Escaped Convict Picked Up On Pitt Highway Chase Catches Lawbreaker

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector Staff Writer. An alert highway patrolman picked up one of the most wanted lawbreakers in this section after a 90-95 mile per hour chase on the Winterville-Ayden Highway last night.

Whitehurst said that the man did not give any trouble when he was arrested. "I asked him for his driver's license and for his name and he said that he didn't have any driver's license and he wasn't going to tell me his name," Whitehurst continued.

Whitehurst stated that he had received a radio message earlier that Myers was in Kinston. "I didn't know who he was at the start of the chase," he said, "but I did before we got through."

Arrested After Gunplay During Island-Wide Round-Up Nab Puerto Rican Nationalist Chief

By JULIO RIVERA. SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Police captured Pedro Albizu Campos, 62-year-old chief of the Nationalist party, after gunplay at his San Juan apartment today during an island-wide roundup aimed at the three dozen persons within the fanatical, independence-minded group.

Miss Torresola is a party secretary and sister of Grisello Torresola, who was killed in Washington in making an attempt on the life of President Truman in 1950.

In sporadic but intense outbursts. One detective said four or five persons apparently were firing from the apartment windows.

Protests Handling Of McCarthy Dispute At Higher Level Army Secretary's Top Aide Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP)—A top aide to Secretary of the Army Stevens has resigned with a protest at the handling of the Stevens-McCarthy dispute, but a spokesman for the secretary said Stevens himself "has not resigned and has no intention of resigning."

Kane, reached by phone, did not say which of Stevens' superiors he felt had not rallied to the secretary's side in the dispute over McCarthy's handling of an Army general questioned in secret session.

Administration officials and McCarthy have been embroiled in controversy since Stevens several weeks ago asserted he would not stand by and allow Army witnesses to be browbeaten by congressional committees or by anybody else.

Stevens returned to his desk at the Pentagon today after a brief trip to New York, during which there were reports he was quitting the government.

Plans Criticism Of Administration Record Adlai To Hit Policy Issues

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson agrees with President Eisenhower that the Army has not coddled Communists but he reportedly was prepared today to criticize Eisenhower's leadership on domestic and foreign policy issues.

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, was scheduled for a major speech at a party rally here tonight in which he planned to outline his views on the major issues of this year's campaign for control of Congress.

Stevenson told reporters he was "disappointed" in what he called the "lack of leadership" by Eisenhower in what the former Illinois governor regards as vital domestic and foreign problems.

Tax Office Reports People Filing Earlier This Year

By BOB BOYETTE, Reflector Staff Writer. Internal Revenue Agent Alton Buck of the local Revenue office reported yesterday that people seem to be filing federal income tax earlier this year.

He added that a lot of mail is being received by the office here in Greenville from North Carolina residents all over the world who are mixing up Greensboro with Greenville.

Estimated Tax, Form 1040-ES. The filing of a Declaration of Estimated Tax is required of every individual who expects to receive as much as $600 during the taxable year and who expects to receive:

If, however, the requirements for filing a Declaration are first met after March 1 but before June 2, the Declaration should be filed on or before June 15.

On time and or to pay an installment of estimated tax on time is five percent and to pay an installment of estimated tax on time is five percent of each installment, or portion thereof, that is due but not paid, plus one percent for each month or part of month (except the first) during which the installment remains unpaid, with a maximum penalty of ten percent.

Where no Declaration is filed, the estimated tax is considered to be zero and the penalties are computed on the total tax payable disclosed on the final tax return.

Under the present policy of the Internal Revenue Service, the District Office for this State will impose the penalties described above in each case in which the taxpayer has failed to file a Declaration on time and or make payment of an installment on time or has made a substantial under-estimation of tax.

The Doctor Disagrees

CHAPTER THIRTY

Shelly thought about Craig's predicament with some of the workers who refused to be protected against the industrial hazards of the Refractories. She decided that the only thing to do was to present the situation clearly to the men's families.

There, she thought, was an ideal. Had anyone ever talked to the men's wives about the safety program at the plant? She considered a mass meeting for that purpose, then discarded the idea. She considered asking Craig to go individually to the wives—but first she'd talk to some of them. A determined wife, she argued, could do more than any plant executive—but the wife first had to know about the situation. Shelly would see that a few of them did know.

She remembered a name or two which Craig had mentioned; she got some material from the office both on the program and on the men's records—and she bravely started out.

This was to be a woman-to-woman thing. She paid her first two calls on the way to the office. For her work in the summer, she wore simple tailored cottons; she was dressed in this unpretentious fashion when she approached one cottage, then another—

The wives were at home. At eight-thirty in the morning, the first one was hanging diapers on the clothesline and she accepted Shelly's suggestion that she not stop her work.

"I guess I'll have to keep on," she agreed, "with three kids and a new baby—"

Shelly asked about the baby. Had Dr. Talbot delivered it? (She knew he had.)

And the woman knew that she knew. Shelly flushed. "I wasn't sure that you'd remember me from the office," she said contritely. "A woman behind a desk can seem like part of the furniture."

"That may be, but we all know you're Dr. Carr's wife."

"Of course," agreed Shelly, "that's why I help out at the office. The girl my husband had quit."

"So I heard," said the woman dryly, bending over her clothesbasket.

Shelly made a clumsy attempt to talk on the subject she hoped to have in hand. But before she had said much of anything and the wife had commented only that she left all that sort of stuff to the Mister, the baby began to cry, and Shelly knew that her departure would be eagerly welcomed.

But she'd not let herself be too easily discouraged. The next morning she paid a second call. This woman was still in her housecoat, and she invited Shelly to her breakfast nook where she was having a cup of coffee with a neighbor.

Both women were wives of plant workers; Shelly stated her purpose at once. As the plant doctor's secretary, she was endeavoring to find out how much the wives knew about the safety program at the plant.

"Now don't tell me," she said sagely, "that it's none of your business. Because I'm sure you'd be directly concerned if your husband became ill or was hurt."

"Well, sure . . ." said the visiting neighbor.

And both women waited for Shelly to talk some more. She did. That morning, she made a complete thing of stating the hazards of working with clay, the measures taken by the company to prevent accidents of all sorts, including the results of silica inhalation.

Shelly frowned. "But if his health was better protected by using the change room with its ultra-violet lights, and its dust impregnation . . ."

"Look, Mrs. Carr," said the home-owner, folding her arms on the table edge and leaning toward the earnest young woman in blue chambray. "Who told you to come here and tell us how to run our husbands?"

Shelly drew back, her smile fading. "No one told me," she said gently. "Dr. Talbot is having some trouble getting some of the men to use his safety devices. I thought, as one woman to another—"

Her hostess stood up, and so did Shelly. The other woman watched. "Let me tell you something for your own good, Mrs. Carr. I'm older'n you, and I don't listen to talk—but I will say this to you. You just try to be as good a wife to your husband as I am to mine, and we'll all be better off."

Shelly left, but she thought that over, and hesitated about making any more calls. She didn't know what the woman was hinting, and whether perhaps she did not want to know. The next day, however, when she went to see Dorace Evans, she learned—

"My husband don't care much for Dr. Talbot," Dorace said flatly. "Didn't he like Stephen either?"

"Well, to be frank—if you work for the refractories, you'd better like the Carrs—or else."

"Oh, I don't believe that's fair," Mrs. Carr, do you know much about working for the Carrs?" It was rude, but it was a valid question.

"No," Shelly said, "I don't. In fact, I don't know too much about working for anyone. I had one job for a very short time before my marriage—and since—well, the little I do in the office."

The woman's eyes narrowed. "Funny, you never worked there when your husband was home," she said.

"I didn't need to. Stephen had a well-trained secretary. But she left without warning, and I filled in. And now—Oh, it's a way to pass—I mean, to fill my time."

"Mmmmm," said Dorace Evans. The tall woman in red-checked gingham studied her visitor with avid interest. "You're pretty young, aren't you?"

"I'm twenty-five, almost."

"Too bad your husband had to go off to war so soon after you were married."

"Yes. But it was his own decision, and I agreed in it."

"I'll bet you're lonely."

Shelly laughed. "Of course I am. That's why the work helps."

"Yes, but maybe some other work—" Dorace stopped abruptly. "Mrs. Evans," said Shelly with determination, "I came here for a purpose which I've stated. You've evaded an answer by saying that you don't like Dr. Talbot."

Making Model Boats Is More Than A Hobby To Him

To Henry H. Flake, 2505 E. 4th Street, Greenville, a hobby is something more than a means of relaxation. Flake, who has been employed by National Carbon Company since July, 1949, maintains that the hobby of making model boats "provides patience and the collective reflexes valuable to my work."

Flake started with the Company as a Heavy Machine Operator and is presently a Mechanic in the Can Department. His chief hobby, boat-building, has a history which antedates his employment by many years.

Henry first started building model boats when he was six years old, using small kits he bought from the dime stores. "Some of those early models were pretty rough," he recalls. Judging by the appearances of his present work, however, Henry learned a great deal about his art. And at one time he helped a friend make model boats for sale.

Throughout the years Flake has been riding his hobby horse, he has never entered a contest, but many organizations have used his model boats for display.

Flake's latest model is a 16 inch Inboard Criscraft with actual burning headlights, novelty fog horns, hand rails, strip deck and a heavy duty K & O 6 volt motor operating on two Number 950 flashlight batteries. In actual tests on "Tar River", the new boat will run 12 miles per hour.

Henry has two avid fans for his boat building: his wife, Betty, and his daughter, Belinda Ann, 15 months, who likes to play "destroyer."

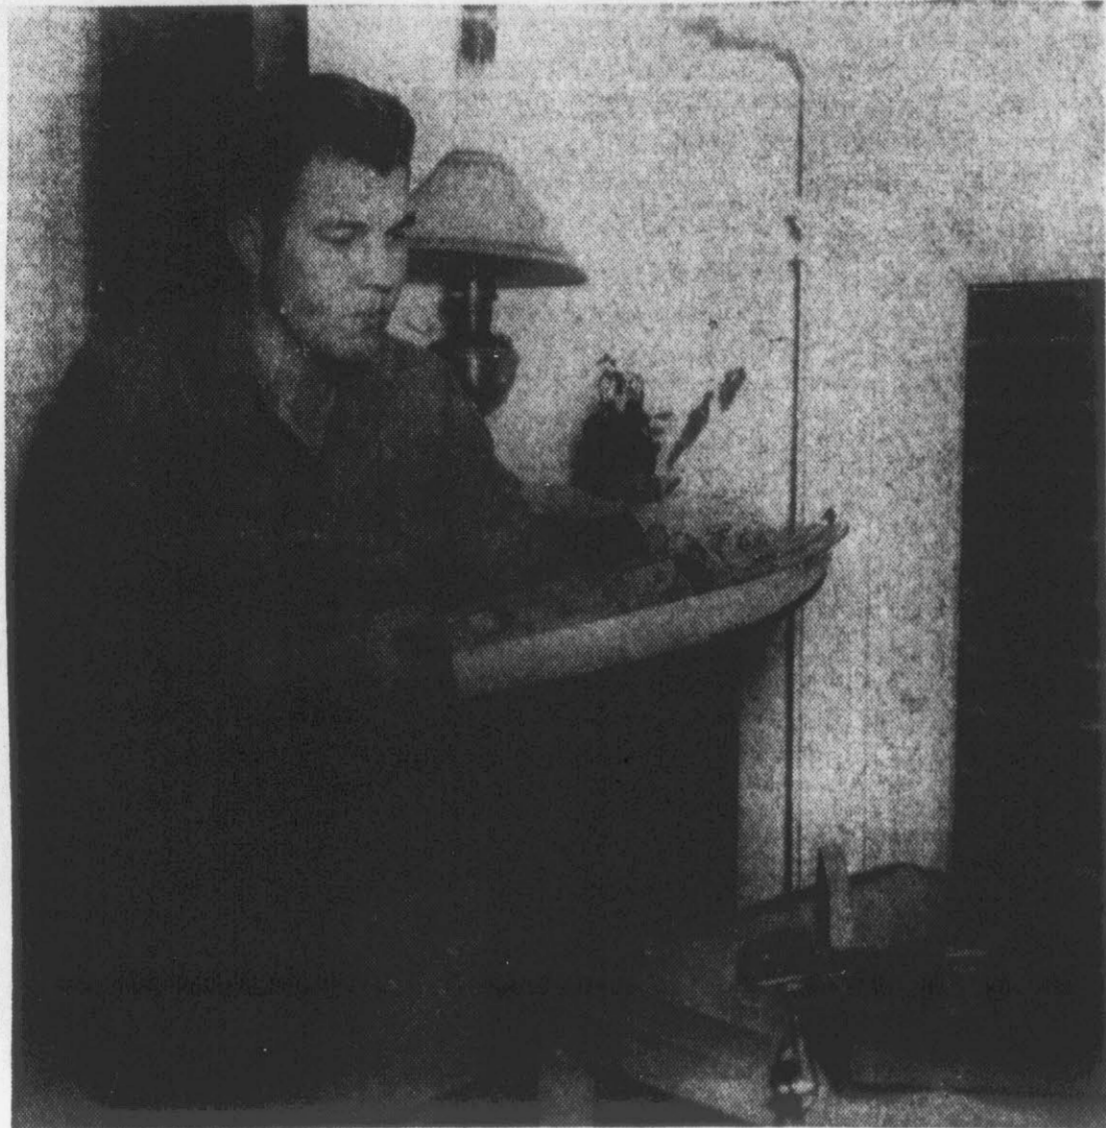

In addition to the hobby of making boats, he also likes to make airplanes, liquor stills (model ones, of course) and train accessories. These hobbies, he states not only help in his regular work, but also "give me something to brag about."

Flake served in the Marine Reserve Corps for 10 months during the Korean War.

His other activities include a 14 mo. hitch as a State Game Protector and three years as a volunteer fireman.

Flake says that he only has two number of model boats when he moved into his new home on East Fourth Street late last year.

"However, I gave most of them away when I moved," he says. "I gave 21 boats to kids in the neighborhood as Christmas presents."

Henry H. Flake holds one of the model boats which he constructed in his spare time. Flake has built a large number of model boats as a hobby. However, he gave most of them away last Christmas to kids in the neighborhood as Christmas presents. He just moved into a new home and does not have his workshop set up as yet. A close-up of one of Flake's model boats shows that it is complete in every detail. The boat has a battery-powered motor and the running lights actually burn. Flake has also built a miniature liquor still which would work if the kettle was plugged up. However, he says, if the kettle was plugged it would make the still an illegal device.

Self-Trained Scientist Would Be A Professor

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP)—A self-educated scientist who capably taught higher physics under another man's name would like to make the grade as a professor in his own name.

Marvin Hewitt, about 31, of Hempstead, was revealed yesterday as a man whose formal schooling ended in high school but who trained himself and became a University of New Hampshire teacher under another's name.

Hewitt was located later in his Hempstead home and with a glow of pride told newsmen the subjects he taught—the quantum field theory, functions of a complex variable, etc.

"I'd still like to be a real professor some day," he told the reporters, "but with a wife and three children to support how can I get the education?"

On other subjects—his background, even his attractive wife's first name—he would say nothing. Nor would he permit photographs.

He readily confirmed the news from Durham, N.H., where officials revealed that for a year he had been capably teaching at Dr. Kenneth P. Yates. The real Yates is a scientist in Crystal Lake, Ill., and had no idea someone was teaching under his name.

The details from Durham were supplemented by information supplied by Robert F. Chandler Jr., attending the National Conference on Higher Education.

Chandler said Hewitt's teaching "actually was very satisfactory" and added: "He was undoubtedly a brilliant physicist."

Chandler said Hewitt, in applying for a faculty post submitted three names as references, apparently all fictitious. Letters from the references commended "Yates" highly, said Chandler, who declared he believed Hewitt arranged to write the references himself.

Chandler said Hewitt also managed to get a transcript of Yates' scholastic record from Ohio State University.

Hewitt's desire to teach was "a compulsion," added Chandler, and he was frustrated by a father who did not believe in a college education.

The impersonation was brought to the attention of the FBI, but it said Hewitt had violated no federal laws.

The Doctor Disagrees

CHAPTER THIRTY

SHELLY thought about Craig's predicament with some of the workers who refused to be protected against the industrial hazards of the refractories. She decided that the only thing to do was to present the situation clearly to the men's families.

There, she thought, was an ideal. Had anyone ever talked to the men's wives about the safety program at the plant? She considered a mass meeting for that purpose then discarded the idea. She considered asking Craig to go individually to the wives—but first she'd talk to some of them. A determined wife, she argued, could do more than any plant executive—but the wife first had to know about the situation. Shelly would see that a few of them did know.

She remembered a name or two which Craig had mentioned; she got some material from the office both on the program and on the men's records—and she bravely started out.

This was to be a woman-to-woman thing. She paid her first two calls on the way to the office. For her work in the summer, she wore simple tailored cottons; she was dressed in this unpretentious fashion when she approached one cottage, then another—

The wives were at home. At eight-thirty in the morning, the first one was hanging diapers on the clothesline, and she accepted Shelly's suggestion that she not stop her work.

"I guess I'll have to keep on," she agreed, "with three kids and a new baby—"

Shelly asked about the baby. Had Dr. Talbot delivered it? (She knew he had.)

And the woman knew that she knew. Shelly flushed. "I wasn't sure that you'd remember me from the office," she said contritely. "A woman behind a desk can seem like part of the furniture."

"That may be, but we all know you're Dr. Carr's wife." Shelly, "that's why I help out at the office. The girl my husband had quit."

"So I heard," said the woman dryly, bending over her clothesbasket.

Shelly made a clumsy attempt to talk on the subject she hoped to have in hand. But before she had said much of anything and the wife had commented only that she left all that sort of stuff to the mister, and Shelly knew that her departure would be eagerly welcomed.

But she'd not let herself be too easily discouraged. The next morning she paid a second call. This woman was still in her housecoat, and she invited Shelly to her breakfast nook where she was having a cup of coffee with a neighbor.

Both women were wives of plant workers; Shelly stated her purpose at once. As the plant doctor's secretary, she was endeavoring to find out how much the wives knew about the safety program at the plant.

"Now don't tell me," she said gaily, "that it's none of your business. Because I'm sure you'd be directly concerned if your husband became ill or was hurt."

"Well, sure . . ." said the visiting neighbor.

And both women waited for Shelly to talk some more. She did. That morning, she made a complete thing of stating the hazards of working with clay, the measures taken by the company to prevent accidents of all sorts, including the results of silica inhalation.

"Don't the men do what they're told?" asked her hostess blandly. "Not all of them, I'm afraid." "Can't the plant bosses make 'em do it?"

Shelly frowned. "But if his health was better protected by using the change room with its ultra-violet lights, and its dust impregnation . . ."

"Look, Mrs. Carr," said the home-owner, folding her arms on the table edge and leaning toward the earnest young woman in blue chambray. "Who told you to come here and tell us how to run our husbands?"

Shelly drew back, her smile fading. "No one told me," she said gently. "I—Dr. Talbot is having some trouble getting some of the men to use his safety devices. I thought, as one woman to another—"

Her hostess stood up, and so did Shelly. The other woman watched. "Let me tell you something for your own good, Mrs. Carr. I'm older'n you, and I don't listen to talk—but I will say this to you. You just try to be as good a wife to your husband as I am to mine, and we'll all be better off."

Shelly left, but she thought that over, and hesitated about making any more calls. She didn't know what the woman was hinting, and she thought perhaps she did not want to know. The next day, however, when she went to see Dorace Evans, she learned.

"My husband don't care much for Dr. Talbot," Dorace said flatly. "Didn't he like Stephen either?"

"Well, to be frank—if you work for the refractories, you'd better like the Carrs—or else."

"Mrs. Carr, do you know much about working for the Carrs?" It was rude, but it was a valid question.

"No," Shelly said, "I don't. In fact, I don't know too much about working for anyone. I had one job for a very short time before my marriage—and since—well, the little I do in the office."

The woman's eyes narrowed. "Funny, you never worked there when your husband was home," she said.

"I didn't need to. Stephen had a well-trained secretary. But she left without warning, and I filled in. And now—Oh, it's a way to pass—I mean, to fill my time."

"Mmmmm," said Dorace Evans. The tall woman in red-checked gingham studied her visitor with avid interest. "You're pretty young, aren't you?"

"I'm twenty-five, almost." "Too bad your husband had to go off to war so soon after you were married."

"Yes. But it was his own decision, and I agreed in it." "I'll bet you're lonely."

Shelly laughed. "Of course I am. That's why the work helps."

"Yes, but maybe some other work—" Dorace stopped abruptly. "Mrs. Evans," said Shelly with determination, "I came here for a purpose which I've stated. You've evaded an answer by saying that you don't like Dr. Talbot."

"I said Bob didn't like him. But I don't care too much for him myself. A lot of us feel the same way." (To Be Continued)

FAITH ALONE can guide man's footsteps into the future

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the sake of his community and nation. (3) For the sake of the Church itself. (4) For the sake of his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Bible Words to Live by

To me, the most incandescent verse in the New Testament is (John 1:4): "In Him life lay, and that life was the light of men."

It becomes more and more apparent, in our intricate, complicated, modern society, with space and time practically annihilated, that for men and nations life is in the direction of Jesus Christ; and that, for men and nations, away from Him is disillusionment and destruction. No matter how one may explain His personality, it is apparent to all who have eyes to see, that when under the blue sky of Palestine He declared "heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away", He was in His precepts expressing the very laws of life. Man cannot break them without breaking himself. The world is not through with Jesus Christ. It is through without Him.

When the last cruiser is scrapped as old iron, when the last nation held together by physical force falls apart like a pack of cards, when the last dictator has released his iron hold on regimented people, the words of Jesus will stand unrefuted and irrefutable. The future is with Him. It is eternally true that in Him life lay; and that life is the light of men.

Making Model Boats Is More Than A Hobby To Him

To Henry H. Flake, 2505 E. 4th Street, Greenville, a hobby is something more than a means of relaxation. Flake, who has been employed by National Carbon Company since July, 1949, maintains that the hobby of making model boats "provides patience and the collective reflexes valuable to my work."

Flake started with the Company as a Heavy Machine Operator and is presently a Mechanic in the Can Department. His chief hobby, boat-building, has a history which antedates his employment by many years.

Henry first started building model boats when he was six years old, using small kits he bought from the dime stores. "Some of these early models were pretty rough," he recalls. Judging by the appearance of his present work, however, Henry learned a great deal about his art. And at one time he helped a friend make model boats for sale.

Throughout the years Flake has been riding his hobby horse, he has never entered a contest; but many organizations have used his model boats for display.

Flake's latest model is a 16 inch Inboard Criscraft with actual burning headlights, novelty fog horns, hand rails, strip deck and a heavy duty K & O 6 volt motor operating on two Number 950 flashlight batteries. In actual tests on "Tar River," the new boat will run 12 miles per hour.

Henry has two avid fans for his boat building: his wife, Betty, and his daughter, Belinda Ann, 15 months, who likes to play "destroyer." In addition to the hobby of making boats, he also likes to make airplanes, liquor stills (model ones, of course) and train accessories. These hobbies, he states not only help in his regular work, but also "give me something to brag about."

Flake served in the Marine Reserve Corps for 10 months during the Korean War.

His other activities include a 14 mo. hitch as a State Game Protector and three years as a volunteer fireman.

Flake says that he only has two number of model boats when he moved into his new home on East Fourth Street late last year.

"However, I gave most of them

Henry H. Flake holds one of the model boats which he constructed in his spare time. Flake has built a large number of model boats as a hobby. However, he gave most of them away last Christmas to kids in the neighborhood as Christmas presents. He just moved into a new home and does not have his workshop set up as yet. (Reflector photos by Alvin Taylor)

away when I moved," he says. "I gave 21 boats to kids in the neighborhood as Christmas presents."

Flake says that he only has one model left now.

The model boat builder said that he does have a workshop set in his new home yet, but that he hopes to put a building in the back yard for pursuing his hobby.

He estimated that the cost of the boat which he kept including time, labor and all other cost would run about $15 or $20. The time consumed on such a project is by far the main item in the cost, Flake stated.

"I'd say it takes about 10 or 15 hours to build the model," he said. "I only work a couple of hours at the time."

Flake says that it took him approximately two months to make his miniature still. He stated that all the still needs to be able to actually make liquor is a plug in the bottom of the kettle. However, he says he does not plug it up because it would then be an illegal device.

Flake also has a hobby of collecting old guns which he attempts to repair. He only keeps ammuni-

A close-up of one of Flake's model boats shows that it is complete in every detail. The boat has a battery-powered motor and the running lights actually burn. Flake has also built a miniature liquor still which would work if the kettle was plugged up. However, he says, if the kettle was plugged it would make the still an illegal device.

tion for one gun and that is up in his new home.

One he uses in his official duties. Flake says that he has been trying to persuade Mrs. Flake to give him the dining room of his new home for this purpose but she lady of the house has so far steadfastly refused.

Self-Trained Scientist Would Be A Professor

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP)—A self-educated scientist who capably taught higher physics under another man's name would like to make the grade as a professor in his own name.

Marvin Hewitt, about 31, of Hempstead, was revealed yesterday as a man whose formal schooling ended in high school but who trained himself and became a University of New Hampshire teacher under another's name.

Hewitt was located later in his Hempstead home and with a glow of pride told newsmen the subjects he taught—the quantum field theory, functions of a complex variable, etc.

"I'd still like to be a real professor some day," he told the reporters, "but with a wife and three children to support how can I get the education."

On other subjects—his background, even his attractive wife's first name—he would say nothing. Nor would he permit photographs. He readily confirmed the news from Durham, N.H., where officials revealed that for a year he had been capably teaching as Dr. Kenneth P. Yates. The real Yates is a scientist in Crystal Lake,

Ill., and had no idea someone was teaching under his name.

The details from Durham were supplemented by information supplied by Robert F. Chandler Jr., attending the National Conference on Higher Education.

Chandler said Hewitt's teaching "actually was very satisfactory" and added:

"He was undoubtedly a brilliant physicist."

Chandler said Hewitt, in applying for a faculty post, submitted three names as references, apparently all fictitious. Letters from the references commended "Yates" highly, said Chandler, who declared he believed Hewitt arranged to write the references himself.

Chandler said Hewitt also managed to get a transcript of Yates' scholastic record from Ohio State University.

Hewitt's desire to teach was "a compulsion," added Chandler, and he was frustrated by a father who did not believe in a college education.

The impersonation was brought to the attention of the FBI, but it said Hewitt had violated no federal laws.

Gilbert Peel Speaks At Ruritan Meeting

Members of the Simpson-Grimesland Ruritan Club heard brief talks on the rearrangement of voting precincts in Pitt County and on highway safety at their meeting Thursday night.

Gilbert Peel, chairman of the Pitt Board of Elections, discussed the new voting precincts which have been set up in the county and urged members of the club to "put their shoulders to the wheel" to see that the voters of their community are properly registered in the new registration to be held.

Peel asserted his belief that close to 1,000 qualified voters live in Grimesland township, and pointed out that only those who register during the registration period will be eligible to vote in the May 29 primary.

Highway Patrolmen Delton Perry and James Boykin spoke to members of the club on highway safety and showed photographs of several serious automobile accidents which have occurred in Pitt County.

The officers stressed the fact that speed is the biggest single cause of highway accidents. They urged members of the Ruritan club to drive in such a manner as to set a good example for their neighbors and especially for younger drivers. The officers also explained briefly the new financial responsibility law for motor vehicle operators which is now in effect in North Carolina.

Accidentally Shot Mother In Arm

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Faye Hubbard, 47, wife of suburban Dearborn Mayor Orville L. Hubbard, was accidentally shot by her 11-year-old son Henry, as she was about to play Russian roulette last night.

Mrs. Hubbard suffered a flesh wound in the upper right arm and a bullet burn on the back. She was treated at a nearby clinic and released.

Mrs. Hubbard said she walked into the bedroom and found Henry in his father's closet.

"Henry said 'Mama let's play roulette' and just about that time the gun fired and I felt a burning in my arm," she reported.

The weapon was a .38 caliber revolver belonging to Mayor Hubbard.

Mayor Hubbard said that his son had been talking of "Russian roulette" some time and that Henry had been reading about it in comic books.

In Russian roulette, a single bullet is loaded into the cylinder of a revolver. The cylinder is then given a whirl and the trigger is pulled while the gun is aimed at the head.

Anyway, Keys To Jail Returned

SWEETWATER, Tex. (AP)—The Nolan County Sheriff's Office got back a missing set of jail keys yesterday. But eight pints of confiscated liquor are gone for good.

A trusty found an extra set of keys in a store room and got into a locker where liquor seized in this dry county is kept.

Later, the prisoner was found in a highly convivial mood. He had downed eight pints of whiskey.

The keys are back in the sheriff's possession, and the trusty is serving out the rest of his term securely tucked away in a cell. He is in for bootlegging.

Reminds Self-Employed To File Social Security

Gerald Johnston, field representative of the Social Security office in Rocky Mount conferred Friday with A. G. Buck, Internal Revenue official about the filing of annual social security credits for the self-employed, based on information supplied on Schedule C-a which is filed with the annual income-tax return.

Buck pointed out that all self-employed persons, or partners file information and pay social security tax annually, whereas reports for their employees are filed quarterly.

Johnston explains that the Government maintains social security accounts for the self-employed just as they do for employees of the company, but that the Social Security Administration is dependent upon Schedule C-a for a proper description of the business, the amount of earnings to be credited, together with the name and account number of the self-employed businessman.

After being received with the regular income-tax return this information is forwarded to the headquarters office of social security. He stated that during the past two years many individuals had failed to accurately state nature of business operated or had listed the operation of two businesses, one of which did not qualify them for social security credits, and that the Government had found it difficult to properly credit earnings to the self-employed person's account.

Buck suggested that all self-employed operators or partners in business should state the nature of the business as accurately as possible. For example, the operator of a grocery store and farm should be credited with social security from the earnings of the grocery store only, since the operation of a farm is still not covered by the social security law. Such self-employed should therefore describe the nature of his business as "Merchant." If the self-employed person will accurately describe the exact nature of the business covered, his account may be credited without delay and with the least possible expense.

Egypt's Military Regime Says Constituent Assembly Planned

By ROBERT B. HEWETT
CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Egyptians are to elect a constituent assembly in July. This step toward restoring the Nile nation's parliamentary government was announced by the reunited military regime last night.

It promised also to end local press censorship immediately, except for defense matters, and to wipe out the martial law instituted when King Farouk was deposed and exiled in 1952.

The 250-member constituent assembly, to draft a constitution and serve as an interim parliament, will be inaugurated July 23, the second anniversary of the start of the bloodless coup that dethroned Farouk.

These decisions were reached by the 12-man Revolutionary Council in consultation with two of Egypt's elder statesmen. The elder statesmen were ex-Premier Aly Maher, appointed months ago to head a 50-man committee to consider a new constitution, and Abdel Razak Sanhoury, president of the Egyptian State Council (supreme court).

Both President Mohamed Naguib, a major general, and Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, a lieutenant colonel—central figures in the council shakeup last week that stirred the nation—attended the meeting at Nasser's home in suburban Helwan. They appeared on the best of terms.

Presidency was Naguib's until young officers on the council stripped him of his titles Feb. 25 and made Nasser premier and acting president. Two days later they bowed to pressure and restored Naguib, a popular idol, as their figurehead.

The liberalization of policy does not mean Egypt is to get a democratic government as such a term would be understood in the United States. Observers view the decisions as intended both to reinforce the council's unity and 299 public support.

Speaking to newsmen from the steps of his home, Nasser said the Revolutionary Council will run Egypt until a regular parliament is elected later. He said he considers the council "a caretaker government."

"The revolutionary Council is gradually handing over power to the people," he said, "but the army is determined to see proper parliamentary life restored to Egypt."

The election date for the regular parliament, he said, probably will be set by the constituent assembly. Egypt has been operating since January, 1953, under an officially decreed three-year transition period in which political organizations were banned and popular elections tentatively scheduled for 1956.

Naguib presumably will hold on to the presidency, originally given him by decree of the council June 18, 1953.

Nasser said no political parties

Gurganus-Ragland Vows Spoken In Double Ring Ceremony

OXFORD—The bride's pastor, Rev. Paul Mattox, officiated at the wedding of Miss Dorothy Ragland of Oxford and William Clyde Gurganus Jr. of Greenville. The two exchanged vows with the double ring ceremony at Hester Baptist Church at 4 p.m. February 28.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Gargland William Ragland of Oxford and the late Mr. Ragland. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Gurganus of Greenville.

Mrs. Robert A. Leggett Jr. of South Boston, Va., organist, and Miss Marilyn McGimsey of Lenoir, vocalist, school-mate of the bride at East Carolina College, presented the wedding music.

Baskets of gladioli, snapdragons and pompon chrysanthemums, used with wordardia ferns and palms and lighted candles in floor standards, decorated the church.

William Glenn Ragland gave his sister in marriage. She was given in white chantilly lace worn over bridal satin fashioned with a fitted bodice, Peter Pan collar and long fitted sleeves that end in calla points over the wrists. Her full skirt was of ballerina length. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of matching satin and lace.

She carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis, centered with a white orchid and tied with white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Charles F. Jones Jr. was matron of honor and only attendant of her cousin. She wore a ballerina-length dress of forget-me-not blue nylon and a small hat of matching nylon and net. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations tied with pink nylon streamers.

Mr. Gurganus was his son's best man. The ushers were Gilbert Ragland of Oxford, cousin of the bride; Earl Barton, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Tommy Smith and Jerry Phillips, all of Greenville.

The honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Earl Barton, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Rebecca Pate of Greenville; Miss Ethel Massengill of Four Oaks; Miss Katherine Richards of Washington; Miss Mary Stephenson of Murfreesboro; Mrs. Edward Clayton of Greensboro; Miss Betsy Hogwood and Mrs. Waverly Barnes of Oxford. They wore evening gowns in pastel colors.

The bride's mother wore a dress of navy blue crepe with lace trim and matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of robin's egg blue with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride is a graduate of Oxford High and East Carolina College, Greenville, where her major was in home economics. Mr. Gurganus is a graduate of Greenville High and a graduate of the Korean war. He holds a position with Cozart's Supply in Greenville.

For travel, the bride wore a powder blue wool suit with navy accessories and the orchid from her wedding bouquet.

Following the wedding rehearsal on Feb. 27, Mrs. Granville Ragland and Mrs. Charles F. Jones Jr. entertained with a cake cutting in the social rooms of Hester Church. Prenuptial Parties Are Given To Honor Bethel Bride-Elect

Miss Mary Todd Smith of Bethel, whose wedding to Robert Preston MacKenzie Jr. of Washington will be solemnized on Saturday, March 6, was honored with a bridge party by Mrs. Frances Rowlette on Thursday evening, February 25, at the home of her mother, Mrs. H. L. Rives Sr. Tables were prearranged to seat 16 guests. Colorful spring flowers decorated the house and Miss Smith was given a pink camellia corsage. High score was won by Mrs. Harold Staton; and the honoree was presented a silver bowl as a wedding gift. Bridal ices and cakes were served as refreshments.

Mrs. Bob Cullifer, Miss Jean Cullifer, Mrs. William Andrews and Miss Betty Andrews entertained in honor of Miss Smith at a dessert hour on Friday evening at eight o'clock at the home of Mrs. Cullifer. The color scheme of yellow was predominant in the arrangement of candles and spring flowers. The honored guest received a corsage of yellow gladioli, crystal in her pattern, and a silver bowl as gifts from the hostesses. Approximately 30 guests were present.

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst complimented Miss Smith with five tables of bridge.

Spring flowers were used extensively throughout the house. Bridal cakes and ices were served for refreshments. The hostess's gifts to the bride-elect were a corsage and silver in her pattern.

Mrs. Frederick Howdy and Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Ramsay entertained 12 couples at a dinner party in honor of Miss Smith and Mr. MacKenzie at the "Rendezvous" in Washington.

The banquet room was made festive for the occasion with the use of spring flowers and candles. The betrothed couple were the recipients of a silver pitcher and a silver covered vegetable dish as wedding gifts.

Exchangites Hear German Student

At the Greenville Exchange Club's weekly supper meeting at the Women's Club last night, Peter Nicolaisen, 17-year-old German exchange student, was the after-dinner speaker.

Nicolaisen, a native of Husum, Germany, about 70 miles from Communist-controlled Germany, is spending a year in the United States under sponsorship of the National Grange. He and 76 other German boys and girls are in this country and living in American homes. Through these contacts the young Germans learn much about the American way of life. President Ed Parkinson, who presided, stated.

The young German explained the differences in German and American customs. He said he is impressed by the lack of formality here as compared with the strict code in his native land. In his town of only 25,000 people, Nicolaisen stated, only about 500 attend church regularly. He said religion is a compulsory subject in German schools, but there are only two religions in Germany as compared with 260 denominations in the United States. At the conclusion of his talk, the young student answered numerous questions for the Exchangites.

Public Relations Committee Chairman Jack Wallace said attendance last night was over 50 per cent. Alvin Morrow and Tom Patterson were guests of the club.

School Menu

Mrs. Louise Rush, supervisor of Greenville city school cafeteria, has announced the following menus for next week:

Monday: Baked beef hash with potatoes and onions, stewed corn, carrot strips, bran muffins, butters, sliced peaches, milk.

Tuesday: Hot dog in roll, home baked beans, slaw, plain cake with peanut butter and honey icing, milk.

Wednesday: Vegetable soup, crackers, plimatic cheese and peanut butter sandwich, apple sabbies with cheese, milk.

Thursday: Italian spaghetti, string beans, sliced beets, biscuits, butters, Jello, milk.

Friday: Salmon croquette, buttered peas, stewed potatoes, corn bread, butter, butterscotch pudding, milk.

Tradition Hurts N.C. Farm Life

RALEIGH — It's the traditional renting system, not individuals, that's creating problems for owners and tenants on North Carolina farms.

Rental arrangements brought into use just after the Civil War don't work very well with modern agriculture. This is the conclusion of extension farm management experts studying the problem at N.C. State College.

Reporting on their 1953 activities, the specialists say the greatest contribution of their Landlord-Tenant Relationships and Farm Leases Project to North Carolina's agriculture thus far has been the acceptance of this fact by many farmers throughout the State.

The project is designed (1) to help farmers modify traditional rental arrangements so they will be compatible with modern, efficient farming, and (2) to change the present prevailing relationship between landlords and tenants from one of master to servant to one of a partnership.

Gratifying Results

Thus far the results have been highly gratifying. Up-to-date rental arrangements are bringing landlords and tenants higher income, greater security, and more pleasant working relationships.

The number of rental arrangements which include livestock as well as crops is increasing in all sections of the state.

Thousands of rental arrangements have been changed to permit the tenant to own tractors and equipment. County Agent J.E. Foll in Rockingham County estimates that one-fourth of the arrangements in his county have been modified in this respect in the last four years.

In general when the tenant furnishes the tractor and equipment, the landlord furnishes all the fertilizer, seed, and possibly insecticides. Tenants ordinarily do not have the cash or credit to buy tractors and equipment. This problem is being solved by landlords selling tractors to tenants and taking a mortgage on the tractor and by landlords co-signing notes with the tenant to banks or farm equipment companies.

One of the larger farms in the State, which used 60 croppers under the traditional rental arrangements, has mechanized 15 of the tenants who now handle the entire farm. Many of the 45 families who were not needed have moved out of agriculture. Each of the 15 tenants is now earning $5,000 or better net cash farm income. Under the old system, the tenant was lucky to clear $1,500.

The landlord says his income is also higher, because the tenants are doing a better job — which is resulting in higher yields. Also, he does not have the expense of keeping up 45 houses. The managerial task of the landlord has been reduced considerably as the tenants are now assuming part of this job; and the total job is smaller because fewer people are involved.

As farms add livestock and machinery, both landlords and tenants are recognizing the need for greater security of tenure. Three-to-10 years leases are becoming common while only five years ago it was difficult to find other than a one-year lease.

The tenants, in addition to earning higher incomes, are becoming better citizens. Having higher incomes, owning property, and having responsibility is definitely changing their attitude toward the economic and political system of which they are a member. The farm management specialists conclude there can be nothing wrong with an arrangement which makes both parties (landlord and tenant) and society better off.

Fertilization Advice Would Greatly Increase Demand Burning Off Of Fields 'Wrong'

RALEIGH — If recommended fertilization practices were adopted with all crops, fertilizer consumption in North Carolina would increase by 50 per cent, according to E.T. York, head of the Department of Agronomy, N.C. State College.

"The benefits to be derived from proper fertilization are most significant," York says. He estimates that the use of recommended fertilization would double the yields of crops such as corn, wheat and oats. "The added income from corn alone would mean an increased return to North Carolina farmers of approximately $100 million annually at present price levels."

York points out that the agricultural economy of North Carolina is largely geared to the production of crops; 80 per cent of the state's cash farm income is derived from the sale of crops.

The remaining income from livestock and livestock products is also dependent to a great extent upon the production of feed crops, according to York. "The successful production of all these crops is dependent perhaps more than we realize upon fertilizers."

"In fact, it is estimated that fertilizers are responsible for approximately two-thirds of our total production of crops in North Carolina."

York says that North Carolina soils in the virgin state are generally low in productivity, but they are very responsive to the use of fertilizers and good management. "Farmers have long recognized this fact and for years North Carolina has used more fertilizers than any other state in the nation."

"Despite the fact that our fertilizer usage has almost doubled in the past 15 years, we are still using less than is needed for the most profitable production on many of our crops."

York points out that the returns from fertilizers will be dependent upon the value of the crop and the fertility of the soil. "With tobacco, we are already using adequate fertilizers in most cases, but with most of our crops, we can expect very significant returns from increased fertilization," York feels.

Experiments with cotton on soils low in fertility have shown an increased return of as much as $58 for each $1 spent on fertilizer. Average returns of $4 to $6 per $1 expended for fertilizer are common with many crops under widely different soil conditions. "With returns such as these, one might ask how we can afford not to fertilize adequately," York says.

The farmer is receiving more for his fertilizer dollar today than ever before, according to York. The price index on fertilizer in 1952 was 143 (1910-1914 price equal 100). The price index for all commodities the farmer bought was 273, while the index for the products sold by the farmer was 288.

"In other words, the cost of other commodities bought by the farmer and the value of farm products sold have increased approximately 300 per cent more than the cost of fertilizer since 1910-1914. At the same time the farmer is getting a better product — one with many improved physical and chemical properties."

After bad crop years or in periods of declining farm prices, there is a natural tendency to be more conservative in expenditures, York says, and many farmers may be inclined to reduce their usage of fertilizer.

"However, with the demonstrated need and the relatively large return for money invested in fertilizer, such periods might well call for an increased fertilizer usage to offset other reductions in income."

Recommendations

"In order to realize the greatest returns from fertilizers, we must fit our fertilization program to our soil and crop needs. Soils differ greatly in their level of nitrogen, phosphorus, potash and other plant nutrients. We need to take these differences into account, therefore, in a fertilization program to supply the nutrients most needed in a particular soil and to avoid excessive usage of other nutrients already well supplied by the soil. The Soil Testing Division of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture will analyze your soil and make very specific recommendations for each field on your farm.

"We should make every effort to take full advantage of this free service. In the absence of a soil test, the general recommendations of the Experiment Station provide the best index of fertilizer needs under average soil conditions. Your County Agent, vocational agricultural teacher, or other agricultural worker in the county will be glad to furnish information regarding such recommendations."

U.S. Output Of Mohair Biggest

ANKARA (AP)—Just before the outbreak of the U.S. Civil War Sultan Abdul Medjid of Turkey authorized the export of 2 male and 18 female Angora goats to the United States. Angora goats are the source of mohair and Turkey's policy had been to prohibit shipment of the goats to protect the local mohair market.

Turkish sources say the 2½ million Angora goats found today in Texas, Oregon and other states are all descended from the original 20.

As a result, American mohair output is now the largest in the world. Turkey is second and the United States is one of the biggest buyers of Turkish mohair.

Turks refer to this as Turkish economic aid to America.

Calls For N. C. Chicks Might Exceed Supply

RALEIGH — The demand for North Carolina certified chicks may exceed the state's supply this year, according to poultry experts, partly because of the increased interest among poultrymen in market egg production.

R.S. Dearstyne, head of the department of poultry science at N.C. State College, says North Carolina has one certified pullover clean hatchery producing white leghorn chicks and 15 U.S. approved pullover clean hatcheries producing five breeds.

Certified chicks, according to Dearstyne, are classed as such because the males used in the flocks are from Record of Performance dams. To secure this distinction, the dam must have laid 200 eggs or more. The females of the mating are chosen on the basis of vitality and type. North Carolina has seven Record of Performance breeders.

Along with the increased demand for certified chicks has been an increased demand for sex linked birds. Dearstyne explains that sex linkage means a cross that produces a chick, the sex of which can be determined at time of hatching by its color markings. "It must be borne in mind," says Dearstyne, "that crossing in itself does not necessarily mean a high quality chick. A cross is just as good as the germ plasm on both sides of the cross." Just what are the hatcheries of the state doing to meet the demand for crosses? three approved pullover clean hatcheries are handling two crosses; three approved pullover clean hatcheries are handling three certified crosses; and 23 approved pullover clean hatcheries are handling nine different crosses. Out of these hatcheries there should exist the opportunity for poultrymen to secure any of the popular crosses from sources near home.

Dearstyne advises poultrymen to get the type bird they want near home and to get them soon.

Scholarship For Poultry Winner

RALEIGH — Kent Mann, an Alamance County 4-H'er, is winner of the 1953 Poultry Scholarship to State College, offered by the Farmers Exchange Cooperative, L.R. Harrill, State 4-H Club leader, announced today.

Mann is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A.H. Mann, Mebane, Route 1. As a national winner in 4-H poultry projects last year he received a college scholarship valued at $300. The FOX one-year scholarship is valued at $150.

During his seven-year 4-H career as a member of the Alexander Wilson Club, Mann has raised 36,100 chickens, seven calves, and entered 14 dairy shows.

Will Demonstrate Electric Heating For Plant Beds; It's Gaining Favor

RALEIGH — Farmers throughout eastern North Carolina will have a chance to witness demonstrations on the construction and use of an electrically heated plant bed, a device that is rapidly gaining the favor of Tar Heel farmers.

Henry Covington, horticultural specialist, and E.S. Coates, agricultural engineering specialist for the State College Extension Service, will conduct the demonstration, in cooperation with local county farm agents.

At each demonstration the selection and treating of seed potatoes will be carefully discussed, as well as the physical make-up and actual installation of an electric cable heating unit.

Following is a list of demonstration, date and time:

Hertford County, March 16, 2 p.m.; Gates County, March 17, 10:30 a.m.; Beaufort County, March 18, 2 p.m.; Wilson County, March 19, 10:30 a.m.; Nash County (Negro), March 24, 2 p.m.; Warren County (Negro), March 25, 2 p.m.; and Greene County March 26, 2 p.m.

Story Of Lindbergh Flight To Be Filmed

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The story of Charles A. Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris will finally reach the movie screens late this year.

Ever since his history-making journey, the Lone Eagle has resisted Hollywood offers to dramatize the story on film. When he published his own version of the flight last year, studios began bidding for rights to the book, "The Spirit of St. Louis." Lindbergh turned down their bids for one of a man who has never produced a movie before, Broadway showman Leland Hayward.

When the book first came out I didn't even read it; I had always been so tied up with aviation myself," said Hayward who is a pilot and founder of Southwest Airways. "Then I got around to reading it. I was fascinated. When I came to the part where his wheels touched the ground at Le Bourget in Paris, the tears came to my eyes. I didn't think he could make it!"

Notables Don't Rate Selves High

CHICAGO—How would you rate yourself if asked, "What were some of your outstanding accomplishments last year?"

The editors of American Peoples Encyclopedia asked them just to keep up to date. Here are a few of the replies from top celebrities who salted their answers with humor.

Thornton Wilder, U.S. playwright and Pulitzer prize winner, said: "Nothing happened. No hits, no runs, no errors!"

"Some old dodo of a playwright, getting older!" said Clifford Odets, U.S. playwright.

"Grew a beard," said Ralph Linton, U.S. anthropologist and author of "Cultural Background in Personality."

"Happily married thirty years," said Paul Green, U.S. playwright.

"Climber Mt. Chocorua in New Hampshire for the 54th time!" said 65-year-old Stuart Chase, economist.

"Reached a record depth of 10,325 feet (bottom of the Mediterranean Sea)," said August Piccard, Swiss-Belgian physicist.

"Passed 81 years of age, still hearty, and playing 18 holes of golf on Saturdays," said Charles Greely Abbott, astrophysicist.

"Who? Me?" asked Stanley Fitzgerald Horn, humorist.

New, Sensitive Gyro Is Produced For Air Force

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A new type "floated" gyroscope, capable of such minute jobs as measuring off the width of a city block on the moon, is being mass produced by Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co.

The ultra-precision instrument, cylindrical and weighing less than three pounds is claimed by company engineers to be the most sensitive airborne implement ever devised.

Officially called the Hermetic Integrating Gyro (HIG), the device is capable of detecting motion 3,000 times slower than the movement of the hour hand on a watch.

It was designed for the Air Force for use in automatic flight control systems for supersonic and pilotless aircraft, and for bombing and weapon firing controls. Other nonaerial uses already being made of HIG range from 60-ton tanks to ocean-going vessels.

Engineers said today that HIG's near-miracle performance is due to the fact that friction among its moving parts has been cut almost to zero. This was accomplished by floating the gyro's delicate, jewel-mounted spin mechanism in a special oil fluid.

If a boy on a sled could reduce friction comparably, these experts said it would be possible for him to coast about 1,000 miles down a "hill" only one foot high.

Work on the Gyro was started five years ago after initial designs were laid out at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology under direction of Dr. C. S. Draper. More than 10,000 HIGs have been produced so far.

So sensitive is the mechanism that one speck of dust weighing one one-thousandth of a gram would have the same effect on the HIG as the dropping of a handful of gravel into an automobile transmission.

As proof of its ruggedness, engineers said they have used a demonstration model to drive nails through a board without affecting its performance.

A spokesman said "fantastic" was the only way to describe the small gyro's capabilities. For example:

If a man walked around a circle so slowly as to take him five years to complete his journey, the gyro could record the motion. If he suddenly speeded up to complete the circle in a second, the gyro could measure and control that rate of speed also.

If a man standing in Los Angeles could read a newspaper held up in New York, the instrument could detect the angle of change of his eyes as they traveled from the first column to the eighth.

ART NOTES

"Ninth Avenue Pieta" by Robert Trotter included in current exhibition at Sheppard Memorial Library. The painting was recently awarded a prize by the Springfield, Mass., Art League.

By JAMES A. WALKER
 The exhibition of paintings by Robert Trotter, which opens with a reception for the artist and which the public is cordially invited to attend at Sheppard Memorial Library, March 7, are quite satisfying in many respects.

In brief, Robert Trotter is Head of the Art Department, College of Steubenville, Steubenville, Ohio. He has been a student of several eminent artists, studied at Maryland Institute of Art and Art Students League. He is a well-known artist of the Norfolk area of Virginia, where he was born.

Trotter's exhibition is by no means repetitious, and there is a prevailing air of freshness about his paintings. Mainly painted in oils, familiar subjects are depicted such as coastal scenes, atmospheric views of city scenes, bright morning in "Suburbia," pen and ink "Winter Bramble," red hot "Winter Companion," still-life of "Onions" and other moments set down on canvas with skill. He succeeds in creating an immediate feel of place and time in his work. No composition seems dated or stirring inner emotions. The warm flesh tones, especially when played against white, remind one of the paintings of Yasuo Kuniyoshi, yet there is something that brings to mind the name John Carroll. The nearly inverted funnel-shaped necks remind one of not too recent paintings of Fletcher Martin.

Especially outstanding and pleasing in the exhibition is the almost delicate nostalgic painting of a ghostly white "Post Bellum" doorway which is slightly Hobson Pitman-like. "Ninth Avenue Pieta," and the slick "Les Voyageurs," because of a cosmic feeling present, pleased this reviewer. Permeating the entire exhibition is a feeling of marked accomplishment and definite promise for Trotter's future as a painter.

Two Millionaires Run For Senate
 OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A two-way race for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator from Oklahoma shaped up today between a couple of millionaire oilmen, both ex-governors, in what promises to be a very spirited campaign.

Winning the Democratic nomination usually assures election in traditionally Democratic Oklahoma.

Roy J. Turner 59, Oklahoma City oilman who owns a widely known hereford ranch at Sulphur, Okla., said yesterday he will oppose incumbent Robert S. Kerr.

There are about three million dollars in the Hindu pantheon says the National Geographic Society.

Tomorrow's Gardens

The Greenville Garden Club During the winter it seemed that spring would never come but suddenly it is here and all those garden duties for which we had no enthusiasm a few weeks ago are piled up and waiting for us. In order of "first things first" what needs us most?

First, on my list at least, is fertilizing the camellias and any trees or shrubs which somehow were passed by in January and February. It doesn't seem to hurt our camellias to fertilize them while they are in bloom and as some of them bloom quite late we put it on all of them at the same time.

With azaleas the story is quite different. Azalea roots are so fine and so near the surface that fertilizer acts almost immediately, new growth begins and being very tender is easily killed by a late frost. Always wait until their blooming season is almost over.

It has been said before and will be said again — use only special acid fertilizers prepared especially for azaleas and camellias. Just one other kind of fertilizer may be used with safety and that is cotton seed meal. This is good for almost everything and where azaleas are combined with the other evergreens is an excellent choice.

Roses may be cut back a few inches at this time and any dead wood removed. We find it safer to defer drastic pruning until there is no longer any danger of a killing frost and even then we leave quite a bit of bush to start the season. As the roses bloom we cut them with long stems and plenty of foliage.

Do take time to enjoy Greenville, Pitt County. In every part of all our town flowers and shrubs are beginning to bloom and will be increasingly beautiful as spring advances and every part of the county presents a lovely and varied picture.

Nickel Returned With A Bonus

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Police traffic clerk Neldon Barker has "loaned" many nickels to motorists for parking meters — and then forgot about the coins.

But a thankful woman driver recently mailed him 5 cents.

"That's the first time," Barker exclaimed, "that anybody ever returned a borrowed nickel!"

She also sent him two fine linen handkerchiefs.

Comments most frequently heard about the new Frigidaire were: Color is here to stay... beautiful... never before so much quality, outstanding styling, should be used by everyone before buying, perfect for the home builders, most feature packed appliance line ever seen, broiling and baking at the same time, in the same oven amazing.

ing, Colorama styling in soft pastel colors, desired by all, the easiest to clean the entire Frigidaire line held outstanding attention in every appliance shown, transparent trays in the pantry door for left-overs was a most desired feature, and the Cyclomatic method of self-defrosting was a heart touching feature with all.

The general opinion was: Frigidaire is truly a dream line of appliances, fulfilling every wish of quality, styling, features, and price.

Wake Forest, N. C. State Back In Tournament Finals

By KEN ALTYA

RALEIGH (AP)—Wake Forest and North Carolina State College, finalists in last year's Southern Conference basketball tournament, play tonight for the title in the newly-formed Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Wake County rivals earned the right for a rematch under a new setting with dazzling semifinal victories last night.

A sell-out crowd of more than 12,000 watched two contrasting dramatic demonstrations of racehorse and control play as State outshot Duke, 76-75, and Wake Forest topped Maryland, 64-56, in an overtime game.

The results left the two top-seeded teams on the sidelines. Duke was rated No. 1, Maryland No. 2. Wake Forest was third seeded and North Carolina State fourth.

Wake Forest's victory was its second in succession in overtime. The Deacons had to play an extra period Thursday to get by South Carolina, 58-57, in the first round.

Last year Wake Forest broke a string of six straight Southern Conference championships in squeezing by North Carolina State, 71-70, for the title. In regular season play Wake Forest smothered State 81-69, then lost the return game here, 61-76.

The winner tonight moves against the Richmond - George Washington Southern Conference tournament finals winner next week in an opening round NCAA tournament test. If Wake Forest wins the game will be played here Tuesday night. A North Carolina State triumph would move the game to neutral Duke Indoor Stadium in Durham Monday.

Each of last night's tense struggles was tied 13 times. Duke, ranked 11th in scoring nationally against 18th for North Carolina State, took a 21-19 first period lead and hung on at 41-40 at the half. It was 61-41 starting the last period when lightning struck. Five State players hit for baskets in the first 2 minutes and 26 seconds of the period and Duke, suddenly cold, fell too far behind for a late flurry to do much but make it closer.

Center Ronnie Shavlik led State with 22 points and Capt. Mel Thompson added 21. Bernie Janicki tossed in 21 for Duke.

Wake Forest out-controlled defense-minded Maryland, No. 6 in the nation on defense. The teams were never more than five points apart through the regulation game. It was 14-12, Maryland, after one period with big Dick Hemric throwing in 10 of his 23 points in the quarter for Wake Forest. The teams were tied at the half, 29-29, and Wake Forest led, 45-43, starting the last period, which ended, 60-50.

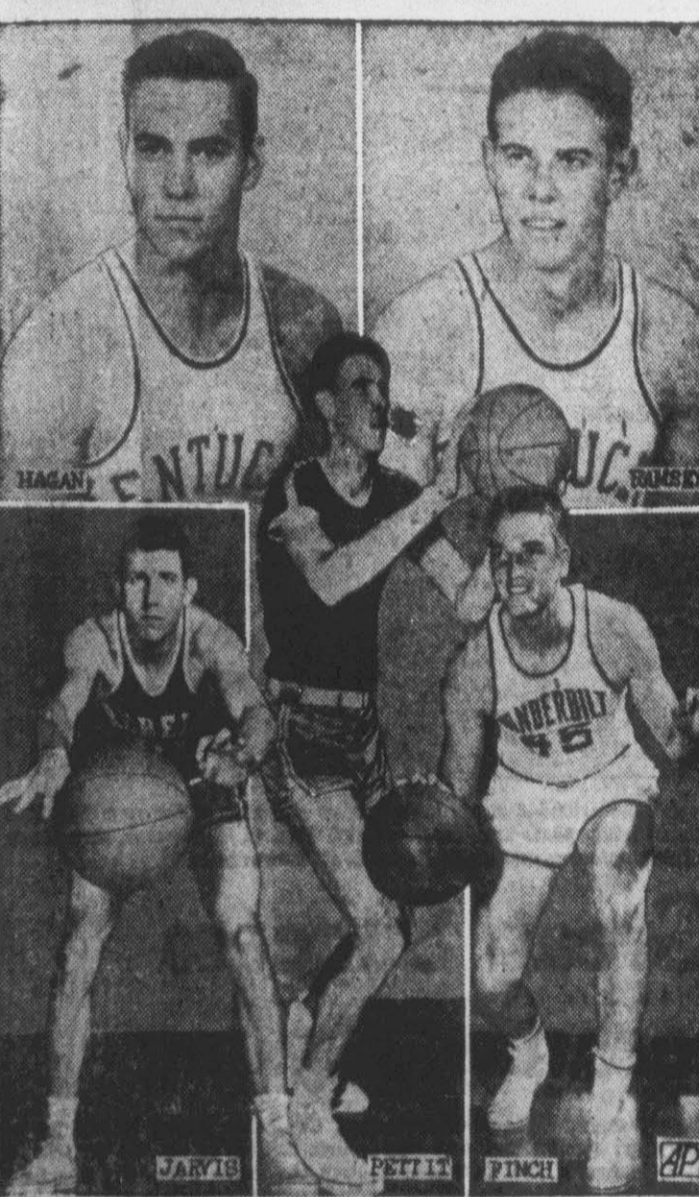

Wake Forest hit 12 of 13 free throws in the overtime to open up a commanding lead and won handily. The Deacs stole a lead from Maryland's book, shooting only 49 times to 51 for the Terps. Each hit 17 times. Wake Forest had a brilliant 30 of 33 foul shooting record, but Maryland had a near-perfect 22 of 23. Capt. Gene Shue hitting 11 in a row while scoring 25 points.

They are Cliff Hagen and Frank Ramsey of Kentucky, Bob Pettit of Louisiana State, Cob Jarvis of Mississippi and Dan Finch of Vanderbilt. Finch is the only newcomer to the team. Ramsey and Pettit are on the all-star team for the third time. Pettit, high scorer in the conference and second highest in the nation, edged Hagen, by five points, for captain's honors. Hagen and Pettit also made the AP All-America team. (AP Photo)

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP)—Conference champion George Washington University faces upset-minded Richmond here tonight in the finals of the 34th annual Southern Conference basketball tournament.

Missing from the scene at the West Virginia University field house will be All America Frank Selvy and the nation's leading pointmaker, the Furman Paladins, who fell 85-81 to an inspired Richmond last night in an overtime contest.

George Washington gained the finals by defeating West Virginia, 63-74, before a crowd of 5,800. The Mountaineers found the Colonials' height and their amazing Joe Holup too large an obstacle to jump. Holup tied the tournament single-game scoring record of 40 points, and set a new record at the free throw line with 18 charity tosses.

Richmond's 6 foot 9 Capt. Warren Mills spelled the difference for the Spiders with his tenacious ball hawking, shifty dribbling and eagle eye on the free throws.

Mills made seven of his 18 game points in the overtime, all on free throws and the total put Furman out of the running.

It can be said that Selvy had an off night with his usually potent one handed jump shot. The nation's highest scorer could hit only nine times out of 31 tries from the field, a poor performance for Selvy, and wound up with a total of 24 markers.

George Washington, like Furman defeated Richmond twice during the regular season. The Colonials' victories over their opponent in tonight's finals came on identical 81-67 scores.

Grapefruit Loop Opens Its Season

By BEN OLAN

Associated Press Sports Editor

The five-week long grapefruit league season opens up today with a new American League entry, four managers directing their charges for the first time and scores of rookies battling for major league jobs.

All 16 teams will see action as they get down to the serious business of preparing for the regular campaign.

The Baltimore Orioles, American Leaguers for the first time in 51 years, travel to Mesa, Ariz. for a game with the Chicago Cubs. Jimmy Dykes, who skippered the Philadelphia Athletics last season, has nominated Joe Coleman, Mike Blyzka and freshman Jehosie Heard to divide the Orioles' mound chores.

At Miami, Walter Alston Brooklyn's new manager, hopes to get the Dodgers off to a good start in their exhibition scheduled against the Milwaukee Braves. Joe Black, the great relief of 1952, will open for the Braves.

The world champion New York Yankees, who last week dealt pitcher Vic Raschi to the St. Louis Cardinals, meet the Redbirds in their first test of the spring at St. Petersburg. Yankee Manager Casey Stengel was forced to switch his pitching plans yesterday when Ewell Blackwell announced his retirement because of recurring arm trouble. Rookie Wally Burnette will take over Blackwell's stint.

Doubleheaders Won For Yanks

CHICAGO (AP)—American League statistics show that the champion New York Yankees helped themselves to the 1953 flag via the doubleheader route. The Washington Senators were the only ones to do the trick. The Yanks split seven doubleheaders.

DeMarco Finally Controls Self; Wins Ring Crown

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—It took Paddy DeMarco nine years of fighting to learn self-control, but when he did it brought him the world lightweight championship.

Paddy, a cocky, flat-nosed little guy from the tough Navy Yard section of Brooklyn, supposedly on the downgrade as a boxer, won the title last night by decisively outpointing Jimmy Carter in 15 rugged rounds at Madison Square Garden.

It was an astounding upset in the eyes of the slim crowd of 5,730, which rooted DeMarco in, but Paddy had a simple and logical explanation for it.

"It was my smartest fight," he said. "I held control, did what I was told, boxed and jabbed him."

Carter, usually the calm, confident fighter apparently didn't know what to make of all this. He was counting on DeMarco to fight in his usual style—bull-like rushes and wild swinging that left him open to hard counter-punching. Paddy just didn't.

The upset was that Carter, the slow-starter, never could catch up and DeMarco just breezed in to win the unanimous decision of referee Ruby Goldstein and the two judges.

Goldstein's card, the closest, gave it to DeMarco 7-5, with three rounds even. Judge Harold Barnes scored nine rounds for DeMarco and six for Carter while Judge Arthur Aldala made it 9-6-1 in favor of Paddy. The Associated Press scorecard had it 10-1 for DeMarco.

The victory didn't bring any great financial reward for DeMarco, who at 26 has been fighting professionally for nine years. But it did bring a lot of satisfaction.

Oddly, it was DeMarco who was supposed to get the title shot when Carter won it from Ike Williams three years ago. But he was taken sick and Carter got the chance to win in an upset as surprising as last night's.

When DeMarco finally got his chance the experts made Carter a 4-1 favorite and were picking him to win by a knockout, just as he had in three title defenses last year.

DeMarco, with his handlers repeatedly warning him not to get excited and to fight as he had planned, took charge almost from the start. He made Carter fight the way he wanted, piled up an early lead and when Carter tried desperately for a knockout in the closing rounds, Paddy did a cool, masterful job of out-manuevering him.

The annual exhibition game is promoted by the Dallas Salesman-ship Club, which gets a nice chunk of cash each time for a boys camp it operates near here.

It's somewhat amazing to those who brought pro football to Dallas two years ago only to have it flop in their faces. The Dallas pro club never drew more than 20,000 fans, most times only about 12,000. The backer of the club lost a lot of money, giving up in mid-season.

Consoles Stars In Deac Practice

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (AP)—Quarterback Nick Consoles completed 12 of 17 passes, two for touchdowns to lead Wake Forest's Black team to a 25-21 victory over a slightly favored Gold squad in the annual intra - squad football game yesterday.

His touchdown passes covered 40 and 10 yards and were caught by end Ed Stowers. Stowers pass snaring also set up two touchdowns plunges by Bill Barnes.

Quarterback Joe White kept the Gold team in contention by tossing three touchdown passes, two to end Tommy Whims for 43 and 60 yards, and another to end David Lee for 55 yards. White completed 9 of 17 passes.

Wrestling Title At Stake Tonight

HIGH POINT (AP)—Championships in 12 weight classes will be decided at the State High School Wrestling tournament here tonight.

Twelve consolation matches also are scheduled to follow today's 24 semifinal battles for 48 survivors from yesterday's opening round. High Point High School, defending champion, placed 11 wrestlers in the semifinals. Greensboro High, runner-up last year, placed 10.

Three Champions To Be Decided In Play Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—The Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference titles will be decided tonight and if Southern California beats Oregon State the Pacific Coast conference will have a champion, too.

In the Atlantic Coast loop, Wake Forest meets North Carolina State while in the Southern Conference, Richmond faces George Washington which all but cleaned up the league in the regular season.

Southern California dumped Oregon State last night 53-48 in the first of its three-game playoff for the Pacific Coast berth in the NCAA. The Trojans, southern division champions, led in every period over their northern foes.

Rice holds a one-up bulge in the South west Conference playoffs, having crushed Texas 70-62 in the first of their three-game set last night. They will resume combat Monday.

The Ivy League also is in a state of confusion with three teams still in the running, but if Cornell beats Penn tonight, the Quakers will be out. That will leave it up to Princeton which plays Dartmouth. The Tigers rule heavy choices here, but if by some chance Dartmouth wins, then the title goes to Cornell.

Wake Forest and North Carolina State both perpetrated major upsets in the Atlantic Coast Conference play last night. The Deacons defeated second-seeded Maryland 64-56, while State came on with a fourth-quarter spurt to eliminate top-seeded Duke 79-75.

In the Southern Conference, George Washington stalled off a fourth-quarter rally by West Virginia to win 82-74 while Richmond eked out an 85-81 victory over Furman in overtime.

Alabama won an overtime thriller from Auburn 57-55, in the only other major game of the night. While the NCAA clubs still are either fighting for berths or waiting for the tournament to get underway Monday the National Invitation Tournament will start tonight at Madison Square Garden.

The first round pits Manhattan against Dayton St. Francis of Brooklyn against Louisville and Wichita against Bowling Green.

Haas Leads Field In Wet Golf Play

By MAX B. SKLETON
HOUSTON (AP)—Freddie Haas may have to protect his slender lead in the $30,000 Houston Open just the way he won it—in the rain.

The tall New Orleans golfer edged into a one-stroke lead over Jim Turnesa yesterday by splashing through a steady rain for a 71 that gave him a 36-hole 138.

Except for a few early starters, practically everyone had trouble with the soggy fairways and greens on the 7,200-yard, par 72 Memorial Park course. More cold rain was in today's forecast.

Play was so miserable yesterday that Fred Wampler, Indianapolis youngster who won the Los Angeles Open, picked up on the front nine despite a first round 70.

Julius Boros, former National Open champion from Mid Pines, N.C. had a 73 for a 36-hole 150 but asked that he be dropped from third round pairings. Today's field was limited to 92 players who reached the half-way mark with scores of 150 or better. Another cut to 60, plus ties, is scheduled for the final round.

Turnesa and another veteran, Lloyd Mangrum, were among yesterday's early starters. Both got a bit wet on the final holes but it was only a sprinkle compared to the soakings received by Haas and the first day leader, defending champion Cary Middlecoff.

Turnesa had a 69 for a 139, a notch ahead of Mangrum and Middlecoff.

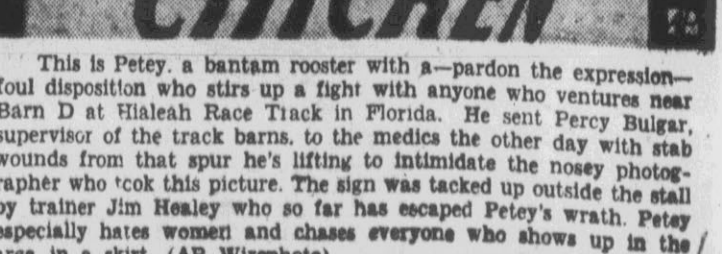

Mangrum got his 140 with a 67, the day's best round, while Middlecoff placed a two-over-par 74 beside Thursday's 66.

Four others also were pressing at 140. Chandler Harper, Chattanooga, Tenn., had a second round 69, while Bud Holscher, White Plains, N.Y., and John Barnum, Grand Rapids, Mich., had 70s. Bill Nary, Tucson, Ariz., had a par 72.

Twenty-nine other players were only six strokes from Haas. Seven were grouped at 141 nine at 142, seven at 143 and six at par 144.

Pugnacious Petey Prepares

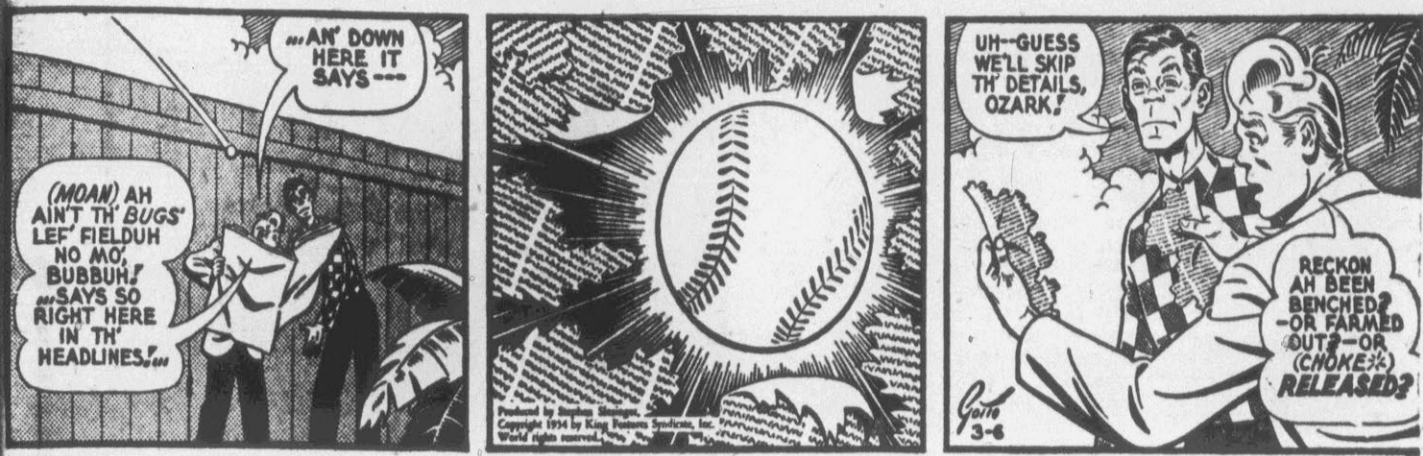

This is Petey, a bantam rooster with a—pardon the expression—foul disposition who stirs up a fight with anyone who ventures near Barn D at Hialeah Race Track in Florida. He sent Percy Bulgar, supervisor of the track barns, to the medics the other day with stab wounds from that spur he's lifting to intimidate the nosy photographer who took this picture. The sign was tacked up outside the stall by trainer Jim Hesley who so far has escaped Petey's wrath. Petey especially hates women and chases everyone who shows up in the area in a skirt. World Day Of Prayer Service Draws Crowd

Rev. W.M. Howard, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, said in his message Friday in observance of World Day of Prayer, "It is said that the people of the United States have less joy and happiness than any other people of the world". Joy and happiness come from the faith the people have in God, he said. The theme of the service was "That They May Have Life".

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, one of the larger churches of Greenville, had a capacity crowd at the world-wide worship services held in 118 countries.

The program of music, prayer and messages were led by Miss Venetia Cox, assisted by Mrs. James Jenkins and Mrs. D.H. Conley.

Dr. Elwood Kestler, of the East Carolina faculty, sang "The Lord Is My Light", accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Paul Toll.

Each year a woman or a group of women from one of the countries observing World Day of Prayer is asked by the national World Day of Prayer committee to write the service. This year Miss Sarah Chakko, president of Lisabella Thoburn College, Lucknow, India, wrote the services for the 1954 observance. The theme Miss Chakko chose for the service is the aim of the Lisabella Thoburn College, which seeks "to find the potential strength of each student and then provide direction and opportunity which will develop that which is God-given." Miss Chakko was the first chairman of the World Council of Churches Commission on the Life and Work of Women in the Church.

Offerings for the World Day of Prayer projects are divided between the Division of Home Missions and the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches for the following: Division of Home Missions, American Indians, Low-income communities and migrants, Divisions of Foreign Missions, Christian literature and literacy material for women and children in India, Burma, Japan, Egypt, Africa and Latin America.

Service by the Committee on Friendly Relations among Foreign Students to approximately 30,000 students in the United States. Education of Christian leaders in interdenominational Christian college in the Orient.

Kiwanians Begin Show Rehearsal

At the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night, El Bloom, producer of the annual Kiwanis Dixieland Minstrel, started rehearsals for the show, which will be given at the college March 24 and 25.

President J. Bryan Brown announced that the Advertising Committee had about completed its work on the minstrel program. Kiwanians and boys and girls from East Carolina College will comprise the cast of about 75 people. Tickets are now being sold by Kiwanians. The show is for the benefit of the Kiwanis Underprivileged Child Fund.

Past Lt.-Gov. Ed E. Rawl inducted Richard Heller of the DuPont company as a new member. Kiwanians Elmer Lansche, James Poindexter, Cecil Ellington and J. Hicks Corey (for Pat Corey Jr.) had birthdays and they donated a dime for each year of their age.

Secretary John O. Reynolds announced that Carolinas Kiwanis District Governor Clarence J. Hyslop will be the speaker at the Circle K Club's supper meeting at the Greenville Country Club next Tuesday evening at 5:30. The Kiwanians are invited. They should make reservations for plates with Secretary Reynolds.

The Greenville and other Kiwanis clubs are planning to send delegations to Wilmington to attend the Seventh Division meeting at the Brigade Boys' Club there next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. District Governor Hyslop will be the principal speaker.

Guests of the Greenville club last night were Hubert Joyner of Farmville, John (Topsy) Hayes and Charlie Bedford, Circle K Club members from the college, Billy Bost, High School student; A. M. Talley and Mary Dunn Beatty and Mrs. Pat Taylor.

Chairman John Barnhill announced that the Kiwanis "Choo-Choo Special" miniature train is expected to be put into operation here Easter Saturday, April 17.

Farm Labor Need To Be Discussed

Farmers in this area were reminded of the meeting Tuesday of all farmers in this area who are interested in obtaining migratory workers through the local Employment Security Commission.

Douglas Taylor, farm placement interviewer with the local employment office said the meeting will be held in the Pitt County Court House at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday. He urged all interested farmers to be present.

Taylor said that the meeting will be held to discuss the possibility of obtaining outside labor this year to harvest tobacco.

He noted that Assistant Farm Placement Supervisor for North Carolina C. B. Gilliam will be present for the meeting. Also attending will be Farm Placement Interviewers Frank Nance of Onslow County and Grant Morris of Craven and Jones Counties.

Appoint Attorneys For Defense Of 4 Fanatics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Court-appointed attorneys today assumed responsibility for defense of four Puerto Ricans charged with wounding five members of Congress in a wild shooting demonstration Monday.

U.S. District Judge James W. Morris assigned the attorneys at a brief hearing yesterday.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, meanwhile, Courtney Owens, representing Chairman Velde (R-III) of the House Un-American Activities Committee, conferred yesterday with Gov. Luis Munoz Marin, presumably on plans to investigate activities on the mainland by the small, fanatical Nationalist party.

A resolution was introduced in the commonwealth senate for formation of a special security commission to investigate the party.

At the arraignment here yesterday, the judge tried to explain to the defendants the significance of entering pleas and their rights to counsel and a fair trial.

Harry Hastings, a secret service agent stationed in Puerto Rico, was called in as a Spanish-English interpreter.
