WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower gave Republican legislative leaders a detailed review today of his program for the new session of Congress... of the President's program and discussed some of its aspects with the cabinet members involved. He said the President took an hour to read from the State of the Union address...

The State of the Union message, Reed smiled and told reporters: "I take this occasion to wish the American people, and that includes the press, a happy and prosperous New Year and congratulate them on prospective tax relief."

But indications were that it would be devoted largely to a review of the national administration since Eisenhower took office 11 1/2 months ago.

With 46 Democrats to 47 Republicans 1 independent in the Senate, Eisenhower will need some Democratic votes to put over any controversial features of his program.

Briggs, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the President's immediate aim is to hold the Treasury deficit in the year which starts next July 1 to three billion dollars.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said in an interview that the nation will move closer to a postwar economy in 1954 with only a slight drop in production.

In line with U. S. policy to build defenses against possible Russian attack in the oil-rich but militarily weak Middle East and South Asia, officials are said to be discussing aid agreements with Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Pakistan and also increased weapons deliveries to Iran.

Just how far the two men get in trying to reconcile their positions will largely determine whether tax issues will become a major battleground within the GOP in this congressional campaign year.

The administration has postponed final decisions on many tax questions pending the all-important conferences with Reed and others this week. This is one reason why President Eisenhower will discuss taxes only generally in his State of the Union message Thursday, submitting a more specific program later.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

One of the most beloved women in all Japan is Mrs. Nobu Jo, now 80 years of age, founder and head of the Kobe Women's Welfare Association. With the aid of the Association and of Christian and non-Christian friends, Mrs. Jo has organized and conducts a home for orphaned girls—most of them victims of the recent war and its aftermath, and a home for mothers and children. Recently the leading newspaper of Kobe, once a major industrial city of Japan, honored her as the leading social welfare worker of the community. Despite her age, through the war years, she worked daily helping women and girls, and finding them food and shelter.

Principal Marvin H. Harper, of Leonard Theological College, Jabalpur, India, reports that "after many years of prayer" there now stands on the campus of the College a dormitory for women. This new edifice houses young women who are being prepared for religious, educational and deaconess tasks in the Methodist Church of India and in some other denominations served by this institution. The dormitory was provided by the members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, Methodist Church, from offerings received during their "Week of Prayer." Now the Church's Division of World Missions is planning, from gifts given largely by the Boston (Mass.) area of the Church to erect a men's dormitory for theological students on the same campus.

At 75 years of age, Mrs. Maria Q de Frausto, of Chihuahua, is still "the best-known woman preacher in all Mexico." When her husband died in 1926—he had been pastor of Methodist Spanish-speaking churches in Texas and Mexico—she was left with four sons and three daughters, and no funds. But she decided to continue in church work, and was commissioned a deaconess. But the Methodist people of Santa Barbara wanted her for their pastor; she was appointed there and has been preaching ever since. She was secretary of the Confederation of Missionary Societies for five years; pastor of the Methodist Church in Juarez for five years; and is now (in addition to regular preaching) house mother of the Nurses Training School in Chihuahua. She preaches in both English and Spanish, translates hymns from one language to the other, and plays the organ.

Mrs. Paley, wife of the head of the Columbia Broadcasting System, nosed out the duchess for the first place in 1948 and 1949. "The duchess' fall this year was all the harder, as she almost slipped right out of the first 10. She landed in a 10th place tie with actress Mary Martin."

Tenant House Is Razed By Blaze

An early morning fire destroyed a five-room tenant house near Cox's Mill Sunday.

The house was occupied by Jack Smith, according to local firemen who were called to the blaze.

Fire department officials stated that the fire was out of control when they arrived at the scene and that their efforts were confined to protecting outbuildings on the property.

Occupants of the house said that when they awoke the building was afire and that the electric lights were blinking. Firemen believe the blaze started from defective wiring.

The local department received the call about 5:00 a.m. Sunday. Saturday afternoon about 6:00 p.m. firemen were called to 100 S. Elm Street to a grass fire. Department officials reported that someone had seen the blaze reflecting through the window of a house and thought the building was on fire. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze.

'Lovesick' Youth Slugged Girl With A Jack Handle

CHICAGO (AP)—A lovesick high school senior slugged his sweetheart with a jack handle yesterday in an attempt to write a murder and suicide end to their association. He told police he did it because religious differences prevented their marriage.

The girl, Marlene Bubar, escaped from the car in which they were parked on a North Side street after dinner together at a swank Loop restaurant. Blows inflicted by James Lawrence Fitzhenry, 18, cut her scalp, broke her little finger and thumb of her right hand, and may have fractured her skull.

Her screams brought help and Fitzhenry was caught. Fitzhenry sobbed when the girl identified him at a hospital emergency ward, and said he "couldn't live without her." He told police their parents opposed their friendship because he is Baptist and she is Jewish.

The girl's father, Meyer, a department store buyer, said he would sign an assault with intent to murder complaint against the youth today.

Police said young Fitzhenry, son of an oil company expediter, told them he intended to knock Miss Bubar unconscious and then run his father's car into their garage and leave the engine running so they would be asphyxiated.

Two notes found in the boy's pockets indicated he had planned taking their lives since Monday. One said in part:

"Marlene seems not to appreciate anything. She is not satisfied with me. . . . To her I am just a friend who will show her a good time and take her nice places. To me she is everything. I worship the ground she walks on. . . . I love her and can't have her. May be in death I will."

Mrs. Bubar said she had told her daughter and James they were "too young to be serious."

"James' mother said she had told her son he should wait until he had a job and money to buy a house before marrying."

Past Year Saw Big Baby Boom

NEW YORK—The greatest baby boom in United States history continued unchecked through 1953, with the total of babies born during the year establishing a new, all-time high of more than 3,950,000. Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians report.

It was the seventh year in succession in which the number of births exceeded 3,500,000. The year's total was about two percent higher than for the preceding year, and more than 50 percent higher than in 1940. The 1953 birth rate was approximately 25 per 1,000 population.

During the past decade the number of babies born reached the "remarkable total" of more than 35 million, the statisticians observe.

Babies born during 1953 were blessed with the best start in life of any year's crop of new infants in the country's history.

"Infant mortality during the year declined to an unprecedented low, estimated at 28 per 1,000 live births, which is slightly below the previous minimum recorded the year before," the statisticians point out. "The 1953 infant mortality rate represented a decline of 30 percent from that of 10 years ago, and of more than 50 percent from that of 20 years ago."

Camera News

AP Newsfeatures

With the start of a new year, let's flip the pages of Father Time's Photo Album for 1953 and take another look at some of the unusual pictures that pop up in passing, before filing the album away.

Here's an old photo worth a fortune — literally! On Nov. 27, 1953, an Orphans Court in Pittsburgh ruled that a photograph taken 50 years ago was sufficient to identify Mrs. Dell May Pheasant Keon of St. Louis. This entitled her to $479,730, her share of an estate left by an aunt who died in 1943 leaving an unsatisfactory will.

Look at this fireworks photo — not taken on July 4 — which proves that a photographer's life is sometimes very hazardous, and in this case, miraculously lucky. Jack Wimsy had completed a routine assignment in Lewis, Indiana for the Terre Haute Tribune the night of March 29. On the way home in his car he noticed a large blaze, headed for it. Leaving the car but taking his camera, he got as close as the heat would allow, then started shooting pictures toward the railroad tracks. Suddenly they shot right back at him — in explosions!

Through deafening booms, hurtling objects — he was blown a dozen feet through space himself — and hissing balls of fire, Wimsy made his way back to his bashed-in car and backed out of the burning area, and the shower of fiery missiles.

That's how to get pictures of an exploding, ammunition-loaded freight train the hard way.

No year's album is complete without some pictures labeled "Biggest" or "Smallest." In Chicago, in late September, the largest group of photographers to assemble at the same time and in the same place gathered in front of the Museum of Science and Industry. To photograph the Museum's north facade, 5,000 photographers with an assorted 7,500 cameras waited for the 'count down' to zero heard over a powerful public address system. At that instant 1060 large No. 2 flashbulbs were fired electronically. The joint sponsors, the Museum and Sylvania, hailed "Operation Big Shot" a huge success.

From electronically fired flashbulbs, we go back a couple of months to find a picture made by the largest amount of old-fashioned flash powder this past year. The occasion was the dedication of the Rotunda building at Ford's Fiftieth Anniversary celebration in Dearborn, Michigan in mid June.

Flash powder was decided on because of the distance to be covered (350 feet from camera to building front), large crowds were expected and it would eliminate wires and the many reflectors needed. Nearly four bottles — 15½ ounces — of powder were poured into a metal trough eight feet long and detonated by electricity. The explosion jolted one camera, on a 20 foot scaffold nearby about eight inches on its tripod. The beautiful picture in the album, however, was made from another scaffold with the camera lens at 11 in case you ever have to photograph a similar event.

One of the year's most widely published photos was taken in the smallest fraction of time. The picture shows the birth of an atomic explosion at the instant when the steel tower supporting the bomb glowed white-hot before disintegrating. The photograph was made possible by a "Rapatronic" camera which utilizes certain phenomena of light and electricity to operate a polaroid shutter with no moving parts.

One of last year's sad pictures showed a pretty woman who lost her left leg because of a "camera." Mrs. Olga Rocco told a graphic story last April in court when she sued the City of New York for $200,000 for alleged failure to protect her adequately. Her estranged husband conceived a cunning plot to kill her. He duped an unsuspecting girl into "taking her picture" on a Times Square subway platform one New Year's eve. When the girl pressed the trigger of the boxed-in "camera" with the lens protruding in front, a hail of buckshot hit Mrs. Rocco in the leg and it had to be amputated later.

Mrs. Rocco lost her suit against the city. On appeal, the dismissal was upheld and this latest decision, in December, seemed to write "Finitis" to the "Case of the Diabolical Camera."

On a happier note is one of the very last pictures in the 1953 album. Down Alabama way, in Birmingham, there's a radio announcer who likes to broadcast good cheer in wholesale quantity. Joe Rumore, WVOK announcer, mailed out what is undoubtedly the largest single order of personal Christmas cards this holiday season — 40,000 of them! Anyone who sent him a card, got one in return.

Rich Mines Are Korea's Wealth

SEOUL (AP)—Mining is the major answer to Korea's economic problems, according to a veteran American mining authority, Frank Crampton, a technical adviser. Estimates in tungsten alone South Korea has a potential production of 100 to 200 million dollars a year.

He says "the surface has been barely scratched" in developing other mineral resources in South Korea. There are large deposits of tin, discovered last May, as well as sizable deposits of graphite, manganese, gold and other minerals, he said.

He cites the production of the San Dong mine, called the largest producer of tungsten in the world. "By the end of this year it can be producing at the rate of 40 million dollars worth of tungsten concentrates annually," Crampton says.

"By next year it could be worth 50 to 60 million dollars — and it is only 1 of South Korea's 40 tungsten mines."

Date Bait Gets Number Of Calls

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Purdue University males far outnumber coeds and there are times when getting a date is difficult.

One male student solved the problem by advertising in the campus paper:

"Any good-looking female wishing a date call 92-3177."

He received 10 telephone calls and wound up with a very pretty coed.

Paroles System Still Needs Improvements

North Carolina's parole system which has been under watchful eyes of the public for many years still draws fire and criticism from various quarters of the state from time to time.

It should be of interest to the people of the state to note the number of paroles granted prisoners during 1953, the number of sentences reduced or lifted by commutation, and the number of parolees who were returned to prison either for crimes or violation of parole.

During 1953 the state paroles commission granted paroles to 573 North Carolina prisoners, and sentences being served by 144 other prisoners were either reduced or lifted by commutation.

"New Tone" Appears In The Making

The recent criticism of cigarette advertisements by tobacco growers seems to be getting results from manufacturers.

Reports indicate some leading manufacturers of cigarettes are revamping their advertising campaigns to eliminate any suggestions that smoking carries with it harmful effects to the body.

The tone of recent cigarette advertising has been cited by many people as part of the reason for the drop in cigarette consumption along with the feeling that cancer and perhaps other diseases may result from use of the tobacco product.

Two other reports also have a bearing on the situation. The Surry County Farm Bureau is on record as favoring a levy of 10 cents per acre for tobacco growers to finance research on nicotine and other chemical qualities of tobacco. Research officials at State College's School of Agriculture have asserted their plant breeders can "go a long way" in eliminating any chemical constituent of tobacco which may be found undesirable.

Perhaps the change of tone of cigarette advertisements will ease the apparent "tobacco scare" which has gotten a start, and will lessen the effect it will have upon the demand for tobacco from the growers.

Tobacco farmers should have an interest in all this. After all, if the demand for finished products of tobacco falls, it will be reflected in a similar decline in the demand for tobacco produced by the farmers.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
FEELING SORRY FOR YOURSELF?

At one of our eastern universities there is a girl whom everyone on campus recognizes. When she was a child she was stricken with polio, and now she uses crutches.

But the crutches alone would not make her so widely known. Other crippled students are there, too. Something is different about this girl besides the crutches and the steel brace on her leg.

For one thing, she asks no special privileges. She goes to her classes and laboratory periods wherever they may be, upstairs or down. She waits in line with her friends at the dining hall. She helps her roommate keep the room tidy.

You might think that with her handicap she would find it hard enough merely to do her studies, without extra activities. But not so. She belongs to various clubs and campus groups. You never see her alone—always with a group of other students. Probably no girl on campus has more friends.

But one thing makes her really exceptional—her spirit. If she were resentful, or sorry for herself, no one could blame her. On the contrary, she is the most cheerful person imaginable. Other girls may look tired, cross, unhappy, bored—but never this one. Her smile is famous and unfeigned. Happy herself, she makes others happy.

That's why everyone knows her.

Benson Popularity Now Rising

By RAY TUCKER
CHICAGO—The much-maligned Ezra Taft Benson has staged an amazing popularity comeback in this trading, railroading and agricultural center of the pro-Eisenhower and pro-McCarthy Middle West. The Utah Mormon is now regarded as one of the strong men of the Cabinet.

There is no better place than Chicago to test the reaction to Secretary Benson's policies and personality, especially his plan to take the Government out of the farming business. More than any other city in the United States, Chicago is dependent upon a profitable and successful agricultural population.

FARM LEADERS APPROVE PLAN—The leading mail-order houses are located here, and their catalogues are "must" reading in rural areas. Most of the farm implement firms have their headquarters here, with salesmen roaming the wheat, corn and dairy belts on regular schedules. Their sales have declined from 10 to 20 per cent because of the recent drop in the farmers' income.

Therefore, they should be antagonistic to Secretary Benson's rather conservative ideas, which are endorsed by President Eisenhower. They should be critical of the Benson Plan to reduce and make more flexible the Government's price payments for the support of crop surpluses.

On the contrary, farm leaders and spokesmen, with only a few exceptions, approve the Benson program. They want to stand on their own feet, economically.

They resent the idea that they are wards of Uncle Sam. They feel that the principal anti-Benson "Squawkers" are part-time and amateur farmers, who invested in cattle, corn and wheat only to make a quick profit during the heyday of high prices.

DAIRY INTEREST ATTITUDE ON BOUNTY—The great dairy interests of this area—Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, etc.—have launched a movement which is designed to take them off Uncle Sam's bounty list. Their plan is to thin out or get rid of butter, cheese and dried milk surpluses, which will be revealed soon after Congress convenes, is typical

Business Today

Calendar Favorable

By ELMER ROESSNER
The calendar will be kind to business in 1954.

Only two holidays besides Thanksgiving split retail weeks Columbus Day and Armistice Day, and these are not widely observed as business holidays. Split weeks cost retailers sales, since so many customers stretch holidays into half a week. On the other hand, holidays falling on week ends don't cut into retail sales and they do boost resorts' incomes.

Memorial Day falls on a Sunday and will be observed on Monday. Washington's Birthday is on a Monday. The Fourth of July will be a Sunday. Christmas is on a Saturday, as is New Year's Day.

Easter will be late in 1954, falling on April 18, only a week before the latest possible date. Lateness of Easter allows ample time for the promotion of spring fashions. Lent begins on March 3. For comparable sales patterns, merchants may consult records for 1949, when Easter was on April 17.

The traditional summer vacation period—from the Saturdays before the Fourth of July to the Tuesday after Labor Day, this year on September 6—will be 66 days long in 1954. It was 66 days in 1953, but only 60 days in 1952. The long season will tend to sustain business for resorts, service stations, sportswear manufacturers, and the thousands of other businesses and industries that profit from summer vacationing.

The traditional Christmas shopping season will be a day longer than it was this year. Thanksgiving in 1954, will be a day earlier than in 1953, falling on November 25, leaving 25 shopping days between that date and Christmas.

January, April, July and December have five Fridays—now the favorite weekly pay day. Passover is at sundown April 17, Rosh Hashana at sundown September 27, and Yom Kippur at sundown October 6.

THREE-WAY PRICE WAR
The District of Columbia, which like Missouri, Texas and Vermont that have new laws by which manufacturers can fix retail prices of trademarked products, has been having a lively little price war. Such laws are under constitutional clouds in one or two other states.

Washington, D.C., department stores have been fighting back at discount houses by cutting some prices below cost. Appliance stores and drug chains have been meeting these prices, but discount houses can't, because they have to make some profit on every sale. Meanwhile, capital shoppers are able to buy $27.50 toasters for $10.87, $76.50 floor polishers for $36.50 and $18.95 steam irons at $10.87.

Some of the department stores have indicated that they are discontinuing lines being sold below cost and that they are replacing them with lines by manufacturers who are more careful in keeping products out of the hands of price cutters.

YOU'RE ALMOST IN BUSINESS
Orchids are blooming and business is booming in Venezuela, that oil-rich, benign dictatorship of Colonel Carlos Perez Jimenez on the Gulf Coast of South America. A million dollars a day in oil royalties are pouring into that Latin-American nation; another million rolls in via spending by American corporations, and more millions are about to come in from concessions for iron ore in fabulous Cerro Bolivar—which is now flowing to the new Fairless mills in Bucks County, Pa.

American companies that may want to get some of these millions back for themselves might get in touch with the nearest field office of the Department of Commerce and see if the office has a list of importers and dealers that can be useful. Commerce has compiled lists of businesses in about 75 lines, ranging from 53 advertising media to 49 soap makers.

to the Supreme Court. Once the ball starts rolling the idea spreads and incumbents who had felt reasonably secure of unchallenged tenure may find themselves in contests. Results of elections in other years indicate that judges, who have been elected have less trouble holding on than do executive and legislative officers.

SOLICITORS—Solicitor William Bickett has stated he will not seek re-election in the seventh district—Wake and Franklin. Three or four men are expected to get into that scrap, including J. Melville Broughton Jr., son of the late Governor.

Elbert Peete of Williamston, named solicitor in the second district when George Pountain was made a special judge, faces opposition by Hubert May of Nashville and perhaps others. John Burney Jr., appointed solicitor in the eighth district last week, has little hope of getting by without a contest.

Reports from several western districts, although rather vague, indicate incumbent solicitors may have harder fights than for some years past. In most instances

Justice W.A. Devin may retire and that Justice Barnhill is his most likely successor. (It was noted here last spring that the chief justice probably would step down when his new home at Oxford was completed. He and Mrs. Devin moved into it last month.)

Capital Square newsmen and other observers have assumed ever since Frank Taylor of Goldsboro was named legislative counsel to Governor Umstead a year ago that he would get the first appointment to the Supreme Court. Wagers can be had that he will be given the chief's place in view of a vacancy there, but majority opinion is Barnhill will be stepped up and Taylor named as associate. In event of a change in high court personnel chances for contests involving all open seats will be strong.

TURN OVER—The political virus is highly contagious. There is much more likelihood of opposition to judges who have not been elected by the people—as in the case with Judges Joseph Parker and Clifton Moore. That will be true also of an appointee

Judges No Longer Enjoy Old Immunity To Vote Races

By LYNN NISBET
JUDICIARY—It is becoming increasingly evident that justices of the Supreme Court and judges of the Superior Court do not enjoy immunity from election contests to the same degree they did a few years ago. It used to be rare for an incumbent judge to have opposition when he sought re-election, although there were heated contests when vacancies existed on the bench.

Already there is announced opposition by Frank Banzet of Warren to Judge Joseph Parker in the third district. Judge Clifton Moore, appointed last week in the eighth district, is expected to face a fight to keep the position after next January 1. There are rumors of lawyers in other districts casting envious glances toward judgeships were tenure runs out this year.

Terms of Associate Justices M.V. Barnhill and Wallace Winborne run out next December 31. Both have indicated purpose to seek re-election, and there has not been much evidence of opposition. During the past few days rumors have revived that Chief

Justice W.A. Devin may retire and that Justice Barnhill is his most likely successor. (It was noted here last spring that the chief justice probably would step down when his new home at Oxford was completed. He and Mrs. Devin moved into it last month.)

Analyst Looks Ahead To First 6 Months Of New Year

By ROGER W. BABSON
I do not now believe in the theory of most economists—that business will fall off 10 per cent in 1954, with a greater decline in net earnings. My feeling is that everyone will unite forces to hold up business, at least during the first half, to its approximate 1953 average. This can be done by expanding research, increasing advertising appropriations, extending further credits, and obtaining labor's co-operation.

I say something much more important than the above: namely, if business should slump 10 per cent, the decline would probably not stop at 10 per cent. Too many business concerns and individuals are working on a very narrow and slim margin. The decline in employment, with resulting business losses which a 10 per cent decline in gross would cause, could result in millions of families being unable to pay their bills and installment obligations.

Below are 25 definite forecasts which, in any case, should prove correct for the first six months of 1954. My forecast for the second six months will appear in this paper next June.

1. There will be no World War in the first half of 1954.

2. The Dow-Jones Industrial Stock Average will be less on June 30, 1954, than on January 1, 1954.

3. Taxes will be lowered by expiring laws.

4. The price of most commodities will be lower on June 30, 1954.

5. The Eisenhower "Honey-moon" is fast ending and he will have hard time controlling Congress during the next six months.

6. Retail sales can be kept up by manufacturers and merchants spending more money on advertising, selling, and developing new products.

7. The U.S. population will continue its present growth and the best prospects for sales in 1954 will be the "teen-agers."

8. Interest rates during the first six months of 1954 should average about as at present, except on the renewal of low-rate loans.

9. Farm lands, except near cities, will sell for less during the first half of 1954, when farmers' profits will begin to decline.

10. The Central and Southwest will not suffer drought as in 1953.

11. There will be more fear of World War III as years go on. People will gradually move out of certain large cities. Nearby farm land will be split up. A rise in the price of such fringe farm land is certain.

12. The U.S. Government will give less money to the European and other nations direct; but will help them through the United Nations.

13. There will be fewer employed next June—the total take-home pay will be less—than last June. This, however, may be a good thing for the morale of the nation.

14. The present Administration will suffer much opposition to attempts to reduce tariffs if profits decline or unemployment increases.

15. The Administration and the Labor Leaders will try to revamp the Taft-Hartley Bill during 1954; but bad strikes are coming.

16. I am no weather prophet, but experts expect a warmer winter for the eastern portion of the U.S. and a colder Florida.

17. Canada will continue to boom during the first half of 1954, but his may be a good time to take profits on Canadian investments.

18. The above may also apply to Southern California and its airplane and movie industries. Both may have reached their peaks for the present.

19. Automobiles will be harder to sell and easier to buy during the first half of 1954. Both the automobile stocks and the cars will be in less demand. There will be more bargain in used cars, discounts on new cars, especially cars of the "independent" manufacturers.

20. Florida may have killing frosts during the next few months. This will cheer up California, Arizona, and Texas.

21. The Korean situation will remain about as is—as the Chinaman says, "much talkie, no shootie."

22. There will be one or two resignations from the Eisenhower "businessmen's Cabinet," replaced by "politicians." All is not going too well. The President is not used to being pressured by lobbyists.

23. The first half of 1954 should be your best time to get out of campaigning for five months. Ex-Governor Kerr Scott has not definitely announced, but he also has been vigorously chasing vote, ever since he left the Governor's office a year ago.

Most observers concede that the senate race will be a two-way affair with Lennson and Scott in starring roles. Prospects for a third or fourth entry of consequence (which was expected last fall) are now very slim.

TIME—Participants and observers alike are acutely conscious that time is running out. During the summer and fall questions about plans of candidates were answered with the stock comment, "it is too early to make positive commitments; after the turn of the year will be ample time."

The year has now turned, and there remain just ten weeks until the books close for filing notice of candidacy in the primary, less than five months until the voting day. The lists will close on March 20 and the primary election will be held on May 29.

Moreover, you cannot blame them because the umbrellas really belong to the depositors, who also will want them on rainy days! Operate so you can clear up bank loans once during 1954.

24. The companies which will prosper most are those which have inaugurated effective labor-saving programs. Most manufacturers are learning that they cannot beat labor through mere strikes. They are winning only as they purchase new labor-saving machinery, spend more money on research and on well-directed advertising.

25. There may be some further inflation in 1954; but percentage-wise to the total national output it should not help the stock market.

WHAT WILL EISENHOWER DO? I HAVE PROMISED TO ANSWER THE FOLLOWING FOUR QUESTIONS:

1. Is Eisenhower to take the advice of Assistant President Adams, representing certain Republican leaders, and turn to the left? Or will he stick to his conservative election platform? ANSWER: He will stick to his election platform.

2. To put the question in a more practical way: Will 1954 be a year of reform and economic adjustment as promised by President Eisenhower, or will he give the country more inflation, and further play Santa Claus to labor, farm, high tariff and other groups? ANSWER: He is learning that "economic reforms" must be gradual.

3. Will he run the risk of losing Congress in 1954 and the election in 1956 for a matter of principle as did Hoover in 1932? Or, will he succumb to the policy with an attempt to "save his party"? ANSWER: He will run the risk of losing Congress in 1954, and the chance to run again in 1956.

4. Is a "middle-of-the-road" policy practical? Will it serve both groups, or no group? ANSWER: Yes, it is practical for a working, gradual change, and it should serve both groups.

Bone Collection Is Weighty Item

TREGO, Mont., (AP)—Walt C. Ritter has a collection of mastodon bones. Included is a set of tusks, found in frozen Alaska tundra in 1889, which weigh 300 pounds each and are 10 1/2 feet long. There are 13 smaller tusks, and a tooth which weighs 14 pounds. A leg and the backbone when connected stand 19 feet.

The bones now are beginning to deteriorate but Ritter says the ivory tusks apparently are impervious to time.

Rat Unafraid of Dog; Stole Food

POTTSTOWN, Pa., (AP)—Joseph Kopcho's pet dog has been embarrassed since his master made a discovery in his home here. Kopcho dismantled an old organ in his home and found several pounds of dog food stored there by what he feels sure was a rat.

The food, Kopcho figures, was taken from the dog's plate after it had been put there at dinnertime and represents about ten meals. The dog is a rat terrier.

Spillane Fervent In Dislike Of Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD — Mickey Spillane, the rugged writer of blood-and-sex novels, was a disappointment when he showed up for lunch. He was wearing a tie.

I wondered if the more formal attire was because he has turned actor. He is playing himself in a circus picture, "Ring of Fear."

The author scoffed at the idea. "If I think maybe a restaurant will make a big issue about my wearing a coat and tie. I wear one," he explained. "I'm a conformist in certain respects."

"But I still hate having anything tight around my neck. They have me wearing a suit throughout this picture. It's stupid. My friends will laugh at me when they see me all dressed up. I do a tight scene tomorrow and I'm going to tell them I skip the suit or I'll walk out." Spillane refuses to conform in other respects. He cast aside his napkin with the explanation: "Never use 'em. They're always in the wrong place to catch food anyway."

We talked about his acting career, and he said he had done the job as a lark. He doesn't intend to continue as an actor. For one thing, he hates Hollywood.

"It's too hot here," he said. "I don't mind it in the summer, but I can't stand being so warm in the winter. The day this picture is over, I'll be putting my family in my hot rod and heading back to my home in Newburgh, N. Y. It'll be great to get back into the cold weather. You feel alive back there."

Spillane had few kind words for Hollywood movies.

"Most of them are terrible," he remarked. "I went to that one called 'Come Back, Little Sheba' expecting to see a picture about the Queen of Sheba. It was nothing like that. I tried to walk out of it, but my wife wouldn't go. So I joined the rest of the husbands in the lobby until the picture was over."

"Most of the film writers here are hacks, pure hacks. The plotting of the pictures is ridiculous. I could write better stories without half trying."

Spillane was bitterest about the filming of his own story. "I, The Jury."

"I went to the picture and walked out after the first 15 minutes," he said. "It was putrid. I went back to see the picture five different times, trying to figure out the plot. I never was able to. His lousy plot my story but good." His personal comments about the makers of the film could never be printed, even in his own books.

X + Y - Z = Tomorrow's Space Ship

Dressed for a bit of galactic gallivanting, this representative of the younger generation dropped into IBM's world headquarters the other day to check up on what his elders were doing about helping him realize his ambitions. Impatiently brandishing his space gun, he insisted on knowing his chances for getting out of this world within the next week or two and while his space suit was still in style.

The company's mathematicians and scientists all backed away, but IBM's 701, its eleven-ton electronic "brain," stood its ground before the young man shown taking aim at its control center.

This new calculator, as up-to-date as the inquisitive young explorer, can add and subtract more than 16,000 times a second and multiply and divide more than 2,000 times a second. It doesn't talk though, so one of the scientists, reappearing from behind a maze of wires and electronic tubes, volunteered to speak for it. "No, it can't fly," he answered, "but it may soon be helping you beyond the stratosphere." For instance, a missile problem that once took 50 hours to complete can now be done by this calculator in seven minutes.

Reassured and considerably calmer, this aspiring Christopher Columbus offered to trade his space gun for an ice cream cone. The flavor . . . Venusian vanilla topped with Martian marshmallow. They're still working on the problem.

Plants Fast In Manufacturing

OTTAWA, (AP)—The National Research Council says plant life is miles ahead of man when it comes to manufacturing processes. Two of the council's scientists found that plants can change air into wood in less than 10 seconds. In this period carbon dioxide becomes solid cellulose, the material which forms the framework or skeleton of most plants.

Dr. Paul M. Laughton and Dr. D.C. Mortimer, of the plant physiology section of NRC, exposed sugar beet leaves to small amounts of carbon dioxide under a bright light.

The carbon dioxide was first made radioactive so it could be identified when it got inside the plant. The leaves were allowed to absorb the gas for varying periods and then were killed in boiling water.

Radioactive cellulose was found in the leaves even though they had absorbed the gas for only 10 seconds.

"This cellulose must have been made from the radioactive gas," the council said. "It follows that the plant can make these extremely complex changes, from air to wood, in less than 10 seconds."

Gas Gun Used In Butterfly Hunt; Nets Obsolete

PIACENZA, Italy, (AP)—When young Paolo Cavanna sets out with his hunting horn and gun, he's shooting butterflies, not elk. It's a new technique Cavanna claims as all his own. Collectors say it may make the butterfly net as obsolete as silent movies.

The bell-mouthed gun works on compressed air, and has a knockout range of up to ten yards with a gas spray of ethylene or pentanol. That drops the butterfly to the ground undamaged but helpless for long enough to bag him.

Sinatra Starts New Film Work

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Sinatra went on to California and work on a new motion picture today after returning from a visit in Rome with his wife Ava Gardner.

The singer left here early today, less than 19 hours after he arrived by air from Rome. He refused to discuss his domestic problems, but on leaving Rome Saturday he said he and his actress wife "are trying to work out our problems."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORT

Cavanna uses a little horn that sounds in a B minor key and — so claims Cavanna — attracts not only butterflies but a whole swarm of insects, friendly and objection- winging it along at as much as 50 miles an hour. Without the horn, says Cavanna, you miss the best butterflies. They are the rare ones, usually just passing through on migration and Rhode Island has a little more than 1,000 square miles.

Sports Time-Out

with Bob Hilldrup

The first annual Elks Bowl has come and gone and East Carolina came out on the short end of the deal. Every team has a bad day when the breaks just won't come and the Pirates happened to hit the skids at the wrong time.

Nothing can be taken away from the Golden Eagles or the work of Coach Eddie King however. King had his boys in top notch physical condition and with their speed and deception they made the most of the Pirates' off day.

Halfback Jim Carr certainly deserved the Most Valuable Player trophy if any man ever did although there were some who thought that Pirate guard David Lee deserved it. As a guard, Lee's work was not as spectacular as that done by Carr. His performance however, was of the best and had it not been for him we wouldn't have been surprised if the Eagles had scored again.

Most people knew that Coach King had a group of boys who really knew how to move a piskin but few thought they would last long against the powerful East Carolina line. King's boys however, proved that they could not only hold their own with the Bucs, they could virtually run circles around the heavier Pirates.

The quarterbacking job done by Bob Maxwell was certainly of the best. Maxwell used his head and called the right plays at the right time. He utilized his backs to the best advantage and called for passes at the correct time.

Maxwell's opposite, Dick Cherry, certainly had a bad day of it. Cherry, who normally turns in a game that would do credit to any quarterback in the country, couldn't seem to hit with his usual accuracy. His passes didn't have their usual touch of finesse and just couldn't seem to reach their intended receivers.

And so football is stowed away for another year at East Carolina. Though the first Elks Bowl may not have been a total success it certainly came out way ahead in the estimation of the fans. All signs point to the game becoming an annual event and growing bigger and better with each passing season.

By the time next January rolls around many of the difficulties that arose in connection with staging this first contest will have been worked out and an even bigger and more imposing contest can be staged. A lot of hard work went into putting on Saturday's contest and sports fans in Greenville should truly be proud of the Elks Bowl.

Pirate Cagers Meet Crusaders Tomorrow

East Carolina's basketball Pirates, idle since December 14, swing back into action tomorrow night in a non-conference contest with ambitious Belmont Abbey. Tip-off time for the contest will be 8 p. m. in Memorial Gymnasium.

The Pirates are riding a four game winning streak. The streak includes a 76-67 pre-Christmas win against Belmont Abbey in the opening game. The other three victories came against North State Conference opposition.

The Crusaders resumed action yesterday with a 90-68 victory over Brandeis University. The rout was assisted by a late afternoon sun that streamed in through the huge South windows in Charlotte's armory and almost obliterated the Brandeis basket through the clear glass backboards.

Jim Gaetano used a hook shot and Roger Marcell rode a one-handed push shot into a tie for scoring honors for the Crusaders. Both players scored 20 points against the Massachusetts team.

Marcell, a dead-eyed forward who has been one of the Abbey's more outstanding offensive performers all season, performed well in the first meeting of the Crusaders and the Pirates. He dropped in 17 points when the Pirates traveled to Belmont to keep the Crusaders in the contest against the undefeated Bucs. The Pirates are expected to start their usual combination of Charlie Ruffman and Don Harris at the forwards, Bobby Hodges at center, and Cecil Heath and J. C. Thomas at the guards. Harris did not start in the first game against Belmont but has been the starter in the last two games against North State Conference foes.

The Bucs have been working out twice daily since last Monday as a portion of their preparations for tomorrow's game. Belmont Abbey has followed the same procedure although they did get the jump on the Pirates in actual game competition.

The Crusaders are expected to start Marcell and Jack Underwood at the forwards, 6-10 Johnny Coil at center, and Gaetano and Maurice Theberge at the guards.

After tomorrow's game, the Pirates will be idle again until Saturday night when they meet Elon College in Memorial Gym. The game will be a North State Conference affair.

Inventor Of Forward Pass Dies At Michigan Home

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—Death has come to Gus Dorais, through whose imagination the forward pass probably will live forever in American football.

The 62-year-old famed former coach died at his home just outside of Detroit yesterday. He was the little man who revolutionized football as a Notre Dame player in 1913 with his overhand forward passes.

Dorais, former University of Detroit and Detroit Lions coach, had been ill the last six months.

It was Dorais and the immortal Knute Rockne who introduced the forward pass—as it is known today—to football before World War I. They were the ones who also laid the solid foundation on which Notre Dame built its fabulous grid dynasty.

Dorais was the quarterback, the heady signal-caller, and Rockne the end on the Notre Dame team which went East in November 1913 to meet an Army team which was expected to name its own score.

But Dorais stunned the Cadets, and the football world as well—by throwing overhanded passes which led to a 35-13 upset. Throwing in his then unorthodox manner, Dorais completed 12 straight passes to Rockne and other Notre Dame players.

The forward pass had been used prior to this game but only sparingly and the ball was thrown underhanded, not at all like Dorais' long arching passes.

Upon graduating from Notre Dame, Dorais, a slight 145-pounder, played professional ball for a brief period then embarked on a coaching career. He was head coach at University of Detroit from 1925 to 1942. He moved back into the pro ranks in 1942 as coach

Morris Harvey Upsets Buccaneers, 12-0

Carr Wins MVP Award In Elks Bowl Contest

By BOB HILLDRUP
Reflector Sports Writer
Morris Harvey College, of Charleston, W. Va., defeated East Carolina College 12-0 in the first annual Elks Bowl football clash Saturday at College Stadium.

Jim Carr, a dazzling left halfback who was awarded the Most Valuable Player trophy immediately following the contest, sparked the Golden Eagles' triumph with his outstanding broken field running and stellar defensive play.

East Carolina won the toss and elected to receive the opening kickoff. Paul Gay returned twenty yards to the 37 where the Pirates began a drive which was stopped on the Morris Harvey 36 when Dick Cherry fumbled. J. D. Kidd recovered for the Eagles and the show was practically over for the Bucs.

An exchange of kicks gave the Eagles the ball on their own 16 yard line from where they promptly marched 84 yards to their first TD. Bob Petty went off left tackle from three yards out for the tally. Quarterback Bob Maxwell, who also played an outstanding game, elected to run for the extra point but was snowed under by the Pirate forward wall.

Midway in the scoring drive Louis Hollow, the Pirates' first string center, committed a flagrant personal foul and was escorted from the field by referee Lou Bello.

An errant aerial thrown by quarterback Dick Cherry midway through the second period was intercepted by Carr and returned to the Eagles' 30-yard line. A well-mixed series of passing and running plays moved the ball to the East Carolina 28 from which point Maxwell passed to right end Bob Spenk' for the touchdown. The attempted placement was wide.

Halftime ceremonies found Albion Dunn, of the Greenville Elks Club addressing the throng of some 4,500 persons. East Carolina president John D. Messick also welcomed the gathering.

The entire third period saw both teams battle between the 30-yard stripes as the Pirates sought to find their scoring punch which gave them the North State Conference championship in 1953. The Eagles however, though outweighed by 30 pounds per man in the line, were not to be denied. They held the East Carolina ground game in check and pushed Dick Cherry, the Pirates' passing ace, so that he suffered one of his worst offensive days.

Only dangerous threat by either club in the third period came on the part of the Pirates when Carr took a handoff from Maxwell and scooted 70 yards for an apparent TD. The play was nullified however, when an official ruled that he had stepped out of bounds on his own 40 yard line.

Soon after the fourth period opened a punt by Tom Allbrook rolled dead on the Morris Harvey four yard line but the Eagles kicked out of the hole. The Bucs drove back to the 15 yard line soon after but the charging Eagle line bottled up the Pirates and a desperation pass from Cherry to his favorite regular season target, end and co-captain Bob Hodges, was knocked down in the

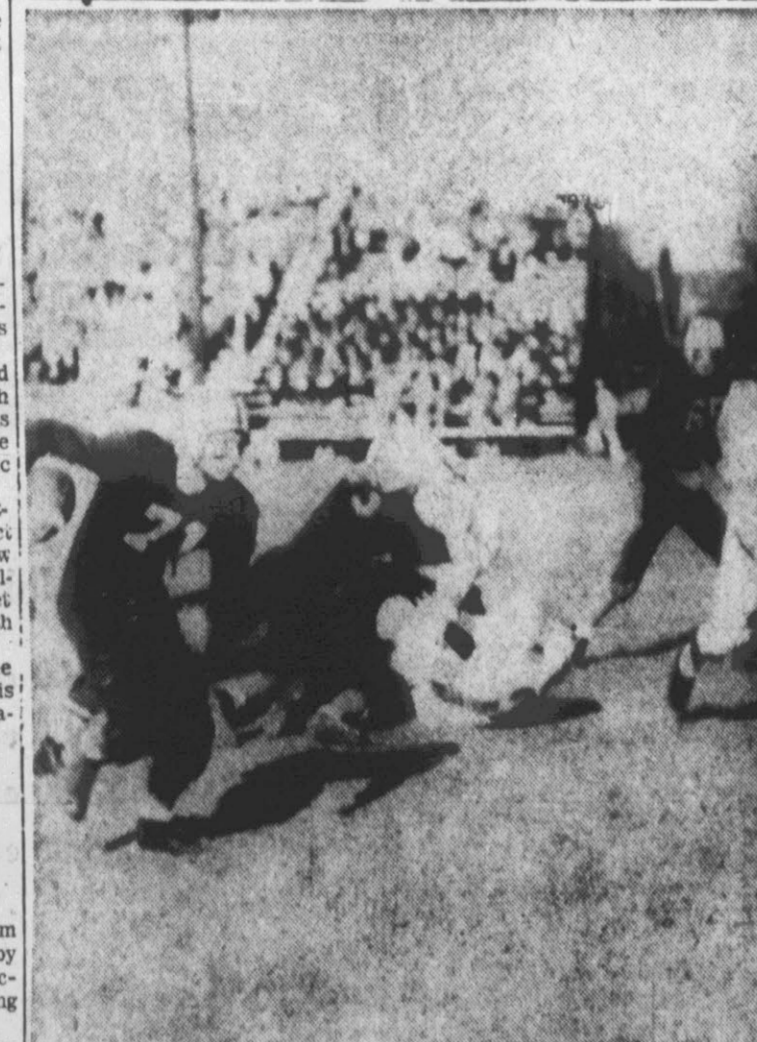

Maryland Eleven Welcomed Home

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maryland's vanquished football team returned to a quiet welcome at National Airport yesterday.

About 50 friends and relatives met the chartered plane which returned the Terrapins from their 7-0 loss to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl. It was a marked contrast from the 3,000 on hand for their arrival from a Sugar Bowl victory two years before.

The small welcome, however, could have been due to Maryland students still being away from the campus at nearby College Park and no one on hand to organize a reception.

Coach Jim Tatum commented he was proud of his boys but added: "It was a long way to go without scoring."

Bob Maxwell, quarterback for Morris Harvey, lugs the ball to his own 20 yard line just after the Eagles began their first scoring drive. Maxwell called the signals as the Eagles upset East Carolina 12-0. (Reflector Photo by Tommie Lupton).

Bowl Fans Cheer "Big Orange"

It was a beautiful day for football. The expected crowd of 8,000 persons didn't materialize and the majority of the 4,500 that did were disappointed—in the Pirates.

Such was the case Saturday when East Carolina dropped a 12-0 upset decision to Morris Harvey's Golden Eagles in the first annual Elks Bowl at College Stadium.

Despite the disappointing outcome of the contest the spectators had plenty to cheer about in the way of entertainment. East Carolina's band and bands from New Bern and

Bucceroni Fights Tomorrow Night

By JERRY LISKA
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Dan Bucceroni, the stand-up belter from Philadelphia, gets the jump on Ezzard Charles in their race for a shot at Rocky Marciano's heavyweight title against towering Hein Ten Hoff of Germany here tomorrow night.

The International Boxing Club is said to be contemplating a Marciano-Charles title bout in early April, but the former heavyweight champion from Cincinnati first must dispose of kayo-minded Bob Satterfield in Chicago Jan. 13.

Bucceroni figures he can put the pressure on the Marciano camp by trimming, more or less artistically, the 6-foot-3½, 215-pound Ten Hoff in their nontelevised 10-rounder in the Milwaukee Auditorium.

Bucceroni, Danny Nardico and Nino Valdes have been mentioned as Marciano's next foe at Miami in February.

Bucceroni, 26, has a six-year age advantage on Ten Hoff, but as 180 will be spotting the rugged German some 25 pounds. Bucceroni, with 45 victories against only three defeats, won his last outing by stopping shop-worn Freddie Beahere.

But he looked far less impressive in that November bout than did Charles in his last fight in which he blasted young Cole Wallace.

So Bucceroni must shoot the works against the big German, who in 1950 lost a 10-round decision to Jersey Joe Walcott, but had the venerable American on the canvas.

National Ratings Due For Change In New Polling

By ORLO ROBERTSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Basketball rankings are due for a shake-up when the ballots are counted in this week's poll but nothing in the past or on the immediate horizon figures to jar Kentucky and Duquesne off their lofty one-two perch.

Top-rated Kentucky has been idle since knocking sixth-ranked Minnesota out of the unbeaten class a week ago for its seventh win against no defeats. But the Wildcats don't figure to drop lower than second place and perhaps not even that, in the Associated Press poll.

While Adolph Rupp was giving his Kentuckians a rest, many of the nation's foremost teams fought it out in a wide assortment of tournaments. Duquesne was one of some two dozen tournament winners. And on the basis of their triumph in the Madison Square Garden Holiday Festival in New York, the towering Dukes could well supplant Kentucky at the top.

The towering Dukes beat reguarded Niagara in the Garden tournament and then last Saturday smothered the University of Mexico 99-35. That was No. 11 in the Dukes' perfect string.

Kentucky has what shapes as two easy assignments this week. The Wildcats face Xavier of Cincinnati tonight and open their Southeastern Conference schedule against Georgia Tech. Both are home games for Kentucky.

Duquesne could well have a tough job against Dayton tonight but should have a romp Saturday at Johnstown, Pa., against St. Francis (Pa.).

Third-ranked Indiana (7-1), which opened the Big Ten campaign last Saturday with a 62-60 victory over keyed-up Michigan, faces two more conference opponents this week—Wisconsin tonight and Minnesota Saturday. Minnesota (8-1) shapes up as the Hoosiers' chief contender for the conference title they won last year.

The schedule for tomorrow night's Pitt County Conference (according to schedules on file at Reflector Office).

Coaches from Belvoir-Palkland, Grimesland, and Winterville are urged to send copies of their schedule to the Reflector so the schedules may be printed.

Tuesday night games: Bethel at Beaulaville; Ayden at Chicot; Belvoir-Palkland at Grifton; Farmville at Stokes-Pactolus

Air Force Pushes Jet Build-Up For Bombing Wings; Deliveries Faster

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Reporter
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force, racing against the growth of Russian air power, now has at least half its fleet of strategic medium bombers composed of swift, high-altitude jet craft.

And by the end of this year the last of the World War II design, conventional-engine B29 and B50 bombers may be gone from the medium wings, replaced by the atom bomb-toting Boeing B47 jets.

These developments apparently figures in the recent decision to rely less on manpower and more on air power to maintain the U. S. military position in the Far East.

In 1953, deliveries of all types of military planes from the aircraft industry totaled about 1,200.

Accelerated deliveries coupled with crew training during recent months, it was learned today, have enabled the Strategic Air Command to raise to between 8 and 10 the number of medium bomber wings equipped with B47s. A wing of that type normally contains 48 planes.

The rapid increase in the Soviet Union's operating air fleet of jet and rocket-powered interceptors has made more urgent the conversion of the U. S. strategic fleet from the slow (400 miles an hour) jet planes.

For long-range heavy bombardment the air force at present has about four wings (30 planes each) of Convair B36 bombers. These huge planes can carry 40 tons of bombs of any kind, including hydrogen weapons, at moderate ranges and operate over a radius of more than 5,000 miles with lesser loads. Their speed has been stepped up to above 435 miles by adding four jet engines to the six piston engines which give the bomber its ultra-long distance.

Delivery of the first production items of the Boeing B52 heavy, all-jet bomber is expected to start next fall. That plane, while lacking the range of the piston-engine B36, flies faster than even the medium B47. To compensate for the high fuel consumption of the jet engines, the B52 is being equipped for mid-air refueling from tanker planes, thus extending its range substantially.

Presumably it was with these factors in mind that President Eisenhower spoke last week of "our growing national air power," which he said possesses greater mobility and striking power than ever before. In that same statement announcing the planned withdrawal of two Army divisions from Korea he warned that, if the Asiatic Communists should break the truce in Korea, in all probability it would not be possible to confine hostilities to Korea.

That strongly implied warning that American air power would be loosed upon the homeland of the Chinese Reds in event of truce violation was in marked contrast to policies expressed when the Korean War was at its height.

Top Air Force officials then advised both the Defense Department and Congress that it would be unwise to attempt bombing Manchuria. The reasons given were two: that in such an operation Soviet-made jet fighter attacks could be expected to cause heavy loss of U. S. bombers, and that there was a lack of profitable targets for the use of atomic bombs.

But the Eisenhower statement presumably reflected a substantially changed picture. It includes these elements:

1. Full-scale production has been attained which could replace aircraft lost with modern, jet-powered bombers.
2. The use of jet bombers would reduce the percentage of losses to enemy interception.
3. If atomic weapons were used in strategic attack (and the administration has made it clear that would be done if circumstances warrant) fewer aircraft would be needed to produce the same bombing results. If fewer planes were sent out on a mission, fewer would be lost.
4. Whether a target is "profitable" is relative. It depends on the availability of bombs. Two years ago atomic bombs were still critically few. Today production of bombs, of varied type, has been vastly stepped up with increased discoveries of raw material and improved refining and production methods.

Eisenhower, in his address before the United Nations Assembly last month, commented that the development of atomic weapons been such that they "have virtually achieved conventional status within our armed services."

That appeared to refer to the justification for their use as well as to their numbers and types.

Later, Associate Justice M. V. Barnhill was due to swear in 12 members of the newly-appointed State Board of Nurse Registration and Nursing Education.

Judge Moore and Solicitor Burney were appointed last week by Gov. Umstead. Moore, who prosecuted a series of Klan cases was named to succeed John J. Burney Sr. who retired. Young Burney was appointed to succeed Moore.

West Europe TV Near General Network Plan

By WEBB MCKINLEY
ROME (AP)—West Europe's television screens may unite long before the continent's governments get together politically.

Governor Urges Support In Drive

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Umstead has called on Tar Heel citizens to throw their full support behind the 1954 March of Dimes campaign by contributing to it generously.

The governor made his appeal in a statewide radio speech Saturday night, launching the campaign in North Carolina. He said that in 1954 the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will spend 19 million dollars in providing gamma globulin to the state and nation as a part of the polio prevention program.

The governor pointed out that up to 1953 the March of Dimes had spent $8,344,000 in North Carolina. He said "This means that all March of Dimes contributions raised in North Carolina have been made available for the care of our own polio patients."

"In other words," he added, "despite the annual million-dollar campaigns conducted in North Carolina for the past several years, our state has not been able to make any contributions to the National Foundation's research program."

The prospects of a European television network were unfolded today in the wake of Italy's first regular TV programs.

Aldo Passante, director of the Italian government-operated television organization, said eight non-Communist nations which already have TV are working towards a possible exchange of programs.

They hope to have the system working in five months.

As presently planned, England could contribute a comedy by Bernard Shaw or drama by William Shakespeare. Italy could telecast the opera from La Scala or a Papal speech and other nationalities circulate their national specialties to foreign viewers.

Passante said the idea is being explored by Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Britain, Holland, Switzerland and Italy. Sweden is expected to join the group soon.

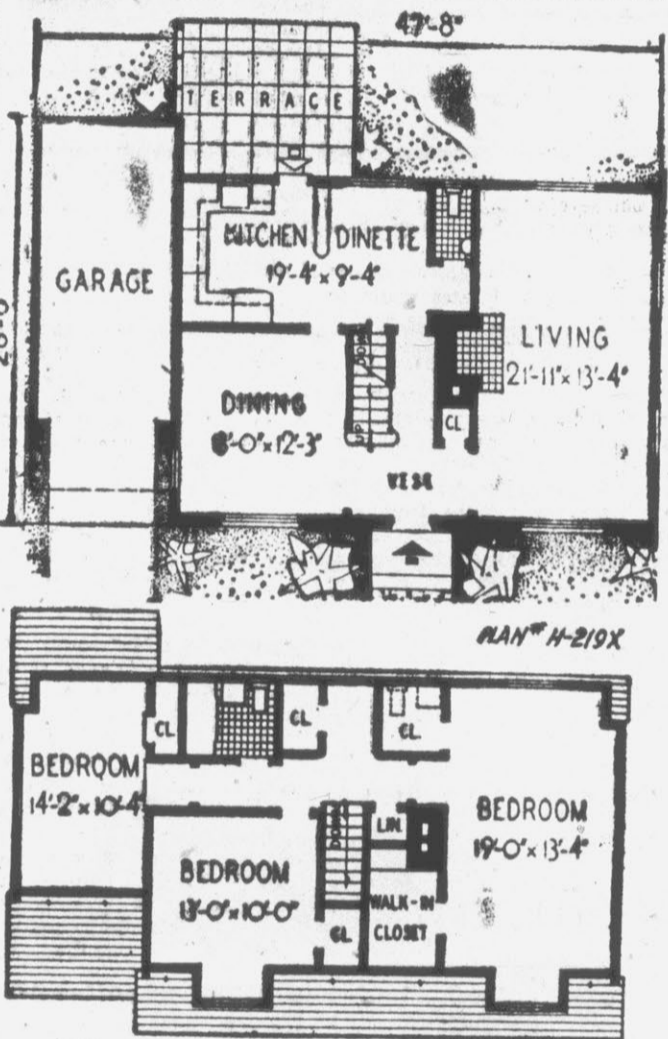

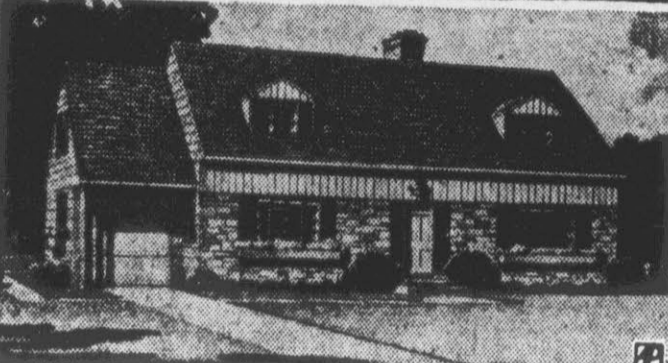

The network would be welded by a series of relays. Despite obstacles, the nations hope to get a "European program" going by June 1, in time to televise the world soccer championship game in Switzerland.

A comparative handful of the 47 million Italians got to see the nation's inaugural programs yesterday and today. TV sets are owned by only about 15,000 persons. The big reason—even a moderately priced set costs an average industrial worker half a year's pay.

To help finance its programs, the government charges an annual tax equivalent to $24.

The word "cemetery" literally means "sleeping place."

NOW! 5 Ford engines offer the mightiest concentration of power per cubic inch ever in any truck line! V-8 and SIX!

For the power they develop, the engines in the 1954 Ford Truck line have less cubic inch displacement than engines in other-make lines. For example, Ford's 239 cu. in. Power King V-8 develops its 130 h.p. on as much as 43 cu. in. less displacement. Smaller-displacement engines normally need less gas! That's one big reason why Ford concentrated power offers greater economy!

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

LORA THORNTON was arranging a display of juvenile fiction. She looked up inquiringly as Dale came toward her, smoothing on her gloves, smiling wryly. "I'm hired," she said. "Is your boss always so quick at making up his mind?"

There was no answering smile. "Not always. But once he makes it up, he stands by it." A dozen books slid from the careful pyramid under her hand and shot across the table to the floor. Crouched to pick them up, Lora Thornton said in a low voice, "Don't fall in love with him. It won't do you any good."

Dale's whole body trembled. She shifted the book from one hand to the other. "I'm not at all likely to," she said quietly.

A feeling of release from dark, strong undercurrents of emotion came to Dale as she stepped out into the bright sunshine. She was tempted to go back in and inform Jeffrey Windsor that she wanted nothing at all to do with him or his job. Grandy and Robert Browning, quelled the urge. And, after all, any emotional involvement between Lora Thornton and her employer was their business, not hers.

During the week they worked together in the bookshop, Lora was careful not to give Dale another revealing glimpse through an unguarded chink in her armor.

By the time Dale was on her own, she had a fairly thorough knowledge of her work her job entailed, and confidence in her ability to handle it. Figures were figures, and it made no difference, really, whether they were Jeffrey Windsor's or Joshua Wragg's.

Jeffrey Windsor turned his accounts entirely over to her.

"I'll look after the shop until you get this mess straightened out," he said. He grinned, a quick flash of a grin that Dale immune to his or any man's attractiveness, scarcely saw. He said, lounging against the desk, "If more people bought books, I'd be able to hire more help. Bit of a paradox, isn't it? The emphasis our generation puts on literacy, and the thousands of books on shelves gathering dust in year out, year out. The old story of the horse and the water. You can't make people buy books. Maybe I'm in the wrong line. I should be selling TV sets, or Yo-yos."

"If you like," she suggested, "I'll work nights on the bookkeeping until it's up to date."

"No need for that. Just take your time and slug through it." "I don't mind working at night."

He nodded at her casually. "All right, I'll have another key made for you."

"Oh, I'll take the work home with me."

He shrugged, after the briefest of pauses. "As you like. Where is 'home,' by the way?"

If he found her hotel address not in keeping with the salary he was paying her, he made no comment on it.

But with her life settling into a new pattern Dale was finding a hotel room inadequate. It rejected even her temporary, tentative roots. On a Sunday in May, with a pocketful of newspaper clippings, she set out to look for an apartment, not knowing, of course, where to look, or how.

Late in the afternoon, tired and discouraged, she was back in the hotel room, bailed by frowsy landladies impossible locations, apartments too big or too small, too noisy or too dirty. She took off everything but her underclothes and flattened out on the bed, almost too tired to lift off the receiver when the telephone rang. "Hi, Scotty!" came the boom of a man's voice.

"I am not Scotty."

She wished she were. Scotty was lucky to have a voice like that in her life to shout down her fatigue.

Her hand stayed on the receiver after she replaced it. A sense of communication, inexplicable but vivid, was in her. She jumped up and rifled through the telephone directory. Firmly she dialed a number. And presently she was saying, "Mrs. Galbraith? This is Dale E. Fraser. I have spent the day looking for an apartment and I'm licked! I thought maybe you could tell me where to look, or," she added ruefully, "where not to look."

Agatha's brisk voice took over as Dale's trailed off. "Who do you think I am, Aladdin?"

Dale's knuckles felt rapped. Yelling for help over the first hurdle! "You come and have dinner with me," Agatha was saying. "And don't wear that red dress. There's no need for it, this time. Eight o'clock, and don't be late. I have no patience with people who can't get to places on time."

The phone went dead.

Another command appearance and this time, Dale thought, I asked for it. She smiled her heart lightened. She was beginning to understand how two grown men could be push-overs for a domineering, bad-mannered, and thoroughly lovable old woman.

Agatha Galbraith was waiting for her in the brownstone house; alone, except for her servant Sarah—a quick shadow of a woman who never quite caught up with Agatha's vigor.

Sarah had built a cannel-coal fire in the grate, for the evenings still turned chilly. With golden flame light pouring into the room, flickering on leather and chintz and good old wood, Dale sat back and felt the tensions easing out of her.

"So you want to move out of that hotel," Agatha said. "Does that mean you have decided to stay here?"

"I don't know," Dale answered truthfully. "My job is one tie. An apartment could be another. Maybe," her face was grave. "I am deliberately forging chains so that I can't just jump up and run if anyone says boo to me."

Agatha surveyed her thoughtfully. "How would you like to come and live with me?"

Dale's eyes widened. After a moment, she said stiffly. "It's rather a benevolent gesture, isn't it? And one I don't understand."

"I never make gestures, and I hide my benevolence. As a matter of fact, I'm being selfish. I miss Andrea Parrish and the boys. I raised them, you know."

Dale looked surprised.

Agatha continued, "They outgrew this house and moved out on their own. We're all too markedly individualistic to live peaceably under one roof. Besides, I trained them to be independent and I like it myself. . . . Now, I'm too old for the lonely woman's usual solution of another marriage. I was married twice, you know. Both times happily." She poked at the fire and let a silence grow between them.

"There is no reason for you to bother with me, Mrs. Galbraith," Dale said finally.

"Ah, but there is," the old lady contradicted her. "You have been a part of my life from the night Phil sent Don in his place to escort me to the theater. Phil has never stood me up—I believe that's the phrase?—for any other girl. That makes you important. To Phil, I thought I doubt very much if he knows it yet, and therefore to me. So whether you live with me or not—her hands made a small movement of interweaving—"your life and mine are interwoven, Dale. How deeply depends on time, and events."

Dale stood up abruptly. "Phil and Don are my two friends. Not more, Mrs. Galbraith."

She looked into the flames trying to steady a trembling through her whole body. Presently she faced the older woman. "Isn't this a right-about face? First you warn me—oh, very subtly!—to keep my hands off your nephew. An unnecessary warning, I might add. But if I agree to live with you, doesn't it follow that I shall see more of both Phil and Don than you might approve?"

"Let's say I want a ringside seat," said Agatha blandly. "We are two lonely women, Dale. I have been all through what you are going through now. I might even be able to help."

Dale hesitated, and then in spite of herself, she began to smile. "You do push people around!"

"Only those who interest me, and whom I happen to like."

Unaccountably Dale's eyes were wet. Why did this woman remind her so much of Grandy? "I believe we could get along, Mrs. Galbraith."

"Oh, call me Aggie. Everyone does." She nodded at Sarah, who quietly announced that dinner was served. "Yes, we'll get along," she said, taking Dale's arm. "Things will not be smooth for you, Dale Fraser. You'll find the going rough. You have already haven't you? Someone like me might be handy to have around."

"I don't quite understand—"

"Oh yes, you do. You are neither a wife nor a maid—and as if that's not enough of a problem for any woman, you are young and you are beautiful. There'll be men who want to comfort a young and pretty widow, and there'll be times when you want to be comforted."

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

How to make the most out of windows is the secret of many home modernization projects. Windows have evolved from mere necessities for admitting a minimum of light and air to a point where they now are major architectural and decorative features.

You are not likely to go wrong on windows when planning a new house or a remodeling project if you understand some of the various uses of modern glass areas.

You can use windows to change the architectural lines of your house as well as to frame views. The awning type window, for example, is attracting much attention in emphasizing horizontal lines of low and rambling houses.

This window gets its name from its horizontal frames that open outward and upward awning fashion. It offers controlled ventilation in all weather, since the paneled water like little roofs. This makes it possible to have a window opened farther than a casement window or double-hung sash window could be opened in the face of rain or snow. Other advantages are that the awning panes deflect air upward into a room and can be cleaned on both sides from indoors.

A new aluminum awning window is now being introduced (Lupton by Michael Flynn Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia) which features a new type of opening device. A centrally operated and automatic locking control bar delivers equal power to both jambs of the window for easy opening and closing. The mechanism is concealed in the window frame so as not to interfere with venetian blinds. Vinyl plastic weatherstripping forms a tight seal around each awning pane.

Window walls have done much to inspire the development of new types of ventilating windows. Such large areas of glass extending from floor to ceiling involve extensive use of fixed panes, which cannot be opened. The picture window—usually consisting of one large single pane of plate glass—presents a similar ventilating problem.

One solution is to flank such fixed-pane windows with separate units which can be opened. The awning type fits into this scheme. So do casements, sliding windows and a top row of strip windows which open casement, sliding windows which open a casement-wise. In some instances ventilation is provided by louvers under fixed-pane windows with hopper style doors closing over the louver openings when ventilation is not required.

The invention of double-glazing in the form of two panes of glass sandwiching a sealed air space between them has been a big factor in popularizing fixed windows. Air conditioning has been another factor.

Although it is possible to have a house with all windows permanently sealed when year-round air conditioning is used, Cloud Wampler, president of the Carrier Corp., frankly admits that the public is not yet ready to accept that idea. He finds that women still want to open windows, admitting dust, in spite of the fact that air conditioning cleans and filters the air.

In planning window walls or picture windows it is prudent to remember that they draw a certain amount of kibitzing when you don't have enough land for privacy. When such windows are placed on the front of a house, or facing a neighbor's house, they inspire old saws about fishbowls and framing pictures "looking in" instead of out.

But with proper landscaping and especially on the rear garden side of a house, window walls can merge the best of the out-doors with the indoors.

Calls For Check On CPA Board

RALEIGH (AP)—Thomas V. Osborne, a Greensboro public accountant, has called for a detailed audit of the State Board of Certified Public Accountant Examiners.

Osborne, a high-handed practitioner by the CPA board, made his request in a letter to Gov. Umstead. He asked for Umstead's help in obtaining an investigation of the board.

He also requested that the attorney general be asked to rule on several questions of law concerning the board's financial operations. Osborne also wants the state board to furnish information on the number of applicants who have passed CPA examinations in the past 10 years.

He said the figures will show that less than 10 per cent of the applicants get CPA certificates. Osborne has failed to pass the written CPA exam and has been turned down on a request to take an oral exam for the certificate.

A. T. Allen of Raleigh, president of the CPA board, said the state law does not permit oral exams. Allen stated that the CPA board's operations are audited by the state auditor "and the records are open to everyone."

Allen said he has not read Osborne's letter to the governor and declined to comment on it. He added that Osborne "had the same chance everybody else has" in taking the CPA exams.

Osborne said he wants the attorney general to rule on whether the CPA board could legally use state funds to pay $3,175.45 in legal fees in a lawsuit brought against it. Also, whether the board had the right to pay a lobbying

Osborne said the state auditor audits receipts and disbursements of the board, but that a more detailed audit should be made.

Christmas giving through the cooperation of county welfare departments serving as clearing houses for gifts to the needy also increased this past year, Dr. Winston said. It is estimated that 10,000 families were aided by civic clubs, churches and other organizations, she added.

In the late Roman empire, the legions used cavalry more and more extensively and infantry did not begin to become important again in Europe until the Hundred Year's War.

Public Welfare Work Increases Children's Care

RALEIGH (AP)—The public welfare program in North Carolina saw an increase in child welfare services during the past year, according to Dr. Ellen Winston, state commissioner of public welfare.

She reported yesterday that there was an increase in the services available for children awaiting adoption through the greater use of boarding home funds.

A total of 1,416 adoption proceedings were pending in the state Dec. 1, she said, compared with 1,204 proceedings during all of 1952.

Banquet Honors Players, Officials Of Elk Bowl Event

West Europe's Dikes Battered

LONDON—Western Europe's dikes and sea walls, age-old bastions against the raging oceans, stood strong and firm today after 24 hours of battering by gale-churned seas.

Anxious watchers, remembering when flood waters burst through the dikes and wrecked vast areas of the Low Countries and Eastern England last February, sighed with relief as they watched the seas die down today.

In England, police and Coast Guards kept an all-night vigil in low coastal areas, then left their watch as weathermen reported soon after 10 a.m. that the crisis hour of high tide had passed safely.

In the Netherlands, where overnight water levels were the highest since last winter's floods in which 1,785 persons died, the situation was reported nearly back to normal.

Blizzards and heavy snowfalls were reported continuing in other places from Scandinavia down to Italy.

In Denmark, the little Jutland town of Randers was flooded. Townsfolk rowed today through water-logged streets to salvage their belongings.

W.S. Moye, Sr. Funeral Is Today

A banquet honoring players, coaches, and members of the official party of the Elk Bowl was held here Saturday night following the first annual Elk Bowl football game.

Awards for players and coaches including wrist watches, and certificates of appreciation for those who aided in launching the first annual Elk Bowl game were presented following the steak dinner.

Welcomed by Judge Albion Dunn, exalted ruler of the Greenville Elks Lodge, the guests were treated to a "speechless" program.

President E.E. Rawls, Sr. of the EOC Pirates Club, spoke the invocation and later in the program recognized Jim Carr of the Morris Harvey College team, winner of the most valuable player award presented following the game, and also Bob-Maxwell, Carr's teammate, and Edward (Emo) Boado of East Carolina, who were runners-up for the most valuable player award in the poll of sports writers and radio announcers covering the game.

Dr. J.D. Messick, president of the East Carolina College, cited the Elk Bowl as an event which has publicized Greenville, East Carolina College, and the North State Collegiate Athletic Conference, and voiced appreciation for EOC's invitation to participate in the classic. Dr. Messick was introduced with Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of athletics, and James W. Butler, alumni secretary and sports publicity director of EOC.

Athletic Director Eddie Cuban of Morris Harvey College, responded for his institution, telling the large gathering of athletes, Elks and other distinguished guests that the Golden Eagles, too, were happy to have had the privilege of playing in the bowl here.

The Elks Bowl is an athletic at-

No Pushover If Attacked Today

WASHINGTON—Gen. J. Lawton Collins says it is now doubtful the Russians could reach the English Channel if they unleashed an assault on Western Europe.

Collins, U. S. representative on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council, said yesterday on an NBC television show NATO forces now have twice the air strength available three years ago. In addition to 2,900 combat planes, he said, the Allies have 16 to 18 divisions immediately ready to fight.

Claim Terrorism Failing Rulers Of East Germany

WASHINGTON—A State Department publication says the Soviet-backed rulers of East Germany are practicing terrorism but reportedly are still encountering sidworn strikes and work stoppages.

Geoffrey W. Lewis wrote in the State Department Bulletin published yesterday that several thousand participants in the June revolt of Germans, including women and children, are reported to have been seen loaded aboard trains headed for the Soviet Union.

Lewis, head of the Office of German Affairs, said some Communist leaders "heads have rolled" and that there are indications of a purge of those who favored leniency toward the rebels and major changes in the party program.

Only one installation has been completed for the big missiles intended to seek out and destroy enemy aircraft. It is at Ft. Meade, Md., employed to defend Washington and Baltimore. The goal is understood to be about 35 battery sites guarding the northern border of the United States.

Shortages of both equipment and trained manpower are understood to have hampered the program.

Priorities Given Missile Bases

WASHINGTON—The Army reportedly hopes to overcome a half-year lag in its schedule for setting up Nike guided missile launching bases and have about 12 ready by midsummer.

Signs are that priority is being given obvious industrial targets such as the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area, Northern aircraft manufacturing centers like Buffalo and Seattle and the Chicago and nearby Indiana industrial complex.

Rift Came Over Matter Of Ham

ROME—(Film Star Shelley Winters has walked out on her matinee-idol husband, Vittorio Gassman, after a quarrel which began when she thought the was too much ham in his Hamlet.

"We had quite an argument," the blonde dramatic actress said in a Rome hotel this morning after confirming that she left Gassman—at the least temporarily—at a night before last. His interpretation of Shakespeare's Dane displeased her and they quarreled, Shelley reported.

She said Gassman talked to her last night by telephone from Genoa "but nothing was really settled."
