Lawmakers Scramble For Few Votes That May Decide Issue

President Raps Further Tax Cut

By CHARLES F. BARRETT WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's head-on opposition to a Democratic tax cut plan sent Republican and Democratic House leaders scrambling today for the few votes that may decide the issue.

The President carried his opposition to the country last night in a radio and television address in which he denounced the Democratic proposal to boost individual income tax exemptions as unsound and politically inspired.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) said he is "quite sure the President's address will have the effect of rallying many Republicans and Democrats to his stand."

But Rep. Rayburn (D-Tex), the Democratic House leader, indicated by his comment that his party plans to press the tax cut campaign in the House. He said the Eisenhower tax program gives "favored treatment to a few taxpayers but not to the many."

Rayburn was picked to state the Democrats' case in a radio and TV broadcast tonight on the eve of the House battle opening tomorrow. Aiding him will be Sen. George of Georgia, senior Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, and Rep. Cooper of Tennessee, ranking Democrat on the House Ways and Means Committee.

House Democrats are pushing a proposal to boost individual tax exemptions to $700 from the present $600. George has proposed an increase to $800 this year and $1,000 in 1955.

Eisenhower asserted last night that this would lead to "bigger and bigger deficits . . . further inflation."

An $100 increase in the personal tax exemption would save taxpayers about $2,400,000,000 and add that much to the budget deficit that the administration is struggling to keep down.

Under the Democratic plan, more than four million persons with low income or heading large families would be relieved of all income tax payment. The per capita saving for most families in the middle income brackets or below would come to about $20. It would be more in higher brackets.

Eisenhower urged Congress now to go no farther in tax reduction than the huge GOP-sponsored bill to overhaul most of the nation's existing tax laws. He said this bill, liberalizing many deductions, would benefit millions of individuals and encourage "the growth and expansion of industry, the creation of jobs." It would cost the Treasury nearly $1,400,000,000 a year.

It is to this bill that House Democrats hope to tack the boost in personal exemptions.

Party lines looked tightly drawn as the test drew near. Republicans have only a four-vote edge over the Democrats in the House. Leaders of both parties privately expressed uncertainty over the outcome of the key vote Thursday. Some Democrats conceded they may lose as many as 10 or 15 members to the other side. Earlier, they had estimated all but five or six Democrats would stay in line. Some Republicans, on the other hand, said 10 or 12 of their group appeared ready to cross over. Another eight or so were regarded as doubtful.

In an 11th-hour effort to solidify their ranks, Speaker Martin and other GOP leaders called a conference of all Republican House members after the House adjourns today.

In his talk last night, Eisenhower did not mention another tax bill pending in Congress. This would cut about 23 excise taxes by $12 million dollars a year—a reduction the President also opposes.

At the outset, Eisenhower said his administration "has asked the Congress to approve a great program to build a stronger America—less unemployment, more and better homes, elimination of slums, improved health, a better farm program, improved labor laws and wider overseas markets."

"Most of these things cost money," he told his nationwide audience. "Without adequate revenue, most of them would be abandoned or curtailed. That is why our tax proposal is the cornerstone of our whole effort."

He then cited these tax reductions either in effect or proposed: Three billion dollars a year in individual income taxes and expiration of the excess profits tax on corporations, both of which took effect last Jan. 1; nearly 1 1/2 billion dollars in reductions under the tax revision program, largely through more liberal allowances for many items ranging from medical expenses and retirement income to dividends and business depreciation.

He reminded his listeners and viewers that this is an election year and added:

"Some think it is good politics to promise more and more government spending, and at the same time more and more tax cuts for all. We know from bitter experience what such a policy would finally lead to. It would make our dollars buy less. It would raise the prices of rent, of clothing, and of groceries. It would pass on still larger debts to our children. . . .

Overnight Ice Bedecks Plants, Trees

The first day of spring is only four days off according to the calendar but winter is dying hard in this section. The above picture proves that freezing weather was still with us last night. The coating of ice resulted when the lawn sprinkling system was left on all night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Hendrix on Evans Street Extension. Mrs. Hendrix says that the idea was to put a thin coat of ice on the bulbs planted in the yard to protect them from the freezing weather. They got more ice than they anticipated, however, she stated, and the above photo resulted. (Reflector photo by Alvin Taylor)

Closed Session Convened On Row With Army Officials McCarthy Committee In 'Showdown'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and his Senate Investigations subcommittee went into a showdown meeting today on his row with Army officials. Democratic members were demanding a full public hearing on the charges and counter charges.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), who calls signals for the group's Democratic members, told reporters he would insist at the closed door meeting that the subcommittee:

- 1. Ask that its parent body, the Senate Government Operations Committee, take over the inquiry.
2. Have all testimony taken in public hearings.
3. That the group hire a "special and impartial" staff to assist in the hearings. A reporter asked whether he was disposed to "let the staff that is under fire" participate and McClellan answered

"No, sir."

The subcommittee's entire membership of four Republicans and three Democrats turned out for the meeting. Sen. Lennon (D-NC), a member of the parent Government Operations Committee, went into the room a few minutes after the session was convened.

McCarthy accuses Secretary of the Army Stevens and John G. Adams, the Army's general counsel, of using "blackmail" tactics to block his investigations of alleged Reds in uniform.

Army officials accused McCarthy and Roy Cohn, the subcommittee's chief counsel, of exerting improper pressures to win special favors for a drafted pal, wealthy Pvt. G. David Schine, a former member of their staff. Worried Senate Republican leaders called a closed-door huddle of their own to consider their course in the blazing fight which pits Republican against Republican in this campaign year.

McCarthy has agreed to step aside temporarily and let another senator preside as chairman of the subcommittee in the inquiries, but declared firmly he would fight for the right to sit in the hearings and participate in the questioning of witnesses the same as any other member.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), the man McCarthy has picked to preside at the inquiry started a last-ditch effort to induce McCarthy to let some other committee take over. Mundt is a member of the subcommittee, second senior Republican to McCarthy. "I still think the country would be best satisfied by having a neutral committee handle it," he said.

But falling in that—and he clearly expected to fall—he said he will demand that the subcommittee hire a temporary, small special staff to handle the investigation, thus short-circuiting Cohn and other aides who are under the Army's fire.

The Army has accused both Cohn and Francis P. Carr, the subcommittee's staff chief through whom McCarthy handles personnel matters, of improper tactics. An Army report said Cohn used threats.

Mundt said it is "stretching credulity too far" to expect the American people to look on staffers under Carr's control to probe impartially into the conduct of their boss.

Thousands Of Dead Litter Indochina Battlefield Vietminh Waves Fall Back

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—Screaming Vietminh shock troops surged today to within half a mile of the heart of the Dien Bien Phu fortress, they faltered and fell back, taking their dead and wounded with them.

Masses of the Communist-led rebels staged the attack from the encircling hills in a driving rain, firing rifles, pistols and machine guns and throwing grenades and spears. French-manned American guns tore wide gaps in their ranks. A French army spokesman said thousands of the rebels were cut down.

Unofficial estimates of the Vietminh dead ranged from 1,000 in the four days of battle for the wire-ringed plain, in a strategic sector of northwest Indochina, rose to between 6,000 and 8,000.

Broken, bullet-riddled bodies of rebel dead dangled like scar-crows on the barbed wire as the outnumbered French Union forces fought desperately to keep the plain out of rebel hands.

It was the most savage battle of the seven-year Indochina war. Early today the outcome—certain to have a major effect on the Geneva conference next month—was still in doubt.

The fighting which began Saturday afternoon raged furiously through last night as thousands wildly screaming Communist-led rebels, backed by artillery from Communist China, charged repeatedly into the bristling, American-armed defenses of the fortress plain.

In the first 48 hours of fighting, the Vietminh wrested two northern and northeastern strongpoints from the French Union defenders.

Revenue Office Rushed During Last Three Days

Local U. S. Internal Revenue Department Collection Officer Carter Studdert reported this morning that the last few days of filing income tax returns saw more people coming for assistance than during the same period in previous years.

Studdert said that most of last week was a rush period, but that Friday, Saturday and Monday were really the rush days with the local office.

He added that there were long lines on all three of those days. He said that the local office was open until midnight last night to aid those filing at the last minute, but added no one came after about 10 p.m.

To add to the troubles for the workers in the local revenue office during the last few days prior to the March 15 deadline, one of the three men stationed here was called away.

Agent Alton G. Buck was called to active duty with the Navy last Friday putting the local office short-handed during the rush period. Buck is a member of the Naval Reserve and was called for a two week training cruise only. Studdert reported.

The Internal Revenue Department collection officer said in conclusion that he certainly wished that the people had been distributed over the period of the last few weeks so better service could have been rendered. He added that during many times recently the three men at the local office had no one there seeking assistance.

Other than Buck and Studdert, John N. Robbins is assigned to the local Revenue Office.

North Carolina Department of Revenue Agent E. R. Carraway said this morning that yesterday was the busiest day for those filing State income tax.

He reports about 150 came to the office yesterday. About 50 only wanted blanks and information while Carraway said the State Income office remained open until about 7:15 last night.

The agent reports that about 60 came in Saturday, which was another heavy day.

Compared to last year Carraway reports more people came in during the last few days prior to the March 15 deadline.

The remainder were seeking assistance in filing their tax.

The "do-or-die" fanatic rebel charges over the mounting bodies of their own dead resembled the Communist onslaughts on United Nations troops in the Korean War. For the first time in the long Indochina war, the Vietminh abandoned their guerrilla tactics for an all-out frontal assault.

In the first 48 hours of fighting, the Vietminh wrested two northern and northeastern strongpoints from the French Union defenders.

Merchant Board Affirms Faith Courtesy Parking Plan Is Still Worthwhile

By BOB BOYETTE

Reflector Staff Writer

"The Courtesy Parking Plan is still worthwhile," members of the Board of Directors for the Greenville Merchants Association agreed at a meeting last night.

The Board believed that the courtesy parking plan benefits the citizenship and general buying public of Greenville and Pitt County as well as visitors to the city.

How it had helped people going to the bank, doctor's offices, post office, county offices, and those just shopping was discussed.

Letters To Substantiate Beliefs

Several letters to substantiate the hope that the plan had been a help to the people had been received in the Association office, it was reported.

One letter, for example, read, "Today, after having spent most of last night up with my wife and our sick baby, we were over to a Greenville doctor with the baby. It took longer than we thought and when we got back to the car, I noticed a small envelope on the windshield.

"I reached out and got it and saw the words 'that through the courtesy of the Greenville Merchants Association, a nickel had been put in the meter for my benefit.' I appreciated that very much from the bottom of my heart and want you and them to know that I think that was a fine gesture of good samaritanism."

That letter was received from Ayden. Others from visitors of Raleigh and other cities have been received along with a note from a Greenville woman which read, "Thank you I was attending the World Day of Prayer service. It lasted a few minutes longer than the two nickels I put in."

Some Taking Advantage of Plan

On the other hand, it was brought out at the meeting that some business people of Greenville were taking advantage of the courtesy parking plan by parking by a meter a large part of the day. The Board said it hopes these people will give this matter consideration, because it was felt if they did not give it consideration it would not continue.

Radford Says Defense Changes Had To Be Made Terms New Look Inevitable

By HERB ALTSCHULL WASHINGTON (AP)—Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said today the nation's military "new look" would have come "no matter what administration was in power."

He said in an interview the new military concept does not mean there is no strategy except "massive retaliation with atomic weapons."

It is a plan based on hitting back at selected targets, he said, but not necessarily with nuclear missiles.

The interview along with a prepared statement by the nation's ranking military man, came in the midst of Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearings on armed services appropriations.

These produced yesterday an expression of concern from the Army that it was being unduly cut down in the reshuffling of service roles. But Radford, before appearing before the subcommittee, said the "new look" is less a radical change than a reappraisal of military methods. He added: "It would have been done no matter what administration was in power."

And he said ground forces could be "safely reduced."

Republican spokesmen, including Vice President Nixon in his nationwide speech last Saturday, have defined the "new look" largely in terms of "massive retaliatory power" and have said it would provide stronger defenses while avoiding ruinous costs.

In a statement to the congressional group yesterday, Gen. Matthew Ridgway, Army chief of staff said he was concerned over a reduction of Army forces "through which our capabilities will be lowered while our responsibilities for meeting the continuing threat have yet to be correspondingly lessened."

He declined to say at a public hearing yesterday whether he had recommended a sharp cut in appropriations for the Army, which faces a cut of more than 300,000 in its manpower by the end of 1955.

Radford said he thought "the wrong inferences" had been drawn from a speech in January by Secretary of State Dulles outlining the new military and diplomatic strategy.

The admiral said Dulles had given a "rather broad-brush treatment" to the subject and that this had led to misinformation reports that the United States was devoting its entire military strategy to "massive retaliation with atomic weapons."

Secretary of Defense Wilson told the senators yesterday that the United States is not planning "sole or exclusive reliance on new weapons."

Candidate Asks Cash And Votes

RALEIGH (AP)—Declaring he has less than $1,000 to finance a campaign and support his family, Alvin Wingfield Jr. of Charlotte entered the race yesterday for U.S. Senate in the May 29 Democratic primary.

He became the sixth candidate for the post to file with the State Board of Elections. Others are Sen. Alton A. Lennon of Wilmington, W. Kerr Scott of Haw River, Henry Sprinkle of Greensboro, W. M. Bostick of Cary and A. E. Turner of Palmyra.

Wingfield, a former radio commentator in Raleigh, told reporters yesterday he lost his job last week as district manager in Charlotte of a typewriter firm in a disagreement over policy. He formerly was district manager in Raleigh, moving to Charlotte two years ago.

Now jobless, Wingfield 34, urged voters who agree with his ideas to send him contributions. He has a wife and three children.

An ardent supporter of the late Sen. Willis Smith in the stormy 1950 race against Sen. Frank Graham, Wingfield said he was interested in carrying on Smith's fight against "socialism in government."

He added, "I think I will pose this issue considerably more than either of my opponents. That's what I have been training myself to do all these years."

Wingfield said he had been considering entering the Senate race ever since "the day Sen. Smith died." He just made up his mind finally yesterday, he added.

In a statement, Wingfield said that if voters "provide me with the means of spreading my message, I shall campaign uncompromisingly for the constitutional principles of American liberty which once held such great promise for America and the world and can do so again."

Report Stadium Will Be Ready For Use This Spring

The Greenville Recreation Commission was told last night that work is progressing on the Guy Smith Park area to place it in shape for the spring and summer recreation program.

"We are still painting the stadium and we've got all the seats painted," Recreation Director Warren Carroll told the commission.

Carroll also reported that the final lighting plan had been received from the General Electric engineers and that plans are being worked out with the Greenville Utilities Commission for re-arranging the lights.

The commission had voted at an earlier meeting to place the stadium in shape for both softball and baseball this summer. Plans call for moving the fence around the park and painting and repairing the stands.

Carroll also told the recreation commission that an outside company would probably be called in to move the fence.

"Mr. Hughes, Mr. Beatty and I checked on the fence and we think that we can get somebody else to move it cheaper than we can," Carroll stated.

Concerning the miniature train which is to be placed out at the Guy Smith Park area, City Manager James S. Hughes said, "We've gotten a promise from the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to give the material to put down the railroad. They are going to give the ties and the ballast."

He said that another company had been contacted in an effort to get them to lay the track.

"We expect to start the train rolling on the Saturday before Easter," Rev. Leonard W. Topping, who heads the train committee, reported.

Topping also reported that the swimming pools committee was waiting for an architect before final location of the two pools is approved. K. T. Putreile reported that the committee which was appointed to investigate the possibility of moving the softball lights at Third Street School to Eppes High School had decided after conferring with June H. Rose that the original plan of moving the lights to South Greenville School should be followed.

The commission had originally voted to move the lights to South Greenville and later it was brought up that plans were being made to develop the park at Eppes High School and that the lights could be used there. Rose said at last night's meeting that the schools would develop the entire park at Eppes and the commission agreed to revert to the original plan of moving the lights to South Greenville.

Carroll reported that work on the recreation building at Elm Street Park is approximately 85 per cent complete.

"We have gotten the walls up, glassing in, the light terminals in, the heating plant has been set and the linoleum for the floor has been ordered," Carroll stated.

"In addition," he said, "the heating men are running the ducts."

The commission also voted to approve an amended budget which would switch money that has not been used during the past year to other uses. Carroll reported that funds provided for workers and materials and personnel in the original budget had not been used because of lack of facilities.

In his amended budget he requested that the money be spent for playground equipment for Guy Smith Park and equipment for other areas.

The commission also recommended that the city manager be included as a voting member of the recreation commission. They were told that the city council will have to act on the proposal.

It was brought out that the terms of two of the commissioners were due to expire and the commission passed a motion that they would like to have both of them back. The two whose terms expire are Chairman Tyson Bilbro and Dr. N. M. Jorgensen. It was brought out that Dr. Jorgensen had a conflict with the Monday night meetings because of a night class that he taught. The commission agreed that if Dr. Jorgensen decided that he could not serve for the coming year that another member of the East Carolina College physical education department should be appointed to the commission.

The commission heard a report from Carroll in which he stated that the new truck which was authorized by the commission had been purchased.

They also authorized that the expenses of Luke Hemby, a recreation commission employee, be paid in order that he might attend a recreation institute and workshop in Durham March 22-26. The meeting was presided over by K. T. Putreile in the absence of Chairman Tyson Bilbro.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
March 16, 1924

The following poem about the recent snow was written by a pupil of the 5th grade.

The Snow
I see the snow all pure and white,
I see it shining in the night,
But if it stays till the light of day,
The sun will melt it all away.

After the snow falls fast and thick,
I eat snow-cream till I'm almost sick,
Then I snowballed hard and fast
For snow cannot always last.

Rotarians Hear J. Roy Martin

J. Roy Martin, Greenville insurance adjuster, spoke to the local Rotary club last night on the vocation of insurance adjusting.

There are three kinds of insurance adjusters, Martin told the group, the staff adjuster which is employed by an insurance company, the independent adjuster who adjusts losses for companies on a fee basis, and hail adjusters who adjust losses caused to hail damage to growing crops.

Martin discussed briefly the work of an insurance adjuster and explained some of the methods and techniques used by adjusters in arriving at an evaluation of losses.

The work of an insurance adjuster or brings him into contact with all kinds of people, Martin said, and he added, "as a rule people take disaster calmly and business-like." Most people are fair minded when it comes to adjusting losses covered by insurance, he said, and settlements usually can be reached quickly.

He pointed out several incidents as illustrations of how adjustments of insurance losses can be reached. Martin was introduced by Sam B. Underwood, Jr. Guests of the club at the meeting included George VanNortwick, Anna Louise White, Frank White of Atlanta and visiting Rotarians John Hall of Southern Pines, and Dr. Grady Dixon and Alton Rowe of Ayden.

So Much Muscle Hard To Believe

DETROIT, March 16 (AP)—To 86-pound, 5-foot-2 Mrs. Gloria Fair it was hardly believable that she had that much muscle.

But there was the record. Mrs. Fair, 35, held back a driverless car rolling down her driveway yesterday to keep it from crushing 5-year-old Bobby Emerson, a neighbor boy. One rear wheel already had started over his body.

Bobby was unconscious when removed but revived and was found not badly hurt.

"I can't believe it," Mrs. Fair said of her feat.

Dr. Olert Talks To Presbytery Women

FARMVILLE — Dr. Frederick H. Olert of Richmond, Va., addressed the night session of the Women of the Church of Albemarle Presbytery here last week. His subject was "All the Fullness of Christ."

The annual meeting was held at the Farmville Presbyterian Church. The speaker, who is currently reviewing the Book of Ephesians, traced Paul's background and his reason for writing his letter to the church in Ephesus. The cosmic significance of Christ at every point whether it be bad conscience, restraint for temperament, wayward feet, or sorrowing soul, was the idea Dr. Olert emphasized. "He (Christ) is the only person who still stands at the center of world's life, and Christianity is preeminently Christ," he declared.

Mrs. George Edwards of Snow Hill introduced the speaker.

Mrs. J. P. Barksdale of Rocky Mount, president, presided at the evening session. An Executive Board supper meeting preceded the session.

Mrs. Frank Lea of Wilson, a past president, gave the dedication after an offering for Peace College. Concluding the night service was the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Wednesday's Sessions
Highlighting Wednesday morning's sessions were three addresses.

Mrs. Rufus D. Wilson of Burlington, president of the Synodical, talked on "The Unsearchable Riches." Continuing the study of Ephesians, Dr. Olert related "God's Design for a New World." "Jesus spoke about the Kingdom 150 times, and he considered it to be the master plan which gathered up everything and gave it meaning," the speaker declared.

Dr. Claude Pritchard, secretary of the Church Extension, Division of Home Missions, Atlanta, Ga., emphasized evangelism.

The first address of the afternoon session was by Dr. Marshall Woodson, president of Flora Macdonald College of Red Springs, on "The Greatest Thing on Earth." He defined this as a noble Christian woman. Speaking in behalf of all church-related colleges, he listed three outstanding reasons for sending students to such institutions— atmosphere, moral convictions, and the girl means something to her home church after she leaves the school.

Thirty-two out of 52 presidents of the local units of the Women of the Church stood during roll call of the organizations present. Reports from chairmen of the four districts were heard.

Rev. Albert B. McClure, in a humorous manner, told of his 132 girls and 132 boys at the Presbyterian Children's Home at Barium Springs, where he is superintendent.

Jean Forbes And Eugene Leigh Pledge Vows In Private Ceremony

In a private ceremony which took place at 4:30 in the afternoon February 10th, Miss Jean Forbes and Mr. Eugene Leigh pledged their marriage vows before the Rev. Hartwell Campbell in the Stokes Baptist Church. The impressive double ring ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate families.

Red Oak News

Twenty-five members of the Men's Club of Eastern Pines will present their Jubilee Minstrel at the Red Oak club house on Thursday night, March 18th, at 8 o'clock. They are giving all the proceeds of this showing for the benefit of the several organizations in Red Oak Church and community to show their appreciation to Mrs. B. L. Tyson, who directed the minstrel.

This minstrel was given two nights last week in the Eastern Pines community and was uproariously received by two full houses.

A chorus of 20 men sang many of the old favorite songs opening with "Dixie" and closing with "In the Evening By the Moonlight." The Black Jack Trio sang several special numbers. Thomas W. Hardee sang "Mammy" and he and his brother, Ray, brought the house down with their dance number.

Clarence Elks Jr. and S. W. Heath were outstanding in their dance numbers, songs, ventriloquist act and jokes.

Janice Tucker as a daring mulatto and Earl Hardee brought the audience down with their dance routine. Miss Linda Joyner gave an acrobatic dance.

Mr. Lonnie Tucker rendered "Oh! Belinda." Mr. Wyatt Highsmith, an old hand at minstrel, sang several numbers and brought the audience to tears with his jokes. Rufus Carl Hardee was good as one of the end-men.

Mr. Glenn Hardee was the inter-locutor and music was furnished by Mrs. Ruth Arnold at the piano and her son, Billy, on the drums. Billy also did the art work that made a most attractive background.

All people in the community and friends everywhere are asked to come and help us give these fine men a rousing welcome to our community.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo De Vroomen of Lisse, Holland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ola Kittrell of near Greenville over the weekend. They were visitors at Red Oak during the Sunday School hour. Mr. De Vroomen made a short talk giving us some of the impressions of the people and country of the U.S.A.

Mr. De Vroomen is connected with his father and two other brothers in the bulb business. He stated that he had been in the U. S. and Canada for the past four months, that while he is here, his father is in Sweden, one brother in England and another in Norway. He and his wife are on an extended honeymoon which has covered 22,000 miles in the U. S. and Canada, besides crossing the Atlantic twice. This is Mr. De Vroomen's seventh visit to the U.S. Their bulb company won 17 awards in the International Flower Show held last year.

He said that the people in the United States should be more thankful for all their blessings and liberties and freedom of speech than they were.

He remarked that in America we were always discussing politics and communism while in Holland people never discussed politics as they had a queen and they had no Communists. He said that Holland was a tiny country about 200 miles long and 200 miles wide.

He deplored the fact that children in America were so grown-up and most children that they had seen over here would not obey their parents if they did not want to.

The things the De Vroomens liked best in the U.S. were the wonderful highways, beautiful mountains and scenery and the hospitality of the people.

It was truly a wonderful experience for these people to pay us a visit.

Difficult Problems Must Be Faced

Throughout the South, perhaps more than in other sections of the nation, the citizens are waiting to see what the U. S. Supreme Court is going to rule on the matter of segregation.

The word got around last week that the important ruling would be handed down by the high court most any day, but so far no ruling has come.

No matter what the ruling of the court is, the people in the South, the people in North Carolina are going to face a trying and difficult period.

Should the Supreme Court rule that segregation in public schools is unconstitutional, it would mean that by law the federal government would force upon the nation—particularly in the Southern States—a condition for which society obviously is not ready. Actually in our own area, we do not believe the people of either race are ready for such a radical change.

If segregation is outlawed by the high court, there will be bitterness on the part of some, resentment on the part of many. There is no point in avoiding the facts as they are. It would bring a difficult time and difficult conditions imposed upon many people against their will.

Should the high court rule that the situation of segregation with equal but separate school facilities is in keeping with the constitution, that too will bring problems. Those who have agitated for complete non-segregation probably will not give up their battle for a compromise and seek to keep the issue stirred up.

North Carolina and other Southern states, in keeping with a separate-but-equal-facilities ruling, would be hard pressed for a few years, at least, in developing schools which would meet the provisions of "equality" of facilities in accordance with whatever agency would determine whether schools for white children and schools for Negro children are "equal." It will in all likelihood mean that even in North Carolina the majority of funds for school facilities in the next several years will be put into schools for Negro children.

While other states have planned various means of circumventing any eventuality which may arise in the ease of a non-segregation ruling, the attitude in North Carolina apparently has been "wait and see."

In spite of the millions which have been put into both white and Negro school facilities in the state in the past several years, the further major outlays of money apparently is hinging upon the court decision.

In our considered opinion, it is obvious to those who live in the South that the predominance of the people of both the white and Negro races are not ready for the end of segregation in one fell swoop by action of the U. S. Supreme Court. For the nine members of the U. S. Supreme Court in Washington to outlaw segregation by their decision is one thing. To make their decision work among people who are not ready for it is quite another.

Whether we like it or not, these factors must be faced. In our opinion, segregation and social integration of people of the same race or which can be resolved successfully through people of different races is not a matter of legislation or judicial decision. It can only be resolved through evolution.

An attempt to solve it through any other means will result in trying and difficult times for all the people concerned while they strive to find the solutions to the many more complex problems which would be suddenly thrust upon them by such an edict.

People Are Fed Up With McCarthy Issue

Many thousands of columns of type in newspapers across the country in recent weeks have been devoted to the raging controversy inside and outside the Republican party over Sen. McCarthy and his tactics in communist hunting.

As a matter of fact so many people inside and outside the government have had so much to say in the controversy that at times it has become, and still is, somewhat confusing. Just about everybody in the government—or so it seems—has had a comment.

Sifting through all the issues, statements, charges and counter-charges is quite a problem when one is seeking to ascertain where all this is getting the nation.

Yet if we are able to distinguish one pointer in this raging argument, we would say it is evident the rank and file citizens are getting well fed up with all the wrangling over the situation. They want the situation cleared up and the bickering and arguing stopped.

Apparently the only way to do that is for the GOP leadership in the administration and in the Senate to sit down hard on Senator McCarthy. That of course would pose a critical issue for the Republicans. They would be reluctant to severely reprimand one of their own members.

In our opinion, however, the longer the McCarthyism is allowed to overshadow other political issues, the more harm it is going to do the Republicans in the November elections.

National Whirligig

shrewd parliamentarian, will probably affix his exemption relief suggestion to the 900-page measure which overhauls the Federal tax structure for the first time since the Civil War.

It will be virtually impossible for the President to disapprove Senator George's idea if it is submitted in this camouflaged form. The Chief Executive cannot veto a bill in piecemeal fashion. He must accept or reject it in its entirety, a procedure so unwieldy and impractical that its abolition has been demanded by every Eisenhower predecessor.

Even though the Senate has a Democratic majority of one, it is in that body that the White House looks for victory. A few Republicans may desert Eisenhower, especially those up for re-election next fall. But it is expected that several conservative and money-minded Democrats will refuse to follow the Georgia veteran, even though he is the Party's taxation authority.

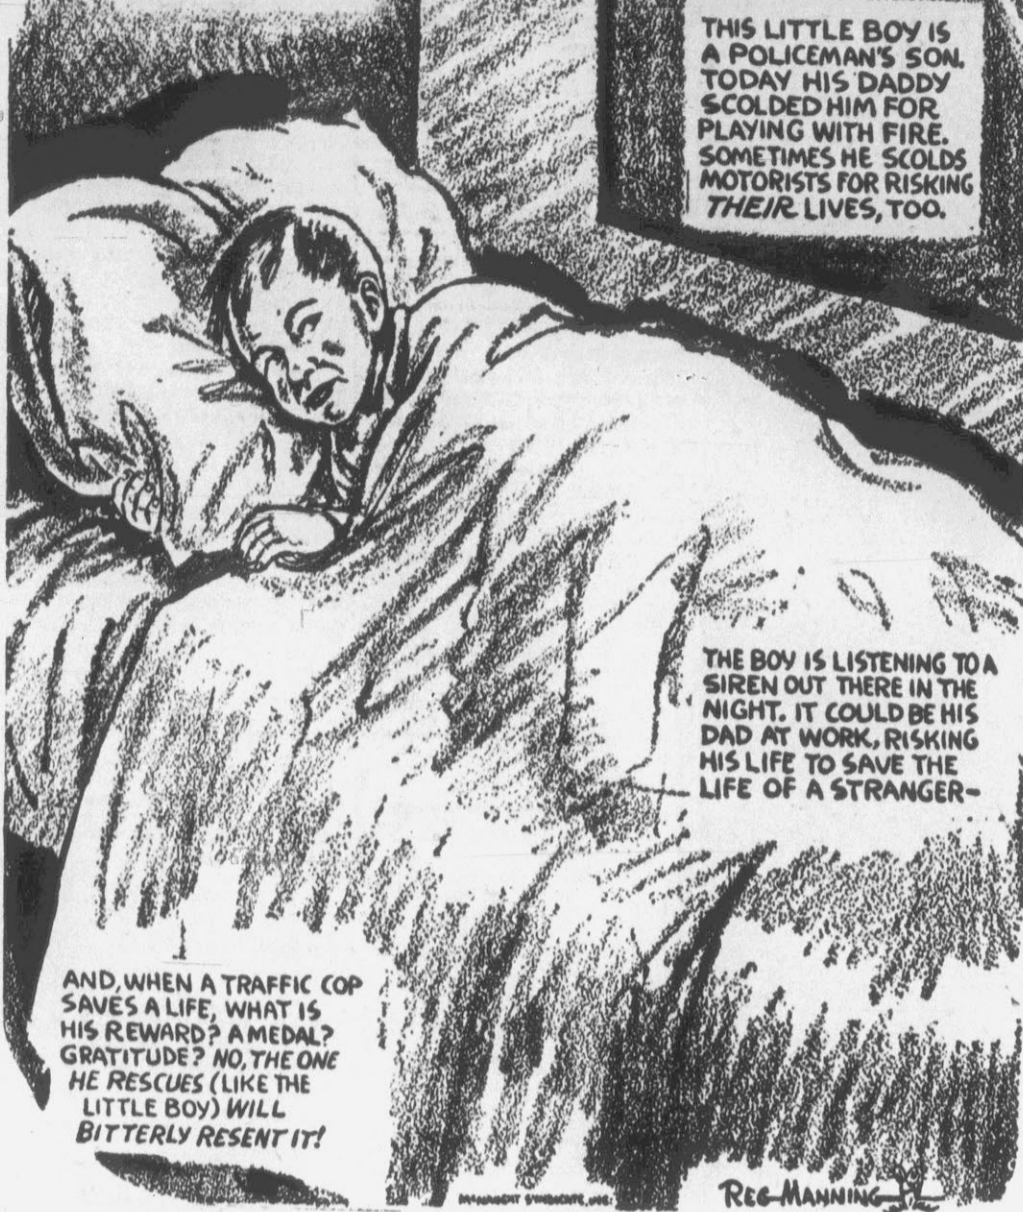

RESTRAINT NOW NEEDED—The White House argument in this great tax debate is that exercise of restraint now will pay tax relief dividends within the next few years, possibly a 10 to 20 per cent cut in individual income taxes and a 10 per cent reduction in corporate payments. That is the carrot to be dangled before Congress.

Despite Administration opposition to excessive reductions at this session, Eisenhower's advisers concede the need for leaving a much larger percentage of earnings to individuals and corporations. Otherwise, there will be no reserves for the two operations which alone can sustain our expanding economic system—industrial investments to enlarge the production plant and sufficient purchasing power to buy the national output of durable and consumer goods.

Recent investment innovations place the individual taxpayer in a preferred position for eventual large-scale relief. Increasingly, as Humphrey realizes, it is the "little fellow"—the wage earners, pensioners, insurance customers, small instalment investors—who are providing the capital for business and industry. But they cannot save and invest and buy if Uncle Sam robs them of the rewards of their labor.

Somebody Told Me

Gossip Jag In A Barber Shop

Have you ever thought about idle chatter as one of the greatest forms of pleasure known to man? Yesterday that occurred to me when I took my regular visit to the Stokes and Hudson barber shop. The whole time I was there we just talked about unimportant topics, all of which were enjoyable.

A quite common topic is bald hair. And the beautiful thing about bald heads is that most people laugh about them. Thank God for a sense of humor.

But yesterday we talked more about way hair. Men with wavy hair usually have to take a tremendous amount of ribbing from their fellowman. Much of it is sour grapes. In my opinion, plenty more men would have it if they could. But regardless of that, the ones with it have to accept the remarks of those who do not.

ADVERTISING FOR SCHOOLS (Anniston Star)

Still another example of the great public service performed by advertising in America was brought into the spotlight with the presentation of an award to The Advertising Council for its nation-wide Better Schools Campaign.

The Advertising Council, the task force for business that marshals the forces of advertising for public service, is a non-profit organization that has prepared campaigns on safety, nursing, schools, government bonds, armed forces recruiting, the Voice of America and many other public needs for use by American advertising media.

In the Better Schools Campaign alone the Council can trace $14-

Then, for some strange reason the discussion shifted to this business of getting up in the morning. We had a considerable debate trying to decide which one of us hated it the most.

Then Elbert Hudson labeled me: "Well, I know one thing for sure. I know which one of us is the sleepest after he gets up." Elbert was talking about me. Every morning as I drive to work the stop light in front of the barber shop usually catches me. Elbert said, "If that stop light would stop just a moment you would fall asleep at the wheel."

As is so often the case in Greenville these days, the discussion then came around to television. While on that subject let me scoop the news on an announcement that will interest sports fans: Beginning April 13th with the opening game and continuing thereafter after each Saturday WNCN will carry the game of the week from the National and American baseball leagues live through the facilities of ABC television.

At the barber shop yesterday I kept waiting for the boys to get into a little gossip, but it never came. About gossip, men are this way. They gossip almost as much as women, but are more confidential about it. For example, two men might gossip together, but when the third one walked up they would be more inclined to shut up than women would.

The barber shop is a place of enjoyment if you like idle chatter. And occasionally you even pick up some good sound information.

And I thank you.

About Chin Whiskers, Thad Eure And John Larkins, Jr.

By LYNN NISBET

BEARDS — The folks in the seventh congressional district are talking about the trouble Judge Seavy Carroll of Fayetteville is having with his beard.

Cumberland county is arranging a celebration of its 200th birthday in late April. As a consequence or an adjunct of that occasion the patriotic citizens of the county are expected to let their beards grow. Such handsome fellows as Joe Tally Jr., and Lester Carter admit they look like the devil, but they dare not shave.

Seavy Carroll is in the same fix, only worse. He is seeking votes in all seven counties of the district in his race against Congressman Eitel Carlyle. When he goes out of Cumberland county the folks talk him about boy-cotting the barber shops and the razor blade makers. At home they tell him he can't expect support unless he co-operates with the beard-growing clan.

Which brings up the silliness of this beard business for semisemiqui- and bi-centennial birthday parties of counties or municipalities. The centennial observances might be able to justify the beard requirement, because hirsute facial adornment flourished around 100 years ago.

Of the 33 men who have served as President of the United States only four had chin whiskers. The first was Abraham Lincoln in 1861, the last was Benjamin Harrison in 1888. Between them came U. S. Grant and James A. Garfield. Five Presidents had sideburns or mustaches, beginning with Martin Van Buren in 1837, and including Chester A. Arthur, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft. The first seven chief executives, from Washington through Jackson, and the last six, from Wilson to Eisenhower, were clean shaven.

DEAN — Secretary of State

Thad Eure is the dean of State elective officials, having served longer than any other incumbent of statewide elective office. He was first elected in 1936, and after his election but before time for his inauguration he was appointed by Governor Ehringhaus and assumed office in December.

That appointment about two weeks before he would have taken over by reason of election leaves Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine and Associate Justices Jeff D. Johnson and Hunt Parker the only three elective officials who first came into their present offices by popular election.

All incumbents of elective offices except Chief Justice M. V. Barnhill, Treasurer Edwin Gill and Insurance Commissioner Charles Gold have been elected subsequent to appointment. The supreme court, treasurer and insurance posts are up for fill-in elections this year.

The seniority rating of members of the Council of State starts with Eure in December, 1936, Forrest Shuford, commissioner of labor, in September, 1938; Henry Bridges, state auditor, in February, 1947; L. Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, January, 1949; Charles Carroll, superintendent of public instruction, August, 1952; Edwin Gill, state treasurer, June, 1953, and Charles F. Gold, commissioner of insurance, October, 1953.

Attorney General Harry McMullan's tenure dates from April, 1938. Although Chief Justice Barnhill's commissioner for that top office dates from February of this year he went on the Supreme Court in 1937. The Associate Justices are: Wallace Winborne, July 1937; Emory B. Denny, February, 1942; Sam J. Ervin, February, 1948; Jeff Johnson, November, 1950; Hunt Parker, November, 1952; William H. Bobbitt, February 1953.

that this campaign can spur citizens in every locality to action. The quantity and quality of our public schools rests upon the voluntary action of local citizens, and it is sincerely believed that once they are made aware of the problem remedial action will follow.

Advertising touches many facets of American life; it serves many purposes and has played an important role in developing the highest standard of living the world has ever known by creating mass demand for products. The power of advertising now is being felt in the selling of ideas, just as it is felt in the market places of America. It is performing a real public service to both the present and future generations.

Complaints Invited

By ELMER ROESSNER
Supermarket operators, attending a Super Market Institute regional meeting at Davenport, Iowa, invited four housewives to lay bare their complaints about supermarkets.

What the women said did not amount to a serious indictment; in fact, some of them confessed to being hard put to make points. Furthermore, the complaints seemed to apply to individual stores, rather than to supermarkets generally.

The significant points, however, are that 200 managers listened to firsthand criticism of their operations and that a large number of shoppers were made aware that operators are interested in their opinions.

One of the large super chains frequently advertises that it invites customers to send in criticisms and several chains employ shoppers to check on store practices. These things—shoppers, solicitation of complaint and auditions for housewives—give large markets and chains a hidden advantage in their competition with small stores. A small store may shave prices and offer many services and still lose customers to big ones unless its operator is aware of how customers feel and what they are thinking about.

Years ago, grocers made a point of calling on their customers once in a while; some made it a point to drop in on one or two every night. Today, a small operator confronted with income tax forms, state and city forms to be filled and taxes to be paid, and various other complicating affairs of management, can't find time to be an inquiring reporter as well.

HERE ARE THE FAULTS FOUND IOWA HOUSEWIVES FOUND
For the record, the complaints presented by the four Davenport ladies were these:

Prepackaged fresh fruits and vegetables were not the quality and type the customer would have chosen; soft bread and fresh fruit were often damaged by careless packing; there was too much delay at the produce scales; packaged fresh meat often concealed inferior cuts; more help was needed at checkout counter in rush hours.

Personnel was often unfriendly, rest rooms sometimes dirty; stores needed cleaning and painting; packaged fresh produce was sometimes stale and wormy; cluttered aisles were a hazard.

Too many carts tempted children to race them; lack of bread and milk dispensers outside of checkout counters wasted time of casual shoppers; information on quality of canned goods was frequently lacking; lack of a store directory wasted time; self-service did not equal old-fashioned service in meats.

Too much red tape involved in cashing checks; poor lighting prevented reading labels or observing color of meats and produce; frozen foods are mixed up and hard to find; produce handlers do not always wear clean uniforms—and store music is too slow!

These complaints would apply to only a few markets and, perhaps, to even fewer service stores. Nevertheless, a customer who quits a store because she doesn't like the music is just as far gone as one who walks out because packaged meat was spotted on the underside.

Few Babies On Pleasure Cruise

By HAL BOYLE
ABOARD THE MAURETANIA
A baby girl is almost as rare on a pleasure cruise as a baby elephant.

When my wife booked passage for three on an 18-day voyage to the West Indies and South America, the Cunard line agents were perturbed to learn that the third member of the family was our 8-month-old daughter, Tracy.

"We are well set up to care for infants on our transatlantic voyages," they said. "But, frankly, we don't encourage the taking of infants on a long tropical pleasure cruise, and it is rather . . . um . . . unusual to say the least."

This upset us. My wife, Frances, had been forward to this cruise for years—a kind of a late honeymoon to take the place of the one we couldn't afford when we were first married. But Tracy had come as a late surprise in our lives, too, and we would have turned our backs on 18 days in paradise if it meant leaving her behind.

"Why, they forget so quickly at that age," said Frances. "Tracy probably wouldn't know us when we returned, if we went on the cruise without her, and that would break my heart."

When we told the ship line officials we either had to sail as a family trim or forget my wife's long dream of a cruise, they relented. They said Tracy could come along if she agreed not to eat her baby-sized Wee pre-processor or try to enter any gin rummy tournaments in the lounge.

Tracy embarked with the fanfare of a movie queen, minus the dark glasses. There were seven native diaper bearers in her entourage.

Children don't get seasick until the age of 2, so Tracy, who can't walk and refuses to crawl, was one of the first passengers to get her sea legs. She fell asleep on her stomach while friends were telling her "bon voyage."

That night, at a gathering to meet the ship officers, the chief steward said:

"Did you notice we were several minutes late in sailing this morning? Do you know why? We were held up waiting for a case of baby food for your daughter to get aboard."

I suppose all proud parents are told this as a joke—the ship's departure was delayed to get their baby's food aboard—but when I tell Tracy about this same years from now I'm going to treat it as gospel truth.

"When you were 8 months old you kept a 35,000-ton liner and 1,300 people waiting," I'll tell her. "Now don't you think it's about time to learn to be prompt?"

No one has gotten more out of the cruise than Tracy. The crew couldn't have pampered her more if she had been the daughter of the Cunard Line's board chairman. Our room steward, Jack Barnes, a father himself, treats her as if she were his own.

Babies make a change of routine as much as grownups do. They're really very conservative. But Tracy adjusted to shipboard life within a day. We were afraid to take her ashore at any of the ports, but she didn't mind.

She has had a high time in her crib or on deck flirting with Barnes and learning to play patty-cake with the young stewardess, Miss Heather Butler, who has a heart for children.

Tracy, after patty-caking her hands nearly raw, has learned to speak with a British accent. Her first word was "coo," which, as everybody knows, is a Cockney expression of wonder or surprise.

Everything brings a "coo" from her-flapping gulls, a sudden breeze, the foam in the ship's wake, or the passengers who stop to chat with her. They have been wonderful to her, for she is the only baby between here and land.

"Doesn't she look exactly like her father?" exclaimed one of two women who passed us on deck.

My pride-expanded chest collapsed when, as they stroled on, the wind blew back the remark of the second woman—"But she'll probably outgrow it."

LARKINS — Why did John D. Larkins Jr., decide not to run again for the State Senate from the six-county seventh district? With seven regular and two special sessions to his credit, his service record in the senate has been surpassed in modern times only by W.G. (Cousin Willie) Clark of Edgecombe, who counted 10 regular and two special sessions before he quit eight years ago.

Larkins was one of the youngest men to come to the senate, and the youngest ever to serve as president protem of that body. Also he has the distinction of having been picked twice in succession and under two administrations to head the powerful appropriations committee—giving him ex-officio membership on the advisory budget commission.

His retirement announcement stated he was leaving legislative service to give much-needed attention to his private law practice. That is understandable, because it is well known that there is no monetary profit in legislative service.

Other reasons assigned by the gossipers are that as chairman of the Senate appropriations committee last session he has to assume major responsibility for the "secrecy law" which has proven to be very unpopular. Furthermore, he hails from the smallest of the six counties in his district (Jones having less than half the population of the largest county of Carteret and less than one-fourth that of Craven and Lenoir), and the larger counties were showing signs of restiveness and discontent at the littles member of the family "hogging" the senate representation.

Retirement or withdrawal of an average senator is not of great state-wide importance. Larkins is not an average or ordinary figure in State government. His retirement is significant of something, but just what seems to be rather vague.

Worth Noting

OFFICE WORKERS' PAY UP 50 PER CENT IN SEVEN YEARS

Office workers' salaries have risen 50 per cent in the past seven years, according to figures compiled by the National Office Management Association. The figures, as published in the Association's magazine, "Office Executive," show that private secretaries have made the best gains: their wages on September 1, 1953, being 64 per cent above the level for January 1, 1947. Senior typists made the smallest gain, 39 per cent.

YOUNG PRESIDENTS WORK AND TALK LONG HOURS

Young presidents of companies work from 50 to 58 hours a week at their jobs and a third of them put in even more hours, according to figures presented to the Young Presidents' Organization by Lyle M. Spenser, president of Science Research Associates. The figures showed young presidents spend 80 per cent of their office time talking with people.

Trap Man Trying To Extort $30,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An FBI agent, made up to look like make-up manufacturer Max Factor Jr., helped trap an unemployed man accused of trying to extort $30,000 from Factor under threat of blasting him and his family with a time bomb.

Wendell Martin Ringholz, 47, of Northridge, father of three children, was arrested yesterday as he picked up a dummy bundle of money in an orange grove in San Fernando Valley.

The arrest climaxed week-long negotiations by letter, telephone and a newspaper ad and marked the third time the package had been planted at spots designated by the would-be extortionist. The first two times he apparently had been frightened off.

Last Thursday night Factor, head of the cosmetics firm founded by his father, his wife Mildred and their son Donald, 19, left their Beverly Hills mansion after a man telephoned that a time bomb was hidden in a wall. Another son, Mark, 15, is in private school.

The FBI quoted Ringholz, who came here last November from Cleveland, Ohio, as saying he selected Factor after reading about him in "Who's Who." Ringholz was swiftly arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Howard Calverley and held under $10,000 bond on a charge of using the mails in an extortion attempt. His preliminary hearing will be April 8.

Factor said he received the first extortion letter last Tuesday. He was told to place an ad in a newspaper, bundle up $30,000 in small bills and await further instructions. He notified the FBI immediately.

Last Thursday, following publication of the ad, Factor was told over the telephone to drive to a vacant lot in nearby Reseda in a small red British sports car and leave the money behind a small white fence.

An FBI agent, disguised as Factor, carried out the instructions with a dummy bundle of money. After the delivery was made, Factor got another telephone call shortly after midnight Friday telling him a time bomb had been planted in his home and was set to go off at 1:30 a.m. He was told that if the would-be extortionist received the money, he would get a phone call disclosing the bomb's location along with instructions on how to disarm it. A search failed to uncover any bomb. FBI agents watched the package behind the fence for 24 hours. No one tried to pick it up. They retrieved it. They took it to a park in Santa Monica Sunday after another phone call but again it was not picked up.

Yesterday Factor received a special delivery letter and a telephone call telling him to place the money on a white sheet he would find in a certain orange grove. His impersonator drove the red sports car to the grove and the money was placed on the sheet. Several FBI agents were hidden in the area.

Minutes later, the FBI said, Ringholz walked into the grove and picked up the package. He was arrested immediately.

Agents quoted him as saying his family knew nothing of the plot, that he was deeply in debt.

Plant Bed Care Strongly Advised

RALEIGH — North Carolina tobacco farmers were warned today not to gamble with their investment in plant bed fertilizer, seed, weed control, and labor by being unprepared to combat blue mold and anthracnose. Both these plant diseases can wipe out an entire plant bed quickly if preventive measures are not taken.

Howard Garriss, in charge of plant pathology for the State College Extension Service, reminds farmers that both diseases can be controlled by use of inexpensive sprays or dusts.

All Tar Heel tobacco farmers are familiar with blue mold, the crippling plant disease that finds its way northward each spring with warm weather. Anthracnose however, is a relatively new disease. It was first found in North Carolina plant beds about three years ago and has now spread over a large area of the state. Garriss says indications are that the chemicals recommended for blue mold control will also control anthracnose.

About 44 per cent of British workmen are married.

DOWN IN CENTRAL PARK—Thomas Kavanagh, deep sea diver, prepares to begin 40 feet to bottom of Central Park reservoir in New York to begin three-month job of chipping rust and encrusted sediment from control valves. Valves haven't been serviced since installation 50 years ago. Kavanagh said it was cold down there despite the spring-like day. Twin towers of Eldorado apartments on Central Park West between 90th and 91st Streets form a backdrop for Kavanagh's job. (AP Wirephoto)

Canada Assured On Trade Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four top Cabinet officers were reported today ready to assure Canada today the Eisenhower administration intends to pursue a "liberal" tariff and trade policy.

The American delegation, headed by Secretary of State Dulles, arranged to meet behind closed doors with a high-ranking Canadian government group led by Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson.

Pearson in a speech yesterday before the National Press Club said Canada and other North Atlantic Pact allies would insist on being consulted before the American government adopted any decision for "instant retaliation" against any foe which broke the uneasy cold war peace.

But, since today's conference was set up as strictly a financial and trade review, it appeared unlikely that Pearson would seek any assurances from Dulles at this session about America's new defense policy.

Dulles, backed up by Treasury Secretary Humphrey, Commerce Secretary Weeks and Agriculture Secretary Benson, was reported ready to give these pledges to the Canadians:

1. The Eisenhower administration will turn its back on any demands the Republican administration embrace high tariff policies.
2. The President soon will ask Congress for specific authority to extend the reciprocal trade policy, conceived under former President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, to permit further American negotiations with friendly governments for reduced tariff duties.
3. Despite a mounting store of surplus agricultural products, the United States does not intend to "dump" this hoard on world markets but will dispose of it to help free nations, after prior consultation with its allies.

Only about a third of the 1,200 million U.S. acres classified as "land in farms" is actually cropland.

Business Urged To Make Friends

NEW YORK (AP) — Director Theodore C. Strelbert of the U. S. Information Agency today suggested that American businesses pool their public relations resources to make friends abroad.

"Such a combined program, demonstrating the vitality of the free enterprise system," he said, "would be one of the most effective means of combating communism."

Strelbert made the suggestion in a speech prepared for the International Advertising Assn. and the Export Managers' Club of New York.

He described in detail the reorganization of the U. S. Information Agency since it was made independent of the State Department last August.

He said the agency, in Voice of America radio broadcasts, in news releases and films abroad, is relying on "objective factual news reporting and commentaries based on facts."

He said the agency for the first time has a "clear-cut mission, given to us by the President." "The essence of this mission," he said, "is that it is our job to identify ourselves with the legitimate aims of other people—to demonstrate that we have a mutuality of interest, and that we can work together for peace freedom and progress—to unify the free peoples against communism."

Showdown Fight On Farm Plans Again Delayed

By JOE HALL
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders postponed indefinitely today a showdown fight on the choice between supporting farm product prices at the present high levels or switching to the flexible system President Eisenhower advocates.

Majority Leader Knowland (R-Calif.) told a reporter that he had put off to an uncertain date the calling up for debate of a wool production bill that was to trigger the fight on the key farm issue in this election year.

Both sides seemed willing to have the showdown postponed. Delay until May appeared likely.

Originally, Knowland had planned to bring up the wool measure, which is a part of President Eisenhower's farm program, either yesterday or today.

But he did not call it up yesterday and, as the Senate recessed, it was announced that today the lawmakers would return to the Hawaii-Alaska statehood bill.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.) senior Democrat on the Agriculture Committee, announced last week he would seek to attach to the wool bill on two-year extension of the present high-level price supports on basic commodities.

The President has urged Congress to let a flexible 75 to 90 percent system of price props take effect next year. A bipartisan bloc of farm state senators is opposing his plan.

Ellender and Chairman Aiken (R-Vt.) of the Agriculture Committee said in separate interviews they thought it would be better to proceed with committee consideration of the over-all Eisenhower farm bill before taking up the wool measure.

Aiken, who supports the flexible system, said he thought the hearings of his committee on the general bill would continue until mid-April, and then it would take at least two weeks of closed-door sessions for the group to whip its ideas into shape.

Aiken said he did not know if the wool bill would be held up that long.

Guided Tour Of East Berlin Is Proving To Be Big Attraction

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN
 BERLIN (AP)—The U.S. Army's 26-cent tour of Berlin, featuring a look at real live Russians, is so popular that on some days they add an extra bus.

The tour takes in bits of recent history as well as the old.

They will show you, for example, the spot where the Communists stopped Adlai Stevenson during his visit a few months ago and seized the film from his camera.

As extras, English-speaking German guides toss in free plugs for German beer and a few none-too-subtle jibes at the Reds.

The big attraction of course, is the ride through the Soviet sector, where 1,200,000 Germans live amid war ruins and the people's police.

The only reconstruction of any size is along Stalin Allee, which the Reds have made their show-piece.

The thoroughfare is lined on both sides with new apartment buildings offices and shops. Many of the shops are the state-operated "Ho" stores of the Handelsorganisation (trade organizations).

The guide on your bus, a West Berliner, will tell you with a sly smile that the "Ho" means "Hungrygerder Osten" (Hungry East).

You don't get to see many Russian soldiers in East Berlin. They are garrisoned on the outskirts of the city and not allowed in town except on Sundays.

You will, however, see Russian guards at the Soviet war memorials, the Russian Embassy and a few other spots.

The bus tour starts and ends at the post exchange across the street from U.S. Army headquarters. Most of the passengers are American officers and enlisted men, their wives, and American

Model Says She Is Still Married To Husband Of Jack Benny's Daughter

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Scott Baker, a 21-year-old model, claims she is still legally married to the man who last week married comedian Jack Benny's daughter in a lavish Hollywood wedding.

The blonde, blue-eyed model said a Virgin Islands divorce granted Jan. 29, 1953, was no good because neither she nor New York stock broker Seth H. Baker, 26, was a bonafide resident of the islands at the time.

She filed a suit in New York State Supreme Court asking that the divorce be set aside and that she be granted a separation plus support and maintenance. She said she and Baker were married in Florence, S. C., July 19, 1951, when he was an Army private.

Baker—now honeymooning with Benny's adopted daughter Joan 21, in Hawaii—filed a denial through his attorney, claiming the divorce was valid and that Miss Scott had accepted a $5,000 settlement.

In Hollywood, a spokesman for Benny said the comedian's attorneys had checked Baker's divorce before his wedding to Miss Benny and "found the divorce entirely legal."

Wife Willing To Overlook Running Away Of Spouse

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Dyoll Prather Herman, 67, wants to withdraw the complaint against her new husband, whom she accused of running away with $303,100 in jewels and cash.

The couple was reunited yesterday through an attorney for the husband, Percy William Herman, 49. The lawyer said Herman had "good reasons" for disappearing March 5 after his marriage was but a day old.

Apparently Mrs. Herman, of Palm Beach, Fla., agreed. She chatted and laughed with Herman before and after his hearing stemming from the complaint she had filed in Richmond, Va. She told U. S. Commissioner Edward W. McDonald she now wanted to withdraw the complaint.

McDonald ordered Herman held in $10,000 bail, however, until a check could be made with the U. S. attorney in Richmond.

Herman's attorney Daniel Jacobson, gave this account of the husband's disappearance after the couple drove to Fredericksburg, Va., following their wedding in Palm Beach:

They reached Fredericksburg after a 20-hour drive during which Herman kept himself awake with

Doctor Disagrees

CHAPTER THIRTY EIGHT
CRAIG copied the information, and started toward the hall. At the door he turned. "Thank you, Myra," he said slowly. "Wish me luck."

"I do," she answered gravely. "But just you be sure you know what luck is, Doctor!"
"I'll know," he assured her, and went out of the house.
He stayed at a hotel that night. The next morning he took Donald to the park for a run, and there came upon Shelly, sitting on a park bench. She wore a dark blue dress, red sandals, a red belt at her waist. She looked up reproachfully at the dark man who stood on the sidewalk. "You followed me."
"I was about to follow you. I have an address."
She gestured to a row of fine houses across the boulevard. "The one with the white stone-work—it's my uncle's home; I have a key and a standing invitation to stay there when I come to the city."
He sat down beside her. "But you usually stay at the hotel."
She shrugged. "I like to be independent."

"Shelly," he began, and she looked up quickly, her cheeks red. He smiled and shook his head. "I was only going to ask if none of your family connections here in the city gave you wedding gifts."
She laughed at the unexpectedness of his question. "Why on earth do you want to know a thing like that?"
"Because the Carrs seem to know nothing of your family background."
"It's true. They know nothing." Her pretty face was stubborn.
"Does Stephen know?"
"To some extent. He knows that my mother and I were poor, but proud. I explained to him about the wedding gifts, and I'll tell you. My mother's family had borne all the expense of her illness. So I insisted that the money should be their wedding gift to me."

"And Stephen knew this?"
"Yes. I—I asked him not to speak of it."
"You did wrong," Craig told her gravely.

"What is that quotation from Lincoln? It is less important to know who my grandfather was than to know how his grandson does. I—I wanted the Carrs to accept me for myself, not for my family."

He sat shaking his head, then lit a cigarette. "Craig, who's taking care of the office?" she asked, suddenly alarmed.
"Miss Browne, I suppose. She won't be busy. Very few people will expect me to be there today."

She lifted her head quickly, the sunlight through the tree leaves tangling in the brightness of her hair. "Why not?" she asked, then a glint in his eyes told her why not and she colored hotly.
He put his cigarette between his lips and blew smoke up at the leaves. "It would be wonderful," he said deeply. "If the tales being told in Norfolk were true."

Eyes down, her fingers pleaded the dark silk of her skirt. "Yes," she said wearily. "It would be . . ."
She did not go on.
He finished the cigarette, dropped it to the grass, rubbed it flat with his shoe. "Only a heel, Shelly Carr, will two-time a man in uniform."

Donald came up to investigate what lay under Craig's rubbing shoe.

"Masculine heel?" asked Shelly softly. "Or feminine?"

Craig laughed and put his arm along the back of the bench. "I love you, Shelly," he said quietly. "I love you with all my heart."

Her eyes lifted to his face, and dropped. "Yes," she said. "I know you do. And I'm so lonely—and defeated."
"Lonely, yes," he agreed. "But why defeated?"

She stiffened, but he continued in the same tone. "A person can't be defeated until he's lost a fight."

"And you think I haven't lost mine?"
"I know you haven't. Because you've never fought the first round of your fight."

"Why, Craig . . ."
"Ever since you married Stephen, the fight's been there, but you just sat on your stool in the corner. You didn't so much as tape your hands. You gave the other guy all the advantages, while you just sat there."

"You don't know . . ."
"I can guess. I know how you've been since I first went to Norfolk."

"And you still say I haven't made a fight?"
"You did make one fight. But it was for me, not for yourself."

She turned and looked at him gravely. "What am I going to do?" she asked.

They sat eighteen inches apart on the bench. Anyone passing them would have said they were friends, or perhaps a man and woman married for several years. They might even have been strangers casually met. All feeling, all emotion was contained in her violet eyes, in his glowing black ones. A very close observer might have noted the whiteness of the knuckles on Craig's hand which clutched the bench back, or that Shelly's red sandal heel had dug into the grass a little.

"The Carrs don't want me to come back," she said bitterly.

"No, they don't," he agreed. "What's more, deep down in my heart I don't want you to go back." He watched her intently, and after a few minutes of thought about this situation, she turned on the bench to look at him full-face. There was a long moment of utter stillness. Then—

"But I am needed in the office," she said quietly. "So—we'll go back, Craig."

The hand on the bench back opened, he brought it to his cheek, rubbed it up, over his right eye, over his bristled black hair. Just for a second he bit at his full underlip. But when he spoke his voice was calm and controlled.

"Yes," he agreed. "Well, go back. Not together, Shelly. You're to go alone. And get there by daylight. The Pollers are getting on you, know? Their eyesight is none too good."

"Craig . . ." She didn't smile.

"If you go back, darling," he told her, "it's got to be a fight. Otherwise, the cost is too high."

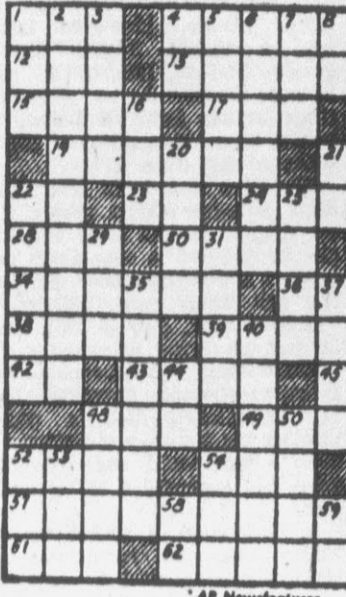

An idea struck her, and for a split second his hand fell to lie upon hers, warm, strong, steady. "Yes," he said quickly. "I'm coming back. I think I'll get there—on about Thursday. I have some business in Chicago—got a letter yesterday. I'll go up and attend to that, and be back Thursday. You can reach me at the Stevens."

He stood up, but she didn't rise. She looked long and tenderly into his face. "I'm sorry . . ." she murmured.

"Don't be. I always knew that when I fell in love it would be with the finest woman on earth." He held out his hand. "That's one time I was right!"

Shelly reached Norfolk at four that afternoon.
The next morning she went to the office as if nothing whatever had occurred. She was opening the mail when Miss Browne came in.
"Has the plant called yet this morning?" asked the nurse tensely.
"No. Was it about the man who was hurt Sunday?"
"No, he's doing fine. This concerns one of the other workers. Seems he's decided to use another doctor. Mr. E.J. Carr wanted to know if the plant was liable for his doctor bills."
"Don't they know their contract terms with the workers?"
"I'll bet they do," said Miss Browns.
Shelly followed her back to the lab. "Can you tell me what it's all about?"
"D'you know the answer to their question?"
"Of course not. I'm just cautious."
Miss Browns snapped the switch on the sterilizer, set her timer and came to Shelly. "Any patients out front?"
"No."
They went back to the front hall. Shelly sat at the desk; Miss Browns pulled a chair to the doorway of the left-hand room. "Well," she said slowly, "it seems one of the men at the plant—a foreman, named Evans—"
Shelly jerked.
"You know him?"
"He's been the ringleader in the men's opposition to the dust therapy."
"That fits," Miss Browns agreed, lighting a cigaret. "Well it seems this man had a cold last week, and went to another doctor."
"Who?"
"Lewis."
"Oh-oh!"
"Yes! And Lewis diagnosed his trouble as chronic pulmonary fibrosis—probably due to silicosis."
"Wait a minute," Shelly got up, went to the cabinet and brought out the file on Bob Evans. She took out a card and held it so Browns could read it.
"Three months ago," Shelly said, "he warned Evans. You know these things lie quiet until—D'you say he had a cold last week?"
"Ah-hum. And went to Lewis on his own. Then it seems on Sunday he was out in the rain; he claimed Talboy made him help with that man who was injured—and he got a fresh cold. And the two things together—the chronic condition and the exposure—"
"Lewis says he has a lawsuit. Is that it?"
"Just about. Of course, that Lewis man is just itching to make trouble for Dr. Talboy."
"I wish Craig were here!"
"And how! I think maybe we should tell the plant where he can be reached."

Cadillac
It Speaks a Universal Language!
Pictured above is the most eloquent motor car ever to travel the world's highways.
It's the great 1954 Cadillac—and it speaks not only with great eloquence, but in a language which is known and understood wherever there are roads to travel . . . and people to behold.
First of all, it speaks of its owner—the minute its beautiful hood comes into view.
"Here is a man," it says—almost as plainly as the words are written here—"who has earned the right to sit at this wheel—by his industry and deportment and enterprise. Be he merchant or lawyer or businessman—or doctor or farmer or financier—the odds are great that he's a credit to his calling and to his fellow men.
"Accept him accordingly—and you'll likely be right in your judgment."
And then, as it comes closer, it speaks its special message for 1954—the story of its own advancement.
Its beautiful silhouette—graceful, free-flowing and dynamic—announces a whole new era in automotive design . . . "expect me to be copied for years to come!"
And its smooth, silent, easy movement—a true symphony in motion as it glides past and on and away—says with clarity and eloquence that the world's standard for performance has been raised again.
And remember—the wonderful "voice" of a 1954 Cadillac, with its significant message, comes as a bonus to the man who sits at the wheel.
It comes in addition to all the priceless fundamentals which make a Cadillac a Cadillac: unrivaled endurance and dependability—incomparable comfort and handling ease—and unbelievable economy of upkeep and operation.
Better come in—and let a Cadillac speak for you!

HAY CONSTRUCTION

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Hay is used in a big engineering project—the widening of Waldo Grade on the north approach to the famed Golden Gate Bridge. The hay is strewn on freshly turned slopes of earth to keep the rain from washing the soil away. When the seeds in the hay sprout the growing plants form a green binder.

Trade Promotion Chairman C. A. White stated the February Dollar Day had been one of the most successful ever held in Greenville.

C. A. White who is chairman of Greenville's Off-Street Parking Committee, composed of members of the City Council, Merchants Association, and Chamber of Commerce, told the Board that a survey of Greenville's parking needs will be made by a State College engineer in April.

The Board congratulated J. H. Blount upon being recently re-elected to the state-wide Board of Tobacco Associates and also to its Executive Board.

Announcement of the date of the North Carolina Merchants Association Convention was made. It will be held in Raleigh on May 17 and 18.

The Courtesy "Parking plan was discussed and the Board members were told that green boxes were being put up on Dickinson Avenue to receive envelopes after the police had put a nickel into the meter and left an envelope for a person who had over parked.

An Indian farm specialist visiting in Pitt County yesterday and today said it is hoped that India's extension service will cover at least three-fourths of the country by 1960.

N. S. Singh, principal of the Extension Training Center at Nilkheri, India, stated that at present the country has approximately 155 extension units in operation. He described a unit as being made up of 100 agricultural villages.

"There are 20 field workers in each unit," he said, "and a headquarters which includes specialists in agriculture, animal husbandry, public health, housing, and social education."

This team he noted is headed by one administrator.

Singh described a village as being made up of between 500 and 1000 persons.

"One village will farm between 1000 and 2000 acres but everyone in the village lives on approximately 50 acres," the principal continued.

Singh said that he came to the United States under the Point Four program to study the set-up of the various farm offices in America. He said that he had been in the US for about two months at present. Thus far, he has spent two weeks in Washington, D.C. and two weeks in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Singh stated that he plans to leave North Carolina on March 19. At that time he will go to Tuskegee Institute in Alabama.

The Indian agricultural worker said that he planned to visit Puerto Rico, New York, New Mexico, Louisiana, and California during the six-month period.

Singh noted the chief problem in expanding India's extension service was that of training workers to take over the jobs.

"We are training workers for places as different as your States," he said. "One may go into a rice area, another into a cotton area and so forth."

"The extension service is the state's responsibility in India," he continued. "The Federal government assists and issues suggestions to the states but it is up to them to adopt them or not."

There are 27 states in India, Singh noted.

The visiting agricultural agent said that there are 34 extension schools such as the one which he heads. Each has an enrollment of 100 students at one time.

Singh stated many changes have taken place since India gained its full independence from the British five years ago.

"Five years back, if any man from the government service went to a village they would just hear him and forget what he said," he brought out.

Now, he says, the field workers have gained the confidence of the people enough so that they listen to what they say.

Monday morning Singh, was shown around the various county farm offices and introduced to a by Sam C. Winchester, Pitt C farm workers by Sam C. Winchester, Pitt County Farm Agent. He

Expecting Big Results From New 'Bevatron'

By RENNIE TAYLOR
AP Science Reporter

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)— The greatest thing yet in atom smashers—a mammoth machine which will lead scientists onward into the exciting mysteries of the atomic nucleus—was unveiled today at the University of California.

With this electronic giant scientists may turn up some more surprise discoveries such as those which led to the atom bomb. A vast new field for deriving energy from matter is among the possibilities.

Although scientists had to learn something about the nucleus to make the A-bomb, they still don't know much about it. To find out more they must bust the atom more thoroughly than ever before.

The new machine, called the bevatron, is designed to do that.

The bevatron, a part of famed Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence's radiation laboratory, is a racetrack-shaped affair of steel and copper 135 feet in diameter and 14 feet high—the largest nuclear research instrument in existence.

It weighs 10,000 tons, about the weight of an ordinary-sized U. S. cruiser. It cost 9 1/2 million dollars and was financed by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Six years were required to design and build the machine. The actual construction required four years.

A month ago the machine was cautiously started for the first time. It whipped up a thin beam of atomic projectiles to a feeble 20 million volts. Gradually it was accelerated until on March 12 it produced atom bullets of five billion volts in energy.

The previous record was 2.3 billion volts, made by the cosmotron in the AEC laboratory at Brookhaven, N. Y.

When scientists were smashing atoms in the days preceding the atomic energy era the only known nuclear particles were protons, neutrons and electrons. Out of that limited picture of matter eventually came the discovery of uranium fission and the bomb.

As the atom-smashing machines in Berkeley and elsewhere increased their power the atom was smashed more devastatingly, until now there are some two dozen

Will Ask Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Senate Rules Committee decided today to ask the Senate to vote on whether to unseat Sen. Chavez (D-NM).

The committee, voting on straight party lines, adopted 5-4 an investigating subcommittee report which recommended that the 1952 New Mexico senatorial election be voided because of "flagrant" irregularities.

If Chavez were unseated, New Mexico's Republican governor, Edwin L. Mechem, would name a successor—undoubtedly a Republican.

The Chavez issue could affect the control of the Senate. There now are 48 Democrats, including Chavez, 47 Republicans and one Independent.

Tonsil Checkup For Mom, Too

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP)— Friends said last night Mrs. Rene Cote took her son Armand to a doctor's office for a tonsil checkup recently.

When Armand balked at letting the doctor look down his throat, his mother said, "Look, dear, it's easy," and opened her mouth wide.

The doctor took a look at Mrs. Cote's throat and said: "Hm-mm, you'll have to have your tonsils out too."
