Woman's Club Plans Independence Dinner

Mrs. Fred Hall, chairman of the Americanism Committee of the Woman's Club, has planned an "Independence Dinner" for Saturday night, March 13, 7 o'clock at the club. Entire profits will go toward raising the club's quota of $100 to be applied to the funds for the Restoration of Independence Hall, Philadelphia.

Club women of America have selected for their national project this year the Restoration of Independence Hall. The main building is in great need of authentic restoration. The furniture is in poor condition; upholstery is torn and in many places the cotton is protruding from the breaks in the leather.

It is known that the furniture is not of the correct period and it is the desire of the club women to restore the entire first floor of this building where so many patriotic events took place.

It is estimated that $250,000 is needed for this project and any individual or group giving $100 will be listed on the Honor Roll.

"Greenville's Woman's Club just must have its name on that permanent Honor Roll," Mrs. Hall stated. "Many clubs throughout North Carolina have already raised their quota, and we must raise ours," she added.

Plan to attend this "Independence Dinner." You will be delighted with the bountiful meal and the interesting program. Music will be furnished through the dinner hour by Jay Robbins and many other talented musicians will be on the program. The public is invited to attend and share in this patriotic project.

Duncan-Fink Vows Pledged In Late Afternoon Ceremony

In an afternoon ceremony at 4:30 Sunday in the chapel of the Covenant Presbyterian Church of Charlotte, Miss Louise Fink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fink of Mooresville, became the bride of Richard Higgs Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Duncan. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Warner L. Hall.

The decorations of the church using the green and white motif were beautiful in simplicity. Cathedral candles in seven branched candelabras and large baskets of white flowers made a lovely setting for the wedding party.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. John P. Alfred, organist, and Miss Nancy Bowen, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of chantilly lace over satin with full skirt over crinoline. The neckline was made with a yoke of illusion. Small buttons trimmed the back of the dress and closed the sleeves at the wrists. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a cap embroidered in seed pearls and sequins. She carried a nosegay of bride's roses and stephanotis centered with a white hybrid orchid and tied with white satin streamers. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Maid of honor was Miss Mary Johnson of Mooresville. She wore a ballerina length gown of blue nylon net and lace accented by gossamer and matching satin shoes. Her nosegay was of Better Times roses and matching ribbons.

The bridegroom's father attended him as best man and ushers were Jim Groome of Charlotte, brother-in-law of the groom, Phil Goodson Jr., cousin of the groom, Bobby Fink of Mooresville, brother of the bride, and Connie Bouldin of Greensboro.

The mother of the bride wore a navy lace dress with navy hat and accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a gown of ashes of roses crepe with matching hat and accessories. Both were wearing purple orchids.

Following the ceremony the bridal couple greeted guests in the chapel vestibule.

After the wedding a dinner party was given in the "Colony Room" of the Barringer Hotel honoring the bride and groom by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Duncan and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Groome. A four course dinner was served at a beautifully appointed table centered with a large white heart fluted with tulle and wedding bells suspended from the top with dainty bouquets of white flowers on each side. Wedding bells with flower clappers, burning white tapers in silver candlesticks and bridal place cards completed the arrangement of the table. Covers were laid for 30 guests including the wedding party and out-of-town friends.

For a southern wedding trip, the bride wore a silk original dress with matching accessories and the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Mooresville High School and attended Queens College, where she was a member of the Alpha Eta Sigma Sorority. For the past four years she has been employed with the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of Charlotte.

The bridegroom graduated from the Greenville High School and North Carolina State College. He is employed by Western Electric Company of Burlington. The couple will be at home at 450 Tarleton Avenue in Burlington.

Proposed Curbs Of NLRB Power Faces Reversal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Labor Committee decision to shrink the power of the National Labor Relations Board today appeared in line for a reversal.

Chairman McConnell (R - Pa) called the committee for another closed door session amid reports a 14-13 vote of yesterday will be reconsidered.

The group, engaged in consideration of proposals to amend the Taft-Hartley labor relations act, voted to turn over to federal district courts the job of handling unfair labor practice charges now held by the NLRB.

The proposal, fashioned by a coalition of Democrats and Republicans—would leave to the NLRB only the task of determining the eligibility of workers to take part in union representation elections and overseeing the balloting.

Some members said if Rep. Perkins (D-Ky) had been present, the vote would have resulted in a 14-14 tie and the committee would have turned to another approach toward doing something about the board.

Various proposals have been suggested, ranging up to complete abolition.

A reconsideration of yesterday's decision can be obtained by a majority vote of the committee.

McConnell, who said he voted against the policy, indicated there is growing sentiment for a plan which would:

- 1. Keep the board but make it strictly a judicial body to pass upon the merits of unfair labor practice charges;
- 2. Abolish the post of general counsel and substitute an administrator who would prepare cases for submission to the board and, in addition, handle all of the administrative work now in the province of the board.

Pianist Noona Passes First Elimination Test

Walter Noona of Norfolk, Va., senior piano student at East Carolina College, participated successfully last weekend in Winston-Salem in the North Carolina Steinway Centennial Award Audition and so became eligible to compete in regional auditions to be held in Charlotte March 20.

These auditions are preliminaries to national semi-finals and finals, the winner of which will receive a $2,000 scholarship award as encouragement toward beginning a career as a concert pianist.

Because of the exacting nature and the difficulty of the requirements in the auditions, Mr. Noona was the only participant in the North Carolina event. It may be that he will be the only contestant in Charlotte later this month when the South Atlantic District auditions will take place. This district includes North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida.

In Winston-Salem Mr. Noona was judged capable of becoming a successful concert pianist in an audition sponsored by Steinway and Company, New York Piano makers, and conducted by the National Federation of Music Clubs. He was judged according to exacting standards set up by Dr. Rudolph Ganz, Chicago pianist, conductor, and composer.

These standards provide that a contestant must master a repertoire of twenty difficult piano concert compositions and be able to play all or any part of each composition at the request of judges. Two of three judges must agree that the contestant is capable of beginning a successful concert career after one more year of study.

A district panel of judges will test Mr. Noona's ability as a pianist in the Charlotte auditions. If they select him as regional winner and judge him capable of becoming a concert pianist, a recording of his audition will be sent to New York for the semifinal judging.

Coincidence Hit License-Buyer

MONROVIA, Calif. (AP) — F. C. Hanchette, a letter carrier, stepped up to the state motor vehicle office in nearby Pasadena to buy his new automobile license tabs. His new tab number — 0061890.

He removed the old tab from his license plate to put on the new one. The old number — 0061890. Said the stunned motor vehicle bureau officer: "It was a billion to one coincidence."

Look At Ourselves Before We Condemn

A good many American eyes are focusing upon London where American Evangelist Billy Graham, native of North Carolina, has opened a 12-week evangelistic program.

There were many raised eyebrows at the controversy which raged between political groups and newspapers in London before Graham arrived. There were many people on this side of the Atlantic who were shocked not only at the controversy, but by charges that only two percent of the people in the world's second largest city attended any church.

Certainly a city in which only two percent of the people attend any church would quickly be called an un-Christian city by many church members throughout America. But before we adjudge London a city of iniquity with a "holier-than-thou" attitude, perhaps we should look around to see what sort of nation or community we ourselves line in.

How does the two per cent of London's population being church-goers compare with the percentage of church-goers in

New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, and other large American cities?

It may be surprising that figures which have been widely quoted indicate only about 17 per cent of the American people are themselves church-goers. Chances are the percentage of those people who attend churches regularly in the United States and in England is higher in smaller communities and rural areas than in the larger cities.

What per cent of North Carolina's four million people are church-goers? or what per cent of Pitt County's 63,000 people are church-goers? or what per cent of Greenville's 17,000 people are church-goers?

We do not know where the answer to those questions can be found, but they would be interesting.

Perhaps before we condemn London for its lack of emphasis upon religion among its people, we should take a careful look in our own community. Likely we will find the percentage of church-goers among our own people is not nearly as high as we might like to think.

Fair Play Needed For All Witnesses

The administration and other leaders have gotten mighty riled up in recent days over the way high military officials were treated at the hands of Sen. McCarthy in one of his investigation hearings.

Well, even if it took the involving of the military with McCarthy to make the administration stand up and take notice of the vast amount of abuse which is being handed witnesses before congressional investigation committees, we are glad the matter has finally come to the attention of the White House.

The President has at last sharply criticized what he termed "disregard of the standards of fair play" by self appointed Sherlocks in Congress. The President has also declared that no one in the armed forces is required to submit "to any kind of personal humiliation" before congressional committees.

All that is well and good; but certainly members of the armed forces should be granted no privileges which other citizens of the country do not have.

No citizen should be required to submit to the kind of humiliation which McCarthy and some of his hatchmen have been handing out for many, many months.

The Reflector does not condone citizens hiding behind the fifth amendment or any other shield real or imaginary to keep from revealing information of importance to the nation. But neither do we condone the tactics which McCarthy and others have used in seeking to give the impression that everyone who does not bow and lick the boots of an investigating committee is a liar, a communist, or something else undesirable.

The only excuse we have been able to see for the lack of decent standards among the "investigators" is that a few self-seeking politicians have wanted to ride the crest of a publicity wave at the expense of citizens of the nation.

Fair play to individuals appearing before congressional investigation committees should extend to every person; not just to members of the armed forces.

WATERBORO, S. C. PRESS AND STANDARD: "Dr. William Fletcher Russell, president of Teacher's College of Columbia University, in speaking at Mercer University, Macon, recently, stated that, 'On every hand it is obvious that something is wrong in the education of the citizen. Too few vote, too few take part in politics, too many condone corruption; too many look elsewhere, particularly to the Federal government, for direction and for financial handouts.'"

GARNER, IOWA LEADER & SIGNAL & HERALD: "This editor thinks we Americans have set such a fast pace of life that we are losing the art of gracious and wholesome living; we are on the move day and night to keep up with our business and social obligations; to keep just one jump ahead of the tax and bill collectors, and one lap ahead of that monster we know as communism."

ture for the Bricker Amendment. It would have required great courage for him to do otherwise, since all but three Southerners—Fulbright of Arkansas, Hill of Alabama and Kefauver of Tennessee—supported the Georgian's ban on secret agreements. Nevertheless, by his vote the Senate Democratic Leader indirectly condemned a vast portion of the Roosevelt-Truman diplomacy.

SPOKESMAN FROM "SAFE" STATE—Although the Johnson-Rayburn quiescence may appear to be only a personal and trivial idiosyncrasy, it reveals vividly how the Democrats' internal cleavage blocks a rebuilding of their organization, inside and outside Congress, and how it benefits the Eisenhower Administration.

It is almost axiomatic for the Democrats' Senate Leader to be a man from the South. This results from the fact that they achieve seniority more frequently than men from other sections, where there are more changes of personnel.

It is also advantageous for both parties, whether in the majority or minority, to choose its spokesman from a "safe" state, where he is rarely in danger of defeat. So entrenched, he can be his own master; he can assume the most extreme position without jeopardizing his seat.

He can, if it becomes necessary, resort to billings and broadswords in his attacks on the opposition. Such were the tactics on occasion of the Underwoods, Harrisons, Barclays, Garners and other predecessors of Johnson.

JOHNSON'S DILEMMA—But Senator Johnson is not assured of re-election, which is tantamount to victory for a Democrat in Texas. With Governor Shivers controlling the machine, he may decide Johnson's fate. And Shivers still "likes Ike."

Rayburn has, perhaps, the smallest Congressional District in the nation from the standpoint of population. The legislators at Austin have kept it that way for him. But there have been threats of redistricting, which might shift thousands of Eisenhower Democrats into his bailiwick, and cast doubt on his reelection. Sam is piping down for practical political reasons.

And the Democrats on Capitol Hill lack a leader!

Somebody Told Me

An Authority On Dog - Houses

All of my life I have wondered what I was going to write a book about and now I've decided. The publication will be called, "How to Get in and Out of the Dog House—Especially In."

Actually this situation is nothing to write a book about. By that I mean that it's certainly nothing to be proud of and I do not recommend it to any husband.

In defense of Wife Rachel and to keep this column from getting me in the dog house, let me emphasize that every trip I take there is well justified, as you will see as I explain what sends me there.

1. Off-schedule fishing trips. After W.R. has been at home all week with the children she has planned to get out Saturday afternoon. Her plans collapse when I take off on a fishing trip. That's not so bad, but I get back about three hours after I intend to, just about the time W. R. is ready to call for the searching party.

2. Off-schedule ping-pong games. When the six o'clock whistle blows the ping-pong table beckons. A few games would be fine; in fact, supper might still be hot when I get home if the game were limited to a game or two. But the games extend beyond that. The series with Quinten Avery is now tied: 213-213. That's only a mere 426 games since last summer.

3. Off-scheduling ham radio operating. Since getting my amateur radio license three weeks ago I have been in the dog house more than ever. And here again I must admit that it's justified. Both children wake up screaming at the same time and I'm engaged in a conversation with somebody in Cuba, Puerto Rico, or maybe even just some nearby place like Raleigh.

To eliminate the noise of the speaker I'm using earphones, so I don't even hear the children. One time I became so interested in a contact that I took my supper plate to the transmitter. But after all, I decided that was taking it too far.

"Just bear with me," I tell W. R. "After all, it's just something new and will wear off." But she wants to know when.

Now comes the answer to the dog house problem. How to get out of the dog house is not so hard as you might think. Chocolate nut sundaes is one of the most effective tools. When you take a trip up town at night come back with a sundae. Valentine came at a very good time for me this year: two days after the radio license. Candy helps.

And if you know any husbands that are sorer than you are a comparison sometimes helps. But this has to be done carefully. You can't come right out and say you aren't as bad as some other husband. Just casually mention his ill doings.

And I thank you,
JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE MOUSETRAP NEEDS ADVERTISING

(The Charlotte Observer)

The old saw that, if a man makes a better mousetrap, the world will beat a path to his door, is only conditionally true. If the world does not know the man has made the mousetrap, or if it is not convinced that it is a better one, no path will be beaten. Grass will grow on his doorstep even though he confronts the mice with a more terrifying problem than belling the cat.

It is advertising that tells the world first that the trap has been made. But that is not enough. It must be supplemented by a skillful appeal to the wants and desires of prospective customers. The people must be made to want the trap, for, if they don't want it, the inventor could have a warehouse full and never sell one. Finally, the customer must be made to want this particular kind of trap in preference to other brands.

By making the people want what our inventive genius and our industry can produce for their comfort and convenience, advertising has done as much as any one force to give us the standard of living that is the envy of the world. It works in an endless circle that creates wealth. By increasing sales, it raises the earnings of industry and expands its operations. This expansion makes more jobs, so that more people can buy the products. It is, therefore, the spark plug of our creative capitalism.

It has, however, its responsibilities. So many techniques have been developed to appeal to the wants of buyers that the advertiser must be careful that the claims he makes for his product are honest. The dishonest advertiser is automatically punished. A customer once fooled does not come back. If that happens often enough, such an advertiser soon finds himself without customers. It is no coincidence that America, with the highest living standard in the world, has also the most highly developed advertising, and, on the whole, the most honest. To realize its importance, try to imagine this country with no advertising at all. How could you ever find out what to buy or where to buy it?

Greater Interest In N.C.; Tarheel Saw The Shooting

By LYNN NISBET
INTERESTED—More people apparently are interested in what North Carolina came out of the State buildings to assault the officers. The open door policy is carried to such extent hereabouts that very little check is made of visitors to any office from that of the Governor down. Visitors from other States have frequently expressed surprise at the casual freedom of movement permitted for office callers.

FANATICS—Several incidents are recalled of fanatics insisting upon seeing the Governor. Soon after Governor Umstead returned to the office following his illness last year an obviously deranged man demanded that he be allowed to see him, "because God told me to lay my hands on him and make him well." Two or three years previously several queer looking characters were found roaming the Mansion grounds trying to get a look inside. Apparently they were harmless, but such incidents do not help the nerves of those in high office.

REVENUE—The report on general fund revenue collections for February and for the eight months of the current fiscal year justifies the warning given by Governor Umstead last week to State departments and institutions to go slow on spending. The nearly $15 million collected last month was 4.44 per cent more than was collected in February of 1953. The more than $89 million collected since July 1 was 2.74 per cent above receipts for the first eight months of the last fiscal year. But, for the first time in some years, the collections were close to—advance estimates; and since legislative appropriations exceeded revenue estimates, the amounts collected fall further short of meeting commitments for spending.

Officials responsible for administering State government within the budget have their fingers crossed waiting for the Match report. The biggest single source of general fund of which are paid in March. Year to year average shows approximately one-third of the annual take for operating the government is collected in March.

Highway revenue follows the pattern of general fund receipts for the month and the fiscal year to date. There is a slight decline for February, a small increase for the eight months, the totals for both periods approximating advance estimates.

BIG ITEMS—The Big Three in State revenue sources are income taxes and sales taxes for the general fund, gasoline taxes for the highway fund. Money derived from these sources largely support the public schools, public health and welfare, the hospitals and the highways maintained for the benefit of the people.

A fact often overlooked when discussion of economy in government is underway, is that about 90 per cent of all State collected money goes directly into costs to the people. The entire cost of the administrative-executive, legislative and judicial functions takes less than 10 per cent of the total taxes paid by the citizens. It is apparent, then, that any curtailment in spending must be reflected in reduced services rendered by schools, hospitals and roads, and in the areas commonly designated as "social services."

The situation in these fields is

Statistics That Lie

By ELMER ROESSNER
Everyone who is exposed to advertising, statistical charts, political arguments based on economics and business news columnists ought to read a copy of "How to Lie with Statistics," a book by Irving Geis, a magazine editor turned how-to-do-it writer. The book is now in the better stalls, but if one doesn't want to buy it, it may be found at the more alert libraries. It's only 142 pages long, and a lot of space is taken up with charts and cartoons, so a person who doesn't mind reading standing up can probably absorb it in three browsing trips to his most indulgent book shop.

While the title is not inaccurate, the book is a rollicking debunking job of statistical shenanigans. It explains the bias built into many surveys. For example, two pollsters, one white and one Negro, asked Negroes during the war whether they thought Negroes would be better treated if the Japanese took over the country. The white questioner found only 2 per cent thought treatment would improve; the Negro pollster found 9 per cent. And, it suggests, maybe there is some built-in bias in Kinsey surveys, cigarette tests, average earnings of Yale graduates and Time readers.

Charts come in for special treatment. Mr. Geis shows how the same set of figures can demonstrate "Government payrolls up!" and "Government payrolls stable!" It seems that a line on a chart can be made to run up hill or down as fast as the chart-maker wants. All he has to do to change the proportion between the ordinate and the abscissa.

The author's range is broad. He exposes fallacies of IQ tests, shifting bases for statistical claims the difference between "average," "median" and "mode," or the art of "statisticalization," or deceiving people with statistics, and some of the artful figuring by Karl Marx and by the U.S. Government.

"A couple of years ago the Boston Chamber of Commerce chose its American Women of Achievement," Mr. Geis reports. "Of the sixteen among them who were also in 'Who's Who,' it was announced they had 'sixty academic degrees and eighteen children.' This sounds like an informative picture of the group until you discover that among the women were Dean Virginia Gildersleeve and Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth. These two had a full third of the degrees between them. And Mrs. Gilbreth, of course, supplied two-thirds of the children."

From time to time this department reports on books of value to businessmen, rarely with over-enthusiasm. But this is a book the reading of which should be a requisite for a high-school diploma.

FEW SMALL COMPANIES TEST OFFICE WORKERS
Companies with 500 to 1,000 office employees are more likely than smaller firms to subject them to formal tests, according to a survey of 300 companies in the New York area by Office Executives Association.

It found that only 15 per cent of the companies with less than 100 office workers used tests; 50.5 per cent of those with 100 to 500, 80.2 per cent of those with 500 to 1,000, and 72.7 per cent of those with 1,000 to 5,000. Beyond that number, the statistical sample was relatively small.

ANTI-POISON PAINT BILL WORRIES FURNITURE MEN
A bill pending in the New York State legislature has the furniture industry worried. It prohibits the use of paint containing poisonous substances on furniture for children.

Furniture manufacturers protest that there are no acceptable standards of what constitutes poisonous substances, and that almost all deaths of children attributed to eating paint arose from inferior paints or repainted furniture.

153 SHOPPING CENTERS NOW; TOTAL TO TREBLE 500

There are 153 regional or community shopping centers in the United States, and there are 27 more under construction or in the planning stage, according to a survey by Women's Wear.

Of the 153 in operation, 47 opened last year. The publication compiled data on 309 of the 480 in operation, under construction or being planned.

It All Began On Nothing-A-Week

By ED CREAUGH
(For Hal Boyle)

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Dusk was gathering after a gray and chilly afternoon on Feb. 22, 1919. On a side street in Utica, N.Y., a freshly painted sign over a small shop-front proclaimed it to be the 'Great 5c Store.'"

"Behind the store's paper-covered windows, F.W. Woolworth, proprietor, busied himself with last minute preparations before opening for business.

"A knock came at the door. Woolworth answered it. A lady, now unfortunately unidentified, held a copy of an advertising circular which the merchant had distributed that morning.

"She pointed to the item 'fire shovels' at 5c each. Woolworth invited her in and wrapped up the shovel. The customer paid him 5c in the fractional paper currency of the day, and he promptly put it into the till."

As it turned out, Frank Winfield Woolworth, a rags-to-riches self-made man if there ever was one, put quite a few pieces of folding money into the till before he was through.

And the F.W. Woolworth Co. is cheerily relating the story in an official history of itself and its founder to mark the 75th anniversary of the five-and-dime institution.

One thing bothers Woolworth's: Who was that first customer? Why did she point to the item she wanted instead of asking for it? You have the feeling Woolworth's would like to do something for the old girl—maybe give her a scoop of coal for her "fire shovel," or something even hand-somer—if she were around today.

Chances are, though, she passed away without knowing she had touched off a business venture which was destined to turn American buying and selling upside down and to produce, among countless other things, the Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton.

Old F.W. himself had his doubts at times that he'd amount to much. The Utica store failed. Poor location. So he borrowed more money, transferred the store to Lancaster, Pa., and on the whole did pretty well for himself in years to come.

Today there are 1,800 Woolworth stores in this country alone, 170 more in Canada, 800-some in the British Isles, 8 in Cuba and -bet you didn't know this—50 in Western Germany. Net sales of buns, bobbie-pins, baby pants and the like: Upward of 700 million dollars a year.

Woolworth did wonders for the store business. He introduced the fixed price system—no bargaining with the man behind the counter. He put the goods where you could see and handle them. He outlawed buying on credit, though that ban has since been relaxed. Today a French-Canadian customer can buy a doll on the "plan budget-aire," or lay-away system.

Some minor accomplishments of the Woolworth empire hold their own fascination. It was this outfit which popularized ice cream in Cuba, to say nothing of hot dogs and turkey dinners.

All told, the Woolworth's of today is a pretty impressive monument to a Watertown, N.Y., lad who started his business career at nothing a week. He hired out as a stockroom boy on a trial basis. The first three months were on the cuff-his cuff. When he'd proved himself, the boss put him on the payroll at $3.50 a week. This wasn't much, but then it was only an 84-hour work week.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
SUBMISSION CAN BE NOBLE
We live in an age which cries out stridently about its rights. We must have freedom and everybody else must have freedom.

In all this, of course, we are entirely correct. Our rights should be recognized and the rights of every other person; and as for freedom, the soul languishes and dies without it. But what about the great eternal verities that are built into creation? What about our submission to these? Thomas Carlyle declared that great souls are always loyally submissive—"reverent to what is above them. Only small, lean souls are otherwise."

Think of the best person you know, and undoubtedly it will be someone whose life is lived in continual and humble submission to great powers which he knows are over and above him. Such a person has peace, because he knows that his life is in the hands of a sovereign God. Such a person's life is characterized by purpose, for he knows that he was put here in the world to fulfill a definite end.

There are not many areas in life in which we can have liberty. In most areas, things are already definitely arranged for us. We can do nothing to change some of these circumstances and very little to change others.

So let us always be mindful that humility is the proper mood of a creature who had had little to do with creating the conditions under which he must live.

He Heads, But Does Not Lead

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Senator Lyndon Johnson's perilous political status in pro-Eisenhower Texas accounts for his failure to provide aggressive leadership for Senate Democrats. A similar but less dangerous threat is held responsible for the relatively passive attitude of Sam Rayburn, a fellow Texan and House Minority Leader. Northern Democrats are making cloakroom complaints against the lack of strong opposition to Eisenhower.

Senator Johnson heads but does not lead the Democrats in the upper chamber, who actually constitute a majority of one. The Southern conservatives and the Northern liberals—the Byrd-George versus the Lehman-Humphrey faction—are so divided on every major issue that Johnson has not dared to call a party caucus at this session. Since such a discussion would advertise rather than settle differences, he prefers the present armed truce on his side of the aisle.

Rayburn has uttered a few protests against the President's apparent tolerance of Republicans who insist on characterizing the Truman-Roosevelt regime as "twenty years of treason." But his demerit was so gentle that it evoked no response. Veteran members recall how his distinguished predecessor and tutor, John Nance Garner, used to howl and rage at far less provocation.

NEEDS SUPPORT FOR RE-ELECTION—The key explanation is that Senator Johnson must be re-elected next fall. It would not be discreet for him to fight the Eisenhower legislative program too openly or savagely. He will need the support of voters and newspapers which still "like Ike." He will need campaign contributions from those fabulous pro-McCarthy "billionaires." He cannot antagonize the popular Governor Allan Shivers, still a White House pal.

Thus, bewitched, bothered and bewildered, the troubled Minority Leader demonstrates his vigorous Democratic spirit by blocking a Senate night session merely because Majority Leader William F. Knowland did not consult him in advance. Johnson apparently believes that he can haggle over a question of parliamentary etiquette without hurting the feelings of the rebels and regulars in the Lone Star State. Most amazingly, he voted for the George substi-

Bonn To Ignore French Protest Over Re-Arming

FRANKFURT (AP)—A French protest notwithstanding, the Bonn government planned today to push through projected constitutional changes to pave the way for eventual West German rearmament.

Authoritative sources said Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will address the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Bundestag, the upper house of Parliament, tomorrow in support of amendments which the Bundestag, the lower house, approved 334-144 Feb. 26.

High U.S. and British officials discounted opposition voiced in Paris yesterday by the Foreign Affairs Committee of the French National Assembly.

They commented that French fears the Germans will be allowed to vote themselves unlimited rights to rearm are groundless.

An American spokesman said the amendments, necessary to clear the way for German membership in the projected six-nation European army, cannot become effective until the army treaty has been fully ratified by all the member nations, including France.

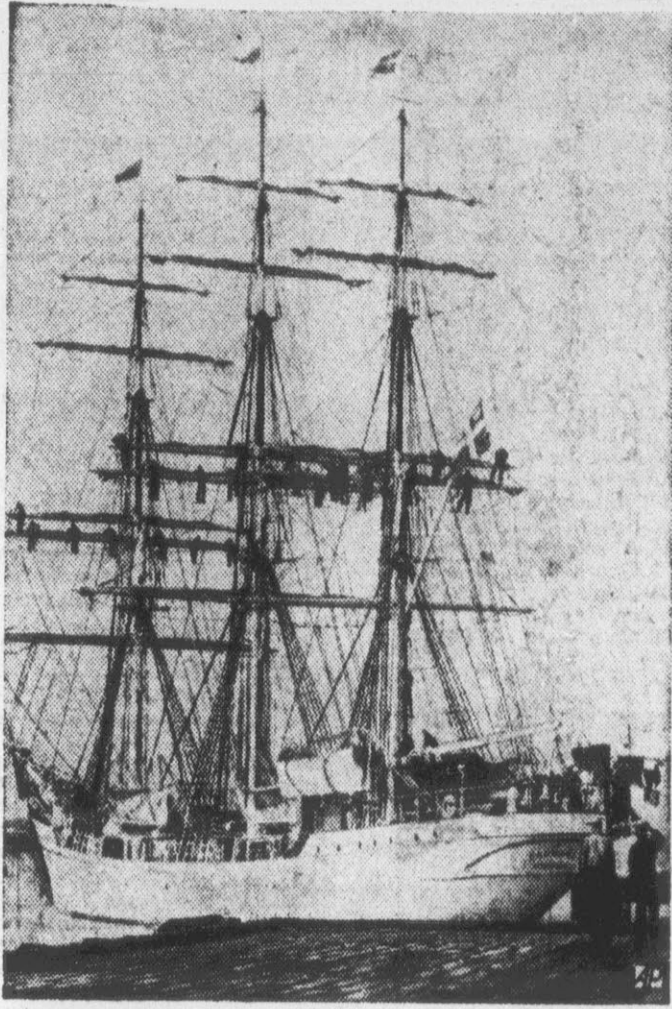

West Germany then would be free to raise forces only within the limits set by the treaty—500,000 men in 12 divisions with supporting air and naval units—to team up with French, Italian, Dutch, Belgian and Luxembourg troops. Until the treaty's final ratification, the occupation statute forbidding German rearmament remains in force.

The Bundestag-approved changes in the constitution would make every German man over 18 subject to compulsory military service, legalize West German membership in the European Defense Community and authorize acceptance of the near-sovereignty offered in the peace contract between Bonn and the Western Big Three.

Trinity Title Is Helped By Time

NEW YORK (AP)—It may now at last be said that Trinity Church which has occupied a site in lower Manhattan's financial district for about 300 years, has a right to be there.

A legal suit, brought on behalf of Dorothy McClatchie and claiming ownership of the property through a 1842 grant to her ancestors, was recently thrown out of court partly because of "the passage of time."

New Appliance Firm Will Open Saturday

Fisher's Appliance Corporation, Greenville's newest appliance house, will open in a completely remodeled building on Dickinson Avenue Saturday morning at 9 a.m. according to the store manager Mrs. E.W. Fisher.

The manager announced that a grand prize will be given during the day worth $300. She said that visitors on opening day can register for the grand prize and a drawing will be held at the end of the day. She stated that the winner does not have to be present to win.

Mrs. Fisher said that the winner of the grand prize will have a choice of an automatic washer, a refrigerator, a home freezer or an automatic hot water heater.

Mrs. Fisher said that the new store, which is located at 924-928 Dickinson Avenue, will carry a complete line of Kelvinator products and Bendix television.

"We've got one of the most up-to-date appliance stores in Eastern North Carolina," she stated.

Mrs. Fisher has been connected with the appliance business for a number of years. She announced the hours of the store on opening day as being from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and she said that free gifts will be given to all who visit the store on opening day.

The store is located in the old Pitt FCX building which has been remodeled.

Army Women's Medical Specialist Corps Representative To Visit ECC

First Lieutenant June E. Handschy, Third Army Women's Medical Specialist Corps (WMSC) representative, will visit East Carolina College on March 10th to acquaint college women with the opportunities available as members of the Army WMSC, it was announced today by Sgt. A.G. Atwood, local Army and Air Force recruiter.

Lt. Handschy, a member of the WMSC since 1943, will be armed with all of the latest and factual information pertaining to an Army career. During her long and varied service, the Portsmouth, Va., native has served in California, Oklahoma, Virginia and in the South Pacific during World War II. A graduate of American College of Physical Education, the lieutenant also attended the University of Illinois and holds a certificate of physical therapy from the University of Wisconsin.

During her visit here, she will speak to college women on the fields of science, physical education, foods and nutrition as careers in the Army. The lieutenant is also interested in speaking to interested high school girls to provide them with information on Army medical fields so that they may choose their college courses accordingly.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Kathryn Suedkamp has spent all four years of her life in this desert region where rain is a rarity. When a cousin from Cincinnati dropped in to visit on a cloudy day she was carrying an umbrella.

"What's that thing?" asked Kathryn. She demanded and got an explanation and a demonstration. She pondered a while and asked, "Would you show me how that machine works again?"

Manufacturers' Business Is Off

WASHINGTON (AP)—Manufacturers' sales, new orders, inventories, consumer credit and foreign trade all dropped off in January, according to government reports.

The reports issued yesterday, came amid warnings from some Democratic leaders that the country is headed for a recession. Republicans, however, have called the present business downturn a normal readjustment.

The government figures give some indication of its extent.

The monthly report from the Commerce Department's Office of Business Economics said sales of all manufacturers, after adjustment for seasonal factors, dropped off 400 million dollars to $23,700,000,000.

The seasonally adjusted sales decline in January compared with a drop in December of 200 million dollars. Sales in January this year were about one billion dollars under manufacturers' sales of January 1953.

Manufacturers reduced their inventories by 300 million dollars in January compared with a reduction of 200 million dollars both seasonally adjusted, in December.

The further liquidation of stocks—which President Eisenhower's recent economic report to Congress spotlighted as a key factor in halting the business downturn—reduced inventories to about $46,400,000,000. This, however, was still some two billion dollars more than in January a year before.

Seasonally adjusted new orders received by manufacturers in January totaled $20,200,000,000. This was $1,800,000,000 less than new business received in December when new orders were slightly higher than in November.

The public tightened its use of credit sharply in January, the Federal Reserve Board reported.

Total consumer credit—debt of individuals for automobiles, consumer goods, home repairs, personal loans and services—declined 771 million dollars in January, to 28 1/2 billion dollars. This compared with a contraction of 153 million in January 1953.

Consumer credit usually declines in January while the public pays off debts contracted in Christmas buying, but the reduction this year was larger than is usual.

Installment credit—consumer debt to be repaid in installments—declined 363 million dollars in January. In January 1953, installment credit increased 167 million dollars.

The Commerce Department made a preliminary estimate that United States exports amounted to $1,075,000 in January while imports totaled $25 millions.

The estimated export total was about 20 per cent below December exports and 18 per cent below the 1953 monthly export average.

The estimated import total for January was approximately 9 per cent below both the December to-

The Doctor Disagrees

By Elizabeth Selzer

CHAPTEE TWENTY-EIGHT

"TELL ME one thing," Shelly said earnestly. "Aren't you a better doctor than most of the other men here in Norfolk?"

Craig chuckled. "I suppose you want an honest, unprejudiced answer to that?"

She looked ready to weep. "It's not funny . . ."

"No, Shelly, it isn't. So I'll answer your question. Yes, I am a better doctor than a lot of the men here. Ward is good, so is Bowser. Four or five others are competent. I have better training, more experience, and—well—more medical feeling. But that does not alter the fact that I can't treat patients unless they come to me for treatment. And they won't come until my reputation for being a drinking man dies down. And that will take time, what with people like the Foller sisters paying off their personal grievances against me in the form of new stories about my bad habits."

Shelly looked sick.

"It isn't fair," Craig agreed gently. "But it's human nature. And a doctor has to deal first and foremost with human nature."

She fiddled with the cuff of her white blouse. "What are we going to do?"

"Try to stick it out. I have the plant work. When Stephen comes home, things will be all right again. You say you want to keep the office open for him . . ."

"But what about you?" she said, lifting her eyes in a flash of blue.

"What does a situation like this do to you?"

"I'm beyond the age," he answered dryly. "where my character can be warped. Look—why don't you go home? There won't be anything more this afternoon."

"I'll stick it out, too," she said firmly. "If you can, I can."

practice again, slowly, in much the way any young doctor, or one new in a town, builds up a list. It was not in any sense Stephen's practice, though a few of his patients did return. For that matter, a few never had left. The "walking" people fairly new in town who happened to need a doctor for a cold or a headache, or some emergency, came, and some stayed with Dr. Talbot.

There was no rush, but the situation bore out his prediction to Shelly that—oh, in a year or two—all would be well. His social popularity had something to do with this; his medical ability had a great deal more.

There had been, all along, his duties as plant doctor to keep him busy. The routine of examinations and check-ups took a fixed amount of time. Craig always had made a meticulous matter of plant inspections, of checking on the men to see that they made use of the safety devices which he, and Stephen before him, had demanded for their protection.

He talked to the workmen and sometimes he met with voiced opposition.

Just as he sometimes ran into conflict with the bosses, up to and including Everett Carr. But his more critical battle was the one he had to fight with the workmen, it was the longer, the more painful, the less hopeful. He could, with firm patience, make the big company spend money for dust control programs; he could argue with the executives by means of statistics—the calling in of safety engineers with their charts and models—his figures talked a language they understood.

It was much harder to convince a certain type of workman to let himself be protected. As summer came on, and the heat near the gas-fired kilns became more burdensome, he had to talk long and loud against fans—and then, probably, see them put into use, destroying a good part of the effectiveness of his dust-blowers.

The matter of making the men use his aluminum dust had always been a ticklish thing. He believed in the use of that therapy; the inhalators had been installed, the change rooms impregnated. But there were certain men who balked at taking the dust in any way, shape or form. They could see no reason, they claimed, to believe that taking one dust into their "pipes" was any better than breathing the clay with which they worked.

Craig found their ignorance and false knowledge a mean foe. There was a ringleader in the opposition to the therapy, one Bob Evans, a foreman in the plant, a handsome, stubborn man of forty, he had little education formal or otherwise; he had left school the minute he was sixteen to go to work for the Refractories. He'd married a tense, ambitious woman—she too had only a high-school education—but she read widely and added all the sensational stories thus acquired to her wastebasket-store of "knowledge."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

It was one of these which brought her husband and his friends, into full clash with Craig Talbot. Not only did Bob Evans flatly refuse to use the aluminum dust inhalators, he now began to tell his men not to use them.

Discovering this, Craig protested. He called the man into his office to do it. Bob swaggered in, a big fellow with a thick neck, heavy shoulders—and a little cough.

It was at these times that Craig's satin-smooth manner was most evident. Without raising his voice, he tried to point out to Evans that it was one thing to risk his own life by deciding against the dust therapy, but quite another to order his men to follow his example. "After all, their health regime is not part of your job."

"I got the welfare of my boys in mind, however," declared Evans.

Craig made a note upon his memo pad. "It is presumed that I do, too," he said quietly. "That's what the plant doctor is for. With the difference that the doctor is trained in his field."

"Now don't pull that education speech on me Doc," said Evans, smiling without any humor.

"I shan't need to, obviously," said Craig. "Nor shall I mention that you are a foreman in the plant because you worked there as a laborer until you learned how to mix and mold and fire brick. I have in mind, Evans, that we each have studied our speciality. I wouldn't know the first thing to do toward making a brick—"

"Well that's where I've got the better of you," said the foreman brashly. "I do a bit of reading in your field."

"Yes?"

"For instance I've been wanting to ask you what you think of using oxygen under pressure?"

Craig did not blink an eyelash. "It gives relief, often," he said quietly, "especially in advanced cases."

"Of silicosis?"

"That and other pulmonary diseases."

"I understand there's a whole hospital in Pennsylvania based on that treatment."

"There is. It's called a sanitarium—and was built as part of the coal miners' health program. Did you read about it in the Post?"

"Sure. Good article."

"Yes, it was. On its subject. The only thing is, Evans, it doesn't especially apply to the matter I wanted to take up with you this morning."

"My bein' against your aluminum dust gadgets, you mean."

"Yes, because you see—that sanitarium is for the treatment of men in an acute stage of silicosis. Our therapy is primarily designed to prevent workers from getting silicosis." His rich voice softened. "And from needing oxygen under pressure."

"Yeah, but that's the point. Will you prevent it? That same article says your aluminum dust thing has not yet been proven."

"And it's right up to a point," Craig agreed, to the other man's evident surprise. "It's not been used long enough to make any large and positive claims. I'll say this, however: do you know any man in the plant who has faithfully used the aluminum dust since its installation who has developed any symptoms of silicosis?"

"I know one who hasn't gone near your coffee mills and he doesn't have it either!"

"Do you mean yourself?"

"Sure do."

"Evans, will you let me make a wire recording of your voice?"

"What for?"

"Because you don't have any faith in our usual methods of detection. X-rays lung capacity, and so on. You might, however, believe

Loyalty Firings In Govm't Beclouded

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—It's still a mystery just how many disloyal government workers the Eisenhower administration has found since taking over from the Truman administration in January 1953.

The Republicans campaigned in 1952 on a promise to get Communists out of the government. Some are talking of making Communist-in-government a campaign issue again this year in the November congressional elections.

The Democrats, with a large political stake in the actual number of disloyal persons found, have demanded exact figures. News men repeatedly have asked for figures as a matter of public information.

The latest information, given Tuesday by Chairman Philip Young of the Civil Service Commission, still didn't provide an answer.

He told the Senate's Civil Service Committee, 2,427 "security risks" had been removed from the government payroll under the Republicans. But he said he didn't know whether a single one had been fired for disloyalty or subversion or communism.

He had gathered his figures from the government agencies which did the firing after the committee, made up of Democrats and Republicans, asked him for answers.

He said 383 of the 2,427 were persons whose files contained something of a subversive nature. Then he added these people were not necessarily subversive and said he didn't know whether this subversive information was sufficient reason for getting them out of their jobs.

Later Young told newsmen he knew of no way of finding out whether subversion was the controlling factor in getting the 383 out of government service. A little later Sen. Monroney (D - Okla.) said:

"I guess the only way we are going to find out is by asking each of the security officers in the agencies."

Each agency has an official charged with getting rid of those found to be security risks. Some of these security officers have been questioned by other congressional committees. And some of their information has been vague.

This is the background:

In 1947 former President Truman set up a program for getting Communists or people who might injure the country out of government jobs. It was a double kind:

1. Loyalty—This was to get rid of Communists or fellow travelers in any government job or agency.
2. Security—This was to get rid of certain kinds of people—like drunks, homosexuals who might be blackmailable, or blabbermouths when found in a very limited number of agencies which had secrets involving national security, like the Defense and State departments and the Atomic Energy Commission.

When President Eisenhower came into the White House he gave to Atty. Gen. Brownell the job of drawing up a new kind of program.

Last April Eisenhower produced the program. It abolished the two classifications of Truman—the distinction between loyalty cases and security problems — and lumped both in one, called a security program.

Under this a Communist, drunk, homosexual, a person convicted of a felony or misdemeanor or a blabbermouth could be fired as a security risk any place he was found in the government, whether or not his agency dealt in secrets.

Total figures on those released thus would not show how many were Communists and how many fell into other classes unless the administration provided a breakdown.

Last October the White House, in its first announcement, said 1,456 security risks had been fired. The President on Jan. 7 upped the figure to 2,200.

News men asked Eisenhower for a breakdown. He referred them to Brownell. Brownell referred questions to Young. Young refused and passed the ball back to the White House. It's still bouncing.

FRIENDSHIPS STRONG
McCRORY, Ark. (AP)—Seventy-year-old William J. Padgett recently retired after 45 years of service as a rural mail carrier here.

Padgett — who began delivering mail by horseback and wagon in 1909—says he plans to drive over his old route and visit his ex-patrons—if he gets lonesome.

At 40 miles an hour a car travels 58 feet a second.

WHAT ARE THEY? — Air pipes put beneath water to prevent ice damage to shaft board of Gulf Island Dam, Lewiston, Me., cause ice to build up on surface in these formations.

Kerr Scott's Joke Will Cost Him 36 Bull Calves

KINSTON, N. C. (AP)—U.S. senatorial candidate W. Kerr Scott will have to fork over 36 registered bull calves because of a joking remark he made.

In an interview last week over Kinston Radio Station WISF, Scott offered a bull calf to anyone who could better his 4-hour time of walking 21 miles from Kinston to Hargett's Cross Roads.

Scott had walked the distance in 1919 after a cab driver wanted to charge $21 for the fare.

Challengers took up his offer. The big walk was held last night and 36 of the 40 contestants who started finished in less than six hours to qualify for a bull calf.

Paul (Hardrock) Simpson, 40, Burlington postman, came in first with a winning time of 4 hours and 8 minutes. Simpson walks 14 miles a day on his regular mail route.

Runner-up was Roland White, soft drink salesman of Kinston, whose time was 4:22. Leslie Chase, Jones County farmer, came in third in 4:25.

The contestants started the race at 5:15 p.m. about a mile south of Kinston on U.S. 258. The walkers left at 15-second intervals and traveled on the shoulder of the road for safety's sake. About 500 persons were on hand to see them off.

Friends of Scott gave a barbecue feed for the contestants at the finish line.

G. H. Bailey, 69, of Cary, was one of those winning a calf. Another contestant of the same age, R. J. Pollard of Morrisville, started the race but dropped out after 20 feet.

Others finishing in this order and winning a registered bull calf were: Foye Price, Pink Hill; Kenneth Smith, Albertson; Jimmy

Church Is Gone, But Still Hold Monthly Vespers

ORANGE, Mass. (AP)—A Universalist parish which has had no church or formal religious services for nearly 18 years observed the 25th anniversary recently of its monthly vespers.

The parish once had members in the towns of Dana and North Dana, Mass. These communities were wiped out when a huge reservoir supplying the Boston area was completed in 1936. Dana vespers had become a tradition by then, and they still are being held. Forty members of the original church membership are among the 141 who form the parish today.

Money from a trust fund provides for 12 services every year and usually enough for a "bonus" of offering annually.

Limelight Plays On Name Donald

HOLDREGE, Neb. (AP)—The accent was on the name Donald last week. Dr. Donald W. Jones delivered a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lanham and a son to Dr. and Mrs. Donald Brewster.

Assisting were nurses Mrs. Donald Loar and Mrs. Donald Henninger.

The Brewsters did the natural thing. They named their son, Donald—Charles Donald, to be exact.

ANCIENT SAFE HUNTED
BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP)—The Bridgeport-City Trust Co. has offered a $100 reward for a small iron safe, the first used by the bank to store its assets. The bank lost track of the safe many years ago. It wants it back now for its centennial celebration.

Betty Grable Ready To Take Life Easy

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Betty Grable, the girl with the gorgeous gams, is hard at work on her first picture since leaving her old home lot. But she says she's not going to knock herself out for her career.

"Look I've had it," she says. "I've had the gravy for a good number of years, and I've enjoyed it. Now let the younger kids work their heads off. Not me. I've got other things in life to be interested in."

The other things include her husband Harry James, their two daughters and their race horses, including the fleet James Session.

"I've enjoyed just looking after them for a change," says Betty. "I feel like a lousy mother when I have to be away from the kids all day. Now that they're in school, they don't get home until 4 in the afternoon. But I still would like to be there when they arrive."

"I'm not going to knock myself out for my career. This is the pattern I have been following for the last four or five years. I was on suspension a large part of the time."

Right now she's getting a real workout in "Three for the Show" at Columbia. She has several spirited dances directed by Jack Cole. On one of the hottest days of the year, she was under the glaring lights, trying to look cool in a comedy scene with Gower Champion. Gorgeously gowned in a fire-engine red outfit with a mink-lined coat to match, she stepped out of the scene to pose under some more hot lights for fashion stills.

When she was free, I asked how that picture. I had been on suspension for a year and told them I was ready to come back to work. They didn't have a thing ready for me. So they sent me the 'Farmer' script, which was originally planned for Mitsi Gaynor and Robert Wagner. They thought sure I'd turn it down. I fooled them."

"Thank heaven I had a good picture like 'Millionaire' as my last at the studio. Otherwise I would have been dead."

Tombstone Sees Return To Life

TOMBSTONE, Arizona (AP)—This historic mining camp always has boasted it was "the town too tough to die." Now it really has a new lease on life. Newmont Development Co., a subsidiary of Newmont Mining Co., is pumping water from the once-rich mines to explore the silver and lead veins.

A group of Illinois business men is planning a 100-house subdivision and a 26-unit motel. The reactivation of nearby Ft. Huachuca as an electronics proving grounds is expected to be a boon to Tombstone business. The fort is expected to have 8,500 military and civilian personnel.

Milk from mice, used in a New York scientific experiment is valued at about $10,000 a quart.

Servicemen On Saipan Today Combat Boredom

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
SAIPAN (AP)—The roads and runways of the once-mighty island bases of Saipan and Tinian are putting up a fight against the relentless jungle, corrosion and decay.

So far these great concrete strips, which launched America's deadly bomber raids against Japan in World War II, are holding their own. But the guns, trucks and equipment abandoned at war's end have given up to the elements. They are gradually crumbling to nothing.

A small Navy force mans Saipan today. Their job is to keep open certain airfields for transient aircraft flying through to the Far East and to supervise the native population of Saipan and neighboring islands in running their own affairs.

For the men stationed on Saipan and Tinian, boredom is a constant problem. But the Navy has come up with a surprising peacetime project which is keeping some personnel busy in a new line. It's raising beef cattle.

On Tinian are about 120 head of cattle under Navy care, mostly brahmas or crosses of brahmas with Angus here and there and short-horns. On Saipan are 40 or 50 more. There also are four horses, but two of them haven't been broken yet.

A pair of tars from Texas are in charge of that project: Yoeman Ralph Lee of Booker and M. D. Matteson, construction worker at third class from New Boston. As soon as they break the horses, the two steeds will be sent to Saipan, where Matteson is normally stationed.

"Shore be glad to get them," he confessed. "These brahmas are skittish. They're rough to handle, especially afoot. They've worked me over a couple of times. Fortunately I wasn't hurt bad."

Most of the cattle were imported by the United States to improve the native stock. An experimental farm has been set up on Saipan under the supervision of Navy civil service worker Frank Brown.

Brown is sold on the brahmas as the best cattle for the islands. "They resist ticks and prosper much better than other stock," he says.

Once they have produced a strain that does well on the islands, calves branded "U.S. Navy" will be distributed among native farmers where they're a ready market for meat. In 10 years, Brown thinks, the islands may have herds big enough for export.

Between Navy jobs, farming and work with metal salvage companies, Saipan natives manage to maintain a fairly strong economy.

The pay for a common laborer on Saipan is 37 cents an hour. Semiskilled workers make as much as $2,500 a year.

The islands are policed by a native constabulary which works under the Navy command.

In contrast to Guam and Kwajalein none of the Navy structures on Saipan or neighboring islands are permanent.

From the air Tinian and little Rota look like solid jungle. But standing out on the north end of Tinian is the huge B29 field where the first atom bomb was assembled.

The building where the bomb was put together still stands. Service stations, movies and stores have sprung up in Saipan's biggest town, Chalan Kanoa. There are three elementary and one intermediate school.

Children of naval personnel on the island go to separate schools. About 40 per cent of the Navy men here have their families with them.

It's not the most pleasant spot in the world, but if the Navy has its way, it some day may be one of the most pastoral.

JOYS OF JAIL
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Police Court Judge Nicholas F. Rago sentenced two vagrants to 60 days in jail with this remark: "You don't have to sleep out in the cold. It's nice and warm up at the jail. They have TV and cards."

9,000 People In Convention Hall

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—About 9,000 people jammed huge Convention Hall last night to celebrate this famed resort's 100th birthday. The party, held on the eve of Atlantic City's birthday, was described by city officials as the biggest of its kind ever held under one roof.

Among guests were Gov. Robert B. Meyner, other politicians, show people and more notable.

Five thousand persons ate chicken dinners—shuttled 60 miles from kitchens in Philadelphia to the hall—while others sat in the balcony to watch the festivities and show.

North Carolina produced 3,055,000 pounds of pecans in 1953.

Cancer Drive Leaders To Talk Plans On Friday

High officials attending the meeting will include: O. Arthur Kirkman of High Point, president of the North Carolina division of the ACS; Joe E. Johnson, Greensboro, state campaign manager for 1954; Mrs. George E. Marshall, Mount Airy, executive vice-president for the North Carolina division; Leonard B. Griffith, associate director of field relations of the ACS; and Miss Barbara Blackwell, Mount Airy, North Carolina field representative of the ACS.

Claim Boom In Once-Wrecked N. Korea City

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio says that Hamhung in Communist ruled northeast Korea has come back to life during the armistice after having been 97 per cent wrecked by Allied planes during the war.

A recent broadcast said the revived coast city now has 45,000 wooden and brick buildings, a university, five technical schools, nine "middle" schools, 12 primary schools, a school for Chinese Nationals, 78 "state-owned stores," three movie houses and one legitimate theater.

Allied forces pulled back through Hamhung to Wonsam, then withdrew in ships on Christmas, 1950, after encountering overwhelming numbers of Chinese.

Military Aid To Turkey Started By Pres. Grant

ANKARA (AP)—President Grant beat President Truman to the punch by more than 70 years with military aid to Turkey. Shukru Kasabolu, local historian says the sultan sought to buy 600,000 Springfield rifles from the United States some months before Russia declared war in April 1877.

The makers couldn't fill the hurry-up order so President Grant authorized drawing 50,000 rifles from government stores for immediate shipment. Records indicate the American guns proved far superior to the rifles used by the Russians. The sultan was so pleased, Kasabolu adds, that he dispatched a specially-woven Turkish carpet to Grant as a gift.

Under the aid program, which began in 1947, the United States has furnished Turkey with more than a billion dollars in military and economic aid. The purpose is the same: to bolster Turkey against Russia.

Bucs Defeat Erskine For N.A.I.A. Title

Four Pirates Score In Double Figures

By JIMMY ELLIS

East Carolina 66, Erskine 64

East Carolina College's Pirates are going back to Kansas City. That little item of business was decided last night in the championship round of the District 26 N.A.I.A. basketball tournament when the Pirates grounded Erskine's Flying Fleet, 86-64.

This will be the second year in a row that the Pirates have represented District 26 in the national finals. Last year, however, the Bucs got in only one game before being eliminated by Arkansas Tech.

Last night's victory over Erskine was one of the better team performances turned in by the Pirates all year long. Four players hit double figures in scoring. The same four hit double figures in pulling in rebounds.

1,998 Points
Center Bobby Hodges, playing his last game for the home folks, led both phases of play. He scored 22 points to run his four-year total and new record to 1,998 points. Hodges also hurried in 17 rebounds as the Pirates dominated play off both boards.

Senior Forward Charlie Huffman got hot from the field in the last quarter to take runner-up scoring honors. Huff dropped in five last-quarter field goals to run his mark for the night to 21. In addition, he pulled down 13 rebounds, the same number as guard J. C. Thomas. Thomas had sparked the Pirates' offensive showings of the Pirates and wound up with 17 points for the night. He was only two points ahead of forward Don Harris who dropped in 15 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

The game was a close one only once. That was midway in the first quarter when Erskine pulled up from a 6-0 deficit to tie the score at 8-8. Right then and there, Coach Howard Porter's wrecking crew went to work and took the game away from the taller Erskine team.

The Pirates led throughout the second and third quarters by a margin that averaged 13 points. There were times when Erskine seemed to be about ready to break up the contest but the Pirates were able to come through on every occasion with the spark needed to hold the lead.

Everybody Scores
Porter's Pirates began pulling in their final margin early in the fourth quarter. Huffman and Hodges sparked the offensive play, but almost everybody that saw any extensive action got into the scoring act at least once.

The Pirates were not without their troubles. The biggest one was 4-10 center Randy Whaley of the Flying Fleet. Big Whaley dropped in shots from all over the court to take scoring honors for the night with 25 points. Whaley was frozen out of much of the rebounding work, as was teammate Ralph Moore (the nation's second ranking rebounder), but his show on offense almost balanced the situation.

Forward Julian Robinson also caused the Pirates some concern. The Statesville junior dropped in 16 points and played a good game on defense. Moore, last night's hot shot, dropped off to 13 points last night and failed to cause a great deal of trouble so far as the Pirates were concerned.

The victory was the twenty-third of the year for the Pirates who have lost only once. The defeat was Erskine's third in 28 ball games.

Blue Stockings Win Overtime Tilt

Forward Dave Thompson put on a one-man show for the last minute and 35 seconds last night as his Presbyterian Blue Stockings defeated Lenoir-Rhyne College, 83-81, in an overtime game.

The contest was the consolation affair of the District 26 N.A.I.A. tournament. Both of the competing teams had lost first-round contests in Tuesday's semi-final round.

The score had been tied at 77-77 at the end of the regulation contest. Presbyterian had fought an uphill battle throughout most of the game and had tied the score at the 1:35 mark when Thompson drove through for shot.

In the overtime period, the lead see-sawed back and forth until Presbyterian knotted the count at 81-81. Lenoir-Rhyne missed a shot and the Blue Stockings came off the board with the ball. In the Presbyterian forecourt, Thompson got control with 1:35 left and proceeded to put on his personal show. He dribbled around and in front of the Lenoir-Rhyne defenders until there were less than 10 seconds remaining in the overtime period. That's when he made his break for the basket and there was not a soul to stop him from driving in for the shot.

Thompson's last-ditch field goal gave him a total of 25 points for the night but he had to surrender scoring honors to teammate Ronald (Red) Ragan. Ragan dropped in 26 points last night to take the tournament's scoring honors with 53 points. Substitute guard Ferris Feltner was high man for the evening with 29 points.

Two Major Teams Jolted In Upsets

NEW YORK (AP)—The Bradley and St. Francis of Brooklyn basketball teams have learned to their sorrow that a bid to one of the big postseason tournaments isn't worth any points in a regular-season game.

Bradley, which meets Oklahoma City in a first-round game of the National Collegiate Basketball Championships, was favored over St. Louis last night and ran up a 10-point lead in the first quarter. But St. Louis, running fourth in the Missouri Valley Conference and never a contender for any tournament, pulled even by halftime and kept going for an 89-79 upset. Bradley had beaten its old rival 76-59 earlier in the season.

St. Francis had an even ruder surprise. The Terriers took their 20-3 record and National Invitation Tournament credentials up to play Siena, which had won only 5 of 18. Siena came from a 12-point deficit to score a 67-60 upset.

The two big tournaments split even in intertournament battles for prestige as the NCAA's Fordham outlasted Manhattan of the NIT in overtime 73-68 and Wichita of the NIT whipped Oklahoma City 76-60.

Ed Cog) once again was the difference for Fordham as the Rams won a thriller from their old interborough rival. He tied the game at 62-62 in regular time, then put in the first two baskets as Fordham dominated the overtime period.

Arnold Short, Oklahoma City's ace, made 30 for his team but it wasn't enough as Wichita spurted in the second period for a commanding lead and eased in.

Wichita had a hand in the selecting of the only NCAA team named yesterday, Oklahoma A&M. Since the Missouri Valley Conference race won't be settled until the Aggies' game with St. Louis Saturday night, Wichita asked and got a release from any commitment to represent the conference in the NCAA. A St. Louis victory Saturday would leave the Aggies and Wichita as co-champions.

Now, however, Wichita will play Bowling Green in the NIT first round Saturday and Oklahoma A&M will meet the Southwest Conference champion in the NCAA regional tournament on its home floor March 12.

The NIT completed its field yesterday with the addition of Brigham Young; third place team in the Mountain States (Skyline) Conference. The NIT also announced its seedings: Duquesne first, then Western Kentucky, Holy Cross and Niagara. All draw first-round byes.

Louisville, another NIT team, whipped Eastern Kentucky 93-77, and NCAA-bound Connecticut employed an all-court press to pull away from Columbia for an 80-64 victory.

Penn's defending Ivy League champions kept their hopes for another title alive by lambasting Harvard 87-46 to tie the Princeton for second place. Both have 9-3 marks to Cornell's 10-2, but Cornell missed play at Penn Saturday and at Princeton Monday.

In Atlantic Coast Court Tournament: Seeded Teams Favored In Openers

By KEN ALYTA
RALEIGH (AP)—Duke Maryland Wake Forest and North Carolina State, the first four seeded teams, in that order, were prohibitive favorites to brush aside second division opposition today as the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament got under way at Reynolds Coliseum.

The schedule called for Wake Forest to meet South Carolina at 2 p.m. with Maryland and Clemson following at 4 o'clock. Tonight's double header has Duke meeting Virginia at 7:30 and North Carolina facing North Carolina State at 9:30.

About 8,000 fans were expected for each of today's two double headers. Bolstered by the prospects of two slam-bang semifinals tomorrow night if the heavy favorites come through, attendance is expected to approach near capacity of 12,400 tomorrow night and again for the finals.

Duke, loser only to Wake Forest over the conference season in 10 starts, has an overall 20-5 record and ranks 11th nationally.

A year ago, playing in the Southern Conference, Wake Forest shaded North Carolina State, 71-70 for the title to break a six-year string of State victories.

Duke although among the national leaders in team scoring, has no individual scoring ace with which it hopes ride. Bernie Janicki, senior forward and co-captain, tops the Duke scoring with a 13.4 average, lowest of any of the eight team leaders in the tournament. But he is less than one point ahead of Duke's No. 4 scorer.

Top point-maker is Virginia's junior guard, Buzz Wilkinson. He has averaged 29.7 for 26 games, good enough to break the national record set last year by Furman's Frank Selvy, who, of course, is far ahead of that pace himself this season.

No. 2 man is Dickie Hemrick, giant Wake Forest junior center, who has been named to the Associated Press third team All America. He owns a 24.4 average for 25 games. Other team leaders:

Holman Ordered To Retire Or Be Fired From CCNY Job

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP)—Nat Holman, who spent virtually his entire adult life building City College of New York into a national basketball power, was told today to retire or be fired in an unprecedented decision by the Board of Higher Education.

The graying perfectionist of the court only last week was cleared of charges of misconduct by a majority report of a three-man trial committee of the board as a result of the college basketball scandals of 1951. Complete exoneration by the entire tribunal was regarded as nothing more than a formality.

But for the first time, the board overruled the recommendation of its trial committee and thus blotted out the 34-year career of the man who became known to countless thousands as "Mr. Basketball."

It was close to 1 a.m. when the board made its announcement. It had discussed the matter for more than four hours. It also voted to restore Bobby Sand, Holman's assistant, who was tried with Holman with a reprimand "to such duties as the president of City College may designate."

Holman, who led the CCNY team to victories in the NCAA and with complete cast of original Pulitzer prize photos. HISTORIC picture of Iwo Jima by Rosenthal went on view recently

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newfeatures
When you assemble the "Best Pictures" of a photo contest, it's likely to interest camera fans. When you assemble the top pictures of several contests, it should have even more interest.

But when you bring together for the first time the complete group of original prize winners of the nation's top photographic award—the Pulitzer Prize in news photography—it's something any photographer, amateur or professional, would want to see to study—and to profit from.

Such an occasion was scheduled for the 8th National Photo Show in New York City in late February through the cooperation of De Carl Ackerman of Columbia University's School of Journalism.

I went up to Columbia to have an all-together look at the 12 pictures which have won the awards since 1942 when photography received recognition with the other branches of journalism. They represented the highest goal of achievement in photo-journalism in the United States.

As a group they are indeed a dramatic lot, and I tried to recall the behind-the-picture story for each one.

Here's probably the most famous single photograph of all time—Joe Rosenthal's flag raising on Iwo Jima, Feb. 23, 1945. In taking it, do you know that as he laboriously panted up the steep, volcanic, sandy trail, warily side-stepping numerous Japanese mines, he wondered whether a possible picture was worth the effort?

Rosenthal's first picture was, in photographer's language, a "protection" shot—insurance that the event is covered but the photographer tries for better.

Then he took a second picture, the Marines cheering after the flag was up. When congratulations started pouring in after he sent the pictures off, he had the mistaken notion, at first, that it was the second picture which rated all the raves.

And that year, 1945, the Pulitzer rules were swept aside to acclaim unanimously the flag-raising as the picture of the year though snapped only ten weeks previously.

In 1946, there was no Pulitzer award in Photography because, reverting to the rules, the best picture of the preceding year had already been named!

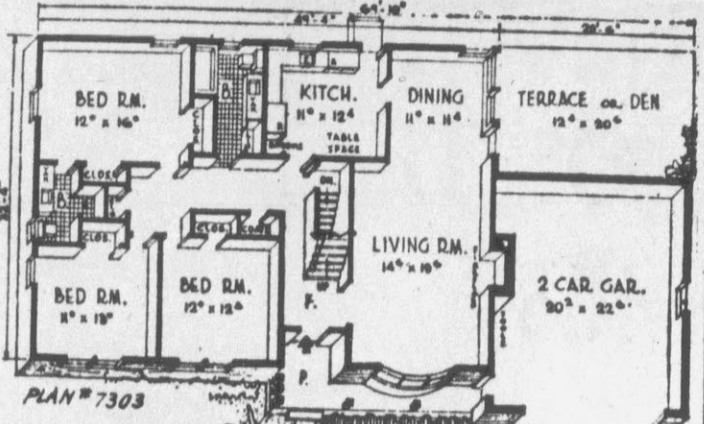

Frank Noel's 1943 winner, "Water!" has a dramatic background. Headed for the Singapore war front for the AP early in 1942, Noel's ship was the first casualty of a Japanese torpedo in the Indian Ocean. He survived five blistering, thirst-tormented days with a poisoned leg in an open lifeboat.

With all other belongings lost, he hung on to one camera. With it he recorded an equally parched Indian sailor's pleading gesture for water from an adjacent lifeboat. "Tarawa" which won in 1944 for Frank Filan of the AP, was shot under enemy fire with a borrowed camera. His landing craft was sunk approaching shore. Filan wasn't worrying about his equipment going down with it, he was carrying a drowning Marine to shore. In the ten days of Tarawa hell, he rescued many more wounded Mar-

DESIGNED FOR THE TREND toward larger homes, this house with three bedrooms and two baths also has an expansion attic to accommodate two additional bedrooms and another bathroom. lines under fire. It earned a commendation from Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz, for his "inspired devotion to duty."

It's sad to add that Filan died at 47 of a malignant brain tumor in July, 1952.

In 1944, the Pulitzer advisory board decided to add a home-front winner along with "Tarawa". Here it is, a symbolic picture of all the soldiers returning to their families: "Homecoming", by Earle Bunker of the Omaha World-Herald.

Just feel the emotion of the soldier crushing his young daughter in his arms as his wife weeps with joy. And here's an object lesson for camera fans in creating an emotional mood in a picture by camera angle and exposure. We're looking at "Babe Ruth Bows Out" by Nat Feln, New York Herald Tribune. The occasion is the Babe's farewell appearance to his Yankee Stadium fans, June 14, 1948.

Some of the 25 photographers present shot Ruth from the front to show his face. Feln shot from the rear and there's no mistaking the familiar figure and the famous number "3".

Other cameramen used flash because it was a dismal overcast day and it was easier to shoot that way. Feln decided to use the natural light to capture the mood. He shot at 1-25th at f 5.6, developed at bit longer than normal—and here it was, in the winner's circle.

Gosh, there's little space left and I haven't told you how proud I was to see my brother's picture among the select dozen. Just for the record, it won in 1951 and showed Korean refugees crawling like so many ants over a wrecked bridge to escape the oncoming Communists. Credit line? Max Desfor, AP. And what about the greatest amateur scoop of recent times? I mean Arnold Hardy's early morning coverage of the Wincock Hotel Fire in Atlanta in December, 1946, in which 119 persons perished. His photo of a woman jumping to her death was caught in mid-air with his fifth and last midjet flash-bulb.

That one night's picture taking brought the Georgia Tech student $1,250. Did that turn him to a photo career? No, his interest lay in the field of physics and he decided to let photography remain just a fascinating hobby.

Harsh Facts Of Life May Force India Accept Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The hard facts of India's economic struggle served today to discount speculation she might spurn U.S. economic aid in protest against American military aid to Pakistan.

Not counting help through the United Nations and private organizations, the United States has sent India nearly 400 million dollars in economic gifts and loans since 1950.

The Indian government depends so much upon economic help that its five-year plan, with two years to go leaves a gap between how much India expects to spend and how much it expects to earn. Outside economic aid presumably fills the gap.

American officials declined comment on speculation, by the influential New Delhi Times yesterday, as to whether all Americans might be asked to leave India. But available figures showed what a heavy load that would entail for India.

There was no U.S. comment, either, on Prime Minister Nehru's demand for the withdrawal of American members of the U.N. cease-fire mission in Kashmir. Nehru told the Indian Parliament Monday that the United States, by agreeing to give military aid to Pakistan, had lost its neutral status in the Pakistan-India dispute over Kashmir.

The U.S. position has been that Nehru's demand should properly go to the U.N., which set up the nine-nation commission in 1949. The Indian Foreign Ministry has said it will study Nehru's statement and decide what action, if any, to take.

The New Delhi Times' comment said India's Communists feel ejecting all Americans from India is the next logical step. But it said other Indian leaders cautioned against any hasty action.

Castle Turned Into Apartments; No Ghost Around

DEVIZES, England. (AP)—A retired scientist is convinced a lot of people would like to live in an ancient castle if they could keep warm and have electric lights and running water besides.

William Beresford-Medlem has converted the 11th Century Devizes Castle, 88 miles from London, into four self contained flats. He plans to keep one for himself and rent the other three for $11.20 a week, each.

"I have put on a new roof and have blocked up some of the old stone stairs," he said. "The moat has been filled in."

And for those of a timid disposition, Beresford-Medlem has one additional inducement. He guarantees there are positively no ghosts.

Printed electrical circuits which were used extensively in proximity fuses in World War II have been adapted to hearing aids says the American Hearing Aid Assn.

Collect $4,000 To Date In Red Cross Campaign

A. W. Bryan, Red Cross Chairman of the Advance Gifts campaign and H. P. Steinbeck, chairman of the branch firms, reported a total of $4,000 has been collected to date at a meeting of the Pitt County American Red Cross Planning Committee yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, Pitt County co-chairman of the drive in charge of Greenville, said that this was very gratifying in view of the fact that the campaign had just begun.

Mrs. James S. Hughes, chairman of the residential solicitation, reported that house-to-house canvass had begun and she felt very confident of the success of this phase of the campaign.

Hoover Taft, Chairman of the Pitt Red Cross Chapter, explained the expanding functions of the chapter which necessitates the necessity of a successful campaign. He also read a letter from C. McDavis, president of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, complimenting the chapter on its past record and stressing the need for a successful campaign for members and funds.

Taft then noted the dire financial condition of the Chapter and urged those present not to leave a stone unturned in this year's campaign.

Plans were made for the business district solicitation under the direction of M. E. Cavendish. Twenty-five leading citizens have been chosen to assist with this part of the campaign.

Donovan Phillips made a report that his campaign for solicitation among the Negro population was almost complete and he felt confident of success.

Dr. Jenkins, in concluding the day's reports, said that the citizens of Greenville can always be depended on to support a worthy project.

Those present at yesterday's meeting: Dr. Jenkins, Taft, J. A. Taylor, Steinbeck, Mrs. Hughes, W. M. Scales, Bryan, and Phillips.

The meeting was held in the Board Room at East Carolina College.

Colored News 500 Flee From Burning Hotel

In loving memory of my husband, Theodore R. Moore, who passed away March 4, 1950:
No one knows how much we miss you
Life itself doesn't seem the same,
In our heart, memory lingers
These four years since you have been gone.

When the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
In memory there comes a longing
If you could only come home.
