Puerto Ricans 'Not Sorry' For Shootings

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.) most seriously wounded among five congressmen shot down by fanatical gunmen in the House chamber, showed some gains early today. In jail a few blocks away, the leaders of the Puerto Rican pistol wielders insisted they were not sorry for the unprecedented outbreak in the Capitol yesterday afternoon.

rupted proceedings in the House. Along with two other Puerto Rican men — Andres F. Cordeiro and Irving Flores — they were held in bail of $100,000 each on charges of assault with intent to kill. They face possible penalties of up to 15 years each — if all the wounded survive. The charge would become murder — punishable by death in the electric chair — if one should die as a result of their wild outbreak.

temperature, pulse and respiration were at "a satisfactory level — although the pulse rate is higher than desirable." A scene of confusion without precedent in the House of Representatives occurred when the Puerto Rican fanatics suddenly produced heavy pistols and began shooting wildly from the visitors' gallery during yesterday's routine session.

factors also helped overpower three of the assailants as their weapons were emptied and they tried frantically to reload and resume their barrage. There was a wild melee in the gallery itself and in the corridor outside as guards rushed in. Through it all the Puerto Ricans screamed for independence for their island homeland as they sprayed bullets over the chamber from Lugers held grimly in both hands.

shooting was intended "to bring the attention of the people to the plight of Puerto Rico. It is a country that is not free." Those held are members of the Nationalist party, the same group represented by the two men who tried in 1950 to assassinate the then President Harry Truman. The party is only a small minority in the island commonwealth.

The answer rests in the words of Christ: "To whom much has been given, of him much will be required."

"Bear ye one another's burdens." World Day of Prayer is sponsored nationally by United Church Women and locally by the Greenville Council of Church Women. Stokes Methodist Church Scene For Wallace-Stokes Wedding

On Saturday, February 27, at 4:30 p.m. in a ceremony characterized by beauty and dignity, Miss Marvel Kathryn Stokes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming Stokes of Stokes and Howe Quinn Wallace, son of Mr. Waddell A. Wallace Sr. and the late Mrs. Wallace of Jacksonville, Fla., were united in marriage in the Stokes Methodist Church. The Rev. Sidney G. Boone of Norlina, former pastor of the bride, officiated. The impressive double ring ceremony was used.

Prior to the ceremony a program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Gene Powers of Rockingham, solist, and by Donald Roebuck of Stokes and East Carolina College, organist. As vocal selections, Mrs. Powers rendered "Through The Years," "I Love Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose for her wedding a frosty white gown of imported Chantilly Rosepoint lace. Appliqued lace medallions formed the portrait neckline. The long tapered sleeves ended in lily points at the wrists. The voluminous lace skirt, poised over satin, was ornamented with fluted nylon tulle dust ruffles. Her veil of sheerest illusion was attached to a bandeau of satin, studded with baby pearls. The bridal flowers were arranged in a cascade bouquet composed of stephanotis, roses, angel feathers, baby hyacinths, and camellias centered with a white orchid, and showered with bridal ribbons.

Mrs. Harold Lee Watson of Stokes and Miss Billie Sue Stokes of Peace College, Raleigh, sisters of the bride, were matron and maid of honor. They were attired in floor length gowns of cotton blue nylon net over taffeta, styled with pleated bodices and matching velveteen bows at the back with streamers cascading down the bouffant skirts which were ornamented with double flounces at the bottom. They wore circlets of matching velvet as headpieces and carried cascade bouquets of Briarcliffe roses and of pink and burgundy snapdragons tied with pink nylon net and burgundy satin ribbon.

Doble Bernerether of Jacksonville, Fla., niece of the groom, was junior bridesmaid. She was attired in a floor length gown of pale blue nylon net over taffeta with a bouffant skirt ornamented by a double flounce at the bottom. Her bouquet was composed of Briarcliffe roses and pink and orchid snapdragons tied with burgundy nylon net and pink satin ribbon.

Kathie Watson, niece of the bride, and Dottie Joe Bernerether, niece of the groom, were flower girls. They wore dresses fashioned similar to that of the junior bridesmaid's and carried small baskets of rose petals, with dainty pink rose corsages attached to the handles.

The groom chose his twin brother, Dave Wallace, of New York City as his best man and as ushers his brother, Waddell Wallace Jr., his brother-in-law, C. H. Bernerether, and Leon Lennertz, all of Jacksonville, Fla., and Harold Watson, brother-in-law of the bride of Stokes.

The bride's mother was attired in a navy blue master sheer dress, trimmed in rhinestones, a light blue flower hat and wore an orchid corsage.

Mrs. C. H. Bernerether, sister of the groom, wore a gown of grey velveteen, embroidered in black beads, matching accessories, and an orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home honoring the bride and groom, the bridal party, and out-of-town guests. The entire house was appropriately decorated with artistic arrangements of bridal flowers and candles. The dining room table was beautiful in appointment with a silver bowl of white snapdragons, carnations, and gladiolas, flanked by branched candelabra containing white candles and with garlands of fern ornamenting the entire border of the lovely embroidered linen table cloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Whichard greeted the guests at the door and they were introduced to the receiving line by Rev. and Mrs. Sidney Boone of Norlina. Mr. and Mrs. Z. E. Brinson of Tarboro directed the guests to the sun room where Dr. and Mrs. Marshall Kilpatrick of Robersonville presided over the register. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Congleton Jr. directed the guests to the music room where they were received by Mrs. Gene Powers of Rockingham and by Mr. Lindsay Whichard of Raleigh. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Whichard invited guests into the dining room where the bride, served brideless and Mrs. Waddell Wallace, sister-in-law of the groom, served cakes. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Frances Van Dyke, Miss Margaret Cavin of Charlotte, Mrs. William Frances Tyson, Mrs. Ethel Clark and Mrs. Marvin Barnhill. Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Stokes of Robersonville served punch in the gift room, where goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Latham of Bethel.

Following the reception the bridal couple left for a trip to unannounced points. The bride travelled in a pure silk costume suit. The blue and white print surrah dress was worn under a starlight blue shantung princess coat. She wore a navy straw hat studded with white beads and rhinestones, navy accessories, and the orchid from her wedding bouquet.

Mrs. Wallace is a graduate of Stokes High School, she attended Greensboro College, Greensboro, N. C., and is a 1951 graduate of the University of North Carolina where she is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. For the past two years, she has been a member of the Jacksonville, Fla. City Schools.

Mr. Wallace is a graduate of Georgia Military Academy, College Park, Ga. He attended Georgia Tech and during the past war was in the Marine Corps and was stationed at Cherry Point, N. C. At present he is affiliated with the Wallace Equipment Co. of Jacksonville, Fla., where the couple will reside.

Mrs. Wallace was entertained extensively both in Florida and North Carolina since the announcement of her approaching marriage. Among the festivities in her honor were: An announcement party by Mrs. W. A. Romeiser of Detroit, Mich. at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. B. Congleton, in Stokes; a dinner by Mrs. Walter Latham of Bethel; bridge parties by Mrs. Lewis Roberson, Mrs. Wally Roberson and Mrs. Marvin Barnhill and by Mrs. William Frances Tyson, Mrs. Charles Alfred Forbes and Mrs. Gene Lee of Kinston; an informal coffee hour by Mrs. Marshall Kilpatrick and a dinner at the Wilson Hotel by Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Stokes, all of Robersonville; an informal reception following the rehearsal by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Watson and a luncheon on the day of the wedding by Mrs. J. B. Congleton Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Congleton Jr., all of Stokes.

Mardi Gras Hits Climax Tonight NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The city's madcap Mardi Gras celebration reaches its lavish climax today when Rex, Lord of Misrule, returns over the "City That Care Forgot." Masked revelers, garbed in costumes ranging from angels to almost-nude savages, took to the streets with the first rays of daylight to await Rex's glittering procession.

See Solution In Public Ridicule

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Public ridicule is offered by the Mississippi House as a curb to drunken driving.

The House voted 82-22 yesterday for a bill that would require a convicted drunken driver to work at least one day on the jail grounds during daylight hours. The bill was held up on a routine motion to reconsider, but the overwhelmingly favorable vote indicated final approval.

The measure provides a mandatory five-day jail sentence as minimum punishment with one year the maximum. The violator could also be fined $100 to $1,000 and have his driver's license revoked.

Another Miracle Of American Politics

There is a certain type of office seeker which still entices the veteran politician and political observer to sit up and take notice; not because of his importance in state politics, but because of curiosity.

That type of which we are speaking is the unknown figure in politics. Almost every year there is one or more such individuals who toss their hats into the political ring of the most high powered races in the state. This year so far there are three of this category who have announced for the U. S. Senate race in which Scott and Lennon are the key figures.

Doubtlessly each of the unknowns is hop-

Sites For Pools Important Matter

As officials of the city of Greenville and the Greenville Recreation Commission look toward the proposed construction of two new swimming pools for the city, the matter of location of the pools appears to be an important decision to be made.

Naturally it will not be known until a referendum is held in the city whether the local voters will approve a $250,000 bond issue necessary for the construction of the swimming pools.

Between now and the time for the election, however, it appears to us that an important question to be decided is the locations of the pools.

A careful study should be made by both recreation officials and city officials to determine where the white pool should be located to afford maximum use and maximum access by children and adults who will use the pool. The same thing should be applied in selecting a site for the swimming pool proposed for the Negro citizens of the city.

The selection of the sites for the respective pools should be based on a study which would indicate what locations would give the pools a maximum amount of use by the maximum number of citizens.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
YOUR GIFT

Jenny Lind the great Swedish singer who was at the height of her career 75 years ago was also a Christian saint. She regarded her voice as a gift from God, and although she made tremendous sums of money, and was eager to do so, she spent practically all of it in philanthropic work. She was particularly interested in the education of the poor children of Stockholm. When she was on her last tour she said, "My daily prayer is that I may be spared three years in order to carry out my plans for these poor children."

Every person has a gift. For most people the gift is the ability to do some humble and necessary work efficiently. There are a goodly number of people in the world who can do some one thing well. Geniuses are rare. They are generally twisted personalities, but most of them are able to scale mountain heights of achievement far beyond the strength of ordinary men and women.

The Parable of the Talents found in the New Testament clearly indicates that God gives some people a few talents and others many talents. We must not like this arrangement and call it discrimination. That, however, is the way it is and there is nothing to do about it. But God is just as pleased with the one-talent man who uses his talent well as He is with the genius who serves the world magnificently.

What are you doing with the gift you have, be it great or small?

We Help Other Shipbuilders

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Although the United States spends about $2 billion annually of the taxpayers' money to support Germany, Japan and Italy, those three nations are building more merchant vessels than their conqueror. And the Administration, like so many predecessors, has taken no step to solve a problem which almost proved fatal to the democracies in both world wars.

Congress, however, has been stirred by its belated discovery of this condition. Acting as Chairman of a Senate Commerce Subcommittee Senator John Marshall Butler of Maryland has just completed a month's survey of foreign shipyards and shipping. He finds that while our naval auxiliary fleet is becoming obsolete, supposedly poverty-stricken countries are building up their maritime defenses.

In new 1953 construction, England ranked at the top. Next followed Germany, Japan and Italy. With a 1953 tonnage increase of only 60,762, the United States stood in seventh place. Of new tonnage totalling $400,000 that was launched last year, the U.S. accounted for only $28,307 tons.

INCREDIBLE FIGURES—These unbelievable figures tell only part of our past and present neglect of maritime strength. In view of the recollection that previous indifference resulted in a frenzied, wasteful and costly construction of a "bridge of ships" in 1917-1919 and in 1939-1941. Churchill attributed Allied victory to the conquest of enemy submarines.

Experts report that 80 per cent of our active merchant marine will be obsolete within ten years. Even today, a majority of our seagoing craft are slow, not designed for modern needs, and expensive to operate. And yet, according to Senator Butler, our shipbuilding industry had no orders for commercial vessels of more than 1,000 tons in 1953, with none on the books for 1954. He reports that there is an immediate deficiency of 214 vessels of the merchant type.

LOSING SKILLED WORKERS—Our current and postwar unpreparedness leads to another train of evils. Shipyards on the Atlantic, Gulf, and Pacific Coasts are losing the skilled personnel and fine facilities required for this kind of construction. It must be ing that by some unprecedented freak of politics he will be swept into office. Perhaps it is merely out of a desire for statewide publicity that he enters his name in a race of such import.

State-wide campaigns such as the current Senate race costs hundreds of thousands of dollars, and from the financial aspect if for no other reason are out of reach of the unknowns. The widely known political figures have enough trouble raising sufficient funds to run a campaign in the state; the unknowns for the most part have to take what money they spend in a campaign from their own pockets.

In a county or local race the "unknown" in political circles can usually become a known figure before the campaign period ends. Not so in the case of a state-wide campaign. The task is too great, to be accomplished in the short span of time allowed for a campaign.

The case of the "unknown" in a big political race is one of the real miracles of the American way of life and American politics for which we can be thankful. Everyone can not be a winner. But any one who desires can make in his own way—large or small—a diligent effort to seek the topmost post in which the voters can, by their ballots, place him.

Will There Be A Solid Front At Geneva?

Has the United States allowed itself to be maneuvered into a corner by Russia in making preparations for the Geneva Conference on Asiatic affairs next month?

That question will not be answered until after the conference begins; but it is well enough to take a good look at what could be the outcome.

There can be little doubt that the Reds want the Geneva conference to use as an instrument to further their own cause. At the top of their list of objectives in international negotiations is the securing of membership in the United Nations for Red China. At Geneva, it is not unlikely that the communists will seek to block consideration of every other question until the question of U. N. membership for Red China is resolved.

The United States has been and still is solidly opposed to Red China membership in the U. N. and rightly so. Yet her two principal allies, Great Britain and France are not so firm in their position on the question. Both already have given official recognition to the Red Chinese government. They may be willing to agree to U. N. membership for Red China in exchange for a concession by Russia on some other matter.

Such a move would leave the United States virtually standing alone. It would afford a strategic opportunity for the Reds to drive a wedge between the Big Three Western nations. It should be expected that Russia will seek to set up such a move at the conference in Geneva and carry it out.

Somebody Told Me

So Much Affection Cloying

How much affection should we teach our children? At this point I have taught my 16-months-old son a little too much.

It all started when he was sick and I was rocking him one night. He didn't want to sleep and I got a little bored with the rocking, so I decided to teach him the art of kissing.

Having inherited an affectionate nature from me, he immediately took to the lesson with great vigor. Ever since then he delights in kissing people.

If you don't believe that story, ask Mrs. Elmo Dupree next door. When Don tried kissing her she decided that the proper way for him to do it was on the cheek. But he wouldn't have any such thing. In his estimation there's only one place to kiss and that's on the mouth!

And lately he likes to squeeze people around the neck. And I mean tight!

What kind of requirement is necessary for one to gain all of his affection? All you have to do is have an acquaintance with him. If you are a complete stranger you can have none of this sugar, but if he knows you it's hard to keep from getting it.

This situation brings on more talk about children and affection. From the time they come into the world we shower affection on them, teach them to love and kiss. We train them to kiss us good night and then when they get a little older we discourage their kissing others good night!

Frankly, I think that sort of discouragement is very ineffective. But no matter how it turns out in the end I still believe in being affectionate with the children. They need plenty of love!

One day one of the children was crawling all over me, messing up a clean suit and I became a little irritated. A bystander said, "Don't complain. Before you know it they'll be up too big to get in your lap. And you'll look back on the lap days with fond memories."

Physicians will tell you that lack of love can warp the entire personality of a child. As Milton Caniff in the Steve Canyon comic strip put it one time, "All of us need plenty of TLC." After keeping his readers in suspense for about three weeks he finally admitted that TLC is tender loving care.

Now we're trying to teach Don cheek-kissing. But take my word for it, once you teach 'em the other kind it's hard to sell them on the idea of a poor substitute.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

CAN MR. DULLES REPEAT AT GENEVA? (Charlotte Observer)

In his report to the country on the Berlin conference, Secretary of State Dulles said that Communist China "will not come to Geneva to be honored by us, but rather to account before the bar of world opinion."

By that we understand that his purpose is to put the Red Chinese delegates in somewhat the same positions as a witness before one of our congressional investigations. That will be a great feat of diplomacy if he can do it.

If he could make the rules of the conference, Mr. Dulles could succeed in that purpose. Russia, however, will be there as an equal and also as a passionate advocate of Red China. Mr. Molotov can be expected to raise the roof of the old League of Nations building as soon as Mr. Dulles moves to put Red China in a subordinate position or in the role of the accused being investigated.

It is true, as Mr. Dulles said, that Molotov put his signature on a resolution specifying that the invitation to Red China does not imply any recognition of that government by the United States; hence, China will appear at the conference as an unrecognized state and cannot, therefore, expect the same privileges as the other members.

That, as Mr. Dulles said, is what Molotov signed. But a Russian signature means little or nothing. To expect that Molotov will meekly abide by it is expecting too much. He is probably lying awake at nights thinking of a way to put a new interpretation on the resolution so that China will have all the rights and privileges of an equal negotiator.

The background information that Mr. Dulles gave—showing that Molotov fought the resolution to the last and finally yielded—indicates that maybe he has the Russian in a corner. Mr. Dulles is the only American diplomat who ever got such a concession from Russia, and perhaps he is the only one who will be able to hold her to it.

His skill in causing Molotov to fall into his own trap at Berlin gives promise that he has more tricks up his sleeve to be used at Geneva. He tricked the Russian, it will be remembered, by playing dumb. By appearing to agree to everything at the beginning, he gave Molotov the impression that here was another meek, gullible American diplomat of the type with which he was accustomed to deal. Then suddenly he found himself with his own foot in his mouth.

Maybe Dulles can repeat at Geneva. We hope so. At any rate, there is a new self-assurance in American diplomacy. It is a welcome change.

Most Interest Still Focused On Local Political Races

By LYNN NISBET

ELKS—The State Elks Association has worked itself out of a jam on dates for the State convention. The date was set last year for May 28 and 29 at Asheville. A few weeks ago the Elks woke up to the fact that May 29 is primary day in North Carolina, and since one of the major tenets of Elksdom is good citizenship—particularly the exercise of the suffrage—something had to be done.

Through efforts of President Don Madigan and Secretary Arthur Ruffin, with able assistance on part of Thad Eure of the Grand Lodge Activities committee, the date was switched to May 14 and 15. It took some doing, because a feature of the program was the appearance of Grand Exalted Ruler Earl E. James of Oklahoma City. A swap had to be arranged with other associations in order to change the head man's itinerary.

It's all worked out now and the Elks are smiling again, not only because of the assurance that the highest officer in the Order will be in North Carolina, but because at least three Past Grand Exalted Rulers are expected. They are Judge John McClelland of Atlanta, Howard Davis of Pennsylvania and Robert E. Barrett of Alexandria, Va.

Presence of four of the biggest names in a national order or more than one million members is enough to guarantee the finest convention ever held in the state, said Eure. "Asheville is going to put the big pot on the fire," he added.

LOCALIZED — A quickie trip through several Piedmont counties and brief conversations with numerous people confirmed the opinion previously expressed that presently there is a lot more interest in local politics than in the question of who will be the Junior United States Senator after the November election.

ALAMANCE — In Alamance county there isn't much concern over the big Senate race. That is Kerr Scott's home ballfield and he is conceded a preponderant majority. He will not get 100 per cent of the vote, of course, but those who do not feel they can support him recognize the futility of organized opposition.

Congressman Carl Durham is not expected to have serious trouble in Alamance. There is possibility that Dan Edwards of Durham might worry the congressman if he should enter the race. H.C. Sprinkle, wealthy oil distributor of Durham, has announced for congress and his brother, H.L. Sprinkle of Greensboro, is an avowed candidate for the U.S. Senate. A lot of money could turn a few votes, but there will not be enough to take the county from Kerr Scott and Carl Durham.

Andy Delvescovo, the New Jersey native who stirred up so much commotion over the soldier bonus item in 1951 and 1953, has come out for the House of Representatives. George Long, who served in the past two sessions, will announce this week State Senator Ralph Scott, brother of Kerr, expects to come back and to date there is no opposition.

There is admitted possibility that a really hot race for sheriff and county commissioners might complicate the legislative situation.

ROCKINGHAM — Contacts at Reidsville reported no activity in the U.S. Senate race, and indications are that Congressman Thurmond Chatham has nothing to worry about in Rockingham. The Senatorial business may get warm later on, since Rockingham enjoys a good political scrap. Reidsville folks have heard that J.E. Boulding of Oxford, who has filed for Congress, is pretty strong in Granville and Person, and will get considerable support in Forsyth.

The "big race" at present is for sheriff, with incumbent Len Worsham the rated favorite but not counted as "safe" without a lot of work. Radford Powell is expected to return for a fourth term as representative in the General Assembly. Clarence Stone, who served in the House continuously from 1935 through 1947, in so far as the only candidate for the State Senate, but rumors are that Jule McMichael might get in the running.

FORSYTH — Winston-Salem contacts look for a hot race to develop between Lennon and Scott for the U.S. Senate in Forsyth county—but it will have to develop from now on. Presently there isn't much interest in anything but county offices. The local situation is complicated by pending bond issue elections in Winston-Salem and long-standing controversies between municipal and county officials over such matters as schools, public health and law enforcement. Trees Thinning Out

By ELMER ROESSNER
Soft-goods industries are not yet out of the woods, but the trees seem to be thinning out a bit. In the last two months—and even more notably in the last two weeks—consumer purchases of apparel and white goods have become brisker, while buying of durables has remained down.

Some observers view this as "a return to historic ratios." Since the end of World War II, consumers have been spending a larger share of their incomes for durable goods and less for non-durables than they did before the war. These observers held that the emphasis on durables was the result of unsatisfied demands during the war and that eventually people would buy more textiles and the like and fewer autos, radios and appliances.

Even though this prediction has outward signs of coming true now, it may be based on a faulty premise. It does not seem to take fully into account the fact that standards of living and conceptions of life have been changing rapidly. Autos have become necessities for more families each year; television sets, curiosities before the war, are household fixtures, and the increasing proportion of families, washers, ironers, air-conditioners and other durables are standard equipment.

So apparel and white-goods manufacturers may never regain the full share of the consumer dollar they had in, say, 1938, or 1947. Nevertheless, the moment soft goods are perking up.

Prices for sheets were cut sharply earlier this year. Now so many orders have come in that several mills feel the cuts were too deep. Some, at least, have reduced discounts and withdrawn some lines. Meanwhile prices of some fitted sheets have gone up.

Cotton and cotton yarns have strengthened on firmer demand; wool futures have made some small gains. Trade reports say that the movement of textiles, from fibers on through to consumer products has been accelerated recently, although many mills are still operating on short weeks.

In apparel, several New York buying offices—though not all—report a rise in orders. While total department store sales through the middle of February were still 1 per cent behind year-ago figures, the Federal Reserve's report by cities was sprinkled with plus marks. And in January the Federal Reserve's index of apparel and allied products was up to 99 per cent of the 1947-49 average. All of this is not wonderful, but it is promising.

The weather has played a part. Some retailers say the mild winter caused people to wear light apparel longer, causing them to need replacements, and premature spring weather in several parts of the country has stimulated buying. Whatever it is, soft goods industries are in favor of it.

COFFEE RISE REGARDED NORMAL IN FREE MARKET
The Guaranty Trust Company of New York is taking a dim view of people who are making an in-temperate incident out of the price of coffee. In its March Guaranty Survey, its says:

"If South American governments had never embarked on 'nationalization' schemes or dumped coffee into the ocean, and if exchange rates were not at artificial levels, the people of the United States would be less prone to see evidence of price manipulation where none exists."

The bank holds that the price rise is the normal result of supply and demand operating in a free market. It describes proposals for a boycott as undesirable from every point of view.

Some people will disagree with this conclusion, holding that boycotts are a phenomenon of free markets and that one of the alternatives of boycotts in government rationing and price controls.

Always Seeking A Silver Lining

By SAUL PEITZ
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Somebody dumped a pile of old movie fan magazines near my desk and I looked them over. It was harrowing.

It also was inspirational, in a way, because these editors seem to have such great, big, ubiquitous hearts. Moreover, they must use very sensitive seismographs to detect the slightest heart tremors anywhere in the world. In March 1953, Motion Picture magazine found the Gregory Pecks abroad, where he was making a picture, and the writer was enchanted by their marital bliss. "Theirs is the story of a love that's nourished from day to day."

The next month, a title in Film-land magazine echoed the enchantment: "Live Alone and Like It?" Sub-head: "Family life and love isn't a something thing for Gregory Peck . . . He wants his brood around him wherever he goes."

But right under this, as though a hot cable had just been flashed in, was a boxed editor's note: "Unfortunately, as we go to press, there are storm warnings from the Peck household, but because of the solid foundation of the marriage has, we have every hope the difficulties between Greta and Greg will soon be strengthened out."

It struck me as a purely unselfish hope. Still, the clouds were gathering.

The same month, Photoplay asked, "Trouble Across the Way?" There were hints of a foreign romance in Peck's life and Photoplay was facing up to them squarely.

In May, Modern Screen asked, "Divorce Ahead for the Pecks?"

But in August, Modern Screen was reassuring. "Peck's a good boy," it said. Still, two months later, Screenland's seismograph wasn't satisfied. "There is a new Gregory Peck, a worldly sophisticate," it said, "and reports are that he and Greta are finished with each other forever . . ."

I quickly flipped through the magazines to see if the dilemma I had missed. It hadn't although Screenland was certain about "Gene's affair with Aly." It said, "There's no doubt Gene Tierney's flipped over Aly Khan, but will they wed?"

Well, would they? I raced to the next issue of the magazine hoping to find the answer. Instead, I found another question—"What's happened to Jeff-How long can Jeff Chandler keep a smile on his face to cover up an inner void?"

With questions tumbling over questions in my mind, I raced down to the nearest newsstand for the very latest fan magazines. The first thing I saw was a Hollywood columnist's "good news" in Modern Screen. Subtitle: "Shelley vs. Vittorio. . . June Haver finds Fred MacMur-ray. . . Dale Robertson's split. . ."

Well, Hollywood seemed to be battling 333 in good news, unless, of course, June didn't happen to want to find Fred.

But again, another infernal question: "Is Anne on a merry-go-round?" Sub-title: "Anne Baxter shows no sign of letting up on her daring plan to become one of Hollywood's sexiest stars."

This explanation, of course, raised many more questions than it answered but by then I had run out of money. I couldn't afford any more magazines. My nervous system couldn't, either.

Woman Rescued From Leaky Boat After Five Days

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A French ship last night rescued a woman who had fought for five days alone against the sea in a leaking sailboat.

Mrs. Vera Olive Rideout, 46, who had set out from San Pedro Feb. 20 on an attempt to sail around the world, was picked up about 15 miles south of San Diego by the French training vessel Maurier Christmas. She was transferred to a Coast Guard cutter, returned here and hospitalized for treatment of a dislocated spinal disc.

Her 25-foot sailboat sprang a leak off Guadalupe Island south of here. "Then I threw my back out when the mizzen boom hit me," she told newsmen.

"I planned to beave to off the island for two or three weeks until my back got better. But I woke up with the water 10 inches above the floorboards in the cabin.

"I began pumping every 15 minutes and then had to make it every 10. I decided to try to make San Diego before she sank."

She said she pumped for at least 120 hours and manned the sails while attempting to reach San Diego.

The small boat, which has no motor, was equipped with an SOS transmitter. "But I couldn't work it and man the pumps and handle the sails all at once," she said.

Several ships passed within sight, she said, but she was unable to attract their attention.

Two Candidates File With Board

Griffin H. Rouse, who announced his candidacy for re-election to the office of Pitt County Coroner last week, officially filed as candidate Saturday with the Pitt Board of Elections.

B. D. Forrest Jr. of Chicod also filed Saturday as a candidate for constable of Chicod Township.

Rouse and Forrest are the only two candidates that have filed so far for those two offices.

'Body' Walked Up To Searchers

SPRINGWATER, N. Y. (AP)—A dozen firemen were sitting the ashes of a migrant workers' building yesterday when the "body" they were hunting for strolled sleepily from a nearby barn and asked what was going on.

Alexander Ross, a Negro farm laborer, said he jumped from a second story window when the fire broke out Sunday night. He crossed the road and went back to sleep in the barn.

Red Denunciation Cheered At Meet

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Delegates to the 10th Inter-American Conference took a carnival holiday this Shrove Tuesday after an opening session which cheered an attack on communism.

Colombia's foreign minister, Evaristo Sauris, responding to the welcoming address of President Col. Marcos Perez Jimenez of Venezuela yesterday, was interrupted by applause for his denunciation of "the forces of evil which operate in darkness."

Sauris called for defense of the continent "wherever totalitarian aggression presents itself." He urged the countries of the Western Hemisphere to adopt "the necessary measures to impede or uproot all activity which tends to encourage the dominance of international creeds which threaten the free nations of the world."

Communist infiltration of the hemisphere is one of the chief topics of the conference, attended by the foreign ministers of the United States and 19 Latin-American nations. But Latin Americans consider economic matters, including U. S. financial plans, the chief item.

The first plenary session met in a magnificent, wire-protected auditorium at nearby University City only about an hour after a group of Puerto Rican Nationalists shot and wounded five members of the U. S. House of Representatives in Washington.

One of the Puerto Ricans told police they timed their attack in an attempt to influence opinion at the conference against the United States, which has granted Puerto Rico commonwealth status and offered it full independence whenever the islanders want it.

Secretary of state Dulles issued a statement saying he was "deeply shocked." Arturo Morales Carrión, Puerto Rican undersecretary of state and a member of the U. S. delegation, expressed distress and said "I think it was an act of sheer lunacy."

Greenville Home Damaged By Fire

Fire did considerable damage to the living room of a house at 1705 Smith Street Sunday night about 11:30.

Firemen stated that the house was occupied by George Williams and that an overstuffed chair caught fire after the family had gone to bed. The living room was ablaze when the family discovered the fire.

Fire Chief George Gardner said that the fire was confined to the living room which was considerably damaged and that the rest of the house received smoke damage only. Firemen battled the blaze for approximately a half hour.

The "foot" as a unit of measurement started out as the length of a man's foot and the length has varied at different times and places from 8 to 20 inches.

Waterfront Tie-Up Is Again Threatening N.Y.

By EUGENE LEVIN

NEW YORK (AP)—The prospect of a new major tieup confronted the Port of New York today as AFL teamsters, moving against the old longshore union, decided to picket piers in the huge harbor.

Police, ordering special details for the waterfront, said the Eastern Conference of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters met for three hours last night and then scheduled the picketing for this morning.

Earlier a teamsters' official had warned of picketing at about half the piers in the port, the largest in the world. However, today's police announcement said the teamsters planned to picket all but three piers in Manhattan, all but the Bush Terminal and one pier in Brooklyn, and all piers on Staten Island.

The teamsters moved in the latest crisis in the struggle between the AFL and the now-independent International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA), which has been refusing since Friday to load or unload trucks driven by members of Teamsters Local 807.

Graham Starting British Crusade

LONDON (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham opened his 12-week crusade for a spiritual reawakening in Britain with a revival service last night that drew a full house of 12,000 into London's Harringay Sports Arena. Thousands were unable to get in.

The 35-year-old American, in a blue lounge suit with a small microphone at a lapel, held the throng spellbound with an impassioned sermon in which he repeatedly asked, "Does God matter?" He led the gathering in Bible recitations and hymns.

Toward the end he called for persons ready to acknowledge Jesus Christ to come forward. Between 500 and 600 filed down the 25 aisles to confess their faith in a separate auditorium.

"So many, so many, thank God," said Graham, with head bowed. The hymn singing persisted after the worshippers headed home in sleet and rain. At their bus stops and in subway stations, they continued singing the old religious songs in which Graham had led them.

The evangelist's campaign, which he has reported largely American-financed, is backed by 1,800 British churches. Many London clergymen are cooperating and a choir of more than 1,000 was recruited from London churches for the opening service.

The evangelist said he knew that "in London tonight there is a great hunger for God." He asked the worshippers to pray "as you have never prayed before to bring about this revival of the spirit which holds the only hope for the salvation of the Western world and for peace."

District N.A.I.A. Tournament To Open At ECC Gym

Lenoir-Rhyne Opens Against Erskine Team

By JIMMY KELLY
Reflector Sports Editor

Four of the top small college teams in the Carolinas get together tonight in Memorial Gymnasium.

The reward for the victor in the two day tournament will be a trip to Kansas City, Missouri, next week to compete in the national finals of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. That's the reward. The more immediate objective is the championship of the twenty-sixth district (the Carolinas) of the N.A.I.A.

Teams competing in the tournament are host and defending champion East Carolina, second-seeded Erskine, Lenoir-Rhyne, and Presbyterian.

Erskine and Lenoir-Rhyne will open the action in the tournament tonight at 7:15. East Carolina and Presbyterian will follow with their games at 9:15.

Tomorrow night's action will have tonight's losers playing for the consolation title at 7:30 and tonight's winners meeting for the championship at 9:15.

ECC Favored

East Carolina enters the tournament as favorite, but not overwhelmingly so. The Pirates are actually the top team in the tournament with a 21-1 record for the season and the North State Conference's regular season and tournament championships. They lost only to Western Carolina during the season.

Erskine, the number one challenger (on paper, at least), enters with a 21-2 record and the South Carolina Little Four regular season and tournament championships. They lost only to Belmont Abbey and Rollins College.

Lenoir-Rhyne enters with the backing of a season's record that brought them the North State's second position in regular season play. Presbyterian has a record of 16-7 for the year and the runners-up positions in both regular season and tournament play for the Little Four.

While team championships will be the aim of the squads involved, there will be at least one individual show going on tonight. East Carolina's center Bobby Hodges goes into the game just nine points shy of the career scoring record for the North State Conference. The big center has 1,951 points and needs only nine to tie the record set of 1,960 set last year by Western Carolina's Ronald Rogers.

Individual Aces

Hodges looms as the individual to watch in the tournament but he's expected to have plenty of competition for the individual honors. From the East Carolina squad, there are at least four others to pick from (Charlie Huffman, Don Harris, J. O. Thomas, and Cecil Heath). Erskine

Charles Ranked As Top Contender

NEW YORK (AP)—Essard Charles has replaced Cuba's Nino Valdes as the No. 1 heavyweight contender, Willie Pep has dropped to the bottom of the featherweight rankings, and Eddie Chavez has taken over the No. 1 position among the lightweights.

These were among the major changes made in the March Ring magazine ratings, released today by editor Nat Fleischer.

Valdes lost his top-ranking because of his very close decision over unranked Archie McBride in a Havana bout. The big Cuban dropped to second behind the former heavyweight champion who gets another crack at the heavyweight crown June 17 when he meets Rocky Marciano.

Pep, twice-holder of the featherweight crown fell all the way from the No. 1 ranking to tenth as a result of being stopped in two rounds by 20-year old Lulu Perez. The young Brooklyn boxer-percher advanced from fifth to third among the 126-pounders.

Wallace (Bud) Smith, the Cincinnati clouter who was the No. 1 lightweight challenger lost to third welterweight Joe Mitchell. Chavez of San Jose, took over first and Cuba's Orlando Zulueta moved up from third to second.

Johnny Bratton also got the axe. The Chicago welterweight, drubbed by Johnny Saxton, plummeted from third to tenth among the 147-pounders.

Nate Brooks, the newly crowned North American bantamweight champion, vaulted into a No. 4 ranking as the result of his title victory over Billy Peacock.

has its stars, 6-10 Charles Whaley, 6-6 Ralph Moore, and 6-3 Julian Robinson. Presbyterian has a pair of South Carolina All-Stars, forward Dave Thompson and center Ronald Ragan. Lenoir-Rhyne comes into the game with guard Floyd Propst and center Raeford Wells as the men to watch.

Three of the teams took workouts in the college gym yesterday. East Carolina worked out lightly under Assistant Coach Earl Smith before giving the floor to Coach Norman Sloan's Presbyterian team. The Blue Stockings then left the court to let Erskine go through a limbering-up drill and review. Lenoir-Rhyne is expected to arrive today but the Bears worked out on their home court in Hickory yesterday afternoon under Coach Jim Hamilton's supervision.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the two-day tournament are still on sale at various places and from various individuals. Members of the Rotary Club, the sponsoring organization, are directing the ticket sales with Sigma Rho Phi fraternity members assisting in contacting college students. Bissette's Drug Store is directing the downtown ticket sales.

The tickets will be available at the gym tonight with prices leveled at $2.50 for the tournament and $1.50 for single night admissions. A capacity crowd is expected for tonight's round.

Unranked Boxer Knocks Off Henry

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP)—Unranked heavyweight Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, had a victory over eighth-ranked Clarence Henry under his belt today and high hopes of taking on another top contender.

The 22-year-old, tireless puncher from Rockaway Beach, N. Y., won a unanimous 10-round decision over the Los Angeles heavyweight last night at the Eastern Parkway Arena and got a promise of another booking at the Parkway arena.

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner said he will try and pit Jackson against Nino Valdes, second-ranking heavyweight Dan Bucceroni, third ranking heavyweight or Jimmy Slade, third-ranking light heavyweight, for an April 5 10-rounder.

The hard-hitting New Yorker, with one loss in 17 starts, fought his first main 10-rounder Jan. 25 when he knocked out Rex Layne in six at the Eastern Parkway Arena.

Jackson started out fast in the televised bout, using a left hook to the body and a right cross to the head in piling up the points. Tommy's heavier punches staggered Henry several times in the action-packed bout and opened a cut over his right eye in the first round.

Henry rocked Jackson a couple of times, too, but the young heavyweight recuperated quickly and tore back at Clarence, much to the delight of the pro-Jackson crowd of 1,500.

The votes for Jackson were: Referee Miller, 7-3; Judge Nick Camboli, 6-4 and Judge Charley Shortell, 8-2.

Jackson weighed 194½. Henry 182.

Kentucky Regains Top In Sportswriters Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—Kentucky's all-winning basketball team regained its favorite spot today when the nation's sports writers and sportscasters named the Wildcats No. 1 team in the country.

Ousted from the top spot for the past two weeks by Duquesne, Kentucky rolled back with first-place votes from 59 of the 120 experts who cast ballots. On the usual basis of 10 points for first, nine for second and so forth, Kentucky totaled 964 points.

Kentucky, which headed the poll from the third week of the season through the ninth, completed its regular season last night by defeating Alabama 68-43 for a 24-0 mark. Duquesne upset by Cincinnati Friday and again by Dayton Saturday, tumbled all the way to fourth place.

Indiana's defending National Collegiate basketball champions took over the second spot with 722 points and Western Kentucky also ranked ahead of Duquesne with 707. Both teams moved up one place in the rankings.

Duquesne, which received 934 points a week ago fell to 870. The Dukes snapped out of their slump last night by thumping St. Bonaventure 67-55.

Oklahoma A&M also suffered from an upset—by Wichita. It fell one place to sixth while Notre Dame's Irish moved up one spot to take No. 5.

Louisiana State, a 76-53 victor over Mississippi last night, joined the top 10 in seventh place. La Salle was right behind in eighth. George Washington fell one notch to ninth and Seattle dropped one to 10th.

All the votes were counted before last night's games.

Kansas Looming As Major Threat For Court Crown

By RIP WATSON
NEW YORK (AP)—March doesn't always come in like a lion, but the Kansas basketball team seems to.

National Collegiate basketball champions in March 1953 and finalists for the same title last year, Kansas opened its March drive last night by trouncing Colorado 83-62 in the Big Seven Conference's clutch game of the year.

All Phog Allen's boys need now is a victory over Missouri Saturday to clinch their third successive conference crown—and another trip to the NCAA Championships.

Allen Kelley, 6-4 B. H. Born and Harold Patterson, all veterans of last year's scrappy finalists, starred as Kansas jumped off to a 20-10 first quarter lead over Colorado's sophomore-weighted team. Born, successor to Clyde Lovellette, the 1952 hero, led all the scorers with 23 points while restricting Colorado star Burdette Halderson to 5. Kelley chipped in 20 and Patterson 13. Kansas now has a 10-1 conference record and Colorado 9-2 with one to play.

Kentucky, which regained first place in the Associated Press poll today, shared the spotlight with Kansas by walloping Alabama 68-43 to complete its schedule with a 24-0 mark. The Wildcats, only undefeated team in the country still haven't assured themselves of the Southeastern Conference crown however.

They need more than a perfect record because Louisiana State also has a clean conference record after its 76-53 victory over Mississippi. The Bayou Tigers who took over the No. 7 spot in the poll still must beat Tulane March 6. If they win that one, as expected, they'll meet Kentucky for the conference crown—and NCAA bid—at N. Shreveport, March 9.

Duquesne, which also boasted a clean slate until a disastrous week-end, snapped out of its slump by trouncing St. Bonaventure's 67-55. That boosted the fourth-rated Dukes' record to 23-2.

Indiana, which edged Kansas 69-68 in the NCAA finals a year, will have to beat Illinois' red-hot club Saturday if it hopes to qualify for a second straight title. Indiana leads the Big Ten with an 11-2 record, but Illinois boosted its record to 10-3 by nipping Northwestern 84-82, its seventh straight conference win.

Iowa stayed in the race by walloping Ohio State 84-71 as it closed its conference play with an 11-3 record. If Illinois should upset Indiana, a three-way tie would result, with only six days to resolve it before the conference champion's first NCAA date.

By contrast, the Southwest Conference's problem is simple—they only have a two-way tie. The race ends tonight with Rice (8-3) meeting Southern Methodist (6-5) and Texas (8-3) taking on Texas Christian (5-6). A playoff is in prospect, however for both Rice and Texas are strong favorites.

The Border Conference also should crown a champion tonight, with league-leading Texas Tech (10-1) playing host to West Texas State (9-2). Both the Southwest and Border champions qualify for the NCAA Tournament.

Another game with tournament bearing has sixth-ranked Oklahoma A&M playing host to Tulsa. The Aggies lead the Missouri Valley Conference with a 7-1 mark and must beat Tulsa tonight and St. Louis Saturday to better Wichita's 8-2 mark.

Cornell widened its lead in the Ivy League by beating Dartmouth 73-53. But the Big Red (10-2) must play its last two games away from home against challenging Princeton (9-3) and Pennsylvania (8-3).

The Washington Senators have scheduled 33 spring training games, 20 of them against National League opposition.

Little Leaguers Expanding In Two Four-Team Leagues

Red Sox Flag Hopes Sag With Injury To Williams

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The opening of the 1954 American League season is still six weeks away but the pennant stock of the Boston Red Sox, faced with the loss of Ted Williams, has already slumped to almost microscopic proportions.

The 35-year-old outfielder suffered a fractured left shoulder in the first 10 minutes of spring training yesterday when he stumbled and fell while chasing a sinking liner off the bat of Hoot Evers.

There's no telling just how much of the upcoming campaign he'll miss, but examining physicians said, "He will not be able to lift his arm or swing a bat for six weeks."

Williams himself is more optimistic and predicts he will be in the opening day lineup against the Philadelphia Athletics April 13.

"I'm going to work that much harder to get in shape," he said.

The entire upper portion of his body was placed in a cast, but Jack Fadden, the club's trainer, said that he "will be able to run as soon as the pain leaves his shoulder."

Some observers had been giving the Sox an outside chance of winning the American League pennant after they acquired outfielder Jackie Jensen and pitcher Leo Kluely returned from the Army.

After Manager Lou Boudreau had accompanied Williams to the hospital, the Red Sox went through their opening drill under the direction of Coach Del Baker. Veteran third sacker George Kell and catcher Sammy White signed their contracts in time to take part in the practice.

At Lakeland Fla., Manager Fredie Hutchinson of the Detroit Tigers indicated that shortstop Harvey Kuenn would be dropped at least to the No. 2 spot in the batting order. Kuenn cracked out 209 hits as a leadoff man in 1953 and Hutchinson figures "he should drive in more runs for a fellow with that many base hits."

A first-class battle for second base was shaping up in the camp of the Milwaukee Braves. Jack Dittmer last year's regular, and Danny O'Connell secured from Pittsburgh, are the competitors, and Manager Charley Grimm believes it may take a month before he decides.

In other spring training news, outfielder Ralph Kiner of the Chicago Cubs is seven pounds under his weight of last year and says he is looking forward to a fine season.

Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's burly catcher, was bedded with a heavy cold in his back.

Ray Jablonski again was tabbed by Manager Eddie Stanky as the regular St. Louis Cardinals' third baseman... outfielder Willie Mays was discharged from the Army and is expected to join the New York Giants sometime today.

Manager Fred Haney sent the Pittsburgh club through a session of limbering-up exercises.

Pitcher Early Wynn of Cleveland, outfielder Jim Busby of Washington and infielder Granny Hamner of the Philadelphia Phillies all signed 1954 contracts.

Williams Vowing To Fool Doctors

By JOE RICHLER
SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Ted Williams vowed today he'd fool the doctors who gloomily predicted he would miss the baseball season's opener because of a fractured collarbone.

"Don't bet against my playing in the opening game of the season," the Boston Red Sox slugger said. "I'll be ready. I'll get over this sooner than they think. I've fooled the doctors before and I'll fool 'em again."

Dr. Russell R. Sullivan, chief surgeon of the orthopedic division of the Boston City Hospital, who set the fracture and placed the injured left shoulder in a cast, was not so optimistic.

"It was a clean break and X-rays show a quite satisfactory position," he said. "But Ted must be in the cast a minimum of three weeks and cannot swing a bat for about six weeks. It is highly doubtful if he'll be ready for the season opener."

The Red Sox open their season at Philadelphia April 13, six weeks from today. It is estimated Williams would need at least two weeks of batting practice and conditioning, after his recovery, before he could play in a regular game.

The injury, his second of a serious nature in less than four years, occurred less than an hour after he arrived at Payne Field for his first spring workout of the season. He had been shagging flies in his customary left field position for 18 minutes when he faced into left center for a liner hit by Hoot Evers. The ball sank sharply and Williams, realizing he couldn't catch up with it tried to stop. He stumbled and landed heavily on his left shoulder.

He arose slowly, obviously in great pain. He grabbed his left shoulder and immediately strode toward the clubhouse behind right field. As he passed teammate Billy Goodman, he grimaced in pain and muttered: "I heard something pop. I think something broke."

After Red Sox trainer Jack Fadden administered first aid, Williams was whisked away to a doctor.

X-rays will be taken again tomorrow, after which Williams will return to his winter home in Miami Fla.

Williams, 35, pointed out he came back sooner than expected in 1950 when he fractured his left elbow making a spectacular catch in the All-Star Game in Chicago.

He also missed most of spring training and the first 10 days of the 1941 season because of a chipped left ankle but finished with a sensational 406 batting average, the highest major league mark since George Sisler's 420 in 1922.

Greenville's Little League Baseball Program Was Officially Expanded To Two Leagues And Eight Teams Last Night

Sponsors of the program elected separate slates of officers for each league named Recreation Director Warren Carroll as Commissioner of the program. Carroll has been supervising the Little League play since it was first organized in Greenville.

The new leagues will be known as the Tar Heel and the North State leagues. Boys who are assigned to the Tar Heel League are those who have odd house numbers on the Commissioner's official roll. Boys with even house numbers will play in the North State League.

The new ruling on league assignments does not affect boys who are under contract to an organized team. Those boys will continue to work with the same outfit.

Teams in the new Tar Heel League are the Exchange, Moore, and Elks teams from the old Little League program. A four team is expected to be added before the season starts. The option for the franchise has already been offered but it has not been picked up yet.

Teams in the North State League include one new squad and three hold-over aggregations. The new squad is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The older squads are sponsored by the Jaycees, Lions, and Kiwanis clubs.

Officials for the Tar Heel League, selected last night, are Tom Henderson, president; Erskine Duff, vice-president; and Mrs. Harry Forbes, secretary-treasurer. Officials for the North State will be O. C. Noble, president; Carlos Murray, vice-president; and J. C. Barnhill, secretary-treasurer.

The program sponsors last night decided to hold the cash now on hand for the program in a common treasury for both leagues.

Registration for the program ended Saturday at noon. Boys who had not signed contracts at that time will have to go before a certification board before they are eligible to compete in the program. Around 175 boys are expected to take part in the program during the coming summer months.

The Yankees and Dodgers will play a night exhibition game at Miami, March 19.

Rich Oilman Strikes A 'Gusher' With Controversial Radio-TV Facts Forum

By JAMES DEVLIN
 NEW YORK (AP)—A fabulously rich Texas oilman has struck a roaring gusher of controversy in the field of public affairs.

He is H. L. (Haroldson Lafayette) Hunt of Dallas, financial backer of the Facts Forum radio and television programs.

Associates say he is worth two billion dollars, that he makes one million a week.

Maybe he's the richest man in the United States, if not the world. Hunt himself won't discuss the fortune that he started with $50 in 1921.

The controversy over Facts Forum and how objective it is has swirled for the past several months.

Hunt vows the programs offer fair and impartial discussion of public issues and that they merit the three million dollars a year of free air time they are getting.

Critics term the forum a political propaganda machine giving major weight to conservatism and isolationism. Some charge it is a front to push Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) into the presidency. They say it should not get free air time.

Like most men of great wealth, Hunt shuns personal publicity. But he came to New York recently and called a news conference at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to defend Facts Forum against the attacks.

The conference was called at a time when the New York Post was running a series of articles critical of Hunt. The Post was not represented at the conference. The Post said the next day Hunt had refused to see a Post reporter.

The conference threw some light on Hunt's rise to riches, his personality and his political philosophy.

Before his arrival, an associate was asked if there were any truth in a seemingly fantastic rumor that he was worth 500 million dollars. Not half a billion, but more said the associate. He declared Hunt had 400 million in natural gas holdings alone "and that is only a by-product of his oil holdings."

Besides oil wells and oil properties he owns vast ranches and farms, raises cattle and pecan nuts, and has a number of other business interests.

He reputedly is the largest independent oil operator in the United States, with so many oil wells he does not have the exact number at hand.

His only comment on his personal finances was that he was wiped out as a cotton planter in 1921 when the price dropped from $1.25 a pound to 10 cents.

"So I went into the oil fields with $50," he related. His first investment was in an oil well at Lake Village, Ark. It gushed oil wells have been gushing for him ever since.

Hunt, comfortably dressed in a light tan suit, white shirt and light-colored bow tie, sat on a sofa in a suite as he talked.

He is a tall, white-haired man of 65, well built and with evidence of a Texas tan. He speaks quietly and slowly, carefully considering his words.

His manner was genial throughout and he smiled frequently.

He appeared untrifled when asked about accusations that his forum is anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic anti-labor, anti-Negro and pro-Fascist.

He labels all such accusations as "ridiculous." He said the forum was anti-Communist but that other wise its sole aim was to increase popular interest in public issues.

He said it never contributed a nickel to McCarthy for campaign expenses or speaking tours that it supports no candidates and does no lobbying.

Hunt is married and the father of four sons and two daughters. The girls, incidentally, had a hand in the founding of Facts Forum.

He said that, in 1948, his original intention was to establish a foundation devoted to agriculture to be known as "Farm Facts Foundation."

He intended to set up several $500,000 farm units where young men not going to college would work a six-hour day, learning scientific farming, soil conservation and reforestation.

While he was considering that, he said, his daughters suggested there was no food shortage and asked why he didn't do something to get people more interested in public affairs.

Robert H. Dedham, a young Texas attorney, was interested in the same idea. From these discussions there developed Facts Forum with Dedham as president and Hunt as chief financial backer.

The daughters, Margaret (Mrs. Al G. Hill) and Caroline (Mrs. Lloyd B. Sand), both of Dallas presently are active in neighborhood discussion groups one of the forum activities.

Facts Forum currently conducts four radio or television programs.

Hunt said free air time is given to them on the ground that they are educational and are impartial discussions of public issues. He estimated the time is worth three million dollars a year.

The Providence Journal and Evening Bulletin launched the first major investigation of Facts Forum in a series of eight articles last December and January. The gist of their findings was:

"... The major criticism that can be made of Facts Forum is that its net effect is to disseminate fear, suspicion and divisive propaganda."

"The consistent pattern of its 'both sides' broadcasts is to reduce all national issues to:

"Isolationism, ultra-conservatism and McCarthyism—versus—treason or stupidity."

"The results of this, if carried into the entire field of mass communications, could be to increase the pressure dividing segments of American society to increase group hatreds, and to implant suspicions which did not exist before."

The New York Post declared in its series:

"Facts Forum, stubbornly insisting upon its political chastity, has announced that its relationship with Sen. McCarthy has been greatly exaggerated."

"Since the nationwide propaganda machine and the junior senator from Wisconsin can scarcely be considered strange bedfellows, it is obvious its protest is motivated less by gallantry or outrage than by a fear of losing its tax-free status as a nonpartisan foundation."

The Post series carried page 1 headlines such as "How Facts Forum Sells McCarthy (Tax-Free)" and "Joe McCarthy's $1,000,000 Machine."

Dan Smoot, commentator on one radio program, follows a format of giving one side of the question first and then the other side.

The critics argue that Smoot gives the liberal side in a perfunctory manner but gives a real emotional pitch to the conservative arguments that close the program.

Hunt says he regards Smoot as more conservative than himself but that about one third of the mail received by Facts Forum complains that too much stress is placed on the liberal side.

A Facts Forum TV program presents two senators taking opposite sides on an issue of the day. Critics say these are slanted with a "dumbbell" on the liberal side and an adroit speaker on the conservative side. Hunt denied this.

As examples of fair exchange, he said Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) and Kefauver (D-Tenn) debated the Bricker amendment, and Senators Gore (D-Tenn) and Dirksen (R-Ill) the Tennessee Valley Authority.

A third program, Hardy Burt's State of the Nation, consists of interviews with various governors, often questioned by newsmen from papers of opposite political views. Burt who attended the news conference, said Hunt never told him whom to interview or what to ask.

But also moderates the fourth program, Answers for Americans, in which a panel answers questions sent in by listeners. This has been criticized as being slanted with conservative "experts." Hunt said every effort was made to get a balanced panel.

He says he himself probably could be classed as a conservative Democrat. He favored Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the presidency and later supported Dwight Eisenhower's candidacy.

He insisted that his own views and Facts Forum were separate and distinct.

"There is no thought of using Facts Forum to elect Republicans and defeat Democrats," he said.

He said motives behind Communist criticism of Facts Forum as Fascist-tinted were obvious. But he said he believed criticism from "responsible publications" resulted from misunderstanding and not a desire to smear.

He said Facts Forum, while named specifically as an anti-Communist movement.

"We do not like to be 'anti,'" he declared. "We are for things, for freedom of the individual."

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTNER, AP Real Estate Editor

How to keep informed about new inventions for the home is no more of a problem for the householder than it is for the men who design and build our houses.

Virtually every convention of lumber dealers, home builders, or architects is accompanied by a sideshow exhibiting the latest wonders in equipment and materials. But pastimes other than higher education seem to attract the most attention at conventions. So delegates—luckier than reporters—can wait till they get home to read about what's new in the home sideshows.

Here is a summary of some of the things for the home which have been on view this season:

An electric fuse that lights up when it blows out and stays lighted until you turn the face of it one notch to a new contact is now on the market. It is a repeater fuse with six positions for new contacts—sort of combining the functions of a circuit breaker and ordinary fuse with the signal light added for good measure.

Michael L. Kaplan, head of the manufacturing company producing it, tells us that the big advantage of the little neon indicator in this fuse is to avoid shock when fumbling around in the dark to find which fuse to replace. The retail price is around 80 cents.

Tough and colorful plastic panels are now being made for patio roofs, porch balconies, windows, or wherever you want light transmission without transparency or glare.

This material is made out of a polyester resin produced by the chemical division of the United States Rubber Co. It looks like an opaque colored glass, but does not shatter. It is turned out flat, not corrugated. Fibrous glass prevents it from warping, denting or rolling. It is rated stronger than steel on a pound for pound basis. You can saw it with a hand saw, nail it, screw it, rivet it and caulk it with ordinary putty. Called "Tropiglas," probably because it is being used widely in Florida, it is being retailed for less than 75 cents a square foot in four pastel colors and white.

The university of Illinois Small Homes Council, with a grant from the Lumber Dealers Research Council has developed a new prefabricated panel system for building a house. Two men in one day can erect the exterior walls of a one-story house of approximately 1,000 square feet in size by using these panels, says the U. of I.

The big advantage is that you can use these panels for a house of almost any design or shape, in contrast to most prefabrication which is tied to a specific take-it-or-leave-it house plan.

The panels were exhibited at the recent convention of Northeastern Retail Lumbermen because they open the way for any lumber yard to get into the prefab business. Carpenters on the building site have no studs to cut and fit, no sills, plates, sheathing or siding to worry about. A panel with a window goes here, a panel with a door there, a solid panel someplace else, and the walls are up.

A new faucet with only one handle to control both the temperature and the force of water has now been

Crack-Down For Arizona Drivers

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona expects to revoke or suspend licenses of about 24,000 automobile drivers this year. It is hoped crack-down will reduce traffic accidents by 80 per cent.

"Motorists should know by now that the state means business in trying to make Arizona roadways safer for everybody," said Charles Penn, head of the State Highway Department's drivers license division. "By the end of the year they will be driving well within the law, in general, to keep their driving privileges."

Californian Has Climate Trouble

NEEDLES, Calif. (AP)—Alfred Snyder, high school principal in this Mojave Desert town, and his family, returned from a visit in Pennsylvania, coming back by way of Florida.

"Any bad weather on the trip? "Yes," said Snyder, "it rained constantly in Florida, and nowhere else."

Says Milk Needs A 'Kick' In U.S.

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—There's no kick in milk. That's one of the reasons many Americans don't drink the stuff, observes Prof. C.M. McCay, Cornell university nutritionist.

Other reasons are:

1. The average person pays little attention to the nutritional values.
2. A lot of people don't like the taste.

For those who insist on a "lift" from their beverages, McCay recommends mixing milk with tea and coffee.

For those who gag at the taste the professor suggests flavoring with chocolate or coffee or combining with tomato juice, lemon juice or cider. Also, soured milk products such as buttermilk and yogurt may please the milk-hater, he notes.

- PEAK OCTANE POWER to kill off knocks and pings
- POWER for quick starting in any weather
- POWER for fast warm-up
- POWER to resist cool-weather stalling
- POWER to take steep hills in stride
- POWER to pick up swiftly from a standstill

KNOCK AND PING in millions of cars are completely stopped by the peak octane power of this great new gasoline, particularly in the overwhelming majority of new cars and especially those with high-compression engines.

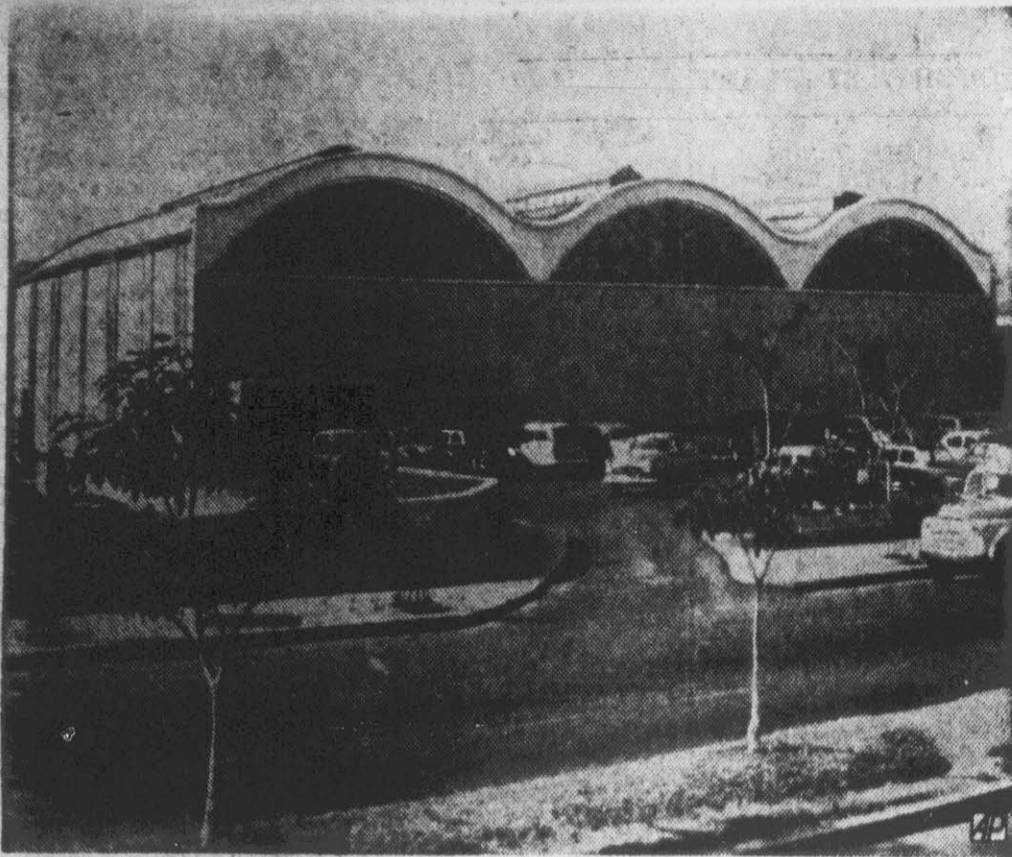

FULL PERFORMANCE is made possible for many other new cars which now have their sparks deliberately retarded to prevent knock.

COOL WEATHER STALLING and power loss caused by carburetor icing are effectively combated by an anti-stalling ingredient. Esso Extra was the first fuel to give you this extra value.

TOTAL POWER is controlled power and gives you greater safety under all-round driving conditions.

District Citizenship Workshop Urged To Further Support UN

"When we hear from delegates from all over the world, we learn that those who've been helped think of the United Nations as food, as relief from aches and pains and problems," said Mrs. Eleanor Roberts, consultant to the United Nations Economic and Social Council for the Associated Country Women of the World. Mrs. Roberts was guest speaker at the district citizenship workshop held here Monday for women in 31 counties of eastern North Carolina.

The district workshop was planned by the 17 participating women's organizations who sponsored the recent Fourth Annual Conference on World Affairs in Chapel Hill. Purpose of the symposium was to acquaint more persons — eastern North Carolina club women — with the functions and purposes of the United Nations, with practical means for gaining local support for the United Nations.

"In order for the United Nations to work," continued Mrs. Roberts, "you people back home must understand its purposes and you must support it. The work of the United Nations is actually your problem, too." "What you can do on a local level is to help in the formation of right attitudes of the people toward the United Nations; you can enlighten public opinion. Only when the United Nations gains the support of all of the people can the efforts and problems of all the victims of all the wars be helped."

When asked the cost of support of the various United Nations agencies, Mrs. Roberts commented, "Why is it that we all pledge mil-ions of dollars toward the winning of wars, and yet to build peace, we begin scrambling around in the bargain basement? We must all begin pulling toward peace, uniting our efforts as we do in time of war," urged Mrs. Roberts.

Also appearing on the morning program was W.E. Marshall, head of the Department of Social Studies at East Carolina College. Dr. Marshall explained the general organizations and working organs of the United Nations. In concluding his talk he commented, "So far the men have taken the lead in national and international situations and crises; I think it's time now to see what the women can do."

Presiding over the day workshop was Mrs. L. B. Pate of New Bern, chairman of the state home demonstration citizenship committee.

During the afternoon session, the 400 club women from eastern North Carolina heard a report by Bobby Parker of Macleesfield, State College student and recent International Farm Youth Exchange Delegate to Ireland. Bobby shared with the women his experiences living and working among the Irish farm families. He included in his remarks some of the impressions that the Irish had of America and offered suggestions for improving international relations. Special music on the afternoon program was furnished by the Pasquotank Home Demonstration Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Vernon James of Elizabeth City, Route 4.

The Greenville meeting was the first of two district citizenship workshops. The second is to be held tomorrow in Salemburg for club women in the southeastern areas of the state.

ART NOTES

By JAMES A. WALKER

During the past few years in the Greenville City Schools a reproduction collection, which is quite valuable in dollars and cents, as well as educationally, has been assembled.

The children in the public elementary schools purchased this collection of more than one-hundred pictures over a period of four years. Helpful in furthering the collecting and framing of reproductions have been the City School Board and the Parent-Teacher Associations of three of the white elementary schools. All of these reproductions are framed and hanging in the various grade schools.

Art lessons in school should not always involve only the use of crayon and paper. Meanings are made clearer by the proper use of reproductions. Sharing together a composition that has pleasing qualities is as much an art lesson as using crayons and paper.

THE GROWING TREND IN MOTORING

There's a very special pride in owning a 1954 Lincoln

You almost instinctively know the nature of the man who owns a Lincoln. He likes his living modern and his driving the same. He prefers simple, functional design to flash and bulk. He enjoys modern combinations of colors in his car as well as in his home.

He wants his car to express his taste, not his pocketbook.

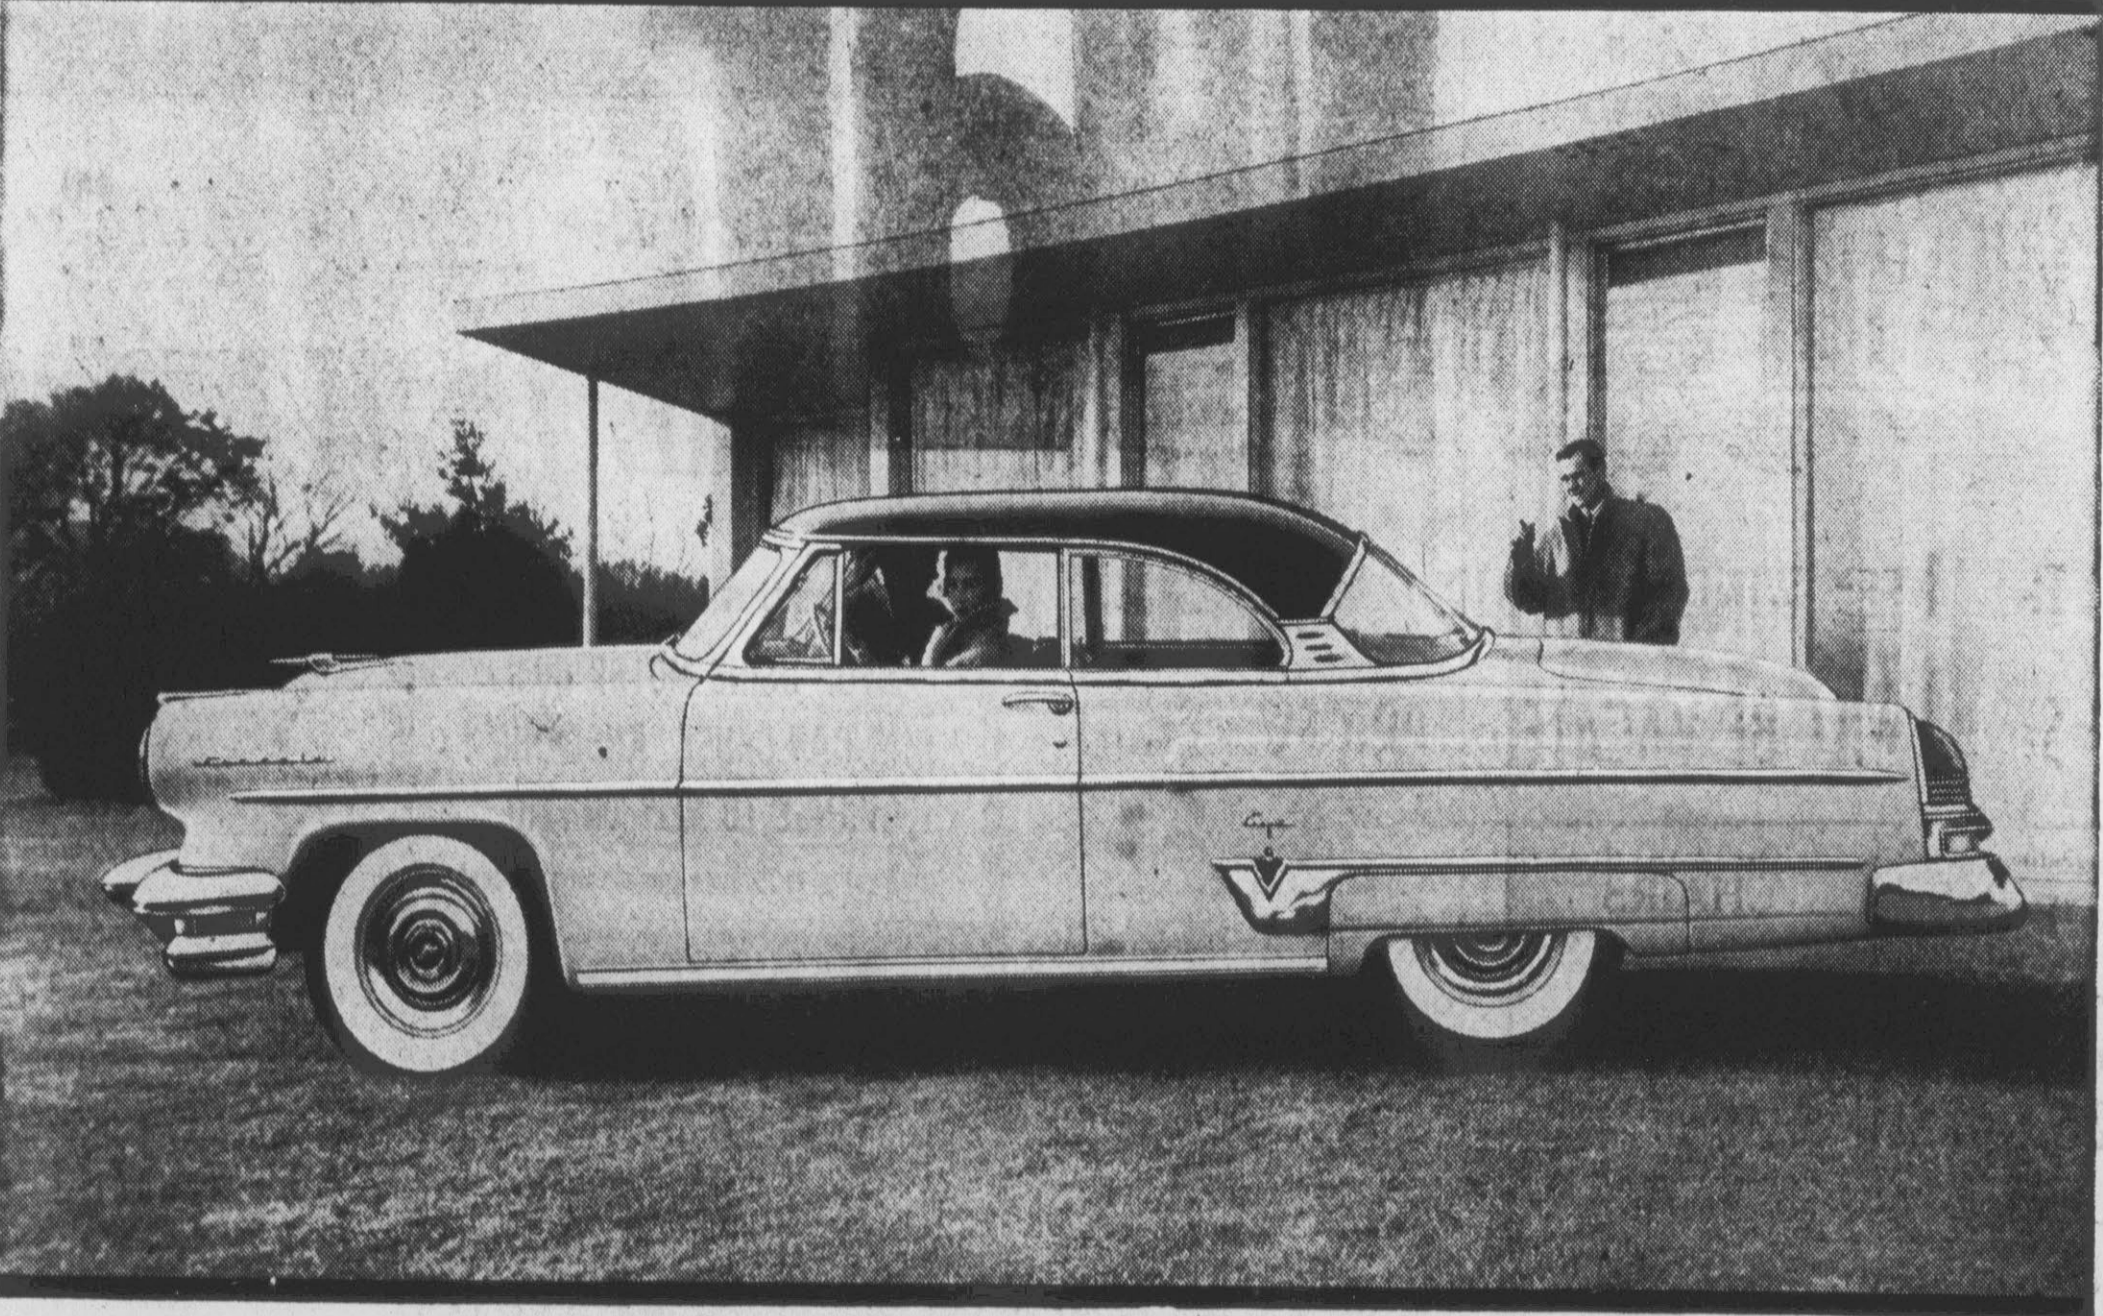

That's why he owns the new Lincoln for 1954.

When he steps into this fine car he knows he will have complete control and superb performance. He commands Lincoln's world-famous V-8 engine with its new 4-barrel carburetor which gives that extra surge when he needs it. He has complete confidence on curves and rough roads because he knows he rides in the only automobile in the fine car field with ball-joint front suspension.

The Lincoln owner believes in and gets convenience. His lightest touch operates Lincoln's optional features—power steering, power brakes, the 4-way power seat, and electric power window lifts.

Only by driving and then owning the new Lincoln for 1954 can you feel that very special pride. We invite you to take the first step by trying a new 1954 Lincoln or Lincoln Capri today.

Performance proof: Lincoln again won 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th places over all stock cars in the 1,912-mile Mexican Pan-American Road Race.

The Doctor Disagrees

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX
 "SINCE she is present," Dr. Bowser said, smiling upon Shelly "I'll ask the originator of the idea to set it before the Society. Mrs. Carr—" He had to rap for order because the doctors were still buzzing to each other about lay interference in medical matters being a bad precedent to get established. First thing they knew all their meetings . . .

But Shelly, elegant in her black touched with glitter, lovely, young, was nothing to object to; the men might be a little wary of her presence in principle; they all gallantly admired her in particular.

"I didn't come to make a speech," she said in her soft, pretty voice, coming to take her stand before the table. "And I sure I don't need to make one. I've talked to most of you individually about the town's need for a night medical call service; I understand it should have the endorsement of your Society, and I do ask for that."

Briefly, to those who knew about it, and to those who did not—Mr. Prewett, Magistrate Cornfeld, Dr. Lewis—and Craig Talbot—she explained her idea, her readiness to supply the necessary telephone as an exchange; she spoke modestly clearly. It was an efficient scheme, efficiently thought out but hardly a man in the room recognized that feature. Craig Talbot did, however; his narrowed eyes, and the little smile about his lips, acknowledged his belated recognition of Shelly's efficiency. Tonight she was expensively dressed, beautifully groomed her blue eyes as wide as those of the doll he had called her, her voice as soft as the brush of feathers across one's cheek, but that same voice spoke thoughtfully of her intelligently developed plan. Well, doggone thought Craig Talbot. Kick him, someone, for a complete fool!

"Well, now," said the irrepressible Cornfeld, "I call that a very good idea! If you doctors had had a service like that a month ago Talbot there wouldn't a got his head cracked open."

"I thought of that," said Shelly softly.

There was a little more talk but the meeting seemed happy to have this thing which they could endorse. The doctors all signed up, including Dr. Lewis, and Shelly said their schedule of nights on duty would be sent to them by the first of the next week. Doctors not able to serve their designated time must give Mrs. Vandable twenty-four hours' notice.

"What if one of us gets drunk?" asked someone.

"You'd better be able to prove it," said someone else.

And the meeting broke up in laughter. Craig Talbot left without talking to anyone.

The elder Carrs had been out of town for a week or so, but the next morning Everett phoned to Shelly and asked her if she could stop in at his office during the day. She said yes, she'd come about nine. And how had the trip been?

She told what she had last heard from Stephen and hung up.

"Wonder what he wants?" she mused, returning to her breakfast. "I'll bet you're due to find out," said Myra.

Shelly, of course, did find out what her father-in-law wanted. He presented her with a delicate shell necklace bought for her in Miami, and said he liked her in blue, then he got right to the point. He was glad to know that Craig Talbot's matter with the Medical Society had been cleared away. In short, he was glad not to have to fire him as plant doctor.

"I'm glad too, Father Carr. He's a very good doctor."

"Yes seems to be." He eyed her shrewdly. "You still working in that office?"

"Yes. I rather like it."

"Don't know that Stevie would—but maybe it's not a bad thing for a time. I mean, you can keep your eye on the man, and try to straighten him out when he gets off course."

Shelly stiffened. "I don't think he'd accept much advice from me."

"I don't think he'd accept it from anybody. Independent chap. But maybe—oh, you know the town better than he does. Try to keep him from insulting the wrong people, Shelly!"

"His manners are perfect."

"Yes," agreed Everett dryly. "Especially when he's saying something nasty."

She looked distressed. "He knows his job . . ." she tried to offer as argument.

"I think he does too," Everett agreed. "That's why I hope you can help him get a little better adjusted to the townfolk and to the plant men." He leaned toward her. "Try to get him straightened out, Shelly, and try to keep him that way."

She smiled and stood up. "I think I can promise you to do that," she said confidently.

The days went by, and the weeks. Stephen's letters came in bunches, with long stretches in between when Shelly did not hear at all. She scarcely realized that her work at the office was helping her not to worry too much about Stephen, not to miss him too much. Her days were full; she came home to a cheerful house to Myra's sensible and picturesque chatter to Ike's bulk and strength. Agnes and Myra between them ran the house perfectly; Shelly could again give her Sundays to the Everett Carrs, when they were in town, without resenting the obligation. Her position had changed somewhat in the family. She knew it, without the ability to tell just how that change was evident. Largely, she thought "it was in her own attitude toward Stephen's family."

She had never deserved their criticism of Stephen's choice in wives. She had offered no argument, but had resented their disapproval. Now that feeling had somewhat dissolved—for Shelly.

The Carr women—May Anna, Ruth and Kate—still could and did carry on their complicated social life of club meetings, church affairs, card parties, teas and wedding receptions, calls paid and repaid, but Shelly no longer realized their failure to include Stephen's wife in their plans. She had used to say she did not care when she was not invited. Now she really did not care. And when, as sometimes happened, she was invited to an important function she was able to refuse graciously without hurting anyone, and without involving herself in anything which might interfere with her work.

These spring days, her whole life was more pleasant. Sometimes she gave thought to the change—when she had time. She kept regular hours at the office and managed things there with an increasingly sure touch. Sometimes she wondered why Craig let her make so many decisions, and carry them out—but he did let her, and that was all right so long as her schemes were effective.

The night call service was going full blast with the expected few hitches—sometimes from the doctors, themselves. Dr. Appleman, for one, was not always available on his duty nights. More often, trouble came from the patients. Myra had a firm hand with these recalcitrant folk. Shelly liked to watch the girl take a call; the slim young woman with her creamy skin and lustrous eyes, her rich voice and even richer speech, could talk to almost anyone with confidence and reassurance. Even to Miss Poller—Miss Pearl—on the night when she called in agitation because Roxie was sick and she didn't know which way to turn; she couldn't raise Dr. Lewis . . .

Myra promised to send a doctor. Miss Pearl's voice came over the wire as tense as the high notes of an uncertain soprano.

Does that tell-tale look on your face say change of life?

A great many women suffer "change of life" after forty. They tire easily, have "nerves", sleep poorly, are hard to live with. Their eyes and face get that "change" look.

Cardui has helped thousands of women to lose that "change" look. Cardui acts to (1) improve appetite, (2) thus build strength and resistance, (3) ease tension and nervousness—sleep better. Let triple-action Cardui help you feel better, look better and be your normal, cheerful self again. Get Cardui today. (Say: "card-you-ee").

CARDUI MONTHLY CRAMPS CHANGE OF LIFE

And Myra's rich calmness replied. "I'll send one of the men on call. He'll help you through this emergency, Miss Pearl. Tomorrow you can have your own Dr. Lewis."

She set the phone down for a minute.

"Which one she feuddin' with now?" asked Ike.

Myra looked up from the record sheet. "Dr. Snow . . ."

"Is he on call?" asked Shelly.

"No, ma'am. It's Dr. Talbot's turn to be called. I'd like it to be Snow, I'll admit. My nature bein' as low as it is. But on the other hand I'd like to be aroun' whin Dr. Talbot gits in that house."

"Why?" asked Shelly.

"If Miss Roxie needs a doctor in a hurry it's probably because she wants a shot for what she calls her 'heads'."

"You mean . . ."

"I don't mean anything," said Myra firmly. "Miss Roxie gits what she calls 'heads', and Dr. Lewis he usually gives her somethin' to relieve them. Miss Pearl fusses cause he wants five dollars, cash on the barrel head—"

"But tonight she's fussing because she can't get Dr. Lewis."

"Yes'm. Miss Pearl, she'll fuss about most anything. Please wait till I make this call . . ."

Craig answered and said he would go.

Irritate An Oyster And The Result Is A Pearl; Rich Harvest From Sea

By JOY MILLER
AP Newfeatures Writer
Ever wonder just how good your pearl necklace is?

The only sure way, unromantic as it sounds, is x-ray.
New processes have made artificial pearls look almost like the real thing. And although probably every body could tell the difference between a $100,000 strand of Oriental pearls and a dime store simulated string, some of the in-between varieties are tricky.

Even if you take your necklace to a jeweler for a quick appraisal, you might not find out.
If the jeweler looks down a pearl's drill hole and sees a mother of pearl head, you have only a cultured pearl. If he can't see anything but thinks you have a fine natural necklace, you could send it to a laboratory that has pearl x-ray machines.

You can do a pretty good detective job on your own, however, if you know the kinds of pearls, how man or the oyster makes them, and what to look for in a good pearl.

Pearls of greatest value are perfectly round, with a pinkish cast and a brilliant flawless skin without cracks, dents, scratches or blemishes. Size is a factor, of course, although a small perfect pearl is costlier than a large, irregular one.

Pearls, the only jewels produced by animal action, come in several shapes and shades. Besides round, they can be pear-shaped, for pendants; button, for rings; irregular, called baroque and used in various ornaments, and seed, which are very small pearls.

How does an oyster produce a pearl?
It is a product of irritation. When a grain of sand or tiny parasite accidentally enters the body of an oyster, the oyster protects himself (or herself) — some oysters change sex several times a year) by depositing layers of a pearly substance called nacre around the irritant. The thinner the layers, the more lustrous the pearl. Pearls produced in this way are called natural or Oriental.

When man puts the irritant — usually a mother of pearl pellet — inside the oyster, the resulting gem is called a cultured pearl.

The third variety has never been near an oyster. Artificial or simulated pearls are made from glass or plastic beads dipped in fish scale essence and then polished. The newest development is a kind of plastic bead that remarkably resembles a real pearl. But its lighter weight will quickly show the difference.

Prices extend from a low of perhaps 50 cents for simulated pearls to hundreds of thousands of dollars for the Orientals. A good pearl cultured necklace can range from $50 to thousands.

Dealers make no bones about the influx of cultured pearls depressing the natural pearl market. A good Oriental necklace can be bought today for from $800 to $1,000. A million dollar necklace before 1929 is available now for a mere $150,000. If you're in the high-price market, it's a good idea to shop around. Prices vary, sometimes considerably, from store to store.

As for the cultured variety, a price increase up to 20 per cent can be expected because of recent typhoons and flood in Japan, says the Imperial Pearl Syndicate, largest importers of cultured pearls in the United States. The pearls that weren't ruined are of poor quality, and that means good pre-war and pre-flood pearls will be placed on the market, but at higher prices.

The pearl is the American woman's favorite jewel, but some women can't, or shouldn't, wear pearls. Those whose perspiration has more than normal acidity can reduce their pearls to half-size in 10 years.

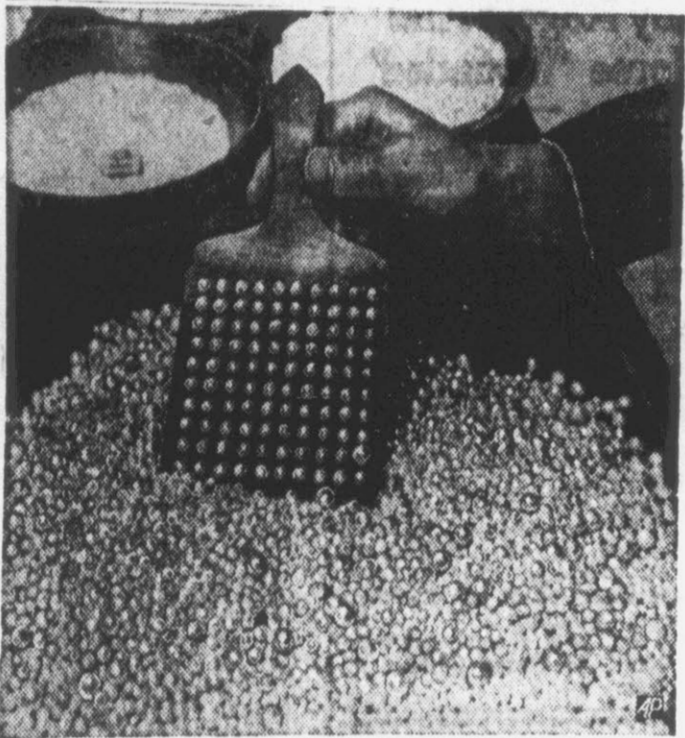

Other useful things to know: Pearls are rather soft and scratch easily. Their hardness is from 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 on a scale on which the diamond, the hardest jewel, is 10.

Never put perfume on them. The alcohol content is harmful. Keep them away from excessive heat; never get lipstick or fingernail polish remover on them. Remove your pearls while having a hairdo because the chemicals used are harmful.

Most good natural pearls come from the Persian Gulf, where for centuries thousands of men have depended on pearl diving for a living. Although this remarkable gem was known to ancient man, the cultured pearl industry as we know it today is only about 40 years old. Its story is one of ingenuity and courage — the courage, perhaps appropriately, being exercised by women.

MERMAID . . . A Japanese woman diver is about to descend into the murky waters to search for oysters used in pearl culture. The white headgear is to frighten sharks.

Early in the 20th century, a poor Japanese macaroni peddler named Kokichi Mikimoto perfected, after years of experimenting, a process conceived by the Chinese centuries before: inserting an irritant directly into the oyster's body to make it produce a pearl.

Now very old and very rich, Mikimoto still runs his own company and stands on his head 10 minutes each day to prove his vigor.

Japanese pearl farms use women divers because they have greater lung capacity and can stay under water longer. These women, called Amas, hunt the oyster for small wages. But it is an honored, glamorous profession, frequently handed down from mother to daughter.

The Ama begins her work at 16 and by her late 20's she is considered too old for its dangers. In searching for the big Ayoki oyster, the Ama wears a white costume and headress she hopes will scare away sharks. Carrying only a knife that is both tool and weapon, the Ama dives through the murky water as far down as 50 feet, finds a group of Ayoki, snatches one before they all burrow to safety and quickly surfaces.

In the undersea world lurk the giant clam, octopus, the sea star bristling with hundreds of poisonous spines, the hungry shark. The Ama risks her life with each descent, and sometimes loses it. After the oyster has been delivered to the fishing boat, he is taken to an operating room at the pearl farm, scrubbed to reduce the danger of infection and given an anesthetic. Then his shell is eased open, a short incision made with a scalpel and a mother of pearl pellet is inserted.

The oyster is closed, placed in a wire cage with other oysters and lowered into a quiet lagoon to build layers of pearl around the irritant for from three to eight years. Several times a year he is hauled up to see if he is healthy or needs a diet change.

The aesthetic, a recent development, has reduced the mortality rate among inoculated oysters from 80 to 10 per cent.

After the oysters are removed from the sea for the last time, they are opened and the pearls are carefully removed from the pearl sac. The gems are then sorted for color,

Corinne Calvet Has Turned Into Blonde

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Note to the blondes of America: Although Lana Turner has left your ranks Corinne Calvet has joined up.

The talkative French pastry is a ravishing blonde these days, and that's not the only thing new in her life.

"I have also got myself a new agent a new car, a new wardrobe and I am eating meat for the first time in my life," she says. "And I have a new attitude toward men. When I see one who looks attractive, I can look now."

Corinne is also entering a new phase of her career. She is making her first television film, a Screen Gems production for the Ford Theater. When I found her on the Columbia studio set her reddish locks were gone. She was combing her long blond hair.

She explained that all the changes in her life have come about since the end of her alliance to actor John Bromfield.

"I would have gone blond sooner," she said, "but he wouldn't let me. You know how men are—they like to keep their women down. They don't want their wives to be too appealing to other men."

"I like the new look. Before now, I have always been very natural. I had my own shade of hair, I never used false eyelashes and my makeup was very simple. Nothing was artificial. Now I do things differently. I like artifice; I think it is exciting."

About the meat business—she has not been a strict vegetarian. Following her mother's custom, she ate no red meat, only fish and fowl. Now she's a beef-eater, and she likes that too.

She regrets the end of her union to Bromfield.

"We had five wonderful years," she explained. "Then we got to the point where we could no longer get along together. . . ."

"There is no bitterness between us. John is a fine fellow."

She indicated she will be wary of a future alliance. Right now she's enjoying her fling. And she doesn't think a movie career and home routine can mix.

"Believe me I know," she sighed. "I tried it for five years. Perhaps a dramatic actress can do it, although they are temperamental and must be pretty hard on themselves."

"I think it's hard for a glamorous actress to combine her work with being a housewife. To be glamorous you have to have a certain aura about you. You can't just throw it off once you are home; it becomes phony that way. You have to have a bit of glamor all the time, and it doesn't look convincing in the kitchen."

Giant Apples In Coming Years

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Ever seen an apple weighing two pounds? In a few years it may be a familiar sight in the Swedish fruitmarkets. After 17 years of experimenting, Swedish Scientist Emil Johansson has succeeded in doubling the chromosomes of diploid apples and produced a tetraploid one — a giant, high quality apple weighing nearly two pounds.

He has been able for some time to grow big apples, but the quality was poor. Now he has solved the problem of combining size and quality.

Cheaper grades of cultured pearls result from larger irritants and less time in the ocean. You can see how a jeweler could easily tell a cheap cultured pearl by looking down the drill hole: the large mother of pearl bead would be covered by only thin veneer of pearl.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market backed down today after a fairly steady start.

The decline was well scattered throughout the list, and there was no selling pressure evident at any time.

Losses went to around a point at the outside. A few plus signs were as large as a point but most were small.

The pace of trading slowed as prices receded, and the rate was well under the two-million-share mark. Yesterday's total was 2,040,000 shares.

Motors were slightly higher as a group and rubbers and aircrafts did well, but otherwise the list was mixed to lower.

The market was steady in early dealings and then gradually retreated. The turn came about the time the House Ways & Means Committee voted to extend the present 53 per cent corporate tax rate.

Lower stocks included Southern Pacific, Texas Co., Allied Chemical, General Electric, Bethlehem Steel, Montgomery Ward, and Douglas Aircraft.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices steady to 25 higher. Tops of 25.25 at Scotland Neck and Weldon; 25.00 at Hillsboro, Enfield, Tarboro, Hamilton Wilson, Burgaw, Newton Grove, Clarkton, Wilmington, Colerain, Windsor, Jacksonville, Dunn, Mount Olive, Fair Bluff, Bailey, Goldsboro, Warsaw, Kenly, Beulaville, Kinston New Bern, Benson, Rocky Mount, Fayetteville, Smithfield, Rich Square and Woodland; 24.75 at Siler City, Whiteville, Laurel Hill, Elizabethtown, Freeman, Micro, Lumberton and Clinton.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Central North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers unsettled at 24; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 45-47; Asheville fryers and broilers steady at 23; eggs about steady, A large 40-44.

Single Bequest: Rope For Wife

NEW YORK (AP)—A Brooklyn man's will filed for probate in Surrogate's Court yesterday showed a single bequest to the wife—two dollars "for a good rope to hang herself."

The will, drawn up seven years ago by Stefan Wojcik, said he made the proviso "for all the misery she has caused me during my lifetime."

He also instructed the executor, his son Andrew, to make sure that his wife, Caroline, was not buried in the same grave.

The estate, assessed at in excess of $5,000, was willed equally to two sons and two daughters.

Block Lot For Parking Horses

NEW PHILADELPHIA Ohio (AP)—Common Pleas Court has granted a temporary injunction to prevent the village of Sugar Creek from building a parking lot for horses and buggies.

The village wants the lot for members of the Amish sect, who from on automobiles. Parking of the Amish buggies on the streets creates a traffic hazard, village officials contend.

But Robert E. Rees, who obtained the injunction and owns property next to the lot's proposed site, has other ideas. He says it would cause a barnyard atmosphere and be a health menace.

City Board Of Adjustment Acts On Two Appeals

The Greenville Board of Adjustment for zoning and building regulations of the city disposed of two appeals last night and continued a third appeal until its next meeting.

A petition signed by 31 people was presented to the board objecting to the use being made of a lot in the 1800 block of East Sixth Street on which a number of used automobiles are being kept by Walter Glenn Scott.

The matter came to the attention of the board at its last meeting, and because of the absence of Scott's attorney last night, the matter was continued until the next meeting of the board. The board also voted that definite action be taken on the matter at the next meeting.

Also referred to the board was a matter in which building inspector George Gardner had ordered work stopped on the construction of an addition to a garage on property owned by J. C. Youngblood at the corner of Colonial and Vance Streets. It was pointed out that because of the location of the house on the adjoining property owned by Youngblood, the extension of the garage already under construction would leave only 11 feet between it and the next house.

The board voted three to two in favor of allowing the construction of the garage to be completed, but the motion was not carried because of the provision that it takes a vote of four members of the board to override a ruling of the building inspector in such a case.

Also brought before the board was a question by W.A. Darden proposing the construction of a duplex apartment facing Johnston Street between Biltmore and Student Streets. The question centered around the fact that the proposed building would leave only a four-foot space between it and the house located behind it which faces Fourth Street.

The board approved the request for the construction after failing to find anything in the city code which governed the distances between the backs of buildings in residential areas.

Chairman Tom Webb presided at the meeting which was attended by board members S. E. West, John C. Clifford, Dr. S. M. Crisp and Joe Drenback.

Girl Scout Council Has Jurisdiction Broadened

The Greenville Girl Scout Council has been notified by National Girl Scout headquarters that its jurisdiction now includes all of Pitt County.

The new charter will be issued in the name of Pitt County Girl Scout Council, Incorporated. Mrs. C.A. White is president of the council. Mrs. J. Knott Proctor is executive secretary. At present there are 30 troops in Pitt County. The Girl Scouts have a summer camp at Camp Hardee, on Pamlico river, below Chocowinity.

"Enlargement of the Girl Scouts' jurisdiction is a forward step in the area," said the executive secretary, "and it is one which had been planned over a long period by local Girl Scout Council and representative men and women of other Pitt county towns. The ultimate aim is to make Girl Scouting available to all girls in the county who desire to join."

In addition to Greenville, only Farmville, Grifton, Bethel and Winterville have Girl Scout troops now. Farmville has an active organization and they have a well equipped "little house" where six Brownie and Girl Scout troops meet weekly.

Mrs. Proctor's report shows that a Brownie and a Girl Scout troop were organized in Grifton in 1952 and both groups are active.

A Negro Girl Scout troop was organized in Winterville last fall, and is doing good work.

Interest in Girl Scouting is increasing in Ayden and the council hopes to have an active troop there by next fall, the executive secretary reports.

In explaining the new plan of operation, the executive secretary said each town or community in the county that has active Brownie

N. C. Sales Tax Has Slight January Drop

RALEIGH (AP)—A small drop in sales tax collections last month was more than offset by increases from other tax sources, Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw reported today.

It was the second month in succession that sales collections have been below those for the same month last year, but the declines have been small.

With the exception of the sales and intangibles levies, all other tax sources registered healthy gains for the month, enabling the general fund to record an increase over February of last year.

General fund collections for the month totaled $14,836,564, a gain of $631,250. For the fiscal year to date Shaw said general fund revenues have totaled $89,286,677 for an increase of $2,384,041 over the same period of last year.

Income tax collections rose as the March deadline for returns approached. The month's total was $4,927,574, a gain of $130,441 over February of 1953. Shaw said income tax returns are arriving "in substantial quantities" and show an increase of approximately 10 per cent over the number filed by this time last year. He said that approximately 38 per cent of the individual returns are being filed on the state's new short form.

For the fiscal year to date income tax collections still show a decrease as compared with last year. They have totaled $20,110,994

In these and other counties there is an attitude of watchful waiting for developments in the big Senate contest, the several judicial and solicitor races, and with the ever present idea that courthouse offices are more important than either State or Federal.
