Claim Malenkov Wants Meeting

By TOM REEDY BERLIN (AP)—Communist officials and newsmen depict Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov as wanting to meet British Prime Minister Churchill and perhaps President Eisenhower. These gains also picture Malenkov as gaining personal popularity at home and in other Communist nations. These opinions were voiced by Russian and satellite people here last week for the Big Four foreign ministers' conference. If they were intended as a trial balloon to sound out Western reaction, then they were well planned, with just about every pro-Moscow group briefed ahead of time. Opening up to Westerners to an unprecedented degree during the conference, a Russian official said frankly Malenkov wants to meet Churchill and possibly Eisenhower, too. Polish and Czechoslovak newsmen said this was true, and East Germany a Communist authorities concurred. "You can take this as at least semi-official," said one satellite source. "We know Malenkov wants a meeting and we want it too because we think something could be accomplished." Just as interesting were the comparisons of Malenkov with his predecessor Stalin. The informant said Malenkov has impressed his own people and those in the Soviet orbit as a man less whimsical than Stalin and thus less likely to push the world into a new war that would mean their destruc-

Pitt Officers Dig Up Stolen Safe In Desolate Section

Pitt County law enforcement officers have recovered the safe which was stolen from the Gardner and Brumson store near Chicod school last Tuesday night. The first real break in the five-day-old case came yesterday afternoon as Deputy Sheriff Arthur Andrews and Elmer Haddock and Constable Miller of Vanceboro dug up the safe in a desolate wooded section. The safe was found by officers in the Bear Hole Swamp section of Craven County about six miles from Vanceboro. The stolen safe was discovered by the officers, buried about two feet underground in a broad wooded area which covered about two miles, they said. In the safe, officers found 23 checks amounting to $306.50, and $1.45 in cash. Also in the safe were the records of the store which were in the safe when it was stolen. The store owners reported approximately $400 to $500 in cash was in the safe the night it was stolen. Officers said the safe had been entered through the back, but they would not say whether the safe was blown open with an explosive or battered open. Officers had searched most of the "likely spots" in Pitt County and in the Chicod section and the fringes of Craven County seeking the safe since it was taken from the store last Tuesday night. They kept in confidence today any clues which might have led to the discovery of the safe in the desolate wooded area in Craven County, as they pressed their investigation in an effort to determine the identity of the robbers who entered the store and stole the safe. Last Tuesday night was the second time in recent months that safe robbers had looted the Gardner and Brumson Store. In early December, robbers broke open three safes in the store and took several hundred dollars in cash.

Face-To-Face Meeting Tuesday Over Communist Probing's McCarthy Calls Army Sec.

By EDMOND LEBRETON WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), fresh from a running clash over McCarthy's interrogation of Army officers, met face to face on the issue tomorrow before a nationwide audience. Turned down twice in two days on demands he made to the Army, McCarthy has summoned his civilian head to appear before his Senate investigations subcommittee here at 10:30 a.m. EST tomorrow. He said Stevens would be asked to explain what the senator termed an attempt by the Army "to coddle and promote Communists." Stevens said he received no official notification, but would be glad to meet two generals not to comply with calls for their appearance before McCarthy's subcommittee. Objecting to the humiliation he said was inflicted on one of them at a hearing by McCarthy last week, Stevens said, "I cannot permit the loyal officers of our armed forces to be subjected to such unwarranted treatment." The secretary is a former textile manufacturer who himself served as an Army officer in both world wars. He said he was afraid the "prestige and morale" of the military would be weakened by "unfair tactics on our officer corps." Tomorrow's hearing will be public and will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co. television network. On Friday the Army let go by a deadline McCarthy had set for it to produce the names of all personnel connected with the promotion and honorable discharge of a reserve officer who had declined to say whether he was ever a Communist. The information has not yet been given the senator. McCarthy said in New York yesterday that the reserve major involved, Dr. Irving Peres, a dentist, was "commissioned, promoted, saved from overseas orders and awarded an honorable discharge, all despite an open record of active membership in the Communist conspiracy." In his investigation of the Peres case, McCarthy last week summoned to a closed hearing in New York Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, commanding officer of Camp Kilmer, N. J., where Peres was stationed. Afterwards McCarthy, who conducted the hearing without any of his subcommittee colleagues, said the general had acknowledged knowledge about the subcommittee's purported evidence against Peres. But Zwicker told reporters McCarthy "gave a colored and slanted version of my testimony, twisting everything he could." McCarthy subsequently summoned Zwicker and Maj. Gen. William Bergin, Army adjutant general, to a hearing. Then Stevens stepped in, forbidding their appearance and charging that Zwicker "suffered humiliating treatment" when he carried out the orders of his superiors. McCarthy said in New York, "Stevens is a loyal man, but apparently is being made a dupe by holdovers from the previous administration." The senator said he had ordered the public hearing tomorrow: "1. Because of the tremendous importance to the country of the Army's attempt to coddle and promote Communists, and then claim special immunity from legislative investigation and exposure of the malefactors, and "2. So that this issue cannot possibly be belocued by unwarranted complaints that development of unfavorable facts constitutes abuse of the witness." He added, in a statement: "The issue raised by Mr. Stevens is whether the Army is supreme over the Congress, over government agencies and the American people, and can enjoy special dictatorial immunity in covering up its own wrongdoings. "An illustration of this cover up is the statement under oath by an officer involved that if he told the truth and gave the facts about the treatment of this Fifth Amendment Communist, he himself would be court martialed by the Army." Stevens' stand apparently was taken after considerable consultation within the executive department. A Defense Department spokesman said Stevens conferred with Secretary of Defense Wilson and Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes before issuing his statement and also that the matter had been talked over with members of President Eisenhower's staff. He said, however, he did not know whether Stevens' intention to issue a statement had been brought directly to the President's attention.

Wins Top Honor From Foundation

Dr. Martha Pingel of Greenville was today honored by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., for her prize-winning essay "Democracy and the Challenge of Youth." The Foundation annually presents awards to American citizens, organizations and schools for their contributions to a better understanding of the American Way of Life. Dr. Pingel was the top award winner in the essay division, and was in Valley Forge today to receive a gold George Washington Honor Medal and $1000 from Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, President of Pennsylvania State University and a Foundation Director. An assistant professor at East Carolina College since 1947, Dr. Pingel decided to enter the contest in the latter part of October, 1953, and wrote the essay as an expression of opinion on a subject I've given much thought to. Text of the prize-winning essay, Democracy and the Challenge of Youth, is carried on page 8 of today's Daily Reflector.

U.S. Envoy Is Leaving Panmunjom Stalemate

By MILO FARNETI SEOUL (AP)—With stalemate prevailing in a rye peace negotiations, U. S. Envoy Kenneth Young said today he will leave Tuesday for Washington, and the Communists will have to learn of his departure from news reports. Young expressed belief that the preliminary Korean talks at Panmunjom "probably facilitated" the Big Four agreement to hold an Asian peace conference in Geneva. The State Department Far East expert said his departure will close out the American delegation at Panmunjom. But he said he has no plans to notify the Communist delegation. He said the Reds probably will hear through news reports that he has gone. Young stood in for Ambassador Arthur H. Dean for three months after the preliminary negotiations were suspended. Dean broke off the talks in December after the Reds accused the United States of committing "a South Korea in the release of 27,000 anti-Communist war prisoners last June. Dean said he would not return until the Reds retracted the charge. They never did. Earlier Monday a high U. S. official in Seoul who declined to be identified said the Berlin agreement by-passed the deadlock over the perjury accusation. Young re-stated the U. S. position that the Berlin agreement does not violate a U.N. General Assembly resolution of last August. "The participants the purposes, and the place of the conference on Korea are precisely those we have spent day and night pressing the Communists to accept," Young asserted. The South Koreans have complained the Communists achieved their ends in conditions laid down for the proposed Geneva meeting. Young said he believes it "also useful to emphasize" what he said the Berlin agreement does not represent: "1. It certainly does not include the preposterous misconception of Communist China as a co-sponsor. "2. It does not constitute recognition of Red China or a change in attitude toward "the regimes which have so flagrantly acted in Korea against the principles of the United Nations." "3. The Berlin agreement does not treat Russia as a neutral. "4. The Berlin agreement does not sidestep the "spirit and purpose" of the U.N. resolutions on Korea.

Sec. Dulles Has Secret Briefing Of Lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles met with 15 key members of Congress today in the first round of his campaign to convince the nation he got the best results possible out of the Big Four meeting at Berlin. Eight senators and seven House members, on Dulles' invitation, came to the State Department to hear a report on his Berlin conference decision to take part in an Asian peace conference in Geneva with Communist Chinese and Russian delegates. He has already said that in the arrangements the United States got 100 per cent what it wanted. Some members of Congress expressed fears that the Geneva conference might break the ice for ultimate recognition of Red China or "appeasement." Today's closed meeting is the first of five reports Dulles will give on the results of the four-week session with Russia's Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, Britain's Anthony Eden and France's Georges Bidault. The secretary plans to follow up today's meeting by reporting tomorrow to the full House Foreign Affairs Committee in a closed door meeting. On Wednesday he is to give a similar accounting to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Nehru Calls For New Cease-Fire

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Premier Nehru called today for a cease-fire in Indochina "since it would seem a tremendous pity that this terrible war should continue when a serious effort to meet and discuss this problem" is scheduled April 26 at Geneva. "It is desirable I think, to have some kind of cease-fire without any party giving up its position," Nehru told Parliament. (The Associated Press, in a United Nations dispatch Saturday night reported Nehru was planning such a step. Commenting on this dispatch in Washington yesterday, diplomatic officials said they doubted Nehru or anyone else could succeed in arranging a cease fire in Indochina before the Geneva conference starts. (French Embassy officials have made it plain they do not relish Indian intervention. The Nehru government, they point out, does not even recognize Viet Nam, one of the three Indochinese states fighting the Communist-led rebels with French help. (In addition, diplomats say there is too little time between now and April 26 to get a cease-fire worked out; and even if there were, there is no clearly defined line along which to mark the combat zones of each side as there was in Korea.)

Evangelist Graham Seeks Soothe Ruffled Laborites

LONDON (AP)—A Labor member of Parliament said today Billy Graham will meet British Laborites in an attempt to quiet bitter criticism sparked by an anti-Socialist reference in a calendar advertising the American evangelist's coming appearance in Britain. Laborite Geoffrey de Freitas announced in a press statement that Graham "has asked to see me and my colleagues of the parliamentary Socialist Christian group on his arrival." The meeting will take place Friday. Graham and his associates apologized profusely earlier today that they really meant to blast "socialism," not "socialist" as they had intended. The uproar was touched off last weekend by a calendar put out by the Billy Graham Evangelical Assn., as Graham headed for a three-month religious crusade in Britain. This was the offending quotation: "When the war ended, a sense of frustration and disillusionment gripped England, and what Hitler's bombs couldn't do socialism with its accompanying evils shortly accomplished. "England's historic faith faltered. The churches standing gradually emptied." De Freitas said Graham, who is scheduled to arrive in Britain tomorrow on the liner United States, had wired an "explanation and apology to the 14 million Labor voters for his mistake." He said an apology also had been received from Graham's organization in the United States. The Laborite MP added that he was withdrawing a parliamentary demand that Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe receive a Protestant-Roman Catholic church delegation to discuss "the reasons why Mr. Graham was allowed to come to Britain to carry out the crusade." Graham from the liner cabled an apology which the pro-Labor Daily Herald printed on the front page. But the paper commented that "unwittingly or not," the evangelist had "slandered" the 13,948,385 Britons who voted Socialist in 1951. In Minneapolis, the Graham Evangelistic Assn's secretary, treasurer, George Wilson, said the calendars had been sent from his office and "the word socialism was inadvertently used instead of the word socialism"—a view of life which ignores or excludes religion. Meanwhile, however, the Christian Socialist group of Parliament was called into session to consider the matter and the tabloid Daily Mirror attacked Graham in an editorial. Gerald F. Bevan, Graham's administrative secretary in Britain, issued a 700-word statement insisting no slight on the Socialist Laborites was intended, that the calendar referred only to a "trend away from the church" in England in recent years. Wilson said the reference to socialism was "an oversight from previous copy." Bevan said British friends had suggested using the word socialism because the feelings on "might cause ill feelings in England." Through an administrative slipup, he said, the change was not made. The Herald said Graham in a radio-telephone talk last night with the paper, said "calendar was written by an advertising firm in New York. . . . Only a few were printed and the bulk went out with the right word used." Hadden Swaffer, the Herald columnist who first blasted the calendar in the paper on Saturday, was not appeased. He wrote: "It is only when he comes to England that Billy Graham ceases to be anti-Socialist!"

W. Leslie Elks Files For Post Of Commissioner

W. LESLIE ELKS W. Leslie (King) Elks, of Grimesland, filed today for the post of County Commissioner from the fourth district. Elks' entry into the race for the post of commissioner from the fourth district made it a three-way proposition. Previously Robert G. Little of Grimesland had announced his candidacy for the post, and last week Incumbent W. Marvin Smith of Chicod announced he will seek reelection. Elks is a farmer and for several years has been an official of the town of Grimesland. He served as mayor of Grimesland from 1947 until last May when he was elected to the Board of Aldermen of Grimesland rather than seeking another term as mayor. He served several terms on the Board of Aldermen of Grimesland before being elected mayor of the town. He is also vice-chairman of the Pitt County PMA committee. Elks paid the required $6 filing fee as a candidate for the Board of Commissioners to Gilbert Peel, elections board chairman this morning. With the filing of Elks this morning, the contests for the five commissioners posts in the county shaper up like this: Elks, Smith and Little are candidates from the fourth district; in the fifth district B. Alton Gardner and R. Guy Jackson are candidates; and only one candidate has announced in each of the other three districts. W. Jasper of Bethel in the second district; J. Vance Perkins of Greenville in the first district; and Incumbent C. C. Harris of Ballards in the third district. CAA Clearance For Right-Of-Way Seems Assured Expects Highway Approval

CAA approval for the right-of-way of a new highway into Greenville across the Pitt-Greenville Airport property is virtually assured. That was the report today from Pitt County Attorney W. W. Speight and Greenville City Engineer T. W. Rivers who returned Saturday from Atlanta where they conferred with Civil Aeronautics Administration officials about the right-of-way for the proposed new highway. Work on the proposed new highway, according to Highway Commissioner Maynard Hicks of the second district, could not progress until the right-of-way for the new route was secured. The proposed new highway would connect with highway 11 north of Greenville in the vicinity of House Station and would be located west of the existing highway 11 and connect with highway 43 just west of Epps High School in Greenville near the city limits. The project includes the construction of a new bridge across the Tar River upstream from the existing bridge on Greene Street. Rivers and Speight were sent to Atlanta jointly by the county and city governments to confer with CAA officials on the matter of a right-of-way for the proposed new highway. Two tentative routes for the proposed new highway have been proposed by the local highway commission office. The primary route would cross the airport property, and the alternate proposed route would run adjacent to the airport property. Speight and Rivers said the alternate proposed route was approved by CAA officials during their conference in Atlanta, and also verbal approval was given for another route which might be located between the proposed primary route and the proposed alternate route. The local representatives conferred with F. M. Fitzgerald, district engineer for the CAA, while in Atlanta. "We know we can get CAA approval for the alternate route, and the CAA authority in Atlanta gave verbal approval to a route between the primary and alternate routes," Speight said. Speight and Rivers said Fitzgerald told them he is submitting the request for CAA approval of the proposed primary route for the highway to the regional office in Fort Worth, Texas for consideration. The local men said they "feel sure" the request is being forwarded "with a recommendation for approval." Once the CAA requirements for the construction of the new highway on or adjacent to the airport property are met, requirements of the Bureau of Public Roads will also have been met, Speight said. The fact that work is progressing on an Eastern Carolina four-county airport was a factor in securing approval for the alternate highway route, and also persuading Fitzgerald to recommend that the primary route for the highway be approved, the representatives said. A definite answer from the CAA on approval of the right-of-way on the primary route of the proposed highway across the airport property is expected within the next 10 days. "We feel this will pave the way for work to begin on the new highway project by the State Highway and Public Works Commission in the near future," Speight said.

Police To Guard Sen. McCarthy

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A special police guard was planned today for Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) when he arrives here to accept the Philadelphia chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution's Good Citizenship Medal at a Washington Day luncheon. Authorities revealed yesterday they had received an anonymous letter saying, "We think McCarthy ought to be bumped off and this is a good time to do it." Chief Inspector Albert E. Du Bois said he thought the letter was the work of a "crackpot."

Weekend Sees 4 Pitt Road Accidents

The above car was being driven by William S. Killebrew of 506 Paul Street, Rocky Mount, said to have fallen asleep at the wheel and failed to make a curve near Bethel early Sunday morning. The vehicle tore down a fence belonging to Russell James. Investigating patrolman D. E. Perry said that the fence had been torn down a number of times in the past. Killebrew received minor bruises and a cut on the back in the accident and he was charged with reckless driving. (Photo by Patrolman D. E. Perry)

Highway patrolmen investigated four accidents on Pitt County highways over the weekend, doubling the number of wrecks which had occurred on county roads this year until Saturday. Patrolmen had investigated only four accidents prior to Saturday. The four accidents over the weekend brings to eight the number of wrecks that have occurred in the county during February. It also brings to 29 the total number of accidents that have taken place in the county during 1954. The first of the collisions occurred about midnight Saturday when a car driven by Leander Wilson, Negro, of Greenville ran off the road about a mile and a half north of Porterfield. Wilson told investigating patrolman D. E. Perry that Malachi Carter, also Negro, who was riding in the car at the time, put a knife to his neck and jerked the steering wheel, forcing the car off the road. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $100. Perry said that his investigation was incomplete at present. Perry reported that he investigated a second accident about three and one-half miles west of Bethel on U.S. 64 around 4:30 a.m. Sunday morning. He said that a car driven by William S. Killebrew of 506 Paul Street, Rocky Mount, went off the road and turned over at that point. The driver of the vehicle went to sleep and failed to make a curve. Killebrew was charged with reckless driving. He suffered minor bruises and a cut on the back in the accident and was treated in a doctor's office and released. At 1:30 a.m. Sunday a car driven by James A. Andrews went out of control on a curve and turned over two times. Andrews received a broken leg in the accident and was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital. Damage to the vehicle came to about $900 according to investigating patrolman Shep Newman. The wreck took place on N.C. 43. Also on Sunday a car operated by Dempsey B. Parker skidded on the yellow line on a curve, went over an embankment and landed in a creek. This accident took place about two miles west of Bethel and the car received about $700 damage. This accident was also investigated by Patrolman Newman and no charges were placed against the driver. No one was injured in the wreck.

Ring Travels To Korea And Back

COLLEGE STATION, Texas. (AP)—A Texas soldier found a gold ring beside two dead Red soldiers on a Korean hilltop last year. It was a Texas A. & M. 1945 class ring engraved with the name of "J.N. Parks."

The soldier, Otto Yelton of Galveston, was an Aggie himself so he kept the ring to return to Parks' family. He assumed Parks was dead.

Back in Texas, Yelton gave the ring to an Aggie student, Bill Robinson of Galena Park, Tex. Robinson traced Parks, who lives at Corpus Christi, through school records.

Then he learned that Parks never had been in Korea. The ring was stolen from his car while he was fishing near San Antonio Sept. 3, 1945.

Professor Has Rare Albino Eel

ANNVILLE, Pa. (AP)—An Albino Lamprey eel named Mabel is the pet of Dr. Francis H. Wilson, professor of biology at Lebanon Valley college here. He has written a scientific paper "An Albino Lamprey." Wilson says Mabel is the first Albino Lamprey ever reported.

The Lamprey is a parasite and not a true fish. It feeds itself by drawing the blood out of fish it attaches to by means of suction cup mouth. The normal color of Lampreys is blue-black and has black eyes. Mabel has pink eyes and no coloring pigment.

Young Republicans Elect Raleigh Man President

Bill Arnold defeated Ivan Harrah of Winston-Salem, who sought re-election, by a 163-160 vote at the annual convention here Saturday. Harrah pledged "100 per cent support" of Arnold.

Other officers include: Marcus T. Hickman of Charlotte, re-elected national committeeman; Mrs. Nell Prusa of Taylorsville, national committeewoman; Miss Dorothy Presser of Charlotte, corresponding secretary; Robert Hughes of Elkin, vice president in charge of membership; Dr. Peter Sguros of Winston-Salem vice president in charge of publicity; Miss Julia Greenwood of Asheville, recording secretary, and Orville Coward of Sylva, treasurer.

The convention endorsed Herbert F. Seawell of Carthage as U.S. attorney for the Middle District. However James McKillips of New Orleans, in charge of Southern patronage for the GOP Executive Committee, refrained from mentioning patronage in a brief address.

Rep. Glen Lipscomb of California, Congress' youngest Republican, was convention keynote speaker, substituting for Rep. Charles R. Jonas of North Carolina who was confined to a Washington hospital with influenza.

Clubwomen Take Over Important Tasks Today

By DOROTHY ROE
A Women's Editor

America's 30 million clubwomen are feeling their oats.

Long accustomed to cartoon lampoons and husbandly barbs, the girls now are reaping some long-overdue rewards.

It's beginning to dawn on the general public, it seems, that if a town needs a new school, a community center or somebody to tame its teen-agers, the local women's clubs usually can get the job done.

Recently I was asked to sit in on a panel of judges to choose the Clubwoman of the Year for a Woman's Home Companion award. The stacks of nominations were so imposing, and the accomplishments so impressive, that not only were the judges almost floored but the magazine staff decided to run an honor roll of 250 clubs throughout the country which have accomplished community miracles in the last year.

There were innumerable instances where women's clubs had succeeded in accomplishing some long-needed project for communities had failed in the job. One managed to get a bond issue voted for a new school to replace a century-old firetrap. Another got a community center built and in operation within a year. Another developed a recreation center for a city's old folks.

What surprised me was that so many of the clubs were made up of young members—not the dowager types that cartoonists love to depict.

Thousands of young mothers with several small children seem to be finding time to get out and do their community duty, without neglecting either home or children.

There's no doubt that the girls are getting things done, and that membership in women's clubs all over the country is growing every day.

Just to give you an idea—there are more than 1,000 women's clubs in Detroit, 650 in St. Paul and 92 in Ogden, Utah.

The figure of 30 million members of U.S. women's clubs represents the combined membership of 18 national organizations, including the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which alone has an estimated membership of 8 1/2 million women in this country and 11 million over the world.

Five Bulls Killed For Washington

LAREDO, Tex. (AP)—For George Washington yesterday the Mexicans killed six bulls. For George Washington last night Aztec Indians danced and strolling bands known as mariachis played.

And today, Laredo's four-day 57th annual George Washington Birthday celebration ends on the theme, "International Good Will Through Education."

The U. S. Commissioner of Education, Dr. Samuel Miller Brownell, was here to address a luncheon attended by U. S. and Mexican educators.

This morning, schoolchildren from neighboring Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, skipped across the bridge over the Rio Grande to a Laredo junior high school for judging of scrapbooks of international good will.

Laredo started this George Washington Birthday celebration along the banks of the Rio Grande 57 years ago. The idea was to have some events both Mexicans and neighboring Americans could join in. Washington is one of the few American heroes Mexicans revere.

Arrest Five For Burglary Series

BREVARD, N. C. (AP)—Five young men of the Brevard area have been arrested in the aftermath of a series of burglaries in six counties in North and South Carolina.

Transylvania County Sheriff John Kilpatrick said he believed the roundup has broken up a theft ring that involved breaking and entering of 60 summer homes in the six counties and one business establishment here. Several thousand dollars worth of household goods and other items were stolen in the series of robberies since December, Kilpatrick said.

Much of the loot was recovered in the homes of the five, the sheriff said.

The youths being held here were identified as Herbert Hoover Volraph, 25; Jimmy Volraph, 21; Ray McCall 21; Ernest Fisher, 18, and Paul Barnes, 20.

Thirty-four warrants against the group have been issued in Greenville and Pickens counties in South Carolina and 77 in Macon, Jackson, Swain and Transylvania counties in North Carolina.

A Good Start In Highway Safety

Pitt County is off to a good start on its highway accident totals for the early weeks of 1954 compared with previous years.

No one can tell what day a rash of serious highway accidents may begin about the county, but so far in 1954, Pitt County drivers seem to be exercising more caution on the highways than they did during the comparable period last year.

From January 1 of this year through February 19, Pitt County has not had a fatality on its highways. During 1953, January accounted for two highway deaths in the county and February added another to the total.

In January of this year, according to the Highway Patrol, Pitt County had only 21 accidents which resulted in nine injuries, compared with January 1953 when there were 28 accidents investigated in the county, and a dozen people were injured, and

Encouraging Word On Ordering Troops To Fight

Reports that President Eisenhower has pledged to consult Congress before committing American troops to battle in Indochina should come as an encouraging bit of news to citizens of the United States.

If reports are true, and the pledge is kept, it should obviate the possibility of another instance similar to that one which caused American troops to be committed to battle in Korea in June, 1950.

At that time it was by executive order of President Truman that American troops were sent into the lines in Korea in what was termed a "police action"; but what more realistically was a war.

There are many people in the United States who still feel that President Truman overstepped his reasonable bounds of authority by ordering American troops into battle without consultation and approval of Congress. The feeling is probably more widespread now than it was almost four years ago when the action was taken.

If a crisis arises in which it seems imperative that American troops again go into battle, the decision should be made jointly by the executive and legislative branches of the government rather than by the executive alone.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
RESPONSIBILITY A GREAT TEACHER
Washington and Lincoln are honored by us all as two of the most self-effacing characters ever to appear in history.

But in their youth, both were very ambitious. This was particularly true of Lincoln. Washington has been represented by his contemporary biographers as a sort of demi-god. He was, of course, nothing of the sort. He was one of the noblest figures in the whole pageant of human history, but he started out as a quite ambitious, opinionated, and somewhat contentious youth. But as he met the hard situations connected with his country's struggle for freedom, all this personal ambition disappeared. The same was true of Lincoln. He had a mighty desire to reach the White House, but long before his tragic end he was transformed into a man of such humility and patience that the world since has marveled at his character.

Responsibility either makes a man or breaks him. Benedict Arnold and Hitler faced grave responsibilities and these responsibilities only revealed their truly evil natures. Washington and Lincoln faced responsibilities and emerged chastened, unselfish, thinking only how they might better serve their fellow men. Responsibility reveals what a man has in his soul.

National Whirligig

An Ineptly Handled Campaign

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The Bricker group's campaign against secret Presidential negotiation of treaties and agreements with foreign nations has been an extremely inept affair. Although seeking a similar objective, it lacked the imaginative fire and drive of the 1919-1920 Senate irreconcilables' successful fight against the United States entry into the League of Nations. The Ohio Senator was a poor substitute for a Moss, Borah, Johnson or La Follette.

In his argument against repetitions of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements, which inspired Senator Bricker's Constitutional amendment, he cited two facts which had only a limited public, political or economic interest. He did not base his attack on popular issues which were readily available.

Had he shown how the broad grants of certain provisions of the United Nations Charter infringed on the statutes and ordinances of states and cities, including California and District of Columbia laws now involved in Supreme Court litigation, Congress would not have dared to water down his original proposal, which he introduced with the support of 63 colleagues, or the two-thirds membership required for Senate endorsement.

BRICKER'S RELIANCE—Bricker, unfortunately for his cause, first relied on an international treaty for the regulation of migratory birds. Although the Constitution seems to vest authority over this question in the states, the Supreme Court upheld the shift of control to the Federal government.

In the first place, only a relatively small number of hunting and conservation interests were ever troubled by the question of whether Uncle Sam or the 48 states should have upon the length of the shooting season, the size of a day's bag or the management of game preserves. Moreover, even those who originally opposed Federal jurisdiction now concede that it has been beneficial.

OHIO SENATOR'S NEXT MOVE—When the plight of the birds excited nobody but the Ohioan, he turned to the Pink case. Louis H. Pink was the two were killed.

Through last Friday, February had brought about only four highway accidents in the county which resulted in only one injury. The month of February last year saw 15 highway accidents in Pitt County, four people injured and one person killed.

Highway officials and others in Pitt County have been working diligently to keep the accident rate of the county down this year as they have done in past years. The first two months of 1954, however, seem to indicate the officers are getting more cooperation from drivers and the general public in the highway safety campaign than heretofore.

No matter how hard the patrolmen and other officers try, they can do little to lower the county's accident rate unless the people who drive cars are willing to exercise the fundamentals of highway safety when they are under the wheel of a vehicle.

So far in 1954, Pitt County has shown that it can record a reasonable good record of highway safety. It is certainly to be hoped that the good record which already has begun can be carried through the remaining months of the year.

The record will be written by actions of drivers throughout Pitt County.

Will Benefits Off-Set Possible Adverse Factors?

There never has been a price war, a commodity war or any other kind of bitter economic struggle in which, in the final analysis, someone did not get hurt.

There is little doubt that the same result will eventually come from the price war in milk which already is raging in some sections of North Carolina and apparently will spread to other areas before it ends.

To be sure, the cutting of milk prices is giving some benefits—temporary at least—to many consumers, but we doubt that the savings there will offset the losses elsewhere along the line the milk travels from the cow to the customer.

Particularly, we believe, there is a danger of the price war—if it continues to spread and becomes more bitter—having an adverse effect upon the dairy farmers of the state. There is, of course, a floor under the price of milk purchased from farmers in North Carolina. But that does not mean the dairy farmers may not suffer.

If the wholesale and retail prices of milk continue to be beat down in the price war of manufacturers and distributors of milk in some sections of the state, it can not help but affect the revenue from milk which dairy farmers receive, either in the price paid for various categories of milk, or in the quantity of milk the farmers sell.

The consumers as a general rule, like to see prices of basic commodities come down; but it is seldom that consumers are the ultimate beneficiaries of such a struggle. The milk price war which is now raging in some sections could have serious repercussions in the state unless some common-sense solution is found to the problem.

Well, We Got Hal On The Boat

By SAUL PETT
For Hal Boyle
NEW YORK (AP)—Harold Vincent Boyle, who regularly presides over this space, is off on a three-week vacation.

He left on a Caribbean cruise with Frances and their 7-month-old daughter, Tracy.

Now, those who know Boyle know how difficult it is to get him out of a room. Getting him out of the country is only a little less strenuous than dispatching the 1st Armored Division off to an invasion.

It's not that he's lazy—not agile, energetic, elbow-swinging Boyle who every time he loses a game calls himself the "Tiger Man." Nor is he afraid to make decisions. The more he lets others make, the more food they'll have for their own ego and sense of usefulness.

And so, on the morning they were leaving, I arrived at the Boyle apartment. Three or four friends, recruited to help in the last-minute arrangements, also were there. Baggage, cameras, film, hats, were scattered about the living room. Tracy gurgled in her play pen. Frances ran around efficiently collecting things, checking lists and baby clothes.

And, in the midst of the inevitable confusion, Harold Vincent Boyle sat on the couch, enjoying a sublime serenity, grinning like an Irish Buddha. He wondered what he was to wear to the boat.

Frances ran off to shower. The rest of us started putting steamer stickers on the baggage.

"Of course, you kids realize," Boyle announced, without moving, "this is no rehearsal. This is the real thing. But then, if we miss the boat, we'll always have each other." Somebody asked where the baby's hat was and Boyle, who

Business Today

Service Or Business

By ELMER ROESSNER
The United States suffers from a sort of postal schizophrenia. It believes the Post Office is a public service and, at the same time, a business operation.

The trouble is not only national and Congressional, it is individual. A publisher sending a magazine to the Post Office believes, sincerely and honestly, that the Post Office is a public service. The same man, dropping a personal letter in a mailbox, a few minutes later, is just as sure it is a business.

At the moment, the Post Office is losing money and Congress is considering raising the first-class rate to four cents an ounce. Those two facts are as much related as the facts that Elizabeth II is Queen of England and the Dover sole is found only in the English Channel.

The Post Office is losing money on many services, but it is making money on first-class mail. So raising the first-class rate would appear to be Congressional approval of the idea that the Post Office is not a business but a service (otherwise the rates would be raised on services losing money), or that in raising rates and thereby discouraging the art of correspondence, Congress hopes to make all services money-losing.

If the nation or Congress could ever make up its minds whether the Post Office operates a governmental service or a business, the postal problem could be solved in, roughly, nine seconds.

If it is a Federal service, then all rates ought to be nominal—just high enough to keep people from abusing the service. Then the government could pay the losses with a clear conscience.

Silly? All other government departments operate that way. If passport fees had to pay the cost of operating the State Department, they might run to $25,000 each, instead of the $10 fee as now. And if the Defense Department was not being operated paying the government for room, board and training.

If it is a business, then all service ought to be self-sustaining. But one point overlooked is the fact that on a self-sustaining basis, people living on rural routes might get socked proportionately worse than publishers and users of direct mail. The cost of carrying a letter from one end of a thin RFD to a post office, shipping it to another office and then sending it to the ends of another thin RFD might be several dollars.

We'll never make up our minds. Tradition says the agriculturist gets mail service below cost, and if he gets it, everybody else wants a concession. And other people get it in ratio to their organized political strength, and we'll go muddling along for years and years, juggling costs, wrangling over rates, changing favoring and subsidizing voting parties in and out of office—and writing irritating columns.

FUTS METER WHERE IT COLLECTS BEST
A bow to the retailing genius who first thought up this gimmick:

He sells refrigerators on the meter plan; customers have to put in payments of 25 cents a day or the meter breaks the circuit.

But this fellow, when selling a refrigerator, attaches the meter to the television set. He tells customers that the reason he does it is that he doesn't want their food to spoil if they forget to put a quarter in the meter. But the bigger reason their families are more likely to put their food on the window sill for one night than to go without TV for that long, especially if there are children.

We don't know who the inventor is, but the idea is being copied all over the country.

Four Reasons Why Forecasts Should Not Be Gloomy

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. While so many forecasts for 1954 are discouraging, I give four more reasons why I cannot be so fearful as are many economic writers. Take a look at them and have faith in your country and our future.

MORE MONEY AND MORE PEOPLE

In the first place, people have money to buy. I repeat what I have said before—"the top 50 per cent of our families have readily convertible savings amounting to a staggering $97 billions." 95 per cent of all families probably have more money in savings accounts than ever before. It is true that installment debts on cars, refrigerators and television sets have increased during the past twelve months; but these are now being reduced. Moreover, money invested in these durables cannot be written off as "gone." Homes are always a good investment. So long as one is employed, money invested in a home may be as good a reserve as cash in a bank. In short, potential buying power never was greater.

Second, our swiftly rising population—with a record four million births in 1953—is creating a vast number of new wants that must be satisfied. Ten years from now we may have forty million more in our population than we did at the end of World War II. Take all the wants and needs of one individual and multiply by forty million and you will get some idea of what a staggering impact the increase in population alone can have on our economy for some time to come, provided it is of good character. Population alone is not enough; people must have good habits, sound faith, and useful intelligence.

LIBERALIZED REPUBLICAN THINKING

Third, the liberalizing of the thinking of our present Administration should help hold our economy high. For example, it has reversed itself on its hard-money policy; credit has been eased. Tax relief for both the individual and business is already under way. This Administration is prepared to go further with higher minimum wages, reasonable aid to the farmer, useful public works projects, and broader social security benefits.

Fourth, the millions of warning words and the current skepticism of the future may furnish a considerable element of psychological strength. There is little question but what skepticism has kept many a businessman and consumer from overstepping with regard to future commitments. The pessimistic forecasts may themselves prevent real trouble.

COMPARING 1954 WITH 1929

During the past few weeks I have been reading the newspapers and magazine articles published in 1928-1929, preceding the last depression. I find very few warnings. Herbert Hoover had just been elected President and he had chosen an able "businessman's" Cabinet. In fact, directly after his election the stock market shot up 20 points. Nearly all the business and financial prophets were then bullish.

Hence, people were not then on their guard. Yet, they should have been warned before it was too late. If warning had been given in 1929 as it has now been given for the great 1930-33 declines in building, textiles, clothing, leather, and automobiles would not have been so severe.

RECALL YOUR HISTORY

After every war, our country has had a letdown. This was true after World War I. Earlier, the same pattern had followed the Spanish-American War. An even more severe reaction set in after the Civil War. Yet, most economists say that it is now nearly ten years since World War II and we have had no readjustment of our continued prosperity.

But, is World War II at an end? Or, may we now have World War III? What is the economic difference between a "hot war" and a "cold war"? I do not pretend to know all the answers, but I do ask these pertinent questions. After every period of inefficiency, waste, and unrighteousness, there must always be unemployment to punish us for our sins. But has this time come yet? Business and employment for the first half of 1954 could still be at a high level. So—take courage! The "boom" may not continue, but the future is still bright for families who will work hard and use any idle time to study and to build up physical and spiritual health.

Worth Noting

COMMON INTEREST — The visit of President Bayar served to point up the common interest of North Carolina and the Republic of Turkey. Turkey is about five times as big as North Carolina—a little less than five times in population, a little more in area. The economies of both are based on agriculture with a current upsurge toward industry. Politically, both are democratic-and Rocky Mount, the dignity of formal luncheons and the enthusiasm of a court house audience at Nashville, justified the opinion that both visitors and hosts were conscious of the honor shared by them.

HANDICAPS — Unavoidable absence from the State made it impossible for either Governor Umstead or Lieutenant Governor Hodges to participate in entertaining the distinguished visitors. The fact that President Bayar does not speak English prevented the free and easy conversations in which North Carolinians delight. These conditions proved not to be serious handicaps, because of the efficiency of interpreters and the cordiality of those who took over the job of making the guests feel welcome.

ATTENTIONS — President and Madame Bayar displayed genuine interest in all the scenes and events, took delight in shaking hands with a few school children and noticeably brightened up when they found an occasional person who could converse would buckle under a cap pistol, asked, "Where's my elephant gun?"

Somebody asked about the loose belt and sport shirt on the brown suit case.

"That's mine," Boyle said. "Why don't you put it somewhere?"

"I'm waiting for Frances to tell me. I'm not going to rush into making any mistakes."

But Boyle did volunteer the helpful information that yesterday, while buying a suit, he met this fellow who sold him a new kind of toothbrush, something called an "oraliser" which "cleans your teeth while it cleans your tongue."

Somebody said it was getting late. "That's all right, Francis," Boyle yelled to the back bedroom. "Take your time. The ship's sailing late. The captain forgot his keys."

Getting through the door, Frances wondered aloud about what she should take for the baby and father wondered aloud whether she should take along his high school diploma.

It took two cabs to get us to the ship. Boyle, of course, didn't know which pier. Frances, of course, did. And at the gangplank came the inevitable question:

"Who's got the ticket?"

"Not me," said Boyle as if he had just been accused of a capital offense. Frances, of course, produced the tickets while her husband apologetically directed the stewards with the baggage.

"Most of this is trinkets to trade with the natives," he explained. "Finally in their stateroom, Frances set about making the baby comfortable while the stewards unloaded bags.

"Who brought this along?" Boyle asked, scowling at his portable typewriter and Rocky Mount, the dignity of formal luncheons and the enthusiasm of a court house audience at Nashville, justified the opinion that both visitors and hosts were conscious of the honor shared by them.

HANDICAPS — Unavoidable absence from the State made it impossible for either Governor Umstead or Lieutenant Governor Hodges to participate in entertaining the distinguished visitors. The fact that President Bayar does not speak English prevented the free and easy conversations in which North Carolinians delight. These conditions proved not to be serious handicaps, because of the efficiency of interpreters and the cordiality of those who took over the job of making the guests feel welcome.

ATTENTIONS — President and Madame Bayar displayed genuine interest in all the scenes and events, took delight in shaking hands with a few school children and noticeably brightened up when they found an occasional person who could converse in their own language. (Nick Dombalis, restaurant owner and native of Istanbul, addressed them at the Raleigh city hall, and a member of the UNC faculty read the explanation of the Planetarium show in Turkish.)

They were impressed by the new buildings at the big universities and by the evidence of prosperity on the farms and in the small towns. They were greatly interested in the textile school at State College and the Liggett & Myers cigarette factory at Durham. They enjoyed the portrayal of how the heavens looked from Ankara at the very hour they sat in the Planetarium at Chapel Hill. They manifested keen interest in the nuclear reactor at State College and Dr. Clifford Beck's scholarly but simply phrased explanation of its functions and purposes. President Bayar authorized the statement that he joined with President Eisenhower in voicing the hope and expectation that atomic energy may be harnessed for the promotion of peaceful enterprises and the good of mankind rather than as a possible means for destroying civilization.

COMMON INTEREST — The visit of President Bayar served to point up the common interest of North Carolina and the Republic of Turkey. Turkey is about five times as big as North Carolina—a little less than five times in population, a little more in area. The economies of both are based on agriculture with a current upsurge toward industry. Politically, both are democratic-republics or republican-democracies, depending upon viewpoint emphasis. In that respect North Carolina is older, with a 300-year record of democratic government compared with Turkey's 30 years under approximately the present kind of government. But the national entity of Turkey goes back more than a thousand years. Four or five centuries before Columbus gave the New World a place on the global map, ancestors of the present Turks were already battling for the democratic rights they and we now enjoy.

In view of that situation it is not surprising that President Bayar said it would be his purpose to encourage young men and women from Turkey to come to North Carolina to study in the textile school, to learn about nuclear reaction, to observe operations in textile mills and on the farms, to the end that his people might share—both by taking and by giving in fair exchange of knowledge gained from experience the blessings of free enterprise and individual liberty under law.

The visit of President Celal Bayar and his party was not very widely publicized in advance, but the spontaneous reaction of North Carolinians and the manifestations of common interest in the primary objective of maintaining and sustaining democratic government as contrasted with the ideology of Communism, makes the visitation of historic significance, the importance of which may be more fully realized several years from now.

Representative Student Teachers Chosen At ECC

John Norwood Elliott of Chapel Hill and Miriam Ruth Dempsey of Fayetteville, seniors at East Carolina College, have been chosen as Mr. and Miss Representative Student Teacher of 1954 at the college.

They will represent East Carolina at the spring convention of the North Carolina Educational Association in Raleigh. With students chosen for similar honors in other colleges of the state, they will be honor guests March 19 at a luncheon arranged by the Future Teachers of America and that evening will be presented to delegates attending the convention.

Alternates chosen at the college are Robert Edward Pennington of Rocky Mount and Mary Jane Simmons of Bessemer City, seniors.

Mr. and Miss Representative Student Teacher were chosen at East Carolina by a faculty-student committee. Selection was based on superior scholarship, competency in teaching, and service to the college.

The project of choosing annually representative student teachers in North Carolina teacher-training institutions originated in 1949 and is sponsored by the North Carolina Education Association in cooperation with the state department of the Future Teachers of America.

Miss Dempsey, a primary education major, is a graduate of the Fayetteville High School; attended Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., for two years; and entered East Carolina in 1952. She is now doing student teaching in the college Laboratory School, and she plans to teach next fall in or near Fayetteville.

Mr. Elliott, a science major, attended public school in Winfall and Hertford and has studied at East Carolina four years. After his graduation this month he will receive a commission in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. He plans to teach until 1959 when she paid a vacation visit

Dean Discusses Role Of Parents

As principal speaker at the annual banquet held Thursday by the Parent-Teachers Association of Washington, N. C., Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College advised parents not to "get disturbed when children are not perfect or when they do not fit into a pre-conceived pattern." His talk stressed the responsibilities of the parent in the training of the child. "Parents," he said, "should try to put first things first. We take for granted that adults have many faults. In view of this fact, he suggested, parents should not require too much of their children or be disappointed when young people do not measure up to expectations.

"The school, the church, and the community will do their share for the group," the East Carolina dean reminded his audience, "but the actual success or failure of the individual child in practically every case is a personal responsibility of the parents.

"Parents," he said, "ought to concern themselves with the idea of their children's succeeding rather than try to blue-print every step. They should realize that though things may not go according to plan, the ultimate objective may be obtained."

Industrial Arts Students Visit Eastern Schools

East Carolina College students who are members of a class in methods in industrial arts have visited recently three Eastern North Carolina high schools in which student teachers from the college are now at work.

The visitors from East Carolina observed work in high school classes at Fremont, Tarboro, and Washington and gave programs demonstrating types of electrical equipment. They were accompanied by Dr. Kenneth Bing, director of the department of industrial arts and instructor in the methods class.

Students visiting the Fremont school were Giles Dall, Kinmont; Frank C. Adams, Rocky Mount; Walter E. Culbreth, Jr., Goldsboro; and Charles West, Dunn. Adams, assisted by Dall, demonstrated electrical apparatus to 55 students in several classes. Student teachers at Fremont are Eugene Fields, La-Grange, and Ellard Groom, Rocky Mount.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Miss Alverna Koch, of Lancaster, Ohio, has been named principal of Crandon Institute, noted educational center for girls, conducted by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church in Montevideo, Uruguay. Miss Koch was a teacher in the Painesville (Ohio) High School in 1939 when she paid a vacation visit to Uruguay and Crandon Institute. So taken was she with the school and the country that she resigned her job in Ohio and joined the Crandon staff as a teacher in the commercial department. In 1945 she was commissioned a missionary of the Methodist Church and assigned to the Lima High School where she has taught for the past seven years.

The death recently in Muscatine, Iowa, at the age of 87, of Mrs. Anna Elicker Guse, a retired missionary of the Methodist Church who pioneered in the Central Provinces, recalls the saga of how she gathered orphan waifs into homes and schools of the Church during the "famine years" at the beginning of the century. Literally hundreds of today's and yesterday's Christian leaders in India - including pastors, teachers, hospital workers, Bible women, and laymen - came from the "orphanage families" established by Mrs. Guse half a century ago. She was the widow of the Rev. Carl F.H. Guse, missionary who died in 1897. She first went to India in 1893.

There are thirty-three sponsors of the Woman's Planning Committee of The Japan International Christian University Foundation, reports Mrs. Harper Sibley, committee chairman. The objective of the group is to increase the support, interest and concern among American women for the International Christian University in Japan, specifically in the field of local and national women's organizations. Among the members and sponsors of the committee, which includes women from Canada, Formosa, Japan and the Philippines, are: Mrs. Arthur P. Anderson, Miss Sarah G. Blanding, Mrs. Ralph J. Bunche, Dr. Dorothy B. Ferebee, Mrs. Joseph C. Grew, Mrs. Douglas Horton, Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton, Mrs. G. Bromley Oxnam, Mrs. J.C. Penney, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, Mrs. Henry Knox

Sherrill, Mrs. Charles, Taft, Mrs. Morgan Vining, Mrs. H.P. Van Dusen, and Miss Ruth Woodsmall. Reelfoot Lake in Tennessee was formed when a severe earthquake hit the area in 1811.

Pirates Rally For 84-82 Win Over Atlantic Christian

Jones Scores Points Which Win For Bucs

East Carolina Comes From 10-Point Deficit In Last Quarter To Defeat Bulldogs In Last Regular Season Game

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Sports Editor

ELM CITY — Senior forward Paul Jones came off the bench here Saturday night after being out of action for ten games to become the big hero in an 84-82 comeback victory scored by East Carolina College over Atlantic Christian.

PAUL JONES His Points Won

Jones sank a short push shot with five seconds of playing time remaining to give the Pirates the victory, their fifteenth in 16 North State Conference games. A crowd of almost 2,000 fans, capacity and then some for the Elm City gym, nearly took the roof off when he dropped the shot.

The 6-2 reserve from Thomasville had not seen any extended action since early in January because of a sprained ankle. He had seen limited action last Thursday in the East Carolina victory over High Point.

His extended and intensive he most since the injury first occurred.

Big Rally
The Pirates had pulled a tremendous last-quarter rally to set the stage for Jones' shot. They had gone into the fourth period with a 71-60 deficit starting them in the face and they had not really begun to cut into the ACC lead until only seven minutes of playing time remained.

At that point in the game center Bobby Hodges cut the Bulldog margin to 74-68 with a field goal and a free throw. Billy Tomlinson of the Bulldogs ran it back to 75-68 with a field goal but J. C. Thomas matched that for the Pirates to cut the margin back to five points.

Atlantic Christian, with Ronald Percise doing the shooting, rallied again but Hodges came through with three more points for the Bucs to make the score 78-73 with six minutes and four seconds of playing time remaining. At that point Hodges, the Pirates' top scorer, fouled out of the game.

Big John Marley, ACC's 6-10 freshman center, missed an excellent opportunity to put Atlantic Christian out of reach when he missed one of two free throws and the Pirates took advantage of the situation in a neat manner. Charlie Huffman took the second rebound off the board and after the ball had been worked to the Pirates' forecourt Huffman got the ball again and sank a hook shot to cut the margin in ACC's favor to 79-75.

Cecil Heath cut the gap even more with a long set shot from the side at the 4:15 mark and the Pirates were on their way. Reserve Charlie Hutchins dropped a free throw for ACC with 3:48 left but that was the last time Atlantic Christian saw the ball so far as scoring was concerned until the last few seconds of the game.

Gap Closes
J. C. Thomas dropped a free throw for the Pirates to make the score 80-78 with 3:48 left. Atlantic Christian went into a stalling game but the Pirates came through with a full-court press and the tactics paid off for the Bucs when Jones came roaring through from a defensive position to steal the ball from ACC guard Ronald Percise.

Jones moved quickly upcourt and passed off to J. C. Thomas but Thomas was covered and fired back to Jones who laid the shot up. That made the score 80-80 and marked the first time the Pirates had been close to their arch rivals since early in the second period. ACC went into more stalling tactics but the Pirates got the ball again and moved under their own board where Huffman sank another hook shot.

Marley went to the free throw line a minute later with two more free throws but he missed both of them and the Pirates went into a stall of their own. The ball was swapped between the Pirate guards for nearly a minute before ACC's Billy Widgeman intercepted a pass from Huffman and roared downcourt unopposed for two points that tied the score at 82-82 with 15 seconds left. That's when the Pirates moved the ball back under their own board to let Jones drop his game-winning field goal.

Cut Nets
Almost as soon as the whistle blew, the large group of East Carolina fans rushed on the floor to boost Jones and Thomas to their shoulders to cut the nets off the baskets at either end of the gym.

Hodges, forced to sit out the last half of the final quarter, still wound up with high-scoring honors for the night with 26 points. He was hampered a great deal in the field, both by superior defense and personal "coldness" in shooting, but he racked up from the free throw line with 12 of the free tosses.

Atlantic Coast In Homestretch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The first regular season's play in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race moves into the homestretch this week with Duke's pack of high scoring Blue Devils leading the way.

Four conference games are left before Sunday's drawings for the ACC tournament. The three-day affair is scheduled for North Carolina State's Reynolds Coliseum starting March 4.

Duke (7-1) leads the field after wrestling the lead from Maryland (7-2) last week. The Blue Devils also protected their lead with a close 67-63 victory over North Carolina Saturday. A victory Tuesday over sixth place South Carolina (2-6) will clinch first in the regular season standings for Duke. The Blue Devils play Wake Forest (7-3) Friday. Wake handed Duke its only conference defeat.

The third place Demon Deacons play South Carolina tonight at Wake Forest. Also scheduled tonight is a non-conference tilt between Virginia Tech and Virginia at Charlottesville.

North Carolina State (4-3) faces a full week starting tonight when the Wolfpack invades Davidson in a non-conference outing. The Pack battles North Carolina (5-5) for fourth place in the ACC standings Wednesday and then closes its season Saturday in Raleigh against powerhouse George Washington, the Southern Conference regular season champion.

Should Duke finish first, it will be paired by preagreement with Virginia (1-4) for the tournament. If everything goes according to form, other pairings will be third place Wake Forest vs. Sixth place South Carolina, second place Maryland vs. seventh ranked Clemson (6-9) and North Carolina State vs. North Carolina.

Other results Saturday: North Carolina State 113, Clemson 59; Furman 66, South Carolina 50; Wake Forest 57, William and Mary 56 in an overtime.

Bulldogs Play
Eppes High School's Bulldogs will meet Kinston here tomorrow night in another of the Bulldogs home games. Tip-off time for the contest will be 7:30.

Eppes won from New Bern last Tuesday night in their last outing. Armfield scored 25 points to lead the 61-48 victory.

Getting Around by Pap'

Selvy Vs Richmond Tonight

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Frank Selvy, the nation's leading scorer, and his Furman University teammates come to Richmond tonight to see who gets second place in the regular season's Southern Conference basketball standings.

Selvy goes into the game with a 40.2-point average in conference play. Darrell Floyd, Selvy's teammate is second with a 30-point mark.

Richmond has only one player, Ed Harrison, among the leading scorers. Harrison, a guard, has a 17.3-point average.

Richmond will enter the Furman contest with a 9-2 league record, good enough for second place. Furman is third with a 4-1 mark.

George Washington already has finished its conference schedule with a 10-0 record and first place.

Third in the point-making derby is Walt (Corky) Devlin, of GW, with a 22.4-point average. Others with an average of 20 points or better are William and Mary's Johnny Mahoney, 21.5; Virginia Tech's Bill Matthews, 20.5, and Virginia Military's Karl Klnar, 20.0.

In other games tonight, The Citadel goes to Virginia Military, Virginia Tech invades Virginia and North Carolina State travels to Davidson.

VMI's game with The Citadel has an important bearing on deciding which team gets the final spot in the Southern Conference tournament at Morgantown, W. Va., March 3, 4 and 6. The Citadel, Washington and Lee and Virginia Tech are the teams in the running for the invitation.

Richmond moved into second place Saturday night by downing Washington and Lee, 78-73. West Virginia routed Virginia Tech, 101-67, despite 29 points by the Gobblers' Matthews.

Selvy dumped in 30 points and Floyd got 17 as Furman won a non-conference game from South Carolina, 68-50; Virginia Military edged West Virginia Tech, 79-75; Wake Forest beat William and Mary in overtime, 57-56, and Presbyterian swamped The Citadel, 106-73.

Trabert Blasts Still Going On

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony Trabert has cooled off very little, if any, since he returned from Australia, and he still intends to give that country's tennis officials and fans a powerful blasting in an official, written report to the head men of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn.

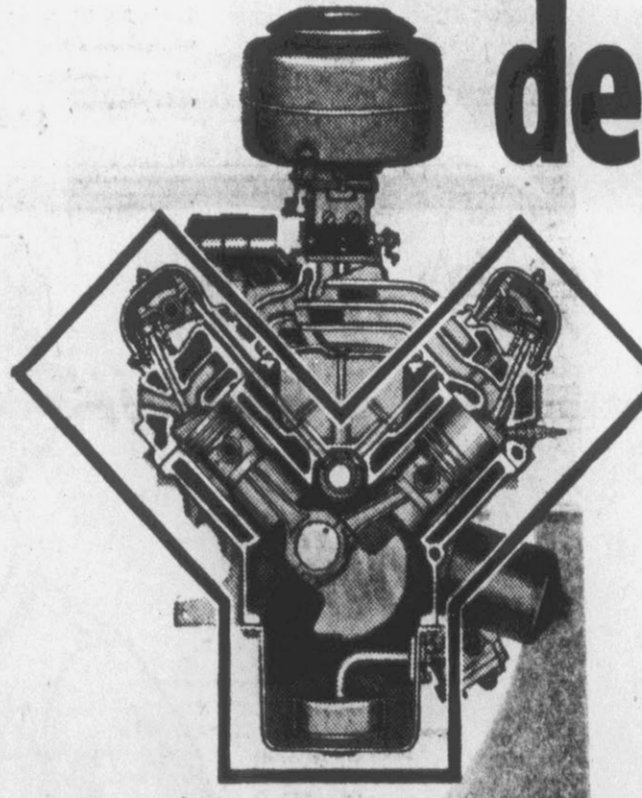

Here for the indoor championships, the nation's No. 1 player disclosed that during his long stay in Australia with our Davis Cup team this winter he carefully jotted down in a notebook all the things that irritated him, from foot fault calls to gallery bad manners. We gather that he nearly had to buy a second notebook before he was through.

So by the time Tony finishes pecking out his formal hymn of hate he will have gone to considerable trouble, and it is too bad that it won't do him or anybody else much of good. Our officials undoubtedly will read the indictment with some interest and they will whisper its contents to one another, but there isn't a chance in the world that it will go any further.

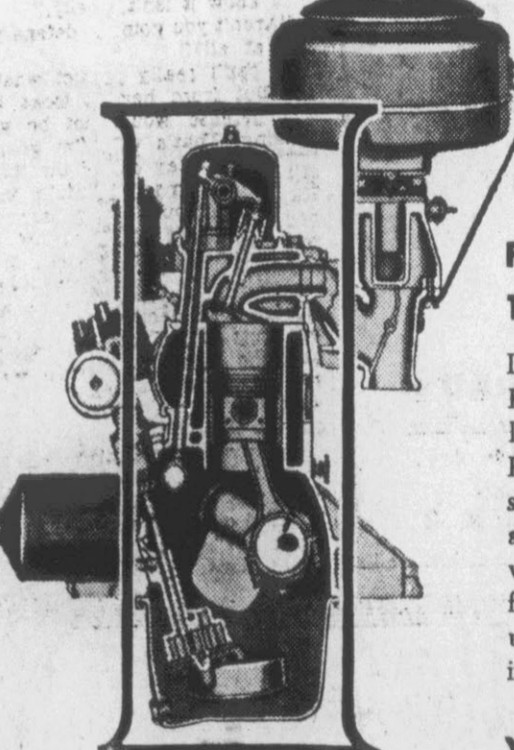

Tennis officials stick together. Our intrepid leaders are on first-name terms with those of Australia, and they correspond frequently and fervently. None of ours is going to write anything to one of theirs that might conceivably lead to raw feelings. Tony means well, but he could have saved the effort.

There really isn't much of anything the men who run the game in Australia can do toward correcting the situation which has grown to exist within the past few years. They have seen tennis become a sort of national madness, quite on a par with horse racing and ricket, and they can't suddenly return it to its original social background just because our players are sensitive.

Ford presents two new deep-block engines

They're the industry's most modern engines with free-turning Overhead Valves and integral valve guides . . . high-compression, low-friction design . . . and extra deep-skirted crankcases. Both engines are designed for long life with smooth, economical performance.

Ford's new 115-h.p. I-block SIX
Like the new V-block V-8, this engine has Ford's deep-block design for greater rigidity, longer engine life. Also, like the V-8, you get Ford's modern manifolding, low-friction design, high-turbulence combustion chambers, and Ford's Automatic Power Pilot. One advantage of both new engines is an amazingly flat "torque curve" which gives you top pick-up power through the whole range of driving speeds.

Ford's new 130-h.p. V-block V-8
This brand new Overhead-Valve V-8 has an extra-deep block which resembles a "Y" in cross-section. This new deep-block design means greater rigidity, smoother, quieter performance . . . longer engine life. Other features which make this engine a long-lived, smooth, savingful performer are: new low-friction (short-stroke) design, Free-Turning Overhead Valves, new 5-bearing crankshaft, and new high-turbulence combustion chambers.

Your Ford Dealer invites you to inspect and Test Drive Ford's new dividends for '54. DEMOCRACY AND THE CHALLENGE of YOUTH

By MANTHA FINGEL

We are living in an age of inconsistencies, of hatreds and frustrations, and, according to our critics, we have lost to a large extent the practical optimism characteristic of the American way of life. We understand little of the forces which are enveloping mankind in a life and death struggle between good and evil, between constructive and destructive thinking, between sound and unsound ideologies. We seek our goals without fully analyzing them, and often practice our standards when they conflict with our ambition or will. In our constant awareness of everyday needs, we forget that the basic principles behind the freedoms we enjoy are also those of successful living: namely, security, happiness, and peace of mind.

Our forefathers established the Bill of Rights upon these principles to insure against the loss of our natural liberty. They were wise enough to acknowledge the supremacy of individual will, and to organize that will into a combined force for the common good. They understood human nature and had the foresight to provide America with a constitution that would guard man's basic freedoms, and yet allow for the changes and expansion of government activities which time and experience would bring. The ideals of democracy, based on freedom of the individual, have not changed fundamentally since the time of Franklin, Washington, and Jefferson, although our concept of democracy should have widened its branches and deepened its roots. We pay tribute to our democratic principles as a group, but we have not yet learned how to arouse, particularly in our young people, that vital interest in and enthusiasm for the democratic way of life which are essential if that way of life is to prevail. A democracy that is worth living under is surely worth some individual effort to maintain, whether at home or abroad, in a large, spectacular manner, or a minute, inconspicuous one, and whether or not we are called upon to contribute. It is not enough to pay taxes, to vote, to advertise "I like America", important though these elements are. We must remember that we pay taxes, vote, and support our way of life not only for ourselves but for our children. The most sobering thought that we may carry with us in our daily activities is that the youngster playing in the schoolyard today may be the soldier on the battlefield tomorrow. To many of us the future has seemed less bright since we have grown aware of other nations as close neighbors, and modern technology assures us that the world will seem even smaller as science continues to expand. As a result, Americans are no longer privileged observers of other cultures but must act alongside and often in competition with them. Failure to recognize this fact is also failure to take our way of life as a serious, personal responsibility; and our children in a very real sense inherit their attitudes from us.

The underlying strength of a democratic government rests in the intelligence of its people and their willingness to use that intelligence for the good of all. Intelligence directed and controlled by high standards of conduct, rather than a high standard of living, wields an influence on the minds of men that no weapon of war can match. We can accomplish nothing of lasting value without some sacrifice of our personal desires. Modern living has catered so much to our whims as far as material comforts are concerned that the pursuit of pleasure has replaced the pursuit of happiness, and liberty has become license. As a result, young people today understand life in a democratic society to mean a life of relatively unrestricted wish-fulfillment. The change in outlook from individual will cooperating with the common good to "individual will regardless of the common good" can lead in only one direction — away from democracy.

Youth, with its superabundance of creative energy, seeks outlets in causes and crises. Youth is the age of hero-worship, and it is also the age which must learn to choose between goals, between what is sound, wholesome and good, and what is unsound, unwholesome and evil. If adults shrink from the long-range future, is it surprising that their children also fall to consider it? "Live fast and die young" certainly not appropriate to the democratic credo, for it is fatalistic and alien to the cultural heritage we profess. Yet youth has received a large part of this philosophy from adults. If we seek advancement rather than personal integrity, we make a mockery out of our profession of democracy, and our young people follow suit. Our young people are no more delinquent, indifferent, or amoral than are adults who, by their own callous indifference, have provided the example. Maturity is a matter of discernment, not age. Our young people should be made aware of their responsibilities within a democracy; and adults should learn to accept them as responsible individuals, accountable for their actions and plans. That is the only way to give youth the experience it needs to aim and direct its life.

We learn democratic principles by living democratically; not in the schoolroom, in the church, or on election day, but everywhere, at all times. Democracy is more than an ideal in America; it is a practical workable system under which we enjoy not only a high standard of physical comfort, but also a continually expanding mental horizon; a system in which we can develop freely our capacities for successful living. As a result, democracy should offer to youth a challenge unequalled by any other form of government. Have we recognized this challenge, and transmitted it to our children? Have we instilled in the minds and hearts of our young people the devotion to ideal, the respect for our heritage that would foster confidence and inspire faith in the eventual triumph of those principles of freedom we now take for granted? Or have we fostered apathy, by being ourselves apathetic; despair, by being ourselves callous or despairing? It is time that we reaffirm our confidence in the basic principles of our democracy and that we learn to uphold these principles by word, thought, and deed. Our government was created by individuals for the individual good of all. It is a young, vigorous government, and will remain so only as its legacy is translated into action by its youth.

Advise Frequent Chest X-Rays Of Heavy Smokers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Cancer Society's statistical research director said today a heavy smoker "is very foolish if he does not have a chest X-ray taken twice a year"—although there is no proof smoking causes cancer.

Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, the director, gave the advice in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U.S. News & World Report. And the magazine described him as smoking during the interview.

Dr. Hammond said a heavy smoker should take the recommended precaution "so long as there is even a strong suspicion that smoking causes lung cancer." But he also said everyone, especially those over 45, should have an X-ray at least once a year, and be added:

"If you are a timid soul, then you should also give up smoking at least until the facts are known."

Dr. Hammond indicated the kind of facts he is after by saying, "If we should find that the death rate from lung cancer is much higher among heavy smokers and the death rate from other forms of cancer is not one bit higher among heavy smokers, then I'd say the evidence would be extremely strong that there is a cause-and-effect relation."

He said his "personal guess right now" is that there is such a relationship between smoking and lung cancer, but he does not know whether the smoking effect is "trivial" or so important that cigarette manufacture should be stopped "until we find what's in them that is bad and remove it."

He said there were some indications cigarette smokers were more susceptible to lung cancer, while cigar and pipe smokers were more likely to develop lip, tongue or mouth cancer.

As for his own smoking, he said, "I am not going to let it (the problem he is investigating) have any effect on my personal habits until all the facts are known."

Dr. Hammond is in charge of a research project under which 22,000 volunteers have been interviewing 204,000 men 60 to 66 years old about their smoking habits. Each year, the causes of any deaths among the group are medically investigated.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The First Unitarian Church of Los Angeles challenges a state law requiring a loyalty oath of nonprofit organizations as guaranteed by the First Amendment.

This is the church whose pastor, the Rev. Stephen H. Fritchman, refused to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee on the ground it sought "to invade the intimate confidence of the confessional."

Mr. Fritchman was listed by the committee as a sponsor of "no less than 22 pro-Soviet organizations."

His congregation voted yesterday to instruct its trustees to decide against signing the loyalty oath. The trustees' chairman, Aky Robert Schmorleitz, said the secretly taken vote was 206 to 31. He said Mr. Fritchman did not participate in the discussion before the vote.

A 1953 amendment to the state revenue and taxation code provides that the property tax statement for churches and other nonprofit groups shall include a loyalty oath if tax exemptions are sought.

Tuberculosis causes about 28,000 deaths a year in the United States.

ECC Orchestra To Give Concert For More Than 2,000 Children Tuesday

More than 2,000 children in the lower grades of the Greenville public schools will be honor guests Tuesday afternoon, at a concert given for them by the East Carolina Orchestra. The event will take place at 3 p.m. in the Wright Auditorium of East Carolina College.

The orchestra is composed of more than sixty instrumentalists from the faculty and the student body of East Carolina College and from Greenville and its environs.

A college-community organization, it presents during each school year a number of programs for the public and provides music for commencement exercises and other events on the campus. Dr. Kenneth N. Outburt, director of the college music department, is conductor.

Superintendent J.H. Rose of the Greenville City Schools will serve as master of ceremonies at next Tuesday's program and will introduce the East Carolina Orchestra to the young audience. Teachers of music in the city schools who will discuss the various instruments of the orchestra and introduce the sections of the orchestra are James Rodgers, Beatrice Chauncey, and Mrs. Robert Gray. Dr. Outburt will serve as narrator of the program.

Also Sunday Therion Carr of 413 East Second Street was parked on Atlantic Avenue and was hit by a car belonging to H. C. Elks. Carr's auto received about $25 damage with no damage to Elks' car.

Fire Is Laid To Short-Circuiting

Local firemen were called to a building belonging to the American Tobacco Company at Fifteenth and Greene Streets Sunday morning at 10 a.m. when wires in a meter box shorted out.

The blaze was quickly extinguished by firemen and little damage resulted.

Saturday afternoon at 1:50 p.m. firemen went to the home of Ruby Steverson at 118 South Woodlawn Street when a stoker in the basement stopped up. No damage was reported.

Discuss Recommended Garbage Rack Unit

Two Pitt County Health Department Sanitarians, John Moss, kneeling, and W. M. Pate, discuss the type of garbage rack recommended for private homes here and in other Pitt County cities. This type rack can be built for $150 if persons only buy the necessary lumber and cut and build it themselves. According to Health Department officials, this rack, which will hold two 20 gallon galvanized cans, eliminates rodent and insect harborage and spilling of the garbage by dogs and children plus protecting the cans from wear. Plans to build it can be obtained from the local Health Department. (Reflector photo by Bob Boyette)

Two Arrested In Liquor Round-Up

Pitt County ABC officers made two arrests in Saturday night raids and charged two individuals with illegal possession of non-taxpaid liquor.

Officers reported James Moses Whitley, Negro, 30, was arrested at the Oyster Bar on First and Line Streets for the possession of one gallon of bootleg whiskey which he tried to pour down a kitchen drain. Whitley was released under a $200 bond.

Tincie Bell Williams, Negro woman of 1504 South Clark Street was arrested by officers for possession of one-half gallon of illegal whiskey. Officers said she tried to dispose of the liquor by pouring it down a drain when they raided the house.

Taking part in the raids were ABC officers J.M. Ward, H.B. Lilly, R.W. King, and Deputy Sheriff Elmer Haddock.

Sweet Potato Show Set For Wednesday

James M. Goode, Negro farm agent for Pitt county, announced today that the Northeastern Sweet Potato Show will be held at the Bethel Negro High School Wednesday morning at 9 a'clock.

Negro boys and girls from 19 counties in the district are expected to attend. Each county will have a judging team composed of three 4-H Club boys and girls. Three 4-H Club members from each county in the district will exhibit bushel baskets of sweet potatoes. The potatoes will be sold at auction at the show, Goode stated.

A feature of the sweet potato show will be a lecture about the Bethel market and a conducted tour of the sweet potato market's facilities in the morning. An educational program will be presented from 12:30 to 1:45. Improved practices on harvesting and marketing sweet potatoes will be emphasized.

Goode said indications are that the show will be largely attended by 4-H Club members. The public is invited.

British Shippers Answer Critics

LONDON (AP)—British shipowners lashed back last night at American critics of their trade with Red China. Their association report charged the United States had posted armed guards aboard British ships while in American waters, shadowed them with naval cutters, and imposed other "almost incredible" restrictions.

In Washington, a U. S. Navy spokesman retorted, "I never heard of it. I just don't believe it happened. And I certainly would have heard of it if it had happened."

The State Department added that it also knew nothing of the alleged incidents.

The British complaints were in the annual report by the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom, which the private but influential organization will take up at a meeting next Thursday.

The report did not give details of its charge of U. S. "shadowing." It said only:

"It is most incredible that in peacetime the U.S.A. should place armed guards on British merchant ships while in port and detail naval cutters to 'shadow' them from one U. S. port to another. But this happened."

"The drama was lightened by a comic touch when a British ship obligingly reduced speed to enable her U. S. crew to keep station," the report added.

British shippers, the Chamber said had conformed strictly to the United Nations ban against carrying war goods to the Chinese Communists, and the system had worked smoothly at first.
