

Gov't Backing Of Health Insurance Plans Proposed Stepping Up Of Rehabilitation Work, Medical Care Construction Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower proposed today that the government bolster private insurance plans as a step toward bettering the health of all Americans.

The President told Congress the total private medical bill of the nation now exceeds nine billion dollars a year—an average of nearly $200 a family—and still is rising.

He said the emphasis in dealing with the problem must remain essentially on private care, but that the government can and must help.

"This progress indicates that these voluntary organizations can reach many more people and provide better and broader benefits. They should be encouraged and helped to do so."

"Even where the best in medical care is available, its costs are often a serious burden. Major, long-term illness can become a financial catastrophe for a normal American family."

of a limited federal re-insurance service to encourage private and nonprofit health insurance organizations to offer broader health protection to more families. This service would re-insure the special additional risks involved in such broader protection.

Most existing private plans cover only a specified number of days of treatment at a specified maximum cost. Presumably, more benefits might be allowed if the financing was more assured.

"Diseases of the heart and blood vessels alone now take over 817,000 lives annually. Over seven million Americans are estimated to suffer from arthritis and rheumatic diseases."

'Space Helmet' For Children

Silks, Wool For An Early Spring

By DOROTHY ROE
NEW YORK (AP)—Adele Simpson offers a fresh and flattering collection of suits and dresses at the showing of new spring fashions here this week.

Mrs. Simpson shows Easter costumes and suits in lightweight silks and wools cool enough for warm weather wear.

Our changing weather, plus the habits of modern living, dictate lighter weight clothes the year round, says Mrs. Simpson. She highlights silk suits or dress-and-coat outfits. The print silk costume with fur collar or cuffs is a headliner here, shown in many versions.

Mrs. Simpson also features collars that stand away from the neck for greater coolness, and likes black or navy fitted silk coats lined in print silk to match the companion dress.

"The Shape" is Mrs. Simpson's favorite silhouette for spring. This is a princess coat dress with slightly flared or narrow skirt, so artfully constructed that the essential shape is built into the dress, even when it is hanging in the closet.

The favorite "miracle fabric" of this designer is simply cotton. But not the old-fashioned cotton of grandmother's day. New weaves and finishes have resulted in polished cottons smooth as satin, cotton tweeds rugged as wool, cotton shantung that look and feel like silk, jacquard woven Swiss cottons that could be either silk or wool, cotton sharkskins that look like the finest men's wool suitings.

Until the end of the 17th Century, poor people in England were buried without coffins, wrapped in cloth or even merely covered with hay and flowers.

Seek To Prevent Mill Departure

BOSTON (AP)—A veteran textile leader and industry publisher sought today to prevent American Woolen Co. from disposing of 11 of its 23 remaining mills and redeeming nearly 20 million dollars worth of preferred stock.

E. Howard Bennett, editor of "America's Textile Reporter," plans to seek proxies this week from all three classes of American Woolen stockholders. A special meeting of stockholders will be held Jan. 29.

The company has called the meeting to pass on to stockholders its proposal to close nearly half the firm's mills and redeem the 4 per cent preferred stock and purchase the 7 per cent preferred stock. The 4 per cent stock would be redeemed at a cost of $10,610,355 and the 7 per cent stock would be bought for $9,985,200.

Bennett, for 50 years a publisher in the textile field and an American Woolen stockholder, said in arguing against the management proposals that "a sound readjustment of property holdings is necessary to re-establish the company's efficiency and earnings." However, he questioned the soundness of "independent and engineering surveys" upon which the abandonment proposals are based.

Bennett, who also is a director of four other textile corporations, said American Woolen has reserves of about $11,400,000 and hopes to obtain a seven-million-dollar tax refund by redeeming the preferred stock.

Simple Rules For Skin Care

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newfeatures Beauty Editor
Many teen-agers develop inferiority complexes because of bad skin. Acne, blemishes of other kinds and dry or excessively oily skin are problems that need home treatment, the advice of a dermatologist or medical care.

Most dermatologists concur that although faulty diet does not cause skin diseases, it does aggravate the condition so that it is more difficult to heal the blemishes. The glands which produce plugged-up pores and bumpy skin are overworked more when excessive starches and sweets clutter up the system.

Medication may heal these skin blemishes temporarily. But if a permanent cure is to be effected, skin medication should be used in conjunction with proper diet and hygiene. Even if the skin condition is just the pimply kind with blackheads or tiny whiteheads that are barely noticeable, a skin program should be observed. Sometimes a tiny pimple or blackhead may become infected, causing a series of infections over the skin that will require a long medical program at considerable expense.

If the skin condition now has reached the unglamorous stage, consult a reliable skin specialist. If your skin is just flirting with the idea of attracting blemishes observe these rules for a smoother complexion.

Keep your skin clean by washing it often with warm water and soap. If there are blackheads, steaming the skin with a hot towel and washing with soap may soften the little plugs so that they can be whisked out by a good scrubbing.

Wash your hair frequently, keeping it free from oily residue. This, too, helps the skin.

Eat a balanced diet, particularly raw vegetable salad, protein, eggs (not fried), fruits leafy vegetables. Avoid excessive greasy and rich foods, bread and pastries, nuts candies and sweetened drinks until your skin is back to normal. Then observe an awareness about your choice of food if you'd keep your complexion pretty.

Avoid irritating cosmetics, substituting one of the tinted medicated pastes that will cover blemishes, and possibly dry up minor blemishes. If blotches are properly concealed there will be less tendency to embarrassment while a skin cure is effected.

Keep hands clean at all times. Dirty hands can delay healing of skin infections.

ECC Student Teaching Work Well Under Way

With 111 seniors already at work in classrooms of public schools in eastern North Carolina, East Carolina College has begun its program of student teaching for the winter quarter. Those now receiving practical experience as teachers include 39 engaged in work in the primary and the grammar grades.

Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of student teaching and placement at the college, is coordinator of the program. Supervising teachers from the public schools and from the college faculty direct the activities of the seniors.

In the fall quarter 101 seniors completed their work as student teachers. The total for the first two quarters of the present school year is thus 212 men and women preparing for careers in education. A large group of seniors is expected to enroll in the student teaching program in the spring.

Student teachers now at work in the public schools include 35 men and 76 women. Thirty-eight have assignments in the Laboratory School of the college and are teaching there in grades one through eight. One senior is teaching seventh grade subjects in the School for the Blind in Raleigh.

Seventy-one seniors are teaching high school subjects in the Greenville High School or in fourteen other secondary schools of eastern North Carolina. One senior is teaching art in the city high school and the college Laboratory School so as to gain experience on all levels of public school instruction in this field.

Subjects being taught by the East Carolina seniors working in high schools include art, business education, English, home economics, industrial arts, mathematics, music, physical education, science, foreign languages, and the social studies.

In addition to the Greenville High School, where 23 seniors are teaching, centers of instruction are Connetquot, Farmville, Kinston, Robersonville, Belvoir, Washington, Winterville, Bethel, Tarboro, Fremont, Chicod, Bath, Ayden, and Stokes.

said his optimism is curbed only by the realization this is a highly competitive era.

Leo Heer, manager of the Southern Furniture and Rug Market, says the market opening will find the furniture industry in a good strategic position to capture a greater share of the country's disposable income in 1954.

"The market here," he says, "is a climax presentation of six months preparation for a highly competitive period."

Pre-market registration equaled last year's record attendance of 6,363 at the High Point Exposition Building.

Demand Apology From Pentagon

BOSTON (AP)—The Pentagon has 24 hours to apologize to the residents of South Boston—or else an invitation for armed services troops to participate in the March 17 Evacuation Day parade will be withdrawn.

Chief Parade Marshal Patrick F. Sheehan demanded the apology last night after Army officials announced no troops would parade in South Boston unless all the liquor places in the district are closed.

Sheehan said: "The Pentagon has insulted our people are drunks. I demand an immediate apology, otherwise I will cancel our invitation to the armed services."

Army officials said soldiers and sailors were the targets of eggs, vegetables and stones during the parade last year.

South Boston residents observe St. Patrick's Day and Evacuation Day in a joint celebration each March 17.

Evidence indicates that cigars were first made commercially about 1840.

Montana Digging Out From Arctic Winds And Snow

HELENA Mont. (AP)—Montana dug out today after a new spearhead of an arctic storm battered the state, leaving three dead.

Strong winds, heavy falling snow and a winter thunderstorm which tossed lightning bolts yesterday combined to stall transportation and keep most of the state buttoned up for the third straight day.

Temperatures sank again early today to as low as 22 degrees below zero.

Two of the dead were killed in separate auto accidents attributed to hazardous driving conditions.

The third victim of the storm, Joe Baltazor, a 43-year-old ranch worker, died from exposure yesterday at Billings. He made his way to a ranch near there Friday with frostbitten hands and legs.

At the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last Friday night, Russ Peterson, assistant manager of the DuPont plant, showed a movie on "Business and Education."

He said his company is active in interesting high school students in science to teach it or go into industry. John Behr of the personnel department at the plant, operated the movie machine.

James Lanier, Greenville attorney, was welcomed as a member of the Kiwanis Club. Judge Dink James inducted him. President J. Bryan Brown, who presided, appointed Lanier on the Program Committee.

J. A. Collins won the attendance prize. Ray Lowe and Claude D. Ward had birthdays and they donated a dime for each year of their age to a club fund.

Guests were Dail Moore, Junior Kiwanian from the High School; Harry Billia, Dr. Charles Pace, F. A. Trapnell, Bill Wright, Don Conley, Jr., Dr. Giles P. Corey of the Navy, and Dr. Joe Withey.

HIGH POINT, N. C. (AP)—The semiannual furniture and rug market opened today for a 12-day run until Jan. 29.

Officials of the Southern Furniture and Rug Market expected more than 6,000 retail dealers, mostly from the Southeastern states to attend. New lines by more than 400 manufacturers will be on display.

John Tobin, executive vice president of the Southern Retail Furniture Assn., was optimistic about this year's market. He said checks with member stores showed generally that retailers are planning for at least as much volume as in last year's all time high. Tobin

No Time To Expand Trade With Reds

Even in the face of mounting pressures for lowering or removing some of the cold war trade barriers between the United States and Russia, we can see no justification in the United States' relaxing the regulations which now are in effect.

The application of a Minnesota businessman for permission to sell 22,000 tons of surplus American butter to Russia and her satellite states for the time being has been denied. But now that the ice has been broken by such an application, more may follow and bring pressure on the government to modify its regulations on trade with Russia.

Certainly there is no concrete evidence yet in the cold war or otherwise that the Kremlin does not intend to continue its efforts for world domination, and the acquisition of other nations.

The United States, in this cold war, can ill afford to allow its surpluses to go to Russia to ease the internal situation in that nation. It could have the effect of undoing what this nation has spent billions of dollars to accomplish.

There is no justification, we can see, for selling butter or other goods to Russia at prices less than the American people have to pay for the same products they purchase here at home. Surpluses in this nation have been subsidized by the federal government, and if sold to Russia, it would amount to the United States subsidizing—at least to some degree—the Soviet.

There can be no question that expanded U. S. exports to Russia or her satellites would ease the internal tension behind the iron curtain, which, we believe, would not be in the best interest of the free world. After such a long and bitter fight against communism, there is no point in the U. S. lending it support through selling it goods which it needs.

Until such time as the Russian leaders exhibit good faith in international affairs, and a sincere change of fundamental purpose in communism, the United States should maintain her trade barriers designed to put economic pressure upon Russia and the communist bloc of nations.

A relaxation of U. S. export regulations to Russia would not only bolster the communist economy; but it could also wreck the economy of many free nations of the world the United States has spent billions to rebuild since the war.

Social Security Proposals Appear To Become Law

Early reactions in Washington to the President's recommendations on expanded Social Security coverage for the people of the nation and larger benefits make it appear the measure will have little trouble getting through Congress.

Some observers have gone so far as to say the measure probably will get as much or more bi-partisan support as any measure which has gone to Congress in recent years.

To be sure there is going to be some disagreement over the proposal of President Eisenhower, which, in appearance, could have been lifted from most any Democratic program in the past several years.

About the only opposition which seems to be brewing is that in the right wing of the Republican party which feels the expansion of Social Security benefits is going too far, and that on the left wing of the Democratic party which feels the expansion did not go far enough.

To be sure the conditions surrounding the reaction the program is receiving in Congress is an indisputable sign times have changed.

Whether for political or other reasons, the Republican leaders are now leaning more and more toward the program of social benefits which the Democrats have fostered for many years.

The new expansion of the Social Security law which is now pending before Congress will mean a great deal to millions of Americans as time goes on; and at the same time it will cost the taxpayers of the nation billions of dollars over the period of years.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
"THE STRENGTH OF MY LIFE"
"Be strong! We are not here to play," the familiar hymn counsels us. And this is true. Before life lets us go at last, it demands all kinds of strength from us: physical, mental, and spiritual.

As for physical strength, we are probably better off than any nation in the world. Abundant food, modern sanitation and medical care, and a tradition of outdoor living make our young men and women about the biggest, healthiest generation that the world has ever seen.

The picture is not quite so clear for mental strength. The nation's mental institutions are overcrowded. At the same time our vast educational system is putting more people through college than ever before, and our scientists and scholars are world leaders.

What about spiritual strength—the faith to endure, the courage to keep on when the going is difficult? This is the most important kind of strength, for without it, the other kinds are of no avail. "The Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" So wrote the psalmist about 3000 years ago. Or again, "My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth." Because hundreds of thousands of Christians have had the same experience in these uneasy times, our churches are crowded today, with new ones going up all over. "Strength and beauty are in His sanctuary."

Niagara And Political Wars

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—A notable omission in President Eisenhower's legislative directives to Congress was any mention of a plan for development of Niagara's vast power resources, which is the greatest project of this kind east of the Great Divide. Equally significant was Governor Thomas E. Dewey's avoidance of the subject in his 1954 message to the Albany Legislature.

Although many other considerations lie behind this studied silence, 1956 Presidential politics largely account for Eisenhower-Dewey reticence. They do not want to afford Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. an opportunity to capitalize on this issue as gubernatorial candidate next fall, and as a possible Democratic Presidential nominee in 1956.

Although his Republican colleagues on Capitol Hill make light of "Junior," frequently joshing him for his more perfect attendance at the Stork and Copechana clubs than at House sessions, they still shrink at the magic name of "Roosevelt." They would prefer that somebody named Stevenson or Symington or Harriman run against Ike three years hence.

NIAGARA, A TEST—Along with Hell's Canyon in Idaho, Niagara will furnish the most explosive fireworks on the private-versus-public power question at the current session. But the Far Western project does not involve such political incandescence as Eisenhower, Dewey and the crown prince of the Hyde Park dynasty. Nor are Wall Street's interests so deeply committed in the Idaho affair.

Disposition of Niagara also provides a test of the Administration's sincerity in its advocacy of private enterprise as against continued Federal expansion. At the last session, the House passed a bill for power development by four private companies, which have pooled their resources. Dewey blocked Senate action on the measure by demanding that the New York State Power Authority build and operate the system.

F.D.R. JR. AT FIRST FOR FEDERAL CONSTRUCTION—Young Roosevelt at first favored Federal construction and operation along TVA lines. But when Congress showed hostility to these paternal schemes, he preferred New York State to private

ALBANY, ORE., DEMOCRAT-HERALD: "Is there any reason why parties to a labor contract should be on any different basis from the parties to any other contract?"

DIET FOR POETS
(Montgomery Advertiser)
There is a conspicuous omission in the bill which would establish the office of Poet Laureate of Alabama. The bill makes no mention of the traditional "butt of sack" offered annually to England's Poet Laureate since the office was established by James I in 1617. A butt of sack is a large barrel of wine, which was considered a form of inspiration to the poet's muse, aiding him in his labors of versifier by appointment to His Majesty. To localize the office in Alabama, the Poet Laureate should be provided annually with a barrel of Coosa County corn. Instead of a butt of sack. There is, according to the ABC Board of enforcement officers, such an ocean of white lightning being made in the state these days, that it would be both economical and singularly appropriate to furnish the poet with a quantity of contraband inspiration. The officers could make it a point to raid the best stills at the right time to insure that our Poet Laureate's muse would have nothing but the best. We doubt that he would get much work done—he might never even walk again—but at least tradition would have been served.

ADMINISTRATION EQUIVOCATES—The Administration appears to equivocate on Niagara. Although Ike has called TVA "creeping socialism," and has generally exalted private initiative, Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge intervened on behalf of Dewey in last year's wrangle. Ike's message discussions of his power philosophy have been vague and general, satisfying nobody.

The Wall Street community is behaving peculiarly. Although vocally strong for private as against Federal or even state development, the big banking houses appear to side with the Governor. He plans to finance Niagara with revenue bonds, and he may have to offer from 3 to 4 per cent to raise the money. He has already bonded New York rather heavily.

TAX-EXEMPT BONDS—Since these securities are tax-exempt, a prospective return ranging from 4 to 7 per cent, depending on the pocket of the purchasers other income, appeals to accountant politicians. Numerous investment firms made a killing from New Deal transformation of Nebraska and Washington State areas into a public power empire.

Capitalizing on the tax avoidance, they disposed of private properties for many times their real value. After all, money is more important than preservation of an ideology.

As a result of this power-politics hassle, Washington and Albany may go slow on damming Niagara. If this policy will dam up F.D.R. Jr. for 1954 and 1956.

Business Today

Novelty In Retailing

What may be a revolution in retailing is developing in Chicago. One of the largest chains there has made arrangements with the distributor of appliances whereby the distributor delivers directly to purchasers. The chain (Goldblatt Bros.) has a similar deal with a radio and television supplier and is seeking to make similar ones with suppliers of furniture.

The implications of this kind of arrangement are enormous. Each item is shipped once—from distributor to buyer—instead of twice—from distributor to retailer to buyer. That's a sizable saving on frezers and other large articles.

The retailer eliminates considerable warehousing and headaches that go with it: inspection, insurance, thefts, breakage, rent. He can cut the size of his furniture touch-up shop.

And, if the arrangement provides that the retailer pay only for delivered goods, the biggest saving of all opens up: the reduction of inventory risks. This throws this risk back on the distributor or the manufacturer, but in return they get wider acceptance and greater promotion of their line.

A merchant who did not have to pay for goods until he sold them to customers would not hesitate to take on what looked like the "dogs" of the line; if they rolled over and died, it would be the suppliers' funeral bills. Freed of inventory hazards, retailers could whop up promotions, risking only promotional costs; never that of the inventory backing.

The underlying idea is not new. For long, makers of floorcoverings, fabrics and a few other lines have supplied outlets with samples instead of stocks, shipping direct to buyers. But the kind of merchandising has never had the scope sought in Chicago.

There are a lot of kinks that would have to be ironed out before this plan become generally accepted. Many manufacturers would feel that they were taking over retailers' risks without being adequately compensated for them. If the plan succeeds, retailers will probably demand floor samples on consignment, too.

Small retailers face the most serious threat. While a manufacturer may be willing to shoulder warehousing and inventory risks for a large chain, it cannot afford to do it for a large number of small retailers. These retailers would have to pay higher shipping and warehousing bills, take proportionately greater inventory risks and, at the same time, compete with the husky chains.

There is another possibility: that the Federal Trade Commission require distributors to give the same delivery, warehousing and inventory service to little merchants as are given to chains. SPENT MONEY IS SAVED; SAVED MONEY IS SPENT

One of the reasons for observing National Thrift Week starting tomorrow is that a high rate of personal savings is needed to maintain high records of home building, according to Ralph H. Crosby, president of the U. S. Savings and Loan League.

Savings institutions and merchants are often regarded as rivals for the consumer's disposable dollar—which is the dollar he has left after Uncle Whiskers frisks him. But this seeming paradox is true: money spent for goods may be converted into savings by the seller; money saved almost always is converted into purchasing power through loans to those who want to buy a house, an auto, a factory—anything.

BUY HOUSE IN NEW YORK, TAKE DELIVERY IN SOUTH
Long-distance real estate selling is being tried out in Huntington, N. Y. There a builder has erected a model house. But the houses for which it is a model—150 of them—are all in a new development at Sarasota, Fla.

Earning Power Climbs Faster Than Living Cost Index

By ROGER W. BABSON
WASHINGTON, D.C. — There has been a lot of loose talk about the rise in the cost of living and the ability of people to buy. Many readers have gone up in a great achievement on the part of manufacturers and merchants.

FEWER NOW EMPLOYED
If people are to have money to buy, they must have jobs. Although our labor force normally grows by about 700,000 persons a year for whom jobs must be provided—1953 figures show very little change from those of 1952. This is because new workers (young people) entering the labor market in 1953 just about equaled the number of people who left it.

What makes these figures even more meaningful is the fact that, while living costs have risen less than 2 per cent since January, 1952, hourly earnings in all manufacturing industries have risen about 8 per cent during that time. To have held prices down while wages have gone up is a great achievement on the part of manufacturers and merchants.

SAVINGS BEAT ALL RECORDS
There's another angle to our problem: How much money people have hidden away in their socks. It may surprise you to learn that the top 50 per cent of our families have readily convertible savings amounting to a staggering $97 billions. The bottom money lying idle is bad for our economy. America, you see, is a country that actually develops its way to prosperity. And the way to keep prosperity is to keep raising our living standards higher and higher by creating more and more wants for more and more goods and services without proportionately increasing what people owe.

There are enough Americans who have money to spend in 1954 to hold business high. If, for example, the top 50 per cent of our families with their $97 billions continue to hold their purchases high, the lower 50 per cent will be kept busy producing. All groups will then have the funds necessary to satisfy their needs. We have a huge backlog of buying power. It's up to the sales and advertising brains of the country to get us to spend it.

A KEY TO PROSPERITY
I like to see this trend, up to a certain point. However, too much who have been holding down full-time jobs have decided to quit working out and to make a real home for their husbands. Many have not been replaced. These people do not swell the ranks of the unemployed; they simply deplete the ranks of the employed to whatever extent they are not replaced. Obviously, in retirement one has less income. Obviously, also, is the fact that when a wife ceases to supplement her husband's income, that couple will have less money to spend.

There's another angle to our problem: How much money people have hidden away in their socks. It may surprise you to learn that the top 50 per cent of our families have readily convertible savings amounting to a staggering $97 billions. The bottom

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
COMMON GROUND — Consensus of the several dozen attendants at the "Freedom of Information" conference whom your reporter was able to contact after the sessions, was that the affair was highly valuable. Larger areas of common ground and smaller sections in which real difference of opinion exists were discovered than many people had realized.

The panel discussions afforded the first opportunity for some of the newspaper, radio and television people to hear judges and law enforcement officers give their viewpoints. Likewise, it was the first time the public officials had heard a full presentation of the attitude of the newsmen. It developed that both groups recognize the obligation to keep the public informed about the public's business; and that both recognize there are occasions when complete publicity, especially when premature or ill-timed, can defeat the objective of genuine service to the public.

GUINEA PIG — In some respects the conference here Thursday was a guinea pig operation. It was sponsored by the Associated Press editors in North Carolina, and so far as the panel discussions were concerned was limited to news services relations with courts and law enforcement agencies.

The luncheon address by Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, dealt with the centuries-long fight for publicity in legislative bodies—national, state and local.

It was tentatively agreed by the sponsors that if this conference proved successful there would be later similar get-togethers with legislators, county and city governing bodies, medical and educational agencies, perhaps even with public relations men in private industry.

The almost unanimous verdict that the first venture did prove valuable and successful very likely means that plans will be initiated for further conferences.

CRITICISM — There were a few specific criticisms of the program. Most commonly heard was there were too many panel participants, not enough time for questions and general discussion from the floor. Two or three legislators complained that they did not have an opportunity to present their side in response to the Wiggins speech, such as was accorded the judges and law officers.

These criticisms are about relatively unimportant details which can be adjusted at subsequent sessions. Legislators and local government administrators generally agreed they had profited by the talks, and they had better understanding of the real motives of both courts and reporters.

QUESTIONS — Time and space do not permit analysis of "the several positions. Among the most important was the question about use of radio and television coverage of court trials. Judge Susie Sharp insisted it would impede due process and probably with the administration of justice. Gaines Kelley, Greensboro TV argued that television would enable the people to have a better man, argued that television would enable the people to have a better idea of court procedure, would for the courts.

There was also the matter of pre-trial publication of alleged confessions and advance editorial discussion of complaints and answers in civil cases. Instances were cited of quick publicity about crimes leading to the prompt apprehension of the criminal, and of such publicity probably hampering the law enforcement officers. Admitting an area of dispute as to where the lines should be drawn, speakers for each group accorded sincerity of purpose and intent to the others.

It seemed further evident that most of the difficulties arise from over-zealous and inexperienced officials and reporters; and from the practical inability of officials to complete reports in time for the newsmen to meet deadlines. Weimar Jones, president of the N.C. Press Association, made the point that unavailability of court news is a far greater problem in small communities than intentional suppression of news.

PUBLIC SERVANTS — All the speakers for the publicity media emphasized that news reporters asked no special privileges, per se. They insisted upon access to information as representatives (the eyes and ears) of the people. The judicial and law enforcement speaker placed equal emphasis upon their status as public servants, with responsibility to protect the people's interest.

There seemed fairly general agreement that no reporter has the right to use his relationship to further his individual aims; and no public official has the right to use the authority of his office to gratify his personal vanity. All sides admitted unfortunate instances of such misuse of powers which are inherent only in all the people. The composite thinking of those with whom your reporter talked after the conference was toward mutual understanding and cooperation among those to whom representative power has been delegated.

KEY NOTE — In his brief "keynote" talk Governor Umstead contrasted the philosophy of Lenin, whom he designated as the "father of communism," and that of Thomas Jefferson, "one of our nation's founders." Lenin asked why anybody would be allowed to buy a printing press and disseminate ideas repugnant to the governor in power. Jefferson said "our liberty depends upon freedom of the press. The mass of the citizens is the safest repository of their own rights." The Governor said there will always be variance of opinion as to the interpretation of press coverage. "I am sure," he said, "when such differences arise in North Carolina we can settle them in a reasonable and sensible manner."

Most of those attending the conference Thursday agreed that a "reasonable and sensible" approach was made to solution of the problems, and that further activity along the same lines will prove valuable.

Lenin asked why anybody would be allowed to buy a printing press and disseminate ideas repugnant to the governor in power. Jefferson said "our liberty depends upon freedom of the press. Most of those attending the conference Thursday agreed that a "reasonable and sensible" approach was made to solution of the problems, and that further activity along the same lines will prove valuable.

No 'Children' For Big Four Session

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — An invisible sign — "No Children Allowed" — will hang outside the conference room door when the Big Four foreign ministers meet in Berlin Jan. 25.
Not one of the four — on one side the United States' Dulles, Britain's Eden, France's Bidault and on the other side Russia's Molotov — has any resemblance to a babe in the thorny woods of East-West relations. They have dealt with each other many times before, in many ways.
Neither the Allies nor the Russians can have any illusions about what they're up against and perhaps not much hope for any progress through talking. All of them, nevertheless, may well be self-conscious when they meet.
For this conference is the result of multiple pressures from the people of the world, expressed or implied, upon their leaders to make some effort toward peace beside the unimagination reliance upon weapons.
In Stalin's later years, thanks mostly to him, the West and Russia were not on speaking terms. Face to face, that is, if they talked at all it was across continents in interviews and speeches or through ambassadors or notes.
When Malenkov succeeded Stalin and mumbled about peace, the Allies saw a chance to show the rest of the world they at least would like to break the ice. They peppered Moscow with requests for a conference.
That Molotov agreed to go to Berlin is probably due more to concern about how Russia would look if he refused than hope, or desire, for peace or any willingness to yield an inch.
For that matter, there's no sign the West will yield any inches either at Berlin.
What Russia apparently fears most in Western Europe is a single European army, including France and a rearm West Germany, and backed by the United States and Britain.
Russia has psychological as well as military reasons. So long as Western Europe has not decided to set up the army, its people can retain the luxury of hoping they won't have to make that decision, with the sacrifices it implies. They remain divided as to whether they should and open to promises dangled by Moscow if they don't.
And, the longer Western Europe

Young Hoodlums In Mob Affray

DETROIT (AP) — Night-time prep school football and basketball faced a possible ban at Detroit's public schools today as a result of 'teen-ager hoodlumism' in which a boy was stabbed and badly hurt.
School Supt. Arthur Dondineau called a meeting of school principals at which he said he would demand a ban.
Five boys were held by police. They were among 12 who were arrested after what police called a "mob attack" on three players following a basketball game Friday night.
Ross DeBoskey, 17, star center of the MacKenzie High team, was attacked in the back with an ice pick. He and two teammates were attacked after their team had played a game with Central High.
Police said the five admitted they took part in the attack and said that it was planned beforehand. They denied the actual stabbing, however.
DeBoskey's companions, Jacques Berlin and Jo Davidson, both 17, were treated for head injuries.
Part of the ice-pick, five inches long, had broken off in DeBoskey's back. It was removed at Receiving Hospital. DeBoskey was taken off the hospital's critical list yesterday.
Detroit's public schools have participated in night sports for many years.
In recent years there has been trouble at games. Police say there has been no particular reason other than general rowdiness. They also say that changing neighborhood rivalries have not neces-

More Programs Lined Up By Station WNCT

A. Hartwell Campbell, manager of television station WNCT, spent four days of last week in New York lining up new shows for the Greenville station.
Definitely scheduled were the Pabst Elbe Ribbon fights, for Wednesday nights from ten until eleven to begin January 27th; and Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour, Saturday 8:30 until 9:00 p.m. Although the programs were not definitely confirmed, Campbell expressed the strong possibility of signing Burns and Allen, Two for the Money, My Friend Irma, and the Colgate Comedy Hour.
Circuit Problems
Business Manager Peggy Laughinghouse explains that WNCT continues to have problems in obtaining network circuits into Greenville. "We are gradually improving, but no later than Wednesday night we had a schedule irregularity. Arthur Godfrey moved his show to Miami and the change in location filled the additional circuit that we would have used. We were informed 10 minutes before show time that we would not receive the Godfrey show."
Programming
Mrs. Laughinghouse said, "We have constant inquiries from viewers wanting to know why we do not carry particular shows. Let me explain the contrast between radio and television in that regard. In the case of the Colgate Comedy Hour," she continued, "they cancelled at first because of the time conflict with Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town. But now they are reconsidering and we hope to sign the show."
Schedule Expanding
Since going on the air WNCT has increased its telecasting schedule over 20 hours a week. Weekdays the station now goes on the air at 3:30, Saturday at 11:00 and Sunday at one p.m.

Sen. Ellender Seeks Source Of President's New Farm Program

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Ellender (D-La.) said today he will ask Secretary of Agriculture Benson "just who suggested President Eisenhower's farm program and why."
Ellender is the senior Democrat on the Senate Agriculture Committee, which invited Benson before it today to give it, in the words of Chairman Aiken (R-Vt), "an outlook for agriculture."
Eisenhower said his farm program, which has stirred up heated opposition from many Democrats and some Republicans, was based on "the most thorough and comprehensive study ever made of the farm problem and of governmental farm programs."

Taking part in the study, he said, were more than 500 eminent farm leaders, a agricultural colleges, scores of producer and trade groups, national farm organizations, members of Congress and thousands of individual farmers.
The most controversial feature of the program is the scrapping of the present rigid government supports for basic field crops, other than tobacco, and their replacement by flexible supports ranging from 75 to 90 per cent of parity, a standard said by law to be fair to farmers in terms of prices prevailing for nonfarm goods. Present law requires 90 per cent support for basic crops.
Ellender, with reference to the proposal for flexible supports, said in an interview:
"To me the new proposals seem contradictory. While basic crops like cotton, wheat and corn are put under a sliding scale of supports from 75 to 90 per cent, tobacco and some others continue about the same."
Under Eisenhower's proposals, supports would be relatively high in times of scarcity, to encourage production, and low in times of surplus, to discourage it.
"It seems to me that there is no need to raise supports when there is a scarcity," Ellender said. "The market normally would eliminate need for any supports."
Ellender said he favors applying planting and marketing controls at a lower level of supply than at present "so we don't pile up a surplus to push down prices." Eisenhower cited the present government investment of some five billion dollars in surpluses as evidence that something is wrong with the present war-born system.
Eisenhower's farm program was among the first of his specific recommendations to come under direct fire in the legislative process.
Another, his call for approval of U. S. participation in the St. Lawrence seaway, is under Senate debate going into a second week. Backers express confidence it will be approved when it comes to a vote.
Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, said over the weekend he may shunt it aside temporarily to permit the Senate to vote on a mutual security treaty with South Korea. Approval is taken for granted.
After the St. Lawrence seaway bill is disposed of, Knowland says, he will call up the controversial proposal by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) to limit treaty powers. The administration opposes it, and is backing a substitute by Knowland.

Famous Trichologist Tells Truth About Saving And Improving Hair

This new method of home treatment of saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Greenville, N. C. Tuesday only, January 19. These private individual demonstrations will be held at the Proctor Hotel on Tuesday only, 12 p.m. to 9 p.m.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 10 — In an interview here today Mr. Wm. L. Keele, internationally famous trichologist and director of the Keele Hair and Scalp Specialists, said "There are 18 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.
"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Keele emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."
There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.
HAIR FOR LIFETIME
"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Keele said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."
HOW'S YOUR HAIR?
If it worries you call Trichologist L. J. Bryan at the Proctor Hotel in Greenville Tuesday only, Jan. 19, 12 p.m. to 9 p.m. The public is invited. You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way.—Adv.

Personal Check On Comet Crash
ROME (AP) — British Civil Aviation Minister Alan Lennox-Boyd arrived here early today and went immediately to the island of Elba for a personal investigation of the crash Jan. 10 of the British Comet jetliner.
Lennox-Boyd also was to attend the funeral services there today for 10 of the 35 persons who died in the crash of the big airliner into the Tyrrhenian Sea off the west Italian coast.
In a second ceremony today, flowers were to be dropped on the sea where the plane plunged between Elba and the island of Monte Cristo.
The British admiralty announced yesterday four warships would try to raise the British Overseas Airways (BOAC) plane in an effort to determine the cause of the crash. Adm. Lord Mountbatten, British commander in chief in the Mediterranean, will supervise the salvage attempt.
A fishing boat at the crash scene yesterday fished up a piece of the plane wreckage in its nets. With it were five checks of $20 each, made out to one of the crash victims, Mrs. Dorothy Beecher Baker, of Lima, Ohio.
BOAC meanwhile sent special security investigators to Beirut, Lebanon; Karachi, Pakistan; Bangkok, Thailand; and Singapore — the points where the plane landed en route to Rome.
BOAC said the possibility of sabotage "cannot be overlooked" and that careful examination of its Comets grounded after the disaster off Elba, had produced no evidence of structural weakness.

Guerrillas Said Now With Reds

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Reports reaching here today said 400 Chinese Nationalist guerrillas operating along the China-Burma border 130 miles northeast of Kengtung have deserted to the Reds.
The reports said the deserters were from the 279th Regiment of the 93rd Division and the 481st Regiment of the 161st Division.
Reportedly both regimental commanders, Colonels Yu Min and Su led the switch early this month to Peiping's forces in Yuzun.
The word "mind" originally was a verb signifying action, not a noun.

Bucs Thrash Lenoir-Rhyne Bears 74-64

Hodges Leads Scoring With 26 Points; Draws Cheers From Bear Fans; Bucs Meet Catamounts Tonight

HICKORY — East Carolina College's Pirates are still the state's only undefeated basketball team. They stayed undefeated by knocking off Lenoir-Rhyne's big Bears 74-64 here Saturday night. A crowd of 2,500 fans, mostly Lenoir-Rhyne partisans, saw the Pirates ring up their seventh consecutive win of the year and their fifth straight North State Conference win.

Big Bobby Hodges and forward Charlie Huffman were the leaders in the Pirate victory over their number one threat to the North State title. Hodges, the 6-5 senior center from Kinston, led the scoring with 26 points. Huffman, a 6-3 senior from Thomasville, hit 18 points for the fifth time in seven games. Both men also turned in top-notch defensive games.

East Carolina trailed throughout most of the opening quarter and caught up just before the quarter ended and moved ahead for the first time when Paul Jones sank a free throw to make the score 16-15. After that, they were never headed but they did get into hot water a couple of times.

Lenoir-Rhyne's most serious threat came in the last quarter when Coach Jim Hamilton's team pulled up to 62-60 with four minutes of playing time remaining in the game. The Pirates pulled back into a comfortable lead quickly, however, when Huffman sank a pair of field goals and Hodges got one two-pointer to make the score 68-60 with two minutes to play. In the last two minutes, Paul Jones sank four free throws and Huffman got two of the free throws to wrap the game up.

WCC Tonight

The victory put the Pirates in fairly good shape for their game tonight in Cullowhee. That game also stacks up as a rather important one because Coach Jim Gudger's Western Carolina Cats pulled into second place in the conference standings with a 2-1 record as a result of the Lenoir-Rhyne loss. The Pirates cannot, however, lose their hold on first place, at least not tonight, regardless of the outcome of the game.

East Carolina actually beat the Bears at their own game, rebounding Saturday night. Hodges and Huffman led the play which took most of the rebounds away from the taller Lenoir-Rhyne team. There were few Lenoir-Rhyne recoveries of rebounds off their own board.

Forward Roland Barker and guard Floyd Propst led the Lenoir-Rhyne scoring. Barker, an All-Conference player from Corbina, Kentucky, dropped in 15 points while Propst tallied 14. Propst had scored 25 points in the first meeting of the teams before Christmas but he found it difficult to move Saturday night with Pirate J. C. Thomas doing a good defensive job on him. Thomas fouled out with seven minutes left in the game and Propst got most of his points after that time. As a sidelight to the game, big Hodges turned the tide of sentiment against him to solid backing as the game progressed. Before the contest, the Lenoir-Rhyne fans had been shouting "Hodges, go back to Greenville" but before the game was over they were cheering the big boy's scoring and field goal efforts. After tonight's game in Cullowhee the Pirates will be idle until Thursday night when they meet Appalachian here in Greenville. It will mark the first time this season that the Pirates and the Mountaineers have met each other.

Harrison Takes Golf Tournament

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison veteran trouper on golf's tournament trail, was $2000 richer today and the champion of the 1954 Bing Crosby 54-holer.

"This is a swell way to start the new year," Harrison drawled. The old Arkansas traveler of the fairways fronted his fellow professionals in the windup of the famed spar-with-par event with a three day total of 210. Harrison posted 71-68-71 respectively on three courses, Cypress Point, Monterey Peninsula and Pebble Beach.

A crowd estimated at close to 20,000 saw the final round. Harrison led by two shots at the end of 36 holes. He three-putted the 18th green for a 7, two over par yesterday but edged out Jimmy Demaret by a single stroke.

Demaret, veteran from Houston, shot 73-68-70 for 211 and $1,250. Third place and $1,000 went to Tommy Bolt of Houston with 71-67-71-212.

The pro-amateur competition ended in a four-team tie with best ball totals of 193.

They were Marvin (Bud) Ward, Great Falls pro, and Harvie Ward, 1952 British Amateur champion now of San Francisco; Walter Burkemo, Detroit; and Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, manager of the San Diego coast league baseball club; Art Wall Jr., Honesdale, Pa., and National Amateur Champion Gene Littler of San Diego, and Doug Ford, Yonkers, N. Y., playing with Month Moncrief of Fort Worth, Tex.

Littler was a ball of fire the first two days, carding a 70 and a 69, while Wall shot a pair of 77s. But the national amateur champ lagged Sunday and didn't post his medal score.

Defending tournament champion Lloyd Mangrum started as the favorite but could do no better than a 217 and earnings of $112.50. Mangrum set the tournament record of 204 last year.

Many of the top pros were shut out. They included former National Open titleholders Lawson Little Jr., Julius Boros and Cary Middlecoff, all tied at 219; and ex-U. S. Open winners Byron Nelson, with 223 and Lew Worsham, with 224.

Paul Jones, senior forward from Thomasville, played a large part in East Carolina's 74-64 win over Lenoir Rhyne at Hickory Saturday night. Among other things, Jones sank seven of eight free throws, four of them coming in the last two minutes of play.

Phantoms Boast Unbeaten Record In NE Conference

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Exactly one year ago the Greenville Phantoms were sporting a Northeastern Conference record of three wins, no losses with the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets next on their list on the Jacket's home court. The outcome of that game was a 53-51 win for Roanoke. After that the G-men could only record a 3-5 record in Northeastern Conference play.

The setting is the same this year, with the Greensies owning a 3-0 conference record and the Jackets coming up next in Roanoke Rapids. The game was originally scheduled for Tuesday night in Greenville, but due to examinations in their school, Roanoke officials asked for the game in their town on Wednesday.

Roanoke Weaker
Most of Roanoke Rapids' squad of last season have graduated, including two all-conference performers in Lucky Hurst and Tom Topping. Only Robert Vick and Slip Edmondson return from the starting team that placed second in the conference last year.

Phantoms Dark Horse
The main question of the Phantom followers is: "Are the Phantoms a conference big shot?" Coach Bo Farley's five looked good in winning four of six games against triple-A competition before Christmas and probably caused some worried lines on the forehead of Kinston Coach Amos Sexton. Since the holidays, however, the G-men have not appeared exactly sensational. New Bern gave the Greensies all they could handle for over half the game and the Bears are not rated as much of a contender for the conference title.

Washington stayed in the ball game all the way against the Farley-men and Elizabeth City gave the Greensies a scare right up to the final three minutes. Neither of these two squads have been given much of a chance in conference play.

Only until the Phantoms meet top-flight competition will it be known whether they have a powerhouse or just a good team. That game will be played in Kinston next Tuesday night in a game that many observers contend will do much to decide the conference championship.

The Phants must play one game at a time, however, and Roanoke Rapids is next.

East Takes 20-9 Win Over Western Pros

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Coach Paul Brown, with his first victory over a Buddy Parker piloted outfit in eight tries, thanks a bunch of fast, burly linemen.

For it was the defensive giants of the Eastern All-Stars who crashed through the favored Western division of the National Football League to win 20-9 yesterday in the Fourth Annual Pro-Bowl game.

The individual standout was 230-pound line backer Chuck Bednarik of the Philadelphia Eagles. His contributions included calling of defensive signals, recovery of a fumble that led to the second field goal by Cleveland's Lou Grova and a 24-yard touchdown charge with an intercepted Bobby Layne pass.

Commented Brown who has piloted the squad in all four of the post-season charity games. "We apparently wanted to win it a little more than they did. Our boys just played a little harder. Especially up front."

He discounted a suggestion that perhaps money had something to do with it—the winning squadmen each getting $700 to $500 for the losers.

Going into the game the West was a touchdown favorite so the win must be some balm for the coach whose Cleveland club has lost to Parker's Detroit Lions twice in a row for the NFL championship.

Along with Bednarik, huge Arnie Weinmeister of the New York Giants, Ernie Stautner of Pittsburgh, and Gene Brito of Washington were standout line performers for the winners.

One of the big questions for the 44,214 fans who watched under overcast skies was why Parker waited so long to use Quarterback Y. A. Title of the San Francisco 49ers.

Late in the third quarter the crowd set up a chant for Title and he master minded a 63-yard march highlighted by a 36-yard run by Hugh McElhenny and culminated by a 16-yard touchdown dash by Joe Perry, both also of San Francisco.

That made it 13-9, but Ray Renfro of Cleveland iced the nationally televised game for the East with a 25-yard touchdown jaunt.

Parker explained it was difficult to utilize the services of three

Change Implements Instantly . . . Anywhere

It's simple! It's easy! It's fast! SNAP-COUPLER is the new Allis-Chalmers automatic hitching device that lets you change rear-mounted tools in a matter of seconds. It works anywhere, any time — on your farm as well as in our store.

The SNAP-COUPLER is set in a wide funnel located at the tractor's single hitchpoint. As the tractor is backed to the implement, the funnel guides the tongue of the implement into the coupling where it automatically snaps into working position. The two implement lift-links are then quickly snapped to the tractor's lift-arm latches.

Unhitching is equally simple. SNAP-COUPLER is standard equipment on new Allis-Chalmers WD-45 Tractors; available for tractors now in use.

ELSIE MACK

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE
THAT conference thing, as Aggie disrespectfully termed it, had been a major triumph for Don, whose paper in cosmic rays had been received with impressive and resounding acclaim.

"You talented ones," Aggie good-naturedly berated her nephew. "Slip out of your orbit and you're like lost stars."

"Lucky us," Phil said to Dale across the table. "So nice and human and average."

His tone conveyed neither rancor nor envy, and Dale involuntarily checked it off as another sign of growth.

Andrea entered the restaurant alone. She walked toward them, slight and beautiful, the bright aura of her triumph only half concealing the depletion of her emotional and physical resources.

"We're proud of you, youngster," Phil said, jumping up and taking both her hands in his. "Aren't we, Aggie?"

Aggie put her arm around the girl's waist. Her voice was husky. "I wish your mother could have heard you."

Andrea sat down and began stripping off her long gloves. After a moment, she raised her eyes to Don. "When you read that paper of yours in Canada, and listened to the ovation, did you feel—terribly alone, Don?"

It was an appeal not to be answered lightly, even if flippancy had been Don's particular forte. "People like you and I cannot escape loneliness, Andy," he said quietly. "It's part of our destiny. No one who soars high above the crowd can escape it."

"So modest," jeered Phil, "and unassuming!"

Andrea ignored him. "Part of our destiny." She chanted it in a sober tone of resignation, before she smiled over at Phil. "Maybe you are the fortunate one of the three of us," she said. "You have the safeguard of mediocrity."

"And how you'd abhor that," said Aggie with brisk positiveness. "Now, what are we going to eat? I want some of that white Swiss wine. Neufchatel, isn't it?"

After dinner on the following evening, Dale went through the music critics' columns with Andrea, who already knew every word of them by heart. One newspaper gave high praise to Andrea's "uncommon personality and charm" as an artist. "Here, clearly," the critic said, "is a pianist with a mind and a heart of her own."

"Fiddle!" Andrea sounded exactly like Aggie. "He wouldn't know a heart's beat from a metro-nome's tick!"

"Would you?" grinned Dale, and Andrea smiled.

According to the Times reviewer, "Miss Parrish chose music in her essential milieu—the warm, the gracious, the poetic—and these qualities she stressed with elegance of style and consistency of character." His half column of approbation concluded with the prediction that Andrea Parrish would become the leading woman pianist in America.

Andrea shruggingly disclaimed this possibility, exclaiming in the next breath with passionate rebellion. "The leading woman pianist! And why not the world?"

Dale laughed. "Where do you go next?"

Andrea pushed the stack of newspapers aside and stretched out on the couch. "South America. Esmeraldas." She lifted the hair off her neck with both hands as if it were unbearably hot and heavy, then got up and began restlessly pacing the room. She halted suddenly before Dale. "Do you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to take a week off! Excitement was in her voice. "How does this sound to you? A house in the country, in New Jersey. Five children, a dog, half a dozen cats, and a farmer and his wife who don't know a marmalade from an etude!"

Dale looked dubious. "No piano?"

Andrea laughed and lifted the telephone receiver, saying over her shoulder, "I need the tone of my soul restored, and my Cousin Josie is just the one to do it!"

beat impatience as she waited for the long-distance call to go through. "Hello!" she said finally. "Josie? Darling, it's Andrea. I had a concert at Carnegie last night, and I'm tired and sick of work. May I come to you for a week? ... You're an angel."

She replaced the receiver and frowned thoughtfully. "I wonder if Phil would like a day in the country? He adores Josie, and he could drive. I don't even want to make the effort of handling a steering wheel."

She dialed Phil's number. "When do you want to go?" Phil asked.

"Tomorrow."

"For the love of Mike, I can't, Andy," Phil said. "I'm tied up with a client who wants to buy a slice of Long Island. Don's here, though. I'll ask him if he's free of weighty scientific assignments." After a moment, "Don will take you, Andy. Is Dale there?"

"She's here."

"Give her my love, will you?" Andy cradled the receiver. "Something happens to Phil's voice when he says your name, Dale. I shouldn't be surprised if he's serious, this time."

Dale discredited that with a shrug. "What's the matter?" Andrea asked in Aggie's forthright way. "Are you afraid of bringing in love again?"

"It's not love I'm afraid of," Dale said carelessly. "It's something I could easily mistake for love."

In the morning, Dale stood on the sidewalk watching Don stow Andrea's bags in the car trunk. "All she needs," he said, straightening and lifting a shoulder at Dale, "is a T-shirt and a pair of jeans. Why all the luggage, Sis?"

"I'm taking some things to Josie," Andrea retorted. "She'll look fine milking a cow in a strapless Schiaparelli!"

Andrea laughed. "She can cut them down for the children."

Prefers Prison To Return Home

ATLANTA (AP)—A Negro convict who has a wife and 10 children at home has refused to leave prison after serving 7 years of a sentence for manslaughter.

Chairman Charles Pannell, of the State Pardon and Parole Board said James Phillips, 40, serving a 7-10 year sentence, was offered his release this week, but refused to leave the Cobb work camp.

Pannell said he didn't plan any further action other than "explain his rights" to the Carroll County man. "He's got a right to serve his full term if he wants to," Pannell added.

Yugoslav Communists 'Expel' Vice President

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—The Yugoslav Communist party's Central Committee has expelled Vice President Milovan Djilas from its ranks after hearing President Marshal Tito denounce his top aide. Djilas attempted to "liquidate" the Red party in Yugoslavia and sought to adopt the capitalistic system.

Immediately after the 100-member committee, meeting yesterday in extraordinary session, issued its unanimous decree firing him, Djilas resigned as chairman of the Yugoslav Parliament.

He also repented his actions, confessing that his attitude had been wrong. He denied that he opposed Tito and his policies and swore he still was a "true Marxist."

The committee gave Djilas a stern "final warning" to alter his views. This appeared to threaten his complete expulsion from the party.

It appeared likely also that he would be ousted from his government post as one of Tito's four vice-presidents. The committee hearing, however, apparently dealt only with party matters.

Djilas' purge from the party leadership climaxed the most disrupting politico-social controversy among Yugoslavia's rulers since the war.

The storm burst after the 41-year-old partisan fighter wrote, a series of articles in the party newspaper Borba proposing modifications in the Red setup in the nation.

Though the party committee confined itself mainly to Djilas' political views, the writings that brought down the Red wrath were his criticisms of the wives of other top Communists.

Djilas charged in a long article friend and accused him of seeking to break down party discipline. Tito said Djilas' articles created "enormous harm, not only to the party but to the unity of the country."

Djilas proposed in his Borba articles that the Communist party become more of a "discussion group" and less an active organ of administration. He also called for modern-day reevaluation of the basic principles of Marx and Lenin. He even went so far as to charge that some administration leaders had sought special privileges.

Travel Is Factor In Spring Style Trends

By DOROTHY ROE
 NEW YORK (AP)—The weather—and the travel habits of American women—are ruling factors in designer Vera Maxwell's wearable and colorful collection of spring fashions.

The globe-trotting Vera explored Denmark, Austria and Bavaria to get inspiration for her current series, and comes up with a distinguished group of Danish print cottons, hand-woven flax linens from Bavaria and Austrian details such as green velvet collars on linen coats.

Miss Maxwell, an inveterate traveler herself, has concentrated on travel costumes for a number of years, featuring dress-and-coat combinations which can be dressed up or down for various occasions. This season her prize outfit is a straight coat of chiffon-weight camel's hair lined in a liberty print silk matching the accompanying dress with adjustable wraparound bodice in the favorite Maxwell manner.

A suit of Bavarian handwoven flax linen in natural color has a blouse and jacket lining of red plaid cotton and a green velvet collar. Another highlight is a loose coat of yellow linen with a Chinese print, lined in solid color blue linen to match the sheath dress that goes with it.

Vincent Monte Sano makes news with loose, soft coats that achieve fullness by means of box pleats falling from shoulder yokes, sometimes belted in just below the shoulder blades.

Belted suits are important in the Monte Sano spring collection, one recurrent model having a soft shirt top belted at the natural waistline.

Black and navy silk coats, fitted or loose, are important in this collection, as they are throughout the New York wholesale market.

Family Furniture Taken By Thieves

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP)—Little Mieke Pierson's daddy built her a desk for her 11th birthday yesterday, the day they were going to move into their new house. But it wasn't there when she came to see it.

Neither was the family range, refrigerator, deep freeze, automatic washer and drier, radio-phonograph, loving room suite, bedroom cute rugs or their trunks.

Thieves evidently backed up a moving van the night before the Piersons were going to move their furniture from the locked garage into their new house, and cleaned them out.

Mieke's father George, 33, her mother Marian, and her brother Tom, 12, sat on packed cartons and stared at the one piece of furniture left, Mrs. Pierson's sewing machine.

Britain Looks To Relying On Atom

LONDON (AP)—A British government report says that within 20 years nuclear energy may provide about a fourth of Britain's estimated power needs.

The 100-page report, entitled "Britain's Atom Factories" was made public yesterday. It was written by Kenneth Jay, 44, principal scientific officer at the big Harwell atom research plant.

Jay said nuclear fuel might be developed in the next two decades to produce as much electricity as 20 million tons of coal. This is the amount by which Britain's coal production is expected then to fall short of the country's needs.

If certain assumptions turn out to be valid, Jay added, "it might ultimately be possible completely to replace coal by nuclear fuel for the generation of electrical power in the United Kingdom."

British Supply Minister Duncan ndys said in a foreword to Jay's report that Britain had moved in the past year from the purely research stage into regular atomic energy production.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Scattered profit-taking came into the stock market today following a strong four-day advance.

Prices moved irregularly, but on the whole there was an air of stability about the performance.

The movement of prices in either direction was effectively covered by a point.

Trading was sustained at a pace around 1 1/2 million shares for the day, but it was well below Friday's big 2,180,000 shares.

Metals were mostly lower on the heels of a cut in the price of zinc and lead.

Railroads were down a shade on balance and most chemicals were backward. Distillers and utilities were higher together with the oils and air lines.

Other divisions of the market were mixed including the steels, motors, and aircrafts.

Among higher stocks were U. S. Steel, Schenley Industries, Consolidated Edison, and United Air Lines. Lower were Republic Steel, Chrysler, Phelps Dodge, Dow Chemical, and International Nickel.

Fewer Problems Claimed In Areas Of ABC Control

RALEIGH (AP)—In North Carolina localities which have ABC stores the problems growing out of alcohol "are far less serious" and "liquor-borne crime far less prevalent" than elsewhere in the state.

This is reported in a 16-page publication just released by the North Carolina Assn. of ABC Boards.

"The alcohol problem is less serious in ABC localities," the booklet reports, "because the control of liquor, not the sale of liquor, is the primary concern of the several boards of Alcoholic Beverage Control."

Liquor is sold legally in 96 counties, cities and towns. The publication is based on a study of conditions in these localities. It was compiled and written under the supervision of the association's Public Relations Committee headed by Henry Liles of Greensboro.

Warrant Issued In Shooting Case

Police reported today that Joe Frank Hopkins, Negro, was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital about 11:16 Sunday night with a bullet wound in the leg.

Hopkins told police that he was shot by Bennie McCoy on Mack Street Sunday night.

A warrant was issued for McCoy's arrest, police officials stated.

Narron Named Chairman Of Local Business Body

H. L. Narron, 2nd secretary of Greenville Tobacco Co., Inc., Greenville, has been appointed chairman of the local chapter of National Federation of Independent Business.

He succeeds D. M. Harris under whom the Greenville chapter was organized. The Greenville unit of the federation has more than 60 members.

Announcement of Narron's appointment was made today by LaVern M. Baker, district manager of the federation for this area.

Narron's duty will be to assemble the Mandate ballots voted by the local members of the federation, tabulate them, and send the signed ballots along with the tabulation directly to Herbert C. Bonner, congressman from the first district.

The ballots will give the Tar Heel representative a cross section of local opinion on various legislative issues as they arise.

The federation chapter in Greenville is one of thousands of such groups representing independent business men and professional men all over the nation. These groups, acting together, make the National Federation of Independent Business the largest organization of its kind in the United States.

Recognition given the federation proves the importance of mandate vote and united independent business and professional men action. The group assisted, for example, in setting up the small business planks of both the Democratic and Republican parties at the Chicago Conventions.

Congressional Quarterly has given the Federation the No. 1 position in a recent analysis of Washington

Call Firemen To 2 Minor Blazes

Firemen were called out twice over the weekend and both times they found only minor blazes.

At 6:45 p.m. Saturday the department was called to the home of W. H. Brown at 190 East Sixth Street to a grass fire. Firemen reported that the blaze had already been extinguished when they arrived.

At noon Sunday the firemen received a call from the home of Mannie Jones, 1215 Washington St., when an oil stove flooded. Fire department officials reported that there was no fire damage and only slight smoke damage from the blaze.

Coffee production has found various parts of the world supplying the bulk of the market since the 17th Century when Arabia was the world leader. Later the West Indies were the main source of supply. Java came next and finally Brazil became the world production leader.
