Former Prisoner Of Reds Speaks

Threat Of Communism Is Real, Says Speaker

Vogeler Warns Americans

Robert Vogeler, American business man imprisoned by the communists, last night traced the plan by which the Russians hope to use in mastering the world.

Vogeler was held in a Hungarian jail for months, during which time his captors attempted to extract from him a confession falsely listing him as having attempted acts of treason against the country while serving there. He was later tried and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

He was one of two Americans in the country, and for that reason his imprisonment was ideal for the propaganda which the Russians planned.

Freedom for the American came following months of efforts on the part of friends after the state department had used "No pressure" in attempting to obtain his release.

Vogeler was introduced by Dr. Karl Pace, who had been introduced by Executive Club President Dave Winchard III.

Excerpts from Vogeler's speech are as follows:

"I am one of the few who really know the value of freedom and the many privileges that we receive in this country, and I would like this evening to give you some idea of life in Europe as it was after World War II, and how the communists were able to come to power. It is quite important that we recognize the plan used by communists because this plan is being used successfully against us in this country today, and when we know the nature of these plans, we are able to do something about them.

"After the Revolution in 1917-1918, the communists sent their agents here to prepare for the day when communists would dominate the world. They have been very active; at first under cover, and then when the Soviet Union gained prestige through the United States, the communists were able to work more openly, and we felt that since they were a part of the family of nations, perhaps they were not as vicious as we were led to believe. I think it characteristic of Americans to try to see the good in our fellow men. I do not recommend that we change our ways, but I think that being prone to believe that people are not as bad as they might seem can lead us into difficulties sometimes.

"Following World War II, I had much occasion to observe what happened in communist controlled countries. Some of you, I am sure, heard of mysterious happenings in countries far away; concentration camps, NKVD, secret police, slave labor camps, but we continued to disregard these stories as propaganda and allowed ourselves to be lulled into a false sense of security, not believing that things could be as bad as they seemed, and not seeing the danger to our way of living.

"The (Russians) felt that they needed the assistance of the United States and prepared and planned to obtain sympathy from this great country of ours. There was no sacrifice too great to save the Soviet Union and so we were duped into giving assistance beyond that needed because they were looking toward post war years and saw an opportunity to get machinery, and tools. They knew that if they could lay in great stores of provisions for the post war period it would give them an advantage.

"Food contributed by the people of the United States, who sacrificed to send this aid to communist countries, was withheld and used as a weapon.

"In the communist dominated territories the pattern set up is for a state controlled churches, schools and ballots; anti communists found now is on "trade-not aid."

It was in many respects a different world which heard Secretary of State Marshall, in a commencement address at Harvard University June 5, 1947, propose the plan which immediately took his name.

He called for an outpouring of gifts and loans to restore production and employment in countries threatened with collapse. It was an effort later called by a British chancellor of the exchequer "one of the most—if not the most—generous, magnanimous acts in history."

The Greenville Tobacco Market will end its selling season at the completion of sales next Friday, November 6. Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee reported this morning.

Whedbee urges all farmers to complete their sales next week. He announced that prices on tobacco were higher yesterday (Friday) than they have been in the last two weeks. "Practicable tops is still $70," he said, "with medium and common tobacco selling higher than anytime in previous market history."

The sales supervisor said that Greenville will have its second best season in history in money paid out. Tobacco is averaging $8.19 per hundred pounds higher than last year, and this will be the best season's average ever recorded here, Whedbee explained.

Sales figures, Friday 390,832 pounds brought $215,080.42 averaging $55.03 gross. For the week ending Friday 1,206,558 pounds of tobacco was sold for $66,264.72, a gross average of $55.05. For the season (51 days) Greenville has paid out $38,427,052.83 for 65,207,116 pounds for a gross average of $58.93.

O'Neal's slashed, beaten body was found near a tobacco barn between Greenville and Grimesland on February 8, 1949.

Since they were sentenced to death row in Central Prison in Raleigh while their attorneys, Herman Taylor, Raleigh Negro lawyer, and O. John Rogge, a former assistant U. S. attorney general, have made one appeal after the other to higher courts.

The two attorneys yesterday appeared before Governor Unstead in yesterday's futile appeal.

Nobel Peace Prize Honor Awarded General Marshall

OSLO (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall, symbol of American generosity to a war-torn world, has been awarded the 1953 Nobel peace prize. The 1952 prize—not given out last year—went to Albert Schweitzer, world-famous philosopher, musician and missionary.

The awards were announced last night by the Norwegian Nobel Institute. The five-member selection board, following tradition, assigned no reason for its choices.

The prizes were set up under the will of Alfred Nobel, Swedish inventor of dynamite. He specified that the peace award should go to the candidate "who has worked the most or the best for promoting brotherhood among people, and for the abolition or reduction of the standing armies, and for the establishment and spread of peace congresses."

Marshall, now 72, sprang into world fame as army chief of staff during World War II. As secretary of state he later was instrumental in organizing a 17 billion dollar aid campaign to restore the economies of Europe.

In a statement issued at his winter home in Pinehurst, N. C., where he is convalescing from a flu attack, Marshall said "This award is a great distinction and honor for which I am deeply grateful."

At the White House, President Eisenhower was described as delighted over the honor to Marshall his wartime boss.

Dr. Ralph Bunche, who won the 1950 peace prize for his work as a United Nations mediator in the Palestine war, declared both Marshall and Schweitzer were "excellent choices and highly merit the award." Bunche was the 11th and last previous American to win the prize.

Gen. Marshall held the top post of army chief of staff throughout World War II and later was secretary of state and secretary of defense.

The old soldier went into retirement after the war, but President Truman—said to consider Marshall the greatest living American—called on him to try mediating the China civil war. His year-long attempt to work out a peace failed, and the Chinese Communists won.

During the two-year period when Marshall directed U. S. foreign policy, the gigantic American aid program—the Marshall Plan—was launched.

Falling health forced his resignation as secretary of state in 1949, but he returned again to public life in 1950 to serve as secretary of defense. He held the post one year, during a critical period of the Korean war, before retiring to his Leesburg, Va., home.

Schweitzer, who has been called the "greatest living missionary," has spent 36 years helping the negroes of Africa. For many years he has headed a hospital he established at Lambaréné in French Equatorial Africa.

Besides his renown for humanitarian works, the white-mustached old doctor, the son of a Protestant vicar of an Alsatian village, has established a wide reputation in philosophy, music, medicine and theology.

Marshall Plan's Success Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Marshall Plan for bringing war-shattered Europe back to economic life is passing into history as Gen. George C. Marshall's name goes on the enduring roll of Nobel Peace Prize winners.

Free Europe, despite some disappointments and setbacks, has made a tremendous recovery. Economic aid from the United States has dwindled from a multi-billion dollar flood to a trickle that seems destined soon to dry up altogether. The emphasis now is on "trade-not aid."

Former President Truman submitted the plan to Congress as a 17 billion dollar program to extend to mid-1952. But Congress enacted a short-range authorizing law the following April, and started aid to 19 countries.

The Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) set up to administer the aid, was staffed largely by businessmen and headed by Paul G. Hoffman, an automobile executive.

ECA claimed a telling effect in Europe from the start of the program, and it was credited with a political victory—defeat of the Communists in Italian elections—in the first month of its life.

Its supporters have also called it a wise American policy, blocking any take-over by Communists in major Western European countries and providing the United States with a giant giveaway which drained American resources without achieving world prosperity.

Porter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Porter of Erwin, were present at the hearing yesterday and saw their son for the first time since he was taken into custody by FBI agents last Tuesday in Greenville. Porter's parents were allowed to talk to their son for a few minutes in the commissioner's office following the hearing, but were not allowed to see him in private.

FBI agents told reporters Porter has not been allowed any outside communications except to contact an attorney, since he was placed in the Wilson jail Tuesday.

Before the hearing began yesterday afternoon Commissioner Young asked Porter if he had an attorney, and he replied he had not been allowed to contact one. FBI agents said, however, an attorney had been contacted for Porter three times, but the attorney said he was busy in court and did not know whether he would be able to attend the hearing. The officers added that the attorney did not express much interest in the case. Porter was not represented by counsel at the hearing yesterday.

Following the hearing, Porter asked FBI agents in the presence of reporters about drawing money from his bank account—presumably for the employment of an attorney—but was informed by the agents that his bank account has been attached by the government.

It could not be learned immediately where Porter had a bank account. The FBI did not allow newsmen to take pictures of the witnesses because, they said, the third man is still wanted in the robbery, and pictures might endanger the lives of the witnesses.

Porter, dressed in a yellow sport shirt, brown checked pants, suede shoes and a rust colored sport jacket, appeared calm. He was walked

A verdict was not reached until 7:00 p.m. yesterday, and the term of court was adjourned immediately afterward.

Shouting, Cursing N. Koreans Abuse Explainers

Violent 'No' By Anti-Reds

By JOHN RANDOLPH
PANMUNJOM (AP)—Long-defiant anti-Communist Korean War prisoners marched from their compounds today and with shouts, kicks and screaming curses overwhelmingly told Communist explainers they will not go back to Red rule.

By late afternoon only 20 of 430 North Koreans had elected to go back to the Communists, an Indian spokesman said.

The Koreans came out peacefully to meet Red persuaders after two weeks of negotiations with Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission.

But once before the explainers, most of the POWs were anything but peaceful.

As many as four Indian guards were assigned to each prisoner, but frequently this wasn't enough. One enraged prisoner broke free and hurled a folding chair into the faces of three smartly-uniformed explainers. All were slightly injured.

In at least two instances prisoners kicked over field tables used by the Communists.

Almost all of them screamed, shouted and spat at the Communist agents. They writhed and struggled in the tight grips of Indian soldiers.

"You sons of dogs," the prisoners screamed.

"You traitors!"

"You want to make us dogs of the Russians?"

"You Chinese foreign gooks!"

"We will come back and kill you all!"

Indian guards forced prisoners to listen to the explanations as long as the Reds wanted to talk—or until it became obvious that the issue was decided.

Some interviews lasted only 30 seconds. Others continued for nearly two hours.

Swiss, Swedish, Polish and Czech observers, were present at all interviews.

At one point the U.N. Command protested because Indian guards were using strongarm methods to hold prisoners in the interview tents. The UNC said that while the repatriation commission authorized the use of force to protect the explainers, some prisoners were being dragged back after saying only that they wanted to "go south."

Some individual U.N. protests were ruled out of order by the Indian and NNRC representatives.

There was no immediate comment from Gen. Thimayya. However, he said last week that under his definition guards would not be resorting to force if they pushed or dragged a prisoner. He said the decision to use actual force would have to be made if guards were to seize a prisoner and fellow POWs started to attack.

Red China's Peiping radio acknowledged that the long-delayed explanation program was underway again. But the broadcasts added:

"Obviously now that the Syngman Rhee agents permit the prisoners to attend the explanations, they must have got words from their American masters and have prepared new tactics to wreck the explanation work."

Officials Seek To End Overnight Car Parking

Would Clear City Streets

Cars parked on Greenville streets that make it impossible to sweep the streets will begin receiving courtesy tickets Monday night, according to Street Department Superintendent C. K. Beatty.

One ticket, which will be placed on cars parked downtown between the hours of one to six a.m., states that City Ordinances forbid parking on the streets between those hours as it is necessary to clean the streets.

It continues, that the Police Department has been instructed to place parking violation tickets on all vehicles that are parked there.

The other ticket, which will be placed on cars in the residential area, states that the vehicle has prevented the street sweeper from cleaning the street at this location.

It continues that the street will be cleaned once weekly on a certain morning and the cooperation in parking off the street will be appreciated, or the street will not be cleaned.

Both courtesy tickets are signed by City Manager James S. Hughes. The street department superintendent said that the business area and all connecting highways are swept every morning.

For the residential area, Beatty said that the 3rd Street Section which begins at Washington Street on the east to Nash Street on the west and from 1st Street on the north to 5th Street on the south, will be cleaned on Monday nights.

On Tuesday the sweeper will clean College View section which runs from 5th Street on the south to Willow Street on the north and from Reid Street on the west to Ashe Street on the east.

Wednesday night the sweeper sweeps the 10th Street area which includes all area from 7th Street on the north to 14th Street on the south and from Washington Street on the west to Anderson Street on the east.

The West Greenville area is slated for Thursday night. That area runs from 5th Street on the north to Broad Street on the south and from Albemarle Street on the east to Watagus Street on the west.

Beatty urged all citizens to help by parking their vehicles off the streets on the night the sweeper is slated for their part of town.

The street superintendent asked that all citizens please refrain from piling leaves in the streets, but, instead, pile them in their yards where they could be conveniently be picked up and that the street department will get them from the yard.

He explained that leaves piled in the streets might be washed into the storm sewers before they are picked up by city vehicles.

Greenville Man Identified As One Of Bandits

Hold - Up Hearing Held

The second of two suspects in the $12,398 Garner bank robbery was bound over to federal court following a hearing yesterday afternoon in Wilson.

Cyrus Edward Porter, Jr., 28, of Greenville, failed to post $25,000 bond after the preliminary hearing yesterday before Mrs. Eva Lucas Young, U. S. Commissioner. He was returned to Wilson county jail and is expected to be tried in the federal district court in Raleigh Friday.

It could not be ascertained immediately whether Porter would be held in the Wilson jail until time for his trial or be transferred to another jail.

Only one witness appeared at the hearing yesterday, although five other witnesses to the robbery were present. Mrs. Lois Batchelor, bookkeeper and teller at the Garner bank, identified Porter as one of the three armed men who robbed the bank on August 28.

Porter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Porter of Erwin, were present at the hearing yesterday and saw their son for the first time since he was taken into custody by FBI agents last Tuesday in Greenville. Porter's parents were allowed to talk to their son for a few minutes in the commissioner's office following the hearing, but were not allowed to see him in private.

GI Sentenced
For Assisting
Russian Agents

BERLIN (AP)—A U. S. military court sentenced an American Army private to 15 years at hard labor today after he admitted working with Soviet secret police agents to obtain military information in the U. S. zone of Germany.

The soldier, Robert W. Dorey, 20 of Somerville, Mass., pleaded guilty to violating the Smith Act by affiliating himself with the Russian and East German secret police.

He surrendered himself to Army agents in West Berlin last Aug. 27 after 17 months in the Soviet zone.

In admitting he worked with the Communist police, Dorey said "It wasn't voluntary on my part." He contended the Russians threatened his life and also those of his mother, his two sisters and his two brothers if he failed to "cooperate."

When Hall and Mrs. Heady were arrested, half the $600,000 ransom paid by Robert C. Greenlease, the boy's father, was missing. The missing money still is the object of a widespread search.

Among the witnesses from St. Louis were John Hager, cab driver who tipped police to Hall when he became suspicious of the man's wild drinking and spending spree.

Another witness was Lt. Louis Shoulters, who arrested Hall. Shoulters later resigned after a police board inquiry went into the arrest and delivery of the recovered ransom money. He said his character and reputation as an officer had been assailed.

The jury heard four days of testimony. The indictment pointed out the kidnapped child was not returned unharmed, making the demandant liable to the death penalty. If the two should enter pleas of guilty the judge could request a jury trial to determine whether the maximum penalty should be inflicted.

Much of the testimony before the grand jury was concerned with St. Louis developments in the case.

Mercy Refused Daniels Cousins

Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels of Pitt County will die in the state's gas chamber next Friday unless new court action is undertaken in their behalf.

The Negro cousins, who were convicted in 1949 of one of the most brutal murders in Pitt County's history, lost their appeal for clemency before Governor William B. Umstead yesterday afternoon.

Gov. Umstead, after holding the hearing, said in a statement, "There appears to be nothing involved in these cases which would justify the exercise of executive clemency."

He said, "I have decided not to interfere with the judgment of the court in either case."

The appeal for executive clemency came more than four years after their conviction, after the Daniels cousins' attorneys had carried their case through the state and federal courts of appeal, and three times before the U. S. Supreme Court. The pair of convicted slayers lost their case in each appeal to the higher courts.

It was on June 6, 1949 that Judge Clawson L. Williams pronounced the death sentence for both Bennie and Lloyd Ray Daniels in Pitt County Superior Court after the jury found them guilty of the murder of William Benjamin O'Neal, Greenville taxi driver. The trial in Pitt Superior Court lasted eight days, and included four night sessions. The jury deliberated only 40 minutes before returning the verdict of guilty in the case of each youth.

O'Neal's slashed, beaten body was found near a tobacco barn between Greenville and Grimesland on February 8, 1949.

The sales supervisor said that Greenville will have its second best season in history in money paid out. Tobacco is averaging $8.19 per hundred pounds higher than last year, and this will be the best season's average ever recorded here, Whedbee explained.

Sales figures, Friday 390,832 pounds brought $215,080.42 averaging $55.03 gross. For the week ending Friday 1,206,558 pounds of tobacco was sold for $66,264.72, a gross average of $55.05. For the season (51 days) Greenville has paid out $38,427,052.83 for 65,207,116 pounds for a gross average of $58.93.

O'Neal's slashed, beaten body was found near a tobacco barn between Greenville and Grimesland on February 8, 1949.

Since they were sentenced to death row in Central Prison in Raleigh while their attorneys, Herman Taylor, Raleigh Negro lawyer, and O. John Rogge, a former assistant U. S. attorney general, have made one appeal after the other to higher courts.

Red Heads Don't Cry

By ROY L. FOLEY

Chapter 30

AS SAM sat down across the room from her, Linda studied him. He was good looking, that is if you didn't know him too well. She could see why a girl like Nancy Kelly might be carried away by him. If Sam had less of the pretty movie actor's looks and more guts, he might have—

Linda had thought all that out too many times before, she didn't know why she was thinking it over again. She had Sam come up here to talk business not to analyze him.

"Sam, what do you suppose happened to Spike Adams?"

Sam said he had no idea.

"Suppose he's double-crossed us?"

If Sam thought Spike did, he was hesitant to say so. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Have you seen Nancy Kelly lately?"

Sam said he had.

"Any indication of anything?"

"What do you mean?"

"What do I mean? What do you think I mean, she's the gal that——Sam, don't tell me you're as dumb as you're trying to look like. What's eatin' you, what's got into you?"

"I want to get out of this town, Linda. I think if we're wise we'll both blow. I just have kind of a presentiment, a hunch."

"Then you do think Spike gave us the double cross?"

"I know it."

"You KNOW it? How do you know it?"

"Because I was down in Chicago day before yesterday. I was just hanging around the Union station. You know, thinking I might meet some of the boys and make a connection, and I happened to see Spike."

"Yes, go on."

Linda sprang from the chaise longue like a cat.

"Well, I got a hunch right then. I said to myself, Spike's pulling out on us. So I followed him. He got on a train. The Chief, Spike's gone. That's all there's to it. I wasn't drunk and I wasn't dreamin'. I saw him with my own eyes."

Linda went back to her seat. She frowned down upon it. She steadied her gaze on Sam for half a minute before she spoke. Sam could see that she was thinking, hard. It seemed to him that she was never going to speak. The ticking of the clock seemed inordinate loud in the quiet room.

Then she hissed at him.

"Sam you white-livered coward, why didn't you stop him! Why did you let him get away?"

"Because I could see he— To be honest Linda, I was glad to see him go. He didn't pull that job on old J.C. I just know it, Linda, and I'm glad of it. Spike's out of town and the sooner I get out the better. I think I've got a good chance for a connection in—"

Linda was pacing back and forth across the room now.

"So you don't think he pulled anything?"

"Honest, Linda, I don't."

"That's what you think. Do you think if, if he—"

Sam was gassed into a defense of himself now. He started pacing back and forth with Linda. She screamed at him to sit down.

"I won't sit down. I won't sit down and you have got to listen to me, see? He's double-crossed us, see? Well, what of it. You've been double-crossed before and so have I. I'm through with Spike and I'm through with you. I was gettin' alone fine in this town, see? Then you come along and Spike comes along, and the whole lousy business starts all over again. All that I want is to go my own way. You go yours. Do anything you want to, but leave me out of it."

Linda stopped pacing. She pointed to the door.

"You get out of here. But first let me tell you something, Sam Sykes. I'm going to get out of this town too. But I'm not through with you yet, and I'm not through with certain people in it. We agreed not so long ago to stay out of each other's way. Well, we didn't. This time we will. I've got some plans of my own, and if you try to pull any of your sneaking, yellow tricks on me, I'll—I'll slash you into ribbons. Now get out of here."

Linda stood in the middle of the room, arms folded, her foot beating a determined tattoo on the floor long after Sam Sykes had gone.

After the theater that night, Linda told Phil Stanley that she had a slight headache, that she didn't care to go to a cafe or to the club to dance. She said that she had some champagne in her apartment. Why couldn't they just go up and have a quiet little talk. Maybe they would just have a cup of coffee and some snacks or something. She said Phil mightn't be a little bit of a drinker, but she'd like to show him some of the delicious little things she had made.

"What kind of things?"

"Oh, out of caviar and anchovies and wafers, lots of things."

She assumed a petulant coaxing tone. She said that she hadn't really talked to Phil all by himself for just ages, that she had so much to say.

In the apartment Linda said she thought they wouldn't have coffee after all, that the champagne would be better.

"We'll just have a gay little party all by ourselves. It is such a relief sometimes, not to be with a lot of people."

After the first three or four glasses of champagne, Phil was the person Linda had known him to be at so many of their parties in the

For all he knew, he might have asked Linda to marry him. Phil got into bed.

"Lord, what champagne won't do to a man."

When Phil Stanley awoke around noon the next day the events of the night before came back to him with a rush of mingled feelings, remorse among them.

He remembered the last thing he said before he had gotten into bed.

"Lord, what champagne won't do to a man!"

He still felt the same way about it. If ever he felt like a cad, he felt like one now. Linda Van Vise had made a fool of him. He had gone to Linda's apartment after the theater meaning to tell her that he wasn't going to be able to see her any more, that is, alone like that in her apartment. He had meant to tell her that he was engaged to be married. He knew that she would ask him to whom he was engaged, and he knew that he had promised Nancy Kelly, his little redheaded Nancy who had stirred his blood as no debutante, no girl he had ever met before, had succeeded in doing, that it was to be a secret for awhile.

He had gone to Linda's apartment meaning to tell her that it would be for the last time and he had made a fool of himself.

"Lord, what champagne won't do to a man!"

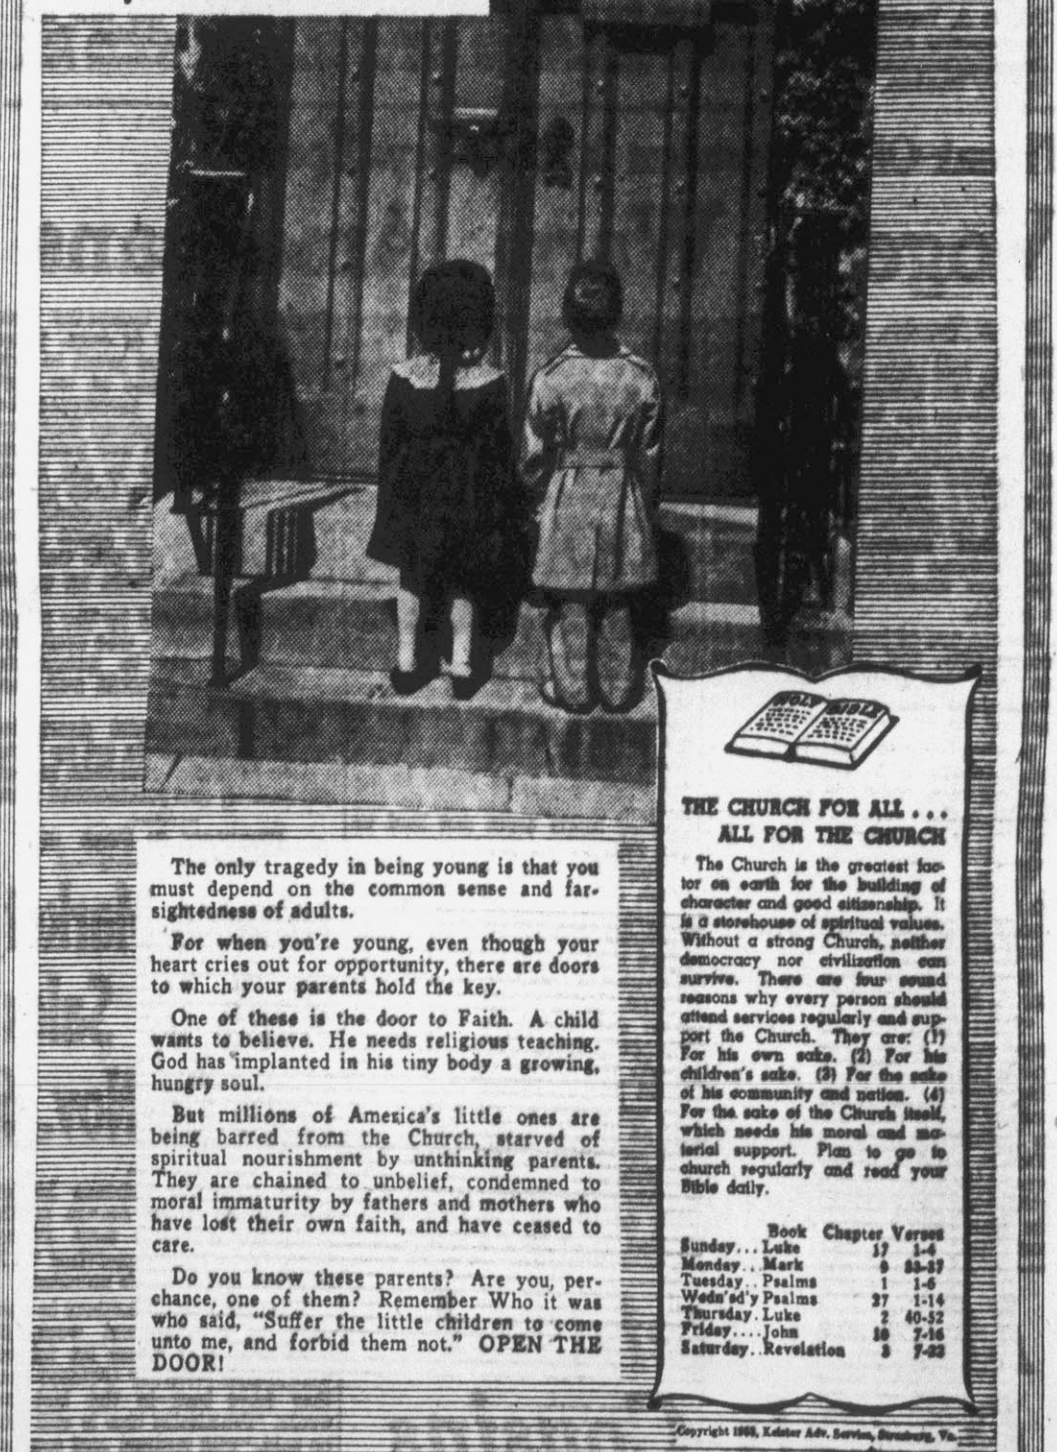

Phil looked at his little finger. The diamond ring he had worn had been tight. There was still a red mark where it had been.

Open the Door!

The only tragedy in being young is that you must depend on the common sense and far-sightedness of adults.

For when you're young, even though your heart cries out for opportunity, there are doors to which your parents hold the key.

One of these is the door to Faith. A child wants to believe. He needs religious teaching. God has implanted in his tiny body a growing, hungry soul.

But millions of America's little ones are being barred from the Church, starved of spiritual nourishment by unthinking parents. They are chained to unbelief, condemned to moral immaturity by fathers and mothers who have lost their own faith, and have ceased to care.

Do you know these parents? Are you, perchance, one of them? Remember Who it was who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not." OPEN THE DOOR!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the sake of his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Libraries Increasing Among Elementary Schools In Pitt

By BOB BOYETTE
Reflector Staff Writer

In 1951 there was only one white elementary school in Pitt County that had a centrally located library, but today, just two years later, there are 11 centrally located libraries in Pitt's 13 elementary schools.

This process of giving elementary students libraries for both enjoyable reading and reference began when Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, county supervisor in charge of libraries, and Miss Cora Paul Bomar, state library advisor made a survey of the county school libraries with the help of Miss Annie Lee Jones, another county school supervisor.

As a result of this survey Mrs. Baker and Miss Bomar made a list of suggestions that could be carried on in each school to obtain a modern centrally located library. Today, only two schools are left without centrally located libraries and those two have processed their books in readiness should space become available.

When Mrs. Baker was asked for a library to give as a model for the work done in getting these centrally located libraries, she chose the Falkland Elementary School library.

Work was begun on Falkland's library in 1951 when a classroom began being changed into today's modern library that includes 1,433 books, six weekly and monthly magazines, three daily newspapers, and a large dictionary plus a bulletin board and a science center. The science center has in its collection, preserved snakes, a stuffed owl, different kinds of rocks, a hornet's nest, and many other items of interest.

Before the work on the library could begin Mrs. Baker had to "sell" several of the teachers the advantages of centrally located library over individual room libraries. She convinced these teachers and since the completion of the new library many favorable comments have been received by the same teachers on how much they enjoy the new library.

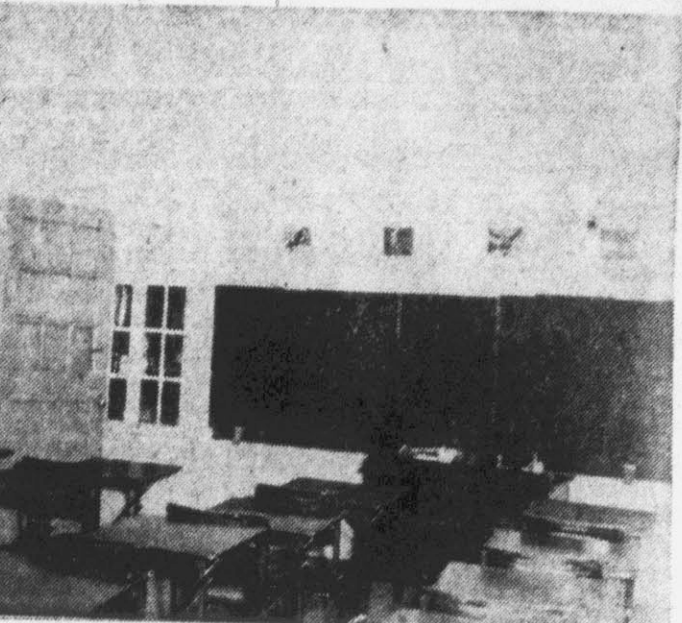

A conference was then held between Mrs. Baker and the teachers at Falkland. At this time she enlisted their aid for the work to get a new central library for the eight teacher school.

Mrs. Baker then conducted a workshop so she could teach the different teachers the different processes necessary for the organization of the new library. These processes in steps were the classification of the books by the Dewey decimal classification; pasting in the book pockets and placing inside date due slips and inserting five cards and stamp book in the pockets; accession (numerical arrangement of books in library) the books; fix author title, and shelf list cards; and classification numbers listed on the outside by use of an electric stylus or pen and white ink and shellocking each book.

The first step in the processing was to get all books together into one large room so ones that were not in shape to be saved or were out of date could be discarded. Books badly worn were mended and books with very fine print or yellowed pages were discarded.

The books together in one room ready for processing to begin in preparation for the new Falkland School library.

along with books beyond the comprehension of the expected reader and books whose contents were definitely out of date.

Next came the processing of the books according to the Dewey Decimal System by Mrs. Lillian Lawrence, the librarian.

Of the five cards put into the pocket of the books, one was used by the librarian and the other by the teacher in the circulation of the books. The other three included the author card, title card, and the shelf list card.

The author cards had to be filled out alphabetically in the same file as the title card in the card catalogue used by the students to obtain their desired book.

After all this other work was done a group began marking classification on the outside and shellocking the books so they could be arranged on the shelves.

An old classroom was taken and O.V. Harold, the principal at Falkland at that time, and Mrs. Baker planned the shelving and the arrangement of the library. Harold and a carpenter built the shelves and library furniture was purchased in the library in the Fall of 1952, one year after work to centrally locate a library in Falkland had begun.

Mrs. Baker, trying to remember all who help in library work at Falkland, listed the following: Mrs. Irene Mayo, Mrs. Inabelle Little, Mrs. Ollie Tyler, Mrs. Mary Mayo, Mrs. Kay Dunn Phillips and Mrs. Ruth Watson, all Falkland teachers who worked after school hours on the library; Mrs. Ruel Tyler, Mrs. David Moore, Mrs. Gus Moore, and many other parents of Falkland students; and Loyce Corbett, Shelby James, Linda Lou Garris, and Patricia Allen, students

Belvoir-Falkland Monogram Club Presents Letters At Dinner

The Belvoir-Falkland High School Monogram Club presented letters to cheerleaders and varsity basketball players in a dinner meeting at Respass Brother's Barbecue House in Greenville last Wednesday night.

Coach Earl Smith of the East Carolina College coaching staff made the principal address to the who helped in the organization and renovation of the room. Shelby Wooten, Janice Manning and Faye Corbett are Falkland students today who help work in the Falkland library.

According to Mrs. Baker, teachers serve as librarians in the school without any extra curricular duties. Of these teachers 16 have no library training with only five having any library training which range from three to 24 college hours. Getting school libraries has been a "pet" project for Mrs. Baker for the last couple of years and she is happy to look around the county today at the progress made in obtaining the modern, centrally located libraries in the elementary schools.

Smith emphasized that participating in sports develops physical and mental skills as well as teaching the participants to get along with one another. He said that sports teach the importance of living by both giving and accepting within a group.

Smith was introduced by Ed

Warren, coach at the Belvoir school. Following the address Coach O.H. Forrest of the Belvoir-Falkland High School, presented letters to students who had won them by participating in basketball and serving as cheerleaders during the past year.

Cheerleaders who were presented letters at the supper were:

Peggy Lewis, Carolyn Dickson, Minnie Anderson, and Joan Parker.

Basketball players receiving letters at the event were: Gene Harris, Gene Bell, Viola Brown, Marlene Clark, Shirley Peaden, Florence Harrell, Vera Bare Windham, Betty Lou Parker, Floyd Harrell, J.D. Nichols, Harvey Strickland, Doug Parker, D.R. Daniels, Willie Peaden, and Dan Wooten.

Bars were presented to students who have received letters in past years. Students receiving this award were: Bobby Bullock, Joyce Tetterton, Joyce Mayo, Shelby Waters, Edna Randolph, Neil Du Free, Mac Du Free, Howard Bullock, Seber Cobb, Billy Ross, Glenn Ross, Burley Clark, and Barbara Dixon.

A Sound Step In Long Range Planning

While the matter of sewerage disposal may not be an extremely pleasant subject for discussion, it is a matter which is becoming increasingly important for cities and towns in Eastern North Carolina.

As the state moves along with its program to prevent stream pollution, municipalities, large and small, which have been contributing to the pollution of streams are going to have to mend their ways.

In the long run, as state regulations on what may be dumped into streams become more rigid, practically every municipality is going to have to build its own sewerage disposal plant.

Greenville's Utilities Commission has been considering that eventually for several months now in working on an ordinance to govern what may be put into the city's sewer system. The ordinance now proposed for adoption by the Commission, sets forth in general terms what will be accepted in the city's sewer system, yet its wording leaves enough flexibility to be a practical ordinance.

The Reflector believes the best interest of the City of Greenville would be served if the proposed ordinance is made a part of the city code by the City Council.

The ordinance will let industries which may contemplate coming to Greenville know exactly what they will be able to dump into the city sewer system, and thus give them definite information with which to work in their planning. At the same time it will give the city and utilities officials a definite pattern for use in planning for the not-too-distant day when a major outlay will be required for a sewerage disposal plant.

Like every other city—large or small—Greenville needs long range planning. The proposed ordinance governing the city's sewer system shows planning with an eye to the future is being done by local officials.

It Makes One's Blood Run Cold

To read of the atrocities against United Nations troops in Korea committed by the North Koreans and Chinese is enough to make one sick. It is, at the same time, sufficient to make one's blood boil with hatred for the barbarians who would commit such inhuman acts.

Such crimes, whether in war or peace are horrible. But it is even more horrible when it is realized that many of the people who are responsible for the atrocities will never be required to pay for these war crimes.

There is no telling just how many American boys and other United Nations soldiers were tortured to death by the communists in Korea. It can only be hoped that most of the 29,815 U. N. troops murdered at the hands of the communists died with less suffering than the many who were tortured.

Disclosure of the Korean atrocities should strike home vividly in the mind of every American. It shows exactly the kind of fiendish enemy the free world is fighting. It points up emphatically there is no room for compromise between freedom and the communist aggressors.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE ART OF PRAYING
Everyone who has ever tried prayer finds that it works. The only people who disbelieve in prayer are the people who have not tried it. It is true that some people have tried prayer for a long time without getting what they believe are results, but there are right ways of praying and wrong ways. It may be that they ought to check up on themselves a bit. Maybe it is not prayer but the prayerer that is at fault.
Prayer is not an instrument put into the hands of man whereby he changes God's mind or compels God to do something in his behalf. Prayer is communion with God after such fashion that God is able to do for us certain things that He always wants to do. God is always much more eager to give than we are to receive. God gives to us what we are capable of receiving and willing to take.
Of this, however, the Bible assures us—God always wants our prayers to be for the great and apparently impossible things. He is grieved when we offer up cautious, qualified little prayers. He wants us to go all out, so far as faith is concerned. Yet we may pray for guidance in the smallest things of life. Every hair of our heads is numbered; not a sparrow falls but God notes the circumstance.
Prayer touches every area of life.

Test For Public Indignation

By RAY TUCKER
Ray Tucker will resume his regular Saturday question-and-answer column when he concludes his current series of articles next week.
MIAMI—Florida may soon stage the first major test of the depth and permanence of public indignation over Kefauver disclosures of an alliance between politicians and the gambling, racketeering underworld of Miami Beach. It was here that the Tennessee Senator and surprisingly strong candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination last year put on one of his first national scandal shows.
Florida reacted righteously and promptly to the expose of crooked and police-protected gambling at the race tracks, the dog tracks and nightclubs, and the politicians' revenue from these illicit operations. Resisting assertions that it was these unholiest attractions which lured tourists from more narrow-minded communities, the voters threw out the faction headed by former Governor Fuller Warren. He had denounced Kefauver as a "Tennessee hillbilly, carpet-bagger and publicity seeker." Warren backed out of facing Kefauver in a television discussion of crime and politics in Florida.
Stirred by the Kefauver revelations, the people elected young, promising and reforming Dan McCarty as Governor. He attributed his victory to Kefauver's help, and started immediately to clean house. In the same election, Florida gave President Eisenhower a 100,000 majority, apparently wanting a change at Washington as well as at Tallahassee.
JOHNS NOW GOVERNOR—When McCarty died several weeks ago, he was succeeded by Charles E. Johns. Along with about a dozen other states, Florida does not elect a Lieutenant Governor. So, Johns, as president pro tem of the Senate, took over. He set about immediately to undo McCarty's reforms. He plans to seek the Governorship in his own right at next year's special election.
Johns is a member of the "dog track crowd," and allegedly favors a "free beach." He is demanding that McCarty's admittedly excellent appointees, especially those in law enforcement posts, take a written loyalty oath to him, or resign. He appears determined to liquidate his predecessor's attempted cleanup.
Surprisingly, certain business interests agree with the contention that northern and middle western tourists will turn to California, the Gulf States off the Southwest, if Miami and its environs become too blue-nosed. As former Governor Warren used to say, "It's the holier-than-thou visitors here on a spree, not our own people, who patronize the gambling joints and give Florida a bad name." He didn't seem to mind the "bad name" so long as his state got the profits therefrom.

MAY CONSIDER ASSET—Although the McCarty faction has not formulated its strategy, it will oppose Johns' election bid, probably with John McCarty, Dan's brother, as their candidate. The outcome is doubtful, especially if a general economic recession should curtail Florida's revenue from well-heeled tourists, as well as the aged pensioners and coupon-clippers who have squatted in the Sunshine State. The native and immigrant voters may agree with Johns that a wide-open beach is a definite asset.

The contest will also be complicated by the entrance of J. Bralley Odum in the race. Odum became a national figure when he introduced television talkshows into American politics long before Tom Dewey and Ike Eisenhower thought of the trick. Odum has won a large audience throughout the state, and was defeated by McCarty in the primary by only 47,000 votes. Odum could squeeze through, if the un-Kefauverized voters take a Pontius Pilate attitude toward the reformers and the easy-going politicians. It is hard to maintain a fanatical spirit in Florida's balmy atmosphere. Odum is regarded as an honest and public-spirited citizen.

NORTHERN ELECTIONS—It is true that New York City and New Jersey, in their Mayoralty and gubernatorial elections respectively, next week, will anticipate Florida by twelve months in showing the permanent value of the Kefauver crusade against the tie-up of criminals and politicians.

Rudolph Halley, the Kefauver Committee's counsel and nemesis of ex-Mayor William O'Dwyer, will try to capitalize on his television laurels by capturing City Hall. Jersey's gambling and waterfront trades may operate against the Republicans in that state's election.

But so many other factors figure in these northern scraps that the Kefauver scandals are a side issue. In Florida, due to the death of McCarty and the accession of Johns, almost the only political question is whether the voters want a clean or wide-open beach, a pro-Kefauver or an anti-Kefauver community!

Somebody Told Me

Why TV Tower Work Delayed

Everybody in this section of the country who is TV-minded is asking this question: What's the delay on the tower for Greenville's TV station? Here's the answer: Two weeks ago the first 120 feet of the 800-foot tower was loaded in a rail car and ready to clear the Chicago freight yards. At this point the first 550 feet of tower in another city fell. Since this was constructed by the same company that built Greenville's, Hartwell Campbell immediately flew to take a look at the fallen tower. As a result, shipment was stopped on Greenville's tower until an investigation could be made.
The J. W. Hunt Company, an internationally known inspection service, was employed by WNTC-TV to check for defects in the Greenville tower. Consulting engineers were called in to check the design.
The Hunt Company reported in detail on the tower, and the sad news was this: X-rays revealed defective welding. The welds did not adequately penetrate the steel. In design, there were no major defects.

Naturally, WNTC rejected the first section of the tower. No one could question that decision. To take a chance with a $40,000 antenna, weighing four tons, would be pure folly. The danger involved in equipment and building would be minor to the human life that would be endangered.

The next question: Stick with the present company, or change? To change would mean moving down on a schedule, causing three to six months delay. The answer is logical: Continue with the same company, but keep the Hunt Company employed to make a constant check on the durability of the construction.

Campbell promptly notified the Hunt Company: "Don't let my anxiety and haste for the tower influence your inspections of the tower." Just how anxious are WNTC officials? The staff is already on the payroll and expenses go on. For every month that WNTC stays off the air it will cost them an estimated $4,000.

Chief Engineer Hank Tribble said this week: "We are ready to go on the air when the tower is erected. The inside equipment is ready." The photograph, C. L. Perkins, is making slides for station identifications. Programs are being lined up at a very gratifying pace, Campbell says. Most recent additions are the Milton Berle show, the J. S. Steel hour, and Danny Thomas. Contracts have been signed with all four networks: CBS, NBC, ABC and DuMont.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

CORRECTING THE JAYPEE SYSTEM

(Hertford County Herald)
The antiquated justice of the peace system in North Carolina seems at long last to be getting some needed attention from several sources, lately—from press, lawyers, and some of the Jaypees themselves. Here in Hertford County last week there came a forward-looking move in the direction of a better Jaypee system. At the Superior Court session, the county Grand Jury formally requested the county commissioners to look into getting the local justices off the ubiquitous fee system and under some type of salary system.

The Hertford grand jury jumped to the heart of the problem with that one suggestion. The fee system undoubtedly is the greatest defect of our Jaypee justice. It, coupled with the fact there are five times too many justices to go around. Putting up a salary system—or something more closely resembling such a setup—would automatically cut down on the number, and would almost certainly make the folks who would select the justices look for the better qualified men to fill the jobs.

There are other problems in Jaypee justice other than the fact that the fee system pays the freight, and that there are no qualifications for the justiceships; but the changing of these two characteristics—the changing over to a type of salary basis—would, in a short time correct many of the abuses now practiced by all too many justices. Control of the purse string is the most effective way to re-charge the needed Jaypee system with a modern look and a modern effectiveness.

The Hertford County commissioners should immediately look into putting into effect such a study, and wield all its influence through proper channels in state government to get needed reforms in the Jaypee system. From the look of events in the past few weeks, the body will have plenty of allies, and be received with sympathy and action, in any such attempt.

They Say No Politics Involved In Highway Patrol Shift

By LYNN NISBET

SHUFFLE — The highway patrol top command has been shuffled again. Those responsible for the shuffling insist that there is no politics involved, that the changes are being made entirely for the good of the service. Similar expressions were heard when the prison department fruit basket was turned over and in numerous other instances of switches in State employed personnel at departmental top and second levels.

Granting that the officials making the changes are sincere in belief that they are for the best interests of the service, most folks around Capitol Square snort at the claim of no politics. Majority opinion hereabouts seems to be that it is not only politics, but it is largely personal politics.

HISTORY — The highway patrol was organized a quarter century ago. Many legislators at the time opposed the idea because they feared it was creation of a State police. The bills were put through the General Assembly largely upon the plea that the patrol was necessary to protect the State's capital investment in highways. It was argued that the primary function was to prevent overloading and excessive speed, not in the interest of traffic safety, but to protect the roads from illegal destruction.

As traffic increased the property protection angle was retained, but more and more emphasis was put upon personal safety of motorists. In course of time there developed more comprehensive use of the patrol in matters not directly related to highways—raids on gambling games, aid to sheriffs in apprehending criminals, policing manufacturing areas during labor troubles, and similar projects. Popular disapproval of such uses has led to curtailment and the patrol is confining its activities more to enforcing traffic laws, although frequently called upon for services of doubtful propriety under the statutes.

POLITICAL — As the patrol expanded in size—being now practically ten times its original strength—and its functions broadened to include services not contemplated in the first act, its potential value in political campaigns was recognized.

Rumors have been current in every State election campaign since 1930 of political activities on part of the patrol. These rumors have never been quite substantiated, but there has been enough evidence to justify retention question marks.

Meanwhile the patrol was transferred from the Revenue Department to the Department of Motor Vehicles, which was established in 1941. For several years the tail has wagged the dog and the highway patrol to all intents and purposes is synonymous with the department, although technically it is one of several divisions. And, wittingly or willingly or otherwise it is in politics, because in the minds of many people the commander of the patrol is a more desirable and important office than commissioner of motor vehicles. Along the line, the title of the commander had been progressively changed from captain to major to colonel.

It is generally conceded, although it cannot be proved, that Governor Broughton named Bodie Ward commissioner Governor Cherry named Landon Rosser, Governor Scott named L.R. Fisher and Governor Unstead Ed Scheidt as successive commissioners largely because of their qualifications for administering highway patrol activities.

PERSONAL — The idea is further supported by the fact that each of these commissioners, with approval if not at suggestion of the Governor, appointed a patrol commander who was in sympathy with his personal program. Exception to that rule might have been the appointment of C.R. (Tony) Tolar by Commissioner Rosser at specific request of Governor Scott, who made the request at the instance of ex-Governor and then Senator J.M. Broughton. For reasons not necessary to review here, Tolar was asked to resign after about a year on the job.

CAREER — Commissioner Rosser then applied a combination of personal choice and promotion of a career man and named James R. Smith, an original patrolman who had moved up to command of a troop with title of captain. Then in a further combination of personal and political selection Governor Scott fired Commissioner Rosser and named L.R. Fisher to head the department. Fisher also was an original patrolman who had left command of a troop to join the army. Soon after taking over the top post he demoted Col. Smith, created a new job for him, and promoted another career patrolman, Capt. W.B. Lentz, to the patrol command with title of colonel.

Governor Unstead some three months ago replaced Commissioner Fisher with Ed Scheidt, a long time FBI man with an ex-

Tax Reform Needs

By ELMER ROESSNER

Weekly magazines, Washington newsletters and Wall Street tip sheets are brim full these days with advice on what to do before the end of the year to reduce tax liabilities.

Accelerate your deductible expenses—postpone income—take capital losses before New Year's Eve—check with your tax accountant before you take a gain—pay bills for deductible charges—all these and many other steps are urged upon the taxpayer.

One publication is urging farmers to stock up on feed, seed and fertilizer before the end of the year to obtain deductions for their cost. Good advice—unless feed, seed and fertilizer prices drop sharply next year. Another is advising readers to delay sales until 1954 so as to postpone commissions. Too bad the Christmas shopping season can't be postponed until January!

If you are going to get married anyhow, you might as well do it before the end of the year and pick up a few dollars in tax savings. But the publications are handling that advice rather gingerly. It might backfire. There's many a little mix who can make Uncle Sam look like a piker when it comes to spending somebody else's money.

Every year end sees a flow of these "hundred ways of saving on taxes without risking jail," but this year there's a flood because of scheduled changes in tax rates.

Personal income tax rates drop around 10 per cent next January 1 and the excess-profits tax dies the same day. On April 1, the corporate tax rate drops from 52 to 47 per cent—perhaps. There are a lot of reasons for expecting Congress to peg the new rate at 50 per cent. On the same day, a number of excise taxes are scheduled to lessen, but there's even more uncertainty there. At the moment, sentiment seems to favor dropping present excises on everything except whisky and tobacco, and imposing a new excise tax on everything except food at the manufacturers' level. However, if retailers lobby and howl enough, this hidden sales tax idea may be killed.

Meanwhile, the business madness resulting from the scurrying and scampering to find tax loopholes continues. People are buying things they don't want to buy, selling things they don't want to sell and doing other strange things.

Every time someone finds a loophole through which to snare a tax savings, the tax burden falls a little heavier on you and me. Both parties have promised a sweeping common-sense reform of the tax laws, and Congress and the Treasury have been working on such projects for at least ten years. One of these days Congress may turn away from shoring up and patching, loophole plugging and loophole boring, and try to enact a sensible tax system.

SPORTSMEN SUPPORT $10 BILLION INDUSTRY

The fall hunting season, now under way in most states, supports a sizeable business—a fact not generally appreciated because both manufacturing and sales are spread over the entire country.

One estimate puts sportsmen's spending at $10 billion a year. The total is divided: 11.2 per cent for guns and accessories; 10.4 per cent for fishing equipment; 19.6 per cent for knives, cameras, tents and miscellaneous equipment; 10.4 per cent for meals and lodgings on trips; 6.9 per cent for special clothing; 6.2 per cent for dogs and 16.6 per cent for transportation.

1 OF EVERY 5 DOLLARS GOES ON PERSONAL DEBT

Of every $5 of personal income after taxes, $1 goes for paying off debt and interest, according to an analysis of government figures by the Institute of Life Insurance. This is about 15 per cent greater than the ratio in 1939.

The $5—there were $30.1 billion of them in 1952—pay interest and periodic payments on homes and autos, as well as installments on durables and loans.

Facts From The Oddity Almanac

NEW YORK (AP) — The Oddity Almanac—facts and figures with which a husband can impress his wife.

Little girls not only are nicer than little boys. . . . Of the gals who do bump up against the law, 20 per cent are now arrested for drunkenness. . . . The biggest increase in feminine criminals is among teen-agers. . . .

Had your wife's head under a microscope lately? . . . Some beauty salons now are using microscopes to see which one of the seven basic hair types a lady customer's tresses fall under. . . . The technique is supposed to help determine the right kind of permanent wave to give her. . . . Barber shops haven't gone for it much. . . . Few men would let anybody look at their head through a microscope. . . . But they wouldn't object to a telescope. . . .

It is estimated there are 314,000 blind people in the U.S., of whom 78,000 are employable but can't find work. . . . Some 60,000 more people will lose their sight in the next 10 years, including some, of course, who could give a job to a blind man or woman now if they chose to. . . . Could you yourself use a seeing-eye conscience? . . .

Toy manufacturers say Santa Claus will tote 450 million dollars worth of playthings down the nation's chimneys this Christmas Eve. . . . And the pessimists figure the kids will have all but about 10 dollars worth of this loot bestowed by New Year's Day. . . .

The late Wilson Mizner, Broadway's fabulous wisecracker, also was one of the most successful men in history with the ladies. . . . He married a widow reported to be worth $7,500,000, says his biographer, Alva Johnston, but the penniless jester borrowed 10 thousand dollars from the lady 24 hours after first meeting her. . . . Even Casanova didn't work that fast. . . .

You can't wear amusing hats in the daytime," says Helene Ortel, famous French milliner. . . . Maybe not, but $0 million American women are making a game try to prove she's wrong. . . . Nothing improves the average woman's hat like an eclipse. . . .

Almanac science department: Have you ever thought of cutting down your electricity bills by illuminating your home with lightning bugs? . . . Well, don't bother. It would take 1,000 to 2,000 fireflies to match the light from a candle, and 137,000 to equal a single 60-watt incandescent bulb. . . . It is beginning to look more and more as if Thomas A. Edison was on the right track. . . .

Do you have a kid in high school? . . . Then teach him yourself how to spell. . . . An insurance company poll of employees reported high school graduates of today are more alert, self-confident and mature than those of 20 years ago. . . . But their "spelling is awful." . . . Some can't even spell money until they go to college and have to write home for it. . . .

Fishing trips cause trouble in some marriages. . . . If your wife objects to your going fishing, tell her what a swell sport Cleopatra was. . . . She was not only built a luxurious floating palace to take Mark Antony on angling journeys up the Nile River—she even hired divers to go down and put fish on his hook. . . .

No wonder she became famous. . . . But where can man find a girl like that today?

Joint Hostesses Entertain Wesley Philathea Class

The Wesley Philathea Class met Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock with Mrs. W. G. Ward. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. J. B. Smith, Mrs. Alice Keel, Mrs. J. L. Russell and Mrs. K. W. Cobb. Thirty-three members were present with one visitor. The meeting was opened with a devotion led by Mrs. E. L. Willard, which was helpful and inspirational. "Faith Does Work" was the topic of her devotion. How is man saved? How can God transform a human being? How can I reform when so set in my ways? When is it important to be religious? Does religion work? These and others were some of the questions raised for thought.

"The world wants proof that faith in Christ does what it professes to do. The blind man was made to see. How? He did not know but he did know that once he was blind, now he could see."

The guest for the evening, Miss Leonor E. Padilla of Honduras, C. A., sang and played her guitar and also gave a short talk about her country.

After a short business meeting the hostesses served delicious refreshments and the meeting was adjourned.

Junior Red Cross Opens Enrollment Drive Nov. 2

Pitt County's young people will have the opportunity of becoming a part of the world's largest youth organization when the American Junior Red Cross begins its annual enrollment for service in the local schools Monday.

The drive, which will run from Monday until November 15, according to Junior Red Cross Chairman Mrs. Howard Gradis, is designed to permit students from grade school through high school to enroll for service in an organization which stands as a potent force for good around the world.

As in the past, Mrs. Gradis said, all students will be encouraged to earn their enrollment fees, amounting to 50 cents to each elementary classroom and $1 for each group of 100 high school students. Funds totaling more than the enrollment fees may be contributed to the National Children's Fund, which finances worthwhile services for children throughout American and the rest of the world, or will be used for projects here in Pitt County.

During the past year local county Red Cross members have filled 200 gift boxes for children overseas, and have participated in the international art program. There is an exhibit at the Sheppard Memorial Library now of paintings made by school children throughout the world.

These two projects were under the supervision of local school and chapter officials who leadership makes Junior Red Cross possible.

"By enrolling in this humanitarian program," Mrs. Gradis said, "youngsters are not only taking part in worthwhile programs of international significance today but are also preparing themselves to be good citizens in their communities and active leaders in Red Cross chapters tomorrow."

ROCKY MOUNT—Capitalizing on two lucky breaks in the second half, the Rocky Mount Blackbirds pushed across a 26-6 victory over the Greenville Phantoms last night. The game was played in Rocky Mount's Municipal Stadium.

A 40-yard return of a blocked kick and the recovery of a Greenville fumble on the 13-yard line broke the backs of the G-men and broke the game wide-open for the Blackbirds.

First Half
For the entire first quarter the two squads battled in a scoreless deadlock. Soon after the second period began, however, the Blackbirds began their first touchdown march. The drive started on the Greenville 40 after a short kick.

Three plays got the Blackbirds a first down at the 31 where Ray Harper set up the scoring play with a sweep to the 19. It was from that point that fullback Johnny Warren blasted over tackle into the pay-off area. Smokey Lancaster converted for the 7-0 lead.

With four minutes remaining in the half, quarterback Bobby Patterson set up Rocky Mount's second TD with a 32-yard aerial to Harper. The pass was over the head of defensive halfback Bobby Langston but Harper stepped out of bounds immediately after making the catch.

With a first down at that point, Patterson calmly stepped back and eyed his field before hitting Lancaster with the touchdown pass. Lancaster, an end, converted again and the Blackbirds had their 14-0 half-time lead.

Second Half
Midway the third period the Phantoms got together on their only pay-off performance.

They took possession of the ball on their own 21 after stopping a Rocky Mount drive. Joe Taft, Mitchell Johnson, Bob Howell, and James Speight took turns carrying the ball until it had been moved to the 33. From that point, quarterback George Sideris passed to Speight on a perfect collaboration that moved the ball to the Rocky Mount 38, a gain of 29 yards.

Johnson and Sideris picked up a first down at the 26 where Sideris pulled the most outstanding play of the night. He sent Howell wide to the right as if on a pitchout. Rocky Mount's defense fell for the trick but just as Howell got to the line of scrimmage he rifled a pass to end Bill Taft who leaped into the end zone for the six points. The extra point attempt failed.

Shortly after the opening of the final period Rocky Mount's Lee Parker recovered a fumble on the G-men's 13 yard line. In two starts at the line Patterson had the score. Sam Winchester blocked the conversion attempt but the Blackbirds still had a 20-6 margin.

The final score of the evening came when Bo Gupion picked up a kick blocked by Smokey Lancaster and potted 40 yards for the score. The extra point was wide but it was of little consequence because the Blackbirds had their final margin of 26-6.

After the resulting kickoff the Phantoms moved the ball freely but time ran out on them while they were on the Rocky Mount nine. The drive had started on the Greenville 14.

Kittrell Pleased
Coach Bill Kittrell of the Phantoms expressed pleasure at the performance of the Greenville team which was playing without five of its members.

On defense, the Phantoms coaches singled several points out for praise. Guard Bill Arnold, playing middle line-backer in the Phantom defensive arrangement, was credited with 19 tackles in the night's most outstanding single performance.

Tom Whitaker, Sam Winchester, Tom Smith, Jerry Phillips, Dixie Hobgood, and Bobby Nunn also got their share of the tackles. On offense, halfback Mitchell Johnson came into his own for the first time this year with 40 yards gained in nine carries. Speight had 38 yards in six carries. Bob Howell and Joe Taft ran for net gains of 28 and 18 yards, respectively.

Howell was the leading individual gainer on total offense for the night with 28 yards rushing and 45 yards passing for total of 73 yards. He completed three out of four passing attempts.

Coach Kittrell had high praise for end Bill Taft who made his first varsity start. Taft caught the touchdown pass and several short passes.

Maryland Meets Birds In ACC's Top Contest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Atlantic Coast Conference football spotlight focused on College Park, Md., today.

Maryland was host to South Carolina in the conference game of the day. Another conference tussle sent Wake Forest to Clemson.

Non-conference engagements found Tennessee at North Carolina, Duke at Virginia in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, and North Carolina State entertaining William and Mary of the Southern Conference.

The Terp-Gamecock battle offered the most chips on the line. Undeclared Maryland had its national second-ranking to protect. A victory over South Carolina would move the Terrapins into a tie with Duke for first place in the conference standings and probably preserve Maryland's lofty national rating.

A South Carolina victory would upset Maryland's little red wagon for sure. Defeated Maryland would see its national and conference standings plummet and its Orange Bowl prospects endangered.

The passing of quarterback Johnny Gramling topped South Carolina's arsenal. The senior signal caller led conference passing with 31 completions in 56 attempts for 501 yards and three touchdowns. His efforts helped give South Carolina the conference lead in passing offense with 41 completions out of 86 attempts for a game average of 126.2 yards.

The Gamecocks also were fifth in the nation's defense with 183.4 yards. Maryland was seventh. Offsetting South Carolina's passing and defense were Maryland's wizardry of quarterback Bernie Faloney, no slouch as a passer. Faloney had completed 22 of 47 for four touchdowns.

Duke found itself a heavy favorite over Virginia. The Cavaliers, newest members of the ACC, had only one victory in five tries. Their late entry into the new loop made the Cavaliers ineligible for a place in the standings. They hoped for a good showing in their informal debut but the once-beaten Blue Devils apparently packed too much power.

Tennessee's Vols were one-touchdown favorites over North Carolina. The visitors aimed to improve their 2-1 record by repeating their 1952 victory over the Tar Heels. Tennessee swamped North Carolina, 41-14 last year. North Carolina's improved squad had a Homecoming Day crowd of about 25,000 cheering for a victory that would give the Tar Heels their best season in the past four years.

Clemson was figured to conform to the adage: "As Don King goes, so go the Tigers." King, back in shape after a knee injury, was the Tigers' main hope for their first conference victory at the expense of Wake Forest. Coach Tom Rogers primed his Deacons to fight off their second-half fading tendencies and even their conference record at 2-2.

William and Mary, beaten only once in five starts, was chosen to spoil the Wolfpack's Homecoming Day celebration. The Indians counted on the passing of Charlie Bunner and the rushing of Bill Bowman. State banked on Eddie West's passing and Don Langston's running to produce its second victory in six starts.

Davis, Araujo Share 'Lemon' Crown For Year

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP) — Teddy (Red Top) Davis and George Araujo today are co-holders of the "lemon" championship for 1953. As time is fast running out, it looks like they will keep the title.

The lightweight 10-rounder between Davis, 130½, of Hartford, Conn., and Araujo, 133½, of Providence, R. I., could have been worse if Referee Ruby Goldstein hadn't kept warning the boys to "come on and fight."

Davis won the unanimous decision from the referee and Judges Bert Grant and Joe Eppy. Goldstein had it 6-3-1 and both judges 6-4. The AP card was 6-3-1.

While an estimated 3,000, paying $7,000, boomed and howled, Goldstein kept telling the fighters, "Come on. You're lousing up the Garden."

Davis always was moving in while Araujo, a newlywed who was knocked out by lightweight champ Jimmy Carter in his last Garden appearance, was running away. The so-called New England lightweight title, held by Davis, was at stake.

"I tried," said Araujo. "It's the first time I ever got a warning. I felt all right but I had no strength. When you don't have it you just don't have it."

Bob Christenberry, chairman of New York State Athletic Commission, said he "didn't like the fight" but was sure Goldstein did a good job. "I'm more of the blood and thunder element."

Ruby explained, "I kept telling them to keep punching, stop loafing and give the customers a break."

Davis said he "felt awful" about the warnings but "tried to get close enough to make a fight of it."

Araujo was penalized the sixth round for a low blow and tired badly in the last stages. He was 9 to 5 favorite yesterday but the price went down to even money or 6 to 5 Davis before the bout.

Panoramas Out In GM Football TV

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors isn't going to try to give the nation any more television panoramas of football. It tried once. That was enough.

Fans didn't like the bits and pieces they got of four different games a week ago. They told GM so in a ratio of 7-to-1.

So another scheduled panorama for Nov. 7 is out. Instead, GM and NBC have decided, with NCAA approval, to televise three games regionally and a fourth locally.

Today's nationwide telecast of the Minnesota-Pittsburgh game at Minneapolis won't be affected at all. Neither will any others originally slated for full treatment.

Instead of next Saturday's panorama, GM and NBC announced the lineup:

The Kansas-Kansas State game at Lawrence, Kans., starting at 1:45 p. m. EST, will be seen in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, Nebraska, Utah, Arizona, and Washington, D. C.

Florida and Georgia, starting at 2:15 p. m. EST, for Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and Washington, D. C.

Evansville, Ind., starting at 7:15 p. m. EST, will be seen over all other NBC-TV stations with one exception.

That is the South Carolina-North Carolina game starting at 1:45 p. m. EST. It will be televised locally in Columbia, S. C., site of the game.

The four games on the regional and local schedule are the same four that would have been seen on the panorama arrangement. Limited cable facilities prevent wider coverage of the South Carolina game.

GM requested the change from panorama when its offices were swamped with 2,500 letters of protest.

Pirates Meet Appalachian In Final Home Game Tonight

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor
The battle lines were drawn yesterday afternoon as East Carolina College's undefeated Pirates and Appalachian's upset-happy Mountaineers wound up preparations for their game tonight in College Stadium.

The Pirates and the Mountaineers are meeting in East Carolina's final home game of the season. East Carolina goes into the game with a 6-0 season's record while Appalachian goes in with a 4-2 mark. The Pirates, already North State Conference champions regardless of the outcome of the game, are favored by two touchdowns.

Pirates Favored
The role of favorite is largely one that has been worked out on paper—something that has been tradition in North State play not to mean very much. The Mountaineers came out an underdog role last week to bounce Emory and Henry 14-6 and did it by stalling on the efforts of one man, halfback Shirley Gabriel.

Gabriel is the leading scorer in the North State Conference with 62 points in six games. He accounted for all of Appalachian's scoring against Emory and Henry while rolling up a personal total of 224 yards by rushing and passing. Almost all of Gabriel's scoring has come via the touchdown route. He has kicked only two extra points and those two came last week.

Gabriel's closest rival for the scoring honors is big Bobby Hodges, East Carolina's All-State end candidate. The big senior from Kingston goes into his final home game as a Pirate with 54 points, all of them as a result of passes.

Hodges' pass receiving this year has been one of the most outstanding points in a consistently strong East Carolina attack. He has been the favorite target of quarterback Dick Cherry who has tossed 12 touchdown passes thus far this year.

Both teams will enter the game in reasonably good physical shape. None of the Pirates will be out because of injuries and only one of the Mountaineers is expected to miss the game. The injured Mountaineer is Jack Pennell, a second-string guard who injured a leg more than two weeks ago.

Four Seniors
Four East Carolina seniors will be making their last home appearance in the game tonight. Hodges, Jack Britt of Fairmont, John Daughtry of Wilmington, and Johnny Brown of Washington are the four. Hodges and Brown, a tackle, are expected to start while Britt, a halfback, and Daughtry, a fullback, are second-team members.

A near-capacity crowd is expected for the game. Tickets sales have been rather heavy but some good seats are still available. The unsold tickets will be placed on sale at the gates prior to the game which will start at 8 o'clock.

The probable starting line-ups:
Pos. Appalachian East Carolina
LT—Glendon Hodges
LG—Haynes Brown
C—Smith Lee
RG—Quinn Hallow
RT—Branch Burton
RE—Lacey Holland
QB—Pennell Rhodes
RB—Gabriel Cherry
RHB—Hiatt Hayes
FB—Garwood King

West Virginia, one of the few remaining unbeaten-untilled major outfits, are on the spot. They are ranked No. 5 in the Associated Press poll, but they haven't played a strong schedule. Penn State is one of the better teams in the East, so it behooves the Mountaineers to make a good showing to prove the skeptics wrong.

As for Notre Dame, even without Leahy, the Irish are favored heavily over Navy, the victim of a 9-7 upset at the hands of Penn. The big problem of the Middles will be to contain the heavy Notre Dame line.

Farmville Upset 7-2 By LaGrange Bulldogs

LAGRANGE — Farmville's high-flying Red Devils were stopped short here last night by the tough LaGrange Bulldogs and found themselves on the short end of a 7-2 score in a game in which they were favored by at least two touchdowns.

The Red Devils actually never got in the ball game except for one play late in the fourth period when they blocked a LaGrange punt for a safety. They fell behind in the early moments of the ball game and were never able to put their own high scoring backfield in the open.

The Bulldogs, a powerhouse of the Class A East Central Conference, racked up their lone touchdown early in the game. After an exchange of punts had followed the opening kickoff, the host team gained possession of the ball near midfield and started their drive. Snag Dickens pulled the clincher when he bulled across from five yards out. Charles Radford kicked the extra point and LaGrange had won the ball game.

Farmville's two points came late in the fourth quarter when the line broke through LaGrange's to block a punt on the 15-yard line. The ball rolled out of the end zone for the safety.

Farmville threatened to score after the kickoff which resulted from the safety but their attack ran out of steam on the 20 yard line of the Bulldogs.

Although Ted Allen and Jesse Joyner could not break away, the offense, Allen was playing with an injured muscle in his back.

Jack Allen and Jimmy Allen paced the Farmville defense while Snag Dickens and Charles Radford led both phases of the LaGrange play. The loss was the third of the year for the Red Devils who have won five. The schedule will be continued next Friday night when Farmville is host to Scotland Neck.

Leahy To Coach Irish With Help Of Television

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — While Coach Frank Leahy frets in his home, Notre Dame, the No. 1 football team in the country will take on Navy at South Bend, in the top game of the collegiate football card today.

But The Master—a sly one he—is not without ideas. He will watch the action on television and advise his assorted aides before the game and between halves.

The calendar is spotted with other interesting action, the best of which seem to be the Illinois-Purdue and West Virginia-Penn State affairs.

Illinois, the leader of the Big 10 now that Michigan State has been beaten, will have to be at its best against the Boilermakers, the same bakes who polished off State last week after being beaten in four games. Purdue must be good, but not good enough to stop two top teams in the country in two weeks.

The Boilermakers, incidentally, were squashed by Miami the next week after breaking long Notre Dame winning streak two years ago.

West Virginia, one of the few remaining unbeaten-untilled major outfits, are on the spot. They are ranked No. 5 in the Associated Press poll, but they haven't played a strong schedule. Penn State is one of the better teams in the East, so it behooves the Mountaineers to make a good showing to prove the skeptics wrong.

Three Men Injured In Series Of Three Wrecks Last Night

Three men received minor injuries and an estimated total of $1500 in property damage was done in a series of three automobile accidents throughout the county last night.

All of the wrecks occurred between 6:30 last night and 12:00 midnight. The three men were injured at about 11:00 when a car driven by Richard Johnnie Howard, 19-year-old Negro farmer of Route 3, Greenville, skidded off Highway 264 and crashed into a telephone pole. Howard stated that he was making a right turn off the highway on to the Simpson road when sand on the highway caused his car to skid and hit the telephone pole.

Injured in the wreck were Howard, who received facial lacerations, Zeno Daniels, 21-year-old Negro, Route 5, Greenville, and Jeremiah Little, 27, Negro, Route 3, Greenville, both of whom also received facial lacerations.

Patrolman James B. Boykin, who investigated the accident along with Cpl. C. E. Whitfield, estimated damage to the car at about $700. In addition, the telephone pole was broken. Boykin said investigation of the accident was incomplete.

At about 6:30 last night an automobile driven by Gene Allen Tripp, 16, Box 104, Winterville collided with a car driven by Dennis Loyd Prayer, 30-year-old Negro of Route 1, Fountain. Patrolman Boykin said that Tripp attempted to pass Prayer at an intersection as Prayer was making a left turn. The patrolman estimated damage to Prayer's car at about $100 and to Tripp's, $50. Prayer was charged with failing to give the proper turn signal and Tripp passing at an intersection. No injuries were reported in the accident.

The third wreck last night occurred at about 12:00 midnight when a car driven by Linwood T. Holden, 17, Negro farmer of Route 2, Grifton, overturned on a dirt road. Holden was traveling west on the rural dirt road about four miles from Ayden when he lost control of his car in the sand. The vehicle skidded off the road and overturned. Patrolman Boykin, who investigated, estimated damage at around $800. No injuries were reported and no arrests were made.

Hear Report On Kiwanis Session

At the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night, John T. Barnhill and Ed Tyler, delegates to the recent Carolinas Kiwanis District convention in Columbia, S. C., made their report.

They said membership in the district is increasing and more emphasis is being placed on fellowship and inter-club Kiwanis meetings. The delegates reported that Louis Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Clark and an East Carolina College student, was one of the speakers at the convention. He represented the Circle K (Kiwanis) Club at the college.

The nominating committee, composed of five past presidents of the Kiwanis Club, nominated J. Bryan Brown for president, to succeed President Leo W. Jenkins in January, and John T. Barnhill for vice-president for 1954.

The committee made the following nominations for selection of four members of the board of directors: Dr. Stephen R. Bartlett, Jr., Cecil Ellington, A. C. Howard, Clyde Hollowell, Dixie McGlothin, R. E. Rogers, J. Frank Steinbeck and Rev. Leonard Topping.

Plan Cost Survey For Proposed Plan To Widen Street

Greenville City Council members and City Manager James S. Hughes met with R. Markham, district engineer for the State Highway and Public Works Commission, this week to discuss the proposed widening of Greene Street and Dickinson Avenue so traffic would move faster through the city, the city manager said yesterday.

Hughes said that a survey by the Highway Commission officials had determined that Greene Street, in all but two blocks could be made into three lanes, without interference with the present sidewalks. The blocks from 5th Street to Dickinson Avenue would require removing and rebuilding part of the curb, gutter and sidewalks to make it a uniform three lane street; and the block from First Street to the river bridge would be almost, if not, impossible to make into a three lane street.

The highway engineer is going to have a detailed survey made of Greene Street to determine an estimate cost for the widening project. He will then give the estimate to the city showing what percentage of the cost the city must pay.

If Greene Street is widened there will be no room for parking on either side of the street, according to the city manager.
