Claims Tall Tale Reputation Was Honestly Earned

MCALISTER, Okla. (AP)—Adm. Apollo Soucek, here for a speaking engagement, says he has the reputation of being one of the biggest tall-tale tellers in the armed forces.

It all dates back to a 1948 lawn party at McAlester.

"I was standing there talking, my hands folded behind me, when I felt something warm and moist nuzzling me," the admiral said.

"I yanked my hand away and ripped the little finger open. It bled profusely. A baby deer had wandered up and apparently had mistaken my finger for one of its mother's meal tickets."

He said the story is true. The deer came from the U. S. naval ammunition depot reservation here.

Free Textbook Loss And Damage In Pitt Schools Surpasses State Average

In a report to the County Board of Education, Chairman Joseph S. Moyer said that Pitt County ranks 31 among 172 administrative units of North Carolina in the percentage of free books worn out and lost.

The report given by Moyer was made by the State Board of Education on Pitt's usage of the 80,000 free textbooks per year in county schools from the 1948-49 school session to the 1952-53.

The State report said that Pitt County had an average per teacher damage fee collection of $2,540 against the state average of $2,002. Although Pitt County unit received a rating of "good," the State recommended a list of suggestions in the event the local unit was not satisfied with its present rating.

The State suggested that principals should be presented with the facts of the report to encourage them to arouse their teachers to the importance of the situation, and to follow the policy of principals and teachers having periodic inspection of books and have damage fees collected when the damages are discovered rather than at the end of the year.

The suggestions also included encouraging the making of slight repairs to books as needed such as erasing pencil marks, using scotch tape for torn pages, and to use library tape to keep books safely within the covers.

It was suggested that when damaged books are brought to the bookroom in the spring that they be carefully checked as to the number returned and the condition, being sure that perfectly good books are not discarded.

The State concluded its list of suggestions by asking that schools who are doing well to be encouraged to continue their excellent job.

Dr. A.D. Frank Discusses Korea

Dr. A.D. Frank, social studies professor at East Carolina College, speaking before the Greenville Lions Club last night on conditions in Korea said that he looks for a long stalemate.

"So many people ask 'What is going to happen in Korea?' now that the war has ceased, Dr. Frank stated.

"However, this stalemate may possibly be broken by Korean President Rhee, himself and thus start a war among the North and South Koreans, which I do not believe the United States or any other country will interfere with.

"Of course, any of the participants which took part in the war could renew the war at any time," but the speaker pointed out, "should the war be renewed, I believe that the air bases and cities of Red China would not be saved from direct bombing by the air force as they were during the Korean Conflict.

"The Russians and Chinese have had their fingers burned as much as they want for now in Korea and for that reason, and the fact that Russia does not want to fight in the Far East, I don't think they are likely to start anything there."

Dr. Frank was introduced by John Biggs who was in charge of the program.

Guests of the club were: Billy Bost, Bill Forest.

President Henry Swayne presided. Larry Averette and Ben Rouse announced that final arrangements for the Louis Prima Dance to be held here next Wednesday night, November 11 by the club have been made.

Tickets for the dance may be obtained from any Lion and several business places in the county.

1949 Law Seen JP's Solution

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. Harry McMullan says North Carolina could clear up many of its justice of the peace problems if a law enacted in 1949 were made effective statewide.

McMullan said yesterday the 1949 law is permissive and applied only to 26 counties. It limits the number of magistrates in a county and puts them on a salary instead of a fee basis. In addition, it provides for their appointment for two-year terms by Superior Court judges. Judges are empowered to remove them for cause.

The attorney general said that so far as he knows no county has placed the law into operation. He added the 1949 law "goes right to the heart of the problem" by limiting the number of justices and putting them on a salary basis.

"It places justices of the peace on an honorable and stable basis," said McMullan.

Meanwhile, Lenoir County's three active justices of the peace yesterday asked Superior Court Judge Henry A. Grady to authorize an audit of their books.

They are W. J. Thomas, J. J. Lyon and Wilson B. Faulkner. Judge Grady, pointing out he did not have authority to order the audit, recommended to the Lenoir grand jury that the audit be suggested.

In a prepared statement, the three justices of the peace said a recent series of articles carried by the Raleigh News and Observer had "severely criticized" Craven County justices.

"Certain of these articles have alleged that there have been irregularities on the part of justices of the peace, not only in Craven but in other counties, in the handling of public funds.

"While there were no specific allegations with reference to the justices of the peace in Lenoir County the articles carried an inference that public funds may have been mishandled."

Mrs. Powell's car was jammed into a traffic line at the crossing when the southbound train roared through yesterday.

Patrolman Harry W. Fording, 28 ordered Mrs. Powell to jump and run but she was too terrified.

"I opened the door, grabbed her and started running," Fording said. "It seemed as though we were still on the crossing when the train hit the car and it went flying."

Convicts Sleeping Off Pill Bender

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—All was quiet at the Washington State Penitentiary last night.

It should have been.

Some 400 convicts were snoozing off the effects of a weekend bender or sleeping pills.

Warden John Cranor tells this story:

Inmate employes of the penitentiary's warehouse got curious Saturday when a shipment of war surplus hospital supplies arrived. They happened to open a box containing 40,000 Nebutal tablets.

They passed 10,000 pills around to other convicts and, as one guard put it:

"By Monday morning the whole prison population had rubber legs. A man would be walking down the sidewalk and fall flat on his face. We put them in wing one until there just got to be too many of them."

A shakedown by prison guards, Cranor said, turned up most of the pills not gobbled down by the prisoners or flushed down the toilets just prior to the shakedown.

After age 45 almost all people have trouble with their eyesight.

Homemade Alarm Captures Three

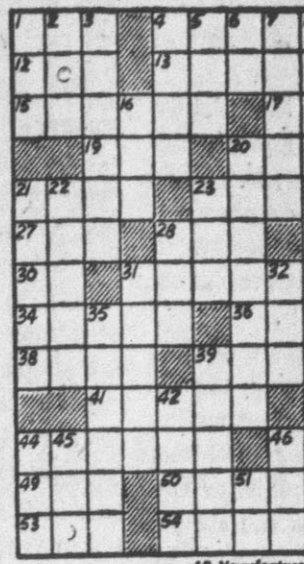

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A homemade burglar alarm was responsible for the arrest yesterday in a church attic here of three ex-convicts.

Soon after their arrest, the three men—Jesse G. Roper, 20; Aubrey D. Morrison, 22; and Joseph A. Tierron, 24 — admitted four robberies and two attempted robberies.

The homemade alarm was devised and installed by J. M. Thomas, 55, caretaker of the Trinity Baptist Church, where the trio was hiding.

Dark Spots In Tarheel Economy

One gets an interesting picture of income among North Carolina's people by looking at the most recent Survey of Current Business of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

There are bright spots in the picture which definitely note the economic progress of the state in recent years; but there are darker spots which point emphatically to the economic progress still needed to put North Carolina on a par with the average of other states in the Union.

The darkest spot in the picture is that North Carolina ranks 45th among the 48 states in per capita income. The per capita income of the Tar Heel state for 1952 was only $1,049 compared with $1,639 for the nation as a whole. That means the state's per capita income was only 64 per cent of the national average.

On the other hand, the per capita income in North Carolina from 1940 to 1952 increased 288 per cent compared with the average increase nationally of 141 per cent. In 1952, the state ranked 15th in the nation in total income in spite of its low per capita income.

The percentage increase in per capita income of the state since 1940 is indicative of the economic progress that has been made in the state in recent years. The fact that North Carolina still ranks fourth from the bottom in per capita income, points vividly to the fact that a great deal of economic progress is yet needed before the state's people as a whole can enjoy a standing on a par with the national average.

It points to the need for even more progress in the fields of agriculture and industry in the Tar Heel state.

The Sounding Board Now Broadcasts Truth

Almost since it became a working organization the United Nations has been utilized by Russia as a sounding board for Communist propaganda.

Inasmuch as the debates and statements before that world body is of great news value to everyone, even in the most remote corners of the globe, it was an ideal base of operations for allegations suitable to furthering Moscow's thoughts in every country.

All sorts of distorted facts and brazen lies were thus broadcast, and repeated in such a way as to impress upon peoples' minds that the Free World was inhabited by a gang of blood-thirsty mobsters.

But in the past two weeks the United Nations sounding board has been put to use, and effectively, too, by the United States and other major western powers. The spotlight of truth has been turned on Communist machinations. And this, without need for slander, lies or distortions.

First the "germ warfare" charges were shown to have been inspired by Russia, and confessions wrung by Soviet-inspired supporters through torture.

Now it is the atrocities committed by Communist Chinese and North Koreans which are being vividly driven home to the world at large.

It would take no great effort to keep these and numerous other crimes against humanity before world attention through the United Nations. Heaven knows, there are enough crimes that can be laid to Moscow to keep Western diplomats talking continuously for the next ten years.

A New Kind Of Tariff Fight

WASHINGTON—An entirely new kind of fight over future tariffs and foreign trade concessions is being waged these days before President Eisenhower's Commission on Foreign Economic Policy. Due to changing world and domestic conditions, old politico-economic allies oppose each other, while erstwhile foes stand shoulder to shoulder on this issue.

The Presidential body, which is headed by C. B. Randall, who riddled Truman's seizure of his steel plants in a radio philippic—he virtually called the Missouriian a "liar"—has been assigned the task of formulating a new export-import program for the long-range future. It is the first comprehensive study of this broad-and-butter, wages-and-prices problem in many years.

TWO-WAY TRADE—Randall's group must prepare for the day when American foreign financial handouts will dwindle or end, and when overseas interests must obtain dollars for two-way trade by selling more goods in the American market. And it must come up with an answer at a time when our expanded production plant and genius have boosted both industrial and agricultural surpluses to the bursting point, from automobiles to cattle.

Like the row over a new farm program, the controversy over a future tariff policy threatens a further split in the Republican Party. Ike and his industrial friends, inside and outside the Cabinet, prefer a more free exchange of goods than do the historic GOP protectionists in Capitol Hill.

LOW TARIFF APOSTLE—In a recent book, entitled "Freedom's Faith," Randall has proclaimed himself as a low-tariff apostle. Along with other manufacturers of automobiles, electrical, machinery and other heavy goods, including Henry Ford II, the Eisenhower chairman argues that only by lowering our tariff barriers can the U.S. sell its booming surpluses in the world market.

Opponents of this form of new generosity maintain that the Randall-Ford interests occupy a special and favorable position. Foreign nations need their products, which cannot be matched abroad in quality or price. A rebuilding universe, it is pointed out, is hungry for Ford-Randall-Wilson-Humphrey steel, trucks, tractors, bulldozers, construction equipment.

OPPOSITE VIEWPOINT—But the smaller manufacturers—and there are 4,000,000 of them, according to Department of Commerce figures—insist angrily that a flood of imports will destroy them, creating unemployment, reduced purchasing power and widening circles of community depressions. Then, they add, the domestic market for the big boys' cars, television sets, trucks, etc., will dry up.

Among the possible victims would be the shoe, jewelry, textile and gadget manufacturers and workers of Speaker Martin's New England, the glove and glass-makers of Dan Reed's upstate New York, Texas-Oklahoma-Louisiana producers of petroleum and by-products, the South's industry of finished textiles. These are only a few obvious examples.

The conflict cuts across geographical lines and interests. Southern growers of leaf tobacco find their exports falling off because dollar-poor England is turning to South Africa for substitutes. They favor lower tariff walls. But Southern textile plants worry over cheaper imports from Britain and Japan, which are striving to recover markets lost during the war.

LABOR LEADERS CHANGE OPINIONS—Spokesmen for organized labor and agriculture, which once cried out against competition from low-paid, foreign "slaves and peons," have switched. They point out that employment, prices and wages will have to be cut, unless the U. S. accepts a larger share of foreign commodities.

George L. Meany, AFL president, in appearing before the Randall Commission, scoffed at forecasts that tariff reductions would throw Americans out of work.

But the newest and most novel wrinkles in the dispute is the proposal for relieving tariff-destroyed industries. It consists of "open and outright subsidies" for the victims during a "readjustment period." It has been advocated by almost every low-tariff spokesman, including Randall, Ford and Meany. They would probably have demanded impeachment, had F.D.R. or Truman made a similar suggestion.

Defense Of Suckers Wanted

If ever there was a man that I'd like to get my hands on, it's the one who invented the lolly-pop, or sucker as we more commonly call them in the South. If I hate them so, then why are they a menace to me? Why not just forbid them in our house? Sometimes I think that's a good question. Other times, I must admit that they will bring peace when it's so desperately needed. But most of the time, my opinion differs. It's easy to list the objections to the things:

1. They cost money.
2. Such sweet candy is bad for children's teeth.
3. They cost money.
4. It's dangerous for children to have sticks in their mouths.
5. They cost money.
6. In houses with suckers it's difficult to find a square inch that isn't sticky. Their only use, that to reward the child or quiet him down, could possibly be eliminated. Why not tell the child that you'll give him an apple as a reward? With adequate sales effort, couldn't fruit become just as big a reward? Perhaps not, but it's at least worth a try. When a sucker has been around the house everybody can tell. The husband can come home from work and even tell what flavor by kissing his children on the cheek. If he has occasion to open a door he will have to pry his hand off. Our daughter Nancy always decides to type after eating one, before the wash cloth gets near her. A common parking place for a sucker is in the seat of your favorite chair. When one is on the loose in the house you can look for it there. Of course one of the parent's first lessons is always to look before sitting. Did I mention the needless expense? If you buy a hundred at the time, most grocers will give a consideration for buying such a quantity. But even then it seems foolish to spend money to cultivate a job for the dentist. If the American Lolly-Pop Association, if there is such a thing, will give me information in defense of the sucker I would be glad to present their side of the argument. In the meantime, I hate suckers! And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

KKK WIZARD'S APPEAL (Henderson Dispatch) Appeal by Imperial Wizard Thomas L. Hamilton to all members of the Ku Klux Klan to disband came too late to save him a prison sentence. He has been behind the bars for about a year doing time for his leadership of the hooded order in perpetrating violence on helpless victims who happened to incur disfavor of the organization, and would have experienced a change of heart. While that may be taken with a grain of salt, it is encouraging to learn that he has at least summoned the will power to make this appeal. Oddy enough, the request was contained in a 700-word letter written to Editor Willard Cole of the Whiteville News Reporter, whose boldness and determination in showing up the KKK had much to do with putting Hamilton and his stooges in prison for their hoodlum conduct in Columbus and nearby counties. Moreover, when Hamilton became eligible to apply for a parole, Cole opposed it. The Klan leader wrote that "I call upon my friends everywhere to disband the Ku Klux Klan where it exists and to work wholly out in the open for the cause in which we believe." A year in prison evidently has afforded Hamilton opportunity to meditate upon the lawlessness which he instigated, and he may be sincere in what he is now saying, or at least to the extent of hoping that it may create sympathy sufficient to spring him a little sooner than otherwise might be the case. One is reminded, however, of the criminal who professed sorrow and regret for his crime not so much for the wrong he had done as the fact that his sins had found him out—as they usually do. What the cause is "in which we believe" is not too clear from the Hamilton statement. There never was a time when his organization, or any other for that matter, did not have recourse to lawful courts of justice in prosecuting violators of the common statutes. Nor was there ever a time when hoodlums were either justified or had the right to take the law into their own hands. And that's what the modern-day Klan has repeatedly done. Perhaps Hamilton has had a change of heart. We hope he has. But he has done enough to warrant serving of a very substantial portion of the four-year sentence meted out to him. It could be that by the end of his shift he will be truly repentant.

Gov. Umstead Not Happy Over Agriculture Developments

BY LYNN NISBET NOT HAPPY — Governor Umstead is definitely not happy about the trend of things in agricultural circles, State and National. He declined to fix any figures as to loss of farm income or State revenue because of these conditions, but he told newsmen at his latest press conference that the loss would be "substantial."

Other sources have estimated loss in farm income from tobacco alone at more than $50 million in North Carolina, due to the short crop occasioned by drought. That estimate takes into account the higher prices obtained because of the short crop, and the lower prices because of inferior quality. Losses in other crops and in livestock are more difficult to compute, but in the aggregate probably are much heavier than the tobacco figures. Tobacco is an annual crop and the losses or profits can be offset from one year to another. Livestock, timber and other long term operations are such that losses actually occasioned this year may not show up until year after next or even later.

REVENUE — As chief executive of the State, Governor Umstead is concerned about losses to individual farmers but he is also more concerned that the average citizen about impact of such losses upon the State's general fund revenue. In answer to reporter's questions he declined to fix a dollar and cents amount but admitted that the decline in revenue would be "Substantial."

"Any time there is a dollar short in the citizen's spending money," he said, "it means lose in State revenue. The sales tax may be first to feel the impact, but it will extend into all other schedules—Income, franchise and privilege levies—because all of them are based on the number of dollars circulating in trade channels."

It would be unfair to suggest that Governor Umstead manifested pessimism, because he has faith in the ability of North Carolina to continue her progressive march. At the same time, he very obviously was not happy about fiscal prospects for the next few years.

HUNGER — Federal and State governments in co-operations with numerous business firms are working on plans for the distribution of cattle feedstuffs, particularly hay, in the drought relief program. The processes are slow and some farmers are becoming very impatient. One philosopher, who observed the other day that he could understand both the delay in getting machinery in operation and the impatience of farmers.

Both stem from the same basic cause, he said, and that is the unfamiliarity of Americans with hunger. Older civilizations are inured to hunger. In some European countries and in most of Asia scarcity of food and shortage of water have been common experience for centuries. Americans are just beginning to face the problem of shortage in anything.

Heretofore, when land went out there was new land to open up. When food got scarce in one place there were other places where it was plentiful for the taking, and the taking required minimum effort. Hungry people and hungry cattle had only to migrate a few miles to find bountiful food. The problem now is not too serious, but Americans are just beginning to realize the necessity for conserving and husbanding such resources. It will be a long time, said the man, before Americans face the starvation economy of some of the older countries; but the time is rapidly approaching if not already here when available supplies must be rationed and when everybody may have to wait a bit longer for his or her share.

DISTRIBUTION — The delay and the scarcity up to now is due entirely to inadequacy in distribution rather than to actual shortage of production. There is still enough feed and food and water for everybody in North Carolina and in the United States, but there are more and more times when it cannot be delivered to the place and at the time it is needed.

BY-PASSES — Many of the people at Henderson have been waiting for a long time to get the heavy US-1 traffic off the principal business streets. When preliminary surveys for a by-pass were announced last week some of the Henderson merchants protested that moving the road would take potential customers away from their doors.

Over at Chapel Hill there is developing an even more complex situation. Division Highway Commissioner Jack Lindley reports there is a movement for a new road to by-pass the by-pass around the university town.

Meanwhile, all the highway folks have their fingers crossed when they think and talk about prospects for winter weather. It

Fair Trade Laws

By ELMER ROESSNER The fight over so-called fair-trade laws, by which manufacturers can set retail prices of trademarked products, is not over but the opponents of those laws face an uphill struggle.

When the Supreme Court two weeks ago today refused to review the Schwegmann case, it did not uphold the constitutionality of fair-trade laws, as some people have assumed. It simply refused to hear an appeal from lower courts that had ruled the Schwegmann brothers, operators of a New Orleans supermarket, would have to charge fixed prices on fair-traded insulin.

Opponents of state fair-trade laws, and of the McGuire Act, the Federal law that puts teeth into them, may continue to bring appeals to the high court until the justices finally decide to rule on the constitutionality. However, the court rarely takes up a question it has once declined to decide until considerable time has elapsed.

Opponents also can attack various state laws, as they have in Georgia, where state courts ruled the law invalid. The U. S. Supreme Court also refused to rule on an appeal from that decision. That makes four states now without fair-trade laws, the others being Missouri, Texas and Vermont. While Congress has passed the McGuire Act vitiating fair trade elsewhere, it has never enacted a fair-trade law for the District of Columbia, where they do quite a bit of shopping themselves.

Meanwhile, the Supreme Court's action has put many manufacturers on a spot. Many have been lukewarm about maintaining retail prices, prices, going to court to punish price cutters only when other retailers insisted. Now they can no longer excuse themselves on the ground that the McGuire Act may be knocked out any day, because it can't be for a long time, if ever.

Manufacturers of those lines now up against price resistance also are in a quandary. If they fix prices and then don't use the courts to enforce them, they will arouse the enmity of retailers.

Success Story Of Blind Man

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP)—John D. Hayes, 70 years old, almost totally blind, and runs a candy business that took in 22 million dollars last year. "I'd hate to have my vision back," he said. "It wouldn't be worthwhile. I'd miss so much of what I have now."

Hayes didn't feel that way when his sight began to fail nearly 30 years ago. He had launched a candy business with 50 thousand dollars in Rochester. It was just getting going when Hayes had some teeth extracted, and hemorrhages destroyed the retinas of his eyes. "I was all broken up," he recalled. "I had a wife and two young daughters to support, and I didn't know how I could go on. But when you have a defect you just have to learn to live around it. I felt that God had a place for me in the world, and would help me find it."

Hayes has found a mighty big place. Today his Fanny Farmer Candy Co. has 7 factories, 3,500 employees and 371 retail shops in some 200 American cities. Hayes also has a chain of 100 candy stores in Canada. How can a man who can't see a face, or read a letter, operate a multimillion dollar business without "being stolen blind?" The answer Hayes found was the honor system. "We don't have spies, spotters or checkers," he said. "Each store manager is on his own. When people know you really trust them, you don't run into much dishonesty."

who are opposed to price cutting. If they fix prices and fight to maintain them, they may lose sales to competitors who don't fix prices. And if they don't fix prices, they may lose the good will of many dealers and see their own price pattern deteriorate.

SURPLUSES FOR STEALING IN NEW FOA DEALS The United States is in the process of selling at least $100,000,000 worth of surplus commodities for foreign currencies and then spending the money abroad for Mutual Security Pact purposes.

At the last session, Congress wrote a proviso into the appropriations for the Foreign Operation Administration authorizing it to use between $100,000,000 and $250,000,000 to buy surplus agricultural products and then to sell them for foreign funds, which are to be earmarked for mutual defense purposes. A recent interpretation of this proviso holds that unless at least $100,000,000 is so used, that amount will be deducted from the FOA appropriation.

So negotiations are now under way. In one deal, $200,000 worth of tobacco is being sold to Great Britain for pounds. Other deals with the British will be for grain, fats, butter and meat.

One provision of all deals, dictated by Congress, is that the sale of commodities not interfere with "usual marketings." In the tobacco deal, the purchase will not interfere with normal British purchases of American tobacco, since the FOA tobacco will be used only to replenish depleted inventory reserves.

Deals will be made with other Mutual Security nations, it is expected.

RAYON FABRICS OFF: COTTON, WOOL FIRM Some clothing may cost less next fall. Manufacturers offered rayon piece goods at lower prices at last week's exhibit of suppliers at the National Outerwear and Sportswear Association in New York. Cotton and wool prices, however, were at current levels.

There was a lot of sampling but few firm orders, most garment makers preferring to place orders later.

"They could cut my throat, but they don't do it. God has been good to me in gathering around me the people he has."

The big, ruddy-faced, white-thatched executive runs his firm like a family patriarch. He hires his employees to bring their personal troubles to him.

"My own lack of vision has given me insight into other people's problems," he said. "To understand another person's troubles you have to have troubles of your own."

Hayes visits some 275 of his stores each year. He can identify nearly 3,000 of his "associates" by their voices. He has stubbornly refused to learn Braille, leans heavily on his wife, who on a recent trip to Florida wrote back 750 personal postcard messages he dictated.

"She is both my eyes and my right arm," he said.

Hayes is deeply religious. "I visit my church every morning," he said, "and kneel and thank God for giving me what he has, and for carrying me along this tough old road. I love life, I love people, I enjoy every day, and I never want to retire."

The close relationship he now has with thousands of friends and "associates" is worth more, he feels, than the gift of sight.

"If I could see again, by some miracle," he said, thoughtfully, "I would have to start a new life. Everybody would say, 'Oh, he can see,' and it would make a difference between us. No, it wouldn't be worthwhile."

He prefers the eyesight of the heart.

Rotary Club Hears Talk On Role Of Motor Truck

By WYATT BROWN
The Rotarians inducted two new members last night and then heard a talk on the role of the motor truck in the transportation picture.

JEFF B. WILSON

The speaker on Transportation was Jeff B. Wilson of Raleigh who is Director of Information and Safety for North Carolina Motor Carriers Association. He said he represented people who operate trucks and not the "just for hire" group.

Mr. Wilson stated that 53 per cent of the towns and communities of North Carolina depend on trucks for what they eat wear and use. He pointed out that his organization is trying today to do a specialization service for shippers in order that further curtailment of inventories and resultant economies achieved both for merchant and manufacturers.

Bringing the subject right down to Greenville Mr. Wilson declared that 98 per cent of the tobacco crop is moved from farm to market, to redrying plant, to storage and to manufacturer by trucks. He went on to picture the role of the truck in the strawberry, lettuce, and other agricultural products. The increased farm output and farm values in the last fifty years he attributed to the role of trucks.

He briefly touched on his organization's safety program and solicited every Rotarian to report any truck driver doing anything ill-advised with his truck; by so doing, the trucking industry would be improved.

J.B. Kittrell, Jr. introduced Mr. Wilson and told of the speakers office in Lions International - International Counselor.

Believe Emphasis Should Be For Plant Expansion

RALEIGH (AP)—Two Greensboro businessmen one a leading textile official, agree that the state should give more attention to encouraging Tar Heel corporations to expand their operations in North Carolina.

Cesar Cone, treasurer of the Cone Mills Corp. of Greensboro, said yesterday that the state is offering substantial inducements in its efforts to attract new industries, but is not offering much to encourage the expansion of industries in the state.

Cone said a number of Tar Heel corporations are locating new plants outside the state. He added that "Some of us . . . are very much concerned with our position in the economy of the state."

Pierce C. Rucker, a businessman, said an attempt should be made to determine why North Carolina industries are locating plants in other parts of the South. This, he suggested, "instead of running all over the country trying to get new industries in the state."

The views of Cone and Rucker were contained in letters commenting on an editorial in the Raleigh News and Observer, Oct. 18. The editorial noted that while North Carolina "should make every effort" to attract new industries, the state and its communities "should not overlook the possibilities in small plants and small manufacturers here at home."

The editorial observed, "The great industrial bulk and taxpaying body of North Carolina industry is home-grown and probably will continue to be. It is only necessary to set down the names Duke, Reynolds, Cannon, Erwin, Love, Cone."

Cone said "Not only are a great many of us orphans when it comes to consideration on the part of various state agencies, but we are also orphans in our dealings with the various municipalities."

"I have in mind," Cone added, "the matter of access roads as one of the main items. I note that the state has built such roads to various new plants in western North Carolina and also around Charlotte for the Celanese operation. No consideration has been given by the state to the fact that old plants developed during the railroad and shoe leather days have considerably antiquated accommodations for rubber tire vehicles now used by employees and for the transportation of merchandise."

"It occurs to me that an old plant should be justly entitled to reconstruction of access thoroughfares at the expense of the state just as new plants are being so accommodated."

Repairs In Atom Plant Difficult

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)—Automatically controlled and remotely operated devices in nuclear power plants turn some of the simplest maintenance procedures into fantastically difficult tasks, according to an atomic scientist.

K. K. Campbell, superintendent of power and maintenance at the Hanford Atomic Products Operation of the General Electric Company, explained some of the problems at a conference on nuclear engineering on the University of California campus here.

Repairing a damaged gasket with long extension tools under several feet of water in a concrete cell is like trying "to use a fourfoot fork to eat spaghetti," Campbell said.

In another maintenance operation, Campbell told what was required to replace a ball-bearing in a fan shaft—a simple job anywhere but in a nuclear power plant.

The operation required 30 mechanics working for three eight-hour shifts because each man could safely stand the radiation in the area for only six minutes in every 24 hours.

Campbell's description of a maintenance worker at the Hanford laboratory indicates that tomorrow's nuclear engineer might look like a "spaceman" in two suits of coveralls, leggings, rubbers, full-face mask, and two pairs of rubber gloves.

"Doing mechanical, electrical or instrument work while dressed in this manner is not easy," he said, "and the handling of small parts on a repair job requires calm nerves and unlimited patience."

PITTSBURGH (AP)—"Schoolroom brown" is a menace to children's eyes, says Dr. James F. Wahl, president of the American Optometric Association. "Drab brown floors, furniture and wall paint usually go with inadequate lighting, and together they breed many of the vision problems of American youth."

Resting—After a Long, Hard Day!

Twenty minutes ago, the man you see in this picture came out of a long and harassing conference—tired, tense and with a bit of a headache.

And he said to himself—"I'll take the long way home tonight, and drive out by the waterfront, and let the Cadillac relax me!"

And that's just what he's doing.

If you own a 1953 Cadillac, you know exactly what's taking place. But if you don't—let's see what happens as he climbs into the driver's seat and lets his wonderful car begin its magic.

It's relaxing just to sit there—and look out over that long, beautiful hood into the beckoning distance.

The seat cushions hold him in buoyant comfort; the slender wheel fits naturally into his hands; great areas of glass surround him and let each glance reveal a panorama.

And, of course, he's proud—for it's an endless satisfaction to command such a respected possession.

And now comes the great lift to his spirits: He touches the key, and hears that deep-throated response so characteristic of a Cadillac engine—and, in an instant, he's off for a wonderful, wonderful hour!

Steering is no more than a gesture . . . the lightest touch on the throttle gets immediate action—smooth, quick and positive . . . the brakes are easy and certain under his foot.

So he just sits back and rolls along—with the soft sound of the wind for a lullaby—and the beautiful view for a tonic—resting, relaxing, at peace with the world!

His wife will never suspect, as he wheels into the driveway, that he was a tired and tense and weary husband just one short hour ago.

That's one of the nicest things about a Cadillac. It's a proven therapeutic for a work-wearied man!

Try it, soon, at the end of a long, hard day. We'll furnish the car. You name the time and place.

Cherry Injured As Pirates Open Practice For Tampa

Pirates Work Light; Hear Scouting Report

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

Dick Cherry is hurt. That, in just a few short words, sums up the situation facing the East Carolina College Pirates this week. Of course, there's another little matter of a trip to Florida to meet Tampa University Saturday night but that's something to worry about Saturday night.

Cherry, the All-Conference quarterback, was still hobbled yesterday by a knee injury that he sustained Saturday night in leading East Carolina to a 40-7 win over Appalachian. The injury had improved some over the weekend but the Blonde Bombers were still unable to put much weight on the leg. He is still taking treatments for the injury and will not see any rough work in practice this week.

The loss of the former Washington High School star could be a rather serious blow to the Pirates. He has already passed for 16 touchdowns this year besides scoring four himself. He is also top man on the totem pole in the field generalship department of the North State Conference.

Cherry's injury could leave the Pirates in a bind. Although he is generally rated tops in the quarterbacking in the conference, his very worth to the team has caused other quarterbacks on the team to go on a "starvation diet" so far as game action is concerned. Neither Boyd Webb or Milton Collier, the most likely heirs-apparent to the job, have had much of a chance to prove themselves under actual battle conditions. Webb is a junior and Collier a sophomore.

Nobody had much of a chance to worry yesterday about who will take Cherry's place. The Pirates looked at game movies, heard a scouting report on Tampa, and then took a few light exercises on College Stadium's turf, before calling it a day. It was a typical Monday workout.

Cherry was about the only member of the squad who was injured even halfway seriously Saturday night. Guard Dave Lee had a small cut under his eye but he isn't slowed any at all by that. No one else complained of anything yesterday.

The Pirates expect to follow their usual practice routine up until Thursday afternoon. They will leave for Tampa Thursday night via train and workout Friday in Tampa Stadium. They will play Saturday night and return home Sunday evening.

Playoff Contest

SALISBURY, N. C. (P)—A playoff game for the Western North Carolina Class AA football championship will be held in Charlotte Nov. 20 between Harding High of Charlotte and Winston-Salem Gray. Representatives of the two schools met here yesterday. A flip of the coin decided the site.

Fishing Season Extended For '54

RALEIGH (P)—Tar Heel trout fishermen will have 10 more days of fishing in 1954, and bream fishermen will be permitted to catch a few more fish.

These were the major changes yesterday as the State Wildlife Resources Commission adopted its 1954 fishing regulations, effective Jan. 1.

In another action, the commission decreed that female deer may be killed in part of Hertford County Dec. 7-12. This marks the first time in 15 years that doe have been legal game anywhere in the state. The Hertford County action was taken under a local act passed by the 1953 Legislature.

Director Clyde Patton of the commission said the open season decree followed a complaint by a land owner, J. D. Riddick of Como that deer were ruining his crops.

The trout season will open April 5 and close Aug. 31. The opening date is 10 days earlier than this year.

The overall daily creel limit for panfish will remain unchanged at 25. However, a fisherman may catch up to 25 of any one species daily. For several years, the fisherman has been allowed to take 20 of any one species and a total of 25 of two or more species.

This regulation applies to bluegill bream, crappies, yellow perch, white perch, warmouth, redbreast and all other species of sunfish, perch or pickerel.

The commission increased the "keeper" size on small mouth and Kentucky bass from 10 inches to 12 inches.

Turpin Charged In Assault Case

NEW YORK (P)—British boxer Randy Turpin is under charges on complaint of a 24-year-old woman, who says he beat her several times in the past few weeks.

The woman, Adele Daniels, a clerk for the New York State Department of Labor, alleged the former world middleweight champion beat her three times before he lost a title bout Oct. 21 and four times afterward. Both Turpin and Miss Daniels are Negroes.

Magistrate John E. Prendergast yesterday set a hearing for Turpin tomorrow morning on a third degree assault charge. Turpin, who is scheduled to sail for England Wednesday afternoon, was paroled in custody of his attorney, Saul Strauss.

PAUL GAY, a junior halfback, from Wilson, scored once for East Carolina College's Pirates last Saturday night in the Bucs' 40-7 win over Appalachian. Gay scored on a 53-yard run in the opening minutes of the game. He will be at right halfback this weekend when the Pirates travel to Tampa to meet Tampa University. (Reflector Sports Photo).

Phants Can Sew Up Fourth With Late Season Victories

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Editor

With only two games remaining on the GHS '53 football schedule, the Greenville Phantoms have an outside chance of moving into the number four spot in the conference standings.

The team standing directly in the way of the Phantoms are the highly-improved Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets. They elevated themselves into the first division last Friday night by pulling the Northeastern Conference's upset-of-the-year. They blasted previously undefeated New Bern 31-0.

The G-men invade the territory of the Yellow Jackets Friday night in quest of their second conference victory.

Phantoms Scrimmage In Greenville, the warriors of Coach Bill Kittrell worked out with an hour-long scrimmage session. The first team was on offense with the reserves forming the defensive units.

The offense had Harris Northrop and Bill Taft at ends, Dixie Hobgood and Larry Smith at the tackles, Bobby Nunn and Jerry Phillips at the guards, and Doug Morgan at center in the line. The backfield had Jerry Drum at quarterback, Mitchell Johnson and James Speight at the halfbacks and Bob Howell at fullback.

Bobby Langston subbed for Speight at halfback during a portion of the drill to give Speight a chance to rest his sore ankles. Langston has been out of action for more than a week now and his return yesterday was highly encouraging to the Phantoms. He is the first-team fullback.

Injured Players Return To Action

FARMVILLE—Things were looking up for the Farmville Red Devils who yesterday welcomed five men back to the squad. Four of the group had been out of action because of injuries.

Left guard Dick Allen led the group of returnees. He has missed the last three games on the Farmville schedule because of a hand injury.

Billy Baker, out with a rib injury; Jesse Joyner, sidelined with an injured back muscle; and Freddy Thorne, injured in the LaGrange game, are the other men who have returned from the injured list. Wilbur Rollins, forced to miss practice last week because of an accident to his father, also returned to workouts yesterday.

The Red Devils will close their home schedule this weekend with a game against Scotland Neck. The game will be played in Farmville Stadium with kickoff time planned for eight o'clock.

Ayden Welcomes Sid Britt Back

AYDEN—The Ayden Tornados welcomed Sidney Britt back to practice yesterday as they opened final preparations for their Friday night game with Snow Hill.

Britt has been out of action for the last five weeks because of a hand injury. He is a tackle and will give the banged-up Tornados a little depth in their line.

Coach Stuart Tripp worked the Tornados in a short offensive scrimmage yesterday. Milton Worthington and Marshall Tripp led the offensive work with Johnny Ray Stancil, Jim Simon, and Bobby Barfield leading the defense. The Tornados were running from the single wing and the double wing in the drills.

Ayden had an open date last week after their game with Dunn was cancelled.

Sugg High Wins

FARMVILLE—H. B. Sugg High School won its first home game of the year last Friday night by defeating Rich Square 14-0.

The Lions' first TD came in the first quarter on a pass from Joe Ford to Fred Tyson. Later in the contest, big Cal Tyson cracked through the line to score again for the Lions. Both extra point attempts were good.

J. C. Moore, Jig Parker, and Jesse Smith provided the Lions with some good defensive play.

Rough Weekend Is Ahead For Atlantic Coast Teams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlantic Coast Conference appears headed for a rough weekend with such teams as Georgia Tech, Navy, Army, Boston College and George Washington dotting the schedule.

The closest match probably will be Duke-Navy contest at Baltimore. Both teams are among the nation's leaders in total offense. Duke has an average of 321.7 yards per game and Navy a 316.3 average.

Coach Bill Murray, watching his injury-riddled Blue Devils work in shorts yesterday, no doubt wondered, if the team will be able to keep up its potent offense. Chief among the injured is James (Red) Smith, who sprained an ankle against Virginia last week.

The leading scorer in the ACC, Smith won't be able to play Saturday and Murray is quick to admit Smith's loss will slow the Devils down. Others in the top Duke backfield still out are quarterback Worth Lutz and fullback Byrd Looper. The team ran through a dummy drill and watched the freshmen run Middle plays.

Although considerably improved, North Carolina State will be the decided underdogs in its game against Army at West Point Saturday. Coach Billy Hickman, who scouted the 0-0 tie between Army and Tulane, told the Wolfpack yesterday the Owlets have a powerful squad with strong reserves. The team went through a short workout and then saw films of its game with William and Mary.

Coach Frank Howard fearful of injuries, limited his Clemson team to a dummy scrimmage yesterday that included improving pass offense and defense. Clemson, with only two wins this season, faces Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday.

With a game against rugged Boston College at Boston due Saturday, Coach Tom Rogers did some switching in his injury-plagued Wake Forest team yesterday. Sonny George, who started out the season at quarterback before being moved to fullback, was put back at quarterback. The No. 1 signal caller, Joe White, was injured in the Clemson game. Jim Bland took over George's post.

A cross-town rivalry gets its annual airing at Washington, D. C., Saturday when Maryland, the nation's No. 2 team, faces Georgia Tech. While other coaches in the conference were sparing their gridders, fearful of injuries, Coach Jim Tatum sent the Terps through a long scrimmage session. It was back to fundamentals

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (P)—Notre Dame drew 90 of 134 first place votes today and continued to solidify its position as the No. 1 college football team in The Associated Press poll.

The Irish who crushed Navy 38-7 for their fifth straight victory, amassed the season's high total of 1,243 points and moved 156 points ahead of second place Maryland, also unbeaten and untied.

Completing the Top Ten are Baylor, Illinois, Michigan State, Georgia Tech, West Virginia, Oklahoma, UCLA and Duke.

Ten points are given for a first place vote, nine for a second, eight for a third, etc. in the poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

The most drastic change in this week's standings saw Southern California, upset 13-7 by Oregon fall from seventh place to 17th. Duke, loser only to Army in seven games, slipped into the select bracket, from 13th to 16th.

Unbeaten Baylor, 25-0 victor over Texas Christian, and Illinois, conqueror of Purdue 21-0, held their respective places at third and fourth to keep the upper part of the list intact.

But down below Michigan State jumped from sixth to fifth and Georgia Tech from eighth to sixth, showing West Virginia down two notches although the Mountaineers won their tough test with Penn State 20-19 to remain one of the four major unbeaten and untied eleven.

Oklahoma and UCLA each moved up one rung. The Sooners trounced Kansas State 34-0 and UCLA won over California 20-7. Duke gained its tenth place spot by smashing Virginia 46-6.

Two of the biggest strides were made by Stanford and Mississippi. Stanford jumped from 17th to 11th on its 48-19 victory over Washington State. Mississippi leaped from 18th to 12th on a 27-16 triumph over Louisiana State.

Notre Dame, which has led the poll from the start of the season, moves into Philadelphia Saturday for a game with Pennsylvania, which has beaten Navy and played two Big Ten teams Ohio State and Michigan, to close terms.

Maryland plays at George Washington Baylor at Texas and Illinois at home with Michigan. Maryland figures to win fairly easily but Texas and Michigan are capable of jumbling the standings.

Here are the standings (with first place votes and team records in parentheses):

Points	Team	Record	Points
1,243	1. Notre Dame (90) (5-0)	1,243	11. Michigan State (5-1)
1,087	2. Maryland (21) (7-0)	1,087	12. Mississippi (11-1)

Women In The Church

Fifty young men and women will go to Africa in 1954 for three years of service under sponsorship of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church. Applications are being considered for candidates who will take six weeks of intensive training beginning June 26, 1954. They will begin sailing for Africa in August. Candidates must be unmarried, between the ages of 21 and 28, graduates of accredited colleges, and active members of the church. Their health should be good. They should have an above-average record in scholarship and practical achievement. A knowledge of French, Portuguese or Spanish will be helpful, but not necessary. Persons interested in applying should write to Miss J. Marguerite Twine or Dr. M. O. Williams Jr., Joint Committee on Missionary Personnel, Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York 11, N. Y.

The young women of the United States, expressing themselves through the membership of the Young Women's Christian Associations, are asking more emphasis in their group programs on religion and on the study of international affairs, says Mrs. Savilla Mills Simons, new general secretary of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association. Another outstanding development, Mrs. Simons says, is the growing demand for new YWCA's. More than 100 additional communities have expressed their need for a YWCA program. In the United States at the present time there are 430 community and 640 student YWCA's, carrying 1,423 programs of work.

Methodist women are endorsing the universal disarmament resolution recently introduced in Congress by Senator Ralph Flanders, Vermont, Senator John Sparkman, Alabama, and others. Meeting in New York City, the executive committee of the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Board of Missions voted to support the plan which calls for a reduction of armaments and the use of some of the funds thus liberated for a program of technical assistance at home and abroad. "This disarmament proposal is in accordance with the action taken by the Methodist Church in its last General Conference," Miss Thelma Stevens, head of the Department of Christian Social Relations of the Methodist woman's organization, says.

Red Heads Don't Cry

Chapter 32

FIRST Linda pretended that Phil was just trying to frighten her, an she pretended an attitude of broad generosity so far as any man's love was concerned, and said, "Of course, Phil, love is something very sacred and if there is someone you think you could love more—"

Her eyes had become quite convincingly misty and melting by that time.

She had said that if there really was someone else she would like to know who the girl was.

"What does it matter, Linda? She's someone you hardly know."

"Is she a girl from this city, Phil?"

"Yes."

"Is she beautiful?"

"Yes."

"Blonde or brunette?"

"Neither."

"Not a redheaded girl?"

"Yes, Linda, a redheaded girl."

Linda knew then, Nancy Kelly. The nobody from Cass street. Just because she happened to have eyes like violets and a head of coppery hair, Nancy had beaten the competition of Linda, of a hundred society debutantes, girls who had been debutantes half a dozen years ago and still were desperately trying to act like debutantes, of live, starved matrons, gaudy dowagers, widows.

Linda listened to Phil's confession and she put on an act as she had never put on an act before, though her repertoire of acts was large.

She acted the noble girl.

She said that Nancy Kelly was lovely. Phil hadn't told her it was Nancy Kelly, at 1 she watched Phil closely when she mentioned Nancy's name. He made no sign.

Linda said that she really knew Nancy Kelly so slightly. Then she tugged at a bit of scarlet handkerchief and became appealingly pensive.

Appealingly pensive when her whole being was surging with venomous feeling for the redheaded nobody from Cass Street.

Appealingly pensive when that minute she knew she was going to use every trick she knew to thwart Nancy Kelly before she got Phil Stanley.

Appealingly pensive when she was thinking that Phil wasn't going to get away with nearly a year of her companionship without his asking her to marry him, champagne or no champagne.

Nancy Kelly of all people. It was so funny as to be ridiculous.

Linda managed to look appealingly, innocently pensive and she had never been so on her mettle in her life.

Phil had stood up.

"And so, Linda, that's how it is. You're a marvelous good sport to be so understanding about it. I never thought one woman could take such a grand attitude toward another, well, you know, in circumstances like this."

Linda's eyes were quite misty now. She looked straight into Phil's eyes with a gaze so candid that it would have been a particular treat for Lil Langdon—Lil had seen it so many times before—and said:

"Phil you are just a great, big boy. I wish you and Miss Kelly every happiness. You know I do."

Linda was standing within inches from Phil now. Her face was raised to his. Her eyes were saying, "Kiss me, Phil. It will be the last time."

His lips touched hers lightly.

She closed her eyes, sighed lightly, as though this last kiss were to be a sacred memory. Something like an old love letter to be locked away in memory forever. A touch of the lips that meant supreme sacrifice on her part. Just a brush of the lips that meant sweet understanding.

Phil evidently was so moved by this sweet understanding that he almost left without asking for return of the ring.

"I suppose, Linda, I had better take back the ring. Funny thing, it hadn't been off my little finger for years. Always had a kind of superstition about taking it off."

"Now, Phil, you wouldn't take that last little memory of our—well, I suppose it's just friendship now—away from me, would you, Phil. Heartless old thing."

Linda's aura at the moment was lavender mist and the taunting, fading fragrance of apple blossoms drifting away on the wind.

"It's an heirloom, Linda. I treasure it very much."

"Let me keep it awhile. Phil. Of course I shan't wear it. If I gave it to you now it would all seem so abrupt, as though you were just being torn out of my life, and—"

Linda turned from Phil and burned what she could of her face in the little square of scarlet handkerchief.

If it wasn't wet with tears she was giving a convincing imitation of tears.

She kept the handkerchief to her eyes with one hand and reached back of her toward Phil with the other.

"Perhaps you had better go, Phil."

Phil clasped her hand. He didn't say good-bye.

As soon as the door closed behind him Linda whirled around. She threw her hands in the air with a gesture of decision.

"What an act. If Lil Langdon had only seen it. Lil would have adored it."

That hour of quiet after the drapes were drawn across the windows of Nancy Kelly, Inc., when Moira and Mrs. Eustis and every one else had said their last good night, now was the most precious hour of the day for Nancy.

She could think things out then, all by herself. Just sit on the chintz couch and close her eyes and think of the events that within less than a year had swept her from the monotonous routine of a job in a law office, which she had hated, to this—

She liked to review, over and over, how the pattern of one's life may be suddenly and dramatically changed all because of some little happening. Some little, accidental event—a decision to turn one's corner instead of the other, a chance remark, a chance meeting.

Now she was engaged to be married to Phil Stanley a man whom most people regarded as far out of her class, a very rich man whose dash and energy and laughing eyes, whose lack of fear of anything had carried her beyond dreams.

She sat on the chintz couch now, thinking, telling herself that this was no dream, that this shop, Phil's passionate declaration of his love for her must not turn out to be a mere dream.

Dreams had a way of ending, fading out, becoming confused and broken, just when they were loveliest.

This wasn't a dream. There was something thrillingly real that had come to her all because one Saturday afternoon in the law office of Spencer and Charles, when she had been impatient and tired and had talked to herself out loud.

She had said, "If I only had a million," not dreaming that anyone would hear her, and someone had heard her.

Phil Stanley had heard her.

That remark had led to his impulsive request that she lunch with him at the University Club. That remark had been the loosening of a pebble in the affairs of her life, and the pebble had started an avalanche of action on her part that had carried her and her family into a kind of life they had never known before.

Cass street and the house with the furnace with its yawning mouth that ate up coal and gave so little heat, that torture of having to ask the landlord to wait for his rent just another week, the worry of having her brother Tom going from job to job, any kind of a job, when he ought to be in school, were fast becoming a memory now.

All because one day she had talked to herself out loud when she thought no one was listening.

The Kelleys lived on a different street now and in an apartment whose conveniences were both the joy and despair of Mother Kelly.

Gadgets, she called them. She said what was the world coming to when all a woman had to do was press buttons and ironing boards and what not came popping out of the wall at you. She said they just made for idleness that's what they did, and it was no wonder women nowadays went gadding around wasting time.

She sputtered about them and rocked, and rocked and sputtered, but she loved her new life, and Nancy knew that she did. She had a lovely rocking chair now, with not a squeak in it.

Even Timothy Kelly, expanding with pride in his new surroundings, had gotten himself a job in politics that he loved. It wasn't much of a job Nancy knew. It was down at the Democratic headquarters. It filled her father with immense importance.

He was a personality now. To hear him talk one would think that he was the confidant of the government and the chief adviser to the mayor, and the board of aldermen. Tom was back in school again. Under Nancy's tactful encouragement she had gotten him to enroll for the second semester at the School of Engineering.

All this happened, Nancy was thinking now, because one day in a moment of rebellion she happened to talk out loud to herself, because one other day in a moment of pride cut by the remark of Linda Van Vliet "you ARE a working girl, aren't you,"—she had taken up Phil Stanley's dare to venture into the business of a dress shop.

Housing For Aged Growing Problem

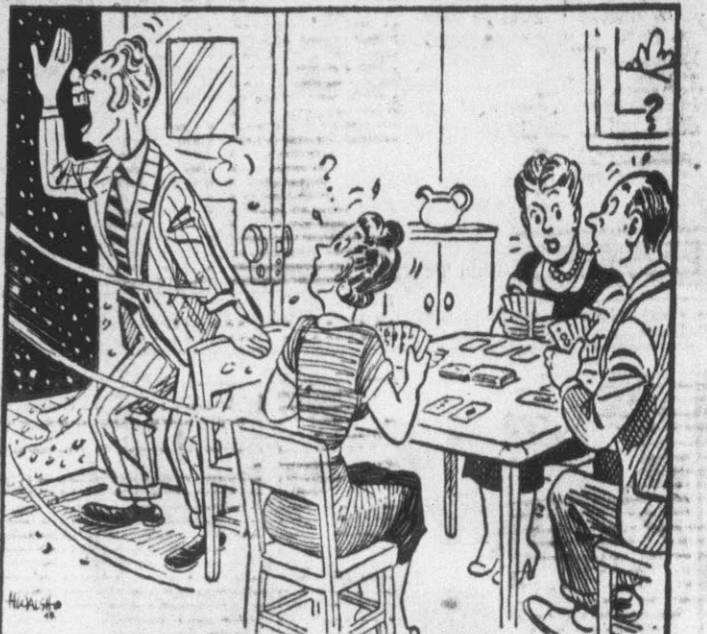

CHICAGO (UP)—Housing for the aged is a growing problem, according to the National Association of Housing Officials.

The association reported that Massachusetts recently became the first state to provide public funds to meet the need. A law passed by the legislature provided for a $5,000,000 program which allows an annual subsidy of $125,000 to keep rentals low on dwelling units for the aged.

The state will guarantee the notes or bonds of local authorities that build the housing, up to $5,000,000. The dwellings can be in separate projects or can be incorporated in other state or federally-aided projects.

In Memphis, Tenn., a federally aided, low-rent housing project has 88 one and two-bedroom units set aside specifically for childless couples and the aged. Stair climbing has been eliminated by ramps running from galleries on each floor down to the ground level.

The "ghost town" of Ryderwood, Wash., is being renovated for occupancy by aged, retired persons, ac-

Lengthy Docket Heard In City Police Court Monday

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Monday, when Zeb De Hines, middle-age Negro, told Judge Charles H. Wheebie that Johnny Best's turkie followed him to his home at 1108 Railroad street, the judge had his doubts.

His Honor checked the record and found that Hines had been convicted of larceny seven or eight times. The turkey, valued at $7.50 on foot, was recovered.

The judge gave Hines three months on the roads.

Zeb De Hines was up before the court on another charge, forging the name of James Harper, Negro, on a check. For this, the court found probable cause and sent the case up to Superior Court.

Willie Carr, Negro, charged in two warrants with breaking, entering and larceny, was ordered held for the Pitt County grand jury in Superior Court. One warrant charged him with breaking into the home of Jenolia Sneed, Negro, 1406 South Greene street, and the home of Matilda Bunch, Negro, 1409 South Greene street.

Willie Horn, Negro, no operator's license 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $15. For driving drunk, Judge Wheebie sentenced Horn to 90 days on the roads to be served consecutively with the first sentence. Judgment to be suspended on condition that Horn pay $100 and costs and not drive a motor vehicle for a year.

Willie June Clark, Negro, was found not guilty of larceny of a watch.

Speeding: Mack Hassell Smith, $25, costs deducted; James M. Mills, $15; Arthur J. Rosenthal, $20, costs deducted; Jerry B. Nichols, $25, costs deducted; James Patrick Jr., $15.

John O. Farmer, careless and reckless driving, $25, costs deducted. Curtis Taft, Negro, charged with attempted breaking and entering Calle B. Watson's home near the court gave him six months on the roads, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and placed him on probation for two years.

Simon Tyson, Negro, assault with a deadly weapon (knife) with intent to kill Alex Darden, Negro, probable cause found and he was bound over to Superior Court.

No operator's license: Isahai Moore, Negro, (and fraudulent use of another's operator's license), 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted. The judgment also provides that he is not to drive a motor vehicle for six months.

Willie J. Godley, Negro, allowing another person to use his operator's license, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $35, and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for six months.

James Davis, Negro, was found not guilty of larceny.

John Henry White, Negro, vagrancy 30 days in jail.

Julius A. Tidwell, paid $25, costs deducted for not having an operator's license. Zeno Barrett, Negro, paid $15 for a similar violation.

Joseph H. Adair, Negro, paid $15 for not stopping at a stop sign. Drunk: Henry Gray, Negro, $10 and Eugene Jordan, Negro, $10.

Election Day Results Anxiously Awaited As Clue To The Future

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's election day and the big ones—a mayor in New York and governors in New Jersey and Virginia—had Republicans and Democrats battling with one eye on election day a year hence.

Ever since a Democrat upset a Republican in Wisconsin's special congressional election last month, leaders of both parties have been looking to this day for clues. The way things go today, they theorize, might show how things will go in the 1954 congressional election.

As Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) expressed one GOP viewpoint, election of a Democratic governor in New Jersey—it would be the first time in 10 years—might set off a chain reaction resulting in a Democratic Congress.

That, Dirksen said, would "tie the hands" of President Eisenhower during the last two years of the first Republican national administration in two decades.

Eisenhower is backing the Republican candidates in all three crucial races—Paul L. Troast for New Jersey governor, Theodore R. Dalton for Virginia governor and Harold Riegelman for New York mayor.

The president has said that, while he doesn't want to use his office in partisan politics, he of course wants to see Republicans elected.

Troast, 58, and a wealthy contractor, is seeking the chair of Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll. He appeared to be a slight favorite to win over Democrat Robert B. Meyner, 44, a lawyer and former state senator.

In Virginia, Dalton's whirlwind attempt to become his state's first Republican governor whistled head-on into the powerful Democratic organization headed by Sen. Harry F. Byrd.

Byrd didn't take the stump for his man, former Rep. Thomas B. Stanley, 63, until two weeks ago. Before then Stanley had been campaigning in a quiet, easy-going manner while Dalton hit all 10 of the state's districts, dropped in at the White House for a chat and logged about 25,000 travel miles.

Most observers conceded Dalton, 52, was running well. But few predicted he would run well enough to win.

A heavy turnout—close to 400,000 compared with the 289,000 record of 1929—was expected at the polls. The key factor seemed to be how the anti-Byrd Democrats would vote.
