McCarthy Points To Record Of Communists In High Places

'Trumanism' Under Attack

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy says the Truman administration was "crawling with Communists."

In his formal rebuttal to former President Harry S. Truman, McCarthy charges that Truman, while a U. S. senator and vice presidential candidate, intervened against the dismissal from government service of George Shaw Wheeler, who later deserted to Communism.

McCarthy says that after Truman became president, Wheeler was reinstated, although he had been dismissed as a Communist.

The senator gives this description on what he calls "Trumanism":

"The placing of your political party above the interest of the country, regardless of how much the country is damaged thereby."

Praising the Eisenhower administration's efforts to rid the government service of subversives, he added however:

"Let us glance at a few cases where our (Republicans) battling average is zero—where we struck out."

As an example he cites John Patton Davies, who he says helped deliver China into Communist hands.

The Wisconsin Republican senator addressed a nationwide television and radio audience last night in answer to Truman who had assailed "McCarthyism" in a TV-radio speech a week ago Monday night in connection with the Harry Dexter White controversy.

Speaking of Davies, McCarthy said:

"He was unanimously referred by the McCarran committee to the Justice Department for indictment because he lied under oath about his activities in trying to put Communists and espionage agents in key spots in the Central Intelligence Agency. Why is this man still a high official in our government?"

Davies, a career diplomat who was cleared by the Loyalty Review Board during the Truman administration, recently was questioned by the board again and then returned to Germany, where he is an adviser to the U. S. high commissioner. He had been assailed by McCarthy before.

McCarthy also took the Republican administration to task because there has been no accounting of 900 Americans who are known to have been taken prisoner in the Korean War and who never returned. He said the Eisenhower administration is not responsible for the situation, but is responsible for its proper handling.

McCarthy, declaring his fight against communism in government to be an issue in the 1954 election campaign, said:

"The raw, harsh, unpleasant fact is that communism is an issue and will be an issue in 1954."

"It would not be an issue between our two great political parties if they were united in fighting communism. They are not so united today. Truman's disloyalty is against those who expose Communists is the best proof of that."

Looking to the 1954 Senate and House elections, McCarthy said:

"If the American people agree with Truman that what he calls 'McCarthyism' is bad, that it is wrong to dig out and expose traitors, they have a chance to get rid of me as chairman of the investigating committee next fall by defeating any Republican up for election."

McCarthy added that if the people "believe as I do that treason, dishonesty and stupidity should be exposed wherever and whenever found, then their answer is to keep the Republicans in power so we may continue to clean out the Augean Stables."

McCarthy cited several previously mentioned persons as examples of Communists in government during the Truman administration and added:

"Another case in which Truman intervened in behalf of a Communist agent was the case of George Shaw Wheeler. On April 13, 1950, Wheeler, who had been working for the U. S. government in Europe, deserted to the Communist cause, denouncing the 'Gestapo methods' of the United States and stating that he was going to stand 'proudly with the Soviet regime.' Wheeler then disappeared behind the Iron Curtain."

"As early as 1944 the Civil Service Commission loyalty board had found Wheeler unfit for government service because of his membership in the Communist party. The record is replete with evidence of espionage on his part."

"On Oct. 4, 1944, the then Sen. Harry Truman, who was a candidate for the vice presidency of the Democrat ticket, wrote a three-page letter to the Civil Service Commission denouncing the commission in the strongest language for the procedure they followed in ordering the dismissal of Wheeler."

In October of 1945, after Harry Truman became president, the Civil Service Commission reversed itself and ordered Wheeler reinstated."

Continues Hold Court In Germany Despite State Dept. Dismissal

Justice 'Dismissed'; Ignores Orders

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY
FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Chief Justice William Clark of the U. S. Court of Appeals in Germany said he had been fired for failing to take orders, and that he would continue to hold court.

At a news conference today, Clark said he had received a cable Monday from the State Department declaring him "surplus" and advising that he would not be reappointed when his regular term ends Jan. 8.

"They ordered me back to the United States for 'consultations' within the next 10 days," he said. "But I am not going to go. This is an attempt to discipline somebody who won't take orders. The thing is that judges are not supposed to take orders. I am the chief justice of an independent court."

Clark said that his recent criticism of the State Department had probably started the action.

economy reasons. The commission refused to comment now on Clark's statement that he was fired for failing to take orders, and that he would continue to hold court.

At a news conference today, Clark said he had received a cable Monday from the State Department declaring him "surplus" and advising that he would not be reappointed when his regular term ends Jan. 8.

"They ordered me back to the United States for 'consultations' within the next 10 days," he said. "But I am not going to go. This is an attempt to discipline somebody who won't take orders. The thing is that judges are not supposed to take orders. I am the chief justice of an independent court."

Clark said that his recent criticism of the State Department had probably started the action.

"a State Department Clerk," Clark asserted, "would take much more than locking the door" to keep him from the bench.

Clark is a former judge of the 3rd U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia.

He said he would not vacate his office even on Jan. 8 because he believes his tenure is indefinite and that any removal must come from Congress.

There was talk today that the American lawyers association here would protest Clark's removal. The association president Franklin Potter of Hollywood, Calif., sent a letter to Clark today that one less judge on the court would "result in great injustice to litigants."

Clark said that his recent criticism of the State Department had probably started the action.

At the same time the lawyers association named its committee to investigate the reports of wifetapping, it adopted resolutions condemning Clark for issuing a High Commission law providing that no German official may be subject to U. S. court action without consent of the high commissioner.

These developments followed an attempt by Richard Knorr, Union, N. J., businessman, to have two German officials brought into court for allegedly blocking investigation into Knorr's case. Knorr, jailed briefly by the Germans, had been accused of failing to pay taxes.

Clark, who is known for his defense and offered to give bail for his release.

Clark also has criticized Clark because some Americans have been held in German jails without bail and without trial.

Seek Method To Allow Russians Attend Parleys

PANMUNJOM (AP)—U. S. envoy Arthur Dean said today "some method must be worked out" to assure the attendance of Soviet Russia as a full participant at a Korean peace conference.

The Reds want Russia to attend as a neutral. Dean charged this would mean the Soviet Union would not be bound by conference decisions.

He said Chinese and North Korean negotiators working on plans for the peace conference are holding Russia "as a threat over our heads."

Allied and Communist diplomats met for 3 hours and 45 minutes, the longest continuous session since the preliminary talks opened Oct. 26. They will meet again Friday.

Meanwhile, explanations to war prisoners who have refused to go home remained stalled and there was no indication that the interviews would be renewed.

Dean read two long statements at the preliminary peace talks today, calling the Communist position that Russia is a neutral.

"Why are you afraid to have the U. S. S. R. do not wish to be bound by the agreement reached at the political conference and B) you wish to use as a threat at the conference the possible non-aggression of the U. S. S. R. or its noncompliance with the agreement reached?"

The Chinese delegate, Huang Hua, replied with what Dean called "a bitter denunciation."

"It was unadulterated hogwash," Dean said "accusing us of bad treatment of prisoners and atrocities in prisoner of war camps."

County And Townships Share Beer-Wine Tax Fund

Receive More Than $62,000

Better than $62,000 was received by the county and the local towns for Pitt's pro rata share of beer and wine taxes for the 12 month period ending September 30, it was reported today.

The reports have not been received from Fountain, Grimsland, and Falkland.

County Auditor Reginald Gray reported that a check for $37,186.29 was received yesterday for the county share. $36,434.33 was for beer and $761.96 for wine. Only $32,008.84 was received for the 12 month period ending in 1952.

City Clerk H. H. Duncan said that Greenville received a check for $18,179.29 for the 12 month period ending September 30. Of this $16,472.70 was for beer and $344.59 for wine. In 1952 the check amounted to $14,566.27.

Mayor Corey Stokes stated that Ayden received a check for $2294.73, which is considerably more than last year.

Farmville Town Clerk C. M. Paylor said a check for $2958.40 was received by that town. Last year

Farmville received $2562.42.

Town Clerk Bob Wheeler reported that Grifton got a check for $512.84 and that last year's check amounted to $444.19.

Winterville also received more than last year, according to Town Clerk T. E. Cannon. This year's check amounted to $874.86.

R. L. Martin, Bethel town clerk, said Bethel received a check for $1454. He said that he did not have the check with him, but there was some few cents more than the $1454 he reported.

Grimsland Town Clerk Mrs. Della Mae Galloway said this morning that she had not received the check yet for that town.

Fountain Town Clerk Rev. Phillip Cory was not in town and therefore that report was not received.

Efforts to contact Falkland town clerk were made, but he could not be reached, but the reports from each town shows that this year's figures show a definite increase over last year's.

License Renewal Cards Mailed To N.C. Motorists

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Department of Motor Vehicles has begun mailing more than 1,300,000 license renewal cards to North Carolina motorists.

Along with the renewal cards is being sent a highway safety message by Gov. Umstead. It points out: "One of the greatest threats to North Carolinians today is the rising toll of highway accidents. . . It will take the combined efforts of every individual motorist to make our highways and streets arteries of safe travel rather than avenues of death and destruction."

The 1954 black-on-orange tags go on sale Dec. 1 at Motor Vehicles branch offices throughout the state. The deadline for using old license plates usually is Jan. 31. It was moved up to Feb. 1 because the last day of January falls on Sunday.

Planning Board Meets Tonight

Greenville City Planning Board will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Council Room at the City Municipal Building.

Chairman Frank Little said that he expected the subdivision regulations would receive more study and that consideration would be given on the set back of the building line on city streets of Greenville.

Other routine business will be transacted, the chairman reported. The Board usually meets on Thursday night, but due to Thanksgiving this month it has been moved up to tonight.

Officials Convinced No More Fighting In Korea

TOKYO (AP)—Top American officials in the Orient are convinced there will be no more fighting in Korea unless something touches off World War III.

At the same time, they see little chance now for peaceful unification of Korea since the treaty signed this week between Red China and North Korea in effect moved China's border southward almost to Parallel 38.

South Korea's President Syngman Rhee has threatened to order his 16 American-trained divisions northward unless a peace conference makes progress toward unifying his country by Jan. 27—six months after the Korean armistice was signed.

But generals and diplomats who have visited Korea during the past month say Rhee will not reopen the war.

They cite these reasons for their belief:

1. Rhee has been told the United States will withdraw its forces from Korea if he rekindles the war.

2. ROK forces have only enough ammunition for six days if the United States shuts off the quarter master supply.

3. Rhee wouldn't risk losing almost a billion dollars in U. S. aid.

The only thing that would make the U. S. troops go into action in Korea again would be for the Communists to start shooting. In that case American doughboys, sailors and airmen would fight again.

But the fighting would not be restricted to Korea, top officials say.

There is no doubt now, in the minds of Far Eastern observers, that North Korea is a satellite of Red China.

Prisoners coming home from the camps in North Korea reported the destruction of the country.

It will take a lot of aid to rebuild North Korea a lot more than it will to rebuild South Korea. The United States has already promised Rhee nearly a billion dollars.

Rhee's greatest love is his country. No one in authority here expects him to turn his back on a billion dollars.

Heroes Of POW Camp May Get Special Honor

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force is considering decorating or giving some other recognition to former war prisoners who resisted torture and refused to make false confessions for Communist propaganda.

A spokesman said today that official recommendation of such action must await completion of a detailed study of each individual case.

Such recognition presumably would go to five airmen who refused to succumb to pressure by the enemy—Lt. John Streit of South Oregon, N. J.; M. Sgt. George Morar of Rockville, Md.; Capt. William Preston of Batavia, N. Y.; Capt. Zach Dean of Douglas, Kan.; and Capt. William McTaggart of East Brady, Pa.

Heroes Of POW Camp May Get Special Honor

In the course of interrogating other former prisoners, more cases of heroism probably will come to light.

Regulations apparently would make appropriate any one of several decorations, among them the Legion of Merit, for outstanding service; the Soldier's Medal, for heroism involving voluntary risk of life; the Bronze Star, for outstanding service or heroism; and the Commendation Ribbon, for meritorious achievement or service.

Under military regulations any officer or other member of the armed forces can suggest recognition. Normally, the formal recommendation is forwarded by the immediate commander, but in these instances the initiation may come from higher levels in the Pentagon.

Post-Season Grid Game Here Signed By ECC Pirates

East Carolina College Pirates this morning accepted the long awaited bowl game invitation.

The college announced shortly before 11 o'clock this morning that the powerful Pirates, champions of the North State Conference, have accepted an invitation to play in the Elks Bowl in Greenville on Saturday afternoon, January 2.

Sponsors of the bowl game, spearheaded by the Greenville Elks club, announced the proceeds of the game will be used for the Elks' Eastern North Carolina Boys Camp. Erskine Duff, chairman of arrangements for the committee on arrangements for the bowl game.

What team will oppose the East Carolina Pirates in the new Elks Bowl here on January 2 remained a matter of speculation today. Bowl officials who announced the acceptance of the bid by East Carolina would say only that the other team in the bowl game will be a champion from another conference. They gave no indication of what conference the team would come from, or the geographical location of the conference from which the other team would come.

The announcement of East Carolina's acceptance of the invitation to the Elks Bowl came this morning on the heels of some two weeks' speculation that the Pirates may receive an invitation to play either in the Elks Bowl in Tampa, Fla. or in the Tangerine Bowl to be played in Orlando, Fla.

College officials made no reference to either of the other bowl games in announcing the acceptance of the invitation for East Carolina's football team to appear in the Elks Bowl to be played here.

Coach Jack Boone of the Pirates said today, "We are happy to play in the Elks Bowl, and we feel like we have a pretty good ball club. It is a privilege for us to be chosen the first team to play in this new Elks Bowl. It seems like a good thing that the people of this area of Eastern North Carolina have decided to have a bowl game here which they have contemplated for years."

Boone added that he expects all the members of the Pirates football squad to be in top shape for the post-season game on January 2.

Duff, chairman of arrangements for the bowl game, said details for the game are being worked out, and further announcements will be made from time to time.

"We are tickled to death to have such a fine aggregation as the East Carolina ball club appear in the Elks Bowl," Duff said. He added that it is hoped the Elks Bowl game in Greenville will be made an annual event.

In regular season play this year, the Pirates lost only one game, and that to Tampa University in Tampa, Fla.

When the Pirates take to the field on January 2 in College Stadium here, it will be their second appearance in a football bowl game. Last year the Pirates played in the Lions Bowl in Salisbury where they suffered a 13-7 defeat at the hands of the Clarion (Pa.) State Teachers College team.

E. E. Rawls Sr. of Greenville, president of the Pirates Club, commented, "We are very happy about the bowl game, and the Pirates Club membership priorities will also prevail for tickets to the game."

New Citizens

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP)—Two hundred and seventy-nine persons from 25 countries became United States citizens here yesterday in a mass naturalization ceremony.

U. S. immigration officials said it probably was the largest group to be naturalized in the history of the republic.

One hundred and fifty-six of the group were soldiers in the 525th Military Intelligence Service Group, others members of the Army Psychological Warfare Center. Fifteen were wives of soldiers.

The new citizens pledged their allegiance in a special 45-minute outdoor court session in the Ft. Bragg football stadium.

Many of the men refused to have their names printed or pictures taken because of fear of reprisals against relatives still living in Iron Curtain countries.

Weather Brings Ten Helicopters To Local Airport

Ten H-26 U.S. Army helicopters landed at the local airport about 10 o'clock this morning.

The helicopters were on a routine navigational training mission with Kill Devil Hill as the objective, according to Captain C. W. Watters, Public Information Officer for the 18th Air Borne Corps of Fort Bragg.

Instrument flying was included in the training flight and the pilots were scheduled to reach Kill Devil Hill, but bad weather forced the flight to land at the Greenville airport.

Captain Watters said that from here the flight would return to Fort Bragg unless the weather cleared enough along the coast to continue with the original schedule.

The helicopters were the Piasecki H-26 type assigned to the 509 Transportation Helicopter Company of Fort Bragg. They were the tandem or twin-rotor type designed to carry four passengers or two litter cases plus the pilot and co-pilot.

The twin rotors are driven by a single motor which is located in the mid-section of the "copter. They rotate in opposite directions to compensate for the tendency of the craft to revolve with the rotor.

The flight began taking off for the return trip to Fort Bragg about 11 o'clock this morning.

UN Resolution Rebukes Israeli

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Ignoring Israeli appeals, the U. N. Security Council by a 9-0 vote last night rebuked the Jewish state for the killing of 53 Arabs in Jordan's Kibya village and called on her to see that such actions do not happen again.

The resolution—sponsored by the United States, Britain and France—brought protests from both Jordan and Israel. They do not belong to the council and have no vote there.

Israeli Delegate Abba Eban charged that the measure was loaded in favor of Jordan and warned that it might torpedo the direct Israeli-Jordan talks his government has demanded.

Sources close to Jordan labeled the resolution a "milk-sop" which merely chided Israel and did nothing to punish her.

Charles Malik of Lebanon, only Arab member of the 11-nation council, abstained on the vote along with Russia. Malik explained to reporters later he felt the resolution was not nearly strong enough and did not call for compensation to families of the Kibya victims.

Israel derived some consolation, however, from the Big Three's last-minute change in their resolution to take note of Eban's invocation of Article 12 of the Israel-Jordan armistice agreement to obligate both parties to obligatory peace talks. One Israeli source said this was the only constructive result of the long, bitter Kibya discussion.

Changing Of Greenville Zoning Ordinance Voted Down By Board At Public Hearing

By BOB BOWETTE
Reflector Staff Writer
Greenville City Council refused to change the zoning ordinance as requested by three petitions and deferred action on the fourth at a public hearing last night at the City Municipal Building.

Requests from Esso Standard Oil Company, Mrs. Lulu Mae Collins, and Mrs. Minnie J. Stancill were refused. Voting on the Esso and Collins request was three to two in favor of the "thumbs down" action while turning down Mrs. Stancill's request was unanimous.

Action was deferred on the question of removing from the fire district the area on Fifth Street from Cotentine Street to the city limits. Further study will be made and action is slated for disposition at the next meeting of the City Council December 3.

Protests

Judge Albion Dunn read two protests and a petition that were against allowing the zoning ordinance to be changed so the Esso Standard Oil Company could rebuild their service station at Fifth and Harding Streets.

One protest read by Dunn was from the Board of Trustees of East Carolina College. Another he read came from Mr. & Mrs. David A. Evans, who own property directly behind the Esso station. A petition came from citizens who live in that area. All said that it was hoped that the City Council would not see fit to charge or amend the ordinance to allow erection of a new station.

Esso Explains
W. W. Speight, representing the Esso Company and Mrs. Lulu Mae Collins, then introduced T. D. Clanton, construction maintenance superintendent for the Esso Company in this area, who told of the present facilities of the Esso Station at Fifth and Harding and what the proposed plans by his company were.

Clanton said that the new station would improve visibility and that off-street parking there would be provided. The new building would be well lighted and the open grease pit that is now there would be removed, according to the superintendent, and the new station would be similar to the one now in operation at Tenth and Evans Street.

When asked by one of the Council members what the Esso Company would do with the present station should the Council not see fit to grant a change in the ordinance, Clanton answered by saying that the Esso Company would naturally continue to operate at Fifth and Harding with the present station making as many improvements as the present zoning ordinance allowed. He said the company paid $10,000 for that lot in 1929 and had no idea of doing-away with it.

The Esso superintendent continued by telling that the new station would be a beautiful section in rear of the building and promised that no restaurant or juke box would be placed on the premises. "The Esso company is interested only in a service station," he said.

Dunn asked
Judge Dunn then asked Clanton if the Esso company was not hoping that the new station would increase business, and the Clanton answered "yes."

"Wouldn't that increase the traffic on Fifth Street?" the Judge asked.

"Not necessarily," Clanton answered. "We just hope to get more of the cars passing at present to stop."

The lawyer representing those who did not want the zoning ordinance changed then told the Council the property owners in that area built homes there understanding that when the ordinance was passed it was understood that it would protect them from commercial enterprise.

"These people wanted to make this one of the prettiest sections in North Carolina," Dunn said in conclusion.

Esso Wind-up
Speight, then talking on behalf of the Esso company, told the Council that the stations were there prior to the passing of the ordinance. He explained that visitors to East Carolina would stop at the Esso Company to use the rest rooms before going on into the college.

"Service stations are not a nuisance," Speight continued, "and this one would improve the looks of the college." He concluded by saying that the station had been there 26 years serving a useful purpose.

Nothing Detrimental
After several more questions were asked by Council members J. A. Collins then explained that his wife, Mrs. Lulu Mae Collins, was not asking for anything except that granted to Esso. He said that the property owned by her was purchased in 1941 and that "we would be the last people in Greenville that would do anything detrimental to this city."

Council Votes
Mayor W. L. Whedbee then asked if there were any more questions. Eugene West then moved that the zoning ordinance be amended and J. A. Collins seconded the motion. A vote was taken. West and Collins voted that the ordinance be changed and C. Wesley Harvey, A. C. Ruffin, and Mayor Whedbee voted that it not be changed.

The ordinance was not changed so neither the Esso company nor Mrs. Collins can now rebuild their stations.

Stancill's Request
Mayor Whedbee then read Mrs. Stancill's request that her lot on the corner of Third and Jarvis Street be taken out of the residential district and be zoned commercial so she could build a service station there.

Attorney Sam Worthington, representing Mrs. Stancill, told the Council that that district was an Overton Grocery was across the street from it. "Some of the finest homes in Greenville are in the shadows of a service station," Worthington said, "and Mrs. Stancill plans to build a station that would meet every specification of the law."

He told that he knew of no one who was against her building there and that the council should remember that ordinances are changed in almost every city many times.

The Council then discussed the request further and it was brought to the council's attention by City Attorney Raleigh Lee that if that corner were zoned commercial the other two corners could request to be zoned commercial.

The Planning Board had recently recommended to the council to turn down Mrs. Stancill's request.

A vote was taken and the Council voted unanimously against changing the ordinance to allow Mrs. Stancill to build a station.

The hearing was adjourned after a discussion of the proposed Fifth Street change was heard.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 25, 1923

Mrs. H. H. Duncan was hostess to her bridge club and a few friends yesterday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. W. Higgs.

The tables were arranged in the music room, reception hall, library and living room which were attractively decorated with chrysanthemums and autumn leaves.

Miss Ernestine Forbes making the top score was presented a beautiful luncheon set.

Several interesting and spirited progressions were enjoyed after which a sweet course was served.

Wesley Philatheas Have Program On Thanksgiving

The Wesley Philatheas Class met at the home of Mrs. A. W. Baker on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. F. P. Brooks, Mrs. Wiley Brown and Mrs. Virginia Perkins were assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Baker gave the devotional. Her subject was "Thanksgiving." She told of the first Thanksgiving celebrated by the Pilgrim fathers, and how they were very grateful for all their harvests. She said, "Our own way of life which we enjoy comes from God and we have so much for which we should express gratitude." She reminded those present of the ten lepers whom Jesus healed and that only one gave thanks. Mrs. Baker closed with prayer.

It was voted to send the orphan class supports a gift for Christmas and cards will be sent to several shut-ins.

Miss Elizabeth Kittrell, who took a "University Travel Tour" to Europe last summer, showed moving pictures she took while visiting in England, Switzerland, Italy, France, Germany and Holland. These pictures and travel talk were most interesting.

The hostesses served pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream and assorted nuts.

Mrs. Keel Entertains Homemakers Club

ROBERSONVILLE — Mrs. J. Clayton Keel was hostess to the Homemakers' Club Thursday night when her attractive home was brightened by red roses.

Mrs. Wynne called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Beach called the roll for the secretary, Mrs. Robert Taylor, who was absent. Mrs. Charlie Hurst Sr. gave the financial report after mentioning the cards and a handkerchief mailed to the sick and flowers sent to the beloved late member, Mrs. Jack Taylor. Names were drawn for the Christmas party which will be December 17.

The hostess entertained with a contest, "Somebody Missing," which was won by Mrs. Nellie Taylor. When each person wrote five likes and the same number of dislikes, Mrs. Keel read the papers. Mrs. Cartwright Taylor was the most successful in recognizing the authors. Twenty spring clothespins were put on a low table. Mrs. Mack Wynne succeeded in placing all of them on a slack clothesline in one minute while one arm was behind her. Mrs. Hattie Hardy captured the guessing box, a pint of salted pecans. Miss Minnie Cochran received the guest prize, a lovely handkerchief.

The hostess served ice cream, nuts and homemade cake.

The club will meet with Mrs. Swindell Thursday, December 3, at 8 o'clock.

Grand Jury Has Interruption

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—There was some concern when Dist. Atty. Alfred B. Cenedella halted a grand jury session yesterday and said: "I now have a very serious matter to take up with you!"

All leaned forward expectantly. "Juror Harry B. Deal has just become the father of a boy—9 pounds 8 ounces," Cenedella announced.

"Whew!" said Deal. The district attorney handed him two cigars and two aspirin tablets. The jury went back to business.

Bride-Elect Honored At Series of Parties

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. N. C. Everett and her daughter, Miss Mildred Everett, honored Miss Doris Little Thursday from 3:30 to 5:30.

Miss Little was presented with a corsage of pink gladiolus to wear with her blue fur trimmed dress. Fall flowers were used throughout the house. The dining table was centered with an epergne containing candles, pink carnations and snapdragons.

Mrs. I. M. Little, mother of the bride-elect, poured the coffee while Mrs. Vance Roberson served the bride cakes. Mrs. William Gray and Mrs. J. R. Matthews assisted in serving the cheese straws, sandwiches, mints and nuts.

The 45 callers included Mrs. Bond Gilliam of Windsor, Mrs. George Mardre of Windsor, Miss Mary Barden Crofton and Mrs. Bruce Holloman of Williamston and Mrs. Mint Everett and Mrs. Heber Munsford of Ayden.

Miss Doris Little and Mr. Charles Wilson, whose marriage will be solemnized December 5, were honored at a dinner party at the home of Mrs. John Dixon Fleming in Rocky Mount.

The house was decorated throughout with arrangements of fall flowers. The dining table was centered with a bowl of white daisies, ferns and candles.

The hostess presented the bride-elect with a white corsage which she wore with a navy blue lace dress. Mrs. Fleming gave the bride a silver sugar bowl, a cream pitcher and coffee pot on a silver tray.

Twenty-four friends enjoyed this occasion.

Miss Doris Little and Mr. Charles Wilson of Robersonville were feted Wednesday night by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cowper of Windsor.

The guests were greeted at the door by the host, hostess and bride couple-elect. Mrs. George Mardre invited the guests into the dining room where the table with a green cloth was centered with a fruit arrangement and magnolia leaves.

Mrs. Bond Gilliam poured the punch. Sandwiches, crackers, potatoes, chips, cookies and nuts were served to the 50 callers.

The hostess presented Miss Little with a white corsage which she wore with a blue satin dress. The goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Cowper and the honorees. Those from Robersonville who attended the open house were: Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Little, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wilson, Miss Gladys Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert James, Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Roberson, Mrs. N. C. Everett, Miss Mildred Everett and Miss Becky Roberson.

Joint Host To Couples Class

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Warren and Dr. and Mrs. Warren Aldridge were hosts to the married couples Sunday School class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Adrian Brown. President Brown recognized Mrs. Billy Williams who gave the devotional.

Following the devotional there were several reports. It was reported that $50 had been given to buy table cloths for the kitchen at the church. This motion was passed at a previous meeting.

At the conclusion of the business session the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Billy Williams. The class enjoyed several games led by Mrs. Williams.

During these games delicious refreshments were served.

The honoree was presented with a white corsage which complimented her slate blue taffeta dress.

The hostess greeted the guests at the door. Miss Esther House of Elizabeth City, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Thomas L. House of Robersonville, her mother, received with Mrs. Hughey.

The dining table was centered with an artistic arrangement of snapdragons and chrysanthemums. Mrs. George Ward poured coffee at one end of the table while Mrs. Morton and her daughter assisted in serving the 50 callers.

Mrs. Hughey is secretary and director of the North Carolina Library Commission, a position she has held for seven years.

Robersonville PTA Observes Book Week

ROBERSONVILLE—The Parent-Teachers Association met in the high school auditorium Tuesday night at 7:30.

Rev. J. B. Hurley opened the meeting with the devotional, after which Mrs. Pitt Roberson's room gave a program centered around Book Week. Norma Williams and Penny Lee Martin entertained the audience with a tap dance which was followed by several selections by the little rhythm band. At the close of the program the two Hallows' Queens, Candee Coe of the Elementary School and Miss Ann Keel, were presented with gifts.

The Band Boosters' Club, which usually follows the P.T.A., met on schedule Thursday. The date for the P.T.A. was moved up this month.

Clown Will Be In Griffon Parade

GRIFTON—Herman Joseph, well-known circus clown, will appear in Griffon's Christmas parade next December 5, J.A. Rogers, president of the local Merchants' Association announced today.

Negotiations have been under way for some time to obtain the services of Joseph, who is a member of the Raymond Brothers Circus.

Other plans for the Christmas parade include entries of several floats, bands, boy scouts troops and girl scout troop. The fire truck will also appear in the parade.

The Merchants' Association plans to offer prizes for the best floats in the parade, Rogers stated. First prize will be $25; second prize, $15 and third prize, $5. A prize of $5 will also be offered for the best decorated bicycle in the parade.

Wednesday Is Farm Employment Day At Unemployment Security Office

A Farm Employment Day is being held each Wednesday at the local offices of the Unemployment Security Commission, Douglas Taylor, farm placement interviewer announced today.

Wednesdays are being set aside for Farm Employment day to allow farmers and tenants to meet at the local unemployment office and talk with one another concerning the coming year's tenant placement.

Taylor emphasized, however, that farmers and tenants may come in at any time that is convenient to them. He said that Wednesdays would be the best day because that day would give farmers and tenants a chance to meet one another, but that any day in the week would be suitable for registering.

Taylor said that 18 tenants are registered at the local office at the present time. He stated that farmers desiring tenants are not coming in too fast now, however.

He said that the 18 tenants now registered wanted either one- or two-horse farms.

Thanksgiving And Christmas Events Planned By Baptist Student Union

Activities centering around the Thanksgiving and the Christmas holidays make up part of the program now being carried out by members of the BSU of East Carolina College. A Thanksgiving surprise service was held today, and a banquet is scheduled as a prelude to the Christmas holidays at the college.

The Sunrise Service has become an annual event on the campus. The Rev. Douglas Branch, president of the North Carolina Baptist Convention, will be principal speaker at the banquet, which is scheduled for 7 p.m., Friday, December 4, at a Greenville restaurant. His topic will be "Christ Around the World," and he will emphasize the idea of sharing the Christmas message with Alaska.

Approximately 125 members of the BSU and guests are expected to attend the banquet, according to Alrice Barbour of Four Oaks, who is in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

West Greenville PTA Has Regular Meeting

The West Greenville P.T.A. held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon, November 18, at 3:30 p.m. in the school auditorium with Mrs. B. V. Rydell, vice president, presiding.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson read the 90th Psalm and made a brief but inspiring talk on "Time" and the use of an individual can make of a day. Mrs. Johnson then read a poem by George Eliot, entitled "Lord, Show Me How," after which everyone sang "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come," accompanied by Mrs. Robert Gray.

The Glee Club rendered several selections, also accompanied by Mrs. Gray.

A report was given of the profit made by the Halloween party. The members then voted to enter a float in the Christmas parade.

A motion was also passed to buy a film strip projector and film strip for the school. The members then voted that the school would pay its share of the cost of frames for pictures to be used in the city schools.

Should Recruit Own Teachers

Unless counties recruit their own teachers, the present critical shortage of teachers will continue, Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College stated in Morehead City Monday night of this week. He spoke at the annual dinner held there by school principals and the Carteret County Board of Education.

Lowering standards is definitely not a solution to the problem, Dean Jenkins maintained, and gave as evidence the fact that states with the highest standards have the least problems in teacher shortage.

"There is a shortage of medical doctors and dentists," he continued, "but no thinking person suggests that we lower the standards in these professions but rather increase facilities for instruction and make scholarships available. This should also be done in the teaching profession."

People who claim that certification is causing the shortage are either unacquainted with high school and college students or they are "throwing up a smoke screen," the East Carolina Dean said. Of the 5,000 college students in North Carolina last year that were surveyed, less than one percent claimed certification requirements as a reason for the teacher shortage, he explained.

"Various counties," he concluded, "should finance a teacher training education for people who plan to return to the county."

A Pause To Count The Many Blessings

What have we to be thankful for at this Thanksgiving season, 1953?

The man who has to stop and ask himself that question is likely to be the person who has been so busy enjoying his countless blessings, he has not found time to consider their source.

The man who this year perceives not his blessings might compare his lot today with those of the ragged band who instituted the first American Thanksgiving in that lonely New England village in 1621. Or he may compare his lot with those who bowed their heads and worshipped in the midst

Season For Caution As Well As Hunting

For more than a month now, hunters have been tramping through fields and woods of Pitt County in quest of small game. Come Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, however, the numbers of hunters in the county's fields and woods will at least triple.

That's the day that the season opens on quail and rabbits—the two most popular species of game hunted in the county.

With this pronounced increase in hunters beginning Thursday, it behooves those who go in quest of game to be extra careful with their firearms. On the whole, Pitt County has a good record so far as the lack of hunting accidents is concerned. But it takes only a moment's carelessness by a hunter to seriously wound or even kill another hunter.

Each year in North Carolina the number of people who purchase hunting licenses increases; the number of people who go out with guns in quest of upland game also increases. Each year Pitt County—because of its relatively good quail and rabbit hunting—gets its proportional share of the increased number of hunters.

Each passing year it pays hunters to be more careful than the year before. That is true in Pitt County just as it is in the remainder of the state.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LET US GIVE THANKS

Thanksgiving Day is a fine, wholesome, national observance. It is a good thing to have a day set aside designed to remind us of the duty and privilege of being thankful. It is even more important that we carry in our hearts all through the year a devout spirit of thankfulness.

Ponder the fact that there is not a single thing in the world which is not given to us by a Power higher than our own. To be sure we have to gather the elements together in order to buy food, clothing, shelter, warmth, comfort, and protection. But the elements are given and the power of mind and muscle by which we gather them together are given also.

I hope I am not a Pharisee, but sometimes I fail to think about how marvelous it is that I should have been born into a free country, into a Christian home, and in the most marvelous, scientific age humanity has known in its history. Oh yes, I am mindful of the atomic bomb and two world wars and the threat of a third. I am doubly conscious of the present. I read the list of men called into the service with as much regret as you do. But still this is the greatest age in which human beings have ever lived, and you and I on this North American continent are placed at the very center of its munificence.

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me? I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord."

White's Latin America Tour

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Harry Dexter White's possible involvement in Communist intrigue in explosive South America remains on the calendar of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee as extremely important but unfinished business. The Reds have virtually taken over Guatemala, ousting U.S. interests and confiscating their property, and have dangerous footholds in other countries within easy bombing distance.

It has been brought out that, while under what Harry S. Truman describes as "surveillance," White visited almost every Caribbean, Central American and Latin-American country in 1947—a year after the many FBI warnings against him—as a representative of the International Monetary Fund. He handled such a delicate question as exchange rates.

It would not be surprising if the FBI had a secret file on his activities while on this trip. His espionage activities had been well documented, and he was supposedly under strict watch by order of Truman. It is known that the FBI had scores of its ablest agents throughout this area, combating Russian spies and businessmen. By arrangement with the State Department, J. Edgar Hoover's sleuths were attached to economic and diplomatic missions in order to camouflage their real assignment.

CURRIE IN COLOMBIA—In this connection, the Jenner Committee would like to question Lauchlin Currie, a White friend and protégé even before both entered Treasury service in 1934. Currie was listed by Elizabeth Bentley along with White as one of the Red ring's most valuable contacts and promoters in the Roosevelt Administration.

When Currie resigned as a White House secretary several years ago, he was engaged by the Colombian Republic to make a study of its monetary and financial system, including exchange rates. Despite some mystery surrounding his long absence, he is now said to be advising Colombia on irrigation problems. He was never known to be an expert in that field, however.

of the horror of civil strife when President Lincoln proclaimed the first national Thanksgiving day in 1863.

Or better still, the individual who knows not what he has to be thankful for at this season, may compare his position today with that of millions of shivering, starving fellow men around the globe.

There is not one in this nation called the United States who has not received during the past year more blessings from the Almighty God than he can possibly count. And everyone at this season—at the pause which annually comes amid the whirl of everyday activity—should humble his heart in reverent praise and thanksgiving to the Lord of Lords from whom all blessings have flowed so freely.

This is the season of Thanksgiving. Each individual knows his blessings and the source from which they come, if he will but recognize it. May each individual find it in his heart to give thanks this Thanksgiving Season.

How's That For Speed, Grandpa

It was just a few short years ago that scientists and aeronautical engineers talked of aircraft which would reach the speed of sound. And the laymen shook their heads with doubt and harbored private opinions such a speed would never be attained.

The sound barrier has been shattered now, and speeds less than that of sound is considered outmoded and "old fashioned." Now, it has been revealed that a new speed record of twice the speed of sound has been set by an airplane.

The announcement said a new speed record of 1,327 miles per hour has been attained.

It makes even the modern jet speeds of 700-plus sound out of date.

For most folks who can remember back to the days of a "reckless" speed limit of 35 miles per hour for autos or those who recall the horse and buggy days, it is difficult to imagine travel at more than 1,000 miles an hour. Indeed, it is difficult for the "youngsters" who have always known fast automobiles and airplanes to imagine such a speed being utilized in transportation.

If the new plane could carry enough fuel to make the trip, it could travel from New York to San Francisco in about the same time it used to take grandpa to drive the horse and buggy from Greenville to Ayden.

And the thing about it is, the new speed record is not likely to stand long before another pilot in another super-speed craft breaks it. We're living in a fast world.

"Build a machine gun and what happens? It either rusts in a warehouse or blows up on a battlefield. Build a washing machine and this happens: It takes the druggery out of some woman's life."—Secretary of Commerce Weeks.

SEA LEVEL — Saturday was a red letter day for eastern Carteret county. In many respects it was an important date for all of North Carolina. The occasion was the presentation of the Sea Level Community Hospital to a board of trustees and its dedication to the service of the people along the coast.

The occasion brought Governor William Umstead and several other dignitaries from up-state and some 3,000 residents of the area. The event itself was noteworthy. Back of it is a long succession of years of achievement.

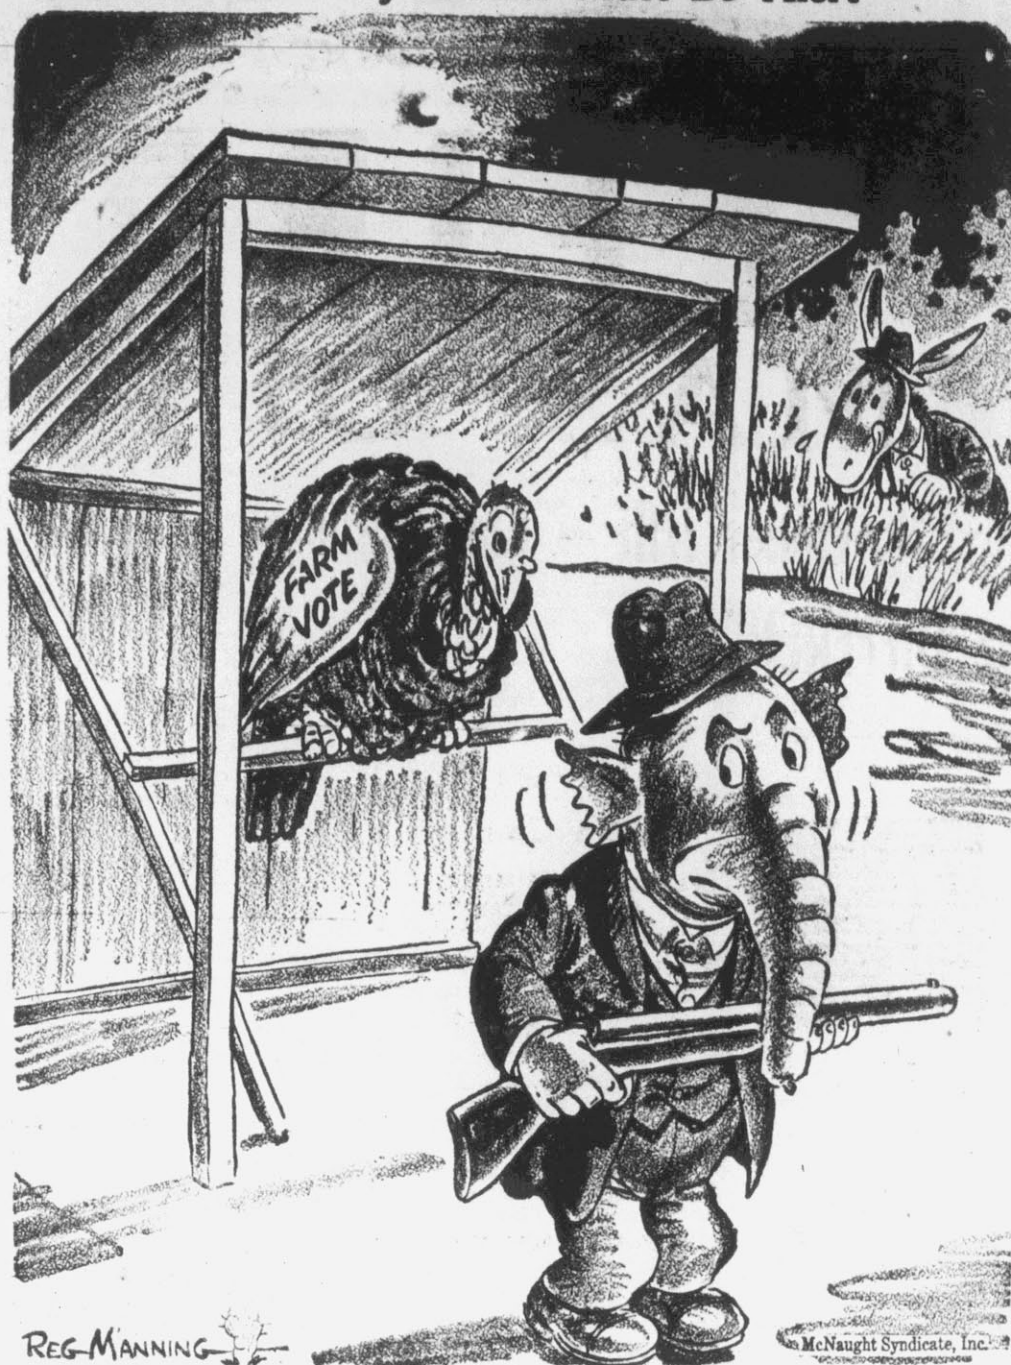

In his brief remarks Governor Umstead said that "wrapped up in the story unfolding here today is evidence of the spirit which has made America great."

The gift of the half million dollar hospital, the most modern and complete and money could provide in a 24 to 34 bed institution, by the Taylor Foundation is one chapter in the success story. The four Taylor brothers—Dan, William, Albert and Leslie—sons of Mr. and Mrs. Maltby Taylor of Sea Level, have made good in a big way in business.

Beginning with an outer banks pony sale for $50 some 40 years ago, they have built a multi-million dollar empire of steamships, railroad ferries, hotels and brokerage firms, operating from New York to Cuba. With fine offices and splendid residences in Florida and Virginia and swank hotel apartments in New York and Palm Beach, they still think of Sea Level as "home."

APRECIATIVE — The home-folks showed their appreciation by turning out for the dedication with hundreds of baskets of picnic viands such as can be found nowhere else in the same degree of excellence as in eastern North Carolina. Added to the steamed oysters and olives, fresh fried fish and barbecue, the picnic baskets assured everyone present a bountiful

Somebody Told Me

We'll Have Football Thursday

A proposed Thanksgiving Day football game for East Carolina College was not practical because the only logical opponent, Furman, demanded $7,000 to come here.

But thanks to the City Recreation Department, Greenville will have football here tomorrow with an out-of-state team. Yesterday I was talking to Recreation Director Warren Carroll and asked him, "What did North Charleston, S. C. demand for the trip?"

"They were reasonable," he said. "All we had to guarantee was sleeping quarters for two nights, six meals, and part of the transportation expenses." Warren and I agreed that the contrast between the guarantees was much greater than the contrast between the football. Those midgeets play for keeps and always put on a big show.

"But I'm going to stay home," I told Warren, "unless you have a program. If I can't tell you the boys are, I might as well." Warren guaranteed me that a free program will be available giving the boys' names and jersey numbers. In fact, the game is free, but you will be requested to donate to help defray the expenses.

The Exchange Club is the co-sponsor along with the Recreation Commission. Last year the club turned over to the Midget football fund $200 to be used for equipment purchases.

The Commission's Athletic Director, George MacMillan, coaches the Greenville Midgets, whose weight must not exceed 115 pounds and who must not be 15 years of age by January 2nd. North Charleston sent the Little League baseball team here for the regional tournament last summer that represented South Carolina as State Champions.

"We certainly hope to have a big turnout Thursday," Warren said. "There's a lot of work and some expense involved in bringing in a team and we like to see that the people of Greenville are interested in the recreation program. The only way we have of knowing is by the number who show up at East Carolina Stadium."

If you want to see a good ball game tomorrow, come out and you can count on the Midgets to give you a good show. And according to Warren, you'll be able to tell who's who from the program.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

WATER'S A-WASTING
(Greensboro Daily News)

Revelation by the State Stream Sanitation Committee that it has adopted standards which it will use in carrying out its anti-pollution program in North Carolina is tangible evidence of progress, however slow, in a field where indifference and inaction have too long prevailed.

These standards, set up first for fresh water which is our chief concern as we depend upon it for drinking purposes and largely for industrial development, and then for salt, are: 1. (A) Water suitable for drinking with treatment only for natural impurities. (B) Water suitable for drinking after treatment.

(C) water suitable for bathing. (D) for fishing. (E) for agriculture or industrial use and (F) for navigation; and 2. (A) water suitable for shellfish. (B) water suitable for bathing. (C) water suitable for fishing and (D) water suitable for navigation only.

Assuming that the ocean can more or less take care of itself and the sharp, pressing need involves fresh water, we conclude that the commission will tackle that area more promptly and vigorously. We recognize that many difficulties exist and that it is desirable to take corrective action with a minimum of delay. But taken action must be in the public interest and, for that matter, for survival. Concerted pressure from special interest groups has held up a remedial program entirely too long. Every year, every month, lost has seen worsening conditions, more dead or seriously threatened water in North Carolina and mounting corrective costs which, we have feared, may become, if they are not already, prohibitive.

Setting up standards is fine, as a necessary move to further action. But the urge is to begin applying those standards, seeing that they are met and supplied, unlimited, we have too long taken for granted; and for our concern, indifference and depletion we are paying the price.

Important Event For Cartaret County, North Carolina

SEA LEVEL — Saturday was a red letter day for eastern Carteret county. In many respects it was an important date for all of North Carolina. The occasion was the presentation of the Sea Level Community Hospital to a board of trustees and its dedication to the service of the people along the coast.

The occasion brought Governor William Umstead and several other dignitaries from up-state and some 3,000 residents of the area. The event itself was noteworthy. Back of it is a long succession of years of achievement.

In his brief remarks Governor Umstead said that "wrapped up in the story unfolding here today is evidence of the spirit which has made America great."

The gift of the half million dollar hospital, the most modern and complete and money could provide in a 24 to 34 bed institution, by the Taylor Foundation is one chapter in the success story. The four Taylor brothers—Dan, William, Albert and Leslie—sons of Mr. and Mrs. Maltby Taylor of Sea Level, have made good in a big way in business.

ful meal with hundreds of full baskets and boxes left over to carry home.

The local people are proud of the hospital. They are also just a little bit afraid of the responsibility placed upon them to keep it going.

BURDEN — The hospital is beautifully located on the edge of Nelson's Bay, about 30 miles northeast of Beaufort—the nearest community of consequential size. There is one resident physician, the remainder of the staff being all members of the Carteret County Medical Society.

The sobering thought to some of the local people is whether these doctors can come when needed, and whether patients can be transported to the hospital as quickly as might be necessary. Then there is the problem of operating expense, which is bound to be heavy per patient, and there is no endowment or subsidy. These conditions may occasion worry later. They were in the background of thought Saturday. That was the gala day.

The folks were happy in their appreciation of the hospital and in looking over the ultra-modern Sea Level Inn motel nearby. Another attraction was 118-foot seagoing yacht owned by Dan Taylor and christened "The Sea Level," which was anchored in Nelson's Bay. The bay had to be dredged to enable the yacht to come in, and the dredgings were used to fill in the marsh beside the hospital to give a broad sloping lawn from the water's edge.

It was an ideal landing place for the five helicopters which brought Admiral Wood of the Coast Guard, Col. Holdberg and other Marine officers from Cherry Point.

business associates of the Taylor boys. Two special Pullman cars came up from Palm Beach with some passengers from Cuba.

An interesting sidelight on the deal was that Harry Edwards of the A&EC railroad sent a special engine to Goldsboro to pick up the cars from the Coast Line and bring them to Morehead City. Local residents were glad that arrival of these Pullmans, an unusual event for Morehead, was occasion for cutting the weeds and grass from the right of way in the middle of the town's main street.

HOSPITALITY — Facilities of the Jefferson Hotel in Morehead City and the Ocean King on Atlantic Beach were virtually unwritten by the Taylors for the entertainment of their guests. Arrangements had been made for Tony Seamon to open his Sanitary Restaurant for breakfast Saturday morning—the first time he had ever served breakfast.

The high spot in the hospitality category was the picnic at Sea Level. It is no disparagement of the contribution made by the commercial hotels and eating places around Morehead City and Beaufort to give major credit to the home-making women who brought the picnic boxes. Many of the

MORE STORES NOW CHARGE FOR ALTERATIONS

Charges for alterations of men's suits are spreading. Now three large Chicago stores are levying fees. Most stores in Washington, D.C., have been charging for several years and also some stores in St. Louis, Dallas and other cities. In addition, many other stores charge for alterations of sale and cut-price clothing.

One thing pushing the trend along is the high cost of good tailors.

Marketing Abroad

By ELMER ROESSNER

American manufacturers, facing a buyers' market at home, may be confronted with even worse troubles in markets abroad. Europe's productive capacity has been largely restored. European manufacturers are seeking markets for their surpluses. Since these are often produced with low-wage labor, they are being offered at prices lower than American manufacturers can meet.

Right now, both behind and in front of the scenes, a terrific fight is being waged to stiffen American tariffs against competitive imports. We can, of course, keep any foreign goods we choose out of the American market—but we cannot keep them out of the other markets of the world.

Harold E. Stassen, chief of the Foreign Operations Administration, told the National Foreign Trade Convention last week, present levels of production in the free nations as a whole are slightly higher than present levels of consuming power. The solution he sees is an increase in real wages. But before that can be achieved, the surpluses of each country will be dumped in other markets—competing with goods from all the other countries, including America.

Another aspect of the situation was pointed out by S. Riley Williams, vice-president of international business of Worthington corp. who, back from Europe, declared that prices are weakening there. That he said, is a good thing. "Europe must export to live and it has been handicapped by the high prices of its products," he added.

Those lower prices are giving American-made products tougher competition in Caracas, Ceylon, Ankara and a thousand other markets America, and Canada, too, has lost part of its share of the export market for autos and trucks. No other country has as efficient assembly lines as ours. And no other country pays its workers so much. Workers in England, France and Germany get from 15 to 25 per cent of the pay that men in Detroit get.

Now, a threat seems to be developing from another source—Russia. Soviet trade missionaries are reported to be in Latin America and other markets offering substitutes for American goods at vastly cheaper prices. Russia can afford to—because of the cheapness of slave labor. Some observers expect the Soviets to try to flood the markets of the world with goods priced to wreck the economies of the free nations.

U.S. PER CAPITA INCOME EIGHT TIMES RUSSIA'S

Some idea of the wage differentials among countries may be gained from a report on "World Population and Production," a study by W.S. and E.S. Woytinsky, published by the Twentieth Century Fund today. The Woytinskys use 1948 figures, which they found more nearly complete than later ones. Their figures on per capita income, of which wages are the biggest factor, show the average American got $1,525. Next was Switzerland, $950; New Zealand, $933; Canada, $895—and on down to Russia, $181; the Philippines, $41, and Ecuador, $40.

There are traps to these figures as the Woytinskys point out, in that they do not take a variety of local conditions into consideration. At first glance it would look as if Ecuadorians could afford to eat only one-third of the food of the U.S., which is certainly not the case. But in a broad and dramatic way the figures do show what the American manufacturer is up against when he starts producing for world markets.

Century's Best Thanksgiving Day

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—America looks forward today to the best Thanksgiving since the twentieth century reached middle age. The guns at last are silent on this harvest holiday of happiness for the first time since 1949. No American is shooting off anything except his mouth, which in our pastime and a form of exercise, is a God-given right.

There may be flyspecks in the economy, but the great majority of our people have more to be cheerful about than they have had in years.

Peace may be a mirage, but the nightmare of Korea is ended at least for a time. The foe is halted. The atom and hydrogen bombs remain in their darkened stables. We may forget the guided missile as we reach for a turkey drumstick with a guided muscle.

Most every man who wants to work still has a job, a table to put his feet under—and something to eat on the table. As a nation we have reason to celebrate with a full heart as well as a full stomach.

It has been a good year, now, hasn't it? Particularly if you forget the weather. The weather man has given us a long series of tornadoes, floods, and droughts, and in the cities, now his theme song is "Smog Gets in Your Eyes." But it isn't his fault. Every once in a while the climate just gets out of his control. Let's hope the weather fellow gets a piece of turkey tomorrow, too—even if it is only the neck. He's been sticking his own neck out all year.

Who doesn't have something to feel grateful for?

The nation's health keeps on getting better. We took a long step forward in the conquest of polio. Somebody built a doughnut with a smaller hole, and another fellow found a way to put a lime flavor in popcorn.

Rita Hayworth got a new husband. The movie industry came up with a new screen wide enough to give a full view of Marilyn Monroe. Television discovered and began to feature a bright new playwright—William Shakespeare—and put on "King Lear" without having old Lear do a beer or razor blade commercial.

The Republican party could feel grateful all its defeats were local in nature, as there was no national election, one of the really nice things about 1953. The Democrats were equally grateful that Harry Dexter White hadn't been born twins.

The sports world had its moments of bliss to look back on, too. The St. Louis Browns, after all these years, got a chance for a new start in life under a new name. Notre Dame's football team managed to make a few lucky first downs, a feat coach Frank Leahy had expressed doubt they could pull off at the start of the season.

The laboring man and the tired businessman were cheered by a Philadelphia heart specialist's statement that a woman today is now strong enough to raise kids, take care of the house, hold down an outside job and also protect her poor weak husband. The average man saw a more hopeful future also in the fact more stores began featuring the two-pants suit again.

Mortgage money became more plentiful, so that a fellow again could start borrowing to buy the things he couldn't afford.

Yes, peace and general plenty bestride America which, a survey shows, pulls down 40 per cent of the total income in a hungry world.

Let us, when the steaming turkey is put on the table tomorrow, bend our heads in thanks for what we have, and not forget to mention in our prayers, as the old Irish mothers say, "the ones that are ill, and the ones away."

It is a Thanksgiving to remember, now in our pilgrimage.

By GAY FAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (U.P.) — Cooking methods have come a long way since our Pilgrim mothers, but not far enough to take all the work out of the Thanksgiving dinner.

The experts say the traditional feast may be prepared in four to seven hours—thanks to the can opener, the deep freeze, ready-to-serve foods, temperature-controlled ranges and automatic dishwashers.

The Pilgrim housewife needed 48 to 72 hours. If hubby were busy with the harvest, she shot, cleaned and dressed the turkey. She ground the corn meal, made the hominy, greased pumpkin for the pie, and picked the cranberries.

One home economist says today's housewife has more conveniences than her Pilgrim sister, but doubts if she is any better off than the housewife of 50 or 75 years ago.

"Our grandmothers didn't have all the labor savers," said Florence Brobeck, home economist and cookbook author. "But they had something else—help from cousins, aunts and the children."

"Now," she said, "a woman's lucky if she can get hubby to pile the dishes in the dishwasher."

Cooked Turkey All Day
The Pilgrim housewife cooked the turkey and other fowl in the chimney "oven," and the process took all day.

Fruit or pumpkin pie was baked on a shovel in the fireplace; and if sweet potatoes were available, probably were roasted in ashes.

In 18th century Colonial days, the time for roasting and baking was about three times that required with today's temperature-controlled ranges. With the large Colonial homes, a separate building housed the kitchen where the wood (later coal) ranges were kept going day long. Pies were baked ahead of the big day; hams, turkey and other fowl, and fruit cakes all took long hours.

And then came modern appliances and foods ready or almost ready to serve. The homemaker now can have prepared virtually all the holiday meal at her leisure, stored it in the freezer, and have nothing more to do on the big day than heat it, set the table and serve.

Pies Come From Can
Cranberry sauce and pumpkin come out of a can. Or pumpkin pie may be bought from the local bakery. Rolls need either a few minutes more of baking, or a mere warming up. Turkeys come ready to stuff, stuffing comes ready to use.

Test kitchen supervisors at Lever Brothers and General Foods say the time required to prepare today's feast is no more than the time required to cook the turkey. A 12 to 16-pound bird, for instance, is roasted four and one-half to five hours. And, while it's baking, you can prepare the rest of the meal.

"That is," said one home economist, "unless your menu is mighty elaborate... and there are four or five children tugging at your skirts."

So Far, Only A Piece Of String Dividing Couple

LOS ANGELES (U.P.)—A piece of string divides the refrigerator in the home of Kenneth L. Fisher and his wife, estranged. Their food is separated too.

Fisher, wealthy 29-year-old owner of an auto repair business, is in court trying to get full custody of their 5-year-old son. His wife Betty, 24, married twice previously, is trying to get full possession of the house.

Mrs. Fisher says she cooks her own food, but Fisher has a housekeeper to prepare his.

"I want my husband out of the house," Mrs. Fisher told a court commissioner yesterday, "and I want to fire the housekeeper." Fisher wants custody of the child pending trial of their divorce action next March 23.

LONG TIME WED

SAGLE, Idaho (U.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Hartley, who were married in Tennessee when both were 16, celebrated their 78th wedding anniversary yesterday.

Plan Now For Quiet, Relaxed Holiday

What are you planning for Thanksgiving? Guests coming to your house or are you going to someone else's home for the traditional American feast day? Whatever your plans they undoubtedly include the children. If your children are quite young a little careful planning ahead of time may make all the difference between a happy as usual Thanksgiving morning.

A pleasant, cooperative child will add interest and warmth to the gathering but a tired irritable one may perform with tantrums and tears and wreck everyone's enjoyment, especially mother's.

Little people thrive on regularity. They feel happier and more secure when things come along as expected when meals are at their accustomed time and place, when naps and bedtime roll around as usual. Don't ask too much of a little child suddenly. He won't be able to take it.

How you plan depends a lot on your child's age and the kind of life he has been accustomed to. Mrs. Radford managed very well with 2-year-old Sally. Sally got up as usual Thanksgiving morning, had her breakfast and went out to play. When the grandparents and aunts arrived, Sally came in and greeted them. She and grandma went off together and had a tea party, with Sally's usual mid-morning juice. Grandma stayed with Sally most of the rest of the morning and kept her out of the kitchen and from under mother's feet.

As Sally's regular lunch time, mother turned over her kitchen duties to grandma, fixed Sally's usual lunch, took it upstairs on a tray and sat down quietly with the child. Mrs. Radford was leisurely and relaxed. Sally did not feel she was being rushed through her meal, so that mother could join the company. Sally ate up her lunch happily, mother tucked her into bed for her nap. While Sally slept, the grownups enjoyed their turkey and all its trimmings.

After dinner, when Sally woke up, grandma had a turn with her little granddaughter. They played together for a while and then went out for a walk. Everybody had a good time and Sally's mother basked in the compliments of her parents for her sweet little girl.

If Sally's mother had not planned the day around her little girl, the chances are quite good that there would have been trouble. The excitement of lots of people, the fatigue of waiting an extra hour or two for the midday meal and then having new food with a big gathering of people would have been too much for Sally to take calmly.

Sally, in general, is a sweet child, but pushed beyond her capacities she can pull a full-fledged tantrum. Her mother had learned this the hard way and this time was determined that Sally's Thanksgiving festivities would be kept within her ability to handle them.

If you go to someone else's home instead of having guests in your own house, try to plan just as carefully. Mother will probably not have so many duties in the kitchen and can arrange to spend much time with her child, and keep her away from too much hubbub.

Unless a little child is well accustomed to eating with a table full of people, it's almost always wiser not to bring him to the festive Thanksgiving dinner table. Wait until he is a few years older.

Russia Buys Big New York House

NEW YORK (U.P.)—The Soviet government has bought a large town house on fashionable East 68th street as a home for Andrei Y. Vishinsky, its permanent delegate to the United Nations.

The new owners reportedly paid $150,000 for the six-story residence, built by J. William Clark, president of the Clark Thread Co. It was bought in 1943 by Leroy A. Lincoln, chairman of the board of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., who sold it to the Russians.

Built of stone, the house has 20 rooms and is equipped with an elevator. It adjoins the Russian U.N. delegation offices at 680 Park Ave.

Students Gulp Thermometers In Study Of Ulcers

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (U.P.)—Marquette University medical students have been swallowing thermometers to aid in research on the cause of ulcers.

The idea is that temperature of the stomach tells what is happening to the supply of blood to the stomach lining, which is important in the formation of ulcers.

The research is the work of Dr. Walter Zeit, head of the school's anatomy department, and two other members of his staff, Drs. H. B. Benjamin and Marvin Wagner.

Students actually swallow a silver capsule containing eight interconnected thermocouples. These respond to temperature variations by producing small electric currents which pass through wires in a small plastic tube attached to a recording instrument on the "outside." The silver capsule or tube is about one-quarter inch in diameter and one and a half inches long.

The research has shown that temperature of the stomach lining goes down from mid-morning until lunch time and then rises gradually again. Hunger contractions pinch off the supply of blood to the lining, reducing the temperature.

High Temperature Best
Those stomach contractions are controlled by the right vagus nerve. Researchers believe that when this nerve fails to filter out sensations such as tension and anxiety, the stomach lining can then be digested by the acid and pepsin in the stomach.

That's what happens when an ulcer forms.

The Marquette researchers have found that students with high normal stomach temperatures—take 101 degrees for example—have low concentrations of acid and pepsin and are less likely to get ulcers. Low temperatures means a high concentration of the chemicals between meal times.

Work is being done with drugs that block the extra activity of the vagus nerve, thus preventing contractions. This keeps up a good blood supply to the lining and helps make the temperatures more constant.

But researchers have found that cutting the vagus nerve does not wholly prevent ulcers. Some doctors believe there is a digestive enzyme and antienzyme system that gets out of adjustment in ulcer victims.

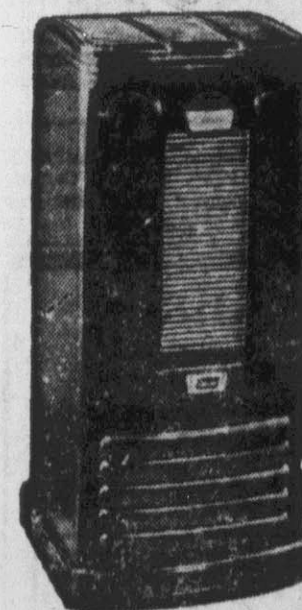

The researchers also have found that a cigarette smoked by a "guinea pig" student will cause stomach temperatures to fall. Apparently this is caused by the cooling action on the endings of the vagus nerve in the lung, causing, by chain reaction contractions of the stomach wall.

By GAY FAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (U.P.)—Cooking methods have come a long way since our Pilgrim mothers, but not far enough to take all the work out of the Thanksgiving dinner.

The experts say the traditional feast may be prepared in four to seven hours—thanks to the can opener, the deep freeze, ready-to-serve foods temperature-controlled ranges and automatic dishwashers.

One home economist says today's housewife has more conveniences than her Pilgrim sister, but doubts if she is any better off than the housewife of 50 or 75 years ago. "Our grandmothers didn't have all the labor savers," said Florence Brobeck, home economist and cookbook author. "But they had something else—help from cousins, aunts and the children."

"Now," she said, "a woman's lucky if she can get hubby to pile the dishes in the dishwasher."

Cooked Turkey All Day
The Pilgrim housewife cooked the turkey and other fowl in the chimney "oven," and the process took all day.

Fruit or pumpkin pie was baked on a shovel in the fireplace, and if sweet potatoes were available, probably were roasted in ashes.

In 18th century Colonial days, the time for roasting and baking was about three times that required with today's temperature-controlled ranges. With the large Colonial homes, a separate building housed the kitchen where the wood (later coal) ranges were kept going day long. Pies were baked ahead of the big day; hams, turkey and other fowl, and fruit cakes all took long hours.

And then came modern appliances and foods ready or almost ready to serve. The homemaker now can have prepared virtually all the holiday meal at her leisure, stored it in the freezer, and have nothing more to do on the big day than heat it, set the table and serve.

Pies Come From Can
Cranberry sauce and pumpkin come out of a can. Or pumpkin pies may be bought from the local bakery. Rolls need either a few minutes more of baking, or a mere warming up. Turkeys come ready to stuff, stuffing comes ready to use.

Test kitchen supervisors at Lever Brothers and General Foods say the time required to prepare today's feast is no more than the time required to cook the turkey. A 12 to 16-pound bird, for instance, is roasted four and one-half to five hours. And, while it's baking, you can prepare the rest of the meal.

"That is," said one home economist, "unless your menu is mighty elaborate. . . and there are four or five children tugging at your skirts."

So Far, Only A Piece Of String Dividing Couple

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A piece of string divides the refrigerator in the home of Kenneth L. Fisher and his wife, estranged. Their food is separated too.

Fisher, wealthy 29-year-old owner of an auto repair business, is in court trying to get full custody of their 5-year-old son. His wife Betty, 24, married twice previously, is trying to get full possession of the house.

Mrs. Fisher says she cooks her own food, but Fisher has a housekeeper to prepare his.

"I want my husband out of the house," Mrs. Fisher told a court commissioner yesterday, "and I want to fire the housekeeper."

Fisher wants custody of the child pending trial of their divorce action next March 23.

Meet The Phants:

Center Hal Edwards

HAROLD EDWARDS
... Greenville Center

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

(One of a series of articles concerning members of the Greenville High School basketball squad.)

In the latter stages of the 1952-1953 basketball season Coach Bo Farley found his Greenville High School team without a center.

Injuries and sickness had hit the Phantoms hard so far as the Varsity group was concerned. Farley had just one thing he could do unless he wanted to cancel the remainder of the basketball schedule.

That one thing was to bring someone up from the Junior Varsity squad to finish the year.

Farley asked Coach Bill Kittrell to let him have freshman center Harold Edwards for the Varsity squad. Kittrell consented and the Phantoms had completed one of the best moves of the season.

Edwards had been averaging 14 points per game with Kittrell's Jayvees. Against the "tougher" competition of the Varsity, he slowed just a bit, averaging 10.5 points per game for the last six on the Greenville card.

His real work, however, came in the rebounding department. Edwards grabbed 67 rebounds for the Phantoms in those last six games.

Edwards' best individual performance of the year came in the consolation finals of the Northeastern Conference tournament. The G-men were playing tough Washington.

Edwards rose to the occasion that night, scoring 22 points and grabbing 19 rebounds in one of the most outstanding individual performances of the tournament and the season.

Some of the personal feelings about that performance were injured, however, when Edwards was snubbed in the selection of an all-tournament team. He was completely passed up in the balloting.

Although Edwards depends on rebounds and offensive tip-ins for a majority of his points he owns a variety of shots. He has the unusual ability to hook with either hand from the pivot. He has a jump shot from close-in to balance the push shot he uses when the defense forces him outside of the key-hole position he usually occupies.

Edwards doesn't confine his athletic endeavors to basketball. He is a catcher-outfielder on Coach Bo Farley's baseball team. On the football squad, he is one of the best pass receivers in the conference and a top end. On the track team, he is the ace high jumper.

Grifton Boys Get First Win Of Year

GRIFTON—Grifton's boys basketball team broke into the win column here last night when Jimmy McLawhorn sank a last second foul shot for a 43-42 victory over Walstonburg.

Grifton had been on the short end of the score in three games until McLawhorn made the shot which put them ahead of a team that had already licked them once this year.

Craft took high-scoring honors for Grifton with 11 points but Harrell of the visitors dropped in 20 to take honors for the game.

In a preliminary contest, the Grifton girls dropped the Walstonburg girls 72-39. Colleen Braxton poured in 36 points to lead the way for Coach E. B. Bright's team. Dawn Smith was runner-up in the Grifton scoring race with 20 points, the same number scored by Walstonburg's Craft.

Adrian Brown coaches the Grifton boys.

A SCREEN CATCHES PARTRIDGE
BERLIN, N.H. (AP)—Robert Holland got his first partridge of the season. It was wounded by a bedroom screen and retrieved by a three-year old boy. Holland, a well-known hunter in this area, had tramped through the woods for 15 days with no luck. But one morning he heard a thump at his bedroom window.

Looking out, he saw this three-year old neighbor holding a dazed partridge.

By scoring more than 100 runs again in 1953 Stan Musial extended his own record of "most consecutive years scoring 100 or more runs." He accomplished the feat for the 10th consecutive year.

Midget All-Stars Ready For Big Contest

THE NORTH CHARLESTON team that will meet the Greenville Midget All-Stars tomorrow in College stadium are expected to arrive in Greenville today. The 21-man squad will be in Greenville for the first time in what is hoped to become an annual event.

All-Coastal Conference Selections:

Lee Named Coach Of Year In Coastal

Coach R. B. Lee of Robersonville has been named as "Coach of the Year" in the Coastal Athletic Conference.

Lee's selection was announced today by Edward D. Thompson, secretary of the conference. The selection was made Monday night at the annual meeting of the coaches.

Lee's Robersonville team tied for top honors in the Coastal Conference football standings. Both the Rams and the Farmville Red Devils ended the season with identical 5-1 records. Lee's team defeated Farmville, 7-6, during the regular season, however.

Lee had to share his honors with four members of his squad who were selected to the All-Coastal Conference team. The Rams placed end Maurice Everett, tackle Curtis Robinson, guard Pete Johnson, and back Dan Clark on the all-star team.

Farmville's Red Devils also placed four men on the first team. Center Jack Allen was a repeater as was halfback Teddy Allen. Jesse Joyner was named as one of the halfbacks and Carroll Wooten was selected at one of the tackle posts.

The other three positions on the first team went to members of the Vanceboro squad. Vernon Wingate was selected by the coaches as an All-Conference end, John Laughinghouse was picked at guard, and Jack Taylor was named as one of the four backs.

Second Team

The second team selections included Ronnie Modlin of Jameville and Fred Thorne of Farmville at the ends, Stuart Hamm of Snow Hill and Ayden's Bobby Barfield at the tackles, James Taylor of Robersonville and Jimmy Allen of Farmville at the guards, Wilbur Rollins of Farmville at center, and Earl Wright of Vanceboro, Sigbee Dikla of Farmville, Jerry Cunningham of Snow Hill, and Andy Warren of Robersonville in the backfield.

In the conference standings, Robersonville and Farmville tied for first with 5-1 records. Vanceboro was third with a 4-1-1 mark. Ayden was third with a 3-2-1 record. Jameville was fourth with a 2-4 mark. Snow Hill was fifth with a 1-5 mark, and South Edgecombe was last with a 0-6 record.

In a special ruling by the coaches, Farmville was declared champion because Robersonville had played the 10 games allowed by the State Board of Education and a playoff contest was not possible.

Coaches from all seven of the conference schools attended the meeting.

Smith Gets Last Chance For ACC Scoring Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

James (Red) Smith, Duke's chunky halfback who has been out injured a month, has his last chance Saturday to wrest the Atlantic Coast Conference scoring lead from Maryland's Bernie Faloney.

Smith sprained an ankle in the first quarter of the Virginia game Oct. 31. He has been out of action since and the Duke fortunes have been on the wane.

Despite the four-week layoff, Smith still is third in scoring in the conference. He needs two touchdowns to pass Faloney who has 54 points.

In three years, Smith has amassed 123 points. Two touchdowns would give him 135 points and the all-time Duke scoring record now held by the Blue Devils' backfield coach, Clarence (Ace) Parker.

Smith is back practicing in heavy togs, although he has been held out of rough work. But Coach Bill Murray probably will let him see plenty of action against North Carolina Saturday in the season's wind-up for both teams.

The 5-9 200-pound halfback is considered the best in Duke history.

In 1951 he was the Southern Conference punting champion. Last year he averaged 5.2 yards per try rushing, losing only 19 yards the complete season. Up to the Georgia Tech game, Smith was the Blue Devils' leading rusher this year.

Aiming for their fourth win in as many years over the Tar Heels, the Dukes stressed offense yesterday. Jerry Barger and Worth Lutz handled the quarterbacking chores. Some fancy running by backs

Nick Marcolopolus, Billy Hawks, Ken Kelley and Connie Graville highlighted the North Carolina drills. Dick Lackey, who has been the nation's top punter the past four weeks, worked light favoring an injured leg.

The game will be the 40th meeting of the two schools. It is one of the hottest rivalries in the nation.

North Carolina State, which leaves Thursday for Tallahassee to play Florida State, gave its line-man a defensive workout yesterday.

Coach Rex Enright sent South Carolina through a long session and announced most of his players were in good shape for the Thanksgiving Day game in Charlotte against Wake Forest in the first annual Carrousel Bowl.

The Deacons, riddled with injuries, had little contact in their drills and got more bad news. The team physician said halfback Bruce Hillenbrand, the Deacons' top ground gainer, would not be able to play.

Pro-Am Golfing

WILSON, N. C. (AP)—A pro-amateur event was scheduled here today before the opening of the eighth annual North Carolina Amateur golf tournament tomorrow.

Match play will be held tomorrow, Friday and Sunday. Arthur Ruffin of Wilson is defending champion in the event sponsored by the Wilson Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Play is over the Wilson Country Club course.

Split - T Offense Is Picked For Greenies

Alston's New Job To Be Permanent

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP)—Walter (Smockey) Alston, new Brooklyn Dodger pilot, will not be an interim manager.

Dodger President Walter F. O'Malley stressed that point with special emphasis today, going at great lengths to explain that "no one will be breathing down his neck. The job is his ... for many years to come. ... I hope."

Alston, a comparative unknown, was named to succeed Charlie Dressen yesterday after Pee Wee Reese, shortstop and captain of the Dodgers, had declined the role of a playing manager.

The contract is for one year at an estimated $25,000 salary.

The 42-year-old resident of Oxford, Ohio, who has been serving as manager in the Dodger farm system for 8½ years, saw the briefest of service in the major leagues. He appeared in only one game and was at bat only one time. That was in 1936 as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I got up only one time," he recalled with a smile. "Lon Warneke was pitching. I fouled off a couple then struck out. We had Johnny Mize, Rip Collins and Dick Siebert so I just had a 'cup of coffee.'"

O'Malley, who sat side by side with his new manager during the two-hour press conference at the Dodgers' office, frankly voiced his concern that Alston would be looked upon in certain quarters as an interim manager, filling in only until Reese was ready to take over the managerial reins.

"That definitely is not so," he declared. "Reese will not be a shadow creeping up on Alston. Pee Wee is a fine, understanding and wonderful person. If Reese wants to manage when his playing career is over, we will give him an opportunity to manage in our minor league organization. Or he may start out on top—but it would have to be with another big league club."

"Alston is the logical man to succeed Dressen. His promotion, in line with our policy of rewarding our own men, is a justification of his record in the Dodger organization. He has the character, knowledge and the ability. (Vice Presidents E. J. Bavasi, Fresno Thompson and scouts Andy and Red Corriden) were all unanimous in selecting Walter."

Although Alston admitted he had seen the Dodgers play only once since 1936 and had never seen a World Series game except on television, he has a personal acquaintance with a majority of the Dodger players. There are 25 players on the current Brooklyn roster who have played at some time under Alston during his managing career. He finished second with Montreal last season after losing to the New York Yankees.

Kansas City American Assn. farm club in the Little World Series four games to one.

Could this be the big reason for naming him Dodger manager? O'Malley was asked.

"I am very much aware of any body who ever beats the Yankees or any part thereof," he replied. "It's no secret that we're out to win a World Series. That means we've got to beat the Yankees and we're going to point for it."

Final Ballot

GREENSBORO (AP)—Final ballots to select coaches for the 1954 North Carolina All-Star football game which pits an Eastern and a Western high school squad have been sent out.

The list of possible coaches has been narrowed down to five coaches from each section. Two from each section will coach the teams.

In the running from the East are Gabe Austell of Oxford, Orphanage Leon Brodyen of Wilmington, Thell Overman of Wallace, J. V. Pruitt of Hamlet and Jack Young of Ahoskie.

For the West: Wilburn Clary of Greenville's 24-man Midget All-Star squad put the finishing touches on its attack yesterday for the Thanksgiving Day battle tomorrow afternoon with North Charleston, S. C.

The contest, the first between the squads, will be played in East Carolina's College Stadium. Kickoff time will be 2:30 o'clock.

The North Charleston team is expected to arrive in Greenville this afternoon. Advance releases on the squad say that it is composed of 21 players. In addition, they will bring coaches, sponsors, and cheerleaders.

The Greenville squad has been selected from members of the four teams which performed this past season in the City Midget Football League. Each of the four teams are represented in the All-Star line-up.

The game is under the joint sponsorship of the Recreation Department and the Exchange club. There will be no admission charge for the contest but voluntary contributions will be accepted to help defray expenses of the North Charleston team.

It is hoped that this will be the first of a series of home-and-home games with the North Charleston group. Plans are already being made for a Greenville squad to go to North Charleston next Thanksgiving Day for a return match.

The Greenville squad will be directed by George MacMillan of the Recreation Department. The team will run from the Split-T with Charlie Rumley quarterbacking. Rumley is expected to be the key in the Greenville offense.

MacK Robuck, a standout performer with the Red team during the regular season, is expected to see considerable action in the game. He is not listed as a starter but he will see action at both halfback positions and as a relief man for Rumley at quarterback.

Line play for the Greenville team has been sparked in practice sessions by Oscar Stoneham and Howard Garner. Garner is a converted backfield man, having played with the White team during the regular campaign.

UCLA's Cameron Back Of Week For Win Over Bears

NEW YORK (AP)—Tailback Paul Leslie Cameron, guiding football genius at UCLA, today was named the Associated Press Back of the Week for leading the Bruins to a victory over Southern California and into the Rose Bowl.

Cameron, a Burbank, Calif., native who has been singled out for his all-around ability and team leadership throughout the season, scored the touchdown that clinched UCLA's 13-0 triumph.

The six-foot, 185-pound senior is the ace runner, best passer and the team punter in addition to being one of the Pacific Coast leaders in pass interceptions.

Against the Trojans, Cameron cracked through the tough USC line for the last six yards in the final period after sprinting 12 yards to set it up. His punting and kick returns were instrumental in bottling up the Trojans.

It was the climax of a great year for Cameron, whose specialty as a triple-threat back in Coach Red Sanders' single wing is a pet off-tackle play. Last year he was able to play only in spots due to injuries but he wasn't hampered this season.

Quarterbacks Francis (Cotton) Davidson of Baylor and Bernie Faloney of Maryland were runner-ups this week.

Terps, Duke, Gamecocks Dominate ACC All-Stars

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer

The big three of the initial football season of the new Atlantic Coast Conference—Maryland Duke and South Carolina—swept all first team positions on the Associated Press all-conference team.

Maryland and Duke both won 3-0 conference records, each placed four men on the team. South Carolina, which lost to each of the top two and won its two other conference games, took the three remaining places. The team was selected by the Associated Press ACC Selection Board and AP sports writers.

Here's the lineup they settled on after two months of observation and consultation with coaches and other newsmen:

Ends—Clyde Bennett, South Carolina Howard Pitt, Duke.

Tackles—Stan Jones, Maryland; Ed Meadows, Duke.

Guards—Bobby Burrows, Duke; Frank Mincevic, Maryland.

Center—Leon Cunningham, South Carolina.

Backs—Bernie Faloney, Chet Hanula and Ralph Felton, all of Maryland; James (Red) Smith, Duke.

Mincevic and Cunningham are juniors, the others seniors.

The line averages 212 pounds, with not a man under six feet. The backs, a bit on the short side at an average of 5-10, come in at 184½ pounds.

Although all first team choices gained healthy margins in the balloting, only Faloney and Burrows were unanimous selections.

give unbeaten Maryland, the nation's No. 1 team, continued excellence at that vital split-T position. One of three Terps from Pennsylvania who made the first team, Faloney did all that was asked of him. He ran, passed, kicked, blocked and tackled with skill and led the team with poise and confidence.

Operating with Faloney in the Maryland backfield were a pair of gifted performers—Chet (The Jet) Hanula, 165-pound halfback, and Ralph Felton, 195-pound fullback powerhouse. They lived up to Coach Jim Tatum's pre-season observation that the 1953 backfield was his best at Maryland.

Hanula developed into an outstanding broken field runner. He averaged 9.3 yards on his first 67 rushes. A top notch safety man, he also turned in a fine defense job marked by speed and determination.

Felton averaging 5.1 yards for his first 91 rushes scored 53 points in nine games. A bruising, powerful runner, he also was an outstanding line backer and supplied the points after touchdowns.

Halfback Red Smith, like his three Duke teammates who made the first team, is a native North Carolinian. A late season injury forced him to the sidelines, but not until he had established himself as one of the Duke uniform runners ever to wear a Duke uniform. When right, he was the team's chief ground threat.

Clyde Bennett, a spectacular offensive end for South Carolina last year, continued to dazzle in that department, but added defensive fireworks, especially against major foes Maryland and West Virginia.

Ted Petoskey, South Carolina end coach, says Bennett is the best end he's seen in his seven years at South Carolina.

Howard Pitt, Duke captain, also a prize pass catcher last year, had no difficulty meeting the defensive demands of one platoon play. Coach Bill Murray says he would not trade Pitt for any end he's seen this year.

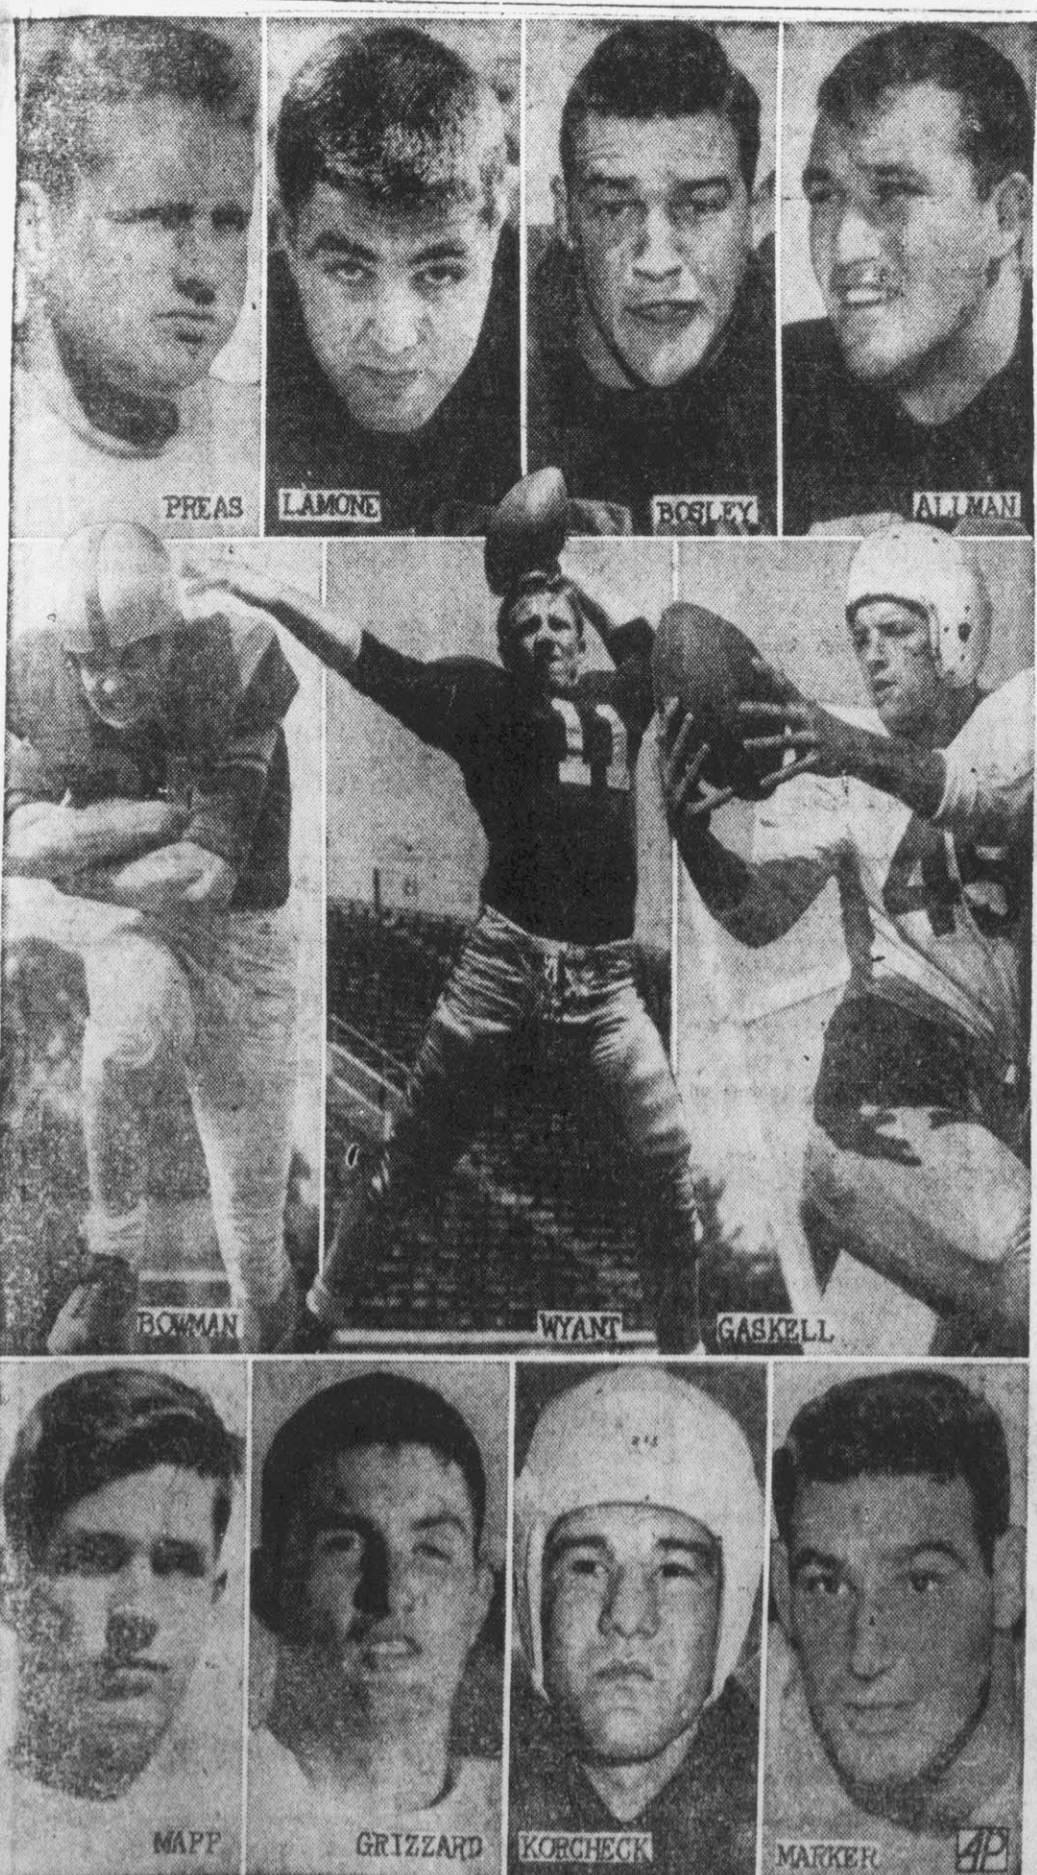

In Stan Jones and Ed Meadows the team has two tackles who can handle themselves in any company. Both are highly aggressive, flashy performers. Jim Tatum says Jones is the strongest man in college football. Despite his 235 pounds, he has speed and maneuverability.

Bob Burrows, unsung hero of Duke's fine line, has been a steady performer all season. He's never played an inferior game. He and Frank (Friendly Bear) Mincevic, South Carolina's 240-pounder, make up a potent guard combination.

Leon Cunningham, a tremendous line backer for South Carolina last year, learned his new offensive duties well. His track team speed was put to good use and his downfield blocking was of the highest caliber.

Maryland won four second team places to three for South Carolina, two for Clemson and one each for North Carolina State and Wake Forest. Top vote winner on the second 11 was Bob Bartholomew, Wake Forest's rugged sophomore tackle.

Virginia, which will be an active conference member next football season, was considered in the voting, although none of its players made the first two teams.

Employers Face New Tax Burden

RALEIGH (U)—Tar Heel employers affected by the Employment Security Law will have to pay an estimated 7½ million dollars in additional unemployment compensation taxes next year.

The big tax hike resulted from an increase of $133,889,764 in the payroll of industries covered by the tax law, it was reported yesterday by Henry Kendall, chairman of the Employment Security Commission.

Kendall said the 1953 General Assembly adopted a formula change, including tax percentage tables. The payroll increase was so great for fiscal year 1953, he added, that it "threw us into the next table."

The statewide payroll in fiscal 1953 of industries covered by the Employment Security Law totaled $1,556,248,636, representing a gain of 0.85 per cent over the previous year. The payroll for fiscal 1953, Kendall said, totaled $1,689,138,401. This was a gain of 8.61 per cent.

The tax percentage increase in some instances next year will be too drastic, in Kendall's opinion. He pointed out that some industries, regardless of whether they have had any change in their experience rating, will have to pay a tax 2½ times higher than in 1953.

Under Table D, from which the 1954 tax percentages will come, the tax will range from 0.2 per cent for industries with the best experience rating to 2.7 per cent for industries with the worst rating. Table E was used this year. Under this, the range was from 0.1 per cent to 2.7 per cent.

The taxes next year may total approximately 27 million dollars. The taxes paid in for 1953 are expected to amount to approximately 19½ million.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The judge leaned forward yesterday when Billie Infante, a pretty model seeking a divorce from her husband Anthony, testified: "Once he immersed me in wine." "Immersed you in what?" Judge L. L. Harris shot back. "In wine." "Oh, how did he do it?" "Poured it over my head." "In other words, he didn't dunk you in a bathtub or anything. Was it red or white wine?" "As a matter of fact, it was red." "A bottle or a glass?" "A glass." "Not exactly total immersion then," the judge said, winding up the matter. Divorce granted.

No Appraisal Of Personal Goods

County Tax Supervisor Reginald Gray stated this morning that appraisers visiting the private homes in the tax revaluation program would not appraise any personal property inside the home as many seemed to be led to believe by an article in last Saturday's Reflector.

The tax supervisor said he had received many phone calls from citizens who thought the tax revaluation appraisers would appraise their household and kitchen property when they visit the home, but he said the appraisers who come to a private individual's home would be there to gather information that will help establish an equitable value of the real estate and not to appraise the personal property.

At the private citizens' home the appraisers will only appraise the land and buildings, Gray stated.

The personal property appraisers will appraise commercial and industrial personal property such as the furniture, fixtures, and machinery used in connection with the business only.

High School Athletes Examined By Health Director

Thanksgiving Menu Is 'Something Extra'

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, County Health Department director, examines Winterville basketball player Jimmy Stocks as Dean Wingate, Ed Evans, Bobby Coggins, and Jack Parham wait their turn. Seated at the table helping with the examination are Mrs. Nan Nobles, County Health Department staff nurse, and E. L. Clark, Winterville coach. All basketball players, both girls and boys, in all schools in Pitt County will be examined by either their own physician or Dr. Humbert prior to participating in the sport this winter. (Reflector Photo by Bob Boyette).

For the past couple of weeks Dr. Walter C. Humbert, director of the Pitt County Health Department, has been examining high school athletes in both white and Negro schools.

Dr. Humbert said that North Carolina law requires all school athletes to be examined 30 days prior to participation in a sport. The insurance companies uphold the state law in requiring such an examination.

This examination may be done either by the County Health Department physician or by the player's private physician; however, in rural schools where it is difficult to transport the children to the doctor's office the county Health Department has been doing the examining, according to Dr. Humbert.

The prime purpose of the examination, health director, said, is to protect the school athlete so as to prevent serious damage that may result from participation in the sport. If a student has a condition such as weak joints, unstable back, rupture, a heart condition or others too numerous to mention it is detected by the doctor.

The condition detected is then brought to the attention of the coach with final judgment as to whether the student may participate being made by a private physician.

Dr. Humbert reports that several cases of rupture, high blood pressure, serious kidney trouble, and others have been detected that the student knew nothing about prior to the examination.

The examining team consists of a doctor and a nurse with the coach of the team present.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A menagerie of photo books—on dogs, cats, birds and insects—has descended on us and inspection shows that they can serve a triple purpose for camera fans: 1.—They offer visual enjoyment if you do nothing more than skim through the pages. 2.—They're instructional—by studying the pictures with a questioning eye or absorbing the technical information where included. 3.—They're an early solution to the "What'll I get 'em for Christmas?" problem.

"All Kinds of Dogs" by Walter Chandra (Alfred Knopf, $3.50) makes it impossible to resist saying of this famed photographer of cats that he "has gone to the dogs." But it's a delightful come-down, a compilation of 110 new photos, pertinent quotations and interesting information about dogs. It follows the same format as his first book, "All Kinds of Cats" and gives Chandra the authority to say that dogs make better models. They obey commands and are generally more cooperative.

SOME CUM LOUDER... but a mouthful of parchment is a handicap. This poodle portrait is by Walter Chandra, appears in his new book, "All Kinds of Dogs."

This book makes an informative gift of particular interest to young people dog lovers and other camera fans.

"Cats—Engagement Calendar, 1954" (Studio Publications—Crowell Co., $1.50) brings us a year's ration of interesting cat photographs—52 of them. They are doled out, one for each week, to catalogue the new year coming while catering to the nation's numerous cat lovers. The photos are the work of many photographers and are presented in spiral-bound form. My favorite is the laughing kitten which adorns the week of Aug. 29—it could brighten the whole year.

"Land birds of America" by Robert Cushman Murphy and Dean Amadon (McGraw-Hill, $12.50) is an important authoritative survey by these two experts from the American Museum of Natural History combined with 265 masterful photographs, almost all (221) in full color. The result of three years of research, it called on the resources of the National Audubon Society and the best, unpublished pictures of thirty of America's foremost nature photographers.

Indeed, this bird guide, with its lavish use of color photography, marks a distinct departure from previous authoritative anthologies which depended on artists' illustrations with John James Audubon as the foremost representative. "The camera is an accurate recorder," say the authors, "and to photography we may look for new and incontrovertible evidence regarding the appearance and ways of living birds."

One of the contributing photographers, Eliot Porter, adds a concluding chapter with specific advice for successful bird photography.

To start with he believes one must have: a knowledge of bird habits; the ability to use the most modern photographic equipment and an appreciation of photography's creative possibilities.

He prefers a 4x5-inch camera with accessory telephoto lenses combined with electronic flash set off by remote control. At its very simplest he warns, bird photography entails a great deal of effort, much more patience and an automobile to haul the equipment.

"Land Birds of America" is a beautifully printed book with gift appeal for nature lovers, artists, sportsmen and serious photographers.

"Insects close up" by Edward S. Ross University of California Press ($1.50) is a pictorial guide for insect collectors and photographers with drawings. The author, curator of Entomology at the California Academy of Sciences, gives us some fascinating interviews, in words and pictures, with a host of common—and uncommon—insects. Here, too, high precision camera equipment is essential and the author recommends the single lens reflex type, both in 35 mm and the 2 1/2 x 3 1/2-inch negative sizes.

The Thanksgiving season is approaching. The very mention of this brings visions of mouth watering dishes and we begin to look forward to the gathering of families and friends.

When the Mayflower's 102 passengers stepped ashore at Plymouth on Nov. 21, 1620, they gave thanks for their preservation from the terrors of the sea. A year later the first Thanksgiving proclamation in America was issued by Governor Bradford in gratitude for the first harvest in the New World. Hunters provided a number of wild turkeys for the feast, and on the appointed day a party of Indians arrived bringing a supply of venison. Pilgrims and Indians sat down together for the first Thanksgiving dinner in America.

For many years since that time it was an appointed holiday. The establishment of Thanksgiving Day as a national holiday came about largely through the lifelong campaign of Mrs. Sarah J. Hale of Philadelphia. President Lincoln issued a National Thanksgiving proclamation setting the date of observance as the fourth Thursday in November.

Thereafter each year the President proclaimed the holiday, which was established by custom as the last Thursday of November. In 1939, however, President Roosevelt appointed November 23 instead of November 30. Some states refused to break the tradition. In 1941 a joint resolution of Congress provided "That the fourth Thursday of November in each year after the year 1941 be known as Thanksgiving Day, and it is hereby made a legal public holiday to all intents and purposes."

In reality every day should be Thanksgiving Day. For us in America the harvest has always been bountiful in comparison to those of other countries of the world. Even though we should always have thanks in our hearts it is still well to have a special day to express our gratitude for all the blessings we have received. And what more appropriate time could this be than at the close of the harvest season?

I am sure we in Pitt County will be ready to observe the Holiday with our thanks. Very likely this will be an opportunity to strengthen family ties with a traditional Thanksgiving dinner. To many of us homemakers this suggests a special menu. Let's have a look at some of the possibilities.

First of all we might decorate the table in the true harvest spirit. You will be delighted with the results of an arrangement of choice fruits and vegetables with possibly a few nuts and colorful leaves. There are many possibilities so use your own ingenuity.

Now we can turn our thoughts to food. A special meal seems more special if it begins before coming to the table. We might start with a tomato juice cocktail or a cup of hot or cold apple cider served in the living room.

For the main course there is nothing more representative of lifelike postures. 2.—Too active animals are numbed into inactivity by freezing, then posed. 3.—Animal combats are staged or other unnatural situations are induced.

The pictures in this little insect book, as well as the many more that he has taken of small animals in the past couple of years, were governed by a simple standard, Ross states:

The ideal is to get a clear picture of an undisturbed animal engaged in some interesting, normal activity.

Come to think of it, that goes for human animals and all us photographers too.

American customs than turkey at Thanksgiving. So firmly engrained is this dietary tradition that Thanksgiving tables without turkey are the exceptions, especially now that turkeys are halved and quartered for the smaller families.

Turkeys are much better than they used to be too. By careful selection poultry growers have produced birds that are shorter and plumper than their predecessors. There is a greater proportion of meat to bones and there is more white meat. The birds are more tender and this requires a shorter cooking time.

Whichever style of turkey you decide on, be sure to order early so you can get the right size. Frozen turkeys should be completely defrosted before roasting. Wash inside and out, removing any bits of lung, kidney, etc., and wipe dry. If you stuff your bird do so just before you are ready to roast it.

One of the easiest ways I have found to do a luscious roasting job is to place the turkey on a large sheet of aluminum foil, season with salt, and brush generously with melted butter or margarine. Bring foil up to completely cover and place in a shallow pan to cook. The foil will prevent over-browning and drying out. Continuous basting and watching will be unnecessary. The temperature should be about 325 degrees but the cooking time will vary with the size of the bird. When done the leg and thigh joint will give readily. The juices should not run pink when a fork is inserted in the thick place where the wing joins the body or in the thick part of the leg.

Whether the noble bird is carved at the table or before hand, the person carving will have an easier job if the turkey stands 20 to 30 minutes before it is to be served. During this time the good brown gravy can be prepared.

Along with the traditional bird we must serve the traditional cranberry sauce. There are many new ways to dress it up but it is a must with the turkey dinner.

This year try combining two of our favorites—sweet potatoes and apples. Use them in a casserole in alternate layers with brown sugar and butter and cook until both are tender and the flavors well blended.

Baked squash and buttered turnip greens or broccoli would be good choices for the other vegetables.

Hot homemade rolls always help to make any meal special.

To complete this meal we might select a grapefruit salad and pumpkin or mince pie. Perhaps the choice of the season would be pumpkin.

If you need a recipe for the pie here is one I think you'll like.

Pumpkin Pie Supreme
(Make it either light and mild, or dark and very spicy.)

- 1 1/2 cups cooked pumpkin
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 to 1-1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 to 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1-4 to 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1-4 to 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 3 slightly beaten eggs
- 1 1-4 cups milk
- 3-4 cup evaporated milk
- 1 recipe plain pastry

Thoroughly combine pumpkin, sugar, salt, and spices. Add eggs, milk and evaporated milk; blend. Pour into 9 inch pastry-lined pie plate. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) about 1 hour or until mixture does not adhere to knife. Cool and garnish with whipped cream.

Of course there are always the extras that may be added but doesn't this sound like a tempting menu? Vary it as you like but when the table is loaded with these good things to eat it is truly a time to be thankful.

Townfolk Organize To Keep An Adopted Child

By FRED SNYDER

ALBANY, Wis. (P) — The folks hereabouts, determined to make Christmas a "good one for little Jeff and Dorothy," gathered in an emotion-charged meeting at Town Hall last night to set up the "Keep Jeffrey in Albany Fund."

A court order has taken 2-year-old Jeffrey from the arms of his widowed foster mother, Mrs. Dorothy Tschudy, 30, and returned him to the custody of the Wisconsin Welfare Department. The state unit holds that a child needs the care of both a father and a mother.

Tschudy, a prosperous trucking firm operator here died last April at the age of 28. Mrs. Tschudy has been seeking an exception to the state's policy since then. But Green County Judge Harold Lambley ruled last week that because the adoption was not completed, the blond brown-eyed lad must return to the state. Mrs. Tschudy has been hospitalized with shock and fatigue.

The Tschudy partisans at last night's meeting:

1. Decided to ask a prominent Madison attorney to wage their legal fight to have the court ruling set aside.
2. Set up the "Keep Jeffrey in Albany Fund," and named a finance committee to handle it.
3. Collected more than $500 in cash and pledges.
4. Named a six-member permanent committee of Albany residents to direct the campaign.

"Come on everybody, donate the best you can," urged Robert Atkinson, an Albany milk hauler. "With Christmas coming we could make it a good one for little Jeff and Dorothy."

Mrs. John Argue, mother of Mrs. Tschudy, broke down and cried before the group after pleading for her daughter.

"Dorothy is in a Monroe hospital," she said, "living on hope that she will get the baby back. I hate to think of... I won't think of what would happen if she does not get the baby back."

The permanent committee, headed by the Rev. Kyle Miller, a Methodist minister, planned to meet at Madison today with Atty. Oscar Tobias, former president of the Wisconsin Bar Assn. They said they would ask him to wage the legal fight.

The Rev. Mr. Miller said the group first would concentrate on seeking a reversal of Judge Lambley's ruling rather than appealing the case to a higher court because of the high cost of such an appeal.

Jebs Chosen To Be Ambassador

LONDON (P) — Britain's U. N. delegate, Sir Gladwyn Jebb, is going to be Queen Elizabeth's next ambassador in Paris.

The Foreign Office announced today that Jebb next March will succeed Sir Oliver Harvey in the French capital. Sir Pierson Dixon, 49, deputy under secretary of state at the Foreign Office, will replace Jebb at the U. N.

Jebb, now 53, took up his post at the U. N. in the spring of 1950.

ATTENTION PEANUT PRODUCERS

Heavy deliveries have depressed the peanut market to producers. Producers are advised and urged to increase deliveries to their association warehouses as a means of bringing about a more orderly and thus stronger market. Peanuts so delivered will be paid for upon delivery, based upon grade determined by Federal-State inspectors and be marketed later, returning all capital accumulations resulting from more orderly marketing and future strengthening of the peanut market to producers so delivering.

The November crop report indicates a 1953 production of 188,000 tons of Virginia type peanuts compared to 272,000 tons in 1952. Chances of a stronger market before the 1954 crop is harvested appear excellent. Producers marketing through their association will share in such strengthening.

Our Solar System Just One Of Millions, Astronomers Remind

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK (U.P.)—A favorite sport of astronomers is to put the earth and the men on it in their place. Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory, is a Babe Ruth in this league.

At the recent autumn meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, he took occasion to remark that, far from being unique, the earth and its sun are one of "millions" of such combinations.

"From a cosmic standpoint the sun is nothing unusual," he said. "More than 30,000 of the stars we see with even a small telescope are identical with the sun in surface temperature, size, radiation, and chemical composition."

However, he gave the earth and earthlings some assurance against worry, insignificant as they are. He felt that the sun's radiations—which are essential if life is to continue on earth—"can be maintained at its present level for 100,000,000,000 years."

Solar Energy Distant
Dr. Shapley and Dr. George R. Harrison, dean of the School of Science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, jointly lectured on "the production and use of solar energy."

Their net conclusions were that the sun produced energy by radiation is astronomical amounts, that all living things on earth used it but passively and without exercising control over it, and there was little prospect of man harnessing and using it for his own purposes any time soon.

Dr. Harrison's advice was to invest sparingly in solar energy power plants and similar projects. Yet potatoes are the leading vegetable crop in the United States with tomatoes second, says the National Geographic Society.

he was not pessimistic. "The path among nature's obstacles to solar energy utilization is devious," he said. "But we have no evidence that there is no such path and have come so close to breaking through in several directions that the search is exciting."

In any case, many more years of effective work by scientists and engineers are needed to solve the many problems presented. It may well be that the most direct attack is further fundamental research on the nature of matter and energy, with particular reference to the interaction of photons and atoms.

Wasted Energy
But how wonderful it will be if when man does utilize solar energy! Dr. Harrison reminded that the standard of living depended on the availability of energy and the ability to control it.

"In the United States our annual real income has increased more than four-fold in the past 50 years, mainly because about four times as many horsepower are available to feed, clothe, house, protect, transport, educate and entertain each citizen as in 1903," he said.

But—"More than 20,000 times as much energy as mankind uses for every purpose comes to the earth as sunshine each day. We should, then, be able to live amply on our energy income, yet we do not; most of this passes wastefully through our fingers, and we draw from our limited energy reserves for most of our needs."

"There in the sky is a glowing sphere which pours on each acre of the welcoming earth energy enough, if properly harnessed, to keep a thousand people healthy, active, and comfortable. At mid-day, a full horsepower falls on each square yard, and the energy striking a square mile in one day, if all captured, would be worth $200,000,000."

In fact, any sixteen-mile square area in an Arizona desert receives enough energy as sunshine to satisfy all of the current energy needs of the American people."

Hopes To 'Detour' Fifth Amendment

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Brownell obviously hopes that by getting around the Fifth Amendment the government will have better luck unmasking Communists and prosecuting alleged Soviet spies.

He's asking Congress for a law promising some witnesses in certain cases they will never be prosecuted in federal court for any federal crime they confess to congressional committees or grand juries.

This is his attempt to make witnesses talk whether they want to or not. For, once promised immunity against prosecution under Brownell's proposal, they could be jailed for contempt if they still refused to open up.

The plan would work, of course, only with witnesses who thought silence—at the price of jail for contempt—was too expensive. It couldn't budge a man who preferred jail to talking.

And even though a witness was promised immunity from trial in federal court for a federal crime, if in his testimony he admitted violating a state law he could later be prosecuted in a state court.

This is the background: The government and congressional committees have been stymied in their efforts to dig into communism and alleged spy rings by a parade of men and women who have taken refuge behind the Constitution's Fifth Amendment.

That amendment says no witness in a criminal case can be compelled to give evidence against himself, that is, saying anything which might land him in jail. So many suspected persons have responded to committee questions with:

"I invoke the Fifth Amendment and refuse to answer on the grounds that anything I say might tend to incriminate me."

One witness used it 178 times. A person using this excuse for refusing to answer questions can't be jailed for contempt.

Long ago, realizing the Fifth Amendment could be used to frustrate investigations, Congress passed a law which said: No witness before a committee can ever be prosecuted in federal court for what he says.

There was a gimmick. His own words could never be used against him. But the government could use his words as leads to evidence and perhaps witnesses against him and so bring him to trial.

But, since it's no crime under federal law to be a Communist, how can a Communist or a person accused of being a Communist claim anything he says may incriminate him?

There is a law, passed in 1940 and called the Smith Act, which doesn't mention Communists at all but simply says people can be jailed for advocating or conspiring for the overthrow of the government.

Many Communist leaders have been successfully prosecuted by the government under the Smith Act, not on a charge of being Communists but on a charge that being Communists, they were in conspiracy against the government.

So any Communist before a congressional committee can argue—and Congress won't cite him for contempt for doing it—that once he starts talking about himself he may be talking himself behind bars.

Under the law Brownell wants Congress to pass in 1954 the attorney general could promise certain witnesses—he'd pick them—that they could never be tried in federal court for any federal crime they admitted while testifying.

This would remove that gimmick in the present law under which the government could start with a witness' admissions to find evidence on which to try him.

With such a law Brownell seems to think, he might be able to get some spy suspects to talk about the ring leaders and so start them on the way to trial, which is something he hasn't been able to do yet.

If Congress passed such a law, the Supreme Court in the end would probably decide whether it was constitutional or actually contrary to the Fifth Amendment.

The test would come as soon as a witness refused to say anything despite immunity, was sentenced to jail for contempt and appealed to the high court with this argument:

He was deprived of his Fifth Amendment right to refuse to incriminate himself because, with the threat of jail for contempt if he said nothing, he was actually incriminating himself by silence.

Once Too Versatile For Movie Makers

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Anthony Quinn might not have won last year's supporting actor Oscar if he hadn't lost a lot of money a few years ago.

Sound strange? To understand the story you have to know something about Tony's career.

He started out in the movies with contracts to Paramount and then Warners. But neither studio could quite figure out what to do with him. The guy was too versatile; he didn't fit the leading-man pattern. He continued making a good living by playing character parts, but he wasn't satisfied.

"I knew I could continue with what I was doing," he remarked, "but I wasn't getting ahead in the business. I decided to learn all I could about acting."

And so he moved East with his family—he's married to Cecil B. de Mille's daughter Katherine. His first try at the legit was "Gentleman From Athens," a flop. But that didn't discourage him. Producer Irene Selznick liked him in it and offered him the Marlon Brando role in the road company of "A Streetcar Named Desire."

"I toured in that play for two years," he recalled. "After that, I did two more plays both flops. I took a real financial beating. For two years afterward, I was paying off $500 a week to make up for what I lost."

But the investment paid off in gold both the cashable kind and the gold-plated Academy Award kind (for "Viva Zapata!"). He has already made five pictures this year and is still going strong. At present he is playing a Mickey Spillane hero in "The Long Walk," his first modern dress picture in some time.

"I've had to learn the English language all over again," said Tony, who has lived here most of his life. "I've played a Mexican in the last few pictures in Hollywood. I just came back from making three in Italy. In one, I spoke English with a Sicilian accent. In another, I talked Italian. The other was 'Ulysses,' in which I had to talk with a Greek accent."

Tony has been working at a furious pace, but he seems to thrive on it.

"I wouldn't know what to do if I weren't busy," he explained. "Why, in Italy I was doing three pictures at the same time. And when I came home at night I went to work on a novel! But I never felt better. I lost my excess weight and I felt strong as an ox. My wife understands. She knows that I'd go nuts if I didn't keep busy with a lot of things."

Begin Building Business Center

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A new multimillion-dollar downtown business center gets under way officially today with groundbreaking ceremonies headed by Mayor Joseph S. Clark.

The first of several office buildings, which will comprise Penn Center, a project similar to New York's Rockefeller center, is a 15-million-dollar, 20-story building of ultramodern design to be completed by early 1955.

Painful Experience 'Doing Over' A Room

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

We are beyond the point of no return in a project called "doing over" the living room or I'd certainly go back to life with shredding wall paper and flaking trim.

There are a number of aspects to doing over they don't talk about in the books and magazines, both apparently dedicated to painting a glamorous picture of its joys.

I know people who do over their living rooms about once a year, whenever they feel bored when- ever they see a new color or just to effect something called a change when a trip to Europe or a couple of weeks at a resort are out of the question. Doing over is touted as a cure for everything from an overdose of bad weather to feelings of social inferiority.

Experience Painful But as one in the middle of doing over, I can only conclude that people forget their suffering the way a serious illness or painful operation gets misty once one is back in good health again.

I shall never forget. I'm determined, this doing over. Next time—and I doubt if there will ever be one—I shall insist that there be left available to the family enough chairs, even if they have straight backs, to be sat upon. I'm sick of eating tray dinners perched on the side of the bed or sitting tailor-fashion on the floor. I shall also insist on rudimentary living aids like silverware and ashtrays.

Householder Trapped Our painter—and I suspect all painters—is something of a genius in making doing over an experience. He waited until he no longer could do outdoor painting, which was fine for him, but it also meant the unfortunate family couldn't flee into fresh air. It's even too cold to keep the doors and windows open for more than minutes, so we have been going around with eyes streaming and head aching from paint fumes while he says cheerily it's just a matter of building up a tolerance for them.

Actually, the householder is trapped. You can't just leave home and return when it's all over because you have to make sure he doesn't try any short cuts like leaving the hardware on and painting around it or trusting to luck rather than painters' cloths to keep turpentine off the rugs.

Result: Wonderful Our boy promises us now that we'll be in good shape by Friday. I just can't wait. I'm sick of going to double feature movies or visiting neighbors just for a chance to sit in a comfortable chair or so I won't have to go to bed before dark. On the other hand, once the painter has left and the furniture is redistributed from the current mound in the center of the room, no matter what has been done, the living room will look simply wonderful to

Starting Salaries Up For '53 Grads

TOLEDO, O. (U.P.)—The placement bureau at the University of Toledo reports that this year's graduates were offered jobs at starting salaries averaging 10 per cent higher than in 1952.

Placement Director Richard R. Perry said every 1953 graduate who wanted a job had plenty of offers.

Even those facing early military draft got consideration, he said. Many industries wanted to interview graduates regardless of their status.

The greatest demand this year, Perry said, was for mechanical and electrical engineers. The least demand, as in former years, was for liberal arts students.

He quoted some starting salaries offered engineering students. They ranged from $275 to $550 per month.

The starting wage for business graduates was somewhat lower, ranging from $260 to $375 a month. The greatest demand in their category was for accounting, sales and management people, he said.

Also in demand, either by government agencies or private businesses and industries, were students of physics, chemistry and other science courses. The starting salaries offered them was often the same as those for business students, Perry added.

LIBYA ELECTED ROME (AP)—Libya has been elected the 69th member of the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization.

BETTER VISION BETTER SHOPPING

Shopping is supposed to be one of woman's most enjoyable pleasures. But some women find it tiring. After a day of examining price tags and materials, a day spent in stores chock full of all kinds of merchandise—they arrive home headachy and tired and irritable.

Poor vision is often to blame. When eyesight defects are corrected, shopping returns to its place as a pleasure. Keen eyesight can buy better, too—bargains are really bargains.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

THE BUS, caught in the rush-hour traffic, crawled and crept, yet ever closer to the office. Suddenly Charlotte pulled the cord and plunged off at the next corner. She started walking away from the office, just anywhere, away. After all, she wasn't ready, not quite...

She realized she was heading toward the midtown restaurant where her mother checked wraps. Charlotte had never been there, but her steps moved certainly. In fact, she hadn't even seen her mother since the night they visited King together. Why? It couldn't possibly be shame that kept Charlotte away, could it? Or an attempt to blot out the memory of her mother's suffering face and of the place she lived? After the operation Charlotte had called the hospital twice to assure herself all was well. And since then her mother had telephoned from time to time. Charlotte knew that Mrs. Morgan somehow sensed her affair with King.

She went into the restaurant and nodded to her mother, who was busy, saw the look of wonder on her face. Charlotte sat down at the back and ordered a pot of coffee, watching. That's my mother, she said to herself experimentally.

It's the only way I know. She found me, but I am lost to her. I have no need of her. For me she doesn't exist.

Why then this feeling? Why am I here with my troubles? Why am I concerned that she looks so ill? Why this stab of emotion when I think maybe she's going to die after all, and I'll lose her again?

The clatter of the dishes had died down, everyone else had left, and Charlotte's mother came toward her table. She dropped down in a chair.

"Hello, Charlotte," she said, and their eyes that were so alike met briefly.

Charlotte's fell before the anxious questioning in her mother's. "Have another cup of coffee with me," Mrs. Morgan said. "Have you time? I can't seem to sleep nights, then daytime I'm so sleepy. Coffee keeps me going."

"I have time. Why can't you sleep?"

"Maybe it's my conscience, dear. Are you all right, you look—changed."

"Well, since you ask, I don't exactly sleep like a top myself," Charlotte admitted. "I've got gremlins."

She could see that her mother wanted to ask more but restrained herself, waiting. And then Charlotte found herself pouring it all out. About King's war of nerves these last months. About April and May. And the model named Osa.

The pupils of her mother's eyes grew large and dark. "The miserable sadist," she said. "The vindictive viper. I... Charlotte, let's go away. Just you and me, far away, maybe to California. You've got to get out of his clutches before—we'll both start new." She was eager.

Go far away—only to feel hunted, haunted? Always imagining a face in the crowd, a footstep behind her. Run away like a dog on a leash, feeling free, then suddenly caught short by its tight jerk? What was it the psychologists said—that the alternates to solving a difficulty were flight or fight?

Flight or fight.

"You ran away once," Charlotte reminded her mother. "How was it?"

Her mother sat silent and white-faced.

At least she'd served as a sounding board. Now Charlotte knew she'd never run away. And the alternate was fight. So now she'd go back to the office and she'd do what she had to. She stood up.

"Charlotte! What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to work."

"I'm afraid, Charlotte, I'm afraid of you and for you." She laid her hand on Charlotte's arm.

Charlotte shook it off. "I can't stand mothering," she said. "Not at this late date."

"I don't know why I'm living," Mrs. Morgan said. "There isn't a day I don't think of ending it all."

Charlotte walked quickly out of the restaurant.

It was almost eleven when she got to the office. Not a soul was there. She stood fathoming the odd air of abandon. Paper remained in the typewriters, the writing broken off in the middle of a sentence. On the layout pads were unfinished drawings, only roughed in. It seemed to Charlotte that the city outside had been deserted, too. Blank buildings stood against a blank sky. There were getting to be ghosts everywhere she looked.

But there was something, there was this air of something impending.

ing. Had something come up about Velora's letter, perhaps? Or... She pressed her fingers against the back of her neck, massaging the tight knots, just as Doodles sauntered in.

"Where's everybody?" Charlotte tried to sound casual.

"The King called a meeting suddenly; nobody knows what it's all about. But then you know The King."

"Yes I know," Charlotte wondered what she should go up; it might be a good chance to study King, brief herself on his mood for later. She was still pro-and-conning when Eric dashed in.

"Charlotte, for God's sake, I've been going crazy. When you weren't here, I phoned you; where were you?"

Charlotte tilted her chin. "I come and go when I please," she said. "I wouldn't like the feeling that I have a keeper." She turned away from Eric's expression.

"What's going on up there any way?" Doodles called from her desk.

"Just you-know-who capering," Eric said. Then, more or less to himself. "I've got to get back. I just left the meeting on the pretense of a coughing attack." He was gone.

"What's the matter with everybody around here lately?" Doodles blurted. "It's a psychiatric ward, honestly. And you look like a ghost, Miss Morgan."

"I'm anemic," Charlotte said. "All my iron goes to my heart."

She left Doodles puzzling over that one and went out to the washroom. Better add some protective coloration, she thought. More rouge, more lipstick; the red badge of courage. She outlined the generous upper lip, filled out the some-what thinner lower one. There that was better. She gazed gravely at herself. Smile, she commanded. But not even the upcurving lip could transform it into a happy face.

When she got back to the office, everyone except Mario had returned. They sat slumped at their desks, no one even pretending to work. What had happened? Why did they all turn to look at her?

"Heavens, who's fired?" Charlotte tried to make it sound light.

"That's what we want to know," Norma said.

"Something else I'd like to know," Dorothy's voice had an edge. "How did you time things so well, Charlotte my love, as to miss this morning's portion of poison?"

Far-Reaching Effects Seen In Air Secretary's Reversal Order

By C. YATES MCDANIEL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Pentagon officials speculated today over the effect Secretary of the Air Force Talbot's reversal of a reserve officer's security dismissal might have on similar cases under study. Talbot would say only that "the decision was mine alone."

He authorized this direct quotation for a report some hours after he announced yesterday that he had cleared Lt. Milo J. Radulovich, who had been threatened with discharge because of alleged Communist sympathies of his father and sister.

In recent months the Air Force alone has been faced with security decisions involving about 100 officers. All have arisen from derogatory information supplied to security officers, mostly from within the Air Force itself.

In some of the cases the officers involved have chosen to accept discharge under honorable conditions. Other cases are still pending. The other military services are known to have had similar security problems. The Radulovich case has been one of the very few that has come to public attention.

In this case, as in similar ones, the person involved is informed in writing that the military service is considering revoking his commission. He is told the nature of the information lodged against him and given a choice of accepting discharge under honorable conditions or of fighting to stay in the service.

In most cases, the individual has chosen to go along with regulations and keep the matter between himself and the service concerned. There have been cases where an individual has requested and gained a hearing with no word leaking out to the public.

In the case of Radulovich, the Air Force gave him all the rights provided in the rules. He received written notice of intention to dismiss him. He asked for and was given a hearing before a security board convened by the 10th Air Force at Selfridge Field, Mich. After that hearing he sent a brief to the Air Force personnel council in Washington.

The original security board found he was a doubtful security risk—but did not question his loyalty—and recommended that his commission be recalled. The personnel council, top-ranking adviser to the Air Force secretary on such matters, disagreed with some details but agreed with the conclusion.

Thus, Talbot overruled all of the agencies and advisers provided for him by law in clearing Radulovich.

Air Force officers said security investigations would continue when warranted by information received. "We will have to judge each case on its own merits just as we have been going all along," said one officer who declined to be named. "Of course, it may dampen the enthusiasm of some of our security investigators, but after all, they are following the regulations."

Radulovich's attorney had said his client was accused because his sister reportedly joined in a Communist picket line and his father read a "radical" newspaper.

Talbot, in ruling the 26-year-old officer is not a security risk, said his "association with his sister is not such as to make her activities and beliefs the determining factor in this case."

He added that the record does not support the conclusion that the father had engaged in activities of "such a type as to bear upon the decision in this case."

Radulovich, married and the father of two children, now lives at Dexter, Mich., and attends the University of Michigan as a GI student. He served about eight years in the Air Force before going on inactive duty.

Jail Familiar, And Confusing

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—A new booking desk resembling the one at Charleston's city jail has been installed as part of the face-lifting job at Kanawha County Jail.

One of the county jail's regulars, a 68-year-old man charged with drunkenness, was booked yesterday. On his way to a cell, the man mumbled to himself. "It's a hell of a thing when a man can't tell which jail he's in."

Kind of a shame, in a way. The safe wasn't locked and there was $1,100 inside.

ATHENS (AP)—What will Greece and Turkey do if Italy and Yugoslavia plunge into an all-out brawl over Trieste?

The question is a diplomatic brain twister. Here's why: Greece and Turkey are partners with Yugoslavia in the Balkan defense alliance. They are also linked to Italy by NATO. Yugoslavia is not.

Early this year, Greek government circles spoke ambitiously of offering Greece's services as "mediators" if any dispute arose between Italy and Yugoslavia. When the chance came, Greece preferred not to intervene. Turkey is following suit.

The three member governments of the Balkan alliance are setting up a secretariat to pool common efforts against possible Red aggression. A military pact binding Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey may be negotiated to implement the political agreement.

Nobody has ventured to say what the roles of Greece and Turkey would be in the event of an armed attack by Italy against Yugoslavia or vice versa.

The Balkan friendship pact could turn into something mutually embarrassing. Last winter when the three Balkan allies were negotiating the pact, Italy charged Yugoslavia planned to use the alliance against her. Official Italian government

CARIBOU, Me. (AP)—A New York City resident, hunting deer in the Maine woods, was found to be wearing a fur coat. Commented a game warden: "The only other thing he needed to be sure of getting shot was a pair of antlers."

and church circles in Rome said Marshal Tito was getting allies together to strengthen his hand for the Trieste dispute and for his feud with the Roman Catholic Church.

Nevertheless, Greek Premier Alexander Papagos invited the Italians to enter the pact, an invitation renewed when former Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi visited Greece last January, a month before the pact was signed.

The Italians, however, are unwilling to make any binding agreements with the Yugoslavs until the Trieste and church issues are settled.

Santa Will Dominate Five Points

Mrs. Cora Powell, left, and H. Frank Steinbeck, chairman of the Trade Promotions committee, view the Santa Claus that will be placed at Five Points during the Christmas season. The Trade Promotions committee is in charge of the decorations and Steinbeck said that additional funds are needed to complete the decorations, but merchants who have not contributed yet are urged to do so immediately so the lights can be turned on Friday night as scheduled. Materials used this year are three-ply aluminum foil that will show up nicely, according to Steinbeck. (Reflector Photo by Bob Boyette).

Burglar Wasted A Lot Of Effort

REDDING, Calif. (AP)—The burglar sawed through the flooring to get into the store, tried to chip the safe loose from its cement base, then tried to burn his way into it with a torch. About that time he was either frightened away or gave up in disgust.

Kind of a shame, in a way. The safe wasn't locked and there was $1,100 inside.

Let Us Bow
Our Heads
in THANKS...

Today, in the spirit of the first Thanksgiving, let us give thanks to the Creator for all the blessings we have received... both as individuals and as Americans... a free people, living without fear in a free country. Like the Pilgrim Fathers, let us humbly acknowledge our debt to Divine Providence for all that we are and may hope to become. Like them, let us bow our heads in a prayer of gratitude to the Giver of "every good and perfect gift."

How better express the gratitude that is in your heart than to gather with family and friends in Church on Thanksgiving Day?

TRAFFIC TROUBLE
VICKSBURG, Miss. (UP)—The city followed a traffic engineer's advice to eliminate a traffic bottleneck by prohibiting parking along a three-block zone. But irate property owners made such a clamor at city hall that workmen were ordered to return "no parking" signs to their crates before they could get them set up. Mayor Pat Kelly said he was waiting for the traffic engineer to tell him what to do next.
