Gouzenko Won't Testify Before Senate Committee

BULLETIN

TORONTO (AP) — Igor Gouzenko, in an interview copyrighted by the Toronto Telegram, said today he has decided not to be interviewed by the Jenner subcommittee of the U.S. Senate.

WASHINGTON (AP)—With Senate probers and Canada at a temporary impasse today over the questioning of Igor Gouzenko, political crossfire drummed on with a Democratic blast that the Harry Dexter White case was camouflage for a "serious situation" in the Justice Department.

The Senate Internal Security subcommittee headed by Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) apparently was faced with a take it or leave it proposition: question Gouzenko on Canada's terms or not at all.

Secretary of State Dulles told the committee Saturday that the Canadian government was right in insisting that it, and not the committee decide what part of Gouzenko's testimony should be made public. That's what the United States would do in a similar situation, he said.

Jenner said he would take it up with the subcommittee at a meeting Wednesday. He declined to say what course would be chosen but added, "Naturally . . . we must pursue this inquiry as far as possible."

Gouzenko, the onetime Russian Embassy code clerk who exposed a Soviet spy system in Canada eight years ago is living in Canada under an assumed name and with police protection. He has been sought for questioning by the Jenner group because of references, in his testimony and frequent interrogations, to spy contacts in the United States.

Jenner's subcommittee stepped up its Reds-in-government investigations after Atty. Gen. Brownell charged in a speech Nov. 6 that former President Truman had promoted Harry Dexter White, now dead, despite FBI reports linking White to Red espionage.

Yesterday, three Democratic leaders assailed Brownell and the Eisenhower administration for setting off what has become one of the hottest political wrangles in years.

Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic National Committee, declared in an NBC television interview that Brownell launched the controversy to divert attention from many things including "a serious situation within the Justice Department itself."

The program ended before Fritchey could explain this charge, but he supplied details for newsmen afterward.

He said he referred to a recent statement by U. S. District Judge Willis W. Ritter in Denver that the FBI refused to help the U.S. district attorney for Colorado in a jury-tampering investigation. He said the attorney, Charles Vigil, won the case without FBI aid and then was fired. A Democrat, Vigil was replaced by Donald E. Kelly, a Republican and fraternity brother of Brownell.

There was no immediate comment from the Justice Department. At Salt Lake City, Judge Ritter said he had no comment.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell and Averell Harriman, a 1952 presidential aspirant, similarly let loose blasts at the GOP handling of the White case.

Mitchell told a Democratic rally at St. Albans Vt., that the GOP is neglecting the main battle against communism while "they spend their energies chasing dead spies."

Suggest New Delhi As Korea Peace Talk Locale

Reds Propose Parley Site

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists today offered a broad proposal for a Korean peace conference —some of it new and some of it old—but most of it got a cold shoulder from U.S. delegate Arthur H. Dean.

Dean in turn offered the Reds a compromise plan to let Russia sit in on the conference as a "neighbor of Korea," taking part as a "third party" with full voting privileges.

Dean's suggestion was a revision of earlier U.N. demands that a conference include only the two belligerent sides with Russia on the Communist side if she attends. However, an Allied spokesman said:

"We expect the law of gravity will operate to take care of that situation and we would not be surprised if Russia would show up as the chief spokesman for the Communists."

Both sides agreed to take a day off to study the new proposals. They will meet again Wednesday.

Dean said after today's meeting —first of the sixth week of talks— that the Communist proposal is simply an old plan "dressed up with altering tinsel."

He said he was "exceptionally disappointed" and told newsmen there was a "complete lack of progress."

However, Dean said he was "gratified" the Communists have suggested New Delhi as a conference site, switching from their previous insistence on Panmunjom. An Indian spokesman in Panmunjom said he believed the Indian government would approve New Delhi if both sides requested it.

In Seoul, South Korea's foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, said New Delhi is "impossible" as a site and his government "can never accept it."

Pyun said South Korea has no objections to Geneva, Honolulu or San Francisco, three sites originally named by Dean and refused by the Reds.

Pyun said the Communists "seem to act as if they do not want any political conference," and accused them of stalling.

The Reds also proposed that the conference begin Dec. 28.

The Red plan was, in effect, a counterproposal to a U.N. plan submitted by Dean Saturday.

The Allied plan limited "Neutrals" to nations which have an interest in the Korean situation such as Pakistan and India, but omitted the additional Red choices of Burma, Indonesia and Russia.

The Red counterplan restored the three but made one important concession — that the neutrals would not have a vote although they would have the right to participate in other phases.

The heart of the problem, however, was what to do with Russia, which the Reds have demanded firmly be admitted as a neutral.

The Reds apparently had no immediate reaction to Dean's offer—obviously aimed at satisfying every corner—that the Russians be neither belligerent or neutral but a special "third party."

The Red proposal still listed Russia as a "neutral."

However, Dean said he would "never agree" to that point.

The spokesman who amplified Dean's proposal on Russia said:

"Russia will attend as a full participant with voting rights and bound by all agreements. She will not be listed as either a neutral or a belligerent but as a third party.

"She will not be on the Communist team if she does not desire to be . . ."

Dean also criticized other points of the Communist proposal.

He said the neutrals would have the power to make motions and take undue part in the discussions— "they are saying that the neutrals are not participants but have the rights of participants."

Meanwhile, a reliable source said he believes the Allied command will begin interviews next week with 22 American, 1 Briton and 328 South Korean POWs who are listed as unwilling to return home.

Big Bundles Go To Cold Koreans

More than 7500 pounds of clothing for Korean relief was shipped from Greenville this morning.

The clothing, collected in various communities in Eastern North Carolina and brought to Greenville for storage, is being sent from Greenville by truck to the Church World Service organization in New Windsor, Maryland. From there most of it will be sent to Korea for distribution among the needy of that war-torn nation.

The clothing drive in Greenville is sponsored by the local Council of Church Women.

Mrs. D.H. Conley, president of the Council, said that donations of clothing can be brought to Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. The clothing drive is a continous operation, she said.

The collecting center in Greenville is sponsored by the Council and the Greenville Ministerial Association. Towns from which clothing came for this shipment included: Elizabeth City, Winsor, Williamston, New Bern, Cherry Point, Kinston, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Bell Arthur, Farmville, Greenville and others.

The last shipment of clothing sent off from Greenville was last July. At that time about 9000 pounds of wearing apparal were shipped to the Maryland headquarters.

Collision Ended Chase By Police

A patrol car of the Greenville police department and a car driven by Leroy Jenkins Knight, 20-year-old Negro of 1309 West Third Street, city, collided on a dirt road yesterday afternoon after a wild chase.

Detective N. H. Byrd of the police department said he gave chase to the car driven by Knight after he saw it traveling at a high rate of speed on the city streets. The chase wound through streets in the southwestern part of the city and out on the Greenville - Falkland highway where the automobiles finally collided on a dirt road leading from the highway, four and one-half miles west of Greenville.

Byrd said a passenger in the car driven by Knight jumped or fell from Knight's car and ran at one time during the chase when the cars slowed down on a city street. The officer said he clocked Knight at 90 miles per hour at times during the chase.

Knight was taken into custody after the two automobiles collided on the rural road and was charged with speeding 90 miles per hour, careless and reckless driving, failing to stop for a police siren, possessing and transporting non-tax paid liquor, and assault with a deadly weapon, an automobile. The chase totaled 7.1 miles, Byrd said.

Neither the police detective nor Knight were injured in the collision which ended the chase. Highway Patrolman Jim Davis investigated the accident.

Rebel Offer Hits Laniel Leadership

PARIS (AP)—A reported offer by Communist rebel leader Ho Chi Minh to negotiate for an Indochinese armistice set new fires burning today under the hard-pressed government of French Premier Joseph Laniel.

Ho's purported statement, published yesterday in the Stockholm newspaper Exoressen, touched off panicky and furious resistance among anti-Communist nationalist leaders in the Indochinese capital of Saigon. Many demanded a break in relations with France.

But it also was expected to rally new support to strong segments of French political and public opinion which have demanded a quick end to the costly, seven-year Far Eastern conflict.

Officially, Laniel's government was cautiously noncommittal. A spokesman said until the Cabinet studied Ho's message, the government could take no position. Previously Laniel has said France "will not refuse to negotiate if the occasion presents itself."

Earlier, Marc Jacquet, French secretary of state for Indochinese affairs, said the offer was interesting but could not be considered a basis for negotiations. A Cabinet communique promptly said Jacquet's statement "can in no case be considered as corresponding to the position of the French government."

As quoted by the Stockholm newspaper, Ho Chi Minh said his Vietminh forces would "be ready to meet" an armistice proposal from France "if, having learnt the lesson of these years of war, the French government wishes to have an armistice and settle the question by negotiations." The paper, Stockholm's largest newspaper and a supporter of the Liberal party, said Ho's message was in reply to five questions submitted early this month to the Vietminh offices in Peiping.

Ho said for an armistice to come about the French "have to stop hostilities" and France must "really respect the independence of Viet Nam."

He said efforts of neutrals to effect an armistice would be "welcome," but "negotiations for an armistice are essentially an affair between the government of France and that of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam," as the Communists call their rebel regime.

He also blasted the United States, asserting that "American imperialism is pushing French colonialism to carry on and extend the war of reconquest in Viet Nam with a view to making France become weaker and weaker, and taking her place in Viet Nam."

In line with the message, a Peiping radio broadcast today said that "peace-loving people in the rest of the world are demanding an end to the (Indochina) war by peaceful negotiation."

County Tax Office And Towns Get Together

Listing Of Taxes Simplified

By BOB BOYETTE
Reflector Staff Writer

An agreement has been worked out with town officials throughout the county for a more accurate and efficient method of listing taxes for 1954, Pitt County Tax Supervisor Reginald Gray reported this morning.

For the people living in a town, duplicate copies of the listings will be made so one copy can be sent to the town officials. "This way the towns can get a more correct listing of propery in the towns," Gray stated.

The main theory behind this movement of making duplicate abstracts is to speed up listing here in Greenville.

Tax officials, according to Gray, are now making abstracts for every person in the county who listed tax last year. A copy will be mailed to each person so he can check his real estate and note on the abstract his personal property so it can be taken to the list taker when he lists his taxes. This should speed up and make a more efficient listing.

Gray also said that persons will notified at the same time where they must list their taxes this year since township lines have been changed.

The tax supervisor said that visits are being made now by county tax officials to various property sales throughout the county so better ideas may be established for having more equitable values for 1954.

A new tax billing machine will be used in Pitt for the first time this year. It will save considerable time, Gray reported, in preparing the tax book and calculating the taxes. It has been used in almost every neighboring county prior to this year and most counties report it a great help. "One county tax supervisor said that the machine paid for itself the first year," Gray said.

The local county tax supervisor said that all these new methods are being tried in a effort to save the county money.

Appointments of township list takers will be approved by the Board of County Commissioners next Monday. The list takers will be announced later in the week with listing scheduled to begin January 1.

Three Hospitalized As Result Of Car Collision

Three persons were hospitalized here last night as a result of an automobile collision at the intersection of Boyd and Dickinson Avenues at 11 p.m.

Injured in the collision were Jerry C. Holt, 17, of Graham Route 1, Davie Harris of Graham, both students at East Carolina College, and Barbara Barber of Greenville.

Harris was a passenger in the car driven by Holt, and Barbara Barber and her brother Edward Barber Jr. were in an automobile driven by James R. Medlin, 29, of 209 E. 14th Street.

Policeman Doss of the Greenville police department, who investigated the accident, said the car driven by Medlin traveled 96 feet from the point of impact at the intersection and stopped when it hit the front porch of a house on the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Boyd Street. The car driven by Holt, the officer said, traveled 45 feet from the point of impact and stopped on the sidewalk. Both automobiles were a total loss, Doss said.

Medlin and Edward Barber Jr. received only minor scratches and bruises in the accident, the officer said.

Holt received lacerations and contusions of the face and head, and Harris received contusions and lacerations of the face and back, the officer stated. Barbara Barber was hospitalized for shock and observations.

The investigating officer said Medlin's car was traveling north on Boyd Avenue and was taking Edward Barber Jr. and his sister to the hospital to see their father who was taken to the hospital earlier in the evening after becoming ill at his home. Holt's car was coming into Greenville on Dickinson Avenue.

The police department said this morning investigation of the accident is still incomplete because of the condition of some of the persons injured in the accident, and no charges have been brought in connection of the accident because the investigation has not been completed.

President Plans Big Three Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, back from his Thanksgiving holiday and priming for the Big Three parley in Bermuda Dec. 4, huddles today with Secretary of State Dulles on the Soviet's latest cold war move.

The big problem is how to respond to the Russian bid for a meeting with the United States, Britain and France. The bid was regarded as a drive aimed at crumbling the West's planned European defense army—if not Western unity in the bargain.

Eisenhower flew into Washington last night aboard the presidential plane Columbine from Augusta, Ga., where he had spent a six-day Thanksgiving holiday. The plane had stopped en route at Ft. Benning, Ga., to return Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower and their three children to their home.

On his last day in Augusta, the president attended church services, got in a final round of golf and dropped a hint as to where he might spend Christmas. As he boarded the plane for Washington, he told those who had come to see him off: "I hope I'll be back for Christmas."

Eisenhower is known to have talked by telephone with Dulles Friday and to have had several telephone conversations with unnamed parties in Washington Saturday.

Dulles has begun exchanging ideas on the Soviet proposal with British and French foreign officers. It was reported that these exchanges show close agreement on just what the Kremlin is aiming at—agreement which would bode good for the Bermuda talks beginning next Friday.

There had appeared to be some division in initial reaction, but officials discounted this and said it is fading away.

In advance of a firm American policy decision, most officials seemed certain that a Big Four meeting would be held. Further, there seemed to be no overriding objections to holding it at Berlin, as the Reds suggested.

Burley Tobacco Goes To Market

NASHVILLE Tenn. (AP)—Reduced by drought but exhibiting qualities that usually command top prices, the 1953 burley tobacco crop went to market today in Tennessee.

Buyers for the cigarette companies pay best prices and this year's crop is cured bright and thin, making it right for cigarettes.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates the 1953 yield at 575 million pounds with Kentucky expecting to sell close to 400 million pounds. The 1953 yield would mean growers would pocket at least 270 million dollars as guaranteed by the new support price schedule.

Switching signals late last week, the Board of Directors of the Tennessee Farmers Marketing Assn. voted to sign a contract to share in the tobacco price support program in the state.

The Commodity Credit Corp. offered identical contracts to TFMA and the Burley Stabilization Corp. Burley Stabilization accepted but TFMA rejected the contract at first. A TFMA lawyer said the latest action was made after certain restrictive clauses the association considered objectionable had been removed.

Six Pairs Of Sharp Eyes Given Awards

Avery, Billy Bost, and Mrs. Durwood Hart, all of Greenville; P. L. Goodson, bond chairman for the association who made the awards and Mrs. P. O. Allen of Greenville. All the above won $5 prizes except Mrs. Allen who received a $1 award. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Six sharp-eyed Pitt Countians received $5 awards Saturday for identifying the mystery seal on the sheets of Tuberculosis Christmas seals which were mailed out in the County recently.

In addition the next five persons to phone in and, correctly identify the mystery seal were awarded $1 prizes. The contest was sponsored by the local Altrusa Club.

Winners of the $5 prizes included: Bobbie Johnston, Winterville; Mrs. Ella Cuthrell, Ayden; and George Creech, Mrs. Ernest S. Avery, Billy Bost and Mrs. Durwood Hart, all of Greenville.

Winning $1 prizes were: Mrs. P. O. Allen, Greenville; Miss Linda Chauncey, Miss Jane Mewborn and Mrs. Jesse Jackson, all of Grifton and Mrs. Floyd P. Harris, Route 6, Greenville.

Sale of the Christmas seals have been going very well, according to Mrs. J. B. Spilman, executive director of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association. Sales are more than double what they were at the same time last year, she reported.

"We are very happy at the response and at the interest that the citizens are taking in the seal sales," Mrs. Spilman said.

Safe-Cracking Attempt Is Failure; Combination Of Plant Wall-Safe Battered

Would-be safe crackers broke into the office of the Essotane plant on the Bethel highway about two miles north of Greenville during the weekend, but apparently failed to gain entrance to the wall safe in the office.

The combination on the safe was battered, but investigating officers from the Pitt County sheriff's office and the city police department expressed the belief the robbers had been unable to get into the safe.

Investigating the attempted robbery were Deputy Sheriffs Lloyd Manning and Duke Andrews, and Police Chief S. G. Gibbs and Captain S. B. Dorsey of the city police department.

The attempt to break into the safe was discovered this morning when the plant opened for business. Officers said it had not been established whether the robbery attempt was made Saturday night or Sunday night. The robbers gained entry into the office of the plant by prying open the front door.

The attempted safe robbery this weekend was the second such attempt within a week in which robbers had battered a combination on a safe in Pitt County, but failed to break into the safe.

Scott Preparing To Announce His Political Plans

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Former Gov. W. Kerr Scott says he will announce between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15 whether he will run for the U. S. Senate.

He said in an interview here last night that he would give the answer at a press conference he will call at his Haw River farm.

If he decides to make the race, Scott will oppose Sen. Alton A. Lennon of Wilmington next November.

Scott has been speaking around the state but he says he is not campaigning.

Villagers Fight Big Wolf Pack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Wolves from the snowbound Kesrowan mountains tore a 15-year-old lad to pieces during an hour-long battle yesterday with 30 villagers north of Beirut.

Four wounded persons were rushed to a hospital, including the wife of a shepherd who called for help when the pack of 19 wolves pounced on his flock. The slain boy was the shepherd's son.

Villagers killed five wolves and drove off the rest.

Tentative Arrangements For Santa Parade Lined Up

The tentative line-up for the Santa Claus Parade slated for Friday afternoon at 3:45 was announced this morning.

Members of the Parade Committee, headed by John Lautares, met in the Merchants Association Office to discuss the tentative line-up and iron out any problems that might come up at the annual Yule event.

Four bands and 15 floats have already signified that they would participate in the parade along with a drill team from the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps of East Carolina College.

Chairman John Lautares urged any other place of business, church, school, or organization that desires to enter a float to call 3021 for an entrance number. He asked that no float in the parade put any type of Santa on it for fear of confusing the children.

Bands who are in the parade include Greenville High, East Carolina College, Eppes High, and the Pitt-Duplin Band—a 100-piece band under the direction of Don Hayes, who will get the 100 members from the Ayden, Beulaville B. F. Grady, Contentnea, Grifton, Kenansville, and Warsaw bands.

Nine organizations have entered the floats. Those are the Business and Professional Women's Club, Battery "C", 690th Field Artillery, Greenville Oil Distributors Association, T. B. Seal, Junior Woman's Club, State Highway Safety Division, Greenville Florist's Association (five floats), Pitt County Training School, and St. Raphaels School.

The other float in the parade will be the decorated Santa Float.

H. F. Steinbeck and E. S. Webb are in charge of children in costume, children with dogs, and children with other pets.

C. W. Harvey Jr. will be in charge of the horses in the parade.

James W. Butler will be in charge of the float entries, and Warren Carroll will be in charge of children on decorated bicycles.

Professor J. W. Grimes and Professor W. H. Davenport will be in charge of the Negro entries.

There will be two official automobiles in the parade. One will have the Merchants Association officials and the other will have the out-of-town judges. The judges will probably be announced tomorrow.

The city officials have offered cooperation to the committee by having Evans Street cleared of traffic for the parade. John Lautares urged business people and other individuals to cooperate with the officials by not parking on Evans Street after lunch on Friday.

The prizes, given by the Merchant's Association, will be awarded immediately following the parade on the porch of the Court House.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

WITH AN unsteady hand Charlotte struck another match, burning her finger, to continue her search. And just then, out in the darkness something stirred, she was sure something stirred, and she had the sensation she was not alone. Charlotte blew out the match and crouched beside the cabinet. The only sound was her own heart, tom-tomming in her ears. It must have been imagination. Conscience doth make cowards . . .

She had too much at stake to be a coward at this late date. Softly she slid open the M-P drawer, fingers fumbling through it. And then the phone rang. It shrilled into the silence, it was the slice of a knife through her nerves. She stood statue-still eyes and ears straining like an animal's.

Someone was at the switchboard. Someone knew she was here. The switchboard was only five doors away.

Run, run for your life. Out into the store where there are places to hide under the counter covers behind dresses run legs paralyzed as in a nightmare escape ready set go.

One way out led past the switchboard room, the other back through the office. Charlotte fled into the light. I'm a moth flying into the flame of destruction, she thought, a plainly visible target. She hurried headlong, and then she was in the dark Miss Manhattan department. Go on, keep going, into the first fitting room.

She flattened herself against the wall. Her chest hurt, and she breathed as though she'd been running for a long time. She needed to cough, and she stood strangling it down. She wanted to sit down and sob like a child at the top of her bursting lungs. But she had to listen.

There wasn't a sound, silence engulfed her, it was like a pressure upon her eardrums. She saw her own shadow in the mirror, and for a second her heart reared again.

This wasn't true. It was a hallucination that she cowered here in this cubicle, high above the streets of New York where normal people walked free and fearless. Normal. Her behavior became more and more abnormal, didn't it? Didn't it? Somehow she must find peace and rest, somehow get back to normalcy.

In an odd way it suddenly seemed peaceful here in the dark quiet. Charlotte thought she'd just like to stay here never move her tired young body, slip to the floor, sleep.

But the phone had rung! That was real. And of course it was King, King who had deliberately puppeteered her into this plight, glanced at the file cabinet on purpose, helped her plan her own plan. He waited out there—with what intent? King waited well.

The elevators and stairs were all the way through the Miss Manhattan department. That's where he'd be, blocking escape. If Sam came upon him, well, after all, who had a better right to be here than the store president? He could enter by his own key, run the elevator by himself.

Sam. The thing would be to work toward the front where she could listen and watch for Sam's next trip up, then just step out calmly and say, "Oh, Sam, would you take me down now? Just wait a second till I get my wraps. Oh, good evening Mr. Cummings."

Then even if King rode down with her, she'd be safe. Sam would let them out onto the safe street where the normal people walked.

Or was it past time for Sam's eight-o'clock trip? Charlotte peered at her watch and managed to make out the figures. All those eons of time had rolled by, and it was only quarter to eight.

She mustn't miss Sam, it was a matter of life and death, she felt, that she mustn't miss Sam . . . Charlotte began to inch out and forward; she reminded herself of April and May, the way she crept, wary and watchful, tense for defense.

April and May. She had to get even for April and May.

Now she was out in the shadowy store. The mannequins loomed lifelike. Charlotte went on, hugging the wall.

She stopped short, frozen by the idea that had come to her mind. There was nothing in the world to prevent King's telling the investigators he'd come back to the store because he suspected her of shoplifting, and that furthermore, he had caught her in the act. There was nothing to prevent his saying he'd found merchandise concealed on her, nothing in the world. The authorities and the public would believe an important merchant before they'd believe a working girl, a nonentity.

He could say that if it suited his purpose.

Charlotte stood there hesitant, and suddenly it almost seemed to her that a mannequin moved. She passed her hand across her eyes, then looked again. A mannequin—someone—did move.

Charlotte plunged forward in panic and knew the figure followed. She raced ahead toward the now visible elevators, and then she saw the wide-open shaft, saw King, insanity in his eyes. His grip was on her arm, as she struggled, kicking—till the figure that had followed appeared, and the three wrestled, panting.

The confusion that followed ended as suddenly as it had begun, and there was only King's awful animal cry ripping the emptiness as he hurtled down the open shaft.

"The first thing," Charlotte said, suddenly cool, "is for us to get out of here."

Through all the still chill hours she had lain here. And there was no April, no May to keep her company. Eventually she'd stopped shaking, and she supposed she had even slept a little—a sick sort of surface dozing. Not the blessed blank of real sleep. All night she had remembered. Eyes open or closed, she could see it all still.

And now the apartment furniture began to emerge as ghostly gray shapes in the black Saturday morning dawn.

She lay listening alertly. All night she'd heard a hundred ominous sounds. Every car was coming for her; every siren screamed her story. Every board that creaked with cold was someone lurking outside her door. And all night the wild tormenting wind had seemed to sweep within her body. Her nerves were like the taut strings of a violin; one more twist of the peg and they'd snap.

The milkman the garbage man, the paper man had come and gone, making their nice normal sounds. Between times the foghorns on the river cried their warnings.

Still she waited for a knock. Surely there'd be a knock.

Can Keep $400 And Bonus, Too

LOS ANGELES (AP)—First, Mrs. Katherine Peterson told the judge, her husband threw an envelope containing $400 at her.

Then he told her she could have two minutes in which to spend the money, she testified yesterday, and next he fired two shots from a rifle. One bullet scattered plaster fragments over her, she related.

Superior Judge Elmer Doyle decreed she could keep the $400 and $200 besides. He also granted her an order restraining her husband, Richard D. Peterson, telephone technician, from molesting her.

Poetry Brings Out The Best In One Pedestrian

FARMINGTON, N. M. (AP)—Poetry, or anything that resembles it, seems to bring out the very best in W. H. Christiansen.

He saw this on the windshield of a woman's car as time was running out on a parking meter:

"My dear cop,
I'm sorry you had to stop.
It nearly breaks my heart
But my car won't start.
My kiddies are home
So I can't stay here—
Please don't give me a ticket
When 'violation' does appear."

The "cop" never saw the note. Christiansen, moved by the verse deposited a nickel in the parking meter.

LINCOLN PROVES ITS SUPERIORITY, OUTPERFORMS ALL COMPETITORS IN STOCK CAR FIELD—WINS 7 OUT OF FIRST 10 PLACES

Stock car champions of the Mexican Pan-American Race last year, Lincolns again captured 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th places this year. In fact, in a field of more than 50, seven of ten prize-winners were Lincolns.

Called the toughest automotive test in the world, the route of this 1,912-mile race covers every kind of highway. From Tuxtla Gutierrez near Mexico's southern boundary to Ciudad Juarez across the Texas border from El Paso, the route climbs steep mountain grades, turns, twists, curves its ways through foothills and winds up over long flat stretches of desert highway. Road elevations range from near sea-level to more than 10,000 feet. In every driving situation, Lincoln proved itself superior—a great tribute to the precision engineering and rugged stamina of its 205-hp V-8, the easy handling and steering control of its proven ball-joint front suspension, and the stability and road-holding qualities of the great Lincoln chassis.

And now a new Lincoln is on the way—the new 1954 Lincoln. It is more luxurious than ever. Its handling qualities, roadability—yes, even its famous V-205 hp engine—have been improved. You'll want to see this great new Lincoln, Thursday, December 3rd. And even more, you'll want to drive it. See for yourself why Lincoln alone is the one fine car designed for modern living—powered for modern driving—and twice-proved in the world's toughest road race.

Demand Laws To Keep Tax Collections 'Clear'

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hard and fast laws to prevent Treasury Department favoritism and political meddling in federal tax collections was demanded today by House investigators.

The Ways and Means subcommittee, in the fourth installment today of a final report on two years of investigating tax fraud and irregularities recommended:

1. Enactment of changes in the internal revenue code to curb authority of the secretary of the Treasury over actual administration of the tax laws to "prevent political meddling in the future."

2. Giving the internal revenue commissioner direct authority over tax collections in all matters not involving national fiscal policy.

The report observed:

"Corruption, of course, is possible at any level of government, but political influence conceivably would be less strongly felt by career employes of the bureau than by politically appointed Treasury officials.

"If the Treasury no longer has ultimate control over personnel questions or like matters personally affecting bureau employes, Treasury officials will possess less power to influence what should be impartial administrative decisions in the bureau."

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey announced Nov. 19 that he had delegated full authority to the Internal Revenue Service for handling individual tax cases, while reserving policy decisions to the Treasury. He said it will cut duplication and delay.

This handing down of power, accomplished gradually, gives Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews authority to make final agreements on tax disputes, among other things.

The subcommittee referred to its public hearings at which witnesses testified that Treasury officials intervened in individual cases. This, the report said, was "indicative of the abuses which can flow from Treasury control of the decision-making processes in tax cases."

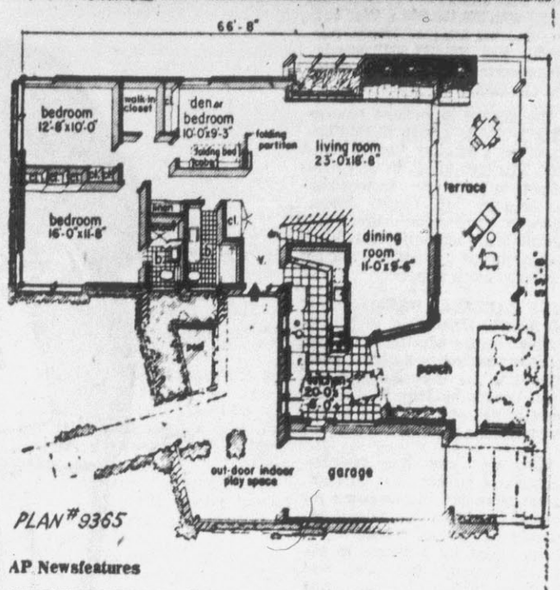

In each case it said, "the power of Treasury officials was exerted to bestow a special benefit on the taxpayer.

"To terminate the authority of Treasury officials over tax administration would prevent recurrence of such improprieties."

The subcommittee said it had no specific legislation to offer at this time.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures

INDOOR-OUTDOOR living is exploited in this plan for a house erected by the Long Island Home Builders Institute and AFL building trades unions as a contribution toward raising funds for 13 community hospitals. Materials, equipment and services were donated by more than 150 associate members of the institute. The house is offered as a prize in a hospital fund raising campaign. Features include doors at both ends of the garage to create covered play space for children in bad weather. A picture window adjoining the living room fireplace extends into the finished basement, where plants and vines grow up from the basement through the living room level. Sliding glass walls merge living room and terrace, where a barbecue fireplace is provided in the massive multiple chimney. The house covers 1,585 square feet without porches and garage. It was designed by Matern & York, architects, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 2, N.Y.

Girl Chosen To Attempt Global Flight Record

CHICAGO (AP)—A 23-year-old advertising copywriter, picked because she is a "typical American girl" and inexperienced in air travel, will try to circle the globe by commercial air lines in record time.

Miss Pam Martin told newsmen yesterday she expects to cover 21,878 miles in 91 hours and 25 minutes, starting east from Midway Airport at noon Friday. She was chosen by J. Stuart Rotchford, general manager of Jouney's International-Happiness Tours.

Miss Martin's schedule, if followed, would beat the present record by 7 hours and 51 minutes.

When her mother, Mrs. Ida Martin of Albuquerque, N. M. was informed by telephone, she told her daughter, "Please be careful, and don't speak to any strange men."

Garden Club Plans December Activities

The Greenville Garden Club held its second highly successful meeting on Friday, November 20, at the Woman's Club.

In the morning, Mr. Kenneth Sprunt from the Orton Plantation Nurseries conducted a shrubbery sale which was met with great interest. The shrubs offered for sale were of a fine quality and in a large variety. The Greenville gardens will surely look more colorful and be more enjoyable in the future. Mrs. Stell, who was in charge of this sale, did a really fine job of making it the success it was. Mrs. Stell reported total sales of $659.77 of which $133.60 went into the club treasury. All are grateful for the work of Mrs. Stell and her committee.

The afternoon meeting presided over by Mrs. Sam H. Mitchell, president, was opened with routine reports of the club officers.

Mrs. K. B. Pace, program committee chairman, outlined the plans for the December 11th meeting, which will be one of the highlights of the club's activities this year. Mrs. J. M. Nowell of Macon, Ga. will bring her large display of ideas for Christmas decorations. The meeting will be held in the College Little Theatre. Mrs. Nowell will talk on the subject "Original Ideas for Christmas Decorations." Admission will be $1.00 per person and everyone interested is cordially invited to attend. The lecture-demonstration will be given twice: at 11:30 a.m.-12 noon and at 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m.

Mrs. Pace then introduced the speaker of the day, Mr. Kenneth Sprunt, who talked on the subject, "Questions and Answers on Azaleas, Camellias and Other Shrubs." Mr. Sprunt told about the best way of planting shrubs and of taking best care of them. Many helpful ideas were advanced on how to prune older shrubs and on how to fight various plant diseases and insects. Proper fertilizers were also discussed. Mr. Sprunt answered many questions of interest to all garden lovers.

The business meeting was then resumed. Mrs. Hicks Corey, chairman of City Planning and Project Committee, offered City Manager Mr. Hughes a rubber plant for new city offices.

Mrs. H. R. Rogers, chairman of Horticulture Committee, reported on progress of the poppy seed campaign. Mrs. R. V. Keel thanked her helpers for their fine work on the seed sale. Many lots in various sections of town will be sown in seeds this fall. $16.80 has been collected from the sale of poppy seed.

Publicity Chairman Mrs. W. C. Goodwin asked each member to support the sale of tickets to the December meeting and to act as a committee of one to publicize the Christmas demonstration.

Mrs. P. E. Wells gave a brief report of the District Meeting at Roanoke Rapids.

The president asked for volunteers to help decorate the club house on the morning of December 14th.

The club was delighted to welcome Mrs. Floyd Hendrix and Mrs. B. C. Satterfield as guests.

A lovely tea was served in the front parlors. The artistic table decorations and arrangements of fall chrysanthemums made it a very pleasant hour for all.

The hostesses were Mesdames R. V. Keel, chairman, W. T. Kyzer, C. C. Hilton, J. R. Carrington, J. Hicks Corey, J. M. Basart, J. L. Fleming, J. L. Winstead, E. W. Harvey, W. J. Bundy and J. R. Jackson.

Tea Is Courtesy For Miss Henderson

A tea in honor of Miss Dorothy Nell Henderson, bride-elect, was given by Mrs. J. Knott Proctor and Mrs. Walter F. Taylor at the home of the former Saturday from 4:00 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

Mrs. J. D. Messick greeted and introduced guests to the receiving line which was composed of the hostesses and Miss Henderson. Mrs. J.H.B. Moore and Mrs. C. Washington received at the door leading from the hall into the dining room.

Mrs. E. L. Henderson poured tea and was assisted in serving dainty accompaniments by Misses Hannah Proctor, Margaret Moye, Sara Adams, Lou Cheatham and Mary Will Long. Mrs. Travis Hooker and Mrs. Spruill Spain directed guests from the dining room into the living room.

The dining room table was covered with an Italian cutwork cloth and centered with a green and white bride's bouquet and candles. The buffet was decorated with candles and an arrangement of pink and white roses. White candles banked with green magnolia leaves adorned the mantel. In the living room mixed flowers were used.

Miss Iva Shelburn said the goodbyes.

Three Children Killed By Blaze

CHICAGO (AP) — Three terror-stricken children died huddled in their beds when a burning broom spread fire through a basement apartment yesterday but a fourth fled into the hall and survived.

Sylvia Guy, 4, who was overcome by smoke but revived, told police her dead brother, Albert, 5, had poked the broom into the gas heater.

Also dead were Philip 2, and Geraldine, 8 months. The father, Willard, 35, an unemployed steelworker, said he left the children alone to pick up his waitress wife Marilyn, 34.

Did They Objectively Study The Point?

Which is the lesser of two evils: an old, unsightly service station in a residential district of the city, or a new, modern service station in its place?

In view of the fact there is little possibility that the old, unsightly station will go out of business for many, many years, we would venture the opinion that the latter alternative would be better.

Greenville's city council at a public hearing last week, by a three to two vote decided it would be better to forbid the owners of the station in question to erect a new station on the present site rather than rezone the property on which the station has stood for more than 20 years from a residential classification to a commercial classification.

It all came about when the owners of the particular station at Fifth and Harding streets made petition to change the zoning classification of the particular plot of land in order that they might erect a new station in place of the old.

The petition of the company to replace its station was opposed by a number of property owners in the vicinity, and likewise by East Carolina College which is across the street from the station.

If there were no station already on the site, we could see how the three members of the council might oppose the erection of a station on the site in question. But since the station has been doing business on the site since long before the city adopted its zoning ordinance in 1948, and the owners of the station can not be forced to abandon their business location, it seems preferable that they be allowed to improve the appearance of the property by replacing the present structure with a modern station.

We cannot see where such a move would cause a devaluation of surrounding property, nor would it let down the bars on commercializing property in residential areas in the city.

In view of the improvement the new station would be, it appears to us Mayor Whedbee and Councilmen Harvey and Ruffin have taken a short-sighted view of the situation, and have failed to evaluate objectively the principal factors involved in the case.

Further College Consolidation Talked

The matter of further consolidation of state-owned colleges and universities in North Carolina will be eyed considerably by the committee appointed by Gov. Umstead to study maintenance of state institutions of higher learning.

Possibilities of further consolidation as a measure to make maintenance more economical, was voiced by some of those representatives of various institutions which already have appeared before the commission.

While the question of consolidation of some of the smaller colleges—among them, East Carolina—with the Greater University is still a long way from a showdown, such a move is still in the wind.

As The Reflector stated previously in an editoral, it would not be in the interest of the so-called "smaller" colleges to consolidate them with the Greater University, nor would it be in the best interest of the individual geographical areas served principally by the now "independent" state-owned institutions of higher learning.

East Carolina, for example, is meeting many very important needs of this section of the state as an institution separate from the Greater University. With its growth in recent years as a pattern, it is not unlikely that in years to come, East Carolina will become a university in its own right if it is allowed to remain a separate institution. As such it would be of even greater service to the people of this section and to the state as a whole.

If East Carolina and other institutions of its kind are gobbled up in further consolidation of institutions of higher learning, it is reasonable to assume their potential in growth and service would be more limited than if they remain in their present status.

It would be false economy for the state to further consolidate such institutions if the money saved by such a move would be outstripped by the loss of value of the schools to the areas whic they now serve, and thus to the state as a whole.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

A BELIEF THAT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

You may not believe in miracles, but attribute these two circumstances to coincidence if you can.

Between May 26 and June 4, 1940, almost 350,000 British soldiers were transported across the Channel in safety. On November 8, 1942, 150,000 United States troops landed in French North Africa. Both these landings would ordinarily have been fraught with the greatest of danger. However, on both occasions, the seas were calmer at the time of the embarkation of these two sets of troops than at any time during the 68 years covered by existing records.

Anyone who has crossed the English Channel knows what tough sailing it is. There were and always have been conditions on the northern shores of Africa which would make a landing there quite perilous. Why, when the lives of a half-million men were at stake, were waters ordinarily turbulent calmed down to the placidity of a mill pond? There is no proof of course that the hand of the Lord was in this, if by proof you mean something akin to the proving of a proposition in geometry. But the circumstances would appear too spectacular for mere coincidence.

Those of us who have religious faith believe, first, that the hand of the Lord was guarding these situations; and second, that that same hand can manage turbulent affairs arising in your life and in mine. And this belief makes a difference.

Some of the reasons why the present system of federal excise taxes are unsatisfactory are listed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as follows: A pleasure yacht is untaxed, while an auto has a 10 per cent manufacturer's excise. A long-distance phone call is taxed 25 per cent while a local call is taxed 15 per cent. Passenger travel is taxed at 15 per cent, most freight transportation is taxed 3 per cent, and coal shipments are taxed at 4 cents a ton. A fur coat, even if it is relatively cheap, is taxed 20 per cent at the retail level; a cloth coat, which performs the same function, is untaxed even though it may be much more expensive; alligator shoes are untaxed, but an alligator purse is taxed.

Business Today

Research Available

By ELMER ROESSNER

Millions of dollars worth of facts are available to American industry for pennies.

These facts, constituting "the world's largest storehouse of technical reports on industrial methods and processes," are in 250,000 reports in the care of the Office of Technical Services of the Department of Commerce.

They include research and know-how on almost every conceivable industrial operation. They include data on wartime and postwar research by all branches of the American Government and valuable technical information captured from the enemy.

Many business executives, if aware of the existence of this valuable collection of research facts, are not conscious of its value. And many who have understood how valuable it can be have saved large sums of money.

Some companies have found profitable uses of waste materials; others have learned techniques to reduce losses in production; others have hit upon new products, or improvement of existing products. The OTS helped one company begin the manufacture of a quick-frozen fruit juice and helped another install an electrolytic de-rusting process and a process for electro-polishing of stainless steel.

The OTS issues a monthly newsletter and a monthly bibliography of technical repors. These, for the most part, are not new reports. Often facts wanted are back in that quarter of a million reports already on file.

A large number of chambers of commerce across the country are now cooperating with the OTS. They have full information on how businessmen can go about getting required data. When a local chamber is not participating in the program, the facts can be obtained from the nearest field office of the Department of Commerce or, if one is not convenient, by writing, to the OTS, Washington 25, D.C., direct. Most of the data is available at nominal prices.

ORANGE CONCENTRATE DOWN FROZEN VEGETABLES UP

Frozen orange concentrates in shorage on October 31 were 20 per cent lower than a year ago, but stocks of many other fruits and vegetables were at all-time highs, according to the Deparment of Agriculture.

The total of frozen fruits on hand were 388,155,000 pounds, compared with 326,459,000 a year earlier, and the total of frozen vegetables was 734,377,000 pounds, compared with 576,522,000 on October 31, 1952.

The decline in orange concentrate is due to a rise in consumption and a smaller Florida citrus crop. The high totals in vegetables reflect, in part, the constant rising demand for frozen foods. However some trade sources say the totals are uncomfortably high and strenuous promotions will be needed to move supplies.

FIVE BARRIERS SEEN TO SHARP DECLINE

Five reasons why there will be no sharp decline in business were offered to the U.S. Savings and Loan League by Roy W. Larsen, head of its committee on trends and economic policies.

They are: less than expected declines of government expenditures; more purchasing power resulting from tax reductions; relatively easy-money conditions; vigorous action by business to stimulate demand and sales, and the large volume of accumulated savings.

AUTO EARTH PAYMENTS NEARING $70 MILLION

Life insurance companies this year will pay out $70,000,000 in claims arising from auto accident deaths, according to estimates of the Life Insurance Institute. The number of claims this year will probably reach 40,000, the Institute says.

Another Year, Another Candle

Inefficient Businesses First To Fall By The Wayside

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., — Panicky readers disturbed by the increasing number of business failures have asked me if business conditions are not likely to take a sharp drop by 1954. Here is what I think.

BANKRUPTCIES HAVE INCREASED

The months to come will separate the men from the boys in business. Right now, when we are supposed to be booming along, companies are dying at the rate of 700 a month. The approximately 7,500 business failures since the first of the year have involved dollar liabilities far in excess of any period since the depression.

Too many inefficient business operators have been swept to prosperity by the business currents of strong demand rather than by their own business acumen. I predict that many more of these would-be entrepreneurs will be severely squeezed unless they wake up, cut expenses, and get hard at work. In general, this will be good for our economy, which needs to eliminate those who have given the poorest service, the shoddiest products, and gone after the fast buck.

STUDY THESE FIGURES

Some of my critics say I am too pessimistic. They point out that 67 per cent of our homes are more than 20 years old, that there has been a tremendous shift from farm to suburbs, and that an entirely new way of living and lots of new wants have been created. They remind me that the number of children in our population has increased 65 per cent since 1940, and that we have 80 per cent more high-school graduates in our adult population since 1940 who presumably have much more highly developed wants than the non-high-school graduates. Some say such factors as these are dynamic enough to hold our economy high

Against the argument that we have more people with more education and with more discretionary buying power than ever before, are such realities as these: Through the early months of 1953, shoe production was about seven million pairs ahead of potential consumption, and the industry could easily have produced 35 per cent more shoes if they could have been sold. Or, take the automobile industry. At midyear, 47 per cent more cars had been turned out than in the same period in 1952. But sales rose only 33 per cent. Recent cutbacks and intensive selling have temporarily reduced this spread. But let us face the facts: The Government has cut defense programs; inventories have been stockpiling; industrial expansion has passed its peak; industrial building is on the decline. What is to happen to private building I will discuss later.

BETTER SELLING AND INVESTING ARE NEEDED

American business cannot stand still. It moves either forward or backward. To move forward, it must sell. When it stops selling, it dies. Sales have slumped because salesmen have become lazy and sales clerks indifferent. Lots of people still need lots of things but price levels may be too high. I believe the time has come for reappraisal of potential markets and profit margins. A spiritual rebirth by employers and wageworkers is needed. This may mean only "deluxe models" instead of "super-deluxe models"! It will mean much greater manufacturing efficiency, a cutback in material waste, and an increase in per-man output.

While we are learning to do these things we must expect a readjustment in business activity. Among those industries that will feel the pinch first are automobile, building, steel, and nonferrous metals. But while manufacturers are readjusting to peacetime demands there will be strong sustaining forces that will hold the economy strong, such as the tremendous developing demand of the World War II baby crop, a heavy supply of savings, and a credit base still capable of considerable expansion. The greatest hope of continued good business lies with the ten or more billion dollars likely to be spent for the defense of our large cities.

Around Capitol Square

N.C. Race For Senate Is Just Sideshow To Big Event

By LYNN NISBET

POLITICS — The casual observer of political conditions in North Carolina can see very little activity. The most commonly heard comment is that things are mighty dull.

Those who go to the trouble to dig below the surface and seek out a few nuggets from the general apathy have a different story to tell. Fact is, there have been few times in recent State history when there was any more practical political machinations than now.

The upcoming race for the United States Senate is the centerpiece of activity, but it is by no means the only item under consideration. Statewide races for the offices of State treasurer and commissioner of insurance are coming up, since incumbent appointees must go before the people for the final two years of the terms to which their predecessors had been elected.

Control of the next Congress is at stake, not so much in North Carolina as in the rest of the nation—but these other State races are bound to affect to some degree sentiment among Tarheel voters. More significant than control of the Congress is the makeup of the next North Carolina General Assembly. Technically, contests for legislative seats are purely local. In the aggregate they involve overall State opinion. Voters in Currituck county have no voice in electing legislators from Cherokee, but they have a definite stake in results of the Cherokee and Mecklenburg and Guilford elections.

It is entirely possible that a representative elected from the smallest county, or a Supreme Court Justice or Superior Court Judge might have more influence upon the activities of all North Carolinians than a Representative or a Senator in the Congress. For practical purposes of this discussion, however, the senatorial race is the most important, becuase it is the most publicized and the one in which it is apparent most money will be spent and most popular interest manifested.

ISSUE — The real stake involved in the senatorial campaign is not new. It has little relationship to the personalities of Senator Alton Lennon or ex-Governor Kerr Scott, who are expected to be the chief contenders for the Democratic nominations — which has been for a long time equivalent to election.

The basic contest is between ideas of governmental administration, that for lack of better designation are called "conservative" and "liberal." This contest has been going on for 50 years. In every election where a seat in the Senate was at stake the so-called conservatives have won, with possible exception of the 1932 race between Cameron Morrison and Robert Reynolds. In that instance both were rated as liberals and the question was of degree rather than basic principle.

In two instances the so-called liberal candidate for Governor won over the conservative. Those times were 1916 when Walter Bickett defeated E.L. Daughtridge and in 1948 when Kerr Scott defeated Charlie Johnson. Two or three other races resulted in nomination of middle-roaders as contrasted with extreme conservative or liberal candidates also in the race.

Rightly or wrongly, the general designation of the principals likely to be in the senate race next year rates Lennon as conservative and Scott as liberal. That common designation holds even though many liberals are doubtful of Scott and perhaps more conservatives question whether Lennon is fully acceptable.

By and large the line up is likely to be comparable to that in other campaigns when Bickett and Daughtridge, Morrison and Reynolds, Fountain and Ehringhaus, Hoey and McDonald, Johnson and Scott were pitted against each other. And in major phases it may more closely resemble the 1944 gubernatorial campaign between Ralph McDonald and Gregg Cherry. There are developing many similar elements. Whether they will produce similar results cannot be known until after the primary next May.

REVIEW — It will be remembered that in 1942 and 1943 it was generally understood that Gregg Cherry would run for Governor in 1944, and that Ralph McDonald —who had failed by relatively narrow margin to win the nomination in 1936—would try again. It is also remembered that many of the self-styled leaders in the conservative group were not satisfied with Cherry as a candidate.

Desperate efforts were made to get somebody else to enter the race. Judge Wilson Warlick of Newton, then on the Superior Court and now judge of the western district Federal Court, actually announced—and a short time later withdrew. When the showdown came the race was between Cherry and McDonald—and Cherry won by handsome margin. Oldtimers recall that was one campaign in which money was no problem. Nobody will ever know how much was spent. The actual spending was probably far below what many people thought and certainly below the amount that would have been available if it had been required to nominate Cherry. Regardless of morals or laws, the fact is that the people who put up money to finance gubernatorial campaigns were not going to have McDonald.

The conditions are not exactly analogous now, but there is some kinship. In general terms Kerr Scott represents the element that backed Fountain in 1932 and McDonald in 1936 and 1944, and Graham for the Senate in 1950. Lennon more nearly represents the element that backed Ehringhaus and Cherry and Smith. The lines are not clearly drawn, but they are forming more or less according to traditional practice in North Carolina politics. As the campaign progresses and primary day draws nearer the cleavage may widen. On the other hand, of course, it may be narrowed. Because actually the point of division is vague and hard to define.

To what extent the senatorial race will influence other contests or how much national and local issues will affect the senatorial scrap cannot be determined at this date. The one certain thing is that North Carolina is in for a humdinger of a political campaign between now and next May.

Dress Up, Share The Spotlight

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Does your wife take the spotlight away from you at a social gathering, mister?

If she does, it maybe isn't because she's wittier, prettier, or plays the zither better.

"It's probably because the wife dresses up — and the husband dresses down," said Stanley Goldman, a style expert.

"The American husband has to wake up and dress up —and take his share of the spotlight. The single man today is better dressed because he is still on the . . .well . . .on the market. The married man is too inclined to say, Oh, why dress up? My wife will take me as I am'."

Goldman feels this is all wrong.

"The American man never was more conscious of his figure than today, and never was in better shape," he said. "He is getting taller and less portly all the time and there is no reason why he has to look sloppy."

It is the average man's summertime uniform—moccasins, unpressed slacks, and three-year-old sport shirts—that depresses Goldman most.

"Men are getting too casual in their dress," he observed. "The ordinary husband buys only seven eighths of a suit a year, but a white collar worker needs at least two new suits a year to look presentable on the job."

Goldman, style director for Eagle Clothes, is a student of geographical differences in men's clothing, and can tell what part of the country a stranger comes from by glancing at his suit.

"In the East they want a slim, trim look with natural shoulders, slightly squared, and the big color right now is charcoal gray," he said.

"In the south they go for a suit with patch pockets, and the favorite color is tan. In Chicago a suit with square patch pockets and a fish mouth lapel is tops.

"On the West Coast they want to look bigger, baggier and shaggier."

A New York style generally takes about six months to dazzle Chicago, a year to overawe the South, and two full years to invade and conquer the West Coast.

"Nobody really can tell the West Coast what to do," remarked Goldman wryly.

These varying regional tastes make the men's clothing industry something like a roulette game. Each season you have to guess the right number.

Since Goldman is such a stout advocate of having the husband dip deeper into the family clothing budget, I asked him if he favored men wearing mink.

"It's been tried," he said. "But mink shrinks when blended with wool and doesn't wear well enough. But wool and beaver overcoats for men are working out well."

Goldman was wearing a narrow necktie and a slim trim dark gray suit. I was inhabiting at the moment my favorite bigger, baggier, and shaggier tweeds.

"Can you guess the price of a suit by looking at it?" I asked him.

"Yes."

"How much did I pay for mine?"

"Sixty dollars — give or take five," he said immediately. I felt crestfallen. The suit had set me back exactly $65.

"What do you think of it?" I asked.

"To change the subject," said Goldman, "there is no reason why the American husband has to dress in a sloppy manner."

Is that a way to change a subject?

Off The Partisan War Front

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—In accord with his expressed wish, President Eisenhower has already taken initial steps to transfer the problem of Red spies in Government from the field of partisan and acrimonious politics into constructive action and legislation. He has been alarmed at accumulating evidence of the sieve-like nature of the nation's security system against foreign and internal enemies.

Although the fact has been hidden by the fireworks generated by the Truman-Brownell clash over retention of Harry Dexter White in a sensitive post, the most devastating discovery is the ease with which the Perlo and Silvermaster espionage rings operated at Washington for almost 20 years. It casts doubt on the protective devices relied upon by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Military Intelligence Staffs.

LEAKS HELPED RUSSIA—In the opinion of Pentagon, State and Atomic Energy Commission experts, Russia would not today embody the threat it does to the Western world if it had not been for the leaks in our own iron curtain.

With respect to certain categories of atomic weapons, jet bombers and guided missiles, they believe that Moscow would be at least five years behind the democratic powers if our secrets had not been passed on to Soviet scientists and designers. Indeed, there are those who contend that China would not be a Russian puppet today if pro-Moscow elements had not influenced the Truman Administration to withdraw aid from Chiang Kai-shek in the critical postwar years.

NEED FOR STRONGER SECURITY—Stalin would not have learned of Nationalist China's imminent economic collapse, if Harry Dexter White had not slipped this confidential information to the conspiracy for which Whittaker Chambers and Elizabeth Bentley acted as couriers.

In reviewing this tragic chapter in too recent history, Eisenhower, Secretary Dulles and Secretary Wilson recognize the need for strengthening our security defenses. They have named a top-level group to study the problem—so top-level that its identity cannot be revealed until it submits a report to the White House for submission to and action by Congress.

LATE REVELATIONS—Despite the neglected Chambers report to former Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle Jr. in 1939, the FBI had not valid "leads" on the Washington network of subversives until Miss Bentley walked into its New York office on November 8, 1945. This was three months after the Japanese surrender, when it was too late to repair the damage that had been done.

Although the FBI did a prompt and thorough follow-up on her data, as its seven warnings against White and 20 others to Truman indicate, it was not until six and seven years later that anybody was convicted for their crimes. And even now, although more than 80 espionage agents were known and identified, only two have been convicted—Alger Hiss and William Remington. Both were caught, however, only on the relatively minor counts of perjury.

A third pro-Russian participant—Judith Coplon—was found guilty. But the verdict was set aside because the Government presented evidence which the FBI had obtained by listening in on her telephone talks with her lawyer.

SMALL HAUL—That is an exceedingly small haul in view of the sinister impact which the enemy spies' operations had on world history and American security. But the White House alarm is inspired by the fact that not a single protective door was closed until after our military, atomic and diplomatic secrets had been stolen and forwarded to the Kremlin.

These same considerations apply to British and Canadian defenses against internal threats. It was belated evidence obtained here which resulted in exposure of England's atomic expert, Dr. Alan Nunn May. It was only because a Russian code clerk, Igor Gouzenko, deserted the Soviet cause that Ottawa was alerted.

Thus, it may be said that these vast espionage rings were discovered only by accident and good luck.

NEW LEGISLATION REQUIRED—As insurance against repetition, the Administration will ask Congress for new legislation (1) to permit wire-tapping when national defense is involved, and (2) to remove the protection given witnesses by the Fifth Amendment. But these are only a few of the vast reforms planned by the White House.

Worth Noting

CAPITAL EXPENDITURES 'PLAYED BY EAR"

Big business is not always as smart as it gets credit for being.

Dr. Joel Dean, professor of business economics, Columbia University examined the capital expenditure policies and procedures of fifty well managed companies and found there was less scientific control and less skilled analysis than in any other important area of management.

"To a distressing extent, top management is forced to play by ear," Dr. Dean told an American Management Association conference. "It must rely on intuition to penetrate the persuasiveness, personal charm and smoke screens of technical terms and get at the real investment worth of a project."

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 30, 1923

Thanksgiving is always a day looked forward to at East Carolina Teachers College. Everything is done to make it a happy holidays for the students and there is no time for them to become homesick. This year the festivities were up to the high standard set by the preceding years. Immediately after breakfast a Y.W.C.A. service was held, which was led by R. C. Deal. At 11.30 the basketball game between the first and second year normal classes was called. The festivities of the day reached their climax at the dinner. The girls were allowed to sit according to classes in the dining hall. All the tables were beautifully decorated in colors of the classes. Miss Augusta Woodward, president of the student government, was toastmistress. The school orchestra played while the girls were entering and at intervals throughout the meal. In the afternoon the students attended the moving picture show at White's theater.

Bride of The Fall Complimented at Tea

Mrs. Spruill Spain and Miss Sudie May Spain received from four to six o'clock Friday afternoon at a tea at their home on East Fifth Street, honoring Mrs. Robert Spruill Spain of Chapel Hill, a fall bride.

Mrs. Howard Porter greeted the guests in the hall, where lavender chrysanthemums predomniated in the decorations.

Mrs. J.H.B. Moore introduced the callers to Mrs. Spain, who received in the living room amidst decorations of red rose, pyracantha berries and magnolia leaves. An effective arrangement of berries was used on one end of the mantel with two candles at the opposite end. Receiving with Mrs. Spain, Miss Spain and the honor guest was Mrs. Roy L. Yelverton of Raleigh, mother of the bride.

Mrs. John G. Clark invited the callers to the dining room. The table was covered with a linen cloth of cut work and lace and centered with a large bowl of white pom-pon chrysanthemums, white carnations and fern. A five branched silver candelabra with white tapers graced one end of the table. The flower arrangement was repeated on the side table.

Mrs. J. E. Winslow and Mrs. Howard McGinnis alternated to preside at the tea table. They were assisted by Mrs. Clay Stroud Jr. of Ayden and Mrs. Plato Evans. Also assisting in serving chicken salad puffs, party sandwiches, cakes, mints and salted nuts were Misses Barbara White, Nancy Proctor, Janice Ormond, Frances Spain and Trissie Holt of New Jersey.

Forming a second receiving line in the living room were Mrs. H. H. Settle, Mrs. H. M. Holliday of Wilson and Mrs. C. R. Henshaw of High Point.

Mrs. Jack Spain directed the way to the den and Mrs. E. E. Rawl Sr. invited guests to the register. The table on which the register was placed had as its only decoration a "Horn of Plenty," overflowing with a colorful assortment of fruit and vegetables. A console table held a vase of yellow flowers.

Goodbyes were said to Dr. Kathleen Stokes and Mrs. D. H. Conley.

Ask Law Changed On Wire-Tapping

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration is asking congress to change the law on wire-tapping. The reason: to help the government bring alleged spies to trial.

Congress does not return until January. But already there is argument on the rightness or wrongness of the administration's request, made by Atty. Gen. Brownell.

This is the background:

There is a federal law on wire-tapping, passed by Congress in 1934, which says "no person, not being authorized by the sender, shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person."

Key word in the sentence is "and." The sentence says wires can't be tapped—and—the information made public, such as in a federal court trial of the person whose wire has been tapped.

The law has nothing to do with state or city statutes on wire tapping, so what is said here applies to federal courts.

The Supreme Court, in a couple of decisions, has ruled:

1. Wiretap information can't be used in court to convict anyone.

2. Even if the government uses wire taps only for leads in gathering further information, this information can't be used in court to convict anyone.

But one attorney general after another including Brownell, has interpreted the law as permitting wiretapping by the government even though the wiretap information cannot later be used at a trial.

For that reason, the FBI has tapped wires of alleged spies and, perhaps, others. Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers has frankly said the government has been tapping wires at least since 1940.

It is hardly a secret that the FBI tapped wires of some of the government employes alleged to have been spying for Russia, during the Roosevelt-Truman administrations. But the law prohibits using this kind of information in court.

The Eisenhower administration is asking Congress to change the law just a bit. That is, not only to permit the FBI to continue tapping wires but to allow use of such evidence in court in cases involving national security.

National security is a wide term and might in the future turn out to mean much more than espionage, although spies may be all the Eisenhower administration has in mind now.

And, under the change asked by Brownell the kind of information which could be used in a trial would be obtained only when the attorney general, Brownell or a

Some people, concerned about this addition to federal power, oppose the proposed change on the grounds that:

1. This is just one more step toward widening the authority of the federal government to intrude in any individual's privacy.

2. It may result in abuses. For example: hurting an innocent person by making public his conversation on a tapped phone with a man he considered a friend or acquaintance, never realizing he was a spy.

But it seems clear that, whether or not the government ever gets congressional permission to use wiretapped information in court, it will continue under the present law to tap wires where it thinks necessary.

Corporation Tax Payments Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sharp drop in corporation tax payments is holding federal revenue collections below last year's rate, Internal Service figures showed today.

The service said corporation income taxes amounted to $1,767,000,000 in September, compared with $2,442,000,000 in September 1952.

This brought total corporate payments to $2,744,000,000 since the fiscal year began July 1 — about one billion dollars below the like period last year.

Individual income and employment taxes—the biggest item in government income — were up slightly in September, $2,032,000,000 as against $1,970,000,000 in September 1952.

That made personal income payments $8,764,000,000 from July through September, 663 million dollars above last year's rate.

But collections from all sources in September, the service said, slipped to $4,335,000,000 from $5,278,000,000 in September 1952, and the July-September total of $13,874,000,000 was 645 millions below last year.

Aircraft Leader Says Long-Range Policy Is Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dewitt C. Ramsey, president of the Aircraft Industries Assn., says the time has come for a clear-cut, long-range national policy on air power.

Writing in the association's publication Planes, Ramsey said yesterday military aircraft output is now at a peak of 1,000 planes a month. But he said a downward trend is likely beginning next year and builders are worried about the future.

"In view of the history of chaotic demobilizations which have followed previous expansions of the aircraft industry," he said, "it would seem apparent today that action is long overdue in establishing a long-range aircraft procurement program which would insure a sound production base for future emergencies."

Ickes' Secret Diary Tells Objections To 'New Deal'

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold L. Ickes, who seemed never to hold his tongue for any man while he lived, has come up with some tart opinions of the New Deal and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The "Old Curmudgeon" found the New Deal, of which he was a moving spirit, spendthrift with the taxpayers' money and headed by a man he felt he couldn't trust.

Roosevelt's secretary of the interior wrote in 1936 that he had been "sold down the river" by the President.

Ickes regretted, in fact, that he hadn't walked out of Roosevelt's Cabinet a year before.

He felt there was a "very real chance" he could have been nominated by the Republicans to run against Roosevelt. And he thought that, if nominated, he probably would have won.

These opinions — sharply challenged by onetime Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley, among others—came to light in "The Secret Diary of Harold L. Ickes," of which a first, 705-page installment will be published tomorrow (Simon & Schuster, $6).

Ickes reveals that, for all his misgivings about Roosevelt, the President's wife and chief aides, and in spite of his own secret presidential hopes, he stayed on as a New Deal stalwart because he feared the Republicans would deliver the country to big business if they got the chance.

Ickes died early last year and the six-million-word diary he kept under lock and key is only now being released piecemeal by his widow—censored, at that, to spare the feelings of the living from some of Ickes' more sulphurous comments.

This day-by-day record pictures the first four years of the New Deal as dominated to a large extent by struggles for power among such officials as the late Harry L. Hopkins and the then secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau Jr., and, swinging lustily in the midst of all this, Ickes himself.

One surprise: Ickes says then Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace Jr., later much criticized for overfriendliness toward Russia, strongly opposed United States recognition of the Soviet Union early in the first Roosevelt administration.

It was after Roosevelt did not back him in an expansion of the Interior Department, to take in all conservation activities, that Ickes lamented he had been "double-crossed."

He quoted Rep. Dempsey (D-NM) as saying it would have been hard to impeach the late Sen. Huey Long (D-La) for calling the President a liar since Long might well have proved it. And he goes on:

"It is pretty tough when things like this can be said about the President of the United States and when members of his own official family and his own party in Congress feel that he cannot be relied upon."

As for Mrs. Roosevelt, Ickes complained bitterly that she kept meddling in government affairs—especially his. He accused her, along with Hopkins, who ran the Works Progress Administration (WPA), of spending money "like drunken sailors."

When asked, Mrs. Roosevelt declined comment on the book.

In one sarcastic passage Ickes wrote that soon he would expect the First Lady's young grandchildren, Sistie and Buzzie Dall, to be issuing orders to his staff.

"Fortunately," he grumbled, "they can't write yet."

It was after a run-in wih Roosevelt that Ickes wrote he'd been approached, in 1935, with the idea of quitting the Cabinet and going after the GOP nomination.

"I would have had as good a chance as anybody else," he wrote. "Of course I know in my heart I would not have been nominated because I would not have made the terms necessary to secure the support that I would have needed. But . . . if I had been nominated, in all probability I could have won in November with the situation standing as it does today."

That was the year Roosevelt carried every state except Maine and Vermont.

Ickes later reported he had some support for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940. In New York, commenting on the diary, Farley said the idea Ickes could have been nominated by either party at any time was the silliest thing he ever heard.

Indignant About 'Coercion' Claim

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP)—A Richmond grandmother said last night she wrote one of the letters rejected by balky American prisoners of the Korean War because they charged the letters amounted to "coercion."

"What a nerve!" said Mrs. Edna Storeby, a former schoolteacher. "If they call my letter 'coercion,' what do they call what the Reds have been doing."

Mrs. Storeby said she wrote to Sgt. Andrew Fortuna of Ionia, Mich., because "I just wanted to tell him that the Communists are selling a pack of lies."

"I wrote about everything from the Michigan State football team to the advantages of living in America.

"I talked like a mother. I wrote what they could expect living under the Communists. I advised them to pray and ask for guidance and strength to reach the right decision—to come home."

"Is that coercion?"

The actress, the "Champagne Girl" of a generation ago, spent the day quietly with visiting friends. She was on the stage for 50 years before her retirement in 1939. She came out of retirement for a stint on the stage during World War II.

Once the toast of New York, London, Paris and Budapest, Miss Friganza lives at Flintridge Academy of the Sacred Heart, a Catholic convent school in the hills overlooking Pasadena. A victim of arthritis, she is confined to bed and a wheelchair.

Scalding Bath Is Fatal For Man

CLEVELAND (AP)—Frank Zonar, 78, died last night after a scalding bath at Warrensville workhouse.

Sgt. John Leitch said Zonar was placed in a bathtub by a male nurse, who returned about 45 minutes later to find the hot water running. Zonar was dazed but still conscious. The submerged part of his body was reddened by the hot water. Leitch said he was dead on arrival at city hospital.

Zonar had completed a three-month term for vagrancy April 6 but was allowed to stay on because he had no other place to go.

Sports Time-Out with Jimmy Ellis

The Carolina loss to Duke Saturday must have been especially disappointing to Ayden's Teedie Bullock.

Teedie had been mentioned as a starter at quarterback for the game. He had come through with a brilliant performance against Virginia the week before and had every right to expect to start Saturday.

Marshall Newman started, however, and Teedie cooled his heels on the bench until the four minute mark in the first period. He got his chance then and directed the Tar Heels on their first sustained drive of the game. A fumble ended the march, however, and Bullock was jerked. He never got back into the contest.

Newman did a creditable job against Duke but he had very little chance to much more than get rid of the ball because of the hard-charging Duke forward wall. Bobby Burrows, Ed Meadows, and Howard Pitt led the line play. Burrows was especially outstanding in the rugged play in the middle of the line while Meadows always managed to make the big plays.

The game was a good one. Neither team never let up at all and the play was especially rugged at times. The line play was pretty good on both sides but there were occasional lapses of defensive ability.

Jerry Barger played almost all of the game at quarterback for Duke. Worth Lutz was used sparingly. Barger looked very good throughout the game we still like Dick Cherry. Barger just does not have that Cherry touch at the quarterback post.

The decisive victory scored by Florida State over N. C. State really put the curtain down hard on the Wolfpack. There was some hope that State might come through in the game and break their losing streak but the Seminoles started too fast, ran too far, and slapped State too many times for the Wolfpack to do much of anything.

Guess State is happy to see basketball season rolling around.

Notre Dame's easy victory over Southern California might cost Maryland the number one ranking in the weekly football poll. The Terps did not play Saturday because they have already completed their season.

Jim Tatum's crew climbed into the number one spot a week ago when Notre Dame slipped up and got tied by Iowa. The Terps had waited all season to move into the position and finally did it with a 21-0 win over Alabama in the final game of the season.

The Notre Dame Legend and the strength of the Midwest sports reporters corps could very easily put the Irish back in first place. So far as we are concerned, either team is a good choice but we would to stick with the unbeaten and untied team as the best in the nation.

The curtain goes up on local basketball tomorrow night. Pitt County Conference teams swing into play. Greenville High School's Phantoms take on Wilson in the high school gym and East Carolina's Pirates travel to Belmont Abbey.

The most difficult job of the evening seems to belong to the Pirates. Belmont Abbey opened its season Saturday night with a one-point victory over Lenoir-Rhyne's highly-rated Bears. The Abbey figures on going big-time with their basketball and have a host of good players to back up their desires.

The Pirates figure to be a little stronger than they were last year despite the loss of Sonny Russell. The reserves should be more highly-developed than they were a year ago, giving the team a greater balance.

Don Harris still figures as the replacement for Russell. The freshman from Laurinburg has been scrapping tooth and nail with senior Paul Jones for the job and it looks as if Jones will have to go back to his old job as trouble-shooter for the team. Jones has never been able to consistently hang onto a first-team job but he is the best second-team player in the state.

The Pirates got a bit of blow over the weekend when forward Fred Anders dropped from the squad. Anders had trouble adjusting himself to the pace of classroom requirements and didn't pass enough hours to remain eligible for the team. The 6-2 freshman from Durham was rated rather highly by the Pirates and was figured as a substitute for Charlie Huffman at forward. Johnny Rice will probably be brought up from the freshman team to replace Anders on the Varsity roster.

At the high school tomorrow night, the injury-riddled Phantoms will be taking on a team that got riddled by graduation last spring. Wilson's Cyclones lost several of their outstanding players including All-State forward Foy Singleton.

Coach Bo Farley of the Phantoms is figuring on a tight defense to pull the Phantoms through the year. Injuries have made the G-men shallow in the reserve department and limited practice time has not given the Phantoms the best opportunities for improving their shooting.

Policeman Wins

WILSON, N. C. (AP) — Lawrence Cook of Wrightsville Beach is the North Carolina Amateur golf champion.

Cook a policeman who plays cross-handed, defeated John Frazier of Salisbury, 7 and 6, yesterday in the finals played over the Wilson Country Club course.

Frazier, a former jet pilot in Korea and student at the University of North Carolina, had trouble with his second shots. Cook played steady golf.

The Syracuse—Colgate football battle on Nov. 14 will be the 54th game between these two old New York rivals.

Phants Open Season Tuesday With Cycs

Opening Contest To Be Played In GHS Gymnasium

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville High School's basketball Phantoms will open their 1953-1954 season here tomorrow night against the Wilson Cyclones.

The Cyclones, members of the Eastern AAA Conference, are pregame favorites in the contest. They defeated the Phantoms in non-conference battles between the teams last year.

The Phantoms have had only two weeks of organized practice and even that has not been at full strength because of a series of injuries. The G-men figure to go into the game with some of the rough spots still showing and a definite lack of reserve strength.

Defensive Work

Coach Bo Farley has been working more recently with the team on individual defense. Farley explains the maneuvers by saying, "We won't be a high scoring team and our defense will have to improve enough to hold the scoring down."

About the team's chances for the new season, Coach Farley stated, "Injuries and sickness have hurt us already but if we can get all the boys out soon I think we could have a pretty fair season.

"Our play will have to be team play entirely. We don't have any one outstanding scorer. Our scoring will be well-balanced among the squad members. That boy Edwards (Harold Edwards, center) has shown potentiality but we can't tell yet what he'll do in a game.

"Lack of reserve strength will hurt us, too, unless someone comes around in practice."

Starting Team

With the limited practice time and the injury of Edgar Moore, Farley has had little opportunity to think about a starting line-up. Right now, it seems as if Bob Howell, a 6-1 junior, has one forward post sewed up unless Farley sees fit to transfer him to the guard position vacated by Moore. Harold Edwards is a fixture at center and George Sideris has locks on one of the guard posts with set-shot artist Tommy Saleed leading the race for the other. A battle-royal between Bobby Starkey and Walter Perkins is being staged for the second forward position.

The G-men remember their two drubbings at the hands of the Cyclones last year and are eager to gain revenge. This could be the time to do it since the Cyclone teams of the past few years were all but wrecked by graduation last year.

Rules Clinic

The annual Northeastern Officials Booking Office clinic for basketball officials and coaches will be held today in the East Carolina College gymnasium. The clinic will start at 4 p.m.

The first session of the clinic will include a discussion of rules and rules changes and the presentation of an approved movie on officiating. The evening session, scheduled to start at 8 o'clock, will include a practice game by the East Carolina College team to demonstrate mechanics and rules.

This clinic is the first of two scheduled for the East Carolina gym. On December 10, there will be a clinic for women's basketball conducted by representatives of WCUNC and the Greensboro public schools. That clinic will be sponsored by the college.

Today's clinic will be under the direction of Walter Jones, head of the Northeastern Officials Booking Office.

17 Games Launch Season For North State Conference

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seventeen games get the North State Conference basketball season off with a bank this week.

East Carolina finished on top last year while High Point captured the conference tournament which will be held at Lexington Feb. 25-27 this season.

East Carolina is expected to pace the loop.

The week's schedule:

Tuesday—East Carolina at Belmont Abbey.

Wednesday—Guilford at Davidson, McCrary at Catawba, Milligan at Appalachian.

Thursday—High Point at Guilford, Belmont Abbey at Elon, Atlantic Christian vs. Norfolk Navy at Kinston, Western Carolina at American Enka.

Nothing But Memories Left Of 1953 College Football

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—There was nothing but memories of college football, 1953 version, today and despite the dark warnings of most of the coaches, the game was still in a healthy state.

Before the start of the season, the overwhelming majority of the mentors viewed the return to one-platoon rule with alarm—even despair. But the teams that everyone thought would stay on top stayed there and the teams that showed nothing before the campaign did just as expected.

In fact, a quick look at the four major New Year's Day bowls will attest to the lack of form reversal.

Here's how they line up:

Rose—Michigan State vs. UCLA.

Orange — Maryland vs. Oklahoma.

Cotton—Rice vs. Alabama.

Sugar—Georgia Tech vs. West Virginia.

Michigan State, in its freshman year in the Big Ten, was the favorite. True, it had its 28-game winning streak broken, but that was caused more by the law of averages than any changes in the rules. It finished in a tie with Illinois for the championship, but was voted the bowl bid by the athletic directors.

UCLA was the choice to win the Pacific Coast Conference title and win it did although it experienced some anxious moments.

Maryland was the favorite in the Atlantic Coast Conference as was Oklahoma in the Big Seven. Rice was one of the better teams in the Southwest loop according to pre-season reports and Alabama was tabbed as one of the top teams in the South.

Georgia Tech saw its 31-game defeatless skein go by the boards, at the hands of Notre Dame, but it still was a dominant power, and West Virginia was rated the Southern Conference top-notcher.

Notre Dame was rated No. 1 team in the country in the Associated Press preseason poll and stayed right there until tied by Iowa a week ago. Nor was that reversal the result of the switch to one-platoon. Notre Dame, in fact, was in a better position than most schools because many of its players, including backfield ace Johnny Lattner, performed on both offense and defense last year.

So the coaches' imagined troubles never did materialize. Generally, they were wary to try pass plays and about one-fifth less passing was seen this season.

After all the confusion revolving around the bowls, the Orange Bowl seems to have come up with the game of the day in Maryland, the only major undefeated and untied team in the country, and Oklahoma, whipped only by Notre Dame.

Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland watched the Sooners go through their last workout at the expense of the Oklahoma Aggies Saturday 42-7 and was impressed to say the least.

"Thank goodness we have a month to prepare for the Sooners," he said. "I hope we can hold up our end of the bargain."

But Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson was just as pessimistic.

"Tatum says he has the finest team he ever coached," he brooded. "If that is true then I don't see how we'll have much of a chance against him."

The Cotton Bowl opponents were not decided until the last moment. Rice finished in a tie with Texas for the Southwest Conference title by beating Baylor 41-19, but the Longhorns bowed out because the Owls had beaten them earlier in the year.

Alabama got the bid Saturday night by virtue of winning the Southeastern Conference title by beating Auburn 10-7, while Mississippi State was tieing Mississippi 7-7.

Army concluded its season with a 20-7 victory over Navy Saturday —its first victory over the Middies in four years.

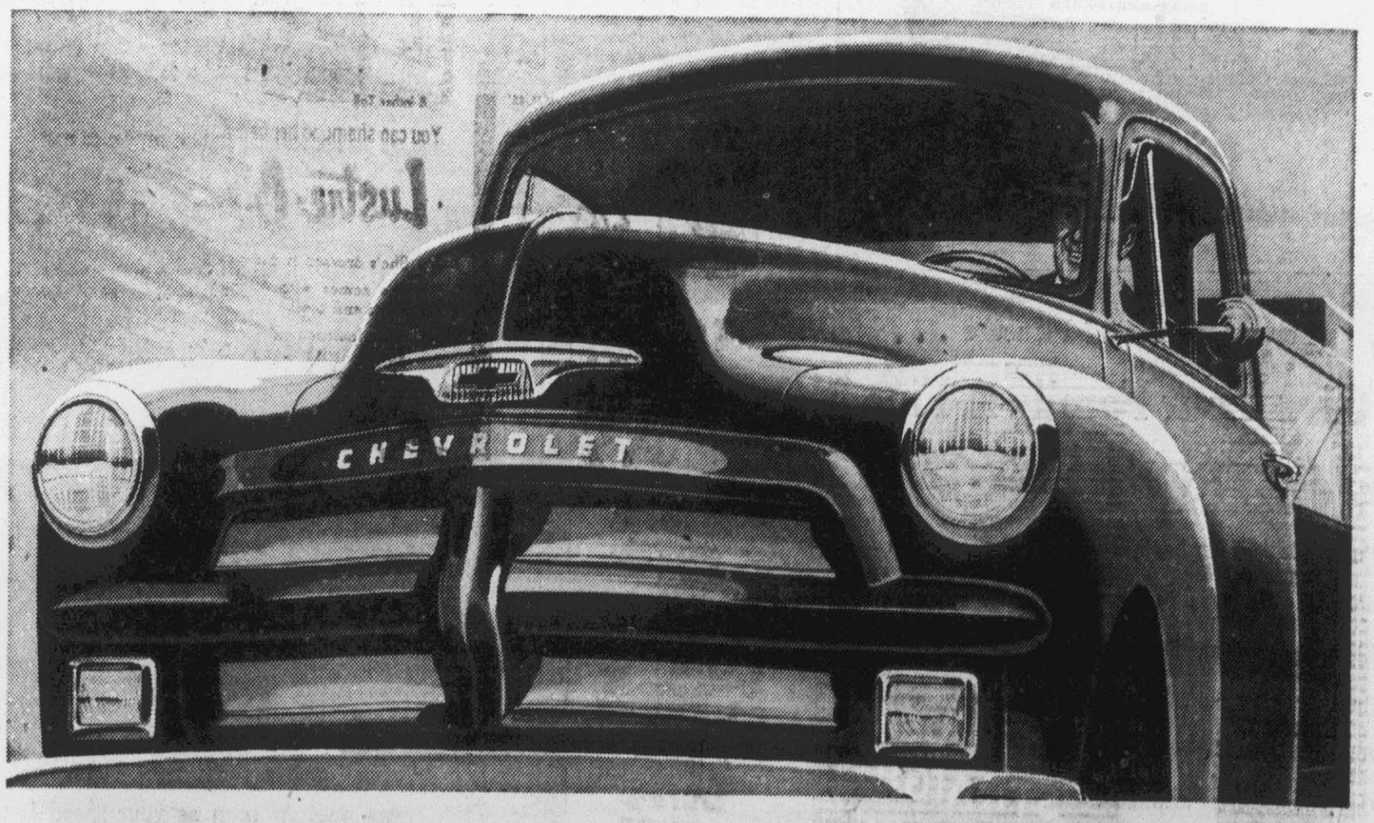

Georgia Tech turned back Georgia 28-12, Duke defeated North Carolina 35-20, Louisiana State outscored Tulane 32-13, Texas Christian was a 13-0 victor over Southern Methodist, Tennessee clubbed Vanderbilt 33-6, Villanova upset Fordham 20-13 and Boston College edged Holy Cross 6-0 in other major games.

Soldiers Set Up 5-Mile Pipeline

EDINA, Mo. (AP)—Weary soldiers today watched water gush from a five-mile pipeline they had built in 54 hours of round-the-clock labor to supply this drought-stricken town of 1,600.

"That's the most beautiful sight I've ever seen," exclaimed Mayor O. M. Gillaspy as water spurted from the six-inch pipe into the city's reservoir.

Lt. James Boyles, commander of a 156-man Army Engineer unit from Ft. Leonard Wood, said his men would keep the pumps going for two weeks, filling the reservoir from an 80-acre lake. Then the line will be dismantled.

Mayor Gillaspy appealed to the Army for help last week and promised the town would pay expenses if the Army Engineers would lay the line.

After Five Months In Jail Still Refuses Fine

CARLSBAD N. M. (AP)—A stubborn little woman with a firm belief in her own rights has finished her fifth month in a jail cell.

"And I'll stay here," says Mrs. Frances Supina, "until I get justice."

Mrs. Supina absolutely refuses to pay a $1,000 fine for contempt of court.

Her neighbors on swank Riverside drive here complained that she was renting a garage apartment in violation of a restrictive covenant in her deed. District Court ordered her to stop.

She refused, contending she was letting a displaced couple use the apartment in return for work and was charging no rent. A fine of $1,000 was levied for contempt.

Last July 6 she entered the county jail after refusing to pay.

A few days later seven friends came forward with the money. She again refused.

"Justice is what I want . . . to clear my name," she said.

Embarrassed local officials didn't know what to do. She has to stay in jail until the fine is paid or until the judge is overruled. Friends appealed to the governor.

Smiling grimly, Mrs. Supina promised that if he didn't act she'd take it to a higher court.

Mrs. Supina is 51 years old. She appears to be in good health, although she left jail for three weeks when she was hospitalized with a stomach ailment.

"When I first went to jail I weighed 138," she said, "but I'm now down to 114."

She complains that jail food doesn't agree with her and that she recently had a case of trench mouth.

"My time in jail has been well spent, though," she says.

"I'm rereading the Bible—and I'm getting quite an education talking to my fellow prisoners."

ABC Enforcers Blow Up A Still

Pitt County ABC officers destroyed a 100 gallon submarine type still Saturday night near Flat Swamp Church in Carolina township.

Officers used dynamite to blow up the still and 200 gallons of mash which was found at the site. The copper coil, cooling barrel, and doubler had been removed from the still, J.M. Ward, local ABC officer said.

The still was not in operation at the time it was destroyed by the officers, and no arrests were made. Taking part in the raid were ABC officers Ward, H.B. Lilley, Dick King, and Carolina township constable Tom Perkins.

Modern Music Is Not For King

NEW YORK (AP)—"Between you and me and the lamppost, I'm not very fond of modern music."

So confided King Paul of Greece yesterday to reporters after he and his queen, Frederika attended a concert of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at Carnegie Hall.

The concert program, the first attended by the couple on their current American tour, included two Ravels and opened with the American and Greek national anthems.

During World War II the U.S. armed services in the South Pacific conducted classes in pidgin English.

Hospital Group Offers Plan For Financing Medical Care

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—The North Carolina Hospital Study Committee has recommended a 19-point program designed to finance hospital care for low-income, non-wage groups and to improve hospital operation in the state.

The committee, headed by L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, also recommended the expansion of prepayment plans, and the merger of the state's two Blue Cross plans into a single statewide voluntary non-profit prepayment organization.

Such a merger, the committee said, would "achieve economies and make adequate prepaid protection available to the public at the lowest possible care.

The 35-member committee contended that improved state and regional planning is needed "to avoid unnecessary duplication of hospital services and to provide the various types of facilities required as a result of changing patterns of disease, the increasing number of aged, and the new medical knowledge."

The committee, comprised of leading citizens, was appointed two years ago by President Gordon Gray of the Consolidated University of North Carolina. Gray is chairman of the National Commission on Financing of Hospital Care.

Chiefly because of the State Medical Care Commission and the good health program, North Carolina is expected to have 13,025 general hospital beds by 1954 compared to 8,475 in 1944, the committee's report stated.

The committee said that charges to the public and to all agencies paying for hospital care should be directly related to the cost of providing the care given. It added that there should be a uniform base of charges for specific types of service regardless of the source of payment.

The report said that the cost of one gram of streptomycin varied among hospitals from 50 cents to $6. The largest number of hospitals charged $2. The price of basal metabolism tests also varied — from $3 to $10.

The report stated, "This extreme variation in charges bears little relation to the cost of providing such services." It said that hospitals balance charges for rooms and attendance, provided below cost, with higher charges for other services.

The committee suggested that prepayment be brought within reach of those families whose income is sufficient to enable them to meet daily expenses but who are unable to pay for all of their hospital care or for all of the prepayment charges.

More effective use of hospital personnel, more efficient discharge and admission policies for patients, and a study of financing nursing care also were recommended.

Polygamists To Face First Test In Courts Today

By JAMES CARY

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona's case against the Short Creek polygamists comes up for its first big test here today.

Twenty-seven of the 96 defendants will appear in Mohave County Superior Courtfor arraignment.

How they plead is expected to reflect the strength of the evidence against them. And it also may determine whether the charges will have to be fought to a final conclusion in the courts.

The 27 are all men. The state contends they are the guiding force in the polygamous movement that has dominated the remote community of Short Creek, astride the Arizona-Utah border, for more than 20 years.

If they plead guilty, cases against the other 69 defendants—7 men and 62 women—may be settled quickly. All have the same attorneys.

If they plead innocent, a long court fight is anticipated.

Two previous attempts to crush the polygamists, in 1936 and 1944, failed. Some of the cases were carried to the U. S. Supreme Court.

All of the accused are charged with conspiracy to commit the crimes of adultery, statutory rape, bigamy, open and notorious cohabitation, contributing to the delinquency of minors and marrying the spouse of another.

Arizona authorities maintain some of the men had as many as six wives.

The defendants were arrested in a predawn raid by a giant police force last July 26. Complaints had been prepared in advance, based on information obtained in a secret 26-month investigation.

The Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) Church long ago excommunicated the Short Cree[illegible] fundamentalists."

Find Stray Tot In Mud Puddle

PINE LEVEL, Ala. (AP) —Two-year-old John Cavlin McVey Jr., wandered away from home Saturday afternoon. More than 100 friends and neighbors helped sheriff's deputies in an all-night search.

Finally, near daybreak, the boy was found sitting in a mud puddle in a briar patch more than a mile from home. He suffered only from exposure.

Bongo Band Had To Make Noise

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Last Saturday night the gentle strains of Debussy, played by the San Antonio Symphony on the main floor of the city auditorium, were caught up in Latin rhythm beat out by a bongo band in the basement.

Dude Skiles, auditorium manager, was beseiged yesterday by irate symphony officials and by the dancers who had rented the basement. He planned to talk it over with City Manager Ralph Winton today.

Skiles asked the dance band to muffle its music but quoted musicians as saying they couldn't "ruin the band's reputation."

*Come In and See the Quaker Magic Lamp

...that shows how you may CUT YOUR FUEL BILL up to 50%!

SEE WHY YOU GET WORK-FREE, SMOKE-FREE AUTOMATIC HEAT WITH

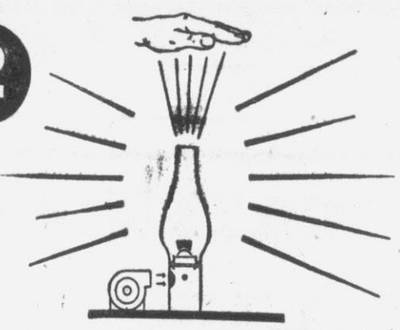

QUAKER HEATERS

1

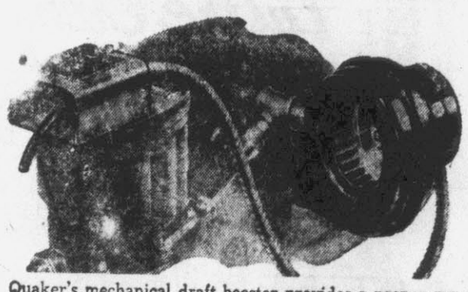

Just place your hand over the chimney of this lamp at high fire. Note how little heat you feel. Note how smoke and soot stain the palm of your hand. That proves that valuable fuel oil is being wasted because there isn't enough air (or draft) for proper combustion. This waste can occur with any heater that relies on its chimney alone to supply air to the fire.

2

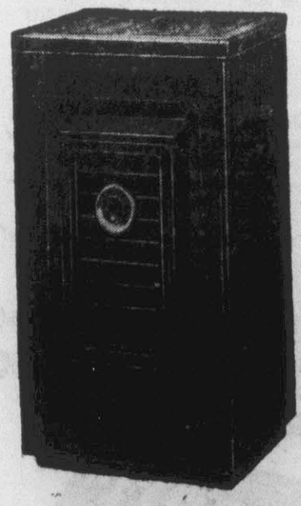

Now...without changing anything...just feed air to the flame as Quaker does with mechanical draft. Feel the surge of extra heat...too hot for your hand to stand. Note how the fuel-wasting smoke and soot have disappeared. Why? Because the fire no longer depends on the chimney alone for air. As a result of feeding air to the flame mechanically, you get a hotter, cleaner, fuel-saving fire.

Quaker's mechanical draft booster provides a proper supply of air for clean smoke-free fuel saving heat. See how it can save fuel for you.

Unexpected Kiss Rocked Kingdom

LONDON (AP) (AP) An unrehearsed television kiss tingled this old kingdom from end to end last night.

Beauteous Barbara Kelly, one of the panel members on the "What's My Line" program, was fascinated by the vast moustache of a man whose job she had to guess.

It was a handlebar model measuring 16½ inches from east to west, belonging to John Roy, 43-year-old artist.

"How do you manage to kiss your wife?" asked blonde Barbara.

"Like this —," said Roy, and before anyone could restrain him he demonstrated smack on Barbara's mouth. An estimated twelve million viewers got goose pimples.

"Uninhibited, unintended, unexpected, a spur-of-the-moment gesture," said a British Broadcasting Corp. spokesman.

"Good for the program," said Canadian Arthur Bernard Braden, Barbara's husband who was watching at home.

"Wait till I lay hands on that man," said Mrs. Roy in Glasgow.

Barbara's verdict: "It was nice."

'God And Country Award' For 2 Scouts

Above are Hugh Duncan and Angus Duff along with Dr. W. I. Wolverton, rector of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church. The two local Boy Scouts received "God and Country Awards" during services at the church yesterday morning. The award is the highest that a Scout can receive from an outside group and was the first of its kind ever made in Greenville. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor).

Two local Boy Scouts received "God and Country Awards," the highest award that a scout can receive from an outside group, during services at Saint Paul's Episcopal Church yesterday morning.

Hugh Duncan and Angus Duff, both of Greenville, were presented the awards by Dr. W. I. Wolverton, rector of the church.

The boys, both Eagle scouts, were the first local scouts ever to receive the "God and Country Award."

To receive the award, the scouts were required to perform a certain number of hours of leadership in Sunday School, hold office, and be of service in other ways to the church.

The award is a church award made available through the Boy Scouts of America and the work is done in the church in co-operation with the pastor. It is available to all denominations.

Both Hugh and Angus have been active in scout work and both are Eagle scouts.

Hugh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Duncan and Angus is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Duff.

Two Accidents During Weekend

One automobile accident Saturday night and another yesterday afternoon were investigated by the Greenville police department.

Cars driven by Roy C. Dail, 26, of 1313 Washington Street and James T. Smith, 25, of 1615 Woodlawn Ave. collided at the intersection of Eleventh and Washington Streets Sunday afternoon causing damage estimated by investigating officers at $1,000.

The car driven by Dail was going south on Washington Street, and the car driven by Smith was going east on Eleventh Street when the accident occurred. Damage to the left side of Smith's car was estimated by police at $700, and damage to Dail's car was estimated at $300. Charges of failure to yield right of way, and failure to keep a proper lookout, were lodged against Dail.

Cars driven by Bobby E. Smith, 17, of 1202 S. Evans Street and Joseph Bryant Stocks, 25, of Grimesland Route 1, collided about 7 o'clock Saturday night causing damage estimated at $100 to the car driven by Smith. Stocks was charged with failure to yield right of way.

Tugboat Made For Open Sea Without Crew

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 45-foot tugboat Pabco made a wild dash for the Golden Gate and the open sea yesterday—leaving its startled crew behind.

Tug operator Carl Holmes and his engineer had left the boat and were aboard a barge it had been towing. The barge was tied up to pier 37 and the Pabco was tied to the barge.

Then the adventuresome, 16-ton tugboat slipped its mooring line and, its rudder hard over, headed toward the Golden Gate. Holmes notified the Coast Guard and the cutter Calumet took off in hot pursuit.

Coast Guardsman Billy Thomas of Stockton, Calif., leaped from the cutter's deck to the tug and switched off its engine.

Local Man Robbed And Beaten In Elizabeth City

A Greenville contractor, M. D. Lewis of 822 College View Place, who was beaten and robbed following a wreck in Elizabeth City Friday night, is expected back in the city this afternoon, it was reported this morning.

According to Arthur Miller, who is in business with Lewis in the Miller and Lewis Construction Company, Lewis was only dazed by the beating. He is in Elizabeth City today for the hearing that was scheduled for Pasquotank Recorder's Court.

The two boys arrested and charged with beating and robbing Lewis were Manfred Smithson, 19, of the Burnt Mills section of Camden County, and Hobson D. Turner Jr., 21, of South Mills. They were arrested around three o'clock at the homes Saturday morning by Elizabeth City Police Chief W. C. Owens, Patrolman B. E. Gibbs, and State Highway Patrolman A. W. Andrews.

Warrants charged they did unlawfully, willingly and feloniously make an assault on M. D. Lewis and put him in bodily fear and danger of his life and then and there did violently seize and carry away $660 in U.S. currency and one check in the amount of $804 in or near a public street.

Lewis was enroute to Dare County to visit relatives when his car collided with the car driven by Turner in which Smithson was a passenger, officers said.

After the collision, police said, Turner and Smithson drove around a block and overtook Lewis, blocking him and forcing him to stop. They gave Lewis a severe beating in the face and on the head and body, using a flashlight and their fists, according to officers, and took his billfold containing the money and the check.

Then they drove away, leaving him on the street, police said. Nearby residents heard the commotion and phoned the police. Lewis was taken to the Police Station and to Albemarle Hospital for treatment, then released to continue his trip to Dare County.

Smithson and Turner claimed that they meant to take only enough money to cover damage to Turner's car and were going to send the balance to Lewis, however, car damage was slight.

Turner and Smithson were released after each posted $1000 bond. The hearing was scheduled for this morning.

Coroner Calls No Inquests In Deaths Of Two Pitt County Negro Infants

Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said this morning no inquests would be held into the deaths of two Negro children—one in Greenville and one in the Belvoir section—who were found dead in beds at their homes Saturday and Sunday.

The coroner ruled natural causes in the death of three-week-old James Arthur Flood, whose mother found him dead in bed at their home at 1907 McCullen Street in Greenville Saturday.

Rouse said Johnnie Lee Jr. four months old, who lived with his parents on the M. O. Blount farm about three miles north of Belvoir, apparently died in bed from suffocation on Sunday.

Wrong Steer

In Saturday's Reflector the address of the Home and Auto Supply, at which State auto licenses are on sale, was erroneously listed as on Evans Street near Five Points.

The correct address of the Home and Auto Supply is 110 West Fifth Street.

License plates will be on sale there from nine to four on week days and nine to 12 on Saturdays, according to Mrs. Maxine Reel, Carolina Motor Club agent.

High Rating For Reservists' Unit

At the annual inspection by North Carolina Military District Headquarters last week, the 3015th Reception Center in Greenville was given a "superior" rating. Headquarters of the local unit is at 106 Ficklen street.

Col. H. C. Settle, who made the inspection, said "the Greenville unit was one of the best" he had inspected this year, 1st Lt. Marvin Horton reported. The administrative, supply and training sections of the unit were inspected.

Regular activities continued during the inspection. 1st Lt. J. H. Moore spent an hour on "Organization and Function of Replacement Depot." M.-Sgt. George Johnson conducted a two-hour period on "Supply Procedure."
