fort Monmouth laboratory have been found in the Soviet zone of East Germany.

A former Army officer told the McCarthy group the documents had been missing for two years, and it was discovered that registry logs describing their contents had been destroyed.

Another witness testified that he and a civilian laboratory employe had been closely associated with Julius Rosenberg, who was executed with his wife, Ethel, for their part in passing atomic secrets to Soviet agents.

Agriculture Dept. Shakeup Stresses Marketing

Mixed Reaction To Plans

WASHINGTON (UP)—There was a mixed reaction today to Secretary Ezra T. Benson's plan for overhauling the Agriculture Department to put more emphasis on marketing than on production.

Comments ranged all the way from a pat on the back from Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) to a condemnation from Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC).

Johnston differed sharply. He called the proposal a lot of "mouth-wash," charged it would "harm the little fellow" and served notice he would be "very much against it." Johnston also is an Agriculture Committee member.

Judging Continues For Farm Exhibits

Blue ribbons fluttered from exhibits at the Pitt County Agricultural Fair today as judges continued to award the $3,500 in premiums to exhibitors of farm products.

Yesterday J. C. Powell, County Agent of Edgecombe County, and W. H. Howell, vocational agricultural teacher at Maury, judged field crops, educational exhibits and adult livestock exhibits.

Other exhibitors in the adult swine show and their awards are: T. E. Dickerson, Duroc Jersey, senior sow and litter class, blue and red ribbons; and a Duroc Jersey in the senior pig class, blue ribbon, and also a Duroc Jersey in the senior pig class, blue ribbon; Elbert Mills, Poland China, junior pig class, red ribbon, and Poland China, junior pig class, red ribbon; Harold Mills, Poland China, junior pig gilt class, red ribbon; and Poland China, senior pig gilt class, red ribbon; Mrs. Dessie May, Duroc Jersey, senior pig class, white ribbon; Bruce McLawhorn, Poland China, senior pig class, white ribbon; also Poland China, senior pig class, white ribbon.

Complete results of the judging was not available today but in the adult swine entries Tommie Phillips of Fountain, who entered a Poland China in the senior class, was awarded the grand champion, junior champion, and blue ribbon awards for his entry; K. B. Dickerson of Ayden, who entered a Duroc Jersey in the senior pig class, was awarded the senior champion, junior champion and blue ribbon awards.

Most BAE analytical and statistical work would be transferred to a new agency, the Agricultural Marketing Service to be headed by current BAE Chief O. E. Wells. Other BAE activities would be delegated to the new Agricultural Research Service — a tightened-up Agricultural Research Administration.

None of the reorganization moves will go into effect until about the first of the year, Benson is asking for interested comments by Nov. 1 and then allowing additional time for further preparations by the experts assigned to carry out the reorganization.

Firemen Gather For Robersonville Meet

ROBERSONVILLE — Over 200 members of the Eastern North Carolina Firemen's Association met in Robersonville last night at the regular meeting of the organization.

The visiting firemen were treated to a barbecue and chicken supper prepared by the members of the Robersonville Fire Department and their families.

The supper was held in the Grammer school lunch room. Robersonville's Fire Chief Wiley B. Rogers welcomed the firemen to the annual meeting and introduced the guests for the meeting.

Response to the welcome was made by Mark Lassiter of Snow Hill. President of the Eastern North Carolina Firemen Association, Miller Warren, presided.

Must Testify, Or Lose Posts

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower tightened up on security requirements for government employes today with a directive making refusal to testify before a congressional committee on the constitutional ground of self-incrimination the basis for dismissal.

The directive added an eighth ground for discharge to the seven Eisenhower listed in an executive order April 27 covering security requirements for government employes.

The eighth specification: "Refusal by the individual, upon the grounds of constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, to testify before a congressional committee regarding charges of his alleged disloyalty or other misconduct."

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. was expected to elaborate on the administration's loyalty and security program in a speech today before the National Press Club.

Newsman Cole Believed Next Aide For Lennon

By LYNN NISBET RALEIGH—Those in position to know something of what is going on will wager better than even money that Willard G. Cole, editor of the Whiteville News-Reporter will take over the position as administrative assistant to Senator Almon Lennon within the next few days.

He will succeed Jesse Helms of Raleigh, who takes over the post as executive secretary of the State Bankers Association on October 15.

Cole, the relatively youthful and prematurely gray crusading editor of the semi-weekly newspaper published in the county seat of Columbus county, last spring won the Pulitzer Award, one of the most highly prized honors in American newspapers (which he shared with Horace Carter of the Tabor City Tribune) for waging a campaign against mob violence. It is conceded that the factual information dug up and published by these courageous young editors contributed substantially to the conviction of several persons involved in Ku Klux Klan activities in Columbus and neighboring counties.

It probably required as much courage for Editor Cole to tell the master barbers at their recent Asheville convention that they ought to refuse tips on the theory that they were professional men rather than common laborers.

Miners Killed By Gas Explosions

PUERTOLLANO, Spain (UP)—A gas explosion caused the central tunnel of a slate mine to collapse Tuesday, killing 11 miners and injuring 28 others.

Three workers were missing in the cave-in. Four of the injured were in serious condition.

The mine belongs to the state-controlled company Calvo Soleso.

AAUW Makes Plans For Entertainment Of National Officers

Members and guests of the American Association of University Women met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Winslow, on West Fifth St., Monday evening for a session devoted mostly to business, preceded by an informal supper with Mrs. Winslow and Mrs. Daniel Taylor serving delicious dessert, nuts, and coffee.

The president, Mrs. D. S. Spain, presided.

Plans were made for entertaining the AAUW examiner who will be visiting East Carolina College Oct. 27-29, and the national secretary of the AAUW early in November. Dr. Kathleen Stokes told of the National AAUW convention this summer in Minneapolis, describing interestingly the warm debate over supporting the amendment to the United States Constitution for equal rights for women. The final vote on the question was so close that the Association refused to take a stand on the matter either way.

Dr. Stokes asked the members to join in the campaign for better broadcasting proposed at the convention, by listing and reporting both superior programs and those below standard.

Reports from the regional workshop held in High Point in late September were heard from Mrs. Daniel Taylor, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, and Mrs. D. S. Spain.

The next meeting, a special one, will be held on November 4 in the Flanagan Building of the college, when Mrs. Edward Lamphier from national headquarters will be the speaker.

Pupils of Evans Street School, get this! You are to have better playground facilities—more space in which to enjoy your recess periods and after-school fun. For this consideration, you want to thank S. T. White, who has offered the school board the use of an acre of ground free of charge. This news will make the hearts of 600 youngsters palpitate with joy. For sometime it has been recognized that playground space was entirely inadequate, but with the generous tender of Mr. White the problem has been solved. This space will permit the children to play volleyball and basketball and numerous other games essential to physical and mental development.

Best Excuse By Missing Juror

WILMINGTON (UP)—James Green of Wilmington, who had been advised by telephone that his name had been drawn for jury duty, failed to appear in Superior Court.

When the sheriff was sent to find him yesterday, Green was quoted as saying: "Lord, is that what they meant, I thought I'd won a prize, and I've been waiting all day for them to deliver it."

Judge John J. Burney said that with the best excuse he had heard during his years on the bench, Green was excused.

Intended Robbery Victims Moved

NEW YORK (UP)—Two robbers invaded a home here Tuesday only to learn that their intended victims had moved four months ago.

AFL Organizers Challenge Rivals

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—American Federation of Labor organizers moved into the New Orleans waterfront today as factions of the International Longshoremen's Association fought over local Negro leadership.

Two AFL representatives announced the waterfront will be "swarming" with AFL organizers within a few weeks. The ILA indicated rift had developed in its Southern ranks.

Larry Long of St. Louis, and E. E. Slaughter, of Duluth Minn., the AFL representatives, disclosed the AFL plans to challenge the ILA's dominance at Southern ports.

The AFL has hired four lawyers to show ILA locals how they can bolt to the AFL and carry their local treasuries with them, Long and Slaughter said.

ILA spokesman remained silent meantime on the threatened rebellion of a segment of a Negro local in a dispute over reinstating Dave Dennis as local president. Dennis is now under a state indictment charging misuse of union funds.

Frank A. Yeager, ILA vice president from Galveston, Tex., refused to comment when he emerged from a lengthy closed session with ILA Southern leaders yesterday.

"I can tell you nothing, absolutely nothing," he said grimly. Yeager had said earlier that the executive committee of the South Atlantic and Gulf ILA districts had received a demand that Dennis be forced to resign, and sever all his union connections.

Star-Spangled Birthday For President Who Is 63 Today

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower was 63 years old today and bearing up well under the glittering burden of the most star-spangled birthday celebration in generations.

He scheduled a full day in his office, including appointments with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and the British ambassador, before starting out late tonight on a five-state speaking tour that will take him from Ohio to the Mexican border.

There was little inclination at the White House to hold a birthday celebration of any size today after the extravaganza Republicans staged Tuesday night at Hershey, Pa.

There was nothing in recent American history like the Hershey party for size, glitter and theatrical production. It had everything from a massed chorus of 1,800 voices chanting "I like Ike" to golf pros chipping sponge rubber practice balls into the President's lap. There were birthday cakes by the hundreds, including one (wooden) over 30 feet high and another (real) seven feet tall. At one point, the President received a fiery salute from 7,000 persons each equipped with a small wooden birthday cake and a lighted red candle.

And, to top off a long evening, there was an historical pageant set to music which was interrupted by laughter and applause when Paul Revere on horseback rode around an arena ring, followed quite seriously by a man in colonial military costume and bearing a shovel.

An estimated 20,000 to 25,000 persons participated in the celebration which included three parties — an outdoor box supper in a stadium, a $100-a-plate roast beef dinner in a circus tent and a three-hour show in the Hershey Arena.

High spot of the evening for Mr. Eisenhower was formal notification of the creation of the Eisenhower Exchange Fellowships by friends across the country to promote better international understanding. This was his big birthday gift.

In his only extensive, but informal remarks of the evening, the President said he hoped the fellowships would promote "international relationships of friendship and not enmity, not prejudice, not preconceived notions that the other fellow is a skunk while we are ever good fellows."

The President also had a particular message for the young people in the audience:

"The Republican Party is trying to use all of its brains, all of its ability it has, all of its understanding of this world as it now exists . . . to establish the foundation for which you . . . will carry this United States forward to greater blessings of liberty and freedom under God than it has ever known before."

Mr. Eisenhower was undeniably touched by the warmth of the reception he received in Hershey. In the chilly night air of the stadium, the President's eyes glistened with appreciation as an estimated 12,000 persons sang repeated choruses of "Happy Birthday."

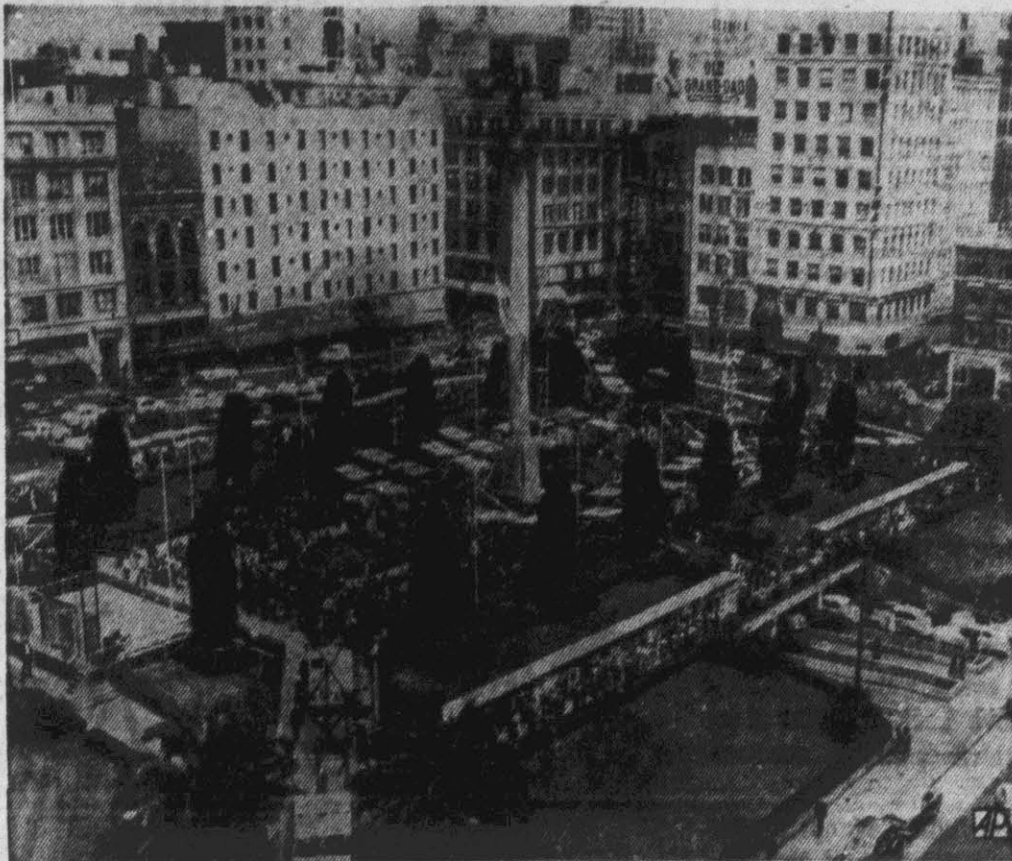

Then the President and Mrs. Eisenhower, who warded off the chill with a stone marten stole over a gray cloth coat, dropped in for dessert at the $100 roast beef buffet in a tent borrowed from Ringling Bros. Circus.

The big smash of the evening was reserved for the arena which the President entered driving Mrs. Eisenhower somewhat gingerly in a bright green Pennsylvania Dutch buggy behind a handsome dappled gray horse.

The crowd of 7,000 ardent GOP well-wishers already had been rehearsed repeatedly by bandleader Fred Waring on when to shout "We like Ike" and "We love Mamie" on cues.

In the arena, a seven-foot cake rose on a stage elevator. The President struck a kitchen match on his left shoe and lighted one candle. The other 62 candles burst into an electric glow and the crowd began singing "God Bless America." Everybody was served birthday cake and ice cream, the President taking two helpings.

Although the President was flanked by GOP leaders all night, there was little or no opportunity for any serious discussion of politics. His host was Philip T. Sharpless, GOP state Finance Committee chairman.

Lengthy Sentences Given 4 Prison Camp Escapees

Pitt County Superior Court Monday sentenced Peter Baxter, Arcado Rodriguez, Rufus Gainey and Velton Deese to 46 years in the North Carolina State Prison.

Peter Baxter and Arcado Rodriguez, charged with armed robbery, larceny, kidnapping, entered a plea of nolo contendere. Each was sentenced to 10 years for armed robbery, five years for larceny, and 25 years for kidnapping. The sentences will run concurrently.

Baxter's sentence will begin at the expiration of a sentence imposed by the Gaston County Superior Court for larceny. That sentence is for not less than seven nor more than ten years.

Rodriguez's sentence will begin at the expiration of a sentence imposed by the Wake County Superior Court for breaking, entering and larceny. This sentence being two years.

Rufus Gainey and Velton Deese were charged with armed robbery, kidnapping, and armed robbery. Both were sentenced to be imprisoned for ten years for the first count of armed robbery, 25 years for kidnapping, and five years for the other count of armed robbery. The sentences will run concurrently. Gainey, who had pleaded not guilty, will begin his sentence at the expiration of a sentence imposed by the Moore County Superior Court for larceny, which is not less than five, nor more than seven years.

When the sentence was pronounced Gainey stated that he wanted to give notice of appeal as a paper. The court told him he could do so by filing the proper papers with the clerk.

Deese's sentence is to begin at the expiration of a sentence imposed by the Robeson County Superior Court for assault with a deadly weapon, which is not less than eight nor more than ten years. He had entered a plea of nolo contendere.

F. C. Bonner and DePoye Inman were charged with armed robbery, larceny, and kidnapping; and Harry E. Flack and James Marvin McLamb were charged with armed robbery, kidnapping, and armed robbery. The case was continued because two of the men are in prison in Georgia and two are in prison in Texas.

Rodriguez, Baxter, Gainey and Deese were brought to Pitt County from the North Carolina State Prison for trial.

All eight men had escaped from the local state prison about a year ago when they overpowered the guards while working on the roads, according to Duke Andrews, deputy sheriff of Pitt County.

Over $5.5 Million Divorce Settlement Granted Bobo

CHICAGO (UP)—A Chicago attorney said today that "Cinderella bride" Barbara (Bobo) Rockefeller and her estranged husband, Winthrop Rockefeller, have agreed to a record-breaking divorce settlement of more than $5,500,000.

The attorney, who said he was an "adviser" to Mrs. Rockefeller, said reports that the couple had finally reached a settlement of their drawn-out marital difficulties were "substantially correct."

The $5,500,000 figure would make the settlement the largest on record, attorneys said.

Meanwhile Pat Bronte, a friend of the blonde Bobo said here the settlement may be officially announced in New York Thursday. Formal settlement papers were being drawn up in New York by lighted a candle and repeated a law. After adjournment of the meeting Miss Jane Russell entertained at a birthday party honoring her cousin, Susan Fargo, a new scout. Norris Spencer assisted the hostess in serving punch, potato chips and a beautifully decorated birthday cake.

The honoree was the recipient of many gifts.

Homecoming at Farmville High School will be held Friday, October 16. The event is sponsored by the Commercial Club.

A parade on Friday afternoon featuring the kings and queens will begin the Homecoming program. That night Farmville and Ayden will play football on the local field. At halftime the band will perform, after which all the kings and queens will be presented.

Immediately after the game, a dance will highlight the evening with the crowning of the king and queen to reign over the 1953-54 year.

Candidates from the various classes follow: Seniors, Chester Worthington and Evelyn Tyson. Juniors, Martha Holmes and Carroll Allen.

Sophomores, Nan Williams and Freddy Thorne. Freshmen, Janie Clark and Wade Mills.

The boy and girl with the highest number of penny votes will be crowned. Proceeds from the homecoming events will finance the school paper.

Mrs. Rockefeller's attorney, Louis Nizer, Miss Bronte said.

However, Miss Bronte added that Mrs. Rockefeller, who is in New York, had not definitely agreed to any settlement by early today.

"She was offered $5,500,000 last November and turned it down," Miss Bronte said.

The attorney, who asked that his name not be revealed, said terms of the "settlement" were substantially as follows:

1. Mrs. Rockefeller will receive $2,000,000 in cash and securities.

2. There will be a $1,000,000 trust fund established for her, guaranteeing an income of $20,000 a year.

3. Another $2,500,000 trust fund will be established for the Rockefeller's son, Winthrop Paul, 5.

4. The boy will stay in his mother's custody, but Rockefeller will have ample visiting rights.

The attorney said he could not verify a report that Mrs. Rockefeller would be paid $70,000 a year in alimony until she remarries or Rockefeller dies.

Bobo, the daughter of a Pennsylvania coal miner, married Standard Oil heir Winthrop Rockefeller on St. Valentine's Day, 1948. They separated a year later and waged a legal battle ever since.

Bobo, now 36, took her son to live at her parent's modest farm home near Lowell, Ind., after the separation. Then, in a dramatic move last June, she gained entrance to Rockefeller's luxurious New York apartment and announced she would stay there.

Rockefeller, meanwhile, moved to Arkansas, apparently intending to obtain a divorce there.

Good Advertising For North Carolina

North Carolina in recent years has undertaken an advertising campaign to tell the rest of the nation about the advantages of the Tar Heel state both as a vacation spot and as a home for industry.

At the same time, the progress made toward industrial development and improvement in North Carolina has in itself been a great advertisement for the state.

Another factor is that industries themselves which have located in North Carolina have been contributing to the program of boosting the state by mentioning North Carolina in some of its advertisements. Still another factor is that companies which have been called on to do work in North Carolina's building program have taken advantage of completed projects to help advertise their products.

In the latest edition of one of the leading business magazines, a major steel company had a full page advertisement which pictured the new arena at the North Carolina State fair.

While the principal purpose was to advertise the product of the company, it was at the same time good advertisement for the progress of North Carolina.

The Tar Heel State continues to stand in a favorable position to have the good news of its development spread not only through state-paid advertising, but through advertising done by large concerns which have had a hand in the development.

Strength for the Day

SHOW YOUR FAULTS
Edward Bulwer-Lytton, the nineteenth-century British novelist who wrote "The Last Days of Pompeii" and a score of other less famous novels, once said, "If you wish to be loved, show more of your faults than your virtues."

This is a strange statement, because at a superficial glance, it seems to mean that we are loved for our faults rather than our virtues; that is, the more faults and fewer virtues we have, the more we shall be loved. Of course Bulwer-Lytton did not mean that, and the statement does not actually say that. It says, "Show more of your faults than your virtues"; that is, do not pretend to a perfection which you have not—show others your true self.

No one knowingly loves a hypocrite, and life being what it is, most hypocrites must face exposure sooner or later. It is hard to say which is worse: to be deceived continually about someone without ever discovering the truth, or to undergo the cruel disappointment of being un deceived.

All human beings have faults; all reasonable human beings admit them. Show your true self, and be loved for what you are. Never stop trying to be better than you are; never start pretending to be better than you are.

National Whirligig

New York's Political Outlook

By DWIGHT MARVIN
Ray Tucker is on vacation, during which there will be guest columns by several prominent newspaper editors. Today's column is by Dwight Mar- vin, Editor of THE TROY, N. Y., TIMES-RECORD.

New York State is desperately important to the national situation. It contains a tenth of the country's population, a tenth of the House of Representatives membership, a great number of the leaders on both sides. This is natural for people from all the other states to gravitate to New York on the assumption that the pickings are better there than in any other sphere of action.

The state therefore is a chief battleground for the 1954 Congressional campaign. If the country is to remain Republican, New York must continue to have a Republican Governor and must drop into the national hopper more Republican Congressmen than it has today. This is fundamental. The national leaders know it.

RECENT RUMORS—This accounts for some of the rumors and some of the movements of recent date. Lieutenant Governor Moore recently resigned to go into private business. This leaves the majority leader of the Senate as the successor of the Governor if he should resign or die, and students of the New York situation, much as they like the gentleman, cannot think seriously of him in the executive chamber. So the possibility of Dewey's translation to the Cabinet would seem tragic.

The normal hope of Republicans is that the Governor will serve out his term. There is no one in the field at the moment who, Republicans feel, is sure of election to gubernatorial office except the Governor or Senator Ives. And, with the close division in the Senate, Ives hardly can afford to leave Washington. If he were nominated for Governor, there is no Republican in sight sure to win the Senate seat for the short term.

HOPE DEWEY WILL RUN FOR FOURTH TERM—So Republicans more and more are hoping the Governor will run again, for his fourth term. After all, other Governors have served four terms. They feel sure Dewey can be re-elected. All the talk about his unpopularity relates to groups outside the state and a few unimportant recalcitrant men within it, men who have been thwarted in seeking their objectives.

Two facts tend to strengthen the opinion that Dewey is thinking hard about it. First, it will be remembered that he persuaded President Eisenhower to depart from his announced faith in private enterprise and to support the Dewey idea of developing the Niagara River under state management. The President had no use for the proposition that the job should be done under Federal control; and most New Yorkers expected he would back the plan for five power companies to do the work. They would borrow the money—$500,000,000, probably—pay inter-to the reader to determine.

The sore spot between Yugoslavia and Italy, which has long been a focal point of international dispute, now threatens at any moment to shatter the peace in Europe.

More than that, the situation which is developing could cause Marshall Tito's government to move back into the Russian fold with which it broke relations five years ago.

Actually, the possibility of open warfare over the disputed key spot between Italy and Yugoslavia may be further removed than Tito would have the Western powers believe. Nevertheless, the battle of international affairs over Trieste is rapidly becoming an East-West dispute which is unlikely to end without communism or the Western nations winning a decisive victory.

The situation which has now developed between the West and Yugoslavia should make the United States, particularly, realize that it has no assurance whatsoever, that nations which have received American economic aid will not turn against this country. Yugoslavia has been the recipient of a great deal of American aid since its break with the Kremlin in 1948. That aid has boosted Tito's military strength—and now a portion of that strength is massed in the Yugoslav zone of the Trieste territory poised to strike Western troops at any time the word is given.

Tito is the lone wolf in the struggle between the Western powers and the Kremlin in a key spot on the international chess board. Instead of being played by those major powers, Tito apparently is playing both sides against each other for Yugoslavia's benefit. And so far he is getting away with it.

MANNING, IOWA, MONITOR: "There are a lot of controversial opinions advanced regarding the preaching of Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, but no one can question the truth of a statement he made recently when he said: 'A lot of youngsters have been raised in the past 20 years with the idea that government support is a normal thing for farmers to expect at all times. That kind of thinking can lead to socialism. We've got to get back to depending on ourselves in normal times.'"

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CALIF., DAILY REGISTER: "At least, the Eisenhower regime is making the first real effort in the past two decades to curb reckless spending. It is also endeavoring to establish integrity and a sense of responsibility in government. Neither is an easy task after the years of easy money and morals in Washington."

OVERBROOK, KAN., CITIZEN: "Just remember, as you encourage government to compete with you, you encourage it to compete with you. Federal government should be taken clear out of all business enterprises must be taken out, for such foreign to the American way of life, part and parcel with communistic belief."

Somebody Told Me

Trips To A Fair Revitalized

If you don't have a three-year-old you should borrow one and take him to the fair. Our Nancy got more out of the fair in an hour than I could have in more than a week without her.

But with her, I found myself enjoying things that I wouldn't have noticed if she hadn't been along. It was a double-barreled show: enjoying the sights with her, and enjoying her reaction to the sights.

Take a look at what she enjoyed, listed in the order she appeared to place them:

1. Some bird in the animal exhibit which she can't remember. If you saw the exhibit it was the last one on the left. Back at home, she described the bird in detail to Wife Rachel.
2. The monkeys. ("Daddy, did you know a monkey could scratch his head?") Here I found myself enjoying something that I wouldn't have ordinarily noticed right by. They were in a playful mood and chasing each other all over the cage.

Some of Nancy's negative reactions were interesting. For example, she wasn't at all interested in cotton candy, which I could have eaten a barrel of at her age. And the potpies didn't interest her in the least.

But how about those fast rides, like the whip? She almost cried when I told her they were too rough.

She enjoyed the exhibit hall as much as the rest combined. I think. Although she has seen mannequins in store windows before, she took a particular interest in the one on exhibit.

Remember that display that showed the comparison between a clean and dirty hog pasture? Nancy particularly liked the dirty one. The display by the Future Farmers of America, showing the gallons of water per day required by every operation on the farm was fascinating to Nancy and me, for different reasons. While I was astounded at the story it had to tell, Nancy was expounding over the realistic figures on the miniature farm. "That swine," she said, "is just like mine."

Maybe you're like me and find yourself not enjoying the fairs as much as you used to. A sure cure is to take a three-year-old for that double-barreled thrill. And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE DUKE OF BEDFORD (Greensboro Daily News)
The story of the Duke of Bedford could have been written by Somerset Maugham or Graham Greene—or both. But it was written by neither; it was written by history.

Mr. Maugham might have done it well. The Duke of Bedford went out early in the morning near Endsleigh, his manor near Tavistock, while the dew was fresh on the foliage, to hunt an old enemy. The October wind blew cool across the moors and the woodland nearby was draped in the glory of Autumn.

It was the duke's old gamekeeper who unraveled the mystery. He had been ill, and so he could not join the search parties as they scoured the forest and moors and even the depths of the Tamar River when the duke did not return. But the gamekeeper did not need to go. He knew the old duke well. Where would his lordship have gone? To the "Swiss Cottage," his favorite beauty spot? Perhaps. Had the searchers looked there? They had not.

They found the duke lying beside a footpath. A police spokesman described the scene: "The body lay as though the duke had fallen. Death was instantaneous. We have nothing to indicate that this was anything but an accident."

A shell from the duke's own 12-gauge shotgun had blasted his head. It was a shell intended for the hawk which had mottled his prize parakeets. (How shall we reconcile this with the duke's lifelong pacifism? He had opposed World War II and sought a peace conference with Hitler; in 1941 he left the church, calling it "a body supporting mass murder and organized sin.")

Perhaps it was different with the hawk. The bird was disturbing the peaceful woods of Devonshire. It was a different kind of killer. Or was it?

Early in the morning the Duke of Bedford, who could ride 100 miles through four counties and never leave his property, went stalking a killer. He never came back. What a setting. What a story. Won't you take it from there, Mr. Maugham?

Militant Democrat Waynick; TVA Payments To State

By LYNN NISBET
WAYNICK—Among the interested and interesting onlookers at the recent Young Democratic Clubs meeting was Capus Waynick, lately returned from his post as ambassador to Columbia. His resignation has been accepted, but there remains a bit of red tape to be cut before he can be entirely free of responsibility to the State Department.

He was taking no part in YDC affairs, and said he was presently taking none in any political contest. Rather, he is trying to catch up on factual news and gossip after three years absence as ambassador to Nicaragua and Colombia.

On one point he is very positive. He wants a militant and aggressive campaign for the Democratic party in every county and every district in the State. He manifested marked impatience at suggestions that there is no use for the Democrats to undertake real effort to recapture the tenth congressional district, and does not agree that the real fight should be deferred until the presidential election year.

Rep. Charles Raper Jonas is his personal friend and admittedly is forming a good job in Congress. Personal friendship has nothing to do with the fact that Jonas is a Republican and the district ought to have a Democrat at Washington, he argues.

Waynick had no comment on what position he might take in the forth-coming senatorial primary, or in connection with any other contest within the party. He made it clear that he expects to do everything within his power to help the Democrats win over Republicans whenever and wherever the opportunity arises. Having held high office in both State and National circles under Democratic regimes he just doesn't like the idea of Republicans having charge of things.

Authority has paid to the State of North Carolina and to five mountain counties (including municipalities and special tax districts within the counties) the sum of $95,139.39 "in lieu of taxes" for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1953.

National Forests and TVA make such payments every year. Amounts vary and are arrived at by use of complicated formula understandable only by accountants and financial experts.

Various housing authorities and other revenue-producing agencies of the Federal Government make similar payments "in lieu of taxes" to local units. The State of North Carolina likewise makes certain payments to counties in which revenue yielding State property is situated.

In most instances the payments are based upon what the local units lost from taxable values at time the property was taken over and do not take into account what the taxes would be if the facilities had been built by private capital. Advocates of government operation of such enterprises contend that private capital would not have provided them and that payments are adequate.

The State collects from privately owned power companies only franchise and income taxes. Counties and municipalities collect mainly ad valorem taxes, though some have privileged levies. The TVA payments are in lieu of all taxes.

The $95,139.39 total was distributed among the various units as follows: State General Fund, $31,810.41; Swain county and Bryson City, $25,348.69; Cherokee county and all subsidiary tax units, $18,147.03; Graham county, $17,718.06; Clay county and Hayesville, $2,100.45; Haywood county, $14.73.

The Right-To-Work Laws

Fourteen states have passed right-to-work bills, Alabama being the latest. These bills vary in details, but all of them provide, as the Los Angeles Times expressed it, "that no worker may be denied employment or discriminated against because he is or is not a member of a union. The right to join a union is thus protected, and the corollary right not to join is also protected."

Both of these rights are vitally important to free labor, union or nonunion. Under the closed shop or the union shop, the individual is powerless—if he is to hold his job and support his family he must stay in the union and pay it dues whether he wants to or not, and regardless of what he may think of the caliber and policies of union officials. Under the right-to-work idea on the other hand, where union membership is voluntary, union officials must please their members and give good service if they are to maintain the organization and hold their own jobs.

In signing Alabama's bill, Governor Persons pointed out that there are many national and regional organizations which have performed signal service for veterans, farmers, business groups, and others—and that in no case is membership compulsory. Then he said, "In my opinion, all of our labor unions will be far stronger and the members in them will have a far greater interest and respect in the organizations if membership can be shown to be desirable and they are not forced to join." In short, both fundamental individual rights and the cause of sound unionism itself are given basic protection in the right-to-work bill.—(Industrial News Review)

Christmas Planning

By ELMER ROESSNER
Retailers are damping recession talk and sailing full speed into the Christmas market. Howard P. Abraham, sales promotion division manager of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, declared after discussions with management of various types of stores.

With few exceptions, the nation's stores are expecting to meet or beat their November-December sales records, he said. Other points in his preview of Christmas selling are:

Advertising investment will average even with last year. Newspaper advertising will equal last year in dollar total. Radio advertising will hold its own, with a trend from shows to spots. Stores will use spots on television for "hard sell techniques," but they are drifting away from shows because of costs and because national advertisers have good air time sewed up.

Many stores are increasing their direct mail activity through the use of catalogues. However, he said many stores are considering the use of supplements in their newspapers instead of privately printed and mailed catalogues. "These stores feel that the added circulation of their newspaper, versus their own mailing lists or bought lists, gives them better coverage of their market," he said.

Windows will feature more religious displays than ever before, he said. In interiors, the trend to self-selection is continuing in most stores and, with shortage of salespersons around Christmas, this will be intensified. "Toy departments, small accessories, electrical appliances, men's furnishings and other departments are expected to blossom forth for this period as self-selection departments," he observed.

Stores will use more informative signs than in the past, there will be more item and less institutional advertising than usual, and most stores, Mr. Abraham added, will promote their best selling price lines instead of "going off in other directions." While Thanksgiving is usually the opening of retail Christmas campaigns he said, early November will see many stores offering items requiring monogramming or other special attention.

CONSUMERS NUDGE TOWARD ART THEMES

After a top movie on the life of Toulouse-Lautrec and a whole series of pocket books on famous artists, manufacturers, wholesalers and dealers in housefurnishings can expect a higher consumer interest in fine arts in the home. While few families can afford works of great artists, all can afford reproductions, and furniture and furnishings in designs based on works of great artists.

5.4 PER CENT OF WORKING WOMEN FOUND TO BE BOSSES

Of the 18,700,000 working women in the United States, 5.4 per cent are managers, officials and proprietors, the National Industrial Conference Board calculates on a basis of Census figures.

The largest group of women workers consists of clericals, being 28.5 per cent of the total. Other groups: operatives, craftsmen and foremen, 20.8 per cent; service, except private household, 11.7 per cent; professional and technical, 10.2 per cent; private household workers, 8.4 per cent; sales, 7.5 per cent; farm laborers and foremen, 4.9 per cent; farmers and laborers, except farm and mine, 0.8 per cent.

CITIES TAX COLLECTIONS HIT ANOTHER HIGH

Tax collections in the nation's 481 largest cities in 1952 were 9.2 per cent higher than a year earlier, setting a new record, Commerce Clearing House calculates. Total collections in the cities were $5,256,000,000 and borrowings $1,138,000,000. Total debt is now $110.5 billion.

Boyle's October Song Repeated

Editor's Note—In a troubled world of doubt and wrong, all agree there is one thing eternally right—and that's October. The following tribute to "The Month-Of-The-Year" is reprinted at the request of a number of readers.

BY HAL BOYLE

ANYPLACE IN AMERICA (AP)—If the Lord whispered in your secret heart that you had but one month to live and let you pick that month, which would you choose?

I'd say October.
The birds love it, the beasts love it, and man himself then stands upon the summit of the year.

October is all the other seasons wrapped into a 31-day grab bag package, tied with a rainbow ribbon. It is the period when Mother Nature, the great dramatist, brings her traveling road show to a climax.

This is the month that, like a cider press, squeezes out the best juices of all the other months—the promise of spring, the sultry joys of summer, the afterglow of autumn, the premonitory chill of winter.

Everything that walks the earth feels an amber thrill, a tremendous bubbling vitality that sings in the pulse.

Now is the glory of the universe manifest, and in the mighty pageant of the hills each patch of woods elects its own tree beauty queen. You like the dogwood? We won't quarrel. I'll take the maple, that yellow torch.

The birds looked on disdainfully while foolish man clogged every steaming road with his July vacations. They know the right time to travel. They have hung a "to let" sign on their nests and cloud the serene skies with a billion wings beating southward. The worm they missed noses deeper into the turf, muttering "safe at last."

It is as if everyone suddenly had been given magic color glasses. The stars bend nearer. And that big blob of moon . . . A child feels it is so close he could reach up with a knife and spread it on his bread like butter.

The stag stamps on the hilltop and lifts an anorak bugle to the night. The throb in every woodland heart has an echo in the city. October knows no boundaries. Listen: Can't you hear and feel its music in your veins, the tremendous symphony of living?

The squirrel, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed, becomes an annual miser, furiously depositing acorns in a hidden safe deposit box that will be empty by March. The bear invests his excess profits in fall, planning to live off this stored capital until he emerges from his hibernation next spring, cross and bankrupt.

The wind at night now has become a violin, playing a love song for the young, a last tune of youth for the old. Do you stay awake to hear it? You'd better: He only stays a little while, this wandering fiddler in the dark, then takes his ballads and beats it.

October wears a crown, and makes every man a king. It bears the harvest superiority of the rounded apple over the petaled flower, the advantage of the fruit and achievement have over pale promises. April is the fledgling politician of the year, saying "Stick with me and we'll go places."

October is the mature statesman holding out the golden reward.

October pours the mellowed wine of life, and anyone who isn't drinking it deeply right now is a salesman for sour grapes.

was more marked during the war years when literally millions of Americans were in overseas service. Since purchases had to be made for them by mid-November it was natural that attention should be given to purchases for the home folks at the same time. Inevitable effect was to move up Christmas shopping from mid-December at least a month earlier.

Merchants have been caught in the middle. They are criticized for unduly commercializing the holy season by offering Christmas gifts for sale so far in advance. And they are criticized by families of service men if they do not provide the merchandise in time to get it to the overseas boys and girls by Christmas.

Italy's Shipping Is At Pre-War Level

By ELVEZIO BIANCHI
United Press Staff Correspondent
ROME (U.P.)—Government statistics show Italy's merchant marine had been rebuilt to its pre-war level by the end of 1952 industry was still on the climb and the increase in the cost of living was held to only 4.2 per cent compared to 1951.

These and other accomplishments of the government of former Premier Alcide de Gasperi were listed in a series of official figures released recently by the Italian Institute of Statistics.

Many Old Ships
There was only one setback recorded in the 1952 statistics—the worsening of the Italian trade balance, whose deficit increased from 325,100,000,000 lire ($520,160,000) to 581,800,000,000 lire ($930,560,000).

Italy had its merchant marine practically wiped out during World War II as a result of air and naval actions of the Allies. The gross tonnage of the merchant fleet, which stood at 3,500,000 tons early in 1940, had fallen to only 617,000 tons at the end of the war, the report said.

But by the end of 1952 the Italian naval register listed 4,585 units for a gross tonnage of 3,500,000 tons the same as before the war. The statistics noted, however, that 39.4 per cent of the ships are more than 20 years old.

The report said agriculture and fishing accounted for 29.8 per cent of Italy's national production. The remainder came from various branches of industry.

The statistics confirmed a long-standing trend — the slow but steady decrease of the male population employed in agricultural and fishing activities. The trend, however, did not affect last year's production, which stood at almost the same level as in 1951. Indexes listed in the report were 109.3 for 1951 and 108.8 for 1952.

Textile Exports Off
The general index of industrial production increased from 137 in 1951 to 142 in 1952. The only two industrial branches which suffered a slump in production were textiles and rubber.

The unfavorable trend of the trade balance was mainly due, the statistical summary said, to the substantial fall of textile exports.

Exports of cotton and wool textiles, silk and artificial fibers dwindled from 288,400,000 lire ($471,440,000) in 1951 to 137,100,000,000 lire ($219,360,000). The decrease was more or less equivalent to the increase in the trade deficit.

The report furnished a problem to economic students. It noted that while wholesale prices fell by 5.6 per cent in 1952 in respect to the previous year, the cost of living rose by 4.2 per cent. The higher cost of food, which absorbs roughly two-thirds of an Italian family's budget, probably was responsible for this paradoxical situation, the summary added.

Florida Kluxers Drop Tradition

RIVER JUNCTION, Fla. (UP)—The Ku Klux Klan in Florida discarded its robes and ritual along with color barriers to membership today, and invited Negroes to join on a segregated basis.

C. L. Parker, new grand dragon, said the only membership requirements are to "believe in God and the Constitution of the United States"—and pay a $1 fee.

"There will be no paraphernalia to buy," Parker said.

The Klan, for the first time so far as was publicly known, opened its ranks in Florida to "all races, creeds or colors," but Parker said the Klan still believes that "segregation of the races is the law of God." He said Negroes may form their own "klaverns."

Parker, 46-year-old furniture dealer and building contractor, took over as grand dragon last June when Bill Hendrix stepped down as head of the Southern Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Florida.

Hendrix said he had tried repeatedly to disband the Klan but "we can't because some bunch always runs out and forms an independent group—and gets us in trouble."

Klan officials have denied being responsible for several outbreaks of "hooded violence" in the south several years ago but in North Carolina and South Carolina a Klan group was smashed and prosecuted for terrorism.

Hendrix said the Florida Klan decided to retain its organization but is "coming out in the open and discarding hoods, sheets, cross burnings and other paraphernalia."

PARIS (UP)—French painter Pierre Cézanne amazed his friends by the variety of beautiful nudes that appeared in his fall crop of paintings.

They asked him how he could afford so many pretty models. "It was easy," Cézanne said. "I spent the summer at the Ile du Levant Riviera nudist colony."

Illini Surprising To Coach Ray Eliot

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—It was the pre-season opinion of fellow coaches that his material was the weakest of his career.

When his boys went out and scored 21 points in the first quarter, there was a flood of telephone calls into the sports department as unbelieving experts asked "Can that be right—there must be a mistake."

But there wasn't any mistake and his boys moved right on for one of the most stirring victories of the season.

He's the United Press Coach of the Week, Ray Eliot of fighting Illinois and author of that 41-20 victory over Ohio State.

"Are we loaded?" he said in answer to a question as to how it happened. "Man, that's silly. This is a young green team. Let's walk and see what happens from now on. Right now I just get numb thinking about it."

"But I've got to say I get a terrific kick out of a win like that one. When you see the boss learning and they come through well—that's gratifying. As for this game, it just was a case of the boys being up."

"This week we have to go up against Minnesota and we could be in real trouble," he said. "As for Ohio State, maybe they didn't take us seriously. Because we're not that good."

Referring to J. C. Caroline, the young back who scored two touchdowns, Eliot said "He's green but he's trying hard, in a k i n g mistakes but improving." As for Mickey Bates, who scored four touchdowns, Eliot said, "He's coming along but we've got a lot of youngsters who have a lot to learn."

Despite the surprising showing of the Illini, who also defeated Stanford and tied Nebraska, Eliot said that "Now we have no aspirations for anything except to get out of the second division in the Big Ten and to stay out."

No matter what happens the rest of the way, however, Eliot still is unhappy. He is peeved over the elimination of the two-platoon system.

"The coaches were able to do a much better job," he said. "And the boys themselves liked the two-platoon system better. This year we've used 20 to 25 players a game as compared with 30 to 35 last year. We must play some boys on defense who shouldn't be in there."

Freshmen Prep For State Game Tomorrow Night

BY JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor
The East Carolina College Pirates steered clear of rough work in practice yesterday for a couple of good reasons, one freshman, one Varsity.

The Pirate frosh will take on their second opponent of the year Thursday night when they tangle with the N. C. State College freshmen in College Stadium. Kickoff time is 8 o'clock and a large crowd is expected for the contest. Tickets for the game will be available at the gate but pre-game sales are being conducted in the College Athletic Office.

Coach Earl Smith's freshmen have a 39-0 victory to their credit in their only game this year. They romped to their single win over New Hanover High School despite penalties of 205 yards that cost them at least four tallies.

In yesterday's workout, the freshmen checked their offense and worked on punt returns. Boyd Hooper of Reidsville and James Henderson of Raleigh did the bulk of the work in the punt returns with Milton Collier doing the kicking.

In the Varsity workout, most of the attention was centered on the defense which gave up 25 points to Elon last week. There was considerable work on pass defense although there was no contact work in either phase of the drill.

The injury list for the Bucs jumped up again after Saturday's game with Elon but most of the injuries are of a minor nature. Guard James Faircloth, tackle Ray Overton and halfbacks Ted Barnes and Harold O'Kelly were all slowed yesterday. Barnes, however, was in full equipment for the first time in two weeks and may see action Saturday night against Western Carolina although the left halfback position is presently in the hands of sophomore Jim Stanley.

Stanley is expected to get the starting call again this week when the Bucs travel to Cullowhee to meet the winless Catamounts. He was started against Elon and was second only to Claude King as a ground gainer for the Bucs. Stanley is a 165-pound Korean veteran from Washington, N. C., who played a year of football at ECC before going to active duty.

The victory over Elon Saturday night was the eleventh consecutive regular season game the Pirates have played without a defeat. Four of their victories have come this year.

Wee Willie Needing One For Record
ALBANY, Calif. (UP)—They'll have to lock Willie Shoemaker in the jockey room to keep him from breaking Tony DeSpirito's world record today.

Wee Willie also known as "Silent Shoe" because he's as verbose as a tongue-tied oyster, goes into today's card needing only one victory to tie and two to break the 399 mark set last year by DeSpirito.

And with seven handpicked mounts lined up he looks like a cinch bet if a race fan ever saw one.

Yanks Calling Up Two Negro Stars
NEW YORK (UP)—The names of Vic Power and Elston Howard, promising young Negro baseball stars, were among eight new players brought up by the New York Yankees today as the world champions, in an effort to beat the Oct. 17 roster deadline, gleaned their farm system of some of its more lucrative chattels.

Yankee officials, in making the announcement in personnel changes, said that both Power and Howard—the first Negroes ever to appear on a Yankee roster—would be given the same consideration as all other rookies when the pair report for spring training next February.

Power, often mentioned as a potential star, played both first base and the outfield for the Kansas City Blues last season and led the American Association in batting with a .349 mark in 149 games.

Howard, the more polished outfielder, will be 25 in February and bats and throws righty also. He batted .286 in 139 games at Kansas City.

The other players recalled from Kansas City are pitchers Mel Wright and Wally Burnette, catcher Lew Berberet and outfielder Bill Virdon. The two players called up from Birmingham of the Southern Association are outfielder Emil Telling and catcher Hal Smith.

Casey Gets Annual Award: UP's AL Manager Of Year

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Wily old Casey Stengel, the jovial genius who directed the Yankees to five straight world championships, won his "annual" award today as the United Press American League manager of the year.

It was the fifth year in a row for O' Case, but despite his unprecedented feat of running up two more World Series triumphs in a row than any other manager in history, he had some competition for the award. In other campaigns he had won it almost unanimously.

This year in the balloting by the special committee of 24 baseball writers, three from each league city, Stengel received 18 votes while Lou Boudreau of Boston's rover-boy Red Sox and Paul Richards of Chicago's go-go White Sox picked up three each.

Yet Stengel probably deserved the honor more this year than ever for with virtually the same ball club he had in 1952 he literally walked off with the American League pennant race.

Had it not been for a sudden nine-game losing streak in mid-season which came on the heels of an 18-game winning streak, Stengel's Bronx gunners probably would have won the flag by a greater margin than any other American League team in history.

And they did it with a graybeard pitching staff that no longer had the stamina and heavy duty effectiveness of other years. Allie Reynolds, who won 20 games in 1952, found that he no longer could serve effectively both as a starter and reliever and wound up this time with just 13 wins.

Stengel also had a problem child in his slugging star, Mickey Mantle. Ballyhooed by the Yankee press agents as another super star of the stripe of Ruth, Gehrig, and DiMaggio the young man began to swing madly for distance after hitting a so-called record homer of about 575 feet at Washington early in the year.

In other years, Stengel went heavy for two-platooning his right and left handed hitters but this year he eliminated much of the switching and settled for Hank Bauer regularly in right field and Gene Woodling as his every day left fielder. That seemed to give stability to both and they wound up with 300 plus averages against both right and left hand pitching.

Kittrell Gives Phantoms Day Of Rest From Drills

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
Coach Bill Kittrell gave his Greenville high school football team a day off for the fair yesterday afternoon. The Phants skipped their usual workout because of an open date on their schedule this weekend.

Next on the Phantoms' schedule is the New Bern team which smacked the Phantoms 42-14 last year in New Bern. That loss knocked the Phantoms out of the Northeastern Conference championship.

The Bears are currently leading the pack in the Northeastern. Not only they failed to lose but they have won all of their games by convincing margins behind the smooth work of quarterback Preacher Parker. Parker has accounted for almost all of the New Bern scoring in every game the Bears have played this year.

Barring an injury in practice before the October 23 contest the Phants will enter the game in their best physical condition of the season. Every member of the squad has recovered already from old injuries and the team is at full strength. The one exception that might be made is Larry Powell, the brilliant sophomore tackle, who was a pre-season choice for All-Conference honors before he went out of action for the year as a result of a practice injury.

The New Bern game will be the last home game for the Phants. They close their schedule with three games on the road.

One-Platoon Play Is Big Equalizer

NEW YORK (UP)—The abrupt return to one-platoon college football has proved to be the greatest equalizer since the six-shooter.

Ample statistical evidence of closer competition in major college games was revealed today by National Collegiate Athletic Bureau figures which show that the "spread" between leaders and their pursuers has decreased in all four team offense categories—total offense, rushing, passing and scoring—and that current leaders' figures are considerably below corresponding marks of a year ago.

Northwestern, total offense leader for the second straight week, has gained 408.4 yards per game and is the only team above 400. Illinois, leaping up from 10th place, heads the rushing list with a 328-yard average against West Virginia's 301.7. Fordham, last season's leader, is back on top in passing with 185.5 yards a game. And West Virginia has scored most points per game, 34.7.

California, in total offense, soared from 38th to 10th in its fourth game, a rise that would have been all but impossible last year. Half of last week's top 10 in total offense were replaced this week. And Wyoming, last week's rushing leader, fell to fifth.

Spinster's Life Is Happy...It Says Here

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP NEWSFEATURES WRITER

A pretty interesting commentary on American spinsterhood has surfaced recently and at the risk of sounding positively subversive, I'd like to point it out spidily.

In a recent copy of a magazine called "Lifetime Living," there was printed unobtrusively the results of a survey made among about 1,300 women telephone operators. The object of the survey was, I gathered, to find out a little something about the health of women workers.

Their main finding didn't strike me as particularly new or startling: about two-thirds of all the illness and poor health in the group was concentrated among about one-third of the telephone operators.

In recent years, we've all been made increasingly aware that that really is such a thing as being accident-prone and that certain people actually seem to attract disaster germs and physical mishaps because of a certain alchemy which involves bad thinking or unconscious drives toward self-destruction.

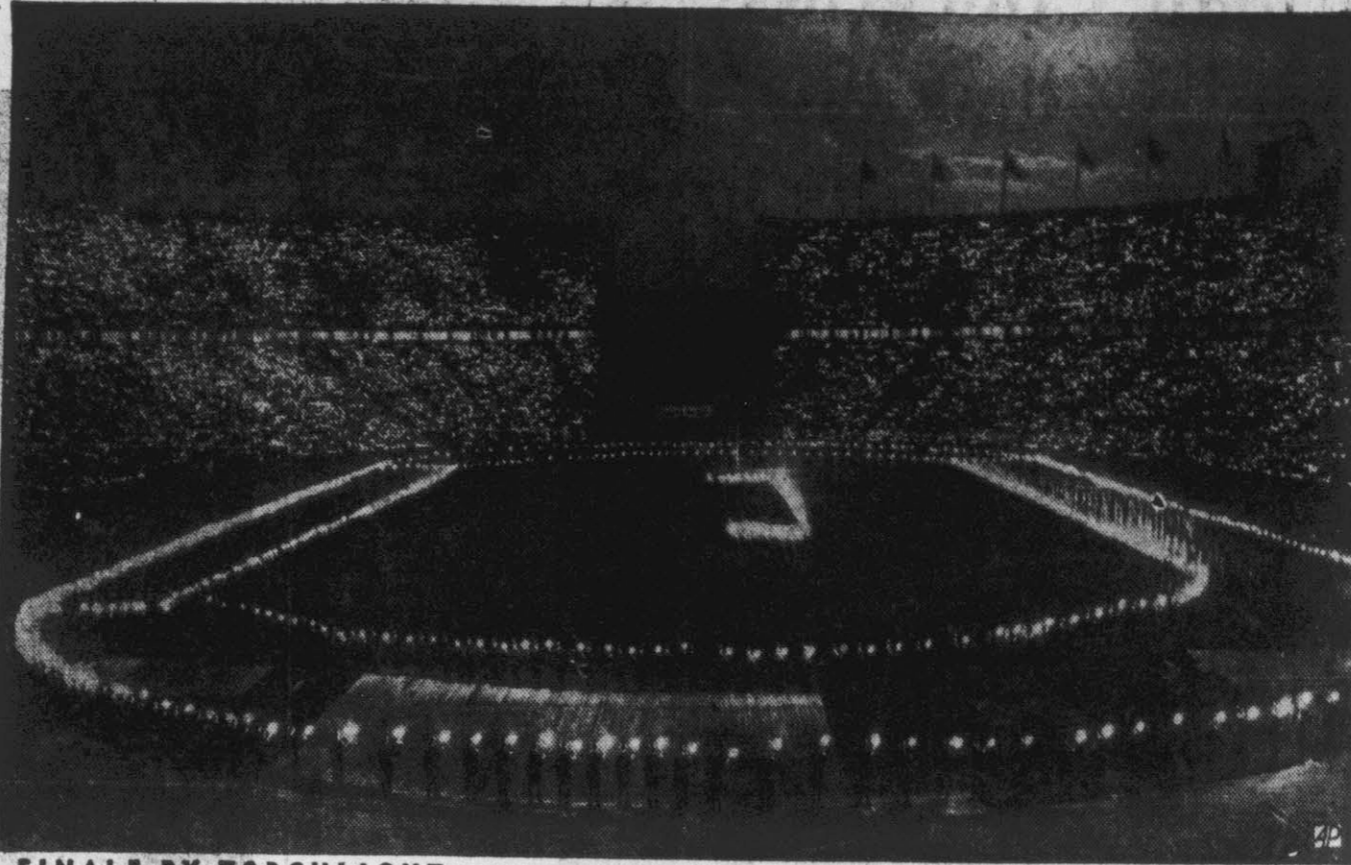

It seemed, therefore quite understandable that the surveyors among the telephone operators found that the group of women with the lion's share of physical distress were the most harassed worried women of the lot—the widows and divorcees with small children to care for.

The startling finding to me was this: the survey people found that the women with the best health were the telephone operators who were single, without family responsibilities, who had no desire to marry and who were content with their jobs and their station in life.

This was a pretty limited survey and perhaps can be attacked as a basis for broad generalities because it was all on one level and represented only one group and one income bracket.

The fact remains, however, that it is the first comforting word flung to the nation's spinsters I've come across in years.

Statistically, it has been shown repeatedly by the census that spin-

FINALE BY TORCHLIGHT— West Berlin's Olympic Stadium is a mass of shimmering and flickering lights as West Berlin police aided by spectators hold traditional German "big tattoo" with torchlights as finale to their annual demonstration.

OH, OH, ANNETTE— Former aquatic queen Annette Kellerman, who introduced the one-piece bathing suit in 1916, limbo-ops up by picking up a floral corsage in New York.

ster is inevitable in a country where there are more women than men and where monogamy is a federal law. But the unwed female population—particularly those who fell into the dreaded "career" category by choice or necessity—have been attacked on a lot of fronts as dames who by all the rules should take nervous stock of themselves.

And now comes along this friendly little poll of telephone operators which finds that women who aren't gnawed by ambition and take pleasure in their work can at least enjoy good health even though unblessed by spouse or child.

Of course, the little survey really doesn't prove that to be healthy one should be single. It just goes to show that women who are financially responsible for the support and upbringing of small children have more worries and pressures than women responsible to themselves alone.

The piece I read made no mention of the health of happily married women with children.

But anyway, it's nice to know if some women must be spinsters, they can be healthy and happy as telephone operators.

Although the one-humped and two-humped camels look very different and are suited to different climates, there is little real anatomical difference between them.

New Ore Source Is Being Tapped

NEW YORK (U.P.)— The men who make steel have perfected a new process of getting ore for the nation's blast furnaces by concentrating taconite rock which has been resting in the Mesabi range for 900 million years.

Steelways, official publication of the American Iron and Steel Institute, says that taconite, a low grade but abundant iron-bearing rock, is the nation's answer to critics who warn that deposits of high-grade ore are running low.

The magazine says that the Mesabi range holds billions of tons of taconite, which has resisted processing efforts for more than a generation. Taconite is the "mother lode" from which deposits of high-grade ore were formed by nature.

Plants Spring Up
Mining companies have developed new processes which duplicate nature's process of concentrating the iron content of the rock on a much faster scale. They have been working with taconite off and on since 1916. A pilot plant with a rated capacity of 200,000 tons per year began operation in Aurora,

Minn., in 1948.

Since then developments have come rapidly. Another company has built a plant of 300,000-ton capacity at Babbitt, and is building a much larger one at Beaver Bay on Lake Superior. The total capacity of the two plants may reach 10,000,000 tons per year. At near-by Aurora, the company that built the pilot plant plans to build a plant with a 10.5 million ton capacity.

Additional plants are planned for Mountain Iron and Virginia, Minn., and Ishpeming, Mich. At many of these plant towns whole communities are springing up, providing schools, stores churches and recreation centers in addition to homes for workers.

NOTICE OF SALE OF FARMLAND BY COMMISSIONER
Under and by virtue of authority and power of sale contained in that certain order made by Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County on the 9th day of October, 1953, and the matter pending in said Court entitled "Luther Lovick, Sr. et al vs. Alfred Green et al," the undersigned commissioners will offer for sale and sell at public auction for cash before the courthouse door in 50 years of "miracles"...

AND THAT'S ONLY THE BEGINNING!

A half century ago, on December 17, 1903, Orville Wright made the first powered heavier-than-air flight. For twelve history-making seconds he flew over Kitty Hawk in a biplane fueled by the Esso Standard Oil Company.

Since that eventful day, and on into today's new era of screaming jets and zooming rockets, Esso Standard and the rest of the Petroleum Industry have moved forward hand in hand with aviation progress.

That's just one of the reasons why this week is being celebrated throughout the nation as OIL PROGRESS WEEK.

For while ever-improving fuels and lubricants have played a vital part in this astonishingly swift conquest of the skies, so also have improved petroleum products helped bring about the infinitely finer performance of your new automobile, the cleaner, cheaper and warmer heat that you enjoy in your home, and the smoother-flowing, well-lubricated productivity of the factories that produce the things you use. And now, through progress in Petrochemicals, you are entering a new world of miracle plastics and wonder fibres—more new things to serve your needs better and cheaper than ever before.

In short, there's hardly anything that you use or wear that hasn't somehow been made a little better through Petroleum Industry Progress.

So it's no wonder that OIL PROGRESS WEEK is celebrated by the Petroleum Industry and Esso employees and dealers everywhere. It honors the kind of progress that today, for example, brings you automobile gasoline that does 50% more work per gallon than 1925 gasolines did! You'll agree there's really something to celebrate!

Pitt Red Cross Chairman Concerned Over Falling Off Blood Collections

Pitt County's Red Cross Chairman E. Hoover Taft said he was very much concerned over the condition of the blood program in Pitt County, especially after last week's visit of the bloodmobile.

"I am not sure why Pitt County, which usually supports a worthy blood program, is not meeting its blood program quota," he stated.

"Even though the Korean War is over there is a dire need for blood for servicemen recuperating from wounds received while fighting," Taft continued.

"The Civilian blood program for our local hospitals and the nation's gamma globulin program, to fight polio needs Pitt's assistance. Since Pitt County is a member of this program, any citizen of this county can get blood when he needs it, no matter where he is.

"The gamma globulin keeps children stricken with polio from being paralyzed and it minimizes the spread of epidemics. North Carolina during the past year, has received without cost, more gamma globulin than any other state in the Union," he said, "and it takes four pints of blood for one inoculation of gamma globulin."

The Red Cross chairman pointed out that a stock of blood is good insurance in case disaster should strike Pitt County. He gave Waco, Texas, as an example of how the Red Cross flew, without charge, 400 pints of blood to Waco within three hours after the tornado struck three hours after the tornado struck by a disaster blood would be rushed here by the Red Cross from the Tidewater Regional Blood Center.

If more was needed than in stock at this center blood would then come from the other 60 centers throughout the country," he said. Taft gave another example of how the Red Cross helps supply blood needs. Citing an example here in Pitt County he told of a 14-year-old girl whose life was saved by the Red Cross rushing blood when she needed it. This girl was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital and found to be bleeding inter-gram," Ward stated. When questioned about what charge is made to a patient's bill when blood is administered, Ward said the hospital charges for the following services: typing the blood cross matching the blood, the RH factor check, the serology check, the recipient sets, laboratory technician services, and laboratory services. "These charges were set forth in a conference by a committee from the Hospital Medical Staff, Hospital Administration officials, and the Tidewater Regional Blood Center," he explained. "These charges amount to $10 for each of first two services on one admission and $5 for each service thereafter," Ward continued, "and hospital bills are marked 'Blood given through the American Red Cross—No Charge.'"

Explaining the function of the blood program in the Red Cross, Taft said that bloodmobiles collect blood five days each week. It is returned to the blood centers for processing and then sent to hospitals for storage until needed. If a hospital needs more, more is sent.

Taft pointed out that the president of the American Red Cross is urging people to join and be of service to the Red Cross, and by giving blood one can be of great service. In conclusion, the Pitt County Red Cross Chairman said, "I have the utmost confidence in the people of Pitt County coming through and meeting this great challenge."

Faculty-Student Show Scheduled Next Week

Students and faculty members of the East Carolina College department of music will stage a variety show next Tuesday and Wednesday, October 20 and 21, and will present a program of light entertainment, including songs, instrumental music, dances, and skits.

The program will be the first of the kind to be sponsored by the department. Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. in the College Theatre, and tickets will be on sale at the box office there.

Edmund Durham of the music faculty is director of the variety show. Approximately thirty-five students and faculty members of the music department and several guest artists will make up the cast. The Collegians, East Carolina dance band, will play under the direction of Charles Klutz of Henderson.

The program will open with Bach's "Fugue in G Minor", presented by a faculty sextette in an original arrangement. Sigmund Spaeth's amusing "Jack and Jill" a "discourse on music deprecation", will present eight faculty members in a take-off on how various composers would write the nursery rhyme.

East Carolina President John D. Messick, Dr. N.M. Jorgensen of the health and physical education department, Director J.L. Oppelt of the Bureau of Student Teaching and Placement, and Dan E. Vornholt of the music department will appear in a group of "Barbershop Harmonies."

Other numbers will include "Mon Homme" sung by Ellen Sprinkle of Asheville; a dance by Shirley Moore of Salisbury and Bruce Phillips of Rutherford; "Three Blind Mice" by the Four Sophomores;

PMA Committee Voting Reported Light Over Pitt

Voting for community committees to help administer the Production and Marketing Administration's farm program for 1954 has been very light, according to James T. Meredith, county office manager, Pitt County PMA.

"More interest is needed," he said, "however, we do realize this is a busy time of the year for farmers." The election is usually held in December, but had to be moved up this year due to a peanut and cotton referendum.

A misprint yesterday stated voting was to take place in Belvoir, Bethel, Farmville, and Swift Creek communities this coming Thursday; and Carolina, Falkland, Fountain and Pactolus on Friday of this week. That is wrong as voting was held in these communities last Thursday and Friday.

Today, voting is held in Grimesland Town Hall for Chicod B, in Curtis Spencer's Store for Chicod C, and in L.C. Venter's Store for Chicod D. Tomorrow, Chicod A will vote in H.H. Porter's Store, Greenville D in Eastern Pines Community Building, and Swift Creek B in Stokes and Lane Store. This will complete the community elections.

Meredith reported that delegates elected during this election will vote for Pitt County committees on Friday.

In registering the light vote the following figures on the number voting was released by Meredith this morning: Belvoir 44, Bethel 19, Farmville 10, Swift Creek A 20, Carolina 110, Falkland 80, Fountain 23, Pactolus 88, Ayden B 48, Beaver Dam 37, Greenville A 21, Greenville B 56, and Winterville B 32.

Voting has also been completed at Ayden A, Greenville C, and Winterville A, but the results have not been turned in.

Grow Wiser in Advancing Years

BERKELEY, Calif. (U.P.)—As "smarter" people grow older, the smarter they get, according to Dr. Nancy Bayley of the University of California's Institute of Child Welfare.

"We were a little surprised to find that gifted adults increase in intellectual ability as they grow older," the psychologist said.

"Although other studies show a tendency for adults to exhibit decreasing mental capabilities (as measured in test scores) with age, our research was concerned with the stability or change in scores of tests taken by the same individual over a period of about 12 years."

Result of Tests
Almost 800 "gifted" and more than 425 spouses took two equated forms of the Concept Mastery test designed to measure superior intelligence. Form A was used in 1939-40 when the testees averaged 29.5 years, and form B in 1951-52 when the average age was 42 years, Dr. Bayley said.

The tests consisted of synonym-antonym and analogy forms and changes in scores between the two testings were compared on the basis of scores between the two basis of scores on the final test, sex, age groups, educational level,

Election Outcome Seen Attack On Farm Policy

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (UP)—Republicans feared today that Democrat Lester Johnson's landslide victory in the rural Ninth Congressional District means GOP farm policies are becoming a political liability.

Johnson, a 52-year-old district attorney, swept aside Republican state Sen. Arthur Padrucci Tuesday in a special election to become the first Democrat ever to go to Congress from the district.

With all but one of 401 precincts reporting today, Johnson had 77,715 votes to Padrucci's 21,357. Padrucci said GOP farm policies had beat him as he conceded Johnson's victory Tuesday night.

"The election results show very clearly that the farmer and the laboring man do not like the administration's policies and took this opportunity to show their displeasure," he said.

Padrucci's explanation of his surprising downfall was echoed by other Republicans.

GOP congressmen touring the Midwest with the House Agriculture Committee were reported to believe Johnson's victory indicates Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson and his farm policies are hurting the party's chances at the polls.

The Wisconsin congressional battle was regarded as a test of President Eisenhower's popularity against farmers' grumblings over falling prices.

However, Padrucci, 36, said he didn't think Mr. Eisenhower had occupational rating, and estimates of general "success".

"Individuals in each of these classifications improved their scores over the first testing," Dr. Bayley said. "The only factor peculiar to all of them is that they had grown 12 years older and measurably 'smarter.'"

Life Of German Steno Is Harsh

BERLIN (U.P.)—Six days a week eight hours a day, dark-haired, slim Dora Schmidt pounds her typewriter or takes shorthand notes in a West Berlin office.

Employed as a secretary at a medium-sized West Sector engineering office, Miss Schmidt, 27, is one of the city's more than 170,000 woman white collar workers.

Her chief worry is the fear of losing her job — not because of her inefficiency, but because of West Berlin's immense unemployment problem. More than two-thirds of Berlin's women office workers are out of jobs and live on a dole.

With a take-home pay of 300 westmarks (about $72) a month, Miss Schmidt is considered well paid. Average incomes of women white collar workers in West Berlin range from $50 to $100 a month.

(A similar stenographic job in New York would pay between $41 and $62.50 per week, or about three times as much as Miss Schmidt draws. She works 48 hours a week against the standard 40-hour week general in New York.)

Like the majority of Berlin's working girls she lives with her family. She shares a two-room kitchen and bath apartment with her widowed mother who contributes her $30 a month old age pension to the little household.

Mother and daughter spend $20 or a little less than one-fifth of their joint income for rent while an additional $50 goes for food and other commodities each month.

Miss Schmidt likes to dress well and follows fashion news with interest. She spends about one-sixth of her income on clothes and shoes.

For the last three months she has been saving up her clothes allowance for a new winter coat which will come to about $43 at one of the city's department stores.

She realizes she is luckier than many of her colleagues who, with their husbands killed in World War II or deported by the Russians, must support families of one or more children on their salaries.

Miss Schmidt does not consider herself a "career girl." She plans to get married in the not-too-far-away future to a young technician. While she is willing to go on working for the first few years, she is ready to give up her job as soon as her husband earns enough to support his family.

Red Heads Don't Cry

By ROY L. FOLEY

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
PHIL HAD hardly spoken when Larry Patrick was standing at their table.
 "You two—again?"
 Larry was visibly excited over something. He spoke to Phil.
 "Some bombshell in that suit against your dad's company, wasn't it? Gosh, I almost got an exclusive story for the last edition."
 Phil set down his glass.
 "Bombshell. What bombshell?"
 Larry poured out his latest, almost exclusive story. During a recess that afternoon, a bailiff found an envelope in the court corridor. It contained an offer, at a price, to supply confidential information to the attorneys fighting Spencer and Charles in the lawsuit against the Stanley Construction company.
 Whoever had dropped it evidently hadn't dared to approach those for whom it was intended.
 Larry said there was some dirty work going on somewhere, that someone must have gotten some inside dope through thievery. He said discovery of the envelope brought a halt to the case by court order. He said investigation by the district attorney was a certainty.
 Nancy Kelly slept hardly a wink that night.
 The atmosphere in the office of Spencer and Charles the next morning was anything but calm.
 Humphrey Charles was at his desk when Nancy arrived. He and other members of the firm were in conference in his private office. Girls in the office exchanged knowing glances and found a dozen reasons that called for little conferences of their own.
 Lucy Wardle was paler, more frightened than ever. Once she had stopped in the ante room where Nancy alone held sway over the room and office switchboard, to whisper to Nancy.
 "Isn't it awful? What do you think is going to happen?"
 Nancy didn't know what was going to happen. Lucy's question came near to being the last straw that broke Nancy's determination to keep a cool exterior though she was tormented with worry. She had all she could do to keep from standing up and screaming at Lucy that she didn't know WHAT was going to happen.
 If Sam Sykes was involved in a plot to sell information so vital in litigation against the Stanley Construction company, exposure would probably follow, and exposure of him would mean discovery that Nancy had taken the precious information out of the office.
 In addition to the stigma that would come to the Kelly family through her brother-in-law, she envisioned herself accused as an accomplice of Sam's, without a job, even sent to jail. Her imagination was running away with her.
 At lunch time Lucy timidly inquired if she and Nancy might not go to lunch together. Nancy made some kind of an excuse. She hadn't known what she was saying. She wanted to be alone.
 Poor Lucy.
 Nancy knew that she was treating her wretchedly. Sometimes Lucy made Nancy think of a nondescript dog that is yelled at to "get out" only to return in abject adoration of the one who yelled.
 Today Lucy was Nancy's outlet, just as Nancy sometimes was the safety valve for Humphrey Charles' irritability.
 During her lunch hour Nancy walked through the noonday crowds on Wisconsin avenue and hardly saw anybody. Before she was aware of it she was at Juneau park standing before the statue of Leif Ericson. Leif, with hand shadowing his eyes, the symbol of bravery and courage, looking into the future. Nancy felt that she had to talk to someone, so she talked to Leif.
 He had bronze ears, lips. He couldn't hear, he couldn't answer. Yet he was something to talk to.
 "What should I do Leif? Should I tell Humphrey Charles that I suspect the confidential information leaked out?"

 She answered for Leif.
 "Don't be silly. He'd have Sam Sykes and you arrested. You'd lose your job. The Kelly's would be disgraced."
 "Should I go to Sam Sykes and accuse him of snooping in papers I brought home even stealing?"
 "You'd better not. You aren't sure that Sam Sykes DID steal the information."
 "Should I just keep still and hope the thing will blow over, and keep an eye on Sam? After all, it IS a shame to suspect a man who might be innocent."
 "Yes, just keep quiet. The whole thing may blow over. After all, the precious information didn't get beyond an offer picked up in an envelope by a court bailiff. It all might be a hoax."
 "Still, I am worried, Leif."
 "Silly to worry yourself into a state of foolish guilt."
 Nancy debated with Leif Ericson, a man who lived nearly a thousand years ago, and she felt better. She knew that the answers Leif gave were the answers of her own heart trying to stifle fear.
 She arrived back at the office five minutes late. Humphrey Charles was waiting for her.
 He said the district attorney wanted to see her.
 Nancy's heart skipped a beat.
 "Am I arrested?"
 Humphrey Charles told her not to be frightened, she wasn't arrested. He said that facts of the attempted offer to sell confidential information held by the court as non-admissible in a civil lawsuit, had been placed before the district attorney. He was investigating. He had invited various people into his office for questioning.
 "Invited!"
 Nancy's exclamation brought a suggestion of a smile to Humphrey Charles' thin lips.
 "That's the word, Miss Kelly. He said he wished to see you at three o'clock."
 Nancy didn't even know where the district attorney's office was, until she learned from Lucy Wardle that it was in the Safety building. She realized with a sinking feeling that the Safety building was the place that housed the jail, the criminal courts and the office of the chief of police.
 Perhaps she was walking into a trap.
 On the way to the building, she tried to visualize the kind of man the district attorney might be. By the time she entered his outer office she had built up a picture of a huge, dark and scowling man with a voice like a rumble of thunder.
 "Mr. Anger will see you, Miss Kelly."
 So that was his name—Anger. Nancy hoped the district attorney wouldn't live up to his name. She squared her shoulders. She entered Mr. Anger's office. There was no huge, dark scowling man in the room. There was a pleasant faced, young, light haired man. He had keen blue eyes. He spoke politely, quietly, without thunder.
 "Of course you know, Miss Kelly, your coming here is entirely voluntary. I asked you to come but you were not compelled to. There is no warrant or anything like that."
 "Yes, sir."
 "I want you to understand that your answer to any questions that I may ask are entirely voluntary. Under your constitutional rights you need not answer if you do not wish to."
 "Yes, sir."
 "Now then, there is cause to believe that some attempt was to be made to reveal facts that a circuit court judge had held to be confidential between attorneys you work for and a certain client of theirs."
 "Yes, sir."
 "The confidential matter concerned is kept in files in the office in which you are employed."
 "Yes, sir."
 "Who has access to those files?"
 "I do. Possibly some other people in the office. Members of the firm, naturally."

 "Did anyone outside your office ever approach you relative to anything in those files?"
 "No, sir."
 "Just one more question. Have you any suspicion who might have gotten access to the files besides yourself and other employes in your office?"
 "No, sir."
 "That's all. Thank you. Good day."

Back in the street Nancy remembered that she hadn't eaten lunch at noon. She had been so busy talking to Leif Ericson that she had forgotten she was hungry.

Quick Answer To Her Question
SQUAW CREEK CANYON, Calif. (UP) — A woman, seeing W. S. Lloyd hunting in the woods, stopped him and asked:

"My husband is trying to hunt bear, but there aren't any around here, are there?"
 A falling piece of tree bark distracted Lloyd. He looked up and fired. A 30-pound black bear fell at the woman's feet.
SQUIRREL TROUBLE
MADISON, Wis. (UP) — Squirrels

have got the telephone company and the Wisconsin Conservation Department in a tizzy. The nut choppers have been attacking the lead coverings of telephone cables, causing short circuits. Conservationists said the squirrels must have something hard to sharpen their teeth on and have decided the lead cables are just to their taste.

Visiting America Is Education For Some

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS, United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—A little girl who has just returned to Germany after spending a year as guest of America has written a letter to her sponsors.

"I think it is wonderful," said Edith Begsteiger of Marienstr., "that in America, if you want to you can put your feet on the table if you feel like it. If your feet hurt you take your shoes off."

Edith was among the German teen-agers who spent the past year in the United States under a youth exchange program sponsored by American Farm Bureau Federation in cooperation with our government. Glenn Mariz, assistant director of information for the federation, dropped each of the kids a line after they gathered here on their way home. He asked them for their reactions.

Edith's was among the 53 answers. Edith was amazed at what Americans can buy. Like electric dryers, television sets, and even parakeets.

Hans Grund of the United States occupied zone in Germany didn't waste any time in putting his knowledge to work.

Right after he got back home from a year in the United States, he "set up a souvenir table, with all of the cute little things I brought back, including a model Hereford cow."

Hans spent a year in the dairy-land country - Wisconsin. The young man learned how to milk a cow, by hand and machine.

"It was important to me," the young man wrote Glenn, "because now I can tell my people about the better methods they use in the United States."

Milking a cow in Germany, he said, is by hand.

"In America," he wrote, "you mostly do it by machine, and it is much faster and much safer. Machines don't kick, like cows."

Juergen Kraemer, another student, from Westphalia said that he was having the dickens of a time getting used to German customs again.

The young man said he was happy to have learned how to type in America "which is something I don't think I can learn here."

Also, he said, "I am using my American driver's license to try to get a German license, but there is some question about whether I will succeed - Although in your country I learned how to drive."

Trieste Looms Large In World Scheme Of Peace And Harmony

By PHIL NEWSOM, United Press Foreign News Editor

Geographically, 300-square-mile Trieste may be small, but in the world scheme of things it looms large.

She's 93, And Keeps 'Limber' With Exercise

BLUEFIELD, W. Va. (AP) - "Touch your toes every day to stay limbered up," is Mrs. Winnie Belcher's advice. She's 93. She recalls that as a girl she rode side-saddle on a horse for as far as 50 miles at a stretch.

"On a trip from Miami, Fla., to Bluefield two years ago when no suitable lodging could be found she insisted that the motoring party drive on through the night. Mrs. Belcher was the most refreshed member of the party next morning. Alighting from a Norfolk Va.-Beckley, W. Va., airliner recently, she told the pilot:

"Young man I'm nearly 94 years old and this is the only way to travel."

Twice Mrs. Belcher has licked cancer. She has an excellent appetite during meals but - let this be a warning, junior - she doesn't eat between meals.

the principal source of difficulty between Yugoslavia and Italy - difficulties which often seem more emotional than real, but which are a real block to Mediterranean unity.

Russia used failure to settle the future of Trieste as an excuse to block a peace treaty with Austria. Trieste is back in the news today with all the old conflicts magnified out of all proportion.

The confetti hit the fan last Thursday when the United States and Britain announced they were turning the administration of Allied-occupied "Zone A", which includes the port city of Trieste, over to the Italians.

They proposed that Yugoslavia should continue to hold the territory's "Zone B", but Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito reacted quickly and angrily.

A part of his violent reaction seemed due to the fact he was caught by surprise, and thus without a plan.

Hence the bewildering assortment of ultimatums threats and proposals coming out of Belgrade, and the mob attacks against the United States and British information services which resulted in serious injury to an American information service employe.

Mobs do not ordinarily roam unchecked in Communist countries without government sanction.

On Monday, Russia entered the picture.

It said the United States and Britain plan violated the Italian peace treaty because it "obstructed" the setting up of a free territory of Trieste, and accused the Western Allies of transforming Trieste into an illegal Anglo-American military base.

The Anglo-American proposal was an obvious attempt to break by positive action a Yugoslav and Italian stalemate.

Russian entry into the picture probably will be taken as just another manifestation of a familiar Soviet tactic.

It might be a move of appeasement toward Yugoslavia but more likely is just another attempt to take advantage of any discord among the Western Allies.

As for Tito, he appears to have placed himself in a position of no retreat with his flat refusal to accept the U.S. and British plan. The Italians, too, are saying now they cannot negotiate until "Zone A" is in their hands.

An attempt to settle the future of Trieste has misfired, at least temporarily.

Determined Man Stayed On Job

CINCINNATI (AP) - Sixty-three-year old Charlie Cooper is determined man, fire or no fire. Charlie was busy cleaning offices on the second floor of a downtown building recently while flames were spouting from every window eight floors above.

Firemen told him to vacate the building pronto, but Cooper insisted that "first I got 10 minutes more work to finish up." He was persuaded to leave, finally. Salvage corps members appreciated Cooper's feelings and carefully covered things up to protect his labors.

Cooper wasn't even the regular janitor. He was filling in for a friend.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—The stock market continued to move idly today, with no new developments to shape sentiment in either direction.

The lowly Benquet Consolidated Mining featured by way of a 71,000 share opening block at 1/8 unchanged. This and a few other large blocks helped swell first hour volume.

Sales totaled 880,000 shares, compared with 270,000 shares yesterday.

Pricewise only an occasional issue moved more than 1/2 point either way. Merck Preferred ran up 1/2 to 38 on a single sale.

Republic Steel improved 1/4 to 44 1/2, responding to an excellent earnings report. Bethlehem rose 1/4 to 46 1/2 and U. S. Steel 1/4 to 35 1/2.

Analysts say the market is in a position to move rather abruptly in either direction now, depending on the turn in the news. For the immediate future, however, it is likely the backing and filling and light turnover will be the rule.

Bails, which resisted yesterday's decline better than other groups, moved very narrowly in early trading. Santa Fe dipped 1/4 to 89 1/2, Southern Pacific 1/4 to 37 1/2, Southern Railway 1/4 to 40 3/4, Pennsylvania rose 1/4 to 19. Chesapeake & Ohio at 35, Erie at 17 1/2, New York Central 19 1/2, all were unchanged.

Chrysler gained 1/4 point in the motors while General Motors held unchanged at 56 1/2.

Aircraft, firm yesterday were little changed. Douglas gained 1/4 to 71. United Aircraft dipped 1/4 to 40 1/2. Lockheed at 24 1/2 and Curtiss-Wright at 7 1/2 were unchanged.

In the oils, Sinclair eased 1/4 to 32. Socony-Vacuum 1/4 to 31 1/2. Standard Oil (N.Y.) gained 1/4 to 68 1/2. Texas Co. was unchanged at 51 1/2 and Standard Oil of California unchanged at 49 1/2.

UN Council To Consider Trieste

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United Nations Security Council meets Thursday to consider the Trieste dispute with Russia's demand that the area be internationalized apparently doomed from the start.

All four nations immediately involved in the quarrel—the United States, Britain, Italy and Yugoslavia—seem agreed on one thing: The Italian peace treaty clause providing for an international regime run by a council-named governor has been outdated.

Russia stepped into the dangerous controversy Monday with a protest against the Anglo-American decision to hand over Zone A to Italy. It followed up Tuesday with a demand that the council meet to name a governor and to set up the treaty-projected government of the free territory of Trieste.

The position of the Western powers was unlikely to be formulated in time for presentation at Thursday's council session. The strategy was expected to be worked out at the London meeting of Western foreign ministers this weekend.

The idea of going through with the treaty provision for an international regime was rejected the West in 1949 when Russia first proposed the name of Col. Hermann Fluogker to be governor of Trieste. The nomination of the one-time Swiss ambassador to Moscow was turned down not because there were any objections to Fluogker himself but on grounds events had outdated the treaty clause.

Over $600 Added To Park Project By Talent Show

Over $600 was collected last night during the Talent Show over WGTG for the Elm Street Park Project.

According to Warren Carroll, director of Greenville's Recreation Commission, everyone was pleased with the show and the work of Ell Bloom in making the show the best held so far.

"About 75 people were in and out of the studio with about 60 there at one time," Carroll stated, "and everyone had a wonderful time."

Donations ranged from 25 cents to 75 dollars with the VFW auxiliary members answering phone calls at the studio and the VFW members canvassing the town to collect the money contributed.

Carroll said that there was still a lot of money needed to complete the building at the park, but this $600 would help assure the completion of the roof and possibly the windows and doors of the building.

Carroll expressed appreciation to everyone who helped make the show a success. He asked that anyone desiring to contribute to help complete the building may mail checks to R. O. Everett, Greenville, with the checks made out to the Elm Street Project.

Atom Chiefs Confer On Allies' Progress

WASHINGTON (UP)—Lord, British atomic chief, opened conferences with U.S. officials today on Anglo-American nuclear problems in the light of Russia's rapid H-bomb progress.

Cherwell had a date to see President Eisenhower this afternoon. He also plans, during a week-long visit, to confer with members of the Atomic Energy Commission and other government officials.

Cherwell is atomic adviser to British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill. He is stopping in Washington while en route home from Australia.

In announcing his visit, the British Information Service said merely that he would discuss "matters of mutual interest." It was considered certain, however, that Russia's swift march toward development of the dread hydrogen bomb is high on the agenda.

His talks also may revive the question of greater exchange of atomic information with this country's Allies, particularly Britain which helped develop the World War II atom bomb.

British officials are known to favor greater coordination of Anglo-American atomic programs, although they have not been pressing for a renewal of the wartime British-American-Canadian atomic partnership in view of U.S. sentiment.

While former AEC Chairman Gordon Dean has called for greater exchange of some types of atomic information with U. S. Allies, present AEC members including Chairman Lewis W. Strauss have indicated they do not favor any such move. Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Ia), a ranking member of the Senate-House Committee, likewise has opposed such a step.

The Federation of American Scientists, meanwhile, urged the administration to give the American people more information about the dangers of atomic and hydrogen bomb warfare, and what is being done to meet it.

In a statement by the federal atomic executive committee, David L. Hill, committee chairman, said present secrecy had not kept information from Russia but had been a "paralytic keeping our people calm and apathetic regarding the great issues produced in overtime by the sudden revolution in methods of warfare."

Retired Admiral To Be Candidate

WETUMPKA, Ala. (UP)—Retired Navy Adm. John G. Crommelin, who was disciplined in 1950 for his opposition to unification of the armed forces, has announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senate.

Crommelin, 50, said he would seek the seat of Alabama's Sen. John J. Sparkman, candidate for the vice presidency on the 1952 Democratic ticket, in a state primary election next spring.

Crommelin was placed on indefinite disciplinary leave in 1950 after his outspoken opposition to the unification plan of the general staff and shortly afterward he retired to enter politics.

He was an unsuccessful candidate during the same year for the seat of Alabama's Sen. Lister Hill. Running as an independent, Crommelin conducted a whirlwind campaign by helicopter but was soundly beaten.

Crommelin commented that his "time for campaigning" in that race was very short and "did not permit me to talk to my friends and fellow citizens as widely as I would have preferred to do."

His platform will be government by "home rule." He said he disagrees with Sparkman on "many issues." He promised a "very personal campaign."

During the last national election Crommelin, who joined most Southern Democrats in opposing the party's loyalty pledge, threatened to support an independent slate of electors.

Before his retirement Crommelin served in the Navy for 31 years. During World War II, he served as aviation officer on the staff of Vice Adm. George D. Murray of the Western Sea Frontier Command.

Formal Offer Of Allied Guarantee

LONDON (UP)—A note to be sent to Moscow this week-end by the United States, Great Britain and France will make the first formal offer to discuss guarantees to Russia against any future German aggression, authoritative sources said today.

The note was drafted here by deputies. It will be sent to Russia after it is finally approved by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault at their meeting starting here Friday.

The French Cabinet approved the text of the note today, a U. P. Press Paris dispatch said, and at the same time agreed to shelve for the present the idea of any pressure for a five-power conference including Communist China.

The anti-aggression guarantee will highlight the Western note, which is in reply to a Soviet note of Sept. 28 on the question of holding a meeting of foreign ministers on German and Austrian treaties.

It would be the first official offer coming out of a proposal first made by Prime Minister Winston Churchill last May for a new "Locarno" type non-aggression pact to assure Russian security against a European army including German troops.

Under the Locarno Treaty of 1925 Britain guaranteed both Germany and France against any aggression by the other.

Exhibit Booths Judged And Ribbons Presented

Receiving first place exhibit awards at the Pitt County Fair this year were Simpson Home Demonstration Club and Grimesland 4-H Club.

The Cannon H.D. Club and the Chicod 4-H Club were awarded red ribbons, and white ribbons were presented to the Pitt County Music Program and the County Council of the 4-H Club.

The theme of the Simpson exhibit was "Choose the Best, Discard the Rest." The exhibit was to get people to read more and when they read to read things of educational value.

Cannon's H.D.C. display depicted an outdoor scene, to add more happiness and contentment to rural living. The Pitt County Music Program exhibit, which was designed and made by the mixed chorus, was to encourage music at home and to improve rural music in the churches.

Other H.D.C. entries were: County Council, showing the improvement that can be made in the mailbox; Littlefield, displaying bedroom furnishings that can be made and built at a small cost; Sweet Gum Grove, a completely furnished nursery; Fountain, gift wrapping suggestions for various occasions; Seven Pines, Better Housing for Better Living, showed two homes, one old and a more modern one; Ballard's, a recreation building program; Falkland.

Only Three Cases Heard Tuesday

Tuesday was a short day for Pitt County Superior Court, with only three cases heard.

Lionie Graham Mills, charged with reckless driving, entered a plea of not guilty. Prayers for judgment will continue until January, 1954, term of court, at which time defendant shall show the presiding judge that he has paid into the court $125 for the use and benefit of Johnnie Perkins and the sum of $83 for hospital bill.

Willie Gray Smith, charged with driving drunk, pled not guilty and was found not guilty.

Melvin D. Outley, charged with being drunk, not pressed with leave. Judge Henry A. Grady recessed the court at noon.

Sweet Potato Market Reports Strong Demand

BETHEL—A strong demand continues to prevail on the Bethel sweet potato auction market and receipts were heavy Tuesday.

Tuesday's sales totaled 8,666 bushels and prices ranged from $1.80 to $3.50 a bushel.

A market official said growers who pack their baskets evenly and with 60 pounds of potatoes generally receive top market prices.

The Bethel sweet potato market is open Tuesdays through Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to noon, and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. The market is open Saturdays from 8:30 to noon. No sales are held Mondays.

Baptist Men's Brotherhood Hears Dr. Jenkins At Supper Meeting

At the Memorial Baptist Church Men's Brotherhood supper meeting last night, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins emphasized Christianity as the basis of religious activities.

The college executive informally discussed the importance of active participation in church service every day, and he pointed out the importance of working together in fellowship and understanding.

Program Chairman N. C. Brooks presented the speaker, President J. G. Gibbs presided.

At a brief business session the group elected Fred Webb president for the coming year and Jimmy Wells program chairman.

Thirty-three members were present. The group meets once a month. The brotherhood's objective is to encourage the best of the church to become better acquainted.
