River Gauge Nears 'Danger' Mark

The big gauge at the Tar River bridge showed 18.42 feet when this picture was taken at 8:30 this morning as the waters of the flooding river continued to rise. U.S. Department of Commerce Observer Leland Mizelle said that the Tar River at Rocky Mount had stopped rising yesterday and he expected the river to crest late this afternoon or early tomorrow morning. (Reflector photo by Alvin Taylor)

Waters To Crest Sometime Tonight

The Tar River continued to inch upward today as upstate waters from recent rain and snow continued to swell the river. At eight o'clock this morning, the river level had reached the 18.42 foot mark, Leland Mizelle, river observer for the U.S. Department of Commerce reported. However, Mizelle said, the flood waters stopped rising at Rocky Mount yesterday and it was reported this morning that the river was down more than a foot from yesterday at Rocky Mount. This morning's depth at that point was recorded at 9.3 feet and the river is ordinarily within its banks there at 9 feet.

TARBORO, N.C. (AP)—The flooding Tar River apparently claimed its first life today. Police Chief Otley Leary said Eugene Lewis, 18, Negro, was believed to have drowned when he lost his balance and fell from a boat.

Mizelle predicted that the river will reach its crest in Greenville sometime tonight or early tomorrow morning.

George Wilkerson, chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross Disaster Committee, said that so far the Red Cross had investigated one family which was forced out of their house by the flood waters. That family, he said, was at Grinstead and they have now been moved out of their house into another building on higher ground. Other sections have not fared so well however. In Tarboro 24 families have been forced out of their homes by the raging river. Miss Annie Le Howell, executive secretary of the Edgecombe County Red Cross said the 24 evacuated families at East Tarboro and Princeton were lodging with relatives. Furniture removed from the flooded homes is stored in the Tarboro High School gymnasium. Boats were tied up at practically all the homes in the area, she said. At Tarboro the river measured 20.4 feet this morning, only one-tenth of a foot rise over yesterday morning's reading. It was expected to remain almost stationary there for about a day before subsiding. Weather Bureau officials called the floods on eastern North Carolina rivers the worst since 1945. Other streams continued to show a decline in their crests. No towns along their banks appeared in danger, the Weather Bureau said. Much of Pitt County's farmland along the banks of flooded streams continued to remain under water today, according to reports from rural areas.

At Least Nine Were Informers In Camps

TOKYO (AP)—At least 9 of 21 American prisoners who turned their backs on their homeland acted as stool pigeons for Chinese guards in North Korean prison camps, the U.N. Command officially disclosed tonight. The nine were accused of informing on fellow prisoners. The UNC said of the 21: Four expected to be punished if they returned and were afraid to come back. Five were sent to China during their captivity for further schooling. Seven were either selected for or promised more schooling in Red China. Five were considered weak and not sincere in their Communist beliefs. "Reasons they stayed with the Reds were: they fell in love with Chinese women; they hoped to get something for nothing; and they were promised educations in China." Twelve were "Progressives" from the first days of capture and active in all kinds of Red activity in the prison camps. Twenty of the 21 were regular Army men. One was a draftee.

Cheering Pro-Red Prisoners Ride Northward To Communism

By GEORGE MCARTHUR PANMUNJOM (AP)—Twenty-one singing, chanting Americans and one Briton who renounced their homelands to stay with the Communists today rolled northward in flag-bedecked trucks toward a life behind the Bamboo Curtain. The former Allied soldiers, along with 325 South Koreans, carried Red "peace dove" banners as they marched from their barred wire compound in Korea's bleak neutral zone. They sang, cheered and shouted charges of imperialism and germ warfare at the Western world as they boarded big green trucks for the trip north. Five Allied newsmen saw them. An Indian escort took the five of us to the pro-Red North Camp for the last frenzied propaganda show of the men who chose communism. Communist correspondents Allan Winnington and Wilfred Burchett arranged for a few newsmen to witness the unusual spectacle. We were allowed to move freely in the compound that has held the pro-Red captives since they were turned over to Indian custody Sept. 24. The prisoners, in individual and group interviews, said almost exactly what they told a handful of other Allied correspondents who interviewed them at Panmunjom Monday. They said they wanted to be "peace fighters" and cannot do so in the United States. The Indians had planned to turn over the prisoners' records to Chinese and Korean Red Cross representatives at 9 a.m. and the

President Reports Economy Prosperous Steps Toward Stability Urged; Ready To Avert Setbacks

By STERLING F. GREEN WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today termed the nation "marvelously prosperous," predicted recovery this year from a "brief and self-correcting" business dip and pledged to use the government's vast powers to combat a depression if one should develop. He proclaimed readiness—when necessary to avert a depression—cut taxes liberalize credit and launch large-scale public works even at the cost of new deficit financing. And he gave forceful notice, in his economic report to Congress, that it should take "bold steps" requested in his 1954 legislative program to "protect and promote economic stability." The program, he said, includes the protection of millions more workers under unemployment and old-age insurance, and bigger benefit payments; federal aid for public works planning; stimulants to housing; tax revision; highway improvement; a new farm program; and a tariff program to encourage foreign trade. All this is "immediately advisable action," Eisenhower said, adding that if he finds more power is needed, he will ask for it promptly. Missing was an expected request for an increase in the 75-cent hourly minimum wage. Secretary of Labor Mitchell recently reported that the administration was exploring means to raise it to "a more realistic level." But Eisenhower told Congress the time is not ripe. Of his economic program, outlined in a 35,000-word message, Eisenhower said: "It is not a legislative program of emergency measures, for the current situation clearly does not require one. Instead, it is a program for stimulating economic growth and minimizing any chance there may be of serious economic difficulty in the future."

He set this goal for the economy: "An increasing national income, shared equitably among those who contribute to its growth, and achieved in dollars of stable buying power." After a year in office he reported national production at a record 367 billion dollars. "Employment is high, prices are steady, and wages and profits are generally satisfactory," he said. "But there can be no certainty" that the late-1953 dip in business activity will not become a broader and deeper movement than the "minor adjustment" thus far reported, he cautioned. He described the contraction as mainly an inventory adjustment—a production slowdown intended to reduce the rate of accumulation of stocks, and continued: "Our economy is basically strong... the current economic readjustment seems likely to be brief and self-correcting, but... the situation must not be viewed with complacency... Unless the government is prepared and willing to use its vast powers to help maintain employment and purchasing power, even a minor readjustment may be converted into a spiraling contraction." Then Eisenhower went on record for his administration: "The government will not hesitate to make greater use of monetary, debt management and credit policy, including liberalized use of federal insurance of private obligations or to modify the tax structure, or to reduce taxes, or to expand on a large scale the construction of useful public works, or to take any other steps that may be necessary. "The government must and will be ready to deal with any contingencies that may arise. "An essential part of this preparedness under present circumstances is a higher federal debt limit. "The need for constant vigilance and preparedness by government does not, however, justify constant stirring or meddling. Minor variations in activity are bound to occur in a free economy, or for that matter in any type of economy. "The arsenal of stabilizing weapons will be drawn upon by the (Continued on page twelve)

Dulles Sees Try To Supersede UN

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER BERLIN (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles charged in the Big Four conference today that Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov is trying to supersede the United Nations with a council of five powers including Red China. Dulles demanded for the third straight day that the conference get to the problem of Germany at once.

Dulles, opening the fourth day's meeting, loosed a blistering attack. He described Chou as a leader of Communist China.

Attacks Regime He asked: "Who is this Chou En-lai whose addition to our circle would make possible solution of all our problems?"

He described Chou as a leader of a regime which gained power through a bloody war, became an open aggressor in Korea, and even now continues to promote aggression in Indochina.

"Such is the man Mr. Molotov proposes would enable us to solve all the world's problems," the American diplomat scathingly declared.

Dulles claimed that in arguing here for a five-power meeting, Molotov has been playing on the hopes raised when the United Nations was formed in 1945 in order to justify transferring those hopes to a council of five powers.

Replace UN The fact is, Dulles continued, Molotov is trying to replace the United Nations with a council of five which he said would take over responsibility for running the world.

The Dulles argument hit hard at the five-power conference suggestion which all three Western ministers have already rejected. But at the same time, the Western delegations are extremely sensitive to peace hopes, especially with respect to Indochina. They were clearly determined to explore all possibilities of a settlement in case Molotov has anything serious in mind. Dulles Foreign Secretary Eden and Foreign Minister Bidault lunched together at noon and apparently decided on their tactics to take a tough line on the five-power conference. At least that was the line being taken by Dulles, who sought to move Molotov to a discussion of the European situation.

Not Temporary Dulles told Molotov it was obvious the proposed five-power conference could not be a temporary one. He said it was "incredible" that the four here, plus Chou En-lai, would be able to solve political, military and economic problems with which the United Nations had grappled for nine years.

The tasks which Molotov outlined yesterday for the five-power meeting—ranging from atomic disarmament to Asian settlements—would compel it to become permanent Dulles said.

Should Move On Dulles then made his demand to move on in these words: "My feeling is that we have had an adequate first round exchange of views on this subject (the five-power idea) and that without forgetting what has been said we should now move on to an exchange of views regarding the problems relating to Germany and Austria."

Dulles said he had developed great admiration for Molotov's skill as a diplomat in the past and that Molotov had not lost his touch. He said Molotov had pulled out of the hat "rabbits for all of us."

Dulles gave as examples of Molotov's magic rabbits peace for Korea, peace for Indochina, an end of the atom race, a settlement of specific problems and a tremendous increase in economic prosperity.

Missing Zebulon Man Could Be Croatan Corpse

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—Sheriff Charlie Berry said today a missing Zebulon man was reported to be of the description of the body of a man found last week in Croatan National Forest. Berry said C. B. Zebulon police said Pearce had been working in the Veterans Administration Hospital in Columbia, S.C., until six months ago when he left for an unannounced destination. Marine authorities at Cherry Point have been notified and FBI officers in Washington will compare fingerprints taken of Pearce while in service with those of the body.

Air Force Men Hang Today For Slaying On Guam

GUAM (AP)—Two Air Force enlisted men, calmly declaring their innocence, were hanged today for the vicious rape-slaying of 27-year-old Ruth Farnsworth five years ago in a Guam jungle.

The two—Pvt. Herman T. Dennis, 25, of Indianapolis, and Sgt. Robert W. Burns 36, of Spokane, Wash.—went to their deaths on the 100-foot-high gallows.

As an Army chaplain recited Psalms, Dennis said, "I pray for those making this mistake."

"They are not accomplishing anything by executing me."

Burns followed Dennis up the 17 steps to the gallows.

"You are just complying with an order," he told Air Force guards. "You haven't solved the crime."

Miss Farnsworth, a former WAC from San Francisco, was a Navy civilian employe at a curio shop. She was found badly beaten and near death in defense jungle Dec. 11, 1948, only two months before she was to leave for the United States to be married.

Dennis and Burns, along with Dennis' half-brother, Pvt. Calvin Dennis of Frederick, Md., were convicted in 1949 of the slaying. Calvin's sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment.

Another Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP)—A second investigation of the high cost of coffee was ordered today, this one by the Senate Banking Committee.

Chairman Caphart (R-Ind) said he would appoint a five-man sub-committee to carry out an investigation proposed by Sen. Beall (R-Mo.).

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC), with President Eisenhower's blessing, announced yesterday it would probe into the price situation, with particular reference to whether speculative or monopolistic practices might be involved.

Coffee industry spokesmen said they welcomed an inquiry.

The price has now gone past $1 a pound at retail, and to 15 cents a cup in some restaurants.

Alternate Proposal To Bricker's Has Backing

By JACK BELL WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republican leaders learned today toward an alternate proposal by Sen. George (D-Ga) but Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) pushed on with his own measure to limit constitutional treaty powers.

Without giving a final rejection, Bricker turned aside as unsatisfactory to him in its present form a measure offered by George yesterday.

George's suggested compromise would (A) nullify any future treaties and international agreements that conflict with the constitution and (B) provide that executive agreements other than treaties could become internal law only by act of Congress.

This was offered as a substitute for Bricker's proposal which, in a clause opposed vigorously by President Eisenhower, says "a treaty shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation which would be valid in the absence of treaty."

Eisenhower contends this would give the states power to repudiate some treaties. Bricker says this is not true. George said his proposal would eliminate the effect of the "which" clause.

George, who will be 76 years old tomorrow and who has rounded out more than 30 years of Senate service, appeared to have come up with a suggestion that Eisenhower's Senate lieutenants might clutch as the basis for further efforts to compromise a fight that has split Republicans.

Senate debate on the Bricker proposal began yesterday before a packed gallery.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, hurried a draft of the Georgian's proposal to the White House State and Justice Departments and was awaiting replies. George himself said he had discussed it with Eisenhower but gave no indication of the President's reaction.

Sen. Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, indicated he believes some slight revisions might make it acceptable to Bricker. But he declined to forecast the administration's final attitude.

Ayden Minister Is Guest Speaker For Literature Dept.

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club met on Tuesday with Mrs. N. C. Brooks and Mrs. Claude West as hostesses at the home of Mrs. Brooks. African violets, gladioli and greenery tastefully decorated the home. Refreshments consisting of angel food cake, nuts, stuffed dates and coffee were served upon arrival of the guests.

Mr. Gilbert Davis, minister of the Ayden Christian Church, was the speaker of the afternoon. His topic was "Christianity in Colonial America." Mr. Davis traced the early religious growth of our country in a most interesting manner. He stated that contrary to general belief many of the early settlers were not seeking religious freedom but came for economic and even social betterment. Therefore, there was a period in our history when religion was on the decline. The Church of England was much concerned about the lack of religion and sent missionaries to help us.

In 1734, headed by Jonathan Edwards in New England and George Whitefield in other parts of the country, there were a series of revivals known as "The Great Awakening." These resulted in renewed interest in religion and mass conversions followed. Mr. Davis told his listeners many things about Jonathan Edwards, calling him the outstanding religious leader of his time. The most famous sermon of Colonial America was Edwards' "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God." Mr. Davis concluded his splendid talk by saying that although by 1750 only five out of every 100 people in Colonial America belonged to any church, our present form of democratic government comes directly from the fact that our early political leaders were religious men. Special guests of the hostesses were Mrs. Richard Hardaway and Mrs. Grady Bell.

Degree of Pocahontas Meets To Observe Anniversary

C., and also a newcomer to Greenville, who has been sick for sometime. Goldie Durant of Washington was also reported as still being sick. Two propositions for membership were presented. A letter from Gloria Blanton, chairman of March of Dimes, was read and it was voted on to give the March of Dimes $10. For good of order, Stella Fleming reminded the Council that this was the twenty-sixth anniversary. The names of the 42 charter members were read and the Council was delighted to have three of them present, Carrie Jones, Dora Bozeman and Myrtle Hemby. A gift was presented to Carrie Jones for having been such a loyal and faithful Keeper of Wampum for 25 years. She reported that there are still 15 charter members living. She gave a brief history of the origin of the Council and stressed the precepts of the Council, "Freedom, Friendship and Charity."

German Refugee Relates Story Of Conversion To Christianity

Miss Hede Anders, a German Jewish refugee, addressed a group of men and women at the First Presbyterian Church on Monday evening. The meeting was sponsored by the women of the church. Miss Anders, who was introduced by Mrs. Bryan Brown, preceded her address with a prayer and scripture reading from the 10th chapter of Mark, verses 46-51.

In reviewing her life leading up to her acceptance of Christianity, she stated that she was born in Germany where people were either Jews or Christians, and her life was to be compared to that of the poor, blind beggar (Bartimaeus) sitting lonely by the wayside looking for happiness. Leaving Germany during Hitler's reign, she and her best friend went, as she stated, to the beautiful cultural city of Rome where she found work in a jewelry when, after three months, orders came that every Jew who had been there over three months must leave the country. They fled to China leaving all their possessions, including a valuable collection of books. Settling in the noisy, dirty, unattractive city of Shanghai, where she was unable to earn a living, and after many hardships and being poverty stricken, she and her friend were so desperate they even planned suicide, but, stated Miss Anders, "the Lord was always at my side and kept me from jumping into the river."

She later met a missionary whom she admired very much, who explained Jesus to her and gave her many books to read. Suddenly one day she was overwhelmed with happiness and accepted the Lord Jesus as her Saviour, giving her whole life to His teachings.

Following her acceptance of Christ she became a Bible teacher in Shanghai and later came to the United States as teacher of Bible among the Negroes in the South.

Film Industry Sees Attendance On Rise

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Optimism is falling like gentle rain on Hollywood. The movie business hasn't looked so good in years. After five years of gloom, the film industry is enjoying good times and is looking forward to better ones. The reason is simple enough: you, the ticket buyers, are going to the movies more often. "Lost audience" has been found again. You and your neighbors don't stare at the TV set as much as you used to. "The honeymoon is over," Hal Roach first big producer to enter TV films, told the radio-TV convention last week. "People won't stay home and watch now because a program is free."

You are rediscovering that movies can provide exciting entertainment. Hollywood is helping by providing bigger pictures. They are not necessarily better. The accent is on bigness—to give you something you can't get on the small screen at home.

Last year saw more big-money films than any year in movie history. Variety listed 10 films earning five million or more in this country and Canada. Leader was "The Robe," which may overtake the "Gone With the Wind" record of 26 million.

"Only 18 months ago the film biz was coming in on a prayer," reported Variety. "Now it has the biggest wings since 1946." It observed that films were the only American industry to suffer a depression since World War II. Hollywood labor also reflects the optimism. "I think we reached the bottom last year," said a Screen Actors Guild official. "Employment for actors appears to be picking up."

Work for writers is perhaps most significant. Scripts must come before shooting. After a "rugged lean" 1953, Screen Writers Guild head F. Hugh Herbert sees "abundant signs the tide is turning" for the word makers.

Even Wall street has indicated the trend. Motion picture shares showed the biggest percentage gain of any industry in 1953. The only companies to show losses were RKO and Paramount, which dipped one and a fraction points. Every Hollywood Studio appears to be in an upswing.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE by and of John Patrick, in which he moved only the upper portion of his body and donned wig between exposures.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE to wish you a Happier New Year—with pictures: more lens laughs, camera chuckles and fun in photography. An injection of humor not only gives a much needed lift to the normal diet of pictures for the family album, but it is more apt to interest a wider audience and may even find an outside market. That is exactly what happened to camera fan John Patrick, a 61-year-old paperhanger of St. James, N.Y. For years he has been getting laughs out of gag pictures he has made through careful double and triple exposures. They made an effective two-page feature in Life magazine's "Speaking of Pictures" department recently... at $150 per page.

Here, incidentally, is a ready-made target for the nation's snappers because Life's "S.O.P." welcomes outside contributions at that same fee (double it for color) on any photographic theme that is humorous, imaginative or provocative. The average amateur of course, doesn't start out with a newspaper

Press Institute Starting 3-Day Session Tonight

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—The 29th annual newspaper institute, sponsored by the North Carolina Press Assn., the University of North Carolina and Duke University, opens a three-day session here tonight.

Dr. Frank P. Graham, former president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and now a United Nations mediator, will be principal speaker at the opening session. Dr. Graham will be introduced by D. Hiden Ramsey, general manager of The Asheville Citizen-Times.

Delegates will be welcomed by Chancellor Robert B. Fouse of the University of North Carolina. Thomas L. Robinson, publisher of the Charlotte News and vice president of the NCPA, will make the response.

John P. McKnight, press attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Rome, will address a general session tomorrow morning. He will be introduced by Holt McPherson, editor of The High Point Enterprise. Leslie Thompson, publisher of the Whiteville News-Reporter, will preside.

Norvel L. Luxon, dean of the school of Journalism at the University of North Carolina, also will speak at tomorrow morning's session.

Tomorrow's afternoon session will be devoted to separate meetings of daily and non-daily papers. Trustees of the University of North Carolina's Journalism Foundation also will meet tomorrow afternoon. McPherson, chairman of the foundation, will preside.

Tomorrow night the association will hold its annual dinner meeting at Duke University in Durham. Speakers will include Weimar Jones, publisher of the Franklin Press and president of the NCPA; Dr. Hollis Edens, president of Duke, and Dr. James Cleland of Duke's Divinity School.

Awards for the best spot reporting, editorial and feature writing and photography will be presented by State Treasurer, Edwin M. Gill.

An NCPA business session at the University of North Carolina with Jones presiding will end the institute Saturday morning.

to cover the left hand side of the lens. Another exposure therefore, exposes the balance of the same film. Or the lens cap can mask the bottom half of the lens—then the top half (or vice versa).

The dividing line between the two exposures may show, depending on the expertise with which the lens is masked and exposure made. To disguise the separation, photographers use a natural line or object in the picture at the point of overlapping—like a fence rail, tree trunk, table, chair or door.

Besides expert double and triple exposures John Patrick added a self-timer to his camera to record the multiple exposures of his own equally expert acting.

So you see, taking funny pictures can be a serious matter... but everybody enjoys the laugh. Life knows that, so they've prepared a beautifully printed booklet telling how photographers can cash in on their more imaginative ideas. Copies can be obtained from Ruth Lester, Life, New York 20, N.Y. What's new? A couple of new lens items are worth passing along, but don't pass out when the price is mentioned.

A new 16mm Zoomar varifocal lens is now available to fit all 16mm motion picture cameras without any alterations. It supplants all conventional lenses from 25mm to 75mm, permitting the user to zoom from normal focal length to telephoto to wide angle by pushing a single lever. It is 12.8, weighs 1 1/2 lbs., is five inches long, costs $600. Any questions? Ask Zoomar, Glen Cove, L.I., N.Y.

The first fully automatic preset-diaphragm lens for a 35mm single-lens reflex camera is now being demonstrated in camera stores throughout the country. It's the 50mm, f2.8 Westanar on the Pentac camera ($249.50 for the combination). A single pressure on the release button automatically closes down the diaphragm (which has been wide open for easier focusing) to a previously set aperture (which can be varied, of course) and simultaneously releases the shutter. More questions? Ask: Pentac, Bronxville 8, N. Y.

State Treasurer Race Set; Josh James Runs

RALEIGH (AP)—A race for state treasurer developed yesterday with the announcement of former Utilities Commissioner Joshua James that he will be a candidate for the post in the May 29 Democratic primary.

State Treasurer Edwin Gill already has announced he will seek to retain his job. He was appointed last year by Gov. Umstead after Brandon Hodges resigned.

James, 46, a native of Pender County, practiced law in Wilmington before former Gov. Scott appointed him to the Utilities Commission in 1949. His term expired last year and Gov. Umstead named Rep. Sam Worthington of Greenville to replace him.

James made his announcement at a news conference. Asked if there was any link between his candidacy and the expected candidacy of Scott for U. S. Senate, James replied, "Not to my knowledge. Mr. Scott and I have many mutual friends. Mr. Lennon and I also have many mutual friends."

In reply to a question, James said he had discussed with Scott the possibility of entering the race for treasurer. He added that Scott "neither encouraged nor discouraged me."

James said the final decision to enter the race "is wholly mine." He plans to make many speeches, including some on the radio, and hopes to make "lots of personal contacts" with the voters, he told newsmen.

James served as Pender County clerk of court from 1942 to 1944. He is a veteran of World War II and a graduate of Maryville College in Tennessee. He studied law at the University of North Carolina.

At the age of 25, James ran for Congress in the Third District and was defeated. "I had a lot of fun, wasted a lot of money and made a lot of friends," he said.

To Talk Tobacco At 2-Day School

Tobacco will be the subject of discussion at the Tuesday afternoon session from 1:30 to 3:30 of the two-day farm school to be held at the Pitt County Office Building February 2 and 3.

The meeting will be conducted by Extension Tobacco Specialists R.A. Bennett and Extension Plant Specialist Howard R. Garris.

Farmers attending the meeting will receive the latest information on tobacco varieties, fertilization practices, insect and disease control, irrigation and plant production. Special emphasis will be placed on nematode control by the extension specialists, according to Sam T. Weeks, assistant farm agent.

In the Tuesday morning session of the two-day meet extension specialists will conduct discussions on entomology. Wednesday dairying classes will be held in the morning and livestock discussions in the afternoon.

Devin Expected To Announce His Retirement Soon

RALEIGH (AP)—Chief Justice W. A. Devin 82, is expected to formally announce his retirement from the State Supreme Court within the next few days, possibly tomorrow.

Devin, who now resides in Oxford, confirmed reports a few weeks ago that he plans to retire "very soon." He was appointed to the Supreme Court in October, 1935, by the late Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus and was named chief justice in September, 1951 by former Gov. Scott.

Reports have been circulated that Associate Justice M. V. Barnhill will be appointed to succeed Devin. Barnhill was named to the Supreme Court in July, 1937, by former Gov. Hoey.

There also were reports that W. Frank Taylor, Goldsboro attorney and former speaker of the house, would be named to the Supreme Court. However, Taylor announced yesterday he has withdrawn his name from consideration for appointment to the court.

Taylor, who served as legislative counsel for Gov. Umstead during the 1953 General Assembly, issued a formal press release. In it he said that "after mature consideration and after discussing the matter with a few of my very close friends I have conferred with Gov. Umstead and requested him to withdraw my name from further consideration."

Three Superior Court judges also are being mentioned as candidates for appointment to the Supreme Court. They are William H. Bobbitt of Charlotte, who lost to Judge R. Hunt Parker in a close primary two years ago for a Supreme Court seat; Allen H. Gwyn of Reidsville; and Leo Carr of Burlington.

Says 'Refugees' Refused Entry

LONDON, Thursday, Jan. 28 (AP)—A Laborite member of Parliament charged in the House of Commons early today that several "refugees from America because of McCarthy persecution" have been refused entry into Britain.

Michael Foot, extreme left-wing follower of Aneurin Bevan spoke supporting Socialist measures to repeal various immigration restrictions.

"I know of several people who are refugees from America because of persecution by (Sen. Joseph) McCarthy," he said. "A number of them are engaged in the British film industry."

Replying for the Churchill government, Sir Hugh Lucas-Tooth, undersecretary at the home office, commented that "there is something to be said" for wiping out immigration restrictions but "this is not the opportune moment for going ahead with the most liberal form of legislation in this connection."

There is no restriction against a person coming into Britain on account of particular political views, he added.

The Laborite motion was withdrawn.

Besides he is a full time sick insurance manager, member of the county council, chairman of (a) the pensions board, (b) elementary school board, (c) technical school board, (d) Socialist Workers' Commune, (e) Swedish Policemen's Association and (f) Scandinavian Policemen's Federation.

A Job That Still Is Incomplete

The still unfinished recreation building at Elm Street Park stands as a mute testimony to a job yet to be completed.

It is not the fault of any one or any group that the building, so greatly needed by the city's recreation department, has not been completed before now. The people of Greenville have contributed a great deal of money from their own pockets and a great deal of time to the construction of Elm Street Park since the project was undertaken. They can be justly proud of the accomplishments which have been made in the area.

Nevertheless, the job is not yet completed. It can hardly be considered completed until the much needed building is ready for use.

The matter boils down to the fact that funds which have been contributed to the project have been exhausted. More funds will have to be contributed by the people of the city to complete the building.

When the project of constructing Elm Street Park into a major recreation area for the city several years ago, it was undertaken by the citizens at large because the city government asserted it did not have funds to put into the project. The citizens have done a wonderful job on the area so far, but it is evident now that they must collectively put their shoulder to the wheel once more in an effort to see the project to its completion.

Without an adequate building of its own in which to hold activities, the city recreation commission finds itself seriously handicapped in carrying out a recreation program which Greenville needs. Unless and until the building at Elm Street Park is completed, it will have no adequate facilities.

In the interest of completing the building and affording Greenville another of its much needed recreation facilities, it behooves the citizens of the city to answer the call for more funds for completion of the recreation building at Elm Street Park.

Old Auto Licenses Good A Few More Days

Just a few days left and those old 1953 auto license tags will be out of date.

Come February 1, automobiles and other motor vehicles which are not exhibiting new license plates in North Carolina will be in violation of the state law.

For the most part, the '54 black-on-orange license plates are already carried on automobiles, but there are still a considerable number of people in Pitt County who have not bought their new license plates.

By waiting so near the legal deadline for making the purchase of new license plates, those who have yet to buy new licenses will find it necessary to stand in line at most places. Nevertheless that's the price one must pay for waiting.

Even so, all things considered, it will probably be well worth one's while to get the licenses and have them on vehicles before the deadline rather than venturing out in the family car with old license plates after the designated date for new licenses.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
MODERN IDOLATRY

Idolatry continues in every age to be the greatest evil in the realm of the spirit. There is almost as much idolatry in civilized countries today as there is among the primitive tribes in the jungle—only it is of a different form. Millions of people who would regard with derision the circumstances which cause a naked savage to prostrate himself before an idol, turn around and prostrate themselves before idols that are probably more debasing than anything the savage and his idol-maker ever conceived.

Look at the business circles in which you move today. Is there not plenty of idolatry there? Think of what people will do to satisfy their appetites. Look upon the multitudes who would regard nothing so fraught with pleasure as the opportunity to be able to loaf the day away with no responsibility whatsoever.

For some people pride is an idol. There are people who make so much of family and social prominence that they would not, without protest, allow a son or a daughter to marry outside a certain social class. There are others who thirst for vengeance. Husband and wife may hate each other in a deep and abiding fashion which makes their life together an affront to God. For these people their venomous dislike for each other becomes a poison which they cherish with much brooding.

Idolatry—it remains the primary issue in the spiritual life.

Still Seek To Sell To Russia

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Influential political, diplomatic and agricultural interests are still trying to frame a formula under which millions of pounds of surplus butter may be sold to Russia without angering American housewives now paying about 80 cents for the product or using margarine as a substitute. Secretary Sinclair Weeks' premature revelation of Moscow interest was designed to test public sentiment over such a trade. He quickly banned the proposition when the lady of the house wondered aloud why we should subsidize our acknowledged enemies with the taxes her husband pays to the Treasury. He finances the $200,000,000 worth of the product now in Uncle Sam's stockpile, based on purchases averaging 45 cents a pound. Then she is nicked for 80 cents.

But the significant factor is that Washington and Moscow representatives are now haggling only over the price to be paid, not over the question of whether it is advisable to aid Dictator Malenkov in raising the standards of living in his tasteless country. It has become a problem of kitchen economics rather than an affair of state.

BENSON NOT HOSTILE TO DEAL—Secretary Ezra Taft Benson is not hostile to the deal for obvious reasons. He will soon own so much butter that he will not have adequate cold storage for it. Millions of pounds bought by his predecessors will soon spoil, and he does not want that to happen on his time. Although bitterly anti-Russian, the dairy farmers of Senator McCarthy's Wisconsin view the proposed transaction as a simple bread-and-butter matter.

Two formulas suggest themselves. If butter continues to back up on Uncle Sam, Benson may lower the price supports to 63 or 60 cents a pound. Dairy spokesmen are discussing with him a scheme under which two pounds of mixed grades would be sold to domestic consumers for a dollar, or about 50 cents a pound. That is the figure which the Reds are understood to be willing to pay.

Finally, if we do not enter some sort of David Barum deal, the business will go to the Scandinavian

What About Legislators Carrying Their Lunches?

The Colorado legislator who decided to "carry his lunch" instead of adding the cost of a meal to his expense account turned up a new angle in government economy.

The fad of legislators carrying their lunches probably will not become a general thing from the standpoint of an economy measure in any state. Yet, in most states, it would probably be a necessity, if legislators had to rely upon the pay they receive for serving in the legislatures to meet their living expenses in the various state capitals and to support their families while the legislatures are in session.

There are few men who go to state capitals as members of the legislature who are able to pay their expenses there on the pay they receive during each session, much less lay enough aside to cover any incidental expenses such as campaigns, gratis speaking engagements or the like.

Of course, being a member of a state legislative body is not supposed to be a money-making job. It is a position of honor and service. Yet the states which require the greatest sacrifice—financial or otherwise—from the members of its legislature are the states which are, for practical purposes, confining the membership of their legislatures to the extent of the number of the people who are able or willing to make such sacrifices.

It is a problem to which most states should give consideration.

A new electronic calculator is said to solve in two minutes a problem that would take 15 years to work out with pencil and paper. Maybe it can even make out an income tax form.—Fort Myers (Fla.) News Press.

Reversal For President

REVERSAL FOR PRESIDENT—President Eisenhower will suffer a major reverse on Capitol Hill over his relatively streamlined budget. But it will not be a personal or a political body blow because proposed Congressional alterations will not wreck the Federal financial structure. On the other hand, they may give the GOP a needed human epidermis the people like to vote for.

The 1955 deficit will amount to about $3 billion, assuming that Congress does not dot an "i" or cross a "t" of Ike's program. They will, however. The political financiers, and they have so informed Ike's agents, will insist on expiration or reduction of the excise and corporate taxes which end automatically on April 1. That will eliminate about $3 billion of current revenue, boosting the threatened deficit to $6 billion.

But the political tax experts plan to make up for half of this loss by eliminating $3 billion from the defense. They will also fix drastic limits on the number of employees here and abroad. They figure that too many holdovers are "riding the gray train," especially in Harold E. Stassen's overseas operation.

The boys admit frankly that only another tax reduction will save their skins next fall. And they have the backing of many economic authorities who advocate greater relief in order to cushion the country against a recession or depression.

REPRESENTATIVE'S VIEW OF PAY BOOST—Representative T. Millet Hand of New Jersey vouches for the professional political veterans' opinion about the proposed pay boost for members of Congress. And his viewpoint is shared by many colleagues who know whereof they speak from their experiences after previous salary increases.

"Before any bill passes," says the Cape May man, "I want to go on record as saying that a $10,000 raise will net me only about $4,000 after taxes, give me approximately 19 more primary opponents, which will cost me that $4,000, and bring in at least 50,000 more requests for donations."

That is the procedure set out in G.S. 160-50, and it has been the law for more than 50 years, essentially unchanged since 1901. It has been used in numerous municipal elections with specific approval of the attorney general.

Somebody Told Me

Tige Leans Toward Sleeping

Tige Gardner is a man who had rather make his fellow man laugh than eat. To look at his five-by-five stature you might not believe that, but if you look into his past you will.

Tige defied death from tuberculosis after doctors gave him little hope. "Don't worry," he told his family. "I'm going to pull through this OK." On the road to recovery he sold advertising novelties by telephone while still flat on his back.

And Tige was once in vaudeville. Since he came back home to Greenville he has been a spark year after year to the Kiwanis Minstrel, to benefit the underprivileged.

Now Tige still sells advertising and is one of the community Post Office comedians. Yesterday Tige was telling a few of his customary jokes, for the amusement of John Biggs and me.

"A funny thing happened to me recently in Florida," he began. He went on to explain that he's the type who falls asleep easily, once he gets comfortably settled.

He and his wife were in Florida in church one Sunday night. "And I have to admit," he said, "that I'll fall asleep in church just as fast as I will anywhere else. Usually my wife gives me the elbow all during the sermon to help me stay awake."

That particular night in Florida there was some electrical trouble in the church lighting system.

Tige fell asleep, and while he was asleep the lights in the church went out. The pastor announced that the trouble would be fixed as soon as possible, but in the meantime he would continue with his sermon. Tige was asleep, and didn't realize what was up.

With a start he woke up and said, "Oh, my God! I've gone blind!"

"Did this cure him from falling asleep? Definitely not. 'Someday,' I told him, 'I'll challenge you to a sleeping contest. I'll bet you I can sit up in a chair and fall asleep quicker than you can.'"

Take it from Tige and me: the power of relaxation is priceless. And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

HE SAW HIS DREAM COME TRUE

(Greensboro Daily News)
Dr. James Y. Joyner, who died Sunday at the age of 91, was a dreamer spared long enough to see his dream come true.

Dr. Joyner was one of the quartet of young North Carolinians who at the turn of the century looked into the future and saw the meaning of education to their state and its richest resource, its children who would have to build and administer that future.

Governor Charles B. Aycock led the crusade, but in close step with him, spear-heading the move and supplying the inspiration, the faith, the courage and the physical and spiritual force which assured victory were Joyner, Charles D. McIver and Edward A. Alderman. Up and down North Carolina they went preaching the rights of its children, living and breathing education, fighting the forces of ignorance, intolerance and prejudice and battling for the funds with which to effect their program. There was no stopping their zeal, their inspiration and their contagion for a cause.

It is significant that all of this quartet save Aycock were actively identified with Woman's College when it was established, during this same formative period, as the State Normal and Industrial College. Thus their personality, their faith and their ideals were wrought into this institution and will ever remain part of its foundation, its purpose, its tradition and its spirit. They recognized that at the very heart of our school system is the teacher. And to that end they labored in complementation and in achievement.

The other leaders dropped off, but Dr. Joyner, alert and as keenly interested in education as ever, lived on to see the spirit which he helped plant take root, the vision which he dreamed materialize, and the results which he predicted reflected in the present school system with which North Carolina is blessed, our recognition of the right of every child to make the most of his God-given opportunity and the material progress which stems from an educationally lifted citizenry.

As Dr. Joyner returns to the soil from which he came, his creed, his philosophy and his faith are reincarnated in every school child in North Carolina. The state which he and his fellow crusaders inspired looks ever forward, its faith, its hope and its investment centered in its children.

Dog Track Hearing; Extremists In Political Guessing

By LYNN NISBET
GAMBLING—The Supreme Court next week will hear oral arguments in two cases involving the dog racing tracks at Moyock in Currituck county, and indirectly the tracks at Morehead City. The technical legal arguments revolve around the constitutionality of statutes permitting pari-mutuel betting on the races after approval by majority popular vote in the localities. The practical question seems to be whether pari-mutuel results constitute gambling, and if so whether gambling is either per se or per statute a crime under these circumstances.

Everybody concedes that the laws are vague at best and contradictory in many instances on this point. There are statutes against gambling in any form, and literal interpretation of them would outlaw matching for cokes at the drink stand, playing bridge, for prizes or engaging in the great indoor pastime of penny ante poker, but these are seldom questioned.

It is recalled that the same law-making agency, the General Assembly of North Carolina, which enacted the general statutes against gambling also authorized local elections on pari-mutuel betting at the dog tracks, when approved by local vote. It is also a fact, though less generally known, that the same law-making agency enacted other statutes not only permitting and authorizing, but requiring by law, that in case of a tie in an election for municipal office the result shall be determined by lot—drawing straws or matching coins or cutting a deck of cards, or some other device of chance.

That is the procedure set out in G.S. 160-50, and it has been the law for more than 50 years, essentially unchanged since 1901. It has been used in numerous municipal elections with specific approval of the attorney general.

It would seem that gambling for cokes or on the relative speed of dogs is illegal, but gambling for public office is all right in purview of the statutes.

EXTREMISTS—It is hard to appraise sentiment with respect to the senatorial race because so many people express views obviously far more extreme than conditions justify.

In Asheville the other day your reporter heard several people say that Kerr Scott would carry the 12th congressional district over Senator Lennon by better than two to one margin. On the same day he heard others in equally good position to know that in two or three counties Lennon would win by better than two to one. One county claimed 80 per cent for the Senator.

Further check indicated that as of now Scott probably has the advantage in the district as a whole, Lennon probably in the counties claimed for him, but in neither case by anything like the margins suggested.

REALISTIC—Contrasted with the extravagant claims of the mountain folks was the realistic approach of members of the N.C. Dairy Products Association at the Pinehurst convention last week. Scott was there for a part of the time in dual capacity. His Guilford Dairies firm is a member of the group and he was also getting in some licks as a candidate, although yet unannounced. When called upon to say a few words at the luncheon he said: "I'll make you a mighty good man."

He had some strong support among convention attendants, but consensus among several observers, some from out of the state and not directly concerned with primary results, was that it was neither a pro-Scott group nor a pro-Lennon group. Prevailing opinion seemed to be that a real contest is ahead with results depending much more upon the type of campaign and its effects upon the voters than upon pre-campaign sentiment.

Scott spent the bitter part of two days touring Moore, Montgomery, Hoke and neighboring counties.

WORKING—Governor Umstead is behind on a few appointments to boards and commissions, and has not yet found the men he wants for commissioner of commercial fisheries and for director of civil defenses. He is still declining most invitations to make non-official appearances, especially at night, in order to conserve his strength for the demanding duties of the office. He has not missed any time from his office on account of sickness

Business Today

Investments Go Up

While some business indicators are swinging downward, investments in plants and equipment still point upward. The Department of Commerce and the Securities and Exchange Commission, as reported here, put outlays during the first quarter at an annual rate of $27,960,000,000 and McGraw-Hill forecast outlays for the year at $27 billion, just under 1953. On top of that has come General Motors' announcement of a half-billion-dollar expansion program. GM's boldness is likely to encourage other companies to enlarge their plants.

Why capital goods should hold up when sales lag and unemployment rises is a puzzling question, but the answers are fairly clear.

General Motors says it has in increasing prosperity and, besides, it is out to capture another 2 per cent of the auto market.

Good reasons, but probably not the only ones for GM and the other corporations that are expanding, rebuilding and retooling their plants.

A greater reason may be the high-wage level. This reason is being activated by two others: the current lag in sales and the end of the excess-profits tax.

High wages make modern plants—with better tools, newer machines and more automatic operations—cheaper. If a new plant can save enough man hours a company gets it for nothing!

Now, when sales lag, it becomes increasingly important to cut prices or to be in a position to cut them, or to allow dealers more margin. And the way to be able to cut prices is to cut costs. And a company can't cut costs by reducing wages, so it must cut them by more efficient production. And more efficient production usually requires new plants and equipment.

The end of the excess profits tax means that corporations and their shareholders can keep more of their profits. While the tax was in effect, there was little to encourage a company to modernize or automate its plant. If it made more money, the government got almost all of it. Now that corporations can keep almost half, it is worth-while making more. Besides with greater net earning power, corporations become better risks as borrowers and—although some of us may not have noticed it—there is a lot of lending money available in the stock market.

U.S. TO CONTINUE SMALL BUSINESS BOOKS
Under the direction of Wilford White, a recognized authority on the problems of small business, the Small Business Administration planned a series of 14 authoritative booklets for little enterprisers. Five were published; the Congress abolished the SDPA.

The new Small Business Administration quickly seized Mr. White and now it has announced it will bring out the rest of the series in the next 60 days.

The five booklets already published are available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D.C.

LESS ENTERTAINING AT CONVENTION ASKED
The "selling fringe" often becomes a problem at many conventions. When a show is run in conjunction with a meeting, the suppliers' sellers are no problem or, if they are, it is the convention's fault because it tacitly invited them. But when a convention is intended for the serious exchange of ideas, the selling fringe can become a nuisance.

Salesmen often take suites in the convention hotel, stock their closets with liquor and go about building the "goodest" will you ever saw. Delegates, as a result, often miss convention sessions or neglect committee work. Others resent salesmen pushing business when the delegates have convention matters on their minds.

Ladies Told: Let George Do It

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

I know that everybody today is doing everything themselves. I also know that the do-it-yourself field has broadened so that it now includes everything up to building your own house. I've even heard of some women tackling a home-building job.

What's more, I think doing it yourself is a fine, stimulating outlet, a challenge and that in every way it's a healthy thing.

Personally, my challenge is finding how many of these stimulating creative jobs I can get out of and—and more important—when I can call in the professionals.

Already I have a pretty good idea of do-it-yourself projects I wouldn't touch with a ten-foot pole or even one of those lady size screwdrivers.

First, there is all the interesting equipment in the cellar, including importantly the furnace, hot-water heater and the little wheels on the water pipe you turn to shut off the outside faucets. One year a mechanically minded—and bored, I now suspect—neighbor talked me into joining him in a complete overhaul of my furnace. Not only did we wind up with many left-over parts, but it meant an emergency call to the gas company. It seems we neglected to put back some interesting metal strips called baffles.

I achieved a minor explosion adjusting the hot water heater, and I had to call the plumber to prevent turning the cellar into a swimming pool when I tackled the water pipe with a wrench which didn't know its own strength. Now the only thing I'll touch in the cellar is a big handle that turns off the gas. We haven't had any trouble since I removed myself from the cellar fixit hobby.

In spite of the fact I have a dandy little illustrated book on the rudimentary facts of electrical life, I now limit myself to adventures no more daring than changing electric bulbs. Once, fired up by how much fun it would be and how much money I'd save, I attempted to clean an repair the waffle iron. Naturally, we haven't had a waffle in the house since, and we all remember the odd cracklings and strong smells which preceded the blown fuses after I had spent a lovely day over the iron. After that I never dreamed—in spite of all the advice I've run across—of being my own television repairman.

As far as motor-driven equipment is concerned, my local garage is all my business. When I was following carefully directions for winterizing my power lawnmower, a spark plug bit me. If that can happen, no one is going to catch me fooling around with the innards of a larger machine.

I know women who have a wonderful time insulating their top floors, finishing off the attic, hanging paper, painting walls, making slip covers and filling cracks in the plaster. I can work out of the same book of instructions, and the result is a mess. Whenever it is possible to achieve the dreadful look, I'm the kid who can get the effect.

I've never yet picked up a hammer without hitting a finger, nor wielded a knife without getting cut. Tools and I just don't get along. I like to garden, and I do a fine job of testing my own soil and mixing my own fertilizer, but now I hire people to rebuild stone walls. I don't think making cement flagstones is woman's work even if they are dyed pastel shades.

Henceforth I shall confine myself to knitting, simple sewing, furniture refinishing and polishing brass. Oh, and I may try working a little bit in fur. I read the most interesting article the other day about how you can stitch skins together yourself, and think of all the money you can save.

Worth Noting

DOESN'T MAKE SENSE

Columnist Frank R. Kent points out that at the recent annual convention of a major labor organization fifteen resolutions were passed which "involved large expenditures of federal cash. The sixteenth urged that personal exemptions in the income tax law be raised from $600 to $1,000. This would lower government revenue by $9,500,000,000 a year. In other words government must spend more and take in less. This does not make sense and it never did."

Here is another example of imagination that thinks it possible to cut taxes, lower prices, raise wages, increase profits, and have government spend more and more money all at one and the same time. If this brand of economic reasoning is accepted we will have no chance of getting out of the financial mess that has resulted from 20 years of unbridled government spending and waste. Rabbit, Turkey Season Near End

The open season for hunting quail, wild turkey and rabbits ends next Saturday, January 30, at sunset.

The open season for trapping fur-bearing animals — mink, muskrat, opossum, otter and raccoon — also ends Saturday, January 30.

The season for taking shad and herring in nets opened January 1 and it will end May 15, District Game and Fish Protector J. O. Teel stated today. Those who fish with nets are required by North Carolina law to procure a special permit.

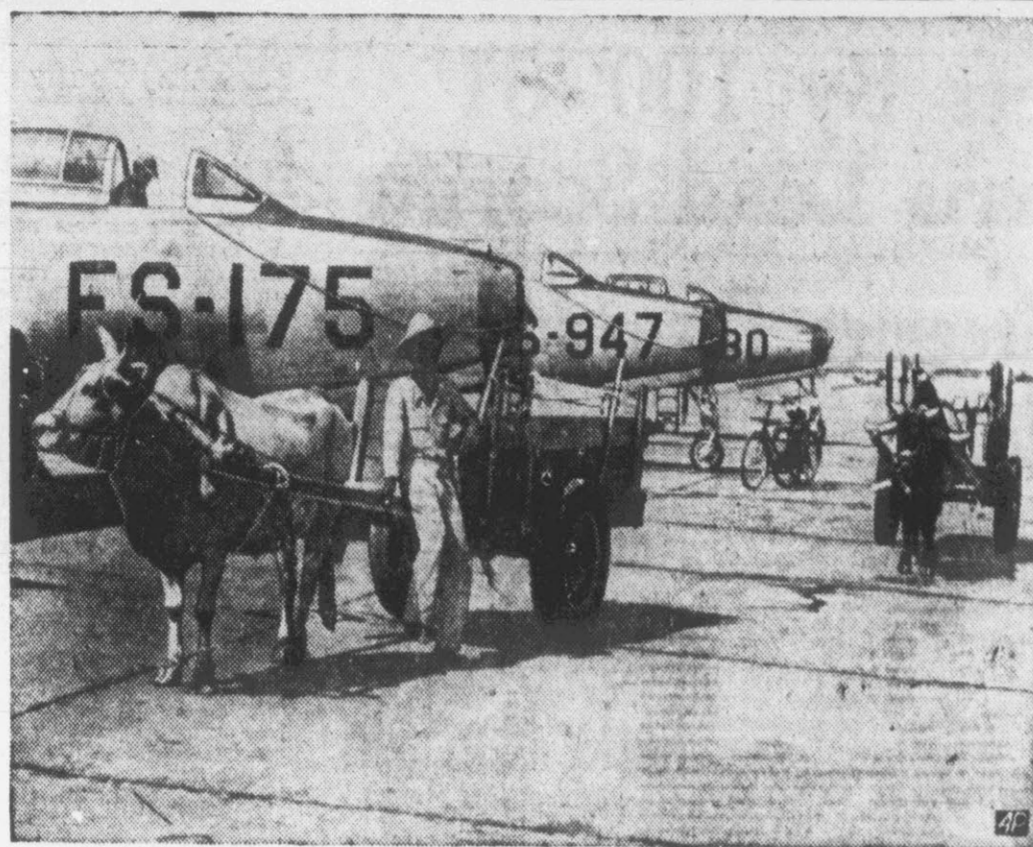

A game and conservation law also requires net fishermen to release all game fish caught in nets, except a few rock fish for their own consumption.

The season for taking raccoon and opossum with dogs and guns does not close until February 15. There is no bag limit.

St. George And Dragonet Proves A Hit In England

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—You may never have suspected but Stan Freberg's lampooning record "St. George and the Dragonet," is a hit in England.

This was one of the bits of information I gleaned from Robert Weiss, a former Hollywood press agent who is now Capitol Records' ambassador of good will and good business in Europe. Here to report to the home base, he told me that American music is extremely popular in free Europe and even gets a play behind the Iron Curtain.

"Of course, the English have never seen or heard Dragonet on TV," said Weiss, "so we weren't sure whether 'St. George and the Dragonet' would be well received. But it has been a big success. It's partly because St. George is a national hero over there.

"What's more, Ray Anthony's straight version of the Dragonet theme has been a big hit in Sweden. They like its style."

Weiss, who tours Europe from his base in Paris, gave me a country-by-country rundown on national tastes in music:

Sweden—They like American favorites such as Stan Kenton, Les Paul-Mary Ford, King Cole and Ray Anthony. They also go for "cool jazz" like Jerry Mulligan's.

Norway—In a cooler country, they are slightly more reserved in their music tastes.

Denmark — They prefer gay, carefree, melodic music of such performers as King Cole, Les Paul-Mary Ford, Giselle McKenzie.

West Germany—Having listened to the American armed forces radio network, they have developed a taste for hillbilly and Western music, which they find similar to their Bavarian style. Tex Ritter and Hank Thompson are favorites. The Germans are the top jazz fans of Europe and like rhythmic, bright melodies played at fast tempos. Exception: "Vaya Con Dios," a big hit.

Holland and Belgium — Their tastes are almost exactly the same as in America. Special favorite: Kay Starr.

England — They buy more records by American performers than by English. Al Martino, Dean Martin, June Hutton, Paul-Ford, King Cole, Anthony and Billy May are well received.

France—There are two strong factions: those who are devout for Dixieland and those who love strong ballads. Stan Kenton was a big success there in a personal appearance.

Italy—Melody is strong here, not jazz. Frank Sinatra, Cole and Paul-Ford are big favorites. Also liked: tangos, samba, mambas.

Sports Time-Out

with Bob Hilldrup

If last night's contest with High Point is any indication, then East Carolina's Pirates are well on their way once more toward the regular season North State Conference basketball crown.

The Bucs, who beat the Panthers 100-61 last night, displayed an offense that was, at times, almost awe-inspiring. Center Bobby Hodges got going again after a two-game slump by dumping in ten field goals and as many free throws for 30 points while the remainder of the starting Pirate five also turned in outstanding games also.

Perhaps the real highlight of last night's contest was the play of guard J. C. Thomas. Thomas, who collected only four points for the evening, turned in what was perhaps his best all-around game of the year on the home court. Whereas his scoring total was low, he nevertheless played a large part in setting up the Pirate offensive patterns and did an excellent job of hounding his man on defense.

Oecil Heath, who handles the other guard post for the Bucs, played his usual outstanding floor game and contributed several nice set shots and driving lay-ups to the Pirate cause. What made Heath's play all the more interesting was his individual duel with the Panther star, Kent Moseley. Moseley, a little pepper-pot who has been a thorn in the Pirates side over the last several seasons, turned in a good game all the way. Several times however, Heath snatched the ball from the High Point star's hands and brought roars of approval from Pirate partisans.

It can't be denied however, that Moseley is one of the best set-shots ever to play in Greenville. The Panther senior personally kept High Point in the game throughout the opening quarter with his set shots from near the center of the floor. Watching Moseley when he's on the sidelines gives some hint as to the young man's ability on the court.

Whereas most players, when removed from the game in order to catch their breath, merely slump in their seat, Moseley just cannot sit still. First he crossed his legs, then he uncrossed them. He put on his warm-up jacket, then took it off. Started to the water-cooler, then started back. His restless nervous energy should make him a coach's pride and joy for despite his unpopularity with East Carolina fans it must be admitted that he gives the game all he's got.

But several other Pirates came in for their share of laurels also. Senior Charlie Huffman brought roars of approval from the spectators with his hook shots from in close. Huffman, who can hit equally well with either hand displayed his form to perfection last night.

The play of freshman Don Harris must have made Head Coach Howard Porter breathe easier with regard to next year's team as he watched the Laurinburg newcomer perform last night. Harris took a regular physical beating during the course of the contest but dumped in 20 points nevertheless.

As the game wore on and the Pirates pulled farther and farther in from the fans could always take consolation in the antics of referee Lou Bello. Bello put on his usual fine performance last night and kept the stands in stitches with his decisions. When Bello calls a foul he not only calls it, he acts it out.

Tomorrow night however, may well see a much closer ball game and one which could be decisive in the North State Conference race. Western Carolina's victory over the one team to hold a victory over the Pirates, come to town in an effort to lay hold of the loop's No. 1 position. The Cats upset the Bucs about 10 days ago, 68-65, and the locals will undoubtedly be seeking revenge.

A high scoring game should be in the offing for the Cats generally rely on their ability to outscore the opposition. They have a drawback this year in the fact that their All-American ace, guard Ronald Rogers has graduated. But the Western Carolina offense still has tremendous power and it should be interesting to note what style of play comes out of tomorrow's game.

Farmville Wins Two From Ayden High School Cagers

FARMVILLE — Farmville High's Red Devils defeated Ayden High in a pair of basketball games here Tuesday night.

In the feature game the local boys edged the visitors by a 50-46 margin, but the Farmville girls had no trouble in winning 46-26.

Bert Sawyer paced the winning boys on both offense and defense in recording their eighth Pitt Conference win against only three losses. He scored 12 points.

Edna Wooten dropped in 25 points in pacing the local girls to their ninth county win against two losses.

Ham Lang scored 14 for the losing boys and Wilma Stocks scored 14 for the losing Ayden girls.

Farmville's record in girls' play shows 14 wins, two losses and one tie. The boys have won 13 and lost four this year.

The local cagers travel to Bethel for a doubleheader with the high flying Indians on Friday night.

Wolfpack Plans 10-Game Slate

RALEIGH (AP)—Earle L. Edwards, signed to a three-year contract as North Carolina State College head football coach earlier this week, has inherited a 10-game 1954 schedule.

The college announced a schedule of four games against rival Atlantic Coast Conference schools, five in the Southern Conference to which it formerly belonged, and a meeting here with Florida State.

Four home games are on the card, three in succession the last three weeks in October. Davidson, North Carolina State's only victim in 10 games last year, has been dropped along with Pittsburgh, Army and George Washington.

They are replaced by Virginia Tech, Furman, Maryland and Richmond. Furman will be met for the first time in 13 years.

Duke old state rival, will play here at night Oct. 23, avoiding conflict with the Wake Forest day game at North Carolina. The team's first four games will be away from home.

The schedule:

Sept. 18—Virginia Tech at Blacksburg; 25—at North Carolina.

Oct. 2—at Wake Forest; 9—at William and Mary; 16—Florida State (night); 23—Duke (night); 30—Furman (night).

Nov. 6—at Maryland; 13—Richmond; 20—at West Virginia.

Pirates Trip Panthers By 100-61 As Hodges And Harris Lead Scoring

Hodges Collects 30 Points, Harris 20, As Buccaneers Win Conference Contest; Western Carolina Here Tomorrow

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer
Freshman Don Harris and Senior Captain Bobby Hodges set the pace last night as East Carolina College's Pirates swamped High Point College 100-61.

The North State Conference basketball game was played before approximately 1500 fans in Memorial Gymnasium. The victory was the ninth in 10 conference games for the Pirates and their eleventh in 12 games. The loss was High Point's sixth in eight conference games and their sixteenth in 21 games.

Hodges, the team's scoring leader and the conference's scoring leader, lived up to his reputation in that department with a 30-point performance last night. He also performed very well in the rebounding department and did an outstanding job of working the ball around to his teammates.

Harris, the freshman forward from Laurinburg who has been improving with every game, was the outstanding man on the floor, bar none. He contributed 20 points to the offensive scoring total but his most outstanding play came on defense and in rebounding. He was all over the floor on defense and in the thick of the scrap for rebounds throughout the time he was in the contest. It was his best performance of the year.

High Point's offense and defense was centered around their smallest player, Captain Kent Moseley. The 5-9 guard who played a year with the N. C. State Freshmen before going to High Point scrapped his way through a larger East Carolina team for 23 points and then turned around to play an exceptional game on defense.

The game was close only in the first quarter but it couldn't have been closer than it was then. The score was tied only three times, at 2-2, 14-14, and 16-16, and the teams traded field goals in the first period with almost reckless abandon. The lead changed hands ten times before the Pirates began running up the score on Coach Virgil Yow's Panthers. The only time in the early minutes of the quarter when it looked as if either team was going to pull away was when Coach Howard Porter's Pirates moved into a 12-9 lead but the Panthers scrapped back for a few minutes. East Carolina finally started rolling with the score at 16-16 when Hodges dropped in a field goal and a free throw. After that, the Pirates were in command all the way.

Reserves played much of the game for East Carolina. Coach Porter started sending in the subs in the second period and kept almost a steady stream rolling in throughout the rest of the game. Forward Bill McArthur accounted for the 100th point when he stole the ball from a High Point guard and dropped in a lay-up shot with only seconds left in the contest.

The play of the reserves was an obvious maneuver by Porter. The Pirates have a real tough coming up tomorrow night when they meet Western Carolina in Memorial Gym in a battle for first place in the conference standings. The Cats were idle last night, but they still have a 5-1 mark in conference play and have the added distinction of being the only team that has been able to defeat the Pirates this year. They did that a week ago in Cullowhee to the tune of a 68-65 score.

After tomorrow's game in Memorial Gym, the Pirates will hit the road again. Their trip this time will carry them to Boone Monday night where they will meet Appalachian's Mountaineers.

No Games Slated For Loop Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Basketball action in North Carolina last night was limited to the North State Conference where everything went pretty much according to form. No games are scheduled in the state tonight.

North State Conference leader East Carolina flexed its muscles at High Point, downing the Panthers, 100-61. Bobby Hodges led the ninth conference win for the pirates with a 2-6 mark.

Third place Lenoir Rhyne had little trouble overpowering Guilford, 81-60. The victory left the Bears with a 6-2 record and Guilford with a 2-6 mark.

Appalachian turned in the lone upset whipping Elon, 81-74. The last place Apps were led by Bob Campbell with 21 points.

In a non-conference game, Belmont Abbey defeated Catawba, 79-67.

Greenies Preparing For New Bern Clash

Greenville's Phantoms settled down to hard work yesterday after their close defeat at the hands of Kingston's Red Devils Tuesday night. The Phants meet New Bern tomorrow on the Bears court in a Northeastern Conference contest.

Head Coach Bo Farley drilled the Greenies yesterday against a zone defense in preparation for the contest. Greenville handed New Bern a setback earlier this year in a game played here.

Running with the first team yesterday were Harold Edwards, Walter Perkins, Bob Howell, George Sideris and Pat Sawyer. Edwards, high scorer for the locals against Kingston, paced the first string against the reserves' zone defense.

A weakness that showed itself in the Kingston contest—inability to hit from the outside—was stressed in yesterday's practice. The Phants also devoted considerable time to work on the fast break.

Guard Edgar Moore missed yesterday's workouts due to illness but is expected to be ready to go against the Bears.

Greenville, which was tied for the conference lead prior to the Kingston game, now has a loop mark of five wins against one setback.

Reflector Writer Back Home Again

Reflector Sports Writer Wayne Bishop has been released from Pitt Memorial Hospital but he is still confined to bed.

Wayne was released from the hospital slightly more than a week after he suffered a severe concussion in a fall at his home. He is fully conscious and has been since a short time after the accident but he is still unable to recall any incidents which occurred prior to the accident.

Last night, the high school junior rested very well and was feeling good this morning. He is able to move around some but movements have been held to a minimum because of a sore knee.

It is thought by Wayne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Bishop, and the attending physician that the accident was caused when a "trick" knee gave away when Bishop was going down the front steps at his home. The position of his body at the time he was found supports such an idea.

Company is permitted but physicians have requested that it be kept at a minimum.

Marathons by Pap'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore, having finally disposed of Joey Maxim as a challenger, clamored today for a crack at Rocky Marciano's crown.

That target, however, may prove as elusive for Moore as the light heavyweight title chance he pursued so many years. Chances are he will either fight Harold Johnson of Philadelphia or go back to South America on another exhibition tour.

Marciano's opponents this year probably will be Dan Bucceroni in March and Ezzard Charles in June or September. Indications are the champ's manager, Al Weill, is working on a schedule that leaves Moore strictly out.

The powerful Moore smashed Maxim to the canvas twice last night as he scored his third and by far most decisive victory over the Cleveland jabber, the only man he has ever fought as a champion.

He lifted the title from Maxim in St. Louis Dec. 17, 1952, and successfully defend it against Joey in Ogden, Utah, June 24, 1953. When he finally got his title shot, Moore, now 37, had been fighting for 16 years and had been a contender about 10 of those years.

"I think this one ended my series with Joe," Moore said with a big grin in his dressing room last night. "I'd like to fight Marciano now, but I'll take on Harold Johnson if they'll get up the money."

He said he also would like to go back to Argentina, where he fought two profitable exhibition bouts last summer.

Before last night's fight, Moore admitted, he had trouble making the weight and went three days without food to do it. He tired in the later rounds, he said.

Speakers couldn't tell it, however.

He chased Maxim around the ring, driving home powerful lefts to the head and body and vicious overhand rights to the jaw.

In the eighth, a right to Joey's chin dropped him for a count of six. Another savage right put Maxim down for a seven count in the 11th, and in the next four rounds, Joey was just fighting to survive. He was cut over the right eye in the seventh.

A surprising late shift in the odds sent Moore into the ring a 6-5 underdog. The switch probably

Winterville And Bethel In First

Even though the Pitt Conference leading teams, Bethel boys and Winterville girls, lost their first conference games of the year Tuesday night there is little change in the county standings.

Bethel was defeated rather handily by Winterville, but their hold on first place in the standings is still intact.

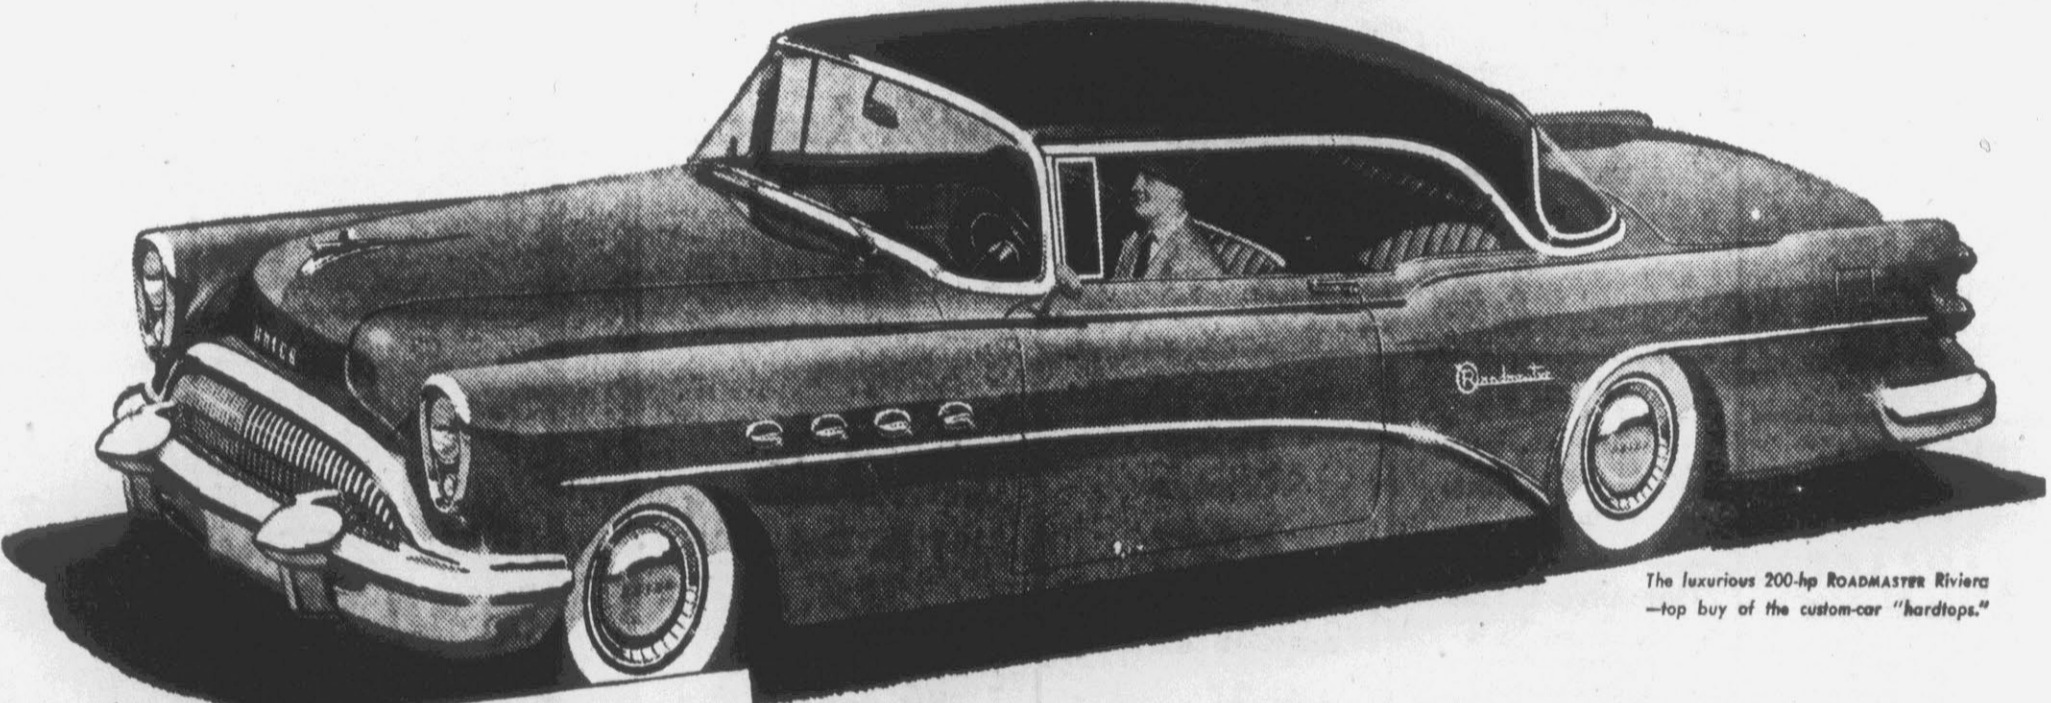

By losing their first game in the conference to Bethel Tuesday night the Winterville girls slipped into first place tie with Bethel in the girls standings.

The only other change since last week saw Chicod girls climb above Belvoir-Falkland. Chicod defeated Grifton Tuesday night and Belvoir-Falkland lost to Stokes-Pactolus.

Defense Secretary's Power Put To Test Behind Scenes

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Reporter
 WASHINGTON (AP)—A test of power is on at the Pentagon to determine whether the authority of the defense secretary is supreme in the military establishment.

The handling of the cases of American soldiers who decided to stay with their Communist captors in Korea or of those who later changed their mind, it became apparent today, is involved in this behind-the-scenes situation.

But in earlier incidents, too, the issue of central control cropped up.

Secretary of Defense Wilson has publicly taken the responsibility for ordering the Army to discharge dishonorably the 21 Americans who have decided to stay with the Communists. Some Army legal experts hold that nothing in military law allows the issuance of dishonorable discharge orders without trial by court-martial. Wilson says he thinks he has the authority.

There was the related incident of the Army's sudden announcement of the arrest, on court-martial charges, of Cpl. Edward Dickenson, the Virginia soldier who reversed his original decision to stay with the Reds. There the issue was one of the Army's timing and the wording of its announcement. Outside the Army, every high official, including President Eisenhower and Wilson, was startled and disturbed by the announcement last Friday night. The Defense Department was reported to have asked both the Army and Marines to hold up on any action or announcement in prisoner of war cases until all efforts to win back the remaining 21 had been made—and not take any action at all before the following Tuesday.

Eisenhower said at his news conference yesterday he thought there must be something else in the Dickenson case other than his original decision to remain with the Reds. Dickenson is charged with having intercourse with the enemy and seeking to secure favorable treatment while he was an inmate of a Communist prison camp.

The President also said he was disturbed when he read newspaper reports of the Army's action and immediately called Wilson to be certain that justice was done.

Dickenson yesterday was given a medical clearance and transferred from the Army's Walter Reed Hospital here, where he had been arrested, to Ft. Belvoir, Va., 15 miles away. The Army named Col. James Jewett Carnes to head the group which will make a preliminary inquiry to determine whether Dickenson shall face court-martial. There was disposition in some defense quarters today to believe that the plan to announce the arrest of Dickenson Friday night was known in high Army quarters. First reports were that there had been a slipup at some lower echelon and that the action was prematurely carried out.

Defense officials emphasized there was no question of the right of the Army to prefer the charges against Dickenson, that the issue was over the failure to advise top defense officials that the Army proposed to make the announcement prior to the time urged by the department.

Earlier incidents which caused annoyance in top defense quarters included publication of a story, attributed to a high Navy official saying that the atomic submarine Nautilus was only a test vehicle, not intended for combat use. Wilson denied this report and let it be known he wanted to find out who in the Navy was the source.

Before that there was unhappiness over the report issued by a commission appointed by the Army to recommend on Army reorganization. The report criticized the defense secretary for not taking the secretary of the Army into full confidence on important matters involving the Army.

Against this background is an assertion that the defense secretary holds a top authority, transcending that of secretaries of the individual services or their generals or admirals.

It was enunciated in a recent revision to the 1948 Key West agreement, which prescribed the roles and missions of the services and the relationship of the services. Into that agreement there was written a new and specific statement that:

"No function in any part of the Department of Defense, or any of its component agencies, shall be performed independent of the direction, authority, and control of the secretary of defense."

Reversal Of Dog Track Act Will Affect Others

RALEIGH (AP)—The local act which legalized gambling at Currituck County's dog race track is held unconstitutional, thousands of local acts in North Carolina will be affected.

This is contended in a brief filed with the State Supreme Court yesterday by attorneys for Currituck County, the Currituck County Racing Commission and the Carolina-Virginia Racing Assn.

The Supreme Court will hear arguments next Tuesday in its test case on the legality of the gambling. Its decision will have an effect on the dog race track in Carteret County.

In their brief yesterday, attorneys stated it is "difficult to see how the court can invade and strike down what must through the years have necessarily been the policy created by the General Assembly and reaffirmed session after session."

One of the chief contentions of the attorneys is that Section 3 of the original Constitution in 1776 "was never intended to apply to a situation such as is involved in this case."

If the Currituck County act is held unconstitutional, the brief declared, the number of local acts which would fall "would be in the thousands and would touch almost every phase of life in North Carolina." It said a number of acts creating ABC stores for cities and towns would automatically be abolished.

The attorneys petitioned the Supreme Court last week for permission to enter the test case and defend the local law.

The case reached the Supreme Court on an appeal by the state. Superior Court Judge Howard Hubbard ruled that the act was constitutional. His ruling came after he dismissed charges against W. E. Felton of Portsmouth, Va., and two other Virginia men who were arrested at the Currituck race track and charged with betting on a race.

Would you trade a Penny for a Dollar?

● You can if you use Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda for your top-dressing and side-dressing needs. It costs a little more because it's worth more. But the difference in cost usually can be measured in pennies per acre, while the difference in value often amounts to dollars per acre.

Chilean "Bulldog" Soda gives you generous extra value. The nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate. It's 100 per cent available (quick-acting); 100 per cent dependable. The minor elements make crops stronger, healthier. The sodium—26 pounds in every 100-pound sack—is a key to maximum returns on your entire fertilizer investment. It offsets the bad effects of acid-forming fertilizers...increases the efficiency of mixed fertilizers containing them. It releases "locked-up" potash in the soil...increases the availability and efficiency of soil phosphate...reduces potash, calcium and magnesium losses by leaching...develops larger, deeper root systems.

Sodium builds up the productivity of your land—more each year. It's an essential element for some crops...beneficial to most and necessary for maximum yields of many.

Pennies-per-acre difference in cost may mean dollars-per-acre difference in value to you. Chilean "Bulldog" Soda is the best fertilizer your money can buy. Use it for all of your top-dressing and side-dressing needs.

Ship Runs Into London Bridge

LONDON (AP)—A 7,723-ton ship smashed into famous old London Bridge last night, but the nursery rhyme didn't come true. A few hunks of masonry came tumbling down, but the damage was only superficial.

The attack came from the Spanish Cruise liner Monte Urgull, which ripped away from her tug escort during a gale in the Thames River and crashed broadside into the stone structure.

Two and a half hours later seven tugs pulled the liner free and hauled her to a drydock for inspection of the damage. Traffic resumed on the river and the bridge.

Shipping Lines And Unions Plan Joint Endeavor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Operators of U. S.-flag steamship lines and officials of the CIO and AFL maritime unions have reached a precedent-establishing agreement to work jointly in an effort to solve problems faced by the shipping industry.

A spokesman for the steamship lines said yesterday it was the first time in history that representatives of the union had met with steamship officials in such a campaign.

"We discussed ways of stopping the decline of the shipbuilding industry," the spokesman said, "and cleared the way for talks about shipping generally as well as wages and working conditions."

Diplomatic Aide Said 'Missing'

TOKYO (AP)—A secretary of the defunct Russian diplomatic mission in Tokyo has disappeared and the mission has asked Japanese police to search for him, police officials reported today.

The mission—which is not recognized by the Japanese government—told police that Yuri Alexandrovich Rastvorov, 34, was suffering from a "nervous breakdown."

But the newspaper Tokyo Shim-bun said it had learned from a reliable source that Rastvorov disappeared last Monday because he feared for his life.

Expects Cutback In Ammo Output

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Brooks (D-La.), a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said today that a drastic cutback in production of ammunition likely will be necessary later this year.

"The rapidity with which we are replenishing supplies of ammunition is astonishing," Brooks said, adding that production is far beyond what Army ordnance experts expected.

Among U. S. families with incomes of more than $7,500 a year, about 70 per cent own their own homes.

President To Decide On Dismissal Disclosures

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower probably will decide next month whether to yield to demands for a breakdown showing how many disloyalty cases were among 2,200 federal workers dropped as security risks since he took office.

A decision may come about the middle of February, an Eisenhower aide said today when the Civil Service Commission reports to the National Security Council on operation of the administration program to weed such risks out of government jobs. Eisenhower heads the council.

This aide, who asked not to be named, said he would be greatly surprised if the President changes his repeatedly stated opinion that no breakdown is feasible. Eisenhower made his latest statement along that line at his news conference yesterday.

A reporter noted that the President recently referred newsmen to Atty. Gen. Brownell when they asked about the possibility of getting the information. Controversy has been raging as to whether most of the discharged employees were actually suspected of subversion, or whether they were dismissed for such causes as excessive drinking, homosexuality or talking too much about secret matters.

The administration program which went into effect last May classifies as security risks persons deemed undesirable on any of these grounds.

Eisenhower was told Brownell suggested to reporters that they go to the Civil Service Commission for a breakdown, and that Commission Chairman Philip Young in turn had referred the question back to the White House and the security council.

Eisenhower replied he had forgotten, when he suggested going to Brownell, that the presidential order setting up the security program requires the Civil Service Commission to report to the security council twice a year.

The President said—as he had done previously—that he doubted whether any real breakdown into specific categories ever could be provided. But he added that he was going to discuss the matter with Young.

There have been demands in and out of Congress for a breakdown of the 2,200 by causes. Eisenhower announced that number of separations in his Jan. 7 State of the Union message.

On the basis of an earlier administration total of 1,456 separations, Rep. St. George (R-NY) told the House Jan. 8 that not more than 10 per cent were "out-and-out Communists."

Rep. Walter (D-Pa) declared the same day that no more than seven of those ousted were Communists.

Established Business Firms In 43 Eastern Counties Show Increase

RALEIGH — Established business concerns in 43 Eastern North Carolina counties increased by 3,000 from November, 1951, through November, 1953, Department of Conservation Director Ben E. Douglass announced Tuesday. He said the information came from Dun & Bradstreet's office in Raleigh, through Service Manager G.S. Withers, following a survey of business concerns having credit ratings. Businesses listed in November, 1951, numbered 21,228 against 24,228 in November, 1953 in the 43 counties. The Conservation and Development director listed the business concerns of 1951 as compared with 1953. Pitt county rated 868 concerns in 1951 and 953 in 1953, ahead of Lenoir, Wilson, Craven and Greene counties.

Seeks Dismissal Of Spy's Wife

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP)—A former mayor of Cambridge called last night for the dismissal of the wife of atom scientist-spy Alan Nunn May from her post as a county school medical officer.

The independent Daily Express termed it a "shameful proposal."

Cambridge women doctors joined with the county education officer in calling it a "disgusting form of persecution."

Capt. A. C. Taylor, now an independent councilman, asked the County Council to oust 42-year-old, Vienna-born Dr. Hildegard Broda from her job as assistant schools medical officer for the county. His reasons were not made public.

The Council will rule on the demand Saturday.

Dr. Broda married Nunn May last August, eight months after his release from jail for passing British atom secrets to Russia.

Fire Victim Of Last Saturday Said Improving

Best Hemby, Negro man of 121A Railroad Street who was severely burned in a fire at his home last Saturday night "is improving," an attending physician said today.

Hemby was burned when the mattress of the bed on which he was sleeping caught fire Saturday. He received burns on the hands and face and severe burns of the lung tissues by inhaling the thick smoke from the blaze, his physician stated.

Firemen found the burned man behind a stove in the room and said he had probably tried to escape when he was overcome by smoke.

The doctor said that Hemby should recover unless unforeseen complications set in.

The Quest

ELSIE MACK

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR
DALE drove swiftly, pressed by an urgency to move beyond the outer rim of the shadows which had folded themselves about her in Armorel's house.

At the first gravel crossroad, she spun the wheel sharply and headed toward the lake. The roadside was brilliantly bordered with autumn, its voice a brittle rustling in the thinning foliage and dry pastures. The winch richness of apples rotting on the ground came to her as she passed an orchard. But this was a healthy odor of decay, not like that other, for the apples would return to the earth in a cycle of productivity. At the lake where the road ended, Dale stopped the car and got out.

Sand and loose rocks slid under her feet as she walked to the water's edge. The lake had a grayish metallic sheen. The horizon was lost in September's haze. Was this limitless water at her feet, or limitless sky? No; somewhere there was a dividing line even if today it was invisible.

There is a line of retreat you cross, beyond which there is no returning. A chipmunk's beady eyes and quivery tail evinced his alert interpened nearly twenty years ago as a substitute for courage. Phil hadn't meant her to focus her thoughts inward and use that excuse for dealing with the present. What he'd been trying to say was that the past was over, done with, and that she'd better do something about it right now. If a dark secret popped its head up from Phil's past, he'd stamp on it. And if she didn't do the same thing, she wouldn't put it past Phil to paddle her backside the next time he came to Swanscombe!

Dale laughed aloud. It was a good clear, carrying sound. The hovering chipmunk whisked his tail and darted off, startled. But he came back, and Dale made small, reassuring chirpings until he lost all his fear of her and chattered back from a near-by rock. "Hello!" Dale said. But she was really saying it to a man with gay dark eyes and bright gold hair—a man with whom, from the very first, she'd been so relaxed and easy that she'd told him things she couldn't talk about with anyone else. That signified something didn't it? Why go on questioning the motives of Phil's kisses? Phil had asked her to marry him; why punish him because Don had not?

The last hour of afternoon ran softly along with the lengthening shadows. Dale sat on by the water, feeling quiet and somehow serene. Not since Kelly died had she felt like this; not since Kelly died had she wanted to feel like this.

On the verge of sundown she rose, smoothed down her slacks, tucked in her shirt, brushed twigs and a dry leaf off her hair and shoulders. Paper rustled in her breast pocket. She unbuttoned the pocket flap and took out Kelly's notes. Sadness clouded her serenity but only for a moment. A love lived in the neutral shadows of a dream world would not have held Kelly forever. Needing the sun, like those two on the cover of Trumpet of Noon, Kelly would have struggled and fought and eventually escaped. Leaving me, Dale thought, without either the substance or the dream. She opened her hand slowly and let the slips of paper go. They drifted palely on the water, to her, away, sodden, sinking—gone in a rosy tinge of sunset.

Driving back, Dale averted her eyes from the big brick house on the hill with all its tight green shades. Poor Armorel. Beyond being lured back to the world of today? There had been flashes of normalcy, this afternoon. "I'll go in to town tomorrow and consult a psychiatrist," Dale decided. "Surely something can be done for Armorel."

Through the village, across the railroad tracks, down the straight, cedar-lined road, Dale drove. At the shore, the prongs of the forked road offered the alternative of turning left to the clapboard cottage, or right to the big white house. Unfalteringly, Dale turned right.

Grandy was in his rocking chair on the porch, his pipe making a fitful glow in the chilly darkness. How close to love is hate? Dale wondered. How curiously, fearfully intertwined? Only now, with the snarl untangling, did she realize how nearly she had come to hating this man for knowing her better than she knew herself; how she had resented his pointing out the difficult way.

"Grandy," she whispered. Her voice was unmanageable. "I—I've come back."

Dear Judy

AP Newsfeatures
Howabout tuning in on Louisville, Ky. youths today? We'll pass their vocabulary and habits on so that other young people may compare or exchange ideas:

"Our correspondent says that: ... Boys are giving a good play to 'Mr. B shirts.' These have big rolled collars — patterned after shirts popularized by singer Billy Eckstein. Boys also wear 'shaggy dog' shoes — heavy shoes that look like they have a coating of dog's hair rather than leather. They go for suede belts, hot-rod cars duck-tail haircuts.

... Girls are a bit livelier. They are wearing their boy friends' shirts, or, if not that, men's style shirts with button-down collars. ... when not button-downs, they usually fastened at the neck by a safety pin. Decorative safety pins are popular worn anywhere, particularly at the back and lower edge of skirt. Girls wear collars of leather, fur and angora over sweaters. The collars are just tied or snapped on over sweater.

... Hair today gone tomorrow is the theme as far as color goes. Girls peroxide hair, mainly streaks. They also use cake dyes. Boyish haircuts typical of the 1920's, are popular.

... As far as vocabulary goes much of it is derived from hot-rod terms such as Dragnet ("Well, I'm just trying to get the facts"), other TV shows and b-bop. "Squares" are "pathetics," or people who've "had it."

When someone reacts like a "pathetic" they ask: "What's with this kid?"

To someone who does understand the response is: "Well, put on your 3-D glasses."

Favorable reactions are indicated by remarks such as "He's real cool." Or "Everything's skeet-a-leet."

"Let's guffie" is a popular hot rod term. It means for two cars to race from a dead stop.

Emphasis is stressed by "You know it. You better believe it. You better bet on it."

"Gimme five" means a hand shake.

Typical greetings are: "Greetings, Jackson. ... 'Hi, cat.' ... 'Say, ace.'"

When one kid tells another a sad story or complains about something that happened to him, the other responds by circling forefinger across thumbball. This indicated the smallest phonograph record in the world playing "My Heart Cries for You."

... And, oh yes, another fashion tip — girls wear long bobby socks, rolling them to ankle length to make heavy ruff at top of socks. Some kids even cut tops off several pair of socks and put one over another to create same effect.

French officials estimate that about 350,000 Frenchmen now live outside the country compared to about 800,000 businessmen, teachers, missionaries; engineers and others who lived outside the country in 1914.

Big Four Meeting Clash Is 'Normal'

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Everything's normal at the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Berlin: the United States and Russia spent the first two days blasting each other.

And at this conference in a Berlin room to find solutions for the world's ills, first of its kind in five years, the United States and Russia began doing closeup what they had done longrange before: they battled for France.

Before the talks began there was small hope East and West would reach agreement. Judging from what's been said so far this meeting may become, as was suspected, just another propaganda war across a table.

For Russia the whole business will be a success if it can weaken the links between the United States and France. For this country it probably will be a success if France comes out of it a tighter ally.

What the ministers—the United States' Dulles, Britain's Eden, France's Bidault, Russia's Molotov—said in the first two days they had said before. They just restated their positions.

The Western position, as in the past, was this: There must be a single European army, called the European Defense Community (EDC). France and West Germany must be part of it. This means rearming West Germany.

This, Dulles argued was the best way to keep Germany from being a military threat again to her neighbors. With her troops in EDC, she'd never have an army of her own again. Here he was talking to the hesitant French, the Russians only incidentally.

Bidault made a strong pitch for EDC. Yet it's the French who, through their fear of a rearmament Germany in any form, have refused to join EDC and have therefore prevented its going into existence.

And, although Bidault told Molotov EDC is necessary, he himself doesn't know whether France will ever join EDC. The French Parliament won't vote on joining for weeks.

The irony of this could not be lost on Molotov, whose government, fearing an EDC that contains French and Germans and knowing that without EDC Europe's defenses would be weaker, has been trying to woo the French away from it.

Naturally, Molotov followed that line in Berlin. To scare the French some more and widen the split between pro and anti-EDC Frenchmen, he warned that once Germany was allowed to rearm, even within the limits of EDC, it couldn't be trusted.

The French also are sick of their war with the Communists in Indochina. Without mentioning Indochina by name Molotov made a veiled suggestion that maybe Russia could bring about an end to the fighting.

If the war ended and the French withdrew from Indochina, the Communists might take it over later without a shot, making the rest of Southeast Asia a wide-open target.

Molotov then tried to put the United States over a barrel by suggesting the big powers agree on outlawing the atomic bomb.

The United States has already laid down terms on which it would consider that, but the Russians long ago refused to meet them. By talking about it, Molotov made a little more Russian propaganda.

Gov. Umstead Calls On Public To Assist Guard

Governor William B. Umstead has named February as National Guard Recruiting Month in a proclamation issued last January 18. Gov. Umstead said that he was issuing the proclamation "in order to accomplish the assigned mission and to honor our men of the North Carolina National Guard for their services to the State and Nation in every armed conflict in which our country has been engaged."

"I urge all citizens of this great State to support wholeheartedly the North Carolina National Guard, both Army and Air, and the citizens of each community are requested to assist their local unit in its recruiting campaign."

The governor said, "The North Carolina Army and Air National Guard through the years have served our State and Nation long and faithfully, in time of war as well as in time of peace, and merit the wholehearted support of the entire citizenship of this State."

The proclamation stated that the Departments of the Army and the Air Force are desirous that the strength of the National Guard, Army and Air Force be materially increased as soon as possible.

"This can be accomplished by a concentrated recruiting campaign designed to encourage enlistment of young men and men with prior military service," the governor said.

GETS SOVIET TEXTS
TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio said recently "over 2,100,000 translated copies of 265 Soviet textbooks have been printed in (communist) China" in one year.

One was "Collective Rearing and Education of Babies Less Than 3 Years Old."

In 1940 about 41 per cent of non-farm families in the United States owned their own homes, compared with about 54 per cent today.

W-2 Forms Required To Be Issued By January 31

Employers were reminded today by the local Internal Revenue Service office that they must issue Form W-2 tax withholding statements to all their employees by January 31.

Alton G. Buck Internal Revenue Agent of the local Internal Revenue office pointed out that employees must have their W-2 forms before they can file final income tax returns for 1953. Penalties are provided for an employer's failure to issue them on time. Mr. Buck said.

The forms are available at the local Internal Revenue office at Room 24, Rivers Building, 209 Evans Street, Greenville, N.C. The employer makes them out in triplicate showing the total wages paid the employee during 1953, and the amount of income tax and social security tax withheld from his wages.

For many salaried persons this is the principal information needed in order to file an income tax return on Form 1040 or 1040A, according to Buck.

Internal Revenue Service employees in North Carolina, received their W-2 forms on January 15, 1954, so they can be among the first taxpayers to file returns, which are due March 15. Employees of the National Office in Washington, D.C. received their W-2's on January 12.

Buck reminded employers that they must issue a W-2 form to each employee whose income was subject to withholding, and also to any employee who would have been subject to withholding if he had only one exemption. "This means, for example, that an employee with three exemptions, earning $38 a week, would not have been subject to tax withholding because of his extra exemptions, but his employer is required to prepare and give him a Form W-2 showing how much wages he received," Buck explained. Employees, who must file certain tax returns with the Internal Revenue Service by January 31, will have an extra day to file this year because January 31 falls on a Sunday. February 1 is therefore the deadline for employers to file their last quarterly return declaring income and social security taxes withheld and to pay withheld taxes to the Internal Revenue Service by cash or depository bank receipts. Employers of more than eight workers are also required to file their annual Federal unemployment tax return by February 1.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Backwardness persisted in the stock market today for the second straight session. All divisions were affected by the moderate decline which went to around a point at the most. Few plus signs were seen in key areas, although a number of leading issues held unchanged.

Traders and others stood aside as the market declined. Such a development was heartening to the bullish element. They believe that the market still is in a position to challenge the highs of 1953-54 as long as volume remains moderate on the dips.

The pace of trading was around 1 1/2 million shares for the day. That compares with 2,020,000 shares traded yesterday.

Lower stocks today included New York Central, Texas Co. American Telephone, Kennecott Copper, Dow Chemical, General Electric, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Studebaker, Goodrich, Boeing, and Radio Corp.

President Reports U.S. Economy Is Prosperous

government boldly, but not more frequently than is required to maintain reasonable stability."

The report was the last of the three major messages which the President sends to each new session of Congress in January. The others are the State of the Union and budget messages.

The report was based on studies by the President's three-member Council of Economic Advisers—Arthur F. Burns, chairman, Neil H. Jacoby, and Walter W. Stewart.

The message had been awaited with keener interest than usual, for it was regarded as the administration's reply to forecasts of many American economists that the business decline would last throughout 1954, and of some that the United States might be heading into a real depression.

Although the message's immediate proposals were not startling, it put the administration on record as being ready to throw the entire resources of government against any serious deflationary spiral. And Eisenhower pointed out: "The arsenal of weapons at the disposal of government is very formidable."

"We can make the transition to a period of reduced mobilization without serious interruption in our economic growth," he said. "We can have in this country and in the free world a prosperity based on peace."

"There is much that justifies confidence in the future. The government will do its full part to help realize the promise of that future in its program to encourage an expanding and dynamic economy."

One sentence reminded Congress that it carries much of the responsibility for sustaining prosperity:

"Our economic growth is likely to be resumed during the year," Eisenhower said, "especially if the Congress strengthens the economic environment by translating into action the administration's far-reaching program."

Six chapters were devoted to as many key lines of approach toward economic stability. Summarized, they are:

1. Taxes.
2. Housing and finance.
3. Agriculture.
4. Education.
5. Labor.
6. International trade.

As rapidly as government spending can be reduced, "taxes should be brought down," but it would be "unwise to enact a further broad reduction in taxes at this time."

Some tax improvements should be made immediately "to strengthen the forces of growth in employment and production." Here were listed many of the changes Eisenhower urged in his budget message, some of which have already been approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Tagged "for future study" were possibly more important tax changes in the field of excise (sales) taxes and the capital gains tax.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Wilton Lee Gatlin, Negro, 105 Ford Street, Greenville, guilty of driving a motor vehicle while drunk.

The court sentenced Gatlin to three months on the roads, suspended on payment of $100 and costs, and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for a year. Gatlin gave notice of appeal, and the court recommended that his driver's license be suspended pending hearing of his appeal in Superior Court.

Judge Whedbee ordered that an instant capias be issued for Arthur Lee Payton, Negro, 110 Coltanche Street, who is charged with speeding and driving a motor vehicle after his operator's license had been revoked. When Payton's name was called out he failed to answer.

The case in which Redding A. Elks was charged with passing a vehicle at an intersection was not pressed.

In the case against O. D. (Jack) Henderson charged with larceny of a boat, Judge Whedbee dismissed the action. The court taxed his wife, the prosecuting witness, with court costs.

James Alphin, failure to yield right of way, the court continued prayer for judgment on payment of $10 on court costs. The judgment also provides that Alphin is not to operate a motor vehicle for six months unless he makes adequate restitution for property damage to James Williams Jr.

Earl Edwards, Negro, paid $15 for driving without an operator's license; Ann Heath McCrary paid $15; Carrie G. Speight, speeding, case dismissed.

Jesse Stancill paid $20 for being drunk, costs deducted.

Stranger Found Night's Shelter In Dog Kennel

WHITEFISH, Mont. (AP)—The dog decided he couldn't leave a man out on a night like that.

So Peter Pan, a huge St. Bernard, shared his home with the hitchhiking stranger overnight. Ordinarily he won't let anyone outside his master's family come near his king-size kennel.

But when the stranded stranger—who refused to give his name—couldn't raise anyone at the home of George Robertson, he crawled in with Peter Pan. He kept warm by cuddling up to the 100-pound animal.

When Robertson looked out his window, he saw the man emerge from the doghouse. The stranger thanked the Robertsons and the dog, and went on down the highway.

Dutch Artists Protest Picasso

EINDHOVEN, The Netherlands (AP)—Dutch art students were hot under the collar today because the Van Abbe Museum here plans to shell out $35,000 for a painting by Spanish-born Communist artist Pablo Picasso. They said they don't object to Picasso's politics or his artistic ability—they feel the museum has bypassed competent Dutch painters.

The students of the Applied Art School in Hertogenbosch mailed out a pamphlet to all Dutch art schools protesting the purchase. Students of the Applied Art School here, taking up the complaint, said they would demonstrate in front of the museum Saturday.

Private Plane Strikes Iceberg

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—A low-flying private plane glanced off an iceberg in the Straits of Mackinac yesterday and fell into the water.

The occupants, Dr. Howard Walker of St. Ignace and his wife, were unhurt and reached shore safely although their plane was badly damaged.

Dr. Walker, a dentist, was taking a set of dentures to a straits island patient. He recovered the dentures. They, too, were unharmed.
