The Cat's Paw

SYNOPSIS

Charlotte Morgan's cats tried to tell her something when she stepped to her apartment late one night before Christmas Eve, after a long, bitter day of trying desperately to keep her mind on her creative advertising work in the hostile offices of the hated "King." She still could feel the eyes of Eric Hay burning into the back of her neck. She was serving a sentence, couldn't quit. The next day, while other office workers are holding Yale parties, "The King" postpones a staff meeting from 10:30 a. m. to 2 p. m. While waiting, Charlotte admits to herself that she is in love with Eric. At the afternoon conference she notices red blisters on the wrists of Kingsley Cummings. "The King," she surmises, has an allergic reaction. Alone in her apartment Christmas Eve, Charlotte answers the phone twice. The second call is her mother. After declining an invitation to dine with her mother, who left her father to run away with a writer when Charlotte was 13, there is a knock on the door. It is Eric, with a little Christmas tree and a bottle of champagne.

CHAPTER SIX

AT LAST the cats stretched out, exhausted, beneath the fragrant tree.

"Poor little kitties," Charlotte said. "Look how they love that tree and the smell of outdoors. Those noses are ecstatic."

"I felt slightly underprivileged city cat myself tonight," Eric said. "I got to remembering the way my mother baked Christmas cookies and puddings for weeks, and the wonderful way the house smelled. Do you remember such things?"

"My mother wasn't exactly the cookie-making type," Charlotte said.

"Is she still living, Charlotte?"

"I buried my mother long ago," Charlotte felt her lips press tightly. "Sorry," Eric said. "I admit I'm trying to find out more about you, and being very bull-in-china-shop. Maybe it's your close association with the cats."

"Maybe what is?"

"You're so like them. The feline grace, the unconscious attentions, then suddenly the independence the steel underneath. You're cautious as a cat and don't much like people I think. Or else you don't trust them, or need them. You even have the same eyes, slightly slant and beautiful, now so candid, suddenly so cold."

"Do you like cats?" Charlotte purred.

"I can't keep my hands off them." Slowly Eric came toward the couch where she sat curled up.

When he kissed her, she slung to him, not to drown in the flood of feeling. She was a gull floating in air. She was a snowflake, floating, falling, caught in a vortex. Just for seconds she felt safe, young—almost virginal. And then she broke away.

"Charlotte, Charlotte, I love you."

"No! Don't love me. Please go away. Go find some nice girl who's not like a cat, someone who'll bake cookies for Christmas. You're so nice and normal stick to your own kind." She stood straight and remote. Not the same girl who had kissed him.

"Charlotte!" Eric gripped her wrists. "You needn't hate me for being dull normal. I haven't spent the last ten years sheltered in the YMCA. Among other things I've been to war. I've seen what the so-called human is really like. And I've killed. One is never the same again."

There was a strained look on Eric's face, and his eyes were black. "Maybe he wasn't so stable after all."

His grip hurt Charlotte's wrists. She freed herself and stood rubbing them. "Please go," she said.

But Eric only sat down. "I guess I know what it is," he said slowly. "Kingsley Cummings."

Charlotte stared at him. "How did you . . . ?"

"Funny. It all just fell into focus. Though I don't really know what I know. There were a couple of rumors, you know. Somebody saw you together, or thought they did; in some restaurant, at the theater. Normal enough, better for business reasons to keep it quiet. Then your enemies, Dorothy and Velora—"

"My enemies?"

"Yes, didn't you know? Both scandal scavengers, strictly from hunger. One loves Cummings, one hates him, how could they be fond of you? Not that they've ever said anything specific, just hints, guesses. That's normal too. But there's something strange. The way Cummings lynx-eyes me whenever he sees me talking to you. The frightened way you react. The way you're sending me home now, since five minutes ago I discovered you don't loathe me. What's it all about, Charlotte? Let me help."

"You have quite a sense of the dramatic," Charlotte said. Have you tried playwriting? And just for the record, there's nothing between Mr. Cummings and me."

"But there was."

"Thank you for the Christmas tree. Thank you for your solicitude. But I've been coping with my own problems for several years." Charlotte still stood.

"All right, Charlotte, if that's what you want," Eric put on his hat. "Only if ever you need help—and I don't know what kind, I just have this feeling—send me an SOS. Well, will you be sending me party tomorrow?"

"My enemy? Yes. I thought I might go."

"See you, then. Good night."

He was gone, and presently she heard his steps dying down the empty street. Good-bye, Eric. Really good-bye.

She dropped down on the couch, and the memory of his nearness washed over her. It was a wave engulfing her, and she longed to yield herself to it. And then she fought, struggling up, back to the surface.

It almost got you, didn't it? Charlotte asked herself, Christmas, sentiment, loneliness, the chemistry called love. That's not for you, that Christmas present doesn't have your name on it. Do not open,

New Pastor Makes His Debut Here On Sunday Church Speaker

REV. J. MALLOY OWEN

The new pastor for St. James Methodist Church, Rev. J. Malloy Owen, will speak on the subject, "The Good News," in his first talk here tomorrow morning in the Greenville High School auditorium.

The young pastor, who graduated from Duke University Divinity School this year, will be making his debut as a pastor when he talks here in the morning.

For the past summer he was a member of a special youth evangelistic team under the General Board of Evangelism for the Methodist Church. The team conducted youth evangelistic missions in Augusta, Kansas City, Baltimore, and Wilmington, Delaware.

During the two summers prior to that he served as an assistant pastor under the Duke Endowment at Winston-Salem and Faison.

Mr. Owen was born and reared in Fayetteville. He attended public schools in that city before entering Davidson College where he received a BS degree in 1950. He received a BD degree from Duke in 1953.

He is not married, and is living temporarily at Quinerly Manor. In 1950 he was the student president of the Methodist Student Movement.

Church services for the St. James Methodist Church are held each Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Sunday School convenes at 9:45, with both services held in the high school at the present time.

St. James is planning to build a church on property located between 5th and 10th Streets, east of the campus early in 1954. The church office is located in Room 1 of the Munford Building at Five Points.

For his service Sunday, the new minister is using Luke, Chapter Four, verses 18 and 19.

Mr. Sam Bundy, outstanding layman of the Christian Church and recently elected president of the North Carolina Christian Missionary Convention, will speak at the Eighth Street Christian Church Sunday morning at the 11:00 service. November 15 has been designated as "Men's Day" and will be under the sponsorship of the Christian Men's Fellowship of which Guy C. Evans is chairman.

Several members of the Disciples students attending East Carolina College will go to Chapel Hill Saturday morning for a week-end retreat with other leaders of Christian young people from other colleges and universities throughout the state.

The Young Married Couples' Class will have their monthly fellowship supper at the church on Friday evening, November 20, at 7:00.

Chi Rho Fellowship and C. Y. E. will meet at 6:00 p.m. Sunday at the church.

New Pastor In Pulpit Here Sunday Morning

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will have their new preacher, Reverend William Miller Howard, fill the pulpit for his first regular sermon since his appointment to Greenville at the recent session in Durham of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church. Mr. Howard preached last Sunday on invitation from the local church since the announcement of the appointment was made November 1st.

Mr. Howard comes to Jarvis Memorial after spending four years as pastor of University Methodist Church in Chapel Hill. Greenville is the fifth pastorate the young preacher has held since he joined the Methodist Conference in 1936. His first assignment was West Halifax charge in Halifax County where he remained for five years. Next he went to Elm City for three years, leaving there to serve the Bethel Methodist here in Pitt County for six years. From Bethel he was assigned Chapel Hill, serving there for four years. From there he moved to the Methodist Pastorage in Greenville Tuesday of this week.

Mr. Howard's family is composed of his wife and two children. Mrs. Edith Barnes Howard, his wife, is a native of Elm City. The two children are Catherine, age 7, and Margaret, age 6.

Besides his highly successful role as a pastor, Reverend Howard served as dean of the Methodist Youth Assemblies at Lenoir College for seven years.

Mr. Howard was born and reared in Mocksville, North Carolina. He received his A.B. degree from High

PLENTY

"Be Thankful for Plenty" was the title of a sermon we heard many years ago. And we'll never forget how the preacher defined "plenty."

"If you have everything that money can buy, all the necessities and all the luxuries of life—and you don't have a Bible you can read and understand—then you're wanting to be thankful for! You're in want!"

"But if God has given you just enough of this world's goods for you to live from day to day—and you've a Bible you turn to every day—then be thankful! You have plenty!"

We can cherish that homely bit of inspiration. It sums up the kind of Thanksgiving our forefathers believed in . . . the kind of Thanksgiving that millions of us will celebrate this week in Church!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the sake of his community and nation. (3) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Another Pitt County Town As Viewed By Camera's Eye

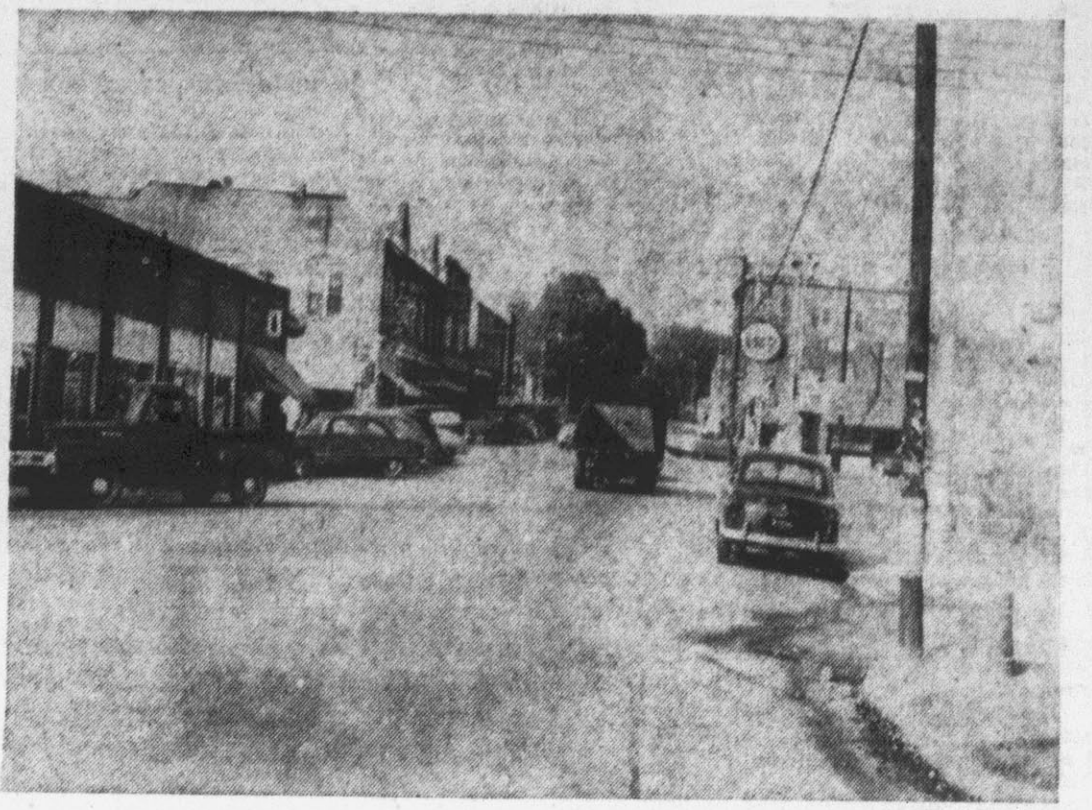

Recent Years Have Brought Ayden Community Considerable Growth

The two modern pieces of fire fighting equipment purchased by the city and residents around Ayden are pictured before the Ayden Fire Department. The American La France shown to the left was purchased by the town, while rural residents have bought the rural truck shown on the right. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee).

Built in 1935 the Ayden Community building located on East Second Street is one of the centers of activity of the Pitt community.

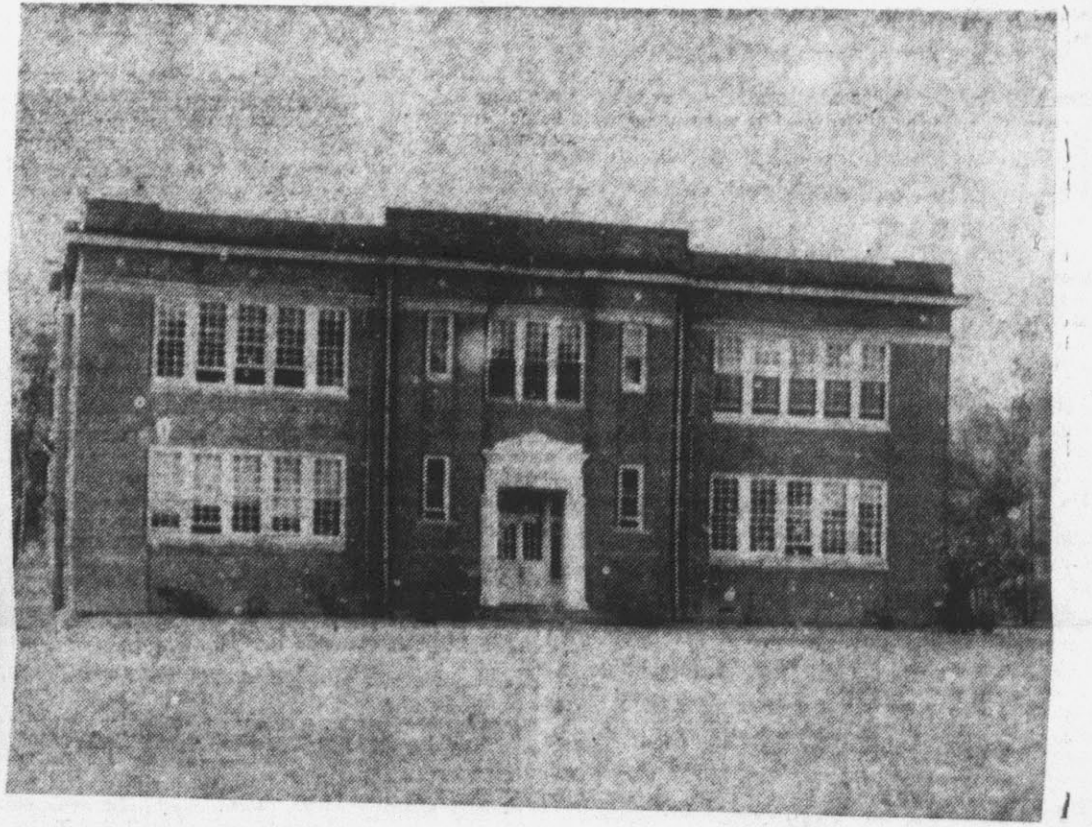

Here is a view of Ayden looking north from direction of the High School. The addition of new type street lighting and face lifting of many stores in the town has changed the appearance of the town considerably in the past few months.

The Free Will Baptist Press, located in Ayden, prints and distributes printed matter for the Free Will Baptists in the nation and is one of the most active business places in the town.

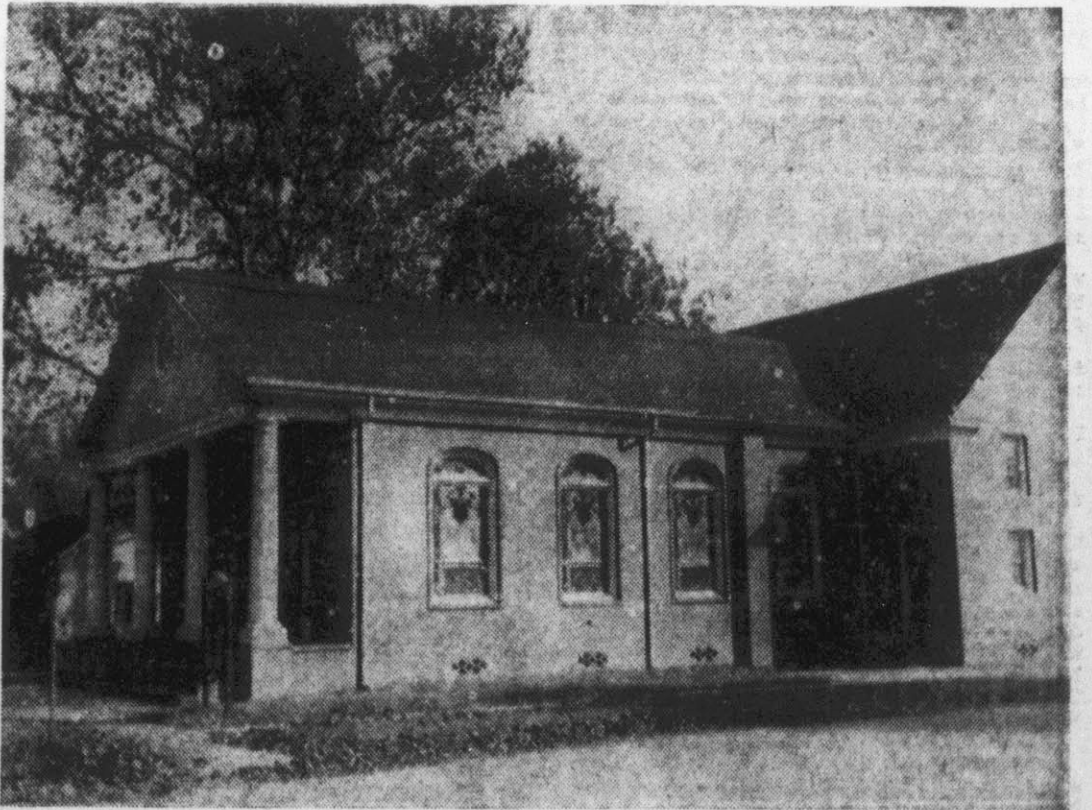

Over 538 school students daily attend the Ayden Elementary school which faces Snow Hill and West Third Streets in West Ayden.

A Policy To Help Greenville Taxpayers

Consideration might well be given by the citizens of Greenville and officials of other Pitt County municipalities to the policies on street improvement work recently adopted by the Greenville City Council.

The new set of policies, as we interpret them, are pointed toward encouraging the type of street improvement which will in the long run cost taxpayers the smallest possible amount in maintenance outlays.

At the same time the policies offer to individual property owners an incentive in dollars and cents do the kind of street improvement work which the city would like to see.

Secretary Wilson And His Foot

An important foot has gained prominence in the lighter side of the news in the past week. That's the foot of Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson.

The former head of General Motors told the story on himself.

It seems an automobile salesman was pointing out the finer points of automatic transmission in a new car when the customer came up with the question of what to do with the foot that formerly was used on the clutch pedal.

The salesman of the GM product said, "Put it in your mouth like my former boss (Wilson) does."

Wilson, of course, got a kick out of the joke. So have millions of others around the nation. It sort of helps restore the feeling that Americans still retain that quality of laughing at themselves and enjoying it.

Well, Mr. Wilson, in his position as Secretary of Defense, does occasionally put his foot in his mouth. But so do most other officials on all levels do the same proverbial trick now and then. So do a lot of other people including newspaper editors.

But the man who recognizes his own faux pas and manages to chuckle at himself as others sometimes do, is the one who gets along better in the long run.

Strength for the Day

WORKING OUT OUR SALVATION
One reason why more people are not devout Christians is because they do not work hard enough at the job of being Christian.

The Bible teaches us that we cannot gain our salvation through works. Salvation is not our achievement—it is the gift of God.

But although we cannot gain our salvation by works, it is equally true that we cannot keep our salvation without works. We cannot perform certain acts and become Christians as the result of these achievements, but once we have laid hold on the Christian life by faith, we have to work to keep that life intact. The Bible describes this as working out our salvation with fear and trembling. We do not work for our salvation, but having gained salvation through faith, we work out our salvation. We apply to the situations of life the principles which have become ours through faith.

If we are going to be Christians, we have to work at it every day. This means seeking God's counsel in the Bible, seeking His guidance through prayer, practicing self-restraint, and continually putting our religious beliefs into practical operation.

It takes a lifetime of effort to integrate God's gift of salvation into the structure of our lives.

What About Ike's Promises?

By RAY TUCKER

Every Saturday this veteran Washington columnist devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent directly to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"The Democrats are jeering and flouting at President Eisenhower because he hasn't kept his promises," writes Mrs. L.M. of Dallas, Tex., "and this charge may have hurt the Republicans in the recent elections. What promises did he make, and why hasn't he kept them?"

Answer: President Eisenhower made numerous grandiose pledges in the 1952 campaign, as all candidates do, although his distinguished opponent, Mr. Stevenson, took the opposite tack. Stevenson's speeches were grimly realistic.

Ike gave the impression that all our difficulties, foreign and domestic, would vanish, if he were elected. That is the normal way of normal American office seekers.

FOREIGN POLICY CONSISTENTLY SUCCESSFUL—But it seems only fair to hold Eisenhower responsible solely for the specific and sober hopes which he aroused in his message to Congress on the State of the Union, in which he outlined his domestic program.

He devoted his inaugural address chiefly to a discussion of foreign affairs, and to that front he has done fairly consistently and successfully. There is no doubt that we are gaining, while Russia is slipping at home and abroad.

OBJECTIVES NOT ACHIEVED—In his Union message which I have beside me, Ike declared himself favor of: (1) budget balancing and an "honest dollar" policy toward lower prices and an "honest dollar" extension of Social Security benefits to millions of uncovered (3) "corrective revision" of the Taft-Hartley Act (4) "economic stability and full parity" for farmers (5) an end to segregation "in the District of Columbia, including the Federal Government."

Not a single one of these objectives had been achieved when the 1953 session of Congress quit Washington on August 3, after a seven months' occupation of Capitol Hill.

While the policies are not an absolute deviation from the past policies of the city toward street improvements, they contain several important new aspects.

In the first place, the new policies set forth in concrete terms the fact that the city feels a strong obligation to shoulder a portion of the cost of street improvement work. While the City of Greenville has paid for some paving of streets from Powell Bill Funds in the past two years, it has been the predominant practice for property owners to pay the full cost of paving in most cases.

Now, when funds are available, the city will pay for a portion of the permanent improvement work which is done according to its specification. The new policies point toward encouraging the use of curb and gutter as well as paving of streets, where no such encouraging factor was as expressly present in past city policies toward street improvement. The use of curb and gutter—as well as paving—will make for less maintenance costs on even paved streets of the city.

While the new policies toward street improvement adopted by the council do not promise a paving boom in Greenville, they do indicate an active effort is being made by the municipal government to get more paving done.

A Stiff Blow For Western Hunters

It was a stiff blow for hunters and fishermen in western counties of North Carolina when Governor Umstead issued his order this week banning hunting, trapping, and in some cases fishing, in 29 counties.

Viewed objectively, however, it would be a much more severe loss to the hunters and fishermen in those counties—as well as to the state—if forest fires laid waste to thousands of acres of woodland in that area.

The drastic action taken by the governor seems justified in the light of the extremely dry conditions in that area, and in view of the increased possibilities of forest fires if large numbers of people are allowed to wander through the woods of that area.

It must be difficult for the hunters of the 29 western counties to see the necessity of their being deprived of hunting their favorite lands because of the dry weather.

As we interpret the governor's action, it is based upon the assumption that the smaller the number of people in the woods, the less the chance of fires.

The step is doubtlessly taken not only to preserve the natural timber resources of the 29 county area; but to protect the wildlife resources of that area as well. Serious forest fires in the western part of the state probably would take a proportionately heavier loss of wildlife than of timber resources.

Success Of United Fund Plan; Govm't Secrecy Rapped

IMPORTANT REASONS PREVENTED ACTION
There are several reasons why legislation carrying out these pledges was not enacted at the last session. I am not trying to offer an alibi for Ike or for the Republicans. I am merely analyzing the legislative situation as I saw it, and as it appeared to Eisenhower's advisers at the White House.

In the first instance, several months were devoted almost entirely to committee consideration and House-Senate debate on foreign problems, including repudiation of agreements giving utility concessions to Russia, and the amount of foreign military and economic aid. Concentration on this politically delicate problem prevented any final action on domestic questions.

Both budget balancing and tax cuts went out the window as a result of new demonstrations of Russian hostility, even though Congress did slice $12 billion from Truman appropriation requests. Prospective bankruptcy of the Social Security System as now conducted required further study before there could be any extension of coverage or increase in benefit payments.

DIFFICULT PROBLEMS—Ike's hope that labor and management could get together quickly on Taft-Hartley revision was blasted with the Durkin resignation. The President found that this problem is not susceptible to an easy solution.

Eisenhower and Benson thought they could take their time in preparing and introducing a new farm program, since existing legislation lasts through next year. The price decline on farm goods had been checked slightly, for they fell 11 per cent before inauguration, and only about 5 per cent since January 20. But the drought-sharpened the farmers' impatience, as did Secretary Benson's intimations that he wanted more flexible price supports than the current maximum of 90 per cent.

SLOWNESS ADMITTED—At a recent press conference Ike conceded frankly that he had been slow to keep these pledges. He intimated that the "mess" he agreed to clean up was messier than he had anticipated when he was on the outside looking into White House windows. But he promised—again—that he would implement these pledges at the January-July session of Congress, 1954.

If he doesn't, he may be a one-term President, and he knows it!

Narrowing Gap In College Life

The gap between North Carolina's Big Four Colleges (Carolina, Duke, Wake Forest and N. C. State) and East Carolina College is growing smaller as time goes by.

This is evidenced in many ways, even by a night spot frequented by college students. After wondering what was on the inside for many moons, last night I dropped in the Jolly Roger, formerly the Port Terminal Inn, located on the Washington highway.

What I saw reminded me so much of Carolina that I could almost visualize myself walking in the Buckner at Chapel Hill. The same atmosphere prevails: soft light, music, the college decoration, a tremendous amount of socializing.

The Jolly Roger features photographs of East Carolina's favorite athletes; in fact, its operators are former footballers themselves, Iillard Yarborough and Hawk Grissom. The collegiate look comes from the footprints that lead your eyes up one wall, across the ceiling and down the other.

To me, studying certain subjects in college was a grind, while the former was just about impenetrable to the Jolly Roger is the type of place the college student goes to get his mind off the grueling ones. Here the students sit around and talk about everything imaginable except studies.

J. R. Laughinghouse walked up to me and said, "How about giving us a plug on the East Carolina College football players we plan to make an All-American?"

The deal is this: Harry Wismer, the former sports director of the American Broadcasting Company and the announcer who covered Carolina's two appearances in the

What Other Editors Are Thinking

TWO ATTITUDES IN CRISIS (Henderson Distpatch)

Russia's Defense Minister Nikolai Bulganin sounds off in a warning to the West that the Red army stands ready to "guarantee the security" of the Soviet Union. But against what or whom? Who is threatening the Communist empire? Certainly the democracies have no intention or thought of invading Russian territory. All they are interested in is protecting themselves against Soviet aggression, which has been rampant in many areas since the end of World War II.

It was Moscow that inspired the Korean war, which forced members of the United Nations into action to stem further encroachment by the Communists. It was the Korean war that set off a vast rearmament program in the United States. That was not and is not for the purpose of aggression.

Had the western powers been minded to seek empire or to dominate other peoples they never would have laid down arms after the last conflict. Russia not only did not disarm but set about immediately to build a greater fighting force and is still engaged in that activity today, more than eight years after the last shot was fired in 1945. Who, then, is aggressive, and who is threatening other nations?

The Russian statement evidently was meant for home consumption as well as to strike fear into the minds of free peoples. Every one, including the master minds of the Kremlin, knows that Russia is not threatened and that there is no one nor anything to guarantee its own security against. They are building for a possible aggression of their own. They are not only carrying a big stick but are brandishing it on every side to intimidate smaller states and to frighten the larger ones if possible.

U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge now declares that disarmament and world peace depend on a "change of mind and attitude" by Russia's rulers. That's America's viewpoint. It could have been a little less ambiguous, for it is easy to interpret the statement as meaning that unless the big shots in Moscow change their mind there will be conflict. It would not be surprising if they choose, at least publicly, to contrue the declaration in that light, which, of course, would be far from the truth.

But here are two official attitudes elucidated in the midst of crisis. Each is aiming its statement at the other. The world might profit as a result, but more likely its existing case of jitters will be the more intensified in the wake of these outgivings.

Natural and obvious conclusion from these several incidents is the Eisenhower administration apparently is willing to trust the good sense of the people in respect degree than did those in responsible positions under the Roosevelt and Truman regimes.

It is interesting to note that connection that while the Federal government is loosening restrictions on publicity about matters concerning the people of the United States and the world, North Carolina has a 1953 statute permitting secrecy in legislative consideration of appropriating tax moneys—something that could not be by the most liberal interpretation have any connection with national or state or common "security."

POLITICS—It is rather generally conceded that the timing of the Brownell exposition of the White matter was in the interest of partisan politics. Alarmed by reverses in Wisconsin and New Jersey and failure to make substantial gains in New York City and Virginia, the Republican high command was desperate for the lively issue. Although it was eight years old the White case afforded the desired opportunity. Opinion around capitol square is that injection of this issue very probably determined outcome of the Los Angeles congressional election, which had the effect of stopping the trend away from the Republican administration.

To paraphrase a favorite expression of ex-Governor Kerr Scott, who answered most questions about national and international affairs with the cryptic observation "That is a long way from Haw River," the Wisconsin, New Jersey, New York, California and Chicago incidents are "a long

Business Today Service Businesses

By ELMER ROESSNER
Service businesses may have a little tax boom between now and the end of the year, if they promote it. So should personal loan departments of banks.

Making necessary and deductible expenditures this year instead of next tends to shift profits from 1953 to 1954. Since the excess-profits tax expires on December 31, corporation profits next year will be taxed at no more than 52 per cent, while the EPT rate this year is much higher.

So it will pay many corporations to have typewriters and other office machines repaired, plant maintenance brought up to date, repairs made and other services completed and paid for. A bit of advertising by companies performing these services might pay pipe dividends.

Since personal tax rates drop about 10 per cent at the same time, individuals can make similar savings by making deductible payments before then. They should take care, however, not to shift so much income that they'll push themselves into a higher bracket next year.

An important area of saving for many individuals is in state and local taxes. Since these are usually deductible, immediate payment of the rest of taxes due in the fiscal year may result in neat savings.

In cases of some individuals and many EPT-bracket corporation, the savings will be large enough to justify borrowing money to attain them, and many banks probably will seek this business. However, the problem of the amount of saving vs. the cost of a loan involves a bit of tricky arithmetic, and before any individual or corporation commits itself it should work out details with a tax accountant.

And, of course, paying the tax accountant this year may help, too.

Man's Daydreams Also Grow Up

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Your daydreams grow up as you do.

This fact is giving me quite a headache. My daydreams used to be fun. Now they're hard mental work. To tell you the truth, my daydreams are beginning to give me nightmares.

Here, for example, is my oldest and most favorite daydream: Dawn is breaking on the plains as I ride up to a small campfire, dismount stiffly from my tired pony, and put down my smoking rifle.

A buckskin-clad figure dozing by the fire throws up a blanket and looks up drowsily. It is Buffalo Bill, himself.

"Where you been, Hal?" he asks.

"Just shot me 1,276 buffalo," I reply curtly.

"In the dark?"

"Of course, in the dark. Any man who shoots a buffalo by daylight is a coward."

"You can't call me that," says Buffalo Bill, reaching for his holster.

"Draw, darn you, draw!" I say, my gun hand hovering like eagle talons. Buffalo Bill looks in my steel gray eyes and sees death in them.

"I was just a-jokin'," he says lamely.

"Well, I wasn't," I answer shortly. "When you kill buffalo, you sell 'em to the railroad work gangs, don't you?"

"Yeah," says Buffalo Bill. "It's just a living with me."

"Well, you know what I'm going to do with my 1,276 buffalo, Bill? I'm a-going to give 'em all free to the pioneer mothers of America so as they can feed their kids. Why do you suppose they all call me 'Buffalo Bill, the Mother's Pal'?"

Buffalo Bill is so ashamed he covers up his head with his blanket like a prairie dog. End of dream.

Well, about the time of my 40th birthday this daydream began to get a bit threadbare. I got ashamed of making poor old Buffalo Bill feel ashamed.

I looked around for a new rival in my day dreams and found him in "Real Estate Bill." And I've had nothing but woe since.

This "Real Estate Bill" is William Zeckendorf, the fabulous Manhattan dealer who sold the United Nations site to John D. Rockefeller Jr. at a two million dollar profit. Bought the top of Nob Hill out in San Francisco, and owns or controls acreage and buildings in 35 states and three foreign countries.

Zeckendorf doesn't seem to know himself where his next tremendous deal is coming off. In my daydreams I was making him look like a minor league cemetery lot salesman.

Then I made the mistake of dreaming I bought the Chrysler building while Bill gnashed his teeth and moaned, "Hal, you outbid me again."

Well, the next day I picked up the paper and—bless me—Zeckendorf actually had purchased the Chrysler tower and two other skyscrapers for $2 millions. Since then he has announced plans for a multi-million dollar garage, a 35-million-dollar shopping center, and gave away $500,000 to Long Island University as a kind of afterthought.

What can you dream up against a guy like that? Last night I had this nightmare:

"Well, Bill," I said, "I bought Grant's Tomb, the Statue of Liberty, the Eiffel Tower, and the Washington Monument this morning. Think I'll air-condition 'em all—except the Eiffel Tower, of course. What'd you buy today, another Broadway shooting gallery?"

And Bill just quietly tossed over a newspaper that had this headline: "Zeckendorf purchases U.S. Mint, announces plans to modernize currency."

I woke up sweating. Guess I'd better go back to dreaming about old Buffalo Bill. He can't fight back.

Soil Testing Program Beneficial To Farms In County

Proven Savings When Needs Of Soil Determined

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County farmers are obtaining good results from the State Department of Agriculture's soil testing program, according to Sam T. Weeks, assistant county farm agent.

Weeks estimated that several hundred farmers have taken advantage of the program this year. He said that most of the farmers had reported good results after following the recommendations of the Soil Testing Division.

Most farmers say that they notice a difference in crops produced on fields on which soil test results are utilized.

Eric Whichard, who operates a farm in the Stokes section, this year sent off soil samples to the Soil Testing Division of the State Department of Agriculture for the first time.

Whichard said that he took tests in five fields on his farm and he received the results of the test in a matter of five or six days from the laboratory.

The Soil Testing Division recommended that in field number one Whichard plant tobacco in 1954, 1955 and 1956. They recommended that he use 800 pounds of 4-8-10 fertilizer per acre in bands each year and no lime.

For field number two the laboratory recommended that he plant corn in 1954 and 1955 using 350 pounds of 6-6-12 fertilizer and a side dressing of 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre each year. For 1956 they recommended planting tobacco with 800 pounds of 4-8-10 in bands per acre.

Whichard is to plant field number three in soybeans in 1954 after treating it with one ton of limestone per acre. In 1955 and 1956 he is to plant the field in corn with 300 pounds of 0-14-14 fertilizer per acre.

Field number four was also recommended for soybeans in 1954 and corn in 1955 and 1956. The recommendations call for 400 pounds of 5-10-10 and a sidedressing of muriate of potash and 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre each year.

For field number five the report recommended no lime. The laboratory recommendations called for corn in 1954 with 400 pounds of 5-10-10 and a side dressing of 75

Eric Whichard of Route 1, Stokes is shown taking a soil sample to be sent in to the Soil Testing Division of the State Department of Agriculture in Raleigh. pounds of muriate of potash and 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre. Also corn in 1955 and 1956 and 400 pounds of 5-10-10 with a side dressing of 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre each year.

In taking the soil samples, farmers are advised to divide the area to be tested into sections no larger than five to ten acres. Areas that are distinctly different in crop growth in the appearance of the soils such as light and dark coloring or which have had different past management (tilling, manuring, fertilizing or cropping), should be sampled separately.

The Bureau emphasizes that 15 to 20 samples should be taken.

A map of the field should be prepared and the spots from where the samples were obtained numbered. The soil container can then be numbered to correspond with the map in order that the sample areas can be identified when the soil testing results are returned.

An information sheet is also provided with the soil sample container. On this the farmer is to provide such information as the soil conditions of fields sampled to include drainage, slope of the land, soil type if known, and lime applied. Under past history of the fields is listed the crops grown and the yield from the field for the past two years and also the fertilizer applied to the field. Finally under cropping for the next two years are sections on manure to be applied, cover crops to be turned, and any crops that the farmer might want recommendations for.

The soil containers are to be mailed to the Soil Testing Division of the State Department of Agriculture in Raleigh, where tests will be made and the results returned to the sender.

Containers and information for the tests may be obtained from any vocational teacher in the county or from the Pitt County Farm Agent's office in the County office building (old hospital), according to Weeks.

Prison Release Means Money

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Under a new policy, all North Carolina convicts except short-termers convicted of misdemeanors will be given money when released from prison.

Those who have served from 2 to 15 years get $15. Those who served more than 15 years get $25. The Highway Commission said the money will help the newly-released men and women to pay their way until they can rejoin their families or find work.

Church Organist Is Ten Years Old

MONTELLO, Wis. (AP)—The Thirty Methodist Church of Montello has a new organist who is only 10 years old. Gladys Grundman plays for services on alternate Sundays.

She began piano lessons when she was 6 years old and added study of the organ last year.

Recommend Cover Crop After Harvesting Peanuts

The workman above is pouring recently threshed peanuts into a burlap bag. Part of the peanut thresher can be seen in the background. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

EASY MONEY
ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UP)—The simplest suggestion often brings big dividends. Clarence W. Houghtaling, a 30-year-veteran of the Eastman Kodak Co., recommended that finished photographic paper samples be transported by pneumatic tube rather than by messenger. The new method insures speedy inspection and reporting. For the suggestion, Houghtaling received $1,500.

Falkland Ruritan Building Community Center

Members of the Falkland Ruritan Club begin work on the new Community Building for Falkland township. The building will have an assembly room 60 feet by 36 feet and a 11 by 25 foot kitchen. It is being built under the sponsorship of the Falkland Ruritan Club. Pictured above are Charlie Tyre, chairman of the building committee; Marvin Dean, treasurer of the Ruritan Club; G. A. Leonard; J. A. Moore; and Frank Corbett. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

FALKLAND—Construction began last week on the new Community building for Falkland township, it was announced today by Charlie Tyre, chairman of the building committee.

The new building, located next to the Falkland school, is being built under the sponsorship of the Falkland Ruritan Club.

The concrete block building will have an assembly room measuring 60 feet by 36 feet and a kitchen 11 by 25 feet to the rear of the assembly room.

Cost of the structure was estimated at about $7500 and it is anticipated that it will be completed by late Spring.

It will be used by various civic organizations for meetings in Falkland township, including the Ruritan Club and the local Boy Scout troop which is sponsored by the Ruritan Club.

Chairman of the Building Committee for the project is C.H. Tyre. Other members of the Building Committee include J. E. Moore, Mrs. J. E. Watson, Mrs. David Morrill, Mrs. Mary Lucille Lane and Levi Wooten.

Cattlemen Meet On December 10

RALEIGH — The third annual North Carolina Beef Cattle Conference will be held in the new Arena at the N.C. State Fairgrounds here December 10-11, announced Dr. J.W. Fou, head of the department of animal industry at N.C. State College.

Fou said the two-day event offers Tar Heel beef producers an opportunity to hear discussions of the latest developments in beef cattle feeding, breeding, management, and disease and parasite control.

The program, Fou said, has been designed for both the purebred cattle breeder and the commercial cattle producer. Cattle breeders, State College staff members, and representatives of the feed industry will participate in the program.

Agrees Farm Issues To Decide Election

By EDWIN B. HAANKINSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Case (R-SD) said today he expects the Eisenhower administration to recommend to Congress in January a farm program that will assure Republican control of Congress after next year's elections.

Case said "there is no doubt" but that the farm issue would decide the elections.

Case conferred yesterday with Agriculture Department officials after spending the past month talking to farmers and livestock men in his normally Republican state.

He had no criticism for Secretary of Agriculture Benson, as a Republican congressman and many Democrats have had. He praised the recent departmental reorganization by Benson which among other things revamped the soil Conservation Service and eliminated its regional offices. This feature touched off considerable criticism.

"I think that's a good thing," Case said in an interview. "It will place more authority in the state offices of the conservation service and bring it that much closer to the farmers."

Case agreed with Benson's critics that there is considerable dissatisfaction among farmers because of the drop in farm prices and incomes and lower prices for beef cattle.

"But beef prices have been fairly good for the past month and there has been some increase while hog and corn prices have remained strong," he said.

Case said he has "some ideas" as to the program the administration will offer at the new session but could not discuss them now.

Pastures Out Of Idle Farm Land

Local Production and Marketing officials are recommending the Pitt County farmers use land that will be taken out of production of wheat, cotton and possibly corn for providing more grass, hay, and silage this year.

Much land will not be used this year for wheat because wheat growers have already approved marketing quotas on wheat in a referendum.

In addition a considerable amount of land will be released if the cotton marketing quota referendum to be held December 15 carries. Farmers were urged to plant more pastureland and to consider adding to livestock.

Officials said that much of this released land will be eligible for establishment of permanent pasture under the 1954 Agricultural Conservation Program. Farmers interested in using ACP cost-sharing in making use of their diverted acreage should visit the PMA office in the Pitt County Office Building before the close of the ACP sign-up on November 6.

Phants Close Year With 13-0 Loss To Roanoke Rapids

Jackets Score Twice In Second Quarter

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

ROANOKE RAPIDS—It was Friday the Thirteenth.

Witches, black cats, hexes—and a horde of Yellow Jackets—were working against Greenville's Phantoms.

How the witches, black cats, and hexes came out is a matter that isn't known. The Yellow Jackets did all right, though, because they swept to a 13-0 victory over the Phantoms to sew up fifth place in the North-eastern Conference for the year.

The game rounded out the 1933 season for the Phantoms, one of their most dismal seasons in recent years. Eight consecutive losses followed two early season victories to put the Phantoms practically at the bottom of the heap with their North-eastern Conference mates. They won once and lost five times in conference play and wound up ahead of only Jacksonville which lost all six of its conference games.

Hard-Fought Game

The game last night was not a runaway for the Yellow Jackets. They struck for a pair of quick touchdowns in the second period but the rest of the time they were fighting tooth-and-nail with the Phantoms to keep the G-men out of pay dirt.

The entire first period was consumed by long marches by each team. Neither scored but both threatened seriously.

The Phantoms did the first threatening, after the opening kickoff. They drove, with short power thrusts up the middle, all the way to the Roanoke Rapids 20. There the Yellow Jackets' defense stiffened and the Roanoke Rapids team took over on downs at that point.

Return Of One-Platoon's Pace Enjoyed By Public

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Some coaches with whom we talked and others we saw quoted, felt sure that "horse and buggy" football, as they termed it, would die a violent death after a single season and that the fans would rise in a body to demand return of the two-platoon system.

By this time they must realize they were badly mistaken and, much as it galls them, be reconciling themselves to the probability that they never again will be able to field two teams of specialists. The pain will subside after a time.

From every indication we have seen, the public loves the return of the iron men. There has been a certain pleasure in discovering that we still are turning out young men who can play 60 minutes and star both on offense and defense. The 50 per cent All American player never was very satisfactory to anybody, including his own family.

It seems here that in reading the papers Sunday morning we are regaled with accounts of more long, spectacular runs from every section of the country than in the years the two-platoon held sway. There seems to be less dependence upon the air arm among the better teams. They have found they can move on the ground again.

The two-platoon adherent will say, probably with justification, that this is a to be expected result of weakened defenses. Coaches in post-game interviews are mourning about the mistakes their men made on defense. They are to be sympathized with up to a point, but they also are to be reminded that the original and still greatest thrill of football is the sight of a runner threading his way for long yardage.

The coaches are rediscovering the fact that the team which can move on the ground and keep pos-the outstretched arms of Billy Arnold and into the waiting hands of Bob Howell. Howell ran the ball out to the five where it was first and ten for the Phantoms.

Touchdown Drive

Three thrusts at the line carried the Phantoms exactly no where but Jerry Drum kicked Greenville temporarily out of danger with a 50-yard kick to midfield. That's where the Jackets started their first touchdown drive.

Two sweeps around the Greenville ends by Jacket halfback Tommy Williamson put the man on the Greenville 10-yard line. And the Jackets were set for their first score.

Quarterback Gene Moye actually accounted for the six points with a slick piece of ball-handling magic. He faked the ball to his right halfback and fullback and seemed to keep the ball himself for a plunge over tackle. Suddenly, left halfback Williamson stepped across into the end zone and flipped the ball to the official while everybody was wondering how he did it.

The move by Moye fooled everybody. That includes all of the Phantoms, the spectators, and the radio announcer.

Although dumbfounded by the play, the Phantoms recovered enough to stop Moye's attempt for the extra point.

They weren't recovered enough, however, to keep Roanoke Rapids from getting its second touchdown exactly 80 seconds later.

After the kickoff, the Phantoms were penalized to their own six-yard line. Unable to gain through the line, the Phantoms sent Drum back to kick again but the maneuver backfired when David Williams blocked the attempt. Williams fell on the ball in the end zone for the TD. Williams also added the extra point.

After that, it was all over but the shouting.

session of the ball a majority of the time, avoiding the risks of promiscuous forward passing, is a very hard team to beat. The fans are benefiting and the gifted ball-carrier again is hogging the headlines.

The three most talked-about backs of the moment are Johnny Latner of Notre Dame, Paul Giel of Minnesota and J. C. Caroline, the sensational Illinois sophomore. All three are winning fame primarily as runners. There still are some line passers about, of course, but they are not occupying the spotlight to the extent they did.

It sounds like a return to the days of Red Grange and other open field immortals when Russ Lynch writes of Carolina in the Milwaukee Journal:

"He has to be seen to be believed. He seems to hit full speed with his second stride and after that he is as hard to catch as a greased pig. Just a slit is enough and he goes through it with such speed that line backers seldom have time to react."

"J. C. has a trick of twisting his body to slide past tacklers. He seems to have a 'gear shift' like Don Hutson and can step up from fast to faster. He sidesteps sometimes for three or four yards. Apparently trapped, he does not hesitate to run back toward his own goal."

In view of that kind of talk, we are beginning to wonder if the professionals were as smart as they thought they were when they refused to go along with the colleges and retained unlimited substitution.

We saw a pro game the other day in which one of the teams all more literally did nothing but pass. It passed on any down at any point in the playing field. It's ball carriers, if any, might as well have stayed home. This team won, too, but it was an awfully dull ball game.

Notre Dame - Carolina Top ACC Attraction

Atlantic Coast Conference football action found the nation's three major unbeaten records endangered today, according to coaches.

Top-ranked Notre Dame, unbeaten in six games, played North Carolina. Irish Coach Frank Leahy termed the Tar Heels "potentially dangerous". Few could be found to share his fears.

There were more grounds for the fears of Art Lewis, coach of eighth-ranked West Virginia. The Southern Conference kings risked a 12-game unbeaten streak—the nation's best—against South Carolina of the ACC.

Maryland's Jim Tatum could gloom over the visit of a once-beaten foe from the Southeastern Conference—Mississippi—and consequent danger to the Terps' eight-game victory record.

There were other types of worries in the conference. Coach Frank Howard over-confidence as his Clemson Tigers met The Citadel. Coach Horace Hendrickson, his lowly North Carolina State team facing Pittsburgh, just plain worried.

There were no immediate worries for Wake Forest's Tom Rogers and Duke's Bill Murray. Their teams had open dates.

Their staunchest followers couldn't rate the Tar Heels as anything but 27 to 34 point underdogs against the Fighting Irish. Most North Carolina fans hoped their favorites could hang onto the ball and present a creditable performance. The Tar Heels fumbled 11 times against Tennessee and lost four fumbles to both Georgia and South Carolina.

Coach Rex Enright of South Carolina arrived in Morgantown, W. Va., with the announcement that "we didn't come up to lose" to the Mountaineers. He clarified reported injuries to the Gamecocks by describing hurts to nine of his 11 starters as "superficial". Lewis revealed that his sound is not injury-free but reported at least 11 regulars ready to start.

The showdown game of the day was scheduled for College Park, Md. Mississippi tested the second-ranked Terps in a battle that harked back to last year's upset victory by the Rebels. Maryland had been undefeated in 22 straight games until the Terps met the Rebels, and lost 21-14. Bowl bids hung on today's outcome.

A 44-year-old football rivalry was renewed at Charleston, where Clemson was favored over The Citadel. The meeting was the first between the ancient foes since Clemson won 20-0 in 1948. Quarterback Don King was expected to lead the Tigers' improving Tattack against the Cadets.

North Carolina State cast sophomore quarterback Eddie West in the David role against Pittsburgh's Goliath. The Wolfpack counted on their versatile 195-pounder to pass and run in the same fashion as he performed against Army last week. State brought a 1-6 showing into the game, compared to Pitt's 2-4-1.

Browns Face Tough Game With San Francisco 49ers

NEW YORK (AP)—Are the Cleveland Browns unbeatable?

Tomorrow's game between the Browns and San Francisco 49ers, which highlights a full slate of six National Football League tilts, will go a long way toward answering that question and a few others certain to affect the circuit's final standings.

Certainly if the Browns are to be defeated this year, the high-scoring West Coasters are the one to do it. Joe Perry, the league's ace ground gainer and Y. A. Title, back in top passing form, give San Francisco a tough one-two punch.

Although Cleveland, which has breezed through seven games, can lose and still hold a comfortable margin at the head of the Eastern Conference, this is a must game for San Francisco.

three-way tie for the Western Conference lead with Los Angeles and Detroit, almost certainly will mean a drop into second or third place. The Rams take on the winless Chicago Cardinals and the Lions meet the none-too-formidable Green Bay Packers.

The Philadelphia Eagles will be at home to the Baltimore Colts, the New York Giants tangle with the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Washington Redskins meet the Chicago Bears.

Despite San Francisco's well-rounded offense, Cleveland is listed as a seven-point favorite.

The Cardinals, who have dropped seven straight, hardly figure to bother Los Angeles.

Detroit, too looks like a clinch to whip Green Bay, although the Packers will be playing at home.

Bobby Layne, off his showing against Baltimore last week end, appears to be back in stride.

Two Clubs Scrap For Second Place In North State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

East Carolina has wrapped up the 1933 North State Conference football crown but two clubs are still in the running for runnerup honors.

Catawba, current holder of second place in the conference standings, meets Guilford at Salisbury tonight. Lenoir Rhyne is host to Elon at Hickory.

Catawba enjoyed a 2-1-1 conference record going into the Guilford game. Lenoir Rhyne staged a comeback after a poor start and carried a 2-2 loop mark into the Elon fray.

East Carolina, still hoping for a possible bowl bid, met Stetson at Deland, Fla., today.

Friday night non-conference action saw Appalachian down Morris Harvey, 26, and Western Carolina lose to Presbyterian, 20-7.

A 40-yard pass from quarterback James Stevens to halfback Fred Henry in the closing minutes of the game accounted for Western Carolina's only score.

Shirley Gabriel scored three Appalachian touchdowns to help sink Morris Harvey. Two of Gabriel's scores came on passes from quarterback Ned Pennell. Jim Ollis sprinted 37 yards for another Mountaineer touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Pirates Meet Stetson U. In Season's Last Contest

DeLAND, Florida—Stetson University and East Carolina College were both pronounced "ready" last night for their game this afternoon in DeLand. Kickoff time for the game will be 2:30.

The contest will be the last regular season game of the year for the Pirates. The Bucs have lost but once in eight games thus far and that one loss came last week when Tampa's rebounding Spartans left the Pirates on the short end of an 18-13 margin.

The Spartans are one of the three victims that lie in the wake of the Stetson attack. The Hatters have played six times this year and have defeated three of their opponents. Their most recent victory was a smashing 41-0 victory over Morehead last week.

On the basis of records thus far this year, the suggestion would be to make the Pirates at least six points better than Stetson but the game is rated as a toss-up. The squads have played only once, before in preceding years and that game, last year, wound up in a 19-19 tie.

Essentially the same material is back from the 1932 squads to play this afternoon. The Pirates will be starting half of the same backfield that started last year with only left halfback Illard Yarborough and right halfback Paul Gay not around any more. Tippy Hayes has moved into the position that was left vacant when Yarborough's eligibility expired. Jack Britt was promoted to the right half slot after Gay was hurt last week in the game with Tampa.

Starting with Britt and Hayes in the Pirate backfield will be Dick Cherry at quarterback and Claude King at fullback. The game will mark the first extensive action for either in two weeks. Cherry missed last week's game because of an injured knee and King missed all but the first few minutes because of a little slugging spree that sent him out of the ball game in the first quarter.

Stetson's only planned change will be at quarterback where Fred Smanlie will take over. The freshman ace played an outstanding game last week and was promoted to the starting job in practice this week.

Probable starting line-ups:

East Carolina Stetson

LT—Brown Van
LG—Lee Appel
C—Hallow Boyer
RG—Burton Golde

QB—Rhodes Henley

Beaufort Spoils Ayden's Homecoming In 26-13 Win

Leahy On Record For Two Platoons

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Notre Dame brought its bid for national honors into Dixie's pine country today with Head Coach Frank Leahy stoutly contending the 1933 Fighting Irish are no super powerhouse dwarfing present day opposition.

"Notre Dame is the smallest football team—that is, from a numerical standpoint—in the country," the lean master of South Bend said.

The Irish, top-ranked nationally, ruled a 26-point favorite over North Carolina in their game today at Kenan Stadium. Kickoff was at 2 p.m.

Upon his arrival, Leahy, who has just recovered from a stomach ailment which sidelined him for two weeks, was bombarded with questions about the strength of the present team which has swept to six straight victories.

"We are told," one questioner said to Leahy, "that Notre Dame profited more than any other institution from the rule killing the two platoon system. The argument is that Notre Dame gets a superior type of athlete who always has been able to go both ways while other teams had loaded up on specialists who turned out no good under the new rule."

"I don't agree with that," replied Leahy. "We have the smallest team numerically in the country. We had only 51 players starting last fall drill. We brought only 38 players here."

His comparison obviously was meant to include big time teams only.

"There are many many schools with more athletes and better athletes than we have. But we do have an athlete who can go both ways. That's because we have never used the two platoon system."

Leahy added that while he personally didn't use the platoon system and while Notre Dame players are forced to be all-around players

AYDEN — Ayden's Homecoming celebrations were dampened considerably here last night as Beaufort roared to an early 18-0 lead and then coasted home in the second half for a 26-13 win over Ayden.

Pittman, Mason, and Holland all scored touchdowns in a surprising show of first half power by the Beaufort team. Pittman had added the extra point after his touchdown as Beaufort completely outplayed the Tornados throughout the entire half.

In the second half, the Tornados came to life and nearly overtook their visitors. Harry Ross started the parade when he banged across from two yards out after a third quarter drive from midfield.

W. O. Jolly kept the attack in high gear with a 75-yard pass interception and return later in the same quarter. Jolly got excellent blocking on the play and was never seriously bothered by any of the Beaufort men. Elwood Stokes scored the extra point after the run on a pass from Jolly.

Jolly's run was the last big show of the Tornados in the game. Beaufort closed the scoring late in the fourth period when Mason passed to Willis for the final touchdown and Pittman kicked the extra point.

In halftime ceremonies, Barbara Bradshaw was crowned Homecoming Queen. She was sponsored by team co-captain Harry Ross. Her coronation was the feature of a halftime show that included musical salutes from the Beaufort and Ayden high school bands.

The loss was the fourth of the year for the Tornados and closed their 1933 schedule. They won three games and tied one. In conference play, the Tornados won three and lost three.

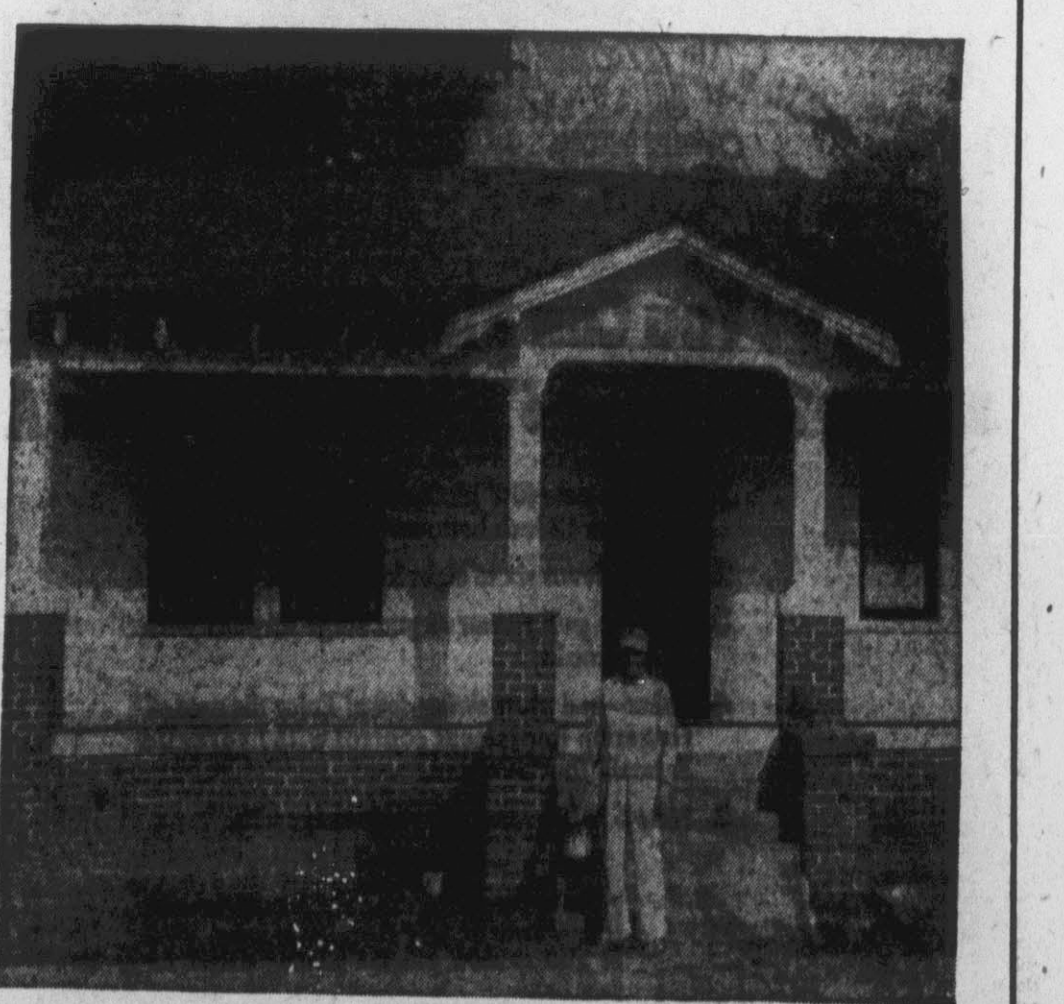

(such as 60-minute John Latner), he favors the outlawed rule.

"I'm for liberal substitution," he added. "It gives the small man a chance to play. It gets more players into the game."

Replying to the statement of a North Carolina scout that Notre Dame has too much power for any team in the nation, including second-ranked Maryland, Leahy said:

Dillingham Cites Work Of Employment Office

W.B. Dillingham, manager of the local office of the Employment Security Commission was principal speaker for the Greenville Furniture Dealer's Association at a meeting held at Respass Brothers Thursday night.

He told the dealers that if a person quits or walks out without a good reason the employer should report it to the Raleigh office within five days to protect themselves against any unemployment claim the former worker should file.

The manager explained that the local office covers Pitt County with three objectives. They objectives are: to place job-seekers in suitable jobs, supply labor needs of employers, and to aid eligible persons to file unemployment claims.

In telling of the contribution rate of unemployment compensation, Dillingham said that North Carolina stands above average. He quoted 1952 figures by saying North Carolina had a percentage rate of 1.06 while the national figure was 1.45.

He expressed appreciation for letting him tell the dealers more about the security agency and he turned it into an open forum after completion of his talk, answering many questions.

Robert E. Tunnell presided at last night's meeting in absence of Chairman R.W. Davenport. The dealers went on record as favoring two days off for Christmas—both Friday, Christmas Day, and Saturday after Christmas.

The next meeting of the Association will be Thursday, December 10.

Meet "The Juggler." He once knew the exciting taste of applause, the heady homage of fame. A man ruthless and tender, crazy about fast cars, loud music, soft arms and hard liquor.

Fate plays a cruel game with him, plunging him into a tempestuous romance.

This man, angry with the world, and this girl, in love with love, seize all that life can hold!

Here is a story of our times, played by a star who gives the performance for which he will be remembered—always!

Produced by STANLEY KRAMER, maker of "High Noon," and starring the man he brought to the screen in "Champion"
