Poovey-Harper Vows Pledged In Private Rites In Burlington

BURLINGTON — On Friday, March 19, in the chapel of Front Street Methodist Church, Mrs. Gladys D. Harper of Burlington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Duval of Greenville, was married to George Avery Poovey Jr. of Burlington, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Avery Poovey of Hickory, by the church pastor, Dr. Walter C. Ball.

Altar vases filled with white gladioli and pink snapdragons, interspersed with burning white tapers, formed the setting for the vows, which were exchanged in the presence of only the immediate families of the couple.

Miss Alyse Smith, pianist, furnished wedding music for the double ring ceremony and her selections included "Sheep May Safely Graze" by Bach, "Liebestraum" by Liszt, "Impromptu in A Flat" by Schubert, traditional wedding marches and Handel's "Largo."

The bride and groom, having no attendants, entered together, the bride wearing a navy blue wool crepe suit with mauve faille trimming and navy wool crepe stole, accented with mauve straw hat with veiling and navy blue accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of mauve cymbidium orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Poovey attended East Carolina College, Greenville, and is an honorary member of the Burlington Service League. For the past two years she has been employed at Security National Bank here.

Mr. Poovey attended Lenoir Rhyne College, Hickory, and was graduated from North Carolina State College, Raleigh, where he belonged to Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity. A member of the Masonic Lodge, Elks Club and Alamance Country Club, he is manager of Copland Converting and Finishing Plant here.

After spending about 10 days in Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Poovey will be at home at 1803 Woodland Avenue.

Aries Book Club Installs Officers

Miss Mary Eakes was hostess to a most enjoyable meeting of the Aries Book Club on Thursday night, March 18, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Astor Richardson. Arrangements of spring flowers added to the usual attractiveness of the home.

The president, Miss Grace Outland, called the meeting to order and conducted the routine business, after which the new officers were installed.

The new officers are as follows: President, Mrs. A. W. Bryan; vice president, Mrs. Marshall Starkey; secretary, Miss Mary Eakes; treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Derrick; librarian, Mrs. Kenneth Hite; and reporter, Mrs. J. Howard Moye.

With a few well chosen remarks to each officer, and after presenting each with a lovely camellia, Miss Outland presented the gavel to the newly elected president of the club.

Two visitors, Mrs. J.H.B. Moore and the club sponsor, Mrs. Wendell Smiley, were welcomed. Mrs. Troy Dodson was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. Moore reported on the Art Festival program for next week.

Mrs. Kenneth Hite, who had the short subject for the meeting, gave some timely suggestions for making wills.

Mrs. Marshall Starkey presented Mrs. J.H.B. Moore who gave the program using the highlights of her trip to Europe and Asia as her subject.

Mrs. Moore, informally and most interestingly, discussed her trip to Madeira Islands, Casablanca, Cairo and Luxor. Her discussion was made more realistic by showing her scrapbook which contained pictures and photographs. One photograph was of Mrs. Moore riding a camel while in Cairo.

She said, "Egypt is luxuriously interesting. It is a rich country in many respects but then is also poor. There is so much disease. The natives have no idea of sanitation and the water supply is bad."

Upon arriving in Cairo her group was extended a special courtesy. They were given an opportunity to visit Farouk's palace. It is a beautiful place. While traveling through Egypt one is reminded of many stories of Christianity.

In Spain Mrs. Moore visited the most beautiful place in the world—the Alhambra Palace which is in Granada. It was built by the Moors many, many years ago.

At the conclusion of the program the guests were invited into the dining room where dainty party sandwiches, cookies, nuts and Coca-Colas were served from a beautifully appointed table.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Miss Piomena Natividad of Manila has been named the first missionary of the Methodist Church in the Philippines to a "foreign country." She has been assigned by the women of the Church for service especially among the women and children of Okinawa—the island on which many Americans lost their lives during World War II. Miss Natividad is a deaconess.

The Presbyterian (U.S.A.) Committee on Resettlement Services has appointed as its executive secretary Miss Margaret W. Gillespie, former associate secretary of the committee. Miss Gillespie recently returned from Germany, where she spent eighteen months on the staff of the Department of Inter-Church Aid and Service to Refugees of the World Council of Churches.

Mrs. Robert G. Williams of Lake Worth, Fla., nationally known Congregational Christian churchwoman, has been elected the first president of the Women's Fellowship of the International Congregational Council, which represents Congregational Christian women in over a dozen countries from Great Britain to India, and from the United States to South Africa.

"The Woman's Division of Christian Service (Methodist Church) has a widening concern for children and youth and the Christian home," notes Miss Thelma Stevens, of its Department of Christian Social Relations, in a statement to all Methodist women. "The arc of our responsibility takes in the human rights of people everywhere in our closely interrelated world: a world in which at present two-thirds of its people are undernourished. In a widening way their shelter and food and clothing become our concern. No individual and no single church society can make any considerable impact on the use of alcoholic beverages and narcotics, on corruption in political life, on the deterioration of standards in the community; through this department our single efforts may combine effectively for the righting, in some measure, of these wrongs."

Insurance Agent Helped In Fire

ATLANTA (AP)—A customer ordered bacon and eggs in Mrs. C.E. Allen's restaurant. Being rushed, she didn't look closely at him or recognize him.

While she was preparing his order, the grease in the frying pan on the stove burst into flame while she was in the front of the restaurant. Before she could move, the man, dashed into the kitchen and beat out the blaze.

Then she recognized him as William S. Brown, an insurance agent who had written a fire policy on her restaurant a short time before.

Researchers Use Ballerina Mice

By FRANK CAREY

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP)—Mice that do a ballet step are the latest aides in the war on cancer.

Dr. Margaret Dickie today described discovery of a variety of mice that "pirouette" continually, just like a ballerina.

And she said that studies of this "ballerina mouse" not only offered opportunities for probing the cause of cancer but also such neuro-muscular diseases as multiple sclerosis.

Dr. Dickie, of the Jackson Memorial Cancer Research Laboratory here, told about it at a conference with reporters making a nationwide tour of research projects sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Movies of the "ballerina mice" show them in real form.

The mice constantly twirl or "pirouette" in contrast to the normal motion of a mouse, which is back and forth.

Dr. Dickie indicated that the study of this unusual motion might help determine what differentiates the normal cell from the malignant one, as in cancer.

Scientists of the Jackson laboratory told reporters that amillion mice are bred there each year for various purposes, and that these constitute about three-fourths of all the mice used in cancer research throughout the nation.

Wanted Lace

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Mrs. Ralph H. Nelson took her 8-year-old daughter Susie downtown to buy an Easter outfit.

"I don't want any just plain stuff," Susie told her mother. "I want a dress like the dining room curtain. You know, with holes in what it's made out of."

They found only one dress—pale pink and lace—which made Susie's eyes shine.

Her reason for a dress "with holes" were evident when she pranced out of the store's dressing room.

Four large red hearts drawn on her bare chest showed clearly through the lace. Completing the picture were a Cupid's arrow and the words, "Susie Loves Terry, Terry Loves Susie."

Later at home, Susie dutifully watched her lipstick tattoo go down the bathtub drain, and repeated: "But that's what I wanted the dress."

She has the dress, though.

Vassar College girls wear their Dad's old raccoon coats of the 20s. Other fashion fads include.

Little Rock, Ark., kids (boys and girls) turn up shirt collars in the back. Girls wear man-tailored shirts with French cuffs. They also like leather collars with matching cuffs.

Ditto Washington, D.C. girls who call them "little boy blouses" (sort of man-tailored).

Down Texas-way girls lace colored toothpicks through the mesh of their sweater bosoms when they are affianced. The color of the toothpick is said to indicate the current phase of the romance.

Utah girls wear green, black or navy bloomers which their mothers make (the stores don't sell them).

Aberdeen, S. D. girls wear half an arm full of gold or silver ring bracelets. Boys sport engineer and cowboy boots, sport coats, odd slacks. Football sweatshirts are worn to school.

Baltimore, Md., girls wear puppy collars around the right ankle to indicate a steady boy friend, if she is just looking for one the collar is on her left ankle. Blue jeans are bought especially long so that they may be rolled up.

Detroit boys wear pegged pants, vest, turned up collars, highly polished shoes and a watch chain (with or without watch and fob).

Miami girls dye their hair to match the color of their boy-friend's hair. They wear purple, green and yellow nail polish on their toes.

Madison, Wis. boys wear satin warmup jackets. Connecticut teenagers are mad for shirts and skirts. Their man-tailored blouses are worn with tie bars and cuff links (the craze is all to collections of shirts and cuff links). These are worn with Bermuda length charcoal flannel shorts and knee length socks.

Water Code Importance Underscored

There is a big job ahead of the new seven-man committee appointed by Gov. Umstead to draw up a new water code for North Carolina.

The state needs a water code to preserve the usefulness of its many lakes, streams and rivers from misuse and mismanagement. The state needs a water code about as much as it needs anything else.

North Carolina is one of those fortunate states which has never worried about shortage of water. To be sure we have had dry seasons which have caused crop damage and drained city reservoirs below the danger point. Yet our streams and rivers have continued to flow and bring forth the fruit—both agricultural and industrial—of the state.

That the water resources of the state have been and still are being terribly abused can not be denied. Streams are being polluted through misuse and some through neglect. Numbers of industrial plants throughout the state are pouring undesirable refuse into many streams. Cities and towns in many areas are using the rivers and streams as dumping grounds for sewage, and as the communities grow, the pollution of the streams becomes more evident.

Latest Blast Brings Up New Questions

A big explosion is back in the news again; and this time the thermonuclear blast apparently exceeded the expectations of the American scientists who set it off.

Japanese fishermen some 80 miles away from the blast center of the experimental explosion in the Pacific, and apparently out of the danger zone were severely burned by falling radio active ash.

Some 28 United States observers of the blast and 236 island natives of the blast area were also showered with radio active ash even though they were thought to be a safe distance from the blast center.

From these preliminary reports of the March 1 experimental blast in the Pacific, and other bits of information which have been released, it appears that the latest test showed the explosive much more powerful than was anticipated. As further data on the latest acknowledged experi-

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WHAT OF THE FUTURE?
When Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, was a very elderly man, a testimonial was held for him in New York City. The Transatlantic Cable had been laid and it was possible for New York to be connected with distant parts of the world.

When in the midst of this meeting the telegraph instrument installed on the stage began to click and messages rolled in from different parts of the world, people were almost overwhelmed with wonder as if a divine apparition had suddenly appeared in the sky. In fact, many held that such momentous inventions were supernatural in character and depended upon powers above those of the physical world. What would these same people have said if a radio set could have been turned on that night and they had heard the words, "Come in, Tokyo?" Or what would they have thought of TV programs being transmitted by coaxial cable across the continent? Or, for that matter, what would they have thought of the idea of wireless telegraphy and the broadcasting of images over long distance through the air?

What can we expect of tomorrow? We have no idea; but of one thing we can be sure—if the spiritual life of humanity does not keep pace with its scientific and mechanical development, the race is doomed.

Dissatisfied With AEC Work

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Atomic experts on Capitol Hill are seriously dissatisfied with the handling of both the military and commercial aspects of this grave problem by the Atomic Energy Commission. They are insistent upon more detailed data on both programs and on far greater control of any plan for making nuclear energy available to cities, industries and railroads as a new source of fuel, light and power.

The Joint Committee on Atomic Energy has rejected in its entirety legislation framed by AEC for peacetime application of this miracle force. No move in this direction can be taken until Congress amends the present MacMahon Act, which gives the government a monopoly of fissionable facilities and materials.

Despite many millions spent in experimentation under AEC's auspices, industry will not invest the necessary billions until its role in commercial use is clearly defined by Congress. It must have full protection for its investment, including property and patent rights, the extent of Federal regulation and the price structure.

BLESSINGS INSTEAD OF BOMBS—President Eisenhower hopes that the new statute can be enacted at this session, for he is anxious for a prompt start in releasing nuclear energy to private enterprise. Several foreign nations, which do not have to spend billions or consume uranium in making A and H-weapons they rely on us for these supplies in event of war, are showing greater progress than the U.S. in transforming atomic discoveries from bombs into blessings.

Finally, the Administration aims to anticipate Russia in making harmless and denatured nuclear energy available to the world for improving living conditions everywhere. It would give us a great good-advantage over Moscow, especially if the suspicious men in the Kremlin reject the Eisenhower offer of an international pool of these resources.

NEW LAW ORDERED WRITTEN—AEC's legislative blueprints, however, provoked a small riot when they were reviewed by the 41st Congressional Committee at recent executive sessions. They tried to patch up the proposed legislation, but found that impossible because of its complexities. They finally instructed their counsel to write an entirely new law.

The legislators opposed AEC's plan on two counts. First, it gave full and exclusive control over atomic dealings and arrangements with industry to AEC. It would have been such an independent instrument that Congress would have enjoyed no voice or authority in this novel and potentially dangerous field.

Congressional experience with numerous independent and Presidential appointed agencies was not too happy during the Roosevelt-Truman era. Congress does not want AEC staffed with the kind of men who filled sensitive military and diplomatic posts during that period. The legislators have heeded the Pentagon warning that Russia got the A and H-bombs five years ahead of schedules because of disloyalty at Washington and London.

In the bill now being framed, Congress will have access to and authority over AEC's industrial operations at all times.

STRICTER SAFEGUARDS WANTED—The second major objection concerns the allocation of uranium and allied materials to private industry and other customers. Congress insists upon more strict safeguards than AEC seems to have provided. It demands that private facilities and stocks be subject to government use at all times, although with proper compensation to the owners.

This provision will insure that, in the event of hostilities or even threats of a conflict, the nation's full atomic strength can be mobilized without delay. Normally, the responsible executive agency would be relied upon to keep a vigilant watch over atomic inventories in possession of the government and industry, and AEC will undoubtedly perform this function conscientiously. But the committee regards this safeguard as too important to leave to chance.

Although the committee hopes to introduce its own bill within a month, it finds it extremely difficult to open the door to a great new era in which men may live rather than die by the atom.

PERNDALE, CALIF., ENTERPRISE: "It's amazing, after all these years of astronomical taxes, that there are still people who believe that the Federal Government has some mysterious source of income of its own, other than the pay checks of Joe and Maise California and their fellow citizens in 47 other States."

OLYMPIA, WASH., OLYMPIAN: "It was Thomas Jefferson, himself a farmer, who once said, in effect, that if we allow government to tell us when, where, and what to plant, and when to harvest, we'll jolly well starve to death."

WACO, TEXAS, MESSENGER: "While most Americans laud the democratic type of government many of them have taken it too lightly. They seem to be cognizant of its many benefits but at the same time seem unmindful of its responsibilities. Everyone wants to be called a member of the team but against the total population only a few are willing to share team responsibilities."

PHOENIX, ARIZONA, SUNNYSLOPE JOURNAL: "Let's get back to American principles. Instead of calling names, let our politicians come up with something to keep the wheels of business and industry rolling."

Why do we have the portrait of Whistler's mother tattooed on my forehead. That might make me more interesting to look at."

This attitude is wrong. Patricia Medina, a British actress, said the other day that homely men were much more fun on dates than "the pretty boys." She found they had a better sense of humor, were more attentive, less conceited and put more effort in their wooing.

This of course, is no news to us homely Joes. We have known it ever since the first caveman grew a wart on his nose and then, by sheer force of character, turned it into a social and business asset. A man with a wart on his nose is bound to be remembered—and being remembered is the biggest problem in getting ahead in this busy world.

What is true of a homely man is just as true of a homely girl. She stands out from the crowd, and this gives her a chance to demonstrate what real talent she may have. Those who pause to laugh at her for the moment may remain to admire her through the years.

A beautiful bachelor girl once asked me, after looking around a roomful of guests at a party: "Why do so many successful men seem to have such homely wives?"

The only tactful reply I could think of was: "Most successful men are probably near-sighted."

Middle-Age Bracket

By ELMER BOESSNER
Now that sales are a little harder to make, a lot of furniture and home-furnishings dealers, and some in apparel lines, are giving a little more attention to middle-aged customers.

For the last eight years, the young bride has been queen and her husband her prince consort. Manufacturers and merchants have dedicated their factories and stores to them; the designers of the nation have been paraded before them in chains. Golden ones, of course.

Small wonder. There have been millions of young brides and millions of new homes for them to move into. Their husbands had ample opportunities for employment; quite a few had nest eggs. These young families have been spurred into earning more and spending more by their large number of progeny.

Because of this purchasing power in the hands of young families—and in countless instances parents skipped purchases of their own to help give their married sons and daughters a start—goods were made for the young. In furniture, modern sky-rocketed ahead of traditional. In furnishings, mobiles supplanted paintings of Dabney and Joan; in fashions, many mature women have been forced to make over their own hats for years because stores have been stocking bonnets only for their daughters.

Thumb any women's magazine. The every-picture-tells-a-story ads have been replaced with promotions for cake mixes and trimmings for rumpTus rooms. The articles on how to crochet a seven-piece wardrobe have been supplanted by pieces on how to hem diapers. Even the medical departments have switched from sclerosis to measles.

On radio and television, there is one program called "Life Begins at Eighty," and every other one on the air could be retitled,

"Life Begins at Twenty-one," or Seventeen or Fourteen.

Now business is taking a second look. The new homes and apartments—and even the closets—are chock-full of goods. But maybe some of the older people in some of the older houses might like to buy something one of these days. A chair that looks like a chair. A table that will hold a joint of beef and a liter-size stem without buckling. A dress that's NOT convertible into a maternity garment. Vests with men's suits. Caftans.

FIRST MORTGAGE EXCHANGE TO OPEN IN NEW YORK
What is believed to be the first and only mortgage auction market will open in New York next month. It is headed by Harry Fomke, president of a mortgage and title company that is sponsoring the market. It will be equipped to handle more than $1,000,000 worth of liens each session, and will be called the New York Mortgage Exchange.

FROZEN FOOD PACK SETS A NEW HIGH RECORD
A total of 5,918,128,000 pounds of frozen foods—including ice cream—was produced in the United States last year, according to the 1954 "Frozen Food Factbook," published by the National Wholesale Frozen Food Distributors. This total is 20 times the 1931-35 average, 10 times the 1936-40 average, and 600,000 pounds higher than the 1952 record.

MOST PURCHASING AGENTS SEE INVENTORIES BALANCED
Inventory adjustment has just about run its course and stocks are now in sound balance with production schedules, according to two out of three purchasing agents replying to a questionnaire by Purchasing. Four out of five said their companies had established a definite policy for inventory reductions and seven out of ten said their companies had set goals for higher inventory turnover in 1954.

Stock Market's Averages And How They Are Computed

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Fla. — You have seen recent newspaper headlines: STOCK MARKET TOUCHES HIGHEST IN 25 YEARS. Yet, when many of you check your list of good stocks owned, you find this is not true as to your portfolio. Now let me tell you the trouble.

DOW-JONES AVERAGES EXPLAINED
There are about 1,500 stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Of these 1,500, only 65 are taken to prepare the Dow Jones Averages, so-called. Furthermore, these are divided into three groups: (1) The Industrial Group containing 30 stocks; (2) The Railroad Group containing 20 stocks; and (3) The Utilities Group containing 15 stocks. As a practical matter, most investors do not bother with the second and third groups. They look at only the Industrial Group. When the Industrial Group of 30 stocks goes up, they think the entire market of 1,500 stocks goes up. When this Industrial Group goes down, they think all the 1,500 have gone down. Hence, the newspaper headlines mentioned above, reporting the market at its "25-year high," really applied only to the Industrial Group of 30 stocks—not to the real average of the entire market—or probably not to the stocks which you own.

IS THE DOW-JONES BAROMETER FAIR?
I answer this frankly by replying that it is unfair to act on these averages. The truth is: (1) that this Industrial Group is made up of the top big-company stocks; (2) that banks and trustees—perhaps partly to protect themselves against later suits—prefer to buy, for trusts and pension funds, the stocks of these top companies; (3) that this concentrated buying, with little selling, sends these 30 stocks up above the true market average; and (4) that the buying of Mutual Funds is a great factor in boosting the Dow Industrial Average. Let me say something about these Mutual Funds. They are worthy of careful consideration for small investors. They give wide diversification and honest management. These Funds are being sold today by thousands of salesmen who get a commission of about 5 per cent. When you buy the stock of a Mutual Fund, your money is probably used to buy the stocks of top industrialists. Hence, thousands of salesmen are on the road indirectly selling the stocks of these 30 Industrials, for which selling they get 5 per cent—while the rest of the 1,500 stocks are neglected, for the selling of which they would get only 1-8th of 1 per cent.

STOCK MARKET AND EMPLOYMENT
It is unjust to say that the stock market should be a fair barometer of general business, which determines your employment. The stock market as a whole does represent the composite opinion of the business leaders of the nation. Although this composite opinion may be wrong, it is worthy of careful consideration by every reader of this newspaper.

But the Dow-Jones Industrial Average does not necessarily represent the opinion of leading businessmen as to employment conditions. Hence, it may be very unfair to you for any manufacturer, or his employment manager, or his employment manager, to base his opinions and hence his "firing and hiring" program on the Dow-Jones Average. Manufacturers should study the average prices of all the 1,500 stocks, properly adjusted as to volume, and not depend solely on what 30 stocks indicate.

WHAT IS THE PRESENT OUTLOOK?
The truth is that the stock market is very confusing to any honest employment manager today. The Dow-Jones Industrial Average indicates one thing; while the entire stock market indicates an opposite thing. Certain good stocks are now abnormally high; while other good stocks are abnormally low. Before you are fired by any employment manager, he should study other factors, rather than look solely at the stock market.

General business fell off during January and February, 1954, compared with 1953; but the stock market did not forecast this. Some stocks went up; while others went down. Many stock prices have changed very little in the past six months or even longer. Hence, we all should watch carefully the business of March and April without reference to the stock market. Certainly—except for customary seasonal reasons—I forecast that employment managers will be making a big mistake by firing people at this time.

Tarheel Lawmakers Are Generally Agreed On Farm Plan

By LYNN NISBET
WASHINGTON — The United States senate chamber was almost empty Thursday afternoon, the visitors' galleries were sparsely occupied, the press galleries were very quiet. Senator John Stennis of Mississippi was speaking on Hawaiian statehood, on which a vote was not expected for a week.

It was different on the House side. Nearly every member was on the floor or in adjacent cloak rooms; the visitors galleries were jammed and the news reporters were like a swarm of bees. Debate was nearing end and a test vote coming up on the high-

Homely Joes Remembered Best

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Sometimes a homely girl will say defensively:

"I wish I had the portrait of Whistler's mother tattooed on my forehead. That might make me more interesting to look at."

This attitude is wrong. Patricia Medina, a British actress, said the other day that homely men were much more fun on dates than "the pretty boys." She found they had a better sense of humor, were more attentive, less conceited and put more effort in their wooing.

This of course, is no news to us homely Joes. We have known it ever since the first caveman grew a wart on his nose and then, by sheer force of character, turned it into a social and business asset. A beautiful bachelor girl once asked me, after looking around a roomful of guests at a party: "Why do so many successful men seem to have such homely wives?"

The only tactful reply I could think of was: "Most successful men are probably near-sighted."

But I doubt if she heard me. She was studying herself in a wall mirror.

That is the trouble with so many lovely ladies. Being beautiful is a career with them. But no girl makes a full time job of being homely. A homely girl has time to listen to a man tell his dreams, time to help him achieve his dreams, and that is probably ly controversial tax bill.

The technical question was on recommitting the bill to the ways and means committee, but the real issue was whether to cut taxes all and if so whether the reduction should be by lowering the levy on income derived from dividends or by raising the statutory exemption to $700 from the present $600.

Tarheel representatives were divided in personal opinion on merits of the bill and bothered about how to vote. Consensus among them was that the top leadership, both Democrat and Republican, was making a partisan political football out of the issue.

On the roll call Reps. Chatham and Shuford voted against sending back the bill. Rep. Barden was out of the city—in Raleigh accepting an award from the vocational education group for his services as long time of the education committee. The other Tarheels voted to recommit.

The attitude of most of them is that the House vote didn't make much difference, since the Senate is almost certain to adopt the George amendment which will grant an additional $100 personal exemption on all income tax returns.

IMPORTANT — The North Carolinians agreed that this is probably the most important issue they will have to face during this session. The farm program may be as significant, particularly the item of flexible or rigid parity support, as it affects this State. The Democratic membership as a whole is not as unanimous on the farm program as it was on the tax item, but the Tarheelers are much closer together.

The state delegation favors a fixed 90 per cent parity support on basis crops with production control, that despite the appearance of Flake Shaw, purporting to speak for the Farm Bureau, in favor of flexible supports. The congressmen were more impressed by the appeal and testimony of L.V. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, as more accurately reflecting sentiment of the farmers in this state.

POLITICAL — Of course, everybody from North Carolina was interested in political developments down home. Overall interest centered in the U.S. senatorial contest between Lennon and Scott, but chief concern in each congressional office was about conditions in their own district.

The Washington contingent expects the race to develop a great deal of activity but not to get as heated as the Graham-Smith affair four years ago. Majority opinion is that Scott will win, but not by a large margin, and the possibility of a run-off was frequently discussed.

None of the predictions accorded more than 30,000 or 35,000 votes for the four candidates other than Lennon and Scott. One or two had heard of Amazon Turner's real estate operations here, and several knew about the Sprinkle oil business, and had heard of Wingfield's radio broadcasts. So far as the North Carolinians in Washington are concerned the race is between Lennon and Scott with the others having only remote chance to make a run-off necessary.

BALLOTS — The law requires that names of candidates be changed on the printed ballots so that each candidate will appear at top of the list an equal number of times. Some voters are known to have the policy of just marking

Worth Noting
AIR FORCE SPENDING UP:
Federal spending for the Air Force, which was about $15 billion in the 1953 fiscal year, will be $15.6 billion in fiscal 1954 and more than $16 billion in fiscal 1955 if current budget proposals materialize, the National Industrial Conference Board calculates. During the same period, Army spending will be reduced from $16 billion to $10 billion, and Navy spending from $12 to $10.5 billion.

DAWSON, MINN., SENTINEL: "One of the things we admire in President Eisenhower is his tenacious adherence to the principle that government should refrain from trying to plan and run the lives of its citizens, but rather stand ready to help out whenever and wherever its citizens are unable to carry on alone. We, as a nation, must put our trust in God and not in a golden calf."

BEDFORD, IND., DAILY TIMES-MAIL: "Newspapers (in 1953) reached new heights in circulation and advertising, giving them the largest volume in their history in both of these categories. This means that in spite of competition from television, radio and magazines for both the readers' time and the advertisers' dollars, newspapers have been given a tremendous vote of confidence."

President Shows Signs Of Learning Political Tricks

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is handling his news conferences more smoothly than he did in 1953. He has had a year's experience, knows his job better, and has learned more about the realities of politics.

In recent weeks, perhaps as a natural development, he has seemed more direct and self-confident. And in this same period he has spoken out—always without mentioning names—in words widely interpreted as announcing a stand on Sen. McCarthy. But the Wisconsin Republican does not concede that Eisenhower is among his critics.

Whatever the connection, if any, between McCarthy and Eisenhower's more positive attitude at news conferences, at least the President acts more relaxed, as a man might who had faced a hard decision and finally made it.

He is still as brisk as he was at his first news conference in 1953, and still just as friendly. And he still shakes his head in amazed amusement when a conference ends and newsmen hurry through the door for a phone.

He can get emotional. And when he does his voice shows it. So does his suddenly flushed face. Then the words pour out. He was plainly angry two weeks ago in commenting on Adlai Stevenson's broadcast criticism of him.

Last year, some of his news conferences were painful. Unlike Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, he never ducked a question with "no comment." Frank to admit he didn't know all the answers, he always tried to give some reply.

Sometimes a simple "no comment" would have been just as illuminating, for some of the answers he gave wound up rambling or platitudinous. That still happens. Sometimes, but not so much. He's more to the point now.

When it happens it's the result of trying to think up an answer out loud on the spot. At times like those he bears his sentences to ribbons. Words that start out to be sentences end up in mid-air or in disconnected phrases.

This is the toughest part of a conference for newsmen with the job of trying to take down every word, trying to follow the thought, and immediately afterward a phone trying to be sure of what he meant.

Eisenhower realizes his sentences aren't always what they might be. Not long ago, jokingly, he gave permission to be quoted directly but only, he said, after his aides cleared up his sentences in the stenographer's notes.

Eisenhower has a policy of never saying anything critical of anyone by name. He never, he says, deals in personalities.

Last year at times he seemed like a man who thought if he was just nice to everyone, everyone might be nice to him.

Repeatedly at his 1953 news conferences he was questioned about McCarthy, who was running head on into his administration time after time. Eisenhower never said anything that remotely approached announcing a break with the senator.

Perhaps in 1953, when he was beginning to learn his way around in politics the hard way, he felt that if he just stayed mild long enough McCarthy might go away.

But this year the Wisconsin Republican, starting at full speed with an investigation of communism in the Army, told a general he couldn't help questioning either the officer's honesty or his intelligence and got into a blazing dispute with Robert T. Stevens, Army secretary.

At first Eisenhower stayed in the background. Day after day newspapers prodded him to assert leadership and take a stand. He eventually did, but in stages, as McCarthy's relations with the Army became explosive.

In three successive news conferences Eisenhower used language that sounded like first—a gentle and then a stern rebuke to McCarthy, and then backed up Stevens against the senator. True to his policy of mentioning no names, he never mentioned McCarthy's.

Since the Army could hardly have taken on the senator for a showdown without Eisenhower's approval, the President may have decided to have it out with McCarthy that way instead of in a fish wife's brawl over a back fence.

Executives Club To Hear Lecturer And Entertainer

George Bailey, well known lecturer and entertainer will appear before the Pitt County Executives Club Friday night with his performance titled "Salmagundi Show."

The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in the north dining hall on the East Carolina College Campus.

"Don't reach for the dictionary," Bailey comments on the name of his show, "Salmagundi is just another name for hash."

Though it has other facets, Bailey's program is largely based on two factors; his tremendous memory and the fact that he is able to get excellent music out of a nondescript collection of musical glasses which have been fitted with resonators that impart an organ-like

Tobacco Barn Is Moved By Big Truck

HALTED MOVEMENT—Telephone wires halted movement of this tobacco barn on a farm owned by Blount-Harvey Company near Greenville. S. L. McGlohon, who lives on the farm, said the barn had been moved about 700 yards on this large truck, but the wires will have to be cut before it can cross the road and move on to its designated area which is still about 100 yards farther. McGlohon said the barn had already been moved across two ditches. A tractor aids this truck in the movement of the barn. (Reflector photo by Bob Boyette)

Reorganized Student Bank Opened Again For Business At E. Carolina

The East Carolina College Student Bank, recently reorganized, has opened for business and is now operating under the supervision of the college Business Office. Mrs. James Mallory of Greenville has been employed as teller. The Student Government Association and the college share the cost of operation. Policies are determined by the college business manager and the president and the treasurer of the Student Government Association.

Students at the college voted February 23 to change the budget policies stated in the SGA Handbook by separating the duties of the Student Bank and the Student Budget Office; and these changes have now been put into effect.

In the new set-up, the Student Bank now handles student deposits and withdrawals and the cashing of student checks. The Student Budget Office transacts financial business of the SGA and of all organizations which it sponsors. All of these services were formerly performed by the Budget Office, headed by the student treasurer and his assistants.

An audit of the books of the Student Budget Office was made by the college business office and the student treasurer and his staff before the change in budget policies were made.

HENDERSONVILLE—Is farming in Western North Carolina as profitable now as it was five years ago?

D.W. Bennett, county agent for the State College Extension Service, says no—at least the records of 25 demonstration farmers in Henderson County say farming isn't what it was five years ago.

After subtracting all farm expenses from total farm receipts the 25 families averaged only $940 last year. Included in the 25 were 13 dairy, four fruit and eight other farms.

WNCT Schedule

A. Hartwell Campbell, general manager of television station WNCT, Channel 3, Greenville, has announced that the station plans to start erection of a 300-foot tower early in April.

The Truitt Manufacturing Company informed WNCT officials that they will have the tower completed by April 15. Already delivered is 240 feet of the 300 and by early April most of the tower will have arrived in Greenville.

The 74-foot antenna which is presently mounted on the temporary 250-foot tower will be transferred to the 300-foot tower with little interruption of service.

"It is difficult to predict exactly how much the new tower will increase our coverage," Campbell says, "but it is obvious that to increase tower height from 224 feet to 274 feet will help considerably in fringe areas."

Baseball
Tuesday, April 13, WNCT will telecast through the live network facilities of the American Broadcasting Company the opening game of the major baseball leagues, and each Saturday thereafter the Game of the Week will be on the WNCT schedule.

Confusion Hits Korea On Setting Own Time Zone

By ROBERT M PROSSER
SEOUL (AP)—South Korea finally declared her independence from the Japan time zone and you should see the confusion.

The National Assembly, fiercely patriotic, carved out a Korean time zone a half hour behind the Japan zone. It went into effect Saturday.

Now appointments are confirmed with the question: "Japan or Korean time?" The 4 o'clock plane for Japan leaves at 4:30. And the 3 o'clock plane arrives at 3:30. International commuters and telephoners are having the time of their lives making connections.

Fifty years ago Japan ordered Korea to set her clocks on Japan time. It was done to simplify commerce. And while the political course between the two nations often was rough, they operated smoothly in a single time zone.

Now South Korea is back on its own time.

The U.S. State Department was the first to fall in line. International etiquette, one diplomat explained. How can you keep appointments with Koreans when your clocks aren't in tune.

The Air Force was tougher. Army transportation officials, less disposed to diplomacy, asked, "How in heck can we run a railroad when everyone has his own time?" But it gave in.

The Air Force was last. For a while planes took off from Japan on time and arrived in South Korea a half hour ahead of schedule. Then they left South Korea on time and returned to Japan a half hour later. Finally the Air Force threw in its minute hand.

COUNTY SCHOOLS, 34 announce plans are being completed for the 8th Annual Music Festivals at the various Pitt County Schools.

This year there will be five festivals, and each group of schools is working out its own theme. The first festival will be held at Chatham Thursday, March 25, with Child, Grifton, and Grimesland participating. The theme for the program is "Travelogue."

Friday, March 26, there will be a festival at Farmville, with Farmville and Bethel schools participating. The theme for this festival is "May Day in the British Isles."

On Friday, April 9, two festivals will be held, one at Stokes and the other at Ayden. Belvoir, Factious and Stokes will present "Fun With Music" at Stokes; and Ayden and Winterville will present "Fun With Music" at Ayden.

According to Miss Annie Lee Jones and Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, Pitt County School supervisors, those who are responsible for the programs are putting much thought and effort into preparing for the festival.

The supervisors said, "It is gratifying to observe the splendid spirit of cooperation among the faculties as we work on them. We are anticipating another year of successful, entertaining festivals which portray our music program to our parents."

All the five festivals will begin sharply at 8 o'clock in the evening, it was reported.

Vaccinating Babies Is Found Effective

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

CLEVELAND (AP)—Vaccinating babies minutes after they're born is safe effective insurance against dangerous whooping cough and diphtheria, a family doctor finds.

The shots in the arm against these diseases usually aren't started until babies are three to six months old or more.

But Dr. Herbert D. Chamberlain, McArthur, Ohio, told today of good results from giving them as immediate birthday shots as part of the routine treatment of newborn babies.

Of 717 babies treated this way since 1948, not one has had whooping cough or diphtheria, even when other children in the family contracted these diseases, he says in an exhibit for the American Academy of General Practice.

Between 1945 and 1948 in his rural practice in Vinton County, Ohio, there had been 40 cases of whooping cough and 10 deaths among babies less than a year old, he said.

Since 1948, there has not been a single case of whooping cough, except in one baby not inoculated at birth, he said.

He cited government statistics which show whooping cough kills more babies from 1 to 12 months old than all other diseases combined.

He gives the babies a standard vaccine combining protection against whooping cough, diphtheria, and tetanus a main cause of blood poisoning.

A full treatment consists of three shots. The second is given when the baby is 6 weeks old, when the mother receives a checkup for recovery from childbirth. The third is given when the baby is 3 months old. Three fourths of all the babies have had the full series, he said.

Yugoslavs Ask Stay In Portugal

LISBON, Portugal, (AP)—Two Yugoslav volleyball players who say they are tired of communism have deserted their country's championship ball team and asked for political asylum in Portugal.

Officials identified the pair as Budislav Gavra and Julka Jost and said they turned themselves over to Portuguese police last week.

Gavra was captain of the team, which won an international tournament here last week. Jost was its youngest member.

The rest of the team sailed for Bordeaux, France, aboard a British ship.

READY TEDDY ON JOB - Girl Scouts join Smokey Bear in Washington Girl Scout Week demonstration for Agriculture Department's campaign to prevent forest fires.

Forest Preserver Smokey, The Bear, Is International Symbol

By JOHN KAMPS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Smokey the bear, with his jaunty forest ranger's hat and blue jeans, is fast becoming an international symbol of forest preservation.

The real Smokey was snatched as a cub from a flaming New Mexico forest nearly four years ago and brought to a new home in the federally-run zoo here. Ever since, the Forest Service has used his picture—all tugged out in ranger's gear—to drive home its fire prevention message on highway billboards and trolley advertisements. Smokey has been in the movies, on radio and on television.

Now his fame has spread to other lands. Youngsters in South America, Canada and even France have joined with a million or so American kids in a corps of "Junior Rangers" pledged to "save and faithfully defend from waste the natural resources of my country."

Smokey will spearhead a big six million dollar campaign planned by federal and state forestry officials and private advertising groups to plug for protection of the nation's woodlands from the ravages of fire. The campaign opens April 1. The government's share is $150,000.

Fires annually destroy about a billion dollars worth of timber in the United States, but some progress has been made and Clint Davis, national director of Cooperative Forest Fire Prevention, gives Smokey considerable credit for this.

Federal law protects Smokey from commercial exploitation and authorizes the Forest Service to license the manufacture and sale of "Smokey the Bear" toys and appliances to put across fire prevention messages. Royalties go for fire prevention work.

About 240,000 Smokey teddy bears were sold last Christmas.

A song about him is selling in sheet music form and on five different phonograph records. His life story is due to be published soon in book form.

Some of Smokey's recent accomplishments: He crashed a Boston pops orchestra concert in Constitution Hall.

He became an honorary assistant chief of the District of Columbia Fire Department. He is featured in the Boy Scouts' fire prevention program and his picture will appear on a half-million scout posters.

President Eisenhower posed with a Smokey doll and urged "every man, woman and child to join" in the drive against forest fires. What better tribute could there be to Smokey's influence with the younger set than a letter from a woman who wrote that her children have stopped watching their favorite spaceman since Smokey went on TV.

Navy Sinks Ship Once A Month

BAYONNE, N.J. (AP)—The Navy sinks a ship in New York harbor once a month and then brings it up again. It's part of the operation of the Navy school for Salvage Divers at the Bayonne Navy Base.

Each time it's a 330-ton LSI (landing ship, infantry), sunk in 20 feet of water. The student divers aren't told what made the ship sink. They're just told to go down and fix it and get it to the surface again. When everything is shipshape, they pump air into the vessel to refloat it.

There are about 100,000 more wrecks in the United States every year.

$20 Millions On Torpedoed Ship

By FERRY VAN GREEN
AP Newsfeatures

WILDE WORMER, Netherlands—A Dutch salvage firm this summer will try to recover 20 million dollars in gold from the German vessel Renate Leonhardt, torpedoed in 1917.

A Dutch group has formed a cooperative salvage firm, which has spent years on preparations. About 60 per cent of its capital was pledged by unidentified Canadian sources; 40 per cent is Dutch.

One of the firm's officials, Piet Visser, 51, says that after he got a concession in 1939 to salvage the cargo, he started charting the exact place of the ship five miles off the coast, outside the Dutch territorial waters. The outbreak of World War II prevented further investigations. After the war, he charted the whole ship accurately. It now rests under 70 feet of water a 10-foot solid layer of clay and another 10-foot layer of mud.

A work shop topped by a 60-foot funnel is under construction. Under favorable conditions the huge iron structure, 86 feet high, weighing nearly 1,000 tons will be placed on the ship's wreck this summer.

This iron workshop will be secured on the clay layer. Through the floor a wide tube will be sunk into one of the Renate's hatches to allow divers working around the clock, to snatch away the millions.

Mended Heart Is Using A Plastic Valve; It Clicks

AP Newsfeatures

DENVER—Leonard Grenz of Denver is really ticking. When you're near him a constant "click...click...click" is audible.

The sounds come from a plastic valve which Denver surgeons inserted just outside his heart in a three-hour operation.

It takes the place of his own aortic valve which was damaged by rheumatic fever when he was six-years-old and living on his father's farm near Lake Benton, Mass.

The fever scarred the mechanism which regulates the flow of blood from the heart to the lower portion of the body. Grenz, 37, has been plagued with heart trouble ever since.

Grenz, married and the father of two small children, had to quit carpentry work entirely six months ago, after his natural aortic valve froze in the open position. His heart worked at killing speed. A team of Denver heart surgeons gave Grenz the choice of trying the plastic valve operation or facing inevitable death.

The doctors had studied the work of Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel of Georgetown University's medical school in Washington, D.C. Dr. Hufnagel had reported successful use of the artificial valve he designed in 27 human cases.

Circulation through the aorta, artery to the lower part of Grenz' body was blocked off for 27 minutes while the valve was spliced into the artery just outside the heart.

The valve, similar to a trap valve used by plumbers, is a tube about 2½ inches long and 1½ inches in diameter which bulges on the sides. A solid plastic ball, slightly larger than the diameter of the tube, rests loosely inside the bulges. With his natural aortic valve frozen open, each inward thrust of his heart sent the blood rushing back into it. Now the ball in the artificial valve permits blood to pass around it through the bulges on the outward thrust of the heart. On the inward thrust, however, the ball is sucked to the other end of the tube into a pocket, shutting off the backward rush of blood.

Doctors say Grenz is now on the road to recovery, although he will always hear that life-giving "click...click...click."

Same Problem In Hoosier Forests

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—The timber-proud states of the north and northwest may overlook Indiana when it comes to lumber production but the Hoosier foresters face the same problems.

Doxie Moore, Conservation Department director, says that eight new two-way radios have been installed in trucks, and 10 fire towers have been equipped with portable units to aid in fire protection.

Camping Helps Heart Troubles

NEW YORK (AP)—Outdoor camping can be good for children with heart trouble—and for their parents, too, says Dr. Katherine Dodge Brownell, head of New York Heart Assn.'s public health committee.

She says cardiac children too often are overprotected, denied group experiences and "tied to their mothers' apron strings." Specially supervised camps, she says, can help child morale—and improve parents' attitudes.

G-Men To Meet Farmville Tomorrow In Second Game

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
With the first game mistakes and fitters over with, the Greenville High School baseball team prepares for the long season ahead. The G-men meet Farmville's Red Devils tomorrow afternoon in their second contest of the season. Coach Farley's crew lost their opening game to the triple-A Rocky Mount Blackbirds by a 5-4 score Friday afternoon.

The G-men showed a good hitting ball club in the Rocky Mount game as they outthrew their opponents 11 to 8. After the game Rocky Mount Coach Clet Cleetwood commented, "You certainly have a good hitting ball club, especially for high school."

Second baseman Jerry Phillips led the Greens at the plate with three hits including the longest hit of the day, a booming triple out by the 350 foot sign in rightfield. Phillips led the team in batting last year with a mark of slightly over .400.

Other batsmen who impressed with their stickwork were outfielder Harold Edwards, who slammed two doubles, and Bobby Nunn, who drove in two runs in the game. Shortstop Bob Howell hit the longest ball of the game when he smacked a long shot off the top of the leftfield fence, foul by about ten inches.

Right-hander Dave Dickinson looked good in his four inning stint on the mound as did starting Bill Hendrix. Dickinson set the Birds down with one run and just three hits in the two innings. Hendrix held the Birds until the top of the fourth when a wind-blown drive got through the Greenville outfield for a triple and three runs came in.

The Greens begin their conference schedule Friday when they play the New Bern Bears at Guy Smith Stadium in the home opener of the season.

Faulk And Ziske In Golf Finals

By KEN ALYTA
PINEHURST, N. C. (AP)—Mary Lena Faulk, who after finishing second here a year ago went on to become runnerup in the British National and winner of the U.S. National, met Joyce Ziske, the terrific teen-ager from Waterford, Wis., today in the finals of the North and South Women's Amateur Golf Tournament.

Miss Faulk, of Thomasville, Ga., finally caught up with her state rival, Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, 4 and 3, in yesterday's semifinals after years of trying.

Miss Ziske, three up with eight holes to play saw little Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., catch her, but the big girl from Wisconsin threw a par 4 at Barbara on the 19th hole for the victory and a berth in the finals.

The match was the second succession that went overtime for Barbara, who on Saturday had taken a 20-hole thriller from Mrs. Helen Sigel Wilson of Philadelphia.

Miss Faulk had never beaten Miss Kirby, 1951 National champion and 1943 North and South winner, in some four or five previous meetings. This was their first meeting since Mary Lena won the U.S. crown last summer. It started like most of the others, with Dorothy winning the first hole with a par 4, but she didn't win another.

Mary Lena turned one up with a 40, three over par for the 6,000 yard No. 2 course of the country club, with women's par of 74. Mary Lena won Nos. 10, 11, and 13 all with 4's, and closed out the match with a par 3 on 15.

Both Players Get Big Break In Cubs' Trade With Braves

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—The trade which sent Milwaukee Braves relief pitcher Dave Cole and an undisclosed amount of cash to the Chicago Cubs yesterday in return for shortstop Roy Smalley is a break for both players.

Cole, leaving a club having plenty of moundmen, will have a better chance as a starting pitcher with Chicago. The trade enables Smalley to leave Wrigley Field, where fans have been riding him for two seasons.

"We consider Cole a good prospect," said Manager Phil Cavarretta of the Cubs at Yuma, Ariz. "With more chance to work as a member of our staff we hope his control will improve. That's all he may need to become a winner because he has a lot of stuff."

Braves Manager Charlie Grimm, who handled the Cubs in 1948 when Smalley arrived in Chicago, thinks the change will be good for Smalley.

Pony League
Players in Greenville's Pony League, the players' parents, and other friends of the league are requested to meet tonight in the court room at the City Hall to discuss the league's operation for the coming year.

Principal item of business for tonight will be the selection of new officers. Also on tap for discussion will be the 1954 playing site.

The meeting was originally planned for last Tuesday night but conflicts in several schedules kept it from coming off as planned. A large crowd is expected at the meeting tonight by Recreation Department officials.

NEW YORK (AP)—Heavyweight Charley Norkus and light heavyweight contender Danny Nardico, who staged a "war" in their first meeting two months ago, will have it out again in Miami Beach Wednesday night.

Their scheduled 10-rounder (10 p.m., EST) will be telecast by CBS from the Miami Beach Auditorium. The first one, in which Norkus, a 197-pounder from Bayonne N.J., stopped Nardico in the ninth round, was not telecast.

Norkus knocked down the 181-pound Tampa slugger six times but was dropped twice himself before winning the bloody brawl on a technical knockout.

Bubi Scholz, Germany's undefeated middleweight contender, makes his U.S. debut Friday night against Al Andrews, the ex-Marion Square fighter, at Madison Square Garden. ABC will broadcast and NBC will telecast the 10 p.m., EST 10-rounder. Scholz, a southpaw, has a 49-0-2 record. Andrews, twice a winner over southpaw Chuck Davey, has a 26-5-1 record.

Cary High School Takes Class A Basketball Title

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A little Wake County school today displayed the trophy symbolic of the North Carolina Class A high school basketball championship.

Cary earned the trophy by whipping King of Stokes County 63-54, in the finals of the state Class A tournament Saturday night.

A 23-point performance by guard Charlie Adams set the pace for the winners. But Bobby Joe Harrison, King center, was high scorer for the game with 32 points, bringing his total for the three-day event to 93 points.

Third place in the tourney went to Odeell, 69-50 winners over Mars Hill. Beaumont won the consolation championship, defeating Ahsokite, 44-41, and Massey Hill trounced Stanley, 69-49 for seventh place.

Add Another To Liquor Charges

Raymond Duffy, 73-year-old Negro, was taken into custody Saturday night by Pitt County ABC officers on charges of illegal possession of non-taxpaid liquor.

Officers listed Duffy's address as 111 N. Washington Street. He was released under a $200 bond. The case will be tried in city recorder's court March 29 when two other cases against Duffy involving liquor law violations are also slated for trial.

The 6 foot 7 inch Gola won the Most Valuable Player award hands down as he ignited La Salle to a 30-point third quarter that dropped the Bradley Braves 92-76 in the finals before 10,500 at Municipal Auditorium Saturday night.

Penn State's Nittany Lions humbled Southern California 70-61 for third place.

At Philadelphia's International Airport last night an estimated 10,000 persons welcomed the La Salle team home. The Explorers were escorted through the city to the campus by a cheering motorcade.

Coach Ken Oeffler's Explorers became the first team to win the tournament over the five-game route. La Salle started with an overtime victory over Fordham at Buffalo, then beat North Carolina State and Navy in the Philadelphia regional. The Explorers outclassed Penn State, 69-54, in the semifinals Friday.

Baker Wins Race On Technicality

ATLANTA (AP)—Buck Baker, Charlotte electrician, became the winner of yesterday's 100-mile Grand National stock car race when an official's decision short-circuited Herb Thomas of Olivia, N.C.

Baker's driving finish which excited a crowd estimated at 20,000 left him a length behind Thomas and less than a length ahead of Dick Rathman of Daytona Beach, Fla.

But Johnny Bruner, supervising the race for the National Assn. of Stock Car Automobile Races (NASCAR) ruled that Thomas failed to fall into the rear of the line of cars while the caution flag was flying after he made a pit stop.

Bryner penalized the 32-year-old 1953 Grand Circuit point winner one lap and this shoved him into fourth place behind Baker, Rathman and Tony Flock of Decatur, Ga. Thomas can appeal to the NASCAR Racing Commission.

The decision cost Thomas $650, the difference between top money of $1,000 and the $350 fourth-place cash he received. Rathman pocketed $650 and Flock received $450.

Weekend Baseball Contests Marked By Mixed-Up Play

By RIP WATSON
AP Sports Writer
Baseball's spring training games don't count in the record books and there are some days the boys are just as glad nobody's keeping tabs on them.

Days like yesterday, for example, when the highly paid major leaguers came up with the following:

Twenty-three bases on balls in one game . . . a home run by a Cuban rookie in his first time at bat in organized baseball . . . a rookie who's played exactly 10 games in the majors installed as the Chicago Cubs regular shortstop . . . a 2-7 victory by Boston with a batting attack consisting of two hits, six walks in two innings and five St. Louis errors.

The standings themselves are surprising enough, with the Philadelphia Athletics, nobody's favorite to win the American League pennant, leading their league in the spring standings after a 7-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. And if the Pirates had won instead, they'd be leading the National Leaguers on percentage this far.

The multiple bases on balls—seven below the major league record—came in Washington's 10-9 victory over Detroit. The winning run, as you might expect, was scored when Dick Marlowe walked Clyde Vollmer with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning.

The Cuban rookie who made such a sensational debut was Angelo Toledo of the Chicago White Sox, but despite his efforts Cincinnati defeated the Sox 5-3. Toledo had reported to his first baseball camp exactly one hour before.

The New Cub shortstop is Ernie Banks, one of the first three Negroes ever to represent the team. He batted 314 in a brief trial last September and is close to 500 thus far this spring. This prompted the Cubs to trade their previous shortstop, Roy Smalley, to Milwaukee for pitcher Dave Cole.

Gerry Staley of the Cardinals pitched six innings of one-hit, scoreless ball against Boston, but the effort went for nothing when the Red Sox combined their second hit of the game, with six walks by Tom Poholsky and five Red Bird errors.

The Athletics got five good innings of pitching from Bob Trice, the International League's Most Valuable Player last year, and the lead stood up despite homers by George Freese and Frank Thomas.

The springtime shenanigans didn't entirely hide some good old-fashioned baseball, however. Frankie Baumholtz, one of the National League's better hitters (lifetime average, .291), slammed two doubles and three singles in five times up in pacing an 8-2 victory for the Cubs over the Baltimore Orioles.

Warren Spahn, the senior member of Milwaukee's pitching corps, retired 14 men in succession in the course of pitching seven scoreless innings against Philadelphia as the Braves walloped the Phillies 10-0. The left-hander gave up four hits and was followed by Jim Wilson, who allowed none in the last two innings.

The New York Yankees, who had absorbed two straight defeats at the hands of the Brooklyn Dodgers, finally whipped them 8-2. The Yanks got good pitching from Harry Byrd and Tom Morgan, plus home runs by Yogi Berra and Bob Cerv.

Three-run homers by rookie Gos. Ter Castelman and Henry Thompson insured the New York Giants' 6-1 victory over Cleveland, the fifth time in seven games that the Giants have whipped the Indians this year.

New Yorkers Hope For Victory In Golden Gloves

NEW YORK (AP)—With the program cut from 16 to eight fights, the New York Eastern Golden Gloves team hoped to break an eight-year victory drought tonight when they take on the Chicago Western Glovers in the National Golden Gloves Championships at Madison Square Garden.

Only one bout in each division from the 112-pound flyweights to the heavyweights, will be held in the windup of months of Golden Gloves competition across the country.

In the past the Eastern and Western champions in each division met and the alternates in each division collided. The sixteen bouts counted equally.

Eastern representatives include Richie Hill of the Charlotte, N.C., team in the 175-pound division.

Tar Heel Boxers Dominate Tourney

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C. (AP)—North Carolina dominated the championship picture in the Carolina AAU boxing tournament over the weekend here.

Lincolnton won the novice team championship to lead the Tar Heel parade and Mt. Holly took open class honors.

Novice class champions crowned were Bugs Price, Lincolnton, 112 pound class; Dean Plemmons, Lincolnton, 118 pounds; Larry Boyles, Cherryville, 126 pounds; and Jerry Byrd, Lincolnton, 135 pounds.

Open champions included Max Davis, Mt. Holly, 112 pounds; Sam, my Kester, U.S. Navy Minecraft, Charlotte, 118 pounds; Lawrence Malsner, Pope AFB, N.C., 126 pounds; Ralph Jones, Weaverville, NAF, N.C., 135 pounds.

Study Of Baseball Draft Halted Without Progress

By GAYLE TALBOT
TAMPA (AP)—The committee of big league executives studying revision of the present draft rule has just concluded its fifth meeting of the winter and spring without reporting any appreciable progress.

One of its members, who prefers anonymity, says he seriously doubts now that anything will come of it.

At the extremes of the two factions involved in the debate are the Washington Senators, who have no farm system worth mentioning, and the New York Yankees, whose farms are loaded with gifted youngsters who will be stars within a few years.

The Senators, as well as other clubs which are unable to maintain extensive player assembly lines, would like to have an unrestricted draft where all minor leaguers who are not being brought up by the parent team would be placed on the block at each winter draft meeting. As it is now, a club such as the Yankees stands to lose only one player each winter.

The "have" clubs, naturally, are fighting any such revision with claw and hoof, feeling that it virtually would wipe out their huge minor league investments. Commissioner Ford Frick was at one time reported favorable to some sort of stringent revision as an antidote for criticized aspects of the reserve clause but is said now to have cooled off.

Frank Leahy, here to announce his new job as a public relations chief, struck everyone with his down-to-earth appearance and relaxed attitude. He gave up the wracking task of coaching Notre Dame.

He said he believed his most important contribution to the Irish was in installing the T formation there. Doesn't think any other formation compares with it.

Rollie Hemsley, pitching coach of the Philadelphia Athletics, has a new gimmick for getting his charges in shape and keeping them that way. The day after they work they are required to station themselves in the infield and retrieve balls thrown back during batting practice. The stretching and bending keeps 'em supple and removes any soreness.

Favored Teams Win In AAU Play

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Ten games were scheduled for today and tonight in the six-day Women's National AAU Basketball Tournament which drew 30 of the nation's top amateur teams.

Today's games will cut the field to 26 teams through the double elimination system.

The eight games in yesterday's opening program produced only three close contests. The hometown St. Joseph Goetz Girls came from behind in the last quarter to beat Omaha Commercial Extension 32-28. A spurt in the last four minutes gave New Orleans Dabdoob Blues a 58-51 decision over the St. Albans, La., Rockets. Jackson, Miss., Yazoo Master Mowers defeated Kansas City Midland Jewelry 34-31 after trailing at halftime 14-15.

Third-ranked Denver Viner Chevrolets, the only seeded team in action, easily disposed of Kansas City United 80-42-1.

The other games were similar run-outs. Kingfisher, Okla., defeated the Topeka, Kan., Santa Fe Streamliners 56-20; the Amarillo, Tex., Dowell's Dolls beat Omaha Missouri Valley Dredging 62-12; the Davenport, Iowa, Brammerettes whipped Ottum Air Force Base WAF's 72-19, and the Kansas City Dons thumped the Cleveland Schraders 60-28.

Mayer Confident On Winning Putt

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Dick Mayer's 18-foot putt that won the $15,000 International Four Ball Golf Tournament for himself and his partner, Tommy Bolt, was no surprise to the slender, blond St. Petersburg campaigner.

"I was absolutely confident when I stepped up to the ball," Mayer said happily. "I felt sure I would make it."

The shot, on the first hole of a "sudden death" playoff, finished Julius Boros and E.J. (Dutch) Harrison, who had climbed from third place into a tie with Mayer and Bolt in yesterday's final round of the 72-hole tournament.

Each team posted a best ball score of 258 over the regular route, 30 under par for the Normandy Shores Course.

All four golfers hit the green with their second shots on the first hole of the playoff. Boros, the former National Open champion from Mid Pines, N.C., had a 30-foot putt and he drew a roar from the gallery when he hung his ball on the lip of the cup.

Harrison the Ardmore, Okla., veteran, was showing his weariness at the end of the 4-day grind and his putt from 25 feet away was two feet short.

Then Mayer ran the ball into the cup for a birdie 3 that captured the $3,000 top prize for himself and Bolt.

Mayer's putt was worth $900 to the team. If he and Bolt had lost the playoff, they would have divided $2,100.

Sam Snead, the West Virginian, and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco closed with a 62 that hoisted them from 11th place into a tie for third at 259.

Closing fast with consecutive birdies on the last five holes Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., and Johnny Palmer of Charlotte, N.C., posted a 63 for 259. Fred Haas Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., made up the other team in the third-place group.

WEEKEND BASKETBALL By The Associated Press NCAA TOURNAMENT

La Salle 92, Bradley 76 (Championship)
Penn State 70 Southern California 61 (Third place)

East Carolina College's baseball Pirates drew their warm-up jackets just a little closer today — hoping that the cold spell would break before Wednesday.

That's the day when the Pirates knock the lid off their 1954 diamond season. They'll be taking on Wake Forest, perennial strongman in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The game will be played at the college diamond with the first pitch slated for 2:45.

Coach Earl Smith, directing the Pirates for the first year, is expected to toss a veteran starting team at the Demon Deacons. No definite starters have been named but Smith has at least one vet to start at every position.

Right-hander Jimmy Byrd, for three years the king-pin of the Pirates' pitching staff, is the expected starting hurler for the Bucs. He is one of four veteran pitchers available to the Pirates. If he doesn't get the nod, then Smith can choose from veterans Ken Hall, Clyde Owen, and Jimmy Piner and rookies J. C. Thomas, Dave Harris, Jimmy Barnes, Mack Cherry, Leonard Johnson, and Don Curtis.

Health At Second
The rest of the line-up seems fairly complete, at least at this stage of the season. W. C. Sanderson, an All-Conference player for two years is expected to be at first. Cecil Heath is the only letterman available for second base. Both Wilbur Thompson and Paul Jones are available for shortstop but Jones is expected to get the starting nod. Charlie Cherry is expected to open at third base.

In the outfield, Major Hooper is already all-but-picked as one of the starters as is big Gaiter Cline. The other starting position will go to either Boyd Webb or Bob Penley. Both Webb and Penley are veterans as are Hooper and Cline, who played third base a good bit of the 1953 season.

At the catching position, where the Pirates are three-deep in lettermen, Bill Cline is expected to start but he may get tossed out of the first position because of a knee injury. The slugging sophomore from Gastonia hurt his knee a week ago and the cold weather has kept it from healing as promptly as the Pirates would hope.

A squad of 28 players is expected to dress for the game Wednesday. There are approximately 40 players out for the squad.

After the Wednesday opener, the Pirates will travel to Wake Forest Friday afternoon. The second home game will be March 30 against Montclair State Teachers College.

The family album, all too often is a monotonous display of haphazard pictures, usually arranged in the order received from the drug store. Certainly any album is better than having the pictures scattered loosely in drawers or boxes where they seem to disintegrate entirely in time. However, a family album, with but a little more thought, can be an item of interest and a visual pleasure not only to the family but to friends.

It can be done by having the album tell pictures stories much as you see in newspapers and magazines. Gather your pictures in related groups and arrange them in story-telling sequence. Even seemingly unrelated pictures, taken singly and on different occasions, can be tied together under general headings if you search for a common denominator. It could be the season — or personalities — or activities — indoors — or outdoors — or any combination of these factors.

Emphasis can be given to each group or picture story by selecting the best picture or pictures for enlargement. This in itself assures eye-appeal as compared to the monotony of all-same-size pictures. If any one picture can be considered the theme of a particular event, that, too, should be enlarged and could start the sequence either as a full page picture or the dominant portion of it.

A lot of individual pictures can be improved by cropping, that is removing extraneous portions that detract from the center of interest. A good investment at this point is a print trimmer because cropping with a scissor by eye alone is apt to leave a lop-sided picture. And small groups of two or three prints, side by side, should line up by making them the same depth.

Picture albums would be greatly improved if sentiment were ignored and faulty pictures were left out. Why tell the world that you forgot to focus or jiggled the camera on Junior or Aunt Martha? And if you have a batch of near-duplicates, select the best one instead of putting them all in the album, unless you can make a story-telling sequence of varied expressions or continuing action of one person. When you're ready to mount the pictures in the album, you should work on the two facing pages as a unit because that's the way they're going to be viewed. Don't crowd pictures together — give them a frame of space occasionally.

Heads and action of pictures on the album's edges should lead in toward the center, generally, instead of carrying the eye off into space. You might not get your audience back, you know.

Finally, just as in newspapers or magazines, album picture stories should be complete with captions so that events are dated, and people and places are identified. For added interest and information, interesting mementoes, dated souvenirs and written programs of events might be included in the album along with personal pictures.

Though twice as fast as their previous fast film, Kodak claims there is no increase in grain. Field tests have also shown the film has built-in latitude for both over and under-exposure, and over and under-development. Royal Pan is expected to extend the picture taking range of the larger cameras.

Freighted Fire Kills 3 Crewmen

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A flash fire swept the sleeping quarters of the 5,000-ton Danish freighter Gudrun Maersk yesterday, killing three of the crewmen.

The fire was discovered shortly before dawn. The ship was berthed here.

Eleven men were asleep in the crew's quarters at the time. Eight fire companies, a fireboat, and other emergency equipment fought the fire for an hour before it was brought under control.

Evans said he and police convicted some persons, frequently convicted of intoxication and unable to pay fines, enjoyed periodic visits to the Jackson jail.

Young Folks Try For 898 Steps

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is the time of year a young man's fancy turns to—climbing up 898 steps.

And some young ladies too, said Charles L. Herman, nodding toward a seemingly endless iron staircase which curved upward around an elevator shaft.

Herman is custodian of the Washington Monument, including all its 898 steps, and he keeps an eye on hundreds of thousands of visitors each year.

The towering, white marble shaft, 555 feet high, drew a record 1,022,269 people in 1953. Attendance is running lower this year.

Herman said he believed this was partly because economic troubles were keeping more people at home, partly because of some bad tempered weather. He guessed an upswing would begin soon with spring visits from school groups.

As for the young folks, he knew for a fact many scaled the shaft under their own power. Not only had he spotted them clambering up, but he found written evidence in his once or twice weekly inspections of the inside walls for "John Loves Mary" type inscriptions, with heart and arrow and so forth.

"I don't mind the pencil marks so much," he confided. "The lipstick is the worst thing to get off."

Herman had statistics too: the record single day for visitors, May 9, 1953, when a youth safety group was in town, saw 8-400 mounting the stairs out of a total 13,027. Throughout 1953, 817,905 visitors used the elevator, 204,364 walked. The grand total since the monument first opened to the public was 22,880,000 by elevator, 4,741,000 afoot.

What's new? A couple of steps Coyote Call Has Traits Of Wolf

AP Newsfeatures

CASPER, Wyo. — He may not know too much about wolf calls of the human variety, but Howard J. Martley knows his coyote calls. He is district agent for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. His coyote calls are a regular part of the predatory control program.

Martley says:

"It's not exactly like a human wolf call. We need help in our business, so we use a small plastic device. It has a reed and operates somewhat on the same principle as a wind instrument. With this, we can simulate three different cries.

"The first is the coyote howl. This is the one most similar to the street corner variety in that it is most effective in the early morning or late at night. The idea, of course, is to get an answering call. The dens are difficult to find. When the coyote answers, the howl guides you to the den.

"The next cry is the distress cry of a pup coyote. The idea behind this one is to bring the parent coyotes to the scene, where they can be dispatched.

"Another call used extensively is the squeal of a trapped or wounded rabbit. It is used particularly in the Southwest, and will bring coyotes in at nearly anytime of the year."

Martley says it must be understood that the successful calling of any wild animal depends also on knowing their habits, range and other characteristics.

Which after all, probably any good street corner wolf could tell you.

By HELEN TOPPING MILLER

THE DAY was raw with a threat of cold rain in the sullen clouds that trampled the hills, and Gale Taber tucked in the flying ends of the scarf she had tied around her throat. Under a scarlet hunting cap her soft hair, moist and curled, blew around her ears with only a few hairs silencing close to her temples.

She was 44, and beside her, resting one smartly shod foot on the bars of the gate, was Sewell Albright, who was 50-odd who had plenty of money and an easy, charming disposition and who was asking her for about the fourth time to marry him.

"That bay filly, Sewell, the one over there near the haystack, is going to make a prime mare in another year," Gale said evasively. She had known Sewell Albright all her life. She had loved his first wife, Madge. It could even be said that she loved Sewell in a sisterly kind of way, but she did not want to marry anyone though she was dubious as to the way things were going at present she ought to marry somebody with money, money enough to get her out of the hole she was in, the predicament that seemed to grow deeper every day.

"Nice little piece of horseflesh," Sewell agreed.

For two years he had been trying doggedly to persuade Gale Taber to talk sense and for two years she had persistently switched the conversation to her everlasting horses or to Dooley's career or some maddening stunt of Ravel's.

"I was asking you to marry me, Gale," he began.

"I know." She still did not look at him. "I'll listen but I won't promise to be convinced."

He was only a shade taller than she, with a waistline that was thickening in spite of all the expensive things he did about it and hair that receded in silver scalps framing a full face with lazy brown eyes behind shell glasses and a wisp of a still-dark moustache. He laid a hand on her shoulder, the same comradely, reassuring gesture he had made when they had stood together in a swirling late snowstorm beside the grave of Pierce Taber, who had been Gale's husband and his dear friend.

"You'll listen with your ears," he said, "but your mind will be over yonder on some mare's shanks or withers or whatever it is they have."

"It wouldn't work Sewell," she said dully. "The advantage would be all mine. I'd have you to take care of me and take over my responsibilities, but what would you have? Nothing except more trouble. I could never leave this place, not till Ravel marries at any rate, and you know Ravel, she's a most unpredictable person alive. A nod you've got Pierce and Sally, both problems, you'll admit. I wouldn't make a very successful stepmother, Sewell."

"I wouldn't have just nothing, Gale. I'd have you. My idea was that we'd turn the young fry loose to scramble for themselves. With some help when they needed it, of course. They're old enough, and Pierce has been married and divorced. How old is Ravel?"

"Almost 25. But in some ways she's still five. Ravel's a curious combination of imperious self-sufficiency and helpless irresponsibility."

"Spotted rotten. So are mine. Pierce may turn into something some time, but I'm resigned to being disappointed in him from now on. Anyway, he'll be in the service soon. I got him deferred when he thought his wife was going to have a baby, which she didn't have, but now he can go it on his own. Now Dooley will take care of herself." "Julia—" Gale accorded her younger daughter the dignity of her proper name—"will never marry I'm afraid. Not that she isn't attractive in a quiet way and nice, but she's not one bit aggressive and in that profession—I didn't want her to go into nursing, you know that. I didn't want her exposed to illness and all the things nurses have to do."

He said: "Nurses are always marrying doctors. Dooley won't stay on that job long, you'll see. Look, Gale, I'd agree to live out here. This place was handsome years ago; it could be made into a show place again."

She turned with him and looked at the big old brick house, standing high on a knoll under the great maples, imposing even in their autumn nudity. The white wooden railings needed paint; the fence was shabby too, as were the shutters. A few bricks had blown off the top of one chimney but with all this deterioration the house was still proud with the serene kind of arrogance that invests an elderly dowager. It was 100 years old.

"Pierce and I always intended spending some money on the house," she said, "but every year the horses ate up all our profits."

He reached for her hand. "We could grow old together, Gale. I think Pierce would be pleased."

Sewell's wife had been dead for 14 years. She had left him with two young children who had grown up haphazardly with little discipline, though he had done the best he could. Anyway, he had enough money. He worked at public relations counselling for a utility company only because he liked activity and contact with business and the press not because he needed to augment his income.

"Maybe I'll retire," he went on. "You think it over, Gale. I'd be good to you."

"I know that. But marrying you would be dismally unfair to you. It gives a frightful lot of money and that gives me a feeling of inferiority that wouldn't go well in a marriage."

"It shows on you—worry. That's why I want to do something about it."

"No, it wouldn't be right. What you have is for your own children. They'd resent me and they'd be right."

"What would money do for them except to make them weaker and more irresponsible than they are already? Sally wants her own apartment. I've already agreed to pay for it if she'll get a job and go to work to clothe herself. She says that means New York because the only thing she knows enough to do is model. I doubt if she'd get anywhere with that because her legs aren't any good. I'll take care of Sally till she marries somebody with a job and a future, but I've no desire to make life easy for her indefinitely. As for Pierce—I wronged my best friend when I named that scoundrel—married before he was 21 to a brainless little fool, divorced before he could vote—I paid him out of that mess—and some more. Now I want the army to make a man out of him."

"We have to stand aside. We can't live their lives, Sewell. It's when we try too hard that we muddy things. Dooley taught me that."

"Dooley is a good kid. Ravel's all right, too, pretty as a little red drum and with plenty of spirit."

"But no heart I'm afraid," Ravel's mother sighed.

He demurred. "I wouldn't say that. I think Ravel has a tender side. Horse-crazy, of course. I'd like to see Ravel in the kind of establishment she rates. Blooded stuff, hunting, the way they live up in Virginia, it's a little red drum and with plenty of spirit."

"Our stock is blooded here. Ravel does a good job training the colts."

"Yes—walking-horses. Somehow I see Ravel on jumpers; sort of suits the spirited way she's got about her."

"Let's go in. I'll make some coffee. It is cold for early November in Tennessee. You'll stay to dinner, Sewell?" "I'd better cruise along to town. I'll have some coffee though." He opened a small gate for her, then stood aside as a tall girl came running down the path swinging a bride.

"Hello Ravel," he said. "Hello, Sewell. Gale, I changed bits on Joachim. I'm trying to break him of changing into a trot every time he speeds up." Her long legs were encased in khaki jodhpurs spotted with grease, and her green sweater had patches of leather on the worn elbows, but even so carelessly assembled there was an arresting, vivid sort of beauty about Ravel Taber.

Vodka Drinkers Meet 'Veesty'

By RICHARD KASISCHKE MOSCOW (U)—This nation of vodka drinkers is being introduced to veesty.

The ministry of Internal Trade has put on sale "a new type of drink," called Sovetskoye veesty, or Soviet whiskey, distilled in the Soviet Union. It is being launched with an advertising campaign.

It costs 24½ rubles for a half liter (just over a pint). The ruble is rated officially at four to the American dollar. You deposit an extra ruble on the bottle.

An American who bought a bottle says: "Far as I'm concerned, I would stick with Scotch and Bourbon. This Soviet stuff is too sharp for me. I don't want my hat blown off. It's too bitter for my taste."

There are big displays for the drink in the stores. An advertising leaflet says:

"Whiskey is one of the oldest alcoholic drinks. It comes originally from Ireland. The word whiskey comes from the Celtic meaning 'water of life' and was known to the Celts in the 12th century."

"Whisky is made from corn and barley malt. It has an original taste and aroma slightly of smoke."

"Soviet whiskey is made from the best grain and in factories with the most modern equipment. It is a bitter type of drink. Its aroma is natural and nothing aromatic is added to it."

"You can drink Soviet whiskey from vodka or cognac wine glasses without diluting it. It can also be drunk mixed with soda water or with a piece of lemon and sugar added, according to the taste."

"We ask you to send your opinion about this new drink, Soviet whiskey, to Glavtor (the state wine distributing organization) in the U.S.S.R. Ministry of Trade."

The leaflet says the whiskey has 45 per cent alcoholic content. Most U.S. whiskeys range from 40 to 50 per cent alcohol (80.6 to 100 proof). Standard Soviet vodkas are 44-55 per cent alcohol.

Potent Cookies Absolved Driver

1213 eesszyv m23aees 20 KANSAS CITY (U)—It wasn't liquid liquor the cop smelled on his breath. It was cookie flavor. Frank J. Ross, told Circuit Court Judge D. P. Strother.

A policeman who said he had followed Ross and thought his driving erratic testified a whiff of Ross' breath convinced him the motorist had had a few.

Ross insisted that he had cookies at a wedding reception earlier. They were liquor-flavored, he told Judge Strother and offered to bring some samples to court.

The judge declined but dismissed a drunk driving charge. People who live on farms make up about 15 per cent of the population of the United States and have about 5 per cent of U.S. income.

New England Wants Atomic Power, But Awaits Others

By SAM DAWSON BOSTON (U)—An atomic power plant is planned for Pittsburgh. New England wants one too. It intends to get one. But it wants its money's worth.

New England could use the expensive new gadget sooner than some other areas, because power costs here are higher than the national average.

But many a hardheaded Yankee says he's willing for Pittsburgh to have the first one, as announced last week. He wants someone else to work the bugs out of it, learn how to make it produce economically—and pay the bills.

That may take years. In Cambridge, some industrial scientists have different ideas. They have worked closely with the government on the A-bomb, have helped harness atomic energy and by-products to industrial use.

They claim that they could raise the money in New England (where Yankees already have seen the atom spawn peacetime industrial progeny) to build an experimental atomic energy plant.

It might not be the type they believe the Atomic Energy Commission has in mind in negotiations revealed last week with the Duquesne Light Co. for the construction and operation of the nation's first full-scale central station nuclear power plant at Pittsburgh.

Because of security bans, the Cambridge industrial scientists can't discuss the type they think could make work more economically.

The six New England governors, meanwhile, are jointly naming a 10-man committee this week to study the problems of bringing a nuclear plant here, in time.

The AEC says it plans to set up four other experimental plants. These early ones, almost everyone seems to agree, may be too costly to be sold to stockholders of private companies. They may have to be paid for by taxpayers, through government spending for some time.

William Webster, executive vice president of the New England Most people find that their bearing is less keen immediately after meals.

Electric System, is chairman of the New England Council's atomic energy committee. The council is out to get an atomic power plant and anything else it thinks will help build New England's industrial future.

Webster says that atomic electric power plants are coming for sure. But he sees as far off the day when they'll be cheap enough to compete with plants powered by fuels presently in use. He says: "The first ones will 'breed' better and cheaper ones. Only when they do will we be really excited about it."

Webster says the region's plans for further industrial expansion will call for more sources of energy. And its high power costs—largely because coal and other fuels to heat steam boilers must be transported from outside—will make atomic power competitive here before it would be in some other areas.

Other sections may give New England a run for its money. In some remote areas power costs are still higher, and some of them want power. The increasing need for energy is a national—not a strictly regional long-term factor, the Cambridge scientists point out.

The military mind also is intrigued. The armed forces are talking of building atomic power plants at distant posts—such as Greenland or the Sahara. Power is costly there. And coal or oil for fuel could be cut off if it had to be transported in submarine-infested waters.

Young English Actor Now 'Hottest Thing' In Films

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (U)—The last time I saw Edmund Purdom, he was somewhat concerned about being typed as the man who mouths Mario Lanza's songs. It turns out he needn't have worried.

Purdom is the hottest young actor in Hollywood today. His schedule for 1954 contains the most diverse roles imaginable.

The English lad fell heir to "The Student Prince" when Lanza took a powder, leaving behind his song recordings for Purdom to deliver as a Larry Parker. Next Ed profited from another walkout, being loaned by MGM to 20th Century-Fox for the role vacated by Marlon Brando in "The Egyptian."

Brando left nothing behind, not even a ripped T-shirt. So Purdom's interpretation of the role is strictly his own.

He is now doing that role. As soon as he is finished, he tosses off his desert costume for the tweeds of a proper Bostonian lawyer in "Athens." That's a gay tunefilm with Debbie Reynolds, Jane Powell and Vera-Ellen. After that he expects to do "a real swashbuckler" called "The King's Thief." And he is scheduled to appear opposite Ava Gardner in a biblical drama, "The Prodigal."

It's hard to describe Purdom. He is sort of a combination of James Mason and Errol Flynn with a touch of Brando. He says pretty much what he pleases and can come up with some remarkable remarks. He views his present success with candor:

"I have instructed my agent to try and get me a raise now. If I wait until these five pictures come out the public may get wise to me and I'd get no raise whatsoever."

Still, he is obviously pleased with his good fortune and reflects on the time when things weren't going so well.

"I've been in Hollywood two years, and this is the first time I've been busy," he recalled. Warners brought me over from England for a test which Michael Curtiz directed, by the way. (Curtiz is now directing Ed in "The Egyptian.")

"It was obvious that Warners had nothing I could do, with the exception of 'I Confess.' And that was already cast very adequately with Montgomery Clift. So I was not signed. For six months, I almost starved."

Now he's the new sensation of Hollywood. He did a bit on the Fox lot in "Titanic" before he was signed at MGM. His salary was $300 a week. Fox is reported to be paying over $100,000 for his services in "The Egyptian."

Purdom is 27, married to an actress he met in a London musical show, father of one and expecting another.

Jumbo Headache For Advertisers

LANSING (U)—Michigan retailers are going to have to be careful they don't misuse the words "king-size" and "jumbo," the State Agriculture Department decreed today.

Miles A. Nelson, chief of enforcement, said his inspectors will prosecute anyone they find using the words to advertise anything that is not bigger than normal size.

One that threw inspectors for a loop was this retailer's advertisement: "King-size gallon of ice cream."

Long Lost C-47 Seen On Glacier

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (AP)—U.S. Air Force officials said last night a C-47 missing since last Wednesday has been spotted on a Greenland glacier. Five crewmen and two civilian scientists aboard were reported safe. The plane, equipped with arctic survival equipment, had made an emergency landing after running out of fuel. Search planes located it 200 miles north of its base at Thule, Greenland, Saturday.

Scotland Yard Is Guarding Woman

LONDON (AP)—Scotland Yard assigned a special bodyguard to Mrs. Oliver Lyttelton, wife of Britain's colonial secretary, yesterday following receipt of a letter threatening her with death. British political leaders and newspapers have received letters with similar threats against Queen Elizabeth II if she carries out her plans to visit Spanish-claimed Gibraltar May 10. Prime Minister Churchill's wife also received a threatening letter a week ago.

German Inventor Sees Deterrent To War Coming

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP)—Prof. Herman Oberth, inventor of the German V2 rocket in World War II, believes atomic weapons developed in the next year will be so dangerous no nation will dare start a war. Oberth, honorary president of German Society for Space Research, told the group last night that 12 more months of research will make it possible for rockets loaded with atomic bombs to devastate any spot on earth within 45 minutes. "This means," he said, "that in case of war all big cities of the enemy can be destroyed within two or three hours. Personally, I definitely believe that then no minister will decide himself for a war because he would sign his own death sentence at the same time."

Justice Douglas Continues Hike

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Central North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers unsettled at 22 to mostly 23; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 39-42.

Asheville fryers and broilers steady following 1/2-cent rise at 22 1/2; Asheville eggs steady, A large 37-39.

Along the C&O Canal in Western Maryland (AP)—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and a steadily dwindling party of hiking companions pushed forward today on their 184-mile walk to Washington, D. C.

At the end of their third day's journey lay Fort Frederick State Park and the only night of camping in the open party plans before its scheduled arrival in Washington Saturday.

The group spent last night at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club near Hancock, Md., 37 miles south of Cumberland, Md. where they started out Saturday morning.

Douglas is seeking to demonstrate to two Washington editorial writers, and others who joined the group, that the natural beauties of the government-owned Chesapeake and Ohio Canal would be marred by construction of a proposed federal highway.

His challenge to the editorial writers, who favored the parkway, resulted in the eight-day journey.

In the first day of slogging over muddy trails, and in yesterday's blustery weather which included even a few snow flurries, the expedition shrank from 34 to about 25 who planned to continue today's leg of about 20 miles.

The walking pace also slowed from an average of a little over four miles an hour the first day to three miles an hour yesterday.

Limestone was being liberally applied to sore muscles last night. Most of the nine who quit the party, though, were newsmen, government officials and others who had to get back to other assignments or their regular Monday jobs.

The rugged justice, who relishes outdoor life, showed little sign of fatigue. Charles P. Thomas, the 78-year-old retired mailcarrier from Washington and oldest man in the group, also was going strong.

Turkish Office Of Bank Closes

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—The World Bank branch office in Turkey was "closed for business" today and a secretary packed away the institution's files.

Pieter Liefinck, the bank's Turkish representative left Ankara yesterday by automobile for Damascus, Syria, after his departure was requested by the Turkish government.

Prime Minister Adnan Menderes protested the bank interfered in Turkish economic affairs through Liefinck.

Guy Trancart of Paris, Liefinck's assistant, was not available at the bank's office this morning. His secretary said he too would leave Turkey before the end of March.

Liefinck's office said he would return from Syria at the end of April but only to wind up his private affairs.

Turkish officials offered no comment Monday on Menderes' feud with Liefinck.

Some Turkish informants indicated the prime minister's office regarded it as a personal disapproval of Liefinck rather than of the World Bank itself. This could mean the Turks are anxious or willing to restore normal relationships with this source of international development loans.

World bank officials in Washington said Liefinck in Damascus would make a survey Syria had requested, then return to the United States to report. His departure, the Washington officials said, happened to coincide with Turkey's withdrawal request.

Farmville Firm's Safe Is Robbed

FARMVILLE—Safe crackers struck a Farmville firm Saturday night, ripped open the safe and made off with approximately $50 in cash.

Farmville Police Chief L. T. Lucas said the robbers broke into the building of the Farmville Implement Company through a back window, ransacked the office and broke open the safe.

The robbery was discovered Sunday morning. Chief Lucas said the records in the safe were not stolen. Members of the Farmville Police Department and the Pitt County Sheriff's department are continuing their investigation of the robbery.

Lie Detectors . . . All Over Again

(Continued From Page One) where his subcommittee is going to make this investigation in relation to the personnel of the subcommittee that he should excuse himself as is usually done in courts by judges that have anything to do with the matters before them.

McCarthy said in a statement yesterday he had agreed with Sen. Mundt (R-SD), who will preside over the hearings that he should not vote in any question pertaining to the investigation.

"I shall be a witness," he added, "and I wish to cross examine other witnesses. In all fairness, I feel this right of cross examination should be extended to the Army officials involved."

That was his reaction to a Democratic suggestion that he step off the subcommittee. It was made Saturday night by a subcommittee member, Sen. Symington (D-Mo), who said in a statement that if McCarthy wants to "appear in the triple role of accusing witness as well as prosecutor and judge" the Democrats will carry a fight against such an arrangement to the parent Government Operations Committee.

McCarthy also heads the full committee. Symington said that if McCarthy doesn't step aside as a voting and cross-examining member and is upheld in this role, he will attempt to shift the inquiry to the Senate Armed Services Committee.

He is a member of this group; McCarthy is not. The McCarthy-Army dispute focuses around Secretary Stevens' assertion that McCarthy and his subcommittee's chief counsel, Roy M. Cohn, sought favored Army treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine. Schine was an unpaid consultant to the committee before being drafted.

Cohn disputed that. He and McCarthy joined in accusing Stevens and his aides of trying to "blackmail" the subcommittee into dropping its inquiry into alleged communism in the Army by using Schine as a "hostage." Stevens termed this "fantastic."

Taking note of this in his statement about lie detectors, McCarthy said the issue is "certainly more important than any murder case which, as a (Wisconsin state) judge, I ever tried."

He added that use of a lie detector, which records the physical reaction of a person to questioning, would be possible only if all prospective witnesses were willing. "And I hope they will," he added.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has questioned the reliability of lie detectors and tests made with them are not admissible as evidence in the courts of any state unless they were made voluntarily.

McCarthy has suggested the use of lie detectors in other cases, but no Senate committee has ever adopted such a suggestion.

McCarthy returned to Washington last night from a four-day speaking trip in the Midwest. In his windup talk, at Oklahoma City Saturday night, he said he thinks President Eisenhower "is doing the best job he can (but) I don't think he is a superman." If the President were running for office now, McCarthy said, he would be "compelled" to campaign for him.

Noting that they have had differences, McCarthy said Eisenhower's batting average in office is so much higher than that of any other president in recent years that "there is no comparison."

These were among other developments:

- 1. Two Episcopal Church deans, The Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre Jr., dean of the Washington Cathedral, and The Very Rev. Dr. James A. Pike, dean of St. John the Divine in New York City, exchanged pulpits for denunciations of "McCarthyism."

Both said the American people were responsible for McCarthy's present power, and Sayre said the senator "would be nothing without the active support of what has been estimated to be at least one third of our people."

Pike criticized what he termed the silence of the Roman Catholic hierarchy on the question of McCarthy, a member of that faith.

Pike said "it is not surprising that the Roman Catholic hierarchy, not adverse to taking positions on other moral issues, has been silent on McCarthyism, and that the Roman Catholic papers with huge circulations have been pro-McCarthy in influence."

2. Sen. Ferguson said on the TV interview yesterday that various Senate committee chairmen have indicated they will accept a code of proposed rules for hearings, but that he has not heard from McCarthy on the point. The policy committee which Ferguson heads drew up the suggested rules.

3. Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) on

Coffee Is Given New Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP)—A new round of price increases in wholesale roasted coffee went into effect this morning as several popular brands of vacuum-packed coffee were raised a nickel a pound.

Roasters advancing wholesale prices five cents a pound included General Foods Corp. (Maxwell House) Ehlers, Martinson's, Aborn and Savarin.

The new wholesale prices range from $1.15 a pound for Ehlers to $1.24 for Martinson's.

Back of the new increases was the fact that prices for green coffee from producing countries last week pushed to record levels.

Short-Circuit Believed Responsible

Pictured above is a view of the burned portion of a new home belonging to J. R. Moye. The above photo was taken in the den of the new dwelling. The fire, which started in a hall behind the den, burned completely through the wall separating the hall from the den. It also burned through the ceiling into the second story. Moye stated that the family had planned to move into the new home on April 10. He said that repairs will take from five to six months now, however. (Photo by Roy Hardee)

New Home Badly Colored News

Damaged By Fire

A new home under construction in the Brookgreen section was heavily damaged by fire, believed to have started from a short circuit in the wiring, yesterday morning.

The burned dwelling belongs to J. R. Moye Jr. and is located on West Long Meadow Drive. It had been under construction for some time and was nearly completed.

The blaze which started in the hall of the brick dwelling burned through the ceiling of the first floor of the two-story home into the second floor. The blaze was spotted by a passing motorist.

The alarm was turned in at 10:57 a.m. and firemen reported that the fire was out at 12:55.

Fire Chief George Gardner stated that, as near as he could determine, the blaze started from a short circuit in the wiring of the house. He said that it appeared that a nail had been accidentally driven through an electric wire in the wall when carpenters were finishing the house.

The chief noted, however, that both the electricity and the heating plant in the new house were on.

Gardner stated that the fire was controlled by a high pressure fog truck with a heavy duty pumper standing by. In this way water damage was held to a minimum in the new home, he noted.

Most heavily damaged was the hall-way in which the fire started and a pine paneled den directly in front of the hall.

Part of the second story flooring had to be torn out to reach the blaze and much of the flooring in the house was damaged by heat. In addition walls in other rooms were damaged by smoke and heat.

Moye stated that he had anticipated moving into the new house on April 10. He said that the contractor had stated that it would take five or six months to repair the damage. Moye estimated the loss at between $15,000 and $20,000.

The owner stated that the loss is fully covered by insurance, however.

Firemen were also called to the home of Lawrence Howie at 201 Vance Street Saturday night when a short circuit in the wiring caused smoke. No fire resulted however.
