

French Close In On Dug-In Viet Minh Rebels As Big Punch Gains

Red-Led Battalion Knocked Out; Much Chinese Equipment Captured

By LOUIS GUILBERT United Press Staff Correspondent HANOI, Indochina (UP) — French Union forces knocked a Communist-led battalion out of action today and closed in on 40,000 Viet Minh rebels dug in behind limestone hills before the Red stronghold of Thanh Hoa.

A French spokesman said Communist forces launched sharp flanking counterattacks against two French units last night some 90 miles south of here. They were beaten back after furious close-quarter fighting that lasted until dawn.

First reports said the Communists suffered 142 known dead, 30 assumed dead, and many wounded and captured, the spokesman said. French Union casualties were not disclosed.

The French forces driving on Thanh Hoa, headquarters of the Red's 304th Division captured a huge Red arsenal. Large quantities of Chinese-supplied equipment were seized some 20 miles from Ninh Binh.

Communist guerrillas made a diversionary attack within the Red river delta last night but were driven off after a five-hour artillery barrage. Details of the raid on a Viet Nam outpost only 12 miles south of here were withheld but French headquarters said the Reds suffered "heavy losses."

French Union and loyal Viet Nam soldiers moved up the Mandarin Highway that, in peacetime, linked the Indochina city of Saigon with the Chinese border.

The troops advanced to within 13 miles of the Communist stronghold of Thanh Hoa while a second column pushed down from the north in a pincer drive to within 25 miles of the surrounded Red bastion.

A third French unit followed Provincial Route 29, cutting across tungsten-rich hills on the Tonkin-Annam border that protect the Communists in a 65-mile triangle south of Hanoi.

French Union officials described the three-pronged drive toward Thanh Hoa as the key maneuver of the entire eight-year war.

The French threw in more than 30,000 French Union troops in a daring attempt to strike at the heart of the Red-inspired Viet Minh's power.

French commandos made an amphibious landing in north central Viet Nam last Friday as part of Gen. Henri Navarre's win-the-war offensive.

The American-built aircraft carrier Arramanches and other French naval vessels hit the coast before the commandos went ashore.

Thanh Hoa, the objective, is a Viet Minh food and arms center.

25 Escape Death In Air Crash

Giant Constellation Smashes, Burns In Fog-Shrouded New York Airport

NEW YORK (UP)—Two persons were killed and 25 others miraculously escaped death today when an Eastern Airlines Constellation crashed in flames at fog-shrouded International Airport only seconds after taking off for Puerto Rico.

The dead were identified tentatively as George Fisher of Hartford, Conn., and Dr. Juan Bajandas of Puerto Rico.

Only one person among the 22 passengers aboard the huge four-engine plane escaped unscathed. He was E. P. Wayne, 59, a federal employe returning to his home at San Turce, Puerto Rico.

The stewardess and pursuer were the only ones of the crew of five who were injured. The pilot, co-pilot and chief engineer were not hurt.

The injured were taken to three Queens hospitals, which reported at least five were in critical condition.

The big silver ship attained only a height of about 25 feet when it dropped suddenly and skidded into a swamp at the south end of the airport, flames spurting from its left inboard engine.

Witnesses said that Fisher was seen to emerge from the plane, flames swirling around him, when suddenly his legs buckled and he fell to the ground under the tail assembly.

"He was almost immediately burned to a crisp," a police lieutenant said.

Bajandas died at St. Joseph's Hospital, Far Rockaway, Queens, less than an hour after the crash.

The CAA said the plane received clearance to take off at approximately 12:56 a.m., after waiting more than an hour for a heavy fog to lift.

Witnesses said the plane had risen to a height of about 25 feet and was roaring through the dark skies at better than 100 miles per hour when a long tongue of flame seemed to shoot out from the left wing.

Capt. Cecil C. Foxworth of Summit, N. J., pilot, said he noticed the fire in his left inboard engine almost the moment he became airborne and immediately "threw the switches," cutting off the fuel.

When the plane skidded to a flaming stop in the soggy marsh, he and co-pilot E.M. Engle of Great Neck, N.Y., dashed back through the lane looking for passengers but saw none he said. They fled the ship through the flight engineer's hatch.

Survivors praised the calm courage of stewardess Ann Krause of New York, who led several passengers from the flaming cabin to safety.

Leave Neutral Commission Talks As Truce Crisis Steadily Grows Poles, Czechs In Walkout

By FRANK JORDAN United Press Staff Correspondent PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — Polish and Czechoslovak Communist delegates angrily stalked out of a meeting of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission today and a breakdown in the questioning of anti-Red war prisoners was threatened.

The Red delegates staged their Russia-style walkout because the commission turned down Red demands for the immediate interviewing of 1,000 anti-Communist North Koreans who say they prefer to die rather than go home.

The North Koreans refuse to face Red questioners.

Faced by a growing crisis, the commission notified the United Nations Command that there will be no attempt to question anti-Red prisoners tomorrow.

The Communists received another blow today when the Swiss government announced in Bern that it never will tolerate the use of force against the anti-Red prisoners.

Switzerland is one of the five countries on the neutral nations repatriation commission.

A Communist correspondent who frequently acts as spokesman for the Communists said that the Reds may refuse to resume the questioning until the commission rules on their demand that they have the right to decide which prisoners—Chinese or North Koreans—are to be herded to the questioning tents each day.

The Neutral Nations Commission, in cancelling Tuesday's questioning sessions indicated its members were unable to agree how to handle the hot-tempered North Koreans, who refuse even to face Red "brainwashing" officers, not to mention the Chinese who when they do attend the questioning sessions, insult their questioners and even try to attack them.

In an attempt to keep the interviews going, the NNRC had requested the Communists to interview 1,000 Chinese prisoners Monday but the Reds refused to talk to anyone but North Koreans.

The 8,000-strong North Koreans refused to budge from their tents in the compounds and the NNRC had sought to keep the interviews going with the Chinese.

On the Communists' demand, the NNRC conferred with leaders of the North Koreans and then reported back to the Reds that "it had not been possible to persuade the prisoners to come to the explanations."

American observers who had been waiting for the day's talks to start were under orders to protest strongly to the NNRC if Red propagandists lied to Chinese prisoners.

The 22 officers and civilians heard Communist "explanations" tell the prisoners Saturday that Chinese Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek was dead.

They also heard the Reds misinform prisoners that the Communists now occupy Formosa, the haven chosen by most of the anti-Communist Chinese as their future home.

After receiving a Red compromise offer to talk to only 500 North Koreans "be produced as requested," the commission advised both sides that explanations were cancelled.

The Communists called a meeting of the Military Armistices Commission, obviously to ask for an extension of the Dec. 24 deadline set by the truce agreement for termination of the talks.

Communist correspondent Wilfrid Burchett said explanations may be delayed until the neutral nations commission rules on the Communist demand that it has the right to decide which prisoners are to be interviewed.

Burchett claimed the NNRC failed to fulfill terms of the armistice agreement in refusing to force the North Koreans to attend interviews in the nearby tent city erected by American engineers.

Some observers believed the Communists might give up hopes of repatriating nearly 22,500 anti-Red prisoners because of humiliating defeats suffered in trying to "brain wash" the captives.

Only 19 of 921 Chinese interviewed so far by Red propagandists was agreed to return to Communism.

Accept Communist Proposal Including Govm't Of Red China

Big Three Agree To 5-Power Parley

By K. C. THALER LONDON (UP) — The "Big Three" foreign ministers agreed in a week-end note to Russia to a Communist-proposed meeting which would include Red China, but said it could be held within the framework of the political conference already set up for Korea.

United States, Britain and French foreign ministers addressed to Moscow identical notes which dealt primarily with a discussion of treaties for Germany and Austria, but referred also to the Russian proposal for a five-power conference including Red China.

The three Western powers said they always were "ready and willing to discuss the underlying causes" of world tensions but wished to do so under conditions "which offer reasonable prospects for positive results."

The notes reminded Russia of plans already under way for the political meeting on Korea and said: "All the five governments mentioned in the Soviet note could be represented at this conference which it is hoped will meet at an early date."

It said the object of the conference on Korea "is precisely to remove one of the major sources of tension in the Far East, thus opening the way for an early peaceful settlement of other international problems now existing in this part of the world."

The rival Yugoslav and Italian claims to Trieste threatened to junk the plan of the three Allied foreign ministers to hold a five-power conference on that issue.

The dispute was one of the major international problems discussed by the Big Three Western foreign ministers at their three day conference here.

The Big Three also moved to seek a solution to the problems of Germany and Austria. Similarly worded notes were delivered to Moscow inviting the Soviet Union to Big Four foreign minister talks at Lugano, Switzerland, on Nov. 8.

The notes hinted that such a conference could lead to a meeting of the heads of state—President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Premier Joseph Laniel and Premier Georgi Malenkov.

Authoritative sources said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault invited Yugoslavia and Italy to join the Western Big Three in seeking an amicable solution to the dispute over the Adriatic territory.

An Italian foreign ministry spokesman in Rome said Italy would not be prepared to join such a conference unless the administration of Zone A is first handed over to Italy.

From Belgrade, the Yugoslav Tanjug news agency said any five-power conference on Trieste which accepted the Anglo-American plan to cede their occupied zone to Italy would not be acceptable to Yugoslavia.

A communique issued after the foreign ministers meeting mentioned the subject of Trieste only briefly. The ministers said they would "persevere in joint efforts to bring about a lasting settlement." But they reached no final decision, other than to stand firm behind their previous decisions.

Presidents Meet To Dedicate Dam

By MERRIMAN SMITH United Press White House Writer FALCON DAM, Tex. (UP) — President Eisenhower and the President of Mexico met today to dedicate together a massive international dam as a monument to a united hemisphere.

Mr. Eisenhower and Adolfo Ruiz Cortines were to stand together late today at the center of the $17,000,000 Falcon Dam, spanning the Rio Grande and connecting the two nations, and dedicate the five-mile-long structure.

It was the first major international appearance of Ruiz Cortines, who left Mexico City Sunday under a shroud of secrecy. He came to Falcon from Monterrey.

President Eisenhower motored to the dam from Sharyland, the lower Rio Grande valley estate of Texas Gov. Allan Shivers, where he spent the weekend.

Both presidents were to speak at the dedicatory ceremony. Neither was expected to make a major address, and it was indicated early that both would dwell extensively on international and cooperative efforts for peace and progress.

Mr. Eisenhower and Ruiz Cortines were to have their first face-to-face meeting shortly after 12 noon a.s.t. in front of the Municipal Palace at Nueva Ciudad Guerrero, a small Mexican town three miles downstream from Falcon Dam. The town was forced to relocate when water from the Falcon reservoir inundated its original site.

After witnessing a lavish fiesta at Nuevo Guerrero, Mr. Eisenhower was to drive back across the border for the dam dedication. Then he will drive to Laredo, Tex., from where he will fly back to Washington.

The phrase of "good neighbor" was obvious to the Republican president, because it originated with the New Deal Democrats. But it was the most descriptive way to describe the meeting today between the two presidents.

The presidential parties included Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Mexican Foreign Minister Luis Padilla Nervo. Mr. Eisenhower, feted by outstanding Mexican entertainers at the Nuevo Guerrero festival, honored Ruiz Cortines with a luncheon on the United States side of the Rio Grande before the dedication.

Witnesses said the plane had risen to a height of about 25 feet and was roaring through the dark skies at better than 100 miles per hour when a long tongue of flame seemed to shoot out from the left wing.

Capt. Cecil C. Foxworth of Summit, N. J., pilot, said he noticed the fire in his left inboard engine almost the moment he became airborne and immediately "threw the switches," cutting off the fuel.

Dulles Returns From Big 3 Talk

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles returned from London today, reporting he thought the Big Three foreign ministers' meeting will produce "some results of interest toward peace and security in the future."

Dulles declined to say whether he thought Russia would accept the latest Western invitation to a Big Four meeting on the future of Germany and Austria. American diplomatic experts expressed doubt the Soviet Union would accept.

The secretary, on his arrival by plane, also declined to comment on Radio Peiping's announcement that Red China and North Korea have agreed to meet with the United States on Oct. 26 at Panmunjom to discuss arrangements for the Korean peace conference.

"I don't want to say anything of substance until I first report to the President," Dulles said.

As for the Big Three meeting, which produced the invitation to Russia to meet at Lugano, Switzerland, on Nov. 9, Dulles said the conference was "very cordial."

"We had a very satisfactory exchange of views which I think will produce some result of interest toward peace and security in the future," he said.

Gen. Dean Plans Stay In Uniform

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)—Major Gen. William F. Dean, Congressional Medal of Honor winner and one of the nation's most famous ex-prisoners of war, leaves tonight for Washington for reassignment.

Dean reports Tuesday to the chief of staff of the Army. The 55-year-old general has completed 30 years' service in the Army, but said he is not ready yet to be retired.

Isolationism 'Dead' In U.S., Re-Assures Nixon

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon assured Australians today that isolationism is "dead" in the United States.

The touring American "good will" ambassador spoke to members of the Victoria State Parliament at a lunch before flying to the Australian capital of Canberra.

Nixon said a great majority of both Democrats and Republicans recognize the necessity for the United States to "assume its position of leadership in international affairs."

"There will be no isolationism in America—it is dead," he told the legislators.

The American vice president said political differences between parties in the United States are "exaggerated."

"In any government, when the rights of minorities are not protected, the days of free government are numbered," Nixon said.

"Our system is like yours—we believe in freedom. Our responsibility is to conduct ourselves so our system of government will continue to represent the people.

Codfish Carried Identification

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (UP)—Capt. Frank Perry reported today the catch of a 12-pound codfish carrying false credentials.

Perry found a wallet containing a Los Angeles driver's license, a Navy identification card issued last June and a picture of a man in Navy uniform inside the fish. The man identified on the card was Wilburt A. Holloway, 25.

Perry said he caught the cod in an area where Navy vessels make trial runs.

Over $4 Millions Paid Out Above 1952 Leaf Sales

Greenville's tobacco market has already paid out $4,263,442.16 more at an $8.28 per hundred pound higher average than during last season, according to figures released this morning by Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee.

"This large volume of tobacco for these high prices has never happened before on any market," Whedbee said.

At the conclusion of last week's sales, the local market had a season's average of $59.02. This is not only $8.28 higher than last year, but also $2.68 higher than the previous record breaking year of 1950.

Whedbee reported practicable tops as still $70 with some fancy tobacco still going above $70. He said green grades were still selling up to $65 with trash up to $67.

Last week's figures: Gross: 5,275,772 pounds sold for $310,593.19 an average of $59.07. Net: 4,931,632 pounds sold for $309,349.02 averaging $61.02.

Season sales for 41 days through last Friday: Gross: 61,003,914 pounds brought $3,605,681.18 averaging $59.02. Net: 56,629,136 pounds for $3,403,245.02 averaging $60.10.

Emergency Session Today On Israeli-Arab Tensions Security Council Summoned

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United Nations Security Council meets in emergency session today to consider Israel's strained relations with its Arab neighbors, particularly an Israeli attack on a Jordan village which brought a sharp rebuke from the United States.

The 11-nation council was summoned at the request of the United States, Britain and France, whose foreign ministers decided at their weekend session in London to re-open the Palestine question in the U.N.'s top body.

Specifically, the council was asked to consider "the tension between Israel and the neighboring Arab states, with particular reference to recent acts of violence."

The act of violence which stirred the Big Three to action was last Wednesday's raid by Israel on the Jordan village of Kibya in which 66 Jordanians were reported killed.

The U.S. State Department issued a special statement Sunday in which it expressed "deepest sympathy" for the families of the dead Arabs and called for stern action to punish Israeli forces which staged the attack.

"The shocking reports which have reached the Department of State of the loss of lives and property involved in this incident convince that those who are responsible should be brought to account and that effective measures should be taken to prevent such incidents in the future," the statement said.

"The United States government has been increasingly concerned at the mounting tension along the frontier between Israel and the neighboring states."

The statement was regarded by diplomatic observers as the sharpest State Department rebuke against Israel since the Jewish state was founded in 1948.

It was expected the Security Council would meet only long enough today to vote approval of a Big Three request that Maj. Gen. Vagn Bennike of Denmark, chief of the U.N. truce observation teams in Palestine, be flown here immediately to report on the situation.

Believes Benson Should Quit Post

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. A. L. Miller (R-Neb.) believes Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson should resign because of his "inept remarks" about the administration's farm problems.

Miller said Benson "ought to be on record as representing the farmer, but he hasn't always done that."

At the same time, Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.) charged that the agriculture secretary's "bungling and failure" have turned most of the nation's farmers into "open revolt" against the administration.

Benson was defended by Rep. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.), who said that farm prices began dropping "early in 1952 when the Democrats could have and should have done something to stop it." He said that actually the Eisenhower administration is "advancing on the farm front."

Miller and Curtis appeared on the radio show Meet Your Congress, yesterday with Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D-Wyo.) and Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.). Hunt agreed that Benson should quit, while Patman urged President Eisenhower to call Congress into special session to meet the "emergency farm situation."

Hunt said that because of his Mormon background Benson "believes that government is best which governs least and this has caused the farmers to believe they are not going to get the help they should from the secretary."

House Agriculture Committee Appears Behind Price Supports

By VINCENT J. BURKE United Press Staff Correspondent INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP) — The House Agriculture Committee appeared almost certain today to recommend to Congress next year that it continue rigid high price supports for the six basic crops beyond the 1954 election year.

The legislation may be drafted with President Eisenhower's blessings, even though Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson has criticized the present program on grounds that it does not provide a long-range solution to the farm problem.

The committee, nearing the close of a 1,200-mile tour to sound out farmers in the politically important Midwest, planned to sample views of Indiana farmers at a public hearing today.

It was scheduled late today to fly to Columbus, Ohio where a final midwestern "grass roots" hearing is scheduled for Tuesday.

A poll conducted by newsmen among almost all of the members who participated in the Midwest tour gave the tip-off on probable legislative action next year.

All 16 of the committee members asked to make a forecast said they believed a majority of the extended high supports for wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, peanuts and rice. The present law fixes price guarantees at 90 percent of parity.

President Eisenhower left the door open for a possible administration recommendation for a temporary extension of the high supports in his farm speech at Kansas City, Mo. last Thursday. Some farm lawmakers thought it significant that the President specifically mentioned extension of the present program, with or without minor changes, along with "radical" revisions as possibilities.

Benson has criticized rigid, high supports on grounds they price farm products out of markets, create surpluses, and bring on production controls.

The committee has found there are a number of farmers who agree with Benson. But their voices generally have been drowned out in clamor for high supports from those who appear numerically strong enough to hold the balance of political power in the Midwest.

Women In The Church

The Union Theological Seminary, Buenos Aires, Argentina, has recently acquired the famous Lopes Library of 700 volumes, including some of the most treasured Spanish religious literature in the western hemisphere. These old Bibles and other Christian literature in Spanish have been gathered from all over the world by the collector, Jose Lopez, who was converted to the Protestant faith many years ago when working on the docks of Buenos Aires. Just before her death, the late Miss Ella May Carnahan, of Pittsburgh, gave to the Seminary $3,000 for the purchase of this collection.
Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America with a membership of 300,000, celebrated its forty-first anniversary recently, with the announcement of plans for a new $10,000,000 medical center in Jerusalem. It also was announced that the organization had raised and expended $80,000,000 during its existence for the maintenance of a comprehensive medical and social welfare network in Palestine.
In view of the general lack of provision for cultural contacts between service men and Japanese cultural and religious groups, the Social Problem Commission of the National Christian Council of Japan has established a Christian inter-racial social hall at Kure, near Hiroshima. There are troops of Australia, Canada, England and the United States in the area. The Japanese Woman's Christian Temperance Union cooperates.

The appointment of Louisa Wilson Hager as director of the public information department of the National Board of the Young Woman's Christian Association is announced by Mrs. Savilla Mills Simons, general secretary of the National Board of the YWCA of the USA. Mrs. Hager, a former New York newspaper reporter, later on the staff of the Welfare and Health Council in that city, succeeds Miss Mollie E. Sullivan who retires after thirty-three years service in that capacity.
The sand at Beppu beach in Japan is black and gives off sulphur fumes. Thousands of people go there and cover themselves with the pulverized volcanic debris, hoping it will cure their ailments.

Farmville Couple Are Injured In Saturday Wreck

A Farmville couple, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Hardy, were seriously injured in an automobile accident near Raleigh Saturday night, it was learned today.
The injured, according to the Highway Patrol, were taken to Rex Hospital in Raleigh.
Mr. Hardy suffered injuries to his spine, neck and Mrs. Hardy received severe cuts. Hardy's car was involved in an accident with a car driven by a Kinston woman.
Three other persons were injured in the Saturday night accident which occurred following a football game. Other details are lacking.
About 38,000 people were killed in motor vehicle accidents in the United States in 1952.

Bible Words to Live by

LUKE 17:20-21 — He was once asked by the Pharisees when the Kingdom of God would come, and he answered, "The Kingdom of God is not coming visibly, and people will not say 'Look! here it is!' or 'There it is!' for the Kingdom of God is within you."

The true meaning of the Greek word translated "within," first brought to light in 948 (see Waterman, The Religion of Jesus, pp. 77 ff.), gives the astonishing and revolutionary rendering: "The Kingdom of God is within your reach." Instead therefore of his being a herald of the speedy end of the world, he is now seen to be declaring that this world is the proper realm for the establishment of the Kingdom of God, here and now.

It is noteworthy that Jesus was speaking directly to his opponents, the Pharisees. If the Kingdom was within their reach, it was also in the reach of all men, and likewise a part of their responsibility then and ever since. Herein is a new mandate for Christianity, a veritable transfusion of new blood into its veins, that should transform not only Christianity but the world in which we live. I find it difficult to find a verse of Scripture that is more meaningful for today.

Variations On Nursery Theme For Talent Show

Sigmund Spaeth's humorous "Jack and Jill," a lively take-off of how various composers might write the familiar nursery rhyme, will be one of the attractive features presented by the East Carolina College department of music in their talent and variety show Tuesday and Wednesday nights of this week in the College Theatre. Curtain time is 8 o'clock.
In "Jack and Jill" seven faculty members of the department will cast aside their professional dignity and provide the audience with fun and laughter as they present the humorous Spaeth operette. Robert Gray will serve as commentator, and Robert Carter will be pianist.
Mrs. Herbert L. Carter, soprano, will join the faculty members as guest artist. Others who will appear in various roles are Dr. Elwood Keister, Dan E. Vornholt, George Perry, Mrs. Gladys Reichard White, and Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert.
The Collegians, popular dance orchestra made up of college students, will appear in selections of popular music under the direction of Charlie Klutz of Henderson. A combo, organized for the occasion, will present specialty numbers by Herbert L. Carter of the faculty, Ernie Black and Henry Whitener of Portsmouth, Va., and Bob Craft of Beaufort.

DO YOU KNOW WHY Archer Stockings ARE BETTER?

Your perfect-fitting Archer leg size can be quickly identified by the number of white Neline stripes knitted into the top of each stocking.

You can always be certain you're wearing the correct leg size by checking Archer's exclusive Fitline. If garter is attached below this Fitline, you have been improperly fitted.

Your Archer heel is the famous Gore Heel, especially constructed to discourage unsightly seam twisting, to fit and wear better.

Your Archer seams are delicately narrow, beautifully straight—the mark of a really fine full-fashioned stocking.

Your Archer stockings are made from the finest high-twist yarn. This gives them more elasticity, greater strength, miles of wear, also, a duller finish that flatters.

Israeli-Arab Truce Threatens Blow Up

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
The uneasy, four-year truce between Israel and her Arab neighbors threatens to blow up in a renewal of full-scale warfare.

And so, another piece of unfinished business ranking with Korea, Trieste and the division of Germany comes forcibly to world attention.

It dropped unexpectedly into the laps of United States, British and French foreign ministers meeting in London during the last weekend. They promptly placed the unwanted baby on the doorstep of the United Nations.

The spark that touched off the latest threat was an Israeli raid across the Jordan border, in which, Jordan authorities claim, 66 persons, including women and children, were killed and nine wounded in the Jordan village of Kibya.

The raid followed an earlier one from Jordan across the Israeli frontier in which a woman and two children were killed.

Except for its ferocity, the Israeli raid was no different from literally hundreds of others which have occurred regularly along the Israeli-Jordan border since the signing of the U.N.-engineered truce in 1949.

In the 12 months ending in June, 1953, the United Nations Mixed Armistice Commission ruled on nearly 200 such border raids, with blame attached to both sides.

Issues involved are both local and international, and four years of truce have increased rather than decreased the atmosphere of profound hostility between Israel and her Arab neighbors—Egypt, Jordan, Syria and the Lebanon.

Arab leaders frankly told U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles during his visit last spring that, while they have no sympathy with the Communist philosophy, their common enemy is Tel-Aviv and not Moscow.

The differences are more than religious ones between Moslem and Jew, and deeper than Arab resentment against this new Jewish state which sprang up in territory which the Arabs considered their own.

The Arabs hear that Israel intends to continue to annex territory—at Arab expense. They resent Israeli refusal to accept responsibility for some 800,000 Arab refugees driven from their Palestinian homes, while at the same time Israel says it will welcome another 2,000,000 zjed.

Aside from her row with Jordan,

Israel has been seriously at odds with both Syria and Egypt within the last few days.

Egypt accused the Israeli of moving troops into a demilitarized zone in the Negev Desert bordering Egypt.

A Syrian protest brought a halt to a vast Israeli hydro-electric project along Syria's border with the Jordan River. The 15-year project is designed both to irrigate the Negev and to drain Jordan River swamps which are age-old breeders of malaria.

A difficulty is that while each side points the finger of blame at the other, neither shows much real will for compromise.

Diplomats Doubt Russia Will Act On Parley Offer

WASHINGTON (UP)—American diplomatic experts expressed doubt today that Russia will accept the latest Western invitation to a Big Four meeting on the future of Germany and Austria.

The invitation to meet at Lugano, Switzerland, on Nov. 9 was extended to Russia Sunday at the conclusion of the Western Big Three foreign ministers conference in London.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flew home from London today to report to President Eisenhower on his talks with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

Before leaving London, Dulles pronounced the Big Three meeting "extremely satisfactory — one of the best of its kind." He described the invitation to Russia as the most important work of the conference.

He said that if the foreign ministers of the Big Four should have "successful" talks on Germany, "it might lead to a high level conference."

But diplomatic experts here were pessimistic about the chances of the Lugano meeting ever taking place, let alone finding a solution to the eight-year-old problem of writing a peace treaty for divided Germany and Austria.

Russia has approved several previous Western proposals for a Big Four meeting on Germany, insisting always that the talks be broadened to include Red China and Far Eastern problems. This the Western powers have been unwilling to do.

The new invitation included a hint that the Western powers are willing to broaden the proposed Lugano meeting into a general discussion of European security problems including a non-aggression pact with Russia.

It seemed unlikely, however, that this offer would induce Russia to accept the invitation. The Soviet press has already ridiculed the

Hallowe'en Costume Easy To Make, Fun To Wear

MASQUERADE FUN . . . Costumes for the Wicked Old Witch and Little Red Riding Hood may be made in black or red satreen from the same pattern—Advance No. 706.

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor
The costume season for the young set gets off in gay style on Hallowe'en, when tricks or treats are the order of the day, and small spooks skitter gleefully about the neighborhood.

Clever mothers will turn out such garb on their sewing machines, so that small fry can enter into the fun of "spook night" and also have on hand some gay costumes for future use in school plays or for costume parties.

The Wicked Old Witch and Little Red Riding Hood can easily be made from the same pattern—Advance No. 706. Local sewing center experts remind you that it is important to select patterns for children by chest measurement. Do not confuse pattern size with ago of child. Patterns give chest measurement and corresponding waist at length measurements important in cutting the garment to fit correctly.

Remember, too, that although costume making calls for more elaborate trimming detail than everyday clothing, you still will want to select decoration that will survive the family wash. Appliques are one solution to this, since you can cut interesting designs using odds and ends from the fabric scrap basket and achieve practical and appealing effects.

idea of non-aggression guarantees as a means of easing East-West tension.

Officials believe the Soviet Union is unwilling to negotiate on Germany and Austria primarily because its position in Eastern Germany was weakened by the bloody June 17 riots which posed the first real challenge to Soviet control of the zone.

Moscow's refusal to negotiate also was traced to the overwhelming majority voted Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the recent West German elections and to apparent Soviet preoccupation with internal problems following the death of Josef Stalin earlier this year.

Entrance Exams Set In February

The entrance examinations for the U.S. Coast Guard Academy have been scheduled for February 23-24, 1954. Coast Guard Headquarters announced today. All applications must be postmarked before January 15.

Eligibility is based on a competitive examination which will be conducted in 109 major cities. There are no Congressional appointments or geographical quotas. An applicant must be between the ages of 17 and 22, a high school senior or graduate with 15 units to his credit by June 30, 1954. The 15 units must include three in English, two in algebra and one each in plane geometry and physics.

To be physically eligible, a man must be in perfect health, between 66 and 76 inches in height, with proportionate weight, have uncorrected 20-20 vision in each eye, and a minimum of 20 vital serviceable natural teeth.

The Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., prepares career officers during a 4-year course of academic studies and military training which earns them a bachelor of science degree in engineering and a commission as ensign in the Coast Guard.

Six Victims

PAINESVILLE, O. (UP)—Six residents of Ashland, O., two of them children, burned to death Sunday night as they were trapped in an overturned car which had been rammed from behind by a second vehicle.

The death car, driven by Willard Loggins, 22, Ashland, was struck on Route 29 at the intersection of Route 528 just outside North Madison, O., 10 miles east of here.

The gasoline tank of Loggins' car exploded, and shooting flames held off would-be rescuers. Witnesses were able to pull Robert Siler, 19, from the car after he broke a rear window and climbed halfway out.

Old Ice Box Kills California Child

OROVILLE, Calif. (UP)—Nine-year-old Thomas Kiely suffocated in the ice box of a vacant house trailer Sunday night, bringing to 27 the number of children who have died in such tragedies over the nation so far this year.

The boy's widowed mother, Mrs. Nellie Kiely, said she had not seen her son all afternoon, and assumed he was at a neighbor's home watching television. Later in the evening she sent her eldest son, John, 14 to look for the boy.

John looked in the trailer and then opened the small ice box. "I can't explain why I looked in there," he said, "but there he was."

Mrs. Kiely said her son habitually went off by himself to brood since the death of his father a year ago. The trailer, located in a vacant lot behind a grocery store runs in East Biggs, had been vacant about two weeks, she said.

One of the worst such tragedies this year was at Proctor, Ark., where five children in one family died in an unused ice box stored on the back porch.

The Refrigeration Service Engineers Society has recommended that locks or doors be removed from abandoned ice boxes, that the doors be padlocked or wired shut, or that the box be stored with its door to a wall or floor.

The society said California, Illinois, New Jersey, Nevada, Massachusetts and Michigan have laws requiring discarded ice boxes to be destroyed and predicted all states will have such a law within two years.

He said the vault has been "unusable and unused" since the immediately. Laiding was constructed five years ago.

"It has been necessary for the treasurer and collector to carry the town funds with them at all times — a dangerous and undesirable practice," the examiner declared.

Local Little Leaguer Wins Prize In National Contest

A young Greenville Little Leaguer has been notified that he was awarded third prize in the National Little League Baseball Essay Contest, sponsored by Little League Baseball, Inc., Williamsport, Pa.

Arthur Andrews, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Duke Andrews of Greenville, was awarded a $50 Defense Bond for his entry in the nation-wide essay contest on the subject "Why I Like Little League Baseball."

The contest was open to all Little League Baseball players affiliated with franchised leagues during the 1953 season. First prize in the contest consisted of an all-expense trip to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., plus a trip to the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., plus a trip to New York City to be a guest of a New York team at a major league baseball game, plus a visit to the office of Ford Frick, Baseball Commissioner; or else an equivalent amount of money to be applied to a scholarship fund at Lycoming College, in Williamsport, Pa., for the contestant or for anyone the winner might designate.

Second prize was an eight MM moving picture projector and third prize, won by young Andrews, was a $50 Defense Bond.

Arthur has been active in Little League activities in the past few years. He has participated in Little League baseball for the past three years and is now participating in the Little League football program.

Following is Andrew's prize winning essay:

I like little league baseball because of what it has meant to me and so many other boys. Before little league baseball was started in our city, young boys had no means of organized recreation whatsoever. I have always been interested in all sports and it has helped me to learn more about the rules of the game.

It has also helped me personally to become a better person, one with a fairer view, and to be able to give and take with a much better attitude. We have nearly always had a good team, but even so we lost some of our games and it taught me that it was just as important to be a good sport when losing as when winning. It has helped me to be a better all around person whether at home, at school or at play.

Little league baseball has also helped my family to be closer. My parents are interested in me and in sports and they are always willing to see that I get to practice and games on time and are always there to cheer for my team winning or losing. I am twelve years old and have played little league for three years. I have played for Greenville Jaycees the following positions; pitcher, first base, second base, and third base. I have truly enjoyed the fellowship to be found among my team mates. I would like to pass on to you our slogan. "It's not who wins — but how you play the game!"

Time For Real Action On JP Question

The whole state of North Carolina, and most of its four million citizens could profit by a good investigation into the conduct of the justices of the peace courts in all 100 counties of the state.

It was only recently that in Craven County a full scale investigation was ordered into the conduct of a magistrate courts in that county. Last week in Edgecombe County it came to light that a justice of the peace has performed 49 wedding ceremonies since his commission expired in 1949, making all those marriages illegal.

From time to time in counties throughout the state, questionable circumstances surrounding jurisdiction or conduct of magistrates' courts come to light. For the most part they are looked into individually, and in many instances the difficulties are resolved.

But it is now and has been apparent for some time that the state as a whole should take a good, long, penetrating look at its

A Warning That Security Should Be Checked

Military authorities should waste no time in getting to the bottom of their investigation of the cause of the explosion which wrecked the aircraft carrier Leyte in Boston harbor.

The disastrous blast was one of the worst in recent years. It not only took the lives of more than 35 men, but it will cost the military hundreds of thousands of dollars to put the ship back in condition to take its place on the high seas.

If sabotage is indicated in the explosion, it is imperative that it be determined for the protection of other vessels and the men who sail them. In the meantime, however, it behooves the military in this country to recheck its security and reinforce any weak spots which may make ships or installations vulnerable to sabotage work.

Strength for the Day

DEEP DOWN IN THE SOUL
During the First World War, a kinsman of Woodrow Wilson was a driver in the Motor Ambulance Corps. One night when he was on duty, this southern boy began to be filled with fear lest, as he got closer to the front-line trenches and the danger increased, he would lose his nerve and fall in his duty. Then he remembered the words of an anthem which he had sung in the Princeton University chapel:

"The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"
These words and the memory behind them brought him to his senses, and his fears departed.

When a prominent minister who had served southern churches mentioned this incident in a sermon one day, two people came to him at the close of the service and made astonishing statements. One said, "I am that boy's mother." The other said, "I was the choir master at Princeton who trained this young man and others in the singing of that anthem."

We little know how deeply some of the seemingly insignificant events of life will penetrate into our natures. From chapel chancel to front-line trenches was a long distance, but the echoes of what had been sung came up to strengthen a young man in hours of danger.

We never know how far our influence goes or how deeply the influence of life's circumstances bore into our lives and make a difference.

National Whirligig

Challenge By GOP In Virginia

By VIRGINIUS DABNEY
Ray Tucker is on vacation, during which guest columns are being contributed by prominent newspaper editors. Today's column is by Virginius Dabney, editor of THE TIMES-DISPATCH, Richmond, Va.

RICHMOND, Va.—The strongest Republican challenge for statewide office in Virginia since Reconstruction is being offered in this Fall's race for Governor by Theodore Roosevelt Dalton, and the result on November 3 should afford a significant clue to the chances for building a real two-party system in the South. It will be recalled that three of Virginia's ten Congressional Districts elected Republican Representatives last year, and the State went over to Eisenhower by a 80,000 majority.

"Ted" Dalton, a highly regarded lawyer from Radford, who is Republican National Committeeman from Virginia, was persuaded to run, after he had refused to do so. He was convinced that 1953 affords a well-nigh unparalleled chance to build up the Party in the Old Dominion, and indirectly throughout Dixie. Dalton is easily the most appealing Republican nominee who could have been selected. He is campaigning aggressively in all parts of the State.

The nominee of the GOP is pitted against former Congressman and former Speaker of the House of Delegates Thomas B. Stanley, of Henry County, who has served effectively, but not brilliantly, in both the state and national legislatures. Stanley is the candidate of the Byrd "organization," having been given the stamp of approval of this, the dominant wing of the Democratic Party, after he had stood aside in 1944 and 1948 for others to make the race. He won handsily in last summer's primary.

DULL CAMPAIGNER—Stanley is a colorless campaigner, who reads his occasional speeches from manuscript, and puts into them little except generalities. He has committed himself to hardly anything of a specific character, and up to a few days ago he was making the same dull campaign speeches that he made in the primary against State Senator Charles Fenwick, of Arlington. He did throw in some barbed criticism of his Republican opponent in a recent address, and this may signify a new trend. Stanley's friendly personality gets across well in person-to-person talks around the courthouses, or in other small groups, but he is unimpressive on the platform, over radio or television.

The Democratic candidate has unveiled what he Jaypee courts. Doubtless such an investigation would show the records of many justices of the peace in North Carolina are in order, and that they have complied with the law so far as the filing of reports with their respective counties are concerned. At the same time, such an investigation probably would show a great many Jaypees are not following the law which governs the office they hold as magistrate.

In the interest of the judicial system of the state of which the Jaypee courts form a part, and in the interest of the individual citizens of the state, The Reflector is convinced that in every county in North Carolina a full investigation should be made into magistrate performances. Only by such a procedure can the people of the state be sure that unscrupulous individuals who pose as justices of the peace are exposed and removed from their offices. Only through such a procedure can the confidence of the people of the state generally in the Jaypee system be restored.

The magistrate question in the various counties of the state has been kicked around long enough. It is time some concrete action be taken on a state-wide basis to clear up the confusion and the apparent abuse of authority which takes place in a good many counties.

Thousands Of Former Reds Will Be Free

South Korea and the remainder of the free world are going to have many thousands of former communist soldiers on their hands when the "explanation" sessions end at Panmunjom.

The communist explainers are getting little affirmative response from their former soldiers they are seeking to lure back to Red control.

Indications from the early sessions with anti-Red Chinese and North Koreans point to the conclusion that the communists are not likely to convince an appreciable percentage of the prisoners they should return to communism. There is little reason to believe now that the proportion of former communists who choose to return to their native land under Red control will increase between now and the termination date set for the talks.

That means, the former Reds will be distributed in the various free nations of their choice. It means South Korea and other Asiatic nations probably will receive the bulk of the ex-prisoners once held by the United Nations forces.

While the situation in Korea still looms as a powder keg awaiting only a spark to explode again, a successful conclusion to the interviewing of the former prisoners of war will in itself present a grave problem when the mass of former communists are released in the free world.

calls a "precise platform," containing fifteen points, but it consists largely of the same old generalities. He pledges more schools, hospitals and welfare, and promises no increase in taxation.

Stanley refuses to say clearly where he stands on the poll tax absent voter scandals, a different method of choosing local school boards, measures to deprive circuit judges of their political power, and other "hot potato" issues.

DALTON'S DEFINITE STAND—On each of these matters, his Republican opponent has taken a definite stand. Dalton is for the quickest and simplest method of poll tax repeal, he favors cleaning up the absent voter frauds, and urges taking from the judges the power to make political appointments—something many of the judges desire.

Dalton also favors giving the vote to 18-year-olds, and he advocates a constitutional convention to revise the state's organic law. Stanley is opposed to both moves.

The two candidates also seem to be in conflict with respect to the Byrd automatic tax-reduction law (sponsored by State Senator H. F. Byrd Jr.), under which taxpayers have received rebates on their state tax bills for each of the last three years. Dalton voted against this law twice as a member of the State Senate, whereas Stanley strongly favors it. Dalton has not discussed this issue in detail as yet.

DEMOCRAT FAVORED TO WIN—The odds are strongly on Stanley to win, since he has the whole Byrd organization behind him. When Adlai Stevenson was the Democratic candidate last year, Senator Byrd refused to endorse him, and thereby contributed heavily to Eisenhower's victory in Virginia. This time, however, the Byrd leadership is throwing the whole machine solidly behind Stanley.

Yet a good many pro-Byrd Democrats who backed Eisenhower in 1952 are not going along in this instance, and are planning to vote for Dalton. These are mainly business and professional people who resent Stanley's "say-nothing" campaign, and who think it would be a good thing for the Democrats to have some real opposition in Virginia.

There is also a fairly substantial group of members of organized labor who usually vote Democratic, and who backed Stevenson last year, but who are so anti-Byrd that they will cast a protest vote for Dalton in November. On top of these are the so-called "egg heads," or intellectuals, who voted for Stevenson, but who are seemingly determined to back the personable and articulate Dalton.

Guaranteed Wages

By ELMER ROESSNER
The guaranteed annual wage has been discussed ever since the end of the war, and for some time before that. Now that business indexes are not as high as they were a few months ago, labor unions are showing considerably more interest in the subject. It may become a hot issue when some of the major contracts come up for renewal in the spring—or possibly before.

So far, operators of small businesses have preferred to ignore the question. Perhaps, if they say nothing, it will fade away. Perhaps.

On the other hand, some day they may be staring it in the face.

There was a time in the history of the American labor movement when organized labor relied on circumstantial tactics. Unions would organize small shops and plants, often owned by graduates of the working ranks, and then move in on the big employer, warning him that his sales and employees would be lost to small competitors unless he came to terms.

It is ironic that such tactics prevailed in the days of the "trusts"; today, when monopoly is illegal, the normal tactics of trade unions is to force the big employer to agree to terms and then insist that the smaller employers conform.

Small employers have not yet been pressured for annual wages. The steam is being built up for the big fellows first. But once they agree—if they do—the small plant or shop will be confronted with similar demand.

How many small employers can stand a guaranteed wage is problematic. Most of us know of a dozen or so businesses, which, if faced by firm demands for annual guarantees, would be forced to fold. And if they fold, their sales would drift to larger manufacturers or retailers.

Perhaps the security of 48 or 50 weeks work a year is essential to the continuing expansion of the American economy. Whether or not it is, a guaranteed annual wage is a vital problem for the small employer. Anyone thinking it is only a concern of big corporations is not only living in a dream world, but living in one that will soon go pop!

PERUVIANS, TOO, HAVE FLAIR FOR PROMOTIONS

American businessmen like to think of themselves as imaginative when it comes to promotions, but sometimes they run a poor second to Peruvians, judging from a report by Vision magazine.

A Peruvian grower inserts capsules containing the equivalent of $60 each in a few of his oranges. He has a patented method that leaves no mark—and the prizes sell oranges like crazy.

And a Lima night club packs 'em in by keeping its doors locked. Only 3,000 select guests, who have been given keys, may enter. (Of course, head porters at the best hotels have keys to lend to high-spending guests.)

FEDERALS ECONOMY A TWO-EDGED SWORD

Government economy may lead to tax cuts, but it also leads to unsatisfactory business in Washington. People fired from government jobs, or fearful of being laid off, spend less and neglect to keep up installment payments.

Department store sales in metropolitan Washington from January 1 through August were 2 per cent below a year ago and in downtown Washington 5 per cent down, according to Federal Reserve figures. Downtown stores' figures, for the four weeks ending October 3, were down 13, up 9, down 1 and down 11 per cent.

Meanwhile, two of the larger television and appliance chains have gone to bankruptcy court with troubles stemming, in part, from heavy repossessions.

Salesmen Hold Key To Better Living; Opportunity High

By ROGER W. BABSON
NEW BOSTON, N.H.—When William L. Douglas of Brockton, Mass., was the world's largest shoe manufacturer, he was a client of mine. Those were the days when everyone wore high shoes, and he was very much disturbed about the hooks which went on these shoes. At a sales convention he offered a prize of $10,000 to any salesman who would solve the problems of these dangerous hooks.

One salesman answered: "Quit making high shoes, and eliminate the hooks altogether. If you will make a line of attractive low shoes, I will sell them or resign." Mr. Douglas accepted this radical wager and produced the line of low shoes, which this salesman quickly sold. Gradually, the whole industry turned to low shoes.

MOST OF US ARE DUMB BELLS
I visited Thomas A. Edison at his home in New Jersey.

At that time his company was manufacturing the only phonograph "records," and these were waxed cylinders. He would say to me that some day flat records would be used; but he could not get any enthusiasm amongst the trade to sell flat records. He said, "Babson, I am only an inventor, and not a salesman. The salesmen and advertising agencies will determine the future of America—not we inventors. There are enough inventions in the Patent Office now to make the United States, and in fact, the whole world, prosperous for fifty years if there were enough men with 'guts' and vision to get these ideas working."

Edison reminded me that steam was used for power a hundred years before Watt developed a steam engine. It was discussed by university professors but no one before had the persistence to sell the idea to the public. This was true of Whitney's invention of the cotton gin, and Fulton's building of the steamboat. I believe that these men were salesmen who saw opportunities, presented them to the public and were never discouraged by anyone saying "no."

LONG-PLAYING RECORDS AND ZIPPERS

My friend, Johnson, who founded the Victor Phonograph Company, was not an inventor, but a salesman. He believed the flat record idea had a future, but he was obliged to travel over the whole country to raise enough money to start the Victor Organization. He used to complain about how "dumb" people were, unwilling to risk even their time, enthusiasm and stick-to-itiveness. His wonderful success was due to the fact that he was a salesman who could not be discouraged and would never take "no" for an answer.

He was much like Henry Ford. Yet even Johnson did not visualize long-playing records. Victor's original records could have been "long playing." The fact that Victor for years sold the old-fashioned records also shows how "dumb" we all are. Another illustration is the zipper. When I was the Massachusetts Institute of Technology fifty years ago an instructor outlined to me the idea of the zipper; but we continued to button up our trousers in the old-fashioned way for twenty-five years thereafter!

OPPORTUNITIES FOR SALESMEN

Sunday newspapers today carry many Help Wanted advertisements for "technicians—electronic engineers—mechanics." These are needed today in connection with new government orders. As a result, high school graduates are crowding the colleges for a technical education. To train now for "electronics" is much like buying stocks when the market is at an all-time high. It is another illustration of our dumbness.

The real opportunities of the next decade will be in connection with selling the new ideas which are now on drawing boards and in test tubes. Hence, were I a young man today, I would take a course in Business Administration. Successful salesmanship, however, is a very difficult and tedious task. It requires great courage and tremendous persistence. There are no opportunities in Business Administration for the pencil pusher or the clock watcher. Success comes not from sitting in a chair dictating letters to a blonde secretary, but by ringing door bells and wearing out shoe leather. Salesmanship offers the greatest opportunities and richest rewards; but the road is long and rocky.

Where To Place N.C. Travel Promoters For Top Results?

TOURISTS—The folks responsible for servicing the big travel business in North Carolina as representatives of the State government are still uncertain about how the job should be done. There is recognition that a business which puts an estimated $350 million a year into Tarheel trade channels is entitled to special attention.

Since the State advertising program was initiated 16 years ago from the promotion of travel has been a major function of the advertising division in the Department of Conservation and Development. At the Morehead City meeting of the C&D board in July Governor Umstead said that the travel bureau be transferred to the division of State parks. At a special August meeting in Raleigh the board authorized the change. Immediate protests came in from all over, particularly from those with heavy capital investment in facilities for accommodating travelers. A few weeks later C&D Director Ben Douglas said no change would be made before the fall meeting in Asheville, and he proposed at that time to suggest an independent division for travel.

The latest idea is to attach the travel bureau to the division of commerce and industry, the particular phase of C&D activities in which Governor Umstead is taking most lively interest and to which Director Douglas is giving major attention. The director is expected to ask the board to go along with that idea at its Asheville session Tuesday.

Travel promoters have generally conceded that it makes more sense to closely relate the business to the industrial development program now underway than to side track it in the parks division. Majority opinion among the resort operators seems to be that very little will be gained by making any transfer unless an independent division is set up for servicing the industry—which is the third largest in the state in terms of dollar volume of business.

BALANCE—With as diverse program as the Department of Conservation and Development has underway, embracing virtually all phases of state growth, it is difficult to maintain an equitable balance. Governor Umstead currently is putting almost complete emphasis on industrial development. There are others who feel that conservation of natural resources may be as important as any kind of development. And there are still others who insist that promotion and servicing of businesses other than strictly industrial must be given attention to maintain orderly growth of the state.

Travel business may be more accurately defined as "commerce" than as "industry." Principal objection to placing the servicing job with the commerce and industry division is that the fellows running that operation already have their hands full. Some observers have pointed out the danger of making it so big that it will completely overshadow the other essential functions of conservation and development—such as forests, parks, water and mineral resources.

MIXED UP—Action on appeal from a Utilities Commission order granting a 9 per cent increase in freight rates on agricultural products is scheduled in Wake County Superior Court Monday. The appeal was taken by the Attorney General's office upon request of the Department of Agriculture. The situation emphasizes the mixed-up relationship of the Utilities Commission to other State agencies and the public. The commission has dual functions of a regulatory body and a court of record. As a regulatory agency of the executive and administrative branch it shares with other executive offices the right to call upon the Attorney General for legal counsel, an assistant Attorney General is assigned full-time to the commission, just as two are assigned to the Revenue Department.

As a court, the Commission occupies an entirely different status and when appeals are taken the Attorney General's office assumes the obligation of contesting decisions in behalf of the people.

In the pending freight rate case the Department of Agriculture is relying upon the Attorney General to carry the legal ball. The situation here is somewhat different but in many aspects very similar to the telephone rate case in which the Attorney General's office, after consulting the Utilities Commission as to administrative and regulatory phases, then instituted appeal from Commission decisions on its own motion as the "representative of the people."

In both instances certain "experts" employed by the several government agencies were permitted to testify just like any other witnesses, but were allowed to participate in the hearings to the same extent they would have before any other regulatory board.

The freight rate case is further complicated by exemptions from the increase of fertilizers and fertilizer materials shipped in car load lots and road aggregates and asphalt. If the court upholds the Utilities Commission order there will be a substantial increase in freight rates on all farm produce, farm machinery and supplies and feedstuffs.

Evidence adduced at the court hearing will determine the merit of proposed increases. That point is not argued here. Purpose of this little item is to point out the anomalous, conflicting and confusing status of the Utilities Commission under the 1949 act.

North Korean Is Going To College

WASHINGTON (UP)—The young North Korean pilot who flew a Russian Mig jet fighter into United Nations territory last month will use part of his $100,000 reward to attend an American college, it was learned today.

An Air Force official said the pilot, 22-year old Noh Keun Suk, has expressed a desire to study engineering in the United States. The school he will attend has not yet been selected.

Instead of paying the $100,000 reward in cash, the Air Force will set up a trust fund to finance his education, the official said. He emphasized that Noh will be able to draw the entire sum out of the trust fund at any time, if he desires, or he can wait until he graduates from college and collect the remaining balance in cash.

Noh, a senior lieutenant in the North Korean air force, flew the Mig into an air field near Seoul in September. He told reporters there he was not very well educated and would like to go to school in the United States. In this way, he said, he could be of greater value to Korea in the future.

Noh said he had been plotting his escape ever since the Reds moved into Korea in 1945. He said he had not heard in advance of the $100,000 offer by the United Nations for the first MIG-15 flown to U. N. territory.

While the Air Force has offered to return the Red jet to its " rightful owner," it still plans to pay the $100,000 reward. The money will come from a $31,000,000 "contingency fund" in the Air Force budget.

Noh will have no trouble entering the United States. Asylum in this country was one of the provisions of the original offer to any Communist pilot who flew out a Mig.

Heads State Music Group

ROBERT CARTER
Robert Carter, faculty member of the East Carolina College department of music, assumed this week his duties as president of the North Carolina Music Educators Association.

Carter was elected to the office at a recent meeting of the organization in Greensboro. At the same time Virginia Frank of the High Point City Schools was chosen as vice president. They will hold office for two years.

The North Carolina Music Educators Association is affiliated with the North Carolina Education Association and the Music Educators National Conference. Each year the state organization sponsors a music contest-festival in which hundreds of music students and music organizations in North Carolina high schools participate. Sections of the association carry on an active program for band leaders, choral directors, classroom teachers, conductors of orchestras, and piano instructors in the state.

Carter meets with the Piano Division of the association in Greensboro today, and will attend also a meeting of the Executive Board. The board will map plans for the next two years, and committee members to serve for the biennium will be appointed.

In March he will represent the state organization at the Chicago Convention of the Music Educators National Conference.

At East Carolina, Carter teaches piano in the department of music. He has had extensive experience as a judge in piano auditions sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, and has served as adjudicator in New York City and in many states of the South and Southwest. In this state he has judged entrants in the State High School Music Contest-Festival and in contests sponsored by the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

TV Programs Have To Please Everybody

By JACK GAVER
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—"One person's entertainment may be another person's boredom."

That is Walt Framer's basic answer to the critics of the giveaway show, the quiz show, the audience participation show. "Fortunately for us," he added, "there seems to be an awful lot of people who find entertainment in such programs on television and radio."

Framer is the independent producer whose "Strike It Rich," "The Big Payoff" and "Double R Nothing" shows are on the two mediums a total of 24 times a week. "My young son, for example, thinks that any program that doesn't have cowboys and several people biting their dust is a complete waste of time," Framer continued. "My mother gets her biggest kick out of sitting down and listening to a 'soap opera' type of show that enables her to have a good cry."

"Strike It Rich," which is on both TV and radio, is five years old now and consistently one of the highest rated programs. That has to mean that a lot of people consider it entertainment no matter what a few critics may write from time to time.

"After all, what is entertainment? In a broad sense, whether you get it from a ball game, a movie, a newspaper, a book, a magazine, a television or radio show, it's something that holds your interest and takes your mind off your own problems for the time being."

"My three shows that are on the air now, while they're all different, have one element that is the same and that is the element of suspense. How many questions are the participants going to be able to answer? How much are they going to win? There is a pull there for listeners that may be either curiosity, sympathy or a feeling of superiority or a combination of all three."

Framer feels strongly about "Strike It Rich," which he calls the "need show" — those who appear on it really need the money involved for some important reason.

"The title," he said, "to me means more than just the fact that those on the show win money. We try to press home all the time that just being an American is, in a sense, striking it rich. I suppose I feel that way because my father was an immigrant who arrived here with $7 in his pocket, and, although he never achieved anything more than a tiny store in Pittsburgh and the most modest of incomes, he felt he had struck it rich."

Pirates Turn On Steam In Second Half To Beat Cats

Maryland And Oklahoma Seen As Orange Bowl Foes

South Carolina, Duke Favored In ACC Tilts

By LARRY DALE, United Press Sports Writer
RALEIGH (UP)—South Carolina and Duke are the favorites over Clemson and N.C. State respectively in this week's only Atlantic Coast Conference game—a pair of traditionally dog-eat-dog affairs.

Meanwhile, Maryland's Terrapins like the "Beast from 20,000 Fathoms" will rumble into the Orange Bowl bent on giving Miami a going over and advising the management that they expect to return New Year's Day.

The Orange Bowl Committee announced last night that champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference and the Big Seven will meet in the next two post-season classics, under an agreement reached with officials of the two conferences.

Maryland is now the only undefeated member of the acc, thanks to an inspired Army team that upset Duke 14-13 and knocked the Blue Devils from the role of co-champion.

The disaster at New York's Polo Grounds, after a week of Blue Devil brooding, may well breed something akin to mayhem on the home grounds at Durham this Saturday for luckless North Carolina.

By FRANK EDGE JR., United Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (UP)—The Orange Bowl's tieup with the Atlantic Coast and Big Seven conferences projected Maryland and Oklahoma today as the likely opponents for the annual New Year's Day football tussle.

The agreement that the two conferences will furnish their champions to the Orange Bowl for the next two years was announced in Miami late Sunday. The pact had been expected for several weeks and came after Big Seven faculty officials gave final approval at a meeting in Kansas City, Mo., Sunday.

Officials of the newly-formed Atlantic Coast Conference accepted the plan at a closed meeting in Durham, N.C., last week.

Undefeated Maryland in the Atlantic Coast and once beaten, once tied Oklahoma from the Big Seven were favored to win their conference championships and meet next Jan. 1 in the first game under the new agreement. Should there be a tie for the conference title, conference officials would choose the bowl team.

The Big Seven is made up of Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas, Kansas State, Missouri, Iowa State and Colorado.

Seven schools broke with the Southern Conference this year to form the Atlantic Coast group. They were Maryland, Wake Forest, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Duke, Clemson and South Carolina. Virginia became an eighth member recently but isn't competing in conference football this season.

Orange Bowl officials immediately began drawing up a contract which they said would be signed "sometime before the football season is over."

Many details of the agreement remain to be worked out, including whether a team would be permitted to appear in the bowl two years in a row, seating arrangements and which team will appear as host.

Van C. Kussrow, head of the Orange Bowl Schedule Committee, said the Big Seven opposes letting one team participate two consecutive years.

The agreement guarantees each team $110,000, which is approximately one-third of the gate, and 11,000 tickets. The guarantee will be $112,000 for the 1955 game, the committee said.

The Orange Bowl Committee said it expects to seat more than 70,000 fans at the 1954 game with addition of some 3,000 seats now being constructed at the steel and concrete bowl. The Columbia Broadcasting System is under contract to televise the game nationwide, which annually is a sell-out.

Something To Give In Tech-Irish Game

By UNITED PRESS
 Something is bound to give Saturday when Notre Dame, the nation's No. 1 team, meets Georgia Tech, possessor of the nation's longest unbeaten string, in a contest that is not only the football feature of the week but the biggest game of the year so far.

Georgia Tech, which hasn't tasted defeat in its last 31 games, will be the underdog in the battle at South Bend, Ind., and the favored Fighting Irish, unbeaten in three games this year, realize that they must snap the Engineers' streak which dates back to 1950 if they are to insure their top perch in the nation.

Notre Dame, holding a lopsided 14-2 edge in the 16 games played between the two schools, prepared for the Georgia Tech meeting by beating Pittsburgh 23-14, last Saturday, while the Engineers amped up Auburn, 36-6. An interesting sidelight on next Saturday's duel between the two titans will be the personal competition between All-America candidates John Latner of Notre Dame and little Leon Hardeman of Georgia Tech.

Michigan State, winner of 28 straight games, puts another big streak on the line for the benefit of puncheon Purdue, which hasn't won a game in four starts this season. Along with their 29th straight conquest the Spartans will be shooting for their fourth Big Ten Conference triumph.

Southern California, with visions of an ultimate bid to the Rose Bowl, will be favored over erratic California in the feature game of the Pacific Coast Conference schedule, while Texas and Rice tangle in the Southwest Conference.

The week's slate lists several inter-sectional contests, highlighted of course, by the Notre Dame-Georgia Tech game. In other such contests, Kansas meets Southern Methodist; Penn State opposes Texas Christian; Illinois faces Syracuse; Arkansas plays host to Mississippi; Marquette meets College of Pacific; and Kentucky clashes with Villanova, Saturday night.

In other games, the Boston Bruins climbed into fourth place by turning back the New York Rangers, 3-2, and the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs downed the winless Chicago Black Hawks 2-1.

A crowd of 13,186 at Detroit watched Sawchuk turn back 25 shots in gaining his shutout over the Canadiens. Earl Reibel, the Red Wings' rookie center, scored one goal and set up another for Gordie Howe. Other Detroit goals were turned in by Red Kelly and Mary Pavelich.

At Boston, defenseman Bob Armstrong scored his first goal in 61 regular season NHL games in leading the Bruins to victory over the Rangers. Joe Klukay and Real Chevrelis also scored for Boston, while Ranger goals were turned in by Paul Ronty and Leo Reise.

Toronto sent the Black Hawks down to their fifth loss of the new season on a 4-0 goal burst in the second period. Jim Peters gave Chicago a short-lived lead early in the period, but then Eric Norenko tied the score and Sid Smith provided the winning goal for the Leafs.

Big Step Taken By Minor League Club Officials

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—A majority of the minor leagues have taken an unprecedented step aimed at freeing themselves from what they call the "shackles" of the major leagues.

At a meeting called to lay the framework for a legislative agenda for the minor league convention at Atlanta, Ga., in December, representatives of 23 of the 38 minor leagues almost unanimously approved a sweeping program of reform.

They admitted, however, that they weren't too optimistic about getting major league cooperation in their plans, but hoped that the step taken here was a first big one in the right direction.

At least, they said, the seven-point program endorsed at the meeting would let the powerful majors know the sentiments of their "little brothers" and inform the big league owners of the dire plight in which the minors have drifted or been pushed in recent years.

In a nutshell, the minor league presidents called for cessation of radio and television invasion of minor league territory, an unrestricted draft, substitution of simple majority voting for three-fourths rule in amending major league matters, extension of waiver rights against the draft to call minor leagues, a 50 to 100 per cent hike in draft and reclamation prices, consideration of possible revision of the major-minor agreement and appointment of a committee to, in effect, draw up a new constitution for the minors.

CULLOWHEE — A determined Western Carolina College team roared and ranted for one half here Saturday night but then wilted in the second half as unbeaten East Carolina turned on the steam for a 26-7 North State Conference victory.

Playing before a homecoming crowd of 3,500 fans, the winless Cats held the Pirates to a scoreless deadlock in the first quarter and a 7-7 tie at the half. After intermission, however, the Pirates called on their running game for 19 points and their fifth victory of the year.

The actual winning punch was supplied by touchdowns by Paul Gay, Jack Britt, and Johnny Daughtry. A Dick Cherry-to-Bobby Hodges pass had tied the game at halftime.

East Carolina had taken an early lead in the contest in the opening minutes of the second quarter when they climaxed a 70-yard drive with the 15-yard aerial from Cherry to Hodges. Claude King kicked the point but the margin stood for only a short while as the Cats surged back for their only score.

The TD came a few plays after they had gained possession of the ball on the East Carolina 42. From there they drove to the eighth where halfback Tommy Proctor took a handoff from Tommy Lewis and skirted left end for the score. Jim Pappas kicked the extra point.

The last half was all East Carolina's. Midway the third period, halfback Jack Britt drove over to climax a drive of 60 yards.

Cherry took to the air again early in the final period and hit Paul Gay with a 25-yard toss that paid off in a touchdown after the Bucs had marched from their own 30.

Daughtry carried over from the two for the Pirates' final touchdown. King converted again after the final TD.

Statistically, there wasn't much of a ball game. The Pirates racked up 12 first downs to the Cats' three. In rushing, the hefty Pirates rolled up 270 while their own forward wall was holding Western Carolina to a puny 97. East Carolina hit five out of 14 pass attempts for 82 yards while the Cats were able to connect on only one of six and even that completion didn't pick up any yardage.

Scoring summary: East Carolina — 0 7 6 13—26. Western Carolina — 0 7 0 0—7. East Carolina scoring: touchdowns—Hodges, Gay, Britt, Daughtry. Points after touchdowns—King, 2 (placements).

Western Carolina scoring: touchdown—Proctor. Point after touchdown—Pappas (placement).

Turf Title Open After Big Upset

NEW YORK (UP)—The race for the turf's two-year old championship was regarded as wide open today following the defeat of Porterhouse in the Pimlico Futurity.

Boasting five victories in seven previous starts Mrs. Liz Person's colt marched postward as the 2-8 choice in Saturday's race at Pimlico and came out of it with the worst beating of his young career.

The winner was Errand King, who streaked home eight lengths ahead of War Doings. And what happened to Porterhouse? After getting off to a poor start, the Virginia-bred colt simply refused to extend himself and wound up last in a field of five, some 23 lengths back of the winner.

Willie Boland, who rode Porterhouse, admitted after the race that his mount "seemed to go along all right until I asked him to run then he simply had no speed."

Porterhouse's surprising defeat ruined what would have been a natural meeting between Mrs. Person's color-bearer and Britain's champion, the Pie King, in the Garden State stakes Oct. 31. Now it appears this nation's chances of victory against the invading colt will rest with two New York-owned juveniles — Fisherman and Mister Gus.

Fisherman captured the recent Champagne stakes at Belmont Park for his fifth victory in nine starts this year, while Mister Gus made his belated debut at Belmont nine days ago by coming within two-fifths of a second of the world's record in a six-furlong dash down the Widener chute.

Five Palmetto Teams At Work

By UNITED PRESS
 Five South Carolina college football teams opened drills today for games this weekend, while the states two big boys began taping off for the biggest of them all, the 51st annual "Big Thursday" classic.

Both South Carolina and Clemson look an open date last weekend, and have been girding for more than a week for the annual State Fair battle before a full house of 35,000 in Carolina Stadium.

Both squads have suffered numerous injuries in late games and practice sessions. However, South Carolina appears to be the least hardest hit and rules the favorite on squad condition and early season performance.

The Gamecocks have lost only to Duke, Clemson has won only from Presbyterian.

One other intra-state contest features this weekend's schedule. Winless Citadel plays host to scrappy Presbyterian, which has won three of four and knocked off Davidson, 19-18 Saturday.

Newberry, winner of three straight after an opening loss, meets unbeaten Maryville College at Maryville, Tenn., Saturday night.

Wofford, after two straight 7-6 losses, entertains Stetson at Spartanburg. Furman celebrates its homecoming in Greenville against winless Davidson.

Transfer Cleared After Sale Of Maryland Rights

MONTEAL (UP)—The transfer of the old St. Louis Browns to Baltimore was cleared officially today following the sale of the Maryland territory by the International League.

A settlement, awarding the International League $48,749 for the Baltimore territory, was completed Sunday at a closed meeting between I.L. officials and officers of the American League's new Orioles.

The sale reduced the International League to seven teams, although Baltimore's spot now is expected to be filled by Richmond, Va. An application from the southern city was discussed at the meeting, but no action will be taken on it until the league's general meeting at Montreal, Nov. 18.

Also scheduled to be discussed at next month's meeting is a plan for inter-league competition between teams of the I.L. and the American Association during the regular season.

Mississippi State's Ace Stopped By Kentucky Cats

By BILL FERGUSON, United Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA (UP)—A one-man backfield that can be stopped and a four-man backfield that has been stopped will clash Saturday in a Southeastern Conference puzzle as Alabama makes a last-ditch bid for prestige against Mississippi State.

Georgia Tech grabbed the conference top spot over the week-end while Alabama and Mississippi State were both treated to rude awakenings.

Alabama, appearing ready to roll after a poor start, had to settle for a scoreless tie with underdog Tennessee while Kentucky upset Mississippi State, 32 to 13.

Georgia Tech hit its powerful stride of old by romping over Auburn, 36 to 6, but the Engineers will get their biggest test this Saturday against Notre Dame, the nation's top gridiron power.

Louisiana State played their cards according to Hoyle and dumped Georgia, 14 to 6, while Mississippi trounced Tulane, 45 to 14. Florida danced over The Citadel 40 to 9, and Baylor cruised by the hapless Vanderbilt Commodores, 47 to 6.

Vanderbilt will try to restore a bit of prestige this week against Virginia while Tennessee is slated for a breather with Louisville. Georgia has a rough inter-sectional assignment against North Carolina and Kentucky will try Villanova.

While Alabama and Mississippi State proved the top SEC action, Tulane meets Auburn and Louisiana State goes against Florida in other conference battles.

Kentucky virtually stopped Mississippi State's one-man team. High-scoring Jackie Parker was on the bench when the Maroons picked up their only scores. Parker got to see a scoring show by Kentucky fullback Ralph Paolone, who built for two touchdowns and set up more scores as he racked the Maroon line for 75 yards rushing. Alabama's "fearsome foursome" was stopped cold as Tennessee held the Tide to a scoreless tie. Halfbacks Bobby Luna and Corky Tharp and fullback Tommy Lewis

Coincidence?

By UNITED PRESS
 Maybe it was only a coincidence, but the moment Terry Sawchuk returned to the Detroit lineup, the Red Wings bounced back into first place in the National Hockey League.

Out for eight days with a painful knee injury, Sawchuk slipped back into his goalie pads again Sunday night and shut out the Montreal Canadiens, 4-0. The defeat dropped Montreal into second place, a point back of the Red Wings.

In other games, the Boston Bruins climbed into fourth place by turning back the New York Rangers, 3-2, and the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs downed the winless Chicago Black Hawks 2-1.

A crowd of 13,186 at Detroit watched Sawchuk turn back 25 shots in gaining his shutout over the Canadiens. Earl Reibel, the Red Wings' rookie center, scored one goal and set up another for Gordie Howe. Other Detroit goals were turned in by Red Kelly and Mary Pavelich.

Promising 'Most Improved' Team

By UNITED PRESS
 The Providence Reds today were making pre-season predictions that they would prove one of the most improved teams in the American Hockey League look as good as gold.

Eliminated from the Calder Cup playoffs last season the Reds now hold a one-point first-place lead over the Buffalo Bisons and Pittsburgh Hornets. The Reds regained first place Sunday night when they beat the Cleveland Barons, 1-0.

Al Baccari scored the game's only goal in the first period, with Pete Kapusta and J. Leclerc receiving credit for assists. Goals Harvey Bennett protected that single goal the remainder of the night to give Providence its third victory in five games.

Danny Lewicki scored at 1:30 of the over-time period to give the Hornets a 5-4 triumph over Buffalo in the other game Sunday night.

NEW YORK (UP)—Floyd Patterson of New York, Olympic middleweight champion in 1952 and now an unbeaten professional light heavyweight, was favored at 3-1 to beat Wes Basgom of St. Louis tonight in their television fight at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway arena.

Patterson, only 19, has won six of his pro starts, six by knockout. Only Dick Wagner went the distance with him.

The more experienced Basgom has fought big-name scrappers among his 24 opponents. They included ex-heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, Dan Bucceroni, Bob Satterfield, Cesar Brion and Jimmy Blivins.

Marciano Made Champ By Crafty Fight Manager

ST. LOUIS — Charley Goldman, trainer of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, lets the public in on the ways of making a champion in the All-Sports section of The Sporting News.

Goldman states that in his fifty years around the fight game he never knew another fellow who started with as many things against him as Rocky Marciano. When Charley first saw him he was 23 years old. That alone ought to have been enough to give up on him.

What managers like to get is a fighter when he's 15. He'll be easier to teach, and you can keep him in the gym a long time before he has a fight.

But Goldman had reasons for not chasing Rocky, three good ones.

No. 1, he had the body of a fighter. No. 2, he had a lot of all-around athletic background. No. 3, he wanted to be a fighter.

Marciano, during a workout, was taking a beating in the belly, and his trainer knew how stupid that was. But he didn't say so to Rocky.

Goldman used a little psychology. "Now referees don't give you points for standing up under somebody's punches. Whether you can take it or not, they don't look for that. They watch punches. The winner is the fellow who can hit the other most often and get hit the least."

According to The Sporting News, Marciano had taken body punishment because his mother had been against boxing when he started. He didn't want to come home with a bruised eye or cut lip which would give him away. Nobody could hurt him in the body, so he just got the habit of taking it there.

But it did start Rocky to thinking.

One day he asked Goldman: "Charley, if I don't want to get hit, how do I get out of the way?"

So he started on defensive boxing, a little at a time.

"For all the things I changed in Rocky," says Goldman in The Sporting News, "there was one I never touched. And that was his way of throwing a right."

Browns Go Into New Week With Perfect Pro Record

By EARL WRIGHT, United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—The Cleveland Browns, who have Otto Graham, Lou Broza and the ability to take advantage of an opponent's mistakes, marched into the National Football League's fifth week today with the only perfect record in the 12-team circuit.

The Browns collected their fourth victory and undisputed first place in the Eastern Conference Sunday by coming from behind to defeat the Washington Redskins, their closest pursuers, 30-14. Graham's 25-yard touchdown pass to end Danie Lavelli touched off a 17-point Cleveland spree in the last 12 minutes.

In the rugged Western Conference, the Los Angeles Rams set up a three-way deadlock for first place by beating the previously undefeated-untied Detroit Lions, 31-19. The San Francisco Forty-Niners tied the Rams and Lions for the lead in rallying to defeat the Chicago Bears, 35-28. The leaders have 3-1 marks.

The Green Bay Packers ended a three-game losing streak with a 37-14 victory over the Baltimore Colts and the New York Giants also snapped a three-game losing string with a 21-7 triumph over the Chicago Cardinals in other games.

The Philadelphia Eagles opened the weekend card Saturday night by scoring 17 points in the last period to defeat the Pittsburgh Steelers, 23-7.

The Redskins and 33,963 rosters had visions of an upset at Washington when linebacker Jack Cloud's 28-yard scoring dash with an intercepted Graham pass and Bill Dudley's conversion gave the home team a 14-13 lead with 12 minutes to go. Washington, which had held Cleveland to a touchdown and two Gross field goals in the first three quarters, still was within striking distance at 20-14 after Graham climaxed a 58-yard drive with his TD pass to Lavelli.

But guard Bill Willis of Cleveland's alert defensive platoon ended Washington hopes by recovering

Misconceptions About Animals Are Common

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (U.P.)—The pig is neither the dirtiest nor the most gluttonous of animals. The sheep, whose babe, the lamb, is a symbol of purity, deserves the dirtiest title, and the horse is the most gluttonous.

Clifford B. Moore, an animal scientist, is appalled by the mistaken ideas in circulation about practically all mammals. He doesn't include man, leaving that mammal to other scientists.

Bloodhounds have nothing to do with blood beyond the blood which circulates in their bodies. They got their name because they were "blooded" or pure bred.

Far from being bloodthirsty, they are gentle and kindly disposed. Nor do they follow a trail with their noses on the ground unless the scent is extremely faint.

Bulls and Red

The idea that a shod man deposits his characteristic scent in his shoeprints is absurd. Rather, his scent comes from all of him and enters the atmosphere as a kind of mist and may "hang" there for sometime. It is this "mist" the bloodhound picks up and distinguishes from other mists in the atmosphere.

Man has a black layer of pigments which absorbs light; hence, his eyes are incapable of reflecting light. There are no truly luminous eyes among other mammals, such as the cat whose eyes seem to glow in semi-darkness.

The reflection from a cat's eyes may be pink or it may be green or a yellowish blue, depending on the eye's pigmentation. Some individual cats may reflect a different color from one eye than from the other. But the "eye-shine" of a bear is deep red, and that of a deer is yellow-orange.

Moore is director of the forest Park Museum at Springfield, Mass. He seeks to set matters straight in a book called "Ways of Mammals—In Fact and Fancy."

GOP Names 33 Women To Posts

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The Republicans claim they've outdone the Democrats on another score—in appointments of women to top government jobs.

Miss Bertha S. Adkins, chairman of the women's division of the Republican National Committee, proudly points out that since President Eisenhower took office January 20, the administration has named 33 women to top policy-making jobs.

"It's an all-time record," she says.

Of the total, 26 are presidential appointments. The others are departmental selections. The distasteful side fills jobs in diplomacy, health and welfare, civil defense, the United Nations, foreign assistance, legal affairs, customs and agriculture.

Among these jobs, the GOP also is claiming many "firsts." Miss Adkins reminded that under the Republicans, the nation has its first women ambassador to a major European country—Clare Boothe Luce, in Italy; the first career woman diplomat ever elevated to ambassadorial rank—Frances E. Willis, in Switzerland; the first woman deputy civil defense administrator—Mrs. Katherine Howard; and the first woman assistant director of the Foreign Administration, Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton.

Clean Bats

Nor do dogs and cats have any extraordinary ability to find their way home. What ability they have is merely an ability to learn how to go about in the environment in which they live.

Bats, which are the only mammals capable of true flight, are "scrupulously clean, possibly more so than man." Moore has watched bats spend half an hour washing themselves with their long, red tongues while hanging upside down.

A hairy-chested man may be called an ape, but the gorilla, "the most impressive of the apes," has little or no hair on his chest. He is spoken of as ferocious, but on his home grounds he's peaceful and home-loving. But "they have no liking for a life behind iron bars any more than have human beings."

Nocturnal mammals—and man is not one—can make use of the little illumination at night, such as starlight for seeing purposes because they have a tapetum lucidum which reflects light back to the retina of the eyes.

U.S. Squadrons In Germany Now Have Sabre Jets

Last March 10 a Czech MIG-15 fighter jumped an American F-84 Thunderjet patrolling along the Iron Curtain frontier and shot down the obsolescent and out-classed American plane. At that time the United States had not a single plane in Germany that could match the MIG. Today, seven months later, the commanding general of the U.S. 12th Air Force tells in an exclusive interview what the United States did about it.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
RAMSTEIN AIR FORCE BASE, Germany (U.P.)—U.S. Air Force fighter squadrons patrolling near the Iron Curtain in Germany are now almost completely equipped with F-86 Sabre jets, the sweeping fighter that outclassed all Soviet-built fighters in Korea. Maj. Gen. Dean C. Strother said today.

"Since last spring we have been in the process of converting all our fighter-bomber squadrons to the F-86F Sabre jet," the commanding general of the 12th Air Force said.

"The slow F-84 Thunderjets with which they previously were equipped have almost all been disposed of—either flown back to the United States or transferred to other NATO air forces.

"The conversion is going on well and now is almost completed."

Strother, who has commanded the tough, battle-ready 12th Air Force since its formation early in 1951, made this disclosure in an exclusive United Press interview.

He is scheduled to return to the United States next month as deputy commander of the air university of Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala. He leaves here a fleet of Sabres that can more than match any known Soviet fighter plane.

The first squadron of Sabres was rushed from England to Germany last March 16 after a Russian-built Czechoslovak air force MIG fighter jumped and shot down a patrolling F-84 Thunderjet—hopelessly slower than the Russian jet, but the best the United States could put in the air in Germany at that time.

Since then, Strother disclosed, the Sabre build-up has been proceeding quietly until today it is almost complete.

Long range plans, he said, called for shipment to Germany of even more up-to-date jets than the Sabres. He did not, however, reveal details.

"We know," Strother said, "that the Russian and satellite air forces numerically are still vastly superior to what we have. However, in the past 1 1/2 years we have made immense strides toward building up a well knit organization. If called upon the U.S. 12th Air Force would be able to give a good account of itself."

In the past six months, Strother said, the 12th Air Force has completed the huge job of moving its fighter-bomber squadrons back to the base at Fuerstentfeldbruck, near Munich—to a half-dozen brand new permanent bases in the French zone, west of the Rhine River.

Strother also moved his headquarters here about six months ago from Wiesbaden.

Sen. Stennis Seeks To Ease Cotton Crop Cuts

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Sen. John C. Stennis said today the drastic reduction in cotton acreage in prospect for next year would cut production of small farmers "down to the bone."

The Mississippi Democrat called for quick action at the next session of Congress on legislation to ease production curbs on the 1954 crop. A dispute between Western and Southern growers blocked such legislation at this year's session.

Under farm law, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson has proclaimed a national allotment of 17,000,000 acres next year. This year's uncontrolled crop totals about 25-million acres.

Stennis told a reporter the national allotment should be increased by about three-million acres. This will require passage of legislation before spring planting time next year.

"We now Secretary Benson had no choice in the matter," Stennis said. "But the practical effect of the reduction will be to strip down to the bone our cotton growers operating family-sized farms."

"It is a matter of meat and bread to our farmers," he added. "We've got to have legislation to meet the situation."

Cotton growers will vote on production curbs in December. Unless two-thirds of the farmers vote for controls, the government support price on cotton—Now 90 per cent of parity—will be drastically reduced.

Southern and Western growers were unable to agree earlier this year on how the prospective cutback would be apportioned between the two growing areas.

Stennis said he thought an "equitable" solution could be reached on this issue and praised Chairman George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee for naming a subcommittee to try to work out a compromise in advance of the next session.

The subcommittee includes Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM), a representative of the western growers, and James O. Eastland (D-Miss) of the South. It is headed by Sen. Edward J. Thye (R-Minn).

Records Court Slated Tuesday

Judge Dink James will preside over Pitt County Recorder's Court at the courthouse tomorrow, the first session held since September 22.

An unusually heavy docket will confront the Greenville jurist. Many of the cases involve violations of motor vehicle and traffic law violations.

Criminal and civil terms of Superior Court were held during the last part of September and early October. The high court's final session was adjourned last Thursday. Judge J. Paul Frizzelle of Greene County and Judge Henry A. Grady of Craven County presided over the Pitt County terms.

The County Court is scheduled to be held each Tuesday, except when Superior Court is in session here.

Listing Taxes

Since subpoenas were given to the sheriff to be served recently, a least 15 to 20 people have come in to list their tax, Reginald Gray, Pitt County Tax Supervisor reported this morning.

Some ten to 12 others, who Gray reported having no record of, have come in to list their property for tax purposes.

Gray said that all the 176 subpoenas have not been served, but he expressed hope that they will be in the hands of the violators by October 30, at which time those receiving the court order must give evidence under oath for failure to list their personal property for the year 1953.

'Discrepancies' Will Be Checked In Money Hunt

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U.P.)—The police officers who arrested kidnap-murderer Carl Hall today were to appear before Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell in an investigation of "discrepancies" in the report of the capture.

The new investigation centered around efforts to discover what became of about half of the $500,000 ransom paid by Bobby Greenlease's wealthy father in a futile effort to save the boy's life.

Hall was arrested Oct. 6 by Police Lt. Louis Shoulters and Patrolman Elmer Dolan.

When informed of the new investigation, Shoulters snapped he is getting "sick and tired" of rumors about the case. He said he would "report to the police board or the chief, and not to the FBI or to newspapers."

The new investigation was ordered Sunday at a special meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners. The board acted after the St. Louis Post-Dispatch quoted the FBI as saying the police report on what happened to the money found with Hall contains discrepancies.

According to the official report, the newspaper said Hall and two suitcases stuffed with money were taken to the Newstead Ave. police station here immediately following the capture.

However, the newspaper said the FBI reported the suitcases were not brought to the station until more than an hour after Hall arrived.

When the money was counted, it came to $294,000, the Post-Dispatch said. The only money actually brought to the station with Hall was $800 in his wallet, according to the newspaper.

The new investigation intensified the search for the missing ransom money, which has been underway ever since Hall and his alcoholic confederate Bonnie Brown Heady, were arrested.

Despite constant questioning by FBI relay teams, they have not revealed what became of the missing ransom money.

Children 'Must Prepare': Hoover

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Former President Herbert C. Hoover told the youth of the nation Sunday that they must be prepared to make unselfish sacrifices to defend "the greatest heritage that can come to man—national freedom and personal liberty."

"We hear much criticism of our government," Mr. Hoover said, "and a lot of it is justified. No government is perfect, because human beings are not perfect."

"But let me say," he added, "that despite many disheartening things, by and large the ideals of our country are still strong. And under our unique American system, we have given more opportunities to every boy and girl than any other government."

The 73-year old statesman spoke on the Ford Foundation television workshop program, "Excursion." Former President Harry S. Truman previously had addressed the nation's youth on the same program.

Mr. Hoover said the primary responsibility of young people is to prepare themselves for the time when they will vote by learning all they can about candidates and parties involved in elections.

After they vote, he said, they must support the government and be prepared, if necessary, to "serve it at a sacrifice."

Mystery Figure In Spain Said To Resemble Beria

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (U.P.)—A man whom at least five witnesses have identified as Lavrenti P. Beria, purged head of the Russian secret police, is—or was—in southern Spain, the San Diego Union said today in a copyrighted story.

Gene Fuson, a reporter for the newspaper, wrote from Madrid that for more than a month he has been working undercover with Spanish secret police and an intermediary for the man who claims to be Beria.

He said the man's presence in Spain "has been established beyond a reasonable doubt."

High Spanish police officials, who Fuson said permitted him to disclose the story, are preparing a documented report on the case for Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) "and I have been asked to deliver it to him," the correspondent wrote.

A scheduled meeting with the mystery man was frustrated, according to the story, when Fabio Gallo, the intermediary who was to accompany Fuson to the meeting, was arrested by Spanish police for refusing to give information to a man claiming to be a representative of the United States.

But during the past month, Fuson said, "we have established the following facts:

1. The man called Beria was waiting at the place where I and the intermediary were to rendezvous shortly after my arrival in Spain. I carried identification papers from Sen. McCarthy.
2. He was accompanied by two other men. One was a Spaniard and the other was described as a foreigner.
3. Four persons in addition to the intermediary positively have identified photographs of the real Beria as the man they saw at the rendezvous on the beach between Malaga and Gibraltar.
4. Three of the witnesses were identified as the owners of a coastal farm where the meeting was to have taken place. They said they saw the three strangers strolling along the beach. Fuson said.

Spending Rate Runs Still High

By LYLE C. WILSON
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP)—The Treasury's books showed today the new Republican administration has a slightly topped former President Truman's corresponding spending record in the first three and one-half months of the current fiscal year.

The Republicans have collected a bit less in taxes than Mr. Truman exacted. And they are further in the red for the 1954 fiscal year so far than was Mr. Truman in the corresponding period of fiscal 1953.

The national debt still is rising and stands today only $2,000,000,000 below the statutory limit which is $275,000,000,000. The Republicans inherited a free-spending, big-deficit budget from Mr. Truman last January. They are having trouble with their spending brakes and more with the overall effort to balance the budget, a project which also involves taxes.

The foregoing facts are basic in the fiscal policy decisions now being sought by the administration and to be debated when Congress returns.

In nearly eight years of office, Mr. Truman broke all records for taxing and spending. The tax and spending record in the current fiscal year underlines the hard fact that Republican economy efforts so far have accomplished no more than to just about hold the line on both fronts. Here are the fiscal year figures from July 1 as of mid-October:

This Year (Rep.)
Expenses	$2,847,000,000
Receipts	15,094,000,000
Last Year (Dem.)
Expenses	$20,772,000,000
Receipts	15,247,000,000

Mr. Truman's spending spiral was ever upward. He spent $66,145,000,000 in fiscal 1952 and went in the red by more than $4,000,000,000. Less than a month before leaving office last January, Mr. Truman sent to Congress his last budget. It proposed $78,587,000,000 to be spent in the 1954 fiscal year. The deficit was estimated at about $10,000,000,000. The Republicans have revised those figures downward to spend about $72,000,000,000 for a deficit under $4,000,000,000.

Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge has pride in that clip of about $6,500,000,000 from the budget figure which Mr. Truman said was at rock bottom and could not be lowered.

But the first budget cuts are the easiest. Each additional $1,000,000,000 squeezed now from government spending will require increasingly greater pressure and inspire increasingly greater protest.

Some recent administration statements sounded like a hint to the public of budget balancing delay beyond the current 1954 fiscal year, maybe in fiscal 1955 or '56.

Political pressure, however, assures some tax reduction even while the budget remains out of balance. Of the various taxes scheduled by law to expire in 1954, two will surely go off the books. They are the excess profits tax on corporations and the 10 per cent personal income tax levy imposed as a Korean war emergency measure.

This missing revenue will further hinder budget balancing and, probably, require imposition of other taxes to make up some or all of the loss.

Tuesday: Expiring taxes will offset savings so far made toward budget-balancing.

Complains Cash Taken By Women

The Pitt County Sheriff's department Saturday was investigating the complaint of a Negro woman of near Grimesland that she was robbed of over $300.

Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning, who investigated the reported robbery stated Helen Cox, of near Grimesland, said two women stole $320 from her while at her home Friday.

The two apparently came to her house to tell her fortune and "Bless and pray for her," Manning quoted the woman as saying.

The money, contained in a small piece of cloth was made up of two $100 bills, four $20 bills two $10 bills and two $5 bills.

Officers are still searching for the "two women with gold teeth" who allegedly came up to the woman's house in an old model truck.

Arrest Follows Cutting; Several Charges Placed

Eddie Small, 28-year-old Negro, was arrested Friday night and charged with assault with a deadly weapon, trespassing, "peeping tom" and disorderly conduct.

Small, according to Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs, was taken into custody Friday night after he went to the home of Polly Anne Hicks, at 1102 South Pitt Street, and she was cut with a knife.

Small later returned to the house while officers were seeking him over

No End To Planning By Amazing Woman

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
 NEW YORK (UP)—The bright blue eyes sparkled, the wrinkled hands moved in quick, excited gestures, and the words came out with painful slowness as Helen Keller talked.

Now 73 the amazing woman whose life has meant hope for all those born without sight or hearing, is still healthy and alert, with plans to visit faroff countries again and to begin a new book.

She sat next to her devoted companion, Polly Thomson, when she was interviewed by this reporter, and her sensitive hands alternately touched Miss Thomson's lips and reached out for the lightning swift tapping of her companion's fingers as they translated spoken words.

A few moments earlier she had made a speech at the American Foundation for the Blind and presented two medals for service to the blind. Miss Thomson held Miss Keller's arm lightly as she spoke, and repeated each sentence after her.

Gratefully she told her audience that the "doubly handicapped" now have a much better chance for normal living "than when the light of hope first shone upon my shipwrecked life." Her memory always excellent, still enables her to speak at length without deviating from a prepared text.

Miss Keller is working daily at her typewriter to complete an article about her recent trip to South America.

"Do you plan any more long trips?" Miss Thomson tapped the palm.

She answered that she would like question quickly in Miss Keller's go to India.

She has spoken on every continent in behalf of the handicapped. Recently she said this was her life's ambition. Now she hopes to live long enough to finish her "teacher book."

"Teacher" was Anne Sullivan, who went to Tuscumbia, Ala., in 1888 to see if she could help the eight-year old child who had suffered a mysterious illness as a baby that left her deaf, blind and dumb. They were inseparable companions until "teacher" died in 1936. Then Miss Thomson, a Scottish-born secretary trained as a companion by Miss Sullivan, took her place. "She wants to write a book about her, but she has to begin all over again," Miss Thomson explained. "All her notes and books were destroyed when her home burned in 1946."

The house was rebuilt on the Westport, Conn., site, and Miss Keller lives there with her companion and her Alsatian dog.

"Her health is amazing," Miss Thomson said. Miss Keller touched her fingers to her companion's lips, eager to understand the conversation. "Do you think you will live to be a hundred?" Miss Thomson asked with a smile.

Miss Keller clapped her hands together and laughed soundlessly. "I would not want to outlive all my old friends," she said.

Forgetfulness Brought Police To Newton Bank

NEWTON, N. C. (UP)—Hube Hunt had plenty of reason to forget what he went after when he saw what his hasty excursion caused last night.

Before he was out of eight police rushed to the Northwestern Bank where he is nightwatchman and soon the nearby square was thronged with jittery spectators.

Police had been alerted by a telephone operator who noticed the bank's line was open but the officers found nothing missing. Then the Negro watchman came forward with an explanation.

He had telephoned about purchasing a dog, he said, and got such a good offer that he rushed out without replacing the telephone in its cradle and forgetting to lock the door. And after all the excitement, Hunt said, he could not even remember what kind of dog it was.

Red Heads Don't Cry

By ROY L. FOLEY

NANCY felt that Linda was groping that she didn't know exactly how to begin. Her manner was one of almost friendly gush mixed with hauteur. Nancy had a feeling that the hauteur wasn't innate. Linda was striking in appearance. Except for her very red lips, she was without makeup. Her face was startlingly white in contrast with her lips.

Linda said that she almost didn't know how to start saying what she wanted to say, and in contradiction to her statement, she started immediately.

"It's this, Miss Kelly. I want to save you embarrassment."

"Me? Embarrassment?"

"You will forgive me if I am frank?"

"Oh, do be frank. I like frankness, I'm a business girl."

"Yes you are a working girl. Nancy hadn't said working girl. She let it pass."

"Have one?"

"Thank you, no."

Nancy wasn't going to take anything from Linda Van Vliet. Not even a cigarette.

"I wonder if you know that you are being talked about?"

"Is that so—by whom?"

"By the girls in my—I was going to say crowd, Miss Kelly, but it's a vulgar expression. I mean at the clubs, at dinners, everywhere I go. There is such gossip about you and Phil Stanley. It hurts me, really it does. It seems so cruel for a girl as nice as you must be to be made a fool of by anyone so obviously—shall I say it—so obviously out of your world as Phil Stanley."

"You have said it. Is he out of my world?"

Linda ignored the question.

"Phil is a charming fellow and no doubt you've found him so, as have so many other girls—shall I say—to their regret."

"You have said it. How regret?"

"Really, Miss Kelly. You are making it difficult for me. I want to be kind to you."

"Go ahead. Be kind. I need it."

"It all comes right down to this, Miss Kelly. Phil is only playing with you, making a silly little goose out of you. You must know his background. How, possibly can a girl who has the good sense you have fall to see that Phil Stanley is reckless. He thinks he can buy anything, even girls like you. It would be such a tragedy if something happened—if you were common. It's different with a man. The world hardly lifts an eyebrow at a man, but a girl—"

Under Nancy's steady gaze Linda pretended to fluster, as though she had touched upon an indelicate subject and was embarrassed. As though she had done her best to reach down from the level of Phil Stanley's plane and hers, and that Nancy Kelly of Cass street couldn't, Linda said to her, "Help Wanted Female."

There is a theory that if one doesn't want to be seen he should avoid particular effort not to be seen. Nancy settled in a big chair in a far nook of the lobby and held her newspaper spread out in front of her face, and still she was seen.

Phil Stanley often said that he could sense if there was a red-haired woman around the corner. Whether he could or not, he did turn the corner into the nook where Nancy was sitting.

He snapped a forefinger against Nancy's paper. It was as though a firecracker had exploded in her lap.

Phil was profuse with apology.

"I'm sorry. What brings you here at this strange hour of the day? What are you reading?"

Nancy held up the newspaper. "Help Wanted, Female."

"But why?"

"I've lost my job."

"But why?"

"Because of you."

Phil's smile turned to an expression of concern, and the concern that had been on Nancy's face during perusal of the want ads turned to a smile at the look on his face.

This wasn't she, Nancy Kelly, a girl out of a job. A girl who had just been put in her place by Linda Van Vliet, one of Phil's own crowd. She must be somebody acting in a movie, acting a story with sequences following so fast as to be incredible.

Nancy told Phil the story of her dismissal by Humphrey Charles.

Phil listened without interruption. What an aristocrat he was—at least in looks, Nancy thought. The set of his tie. The very cut of his hair.

She finished her story. Phil's eyes narrowed.

"That old buzzard."

He said that and before he could say more Nancy had an impulse to pour out the story of her meeting with Linda Van Vliet. She checked it. She remembered Linda's words. . . . Phil is only playing with you. . . . making a goose out of you. . . . you must know his background.

There were her spirits, her pride, that she was always trying to peg so high, and keep high, tottering on the verge of the toboggan again.

She was a Kelly. She did live down on the shabby end of Cass street. Linda Van Vliet was of Phil Stanley's world, and those of his world were in the habit of looking at a girl like her as though she might be dirt under their feet. In fact, they could look at a Nancy Kelly and give the impression of not seeing her as though she were transparent, didn't exist.

Nancy gathered up her gloves, her purse. The tips of the fingers of one glove had been mended. Her purse looked cheap, than it actually was beside the elegant, gold-zippered handbag of Linda Van Vliet.

"Is that all you wanted to say to me, Miss Van Vliet?"

Linda placed her long, crimson nailed hand on Nancy's hand.

"I know you haven't misunderstood me. A person of your intelligence."

Nancy withdrew her hand. She stood up. The word person was expressed so sweetly insidious. It was like the sting of a needle. It was not until Linda had gone that Nancy realized that the poison of Linda's whole conversation seemed to have made her inarticulate.

A torrent of words came flooding to her lips now. Too late.

Nancy had been so fascinated, hypnotized by the play of light in Linda's peculiarly green eyes that she felt Linda had got the best of her.

Linda had used the word common.

Common . . . common . . . common.

"I'll show that green-eyed cat. I'll—"

Nancy half ran to the Pfister hotel newsstand. She bought a paper and found a secluded spot in the lobby. She turned to "Help Wanted Female."

Solution of Saturday's Puzzle

Phil called Humphrey Charles an old buzzard and more. He told Nancy not to worry, he'd get her another job, perhaps in his father's office.

Nancy watched his lips. In the a dozen times that you hated the drudgery of an office. You said you'd like to be on your own, to prove yourself to yourself. You said you'd like to start a shop. I'll give you the opportunity. I'll back it. You run it."

His eyes were fired with that compelling mischief Nancy had seen before.

"We'll call it Nancy Kelly Incorporated."

"I challenge you—is it a go?"

Three months later Nancy Kelly, alone at midnight, stood in her shop, the shop she had dreamed of. Her shop. Her venture. She had plunged into a new life.

She walked around the room, touched the beautiful things, the chairs, the draperies, wandered in and out of the miniature rooms, in a row down one side of the shop, that were to serve for the fitting and accommodation of customers.

She took a gown from its rack, held it against her. She sat down for a moment before a shining new typewriter in the little office, and toyed with it lovingly.

Democrats Have Chance To Gain House Seats On Nov. 3

By JOHN L. CUTLER
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP)—Two special elections next month will give Democrats a chance to cut Republican control of the House down to a razor-thin margin of one vote.

The elections will be held Nov. 3 in New Jersey and Nov. 10 in California to replace Republican members who have resigned.

Present lineup in the House is 218 Republicans, 214 Democrats, one Independent and the two vacancies. The Democrats wouldn't win control even if they won both the New Jersey and California elections. But they could reduce the GOP margin to the lowest possible point.

GOP control of the Senate has already been reduced to a rock bottom margin. In fact, there are more Democrats (48) in the Senate than there are Republicans (47). The Republicans retain control of Senate chairmanships and other organizational machinery only with the support of Independent Wayne L. Morse (Ore.) and the potential tie-breaking vote of Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The surprise Democratic victory in Wisconsin's Ninth Congressional District last week put new emphasis and importance on the New Jersey and California races.

Democrats believe their best bet lies in the California contest. It is a four-way race for the seat vacated by Republican Norris Poulson when he resigned to become mayor of Los Angeles.

The candidates are Glenard Lipscomb and John Collier, both Republican members of the state Legislature; attorney George L. Arnold, who has the backing of the district Democratic organization; and Irving Markheim, who lost to Poulson in 1952 by a vote of 119,799 to 17,601. Arnold is the son of former Federal Judge Thurman Arnold. Democrats are "very optimistic" that the two Republicans will split the GOP vote down the middle, killing the chances of both. But they do not expect Markheim to pull much support away from Arnold.

The New Jersey contest is in populous Union County for the seat held nearly 10 years by Republican Clifford P. Case.

The candidates are Republican George F. Hetfield and Democrat Harrison A. Williams Jr.

Republicans have carried the district with from 55 to 65 per cent of the popular vote in every election for a long time. They should be able to hold it again unless the congressional race is clouded by the governorship election being held the same day.

Some Democrats think Williams and their governor candidate, Robert B. Meyner, might profit from the fact that Paul L. Troast, Republican candidate for governor, has been mentioned in the recent

Pilots Of Many Nations Taught To Fly U.S. Jets

By J.J. MEEHAN
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 Chaumont Air Base, France (U.P.)—American instructors at this French air base are teaching pilots of many nations how to fly the jets the United States is giving their governments.

Yugoslavs and Italians, Greeks and Portuguese man the cockpits of F-84 Thunderjets to learn their workings. There may be Spaniards later.

It is an odd school of assorted uniforms.

The foreigners are assigned to an American fighter wing using the same F-84 planes given to allies in the mutual defense program.

Some 1,800 Thunderjets have been given to NATO. Others are being given to Tito. It is expected some will be given to Spain.

Ground crews also are trained here where the 48th Fighter Bomber Wing is flying about 90 per cent of the missions for the U.S. 12th Air Force in addition to such other duties as training the foreigners and putting together their own shelter against a second cold winter in the mud.

Norwegians are taking a ground course now. Italians, French, Portuguese and Dutch have taken it already. They know all about the engines. They're trying to learn the speeded-up maintenance techniques that permitted the 492 Squadron to shatter a theatre record last month by flying more than 1607 hours.

Thirteen Yugoslavs have been graduated from the jet school and sent back to Yugoslavia to wear other pilots away from the old German fighters and Russian Yaks that were the only planes Tito once had.

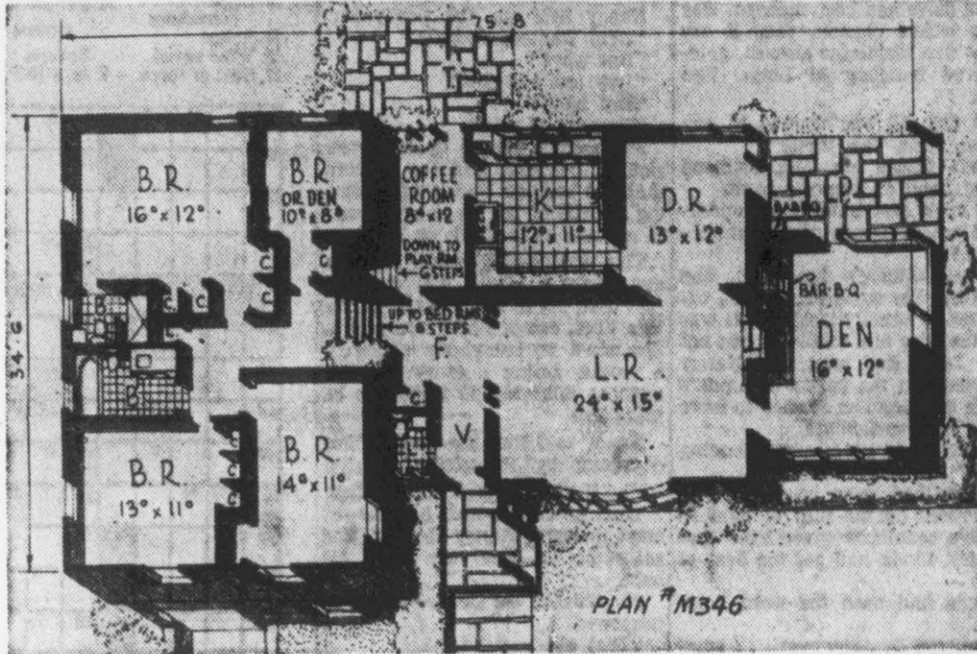

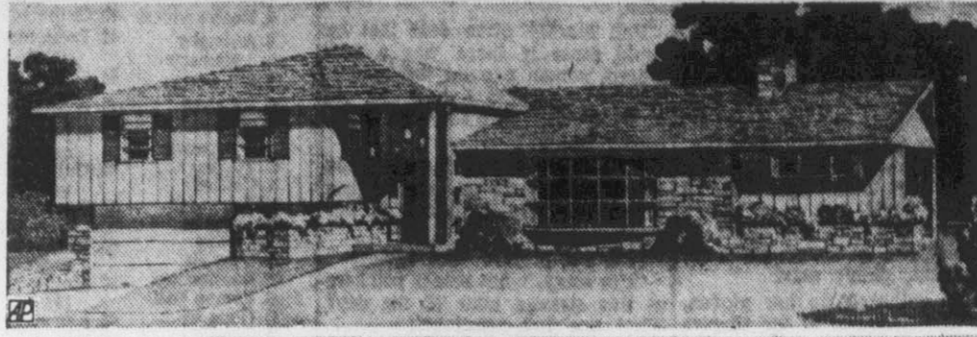

Greeks Best Pupils
 Greeks were the star pupils as far as the American pilots were concerned. They casually drive their F-84's 15 miles an hour faster than they really should.

The American pilots were a little worried not too long ago. Greek and Italian pilots appeared for a "ball" — fighter pilots' party — complete with decorations. The Italians had decorations they got for killing Greeks. The Greeks had their own decorations won shooting down Italians when Mussolini attacked them.

The atmosphere got a little cooler than usual in the mess the pilots had constructed for themselves. But after some wine the former "enemies" had their arms around each other's shoulders.

King Of Hoboes Has Rival For His Title

By CHARLES TAYLOR
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 MIAMI (UP)—A shaggy, grey-bearded "king of the hoboes," undaunted by a challenge of his right to the vagabond "throne," faced a city judge today on vagrancy charges.

Goateed Jeff Davis, 71, was only slightly ruffled at being called "some half-witted bum who has been posing as me for the past three years as far as I'm concerned," said Jeff Davis, of Cincinnati, O.

The Jeff Davis picked up by Miami police Saturday night for intoxication and vagrancy tipped his tattered straw hat with a Confederate flag stuck in the band and declared:

"You can tell that guy in Cincinnati that I'm Jeff Davis, too, and that in the South, I'm king."

The shabby man in wrinkled GI clothes said he was on his way north from Havana, Cuba, where he presided over the national hobo convention last month.

That announcement was too much for the Cincinnati Jeff Davis. He telephoned United Press from Cincinnati to list his "references" establishing him as the real "world's foremost vagabond."

His organization of one-million members is incorporated in Indiana as "Hoboes of America," the Cincinnati Davis said, and it held its 45th annual convention Sept. 4-6 in Cincinnati, not in Havana.

"Hoboes are gents and the bums are pretending to be hoboes," he said. "There's about 20 of those guys going around using my name. They even shave their heads to look like me."

The scraggly goatee of the Miami Davis was a giveaway, he said, because "I never go around with whiskers on me."

But the Davis behind bars here also had credentials. He carried a pouch containing six scrapbooks of newspaper and magazine clippings about himself, including pictures, and "good luck" signatures from all over the nation—France, Belgium, England and Mexico.

He said this was his first time behind bars in his life and he was worried about what his "millions of friends all over the world" would think.

Davis said he held no ill feeling toward the police. "I was wrong," he said. "I got a little drunk when they took me in."

Being in jail is "the kind of life I wouldn't want," Davis said, "but at least I'm getting a good rest." He added that when he got out he was "going to leave this town—fast."

Toss Of A Coin Settled Death

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A toss of a coin decided that Capt. Herman Felhoelter, O.F.M., of Louisville, would be the first Catholic chaplain killed in the Korean War.

A solemn requiem Mass was held here for Captain Felhoelter recently.

He was killed July 16, 1950 after he and a Baptist chaplain tossed a coin to see who would remain behind to tend the wounded along the Kum River. The Franciscan priest lost and the Protestant minister, badly wounded, left with the retreating Allied troops.

Aviation Cadet Selection Team Here On Wednesday

Aviation Cadet Selection Team 304, Pope Air Force Base, Fort Bragg, North Carolina, October 14, 1953. For the first time since World War II ended, high school graduates are now eligible to make application for Air Force flying training, as commissioned officers, directly from civilian status.

The Department of the Air Force, Washington, D.C. recently announced that a college education is no longer an entrance requirement for the Aerial Observer Phase of Aviation Cadet Training program.

An Aviation Cadet Selection Team equipped to interview and process applications for Aviation Cadet Training in the Air Force has been established at Pope Air Force Base, Fort Bragg, N.C.

This team is supplied with all of the most current and factual information on flying training within the Air Force.

For persons applying from civilian status, there has been no change in the Pilot phase of the Aviation Cadet program and two years college training is still required for pilot training.

For information on this program or to check qualifications for Aviation Cadet Training, without being placed under any obligations, the Aviation Cadet Selection Team will visit Greenville, N.C. on October 21. They will be set up at the Postoffice and will be fully equipped for testing and determining qualifications for Aviation Cadet Training.

Goes To Show It Is A Small World

CUSHING, OKLA. (AP)—Four years ago Terry DeVilbess carved his initials on the back of a terrapin and turned him loose at his home here.

He didn't see the turtle again until the other day. The terrapin crawled back to the DeVilbess home.

Probably the oldest wild duck on record is one shot on the Sartain Ranch in California. According to its band, the duck was at least 20 years old.

Make Do

FLOORS SHRINK when the heat comes on, providing a good chance to seal gaps. Clean out the cracks with a knife and fill them with a paste mixture of sawdust, shellac, whiting and color.

'City of Angels' Ringed By Halo

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Los Angeles, the "City of Angels," was ringed by a halo Friday but the Weather Bureau quickly came up with a down-to-earth explanation: "A 22-degree halo was caused by ice crystals of cirrus clouds refracting the sunlight and producing the visible ring."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Prices on the stock exchange receded slightly early today in slow dealings.

The modest decline in prices was attributed to profit-taking. Market experts pointed out that the list was due for some realizing because of recent sharp advances.

Volume also dwindled on the decline. Sales in the first hour totaled only 260,000 shares, compared with 380,000 in the same period last Friday.

Industrial shares as a group led the sell-off. Railroad shares were virtually unchanged as measured by the averages. Utilities showed gains of a few cents.

In the main industrial group, steel shares showed fractional losses. Bethlehem Steel was down 1-2 to 48 3/4 and U. S. Steel at 37 was off 1-8. Automotives held steady.

Men Predominate In Lung Cancer

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UP)—Some 150,000 Americans die of lung cancer each year and more than 80 per cent of the victims are men, a Tulsa, Okla., physician told the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons here today.

Dr. A. G. Reed, who said 10 per cent of all malignant growths are located in the lungs, told delegates to the college's 26th annual convention the incidence of lung cancer apparently is increasing.

This appearance, however, may be due to the increasing age of the population and improvement of diagnostic methods, he said.

Cattlemen Hold Closed Session

DENVER, Colo. (UP)—Policy-making members of the American National Cattlemen's Association meet in closed session with federal officials today to discuss problems of the country's ailing livestock industry.

Association President Sam C. Hyatt of Hyattville, Wyo., said about 100 association members from 23 states would meet with Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse and Harry Reed, livestock director of the Production and Marketing Administration, for discussions on federal drought and marketing relief activities.

Followed Wrong Car 120 Miles

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Mrs. Eric Yopes, Benton Harbor, Mich., followed a car 120 miles from here to Bowling Green, Ky., yesterday thinking her husband was driving it.

The couple were driving separate cars to Sarasota, Fla., when Yopes made a wrong turn off a bridge here. Mrs. Yopes drove straight ahead, following a car she thought was her husband's.

Yopes and police searched for his wife here for about four hours before police at Bowling Green reported she had arrived there.

Hungry Bears Pillage Cottages

OTTAWA, Ont. (UP)—Hungry bears pillaged cottages throughout northern Ontario today in a search for food. One was shot at the city limits here.

Foresters said the bears had smashed their way into 40 cottages on Cache Lake in the past week. At Sioux St. Marie residents were reported shooting the prowling bruns from their windows and 13 bear bounties were paid in one week.

Forest officials blamed the attacks on the long dry spell and a worm invasion which destroyed blueberries and other natural bear foods.

Robbery Attempt Is Being Probed

City detectives are still investigating today the reported robbery attempt at the Folger Bulk Company sometime Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs said today that someone entered the building and attempted to gain entrance into a strong box, but failed. The robbery was reported Saturday morning at 10:20.

NO ACTION

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court today refused to disturb state "fair trade" laws which permit manufacturers to fix retail prices of brand name goods.

OLDEST VET SEES THE FAIR—Walter W. (Uncle Walt) Williams, oldest living Civil War veteran who will be 111 Nov. 14, sees the State Fair of Texas at Dallas with his wife and two of his "kids." Towering behind them is the huge figure of a cowboy that dominates the center of the fair grounds. Standing behind the Franklin, Tex., veteran's wheel chair is son, Bud Williams, 77, of Wheeler, Tex. At right is a daughter, Mrs. Willie Mae Bowles of Houston. Mrs. Williams, 80, the veteran's second wife, is at left. (AP Wirephoto)

Predict Cattle Prices Will Firm

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department said today that cattle prices, which have been on the downgrade for a long time, are expected to show more stability in 1954.

But it said cattle prices, now at the lowest level since 1946, will remain lower relative to other farm prices than in a number of years.

The forecast was issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics as Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) disclosed that "government agencies are exploring markets for meat and live animals abroad" in an effort to take some of the price pressure off the domestic market.

Case said in a letter to his constituents that he has urged Foreign Operations Administrator Harold E. Stassen to study the possibility of shipping some live cattle to Korea as part of the U. S. relief and rehabilitation program.

"Stassen told me... he is ready to do whatever can be done to place some of the current meat supply in overseas channels," Case said. Stassen has already allocated 10-million dollars in foreign aid funds for purchase of meat to be shipped abroad.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics said "cattle production and slaughter are now in balance" and market stability is indicated next year barring widespread drought which would force farmers to dump their cattle on the market.

Predicts Cities Will Be Lighted By Atom Power

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. W. Sterling Cole, chairman of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, believes atomic power plants will be lighting "several" American cities within the next 10 years.

The New York Republican thinks "we ought to have at least one private plant producing atomic power in operation five years from now."

He predicted on the Gannet News radio "Capital News" last night that Congress would amend the Atomic Energy Act at its next session to permit private industry to produce atomic power.

Even The Dead Are Being Taxed

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Even the deceased will have to pay Pennsylvania's new sales tax when it takes effect Sept. 1.

It provides that 50 per cent of the lump sum charged by funeral director is subject to the one per cent levy.

If a vault is provided for the burial, that's a separate item — and its entire cost is subject to the levy.

Sunday Warm In Greenville Area

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 85 degrees during the afternoon. Lowest last night 53, and at 8 a.m. today it was 57. No rain.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 74 degrees. Lowest that night 53, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 55. No rain.

Rape Attempt Is Charged Father

A 35-year-old father was bound over to Pitt County Grand Jury this morning on charges of attempting to rape his two daughters.

James Jones, 35, of near Greenville, was ordered held without bond on the two felony charges.

Originally Jones was charged with the attempted assault of his 13-year-old daughter, but during court testimony this morning it was brought out that Jones had also attempted to rape his 12-year-old daughter and Judge Charles Whedbee ordered the second warrant issued.

The alleged assaults occurred on October 4 and October 10 according to Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning who investigated.

One of the girls said from the stand that she was told by her father to sleep with her younger sister until he came home, that he was leaving the house but would return later.

The girl stated that when she awoke her father was in bed with her and that she was in her father's room. She did not know how she got into his room, she testified.

The second sister took the stand and testified her father allegedly attempted to attack her while she was preparing for bed.

After the preliminary hearing in city recorders court this morning Jones was removed to county jail.

Iowa College Has Riot By Students

AMES, IA. (UP)—About 4,000 shouting students rioted out of control despite police tear gas bombs at Iowa State college early today in a fight for a day off to celebrate a homecoming football victory.

But about 50 police, highway patrolmen and sheriff's officers quieted them shortly before 3 a. m. and nearly all students went back to class today.

Jubilant over Iowa State's 13 to 6 upset of Missouri, students marched on the home of college president James Hilton, blocked a transcontinental highway about two hours and raided a girls' dormitory.

Officers broke up the demonstration with tear gas and clubs and held one student for investigation. Several students said they were hit by clubs but none was injured.

Students went back to classes today and M. D. Hessler, dean of junior college at the school, said "attendance looks about normal."

"The boys didn't mean to be vicious," he said. "These things just happen. They went farther than they should have but they're still fine boys and we're going ahead with pep meetings and games."

China, N. Korea Agree To Talks

TOKYO (UP)—The Chinese and North Korean governments have agreed to meet with the United States Oct. 26 at Panmunjom to discuss arrangements for the Korean peace conference, Radio Peiping said today.

But China and North Korea rejected a U.S. proposal that the Reds drop their controversial proposal to invite "interested" neutrals to the peace conference.

Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai and North Korean Foreign Minister Nam Il have sent notes to Washington through Sweden accepting the Oct. 26 date proposed by the United States, Peiping said.

However, the Red officials said they still reserve the right to discuss at Panmunjom who shall attend the peace conference.

Only the two Communist governments and the United States would attend the Panmunjom meeting, which must decide the place, date and membership of the high-level conference to write a permanent Korean truce.

It was pointed out that in their week-end note to Soviet Russia on a Big Four foreign ministers conference, the United States, Great Britain and France told the Kremlin that all the Big Five powers could be represented in the Korean political conference.

This would mean that in addition to the belligerents, including the western Big Three and their U.N. Allies, Soviet Russia might attend.
