Biggest Crowd Yet For Farmers Day Festivities

Farmville Lures Thousands

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE—If the local Chamber of Commerce had ordered their weather ready-made from the weather man for yesterday's Farmer's Day they would not have had a more perfect day.

Clear skies and summer weather greeted the thousands of visitors who poured into this town for the biggest Farmer's Day that Farmville has ever held.

They were made welcome by the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, local businesses, and citizens in general with a parade nearly two miles long, speeches, favors, band concerts, a beauty contest, free refreshments, all topped off with a dance at the end of the day.

Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association Secretary Charles S. Edwards said last night that it was the largest Farmer's Day that Farmville had ever held. He said that it was at least a third larger than any previous event both in the number of people who attended and in the money and efforts spent to make the affair a success.

Edwards estimated the number of people who viewed the parade that opened the day at "at least 11,000."

The secretary estimated the length of the parade at one and three-fourths miles. He said that the procession contained 16 floats and 10 bands.

"The Chesterfield float was very outstanding," Edwards said.

He also expressed appreciation to Battery C of the 155th Field Artillery, the National Guard unit from Greenville, for appearing in the parade.

The secretary singled out two Farmville men, Vassar Fields and Jack Tyson, who, he said, built four of the floats that appeared in the parade alone.

Edwards also noted that 34 booths were set up in Monk's Warehouse by businesses in this section.

"We could have sold more," he said, "but that was all the space we had."

He noted particularly that the Kinston DuPont plant had a very elaborate booth in the display.

Edwards said that the plans went off without a hitch.

"I want to express appreciation to everybody who helped and participated in the event," he continued. "It is the largest by far that we have ever had."

Some 28 contestants participated in the contest for the title of "Miss Farmer's Day 1954" that preceded the dance last night. Winner of the title was 15-year-old Miss Sylvia Gardner of Fountain Route 1. She attends Farmville High School and was sponsored by the Farmville Rotary Club. Miss Gardner received a $100 check as first prize plus other gifts.

Winner of second place in the contest was Miss Ellie R. Harrell who was sponsored by the Lions

Lawmakers Talk Of Sending Naval, Air Units Into Indochina Conflict

Intervention In Indochina Feared

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two senators today spoke of the sending of U.S. naval and air units into the Indochinese fighting as a possibility and one said, "It looks to me as if we are on the edge of war there."

Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), who made this estimate in an interview, said, "If we should send in naval and air forces now, it would only bring the Chinese Communists in force and then I don't see how we could avoid sending troops."

The sober comment in Congress followed renewed expressions by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles of the administration's determination that Indochina must not fall to the Communists, and indications from abroad that U. S. allies are not moving as fast as U. S. officials might wish in forming a coalition on defense of Southeast Asia.

Dispatches from London and Paris indicated both British and French leaders might consider the time inopportune and want more details on the "united will" and "united action" Dulles has advocated.

All sides seem to agree that if and when conclusive decisions are reached and some public statement is made it must be not simply another "hands off" warning to the Chinese Reds but an announcement of determination with real teeth. The question at this point is what kind of teeth—should the policy decisions be backed up by naval forces, air forces, ground forces, or some combination of these?

Eisenhower's refusal at his news conference yesterday to spell out probable free world action if the Chinese Communists move in force into Indochina caused some senators to speculate that a program of limited counteraction is in the making.

Among these, Sen. H Alexander Smith (R-NJ) said he sees no need to use U. S. troops in Indochina, but he added in an interview:

"In case of a crisis there, we may need to use naval power and undoubtedly air power. I don't think anything we are doing now contemplates employing American manpower in Asia but quite conceivably it calls for air and naval power."

Smith, who is chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations Far Eastern subcommittee, applauded Eisenhower's call for concerted action by the nations of the free world to prevent an anti-Communist defeat in Indochina and resultant falling-domino collapse of Burma, Thailand, Indonesia and other Southeast Asia nations now outside the Red orbit.

Almost without exception senators who commented agreed with the President's view that the loss of Indochina would turn the U.S. island defensive chain of Japan, Formosa, the Philippines and threaten Australia and New Zealand.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont), a Foreign Relations Committee member, said he had heard reports that the administration intends to take limited action—beyond the present program of furnishing military supplies to the French Union forces—but added "In my opinion there is no such thing as limited action."

"Does Secretary of State Dulles' statement that the Chinese Communists have almost come to the point where we would take massive retaliation against them mean 'almost' for us too?" he asked.

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill), who may be dispatched with Sen. Magnuson (D-Wash) by the Senate Appropriations Committee for a spot check on conditions in Indochina, said he believes the President is right in saying that no outside country can come in and help unless it is doing something that the local people want done.

Dirksen, who has proposed that the French give the Indochinese states, Laos Cambodia and Viet Nam, a "target date for freedom," said the United States ought to crowd the French toward such an action.

On the other hand, Magnuson said he doubts that Indochina is ready for complete independence and believes if this country went too far along that course it might upset a delicate political balance in Paris.

Dispatches from London and Paris indicated that the urgency voiced in Eisenhower's and Dulles' recent statements is not reflected in official pronouncements there, but rather that there is a disposition to see what can be accomplished at the April 26 meeting in Geneva, where Red China, as well as the Soviet Union, will be represented.

Bombing Inquiry Hits Stone Wall

EDENTON, N. C. (AP) — Officers, admittedly stymied, today probed the past life of Mrs. Imogene Cochran, 26 in an effort to pierce the mystery of who left a home made bomb in her car here yesterday. Her husband, William Homer Cochrane Jr. was killed in 1951 when a bomb attached to the starter of his truck exploded.

Police Chief George I. Dail was injured yesterday when the crude bomb found in Mrs Cochrane's car exploded as he carried it into the police station for investigation. Chowan Hospital attendants said he was burned and his hair singed but his condition is not serious.

FBI, state and local officers worked on the theory that a jealous suitor may be behind the bombings. Cochrane, 24, a Mount Airy agriculture teacher, was killed after a charge attached to his pickup truck engine exploded when he started it.

One of his legs was blown off and he died Dec. 31, 1951, 12 hours after the bombing. His death came only a few months after the couple married.

Mrs. Cochrane, Chowan County home demonstration agent, announced this week that she will marry George Alma Byrum, Edenton city councilman and businessman, April 24.

State Bureau of Investiagtion officers questioned the trim, quiet brunette for three hours in her room last night. Two Guy Scott of Winston-Salem and John Edwards of Elkin, had investigated her husband's death.

Agent G. E. Cannady of Kinston said following the questioning that nothing new was learned. "we have no leads," Cannady announced. He said she told him "I don't know who would have that much against me. I have no idea who did it."

Mrs. Cochrane found the crude bomb on the floorboard of her 1950 model car as she started to work. Her landlord, George Hoskins moved it to a vacant lot. The device exploded as Chief Dail carried it through the door of Police headquarters.

Powder and matches were on the bottom of the box, Dail said. Picture frame wire was attached to a flashlight battery fixed so that movement of the box would cause the wires to cross, heating and setting off the charge.

SBI Chief James Powell of raleigh and Police Chief W. H. Cochrane Sr. of Franklin the girl's father-in-law, both said yesterday's bombing could be the lead to solve Cochrane's death.

French Forces Destroy String Of Assault Trenches

Red Vietminh Lines Raided

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—French Union troops, fanning out over a wide area around Dien Bien Phu today destroyed a long string of enemy trenches being built for a fresh assault on the northwest Indochina bastion.

Sixty rebels were killed in the operations, the French said.

A French communique said the garrison defenders again last night had an "easy night" as the Communist-led Vietminh still did not resume their direct infantry assaults on the fortress plain. The rebels halted their second round of such frontal charges Monday after six days of murderous French gunfire and hand-to-hand combat.

But the Vietminh troops kept up their feverish digging of new foxboles and winding trenches within 600 feet of the barbed wire mazes guarding the heart of the French Union stronghold 175 miles west of Hanoi. Observers believed Communist Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap again would send his black-clad legions pouring out in another attempt to overwhelm Dien Bien Phu.

Thunderstorms and rain increased in frequency, heralding the approach by the end of the month of the monsoons. The big seasonal rains annually halt large-scale operations. Time obviously was growing short for the rebels in their try for a big victory before the Geneva conference scheduled to start April 26.

As the main Vietminh force rested up in the hills around Dien Bien Phu, long lines of trucks and coolies still followed the roads and trails from Communist China with ammunition, other war material and rice for the rebel force.

French fighters and American-supplied B-26 bombers kept up their constant attacks on the supply lines.

French army sources said Giap also was rounding up every available man from both regular regiments and guerrilla units for his next assault.

In the vital Red River delta around Hanoi, the French Union forces again were kept busy beating off ambushes and sabotage attempts on lines of transport and thinly manned Vietnamese militia posts.

In Saigon, the French high command claimed that its Operation Atlante, along the coast of Viet Nam, had cost the Vietminh 1,445 killed, wounded and captured.

Two hundred weapons were taken and 150,000 Vietnames now are supporting local governments installed by the French, the latter said.

Vietminh raiders in Laos struck today at Moulapomok, on the Mekong River just north of the Cambodian border without inflicting serious damage.

Moulapamok is 60 miles northwest of Voeune Sai, where the Vietminh struck in some force several days ago.

Hearing To Open In Thirteen Days

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trial lawyer Ray H. Jenkins had orders today to be ready to launch 13 days from now public Senate hearings aimed at finding the truth in the McCarthy-Army row.

Jenkins, a 57-year-old grandfather from Knoxville, Tenn., took the job of special counsel yesterday with a public pledge to fulfill it with "no prejudice, no bias."

"I have no record, publicly or otherwise, as to Sen. McCarthy or what has come to be known as McCarthyism," he told a news conference.

As special counsel to the Senate investigations subcommittee, he said, he intends to dig for and present the facts in the bitter charges involving McCarthy and high Army officials "without any favoritism, in as fair and impartial a manner as I know how."

An Army report has accused McCarthy (R-Wis) and two of his aides of seeking favored treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine, a drafted former associate. McCarthy disputed that and said Army officials sought to "blackmail" him into dropping a search for subversives in the Army. The Army denies that.

Jenkins, who looks far younger than his age, succeeds Samuel P. Sears, a Boston lawyer previously selected by the subcommittee but whose name was never officially entered on the payroll.

Sees Nothing Sinister In H-Bomb Work Delay

By RUSSELL BRINES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. W. Sterling Cole says he knows of nothing sinister in the fact that high officials debated for months before deciding to press work on the hydrogen bomb, a weapon the government says is due for "greatly increased production."

Cole, New York Republican who heads the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, recalled last night that full-scale work on the weapon was not decided upon until four months after Russia's first explosion in 1949 of an atomic bomb of the conventional type.

"This fact is not of itself sinister," he said "nor does it imply that those who opposed the President's final decision were motivated by a desire to lessen our military strength."

He conceded that events have proved he was wrong in urging against the decision to go ahead with the superbomb.

Other present and former officials said they had no knowledge of any 18-month delay in the H-bomb project mentioned by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) on a nationwide television broadcast Tuesday night.

McCarthy said there was a deliberate delay, and he asked: "If there were no Communists in our government why did we delay?"

President Eisenhower told his news conference he has never heard of such a delay.

Former President Truman, who made the decision to proceed with the H-bomb in early 1950, said in Kansas City, "The order was issued as soon as the scientists were ready to go to work." The first announced hydrogen explosion occurred 34 months later, in November 1952.

Sumner T. Pike, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission at the time, said in Augusta, Maine, he didn't know what McCarthy was talking about and he added of the senator: "I suppose as he frequently does he is just throwing mud and hoping some of it will stick." Pike is a Republican.

As for the current status of the H-bomb, AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee yesterday that "greatly increased production of thermonuclear weapons"—those popularly called hydrogen bombs—account for increased spending in the next fiscal year.

Operating costs will rise by 427 million dollars to $1,262,000,000, Strauss said, and he added:

"Virtually the entire increase occurs in the cost of producing uranium and of producing weapons and weapons materials."

More Shooting On Israeli Border

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP)—A new shooting incident was reported today on the Israeli-Egyptian border.

An Israeli army spokesman said Egyptians fired across the border at an Israeli patrol on frontier duty near the settlement of Nirim and the patrol returned the fire. There were no Israeli casualties.

A minor case of livestock rustling also was reported. An Israeli spokesman said a cow and a mule were stolen from an Israeli settlement in the Negeb Desert near the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip and tracks led to the border.

The ten bands appearing in the Farmer's Day parade feature many majorettes. Above is one of the majorettes as she led her band down the main street of Farmville. The procession, which was nearly two miles long, also included 16 floats. From beginning to end the parade lasted approximately one hour. (Other Farmer's Day pictures on Page 16).

North Carolina Needs 6,000 More Teachers, Reports Dr. Carroll

By BOB BOYETTE
Reflector Staff Writer

"We have a well prepared teaching faculty in North Carolina's public schools, but due to an increase in school population we need 6,000 more teachers," Dr. Charles Carroll, Superintendent of North Carolina Public Instruction told the Pitt County teachers at a dinner meeting in Winterville last night.

Dr. Carroll, talking to the teachers at the annual Pitt-North Carolina Education Association banquet, said that more buildings are also needed to compensate for the increase in school population since World War II.

He said North Carolina needed more buildings in 1902, needed more in 1919, and will still need more in the future. "We have come a long way in getting more buildings, but we still have a long way to go," he asserted.

With reference to the good teaching faculty in North Carolina, Dr. Carroll said that only four states in the Union have better prepared elementary teachers than does this State. "In North Carolina 93, percent of the elementary teachers have at least four years of college training."

Turning to high school preparedness, the superintendent said, "Ninety-seven and one-half percent of the teachers in high schools in this state have four years of college, but with that high figure we still rank behind 22 other states."

Enrollment Still Increasing

Dr. Carroll pointed out that since the war school enrollment has increased rapidly and is still increasing by about 30,000 children each year. Breaking this 30,000 down, the superintendent said about 23 or 24 thousand are natural births while 1,500 imigrate to the state and about 5,000 are due to the holding power of our school system.

"Only four states have proportionately more children than North Carolina. We have 950,000 enrolled today and we will hit the million mark in 1957," he continued, "and now North Carolina ranks seventh in school population and eleventh in total population."

Compliments Teachers

In another compliment to North Carolina teachers Dr. Carroll gave an illustration of how a speaker at Columbia University told a group that teachers in the western part of this country came "as near to North Carolina teachers as any I have ever seen."

"He evidently must have been using North Carolina teachers as a yard stick," the superintendent declared.

Prior to concluding his talk Dr. Carroll told the teachers that business men are looking to education as they have never looked before since people have a standard of living comparable to their degree of education, and a high standard means more buying of goods.

Conley Introduces Speaker

Pitt County School Superintendent D. H. Conley introduced the speaker. Prior to introducing Dr. Carroll the county superintendent thanked this year's Pitt NCEA officers for their work and complimented the Winterville Christian Church women for the meal prepared last night.

He also introduced the special guests at the supper. Included in the list of guests were Dr. Paul Jones, North Carolina Senator from Farmville; S. O. Worthington and Frank Kilpatrick, members of the N. C. House of Representatives; Pitt Board of Education Chairman Joseph S. Moye; Board of Education members Earl Trevathan and Alton Gardner; Pitt County Commissioner Marvin Smith; and members of the County Auditor's Staff, Reginald Gray, Rosa Exum, and Sammye Langley.

New Officers Installed

After Dr. Carroll's talk outgoing Pitt NCEA chairman Paul J. Clarke of Winterville called on Pitt County School Supervisor Mrs. Edna Earle Baker to install the incoming officers.

Mrs Baker read poems and presented roses to both the outgoing and incoming officers of the NCEA. The incoming officers included Mrs. Evelyn Bullock, president; Garlan Bailey, first vice-president; and Mrs. Irma Worthington, second vice-president.

Mrs. Bullock then thanked the members of the NCEA for electing her and presented Dr. Carroll with a gift for coming to Pitt County for the annual banquet.

In her remarks, Mrs. Bullock told the audience that saying "I do" when taking the oath of office yesterday reminded her of saying the same words 20 years ago to the day when she got married.

Hawaii Is Topic For Club Program

The Sans Souci Book Club had a most delightful meeting with Mrs. W. L. Best at her home on Evans Street Tuesday afternoon, April 6.

A large number of members were present and Mesdames J. B. Spilman, W. H. Howard and Hinton Best were guests for the afternoon.

Lovely arrangements of spring flowers were placed throughout the rooms and hall.

After routine business Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale, president, turned the meeting over to Mrs. J. T. Cheatham who charmingly entertained the club and guests with a delightful account of her trip to Hawaii. She flew out and was met there by her husband who had been in the Orient on business. Mrs. Cheatham prefaced her talk with the words of Mark Twain: "The Loveliest fleet of Islands that lies anchored in any ocean." Her descriptions of "the amazing spectacles the Land of Creation has left to be seen on each Island," the peaceful, happy, friendly Polynesian charm of the people living in a modern American community, maintaining the highest standards of living, where the mellow climate is regarded as one of the finest in the world.

The fabulous hotels, entertainment, exotic flowers and fruits, music, snow-capped mountains and the blue of the Pacific were graphically described in her enthusiasm over these beautiful Islands.

Mrs. Cheatham returned to San Francisco on the S. S. Lurline and spent several days there enroute home.

She passed around photographs and menus and closed her talk with "Serenade of the Islands," one of the many beautiful records she brought back.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Hinton Best, served a delicious chicken salad plate with home-made cakes and coffee.

Passion Play Presented As A Spiritual Preparation For Easter

Rehearsals for the Passion Play which is to be presented next week have been held nightly this week. More than 60 persons are cast as characters in the production, in addition to a chorus of 40 or more voices which will provide the musical background.

The play, sponsored by St. James Methodist Church, will be given in Wright Auditorium at East Carolina College for four consecutive nights, beginning on Wednesday, April 14. The church offers the production to the community as a spiritual preparation for the Easter season. It is an adaptation of the world-famous Oberammergau play, and the cast has been at work for more than three months preparing for the parts which each will portray.

Perry White, who is cast in the role of the Christus, is the leading figure in the moving drama. Others who play major roles include Clark Stokes as Peter, James Vinci as Judas, Lloyd Bray as John, Douglas Mitchell as Caiaphas, Harry Forbes as Sadok, Wyatt Highsmith as Annas, Ed Conway at Nicodemus, and Ward James as Pilate.

There are a number of women in the cast, among whom are Mrs. David Whichard as Judith, a staunch defender of the Christus before the Sanhedrin, Margaret Johnston as Mary, the mother of the Christus, and Patsy Smith as Mary Magdalene. Six children, Sandra Forbes, Frances Moseley, Ruth Clark, Linda Davenport, George Harvey and Mary Louise Berry, take part in one scene and add realism to the production.

In addition to the above named individuals, there are many other speaking parts for people who are disciples, friends of the Christus, soldiers of the Sanhedrin, members of the Roman army, Pharisees and Jewish citizens.

Approximately 200 people have had a part in the preparation of the play. Script writers have been at work for months, and those in charge of the scenery and the stage props have been painting and building sets for several weeks. Francis Lee Neel of the art department of East Carolina is in overall charge of painting the backdrops, while Harold Bowers and George Tyndall are in charge of the construction of some of the props. The costumes, under the supervision of Mrs. James T. Keel and Mrs. V. C. Fleming Jr., have been ordered from a professional costumer, while many of the stage properties have been rented also.

J. A. Withey, head of the drama department of East Carolina College, adapted and is directing the religious play. He is assisted by Mamie Chandler of the Wesleyan Student Center. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, head of the music department of the college, is choir director, while Dan E Vornholt is associate musical director. George E. Perry is organist.

J. Malloy Owen, pastor of St. James Church, will give the prologue which precedes many of the 20 scenes which compose the drama.

Why These Three Weeks Of Delay?

It has been more than three weeks since autopsies were performed on the bodies of two Pitt County men whose deaths have been enshrohded with mystery.

The body of William Henry Williams who had been missing for about three weeks was found in Tar river several miles below Greenville on March20, and according to officers was immediately sent away for an autopsy.

A. G. Witherington died in Duke Hospital on March 23 from what was reported a blow on the head allegedly received in connection with an attempted theft of slot machines from the Greenville Elks Club. In that case too, an autopsy was immediately ordered.

According to local law enforcement officers, they have been waiting impatiently for three weeks for final reports on those autopsies to be handed over to them; but as late as yesterday afternoon, they said no such reports had been received.

Officers have maintained the fact the reports have not been forthcoming sooner has handicapped them in their investigation of the cases. It is certainly feasible that the findings in those autopsy reports would give officers more concrete information with which to work in their investigation of the cases.

Why so long a delay in getting back these two autopsy reports in the mysterious deaths of the two men?

The delay in the reports certainly leaves much to be desired. There should be some method, either through local efforts or through state law enforcement agencies, to prevent such long, unnecessary delays in the receipt of reports which are so vital to positive, aggressive law enforcement.

If foul play were involved in the deaths of either of the two men, the alleged delay in receipt of the autopsy reports would allow ample time for slim clues to the solution of the deaths to vanish into thin air.

First, Make Sure We'll Have The Pools

Where to locate the two new swimming pools which have been proposed for Greenville seems to be the principal hold-up now in setting a date for the bond election which will assure or kill the proposed project.

Members of the City Council and the Recreation Commission have been considering possible sites for the two pools for several months. At the meeting of the City Council last week the matter of the location of the Negro pool was discussed at length. It is likely that the matter will also be discussed again at the meeting this week.

Obviously the locations of the two pools are important factors; but in our opinion they are not the paramount factors involved.

As we understand it, the matter of locations of the pools is to be decided in the final analysis by the City Council. Certainly the pools should be well located where they will give the greatest service to the greatest number of citizens of the community in the long run. However, we do not feel that it is necessary for the final decision on the locations of the pools to be made before the date of an election on the question of a bond issue for the pools to be set.

In almost any reasonable locations, the new swimming pools will be a great asset to the city of Greenville. We believe the voters of Greenville realize the need for the pools overshadows any factional squabble about the location of the white pool or the Negro pool.

There may be some citizens who favor a specific location for the white pool while others are of the opinion another location would be better. The same thing applies to the location of the Negro pool.

It has already been decided that the bond issue for the pools and other recreation facilities will be set at $250,000. Current estimates indicate approximately $200,000 will be earmarked for the pools and the remainder of the money for "other recreation facilities."

There is little need, it seems to us, to worry a great deal about the location of the pools until after the bond issue referendum is voted on by the citizens of Greenville. If the bond issue is approved by voters, there will be ample time to decide the location of the pools. If the bond issue is defeated, determining locations for the pools will be unnecessary.

Lets find out first whether the citizens are willing for the city to float a $250,000 bond issue to provide pools and other recreation facilities. It will expedite the matter, and propably prevent needless controversy.

NATURE OF PRAYER

Prayer is real. It works.

Jesus was the Son of God and the only perfect human being that ever lived. He found prayer necessary. How much more, therefore, do we need prayer.

Prayer was one of the chief themes of our Lord's teaching. He seemed to regard prayer as even more essential to his spiritual life than food was to his physical life. The harder he worked, the more he prayed. The night before he chose the twelve apostles, he spent the entire night in prayer. On one occasion his disciples were so evidently impressed by the form and power of his praying that they besought him to teach them to pray, as John had taught his disciples. While he was praying on the Mount of Transfiguration, the fashion of our Lord's countenance was altered, and his body became luminous and respendent with heavenly light.

This was what prayer meant to him. He tried to pass on to his disciples a sense of the importance and privilege of prayer. He made it plain that prayer must always be sincere, that it must be uttered with as much trust as one can muster up. It must be unselfish, continuous, passionate.

Prayer has certain unyielding requirements. When these requirements are met, things begin to happen. Prayer works.

Germ Warfare Preparedness

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The latest studies and developments in "germ warfare" disclose that the United States leads possible enemies in offensive and defensive preparations against this threat, which is reported to be valued by Moscow as a more formidable weapon of world conquest than A or H bombs.

There are still great gaps in our protection against biological warfare. They result chiefly from the general population's ignorance of and disregard for this kind of destruction of human, animal and food plant life—a problem which Federal Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson finds difficult to remedy without causing undue alarm.

He urges all state, city and county officials, as well as physicians, nurses and other public health personnel, to write for his technical manual on this subject. It would be advisable, too, for individuals to obtain it. The document may be bought for 20 cents from the U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

REDS WORKING FEVERISHLY ON FIELDS—Meanwhile, military and scientific experts at a Maryland laboratory outside the Capital are preparing for both the use of biological warfare and defense against it. They have definite knowledge that prospective enemy nations are working as feverishly in this field as in that of nuclear energy.

As expressed by Major General E. F. Bullene in a recent issue of the Armed Forces Chemical Journal, "Germs, not generals, may win the next war." General Bullene retired as Chief Chemical Officer of the Defense Department a week ago.

Writing in the same magazine, Dr. John J. Phair gives all the details about this untried and untested form of warfare that national security permits. He has been a consultant on this subject to the Department of Defense, the Federal Public Health Administration and Federal Civil Defense. He helped to prepare the C. D.'s manual on this unknown enemy.

MOST INSIDIOUS DANGER—They point out that almost every kind of disease, infection and pest can be delivered against man, animals and plants by artillery shells, airplane bombs and spray generators, subs and surface craft, and by sabotage. In their opinion, the most insidious danger is from inconspicuous sabotage rather than from an aerial fleet dropping toxic stuff.

Full-scale civilian defense is almost impossible. For one thing, immunization (vaccination) of the whole population is not practicable. Secondly, there is no general overall antitoxin ("polyvalent" is the technical term) against an unknown combination of hostile germs. Moreover, many people are allergic to even the simplest kind of vaccination.

Another vulnerability factor is the delay and difficulty in detecting and identifying the actual germ (disease) which the enemy has used. Routine sampling of possibly contaminated air, water, milk, foods and growing crops may take days, weeks or months. Principal safeguard is the prompt reporting of suspicious epidemics, or of unusual absenteeism in schools, factories, public offices, churches, social organizations, etc.

U. S. MOST IMPREGNABLE—The United States is more impregnable than possible enemies against germ warfare, but not because of any specific military or scientific defense. Our strength lies in our advanced system of public health, city, county, state and Federal, and in our fine medical and nursing personnel. Another safeguard is our people's general knowledge of personal cleanliness and hygiene.

In Communist Russia, China and satellite countries, the medical and sanitary knowledge, personnel and facilities are relatively primitive. They would be far more helpless against a biological attack, which means that they may never dare to engage in this kind of lethal warfare against civilians.

SCARE STORIES REFUTED—General Bullene refutes Sunday supplement and magazine "scare" stories to the effect that a ton of mustard gas can kill a million people. It is true that there are a million death doses in a ton, provided a million people stood still and subjected themselves to injections. But statistics show that it took a ton of mustard gas to kill one soldier in World War I.

General Bullene relies most heavily on our advances in sanitation and preventive medicine. The London plague of 1664, he notes, required six months to cross from one side of the city to the other. It was a year before it reached its peak, with 70,000 deaths. Had the American system of sanitation, prevention and treatment existed, he says that the plague would have been stamped out quickly with little or no loss of life.

Nevertheless, it would be wise to spend 20 cents for Val Peterson's anti-germ warfare manual.

Wire Tapping Law?

Somebody Told Me

It's The People In Greenville

The Florida columns of late have brought a violent protest! And it's a pleasant type of protest. Kenneth Baker of Frank Brown's City Plumbing Company has set me straight. He was born and raised near Tarpon Springs, Fla., only a few miles from where we were on the Florida vacation.

"I just want you to know," he said on the phone last night, "that I'd far rather be in Greenville than down there any day!"

Kenneth came to Greenville to visit his brother-in-law, Lyman Eason, back in 1945. He liked it so well here that he went to work for the Greenville Utilities. In 1947 he decided to try Florida again.

His jaunt down there lasted five months only. "I knew by that time that Greenville was the place for me."

It couldn't be the weather that's the attraction here, I figured, so I asked Kenneth exactly what it was. That, I should have known without asking.

"It's the people here in Greenville," he said with emphasis.

"Down there it just seems for some reason that the people vary from day to day. But in Greenville the people are more the same day after day, and I just like Greenville people better."

"That's what I like to hear," I told Kenneth. But he did admit that the fishing down there was much better than it is here. Wish he could have told me where the Florida fish were; that is, other than in the Gulf of Mexico.

Business down there is even more seasonable than here, Kenneth says. The tourist trade governs some of it and the harvesting of fruit trees determines the rest.

Kenneth still goes back down to Florida once a year, to visit his folks. But that's enough for him. The old saying that there's no place like home doesn't apply to him. It took people like we have here in Greenville to win him over from the old home place.

Dave Proctor also told me that I could have his part of Florida. The fact remains, we had a pleasant vacation down there. And another fact remains: As far as we are concerned, there is no place like home.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

SHOULD PRESS OR READER DECIDE ON TRUTH

(Florida Times Union

In Japan a 39-year-old office worker tried to bite a dog. American newspapers, true to the old facetious definition of what makes news, carried the story.

While "Man Bites Dog" points out that the unusual is almost always noteworthy, the press in general over the years has adhered to a broader and somewhat less bizarre scale of news values. Essentially, this rule prescribes that a story has news value in direct proportion to the number of people who will be interested in it. This determines the degree of prominence given to each item in the daily paper.

General pursuit of this policy doesn't bring a uniform press, however—far from it. Some publications hold that the public's "interest" lies in the matters which will affect the lives of the greatest number of individuals. These, therefore, feature news of international happenings, politics, economics, education, science, the arts, and other categories of lasting significance.

Other dailies, particularly in larger cities, define the public interest as "What the people want to read about." These, then, will give top prominence to the more lurid, attention-getting accounts of crime, violence, and disaster. Though not widely admired, the world's two largest newspapers fall in this category.

The last few years, however have presented, the nation's press with a new problem, an issue that gains in importance almost daily. The art of the false statement and half-truth has won a large body of practitioners among public spokesmen, particularly holders of public office.

With this increasing flow of partisan information, a greater degree of interpretation and evaluation is needed to place events in their proper perspective. The current concern over Communist infiltration of the government is a good example.

Should this interpretation and evaluation be undertaken by the press, or should the individual reader be expected to discern the truth for himself in statements reported at face value? As things stand today, the latter attitude prevails. Many, however, feel such a policy often arouses undue alarm among the people, and that newspapers should display information in proportion to its "true" significance.

This would be the ideal situation. In the midst of such confusion, however, few can agree on the forms that truth assumes.

Advisability Of Special Traffic Courts Long Debated

By LYNN NISBET

TRAFFIC COURTS — The advisability of establishing special traffic courts with exlusive jurisdiction over violations of the highway safety code has been debated for years. Several States have such courts, and in many others —including North Carolina—common practice is to set aside one day or part of a day solely for hearing traffic cases.

Former motor Vehicles Commissioners Boddie Ward and Landon Rosser looked with favor on the traffic court idea, and incumbent Commissioner Ed Scheidt has been studying the matter ever since coming to the post last summer. More significantly, the Judicial Council is known to have tentatively discussed the subject. Information is that the Council has not gotten around to serious consideration of the complex problems involved.

ARGUMENTS — Arguments favoring the idea are that a full time sitting court with exclusive jurisdiction over traffic violations would contribute to highway safety by speeding up trials and taking incompetent drivers off the roads promptly. The assurance of trial before a judge well versed in traffic laws would tend to discourage postponements and delays and would preclude necessity of traffic officers hanging around court rooms for hours or days waiting to be called to the witness stand. It is further argued that certainty of punishment for the guilty is a more effective deterrent than severity of punishment at some problematic future date.

Then, too, the existing court system frequently denies to accused motorists the "speedy and public trial" guaranteed by the Federal constitution. The State constitution declares that remedy against unlawful deprivation of liberty "ought not to be denied or delayed."

IMPRACTICAL — Attorney General Harry McMullan points out that the idea of courts with exclusive jurisdiction over traffic violations is impractical for a number of reasons, and probably would not afford the relief desired or claimed for them. While the delay might be less than under the present system, it still would be impossible to have a competent traffic judge on hand at the scene of every violation.

Nearly all traffic violations involved transgression of other laws. It is difficult sometimes to separate the offenses of drunken driving and public drunkenness; to take the element of assault out of collisions; or the element of trespass out of many accidents. Undoubtedly there would arise numerous pleas of double jeopardy if a man tried in a traffic court on one charge were hailed into another court for trial on another count growing out of the same incident.

REORGANIZATION — McMullan speaks for a large group of people who think solution of the problem is more likely to be found in complete overhauling of the system of courts inferior to the Superior Court, with particular emphasis on justices of the peace.

The justice of peace situation in North Carolina is very much like Mark Twain said about the weather. "Everybody talks about it, but nobody does anything about it." The matter has been before every General Assembly for the past 30 years at least in some form.

As chairman of North Carolina Bar Association committees and members of the Legislature, Jim MacClamroch of Greensboro, Frank Winslow of Rocky Mount and Jack McMullan of Edenton and Oscar Richardson of Monroe, have fought valiantly for JP reform.

HANG—OVER — Efforts of these and others to revamp the JP system have been blocked largely because of the hang-over prestige of the old time country 'Squire, the township magistrate who was the arbiter of all difficulties, the friend and counselor of every citizen. The only relationship those fine old fellows—of whom there are very few left—had with the present day average justice of the peace was the title of the office. Even the recurring Legislatures which refused to change the system declined to give the new models very much larger jurisdiction.

SOLUTION — The attorney general thinks that reform in the justice of peace statutes, greatly reducing the number of magistrates and tightening provisions for their election or appointment, and substantially increasing the jurisdiction of the fewer left, would go a long way toward solving the traffic court problem and many others in the criminal code.

That idea has been casually presented to the Judicial Council. Experiences in past Legislatures discourages active promotion of the plan by outsiders, and may influence the Council to devote its energies to more important (?) matters such as judicial redistricting and rule-making powers.

There is, however, fast growing sentiment for more adequate inferior court handling of traffic cases. There is the possibility that sentiment may be potent enough to force action by the next or an early session of the General assembly.

Worth Noting

BACKWARD LOOK

A friend who is in the habit of thumbing old magazines turned up a "model" list of rules for employes of drygoods stores, published in an 1888 Harper's. Most concerned themselves with opening and closing hours (14 hours apart) and the dusting and display of merchandise, but three rules of 1888 were of particular interest:

(1) The employe, who is in the habit of smoking cigars, being shaved at the barbers, going to dances and other places of amusement will assuredly give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty.

(2) Each employe must pay not less than $5 per year to the church, and must attend Sunday School regularly.

(3) Men employes are given one evening a week for courting, two if they go to prayer meeting. Carroll Goughey in Little Rock Gazette.

MONTPELIER, VT., EVENING ARGUS: "No one would be happier than Soviet Russia if the Catholics, Protestants and Jews of the United States could be brought to hate and distrust one another. It is a foremost objective of the Communists to stir up antagonisms and sow seeds of discord among the major religious groups."

Business Today

Changes In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

The constant change in the pattern and texture of the population is of considerable importance to every line of business today; a lack of understanding of the direction of these changes can seriously affect the future prosperity of almost any enterprise.

Every businessman knows that the population—hence the number of prospective customers—is increasing, and almost all are aware that the proportion of very young and very old is rising and will ocntinue to rise for some time. Those trends are very important. But there are a number of others that affect both business and the broad population trends.

One of these is the change in ratio of workers. The National Planning Association calculates that for every 100 workers in 1870 there were 200 nonworkers; by 1900 the ratio was 100 to 161 and by 1952 the ratio was 100 to 135. Incidentally, that is one of the contributing reasons to our high standard of living; an amazingly high percentage of people are producing.

Another significant change is in the nature of occupations. The National Association of Real Estate Boards has computed that out of every 100 workers in 1910, 21 were white-collar workers. Today, 37 out of every 100 are. The number of foremen and skilled workers per hundred rose from 12 to 14; the number of agricultural workers fell from 31 to 12; the number of semiskilled rose from 15 to 28; the number of labors dropped from 14 to 6 and the number of servants from 7 to 3.

The Association points out that this demonstrates that the percentage of prospects for home ownership among employed people has risen tremendously. That is only part of the story; the percentage of prospects for automobiles, appliances, fine clothes and what do you sell, buddy? have also risen.

These changes, while of importance to all businessmen, are of less significance to merchants than other types: The changes that take place in their area of activity. It matters not that the birthrate is rising if the territory an establishment serves is changing into a factory or a rooming-house neighborhood; the national trends in employment mean little compared with trends in the home town.

Keeping abreast of local indexes—employment, bank clearings, postal receipts, building permits, new incorporations, etc—can help a merchant to plan his ordering and promotions. It is also a good idea from time to time to tour the territory from which customers are drawn. A tour by auto is good, but doing it by foot is better and ringing a few doorbells and asking questions can make it even more valuable.

FISH CATCHES DROP HIGHER PRICES COMING

Anybody seen a lot of fish? Not just one fish, not in a market, but a lot of fish in the ocean?

The falling off in catches of tuna, salmon and sardines—the three most valuable sea harvests—is puzzling scientists and threatening the financial resources of fishers and canners. Last year was poor and this year has started out worse.

Overfishing is usually blamed. The government has curbed salmon fishing and canners are talking about voluntary curbs on tuna and on both Maine and California sardines. But even the smallest limits proposed are still far below what the catches were last year.

We'd Miss Old Routine Most, If

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — What would you miss most if civilization were destroyed?

None of us alive, from a baby in its cradle to wise old Winston Churchill, can say for sure whether the world stands in twilight or at the edge of a great dawn. Nobody knows. Nobody.

The odds are strong that there will be another war, simply because the tribes of mankind have fought more than 1,000 wars in a brief time on earth . . . because there is a war going on right now. . .because there never has been a lasting universal peace.

As an incurable optimist, I do not find the prospect of being hit between the eyes by a hydrogen bomb any more terrifying than the possibility of being struck by lightning. The real tragedy behind the use of atomic energy in war would be, not the mass slaughter it could cause, or the death of cities, but that this same power, wisely employed, might bring a happier day for millions. You can't say that of a machine gun. Death is its purpose.

Pessimists fear that an atomic war would wipe out mankind. That's not likely, unless some scientist finds a way to set a match to this earth we dream and scheme on and turns it into a minor fireball in the sky. Men lived in caves before, and if the nations start tossing hydrogen bombs around like firecrackers, some men would still crawl out of the caves alive when the explosions ceased.

The intricate civilization we live in now, however, could well become a casualty-and set man kind back on its haunches a couple of hundred years, giving us the problem of making the long painful crawl from darkness back to the half-light again.

What would you miss most if civilization were destroyed in your own lifetime? What do you really value in it? What would you yearn for most again, if you were suddenly forced back into a half-savage condition, fighting fiercely for food, shelter and safety?

There are so many things. My wife and I were talking this over the other night, and Frances said:

"Well, at least there's one thing you wouldn't miss-the daily rut you complain about."

The daily rut? I fell to thinking. What was the daily rut?

It was going to work, of course, and the long voyage home on the bus-to a nice meal at the end. It was a pleasant place to live in, and bills, bills, bills. It was income taxes, and teaching the baby a new game. It was the music of Beethoven, and a braying comedian on the radio.

Such a mixed-up rut. It was coughing in a fog, and being flooded by the moon on a summer night. It was worrying why friends sometimes act like half-enemies, enemies like half-friends, then getting a kind note from a complete stranger. It was a sense of getting older, and the youthful feeling that comes with spring.

Vacationing at the beach, sweating in the subway. . .buying a new suit, breaking an old shoelace. . .losing yourself at a wonderful new musical, finding yourself at the funeral of someone who couldn't afford to die. . . being bored at a banquet, window shopping at Christmas time. . . wine at night, aspirin in the morning. . .feeling sorry for a dwarf, admiring the Empire State Building. . .working and resting. . .and always wondering, wondering, wondering.

The daily rut? Suddenly it seemed infinitely precious to me—a channel between dead regrets and new opportunities.

Why, what is civilization but the collection of all our daily ruts, and the chance to plow fresh ones? Anything that destroyed our civilization would destroy them, the patterns we live by.

And that is what the average man would miss most—the daily rut he secretly loves and so often rebels against.

Mealtime, Let Junior Join In Talk

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

Did you ever sit at a dinner table where a foreign language you couldn't understand was spoken?

It's an unpleasant experience, especially if you know the people present CAN speak English. First you are bored, then perhaps you become worried that things are being said about you.

That's the way a child feels when the dinner table conversation is all over his head.

A child is apt not to be as polite as you might be under similar circumstances. He feels uncomfortable and left out and is pretty apt to "do something" to improve the situation from his point of view.

Young Pat discovered that slouching in his chair, messing with his food and not eating were quite successful methods of attracting adult attention.

Mother interrupted Daddy to tell Pat to eat, then Daddy began scolding Pat for being so sloppy. Pat didn't especially like being scolded but even scolding was better than just not being noticed at all.

Pat also discovered that if he did what Mother and Daddy told him to do — eat his meal decently — that the grownups went back to their big talk and he began feeling mean all over again. The only way Pat knew to be part of the family was to act so that he got scolded.

If the children are coming to the family table it is only courteous to include them in the conversation. Mother and Dad can wait until later to discuss politics or business or what have you.

Nowhere in a household is the atmosphere of family life more obvious than around the dinner table.

A family that comes to the table, happy, hungry (and relatively clean), and sits down to good food and pleasant talk, has one of the priceless blessings of this world.

Save up little anecdotes of the day — mother's run-in with the grocer, the little boy with the huge dog. Dad saw this morning. Encourage the children to relate their day's events. If your supply runs out, read up on a few "little moron" stories or other jokes to tell.

Then there are always games to play: "I'm thinking of something red and round. . ." Watch what a difference it makes in your children. Good food disappears down eager mouths when children are happy. No nagging about "eat your carrots". In fact, a good rule is "no remarks about the food except nice ones."

A child who is bored at the table is apt to act up in order to relieve his boredom. A child who is only spoken to at the table to be told to eat this or that, will dawdle and not eat, so that someone will notice him and talk to him. If he is happy and interested, the chances are the food will go down without any comment. He doesn't NEED to act badly.

Nature Conspires To Prolong Beauty Of N. C. Wood Flowers

RALEIGH, — Nature has conspired to prolong the season of beauty in wood flowers this year at the possible expense of greater beauty for a shorter time.

In the eastern and piedmont areas the red bud or Judas trees are approaching full flower. Dogwood buds are just beginning to swell. In the mountains both species are in early budding stage.

That means travelers through the North Carolina countryside probably will not have this year the gorgeous spectacle of the pink-lavender Judas blooms in combination with the white dogwood against the background of perpetual greens pines and azure skies.

They will have for a longer period the separate showings of color and the variegated hues of newly forming leaves, which are as diverse though not quite so brilliant in coloring as the autumn woods.

The exquisite beauty of the azaleas around Wilmington and the later exhibition of laurel and rhododendron in the mountains is almost equaled by peach blossoms in the sandhills. And it is difficult to conceive a more satisfying sight than the rolling hills of the piedmont, just now carpeted with ankle-high wheat in the fields and bountiful grass in the enclosed pastures; with nearly every yard around the neat farm homes showing borders of thrift and phlox in all the pastel shades.

In fact, nothing can be finer than to be in Carolina in the morning and the afternoon.

Stokes Ruritan Hears Patrolman

In a talk to the Stokes Ruritan Club last night local State Highway Patrolmen asked the members of the club to cooperate with the Highway Patrol in an effort to cut down on accidents and deaths in Pitt County.

Patrolman Boykin showed pictures of Pitt wrecks and told the club members that they should set an example to the people they contact daily by talking and selling safety.

He also asked the audience to set an example of good driving to their children and to keep their car in good mechanical condition.

After Boykin completed his talk the club voted to help sponsor a livestock show in Greenville this Spring. It was also voted to finance a trip to Washington for a Stokes High School student.

Prior to the adjournment of the meeting a number was drawn from a hat and an attendance prize consisting of a set of wrenches was presented to the lucky ticket holder. Patrolman Boykin held the lucky number.

The room was very attractively decorated with mixed vases of spring flowers. The center of the appointed table had a beautiful arrangement of white iris, narcissus and fern. At each end of the table were epergnes containing white burning tapers which were tied with green tulle.

Mrs. Briley, the former Miss Sherre Latham, was presented a lovely corsage of pink camellias tied with white ribbon. Mrs. W. C. Latham greeted the guests and introduced them to the receiving line.

Mrs. R. C. Young poured the punch and other refreshments were bridal cakes, green and white mints, and pecans. At the register was Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr. and at the gift table was Mrs. Franklin Whitehurst.

The couple received many nice and useful gifts. There were approximately 100 who called during the night.

McCarthy Sees Some Progress In Finding Communists

Editor's Note — Sen. Joseph McCarthy, in an interview with two veteran Associated Press reporters, was asked about his campaign to dig out Communists. Here is an up-to-date statement of the senator's views.

By JACK BELL
and RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph McCarthy says "a sizable number" of the 81 he listed in a Senate speech four years ago as Communists or fellow travelers in the State Department "have been removed."

Of 30 or more in defense plants who pleaded the Fifth Amendment before McCarthy's investigating committee, "they have all been either suspended or fired," the senator says.

The idea of a box score on the success of the committee has, he says "a lot of merit."

"I think it could be useful," he told two questioners in an exclusive recorded interview. Roy M. Cohn, the committee's chief counsel, also sat in on the session. Here are the questions, and McCarthy's answers:

Q—Some of the chairmen of investigating committees have published in the Congressional Record a box score of the results of what they have done. Do you plan anything similar to that in the near future?

McCarthy—It hadn't occurred to me. It might be a good idea.

Q—Would you consider keeping a running box score week by week or month by month, or something of that sort?

A—If any of the members of the committee wanted it, yes.

Q—I mean for your own personal use. You are always alluding to how many Communists were in such a position or in such place. If you keep a box score, wouldn't you have it at your fingertips?

A—I think it is a good idea. In fact, it is a good idea for the speeches from now on.

Q—How would you break this down, such a box score, in categories? You have talked about Communists. You don't usually use the words "fellow travtler." You have said the "Communist associates." You have also said "Fifth Amendment Communists." Would you break that down into gradations of these people?

A—I suppose you would have to break it down because there is a difference between a man who has been named an espionage agent, a man who has been named as a spy in a high planning position, or the Communist who is, we will say, driving a truck in a defense plant. There is certainly no comparison between the two insofar as the damage they can do is concerned.

As I say, it is the first time that an idea of keeping a box score has been broached. I think it has a lot of merit. I think it could be useful. I think, Roy, you should give that some thought.

Q.—What is your present figure for the number of Communists, Fifth Amendment Communists, and of Communist associates, take those three categories, on which you claim you have turned up or your committee have turned up?

A—First, I suppose we will have to go back to the old figure of 81 that I gave to the Senate. A sizable number of the 81 have been removed from week to week.

Q—Those are the 81 cases you cited in that Senate speech?

A—Yes. That included the 57 that I mentioned over at Wheeling, W.Va. I think the most recent of those cases which is getting attention is the case of John Paton Davies.

(Davies is counselor to the U.S. Embassy at Lima, Peru. He was cleared seven times by State Department loyalty-security boards, and once by the top government loyalty review board under the Truman administration. Secretary of State Dulles has announced that Davies will go before a special security board to clear up "conflicting points" raised in a new investigation).

What will be done about his case, I don't know. I frankly couldn't at this time give you a complete list of the 81 who have been removed from government. In the book that I wrote a short time ago—not a short time ago—two years ago we had a list, which is not up to date now. I have no way of following the 81 except by a personal investigation. Under the present rules, under the old Truman order, we cannot get that information from the government. In other words, whether they were discharged for security reasons, loyalty reasons or what.

As to defense plants, Roy, how many took the Fifth Amendment who were working in defense plants? Do you remember the figures?

Cohn—In public session it was something over 30 who were fired as a result of the investigation.

McCarthy—What is the figure of 81 that somebody gave me the other day?

Cohn—That is a composite figure.

McCarthy—That includes more than Fifth Amendment cases.

Cohn—It includes Fifth Amendment cases but not all of them were currently employed at that time.

McCarthy—So as of now, Roy, you would say that over 30 who were in defense plants, which plants in turn were handling classified defense work, have appeared before the committee and refused to answer whether they were Communists on the grounds of self-incrimination; some of them even refused to answer whether they would sabotage the plant if they were ordered to do so by the Communist party, and they have all been either suspended or fired.

Cohn—That is conservative.

McCarthy—I might say that General Electric which does a lot of defense work, adopted the rule of removing Fifth Amendment Communists after we started our hearings Then, of course keep in mind also that at Ft Monmouth, according to the news stories, some 32 individuals were suspended. That doesn't mean that they were all guilty. Some of them were reinstated because they were called before our committee and acquitted themselves very well, showed they had some Communist connection a number of years ago but convinced the Army authorities, who were listening, that they were not bad security risks. I don't know how many of the 30 odd have been reinstated because we have been tied up in other work recently.

Q—In connection with that—

McCarthy—Can I state just one other thing? I think you ought to pick out some of the worst cases. You would take someone like Levine who was handling top secret, had been for 10 years, in telecommunications. They do top secret radar and electronic work, and "crypt." The day we served the subpoena, on Dec. 13, she did say she was not an espionage agent but refused to tell whether or not she had been delivering secret material to espionage agents.

Q—L-E-V-A-N?

Cohn—Ruth I. V-I-NE.

McCarthy—She was before the committee on the 16th, called on the 13th. Incidentally, the security officer over there I think has been doing a pretty good job don't you, Roy?

Cohn—Yes. He is a former FBI man.

McCarthy—No matter how good a job they are doing keep in mind they can't put a witness under oath and swear them, subject them to indictment for perjury if they testify falsely. So the committee has quite an advantage in digging them out.

Q—I want to ask you in connection with that what is your attitude toward the people in government who you have said in the past, "think like a Communist." How do those people figure in this whole supposedly espionage system which you are investigating?

McCarthy—I don't recall the phrase being used in connection with Communists I think I was referring to teachers who act like, think like and do all the things that a Communist would do. You don't know whether they belong to the party or not.

Q—In your own mind are those people as guilty of acting against our government as a Communist himself, people who think like Communists?

A—Let's not talk about "thinking." Let's take the people who do all the things the Communists would do. If they are teaching school, if they would teach the way they would teach under Communist discipline, if they follow the Communist party line, if they are acting as a Communist is acting, if they are following a Communist line certainly anyone who is teaching conspiracy and treason should not have a captive audience in a school.

Q—Suppose they are not teaching conspiracy and treason but merely teaching what communism is? Is there a difference in your view?

A—Of course there is. I think it is impossible to fight communism unless you know all about it. Unfortunately, many people have confused teaching what communism is with advocating communism.

Q—You would draw a definite line between telling school students what communism is and in some way advocating it, then?

A—There is no comparison. It is like the difference between teaching about the dangers and the evils of crime or advocating murder.

Q—In that same line, Sen. Flanders said in the Senate recently that while you are active in pointing out the dangers of communism within you seldom mention the dangers of communism without, that you seldom mention Russia. Is there any reason for that of is that true?

A—I don't think it is necessary for me to talk about the dangers of communism from Moscow. That is very easy. It is a very popular sport. You find politicians from coast to coast during a campaign waving their arms and talking about the evils of communism a couple of thousand miles away; while there is certainly danger from without, the biggest danger is from within.

As Abraham Lincoln said some time ago—I can't quote him verbatim; I will let you do that—

Q—You flatter me.

McCarthy—He said, "All the Armies of Europe and Asia combined, with all the wealth of the world in their military chests, with a Bonaparte as a commander, in a trial of a thousand years could not make one track upon the Blue Ridge nor could they take one drink from the Ohio." He said, "From whence then will danger come. If this country is to be destroyed, it will be destroyed from within or live for all time to come." I agree with that heartily.

Q—In your investigation —

A—Let me finish one other thing. One Communist spy in the State Department, in policy division, can do tremendous damage while one Communist spy over in Moscow can do us very little damage.

Q—You mentioned the State Department. When you get around to the armed services, however, you seemed thus far to have investigated only the Army in any major way. Is there any reason for that?

A—If we found any Communists in the Air Corps or in any other branch, we of course would have to expose them. We have only found them in the Army so far. I think we should emphasize the fact, that the vast majority of the officers in the Army who have contacted me in regard to this investigation—a great many have, especially in the last week—are heartily 100 per cent in favor of exposing any Communists that are found.

Our difficulty comes principally from the civilian Pentagon politicians, if I may refer to them as that.

Q—Are they in all services, "the civilian Pentagon politicians" or are they only in one, the Army?

A—Our principal difficulty has come from the legal departments so far.

Q.—Of the Pentagon, representing all the services or the legal department of the Army?

A—Both the defense establishment and the Army. A good example of how officers feel, I think, was demonstrated by Gen. (Kirke) Lawton, who is the commanding officer of Ft. Monmouth, which we investigated. He was before the committee. I can't quote it verbatim as I don't have the testimony here.

Roy, see if this isn't substantially what he said.

I said, "General, why did you wait until we started our investigation before you started to suspend these people with Communist records?"

He said, "Your question is the answer, senator." He said, "I wouldn't get the backing until you started your investigation." Then he went on to tell us of all the cases that they had suspended, some with very bad records. They would get by the 1st Army's loyalty board. Then, of course, if the 1st Army's loyalty board agreed with the commanding officer at Ft. Monmouth, the appeal would be to the board in the Pentagon. They call it the screening board, or something like that. Almost without exception they would reverse the findings and send the man back and order him reinstated and back pay would be paid to him. That board was disbanded, incidentally, during our Ft. Monmouth hearings. A different board was set up with different personnel.

Q.—There has been some question in the minds of some people, which they have expressed publicly, that your objective in this committee investigation is to expose information already in your possession rather than trying to uncover new information about people. What do you say to that sort of theory in connection with your investigations?

A—I am not sure that I follow you on that.

Q—Well, there are contentions that you have this information, that you have obtained it somehow, and that you hold your hearings not to obtain new information but merely to expose what information you already have, that you are not gathering new information by your public hearings.

A—The principal purpose of a public hearing is to let the public know what is going on. As far as getting information ourselves is concerned, we could get all that information behind closed doors.

There are two theories, of course. There is one theory, followed by some, that it is a favor to the American people to let them know what their elected officials are doing. I don't follow that theory. I think they have an absolute right to know what is going on.

I think we have an absolute duty to bring all the facts in regard to any misconduct on the part of public officials to the attention of the public. If there are Communists handling defense work, the American people should know it. That is the way you get them.

Q—Do you ever get any tips from the FBI? You have said that you do not have access to their files?

A—I neither ask the FBI for information nor do they supply me with information. The only time I ask for information is through the attorney general. By official letter we occasionally ask for name checks. We occasionally ask that an individual we can't find be located. That is always done through the attorney general; and if he authorizes, we get the information as to the location.

As far as a file is concerned, Roy, up to this time we have never gotten an FBI file, have we?

Cohn—We have never gotten an FBI file and we have never gotten a tip from the FBI.

Q—Have you ever gotten information from the FBI on cases? Have some of your requests been granted by the attorney general?

McCarthy—Information as to the location of people whom we couldn't find.

Q—No information as to the activities of those people?

A—No, I can't recall any.

Phantoms Defeat Fayetteville For Second Track Win

Speight Scores 15 To Lead 65-48 Win

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Coach Bill Kittrell's slam-bang sprinters from Greenville High School ran circles around the triple-A Fayetteville Bulldogs yesterday and came out on the long end of a 65-48 score.

The Phantoms really won 65-30 but since they do not have any hurdles, the G-men had to give the Bulldogs all the points that were possible to get in the high and low hurdles. That was 18 points added to the score to make it more respectable than it would have been.

Junior sprint star James Speight rang up 15 points to take scoring honors for the day. The quick stepping cinder flash scored first in the 100 yard dash, the 440 yard dash, and the broad jump.

Speight led his mates to first places in eight of the eleven events. The Bulldogs took firsts in only the mile relay, the mile run, and the shot put.

Phants Dominate

The way the Phantoms started off it looked like just one team was in the race. Harold Edwards took first in the high jump, with three Greenville boys tied for second. Speight took first in the broad jump next, with Mitchell Johnson placing second. Fayetteville scored its first place of the meet with a third place finish in the broad jump.

Then the Phantoms took all three places in the 100 yard dash, with Speight first, Bill Taft second, and Joe Taft third. Edwin Wilkerson sauntered over the half mile in first place by a considerable margin with Greenville's Jimmy Kelley in second. Max Bryan of Fayetteville was third. The Phants tied for first in the pole vault between Pete West and Bob Shackleford and took the first two places in the 220. Bill Taft finished first in the 200 with cousin Joe Taft a stride or two behind. It was at this point that the fans realized that the meet was a little one-sided. After the 220 had been run the G-men had a 50-4 lead. After that the Bulldogs made a nice comeback to stay in the meet at least.

Milers Still Weak

The Greenville milers looked weak again yesterday as the best they could do was a pitiful third by Benny Perry behind two Fayetteville boys. Tommy Smith got a second in the shot put and Cledith Oakley a first in the discus with Smith third in the disc throw. Speight's first place finish in the 440 rounded out the Greenville scoring for the day.

The win gives the Phantom harriers a record of two wins and no losses for the season. Their next meet will be in Durham on Wednesday. That Durham meet will be the supreme test for Greenville. Durham is the defending state champion and the Greenies will have to go all out to down them.

The summary:

High Jump: 1. Edwards (G), 2. three-way tie, Drum (G), Howell (G), and West (G); 5'7".

Hogan Favored In Masters Play

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—The big boys of the 20th anniversary Masters Golf Tournament shoved their hot practice rounds into the background today and settled down to the deadly serious business of playing under pressure.

With a field of brilliant golfers such as the Masters draws, the pressure is terrific. Sensationally low practice rounds don't mean a thing when they start playing for keeps. Take it from Ed (Porky) Oliver the Lemont, Ill., veteran who was runner-up to Ben Hogan in the 1953 Masters. Porky fired a 34-30—yd in practice yesterday, matching the competitive record for the Augusta National course. It was the lowest tuneup round turned in but Porky wasn't exactly overjoyed about it.

"I don't like these kind," he said. "They don't count."

He may have remembered last year, when Lloyd Mangrum fired a practice 63 and took a 74 in the opening round.

Low scoring in the warmups may have prompted Hogan's prediction that his record 274 of last year will be broken.

With a record 79 players entered, 78 of the field were pondering pretty much the same question: "Is it possible to beat that little guy Hogan?"

Ayden Beats Rams In Extra-Inning

ROBERSONVILLE—Ayden High School scored twice with two outs in an extra inning here Monday to defeat Robersonville 11-9 in a Coastal Conference baseball game.

The Tornadoes went into the eighth inning of the regulation seven inning contest in a 9-9 tie with the Rams. Ham Lang led the last inning assault with a two-base hit which gave him hitting honors for the day with two hits in four trips.

Billy Davidson of Ayden had two for three and Bobby Harris of Ayden had two for two. Darrell Hurley, losing pitcher in the contest, was Robersonville's leading hitter. He had four hits in five times at bat. The four hits included an inside-the-park home run.

Ayden was outhit 13-11 in the game but took advantage of 10 bases on balls to win.

Score by innings:

		R	H	E
Ayden	022 011 32	11	11	2
Robersonville	160 010 10	9	13	3

Nats Say Jim Busby Better Than Yanks' Mick Mantle

By HERB ALTSCHULL

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Mickey Mantle is probably the most overrated player in baseball," Calvin Griffith said today.

Griffith is executive vice president of the Washington Senators, who own a bit of baseball property named Jim Busby.

"Sure, Mantle's a good outfielder," Griffith said in an interview, "but he isn't as good as Busby."

Griffith said that if Mantle were playing for anybody but the New York Yankees, "You'd hardly ever hear of him."

His idea was that the Yankee publicists and New York sports writers have built Mantle up into something he is not.

"If Busby were playing for the Yankees," Griffith said, "they'd be calling him another Tris Speaker or something."

Mantle, the youngster from Commerce, Okla., is out of action as the result of a knee injury and won't be in the lineup when the Yankees play the Senators on opening day here next Tuesday.

The Yankees' successor to Joe DiMaggio, he has been billed in many parts as one of the hottest prospects to hit the major leagues in some time. Griffith well remembers his power, since it was in the ball park here that Mantle socked a 565-foot home run last year.

Busby, a native of Kenedy, Tex., is at 27 nearly five years older than Mantel. Griffith regards him as one of the most underrated players in the league.

Mantle, considered an expert in grabbing flies, "can't compare with Busby as a fielder," Griffith said.

Clark Griffith, 84-year-old owner of the Senators, chimed in: "Busby is one of the best flycatchers I've ever seen."

Then there's the matter of hitting. Last year Mantle batted .292. Busby's average was .312.

Mantle batted in 92 runs and Busby 82. But Calvin Griffith noted that a lot more Yankees were on base last season for Mantle to drive home than there were Senators ahead of Busby.

4,000 High School Seniors To See Elon-ECC Contest

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

Nearly 4,000 high school seniors are expected to be in the crowd tomorrow afternoon when East Carolina College's baseball Pirates take on Elon's Fighting Christians in a North State Conference doubleheader.

The game, to be played on East Carolina's diamond, could go a long way toward deciding early leadership in the Eastern Division of the conference. Both the Pirates and the Christians are the early season favorites to take the title and the meeting tomorrow can give some important bases for comparison.

The Pirates are favored to take both ends of the twin bill despite the knowledge that pulling such a trick is a real job. First of all, however, the Pirates are in first place in the division standings with three victories and no defeats. Secondly, practically every member of the East Carolina pitching staff is ready for duty. None of the hurlers have had to work more than practice innings since last Saturday and all of them have had three full days of vacation since Saturday.

Freshman righthander Mack Cherry is expected to get the call in one of the contests. He has been the real find of the season with the Pirates thus far and has been highly impressive with his work so far. Lefthander Jimmy Barnes, another freshman, or Kenneth Hall, a sophomore veteran righthander, are leading candidates for the starting assignment in the other game. Barnes has been rather effective so far as has Hall. Hall was the most effective hurler on the squad in 1953.

Elon's defending champions will depend for the most part on younger players who have been gaining experience against non-conference opposition.

Derby Field May Be Record One

NEW YORK (AP) — Unless some horse shows more than expected within the next three weeks, the field for the 80th running of the Kentucky Derby on May 1 at Churchill Downs could well be a record one.

Withdrawal yesterday of Mrs. M. E. Person's Porterhouse, the 1953 two - year old champion, marked the second highly regarded eligible to be sidelined in recent weeks and started trainers and owners revaluating their derby candidates.

Robert S. Lytle's Correlation, Florida Derby winner, and A. J. Crevolin's Determine, victor in the Santa Anita Derby, stand alone now at the top of the future book. That could well be altered by C. V. Whitney's Fisherman in Saturday's Experimental Handicap at Jamaica.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

JULIA followed Dr. Marshall out to the hall. "Thank you doctor,' she said. "Will you be coming out to the farm tomorrow?"

He looked blank for a moment. "Why, no; Ill be busy. You know what a holiday weekend is like down in emergency.

"Yes, I know I just thought perhaps . . . Ravel . . .

"Ravel?'" he repeated'.

Julia said hastily, "Congratulations, doctor,' and hurried back into Sewells room, feeling 'her face begin to burn. She heard Marshall follow to the door, then turn and go charging off down the corridor.

Sewell was yelling at her. "Call up Pierce and tell him I said for him to come and drive you home. He wont have started to that dance yet. They don't get going at those affairs till 10 oclock.'

"I'll have to make sure I'm free first Sewell. I'll get home all right. I'll see Miss Porter and if I'm relieved I'll go and change. Meanwhile, you're to go straight to sleep —and have a happy Christmas.'

"Wait a minute.' He jerked open a small drawer by his bed and took out a thick, worn wallet. "Here, take this and go and do my shopping for me. I gave the kids checks that they can spend as they please, but I want to do some thing for you—and Gale and Ravel —Thelma too. You go do it for me, Dooley. You'll know what to buy. I never do. No man ever knows what to buy for a woman.'

"But Sewell—" she frowned at the bill in his hand—"Sewell, I can't, not $100."

"Listen, Dooley, don't be a killjoy! You can let me do something nice for you, can't you? I know what you've been through, here with me. I know what a pain in the neck I am when I'm sick. There isn't another nurse in this place that would have put up with me all these weeks. Now let me pay back a little. And don't spoil it."

"All right Sewell. But this is far too much." She bent and kissed him softly on the forehead. "Rest now. I'll go and find Miss Porter. And I'll come back tomorrow. Good night."

"You call Pierce as I told you," he shouted after her, but she hurried down the hall determined not to call Pierce. She would not call anyone; she would take a taxi, do a little shopping if the stores were still open when she got downtown. Then she would take the bus. She would save enough out of the $100 so that Gale could make the gracious holiday gestures she loved; a bill to Robert, $5 to 'Bijah money slipped into Thelma's apron pocket.

She stopped in the booth on the first floor and called a taxi. She waited on a bench near the glass door, where she would be able to see her taxi when it turned around below the ramp. Taxis were busy tonight; she had waited a quarter of an hour by the clock overhead when the loud-speaker began paging: "Dr. Marshall. Dr. Marshall."

The clock clicked past another five-minute interval, whirred a little as the hands stood at 6 o'clock. She would miss the 7 o'clock bus, Julia thought ruefully. The next one ran at 9. She would have a long wait and the bus would be crowded with home-going last-minute shoppers, but she would be at home before Gale put out the lights and locked the door. Then, behind her, where the reception desk stood in an alcove, Julia suddenly heard a voice raised in protest.

Ravel's voice: "I tell you I have to see him!"

"I'm sorry," came the firm voice of the woman on the desk. "Dr. Marshall says he cannot see you tonight. You can come back in the morning."

Julia got up quickly and started back to the alcove but before she reached the desk Ravel plunged past her not seeing her, her face white, her eyes straight ahead and stony with fury.

Julia called, "Ravel!"

But Ravel did not turn nor answer, and just then the outer door swung back and Pierce Albright came in.

He said: "Well, well—fancy meeting you here!"

Ravel clutched at him. "Get me out of here!" she cried. "Get me out of this foul place!"

Julia hurried to intercept them, but the door flapped back in her face and she gave up the pursuit.

Looking out, she saw Pierce helping Ravel into the Taber car. He got into the driver's seat himself and the car shot away. Poor, foolish Ravel, she thought, battering her heart against a gray, unfeeling surface of chiselled stone! But Pierce had appeared to be sober. He would see that Ravel got safely home. Ravel had never been a good driver and in her agitated state she would be unsafe alone.

But when several hours later Julia trudged up the muddy lane with her bundles, with the persistent rain dripping off her umbrella and soaking her ankles, she found her mother sitting half asleep before a dying fire alone.

"Why, Dooley! What a nice surprise!" Gale cried, as she hurried to help the girl with her awkward burdens. "You rode that dismal bus? Get those muddy shoes off right away and your stockings too. I'll bring some slippers. Ravel is in town. You could have come out with her if you had only known. I could have telephoned but I had no idea you'd be free tonight."

"I saw Ravel, but she didn't see me. She was dashing out of the hospital, about 6 o'clock. You mean she hasn't come home yet?"

"They were going out or something—she didn't say. Mama was here. Darling, you'd better get all your things off Let me prod up this fire. I was thinking about going to bed. You're awfully damp all over. I'll make you some chocolate or a toddy or something."

Gale bustled about, being motherly, unperturbed. "This is wonderful, having you home." She stooped to kiss the curve of Julia's neck and pat her hair.

She would not tell her mother, Julia decided. She would not mention Pierce Albright nor that Ravel had gone crashing out of the hospital in one of her furies. Ravel was 24 years old. She could take care of herself.

"Sewell asked me to do this Christmas shopping for him." She gestured toward the tumble of packages on the couch. "I'm afraid some of the things got a little damp. It's raining harder than it was when I left town."

"I'll put them on the register. There's nothing that will melt, is there?"

"That long one is a red umbrella for Thelma. It shouldn't be hurt by dampness. I had everything wrapped at the shop—that's why I had to take the late bus. All the places were crowded and I had to wait. Sewell made them let me come home and he insisted on giving me $100 to buy things with. I saved half of it. I'll give it to you so you can give some to Robert and the others."

"You shouldn't have taken it, Dooley. Sewell means to be be kind —but $100!"

"I argued with him, but then I saw I was hurting his feelings so I gave in. He was feeling happy. He hasn't been very happy lately, I didn't want to spoil it, especially on Christmas Eve."

They sat by the fire for another hour Julia sipping at the hot drink her mother brought, toasting her slippered feet. But no car lights flickered up the lane. Ravel did not come home.

Gale got up and began turning off lights. "I'm afraid your room won't be too warm I'll open your bed and you can just dash up and scramble in."

Joint Action Sought In Anti-Communist Move

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has proposed that 10 nations join in a defensive agreement underwriting the security of Southeast Asia, including Indochina, against Communist conquest.

The proposal is under discussion with friendly governments. Some of them, diplomatic informants indicated today, have reacted favorably.

The British government has not yet made a decisive response, however, and officials here consider Britain's reaction of utmost importance to the success of the plan.

The proposed agreement would be the first step in a program of what Secretary of State Dulles has called "united action" to secure Southeast Asia and particularly to bolster the anti-Communist fight of French and native forces in Indochina.

Subsequent steps would include measures of military support depending upon the development of the struggle in Indochina. While authorities are extremely cautious in discussing this phase of the undertaking it is understood to call for United States air and naval operations in the area.

The central concept of the plan is joint action, however, and at the moment any suggestion of single-handed intervention in the Indochina war by the United States is discounted in official quarters here.

Informants said that the 10 nations which the United Staes has suggested should participate in the security undertaking are Britain, France, the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, the Philippines, Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam. The latter three are the small states in Indochina which have domestic political autonomy and are moving toward independence of French domination of the foreign affairs.

The precise form of the proposed grouping, which would approximate an anti-Communist coalition for Southeast Asia, would depend on what other participating countries would like to work out. The effect on such an agreement would be to put the Kremlin, the Chinese Communists and the local Red forces in Indochina on notice that the major military power of the free world was being arrayed against them.

Dulles apparently thinks of the undertakings as serving several purposes. It would strengthen the anti-Communist military position what the Eisenhower administration has decided is a region of vital importance to the United States and the free world. It would reassure war-weary France about Allied support in the Indochina fight and might offset French desires for peace at virtually any price. It would strengthen the bargaining position of the anti-Communist nations in advance of the Geneva conference this month at which the Reds are expected to put extremely heavy pressure on the French to surrender Indochina.

U. S. May Have To Enter Drawn-Out Indochina War

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may have to get into the Indochina war to bail out the French who have been put in jeopardy by the Communist-led Vietminh.

Over the years this country has spent more than a billion dollars trying to bail out the French with military equipment. Why with all this help, aren't they winning?

The Russians and Red Chinese have been helping the Vietminh. But members of Congress, natives of Indochina, and American reporters there all give this as the main reason for French failure:

The colonial-minded French do not have the wholehearted support of the Indochinese. Millions of them for years have been demanding complete independence. This the French haven't given them. If France guaranteed it by a certain date, they'd have a stake in winning to see the French win.

Eight million of the Indochinese are now in Vietminh-occupied territory, about 18 million in the French area.

But millions behind the French lines are either anti-French or pro-Communist. Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Vietminh, is a lifelong Communist. He is also a nationalist. He's fought for independence all his life. The Vietminh isn't all Communist. It has the support of some nationalists who want freedom from the French.

The French do not have the support of other Asian people, who look upon the war as an attempt by the French and the West to perpetuate, not end, hated colonialism.

This crisis comes at a time when the United States had to stand by and see communism take over China and is anxious that no more of Asia falls into Red hands.

The French are sick of the war. They couldn't, or wouldn't continue it without the equipment this country has given them. They may reach a point soon where they won't want to continue unless this country takes active part.

If the French withdrew altogether, leaving Indochina to Ho Chi Minh, the whole country would soon be Communist. Next step for communism would be taking over the rest of Southeast Asia.

If the French made a negotiated peace leaving Ho Chi Minh in control of part of Indochina and then withdrew, this no doubt would happen:

Ho Chi Minh would soon have all Indochina.

Secretary of State Dulles has talked of "united action" among the non-Communist nations to assure a French victory. But he talked, it turns out now, before he had the united action. He's shopping around now, trying to get it.

In a speech this week in the Senate, applauded by Democrats and Republicans alike, Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass) said:

"Without political independence for the Associated States, the other Asiatic nations have made it clear that they regard this as a war of colonialism; and the united action which is said to be so desperately needed for victory in that area is likely to end up as a unilateral action by our own country."

Anybody have a solution? Kennedy offers one. It may turn out to be the solution the Eisenhower administration follows. It's this:

Get the French to guarantee full independence by some future date. Then, knowing they will be free, the Indochinese may rally to the French to overcome the Vietminh. The other Asian peoples could support this.

Lottery Case Tops Police Court Docket Wednesday

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Sylvester Wilson, Negro, operator of a cafe and a poolroom on Albemarle avenue, guilty of operating a lottery.

Willie Melvin Lee, Negro, testified that he "had a lottery ticket issued at the pool room that won $86." He also testified that "Wilson refused to pay his winning and claimed that his name was not on the book." Lee had his ticket, testimony showed.

The court gave Wilson 30 days on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of court costs and $86 to Willie Melvin Lee, Negro, holder of the winning ticket. Testimony was that names were placed in a receptacle and at stated times a name was to be drawn and the winner received the money prize.

Wilson gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

In the case of Moses Daniels, 18, Negro high school student, 500 McKinley Avenue, Greenville, who is charged with indecent exposure in the western part of the city, called the first time last week, the court continued prayer for judgment until next December. At the first hearing of the case a week ago, it was recommended that the county health officer and another physician examine Daniels and test his sanity.

David Daniels, Negro, larceny of a bottle of wine from one of the Colonial stores, was given six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and he was placed on probation for two years. The judgment also provides that Daniels is not to enter any grocery store in Greenville.

Billy Myers, Negro, drunk and disorderly, 30 days on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $15. The judgment also provides that he shall remain of good behavior, not violate any law and remain away from the premises of Preston Harper, Negro, for six months. The court found Myers guilty of assault with a deadly weapon (knife) and suspended sentence on payment of court costs. The knife was ordered confiscated.

Failing to stop at a stop sign; George S. Pate, $10; Isaiah Edwards, Negro, $5, and James B. Hill, $5.

Willie Williams, Negro, operating a car to left of center of a highway, $10.

Kenneth Lee Clark, defective muffler, $5

Cyprielle D. Peterson, speeding, $20.

Willie C. Griffin, failing to stop at a stop sign, $5.

Willie Hill, Negro, no operator's license, prayer for judgment continued to April 14, when the defendant is to pay $15. court costs and make restitution to Lester Best for property damage.

LIVES IN GREENVILLE

In Police Court last Monday, Woodrow Heath, 1111 Dickinson avenue, was found guilty of driving while drunk and fined $100 and costs. Heath gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

Discipline Rules Told Teachers By Psychologist

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—How can teachers make sure their mischievous charges won't drive them insane?

Dr. Percy Teska, professor of special psychology at the University of Oklahoma, listed three simple rules in an address before the senior high school section of the Oklahoma Education Assn.:

1. Admit to yourself you would like to hit the little demon in the back row with a baseball bat.
2. Don't try to act the role of a superman, with 100 times as much patience as the average human being and 1,000 times as much understanding.
3. Don't feel guilty about disciplining students.

By recognizing that you "really hate" that little terror in the back row, Teska said, you will be less inclined to actually smash his head in.

He said only one in every dozen children that are brought to the University of Oklahoma's psychological clinic can be helped "and we have near ideal conditions for therapy."

Yet, he added, teachers who tried to help these emotionally disturbed youngsters before they were sent to the clinic "have a feeling of guilt because they failed."

The psychologist added the quickest way to the asylum is believing the theory that when a teacher signs a contract she automatically becomes a "superman."

"You have the same fears, doubts, worries, hostilities and feeling you had pre-contract," he warned.

"For every teacher for whom the experience of teaching is an enhancing thing you will find 50 more for whom it is a destroying thing."

The best rule to follow?

Realize that teachers are human beings and act—and react—like one.

Refuse Signs To Oriole Ballpark

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland State Roads Commission, while insisting it is strongly behind the new Baltimore Orioles, has gently but firmly rejected a request to erect signs directing the way to Memorial Stadium here.

Chairman Russell H. McCain said yesterday he believed the state had done its part in erecting signs directing people to Baltimore.

From there "it's a city problem getting them to the stadium," he said.

Rang Alarm To Assist His Wife

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Jesse Hale pleaded guilty yesterday to sending in a false fire alarm. He needed help, he told the judge, because his wife had fallen down and he couldn't pick her up. She weighs in the neighborhood of 270 pounds, he said.

The judge placed him on probation for two years.

Weather Is Important To Mid-West Business

By SAM DAWSON

KANSAS CITY (AP)—In this area where the economy is neatly balanced between agriculture and industry the big questions today are:

How good will the spring rains be?

And will the nation's industrial activity (to which Kansas City is tied more closely now by its post-war industrialization boom) level off soon and start back up again, maybe after Labor Day, to give this region another chance at setting new records?

Both sides of the economy are off a little around here now. Farmers aren't buying as much from the stores. Layoffs are spotted here and there among the factories, with a cutback in defense spending getting much of the blame. More people are out of work than last year and new jobs are harder to come by. Building is off a little.

But folk here show no signs of alarm. Some feel (as many stock market traders seem to) that the country is having a short business lull and see signs that inflation may start up again afterwards.

"The present generation around here has been through so many crises," says James M. Kemper, chairman of the Commerce Trust Co., "that it tends to take them in stride. People don't panic easily any more.

"Younger folk particularly go on spending, because the advent of old age and other social security benefits has changed buying attitudes. Young couples feel more like spending in the present and letting Uncle Sam take care of their old age. Their grandparents weren't like that—and a business dip could start a scare."

So the banker feels that spending won't be down too much, although the loss of overtime pay and shorter work weeks may lead many to be more cautious.

Kemper sees Kansas City as unhurt yet—down a little from the peak, as everyone expected it would be some day—but the economy still is healthy. He hopes for a more noticeable pickup after Labor Day.

A leading builder, Carl B. Rechner, says construction continues at a fair clip, although there is some employment in the building trades, mostly among the unskilled. While the housing shortage is a thing of the past, and there has been a softening in the price of older homes, demand for new ones continues good, he says. Houses selling under $12,000 and over $18,000 are moving best.

Merchants here fret because retail sales so far have been off about 7 per cent from last year. But now they count heavily on the belated Easter trade, warmer weather, and excise tax cuts.

PARKING EFFECTIVE

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A thief found the right place to park Edward Kennedy's car. Detective Raymond Huba found the stolen automobile in front of his house.

Technically, a person is deaf if he can hear no sounds of any kind but hard of hearing if his hearing is impaired.

Gift Of Flowers Proves Headache

BATON ROUGE (AP—A gracious Japanese gift to American ladies at the 1884 Cotton Exposition in New Orleans has grown into a beautiful multi-million dollar headache for Louisiana.

The gift was a water hyacinth — one to each woman visitor. The ladies took them home and placed them in vases. The plants outgrew the vases and were transferred to fish ponds and streams. Now they blanket bayous and streams in bright purple.

The federal government estimates loss due to clogged waterways at 50-55 million dollars per year in Louisiana. The water hyacinths also kill off fish, deprive migratory birds of winter quarters and menace navigation. The drinking water supply is cut down, Gov. Robert Kennon says, and mosquitoes breed in the stagnant pools created by the current choking-plants.

Each year the U.S. Corps of Engineers asks Congress for special appropriations to cut the waterways in Louisiana clear of the pretty pest.

Church Services By Young People

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP—The minister wears an open collared sport shirt and speaks in a youthful urgency. He is 23 years old. The assistant pastor, 21, takes charge of the 75-year-old pipe organ and plays in the church orchestra.

The orchestra itself is composed of 15 to 25 youths ranging in age from 10 to 16. The older boys teach the younger ones how to play. The members receive no pay.

The church, built in 1898, is a simple white walled building with a belfry. It is called the Country Church of Talbert. The town is unincorporated and has just 750 citizens. The entire services and all its policies are carried out by young people.

Actors Assist In Rebel Surrender

MANILA (AP)—Two Filipino movie stars recently negotiated the surrender of a communist Huk "commander" and 11 of his followers. Nida Blanca and Ted Belarmino met the "commander" by accident last December. Their car stalled on a lonely mountain road in dissident-infested country southeast of Manila.

The rebel leader, a man named Amat, said he wanted to give himself up but only to President Ramon Magsaysay. After a month of negotiations, which included several trips to the mountains, the film stars finally persuaded the dissident leader and his men to give themselves up.

Longer Life After Tuberculosis Cure

CHICAGO (AP)—Having tuberculosis—and being cured of it—may actually mean a longer life for a person than he would have had if he never suffered TB, an insurance doctor reports.

Dr. Harry E. Ungerleider of New York said this is one of the indications from one of the most detailed insurance studies ever made of life expectancy among people having physical "impairments" ranging from heart disease down to a history of sun stroke, or heat prostration.

The physician, of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, told the American College of Physicians that the recent analysis involved studies of the records of 725,000 insured individuals and 18,000 deaths in some 132 "impairment" classifications.

He said the findings are based on the experience of 27 insurance companies.

Concerning tuberculosis, the doctor said the survey showed that if a person survives five years after his TB has been "arrested," the possibility of death is no greater than it would be for the average of people of the same age.

"And 10 years after arrest, mortality becomes appreciably (less) than average," he said. "It appears that the discipline accompanying cure of his disease pays dividends to the tuberculosis individual in training him to safeguard his health in the future."

Regarding diseases of the heart, he said, the study gave additional grounds for "a much more optimistic outlook" on life expectancy among people with disease of the coronary arteries, one of the major forms of heart ailment.

He said persons who survive without complications a heart attack caused by blocking of a coronary artery have a good chance of getting life insurance, and he added, "This is a concrete indication of our (insurance companies') changing attitude towards coronary disease."

But he declared the findings regarding mortality rates among people who have serious heart "murmurs" justify the present "conservative attitude towards insurability" of such people.

Among other findings:

Acute rheumatic fever: life expectancy "far better" than had been supposed a few years ago.

Migraine headache: normal life expectancy and, in some categories, even better than normal.

Chronic bronchitis: attended by death rates 50 to 80 per cent above normal.

Stomach ulcers: in the absence of any hemorrhage, mortality rates just about the same as normal.

Sun stroke: normal life expectancy.

Biggest Welcome Is Given Carrier

SEATTLE (AP)—The giant aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt received the biggest welcome of her career on a stop-over here on the way to a 40 million dollar face-lifting job in the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard. Navy officers estimated 100,000 people swarmed aboard during a Sunday afternoon "open house." Cars jammed the streets for miles.

The carrier, too big to go through the Panama Canal, had to come around South America.

Smith Family Is Tied To Phones

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—If you live in northern Virginia you undoubtedly have talked to the family of Mrs. Sarah Smith, of Haymarket. Mrs. Smith and 16 of the 19 members of her family who have served the telephone company a total of 214 years were honored by the company at a meeting here.

Mrs. Smith, mother of 11 children, said her sons and daughters and their children had helped furnish telephone service for a couple of generations and that she had 33 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren who would be ready to carry on. She was born at Manassas in 1873, or three years before Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone.

IN FAREWELL CONCERT——This photo of Arturo Toscanini, world-famed conductor, was made by an NBC staff photographer as the 87-year-old musician led the NBC Symphony Orchestra in an all-Wagner program during a radio concert. It was Toscanini's farewell performance on the podium. He had been conducting since 1886. (AP Wirephoto)

Army's Schools Expanding Fast

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP) — American children are filling up U.S. Army-run schools in Germany The Army plans 6 new schools. There already are 9 high schools and 76 elementary schools in Germany for almost 25,000 pupils—sons and daughters of U.S. troops, and civilian personnel.

Enrollment of 37,000 in the 1954-55 school year is expected. A new Army policy permit more troops to have their families with them.

Representatives of the dependents school system in Europe will try to recruit 775 new teachers in the United States. These teachers are paid $4,200 to $4,600 a year and are provided with trasportation to and from Europe, housing, some medical care and other benefits available to military personnel.

Job requirements, include a bachelor's degree, two years of successful experience, a valid teachers certificate, American citizenship, three letters of recommendation and a pledge of allegiance to the United States.

Best 'Magic' In Fizzing Ice Cream

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)—TV Jets, AC, DC? Shucks, there's no stunt like an old stunt to delight a child.

General Electric Co. "magicians" in a presentation to Brooklyn students made music ride a beam of light, lit an electric lamp with a match, made a toy electric train obey the commands of a man's voice and lifted the youngsters out of their seats with the noise of a real jet engine.

But when a vote was taken, the favorite bit of "magic" proved to be a mixture of chemicals that sputtered, fizzed and foamed 150 times before freezing into the shape of a "strawberry ice cream soda."

Would you trade a Penny for a Dollar?

● You can if you use Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda for your top-dressing and side-dressing needs. It costs a little more because it's worth more. But the difference in cost usually can be measured in pennies per acre, while the difference in value often amounts to dollars per acre.

Chilean "Bulldog" Soda gives you generous extra value. The nitrogen is 100 per cent nitrate. It's 100 per cent available (quick-acting); 100 per cent dependable. The minor elements make crops stronger, healthier. The sodium—26 pounds in every 100-pound sack—is a key to maximum returns on your entire fertilizer investment. It offsets the bad effects of acid-forming fertilizers...increases the efficiency of mixed fertilizers containing them. It releases "locked-up" potash in the soil...increases the availability and efficiency of soil phosphate...reduces potash, calcium and magnesium losses by leaching...develops larger, deeper root systems.

Sodium builds up the productivity of your land—more each year. It's an essential element for some crops...beneficial to most and necessary for maximum yields of many.

Pennies-per-acre difference in cost may mean dollars-per-acre difference in value to you. Chilean "Bulldog" Soda is the best fertilizer your money can buy. Use it for all of your top-dressing and side-dressing needs.

"Make sure you get the NATCHEL kind!"

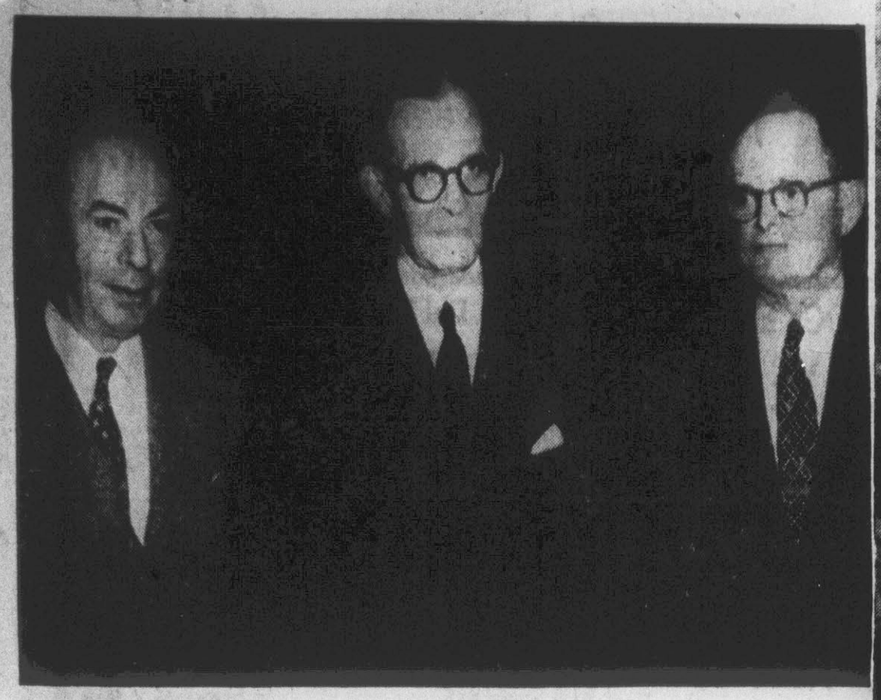
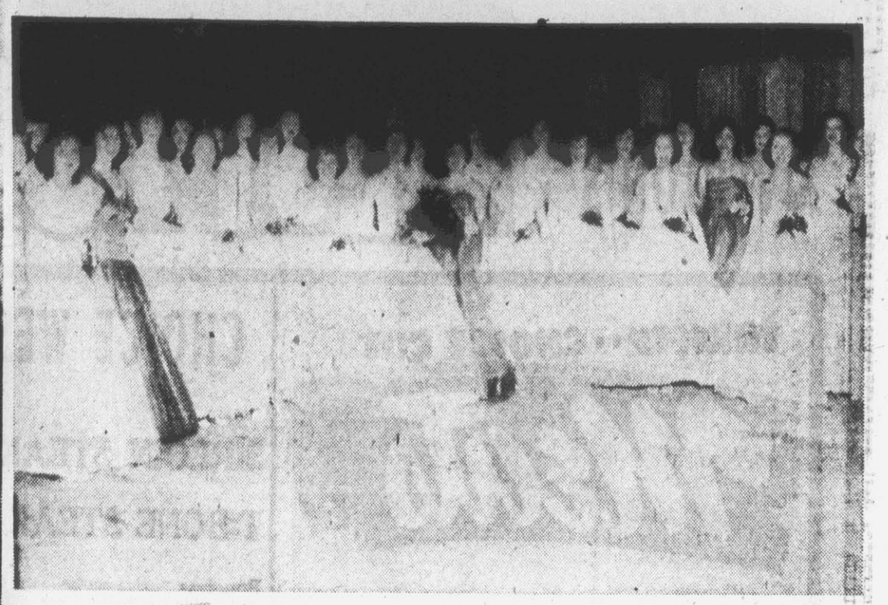
Camera Scenes Of Farmville Farmers Day Celebration

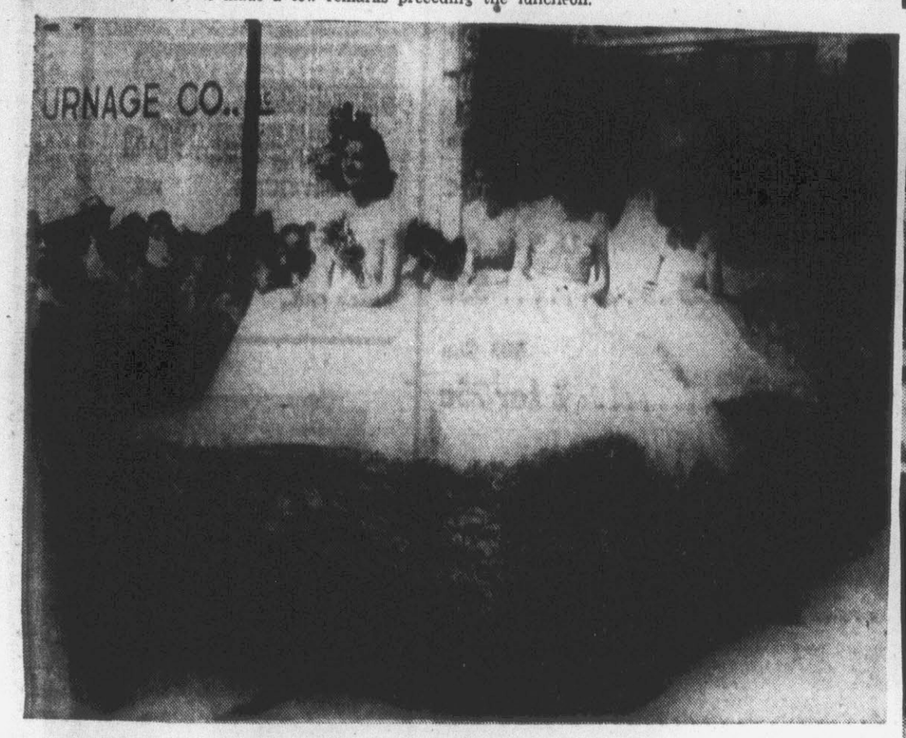


Visiting dignitaries were entertained at a luncheon yesterday in Farmville. The above picture was taken immediately following the luncheon. From left to right are: Congressman Herbert C. Bonner, who made the principal address of the day; Governor William B. Umstead, who led the parade; and State Senator Paul Jones, who made a few remarks preceding the luncheon.

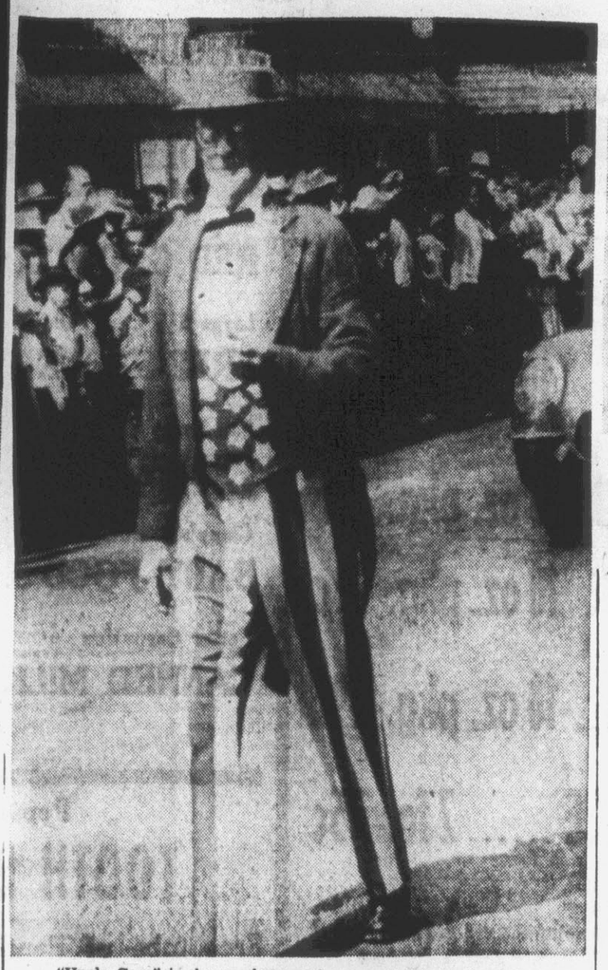
"Mrs. North Carolina of 1953," Mrs. Ben Harper of Snow Hill, rides atop the Chesterfield float in yesterday's parade. The float is entered by the cigarette manufacturers in larger parades throughout the country. Charles S. Edwards, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, described the float as being one of the outstanding entries in the procession.



Some 28 contestants participated in the beauty contest last night to choose Miss Farmer's Day 1954 in Farmville. The entrants were competing for $175 in cash that went with the first, second and third positions in the contest. The contest winner received $100 first prize, second place winner $50, and third place $25. Master of ceremonies for the event was Walter Jones of Farmville. (Reflector photos by Alvin Taylor)



Above is one of the 16 floats entered in the mile and three-quarters long parade which opened Farmville's Farmer's Day yesterday afternoon. The parade was led by Governor William B. Umstead and featured ten bands. In addition Congressman Herbert C. Bonner, the main speaker for the day, appeared in the procession. It also featured television stars from this section, "Mrs. North Carolina of 1953," Barnum and Bailey clowns and other attractions.



"Uncle Sam" is shown above as he appeared in yesterday's cavalcade. He is from Rocky Mount and has been in parades in most of the larger cities on the east coast. "Uncle Sam" says that he had the best time when he appeared in Atlantic City for the "Miss America" contest.

Above are Walter Jones, former Farmville Mayor who was master of ceremonies at last night's beauty contest. Miss Sylvia Gardner, winner of the title of "Miss Farmer's Day 1954," and Charles S. Edwards, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association and the Tobacco Board of Trade of Farmville. Miss Gardner was chosen winner in the contest from a field of 28 contestants who were entered by various groups.

Now...a new kind of mayonnaise
Mrs. Filbert's
LIGHT MAYONNAISE

The old-fashioned heaviness is gone!

Mrs. M. V. Filbert, President

Now for the first time—enjoy the delicious taste of genuine mayonnaise without the heaviness. Mrs. Filbert's new Mayonnaise is light with delicate egg whites. Light with foamy egg yolks. Light with salad oil so fine and thin it fluffs away! . . . you taste the richness, but never the oil. Only the gentlest vinegar, only light-colored light-flavored yolks are choice enough for this fresher taste. Even the spices are soft-flavored. And there's real lemon juice for sparkle.

"If I do say it myself," says Mrs. Filbert, "my new light mayonnaise is the best I ever tasted. Just try it, will you?" Eat some today—you'll never want to go back to old-fashioned heavy mayonnaise. Who would?

Only a woman could make it taste so good!

Bonner Assails Sliding Price Supports

Outlines Need Of Firm Foundation

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE— Congressman Herbert C. Bonner lashed out at the administration and others who would reduce 90 per cent of parity price supports and place them on a sliding scale, as the featured speaker for Farmville's annual Farmer's Day yesterday.

The First Congressional District Representative told the hundreds of visitors who jammed into Monk's Warehouse following the parade that opened the day that the farm problem belongs to everyone, whether they toil in the sun or depend on the farmer for food and as a market, as most city dwellers do.

"Certainly there is no good reason why we should spend much time talking about why the farmer and the farming industry needs some protection, some price support," he said.

"From a practical and political viewpoint the farmer could not logically and equitably be asked to forsake a modest measure of protection at a time when so many other sectors of our economy are protection. You can think of the common examples—social security, minimum wages, tariff protection, fixed transportation rates, government subsidies to shipping and air transport, depletion allowances for the oil and mining industry and a host of others," the congressman stated.

Bonner stated that it is true that in our economic system prices perform the central role of guiding production to fill consumers' wants. However, he said, when prices get too high and consumers stop buying the farmer's response is a delayed one. This, he noted, is through no fault of his own, but because of the time required for the biological processes in farm production.

"This biological and technological lag is another good reason for farm prices protection," Bonner emphasized.

"We are agreed, I assume, that for reasons just and proper the farmer is entitled to some protection. What we want to discuss further is the desirability of support at 90 per cent of parity, which I favor, as against the proposals of Mr. Kline and the Administration that supports be sliding, and at a level as low as 75 per cent of parity, the speaker continued.

Bonner explained full parity prices as being the prices which give farm products in general the same purchasing power as they had in the base period 1910-1914 which, he said, was admittedly a favorable period for agriculture. He said that a bale of cotton now should buy just as much in goods as it did in the earlier period.

Bonner quoted figures to show the rise in farm income during the past twenty years.

"I claim that is remarkable success for any program, even if only a part of the success can be credited to the 90 per cent supports on the basics," he declared.

He said that fixed supports together with marketing quotas are economically sound.

"We know we have been able to maintain acreage allotments and marketing quotas on tobacco with remarkable success. In spite of all the fuss and fury we hear and read about the cost of government farm price supports, Commodity Credit Corporation losses have been very low since the beginning of the program 21 years ago," he stated.

The Congressman said that substituting sliding for rigid supports at 90 per cent of parity would cure few if any of the present serious problems of agriculture.

"This is because reductions in supply or increase in consumption which would result from lowering support levels would be negligible. Prices would merely go lower to producers. Marketing quotas and acreage allotments would not be avoided at this time," he said.

"The sliding scale of price supports," he continued, "sliding from where to where, sliding from parity to below parity, sliding from equality to below equality, from justice to injustice—our economy is all tied together.

"At a trying period in our national history Benjamin Franklin said, 'We must hang together or we surely shall hang separately.' If Mr. Benson hangs the farmer, then industry will hang in turn," the congressman emphasized.

"Our tobacco program has worked and worked well. All agree on this. With proper administration the present program can be a success.

"No man would build his home on a sliding foundation. The present agricultural program is the foundation of our homes: it is on a firm foundation. It must not be changed," he said.

As far as the surpluses are concerned Bonner said that Congress had voted $6 billion in order that the surpluses could be placed on the world market at competitive prices. In addition $200 million had been appropriated to the State Department for distribution of surplus goods. He said that neither of the appropriations had been entirely used, and implied that the State Department was holding off the goods to give other countries a chance to sell their goods on the world market.

The representative stated that neither the State Department nor any other government department has the power to do this.

"In many foreign countries farmers are far ahead of other segments of their economy," he emphasized.

Bonner congratulated Farmville on the success of their Farmer's Day program. He also paid tribute to Governor William B. Umstead who spoke briefly before Bonner's talk and noted that it was the first time that he had appeared in Farmville on the same platform with a governor since the term of O. Max Gardner.

'Only a short while ago we were wishing that our governor would get well again. Now we see him leading us again and leading us vigorously," Bonner stated.

He also paid tribute to General Hal Turnage, retired, of Farmville.

Bonner was introduced by Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants' Association Charles S. Edwards.

Edwards also introduced other dignitaries who were present for the event, including Senator Alton Lennon, Governor Umstead, State Senator Paul Jones, East Carolina College President John D. Messick, Retired Marine General Hal Turnage of Farmville, President of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce R. O. Lang Jr., General Chairman of the Farmer's Day Committee W. C. Gardner, President of the Tobacco Stabilization Corporation Carl Hicks of Walstonburg, State Representative Alonza Edwards of Hookerton, and former President of the Farm Bureau W. W. "Cap" Eagles of Crisp.

Umstead, who led the mile-long parade which opened the day's events, said a few words at the afternoon program preceding Bonner's talk.

He stated that he was always glad to be in Farmville.

"I have many good friends here," he said.

He told the large crowd which packed the warehouse that they had before them a good speaker in Bonner.

"That was another reason I wanted to come here today," he continued.

In concluding the governor stated, "I say to you good luck until we meet again."

Club of Pinetops and who received a $50 check. Third place winner was Miss Barbara Dilda who was sponsored by the Ruritan Club of Fountain. Miss Dilda received a third place prize of $25.

Former Farmville Mayor Walter Jones acted as master of ceremonies for the beauty contest.

Two band concerts were presented during the day for the visitors. Immediately preceding Congressman Herbert C. Bonner's address yesterday afternoon the Rocky Mount High School band performed before the large crowd in Monk's Warehouse. The Farmville High School band presented a concert before the beauty contest last night.

In addition a stage show was presented during the afternoon featuring members of the Jewel Box Jamboree and Cactus Jim from Television Station WNCT and clowns from Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Chief of Police L. T. Lucas reported late last night that not a single arrest had been made during the day. He said that the crowd had been good natured during the day and had cooperated with officers.

The chief said that plans for handling the traffic and the crowd at the parade had been made beforehand and "they worked out fine."

The chief said that the parade was overrun a little bit by people moving out from the sidewalks but that everyone cooperated splendidly when asked to move back.

Lucas said that all cars were moved off four blocks of main street preceding the parade.

"We have had no traffic accidents whatsoever reported today," the chief said.

Chief Lucas stated that he had four officers on duty in addition to himself yesterday. In addition, he said, five highway patrolmen were present and one officer each from Greenville, Wilson and Fountain were present to assist with traffic. Also other law enforcement officers who were present for the day's events assisted with traffic.

Greenville and Wilson sent motorcycles which, along with Farmville's motorcycle, formed the police escort for the Farmer's Day parade.

Lucas expressed appreciation to the out-of-town officers and to the highway patrol for rendering their services during the day.

"We also appreciate the cooperation of the public during the day," he said.

The chief paid tribute to "Shorty" Ansley who operated the public address system during the parade and announced the entries as they passed.

"His efforts on the loudspeaker were very effective in moving cars off main street," the chief concluded.

Lucas also estimated the crowd in town for the event at "around 11,000."

Entries in the long parade which took approximately one hour to complete its route included: Governor William B. Umstead, Congressman Herbert C. Bonner, the American Legion, the Rocky Mount band, a carriage and horse carrying two beauty contestants and last year's queen, Uncle Sam, the Farmville White band, the Wilkerson float, a Rotary Club car, a Civic Club float, the Chesterfield float, the Kiwanis car, the local Boy Scouts, the Sealtest float, the Dewey Harris car, the Plymouth band, the Rouse Printery float, the V.F.W. float, two ancient cars, the Pitt County band, the Town of Farmville float, the Belk float, Ned Kensauls, the Nashville band, the warehouse float, the Dean car, Major Smith and bagpipes, the Farmville Negro band, the 155th Field Artillery Battalion, the Brownie Fife and Drum Corps, the F.F.A. float, the Atlantic Christian College band, a wrecked car, safety marchers, the Elm City band, the auto dealers float, a homemade tractor, the South Edgecombe band, the bank float, the Eason Motors float, the Tarboro band, a wagon and car, Cactus Jim, and other horses and ponies.

The 28 beauty contestants entered in last night's contest included: Sybil Adams, Chicod; Sheila Aycock, Black Creek; Sonja D. Aycock, Black Creek; Lois Britt, Trenton; Barbara J. Craft, Walstonburg; Betty V. Cummings, Macclesfield; Barbara Dilda, Fountain; Patsy G. Etheridge, Leggett; Sylvia Gardner, Fountain; Ellie R. Harrell, Pinetops; Mary E. Hawkins, Stokes; Wilma G. Still Running?

Maybe the kids are back in school today, or maybe they are still running.

The Greenville Police department got a report yesterday that a number of Negro boys who should be in school were hanging around a local cafe. Along with the report came the request that the police department check into the matter.

The police department complied with the refuest.

On the bottom of the report, the officer wrote:

"Checked Busy Bee. Last time saw kids they were still running."

C-of-C Program Recommendations Heard At Meet

Recommendations for the Chamber of Commerce program for the year were made by the Chamber's Program and Public Relations Committee in a meeting held last night.

The recommendations will be turned over to the Chamber's Board of Directors at its regular monthly meeting Monday, for either approval of all or part of the projects.

It was reported today that the Committee, headed by Bancroft F. Moseley, studied all suggestions of projects that had been turned in to date in the one and one-half hour meeting last night.

Members of the Committee present at last night's meeting included: James W. Butler, A. Hartwell Campbell, J. S. Ficklen Jr., Fred J. Forbes, C. E. Blair, Jack Wallace, and Ed Tipton.
