Gouzenko Thinks Spies Still Active

WASHINGTON (AP)—Igor Gouzenko, whose testimony cracked a Soviet spy ring in Canada, says he thinks there may be hundreds of Red agents operating in the United States. And he recommended, in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U. S. News and World Report, made public today, that while for some of them to quit and come out with their documents. That is what Gouzenko himself did in 1945. He was then a code clerk in the Russian Embassy at Ottawa. He smuggled out documents which led to the cracking of an atomic espionage ring. Since that time, he and his wife and two children have been living quietly in Canada, under assumed names, and with government protection. The Senate internal security subcommittee is now arranging to interview Gouzenko in secret, in a search for leads in its search for subversion in the U. S. government. Gouzenko, asked to estimate how many Soviet agents might be working in the United States now, replied: "I think it might run into hundreds. As some indication, they spend several million dollars in telegrams alone." Many of these agents, he said, work through rings, perhaps with embassy contacts, and others are "agents resident (who) would work independently and have direct contact with Moscow by radio." He advocated a five-point program to encourage defections among Red agents. It would include (1) prompt U. S. or Canadian citizenship, (2) lifelong protection, (3) material security, (4) help in finding employment, and (5) formal acknowledgment "that his service... entitled him to all assistance and help." Gouzenko was asked to give his appraisal of the work of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee and for years a controversial figure because of his searches for Communists in government. "I think he is doing a good job," Gouzenko said, "but he would do a much better job, obviously, if he had documentary evidence. But in his job he is doing the right thing because he is bringing into the open many things which many people are trying to use as excuses and pretexts. "I think we should help to make his work better than it is." Gouzenko said he almost never heard the names, either in Ottawa or Moscow, of American agents who were supplying the Soviets with secret data. They were customarily referred to by "cover names," he said. He said the Soviet apparatus was "extremely efficient," and that he was sometimes surprised himself "when I saw in Ottawa how they brought by the suitcase the original documents and blueprints... from the National Research Council, from the Munitions Supply Office..." Gouzenko was interviewed by two U. S. News and World Report staff members in a Canadian city the magazine did not name.

Soviet Postponement Move Probably Acceptable

'Big 4' Meet Delay Likely

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and France are considering their reply to a Soviet proposal for postponement of a Big Four foreign ministers' conference amid signs they will agree to the delay and keep pressing for the meeting. The State Department indicated this is the U. S. attitude, even though it implied the Russians might be maneuvering to lessen the chances of France joining the European Defense Community (EDC). A British Foreign Office spokesman expressed confidence the three Western powers, which had proposed Jan. 4 for a meeting in Berlin, would accept the Russian counter suggestion that it be held Jan. 25 or later. French officials said only that the note Russia sent the three Saturday would have to be studied. But in Bonn yesterday Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, whose future would be high among the subjects discussed at any Big Four meeting, predicted the proposal would be accepted. And the Soviet note, a broadcast yesterday that could be a propaganda prelude to the conference, blasted away again at the Western plan for free all-German elections. Moscow radio, heard in London, aired an article from the official publication Izvestia saying "false but not free elections" is needed which the West says offers no guarantee of freedom in the East zone and gives the Communists undue influence. France deeply divided for and against ratification of the EDC treaty which would create a unified Western European army, faces the tough problem after Jan. 17, when its new President takes office. Any hope that talks with Russia might reduce international tension presumably would encourage French hesitation on EDC, which the Soviets strongly oppose. Against this background, the State Department commented Saturday that it seems "somewhat curious" that the Soviets now say more time is needed "for appropriate preparation." It pointed out that the Western invitation to the Soviet Union to join in a meeting has been outstanding since July. The Soviet note referred to the importance of assuring "proper conditions for participation in this conference for all the govern-ments." The State Department remarked, "the Soviet Union presumably has solicitude for other participating governments and assumes that it is better qualified than the governments of France the United Kingdom and the United States to decide what best suits their own interests." Diplomats read in this wording a message to Frenchmen: You know better than Russia what your own interests are.

Neutral Board Returns Issue To Opposing Sides POW Disposal Unresolved

BY WILLIAM C. BARNARD PANMUNJON (AP)—A three-member majority of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission today turned back to the U. N. and Communist commands the question of what to do with more than 22,000 war prisoners who have refused to go home. An Indian command spokesman said that if the two commands reach no agreement by Jan. 22 "we do not appear to have any legal right to hold them (the prisoners)." The majority report was signed by the Indian chairman and by Czechoslovakia and Poland. Switzerland and Sweden filed a minority report saying it was "appropriate" to refer the prisoner problem back to the two commands. But the Swiss and Swedes said they could see no reason for a formal report at this time. They refused to sign the 44-page majority document which also charged South Korean interference in anti-Communist compounds and criticized the U. N. Command. Official sources said there was little prospect that the majority report would lead to settlement of the bitter prisoner dispute. The Allies held that the armistice provides specifically that unrepatriated prisoners be freed as civilians 90 days after the close of a 90-day period for explanations. That would mean the prisoners must be freed Jan. 22. The Communists just as firmly contend that they are entitled to 90 days of actual explanations rather than a 90-day period which ended Dec. 28. They have used 10 days. The Reds also insist that the prisoners remain in custody pending action by the peace conference, regardless of when a conference is convened. In addition to turning the prisoner question back to the two commands, the majority report said: 1. A secret South Korean headquarters in Seoul reached into all 56 compounds of the South camp holding anti-Communist Koreans and Chinese and exercised a powerful influence over the prisoners. 2. South camp compound leaders used "coercive methods" and "acts of violence were committed against prisoners wanting to go home." 3. The commission could "find no evidence" of such a similar organization in the North camp housing Americans, South Koreans and one Briton—although prisoners there seemed "under strong discipline." 4. The commission could not say that even the prisoners who went through the explanation tents were "freely" freed of forces or threats of force.

Yuletide Traffic Toll Reaches 495

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Christmas holiday deaths took a total of 481 lives but dwindled in the final hours of the three-day weekend to lessen possibilities of new records. Leading the death parade for the 78-hour weekend beginning Thursday at 6 p. m. and ending Sunday at midnight were 495 traffic fatalities. Another 76 persons died in fires. Miscellaneous accidents caused 110 deaths. Related reports were expected to swell the figures and the 510 traffic deaths estimated by the National Safety Council remained within possibility. By early Sunday the traffic toll was moving at a rate of seven deaths an hour and experts believed the final figure would exceed the three-day record of 545 deaths set in 1950 and possibly that of 1952 when 558 traffic deaths resulted in a four-day period. A pre-holiday survey by the Associated Press for a 78-hour period including a weekend listed 310 deaths on the streets and highways 33 by fire and 89 miscellaneous. The toll by states (traffic fire, miscellaneous): North Carolina 30 2 7; South Carolina 4 2 1.

More Accidents Add To County's Holiday Total

Two cars collided on N. C. 11 Saturday about three miles south of Greenville, totally demolishing one vehicle and doing an estimated $500 damage to the second car. Patrolman James W. Boykin, who investigated the accident, said that a car driven by Ernest J. Clemons, Negro, of 51 DuPont Place, Bridgeport, Conn., sideswiped an auto operated by Carroll G. Alexander of Bethel. According to Boykin's report, Clemons was traveling south on N.C. 11 and Alexander had stopped at a stop sign on a dirt road coming into the highway. Clemons, who said he was unfamiliar with the road, lost control of the vehicle, sideswiped Alexander's car and skidded 153 feet before turning over. Clemons' car was a total loss and $500 damage was done to Alexander's car. No personal injuries were reported and Clemons was charged with careless and reckless driving. Also on Saturday a car driven by Miss Janet Worthington of Winterville crashed into the rear of a car operated by Charlie Moyer of Route 1, Ayden. Patrolman W. W. Joyner, who investigated, said that both cars were traveling east on a rural road, one block from N.C. 11. Damage to Miss Worthington's auto was estimated by Joyner at $500 and to Moyer's at $150. No arrests have been made pending completion of the investigation. At 10:30 Monday morning a car operated by John D. Messick was struck by a pickup truck driven by John Floyd King of Route 2, Farmville, on the Stantonsburg road. Patrolman Joyner said that the truck made a left turn as Messick's car was passing him. Damage to Messick's car was estimated at $700 and to the pickup truck at $500. King was charged with failing to give a hand signal. Funeral services for Miss Lois Correll, who died of a heart attack following an automobile accident in Pitt County Christmas Day, were held Sunday in Lexington, Virginia. Miss Correll's name was spelled "Correll" in Saturday's Reflector.

Party Leaders Of Senate Map Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican and Democratic party leaders of the Senate arrive in Washington today for conferences that may largely decide whether controversy or cooperation predominates in the 1954 congressional session. Aides said Senate Majority Leader Ernest Knowland (R-Calif.) and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, will hold conferences in advance of the congressional meeting date Jan. 6. It is an election year session. Voting in November on all 435 House seats and 25 of the 96 Senate seats will determine party control of Congress. Tension therefore is bound to be greater than in 1953, when Knowland and Johnson worked harmoniously on most legislation. Public statements during the weekend by three Democratic senators marked out some of the lines along which Democrats, almost as numerous in Congress as Republicans, intend to press the majority party. In the Senate the Democrats, although not in control of the legislative machinery, are actually ahead in numbers—48 to 47 Republicans and one independent. In the House the Republicans have 219 seats, to 215 Democrats and one independent. Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee urged his fellow Democrats to take the helm and push a program aimed at reversing what he called "the trend toward government by monopoly and wealth." Sen. Monroney of Oklahoma, taking strong exception to criticism by Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York of the Truman administration's handling of the Korean War, accused the GOP of "hitting below the belt" at the entire Democratic party, and said Democrats themselves could tackle hard. Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma a member of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, came out for an increase in income tax exemptions. One of the first problems facing Knowland and Johnson will be a Senate internal dispute about important committee places for Democrats and Republicans because of the present freak situation with Democrats in control while Democrats hold a numerical majority. The President will spell out to Congress in person details of his new legislative program Jan. 7.

Local Police Report 2 Weekend Auto Mishaps

Two weekend auto accidents were reported by the Greenville Police Department today. At 8:30 Saturday night, cars operated by Melvin Hudson Boyd, 207 E. Fourteenth Street, Greenville, and Early Telfair, Negro, 508 West Fifteenth Street, collided at the corner of First and Washington Streets. One of the cars careened off after the collision and hit the front steps of the house at 200A West First Street. About $300 damage was done to the steps, $500 damage to Boyd's car and $300 damage to Telfair's auto. The police report stated that Boyd was headed east on First Street and Telfair ran into him. Both drivers stated that they did not see each other until only a few feet away. Telfair suffered an injury to his left hand in the accident. Police arrested him on a careless and reckless driving charge. On Sunday afternoon cars driven by William H. Dancy, 418B West Third Street, and William Barrett of 203 Boyd Avenue collided on Boyd

Technical Aid To Pakistan Agreed

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Pakistan and the United States signed an agreement today which will bring this country up to 22 million dollars worth of American technical assistance for various new projects. The technical aid pact has no connection with the proposed military aid program which has become the subject of bitter protests by neighboring India. GOP SESSION WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican National Committee will meet here Feb. 5-6 to plan for the 1954 congressional campaign and, perhaps, to talk about patronage gripes and finances.

Report Lead To Cancer Testing

BOSTON (AP)—A possible lead towards the development of a new diagnostic test for cancer was reported today to the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science. Two university of Texas biochemists declared that in experiments with mice, they had found "a new and possibly significant biochemical distinction between tumor tissues and most normal tissues." And, said researchers William Shive and Edwin M. Lewis Jr., "further consideration of this biochemical distinction from the standpoint of possible diagnostic applications... may be warranted." They also declared the finding might aid toward better understanding of the cancer process itself. Their researches were concerned with studies of a chemical called "thymidine" which can be found in both normal and tumor tissue. The scientists developed a special technique for determining the distribution of this chemical in tissue. And they found that the amount present "appeared significantly greater in several types of mouse tumor tissue tested than in a number of normal mouse, rat, and other animal tissues, with the exception of spleen and thymus." Their studies of "thymidine" content were made possible by the use of chemicals called "antimetabolites"—compounds which prevent or retard certain chemical changes which occur in living cells.

Rescuers Pluck 43 From Open Lifeboats As Freighter Sinks

NEW YORK (AP)—Rescue vessels plucked the last of 43 persons from open lifeboats on icy, wind-lashed North Atlantic seas yesterday, hours after the survivors' freighter had split in two. The dramatic rescue operations hampered by a heavy sea, were completed by the U. S. Military Sea Transport ship Bluejacket and the Finnish freighter Orion. Both ships then continued toward their European destinations. But the Bluejacket went only about 15 miles before huge waves made it pull up to ride out the storm. "Have to due to mountainous seas and severe storm," the ship messaged the Military Sea Transport Service in New York. The Bluejacket was first on the scene after the Swedish freighter Oklahoma sent out distress signals. The American vessel took 36 of the survivors aboard and reported all were in good condition. The seven on the Orion could also be assumed to be unhurt, a Coast Guard spokesman said. The 43 survivors including one stewardess, were the entire crew of the Oklahoma and the only persons aboard her. The Coast Guard said all are believed to be Europeans. A message from the Bluejacket quoted the Oklahoma's skipper,

Christmas Tree Bonfire Scheduled For Wednesday

A "Christmas Tree Bonfire" will be held at the City Dump behind Greenwood Cemetery Wednesday from four to seven o'clock in the evening. City Street Superintendent C.K. Beatty announced this morning. The bonfire, the first of its kind in Greenville, will be held so people can take their Christmas trees, carols, and other things that gathered and will burn. Beatty urged the citizens to cooperate by bringing their trees out for the bonfire. He pointed out that trees came into town by the truck loads all bundled up, but now the garbage collectors were having to pick them up individually and by taking them to the City Dump on Wednesday would be a great assistance to the garbage collecting personnel. Explaining how busy the garbage collecting crews are this morning he said, "Some of the trucks have brought in three loads already, where normally they would have gotten only one load." The street superintendent urged the kids of the town to help the parents take down the trees and come out to see them burn Wednesday. He explained that such an undertaking had been carried on in other towns with much success. For the benefit of those who might not know exactly how to get to the City Dump, Beatty said go to the end of East Fourth Street or either go down East Fifth until you reach the cemetery and then turn left there. He said that there was adequate room for parking so the people can see the trees burn.

Britain Barring Entry To Attend 'Peace' Meeting

LONDON (AP)—The government today barred all foreigners from entering Britain to attend a "Teachers For Peace" conference opening here tomorrow. A Home Office spokesman said: "Foreigners wishing to enter the country to attend the conference are being, and will be, refused leave to land." The spokesman gave no reason for the ban but indicated the conference was considered Communist-inspired. Four persons already have been refused permission to land. Dr. Paul Oesterich, 76-year-old German teacher and a delegate to the meeting, went back to Hamburg today after spending the night under guard in the London airport detention block.

Two Infantry Divisions To Be Withdrawn Army Prepares Korea Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army set out today to carry out President Eisenhower's order for reducing infantry forces in Korea, a dramatic first example of the "new look" military policy going into effect. A spokesman said the decision on which two of the six army divisions in Korea would be withdrawn to the working level of the armed forces was one for the Far East Army Command to decide. Officials of that command said departure of the divisions could not be immediate. There were indications that a procedure used in Europe at the close of World War II would be followed in Korea. At that time, men whose overseas duty was nearing an end were transferred into a division and marked for return and men in that division with short service were assigned to an outfit scheduled to stay. That process takes several weeks at a minimum. The high level decision to start cutting Army ground force strength was not reached until about 10 days ago and the detailed instructions began to filter down to the working level of the Army only over the weekend. Eisenhower, in the formal statement he issued at Augusta, Ga., left out all reference to overall military manpower policy changes. But the action obviously could have eventual influence on the size of the Army. The goal of the Defense Department under Secretary Wilson was to reduce total Army strength from a present level of about 1 1/2 million men to 1,165,000 by July 1, 1955. This, Wilson has contended, can be accomplished without impairing the combat effectiveness of the Army, by reducing support and service troops. The return of two divisions from Korea can reduce some of the high maintenance required for troops on foreign station. Despite the expressed alarm of South Korea officials over the proposed U. S. ground force reduction, it was obvious that Eisenhower felt the political impact of troop withdrawal from that area would be less serious than to cut forces in Europe. There the United States is committed to maintaining current strength so as to encourage the buildup of forces by the Western European nations.

Rhee And Minister Talk Privately On U.S. Plans For Withdrawing Troops

SEOUL (AP)—South Korea's President and foreign minister conferred privately today on U. S. plans to pull two divisions out of Korea, an authoritative source said. Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai flew to Chinhae where President Syngman Rhee is vacationing after voicing South Korea's displeasure over the proposed troop withdrawal. President Eisenhower's Saturday announcement brought cheers from most American soldiers here, and there was enthusiastic speculation as to which divisions would leave Korea. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor 8th Army commander, stressed that "it can be safely assumed that the departure of these divisions will not take place immediately." Taylor said that soldiers with considerable time left to serve in Korea will be transferred to other units. Their places will be filled by men whose tours of duty are virtually complete. The armed forces radio service today broadcast hourly a statement telling 8th Army troops, in effect, not to get excited. South Korean officials were openly critical of Eisenhower's announcement.

Wolf Entered Cellar Window

TORONTO (AP)—The wolf didn't come in the door at Percy Benson's house in suburban East York, he came in through the cellar window. Inspector Ray Greer of the Humane Society said the animal apparently came to town in search of food. Attracted to the Benson home by the smell of some leftover Christmas turkey on the back porch, he approached, only to be frightened by a neighbor's dog. So the wolf walked through the cellar window. The wolf—a 60-pounder—now is in the Toronto zoo.

Industry Moves To N. C. With 235 New Plants During Year

RALEIGH (AP)—During 1953 a total of 235 new industrial plants located or announced plans for erecting plants in North Carolina. The new industries located in 99 communities. They represented an investment of more than 60 million dollars and a potential of 16,327 new jobs. The figures were announced yesterday by Ben E. Douglas, head of the Department of Conservation and Development. The return of two divisions from Korea can reduce some of the high maintenance required for troops on foreign station. ## Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Miss Fideia Ponce has taken new methods of Christian education to Chile after a year's study at Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn. She is secretary of religious education for the Methodist Board of Education in her native Chile and has served as a supply pastor. Miss Ponce is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary in Buena Vista, Argentina. She is particularly interested in youth work and says Methodist youth have been "pioneers" of the ecumenical movement in Chile.

Is the fairer sex discriminated against in leadership of the local church? Women and girls constitute sixty per cent of the membership of the average church, yet men hold most of the governing positions. Effects of this are among the problems being studied by a group of eighteen churchwomen—seventeen men and one woman—in preparation for Methodist's churchwide "Convocation on Urban Life" to be held in Columbus, Ohio, February 24-26, 1954. Leaders from city churches in every state will be present. "Religious Leadership in Urban Life" is under the chairmanship of Dr. Herbert Cokerill, Kansas City, and with Dr. John C. Irvin, Evanston, Ill., as editor of the findings. This is the group exploring methods of developing lay and ministerial church leadership. Problems of dealing with the church leader who holds several responsible positions and those who have held the same position year after year will be considered by the Methodist ministers and laymen as they discuss possibilities of rotating responsibilities and putting time limits on office tenure. Solutions to such knotty problems as how to deal with the ineffective office holder in the local church will be posed.

Bloodless Revolution Took Place In Post-Stalin Russia

EDITOR'S NOTE—William L. Ryan, AP foreign news analyst, is back from a three-month trip to the Soviet Union. He speaks Russian and he traveled alone through eight of the republics that make up the U.S.S.R. This is the first in a series of uncensored articles in which Ryan describes and analyzes post-Stalin Russia as he saw it.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign Analyst

The post-Stalin era has brought the Soviet Communist party face to face with a bloodless revolution it would like to ignore.

Neon signs in Moscow and other Soviet capitals are more than mere advertisements. They are portents of the future.

"Insure your personal belongings."

"Invest in bonds for your future."

"Save your money in a savings bank."

I traveled more than 6,000 miles inside the Soviet Union and saw a large slice of the vast, powerful, puzzling country, a shuffling and sloopy giant among nations which realizes its own strength and is frightened at its own weaknesses.

There was evidence of something which may prove one of the most significant developments since the Bolshevik revolution, and also one of the brightest hopes for a lasting world peace.

In this: The Soviet Union seems to be undergoing a middle class-revolution no less powerful because it is non-violent and gradual.

In spite of Communist doctrine—in fact, in spite of itself—the U.S.S.R. is building a powerful middle class with an instinct for ownership. Some day it may engulf and overwhelm the Communist party.

I did not find revolutionary restlessness, but I did find evidence of annoyance and irritation with the bureaucracy. There was boundless confidence being expressed, high and low, that now was the time for a change, that better things were in store.

"We have a new boss now," a young engineer told me.

"We have a new government now," said a teacher in central Asia.

Over and over again I heard words like this—words indicating relief that Stalin was gone, hope that something new was on the horizon.

Some frankly admitted that Premier Georgi Malenkov's promise of a better life in "two to three years" was highly optimistic. There are at least 10 years of road building, home building, machine production and transport development ahead before the Soviet consumer front can be compared with that of any advanced Western nation.

The greatest obstacle in the way is the deep-freeze bureaucracy built up under Stalin's dictatorship. If he is to succeed, Malenkov must wield a powerful knife against the red tape in his way.

The growing Soviet middle class is becoming impatient. Russians in Moscow eagerly snatch up American magazines to dream over the advertisements of consumer goods. A minor official in Leningrad had a standing arrangement with an American to deliver him used copies of department store catalogues. There are Soviet women who reject shoddy clothing in the stores and try to make their own on Western lines. All these are warnings for the new regime.

On every hand are evidences that the private property instinct, far from being exterminated, is flourishing among a big section of the population. It is particularly present among that section which can be considered a middle class. It is manifest in the determination of such people to pass on accumulated things to the next generation.

These people are to be found among second and third generation Communists and their families who have no memory of revolutionary Bolshevism—and also among the growing class of directors, managers, specialists, scientists, writers, engineers, professional people, army officers, "advanced" workers who earn high pay and a whole layer of educated people necessary to the Soviet economy.

Out of a population of more than 200 million, these people may now number in the neighborhood of 40 million. These are the people who by their own efforts and talents or party favor—have been living better, getting a fair share of the good things of life. They include the empire builders in the farflung republics, a sturdy stock of stubborn colonialists. All of these people are just as interested as their Western counterparts in maintaining their status and passing on the good things to their children.

The new government will not be able to handle them as easily as Stalin handled the population. For one thing, to build an industrial state, the Soviet government had to educate the masses. For another, the police power of the central government has been damaged in the violent purge leading to the execution of L. P. Beria.

The Communist party is relying on propaganda. It preaches incessantly about "Communist education of the masses, rooting out the survivals of capitalism and the remnants of private property psychology and morals."

But the new Soviet program seems headed in the opposite direction. It is giving broad concessions to the peasants in the way of private initiative. It is tempting the broad masses with more and better goods for their own private ownership.

Ironically, this is the "bourgeois revolution" for which Lenin and Trotsky could not wait. Marx had laid down the principle that a feudal country, such as czarist Russia had to go through capitalist development before becoming a "dictatorship of the proletariat." The Communists nipped the capitalist development in the bud.

When the time comes to attempt to call a halt on this development, the Communist party may find it is too late. No longer able to rely on the ruthless methods of a Stalin in a society several generations removed from czarism and violent revolution, the party may find itself unable to check the trend. Already it exhibits a growing nervousness at the demanding tone coming from the people.

If the Soviet Union accomplishes in 10 years what it claims it will accomplish in three, it can become a mighty nation, indeed. But if it accomplishes these things, Russia is likely to be a changed nation too.

Ironically, this is the "bourgeois

Fifty Years Ago This Week Fire Killed Nearly 600

CHICAGO (AP)—Fifty years ago this week newspaper readers read a story that seemed incredible.

It was the story of a fire that snuffed out the lives of almost 600 women, children and men in a matter of minutes in the new, "fireproof" Iroquois Theater.

The disaster touched off a chain reaction in the United States and Europe. It gave a hot spur to a movement that brought new safety regulations and theater safeguards.

Among them are quick-opening vents over stages and automatic sprinklers, reinforced asbestos or metal fire curtains, flame-resistant scenery, emergency lighting systems, and exit doors that are plainly marked and open outward.

If the Iroquois had had these safeguards, and had them in working order, one of the greatest tragedies of the 20th Century would not have played there.

The theater, on Randolph St. in Chicago's Loop, was jammed that day—Dec. 30, 1903. About 1,602 persons were seated, and more than 200 stood in the aisles, at a matinee performance of a musical show, "Mr. Blue Beard."

During the second act a stage drapery brushed against an arc light and caught fire. The flames leaped into the rigging loft.

Eddie Foy, a comic and a star of the show, ran from his dressing room to the stage.

"Don't get excited," he urged the panicking audience. "Take it easy."

Foy ordered the curtain dropped. The asbestos curtain started down. But the left end caught on a light reflector 20 feet above the stage floor. The right end dropped to a point about five feet above the stage floor.

The ventilators above the stage couldn't be opened to draw the flames upward. A strong current of air flowed from the open stage door to an open ventilator above the gallery.

Suddenly flames and heat swept outward from the stage and surged into the balcony and gallery.

Foy, the clown who adlibbed a hero's lines, escaped with his life. The number of dead was placed that night at 571. In some later reports it was raised to 602.

The National Fire Protection Assn. listed it as "the most serious theater fire of modern times."

The story, often retold has become a classic object lesson. Records indicate the lesson has been well learned.

Reference works show only one theater fire in this country since then with a great loss of life. That was in Boyertown, Pa., Jan. 13, 1908. The toll was 169 dead.

Explosion Blew Him Through Air

GALLUP, N.M. (AP)—Charles H. Challacombe, 51, yesterday was flipped 35 yards through the air by an explosion in an automobile paint shop. He escaped with third degree burns on the face and hands.

Witnesses said the explosion tore the roof off the building as Challacombe opened the door to enter.

"I saw the roof go up and down and then saw a man flying through the air about three feet off the ground," said Mrs. George Armstrong.

Before World War II the annual value of world farm output per capita was about $18.27.

Highs And Lows Of Old Year For Film-Makers

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This will go down in Hollywood history as the year of new dimensions.

It was an optimistic year, compared with the gloomy ones that preceded it. People got the feeling that maybe the movie industry was going to stay in business, after all.

It was the year of dimension praecox and the 3d's. A whole new set of words came into the Hollywood language: depths, flat-ties, cinerama, cinemascope, toddy-ao, etc. Here is my annual selection of the highs and lows of the Hollywood year:

Disappointed By No Cowboys On Houston Streets

HOUSTON (AP)—When 9-year-old Herman Rowland, a polo victim from Lexington, Ky., arrived at the Southwestern Respiratory Center here a few weeks ago he was disappointed.

"I came all the way down here to see a cowboy," Herman complained to his doctor. "You see 'em on TV and in the movies, but you don't see 'em in Texas."

The Houston Post asked the Harris County Sheriff's mounted posse to reassure the lad.

Yesterday, deputies who make up the posse gave Herman and the other patients a display of horsemanship. Herman watched from a window.

His comment: "It's a lot better, but I'm not ready to give up Kentucky and become a Texan."

KIMMSWICK, Mo. (AP)—The hull of a sunken Civil War craft has again been exposed by the low stage of the Mississippi River near here.

The heavily-constructed, armored 135-foot vessel has been called a gunboat but authorities now say it may have been used to ram enemy craft. It is not known whether the craft was used by the Union or the Confederacy.

His Trees Take Terrible Beating

DALLAS (AP)—David Kaufmann got out of bed at 2:30 a.m. yesterday to survey the damage done by a wayward car to one of his trees.

He had just returned to bed when he heard a crash. He went out and looked.

Two more trees were knocked down.

Will Vote Today On Plant Sale

DETROIT (AP)—Stockholders of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. will vote today on sale of Briggs' seven auto body and airplane parts plants to Chrysler Corp. for $35,000,000. Chrysler also proposes to buy all Briggs inventories, which may amount to another $35,000,000.

Briggs plans to keep its Beautywear Division, manufacturer of plumbing supplies and bathroom and kitchen appliances.

Way To A New Day In Eastern N. C.

The Goldsboro News Argus last week editorially called on every community in Eastern North Carolina, and civic and business leaders of the section to take stock of its overlooked opportunities for processing its own products, and thereby, create new industries for the section.

The editorial pointed out: "One reason why Eastern North Carolina is poorer than the rest of the nation is that we do relatively little processing of the products of the section. We sell most of what we produce in the original state. More money is to be made in processing than in producing, but we let the other fellow do the other."

Such a statement can not be denied by those who live in Eastern North Carolina. As the News-Argus pointed out, "We are the world's greatest flue-cured tobacco producing section. Our tobacco is renowned the world around, yet there isn't one tiny cigarette factory in all the broad expanse of Eastern North Carolina."

Similar conditions apply in reference to peanuts which are produced in large quantities in this section of the state. The nearest processing plant is in Suffolk, Virginia. Here again, Eastern Carolina produces the product, but leaves the profitable business of processing the product to others, along with the revenues derived by owners of processing plants, and the benefits a community receives by the large number of employes such a plant must have.

There is some processing of pork and poultry products in this section of the state, but by far the vast majority of the poultry and pork produced in Eastern North Carolina is sold "on foot" and sent elsewhere to be processed for the consumers' market. What the Mt. Olive section has done with the pickle business is an example of what other localities of this vast agricultural area can do in processing their own agricultural products.

The News-Argus pointed out emphatically what Eastern Carolinians can do to boost their own economy:

"Every community in Eastern North Carolina, every Chamber of Commerce, should take a look. Is there in this community some opportunity for processing that is being overlooked? . . . Here is something we can do for ourselves. Something that in time will raise the average per capita income of the man in the East to a point more nearly the national average."

"The East now has the money to finance any reputable processing industry. We should show more energy by putting this money to work. It is a way to a new day for this section."

Million New Homes

Of the 52 points proposed by the President's Advisory Committee on Government Housing, Policies and Programs, there is no telling how many will be adopted by the Eisenhower Administration and not even a reasonable guess as to what Congress will do. But most leaders of the building industry believe that in a goodly combination of the best proposals there are possibilities of more than a million-units years and incidentally, some extra profit possibilities for retailers.

A million new dwelling units naturally means a lot of retail sales, since they require furniture and other furnishings. But among the proposals advanced by the committee was one calling changes in the law to facilitate the use of open-end mortgages.

With this type of mortgage, after the home buyer pays off part of the principal, he can re-advance to the lender and obtain additional funds for home improvement. While money for home improvement is not very difficult to borrow today, the open-end mortgage makes borrowing simple at low interest rates and with long maturities. Thus, these mortgages would open opportunities for selling certain types of appliances, storm windows, paint and furnishings for added rooms.

One of the proposals, which doesn't seem likely to get very far, is for the creation of a private corporation to take over the government's secondary mortgage business. It would equalize down payments for new and old homes, encourage trade-ins, increase mortgage terms to 30 years, allow 40-year mortgages on houses costing less than $7,600, provide for lease of low-priced homes with options to buy, and apply automobile merchandising concepts to the housing field.

Emanuel M. Spiegel, president of the National Association of Home Builders, while hailing the program as "bold, progressive, visionary, practical" and one that can "put a new face on America," cautioned that the supply of money is the controlling factor.

"The degree of success of failure of such a broad housing program will be entirely dependent upon the availability of mortgage money," he declared.

BUSINESS INVENTORIES
Business inventories, which not long ago were regarded as hanging over the head of the economy, seem to be getting under control, although at a cost.

Business started November with inventories which, after adjusted for seasonal variations (including the Christmas build-up at retail) were $350,000,000 lower than the month earlier. During November and December, there appears to have been a considerable drop, although figures won't be in for awhile. Some of the apparent declines were produced by curtailing production and bringing about lay-offs.

On an adjusted basis, both manufacturers' and retailers' inventories were lower at the beginning of November than at the beginning of October; wholesalers' inventories were up $95,000,000. Retailers reduced durable inventories $129,000,000, but let non-durables creep up $9,000,000. Manufacturers' durables were up slightly, but non-durables were trimmed.

PAUSE, PILGRIM!
CONTEMPLATE AN ICEBOX
The American advertising man gets around. When the Americans marches into Paris after the liberation, billboards congratulated them the name of an American manufacturer of clothing, civilian type. Now on the road from Jedda to the holy city of Mecca a sign in Arabic advertises "beautiful, modern, guaranteed refrigerators" of one of best-known American makes. And completely unconfirmable reports have it that hung on the Peary Gates is a sign reading, "Take tea and see."

Don't Know About The Budget—

Are Some Stocks Safer Than U.S. Government Bonds?

By ROGER W. BABSON
WASHINGTON, D.C. — This seems an unfair if not a dangerous question to ask. However, I feel that I owe a frank answer to my readers. In order not to offend the Treasury Department, I could devote this column to the subject of diversification. I could advise investors to have a diversified portfolio consisting of perhaps 15 per cent in Government bonds, 15 per cent in Real Estate, 25 per cent in Bank Accounts, 10 per cent in Corporation Bonds, 10 per cent in Preferred Stocks, and 25 per cent in Common Stocks. This would be the easy thing for me to do, but I feel it would be cowardly advice.

GOVERNMENT BONDS
Statistically, Government Bonds should be the safest investment. The Government can always assess taxes to pay interest and assess taxes to pay interest on principal. No Corporation can its bonds or dividends on its stock. Another great advantage of Government Bonds is that in an emergency the Government can print money either to pay interest or principal. No Municipality or Corporation has this privilege. There are also other reasons in favor of United States Government Bonds, especially the shorter maturities.

Now let us look at the other side of the picture. Probably a third of the countries in the United Nations have defaulted on their Government Bonds since 1940. Probably two-thirds of the countries in the United Nations are suffering from a decline in the market for their bonds. The bonds of such nations as Great Britain and France are selling at big discounts; while the bonds of Germany, Austria, and many other countries—for which their people paid good money—are now valueless.

INFLATION AND GOVERNMENT BONDS

The United States Government will never be able to pay the interest or principal of its bonds. But the question is whether the Government will pay in 100-cent dollars, as our dollar may be considered to have been worth 15 years ago, or pay in today's 52-cent dollars or in 25-cent dollars, which is probably what they would pay when we, and if World War III comes, I believe that another World War would certainly result in tremendous inflation in the value of our dollar. When a Government Bond comes due, we are paid only in dollars, irrespective of what the dollars are worth or what they will buy in food, clothing, or shelter. If you feel that President Eisenhower is to turn to the left, going back on his campaign promises to make the dollar worth more, you probably shouldn't buy Government Bonds. Some readers write me that inflation is simply something for the banker to worry about, but if you have Government Bonds, you had better do some worrying yourself.

WHAT ABOUT STOCKS?
Stocks have many disadvantages. But a sound company which has paid dividends for over 40 years has some important advantages. Take, for instance, a good Chain Store Stock. The store is taking in dollars every day, but it also pays out dollars every day to the manufacturers of the goods which it has on its counters. Therefore, it does not make much difference to the store what the dollar is worth. If it takes in only "bad dollars," it pays out only "bad dollars." Inflation is not a serious factor—except as to wages paid. But here is another advantage which good Common Stocks have: The less the dollar is worth, the more dollars the company will usually give to stockholders as a dividend. The above is not true with any kind of a bond. The income from your bonds, whether Government or Corporation, or even a Preferred Stock, is fixed and will not be increased as the value of the dollar declines.

Don't attempt to speculate in stocks because of my speaking a good word for them. Don't buy untried or uncertain stocks. You'd be better off to buy Government Bonds. I believe, however, that your banker can select for you some stocks which are really safer than Government Bonds. I say this because in those countries where the Government Bonds have defaulted, Common Stocks of old reliable companies are selling higher than ever. On the other hand, I am now buying no stocks or bonds; but waiting for lower prices.

Beria Goes The Way Of Many Others

Although most people were pretty sure Russia's former Minister of Interior Beria had been killed or would be killed by Premier Malenkov, the brief announcement that he had been executed came somewhat as a surprise to most.

No other word of Beria had come officially from the Kremlin since his arrest some six months ago on charges of high treason and conspiring with "capitalists" to overthrow the Russian government.

Whether Beria was actually given even a communist-styled trial on the charges is still unknown. It is quite likely that Malenkov did not want a trial for his number two man in the Russian government, for fear of the effect it might have on the Russian people.

Beria, in typical communist form, would have had to confess to crimes of high treason—even if the confession were fabricated. It would probably be bad for the Russian people if they learned that the head of the secret police asserted he was not in sympathy with the actions of the communist government; or did not believe in the policies which he had carried out since 1938.

At any rate, Malenkov has succeeded in killing off the man who posed as the greatest potential threat to his absolute control of Russia and the communist empire. In this case, even the formality of open "trial" was thrown out the window. Perhaps that is the way Malenkov is going to operate in eliminating those officials he wants out of the way.

Whatever other effect the execution of Beria has upon the Russian government, it will make other high communist officials uneasy in their positions. None will likely know whether he is next on Malenkov's list, or when his number will come up for execution.

It is bound to make high officials under Malenkov mighty uneasy in their positions. It might force some of them, through fear, to desert the Kremlin and seek refuge some place else before the ax of Malenkov comes down on their necks.

Strength for the Day

BY EARL L. DOUGLASS
SOME SEED GROWS FAST

In 1943 a lonely marine in the Pacific wrote his parents that he wished they could join with him in the reading of identical passages in the Bible every day. The mother got in touch with the American Bible Society to ask if she could be provided with a list of daily Bible readings. Such lists were prepared and circulated until thousands of service men and their families shared in an experience similar to that of this mother and her absent son.

This movement grew into a program of concerted reading throughout the whole world between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Twelve million copies of this list were published the first year, and all because one boy wrote a letter expressing a desire for counsel and fellowship in the daily reading of the Bible. I wonder whether he knows what a great movement he started. As a result of all this, Universal Bible Sunday and World-wide Bible Reading has resulted in the largest concerted reading of the Word of God in human history.

The pebble thrown into the pool makes ripples which cast little waves on distant shores. Never say you have no influence. Sow the tiny seed of the influence you have and God Almighty will water and feed it. The time may come when it will grow into a tree which will shelter the nations.

National Whirligig

Back To The Role Of Arsenal

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The Eisenhower Administration's new and long-range European defense policy envisages transformation of the United States from a recruiting center of troops into the role foreseen by F.D.R. after the outbreak of World War II—namely, an "arsenal of democracy." Whether future conditions will permit such a shift of military emphasis is debatable, but that is the underlying aim.

It was this realization, as well as Secretary Dulles' sharp warning on the need for prompt buildup of a European Army with German components which angered the Paris Government. The French realize that Washington has already made an "agonizing appraisal" of military capacities and possibilities in an atomic age.

All available evidence convinces them that, insofar as possible, we expect the Europeans to provide the bulk of fighting manpower, while we supply air and naval reinforcement, atomic arms and artillery, and behind-the-line materials.

NATO'S CONTINGENTS—With German, Italy and Spain included in a West European force, Pentagon experts believe that the NATO nations on the continent could muster a 3,000,000-man ground force. Token British and American contingents—we already have about 350,000 men in this area—would increase the total to 3,600,000.

With air and atomic superiority furnished by Britain and the U.S., it is felt that such a force could contain the Russians. In addition, there would be Turkish, Greek and Yugoslavian reinforcements to harass the Reds' left flank in any invasion of the West.

Congress likewise interprets recent national defense decisions to mean this sort of rearmament, and Capitol Hill generally approves. It has long advocated the rearrangement made by the National Security Council and the Chiefs of Staff.

They have recommended reduction of the Army from 3,500,000 to 2,885,000, an increase in airplane strength, and decommissioning of our remaining four battleships in favor of more aircraft carriers. All these moves look toward radical revision of our national and European defense establishment.

PRIMARY CONCERN—The task of persuading or forcing Europe to mobilize such a vast holding force has now become the primary concern of the White House in the field of foreign affairs. Speaking as a military authority rather than as President, Eisenhower seeks to re-create the situation which existed at the start of World War I and World War II. He regards this objective as essential.

In the first conflict, France and England staved off the Germans from 1914 to April of 1917, permitting us to rearm and manufacture munitions. The British gave us two years of grace from 1939 to 1941. We will need a shorter period the next time, in view of post-Korean rearmament, but Europe must hold the line on its own in the early stages. It will then become clear whether we must again send large-scale forces to the front.

RESHUFFLE GOP PUBLICITY STAFF—The Republicans' political publicity staff at Washington faces a reshuffling because of its failures in recent weeks. Immediate cause for a change is its silence in the face of Mitchell-Pritchey claims that Truman had been a veritable nemesis to the Communists.

Democratic press agents boasted (1) that Truman had sent the top Reds to jail, (2) that he added laws to the books dealing with subversives, (3) that he had built up the FBI, (4) that there were fewer American Communists now than in the Hoover era.

As a matter of fact, Truman opposed the Smith Act under which top Reds were convicted, and tried unsuccessfully to "purge" the Virginia member, J. Howard Smith, who sponsored it. He also opposed the McCarran anti-subversive legislation. The FBI was expanded to break up kidnapping and racketeering gangs after the Lindbergh tragedy, and to check sabotage before and during the war. Communist membership has fallen because of fellow-travelers' disgust over Stalin's pact with Hitler and the Kremlin's postwar brutality and aggression. The facts demonstrate that Truman had no hand in any of these developments.

Federal, State Patronage Jobs About Evenly Paired

By LYNN NISBET
PATRONAGE—Evidence accumulates that the Republicans in North Carolina are just about as much disturbed by personal and factional issues as are the Democrats. Also they are as much, perhaps more, concerned about political patronage. Democrats who voted for Governor Umstead are not and bothered because not enough of the office holders appointed by Governor Scott have been fired and replaced with the faithful. Republicans are bothered and hotter about the retention in Federal jobs of Democrats appointed by Roosevelt or Truman, and they are sensitive about any reference to factional influence or the prestige of Democrats for Eisenhower controlling appointments.

The fact is that if school teachers and highway employees are eliminated (and neither of these groups is supposed to be affected by political affiliation) there are just about as many Federal jobs as State jobs in North Carolina. In increasing degree it is difficult to separate Federal and State patronage because of joint participation in most governmental projects—such as agriculture, health, highways, schools and welfare.

In most instances the higher administrative and executive positions can be pretty clearly bracketed as Federal or State. It is at the top and secondary levels, rather than in the mine employee status, that trouble arises. The "little people" are just as much concerned for themselves, but the big shots are not so much concerned about them. Almost every day somebody complains that although he has devoted many years to the service of his party, or to the dominant faction in the party, whether Democrat or Republican, and he cannot get a job because the big folks will not listen to his pleas. These complaints frequently are accompanied by threats that if consideration is not given the disappointed citizen will vote some other way next time. Except for these big-shot class the way they vote doesn't much concern the party leaders.

REPUBLICAN—Republicans are somewhat more sensitive Federal patronage than Democrats are about state jobs. After all, they have been out in the cold for 20 years, whereas the presently dominant State Democratic faction has been out only four.

A story appearing in these columns a few weeks ago about Eisenhower being much stronger than his party, and about general dissatisfaction because the Republican regime had not made

Symptoms Of 'A Lost Year End'

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Did you bump into anybody on the way to work today? And did it kind of puzzle you, as your eyes were wide open at the time?

Well, don't let it worry you. You're just another victim of the "lost year end." Practically everybody is suffering from the same ailment. Check your own case by these common symptoms:

1. An overwhelming desire to work yourself into a lethargy instead of a lather.

2. An urge to postpone decisions of any nature, including even the question of replacing a broken shoestring.

3. A feeling that life can be beautiful, but who wants to go to the bother of changing it when it looks okay as it is?

4. A dreary wonder about what the boss's stenographer would do if you hit her on the nose with a spitball—that is, if you felt like lifting your arm to throw a spitball.

5. An absence of all ambition, and a general sensation of well-nourished contentment, as if you were floating under a tropic sky in a sea of warm turkey gravy.

Anybody who has three symptoms has spent a normal holiday weekend, and there is no need to rush off to see a psychiatrist. For if you didn't yawn while telling him your troubles, he'd be sure to yawn while listening to them.

The calendar should list this as national sleep walking week, as it is the period when everybody just goes through the motions of his daily life without exactly knowing why.

The real purpose of this lull, of course, is to rest up from saying "Merry Christmas" so you'll

5 PER CENT OF STORES MAKE 52 PER CENT OF MEN'S WEAR SALES

Of the 68,000 stores selling men's furnishings and sportswear, 5 per cent make 52 per cent of the almost $2 billion in sales each year, the Daily News Record reports in a new promotional booklet. It finds that 1,548 department stores with sales of more than $1,000,000 a year, 956 men's and boys' furnishings stores with annual volumes of $300,000 to 676 family clothing stores with annual volumes of more than $300,000, and 182 dry goods and general merchandise stores with volume of more than a million dollars, sell an annual total of $669,235,000 worth of men's furnishings and sportswear.

WILLIAM DUNN WAS ONLY A PUN
For 20 years, slow-pays in New York have been receiving letters signed by "William Dunn, auditor, Associated Retail Credit Men's Bureau of New York City." The letters urged the recipients to preserve their credit ratings by paying their bills promptly.

Now the association has revealed that there never was a William Dunn. The name was invented because no official wanted his name on dunning letters. This disclosure may leave people who have received these letters chagrined—but in good credit standing.

Bucs Practice For Bowl Contest

Morris Harvey Squad Arrived Last Night

By BOB HILLDRUP
Reflector Sports Writer

A 9:30 a.m. practice session opened the post-Christmas workouts for the East Carolina Pirates today as the Buccaneers resumed practice sessions for Saturday's Elks Bowl clash with Morris Harvey's Golden Eagles. Another drill was slated for 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Pirates, who returned yesterday from the Christmas holidays, will begin tapering off later in the week as Head Coach Jack Boone attempts to bring the squad to a fine edge for Greenville's first bowl game.

Interest in the coming contest sounded a higher note last night as the Golden Eagles put in their appearance. The squad, accompanied by Head Coach Eddie King and his two assistants, arrived here at 8:45 last night. Coach Boone and representatives of the Elks were on hand to greet the visitors at the train stations.

Both squads are quartered on the college campus and will take their meals at a downtown establishment. The college cafeteria is closed until later in the week.

Coaches Boone and King planned to meet last night to discuss hours for Morris Harvey to hold its workouts at the college field in order that conflicts with the Bucs would not arise.

"Our boys are in good physical shape," Boone said in an interview last night. "I expect Hayes' ankle will be in fine shape." Hayes (John "Topsy" Hayes, a junior halfback from Durham) injured his ankle in an intra-mural basketball game prior to the closing of school for the Christmas holidays. The youthful speedster was a first string halfback for the Pirates during the regular season and played a stellar role in helping the Bucs to their overall mark of eight wins against one defeat.

Morris Harvey, which also boasts a speedy ball club, was also reported to be in good physical condition. Coach King's Golden Eagles have been working out at their home base of Charleston, W. Va. during Christmas week in preparation for the contest.

The game will pit two of the nation's top small-college grid squads in what should prove to be a high-scoring offensive battle. Both schools are champions of their conferences by virtue of undefeated loop records. The Buccaneers captured the North State Conference crown with a 6-0 mark while the Golden Eagles went undefeated in marching to the top of the West Virginia Athletic Conference.

Early reports concerning the game indicate a sellout. New bleachers are being added to College Stadium in order to bring seating capacity to a minimum of 8,000. Price of admission is $3.00 with proceeds going to the Eastern North Carolina Boys Camp. Elks Club members headed by Greenville Elks Erskine Duff are backing the project.

Reports Indicate Schmeling Might Sue For Slander

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—There is a report out of Germany that Max Schmeling is indignant at the portrayal of himself in the "Joe Louis Story" movie and is thinking about suing somebody. That would be a hot one, that would.

If Louis had ever seen the job they did on him over there in the movies of his first bout with Schmeling back in 1936—the one in which the German gave Joe an unmerciful beating and knocked him out, Joe still would be suing everyone who was even remotely connected with the production.

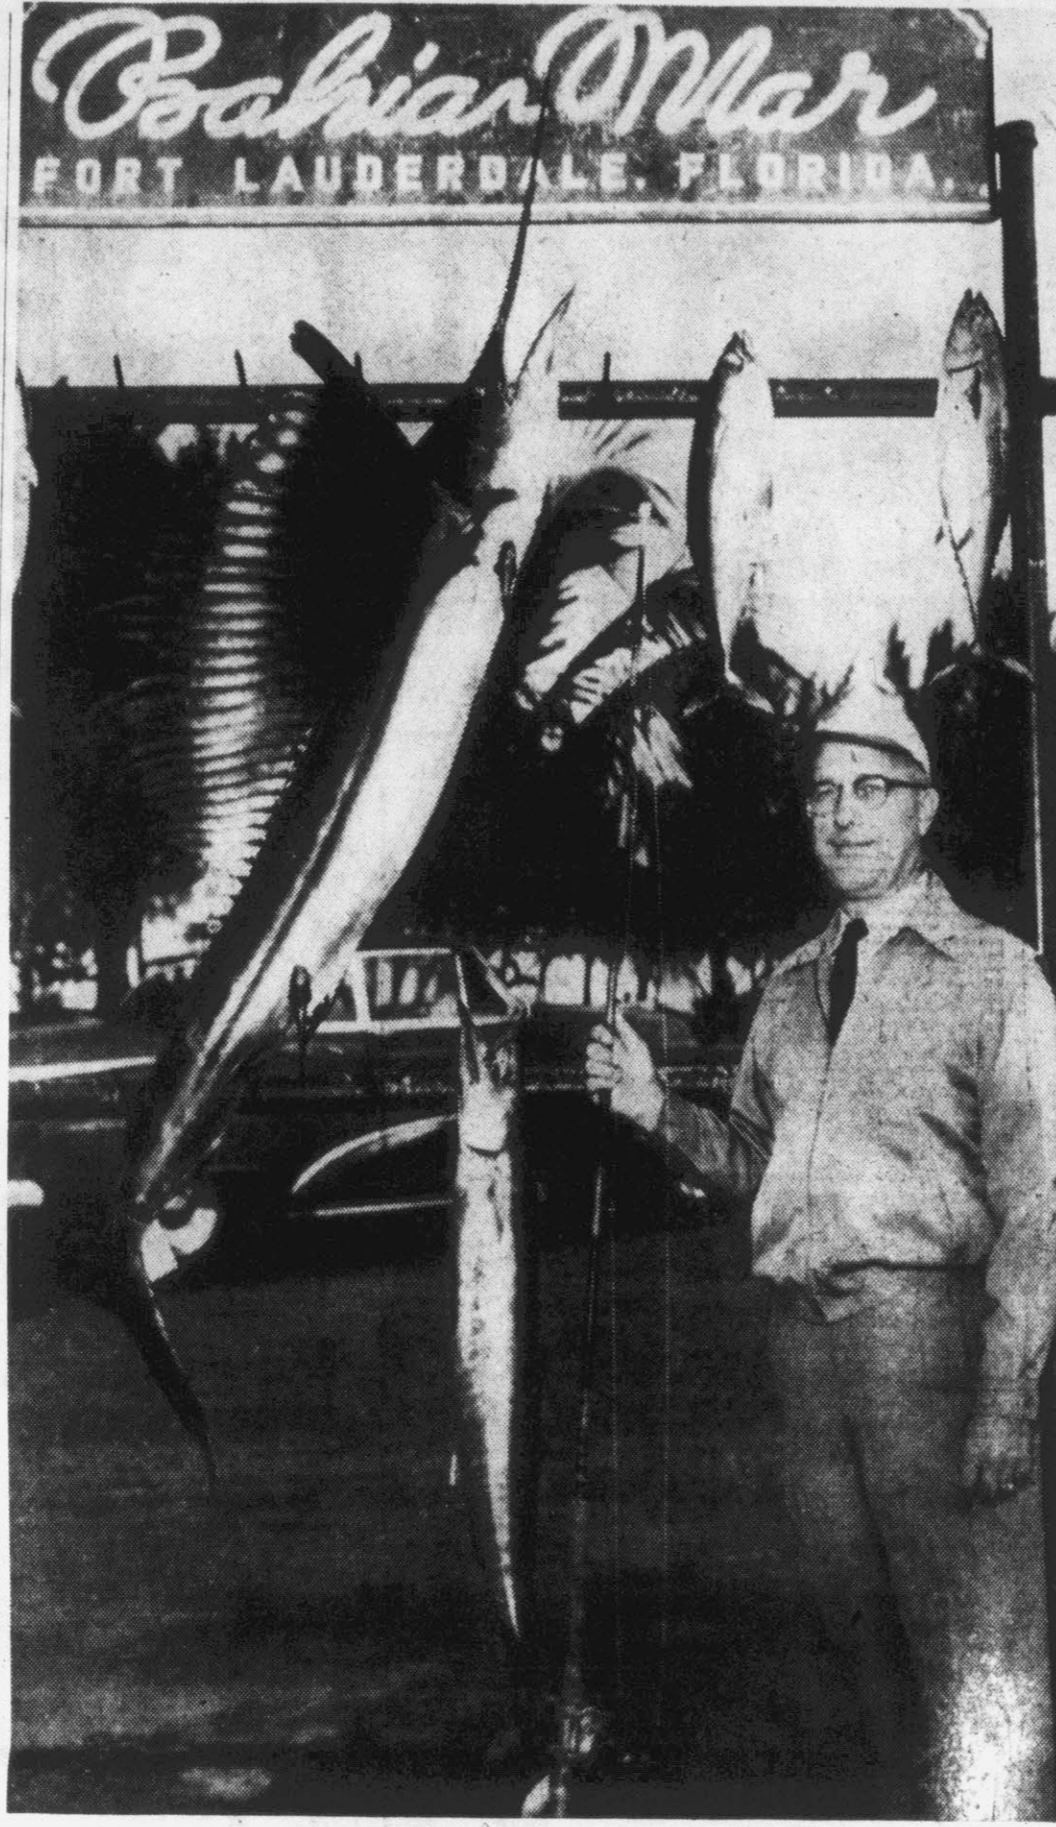

We happened to have been present at the official premiere of the German version in Berlin and after all these years the memory of the evening remains the most vivid of any we ever spent in any theater, including our first sight of "Oklahoma." Sometimes we have got to wondering if it really could have happened. It did.

The event smoked up rather slowly. For about a week beforehand the billboards all over Berlin were emblazoned with glaring yellow posters bearing the clarion call "Schmeling's Victory—A German Victory." That was all, but you got the idea that the elephants were coming.

On the big night it looked like Hollywood, with searchlights yet. Admission was by invitation only, of course, preferably accompanied by a uniform with medals on the front. Just about everybody was there except the No. 1. There were Goering, Goebbels, Hess and the others. Schmeling brought down the house when he entered with his movie star wife, Amy Ondra, on his arm.

Well, sir, the fight began and you've never heard anything quite like it. The narrator was a radio announcer who frequently accompanied Schmeling to this country, and he was, shall we say, slightly prejudiced. He had, as obviously, shouted his commentary into a mike while watching the film being run off, and so was able to predict what was to come with great accuracy.

Early in the going he thought he saw Louis foul Schmeling and, boy, did he give it to poor Joe. "You swine," he screamed, "you will pay for that! There, he's fouling our Max again, the swine!" As one may perhaps imagine, it didn't take a great deal of that to get this particular audience stirred up. Before long many of the distinguished guests were heaping worse vocal abuse on Louis than the official cheer leader was. Feeling began to run very high, and there came times when it was difficult to hear our enraptured commentator above the clamor of the crowd.

Evidently anticipating this, and by the time Schmeling began to belt Louis around and the sound rack was below "There, you swine!" with every belt and the party elite was joining full-throated in his demand for the kill.

When Louis finally went down for the last time in the 12th round you couldn't have heard a fiat-wheel street car pass down the next row of seats. After Schmeling had bowed off the stage and the din finally had subsided you found yourself sitting there and, for some reason, shivering.

Later, we sometimes thought it might have been a fine idea if the film with its German commentary could have been shown through a number of other countries, including this one in 1936. There would have been less surprise at the events of 1939.

Marciano Defends Title In Florida

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP)—Heavyweight Boxing Champion Rocky Marciano says he'll defend his crown against Danny Nardico of Tampa, Fla., Feb. 24 at Miami Stadium in a nationally televised bout.

Looking lean and rested despite his recent 37,000 mile exhibition tour of the Far East, the 29-year-old titlist said last night in an interview he was going to New York Thursday to sign for the fight.

Attempt To Bribe Drake Player Invokes New Law

DES MOINES (AP)—A new Iowa law making actual attempted bribery in athletic contests a criminal offense has been invoked for the first time against a Des Moines businessman charged with trying to fix the score of the Drake University-Iowa State College basketball game Dec. 22.

Floren Dipaglia, 27, official of a building supply company here, was arrested Sunday on information filed by Detective Chief Robert E. O'Brien. He was accused of attempting to bribe Ben Bumby, star Drake forward, to shave points off the Drake score.

Dipaglia was arraigned before Municipal Judge Don Tidrick and pleaded innocent. He waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the Polk County grand jury under $2,000 bond supplied by his brother Raymond.

The arrest came as a climax to an investigation which had been underway since last week when Bumby told authorities he had been offered from $300 to $500 to see that Drake lost to Iowa State by eight to 10 points.

Bumby said he declined the offer and reported it immediately to Drake Athletic Director Jack McClelland.

The Bulldogs lost the Dec. 22 contest to Iowa State 69-59, but Bumby played an outstanding game and led his team in scoring with 17 points.

The law under which Dipaglia is charged was enacted by the 1953 Iowa Legislature. It carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison or a $10,000 fine or both.

The information against Dipaglia names several persons as witnesses. One of them is Calvin Louis Hicks, of Roxbury, Mass., a Drake sophomore who works at the university fieldhouse.

Hicks said Sunday he had been approached by a man he did not know and was asked whether he thought Bumby and Willie Cerf, sophomore Drake center, would throw a game he said. He reported the incident to Bumby and Bumby told him to inform McClelland. Police said Cerf was not approached directly.

Full Tournament Slate Scheduled For Nat'l Fives

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP)—No fewer than 17 college basketball tournaments are scheduled across the country this week, but the big game is at Lexington, Ky., tonight when Kentucky and Minnesota battle it out.

Both clubs are undefeated and the Wildcats, back in action after a year's inactivity, will be striving for the No. 1 spot in the nation. Baro Adolph Rupp's lads have won all six of their games to date while Minnesota has emerged as the surprise of the Big 10 with seven victories to show for its season's work.

Kentucky, rated No. 2 behind Indiana in the Associated Press weekly poll, stands a good chance to take over the top rung if it makes a good showing, since the Hoosiers were upset by Oregon State last week.

As for the tournaments, the big one is the Madison Square Garden Festival, not so much because it's in the Garden, but because third ranked Duquesne is in it and probably will win. If the Dukes should take it, they will be in a good position to challenge both Indiana and Kentucky for national honors.

The Dukes, undefeated in eight games, tackle Brigham Young, likewise unscathed in eight outings, in the feature semi-final tonight. LaSalle and Niagara play in the other semi-final.

All the Garden "house" teams—St. John's, New York University and Manhattan—will watch the semifinals from the sidelines. The sight of all the local outfits being eliminated so early is a rarity, indeed, but it's a good indication of the poor quality of the New York clubs this year.

Four of the major tournaments, plus a half dozen of the minor ones, get under way today.

At Oklahoma City in the All-College affair it will be Oklahoma A&M, with a 9-1 record, against the field which includes Furman, Oklahoma City, Mississippi, Wyoming, Cincinnati, Santa Clara and Tulsa.

The Louisville Invitational has a strong field including Western Kentucky, Louisville, Eastern Kentucky, Murray, Siena, Villanova, Houston and Xavier of Ohio. Western Kentucky, undefeated in nine games and No. 6 in the AP poll, is the favorite.

North Carolina State will be seeking its fifth straight Dixie Classic title against Oregon State, Navy, North Carolina, Seton Hall, Duke, Tulane and Wake Forest. Oregon State, with seven-foot-three Swede Halbrook looking down on all concerned, should pose a serious problem to the Wolfpack.

The Southwest Conference with Alabama as the eighth team also gets started tonight at Houston.

The smaller tournaments, which open today include the New England and at Hanover, N. H.; the Canyon, Tex. event; the Sunshine at Portales, N.M.; the Motor City at Detroit and the Grand Island, Neb.

East, West Teams Still Practicing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The star-studded East and West football squads today began final week's drills for the annual Shrine game Saturday, but who will quarterback the clubs was anybody's guess.

East Coach Ray Elliot of Illinois had three top ball handlers to choose from—Dick Thomas of Northwestern, Pete Stark of Syracuse and South Carolina's John Gramling.

First TD Of Season Good For $33,912

DETROIT (AP)—End Jim Doran of the Detroit Lions waited until the precise moment to catch his first touchdown pass of the season—and it was worth $33,912.45.

That's how much extra the Lions earned Sunday by clipping the Cleveland Browns 17-16 for their second straight National Football League championship.

The game was a real thriller, matched by only a few pro plays, and the ironic part about it was that Doran was supposed to play defense, and not offense. He was forced into offensive duties when Leon Hart, Detroit's towering end, suffered a wrenched knee early in the game.

With only 2:08 to play Doran sped behind Ken Konz, Cleveland defender, and gathered in Bobby Layne's winning touchdown pass. Doran cradled the ball in his arms as he spend across the final money stripe.

It was a crushing jolt for the Browns who led 16-10 with less than five minutes to go, thanks to three field goals by Lou (The Toe) Groza and a nine-yard TD run by fullback Chick Jagade.

But the Lions, who cut them close during the season, proved their clutch ability was no fluke by marching 80 yards in eight pulsating plays. Layne and Doran were the key players in the drive. They combined on three pass plays good for 68 yards.

Boiled down, the game was decided in the Lions' favor because they had a passing attack and Cleveland didn't. Otto Graham had one of his worst games in his eight year pro career completing only two passes in 15 tries for a mere 20 yards.

With a crowd of 54,577 and millions of televisioners looking in, Detroit took a 10-3 lead at halftime. Doak Walker drove across from the one early in the first period and he kicked a 22-yard field goal in the second period.

Cleveland, impotent in the first half, was red-hot after intermission and tied the score 10-10 when Jagade capped a 51-yard drive by bulging through right guard to score.

Then Groza sent Cleveland ahead in the fourth quarter with two field goals—15 yards and 43 yards. But it wasn't enough.

Each winning share for the Lions was $2,424.10 while each losing share was $1,654.10.

Wolfpack Picked To Take Honors In Dixie Classic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The four basketball powers of the newly formed Atlantic Coast Conference put their reputations on the line today as the fifth annual Dixie Classic tournament opened in Raleigh.

For three of the four, Duke, Wake Forest and North Carolina, the reputations thus far were either tarnished or still not fully tested. North Carolina State, host team, was favored to win its fifth straight title. The four inter-sectional foes in the tournament are Navy, Seton Hall, Oregon State and Tulane.

Seven of the eight ACC teams returned from Christmas vacations for a seasonal tournaments this week. Virginia will play in the George Washington Invitational tournament, and Maryland and South Carolina in the All American City tournament at Owensboro, Ky.

Clemson has one exhibition game scheduled against Peizer Mills. After three days of Dixie Classic competition, North Carolina State's Wolfpack tops the week off playing at Villanova. The Pack, loser of only one game in nine starts, won three games last week. State brushed aside Rio Grande, Ohio, and the famed Bevo Francis, Peoria Caterpillars and the University of Pennsylvania.

Duke lost first to Kentucky, then to UCL in the first annual Kentucky Invitational tournament.

Today's Dixie Classic schedule included North Carolina vs. Navy; N. C. State vs. Seton Hall; Duke vs. Oregon State and Wake Forest vs. Tulane.

The Atlantic Coast standings are the same as a week ago. Wake Forest and North Carolina are tied for first with two wins and no losses. Maryland is third, State fourth; then Clemson, South Carolina, Duke and Virginia. The last two have not played any conference games.

SYNOPSIS
Dale Fraser has traveled from her small town home in Swanscombe to New York, to sign a contract for the publishing right of her late husband's novel. It was a book which Kelly Fraser had completed just before his untimely, accidental death, a work for which he held great expectations. So, his pretty young widow, Dale, manages to put aside her ravishing grief sufficiently to dress smartly, to face, serenely, in his office in New York, the man who will issue Kelly Fraser's book to the world. Here she meets the affable Phil Parrish, whose script had just been rejected by the publishing firm.

CHAPTER SEVEN
OUTSIDE, Phil Parrish said, "Isn't it a fine spring day?"
"You don't have to be cheerful with me, Mr. Parrish."
His light tone vanished with his quick glance at her. "I guess I don't," he agreed.
"Are you terribly disappointed about the book?"
"I'm not hilarious. Still Steve's right. It takes more than a thesaurus and a dictionary. If you haven't got something worth saying, you ought to shut up. I wonder why the star out of reach is always the one we try for first?" He stopped and held a door open for her. "Here we are."
It was a dim cavern of a place, with surreal figures on the walls and a man with an accordion roaming back and forth among the tables. Phil waved him away and ordered a daiquiri for Dale, a touch for himself.

"Would you like me to tell you the story of my life?" he asked her solemnly.
"Dale began to be amused. "Do," she invited sweetly. "I can think of nothing I would rather hear than the story of your life."
He grinned. "Just the same I am going to tell it to you. You'll laugh, I imagine. You know, I really was all set to enjoy being the writer of little tales, but what's to stop me from making a major talent of selling houses, or—who knows? of living... Another drink?" Ignoring her headshake, he ordered two more. "What does your husband do, Dale?"
"He was a writer."
"Ah-ha!" Phil tipped his chair back and teetered on it. "Was, so he gave it up, too."
"Yes," she said. "He died." There, casual and factual. It wasn't too difficult, after all. Phil Parrish let his chair down with a thud. "I'm sorry. Why do I always choose the wrong time to be flip? I've hurt you."
"No," she said. "You haven't." Her taut fingers loosened from the stem of her glass.
The waiter brought their drinks and Dale automatically drew hers toward her.
"Donald K., my brother is a famous physicist at N.Y.U. Sought after as a lecturer, brilliant mind, in line for a Nobel, shouldn't be surprised. Now I—"

"You," said Dale, "sell houses."
"That's right. And odd thing is, I like it, too. But—"
"You got fed up with saying, 'Oh, you mean my brother's brain. And, yes, my sister. No, all I play is chopsticks.' Right?" He dropped sheepishly back in his chair. "Sounds pretty juvenile, doesn't it?"
"Well—compare my feelings. It's juvenile, all right. Good thing I know it, and admit it, or I would be heading for one of those psychiatrists' couches. As I said to Steve back there, I'm darned good salesman. And there are worse things than being overshadowed by one's family. I may be a writer of little talent, but what's to stop me from making a major talent of selling houses, or—who knows? of living... Another drink?" Ignoring her headshake, he ordered two more. "What does your husband do, Dale?"
"He was a writer."
"Ah-ha!" Phil tipped his chair back and teetered on it. "Was, so he gave it up, too."
"Yes," she said. "He died." There, casual and factual. It wasn't too difficult, after all. Phil Parrish let his chair down with a thud. "I'm sorry. Why do I always choose the wrong time to be flip? I've hurt you."
"No," she said. "You haven't." Her taut fingers loosened from the stem of her glass.
The waiter brought their drinks and Dale automatically drew hers toward her.
"Donald K., my brother is a book. Mr. Carruthers is going to publish it."

"So that's what you were doing up there." All his rillery was gone. "And he won't see it in print, between covers. That's tough."
Whatever it was in his voice—sympathy, perceptiveness, kindness—it unloosed the knots Dale had tied around her memories, and she began to talk. Words came tumbling out, and with them flowed some of the pent-up grief. After a long time, and more daiquiris than she had kept track of, she said, with exaggerated care because she heard fuzziness in her voice: "I've bored you, Mr. Parrish."
"Phil," he reminded her.
"I had no right to bother you with all this." She sat up very straight. "I am terribly afraid, Phil, that I have had too many daiquiris. Will you please take me home?"
She stood up thankful for his quick arm, steadying her.
"My feet," she said, "feel as if they belong to someone else." Along with her light-headedness was a feeling of remorse and guilt. How could she have talked on and on about Kelly to this Phil Parrish?
Phil's hand on her arm was the one solid fact in Dale's world as they walked toward the door. Outside, it seemed an endless time before a taxi pulled over to the curb and stopped. It was heaven to step in to sit down and lay her head back, to close her eyes.
"I'll be darned," Phil Parrish whispered. He took her by the shoulder and shook her. "Dale."
She did not open her eyes and she did not answer.
Phil climbed in beside her and opened his mouth to give the driver her address. He closed it without saying a word. Where in the name of heaven did she live? A hotel? An apartment? With friends? probably in her handbag there was some clue, an address, a letter, a hotel key, something.

But there was no handbag. Parrish frowned. She'd had one up there at Carruthers' office. Bulky green leather, jamful of all the junk women carry around with them. He remembered that she had been snapping his metal catch as she came out of Steve's office. And she had certainly had it back there at the table. It kept sliding off her lap and finally she had placed it on the empty chair beside her. Undoubtedly it was still there.
Phil climbed out of the cab. "Wait, will you?" he said to the driver. "The lady left her purse in there."
But there was no sign of it. "I'll tell you on this chair, big green." Phil used his hands, indicating dimensions and bulk to the water.
"Sorry, sir."
Well, that was that.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market slipped away today in a moderate manner.

The decline, which was general, went to around a point at the outside. Plus signs were not very frequent.

Trading was on a subdued basis at a rate between a million and a quarter and a million and a half shares for the entire day. The total Thursday came to 1,270,000 shares.

Motion picture shares moved higher against the trend of the rest of the market. Loew's was active, up a major fraction. Twentieth Century-Fox opened up 1/4 at 20 3/4 and then advanced a little more.

A number of individual issues stood higher as well. Among them were Studebaker and American Tobacco.

Two-Headed Son Is Going Home

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Hartley took her first look at her two-headed baby son Sunday and decided to take him home when he can be released from Riley Hospital.

The 27-year-old mother and her husband Cecil, 44, have three daughters, all normal, in their small home on a backroad near Petersburg, Ind. They range in age from 2 to 5.

The Hartleys came to Indianapolis to see the baby and were admitted to his room alone. They showed no emotion when they came out in a short time. The baby's condition remains satisfactory.

The hospital indicated the baby, born by Caesarean section Dec. 13 at Washington, Ind., may be released soon. Examinations have been completed, doctors said but periodic oxygen treatments have been given because blood circulation hasn't been normal on the left side.

Each of the baby's heads is set squarely on a pair of shoulders, set at the normal shoulder position on each side of the single body. The baby has four arms.

Game Protector J. O. Teel today warned hunters that next Friday, January 1, is the last day of the season for hunting bear, deer and squirrel.

The North Carolina state law provides a penalty of a fine or imprisonment (or both) on persons who hunt out of season.

The open season for hunting quail, rabbits and wild turkeys ends Wednesday, January 30, 1954.

The season for taking raccoon and opossum closes February 15.

The game protector again warned hunters about the state law making it unlawful for a hunter to shoot any kind of wild game except between sunrise and sunset. Several hunters were arrested and fined in magistrates' courts this season for hunting after sunset, Teel stated.

Upon questioning by police, Mrs. Whichard stated that there were perhaps a dozen people in her house that night and that they had all seen Miss Williams counting the money. She said that the guests' coats were on the bed and that any one of them could have taken the money when getting their coats.

Police are continuing their investigation of the theft.

Number Of Fire Alarms During Holiday Weekend

The local fire department was kept busy by a number of minor alarms during the weekend with one of the blazes being serious.

The worst of the fires over the holiday weekend was at the home of Viola Mae Horton at 1009 South Railroad Street. A fire, which started from a defective chimney, completely gutted two rooms of the three-room frame structure. Only the kitchen at the rear of the house was left undamaged by the blaze.

Firemen battled the fire for almost two hours before they could leave the scene.

In a second call Saturday the fire department went to the home of Mrs. E. K. Williams at 902 Ward Street where a stove pipe had fallen down. No damage to the house was reported.

Also on Saturday a call came from Pitt Memorial Hospital to extinguish a grass fire. Firemen said that employees of the hospital were burning the holiday accumulation of trash when grass in the surrounding area caught fire. The blaze was quickly brought under control.

On Sunday afternoon the department received a call from the home of Clayton Teel at 114 West Ninth Street where a stove had overheated. No damage resulted.

Two other calls were received Sunday because of overheated stoves. One was from 1201 Myrtle Avenue at the home of Jessie Hardee and the second at the home of Elbert Moye, 1101 Myrtle Avenue. No damage was reported in either case.

The state law prohibits the possession of fire crackers in North Carolina.

Robert James Farmer, 17, and William Ray Wynn, 18, both of Robersonville Route 1, were taken into custody by Deputy Sheriffs Lloyd Manning and Arthur Andrews near Gaynor's Bridge on the Corey road, near the Pitt-Martin county line.

Officers displayed two large paper bags containing an assortment of fire-crackers which they said were taken from the youths. The boys are slated to face the charges of possession of fire crackers in Pitt recorder's court Tuesday.

City Attempts To Improve Its Garbage And Trash Collections

City Manager James S. Hughes announced this morning that efforts are being made to help improve the garbage and trash collection service in Greenville.

In an open letter to the citizens of the town he pointed out that many places of business and residences do not have the proper receptacles. The letter explains that city ordinances require each home to place garbage in a metal can with tight fitting cover, capacity not to exceed 25 gallons.

"Places of business having only paper and trash may place this paper in cartons or large bags and these, in turn, placed in wooden boxes or other covered permanent containers," the letter continues, "but places of business having animal or vegetable matter will provide metal cans with covers. It is suggested that these be placed in permanent wood racks or boxes."

No loose paper will be collected by city garbage collection men from the permanent boxes; place it in paper cartons or large bags, and it will be collected, according to the letter.

The letter points out that the city will furnish one burlap bag to put paper in, but the place of business must furnish all bags after the first one.

An inspection of all containers will be made by the Superintendent of Streets and any container not meeting requirements will be condemned with a week given in which to provide the proper container, the letter stated.

In conclusion the letter says that the city wants to give good garbage collection service, but the citizens must do their part in order to receive this service.
