and superintendent of the Sunday School of the church.

He is a member of the board of commissioners of the town of Farmville to which he was elected last year.

H. Horton Rountree of Farmville, solicitor of Pitt County recorder's court since 1951, announced today he will seek the nomination of solicitor for the Fifth Judicial district in the Democratic primary May 29.

H. HORTON ROUNTREE

Rountree, a native of Farmville, has been solicitor of Pitt County's court since May, 1951 when he was appointed to the office to fill an unexpired term. In 1952, he was elected to the office for a two-year term, without opposition. He also served as assistant solicitor in Superior Court of Pitt County for one year.

"I feel that this office qualifies me for the office of Solicitor of the Fifth Judicial district," Rountree said in his announcement today. "If nominated and elected, I promise humbly and sincerely to exercise the duties of this office efficiently and expeditiously to the best of my ability."

Rountree, 32, began his law practice in Farmville in 1950 after receiving the LLB degree from the University of North Carolina. From 1942 until 1946, Rountree served in the United States Navy, part of which time he spent in the South Pacific.

Governor Concur: No Secrecy

Umstead Asserts Public Business Should Be Conducted 'In The Open'

RALEIGH (AP)—"Public business should be conducted in the open." This assertion by Gov. Umstead was fully agreed upon yesterday by newsmen, judges and law enforcement officers at an all-day "Freedom of Information" conference here.

They discussed problems and responsibilities of news media in the coverage of judicial and law enforcement agencies. The conference, sponsored by North Carolina members of the Associated Press, was aimed at emphasizing the right of the public to know its own business.

About 250 press and radio newsmen, judges, police officers, mayors, sheriffs, SBI and FBI officials attended.

Gov. Umstead delivered the keynote address. Holt McPherson, editor of the High Point Enterprise, served as general chairman.

At a luncheon, J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, delivered an address in which he condemned the secrecy law passed by the 1963 North Carolina Legislature.

Wiggins, chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, told the group, "I hope that if the Legislature will not long continue to punish the people for what some of its members looked upon as impatience in the press."

Charles H. Crutchfield of Charlotte, vice president and general manager of WBT-WBTV, served as moderator for a judiciary panel. D. Hiden Ramsey general manager of the Asheville Citizen-Times, was moderator of a law enforcement panel.

Sam Ragan, managing editor of the News and Observer, and one of the law enforcement panelists, told the group that "in the realm of crime both the police and the press have a responsibility—to the public. The police have a responsibility to catch the law-breaker, and the press to report the facts of the crime and the capture. And they both have the same common goal—the truth."

The group heard W. A. Murphy of Charlotte, special FBI agent, assert that there should be closer relationship between law enforcement officers and news media. He said it is better to give newsmen facts than have them print rumor.

Murphy questioned the propriety of televising trials, explaining that it might make witnesses more reluctant to testify.

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt told the group that in his office "we believe in making everything available to the press—even if it is somewhat embarrassing to us." As an example, he said, the Highway Patrol announced recently that it had fired a patrolman for speeding.

Greensboro Police Chief Jeter Williamson said, "I had much rather present the facts than have a reporter print gossip picked up around the cracker barrel." He said he was glad to see that the glorification of criminals is not so widespread as in years past.

William C. Lassiter of Raleigh, general counsel for the North Carolina Press Assn., declared, "Justice can never thrive in secrecy."

RECORD INCOME NEW YORK (AP)—The giant American Telephone & Telegraph Co., whose Bell System companies operate four-fifths of the nation's telephones, had a record net income of $421,060,000 in 1953.

Strikes Again BLADENBORO (AP)—The mysterious, night-hunting animal that has spread terror in this small town has struck again, police say.

Police Chief Roy Fores said last night that three more dogs have been killed by the beast of Bladenboro. That made 10 or more dogs slain here within the last two weeks. Bodies of all those found have been mangled and drained of blood.

The chief's report spiked hopes that the animal's raids were ended. Two wild cats were killed near here Wednesday, causing speculation that they might have been responsible for the dog killings.

One was a bobcat, trapped and shot in Big Swamp. The other was a spotted leopard cat run over by a service station operator.

Congress Generally Endorses Expanding Of Program Like Social Security Hike

By CHARLES F. BARRETT WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress appeared set today to give delayed but enthusiastic approval to President Eisenhower's plea for bigger benefits and more taxes under a social security system covering almost the entire population.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) gave this appraisal today: "There isn't any question but that this Congress will enact legislation substantially carrying out the President's program."

A key Democratic leader, asking not to be quoted by name, said, "You can bet your bottom dollar that few Democrats will oppose it."

Chairman Reed (R-NY) praised the program and said his House Ways and Means Committee will go to work on it, probably in early March.

Reed, who has fought the President on other points and who has opposed plans of past Democratic administrations to liberalize social security, introduced two bills to carry out Eisenhower's proposals.

One bill embraces the main proposal for extending coverage raising benefits and increasing from $3,600 to $4,200 the individual income limit on which the 3 per cent social security tax would apply.

The other would put into effect what is expected to be the most controversial part of the presidential program—revision of federal contributions to states for direct relief to persons not covered, including some needy aged, blind, disabled persons and dependent children.

Reportedly Reed divided the legislation so that, if opposition makes it necessary, social security expansion can be pushed without becoming involved in any fight over the welfare program.

Monthly benefit increases would go to those already retired or receiving survivors' payments and in larger measure to those becoming eligible in the future. The increases would range from $5 to, ultimately, $23.50 or more for families.

Coverage also would be extended to almost the entire working force—10½ million additional persons, including doctors, lawyers and farmers.

Recommendations For Congress Sent President

'Invite' Voting Pay Increase

By ED CREAUGH WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators and House members were invited today to vote themselves a $12,500 a year pay increase. This would boost their salary to $27,500 a year.

A special commission set up to study salary problems also recommended a $14,500 a year increase for Supreme Court justices comparable raises for other federal judges and higher expense allowances for the vice president and speaker of the House.

The committee's report to President Eisenhower made other recommendations: 1. A government-provided official mansion for Vice President Nixon and his successors in the post.

2. A further study of pensions for the widows and dependents of the various officials. It said there is no such provision now for survivors of justices and other judges and "inadequate" provisions for congressional families.

It's up to Congress itself to decide whether to vote these increases or settle for smaller ones or none at all.

The resolution creating the 18-member nonpartisan commission gives the legislators 60 days to make up their minds. There is nothing to stop them from extending that period, however.

And, with election coming up this year for a third of the Senate and all of the House members, it may take them quite a while to decide whether it would be politically wise to give themselves the increase almost all of them want.

An early sampling of congressional opinion indicated the Senate may well vote for some sort of increase. The outlook in the House is more doubtful. Whatever they do about their own pay, the legislators are almost certain to raise judges' salaries.

The commission, headed by Bernard G. Segal, an attorney of Philadelphia, agreed unanimously that members of Congress and federal judges should get higher salaries as a means of "assuring the nation top-flight leadership."

There was some difference of opinion, however, as to how big the increases should be.

The compromise recommendation if finally adopted would cost the taxpayers a total of $11,336,000 a year. Some four million dollars of this, however would be paid back in the form of income tax.

The proposed salary scale would give associate justices of the Supreme Court $36,500 a year, compared with the present $28,000. The chief justice would continue to get an extra $500. Federal district judges would be raised from $15,000 to $27,500. Appeals Court judges from $17,500 to $30,500.

Congress' last increase in compensation was in 1946. At that time the lawmakers raised themselves from $10,000 a year to $15,000.

The commission took note of the higher cost of living nowadays and said that in addition that legislative and judicial salaries are inadequate, out of balance with the responsibilities of the offices and the pay of other officials and executives in private industry.

Compromise efforts are still going on. Bricker had a date today with Atty. Gen. Brownell and Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, at the Justice Department.

Time is running out on the compromise attempts, going on now for about three weeks without success. The Bricker proposal is scheduled as the Senate's next major business.

Knowland said last night: "It is the firm judgment of the Senate Republican leadership of the Senate that further efforts should be made to work out an area of agreement."

With the administration backing Knowland's proposed amendment and Bricker standing firm on his language, the impasse has dug deep into Republican unanimity, with Democrats generally watching in silence.

Compromise On Bricker Amendment Issue Sought

Try Avoiding Of Showdown

WASHINGTON (AP)—A resolution circulated among most senators may become the rallying point for Eisenhower administration's attack on the proposed Bricker amendment to limit the government's treaty powers.

The suggested resolution was sent around to all but about 10 of the 96 senators last Saturday by Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.).

Unlike the proposal by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) and an administration-backed substitute by Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California, the resolution would not amend the Constitution. It would simply put the Senate on record as affirming certain attitudes toward treaties and their domestic effect. It would also require a recorded roll call vote when the Senate ratifies treaties.

Bricker argues that an amendment to the Constitution is needed to insure that basic American liberties shall not be taken away by treaties which, he says, might supersede domestic law and the Constitution itself. Lawyers disagree as to whether this is a real danger.

President Eisenhower has said Bricker's proposal would hamper his conduct of foreign affairs, while agreeing that no treaty should contravene domestic law.

There has been no public response to Kefauver's resolution.

Mr. Dean offers the view which has long been held by pro-Red apologists in the State Department that "there is a possibility that the Chinese Communists are more interested in developing themselves in China than they are in international communism."

"I can't believe anything can be farther from the truth," Dean, a former law partner of Secretary of State Dulles broke off preliminary peace talks with the Communists at Panmunjom.

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur H. Dean, special U.S. ambassador to Korea, denies favoring a policy of "appeasement" toward Red China—as charged by Sen. Herman Welker (R-Idaho)—and terms Welker's attack on him a "great aid to the Communists."

In a Senate speech yesterday, Welker referred to an interview with Dean published Jan. 3 in the Providence (R.I.) Journal and said:

"Mr. Dean offers the view which has long been held by pro-Red apologists in the State Department that 'there is a possibility that the Chinese Communists are more interested in developing themselves in China than they are in international communism.'"

"I shall continue to do everything I can to help the Far East and Southeast Asia to fight communism. I have spent most of the last five months trying to solve the Korean problem, which is a very tough nut to crack."

Pressures Mount For Lowering Some Cold War Trade Barriers

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—Pressures are mounting on the Eisenhower administration to lower some of the cold war trade barriers so as to permit more trade between the United States and Russia and its satellites.

Many top officials responsible for international economic policy feel some decisions will have to be made fairly soon. Meanwhile, it appears to be developing between the interests favoring trade and those wishing to maintain maximum economic pressure on the Communist bloc.

The issue may come into focus upon an application by Minnesota businessman Dwayne Andreas for permission to export 20,000 tons of agri-exports to Russia.

There are several forces pressing strongly for official sanction of greater trade with the Soviet Union and satellite countries. They are:

1. The development of a buyer's market—meaning a supply of goods running consistently above the demand.

2. The accumulation of vast stores of surplus agricultural commodities in the United States.

3. A slow move toward general easing of international tensions. The more the Soviet make friendly gestures, the more traders everywhere tend to look for business with the Soviet Union.

But on the other side is a set of arguments which remains powerful and which has many adherents especially in the State Department and probably in the Defense Department as well. They include:

POW Return Not A Plan, But Decision, Says Indian

PA-MUNJOM (AP)—An Indian spokesman said today his command will turn back 22,500 unrepatriated war prisoners whether they are Allies or Communists or neither.

The return will begin Wednesday. Although the Indians are awaiting replies to letters of notification sent both commands yesterday the spokesman said the tenor of the replies will make little or no difference.

Asked by a reporter if the Indians would go ahead with their plan the spokesman said with emphasis: "It is not our plan—it is our decision."

The United Nations is certain to accept the prisoners at any time, but the attitude of the Communists is not known. Most Allied newsmen and officers expect it to be strongly opposed.

The U. S. 8th Army said it is ready to accept anti-Red Korean and Chinese prisoners at any time.

The Indian spokesman said no attempt will be made to screen the prisoners during the turnback, but that any man who wants to take the last chance for repatriation can do so without danger.

He said the men will be marched out of compounds in small groups of 25 each, with Indian guards nearby, so that any man who wants to break away from his fellow prisoners can do so.

Blizzard Hits Montana; Cold Blast To Spread

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—Blizzard conditions gripped Montana early today and the first severe winter storm of the season pushed into Wyoming and spilled over the Continental Divide on the heels of 40-mile winds.

The cold wave, spawned in Canada, was expected to cover all of parts of six northern states by Saturday.

The Helena Weather Bureau issued a special advisory that Montana temperatures would dive today and tonight, reaching 30 below in the north and 10 below in the south.

Up to 12 inches of snow had fallen in the Flathead Valley in northwestern Montana.

The forward edge of the storm numbered Sheridan, Wyo., and other points near the Montana border, and edged into Idaho and North and South Dakota. It was expected to hit Colorado tonight or early Saturday.

The fresh blast of arctic air also spread into northern Minnesota, sections of Michigan and northwestern Wisconsin sending temperatures below zero early today. Freezing temperatures extended southward from this area into wide areas of the Midwest. The forecast was for much colder weather tonight and Saturday for the mid-continent.

Blizzard conditions closed schools in Northwestern Montana. One commercial airline bypassed Helena yesterday because of limited visibility. Buses from the west were running nearly three hours late. Police discouraged any kind of auto travel because of slick highways.

Forecasters said the cold air mass was by far the largest to push down from Canada this winter and a major portion still hovered there early today, sending temperatures down to -33 at Edmonton and -23 at Calgary.

As the cold wave flowed slowly southward, Wyoming temperatures varied at 5 a.m. from -5 at Sheridan in the north to 30 at Cheyenne in the southeast corner. Colorado's lowest, meanwhile, was 18 at Fraser in the Rockies.

Temperatures were generally around normal levels in most other sections of the country and on the rise over most of the eastern third of the country.

Light rain or drizzle fell over southern New Mexico, central Texas and northern Arkansas and eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

He said that the first Jaycee club in North Carolina was formed in 1929. "By 1937 there were eight clubs and today there are 95 chapters."

In pointing out projects in 1953 by the local Jaycees, he said a talent show for the Crusade of Freedom was held, drives for the March of Dimes and Elm Street Park pro-

The crew reported that they were based at the Cherry Point Marine Air Base.

Dr. Humbert Speaks To PTA Members On Bloodmobile Work

GRIFTON—The Griffon Parent-Teachers Association met in regular session on Tuesday night with Mrs. Robert Levine, president, presiding. Rev. R. C. Mooney Jr. conducted the devotional.

"The Financial Needs of the School," a report worked out by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bradley, Mr. Ed Bright and C. R. Cobb, was given by Mr. Bright.
To begin his talk, Mr. Bright spoke of the new classroom building which is under construction. This building will help greatly to relieve overcrowded conditions which now exist here. He went on to say that the building would be used for an elementary department as well as a home economics department. He cited progress that had been made locally in the home ec. department but said that much would have to be done before Griffon would be eligible for federal funds and vocational home economics.

The principal said that the only funds in sight were the state bond issue money and that he did not know when it would be made available and what the stipulations would be. He stressed the need for a larger auditorium and physical education plant. He went on to discuss the small needs of the school, those that the P.T.A. can work toward—the library, shrubbery and the posts that are being put around the campus.
At the conclusion of his talk, Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Pitt County health doctor, took charge of the program and discussed the Bloodmobile which will be here February 8. In discussing the organization of the Bloodmobile program in Pitt County, he pointed out that Pitt County is assigned 14 visits of the mobile from Norfolk. Six of these visits are assigned to Greenville, with two being held in Ayden, Bethel, Farmville and Griffon.

The reason that Griffon is assigned two visits even though it is much smaller is that on past visits Griffon has donated just as much as the larger towns. On the August visit, the 119 pints given here was even more per capita than was given in Greenville.

In discussing the need for a successful drive in the county he pointed out that it is the only available source of gamma globulin so vitally needed in our fight against polio. "Of course, the blood plasma and dried corpuscles are always needed," he stated.

Griffon has been assigned a quota of 170 pints. Approximately 200 donors must be had because about 30 must be turned away for various reasons.

Bill Dawes, Charles Kline and Mrs. Richard Pate are making plans for the mobile which will be here on February 8 from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

At the conclusion of the program, a group of parents saw a film, "Mothers' March on Polio," which was narrated by Helen Hayes and shown by Julia Fisher of Greenville.

Clubs Make Plans For Annual Valentine Dance

Members of the Future Business Leaders of America and of Pi Omega Pi, honorary scholastic business education fraternity, at East Carolina College are making plans for their annual Valentine dance, a colorful event of campus social life for the past few years. It is scheduled for Friday, February 12, in the Wright building.

Selection by popular vote of a King and a Queen of Hearts to preside at the dance will be a new feature of this year's entertainment. Coronation of those chosen for the honor will be the theme of the evening.

Julian Vainright of Greenville, president of the FBLA, and Donald McGlohon of Winterville, president of Pi Omega Pi, have announced a number of committee appointments. Chosen as co-chairmen of the dance are Jack Hudson of Kinston and Curtis Hendrix of Greenville.

Chairmen of other committees include Bobbie Lou Avant, Whiteville; Peggy Nash, Durham; Edwin Gore, Ash; Shirley Newton, LaGrange; Ann Bynum, Farmville; Frances Buck, Grimesland; Betty Sue Branch, Greenville; Florence Helms, Portsmouth, Va.; William H. Roks, Turkey; Keith Godson, Greenville; Kenneth Bordeaux, Mount Olive; and E. A. Thomas, Wilmington.

Mrs. Shewbrook sent in many pictures and clippings from the papers during the convention and Mrs. Spilman presented them in a most interesting manner.

Following the program delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Wooten, assisted by her daughter, Miss Alice Wooten.

New Look In Spring Fashions Is Slim, Silken And Feminine

By DOROTHY ROE
NEW YORK (AP)—The new look in spring fashions is slim, silken and feminine.

This was evident today as New York designers opened a crowded week of spring fashion showings for some 150 visiting fashion editors, revealing what U.S. women will wear in the Easter parade. Year-round, weather-wise fashions are the big news of the new collections, designed for wear in almost any season. The new lightweight silk suits and coats will do duty all through the summer, some going on into winter beneath fur coats.

Having discovered in past seasons that the weather is likely to jump straight from winter into summer, designers are showing low-necked, short-sleeved suits, coats and dresses of featherweight fabrics. The dress-and-jacket ensemble in fine-trimmed silk print is one of the important styles of the season, as is the silk tweed suit and the dark silk fitted coat.

The narrow silhouette is almost universal in daytime clothes, shown in empire sheaths and high-waisted suits. The line through the midriff is skin-tight and will permit no concealing drapery to hide excess poundage. So we may expect a new wave of dieting just before Easter.

Designers achieve the high waisted-look in many ways. Some suits have skirts which reach to just below the bust, to meet a fitted jacket which ends at this point. Some coats are belted just below the bust, or have half-belts just below the shoulder-blades in back. There are dresses which are seamed or tucked from bust to natural waistline to achieve the moulded midriff look, and suits which employ a wide crushed cummerbund for the same effect.

Smooth, ladylike styles are the order of the season, in luxurious fabrics and sophisticated cut. New suits do tricks, displaying such innovations as peekaboo jewels half hidden by a slot or pocket flap, handkerchief pockets in the elbow, button-in vests or collars of linen or pique, stick-pin flowers stuck in a pocket.

Instead of summer furs, one designer shows filmy crisp organza stoles for wear with suits, coats and dresses. Sheer lace-trimmed linen collars and handkerchiefs with tweed suits are another whimsy of the same house.

There's a softly feminine touch even to the most tailored costumes, which have smoothly rounded lines above the belt, petal lapels, open necklines, dress-maker detail in rounded pockets, jewel trimmings and accessories. Expert workmanship reaches a new high in this season's ready-made fashions, which have the feminine shape built-in, through carefully moulded inner construction. This year a dress retains its shape even when hanging in the closet.

Skirts are on the average one inch shorter than those of last season, though the difference is imperceptible in many collections. The short-lived threat of knee-length skirts is past, and the usual length is mid-calf, the most becoming line for most women.

Fabrics, make headlines in the new fashions, with silks that look like wool, wools that look like silk and cotton that look like both. Satiny smooth, chiffon weight suitings of silk and wool or mohair blends are tops in spring importance.

Colors are subtly grayed in silvery tones of navy, gray, beige and charcoal for many suits and coats, and go into pale pastels in the popular jewel-trimmed fleece coats.

The black or navy fitted silk coat is a top favorite of the season, as is the silk suit, either in dark solid colors or in subtle prints.

Mrs. Ruel Tyson Leads Program At B.P.W. Club Meeting

The Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club met Thursday night at 7 o'clock at the Woman's Club.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Ruel Tyson, State BPW Legislative Chairman. Mrs. Tyson led a panel composed of Mrs. Ruth Garner, Ada Jones and Julia Fisher. Mrs. Garner discussed the history and background of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Miss Jones gave arguments pro and con in relation to the amendment and Miss Fisher explained the effects of the Hayden rider on the Equal Rights Amendment. This timely program was of particular interest to women. Similar programs are being given at BPW Club meetings all over the state.

The Greenville BPW Club is sponsoring the 1954 March of Dimes drive in Pitt County. At the meeting Miss Julia Fisher, campaign director, and other March of Dimes committee chairman reported that the Pitt County Drive is proceeding smoothly.

Mrs. Sarah Proctor, president, presided over the meeting at which 36 attended. New members present were Dorothy Bolton and Billie Carr. Guests of the club were Evelyn Mullen, Raleigh, and Mrs. E. R. Bolt, Greenville.

The February program will be given by Catherine Walsh, Health and Safety Chairman. Mrs. Walsh announced that the February meeting will be Birthday Night. She also announced that Thelma Harmon, District BPW Director, and Ruby Blythe, 1st vice-president of the State BPW Federation, will be present for the meeting to be held in February.

'Books and Stuff'

DR. ED. HIRSHBERG

By E.W. Hirschberg

This is Southern Exposure Week, on account of the weather, and also because we've been reading "Southern Accent," by William T. Polk, which came out just a few months ago. Mr. Polk is from Warrenton and is the associate editor of the Greensboro Daily News. He knows the South thoroughly, and does a terrific job describing it, without being either too sentimental or too objective. He subtitled his book "From Uncle Remus to Oak Ridge," and he covers a lot of territory between these extremes, from what the South was once to what it is now to what it might become in the future. He touches on history, literature, cotton, tobacco, Jefferson and economics—everything, in short, that anybody would want to know who is interested in the South—and after all, who isn't interested in the South? Here's a description of how things were about a hundred years ago, which Mr. Polk quotes from an account by Dr. Francis P. Gaines, as a sample of what you can expect by way of atmosphere: The homes "are almost palatial, social activity is ceaseless, cultured, idyllic; men are gallant, courtly—principally the favorite adjective—provincial in the uncalculating Southern fashion; the heroines are beyond description in beauty, sentimentality, and the ineffable sickness from which the ineffable sickness from which es." Doesn't it remind you of Greenville in the Spring? And our E.C.C. co-eds? If you like the South, read "Southern Accent," and you'll like it even better. . . . Another book of interest to Southerners is a brand new one by Eudora Welty, called "The Ponder Heart." It's a novel, written against a background of Miss Welty's native Mississippi. The reviewer, in the New York Times, V.S. Pritchett, who is an English author and critic currently lecturing at Princeton, has these interesting remarks to make about southern novelists in general: "In some ways the novelists of the American South have the independent force of the writers of the Irish revival. . . . In any case, they are all brilliant deviators from a main tradition. They are a protest by old communities, enriched by wounds, against the success of mass, or polyglot, culture. They make a pawky local bid against the strong hand of the centralized society we live in."

Also of interest to southern readers is an article in the January Atlantic Monthly, called "New England and the South," by Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts. It deals with the delicate question of New England industry and its wholesale move to southern localities, something which New Englanders feel rather strongly about, according to some of their Congressmen. Senator Kennedy's article is singularly calm and sensible, in contrast to others about the same subject, and proposes several interesting compromise measures to resolve sectional differences. . . .

We've been looking at some of the paper-backs in the various stores around town and have been wondering why titles like "The Big Kill" and "Stripped for Murder," "Pistol Pete" and "The Six-Gun Kid" have to be so much in evidence. Actually, the paper-backs aren't nearly as bad as they look. A student of ours once described the sales appeal of the paper backs this way: "If there's a girl on the jacket, and no jacket on the girl, the book will sell." We suppose that's pretty much the way it is still, but we understand the publishers are engaging on a campaign to clean up their covers, despite the possible effect that such a clean-up might have on sales. And notwithstanding the covers, a very large percentage of the paper-backs are excellent books—such titles, for a paltry 25 cents or 35 cents, are available as "The Robe," "The Cardinal," Arthur Koestler's "Darkness at Noon," and Theodore Dreiser's "An American Tragedy." You just have to ask for them—whether there's a girl on the jacket or not. . . .

Last Sunday night we listened to Dr. E.D. Johnson, the associate Librarian at East Carolina College, giving his weekly book talk over State WGTC. It was solid, sound and stimulating, and well worth listening to. Tomorrow night he'll be on again, from 9 to 9:15 and he'll discuss four or five books giving background information on the coming Big Four conference. Should be interesting. . . .

Our reviewer today brings us back to the South. He's Bob Hill-drup, the Reflector's versatile sport editor, who also has the same job on the college newspaper, the East Carolinian. Bob describes himself as "definitely a North Carolinian," even though we understand there is a slight taint of Virginia in his background. He reviews the latest book written by James A. Michener, author of "Tales of the South Pacific" and "Return to Paradise."

Religious Emphasis Week starts at the College on Monday, and there is an interesting display of religious titles in the College Library. And this evening try-outs for the Passion Play, based on the famous Oberammergau version, will be held in the fellowship hall at Jarvis Memorial Church. The production, scheduled for April 12, 13 and 14, is being sponsored by the St. James Methodist Church.

THE BRIDGES AT TOKO-RI, By James A. Michener. Random House, 1953.

Though "The Bridges at Toko-ri" should undoubtedly be classed as a novel of warfare, proponents of the great stories of World War II such as "The Young Lions" and "The Naked and the Dead" may well be disappointed in this latest work by James A. Michener.

Dedicated simply to Marshall U. Beebe, Jet Pilot, this book reaches a height and masterful story telling and drama without the usage of vice and excessive profanity. By avoiding any such "crutches" to help his story along Michener nevertheless tells this story of the men of naval task force 77 with a grip-

CHECKING A GIFT—Hollanders listen to a carillon of 49 bells in a test at Rotterdam. Carillon is Dutch gift to America for its part in liberation of The Netherlands.

From the moment the author begins his tale the reader finds himself gripped by the lives of the pilots and men of the aircraft carrier Savo as they steam into communist-held waters.

Without artificial drama Michener tells of the pilots who dread the day of the strike against the Korean bridges at Toko-ri, of the admiral who finds his only solace in the Navy and of the men who make the operations of the task force possible.

The characters in his novel are few but in the short space of 150 pages Michener brings them vividly to life. Admiral Tarrant, commander of the force, Lt. Brubaker, the pilot who feels he has been wronged by being recalled to active duty, Mike Forney, the helicopter pilot whose job it is to rescue downed pilots, each in his own way contributes to the success of the task force's mission.

Long before the conclusion of the book the reader senses that Brubaker is to die during the strike on the bridges and it is in this manner only that "The Bridges at Toko-ri" might dip into romanticism.

Michener's work is an obvious attempt to bring home to the American people the grim reality of the Korean conflict and the story of the thousands of men doing a job which they hate.

"Where did we get such men?" is the question printed in red inside the cover of the book, and it is this challenge that Michener seems to be trying to answer. To say that a cut and dried solution is found, however, would be erroneous, but this novel still may needle some American consciences. — Bob Hill-drup.

Fire Brings New Lease On Life

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Fire Marshal Eugene Mulligan and a fire department inspector went to a house next door to the scene of a fire to ask if they could use the telephone. They found Mrs. Helen Peterson and her seven children all partly overcome from lack of oxygen caused by the flame in a ventless hot water heater.

"I guess the Lord sent us to that particular house," Mulligan said later. "I don't think they would have died, but they would have been much sicker if we hadn't arrived when we did."

MILWAUKEE—Music has been Sol Shapiro's profession for 40 years. He has run a delicatessen store for the past eight years to bolster his income. Now, nearing 60, he also is turning artist to round out a happy life.

Sol plays the violin and leads a small orchestra. He worked in movie theaters until talkies killed live music there. When live musical shows come to town he still leads the orchestra or plays the violin. There have been chances to play with major symphony orchestras, but he wanted to live in Milwaukee. Once, he went to Hollywood, but there he visited a friend in one of the studios who took a pill every little while for his chronic indigestion.

Salami Important

"So I said to myself that Hollywood is no place for a man like me who enjoys his salami."

The need for money, not his appetite for salami, was the reason for his delicatessen. It has proved a small bonanza, he says.

He explains his art this way: "In the old days, when I was playing the violin better than I do now, I would go through a favorite piece of music and make it sound just as it should. When I played the piece again, something would be lost and I might never recapture it."

Art Is Durable

"With painting it is different. There it is on canvas and I can look at it as often as I like." As a painter, he says, he aims to be a "primitive with a professional touch."

In painting he has not drifted entirely away from music. One of his pictures shows the gleaming wood of a violin melting into melody and drifting away as the spirit of the instrument. He has done a similar study of the piano.

"My advice to anyone who wants to get away from this life is to get up work with oils, water colors or

Dr. Keister, who joined the East Carolina faculty last fall, is known to many concert goers as director of the December, 1953, performance at the college of Handel's "The Messiah." The event was attended by an audience of approximately 3,000 people from the eastern part of the state.

Two band concerts will be presented on the campus during a two-day session of the Eastern Division of the All State Band Clinic. The East Carolina College Concert Band will play Friday, February 5, at 8 p.m. in the College Theatre. The following night a Clinic Band of more than a hundred high school students will present a program at the same hour and place.

Two senior students in the department of music will give their graduating recitals in February. Dolores Matthews of Henderson, pianist, will appear Tuesday, February 9, at 8 p.m. in the Austin auditorium. Five Prominent Speakers To Assist In Spiritual Emphasis Week

Five outstanding speakers, prominent in educational and religious activities in North Carolina, will participate in programs offered during Spiritual Emphasis Week at East Carolina College. The event will open next Monday morning, January 18 with an assembly at 10 o'clock in the Wright building, and will continue through Thursday, January 21.

Guest speakers shown above are (left to right): Dr. Gordon W. Lovejoy educational consultant for the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Guilford College; Harry S. Jones, director of the Carolina Region of the NCCJ; Rabbi Nathan Hershfield of Temple Emanuel, Gastonia, professor of Old Testament at Livingston College, Salisbury; the Rev. William W. Finlator, minister at the First Baptist Church, Elizabeth City; and Dr. James G. Huggin, minister at the Central Methodist Church, Shenandoah.

Dr. Huggin will make the keynote address of Spiritual Emphasis Week Monday morning. Following the general theme of the week "Our Moral and Spiritual Heritage: This Nation Under God", he will speak on the topic "Spiritual Foundations of American Life: What Are They?"

Evening assemblies during the week will be held at 7 o'clock in the Austin auditorium. Dr. Lovejoy will speak Monday on "Maintaining the Spiritual Foundations: Have We Abandoned Our Spiritual Heritage?"

Other assembly speakers will be Rabbi Hershfield, Tuesday "Basic Institutions of American Life: The Home, the School, the Church"; and Mr. Finlator, Wednesday, "The American Way Versus the Communist Way: What Are the Basic Conflicts?" Thursday the guest speaker will discuss "Interreligious Cooperation: How Can We Work Together." Open forums following the major addresses will be conducted by Mr. Jones.

The public is invited to attend events of Spiritual Emphasis Week. The program has been arranged under the leadership of Dr. Carl V. Harris, director of religious activities at the college, and W. Parker Marks of Speed, president of the Interreligious Council of East Carolina College, sponsor of the week's activities.

Berlin Again Demonstrates Russia, U.S. Have Big Gap

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nothing shows better than events of the past three days the gap between the United States and Russia and how dim is the chance for agreement on their biggest problems.

After many speeches here and in Moscow about getting together, exchanges of notes extending over months, and much maneuvering the two powers reached the point of sitting down in the same room to talk.

Not talk about what they wanted to talk about. Just talk about arranging the time and place for the real talks.

The three allies—United States, Britain, France—have exchanged notes with Russia since last summer, trying to set up a meeting of their foreign ministers.

Agreement at last. They'd meet in Berlin, Jan. 26. But where in Berlin? In East Berlin, controlled by Russia? Or in West Berlin, controlled by the Western Allies?

armed Germany. And Russia could hardly yield to him.

President Eisenhower and Russia's Premier Malenkov made speeches during 1953 on relations between the two countries. In December Eisenhower suggested: They sit down and talk about pooling some of their atomic materials for peace. If that succeeds, he indicated, maybe they could go on to talk about getting rid of the atom bomb.

Starlings Have Special Chaser

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP)—The Pennsylvania State University has a starling chaser. It cleared the nearby community of Millheim (pop. 1,000) of 15,000 starlings and certain areas of State College before the birds departed on their annual migration.

The birds moved out when treatment was applied in August, and didn't return. The treatment consists of the amplification of a very special noise.

"The noise," Dr. Herbert W. Prings explains, "will not arouse the robins, grackles, nor cowbirds, but we feel we can develop a treatment for them also."

The Stuart kings of England were enthusiastic devotees of cock fighting and it was long called the "royal sport."

Camera News

ACTION at a Sweden-Japan soccer meet at night was snapped by the Zunow f1.1 lens at wide open aperture at 1-200 second. The 35mm Super XX film was developed in DK 20 for 20 minutes and the original print enlarged 30 times.

DOUBLE PURPOSE camera case has a built-in flash reflector and B-C unit ready to connect with a 35mm camera.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The New Year got off to a fast start for me with the arrival of a report from Tokyo of Japanese large scale production of the fastest lens in the world. No longer a dream, a blueprint or a mathematical formula, Japan's booming optical industry is making the f 1.1, which is twice as fast as the present f 1.5 and f 1.4 super speed lenses and ten times faster than the popular f 3.5 lens used on many good amateur cameras. The new jet lenses will be for use on standard 35mm still and 16mm motion picture cameras. Till now, experimental lenses of that speed or faster have required curved or cupped film, making them commercially unfeasible.

Telling the story of this achievement, the newspaper Asahi, Japan's biggest daily, relates it is the culmination of ten hard years' work that began with a request from the Imperial Japanese Navy. During the last war, they wanted a super-fast lens that would take aerial shots at dawn and dusk. Two optical experts began the work late in the war, succeeded in making three samples of an f 1.2 lens. However, an air raid destroyed their factory and samples.

After the war, the two experts, Sakuo Suzuki and Dosaburo Hamano, began again. Success came 50,000 blueprints later involving hundreds of thousands of mathematical calculations and measurements down to two millionths of an inch. The "Zunow f 1.1" is composed of nine separate elements (pieces of optical glass). The secret of the design is their shape and arrangement to eliminate all possible distortion and at the same time to allow the greatest possible depth of field consistent with its phenomenal speed.

Asahi reports that a new plant has been finished and the lens company hopes to swing into full production of 1500 units per month by this March. Only lenses will be made, not cameras, and the formula will not be licensed. The price of the lens, in Japan, before taxes, will be about $150.

An f 1.1 lens, coupled with the newest fast films, will enlarge photography's horizon still further. Its greatest possibilities is in shooting action indoors under natural light conditions at snapshot speed exposures.

What's new? If you want to see three dimensional movies at its best yet, I believe "Miss Sadie Thompson," starring Rita Hayworth, is it. This is real 3 D in gorgeous color, scenic locale, and technical camera work. It requires the wearing of polarized glasses, without which a realistic feeling of true depth is impossible.

When I saw Cinerama and Cinemascope I was impressed by the large picture rather than a feeling of real depth. When I saw the early 3 D pictures requiring polarized glasses, I was disappointed (in some cases, horrified would be nearer correct) at the technical imperfections which resulted in eye strain. So I approached a preview of "Miss Sadie Thompson" quite warily, along with a stereo expert. After seeing it, we both felt it was a photographic triumph, a justification of the possibilities of 3 D.

There are no objects or people hurtling at the audience; there are no exaggerated camera tricks to make the foreground loom too close. There is an extreme close-up of Rita where her face fills the whole screen but the features are all in pleasing proportions and it looks quite natural!

A new idea in camera cases, with a built-in flashgun, has been put on the market by Willoughby's, New York camera store. At present, this combination fits only the Voigtlander "Prominent" 35mm camera but other models for other cameras are expected in the future.

When closed, the Camera-Flash Case looks like a standard leather case; opened, one compartment has a B-C flash unit which is connected to the camera while the other compartment holds the reflector. It sells for $29.95.

A hundred-page booklet on how to use "Your Simple Flash Camera" by Howard Luray has been published by Camera Craft of San Francisco ($1.75). This can be a valuable guide to better pictures by the owners of inexpensive cameras if the advice is read and digested. This applies especially if you are likely to take pictures of children, pets, family events, vacations, and parties.

The author tells also how to take the flash off the camera to get more pleasing effects by bounce flash, where the light is aimed at the ceiling or walls for softer lighting with a more natural look.

'Golden Circle' Had Big Filmdom Failure

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Whatever happened to the Golden Circle?

A couple of years ago Paramount put forth a big hoopla about a dozen or so young hopefuls who were supposedly destined for stardom. The campaign was designed to duplicate a previous Golden Circle, which fostered such names as Susan Hayward, William Holden, Ellen Drew and Patricia Morrison.

Today only one of the most recent Golden Circle remains at Paramount — Joan Taylor. Another, Mary Murphy, had a lead in a Marlon Brando picture. But only Barbara Rush appears to be working regularly in movies. One of the circle alumni was recently reported working in a gas station.

Barbara Rush's fortunes are prospering at Universal-International. She has been doing leads, her latest being opposite Rock Hudson in "Taza, Son of Cochise." I had lunch with her and she told me why the circle proved to be something less than golden:

"It was doomed from the start.

As a matter of fact, I don't think it was such a good idea. They spent a lot of money promoting the circle as an institution, even took all of us to New York and around the country.

"But it was sold as an institution. Everybody had heard of the Golden Circle, but nobody could tell you who was in it.

"Besides, it isn't practical for a studio like Paramount. The studio builds very few players from scratch, as they were trying to do with us. Whatever new people they push usually have already built their reputations in other fields. Like Rosemary Clooney from records, Audrey Hepburn from the stage or Joanne Gilbert from night clubs.

"The really unknown player never has a chance. We saw that when we were trying to get good roles. Every time a good one would come along, the bosses would try to borrow Elizabeth Taylor.

"Paramount isn't geared for developing new people. It makes so

Phantoms Play Pirate Jayvee Squad

Contest Set For 8 p.m. Tonight In Memorial Gym; Will Benefit The March Of Dimes Drive

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
It will be a real test of strength tonight for Coach Bo Farley's Greenville High School basketballers when they face the strong East Carolina College Junior Varsity in Memorial Gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

The contest will be a benefit affair with proceeds going to the March of Dimes fund. Admission will be 25 cents.

The game should help determine whether or not the G-men have a team that is capable of going all the way in the Northeastern Conference. The Phantoms have already rung up three Northeastern Conference victories in as many games and have a season's record of seven wins and just two losses.

Coach Earl Smith's Jayvees have contented themselves mostly with high school teams here in this portion of the state. Their latest outing was last night when they got stopped 70-66 by the New Hanover High School (Wilmington) Wildcats.

Farley's five has pushed over Northeastern foes with little trouble this year but one catch in that arrangements is that the teams that have been played have been the so-called "weak sisters" of the conference. On the other side of the ledger, the Phantoms have looked good in winning four of six games with Eastern AAA Conference teams.

Smith's Jayvees will probably rule as slight favorites at game time tonight. They have a slight height advantage and a considerable experience advantage over the Phantoms.

The Green Phantoms will be weakened somewhat by the absence of guard Pat Sawyer. The old injury-linx has struck Sawyer again. One consolation, however, is that it is not Sawyer's old knee injury that has him sidelined but his elbow where he has a broken blood vessel. He is definitely counted out of tonight's game but he is expected to be able to play next week when the Phantoms return to conference play against Roanoke Rapids.

Coach Farley will probably start Bob Howell and Walter Perkins at the forwards, Harold Edwards at center, and George Sideris and either Edgar Hoore or Tommy Saleed at the guards.

Blocking Awards Given Member Of League Teams

CLINTON, S. C. (AP) — Jacobs Memorial Blocking trophies were awarded here last night to outstanding players in three Southern football conferences.

The University of Mississippi's All America guard, Crawford Mims, received the award for the Southeastern Conference. South Carolina fullback Bill Worrman was the state and Atlantic Coast Conference winner.

The banquet featured a talk by Dode Phillips, football standout at Erskine College in the early '20's. Phillips said such sessions as the trophy banquet "belle the perennial criticisms leveled at football."

He added that the character-building qualities of football "have proved over the years that they more than outweigh any temporary faults" that might crop up.

Guests at the banquet, held at Presbyterian College, included 1953 All-State players, college coaches, radio sportscasters and sportswriters.

The Jacobs Trophy was started 25 years ago by the late Dr. William P. Jacobs, former president of Presbyterian.

Billy Martin Is Classified 1A

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Chronicle today quoted Billy Martin, New York Yankee second baseman, as saying he has been reclassified 1A by his Berkeley draft board but plans an appeal.

Martin here of the 1953 world series, served in the Army at Ft. Ord, from November, 1950 to April, 1951. Then he received a hardship discharge and was classified 3A on grounds that he couldn't support his family on Army pay.

Under a recent selective service rule change, local boards were directed to review the status of all 3A's who had less than six months in military service.

At the time of his hardship discharge, the Yankee infielder listed as dependents his wife, Lois; his mother, Mrs. J. A. Downey; his stepfather, John Downey and his sister, Joan, 13.

The Chronicle quoted Martin as saying he now is separated from his wife and that she has custody of their 13-month-old daughter, Kelly Ann.

"But I'm supporting them both," Martin said.

Harshman Signs Chisox Contract

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher Jack Harshman, Nashville left-hander who this week was voted the Southern Assn.'s Most Valuable Player in 1953, today signed a 1954 contract with the Chicago White Sox. He was the 15th Sox player to come to terms.

Harshman 26 once a first baseman in the New York Giant farm system, had a 23-7 record in Nashville's regular season and won 4 games in the Dixie playoffs. Currently he has a 14-4 record for San Juan in the Puerto Rico winter season.

Pirates Finish Work For Game Tomorrow

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer
East Carolina College's Pirates wrapped up preparations today for what could easily be one of their most important games of the entire season.

Coach Howard Porter's undefeated Pirates travel to Lenoir-Rhyne tomorrow to meet Coach Jim Hamilton's Bears in a battle that can decide the early season lead in the North State Conference.

Unbeaten East Carolina is on top of the standings with a perfect 4-0 record. Lenoir-Rhyne is in second place with a 4-1 mark. The only Bear loss was a pre-season defeat at the hands of these same Pirates.

A Lenoir-Rhyne victory tomorrow night would boost the Bears into the top spot in the conference standings. It could also give the Bucs a tough road to travel if they want to repeat last year's first-place efforts.

Coach Hamilton's Bears have played over everybody they have played this year. Wednesday night, they boosted themselves to their present position with a 75-66 win over Catawba. They have also defeated Atlantic Christian, Western Carolina, and Appalachian.

Despite experimentation this week, the Bucs aren't expected to make any starting line-up changes this week. Bobby Hodges, the team and conference scoring leader who has been working at forward this week, is expected to be at his usual center position tomorrow. That means either Paul Jones or Don Harris will start at the forward post opposite Charlie Huffman.

Hodges had been working at forward with newcomer Waverley Atkins working at center. Atkins' presence in the line-up would give the Bucs a little more height but the experience owned by Jones will probably be more valuable tomorrow night.

Lenoir-Rhyne will have a definite height advantage in the game. Center Bob Ortmeier is 6-8. Forward Raeford Wells is 6-7. Forward Roman 51 land Barker is 6-2. The guards are Floyd Probst (5-11) and Ferris Felner (5-10).

The Pirates can match the height of Barker, Probst, and Felner rather easily. However, the closest they can come to the big men in the Lenoir-Rhyne line-up is when Hodges is around but he stands only 6-5.

Last year, the Pirates went into the Bears den in a similar position. They were unbeaten in conference play but after Lenoir-Rhyne got through with them for that particular evening, they had a 69-64 defeat tagged on them and had started a skid that wasn't halted until after Western Carolina had won 102-97 two nights later.

Spirit on the East Carolina team is perhaps the highest it has been all season. The Bucs remember very well what happened last year in Hickory and their practice sessions this week have been peppered with comments of "... it won't happen again."

After tomorrow's game with the Bears, the Pirates will travel to Cullowhee in preparation for the Monday night game with the Western Carolina Cats. Their next home game will be next Thursday night when they meet Appalachian in Memorial Gym.

Belvoir-Falkland Improving On Record Posted Last Year

By BOB BOYETTE
Both of the coaches of the Belvoir-Falkland High School basketball teams seem to be a little happier with the work of their teams this year in comparison with last season.

So far this year both the girls' and boys' teams have won six of their first ten games and three of their first seven Pitt Conference games which is not an enviable record, but is an improvement over last year.

The girls, coached by Belvoir Principal O. H. Forrest, have been showing outstanding defensive work. Coach Forrest doesn't mind saying that he has the best defensive team he has had in years.

"If I only had as good an offense, we would be alright," he pointed out.

In praising the guards he heaps it on Edna Randolph, Florence Harold, and Joyce Tetterton. "Without them we would not have won a game this year."

Clark Leads Scoring
Although the offense is not the most potent machine in the world, Marlene Clark, a sophomore, is doing alright. She has scored 122 points in their first ten games for a 12.2 average per game.

Coach Forrest lost two starting players from last year's sextet who played Ayden High for the eighth position in the Pitt Tourney. They lost that game and failed to be in the tourney, which proves his point in that his girls are doing better.

To build his squad this year Coach Forrest has seven returning lettermen.

So far this season the girls have beaten Gardner 20-16, Walstonburg 37-24, Gardner 40-34, Ayden 38-25, Grimesland 27-18, and Stokes 34-32. They have lost to Bethel 51-41, Farmville 36-22, Grifton 43-31, and Winterville 45-22.

Boys Doing Better
In comparing the boys to last year's quint Coach Ed Warren says that last year they won only seven out of 22 games while this year Belvoir-Falkland has already won six of the first ten games.

From last year's team Warren lost three first stringers, one of those All-Pitt Conference. He has four lettermen back.

With only four lettermen back he still has his trouble in keeping his team winning. Since the season began he has lost three of his starting players. One of these players, Gene Bell, did not pass enough school work to remain on the squad and another, J. B. Nichols moved to Grimesland.

That makes him lack much needed reserve strength; however, he says that he is pleased with the work of his team so far this year. "They are showing much more spirit and desire to win than last year's team showed," he added.

Leading the team to their six wins, three of them Pitt Conference games, has been Gene Harris and Douglas Parker, an outstanding defensive man.

So far this season Harris has scored 159 points for a 15.9 average per game.

When questioned on how his team is going to do the rest of the year, Coach Warren answered that he hopes to get farther in the County tournament than other teams have been doing.

"Never has a Belvoir team been beyond the first round," he stated.

So far this season the boys have beaten Gardner 68-27, Walstonburg 65-48, Gardner 58-21, Ayden 43-40, Grimesland 63-36, and Grifton 73-62. They have lost to Bethel 57-55, Stokes 72-45, Farmville 47-41, and Winterville 71-45.

Jesus and Nicodemus

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Nicodemus, a Pharisee and ruler of the Jews, came to see Jesus at night to learn more of His gospel.

Christ answered Nicodemus that "a man must be born again, or he cannot see the kingdom of God."

After this Jesus and His disciples went into the land of Judea where Jesus baptized many.

John's answer was: "A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven. Ye yourselves bear me witness, that I said, I am not the Christ, but that I am sent before Him."

MEMORY VERSE—John 3:16.

Jesus and Nicodemus

CHRIST TELLS HIM HE MUST BE "BORN AGAIN"

Scripture—John 3.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE VISIT of Nicodemus to Jesus shows us how far-reaching and widespread was the influence of Christ's teaching and His actions throughout the Jewish world.

eternal life. For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

"For God sent not His son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through Him might be saved."

"He that believeth on Him is not condemned, but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God."

Evil men love the darkness rather than the light, said Jesus, "But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, and his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God."

We are not told what Nicodemus answered to these teachings of Jesus, and we do not read of him again until Jesus was crucified, when John tells us that when Joseph of Arimathea took the body of Jesus from the cross, Nicodemus came with precious spices to embalm His body.

MEMORY VERSE

that Thou doest except God be with him."

Jesus' reply amazed and puzzled Nicodemus: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

How can a grown man be born again? Nicodemus asked. "Except a man be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit."

"The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit."

"How can these things be?" Nicodemus asked. "Jesus answered and said, Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things?"

"We speak what we know, and testify that we have seen, and ye receive not our witness. If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe if I tell you heavenly things?"

"And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven."

"And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

DALE still augmented her long-distance calls to Swanscombe by the regular Thursday letters. I think I am finding my place here, Grandy, she wrote in one of her letters. At least, I am not stuck fast in yesterday.

Good, the old man wrote back. Keep busy, and you won't have time to delve into tomorrow's needs.

Sound advice, and Dale leaned gratefully on the strength of it, although when she quoted that part of Grandy's letter to Andrea, the young concert pianist said quietly, "You could have thought that through yourself, you know. It's not so profound. It's just another 'Grandy said, isn't it?'"

"What's wrong with that?" Dale countered defensively.

"Nothing—if you were six years old. At that age you need a directive finger. I'd just like to see that grandchild of yours hand me blue-prints for my life!"

On the evening before Don Parish left for the conference in Canada, he and Dale dined together on the east side at Wivel's Swedish smorgasbord. The atmosphere was informal, the music and food good. Dale had dined here once with Phil, and they had placed hilarious wagers on the number of return trips an obese couple near by would make to replenish their plates. Watching mounds after mounds of food steadily vanish, Phil had murmured to Dale, "No profit for Wivel's of those two—and you owe me a buck!"

If Don was not as lively a dinner companion as his brother, he also was not tire some, once Dale led the conversation around to the forthcoming conference.

"It's to be a sort of international exchange of ideas," he explained. "What goes on, and why, in the upper atmosphere. The topics will have a bearing on guided missiles, radar and high-frequency radio, with physicists from Germany, France, Norway, Sweden and Britain."

Dale smiled. "You must feel fully superior up there with all those top minds."

"And I sound like a stuffy old fogey!"

"No. But I do wonder why you bothered with me tonight. Shouldn't you be making a last-minute check of facts and figures, to have it all at your fingertips?"

"Yes, and I feel like a twelve-year-old truant," he said with enormous satisfaction. "Would you like to dance?"

"Since that first night, Don was markedly improved. Tonight there was no need for apologies over his clumsiness, as they moved smoothly around the floor.

"I feel tense coils unwinding," he said, as they returned to their table. "I've been more keyed-up than I realized. I suppose there's such a thing as over-concentration, like overtraining for an athlete."

"In other words," Dale said teasingly, "a date with me is only a means to an end."

"You are good for me, Dale," he said unexpectedly serious. She lifted her eyes unreservedly to his. "And you, for me," she told him.

It was the truth. Don, self-reliant and undemanding, was a preventive against the emotion that Phil could arouse in her. Her responsiveness was something of which, lately, she was increasingly aware. It was involuntary and disconcerting, with Don, who had no matrimonial ideas in his head, and who did or said nothing to stir her from her detachment, she felt safe.

It would have been awkward to try to explain that to Don, although Phil would have understood. Too well! Phil would laugh straight into her eyes and want to know what was wrong with being human. And why fight it?

Don was drawing a circle with his fork on the tablecloth. Something in his avoidance of her eyes revealed embarrassment. Of shy, nervous. Finally, with a rueful grin, he said, "I haven't known many girls. I never had time for them, and when I did take one out we'd bog down on small talk and she'd stifle yawns. I had one topic of conversation: science. Not a moon-light-and-roses theme! It made me a very dull companion—undoubtedly, by it still does."

"No," she protested. "You're a restful."

He grimaced. "Is that a compliment?"

"Certainly." But to clarify it, she turned serious. "So many people push at me, Don, I have to keep edging away from demands I can't answer."

His fork pressed four tiny holes in the cloth. "Dale, does Phil—?" He broke off, reddening to his ears. "Forgive me. Nothing gives me the right to ask a question like that. X it out as evidence of my social clumsiness, will you? But don't let my brother make a nuisance of himself, Dale."

She smiled. "I can handle Phil! But she thought, Why should it trouble Don?"

"Phil," Don was saying, "has a way with girls. He always did."

A shift of tone, and it would have been derogatory or disloyal. Sensitive to his infection, Dale said teasingly, "You sound wistful!"

"Just jealous maybe." He grinned.

She looked incredulous. "But that's ridiculous! Phil envies you." "Oh rot. Why?"

"Your brilliance. Yours, and Andrea's. Your conspicuous success

Pedaled Bicycle 700 Miles To Be With Grandma

ATLANTA (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Warren Shuey Jr. was homesick for Dixie and his grandmother's fried chicken—so he pedaled his bicycle about 700 miles from Washington, D. C., to Atlanta.

Warren said he left home on his bicycle Jan. 6 and that his parents thought he was headed for school. Instead, he kept on pedaling southward.

He traveled about 100 miles a day and slept in tourist courts at night. His baggage was limited to a couple of extra shirts and his Bible.

"I read my Bible every night and then prayed that I was doing the right thing," Warren said.

Mrs. Beulah Brannon the grandmother, said the parents have given permission for Warren to remain with her.

The Shuey family formerly lived in Atlanta.

Shopping Around To Find Measles

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP)—Anybody got a case of red measles they'll share with Shirley Ann Thurmond?

The 2½-year-old girl is suffering with nephrosis, a kidney disease, and her doctor thinks measles would help combat the more serious malady.

But Henderson County doesn't have a single case of red measles in the infectious stage. The child would have to be exposed to a case during the incubation period.

Her father, Eugene Thurmond, said: "We would take her any place if we could find a case in the right stage."

Animals Try To Break Into Zoo

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Animals in the San Antonio Zoo never had it so good. That must be the reasoning of wildlife outside the zoo, Director Fred Stark says.

Stark revealed yesterday in a report to the San Antonio Zoological Society that during 1953 he trapped a total of 85 wild animals trying to break into the zoo.

Included were 44 skunks, 37 opossums, 3 raccoons and 1 ring-tail cat.

Run Over Twice By Same Driver

ATLANTA (AP)—Donald Lingerfelt, 15, was run over twice in a matter of minutes by the same hit-and-run driver but came out with only minor injuries.

Riding his bicycle last night, he was run down by an automobile. The driver stopped, then backed the wheels of the car over the boy's legs, and sped away.

Doctors there said injuries to the youngsters' head and legs were slight.

You can get an awful crick in your neck from forever looking up." She added, "It can make you feel inferior."

It was Don's turn to be unbelieving. "Phil's the most cocksure man I've ever known!"

"Why do you think he took a year off to write that book?" Don laughed disparagingly. "Everyone thinks he can write a book. I could myself, if I had time. That was a whim. Something he had to get out of his system."

"It was more than that," Dale said positively. "Phil was trying to prove something to himself."

"The book was a dud, so what does that prove?"

"When failure is a degree up in growth, it ought to go by another name," she said thoughtfully. "I think Phil has grown."

"That fluff-brain," Don said affectionately.

She formulated a swift denial, but astonishment held back his words. That Don's rally should have put her on the defensive, and aligned her on Phil's side, was in itself a revelation. It silenced Dale, and Don, back on the subject of the conference was unaware of the storm he had aroused in Dale.

NEW YORK (AP)—A new recovery high was reached today by the stock market in its fourth straight advance.

Prices were up at the best between 1 and 2 points. Losses were small.

Trading hit a fast pace on the rise and expanded well beyond yesterday's 1,530,000 shares.

The market on average attained a peak early in December in its recovery drive from the mid-September lows. Yesterday the market matched that average price level, and today it moved into new high ground—the best in nearly eight months.
