Independence Dinner Raises Needed Quota

Amid stars and stripes and red, white and blue decorations, a huge crowd rallied to the cause Saturday evening at the Women's Club and helped the Americanism Committee of the club go over the top in raising the quota of $100 for the Restoration of Independence Hall, Philadelphia, Pa.

After dinner, Mrs. Fred Hall, club hostess and chairman of the occasion, briefly related the purpose of the affair and expressed her appreciation to those who had supported the project and made it possible for the Women's Club name to be on the bronze plaque in Philadelphia. "It takes a woman to think of it, and men to do it," she stated.

Mr. W. J. Bundy, prominent local attorney, acted as master of ceremonies, and Mr. Eli Bloom led the group in singing a number of patriotic songs. Jay Robbins, talented high school music student, entertained during the dinner hour with piano selections.

Among those making brief after dinner speeches were Mr. James Butler who spoke on "Our Freedom and Our American Heritage" and Dr. Martha Pingel who recently won a $1000 award given by the Freedoms Foundation. Her remarks were concerning the restoration of Independence Hall as she had observed on a recent trip to Philadelphia.

During the musical that followed, Miss Sylvia Rogers sang "Winds in the South" accompanied by Miss Ona Shindler, and Miss Jane Fuller and Frank Bodkin sang "Night and Day" and "With a Song in My Heart" from the Jane Froman Story. The event ended with an announcement made by Mrs. J. H. B. Moore of the activities planned for the Arts Festival Week beginning Sunday, March 28.

Officers Elected To White Shrine No. 7 For Ensuing Year

The annual election of officers was held at the regular meeting of the Greenville White Shrine No. 7 last Wednesday night. The following officers were elected to serve the Shrine for the ensuing year: Mrs. Eva Corbett, Worthy High Priestess; George W. Smith, Wachtman of Shepherds; Mrs. P. E. Wells, Noble Prophetess; Herman Nobles, Assoc. Wachtman of Shepherds; Mrs. Lela B. Hoell, Worthy Chaplain; Mrs. Margaret Eiks, Worthy Shepherdess; Mrs. Bertha Branch, Worthy Guide; Mrs. Betty Nobles, Worthy Scribe; T. I. Moore, Worthy Treasurer. The installation will be held March 31st at the Masonic Temple. The public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Elba Rowe, W.H.P., and Walter E. Boswell, W.O.S., presided in the East and a short business meeting was held. Reports were given by all officers on the accomplishments of the past year.

Mrs. Hilda Laughinghouse, chairman of entertainment for the Ladies of the Nobles of Sudan Temple Ceremonial to be held in May, reported that Mrs. Blanche Smith, chairman of the Order of Eastern Star, met with Jake Hadley and that plans were in progress.

The Shrine voted to ask the North Carolina State Shrine Club to hold installation of officers in June in this city. All the Shrines in North Carolina will be represented.

Also, everyone interested in attending Supreme White Shrine in Chicago to be held May 4, 5, 6 at the Medenah Mosque should make reservations now.

At the close of the meeting, everyone was invited into the Fred Stokes Dining Room for an hour of fun. A program for the two newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Scott and Mr. and Mrs. George Staples, was given in the form of a mock wedding. Luther Whitehurst dressed in appropriate costumes performed the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Herman Nobles was flower girl and Herman Nobles, ring bearer, Ed Ricks acted as father of the brides, and John Timberlake acted as best man.

The rejected suitors, Alfred Kennedy and Guy Forrest, almost broke up the mock marriage with their crying and sobbing. Mrs. Blanche Smith, pianist, played the wedding march.

The dining room was a beautiful scene. The large table covered in an Irish lace table cloth with a lovely silver bowl filled with camellias decorated one end of the table and a wedding cake the other. Mrs. Louise Wells and Mrs. Ethel Allen served the cake, while from a small table decorated as the large one Mrs. Fannie Timberlake poured coffee, assisted by the others on the committee.

Mrs. Elba Rowe presented a gift to all the new members who were initiated last year.

It was announced that an initiation would be held at the next meeting March 16. Final reports will be given then also.

Egg Surplus Is Only Temporary

RALEIGH—If you're a poultryman with a commercial laying flock, don't get discouraged over the surplus supply of eggs now being produced. It's only a temporary thing and happens every year about this time.

R.S. Dearstine, head of the department of poultry science at N.C. State College and dean of the North Carolina poultry industry, says the best method of approach for the flock owner is to cull out the low producers. This reduces feed cost and other overhead expense.

The poultryman should, says Dearstine, also be observant as to whether the birds are maintaining body weight and as to the daily feed consumption of the flock. A definite drop in feed consumption usually precedes a break in egg production.

'Learning The Job' Is Success Recipe

By DOROTHY ROE

Sex appeal may get you a date with the boss, but it won't produce a salary increase.

This is the opinion of two young women who have achieved top executive jobs in widely separated fields. One is Cecilia W. Kelly, recently appointed vice president of one of the nation's largest flooring concerns. The other is Ida Raisbeck, vice president of a big advertising agency.

Miss Kelly's recipe for success is to learn everything possible about your job, keep your eye on the next step forward and never watch the clock. She adds:

"Many girls have the mistaken notion that by adopting glamorous styles they will make a good impression on the executives. All cartoons to the contrary, this is just not so. An office is a place to work, not for flirtation. So, if a girl is really serious about advancing to a better job, rather than a dinner date, she should dress attractively but always conservatively. The girl who relies on personal charm to win advancement is deceiving herself."

Miss Raisbeck, known as Becky, has this advice:

1. Don't throw your sex around. In business, sex is a hex.
2. Don't compete with men as though you were a man. Compete with them, but as a woman. That doesn't mean to make eyes at the boss, but to think as a woman, since the woman's viewpoint is important in every business.
3. Don't claim special privileges because you are a woman. Nothing makes a man madder (during business hours, that is).
4. Don't expect as much money or as fast advancement as a man would get for doing the same job. This is a fact every woman in business must accept.
5. Don't talk about your feminine intuition. There's no such animal. Intuition is just a dainty name for experience.
6. Don't expect to sit in on important board meetings right at the start, and don't ever expect to crash the velvet rope at men's clubs, no matter how high in the company hierarchy you may go.

7. Don't discriminate against other women after you've made your mark. This is a common fault of women executives. They can't bear competition from their own sex.

8. Don't mother your business associates. Most men get enough of that at home.

9. Don't throw your career at the men in your life—or there will be no men in your life.

Both Miss Kelly and Miss Raisbeck claim they achieved their present eminence in spite of—not because of—being women. It's tougher to fight your way to the top if you're hampered by petticoats, but it can be done.

Superior Ratings In Music Event Given

Choral groups participating in the Greenville District Music Contest-Festival at East Carolina College Friday, March 12, were judged as to proficiency, and those receiving superior ratings have been announced. Twenty-four ensembles from junior and senior high schools in the eastern part of the state were present on the college campus for the event.

Judges in the contest, a preliminary to the state Music Contest-Festival in Greensboro later this spring, were Mrs. Chrystal Bechtel, Greensboro; Thane MacDonald, Wake Forest; and Sam Taylor, Wilmington.

Superior rating were given to mixed choruses from the following high schools, listed with their directors: Greenville, Ona Shindler; Washington, Charles E. Stevens; Granger, Kinston, James Hall; and New Bern, Don Smith.

Three junior choruses won superior ratings, as follows: Granger, Kinston, James Hall; Williamson, Mary Wallace Foy; and Selma, Mrs. L.C. Crocker.

The Greenville High School Boys' Glee Club, directed by Ona Shindler, was the only ensemble in this category to receive as superior rating.

Among those participating in the Girls' Glee Club event, three groups were judged as superior: Greenville, Ona Shindler, Granger, Kinston, James Hall; and Washington, Charles E. Stevens.

Passenger Pays In Drinking Test

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Officers, bowing to an unusual request, tested a passenger in a car for drunkenness after giving the routine drunkometer test to the driver.

The passenger explained he and the driver had shared the cost of the bottle and "I want to see if he's getting more of the whiskey than I am."

Found to be twice as drunk as the driver, he returned a dollar of the purchase price censuring himself for "hogging up all the liquor."

IN CONGRESS RACE

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—George F. Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Russia, has jumped into a three-way fight for the Democratic congressional nomination from Pennsylvania's 19th District.

Kennan won the endorsement of the Adams County Democratic organization yesterday but party leaders in the district's other two counties are supporting their own candidates.

Guests of the occasion included home economics students and teachers from the high schools at Greenville, Contentnea, Chicod, and Belvoir-Falkland.

Dr. Bessie McNeil, director of the college home economics department, welcomed those present at the dinner and introduced the high school visitors and other special guests, including Alice Strawn, faculty advisor of the college club. Gwen Williams of Oakboro, senior

Claims Pigeons Have Insomnia

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Her pigeons have insomnia, a housewife complained to police last night.

Officer G. A. Eurtio said the woman explained it this way: A floodlight burns all night in a neighbor's back yard.

It keeps the pigeons awake. They get so sleepy they often tumble off roosts. Several have been seriously injured.

The woman wanted police to tell the neighbor to turn off the light so her pigeons can get a little shut-eye. Officers were investigating.

Among types of wives we can do without, Dean Jenkins concluded, are the tyrant, the "know-it-all", the martyr, the social climber, the flirt, and the gossip.

SEEKS NEW TRIAL

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP)—John Wesley Wable, 24, convicted of slaying a sleeping truck driver on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, today began fighting for a new trial to escape the state's electric chair.

Half the U.S. women who reach age 65 this year will live to be 80.

Investigation Of Jump Is Well Founded

It is surely fitting that the Army investigate the two deaths and some 50 injuries which resulted from the mass jump of paratroopers at Fort Bragg last week.

In an operation the size of the one staged last week, it is to be expected there will be a certain number of minor casualties due to causes which can not be prevented. The two deaths and 50 injuries, however, appear an unusually high number.

The deaths and injuries which resulted from the mass jump mark the second tragedy at Fort Bragg in the past several months. The last was the drowning of more than 20 troops when a boat in which they were riding overturned in a small lake.

Perhaps it is no one's fault the two lives were lost and the 50 men injured in the jump, but it is well worth while that the Army make a thorough investigation of

Benson Faces Heavy Odds In Congress

Unless we badly miss our guess, Agriculture Secretary Benson is about to get his ears pinned back by Congress as the solons decide upon a new farm program.

Secretary Benson's assertion he will "probably" advise the President to veto any farm legislation which continues the present rigid price supports is destined to lose the GOP even more farm votes than it has already lost.

It is likely too that Republican leaders in Congress will take a critical view of the possibilities of a presidential veto of a new farm program even if it contains rigid price supports. The downward trend in farm prices during the period before and since the Republicans came to power in Washington make any legislation to weaken stability of farm prices a politically precarious step at the present time.

There has been virtual assurance from the administration that it will seek to keep the 90 per cent of parity support prices for tobacco. But for many other basic crops, Benson and the administration have gone on record as favoring the sliding scale system of price supports.

The program Congress decides upon, in our opinion, will be signed by the President without invoking his power of veto.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
IMPORTANT THAT WE UNDERSTAND
The Christian Doctrine of Vocation.
Did you ever hear of it? Simply stated, it means that every one of us is called to serve God in whatever work one happens to be doing; in whatsoever position one happens to hold.

There is, of course, a certain honor and privilege to full time Christian service, and this the world gladly accords those who enter this service. But the plain teaching of the Bible is that the place to serve God is wherever we happen to be, and the way to serve Him is through the work we happen to be doing. If our work is one thing and our Christian service another, then there is something wrong. We can serve God by farming, selling goods, teaching school, attending classes, working in a mill, practicing a profession—or doing anything else that is useful. Probably the greatest and most universal sanctuary on earth is the Christian home. It is the church with the highest dome. The priest and priestess who preside over this sanctuary appear to be particularly loved of that God who in the revealed Word is pleased to have Himself called the Heavenly Father.

If you are not serving God where you happen to be, ask yourself why. It may be the job that is wrong; or, again, it may be you. But find out—and find out fast.

Stevenson Re-Entry Opposed

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Adlai E. Stevenson's apparent candidacy for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1956 has run into heavy opposition from the very faction of Roosevelt-Truman "liberals" who supported him at the Chicago convention. It is an amazing political shift.

Despite his coyness, Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. is an avowed candidate for the nomination for New York governor, and his friends are confident that a victory over Governor Thomas E. Dewey next fall will clear the road for his selection by the Democrats for the top honor two years hence. They do not want to buck such a popular figure as Stevenson.

Another remote possibility is Averell Harriman. Besides being an outside possibility for the New York gubernatorial nomination, if "Junior" cannot make the grade, he may try to succeed Senator Herbert H. Lehman when the latter's term expires in 1956.

Although a close personal friend of the Chicagoan, Harriman tried to persuade him to withdraw from the convention contest in favor of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

KEFAUVER HARKS BACK—Kefauver is another "liberal" who is not entirely happy over Stevenson's continued political activity. Although his famous crime investigation has had few concrete results in the way of enforcement legislation, Kefauver cannot forget that he polled a large number of delegates on the first ballot at Chicago.

the matter to determine the causes and the underlying conditions.

It was a bitter toll for a peace-time maneuver, but a thorough investigation at least should bring to light factors which the army may profit by in similar operations in the future.

Perhaps They Can Plead "Fishermen's Luck"

The dig the Russian government recently took at its fishing fleet in the Sea of Azov should have a familiar ring to a good many Pitt County fishermen who of necessity come home from fishing trips empty handed.

A Russian newspaper report recently depicted this situation with the fishing fleet that was under criticism:

"Last year the whole fleet was concentrated at one shore of the fishing field and the fish went along the opposite shore. By the time the fleet had moved to the other shore, the fish had circled around and gone to the place where the fleet had waited in vain for them . . ."

In other words, the Russian fishermen were being criticized by the Russian government for being outsmarted by the fish.

There is little doubt that similar thoughts have gone through the minds of many wives of Pitt County whose husbands have spent countless hours fishing in the creeks and rivers hereabouts without bringing home an abundance of fish.

Another Milestone In Atomic Age

An atomic power plant to produce electric power.

A decade ago that would have been a proposal far into the future. Today the Atomic Energy Commission is negotiating with a Pittsburg power company for the construction and operation of the first full scale central station nuclear power plant.

There is little doubt the project will be heavily subsidized by the federal government, and officials already have said electric power produced by the plant can not be expected to meet competitive costs of power produced by using conventional fuels.

Yet the experimental plant and information gained from its operations should move the United States one step closer to constructive utilization of nuclear energy for peacetime operations. It should also provide means for bringing down the cost of producing electric power with nuclear energy.

It marks another milestone in the advancement into the atomic age.

Selected Shorts

BROWNSVILLE, PA., TELEGRAPH: "Democratic government can deteriorate in two general directions. Power can gravitate toward the Executive branch, finally producing those dictatorships that have marked—and marred—the history of government in this century. Or power can gravitate toward the Legislative branch, producing the parliamentary paralysis of a law-making body without a head. . . . Hitlerian Germany emerging out of the decay of the Weimer Republic is the classic example of the first direction. Contemporary France is a good example of the second."

It wasn't hard to find out. A ship in a warm climate has an air of easy intimacy. Strangers come up and tell you things about themselves they'd never admit to a next door neighbor, confident they can unburden their secrets at sea because they'll probably never see you again ashore.

They all had one reason in common to be together. They were all looking for something: joy, health, romance, forgetfulness, an escape from boredom, to try to repair a tattered marriage, to buy custom-ferr Scotch whisky in the Virgin Isles at $2.75 a bottle, or merely to have something to brag about besides their last appendectomy.

One lady is making her 50th cruise, reportedly because she enjoys nothing in life more than laughing at tourists—and because she has developed an allergy to dry land. The crew love her.

A middle-aged widower told me: "I took my 20-year-old daughter on this trip to cure her of a broken heart. Her boy friend backed out on her. I'm just going along for the ride myself."

Later I noticed his daughter, a pale, thin girl, dancing happily with another passenger. When I remarked on this to the widower, he replied: "Yeah, she's doing all right—and I don't mind doing that so's her old man. This moonlight kind of gets you, doesn't it? Maybe what my girl needs is a new mother, instead of another boy friend."

One businessman said he was making the trip in the hope that "my partner will work himself to death while I'm gone, but maybe I should have taken a longer

Business Today

Trend Is Unabated

By ELMER ROESSNER
The trend toward self-service and chain domination of retailing has not abated in the least. Supermarkets made 48 per cent of last year's food sales, compared with 44 per cent of the year before, according to Progressive Grocer's twenty-first annual survey of the grocery business.

The continuing swing to self-service is obvious in those figures; the rise of chain sales is only implied, since a large part of the supers and superettes are chain-owned, while only a few of the service stores are members of chains.

Among drugstores, chains gained faster than independents, according to Drug Topics. Chains' sales went from $883,000,000 in 1952 to $908,000,000 in 1953. Independent sales rose from $2,109,000,000 to $2,211,000,000. Thus chains gained 2.9 per cent while the independents gained only 1.4 per cent. The chains had 21.8 per cent of the total in 1952 and 22.1 per cent in 1953.

At the same time, self-service spread among the larger drugstores, though in only in non-drug departments.

The greatest advances in self-service have been in department stores, although here the matter is being approached cautiously. Many leaders in the field think that department stores' greatest strength lies in the service they render and that switches to self-service would be abdication of their traditional role. However, under pressure of higher wage and other operating costs, many are experimenting, albeit somewhat gingerly, with "self-selection"—a form of self-service.

in which the sales person hovers in the background, ready to give advice and close sales. Self-selection is usually limited to housewares and packaged goods.

HIGH-COURT RULING BROADENS COPYRIGHTS

Many manufacturers are conferring with their attorneys these days on plans to get maximum benefit under the copyright law, as interpreted this week by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Court rules that a work of art, even though produced in volume for commercial purposes, is entitled to copyright protection. Hitherto the government has held that when an artistic design was used commercially, it could be protected only under a design patent. Copyrights are good for 27 years and renewable for the same number of years, while design patents are good for only 14 years. Besides, copyrights are easier to obtain.

The ruling came in the case of an alleged infringement of a lamp base that included a statuette called "The Curved Ballet Dancer." The Supreme Court did not attempt to decide whether there are other kinds of ballet dancers, nor exactly where art begins and ends.

STORES HELD NEEDING BETTER STOCK CONTROL

Better stock controls are necessary to maintain sales in the period of hard-selling ahead. Stores, the National Retail Dry Goods Association publication, says after a study by its research department.

It defines basic stock control as "the unglamorous, unexciting job of making sure that wanted merchandise is in stock in adequate depth, that recorders on steady sellers are put through promptly, that sales are not lost for lack of an item, a size, or a color that the customer has every right to expect to find on hand."

'Fair' Trade Prices Stir A Coming Business Tempest

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Florida, — I wonder if you have noticed in the columns of your paper that another tempest is brewing between some manufacturers and the sellers of their merchandise. Cause of the blow: merchandising is being sold below fair-trade prices.

DISCOUNT HOUSES
Before the war, on the Continent and especially in Southeastern Asia, nobody ever paid the asking price unless he had a hole in his head. At that time, in America, very few ever questioned the list price. Today, in increasing numbers, Americans are shopping for discounts. I am convinced that this movement is largely encouraged by returning soldiers from abroad. After their experiences both in foreign countries and in their canteens here at home, it is very difficult to get them to pay list prices anywhere.

On the other hand, courts of the States having "Fair-Trade" laws have upheld the legality of such laws. Recently, the Supreme Court of the United States has favored the "fixed-price" manufacturers. However, the final decision lies with consumers, not with the courts. Remember what happened to all the oleomargarine legislation.

THE MANUFACTURERS ARGUMENT

Price-fixing, some manufacturers say, is necessary in order to get the widest possible distribution. The argument here is that if a company's product is being undersold by a price-cutter, the legitimate dealer will give up that line of goods, distribution outlets will shrink, orders drop off, production lag, and workers will be out of a job. For this reason, these companies say the time has come for them to spend money on lawyers, as well as on advertising. They are ready to spend plenty to curb price-cutting of "fair-traded" merchandise. My sympathies go out to them.

There is little question that profit margins in some industries are slim. Let's admit it, though—the profit take in other industries is fabulous, and word has gotten around. How? Via consumer economics courses in public schools and colleges, consumers' buying magazines, and by word of mouth.

SOME SIMPLE ECONOMICS

It is my belief that price-fixing won't solve our price problems any more than Government regulation. This once seemed an easy solution to the problem. Fair-trading and insistence upon maintaining a price level may help keep the inefficient businessman in business a little longer. In the long run, however, it may only prolong the day of judgment.

Newton's Law of Action and Reaction is a powerful natural law which cannot be legislated out of existence. Economic periods of adjustment are not just accidents. Such periods usually develop out of excesses practiced during boom conditions. Businessmen become too bullish; they may misjudge the future; they overestimate their markets and the size of the consumer's pocketbook. So when demand slackens, a reaction sets in and somebody cuts prices to move some stuff.

PRICE-CUTTING MAY HAVE USES
This is a perfectly reasonable course of behavior, and it may be good for our economy because it shakes out some of the deadwood, sharpens production efficiency, activates consumer research, improves quality, makes management more cost-conscious, and forces it to reappraise its pricing policies. I forecast that neither legislation, nor a stiff-necked policy, nor court action will outwit the laws of Supply and Demand, Action and Reaction.

Perhaps the time has come for a reappraisal of profit margins. Don't get me wrong. I believe in the profit system. A profitless volume, like a profitless prosperity, will get us nowhere. What I want to point out, however, is that "Fair-Trade" laws or price-cutting are not the real problems. These are symptoms of our basic difficulty. What needs to be cured is not the symptom, but the problem. Let's get on with solving the problem of more efficient and more honest management.

Time Running Out For Prospective N. C. Candidates

By LYNN NISBET
RUNNING OUT — Time is fast running out for prospective candidates for state-wide district offices to decide whether or not they will seek party nominations in the primary.

Raymond Maxwell, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections, will close the books on the stroke of twelve noon, Saturday, March 20. Properly executed notices of candidacy accompanied by appropriate fees for the respective offices, in his hands by that hour will be entered. It used to be the rule that a mailed notice postmarked in advance of closing time was accepted. The law now requires it to be in hand at the hour.

For several years it has been the custom to have a messenger at the postoffice to pick up any mail which might be put in the box by 12 o'clock, and such mail is regarded as "in hand" although it might be five or ten minutes later getting to Maxwell's desk.

Those who must file with the State Board include candidates for the Congress, both Senate and House of Representatives; for State treasurer and Commissioner of Insurance; for Chief Justice and Associate Justice of the Supreme Court; for Superior Court Judge and Solicitor.

Candidates for the General Assembly, including those in senatorial districts of more than one county, and all county and township offices are required to file with the board of elections in the county of their residence before 6 o'clock in the afternoon of April 17.

VISITORS — State government offices around Raleigh will have a group of visitors from several foreign countries studying governmental administration during the next two weeks.

Under sponsorship of the United Nations and the Foreign Administration Service at Washington two men from Indonesia, two from Turkey, two from Paraguay, one each from Brazil, Panama, Peru, Philippines and Saudi Arabia, will see how North Carolina handles its government.

The studies were originally limited to the Department of Agriculture, but have been broadened to include budgeting, tax collection and other phases of government financing and general operations.

A series of morning and afternoon clinics has been arranged at which representatives of the State agencies will explain methods of operation, followed by round table discussion and the answering of questions.

This is another of the increasingly frequent instances in which North Carolina has been chosen as an example in the ways of democracy for the benefit of students from foreign nations.

EGG NOG — The State-Federal Crop Reporting Services announce that milk cows in North Carolina produced 128 million pounds of milk in February. During the same month the hens laid 134 million eggs.

Figures are not available on the number of gallons of whiskey and brandy produced or distributed in the State, but chances are that there was enough to go along with the milk and eggs for an adequate supply of egg nog.

CONFLICT — The announced candidacy of Horace Kornegay of Greensboro for solicitor of the twelfth district has more than local significance. It probably means that he will have to resign

Why Do They Go On Sea Voyage?

By HAL BOYLE
ABOARD THE MAURETANIA
SEA — A ship is a small world and there is no better place to study human nature than a deck chair.

It beats a house by the side of a road because you don't get dust in your face as you watch the race of man go by.

"Why do people go on pleasure cruises?" I thought, sprawling out on a deck chair as this 35,000-ton Cunard liner headed toward the Caribbean.

It wasn't hard to find out. A ship in a warm climate has an air of easy intimacy. Strangers come up and tell you things about themselves they'd never admit to a next door neighbor, confident they can unburden their secrets at sea because they'll probably never see you again ashore.

They all had one reason in common to be together. They were all looking for something: joy, health, romance, forgetfulness, an escape from boredom, to try to repair a tattered marriage, to buy custom-ferr Scotch whisky in the Virgin Isles at $2.75 a bottle, or merely to have something to brag about besides their last appendectomy.

One lady is making her 50th cruise, reportedly because she enjoys nothing in life more than laughing at tourists—and because she has developed an allergy to dry land. The crew love her.

A middle-aged widower told me: "I took my 20-year-old daughter on this trip to cure her of a broken heart. Her boy friend backed out on her. I'm just going along for the ride myself."

Later I noticed his daughter, a pale, thin girl, dancing happily with another passenger. When I remarked on this to the widower, he replied: "Yeah, she's doing all right—and I don't mind doing that so's her old man. This moonlight kind of gets you, doesn't it? Maybe what my girl needs is a new mother, instead of another boy friend."

cruise, a 100-year one, considering how little he works."

When I mentioned to my wife, Frances, some of the odd reasons why some of the passengers were taking a voyage, she said: "Well, Rover, I guess I might, as well tell you why you're aboard. It's because after 16 years I just wanted to know where you would be 18 nights in a row. Go anywhere you want to—but don't jump off the ship."

Odd people-wives.
Who goes on pleasure cruises? People of all ages, all occupations and all two sexes. Among our fellow passengers are people probably rich enough to buy the ship, others who scrimped for years for these few days at sea. There's a steeplejack and a man who runs a steel plant. Lady millionaires and playboys. Guys and dolls. Those who make it the hard way, the easy way. People.

But it isn't true that girls run after men on a cruise. I've been watching them. They walk after them at a firm, brisk, ladylike gait. Catch 'em, too. Never saw so many slow, meandering men.

One of the unusual personalities aboard is Waterson Lowe, a chubby, white-mustached gentleman who is billed as "official humanitarian and ship cruise lecturer for the Cunard Line."

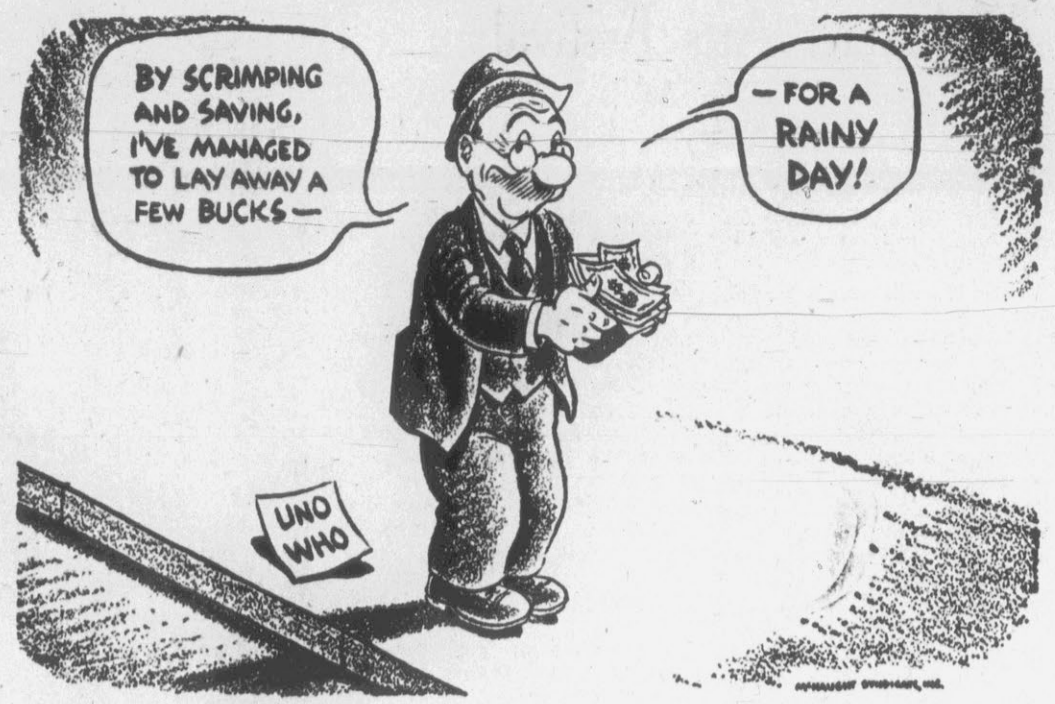

I am not sure just what a "humanitarian" is, but each morning Waterson presents a small artificial flower—a different color each morning—to every passenger. If you are the thrifty type, you can hear your flowers and make them into a souvenir bouquet.

Waterson has made some 450 cruises himself and estimates he has presented some 850,000 flowers or bouquets to travelers since he began the custom years ago. He also distributes slips of paper bearing a mimeographed "thought for the day" for people who like to think deep thoughts after lunch.

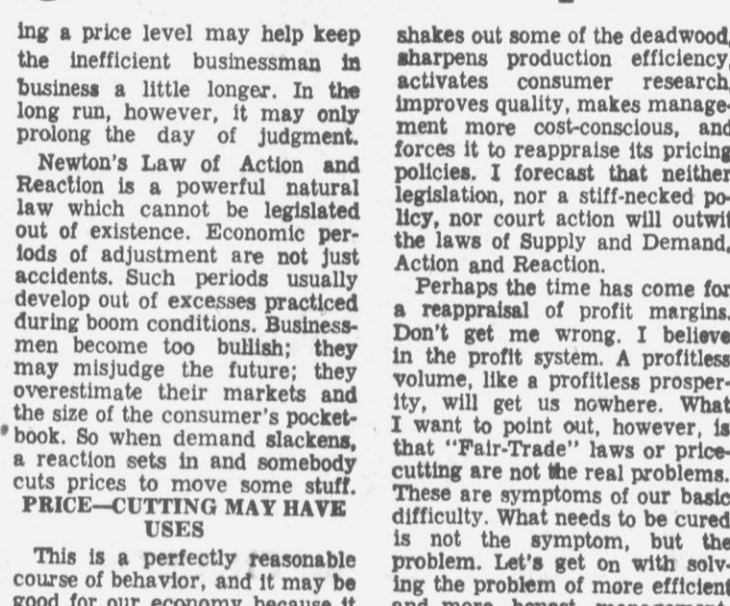

I have his thought for today in my hand. It says: "Make haste to live and consider each day a life. Live today so that you can say tomorrow, 'What a lovely yesterday.'"

I can brood over that if you want to. But I'm going to take a nap in my deck chair.

Worth Noting

WHOLESALESALES OFF IN JANUARY
Confidential reports submitted by 4,245 wholesalers to the Census Bureau disclosed that sales in January averaged 5 per cent lower than they were a year ago.

Declines were reported in almost every line, with lumber and building-material wholesalers being down 21 per cent and those handling plumbing and heating supplies down 18 per cent.

WNCT Schedule

April 9th a comedy series called Topper will begin on WNCT. This half hour show is based on the movie series Topper, which is the story of ghosts who come back to life. The televiewer can see the ghosts, but the other characters in the show cannot.

Daytime Local Shows
With the moving up of the telecasting schedule to 7:00 a.m., WNCT is adding three local shows: Carolina Today, The Big Question and Let's Talk It Over. Carolina Today is scheduled from 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. Each program will be opened with a devotional. The oldest reported birthday in Eastern Carolina will be recognized and the oldest reported anniversary. From time to time personalities will appear and tell about their hobbies. Each day a North Carolina personality will be saluted on Carolina Today; combined with these attractions will be news and weather.

The Big Question will be a local give-away studio presentation and Let's Talk It Over will be a program designed to bring current events and trends of Eastern Carolina to the televiewing audience.

Search For A Star
Last week the WNCT talent show, Search For A Star, pulled over 2400 votes from the televiewing audience for the various contestants. This show features talented performers from Eastern Carolina and gives them a chance to win the local contest and consequently win an audition for Ted Mack's-Original Amateur Hour.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—George M. McGuire leaped back in his chair yesterday after blowing out 101 birthday candles. "Abstemiousness," he said, "abstemiousness both in eating and drinking has been my formula for a long life."

McGuire oldest living graduate of Cornell University and a New Yorker by birth added: "Of course, there was a time in Detroit when I celebrated my 28th birthday pretty often, and I never thought of abstemiousness then."

(Webster defines abstemiousness as sparing in diet, food and drink and sparing in indulgences of tastes or passions.)

Must Make Room For Plowing Day

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—A light plane crashed near here yesterday but nobody was hurt.

As Raymond Grant and Hollis Rountree crawled out of the wreckage a farmer drove up in a tractor and told them: "You'll have to move that thing. We're plowing tomorrow."

Women In The Church

Over 3,000 Methodist women will attend the fourth Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service May 25-28, in Milwaukee, Wis., and the Wesleyan Service Guild week-end following, May 28-30. One thousand delegates have been officially chosen as representatives from their conferences for the meeting which is held every four years. Visitors and guests from all over the United States, missionaries and deaconesses, and members of Woman's Societies of Christian Service in Wisconsin will bring the attendance to 3,000. Bishop Newell S. Booth, of Africa, will bring the devotions in the four day sessions. Opening speaker for the Tuesday session is Bishop G. Bromley Oxman, Washington, D.C., on the theme, "The Christian and World Peace." On Wednesday night at a special commissioning service for missionaries and workers, Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, Christ Church, New York City, will be the principal speaker. Other speakers: Bihop Shot K. Bondol, India; Dr. Helen Kim, Korea; Dr. Georgia Harkne, Cal., and Dr. Charles Ransom, International Missionary Council.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newfeature.
ANYBODY with a flash camera sooner or later runs into flash trouble—the flashbulb fails to fire. The first thing to check is the electrical connections. After checking the tightening all connections, suspicion turns to the flashbulb itself—is it defective? The contact points are scraped with a coin, a key or a square of sandpaper kept for just that purpose.

If a second or a third flashbulb fails to go off, the trouble then might either be with the battery or something internal with the flashgun. In either case, it usually means: "No Pictures".

Recently I had flash trouble and, of course, it had to pop up on an occasion when I was most anxious to take pictures. I had been using a B-C flash and there hadn't been the slightest hint of trouble since it was installed, more than a year before.

This night the children of our organization were putting on a show for their parents. I took a picture backstage of the children's preparations. The flash went off and I aimed for a second picture. That's when the trouble started—there was no flash. Hurriedly, I made the usual electrical checks, changed to another bulb, sandpapered its base, tried again. No flash!

When the curtain went up and the show started, I was still fiddling with the flashgun connections. I tried once more, but again there was no flash when I pressed the button. I prepared to put the camera away in disgust. Suddenly it occurred to me: Why not take pictures in natural light? Since the only other choice seemed to be no pictures at all, it was worth the experiment. I opened the lens to its widest aperture, f 4.7, and used the slowest, handheld speed—1-25th second. Carefully selecting moments when action was interesting, but not too violent, I made several exposures.

After one long interval, when I pressed the button, the flash went off unexpectedly. But when I reset the speed to 1-100th and the aperture to f 22 for flash shooting—it failed to go off.

After that I alternated between trying a flash shot, then a wide-angle, candid picture on the same film if the flash failed to go off. Once in a while the flash went off on the first attempt. After the show, we rounded up all the youngsters and I took some half-second, wide-open time exposures with the camera resting on an improvised tripod, the back of a chair.

The results were surprisingly good. In almost all cases, the candid, natural light pictures were better than the flash-on-camera shots. The time exposures, too, came out successfully.

You can share the lessons learned from my evening's experience. A camera store check-up later showed that the trouble was caused by my B-C battery. It failed suddenly—but not completely. Certainly it didn't live up to advance claims of being good for at least two years and thousands of flashes.

NATURAL LIGHT made this a better picture when the flashgun failed. It was shot at 1-25 second at f 4.7 with Super XX film. Ten-year-old Robin Arthur Katz performs a mental memory trick for parent members of the Society of American Magicians. His grandfather, magician Max Katz, behind him, was the show's MC.

I replaced it with a new B-C battery, but I marked on it the date it went into the flashgun. One year from that date it'll either be replaced or a new battery will be handy for instant replacement.

All batteries should be dated when they go into flashguns. They should be checked for freshness by noting expiration date. Once in flashguns, batteries may deteriorate even if not used at all. After several months, for sure-fire flashing on important picture taking occasions, replace regular "D" cells or pen light batteries with fresh ones.

Secondly, explore your camera's potentials in taking pictures by natural light instead of depending solely on flashbulbs. With a tripod or some firm support, try the slow speeds and bulb or time exposure. I hope you'll be as pleasantly surprised as I was.

What's new? Darkroom fans had their first look at a new design in enlargers at New York's National Photo Show recently.

The Beseler 45M ($187.50 without lens) features an enlarger suspended from crossbars between upright arms, raised or lowered by electrical control. The housing moves laterally on the crossbar, left or right, as well as up or down. It takes negatives from 16mm to 4x5 inches; its universal condensers will accommodate lenses of various focal lengths.

Along with its new features, fans must consider: it takes much more space than conventional enlargers. The "Liteframe", an attractive method for display of transparencies in home or office also made its debut at the Photo Show. It is a wood frame, in mahogany or blond finish, with a built-in electric back light. Any transparency, from 35mm to 4" x 5", can be enlarged and duplicated on 4" x 5" color film by Favelle Color dealers throughout the country and delivered in the "Liteframe" for $5.95. Such an outfit, with the youngster's picture in it would make a good night light for the nursery.

TEEN TALK

AP Newfeature.
 You never can tell about this younger set. Up in Maine their lingo is "back to the farm" and out in Arizona the kids are playing cowboys and Indians.

Della Martin of the Phoenix Gazette tells us that squaw dresses are worn by every chic Miss she knows. The ensemble is completed with Indian boots that are ankle height with silver conchos on them. The beaded Indian moccasins is the popular shoe for play and girls frequently wear handsome and colorful Mexican blouses with them.

And the boys, bless them, wear Western-style clothes. Shirts with pearl buttons and string ties even go to school. College boys wear western-style hats. Wouldn't it be wonderful if the namby-pamby set with pegged trousers and big winged-collared shirts roaming the rest of the country would adopt heman fads.

Square dancing, La Rapsa, the Mexican national folk dance (a shuffle) and the Bunny Hop are the popular dances of the moment. Most school dances use the Western or Fiesta themes.

While all this excitement goes on in the bow-and-arrow country, Portland, Maine, teen-agers have adopted the rural accent, according to reporter Earl Aronson.

"A lot of us worked on farms during vacation last summer and we brought that manner of talking back with us. It caught on, that's all," says one Portland High School junior.

So it's "down the rud" and something is "goo-wud, awful good-wud" and "when I go to town Saturday night, 50 cents don't mean a thing."

Accents heavy with corn have moved into the city from Down East, but it isn't done desirably. It's just something different at the moment. And if you're country, you're real George.

Boys say a girl is "a good look" ers inside out or backside forward.

When a guy goes steady, a girl is "his wife." Even when a boy is going to drive a girl home he says "may I walk you home."

The palates of these slick chicks have not succumbed to higher prices, however. At Bangor the corner drug store is no longer the favorite rendezvous, because an ice cream soda costs 25 cents — 50 cents if you treat. More popular is a restaurant where an English muffin and a coke may be had for 15 cents. One who prefers coffee can get the combination for 20 cents.

Some boys are wearing black silk vests, plaid neckties, belts and wristbands — but they haven't caught on too well.

Girls are wearing plaid suits, straight skirts and sweaters, white shoes with ankle socks turned up. Ankle dog tags are popular and the pendant of grandma's day is coming back. Girls play the ukelele.

The clothing trend is away from the sloppy to the neat. Boys like slacks and sharp sports coats — noteworthy for style or pattern, not clashing colors.

Athletes wear their letter sweaters inside out or backside forward.

'Lump' In His Bed Was Lost Wallet

FREDERICK, Md. (A)—The traveling salesman left, first thing in the morning. He drove nearly 300 miles to Painesville, Ohio, from where he phoned Frederick police about a lump in the bed at the Frederick Motel where he had spent the night.

Police checked. They found the lump — a wallet containing $300. They advised the salesman, Edward Hornak of Willoughby, Ohio, they were returning his wallet by registered mail today.

Why value-wise buyers are swinging to Ford!

They are finding that Ford brings them everything they might want to meet modern tastes and requirements

You can't buy better! It's the stunning Customline Fordor Sedan.

Ford's the only low-priced car with all these "Worth More" features

- Recognized leadership in styling
 You can pay more but you'll never find a car that's more "at home" wherever you may drive it. For the smart new '54 Ford is as modern as tomorrow with the crisp, commanding lines of today's style leader. And it's just as smart inside! The sparkling new decorator-designed interiors have colorful new upholstery fabrics and harmonizing trim that spell quality wherever you look.
- Choice of most modern engines
 Ford and Ford alone, in the low-price field, offers you a choice of V-8 or Six... the brilliant new 130-h.p. Y-block V-8 or the flashing new 115-h.p. I-block Six. Both Ford engines have rigid, extra-deep blocks for smoothest, quietest operation and extra-long life... plus the
- savings and "GO" of modern, high-compression, short-stroke, low-friction design.
- Ball-Joint Front Suspension
 For the first time in any low-priced car, you get the smoother riding and easier handling of Ball-Joint Front Suspension — an advance you'd expect to find only in the costliest cars.
- Choice of 5 power assists... Including Fordomatic
 Only Ford in the low-price field offers power on all four windows... a 4-way power seat which adjusts up and down as well as forward and back. Power steering, power brakes and versatile Fordomatic Drive are also available — and they make your fine Ford even more fun to drive.
- Choice of 28 new models
 With fourteen stunning body styles available with either of Ford's new engines, Ford offers a car to suit every taste and need. In fact, for '54, Ford offers the widest selection of models in the entire industry!
- Top value at resale
 Used car prices show that in recent years Ford has consistently returned a higher proportion of its original cost at resale than any other car. And for 1954, with all its advanced new features, Ford is worth even more when you buy it... and it stands to reason it should be worth more when you sell it, too.

The Doctor Disagrees

CHAPTER THIRTY SEVEN

NOW Craig pressed his fingertips to his eyes and cursed again. His anger had to include Craig Talbot. He'd known from his first sight of the radiant girl with that red-gold hair, her beautiful violet eyes and her soft voice . . .

He was glad she had left. Wherever she had gone, she would be better off out of this mess. Someday he would follow her.

And her, and—maybe—The telephone rang, and he jerked spasmodically. Lord, he told himself he was in a state! "Dr. Talbot!" he said gruffly into the phone. It was any one of the Carrs, checking on him . . .

It was the plant; there'd been an accident on the tracks . . . "I'll come at once."

"You stay here," he told Donald who opened his black eyes, sighed, and went back to sleep. Driving the short distance, Craig sternly caught at his quivering nerve ends. He'd need every ounce of control if—the man who called had said the injured person was hurt too badly to put into an ambulance; they'd need a doctor first.

As with all such industries, the refractories had to be in continuous operation, seven days of the week. The offices, of course, were closed on Sunday, but the general process of manufacture went on without interruption. Across the web of tracks, Craig saw the ambulance and the usual knot of on-lookers, the idly curious and the would-be-helpful. He drove as close as he could get, grabbed his bag and went around one of the hand-fired kilns; his feet crunched on the fine rock notifying the group of his approach. They fell back; he muttered a hope that the standing switch engine was not involved —but to no avail. His injured man lay under the very wheels of it. A Negro—one leg crushed—conscious, poor devil.

And the switchman was there ready to babble his story.

"He was lying on the tracks, Doc. I gave a signal but before the engineer saw it, and could stop—one wheel was on his leg—if we'd moved another half-inch we'd got his left leg, too."

"Yes," said Craig, setting down his bag. He spread a towel, slid out certain instruments, selected morphine hypo. He glanced at the crowd, and chose his man. Bob Evans, straw boss—the defiant man who would obey none of Craig's safety regulations. But here, surely, Evans would co-operate. "I'm going under and give first aid," he said quietly. "When I ask for things Bob, you pick 'em up by the handles, and give 'em to me."

"I can't stand the sight of blood, Doc," said the big man. Indeed his face was a fine cyclone green. "You ever kill a chicken?" "Well, sure, Doc, but—" "Then you can help me." Even as he spoke, Craig was on his knees, crawling under the Diesel—he didn't have a lot of room. The hurt man was still conscious, and groaning, praying. Craig managed a tourniquet, called for a haemostat or two—and then the syringe. "What's your name?" he asked the Negro. "Poorboy," the man gasped. "Poorboy Johnson. Doc, is my legs gone?" "One is hurt. Now, look Poorboy. Your right leg is under the wheel. I'm going to pull your left one away from the track, and hold it. If you'll lie perfectly still—don't even move an eyelash!—the engine can be backed away, and we can get you to the hospital. But if you move—"

"I ain' gonna move, Doc—but, oh, God, be sure that engineer he don't go in de wrong direction—" Craig summoned the switchman, and gave his orders. "Engineer o.k.?" he asked.

"I guess so, Doc. Why?" "Because he must do exactly what I say. You tell him that I'll keep Johnson's other leg free of the track; let's to reverse—and only reverse—you got that? Tell him, and come back here to signal him when we're ready."

He bent over his patient. He maneuvered the left leg clear of the rail, held it. He gave Poorboy his directions. When the switchman returned, at a nod from the doctor, he swung his arm in a wide arc—slowly, surely the great blue back—and the man was free. A cheer went up from the crowd of workmen.

"Now," said Craig quietly "let's get this man to the hospital." The stretcher came up, Craig helped put the man on it and began to put his instruments back into his bag. His yellow sweater was dark with blood . . . "Thank you, Evans," he said quietly. "You did a fine job."

"I did a fine job!" gasped the man. "Why, Doc, you—you—" "Not when that train hit him," said Evans, and the workers laughed. It helped relieve tension all around. "You got to cut his leg off now, Doc?" "I'm afraid I do. But he's lucky that he'll lose only one."

"He's lucky you were around," Evans said with feeling. Craig didn't answer. He guessed the town, and the Carrs would know that he had been in Norfolk on this Sunday afternoon, wherever Shelly might be. But next morning when E. J. called ed the office to get a report on the company's liability in the Johnson case Miss Browne said that Dr. Talbot was out of town. She didn't know when he would be back. He'd left a full report on Johnson, however, and Dr. Ward was in charge of the case.

"Mrs. Carr? She's not in the office this morning, either."

Craig was of the new school of surgeons; he took his time over any operation, time enough to do a thorough and meticulous job. It was full dark when he left the hospital Sunday night, and Donald, excusably reproached him rather than welcomed him. Craig let the dog out for a run, then fed him, took a shower, changed his clothes, tossing his sweater into the wastebasket. He must have been upset not to have taken it off! It hadn't been worth carrying home from the hospital! He stood uncertain for a minute—he'd had no dinner.

It was ten when he pulled his car to the curb before the yellow brick house. Rain still fell intermittently and Myra and Ike were sitting inside. Myra looked up at his entrance, her grave dark eyes taking in his Brooks Brothers suit, his tie—"I wondered when you'd get here," she said calmly.

"Were you expecting me?" "Of course I was. With everybody in town asking where Shelly's got to, I knew you'd be here . . . I know where she is." Craig's dark face was hard.

"I don't happen to be everybody," she pointed out serenely. "Will you tell me where she is, too?" Ike sat in his chair and listened, watched them.

"That too doesn't signify," Myra said. "I told nobody where she went." Craig took a deep breath. "Heard there was a bad accident at the plant," said Ike un- easily.

"There was," Craig answered. Briefly he recounted what had happened. "Is the man safe to leave—case you do leave?" asked Myra. "The shortest distance between two points," drawled her husband, "lies through Myra's think-box."

"And it couldn't pick a better place!" chuckled Craig. "Yes, he'll be safe, Myra. Dr. Ward will care for him—if I leave."

"That's good." Craig waited and Ike grinned at him. "Well, tell me this," said the doctor finally. "Do you think she'll be all right—wherever she is?" "I know she'll be all right. Even if she hadn't left—Last spring she and I were walking up the stairs of this house on the night we heard the first whippoorwill. You couldn't ask a better omen!"

"Tell the man where Shelly's gone," urged Ike. "You know you're going to." "I'm a-waitin' for him to tell me why she ran away." Craig frowned. "Don't you know?" "I don't think Shelly knew. But I reckoned you might."

"Well, perhaps I do. You see, Saturday night—" Quickly he told the story, even mentioning Eleanor's red dress. With gestures that made the Vandables laugh.

"And Shelly ran home and put on that pink, shiny dress . . ." Myra supplied.
"She looked lovely, Myra!" said Craig, fervently.
"She did so. She is lovely. To the core. And the thing I can't understand, Craig, is that those rich, smug people she's related to don't know what they have in that girl!"
"They know, I feel sure. But they also know that they are rich. And smug."
Myra's face brightened. "Well, of course then they couldn't rest easy," she declared.
Craig stood up. "You didn't tell even then where Shelly had gone?"
"No. But here—" Her fingers explored the pocket of her dress. "It's this name and address and telephone number. You can copy it. It's an uncle—or a cousin—"

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U)—A decline in the stock market today embraced just about all major divisions.

Irregularly appeared at the start of trading, and within the first hour the lower trend had started. It carried on down into the early afternoon.

Losses at times extended to between 1 and 3 points, but the great majority of changes either way were small.

The fall of prices was somewhat similar to that suffered on Friday, but the lower movement was more pronounced.

Trading hit a rate around two million shares for the day, very close to the 1,900,000 shares traded Friday.

Lower stocks included New York Central Northern Pacific, Standard Oil (N.J.), Paramount Pictures, American Telephone, Commonwealth Edison, Phelps Dodge, Du Pont, American Woolen, American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, U. S. Steel, General Motors, United Aircraft, and Radio Corp.

Lost Control Of Car Near Chicod

A Cherry Point Negro man "reached for a package of cigarettes" and lost control of his car, which turned over and injured him, near Chicod School at 10:30 this morning.

According to Highway Patrolman James W. Boykin, who investigated the accident, August Jackson, 28, of Mams Mag 32, Cherry Point, was going north on highway N.C. 43 near Chicod School when he said he reached up over the sun visor to get a package of cigarettes, lost control and his car rolled over.

The investigating officer said that Jackson received lacerations of the hand, arm, and right leg. He also reported the 1950 model car was a total loss. The damage was estimated at $800.

The investigation is still incomplete, according to Patrolman Boykin.

Concert Program Is Well-Received Here

An audience from the campus, the city, and various towns in eastern North Carolina gave enthusiastic applause to musicians from East Carolina College at a concert yesterday afternoon in the College Theatre.

The program, sponsored by the college department of music, presented as soloists Mrs. Gladys Reichard White, soprano, and Walter Noona of Norfolk, Va., student pianist. The East Carolina orchestra and a choir made up of members of three choral groups at the college—the College Choir, the Varsity Glee Club, and the Women's Chorus—were presented in a varied group of selections.

With Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, director of the college department of music, as conductor, the East Carolina Orchestra opened the program with the overture to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" and the beautiful "Emperor Waltz" by Strauss. The orchestra, a college-community organization of sixty instrumentalists, also provided accompaniments for the choral numbers and for Mrs. White.

Mr. Noona's selections for the afternoon included Chopin's "Etude," op. 25, no. 11; the "Prelude in D Major," op. 23 by Rachmaninoff; and "Tocatta" from Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." Mrs. White sang the "Flower Song" from Gounod's "Faust" and Charles' "When I Have Sung My Songs."

The choir, accompanied by the orchestra, was presented in four selections: the "Pilgrim's Chorus" from Wagner's "Tannhauser," the "Grand March" from Verdi's "Aida," and "Onward Christian Soldiers" and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" in arrangements by Fred Waring.

Friday of this week the East Carolina musicians will present the same program at a general session of the North Carolina Education Association at the Municipal Auditorium in Raleigh.

Local Debaters Win 3 Trophies At Tournament

Greenville High School won three trophies and two other Pitt County schools received third place awards in the first Carolina District speech and debate tournament here Saturday.

The Greenville High debate team composed of John Brooks and Ginger Worthington, affirmative; and Jo Hendrix and Henrietta Swayne, negative; won its third trophy by defeating the Edmunds High School team of Sumter, S.C. negative team in the championship debate late Saturday.

Jimmy Phelps and Curtis Patterson of Greenville High won trophies for respective first places in the oratorical declamation and the dramatic declamation divisions of the tournament. Millie Tripp of Ayden took third place in the dramatic declamation division; and Tanya Anderson of Bevoir-Falkland won third place in the poetry interpretation division.

The National Forensic League of Greenville High was host for the tournament, and entered seven students in four events. The local debate team was defending champion in the debate division, having won the championship in Johnson City, Tenn. last spring before the district was divided.

By their win Saturday, the Greenville High debaters qualified for the National Championship tournament to be held in Greensburg, Pa., in June. Greenville won four of five debates in the tournament which was under the direction of R. B. Starling of Greenville and John Wiseman Jr. of Sumter.

In winning the oratorical declamation division, Phelps used the oration spoken by Rodney Fulcher, former GHS student, in the original oratory division of the national speech tournament held in Los Angeles in 1952. Since the oration was ordered by the local NFL chapter from the Whetmore Declamation Bureau, the school will receive a "Whetmore Trophy" which is offered as a special award for a winning oration ordered from the bureau's catalogue.

Divisional results of the district speech tournament were as follows: Oratorical declamation: Jimmy Phelps, first; Diana Ellason, Raleigh, second; Wilbur Watson, Sumter, third.

Dramatic declamation: Curtis Patterson, first; Corinna Guess, Sumter, second; Millie Tripp, Ayden, third.

Poetry interpretation: Diana Ellason, Raleigh, first; Curtis Patterson, Greenville, second; Tanya Anderson, Bevoir-Falkland, third.

Debate: Greenville, first; Sumter, second; Raleigh, third.

Mercury Falls

A little over an inch of rain fell in the Greenville area during a thunderstorm Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

The temperature at the end of the rainfall Sunday at 8 a.m. was 72 degrees. During the 24-hour period the mercury dropped 40 degrees. At 8 a.m. today it was 32. Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, reported.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 52 degrees. Lowest that night 38 and at 8 a.m. next day it was 47.

Stress Social Studies In Teachers' Meeting Today

Emphasis will be placed on social studies when Pitt County teachers begin holding their last grade level meetings for the year today.

The first of the last group of meetings will be held this afternoon at 4 p.m. in the Tucker Building Conference Room when the Third Grade group will meet.

Teachers from the Training School, East Carolina College, will meet with the teachers. There will be a discussion and interchange of ideas, according to Miss Annie Lee Jones, elementary supervisor of the Pitt County schools.

Miss Jones said this morning that she felt sure that all the teachers will want to take advantage of this opportunity to discuss the problems and to gather new ideas.

She asked the teachers to bring to the meetings samples of the children's work and the state bulletin on social studies, which was furnished each teacher last year.

The schedule for the meetings, each of which will be held in the Tucker Building in Greenville at 4 p.m. on the designated day: Monday, March 15—Third Grade; Tuesday, March 16—Sixth Grade; Wednesday, March 23—Second Grade; Thursday, March 30—First Grade; and Tuesday, April 6—Fourth Grade.

Miss Jones added that the Sixth Grade teachers, who will meet tomorrow, will meet upstairs in the Health Department (Tucker Building) since another group will be using the Conference Room on the ground floor.

Forgery Charged Greenville Man

RALEIGH—A Greenville paperhanger was arrested by Raleigh police Saturday night and charged with forgery.

Detective Capt. Bob Goodwin arrested Arthur Carson Spencer, Jr. of Greenville on description. He said Spencer is charged with forging checks on Raleigh concerns. Spencer also is wanted by Hickory and Salisbury authorities for forgery. The Raleigh detective said Spencer carried a rubber stamping device with him and used it to give authenticity to forged checks.

Police charge that Spencer forged two checks on the Raleigh Electric Company, using the name of the company president, I. K. Poole, and that he used a rubber stamp for the firm's name.

Detective Goodwin said he found three Social Security cards in Spencer's possession, one bearing his true name and the others the aliases of Gene Johnson and Donald Greene.

Spencer also had two sets of license plates for his car, police stated.

Light Damage In Weekend Wreck

Police were called to investigate an accident over the weekend involving cars operated by Patsy Ann Baker and Evelyn Parrott of Winterville.

Damage to Miss Baker's car amounted to $75 and to Miss Parrott's $100.

Firemen Answer Two Fire Calls

A grass fire at 1:50 p.m. Saturday afternoon brought fire trucks to Bancroft Avenue.

The blaze was extinguished by firemen with no damage resulting.

Also Saturday the fire fighters were called to the TV Service Station on North Greene Street at 2:45 to extinguish a trash fire. Firemen found the blaze under control when they arrived.

Confused Sailor Now Informed No Estate Awaiting

LOS ANGELES (U)—Sailor Bill Cabeca says it's a salty trick to tell a man his rich uncle has left him $100,000.

"All I know is I'm real confused," he said. "I feel pretty low."

William V. Cabeca Jr., 28, a boatswain's mate I.C., told reporters last Tuesday he'd received a letter from a brother informing him a rich uncle died and left one eighth interest in an $800,000 hotel. All he had to do to collect was leave the Navy.

Yesterday Cabeca said he had checked with the brother in Nebraska and learned no such letter had been sent. And in Miami, Fla., his father, William V. Sr. said he knew of no rich relatives, nor of any recent deaths.

Colored News

Mrs. Maggie Lynch Mallory was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital yesterday morning critically ill.

Tour Industrial Arts Department Of High School

WINTERVILLE—Visitors from Greenville and the Simpson community recently made a tour of the industrial arts department of Robinson Union Negro High School at Winterville.

Roderick Harrell, instructor, and five students conducted the visitors on the inspection visit. The exhibits included bookcases, tables, magazine racks, study desks, chairs, lamps, cabinets, smoking stands, wardrobe, and other articles of furniture.

James P. Daniels, William Carmon, Paul Suggs and Bobby Jordan received honorable mention for their work.

D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County schools, and J. B. Speight, chairman of the Winterville School Board, attended the exhibition. J. W. Mays is principal of the school.

Forgery Charged Greenville Man

RALEIGH—A Greenville paperhanger was arrested by Raleigh police Saturday night and charged with forgery.

Detective Capt. Bob Goodwin arrested Arthur Carson Spencer, Jr. of Greenville on description. He said Spencer is charged with forging checks on Raleigh concerns. Spencer also is wanted by Hickory and Salisbury authorities for forgery. The Raleigh detective said Spencer carried a rubber stamping device with him and used it to give authenticity to forged checks.

Police charge that Spencer forged two checks on the Raleigh Electric Company, using the name of the company president, I. K. Poole, and that he used a rubber stamp for the firm's name.

Detective Goodwin said he found three Social Security cards in Spencer's possession, one bearing his true name and the others the aliases of Gene Johnson and Donald Greene.

Spencer also had two sets of license plates for his car, police stated.

Firemen Answer Two Fire Calls

A grass fire at 1:50 p.m. Saturday afternoon brought fire trucks to Bancroft Avenue.

The blaze was extinguished by firemen with no damage resulting.

Also Saturday the fire fighters were called to the TV Service Station on North Greene Street at 2:45 to extinguish a trash fire. Firemen found the blaze under control when they arrived.

Confused Sailor Now Informed No Estate Awaiting

LOS ANGELES (U)—Sailor Bill Cabeca says it's a salty trick to tell a man his rich uncle has left him $100,000.

"All I know is I'm real confused," he said. "I feel pretty low."

William V. Cabeca Jr., 28, a boatswain's mate I.C., told reporters last Tuesday he'd received a letter from a brother informing him a rich uncle died and left one eighth interest in an $800,000 hotel. All he had to do to collect was leave the Navy.

Yesterday Cabeca said he had checked with the brother in Nebraska and learned no such letter had been sent. And in Miami, Fla., his father, William V. Sr. said he knew of no rich relatives, nor of any recent deaths.

Drew A Blank

Robbers stole a safe and a truck to haul it off in from Jenkins Motor Company near Ayden Saturday night.

But they did not get any cash for their trouble. There was no money in the safe.

Pitt County Sheriff's office reported today the truck with the safe on it was located early Sunday morning near the Edwards Bridge in Greene County. The safe had been battered open in what officers termed a "rip job," but the records and other papers which the safe contained were recovered.

Investigating the robbery were Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning, Jasper Lee Mills, SBI Agent Clyde Fentress, and Ayden Police Chief J. A. Jones. The investigation is still underway.

Declares Chiang Tried Kill Him

EVANSTON, Ill. (U)—Dr. K. C. Wu claims Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has resorted to attempted assassination holding his son a hostage in an attempt to stop Wu's bitter criticisms of Chiang's policies in Formosa.

Wu, former governor of Formosa, now the seat of the Chinese Nationalist government, told a news conference yesterday Chiang masterminded an unsuccessful attempt to kill him and his wife in Formosa last year.

Raid Dice Game From Pie Truck

SAN FRANCISCO (U)—It was one of those "floating" dice games—known to the cops but harder to stop than the income tax collector.

So, yesterday, Police Inspector Frank Ahern and his vice squad borrowed a pie delivery truck. They drove to the vacant lot where the dice were in action and piled out of the pie wagon before the game's lookouts could hold their "such crust."

Seventeen men were arrested and $1,100 seized.
