Federal Housing Overhaul Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today gave Congress an eight-point program for revising federal housing laws with the declared aim of providing "good housing in good neighborhoods" for every American.

"The federal government must provide aggressive and positive leadership. At the same time actions and programs must be avoided that would make our citizens increasingly dependent upon the federal government to supply their housing needs."

Federal National Mortgage Assn., which bolsters housing credit by buying mortgages from banks and other lenders. The President proposed to convert it gradually to private instead of federal control.

Noting that 19 million of the existing city dwellings are more than 30 years old, Eisenhower emphasized the need for preventing "slums and blight."

"The successful development of this program will afford a much greater proportion of our lower income families an opportunity to own or rent a suitable home," he predicted.

Bidault Proposes Asian Problems Considered Last Ask Priority For Europe

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER BERLIN (AP)—Foreign Minister George Bidault proposed to the Big Four today that German and Austrian problems be settled ahead of any discussion of Asian problems.

through cooperation, and the Communist empire has suffered internal strains since Stalin's death.

At this first such meeting in five years, Bidault said: "Clearly our meeting should be devoted to European problems. I do not believe that agreements reached on a broad plane will be advisable or even effective. We do not see why the fate of Austria should depend on that of Korea, why there should be established a link between the unification of Germany and a change in the international accords governing Communist China"

The Berlin conference seemed more likely to result in a strengthening of the drive for West European defenses against Soviet power than in solving the problems of German unity Austrian independence and cold war tensions generally.

License Tag Sales High As Final Week Started

Both State and City license tag sales are above last year's figures, but officials at the two sales windows are expecting a rugged week of sales prior to the February 1 deadline.

The official at the State tag window in the Home and Auto Supply Company on West Fifth Street said the 807 more tags sold this year would not even compensate for the new cars bought. She expects a rush week beginning today, but this morning the line was still relatively short.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

With funds contributed by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church (in the U.S.A.), there has been completed and dedicated a "Christian Youth Center" in Mikage, a suburb of Kobe, industrial city of Japan. The center of the edifice is a small but beautiful chapel, and the remainder of the building is equipped for educational and recreational purposes. It will serve young women engaged in Kobe's industries and others in the educational institutions of that city. Miss Gertrude Feely, of Shelbyville, Mo., is the Center's missionary-director.

In 1887, the Women's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., sponsored a Day of Prayer for Peace. The idea spread slowly; Canada adopted the day in 1920; and seven years later it had observers in many countries across the world. In 1941 the World Day of Prayer for Peace became an annual observance of the United Church Women, which is now an arm of the National Council of Churches. In 1953, the Day was observed with services and prayers in some 113 nations and in more than 20,000 separate communities in the United States. In 1954 it will be observed on March 5, and a still greater number of nations are expected to participate. The governors of half the American states and more than one hundred mayors of cities have issued proclamations calling upon their citizens to pray for peace in their churches and synagogues on that day.

Two years ago, in Portsmouth, Va. city officials stopped all traffic when the noon whistles blew; and the Call to Prayer and the Prayer for Peace were read over a loudspeaker from a church in the city's center. Several other cities will have similar observance this year. At the 1953 observance in Napoleon, Mo., the service was introduced by the playing of a European-recorded transcription of a bell-ringing from a noted church tower; members of two white congregations and a Negro congregation in Liberty, Miss., held inter-racial prayer in the Negro church; a 12-year-old organist played at a special service for children in Harland, Iowa; while the prayer service was being held in Brownfield, Tex. 100 business concerns closed their doors for an hour at the request of the Chamber of Commerce.

Alumni Office Moves In Remodeled Building

The Alumni Office of East Carolina College has been moved into the Faculty-Alumni House on the college campus, a building recently remodeled and redecorated. Alumni Secretary James W. Butler and his staff are now installing equipment there.

Moving of the Alumni Office from the Austin building began several days ago. The new headquarters of the Alumni Association are located on the West Campus and were used in recent years as a home management house and earlier as the college infirmary.

The project to convert the building into a modern and conveniently arranged Alumni-Faculty House was carried out under the leadership of President John D. Messick, Business Manager F.D. Duncan, and other members of the faculty and staff at East Carolina. Among those giving assistance in planning changes and improvements in the building are Butler, Dean of Women Ruth White, and Dr. Bessie McNeil, head of the department of home economics.

In addition to business offices for alumni affairs, the Alumni-Faculty House includes a women's lounge, a men's lounge, a reception room, a sun parlor, a dining room, and a kitchen.

Gifts from alumni and from faculty members will be used, according to plans, to provide furnishings for several of the rooms and so to increase the attractiveness and usefulness of the building.

Five rooms are being used to carry on the work of the Alumni Association. These include offices, a file room, and a room for use in mailing the "Alumni Bulletin," the student newspaper "East Carolinian," and other materials.

The space vacated in the Austin building by the Alumni Office is being remodeled into offices for the college Bureau of Field Services, which is directed by Dr. Ed J. Carter. The college telephone exchange, installed last fall, is also located there.

After treatment for face and arms burns and a bruise on her head, Mrs. Wilson went home from Hurley Hospital.

Concert Comedienne To Appear At East Carolina College February 2

Anna Russell, international concert comedienne, promises to be the most popular attraction on the East Carolina College Entertainment Series for the current season, and interest among concert-goers over a wide area is being shown in her appearance on the campus Tuesday, February 2.

Her program at the college will be presented under the auspices of the East Carolina Entertainment Committee, headed by Alumni Secretary James W. Butler, and will take place at 8 p.m. in the Wright building. Tickets priced at $1.80 for adults and $1.20 for children are now available at the Alumni Office on the campus.

As singer and actress, Miss Russell gives a program at once hilarious and informative, during which she pokes fun at opera and at musical highbrows in general. A sound musical training at the Royal College of Music, where she studied with Ralph Vaughan Williams, and a natural flair for being funny have combined to put her at the top as a comedienne.

Noted Canadian Statesman Dies

OTTAWA (AP)—Hume Wrong, 89, Canada's under secretary of state and until two months ago the nation's ambassador to the United States, died yesterday of a heart ailment.

The veteran diplomat was appointed to the second highest post in the Canadian foreign service in November after serving since 1946 an envoy to Washington. Two weeks after the new appointment he entered a hospital for treatment. He recovered partially but re-entered the hospital Saturday. The tall, slim former university professor served more than half of his nearly 27 years in the foreign service in Washington and was a friend of the last four presidents.

A Realistic Glance At The Berlin Session

Attention of the free world, particularly of the people in the United States and in Europe are focused on the meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers in Berlin.

As Messrs Dulles, Eden, Bidault and Molotov gather for their conference on European affairs and East-West tension generally, most people are hoping against hope that some understanding can come from the meeting which may lead the world a step closer to peace. It will not be unexpected if the meeting proves almost futile because of communist desires to make it into another propaganda arena through which to hurl unfounded charges at the free world.

An attitude of hoping for the best, but not being shocked at the worst is the only sound attitude for the free world to take at the meeting.

If the foreign ministers get around to discussing in business-like terms the principal questions before them—reunification of Germany; an independence treaty for Austria; and a further conference on world tension—it can hardly help but be a blustering session. But perhaps some understanding will come from the wrangling which ensues.

If Russia insists upon discussing everything but the kitchen sink as conditions which must be met before the principal issues can be discussed, little accomplishment will come from the meeting.

It must be expected that Russia will make demands on concessions of the Free World on questions other than those concerning Europe before any agreement can be had upon the questions for which the conference has been called. It should not be surprising either if the Russians exhibit the fact that they have no more intentions of negotiating in good faith at Berlin than they have at previous meetings.

It is certainly more realistic than pessimistic for the free world to expect little to be accomplished at the Berlin conference, until events of the conference prove otherwise.

Voters Must Act To Save Public Rights

According to political rules Gov. Umstead is probably following the proper course in playing it hands-off on the question of secrecy in the General Assembly's committees handling budget matters.

He asserted at a news conference last week that the General Assembly makes its own rules, and made it plain that he will lend his support neither to the secrecy legislation which was adopted in the 1953 session, nor to the people in their attempt to regain their right to free access to the transaction of public business by legislative committees.

To us it appears that the governor took great pains to walk the narrow line be-

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
STILLING THE WAVES

We read in the Gospel of Matthew (Chap. 8), that as Jesus and his disciples were crossing the Sea of Galilee, a great tempest arose; but Jesus was asleep. And they came to him and awoke him and cried out saying, "Save, Lord, we perish." And he rebuked them for their lack of faith, and he rebuked the winds also and the sea; "and there was a great calm."

Why do you suppose in God's revelation of Himself to men, this event should be related? Evidently because it involves permanent spiritual truths. And the primary spiritual truth is not only that Jesus when He was here in the flesh had power over the forces of nature, but that this same Jesus, now ascended to heavenly glory, still possesses power to calm greater storms than ever swept across the little Sea of Galilee. He speaks today to overwhelming circumstances in the lives of believing men and women, and these circumstances, which at one moment threaten destruction, become calm and peaceful at his command.

The nations of the world are in dreadful turmoil. Yet they cherish the hope that somehow they can bring peace to a distressed world. We shall never have peace until He who calmed the waves of Galilee 2000 years ago, calms the waves of selfishness, sin, and avarice, which keep the modern world in turmoil. Christ stilled waves long ago; He is capable of stilling them now, if we have faith to let Him have his way.

Anti-Speculation Legislation

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Drastic revision of anti speculation legislation may be proposed by the Eisenhower Administration to prevent certain stock market promoters and their New Deal associates from making a killing by forcing private utility companies into selling out to public power systems.

The get-rich-quick group cleaned up through their success in financing Nebraska into the nation's first and only public power commonwealth, but they have been checked temporarily in the state of Washington. Should they win there in the current legal battle, they contemplate further cleanup schemes in other western areas. Pending amendment of the Securities and Exchange Act, the SEC watchdogs are helpless to protect investors and consumers.

This promotion racket has been made possible by a queer trick in New Deal legislation governing the sale of private power facilities. In their zeal to extend government operations in this field, F.D.R., the late Harold L. Ickes and Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska framed the law so that the SEC has no jurisdiction over transactions affecting purchase of private utility properties by a state, a municipality or a public power district. It is this exemption which is now under attack.

KEY MAN IN FINANCIAL DRAMA—The key figure in this backstage drama is Guy C. Myers, who has been known as "Flash" ever since he engaged in irrigation and farm-co-operative promotion many years ago in Billings, Mont. Associated with him in financing these deals are Dillon, Read & Co., Halsey, Stuart & Co., John Nuveen & Co., New York investment firms. His active partner is Paul H. Nitze of New York, former vice-president of Dillon, Read & Co.

MYERS GOT HIS START in the utility game through J. D. Ross, when the latter managed Seattle's municipal power and light system. The Billings operator helped to buy up certain power plants and lines for Ross, who later became Bonneville Administrator, SEC Chairman and one of Ickes' few favorites when the latter was Secretary of Interior. Ross introduced Myers to the New Deal crowd.

THEIR KEEN DESIRE—Senator Norris and Ickes were so anxious to make Nebraska a model and pioneer public power state that PWA funds totalling $160,000,000 were allocated to build a few generating stations and distributing lines. But they needed expansion of the system to make it economically feasi-between the two factions on the issue in his statement. He asserted that all agree that public business should be transacted in the open. Then he went on to say the people have a right to know the results of deliberations, decisions and official actions of office holders.

He carefully avoided the question of the right of the people to know how such decisions are reached in official meetings.

If the peoples right to know what is done about transacting government business is to be preserved, it is evident that the infamous secrecy legislation passed by the last session of the state legislature must be repealed. Unless the secrecy law is repealed, legislative committees will continue to hold secret sessions on budget matters. Through the secret session legislation, the people will not have the open access to information on the state's financial matters that they should have.

The voters of North Carolina should make sure the legislators they send to Raleigh for the 1955 session of the General Assembly are men who are interested in the rights of the people and will see that the secrecy legislation is repealed.

Just because the governor chooses to walk in the valley of indecision on the matter, it is no reason for the people of the state to sit back quietly and allow a few members of the General Assembly to decide when the rights of the people shall be violated for purposes of political expediency.

ble, and they called in Myers to negotiate for purchase of rival power facilities.

Myers testified that he threatened to build a competing system with Federal money, if the private people did not sell out on his terms. When they continued to object, he forced their acquiescence by telephoning their New York financiers and Howard L. Aller, president of their parent company, American Power & Light. Under legislation breaking up holding companies, Aller had to get rid of his nationwide system. Ross was hired to make the appraisals in these deals.

AN ILLUSTRATION—The acquisition of the private Omaha facilities illustrates perfectly how the scheme operates. Although the Federal Power Commission estimated them to be worth only $27,750,000, Myers' public power clients paid $46,000,000. They were able to hike the price because, under private ownership, the company paid about $10,000,000 in taxes, whereas the public authority would be tax exempt. The investment firms made a killing through selling the 4 per cent, non-taxable revenue bonds. Local newspapers refer to the deal as "Nebraska's Teapot Dome."

Myers' profit was estimated at $504,000, less expenses. Senator Styles Bridges has computed Myers' commission at $2,225,000, if he succeeds in forcing the Washington Water Power Company and the Puget Sound Power & Light Company to dispose of their properties to public power districts in the Northwest.

HUGE BONANZA—The Northwest transaction was halted in July 1945, by a House denunciation by former Representative Lyle H. Boren of Oklahoma. It was entitled "Swindles, Inc." and he said in part: "The stakes are high. This bonanza is bigger than Credit Mobilier and the 'whiskey ring.' It dwarfs Teapot Dome. But with the difference that it appears to be legal. Unless an effective legislative plug against this legal loophole is enacted, we will helplessly witness what undoubtedly will be the biggest rape of industry and raid on the Federal Treasury ever dreamed of by the mind of man."

CHECKED BY COURT INJUNCTION—The Boren-ban frightened the bankers and New Dealers because it cast discredit on their methods. Recently, however, Myers has resumed negotiations for buying out the two Washington firms. He has been checked by a recent court injunction at Boston, and a demand of the private companies' officials for a "poll" of stockholders on the question of selling out.

Business Today

Look How He Sells

By ELMER ROESSNER

The theme that small businessmen should watch large corporations and adopt or adapt their best ideas has been stressed here frequently. Today's theme is that big business might well study some of the works of the little fellows. Eddie Kossman, for example.

Mr. Kossman has an auto agency in Cleveland, Miss., pop. 6,738, and he does such a good job selling Buick cars that the National Automobile Dealers Association asked him to tell its recent Miami Beach convention how he does it.

He advertises in his local papers and over the local radio station and he backs that up by being a good member of the community.

He is chapter chairman of the Red Cross, a member of the executive board of the Boy Scout Council, a director of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Rotary Club.

He gives a baby book with his firm's name in it to parents of every child born in the local hospital. In football season he mails a weekly bulletin of ratings and predictions to fans in his area. He has a "well-lettered" sound truck which he lends to schools, churches, veterans' organizations and other civic groups free of charge.

His company gives a trophy to the outstanding man each year on the high-school football team. It gives a medal to the outstanding leader in other school activities each year. When the senior class goes on its annual excursion, Kossman's firm presents each member with a gift. It frequently broadcasts local high-school football games.

Most of these things do not make direct sales. Yet in the past year, Mr. Kossman sold 125 new cars and 250 used ones.

ISLAND REPUBLIC TO RAISE OWN FISH

The Dominican Republic is on an island surrounded by ocean waters, yet the country has been importing 6,000 tons of packaged fish each year. But the country is doing something about this paradox.

It is going to grow more of its own fish. Dr. S. Y. Lin, fisheries expert of the Food and Agricultural Organization, is training Dominicans in the art of fish farming. Four culture farms have been opened to supply small fish for the rice paddies, brackish waters, lagoons, marshes and rivers. Carp, trout, bass and other adaptable fish will be raised. Meanwhile, the Dominican Navy has established a salt-water fishing station on Beata Island. It will be turned over to private enterprise.

Analyzing The Role Of Vending Machines In Business

By ROGER W. BARSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., — As happens every once in a while, stories have been going around which portray a brilliant outlook for the automatic vending machine business. Unscrupulous promoters paint the future in most vivid colors, exaggerating the sales potential and hardly mentioning the operating costs and other problems.

AUTOMATIC MERCHANDISING HAS DISTINCT ADVANTAGES

This robot is essentially a supplementary salesman. Automatic vendors do well on low-cost items such as cigarettes and candy, which merchants often sell only as an accommodation. Machines can take over the sale of such merchandise and generally show a small profit. Furthermore, they don't smoke the habit of smoking "on the house" as do many employees, and they never ask for a raise or a day off!

Around Capitol Square

Scott Report Reaction; Setting The Record Straight

By LYNN NISBET

PERSONAL — Some days ago the capitol square column emanating from this quarter began with the statement: "Political observers around capitol square are less certain now that Kerr Scott will be a candidate for the United States Senate than they were a few weeks ago." There followed a brief analysis of the reasons given by some of the capitol square folks for their uncertainty as to Scott's candidacy.

That statement of prevailing sentiment and the reasons assigned for conclusions reached was an attempt at honest reporting of conditions rather than expression of personal opinion on part of the writer. So many people throughout the State and a number of editorial writers have commented on that story and imputed to your reporter the positive statement that Kerr Scott may not be in Another rapidly growing field where the machines play a valuable role is in supplying snacks where food is not otherwise available. These machines offer facilities an ideal means of providing quick-energy foods which keep both morale and efficiency high. There is then no need to "send out" or to take a half-hour "walk" to the corner drug-store.

PROFITS ARE NOT LARGE
But these uses, while they assure further growth to the industry, do not constitute a golden road to riches. The fact is that the average volume of sales per machine is surprisingly low. The ordinary cigarette machine (and cigarettes account for over half of all vending-machine sales) dispenses about fifteen packs a day. It is clear that at this rate the machine is a large investment in robots in order to support a serviceman who will load, repair, and collect coins from the machines. The daily net profit for the owner is figured in fractions of pennies.

In addition, vandalism by small boys and petty thieves is an occupational hazard of the robot. It must be located where there is heavy traffic at all times, or where there is an employee doing other work. Public locations are unsatisfactory. Certainly there is no profit if a blue-uniformed "clerk" must stand ready to defend the machine with his nightstick! This means that the further growth of such machines will come in stores where vandalism cannot occur.

THE PERSONAL APPROACH

Machines do not know the psychology of selling. It is a mistake, therefore, to believe that they can ever take over the job of an enthusiastic clerk who has a true "sales appeal." They are able to sell only well-known, low-cost items that people already want. Products that people want to feel, or try for size, cannot yet be automatically dispensed. Also, experience has shown that the average citizen hesitates to drop anything larger than a quarter in a machine; and there are few persons indeed who will deposit dollar or more in a gadget that they are not sure will work.

If We Could Only Be Sure—

Therefore, I am not now forecasting that robot selling machines will go far toward displacing sales clerks, but they may discourage further wage raises. I do predict, however, that the extent to which the robot finally supersedes the blonde will materially depend upon advertising and packaging.

IMPORTANCE OF ADVERTISING

It is significant that the products which move well through automatic selling devices are well-known brands. "Dime" chains are giving them careful study in connection with "self-selection" stores. Of course, the nation's leading practical psychologists will have to devote their great experience and talent to the problem of pre-selling anything that is earmarked for quantity distribution by machines. Hence, the robot should increase newspaper advertising.

The first step will be clever packaging. And once a good design has been achieved, it must be repeated, day after day, year in and year out, be put before the buying public. The manufacturer who does not make full use of good packaging and newspaper advertising will not get repeat orders from vending machine operators. Therefore, I conclude that robot selling does have its place in certain stores where its uses have not as yet been fully exploited. But I warn readers not to be misled; robots are now far from being mechanical gold mines.

Apparently he has neither the desire nor the capacity for the kind of organizational direction that made the late Furnifold Simmons and Max Gardner the recognized leaders of the majority faction of the Democratic party in North Carolina.

DISTINCTION — There is a distinction, may be even a basic difference, between a popular champion of a cause or an idea and the leader of an organized movement. The one is an individual, the other is a sort of corporate entity.

When Kerr Scott ran for commissioner of agriculture in 1936 and for Governor in 1948 he ran as an individual, although in both campaigns he symbolized the popular resentment against entrenched official who were charged with seeking to perpetuate their regime. In neither campaign did he have anything resembling a coherent or manageable organization. His call was for everybody who don't like what's going on coming along with me and we will change it. It developed that a majority of the voters did not like what was going on, and they combined to help him make some changes.

ORGANIZATION — During his four years as Governor he had opportunity to build a potent organization. He didn't do it. Whether because he did not know how or did not want to is a moot question. What the effects of an organization built by the late J.M. Broughton, if he had lived, and Scott as contrasted and opposed to an organization that would have been built by State Senator and National Committeeman Joe Blythe, if he had lived will never be known.

The historic fact is that Scott did not build a political organization upon which he could rely for support, else there would be no need for his current survey of sentiment. The fact also is that the once potent organization embracing the long time majority faction of the Democratic party has been shot to pieces and is now without recognized or accepted leadership. The nominal leader of that faction, Governor William Umstead, has about as little control or influence over the rank and file citizenship as does Scott. If comparison must be made, it would seem to be that Umstead enjoys more organizational prestige. Scott has more individual following, but neither can justify the claim to actual leadership.

Hemingway And Wife Safe, Unhurt After Two Crackups

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Novelist Ernest Hemingway and his fourth wife were safe and unhurt today after two plane crackups here in the big game wilds of central East Africa.

The couple's chartered sightseeing plane was damaged Saturday when they landed alongside the Upper Nile to take pictures. Later a rescue plane cracked up as it tried to take off with them. Both times nobody was hurt.

Today the Hemingways were headed by road for Entebbe, at the head of Uganda's Lake Victoria.

The American couple with pilot Roy Marsh, left Nairobi, capital of the British colony of Kenya, Saturday for a 600-mile flight to the 400-foot Murchison Falls of Uganda.

As Marsh landed the small Cessna plane for Hemingway to take pictures near the falls, the undercarriage was damaged and the party could not take off. The plane had no radio, and when it failed to return, East African Airways launched a search.

The Cessna was spotted yesterday by Capt. R. C. Jude, piloting a British Overseas Airways airliner. He said it was about 300 yards from the Victoria Nile River, three miles below the falls, and in the middle of scrub trees and thick bush. He said that he saw no signs of life but that the aircraft didn't appear badly damaged.

The Hemingways and Marsh, meanwhile, had hailed a passing launch taking tourists to the falls. It brought them to Butiba, 40 miles south on Lake Albert, where a rescue plane landed to take them to Entebbe.

The rescue plane was damaged taking off and failed to become airborne. One report—unconfirmed—said it burned. Again nobody was hurt.

The author and his wife then took to the road for the 185-mile trip southeast to Entebbe.

Hemingway and his present wife were married in 1946. She was Mary Welsh well-known magazine correspondent. His first three marriages ended in divorce.

The novelist and his wife live most of the time outside Havana, Cuba, but are now on a five-month journey through East Africa. His most recent published writing in the current issue of Look magazine, tells of the first five weeks of the party's safari by truck, hunting car, jeep and on foot.

Shotgun Blood Bath Ends Year-Long Family Quarrel

DENVER (AP)—A calm 26-year-old laborer, muttering "I want to go home" in his native Italian tongue, was held today as police traced a year-long family quarrel which erupted in a shotgun "blood bath" yesterday.

Held for investigation was Frank Archina, arrested in a tavern three blocks from the home where his parents-in-law lay dead, their son fatally wounded and a daughter critically shot.

Officers said Frank A. Macri, 63, and his wife Elizabeth, 58, were killed instantly by blasts from a 12-gauge shotgun. Their son Frank Jr., 22, died five hours later at Denver General Hospital. A daughter, Mary, 20, was in critical condition.

Archina, held without charge, denied through an interpreter that he fired the fatal shots.

The young Italian immigrant is married to a second daughter of the dead couple, Rose, 19. Police quoted her as saying she would have been shot also "but he ran out of shells."

Officers said they were told that Archina and his brother Gene were married to Rose and Mary Macri, respectively in a double ceremony in Italy a year ago.

After emigrating to the United States, they moved into the Macris' modest, two-story frame home. Then, according to Mike Carbatta, a nephew of the slain couple, the Macris began pleading with the two couples to remarry in a church, since their Italian wedding was a civil ceremony. Patrolman Steve Mastin said the sisters had been living in one upstairs bedroom and the brothers in another.

Their frequent quarreling over the remarriage apparently broke out anew at an afternoon luncheon, the officer said.

Burned Out, But Kept Its Schedule

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP)—Using a one-time garage for quarters and a borrowed press, the burned-out Ypsilanti Daily Press went ahead with publication on schedule today.

The paper's $250,000 plant was virtually a complete ruin from a fire Saturday.

But even as its home was burning the Press came out. The Press arranged with a printing firm to put out a one-page paper devoted exclusively to the fire.

Yesterday the Press set up editorial facilities and business office in a former auto sales agency a few blocks from the burned building and got its Associated Press wire news from the Michigan Daily, University of Michigan's student publication in nearby Ann Arbor.

Frank Handy, assistant publisher and son of Publisher George Handy, vowed at the time of the fire that the Press would "do everything humanly possible" to avoid missing a single edition.

The blaze started in a quantity of baled waste paper in the basement.

Dickenson, 28, refused repatriation in Korea but later decided to return. The Army accused him of seeking favor with the enemy to the detriment of his fellow prisoners.

Gen. Holdridge said he had sent a telegram to Dickenson's parents that he believes the former corporal could not receive a fair trial "in the present climate of emotionalism and vindictiveness."

Favor Shifting Of Tax Relief Burden

By CHARLES F. BARRETT WASHINGTON (AP)—Some House Democrats talked today of a drive to get more tax relief for families and less for stockholders and businesses in any tax revision program enacted this year.

They threatened a floor fight aimed at drastically revising a two-billion-dollar tax reduction and revision plan strongly championed by President Eisenhower and other Republicans.

Several Democrats on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee said they hope to eliminate sections providing sharp reductions in taxes on stock and bond dividends, and much more rapid tax reductions to business for the cost of new plants and equipment.

These proposals, already approved by the committee, would reduce revenue an estimated $15 million dollars the first year and provide much bigger savings to the taxpayers involved in the second and third years—perhaps three times as much.

Republicans have hailed them as the most important points in a project for rewriting almost all the nation's tax laws. Sponsors say they will encourage investment, business growth, more and better jobs and a higher standard of living for everybody.

But some Democrats argue it would be far preferable to increase personal income tax exemptions, thus reducing taxes more for large families and low-income groups, and shoring up the economy through their increased purchasing power.

Democrats already have proposed to add to the program a $100 increase in each personal exemption.

Now, several Democrats said, they are considering a move on the House floor to knock out the tax revision sections on dividends and business depreciation and replace them with the increase in personal exemptions. Democrats argue that the loss in revenue—2½ billions from the personal exemptions increase—would be almost the same by the third year.

Rep. Eberhart (D-Pa) said today he personally favored this strategy but Democrats probably would not reach a final, party-line decision until the committee completes the revision project. Several other Democratic committee members, asking not to be quoted by name, said they also favored the idea.

Eberhart said Republicans are presenting the revision program to the public as mostly technical changes in tax laws which will benefit everybody.

"Actually, he said, 'the plan appears to be a fundamental change in the tax structure to shift the burden of taxation from corporations and stockholders—those most able to pay—to wage earners and salaried people.'"

Eberhart said after the dividend proposal reaches full effect, a taxpayer with $2,100 in wages would pay $422 in taxes but a man with the same income from dividends would pay only $100 in taxes.

However, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said last night in an NBC television interview, "What helps business helps the people... Things that help business create more tools, more jobs and keep our economy going."

The Ways and Means Committee today went into its eighth working day on the revision project.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

DALE stood watching Phil walk back to the big house, the sun glinting on his yellow hair. Confused and miserable her thoughts tumbled over themselves. She poked at the dead ashes of yesterday's bonfire, and turned to go into the house. Phil's car swooped around the sharp curve. The wake of his dust seemed sitting over her. Why couldn't she believe in Phil, trust him?

Because every time I've believed in anyone since Kelly, I've been hurt. That's why I'm here; not for those reasons Phil tried to force on me.

A movement of air stirred the monk's cloth folds as she ducked under them and went into the house. She turned on the radio-phonograph again, and the Chopin prelude moved into the room.

August slid away, warm sunny, somnolent, and September brought no noticeable change in tempo. Fog lay browned and crisp, chill breeze the air at sundown, cicadas predicted a month to frost. The summer people boarded up the windows and doors of their lakeshore cottages, and drove back to cities and towns in another autumn exodus. Watching them go, feeling Swanscombe yawn and settle back into its placid armchair-rhythm for the winter, Dale sensed a deepening of tranquility within herself. It was as if a tide had receded, leaving her on a smooth, cool beach. Grandmother, after a series of Dale's gentle but firm rebuffs, stopped urging her to pick up the broken threads of village activities. Grandy watched her surreptitiously from behind the great cumulus smoke clouds he manufactured in his briar pipe, but he, also, had stopped volunteering advice.

Dale was as far removed from the daily doings of the villagers—Joe Gillespie's arthritis, the Reverend Spencer's quiet and uncontroverted sermons, Joshua Wragge's usual complaints of business falling off—as she was from the rest of the world, where a Japanese peace treaty was signed by forty-eight nations and an ailing king was undergoing a lung operation. When she drove to the village for essential supplies, she spoke pleasantly to Joshua Wragge and to anyone else she happened to encounter in the general store. But her answer to any overtures drawing her back into community events was a smile and a head-shake.

"People are beginning to wonder what's come over you," Grandy accused her mildly one afternoon, stopping by on the obviously trumped-up errand of delivering a jar of grandmother's chutney.

"Why can't they just let me alone?" Dale countered. "I'm all right. I am contented."

"Contented?" The old man's voice boomed over the music of Sibelius. "That's a word for old age, not for youth. Besides, it doesn't fit, my girl—and won't fit until you've made peace with yourself instead of drugging yourself into a death-in-life dream with that—that music. Turn it off! It gives me the heebie jeebies. I can't hear myself think."

Dale lowered the volume. "What you need," Grandy continued, "is a rousing Kerry Dance on the pipes. You're losing the taste and feel and smell of life. Content, pah! So's a snail in his shell. Do you call that intelligent living?" Dale made an almost imperceptible movement with her shoulders, and reached for a cigar.

"And you're smoking too many of those darn things!" the old man blasted. "Turning yourself into a chimney's no solution for anything. All you'll get is fogged-up lungs and nicotine-stained fingers."

He stamped out, entirely unaware of discrepancy in his own rich nimbus of pipe tobacco.

On another occasion Grandy snatched Kelly's book off the mantel and shook it at Dale. "Look at that sunshine! Kelly wrote his book about two people who lived in the sun. How do you think he'd feel about you creeping off into the shadows? Do you want to be another Armored?"

"Oh, come, Grandy. Aren't you exaggerating a little?"

"How do you suppose Armored came to be as she is? It didn't happen overnight—any more'n it'll happen overnight to you."

"It won't happen to me at all."

He took a chocolate from an open box on the table and bit into it. "Eating a lot of these things lately, ain't you? You never used to care much for 'em." Without waiting for her comment, he went on. "A person can only retreat so far from life, Dale. There comes a final barrier. Once that's reached and passed, there's no returning."

"Don't you want me to be safe, Grandy? Don't you want me happy?"

"You're doggone right I do! And get this, Dale. Safety and happiness aren't necessarily the same thing. I won't sit back and watch you destroy yourself—"

He stopped abruptly. "That's the fifth cream center you've eaten just while I've been sitting here," he observed. "Since when did you start counting my calories?"

He looked thoughtful. "Cigarettes and chocolates. Temporary crutches for a sick mind! Can't you see they're new appetites created from stress? You'll be taking sleeping pills next."

Her voice was edged with defiance. "I didn't know you'd turned psychiatrist!"

"A man with good horse sense," he said irritably, "don't have to be an expert in the study of emotional disorders to know what's going on in the minds of most human beings, and why."

Book Reviews

By W. G. ROGERS
AMBASSADOR'S REPORT, by Chester Bowles (Harper; $4)

Last spring this author sent Eisenhower his resignation from the India and Nepal ambassadorship to which Truman had appointed him. He served a year and a half. His book tells in rewarding detail where he went, what he did, what he heard and saw, and what conclusions he drew from a job in which, according to general opinion, he proved a powerful advocate for the cause of democracy.

He took his wife, two young daughters and son and their cat and, among other items, his one pair of striped pants—which came so late he had to borrow a pair for the sole occasion when he wore them in India.

He was not the traditional, tall, striped-pants diplomat. He sent his children to local schools. For the first time in the history of the embassy, Bowles says he invited Indian employees and their families, as well as American, to office parties. India badly needs, he insists, to know more Americans; and recalls a shipment of fun-loving gobs at Madras, each man in effect a good-will ambassador himself.

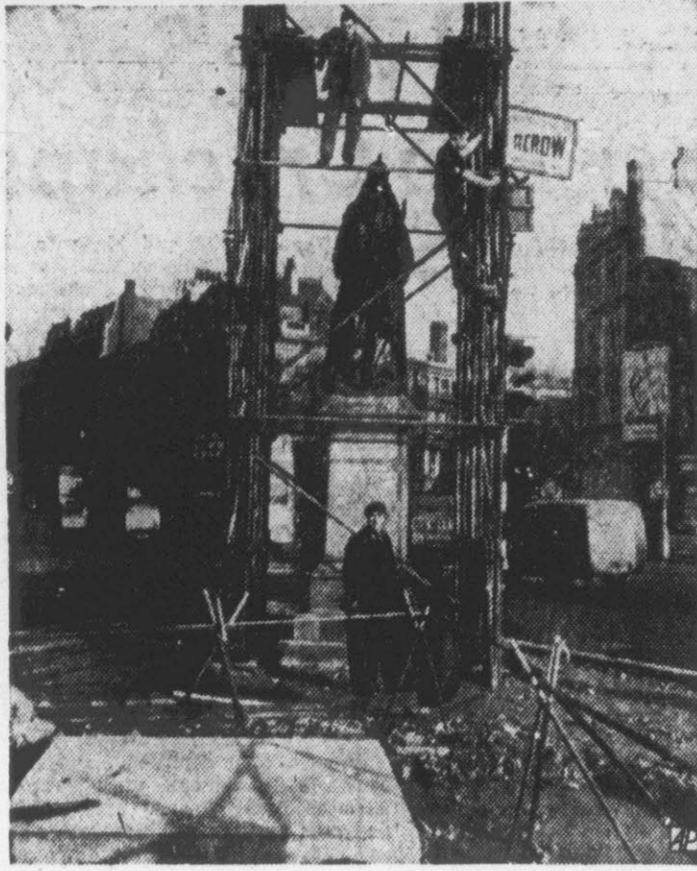

He's all for Point Four, and describes some of the vast improvement to be accomplished at pica-yune expenditures for the benefit to uncounted people—people who may still have to decide between communism and democracy. Any Chinese army move across any Asian boundary should be stopped by force, he declares, but after that he urges a long patient program here and there: The end of any colonial attitudes; and the abandonment of all racial discrimination here and there; a Marshall Plan, a course that is positively democratic instead of negatively anti-Communist, and in general a recognition that India now stands just where America stood in 1776: Independent, free unwilling to brook condensation or interference from either dictator or democrat.

THE LITTLE ARK, by Jan de Hartog, illustrated by Joseph Low (Harper; $2.75)

A shrew-eyed girl, Adinda, 11; a small boy, Jan, 10; a white rabbit, Ko with long pink ears; Prince, an uppity rooster; Noisette, a kitten; and Bussy, un-house-broken puppy—

This is the unique cast of this stirring short novel about floods in Holland. The boy and girl, adopted children of parson Grijpma, have made themselves an aerie, and zoo, in the belfry. Their puppy is a mongrel they saved from drowning; their rabbit was rescued from the slough, their kitten snatched from the active ire of Mrs. Grijpma.

They're high in the tower when tidal waves thunder inland. With Mrs. Grijpma dead on the steep church stairs she had always feared, with water everywhere instead of streets and fields, they climb down the tiled roof to Mrs. Ool's STATUE MOVED—Workmen erect scaffolding around Victoria Statue in London preparatory to moving it five yards to concrete base in foreground. Moving will speed up traffic.

houseboat and drift off to adventures they could never have imagined and can never forget.

Nor can you forget them for framework, there is the thrilling story of the never slackening dangers, and the wholesome lesson that we can lay aside petty quarrels in moments of crisis. But like all good stories, this is about people, about a boy brim full of romance and a hard-headed girl who curbs his enthusiasms, about doughty brusque sailors, brave brash rescuers and bereft victims of rampaging waters

Everything about this story fascinates me: The way grownups talk and act, the way the youngsters are in turn buffeted and succeeded, even the way the rooster scraps, the puppy plays, the kitten lashes her tail it's as exciting as Richard Hughes' "High Wind in Jamaica" and as funny after its fashion, as Lear's "The Owl and the Pussycat;" and you could almost say this little ark does about as much for the animal kingdom as Noah's

Hotel Chelsea A Center For Arts And Notables

By W. G. ROGERS
NEW YORK (AP)—They call it the Hotel Chelsea, but it's practically a Hall of Fame.

O. Henry, the show-story writer, lived there; and so did poet Edgar Lee Masters and novelist Thomas Wolfe. That's only the start of an impressive list.

Bobby soxers with pad and pencil may hang around smart midtown restaurants to snare celebrities and their autographs. There have been concentrations of creative brains in such hostelrys as the Algonquin and the Hotel des Artistes. But the one place that might lay claim to having housed the greatest number of the most distinguished writers and artists is way west on 23rd Street.

That was once the Tenderloin in this town, and in the same block stood the Grand Opera House that was Jim Fisk's plaything; it is now a movie theater. The opera house was built only 15 years before the Chelsea, which dates from the 1860s.

You can't miss the hotel thanks to the ranks of ornate bronze railings which run clear across the front of it; they are repeated in the grand inside staircase that reaches to the 12th floor.

It took a book and a bookman to remind me of this big-city artists and writers colony. The book is "David Farragut, Sailor," written principally for teen-agers by a writer I know, Ferdinand Reyher; you should remember his novel for grownups, "I Heard Them Sing." After he and I discussed this lively new story of his we got to talking, as we had once before, about his home, the Chelsea.

It's the home of other people of my acquaintance. Among them are Virgil Thomson, composer and music critic of the Herald Tribune, who stays there the year round, Carl Ruggles, composer of "Portals," "Organum" and other precedent-making scores, and Mrs. Ruggles come down from their Vermont home to spend winter there.

"The walls are thick," says Reyher. "Somebody gave music lessons in a room next to mine and I never heard a sound. I discovered it only when I saw a man lugging a 'cello in there."

Owned for the last decade by a coporation, it is managed by three brothers, of whom one, David Bard, said that the building contains some 370 apartments. Some guests have been there a quarter of a century.

Pernell Kennedy, captain of the bellhops working there 29 years, has come in closer contact with the celebrities.

The artists, he finds "are a little queer, most of them, at least in my estimation. The writers aren't so bad."

But he likes them, of course, and they like him. He could always get along with Wolfe, he recalls, though sometimes the novelist "ragged," as Kennedy says, at some other employes.

"There was one guest here whom Wolfe just hated," Kennedy remembers, and names him. "When Wolfe got into the elevator at his floor, an into the elevator at his floor an upper floor and this other man happened to get in at his lower floor, Wolfe would be furious. He'd order the elevator operator to let him out of there, he would refuse to ride on down with 'such trash as that.' And he'd get off, too."

Kennedy says Masters was much "chummier" than Wolfe, but that he was a very modest entertainer. "Every Christmas and New Year's as long as he was here he would invite me in for a drink. One drink. Never more than one."

Reyher first stopped there in 1914 when he was just out of college; and except for a few months in Europe, has been living there most of the time for the last several years. Only a few weeks ago he had a long Sunday breakfast with another guest of the hotel, a guest who has since died, the Welsh poet Dylan Thomas. It was Thomas' third stay there.

Novelist James T. Farrell makes this familiar west side landmark his home. Novelist and dramatist Tennessee Williams and novelist Gore Vidal are reported in and out. Novelist Ben Lucien Hurman and his artist wife live there. The artist Nahum Tschabasso has two studios there. Illustrator Edward C. Caswell is a resident, and so are novelist Lajos Zilahy, cartoonist Hugo Gellert, artist William Bomar.

Robert Flaherty of the movies died there. John Sloan the painter made it his home, and his widow still lives there. Peggy Guggenheim art impresario, has lived there as has labor writer Benjamin Stolberg. It was the home of the 19th-century reporter-illustrator Charles Stanley Reinhart.

Dogwood Week Now Underway

RALEIGH — Governor Umstead has designated the week of January 24-31 as Dogwood Planting Week in North Carolina and called upon the State's citizens to give their full support to the project.

The governor paid tribute to members of the Garden Club of North Carolina for "their initiative and zeal in promoting plantings of the dogwood tree" and noted that the dogwood has a "scenic value when in bloom." The dogwood was made the State's official flower by act of the 1941 General Assembly.

Mrs. R. J. Pearse of Raleigh is State Dogwood chairman for the Garden Club, which has more than 11,000 members living in many communities of the State. Last year club members were instrumental in getting more dogwoods planted than at any time since the beginning of the project eight years ago.

She said 112 clubs reported planting 15,347 trees—a gain of more than 50 percent over any previous year. Thirty-three clubs won special mention by planting 100 or more dogwoods per club.

Mrs. Pearse noted that the dogwood planting project not only has the full support of Governor Umstead but that it is also being "ably supported" by Director Ben E. Douglas of the Department of Conservation and Development, and the department's forestry division. Other State and local officials have also endorsed the project, she said.

Top awards for planting the most dogwoods last year, Mrs. Pearse said, went to the following garden clubs: Red Springs, with 2,623 trees, Smithfield, with 2,209, and New Bern, with 1,300.

In recent years, the earliest proved date at which man is known to have existed in America has been moved back from 10,000 years ago to about 20,000 years ago.

Anniversary Had Eventful Day

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP)—Police Lt. Lawrence Meilillo desk officer at Hamden police headquarters, decided to celebrate his 25th anniversary on the force by doing a tour of duty on his old squad car beat.

In no time at all he was involved in an 86-mile-an-hour chase of a speeder. While the man was being questioned another car sped past the scene and crashed into a wire service pole a block away. After only half an hour in the cruiser, Meilillo said he guessed he'd "stay inside" henceforth.

Jaywalking Grew Extra Popular

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Patrolman John Baldwin started giving out jaywalking tickets as part of a police drive against midblock crossing.

Within minutes a crowd had gathered. Baldwin could see he was not going to win a popularity contest right then—particularly when large groups deliberately jaywalked right in front of him.

He left. Police Chief Marvin Potts hasn't decided whether to resume the campaign.

Grandmother Is Political Victor

SALEM, Ark. (AP)—Politicians looked on the city elections here as "just a formality"—until the votes were counted and they discovered a Republican grandmother was the new mayor.

Mrs. W. E. Gishmiller headed a five woman slate of candidates that took over City Hall after a successful write-in campaign. One of the aldermen—C. C. Short—was beaten by his mother, Mrs. Retie Short.

Weds Man Who Helped Clear Her

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Mrs. Emma Jo Johnson has married the man who helped her win freedom from a prison term for a murder never committed.

She and Jack Wengert, 40, Las Vegas chef, were married yesterday in the home of a private detective, Glenn Bodell, who uncovered much of the evidence which freed her. She was divorced Saturday from Russell Johnson.

Mrs. Wengert, 35, was convicted in 1951 of second degree murder in the death here of her former landlady, Mrs. Jane Jones, 72. She was sentenced to 10 to 12 years but medical evidence was turned up showing that Mrs. Jones was suffering from an incurable brain tumor and would have died of it even if she and Mrs. Wengert had not gotten into a fight.

Mrs. Wengert was freed by the Nevada Board of Pardons and Paroles last Wednesday, after serving two years and nine months.

LONG BRANCH, N.J. (AP)—A local firm (Electronics Associates, Inc.) got worried about the serious shortage of "skilled scientific manpower" in the nation and set up an annual $2,500 scientific college scholarship for a Long Branch High School student who shows promise of outstanding scientific achievement.

It is establishing the scholarship the firm noted, "in the hope that other local industries will be encouraged to follow suit."

Bucs Beat Quakers, 76-52 In NS Conference Contest

Pirates Travel To Catawba Tonight In Search Of Eighth League Victory Of Season; High Point Here Wednesday

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer
GUILFORD COLLEGE — East Carolina College's Pirates played around for a while in a cold gymnasium Saturday night but finally got warm enough to grind up Guilford's Quakers 76-52 in a North State Conference basketball game.

Case Confident That Seasoning Will Help 'Pack'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina State basketball Coach Everett Case is looking at the rest of the season today firmly convinced that all his team needs is seasoning.

Case, who looked for his "fabulous Freshmen" of 1952 to carry the varsity load this season, saw his team drop its fifth game of the season Saturday night, 83-78 to arch foe LaSalle.

Only one of the sophomores, Vic Molodet was able to score effectively. He bagged 26 points to be high for both teams while State Capt. Mel Thompson scored 21.

The Wolfpack rallied to within two points of LaSalle in the closing minutes of the game.

With more seasoning, Case reasons, the Pack would have beaten LaSalle. His team is apparently out of the Atlantic Coast Conference title picture with a 3-2 record and 14-5 overall mark.

The wily Case still is waiting until he can use 6-11 center Cliff Dyer a transfer from Florida State. Dyer, expected to be a big gun, broke a wrist before the season started.

With mid-term exams slowing most teams down, only two conference games were played last week and none are slated this week.

But last week's two games saw the complexion of the conference race change entirely. Maryland opened up the week drubbing last-place Virginia, 70-56. The next night North Carolina State whipped first place North Carolina, 84-77. The North Carolina defeat enabled Maryland to take over first, dropped the Tar Heels to second, pushed Duke to third and left Wake Forest deadlocked at fourth with State.

South Carolina, Virginia and Clemson, the last two winless in conference play, bring up the rear.

The standings will be unchanged until at least Feb. 4 when North Carolina and Duke meet. Both teams have six conference games left to play, Wake Forest seven, and State three. Clemson still has five games, Maryland two, South Carolina four and Virginia one.

The only games this week are The Citadel at Clemson Friday, Maryland at Tampa, Duke at Navy and St. John's at North Carolina State Saturday.

HOCKEY RECORD
TORONTO (AP) — Ted Kennedy, captain of the Maple Leafs, tied a 21-year-old National Hockey League record when he scored against Boston after only eight seconds of play. The record was set by Don Martin of the New York Americans on Dec. 4, 1932.

Since 1949 golfers Jimmy Denaret, Sam Snead and Ben Hogan each have won two Masters tournaments. Dymaret also won in 1940.

the Pirates were going to have real trouble before they got warmed up. The Quakers were exceptionally successful in hanging onto the ball in the first portion of the first quarter but once they folded, they folded for good.

The score was tied four times before the Pirates hit their stride. The last time it was tied was at the 8-8 mark. Don Harris dropped in a field goal and Bobby Hodges hit a free throw to put the Bucs ahead 11-8. After that, Guilford never got close.

Harris and Hodges were the leaders for the Pirates all night long. Hodges, the scoring leader for the Bucs, fell considerably below his 26.4 point per game average but he still racked up 21 points. Harris, the freshman forward from Laurinburg, played a waste of a defensive game. He also accounted for 11 points on offense.

The Quakers had hoped to upset the Pirates and pull themselves into the upper echelons of the North State standings. They had almost a hopeless task, however, because they were without the services of Bobby Callcutt, their scoring leader and playmaker. Callcutt is out of action with a bad ankle sprain.

With Callcutt out of the game, the scoring burden for Guilford fell on the shoulders of forward Bill Atkins. Atkins accounted for 20 points but he was unable to carry the entire load by himself. He was the only Quaker to hit double figures in the scoring.

No less than four of the Pirates hit 10 or more points. In addition to Harris and Hodges, Charlie Huffman and J. C. Thomas cracked the double figures with 12 points apiece. It was Thomas' best performance in more than a week following a bad slump that had plagued the Raleigh sophomore.

Guilford was held to only nine points in each of the first two quarters. They got 10 points in the third period and 24 in the last quarter when East Carolina reserves were in the contest.

The Pirates had a 15-9 edge at the first quarter and a 36-18 lead at the half. By the time the third quarter was over, the margin had been extended to 50-28 and East Carolina reserves were streaming in and out of the contest. Almost all of the last quarter was played by the Buc reserves.

The Pirates will go on the road again tonight to meet Catawba's Indians. In the first meeting of the clubs, before Christmas, the Pirates had an easy time in racking up an 84-43 victory.

Nat'l Leaders Face Stiff Tests In Coming Games

NEW YORK (AP)—Kentucky, Oklahoma A&M and Holy Cross face the stiffest tests among the nation's leaders this week as some of the other college basketball powers swing back into action after mid-year examinations.

Unbeaten Kentucky, ranked No. 1 in the latest Associated Press poll, takes on an improved Vanderbilt quintet Saturday night. Vandy is 10-3 and with the added advantage of home court conceivably could give the Wildcats trouble.

The fifth-ranked Aggies meet Houston tonight in a return game. The Aggies won their earlier get-together by 15 points, but the Texas school has come on strong since then. Here, too, the underdog will be playing at home.

Holy Cross, No. 8, clashes with stubborn Niagara Friday night. The update New York team gave Duquesne, ranked second in the nation, a couple of tough battles before losing—by five and eight points.

Duquesne takes its 15-0 record into Wednesday night's game with Georgetown. Fourth-ranked Western Kentucky clashes with little Regis of Denver Friday night; Oklahoma City, No. 7, tackles Seattle tonight and tomorrow night; and Minnesota, No. 9, faces Purdue tonight.

Third-ranked Indiana, sixth-ranked Notre Dame, and George Washington, No. 10, aren't scheduled to play again until early next month.

Only eight of the 20 teams ranked in the last poll of sportswriters and sportscasters were in action Saturday night and three—Oklahoma City, Wichita, No. 11, and Niagara, No. 18, went down to defeats.

The other five had little trouble. Kentucky made it 12 in a row by breezing past Tennessee 97-71, even with All America center Cliff Hagan on the bench most of the time with an injured leg. Western Kentucky (18-0) outscored Memphis state 63-53, the Oklahoma Aggies (18-1) defeated North Texas State 66-51 as Bob Mattick scored 18 points. Minnesota (10-1) nipped Northwestern 82-78, and La Salle, No. 19, squeezed past North Carolina State 83-78.

Oklahoma City's loss came at the hands of Wyoming and its tight defense, 87-38. Wichita (now 16-2)

Rosen Says Indians Can Beat Out Yanks

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Rosen who slugged his way to the American League's Most Valuable Player award last year, today decided his Cleveland Indians could beat out the New York Yankees for the pennant this year.

"But he left himself an opening—a big 'if,'" Rosen said. "A deal for an outfielder might do it," he declared. He admitted that the present Indian outfield of Dale Mitchell, Larry Doby and Wally Westlake would not be enough to edge out the Yanks.

"I'm also reckoning Yankee pitchers' age," he said. "Their five straight championships stemmed mainly from Alie Reynolds, Vic Raschi and Ed Lopat. And I'm not forgetting Whitey Ford, who made a very big difference last year."

"Yet, I maintain that when and if Reynolds, Raschi and Ford (all in their mid-30s) fold—look out. All the other clubs in the league know about Reynolds' bad back and Raschi's sore knee."

"Even if Lopat is as good as he was last year, the Yanks could not rely well make it without Reynolds and Raschi."

Rosen said he thinks the Indians' staff of Bob Lemon, Mike Garcia and Early Wynn (not much younger than the Yanks' big three) is fell before a hot-and-cold St. Louis club 74-58, and Niagara dropped a 53-46 decision to Canisius.

The Big Ten conference race tightened considerably as Iowa downed Purdue 70-62 and climbed within one game of pace-setting Indiana.

Pennsylvania remained on Cornell's heels in the Ivy League scramble by trimming Dartmouth 78-67. Cornell, with 5-0 in league play, went outside the circuit to down Colgate 73-70. In other Eastern tilts, Seton Hall broke a four-game losing streak by walloping Villanova 76-58, St. Joseph's (Pa.) upset Temple 57-56 and Manhattan dumped Army 83-69, snapping the Cadets' four-game winning streak.

In the south, Vanderbilt thumped winless Georgia Tech 84-65 in a Southeastern Conference game, and Louisville defeated Baldwin Wallace 87-75.

Michigan State posted a Big Ten victory, 83-76 over Ohio State. Julius McCoy scored 34 points for a Spartan record.

Missouri edged Kansas State 75-71 in a Big Seven contest, and Drake whipped Iowa State 82-72.

Rice (14-2) swept to its fourth straight Southwest Conference win against two setbacks by trouncing Baylor 72-60.

In the Far West, Oregon triumphed over Washington for the second straight night, this time 64-48. Oregon State mastered Idaho 69-53, Brigham Young throttled Utah State 75-63, and Utah topped Montana 73-62.

Winterville And Bethel Collide In Top Contest

Tomorrow night the basketball doubleheader, which could possibly be the games of year in Pitt County Conference play, will see Bethel High School cagers meet Winterville High School at the Winterville gym.

At the present time the Bethel boys are leading the Conference race with ten wins and no defeats while Winterville boys are third place in the race with seven wins and two losses. At the present time both teams are on a six game win streak.

Bethel's quint has been not only leading the league standings, but also has been the quint voted number one in the weekly ratings by the coaches. In the previous meeting this year Bethel won the game 56-53 in the Bethel gym.

Turning to the girls' game, the possibility of another thriller is in store for the crowd: Winterville girls have won 13 straight games. Losing only the opening game of the season while the Bethel girls have won 15 out of 17 this year.

Winterville turned the tide by a 64-61 favor in the last meeting of the two teams and are undefeated in County play. That loss is Bethel girls' only loss in Pitt Conference play. Anyway you look at it these two games are top notchers for the week and could be a big factor in who takes number one position when tournament time rolls around in February.

The league leading Bethel cagers are really in for a rough week as Friday night Farmville goes to Bethel which also places a rough test on the Indians in their drive for first place in the standings.

This week's County schedule:
Tuesday night games:
Bethel at Winterville
Grifton at Chicod
Ayden at Farmville
Belvoir-Falkland at Stokes-Pactolus

Thursday night games:
Chicod at Grimesland
Friday night games:
Farmville at Bethel
Grimesland at Chicod
Vanceboro at Ayden
Grifton at Stokes-Pactolus
Winterville at Belvoir-Falkland

Phants Tangle With Kinston In League Game Tomorrow

Selvy Averaging 38.7 For All Games Played So Far

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—To nobody's surprise, Frank Selvy of Furman is still the top scorer in the Southern Conference.

Even more than outsiders, the teams in the 10-college conference have reason to think Selvy has earned his nickname, "Fabulous Frank." For whereas Selvy is averaging 38.7 points against all opposition, he's doing even better inside his own league.

In his first appearance against Virginia Tech, in a game Furman ran away with by 103-75, the deadeye Paladin guard collected 43 points. Then last Saturday night while Furman was making its circuit record 2-0 by routing The Citadel, 91-63, Fabulous Frank pumped in 45. That makes his conference-leading average an even 44 points.

Needless to say, nobody is even close to Selvy in the individual point-making derby. The No. 2 man is another Furman star forward Rod Fraley, who is averaging 24 points per game.

Behind Selvy and Fraley are strung out five other players who are averaging better than 20 points per game—Jim Rich of Washington and Lee, 23.8; Eddie Becker of West Virginia, 23.5; Karl Kilar of VMI, 22.8; Johnny Mahoney of William and Mary, 21.8; and Corky Devlin of George Washington, 21.0.

Only a few of the 20-point-plus men, however, will get a chance to better their averages this week. Selvy and Fraley are among them. Furman, the busiest club in the conference with three games carded, plays a return engagement with The Citadel on Saturday night. Mahoney will be in action Saturday too, in William and Mary's home tussle with Virginia Tech.

The third, and final, intra-conference tilt of the week finds Richmond host to Virginia Tech on Friday night.

George Washington with a 7-0 record, is certain to hold the league lead for another two weeks at least. The Colonials don't face another conference foe until they meet Furman on the Paladins' home court Feb. 9. That's the game a lot of conference coaches expect will provide the Colonials with their stiffest test to date.

There is not a single game, intra-conference or otherwise, on this week's schedule until Thursday when Furman starts things off by entertaining Presbyterian.

Two games were played Saturday night, one of which was the Furman-Citadel contest that found

Reflector Writer Remains Confined

Wayne Bishop, Reflector sports writer who was injured in a fall last Tuesday night, is still confined in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

There has been no announcement as to when he will be released.

Young Bishop suffered a severe concussion in his fall and was carried unconscious to the hospital. He regained consciousness the following day but since that time has been unable to recognize friends or members of his family.

A junior at Greenville High School, Bishop is reported as "feeling fine" and is seeing close friends at visiting hours.

Pirates Leading Conference Race; Catamounts Next

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
East Carolina's Pirates, still the kingpin of the North State Conference basketball race, face another grueling week of loop action.

The Pirates lost their first game of the season a week ago when Western Carolina showed surprising strength in downing them, 69-65. ECC plays Catawba tonight, High Point Wednesday, and a rematch with Western Carolina Friday.

The Catamounts, in second place with a 5-1 record, face the Pirates and Atlantic Christian. The schedule gives them little chance to overtake East Carolina.

Third place Elon meets Lenoir

With five straight wins and an undefeated record in the North-eastern Conference, the Greenville Phantoms travel to Kinston tomorrow night to engage the Grainger High Red Devils in what could prove to be one of the most important games of the season.

Despite the fact that they currently have a virtual stranglehold on the loop's top position, the Phants are slated to face some rough opposition tomorrow. Kinston-Greenville games, despite comparative records, are generally rated as toss-ups.

Forward Bob Howell, who has tossed in 26 and 27 points in the last two Phantom wins, is expected to pace the Greenville attack again. Howell and center Harold Edwards have also been the big men defensively this year for the Phants. Both boys handle rebounds exceptionally well.

Expected to see a lot of action at the guard posts are three S's—Sawyer, Saled and Sideris. Pat Sawyer, who is recovering from an arm injury, chipped in seven points in the Phants' 73-47 win over Jacksonville Friday night.

Saled and Sideris, both play-makers, are also good on set shots from way out thereby giving the Phants a counterbalance to go with Edwards and Howell under the boards.

Teaming with Howell at the forward post may be senior Walter Perkins. Perkins came out of a recent slump slightly against Jacksonville when he collected 9 points.

A preliminary contest, slated for 6:30, will find the Greenville Jayees taking on the Kinston juniors. The Baby Phants ran into trouble in their first outing of the season against Wilson High but since that time have gone undefeated.

After the Kinston game the Greenvilles will lay off for two days and then travel to New Bern Friday night for a return engagement with the Bears. Two games are slated next week with Washington and Elizabeth City. Both contests will be played here.

Rhyme tonight in a game postponed from Saturday Appalachian Wednesday, and Catawba Saturday.

The rest of the standings: Lenoir Rhyme, Atlantic Christian, Catawba, Guilford, High Point and Appalachian last.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved irregularly today with emphasis in trading on selected issues.

Prices were higher or lower by between 1 and 2 points at the most with one outstanding exception.

Trading was brisk with the pace around the two million mark. Friday's market accounted for 1,890,000 shares with the market higher.

Douglas Aircraft was up as much as 4 points at times. Douglas has been a buying target because of its high earnings; its plans for expansion, the federal government's accent on air defense spending, and because when a stock gets as high as Douglas hopes for a split are aroused.

Motors were lower with Chrysler under selling pressures at times. Studebaker lost 1/4 on an opening block of 4,000 shares.

Steels were higher along with oils, aircrafts and air lines. The rest of the market was steady to mixed.

Higher stocks included New York Central, Northern Pacific, Fair and U. S. Steel.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices 25 to 50 higher. Tops of 26.00 at Hillsboro; 25.75 at Weldon, Scotland Neck, Enfield, Tarboro and Rocky Mount; 25.50 at Laurel Hill, Elizabethtown, Freeman, Micro, Siler City, Whiteville, Warsaw, Kenly, Beulaville, Newton Grove, Dunn, Mount Olive, Goldsboro, Hamilton, Bailey, Wilson, Burgaw, Clarkton, Fair Bluff, Colerain, Wilmington, Windsor, Greenville, Rose Hill, Farmville, Robertsonville, Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Smithfield, Lumberton, Fayetteville, Clinton, Rich Square and Woodland; 25.75 at Richmond.

Author Maugham Is Eighty Today; No More Stories

LONDON (AP)—Author W. Somerset Maugham celebrated his 80th birthday today and declared he had run dry of plots.

"I have writers' cramp," Maugham told an interviewer. "I can't dictate, and I don't type. So I guess there will be no more novels and short stories. Besides, I have exhausted all my themes, and try as I will I can't think of a plot. I'm not as inventive as I used to be."

But, as he has said several times recently he plans to continue writing—essays produced at the rate of an hour of scribbling each day.

New Chairman Of Forestry Group

RALEIGH (AP)—P. A. Griffiths of Raleigh, assistant state forester, is the new chairman of the Appalachian Section of the Society of American Foresters.

He was elected Saturday as the group ended its 2-day convention here. Other officers chosen include: at North Carolina State College, John L. Gray, extension forester vice chairman; R. J. Bartholomew, Portsmouth, Va., secretary-treasurer; and E. C. Pickens, Columbia S. C., executive committee man.

The Appalachian Section will hold its next winter meeting in Columbia next January. The group is composed of public and private foresters from the Carolinas and Virginia.

Jellyfish Put Out Lights On Ship

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Jellyfish put out the lights of the U. S. aircraft carrier Bennington while she was anchored in the Tagus River here.

The jellyfish, which swarm in the Tagus at this time of year, were sucked in by the water pumps cooling generators and obstructed them.

Students Stage Violent Display

MADRID (AP)—Police on horseback and on foot today battled thousands of Madrid University students who staged a fiery demonstration demanding the return of British-held Gibraltar to Spain. Ten policemen and five students were injured.

Police fired revolvers in the air and charged with night sticks to break up the wild demonstration in which the students knocked five guardsmen from their mounts. The 15-minute clash took place just 100 yards from the British embassy, which was damaged in a similar stone-throwing demonstration Jan. 22.

Driven back from the embassy today, the students marched on to a nearby British bank and broke several windows. Then they paraded to the Spanish foreign office, where Foreign Minister Alberto Martin Artaño appeared on a balcony and sang with them the Falange party's anthem.

Police estimated there were at least 15,000 students in the mob, who reportedly had been given a half-day holiday to stage the demonstration.

Tax-Listing Has Its Final Week

County Tax Supervisor Reginald Gray reminded Pitt County citizens today they have only one week remaining in which to list their taxes.

Should anyone fail to list their taxes prior to Saturday they will be subject to a late listing penalty amounting to 10 percent, Gray reported.

The line at the Court House for Greenville Township listing is fairly short and Gray said that it was that way throughout most of the county.

He stated that since the people were listing earlier this year a very long line is not expected anywhere this week, but to be safe he urges many to list early.

Legislator True To Economy Ideal

DENVER (AP)—A state legislator in Colorado has gone all out to help economize on state expenses.

State Controller James A. Noonan said one lawmaker who filed an expense account for the trip to the State Capitol asked for mileage, but included nothing for meals. Instead he added a note on the voucher.

It said: "Carried my lunch."

Smoke Fatal To Three Children

MATTOON, Ill. (AP)—Three children suffocated from smoke of a basement fire in their home yesterday while their parents attended a polio benefit dance.

An older brother, Walter Whitley Jr., 14 left in charge of the others, escaped by jumping from the window of his second floor bedroom.

The dead were May 2; Cathy, 9; and Norma, 11.

The fire, confined to the basement, did little damage to the house. Its cause was not determined.

Three accidents in the city over the weekend resulted in one personal injury and charges being placed against four different persons.

Police said that Graham was bleeding profusely when he was taken to the hospital early Monday morning.
