

Claims No Firings After Exposures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.) said today that "repeated exposures by the FBI of subversive activities by several top Treasury Department officials failed to result in the firing of a single one of them."

He made the statement in connection with the publication of Senate internal security subcommittee hearings on the Harry Dexter White case and others. Jenner is subcommittee chairman.

The volume includes last fall's testimony of Atty. Gen. Brownell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover about the appointment of White. A former Treasury Department official, as U. S. director of the International Monetary Fund in 1946.

The subcommittee has announced it will question former Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder about the case.

Last November Brownell asserted that former President Truman promoted White, knowing him to be a Russian spy. Truman denied doing so, and said White was shifted to another job so that the FBI could keep an eye on him. Hoover told the subcommittee the shift made it more difficult to keep White under surveillance.

In referring to what he called repeated exposures by the FBI of a number of Treasury Department officials, Jenner said in his statement:

"No less than 28 such reports were made to key government officials by the FBI on Nathan Gregory Silvermaster before he was allowed to resign in November 1946."

Silvermaster at the time of his resignation, Jenner said, was chief economist of the old War Assets Administration at a salary of $10,000 a year.

The senator said that between November 1945 and December 1952 "there were 24 such reports distributed on Irving Kaplan 21 on Jacob Adler, 18 on Harold Glasser, 13 on Frank Coe, 10 on Victor Perlo 8 on William Ullman and 7 on Harry Dexter White."

Jenner said that with the exception of White, who denied Communist ties before he died in 1948, and Adler, who is out of the country, all these onetime federal employees refused to answer subcommittee questions about possible Communist affiliations on the grounds that they might incriminate themselves.

Jenner said testimony taken by the subcommittee showed that despite the "voluminous information" furnished by the FBI on the employees he listed, some of them received promotions.

These promotions, he added, "provided even greater opportunities for raiding the files of our government and passing its secrets along to an enemy agent, not to mention the golden opportunities for twisting our policy to favor Soviet Russia."

Jenner said the latest volume of testimony published by the subcommittee brought "sharply into focus" that the FBI cannot demand the dismissal of any subversive employees or order their prosecution.

"The efforts of the FBI are completely nullified under an administration which disregards its warnings," he said.

Australian Envoys May Be 'Hostages'

By STAN HUTCHINSON
CANBERRA, Australia, (AP) — Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies says Russia's diplomats here, packing for home after a break in Soviet-Australian relations, can go any time. But the Soviets still held back exit permits today for the Australian Embassy staff in Moscow.

Acting Foreign Minister Sir Philip McBride handed the Russian ambassador a note yesterday rejecting demands that the Canberra government hand back Vladimir Petrov and his wife.

The note replied to the Kremlin's communication last week severing diplomatic relations between the two countries because the fugitive Russian couple had been granted political asylum here. The Soviets branded Petrov a "criminal" who allegedly embezzled embassy funds and charged the Australians kidnapped Mrs. Petrov, an embassy code clerk.

Petrov, former third secretary of the Soviet Embassy, has been in hiding since he abandoned communism and turned over hundreds of embassy documents to the Australian government. The papers purported to reveal a big Red spy ring in Australia.

The Soviets had ordered Australian Charge d'Affaires Brian Hill and his staff to leave Moscow by last night. But yesterday sources in the Russian capital said the departure of the envoy and the two other men, three women and two children in the Moscow embassy was now "conditional on developments in Australia."

This stirred speculation here the delay was forced because the 51 Russians—staff members and families—in the embassy here have been unable to get quick air passage out of the country. The Foreign Ministry has been contacting shipping and airline companies to arrange reservations.

It was suggested that the Russians might be using Hill as a hostage to get Tass correspondent Victor Antonov out of Australia without delay. Antonov, lacking diplomatic immunity, could be called to testify in an investigation of the espionage charges which the government is setting up. His apartment has been described unofficially as an espionage center.

Menzies did not appear worried about Hill's being held up. He said yesterday he considered the delay of little importance.

Australia also formally rejected Soviet charges that Mrs. Petrov had been forcibly prevented from leaving Australia. The attractive blonde left an airliner at Darwin after heading for home under escort by three Russians. Australian police disarmed two of the escorts in an airport scuffle.

Today members of the Russian Embassy staff burned more documents and also some movie film in the embassy back yard.

Coroner Rules Death A Suicide

Herman Henry Dixon, 35, of the Whitehurst Station community committed suicide at his home early Saturday afternoon.

According to Coroner Griffin H. House he came to his death as a result of strangulation sustained when he hanged himself with a length of rope apparently with intent to end his life.

House said that an inquest was unnecessary.

Dixon was born in Pitt County and spent nearly all his life in the Whitehurst Station community. He attended school in Bethel and had been a tobacco auctioneer for about 15 years.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Nina Whitehurst of the home; two sisters, Mrs. Cleaters I. Hart of Grifton and Mrs. S. M. Styron of Portsmouth, Va.; and three brothers, B. E. Dixon of Comete, Hubert W. Dixon of Jessup, Ga., and Donald T. Dixon of the home.

Police Car Was Briefly Stolen

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Elin Angstadt and Raymond Fabian were a couple of mighty embarrased patrolmen yesterday. Somebody drove off with their patrol car while they were booking six prisoners.

Ninety minutes later Angstadt and Fabian, on foot — stumbled across the missing car — the station house, blocks from the station house. But by that time their plight had been broadcast all over town in an all-cars bulletin.

Plan Training For Scouters

Pictured above are Ken Harris, Bill Wright, Dave Speir and John Behr as they make plans for a training clinic for Pitt County Scout officials. The clinic will offer three courses in Cubbing, Scouting and Exploring with each course consisting of six lessons which will be given at Greenville High School at 7:30 p.m. on six consecutive Tuesday nights starting May 4. Henry Mumford is in charge of cub training. Bill Wright is in charge of boy scout training and Harry Billica will be in charge of explorer training. In charge of physical arrangements and publicity is John Behr. Approximately 22 instructors will participate in the clinic.

Paratroopers In Mass Jump For Atomic Training

FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — Thousands of paratroopers swarmed from the skies over this military reservation today in war games training the Army and Air Force in atomic defense.

About one-third of the force of 9,000 82nd Airborne Division troops, some carrying Geiger counters and small chemical film strips to detect atomic radiation, had been dropped by 11 a. m.

Army spokesmen said there were no fatalities up to this point in the mass jump, one of the Army's most hazardous peacetime operations. Possibly eight paratroopers were hurt, but none was hospitalized.

One trooper was caught in a freakish updraft of air and floated high in the sky after his wave of jumpers left the C119 Flying Boxcars. Airborne spokesmen said it was a rare occurrence.

High level Army and Air Force officers headed by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff, watched the games. NATO observers and several congressmen also were on hand.

Conducted in ideal weather, the big airborne operation started about a half hour after the Air Force simulated the dropping of an atomic bomb. A high explosive charge producing the flash and the mushrooming smoke effect of atomic bombs, were set off to add realism.

A fleet of 270 Flying Boxcars was marshalled at three Carolina Air Force bases to haul the paratroopers and equipment. They were scheduled to fly about 400 sorties by midafternoon.

U. S. Rejects Plea To Send Air Force

PARIS (AP)—France's frantic government canvassed its major allies for fresh aid to stave off defeat at Dien Bien Phu today. The best it could do was a reported possibility that the United States might consider sending forces to Indochina if the proposed Southeast Asia Alliance is formed.

An authoritative French source in Geneva for the Asian Conference said President Eisenhower's government had turned down a French request that U. S. Air Force planes and pilots be sent into action at once against the Vietnamese rebels.

The informant said U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had told French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault that Washington's position would be much different if the Western Big Three succeed in their announced plans to form a 10-nation Pacific counterpart of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Britain and France have agreed to study the possibility of such a pact but made no further commitment.

Conclusion of such an alliance, Dulles was reported to have told Bidault, would open the path for a American consideration of a French request for direct military help.

Until then, the French source reported, the Washington government feels the sending of American planes and pilots to Indochina without congressional approval would be an act of belligerency forbidden by the Constitution.

Prime Minister Churchill's Cabinet also was reported to have ruled out a suggestion to send British troops to Indochina.

Sources indicated, however, the British might send more troops and planes to neighboring Malaya and perhaps stage British naval maneuvers off the Indochina coast as a "show of force" to bolster French morale.

Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, meanwhile interrupted a week's visit to Paris and dashed for London and Washington today amid unconfirmed reports he was going home to talk about aid to Indochina.

Premier Joseph Laniel's Cabinet was reported debating the siege crisis at Dien Bien Phu. With no major foreign aid immediately in prospect, it was reported considering whether to commission the commander, Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries, to ask for besiegers terms for surrender of the garrison with "full honors of war."

President Notes Vital Decisions

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower declared today that this is "a time of great decisions" in world affairs, with the outcome of the Indochinese war carrying "the greatest significance for the United States."

The President told the United States Chamber of Commerce that Indochina is "the cork in the bottle" whose loss would affect the fate of hundreds of millions in "the surrounding areas of Asia."

Eisenhower declared that survival of "the newly formed, democratic government of Japan" may also hinge on events in Southeast Asia, since the affected area is the one with which Japan must trade.

How can the democratic government of Japan exist, he asked, if those areas are lost to communism?

Eisenhower voiced hope, however, that the conference of world powers which opened today at Geneva would find some peaceful solution of the hazards.

Eisenhower voiced hope, however, that the conference of world powers which opened today at Geneva would find some peaceful solution of the hazards.

"We would hope," Eisenhower declared, "that the logic of today's situation would appeal to all peoples—regardless of their ruthlessness."

"(We would hope) that they would see the futility of depending on war or the threat of war as a means of settling their difficulties."

Secretary of Defense Wilson also referred to events in Europe and Asia, saying that events in those two continents may force a full-scale new look at United States military plans, policies and spending.

Addressing the chamber, Wilson reported the first new look started shortly after the Eisenhower administration took over, has been completed and has led to "great and encouraging progress" in the military program.

The secretary said, however, that military programs and forecasts of money required to carry them out are always subject to change.

He added:

"The next few months are obviously critical ones in world affairs, and what happens in Europe and Asia during this period may force a soul-searching review of our specific policies, plans objectives and expenditures."

STILL NO DECISION
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court completed handing down opinions today without ruling on the issue of public school segregation. The tribunal's next decision day is set for May 3.

Sheriff's Office Arrests Man On Theft Charges

Walter Taft, Negro about 40, was arrested by members of the Pitt County sheriff's department Friday night and charged with the theft of a ham, a 22 calibre rifle and a cross cut saw belonging to Arthur Buck of the Hudson crossroads community.

Deputy Sheriffs Elmer Haddock and Duke Andrews took Taft into custody. Haddock said Taft admitted stealing the ham on April 17, and admitted the theft of the rifle and cross cut saw last November.

The rifle, saw, and small portion of the ham hook were recovered at Taft's home by the officers when they searched the premises, they said.

AMPHIB EXERCISE

SEOUL (AP)—Nearly 5,000 American Marines will storm ashore on the East Coast of South Korea next Monday in the first bigscale Marine amphibious exercise here since the armistice last July.

Asia's Future Admittedly In Balance At Meeting

Geneva Parley Opens

By EDDY GILMORE
GENEVA (AP)—The top diplomats of 19 nations met here today with Asia's future in the balance.

Prince Narathip Pongphraphan Wan Wathayakon of Thailand called the assembly to order in the somber council chamber of the United Nations headquarters, formerly the League of Nations buildings, Palace of Nations.

Final peace in Korea and an end to the bloodshed in Indochina were the momentous issues before the conference, but grave and bitter differences were still to be settled in preliminary debate.

Prince Narathip's selection as chairman for the first day, with Vyacheslav M. Molotov of the Soviet Union and Britain's Anthony Eden to follow on successive days, ended one of the disagreements. But the explosive issue of Communist China's place in the proceedings was bypassed for later settlement or by the course of the conference.

The Thai prince, his country's delegate to the United Nations for several years, was delayed in calling the historic meeting to order. France's Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was late in arriving and photographers were allowed in the chamber to record the opening.

Not since the depressing days of 1939 has such a high level diplomatic meeting been held in the building. Many of the between-the-wars hopes for peace in Europe lay slumbering there.

The prince, who told reporters, "just call me Prince Wan" after being chosen chairman of today's meeting, was among the first to arrive. North Korea's Foreign Minister Nam Il was next and Pyun Yung Tai of South Korea followed.

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was the first of the Big Four ministers to arrive.

Molotov walked into the chamber, where the council of the old League of Nations condemned his nation for making war on Finland, with Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at his side. Molotov's face was expressionless.

Eden laughed with his companion, Lord Reading, undersecretary of state in the British Foreign Office. Eden had been in the chamber many times during the days of the league.

The first session lasted less than half an hour and the delegates adjourned.

As the delegates gathered at the Palace of Nations for the Asian conference's opening session today, the Western Big Three and the Soviet Union already were split far apart over the Kremlin's insistence that the Peiping regime be seated as a fifth major power.

The United States was ready to walk out and break up the conference rather than agree.

Delegations from 19 nations — the Soviets and all the nations whose troops fought in Korea except South Africa — were on hand for the opening conference session. Many of their public statements were suitably optimistic; privately they were anything but.

France's Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was the last to arrive, coming early today by train from Paris. He had been held in the French capital until the last minute by the steadily worsening military situation at the besieged Indochina fortress of Dien Bien Phu and Vietnamese chief of state Bao Dai's bombshell announcement last night that he would not sign a French-sponsored independence treaty for his state.

Bidault in a statement on arrival at the Geneva station, bitterly assailed the Vietnam rebels in Indochina, and by implication the Chinese Communists supplying them with war materials and the latter's Russian sponsors at the conference here.

The peppery little Frenchman said it was "not by chance" that the attack on the northwest Indochina fortress had been stepped up to discuss peace in Indochina.

"Their proposals and their acts are in discord," said Bidault of the Reds.

House Committee Recommends $28.6 Billion Outlay Defense Budget Slightly Cut

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Defense Department cash budget of $28,680,706,500 was recommended today by the House Appropriations Committee, with $7,615,523,000 earmarked to finance "the greatest Army ever maintained by this nation on a full year basis in the absence of actual warfare."

The total is $1,206,348,500 less than President Eisenhower asked for the Army, the Navy and the Air Force and related activities for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

But the cut imposed by the committee in a bill sent to the House for debate starting Wednesday was actually less than half as large as it appears. Committee cuts were about $41 million dollars, the balance of the reduction having been volunteered by the armed services or being in the nature of book-keeping savings.

The new cash supplements an estimated $4 billion dollars available to the services from previous years' appropriations, in effect giving them $76,874,000,000 with which to operate. An additional $1,060,000,000 in carryover funds was rescinded by the committee, the sum including 500 millions from army procurement and production funds and 550 millions from stock funds of all the services.

Here's how the new cash would be split up, if the House and the Senate follow the committee's recommendations:

Army: $7,615,523,000, a cut of $595,477,000 from what the President requested and $5,321,883,000 less than was appropriated for the present year.

Navy: $9,705,818,500, a budget cut of $209,181,500 but an increase of $207,508,500 over current year appropriations.

Air Force: $10,819,310,000, a budget cut of $380,690,000 and a reduction of $348,690,000 from 1954 funds.

National Security Training Commission: $55,000, the amount requested.

Office of the secretary of defense: 12 1/2 millions, a budget cut of one million and $750,000 less than was provided this year.

Interservice activities: $527,500,000, a budget cut of 30 millions and a reduction of $228,800,000 from 1954 funds. These activities include financing atomic tests, for which the committee recommended 25 millions of the 35 millions requested.

Fortress City Rocks Under Red Bombardment Guns Pound Dien Bien Phu

By LARRY ALLEN
HANOI, Indochina, (AP) — Dien Bien Phu reeled under violent Viet-minh bombardment today but the French said the rebels still held off their long-expected third mass assault to engulf the battered northwest Indochina fortress.

The tightly packed French Union defenders, driven into a cluster of fortifications less than a mile and a quarter across, were in an "extremely serious but not desperate" position, the French reported last night. Today they said the situation was "unchanged."

Informants in radio contact with the isolated, encircled plain said the morale of the garrison troops was "sky high" as they braced themselves for the bloody hand-to-hand fighting they hoped desperately would hold back another all-out enemy attempt to sway the Geneva conference on Asian problems.

The rebels leveled their heaviest mortar and artillery fire on the northwestern corner of the shrunken Dien Bien Phu redoubt. This was an attempt to rip bigger holes in the crumbling defenses in the northwest, opening a floodgate for the masses of Vietminh infantrymen waiting to sweep down from the surrounding hills.

The French command said the rebels maintained their "pressure" on the fortress' new defense line in that sector, established about 300 feet due south of the rebel trenches. But the French said the attackers had not been able to infiltrate the defenders' lines last night and were still 600 yards from Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries' command headquarters.

A Vietminh broadcast heard in Hanoi crowed that the opposing forces would be "face to face very soon" in a death struggle. The threat appeared to back up belief the rebels' Communist leaders were preparing to throw everything into one more attempt to wipe out Dien Bien Phu. This would give the Reds a resounding propaganda victory to back up their claims at Geneva, where an attempt may be made to negotiate an Indochina settlement.

French planes nosed through mist and rain to parachute more ammunition, food and medical supplies to the shrunken target area at Dien Bien Phu. The fortress, under siege for 158 days, has been supplied entirely by air. The French now hold only one third of the area they controlled when open fighting broke out there March 13.

(Peiping radio broadcast a report from the Communist Viet Nam News Agency saying that the rebels had captured the last French post west of Dien Bien Phu's main airstrip and had occupied "two thirds of the aerodrome." The other airstrip, south of the main fortification, has been in rebel hands for weeks.)

Bombers and fighters supplied by the United States struck new blows at the rebel attackers despite unsettled monsoon weather. They plastered the crossroads village of Glao, 27 miles northeast of Dien Bien Phu, yesterday to damage the supply line from China but coolies swarmed in to make quick road repairs.

Tale Resumes Today Of Dickenson's Activities

WASHINGTON (AP)—Martin Christensen of Hammond, Ind., resumes today his account of Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson's activities as a prisoner of war in Korea.

Christensen, a respected local youth, had just begun his testimony when the court-martial of Dickenson was recessed Friday for the weekend.

Dickenson, 23, a native of Cracker's Neck, Va., is charged with collaborating with his Chinese captors while a POW and with informing on Christensen and Edward Gaither of Philadelphia.

Col. C. Robert Bard, the prosecutor, said in advance of today's session that he planned to wind up his case against Dickenson by tonight.

Christensen told the eight member court on Friday that he teamed up with Dickenson and two others to break out of the Red prison camp at Pyoktong, North Korea, in July 1952.

The four were recaptured the following day, Christensen said, and were interrogated by a Chinese guard named Tong.

Dickenson was the first to be questioned, Christensen said, adding that when Tong got around to interrogating him, the Chinese "knew it all" about the abortive escape attempt.

One of three specific counts against Dickenson accuses him of tipping the Reds to the fact that Christensen had in his possession a pistol with live ammunition.

Secretary Stevens Agrees He Once Suggested Let Army Handle Communist Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Army Stevens agreed today he once suggested that Sen. McCarthy lay off his probe for Communists at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., and let the Army handle it. He denied, however, that he was "afraid" of the Wisconsin senator.

Stevens made the statements under hammering cross-examination by special counsel Ray Jenkins at the third day of hearings into the row between the Wisconsin senator and high Army officials.

A little earlier, the ordinarily quiet spoken secretary testified that McCarthy's "publicity tactics" at Ft. Monmouth had caused "a great deal of misinformation and excitement." But Stevens conceded McCarthy did "speed up" some suspensions.

Jenkins demanded to know whether Stevens had not gone to New York City last November to "make peace with Sen. McCarthy" after telling newsmen in Washington that there was no "current espionage" at Ft. Monmouth.

"No sir," Stevens said, laughing.

Jenkins recalled that Stevens had testified two McCarthy aides had told him the senator was displeased with Stevens news conference statement.

Why then, asked Jenkins "did you go traipsing off to New York to make peace with this man if you were not afraid of him?"

Stevens said he did not go to New York—this was last November—because he was afraid of McCarthy, but because it was "in line with my policy of cooperating with Congress." He denied the trip was to get McCarthy to call off his probe.

Jenkins asked him if the secretary had not discussed turning the investigation over to the Army.

"Certainly," replied Stevens. "I said I didn't like the constant hammering of the Army in the headlines. That's what I objected to."

What he told McCarthy, Stevens continued, was that the Army wanted to take over the Ft. Monmouth inquiry, make "progress reports," and then if it failed to do the job McCarthy's committee could step back in.

"So at no time did I ever want him to cease and desist," Stevens asserted.

Jenkins said the situation added up to asking McCarthy to suspend his investigation "and let you carry on."

"That's right," agreed Stevens. "You merely wanted to get it suspended."

"That's right," Jenkins asked if Stevens might not have wanted the suspension to run a long time.

"I suppose so," said Stevens. Jenkins asked if a suspension in such a case would not be a stoppage.

"No," responded Stevens. "I wouldn't think so."

Stevens said under questioning, that he had invited McCarthy and his committee to have meals at Stevens' expense at the Merchants Club in New York City, during the week of Nov. 12-16 when McCarthy was holding hearings at a nearby courthouse.

Jenkins noting that McCarthy's committee then was investigating Stevens' department asked if Stevens thought this was "within the balance of propriety."

"Completely," Stevens answered.

"This was not done for the purpose of mollifying or pacifying the senator, or getting him to suspend his investigation of Ft. Monmouth?" Jenkins asked.

"Certainly not," Stevens insisted. He added "it was a friendly matter of convenience, when you get right down to it."

Stevens was back in the witness chair at the third day of public hearings by the Senate Investigations subcommittee on the row between the Wisconsin Republican senator and top Pentagon officials.

Under questioning by Special Subcommittee Counsel Ray Jenkins, Stevens first related that at a news conference on Nov. 13 he had said he knew of no current espionage at Ft. Monmouth.

Then, he added, on Nov. 16 Roy Cohn, counsel to McCarthy, came to his office and declared the senator was "very much displeased with my press conference."

Francis Carr, staff director of McCarthy's subcommittee, accompanied Cohn, Stevens said.

Jenkins asked Stevens to be more specific as to Cohn's exact words.

"He said Sen. McCarthy was mad and felt I had double crossed him," Stevens replied.

At the time, McCarthy had been looking into alleged Communist infiltration at the Army radar center at Ft. Monmouth.

Stevens related that he told Cohn and Carr he was sorry McCarthy felt the way he did about his press conference statement.

As at earlier sessions of the hearings last week, there was a packed crowd of spectators in the big hearing room.

Prior to today's hearing, McCarthy said he planned to protest "the wasteful spectacle" of a dozen or more Army officers being forced under orders "to cool their heels" at the hearings. He said the officers are needed for "the vital task of planning the nation's defenses with a war threatening in Indochina," but had been ordered by "a few Pentagon civilians" to be present to strengthen the case against him.

Hensel, who was made a principal after McCarthy brought his name into the case last week, said that if his financial affairs are brought into the current inquiry, "it is equally appropriate that the financial affairs" of McCarthy be subjected to "the same public scrutiny." He mentioned the senator's income tax returns.

He said the senator's statement that Hensel "drew" at least $56,526 in 1943-45 from a private ship supply firm while operating with government priorities "should not be permitted to divert the subcommittee from the pertinent issues involving Sen. McCarthy."

Hensel, who served in the Navy Department during World War II, was named assistant secretary of defense by President Eisenhower in February.

He said in his statement, submitted through an attorney, that so far as he knows no responsible person in the Pentagon sought to impede the McCarthy subcommittee's search for Communists in the Army.

"On the contrary," Hensel said, "every effort was made fully to cooperate with the subcommittee in its important work."

He said he did not know of any difficulties the Army was having with McCarthy or Cohn until Feb. 24, five days after he took his present job. Hensel said his only role then was to supervise preparation of a memo on the case asked by Sen. Potter (R-Mich.), a subcommittee member.

Hensel said he had asked the Justice Department to look into his connection with the ship supply firm, which he described as "a perfectly legitimate and conventional minority financial interest."

McCarthy, returning here yesterday from a speechmaking trip, said he regards the current hearings as "a great waste of time—I've been saying that for two days." He referred to the sessions as a "red minnow burlesque."

Hollywood Doesn't Seem Able To Kill Off 3-D Film Releases

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — No matter how hard they try, they can't seem to kill off 3-D.

The "depths" caused Hollywood's first big splurge on new dimensions for the screen. But then the studios concentrated more on screen size, rather than the third dimension. Movie goers complained that the glasses were bothersome, and it looked as though 3-D was going out the window.

But it is still in business. Having had "good luck with 'Hondo,'" Warners put out the current "Phantom of the Rue Morgue" in 3-D. It will do the same with the big-budget Alfred Hitchcock thriller "Dial M for Murder." And Leonard Goldstein's Panoramic Co., will issue "Gorilla at Large" in the stereo version.

"You can't count on 3-D," says Goldstein. "It may do poorly in one town, but sensationally in another. Exhibitors who don't want to bother with the glasses can just run the picture in 2-D."

Goldstein runs today's liveliest independent film company. Having turned out a dozen films for 20th Century-Fox release, he now is dicker with a number of major distributors for future films. He is in a good position, since the theater men are howling about the film shortage.

He is also doing something about the talent shortage. "Somebody had better start building some new stars soon," he warns, "or these present ones will be too old." He has four promising newcomers in his stable: Cleo Moore, Lee Marvin, Jeffrey Stone and Lisa Daniels.

Frank Sinatra reports seeing the Judy Garland film, "A Star is Born," and says it is merely great. Although an admitted Garland Partisan, he says all the great scenes of the Janet Gaynor-Fredric March film are even better in the new version.

Two more star names join the free lance ranks. Janet Leigh and Mitzel Gaynor will be independents after the next pictures for their respective studios. Miss Leigh immediately signed picture deals with Columbia and Universal-International, and Miss Gaynor will embark on a lucrative night club tour.

Insists Brother Was The Thief
INDIANAPOLIS (U) — A girl found by police in front of a broken shop window with a case of wedding rings in her hands yesterday, insisted her brother was the thief.

So the officers took her to her home nearby.

They found brother, but he wouldn't talk — much. He was 3. His sister was 5.

The officers delegated Mama to take appropriate action.

College Work Is Theme Of Annual Auxiliary Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary in the Diocese of East Carolina will be held in Greenville on April 28 and 29. The theme of the meeting will be "College Work." The opening session will begin at 2:15 on the afternoon of April 28 in St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Bartine Sherman, student chaplain at the University of North Carolina, will be the preacher at a special evening service on Wednesday, April 28.

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7:30 on the morning of April 29. The offering for the Bishop's Fund will be presented at this service.

The second business session will convene at 10 a. m. Thursday at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. The Rev. Donald Oakes, recently returned from Japan, will be guest speaker. As missionary to St. Paul's University, Tokyo, Mr. Oakes was chaplain, professor of history, and football coach. In 1953 he organized the Episcopal college work program with a student center at Hokkaido University, Japan.

The afternoon session will include an address by the Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Wright, Bishop of the Diocese of East Carolina, and the installation of Diocesan Auxiliary officers.

Registration will be at St. Paul's Parish House between the hours of 1:00 and 2:00 p. m. on Wednesday, April 28.

Herman Dixon Rites Are Held Today

Mr. Herman Dixon, 35, died at his home near Greenville in the Whitehurst Station community early Saturday afternoon.

Funeral services were conducted at the Chapel of the Wilkerson Funeral Home this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. D. W. Alexander, Free Will Baptist Minister of Bethel, assisted by the Rev. Clarence Little, Free Will Baptist Minister of Bal-lards Crossroads. Burial was in the Bethel Cemetery.

Mr. Dixon was born in Pitt County and spent nearly all his life in the Whitehurst Station community. He attended school in Bethel and had been a tobacco auctioneer for about 15 years. He was a member of Hickory Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Nina Whitehurst Dixon of the home; two sisters, Mrs. Cleotars I. Hart of Grifton and Mrs. S. M. Styrton of Portsmouth, Va.; and three brothers: Burlesk E. Dixon of Conotow, Robert W. Dixon of Jessup, Ga., and Donald T. Dixon of the home.

Many Children See Annual Play By Drama Club

Approximately 3,000 school children in Pitt County saw the annual spring play for young people produced by the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina College and sponsored by the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women.

"The Emperor's New Clothes," familiar and popular story by Hans Christian Andersen, was presented in three performances in the College Theatre last week and was attended by enthusiastic groups of youngsters. The final performance is in progress this afternoon at the Epps School for Negroes.

Robert Gardner of Rocky Mount in the title role of the Emperor was supported by a competent cast of more than twenty student actors. Appearing in leading roles were Laura Crotte of New Holland, Douglas Mitchell of Greenville, Pauline Armstrong of New Bern, Charles Hill of Jacksonville, Faye Sermons of Greenville, and Susie Denton of Raleigh.

Attractive staging and colorful costuming suited to the Chinese setting of the play combined with humor, suspense, and music to make the production a success. Ann McCrary of Durham directed the play, and Dr. J. S. Withey of the English department at the college acted as faculty supervisor. Scenery was designed by Edward Powell of Beaufort.

Much of the artistic value of the production of "The Emperor's New Clothes" was due to the technical staff, especially to William Sells of Midway Park, Thomas J. Barnett of Raleigh, Elizabeth Dowdy of Greenville; Ernest L. White of Waynesboro, Va., and Susie Denton of Raleigh.

Cosmos Book Club Meets For Bridge

Mrs. Richard Gaylord was hostess to the Cosmos Book Club Tuesday afternoon, April 13, at its annual bridge meeting. Attractive arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the home and the individual tables set for refreshments before play were centered in the lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Gaylord, assisted by Mrs. Quinn Botic and Mrs. Don Calloway, served a delectable sweet course to members and the two guests for the afternoon, Mrs. Percy Ashby and Mrs. William Bilbro.

After a short business session presided over by the president, Mrs. E. B. Davis Jr., books were exchanged and the meeting turned over to the hostess. Several progressions of bridge were enjoyed and winners were Mrs. Charles Howard Jr., high; Mrs. J. B. Spilman Jr., second high; and Mrs. Jack Edwards Jr., low.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Says a statement issued by the Woman's Society of Christian Service, Methodist Church: "Though the peoples of adjoining countries around the world may know little of each other, yet an observer notes how much all have in common: Tensions are everywhere; isolated rural peoples need to be brought into a more understanding relationship with their neighbors; populations are on the move. But also: the eagerness for education is universal; there is spiritual hunger everywhere. People are finding increasing joy and opportunity for expression through the Christian way of life, and through the fellowship of the church and the Woman's Society of Christian Service. They are increasingly aware of the value of a world Christian church, which may be enriched by the differences of thought and practice of its members."

A "maternity lending library" for expectant migrant women has been set up by Florida churches' Ministry to Migrants (a National Council of Churches agency) at a farm labor camp in Belle Glade, Fla. From this library, a needy mother-to-be can borrow a suitcase packed with gowns, robe, etc., when she goes to the hospital to have her baby. Books are tucked in, too, including the classic "You and Your Baby." Mothers are also loaned maternity dresses and necessities for the new baby. Staff members of the nation-wide Ministry to Migrants report that women feel more like home-making, loving their children, and wanting their new babies when they have an attractive dress or two to wear during their pregnancy, and can go through the hospital experience like mothers in more fortunate circumstances.

The Woman's Pulpit, official organ of the American Association of Women Ministers, has made three awards and an honorable mention for sermons written by women ministers. The winners: the Rev. Mildred E. Hooper, Sr., Berwick, Me., of the Christian Church, for her sermon, "Dwelling Places of God;" the Rev. Ruth Sergeant Bast, Binger, Okla., Congregationalist, whose subject was "Six Magic Words;" the Rev. Laura E. Bradbury, Linn, Kansas, Methodist, for her sermon on "The Revolt of Youth." Honorable mention to the Rev. Emma Bancroft Yinger, Marshall, Mich. Methodist, for her sermon, "I Have Come Into the Garden To Gather Lilies."

Four Countries Wanted Sisters

BALTIMORE — Judy and Sue Devlin caused quite an international furor besides winning two titles at the All-England badminton championships in London.

The sisters told friends upon returning home here that four countries wanted to claim them.

Their mother was born in England, their father in Ireland, Sue in Canada and Judy in the United States.

The stuck with the United States and together won the doubles championship. Judy also triumphed in the singles.

Train Bell Will Serve In Africa

JAMAICA, N.Y. (AP)—Instead of announcing the approach of a Long Island train, an old engine bell will call the Basimbiti tribe in Tanganyika, Africa, to religious services. Maryknoll missionary Denis E. O'Brien, a former Marine sergeant, wrote friends that his new church lacked a bell. Long Island railroad officials donated a 275 pound, bronze and steel bell and railroad shop workers made a special bracket for it in their spare time.

The United States has 4,500 people 100 years old and over says the National Geographic Society.

Australian Stand Deserves Support

Russia's rash act in severing diplomatic relations with Australia on the eve of the opening of the Geneva Conference should result in stronger unity among the free nations as they face the Reds over the conference table.

Russia's action came as a result of the failure of the Australian government to hand back former Russian envoy Vladimir Petrov who has political asylum in Australia. Petrov fled his post as third secretary in the Soviet embassy and handed over numerous documents said to have exposed communist spy operations.

Police in Australia had to disarm Kremlin agents to free Mrs. Petrov to keep her from being forcibly returned to Russia.

The exposure of Kremlin spy operations in Australia, coming on the heels of a similar condition in Japan, probably prompted the Russians to the course of severing diplomatic relations with Australia.

The developments add new tension to the situation in the Far East where relations between freedom and communism have been strained almost to the breaking point many times in the past few years.

Surely the United States, Great Britain and the other nations of the free world bloc will support the Australian stand on the matter which has resulted in the severing of relations by Russia. There was no other course open to Australia but to offer protection to Petrov and his wife; and Australia could not have been expected to return the man and his wife to Russia and certain death.

It is obvious the severing of diplomatic relations with Australia is a move which the Kremlin hopes will bring the return to Russia of Petrov and his wife. So far the Kremlin has been thwarted in its attempts to get Petrov in its hands again, and it is to be hoped that Australia can rely upon the united support of the other free nations in maintaining the position which it has taken.

The Farmer Also Needs A Profit On Tobacco

To farmers of North Carolina, tobacco production is a tremendous industry.

Practically all North Carolinians are aware of the part the various segments of the tobacco play in the economic life of the entire state. Particularly are we aware of the meaning of the revenue realized from the production of tobacco by farmers in the state.

In that light, it is well to consider what tobacco means to the governments of some 41 states which levy special taxes on tobacco products.

The 1953 tobacco crop in North Carolina, for instance, brought a little more than $449 million dollars including the $7.5 million which growers received for Burley tobacco. During that same year, the 41 state governments which levy taxes on cigarettes collected some $482 million in taxes on cigarettes sold.

That of course, means the states which have tacked a tax on cigarette sales got some three million dollars more out of tobacco in 1953 than did North Carolina farmers who spent the entire year producing, harvesting and selling their entire tobacco crop.

On top of that we might go on to mention the federal government collections of more than one and one-half billion dollars in excise taxes on cigarettes last year.

It stands to reason that if so many state governments and the federal government are making such high profits out of taxes on cigarettes, that some of the Wonderful Wizards of Washington should put a little more thought to maintaining an agricultural program with sufficient supports and other provisions to see that the farmers who grow tobacco can be assured of making a reasonable return on their crops.

We hope in this investigation the emphasis is kept on the exposure of individuals who have fleeced home owners and the government, and does not become a partisan fight.

Strength for the Day

ARRIVING AT THE TRUTH

Frequently we hear that some great scientist has made a pronouncement regarding religion. The headlines announce the astonishing fact that Professor So-and-So acknowledges the existence of God. And this is supposed to be one more victory for religion and morality, and for the Almighty Himself. The great chemist or mathematician or psychologist has expressed an opinion in the field of religion, and everyone is overjoyed if he does not repudiate religion and disavow it if he does.

But what does Professor So-and-So, the scientist, know about religion? Precisely as much as anyone else who has done the same amount of investigation in that field, which is probably none at all. When the Professor speaks about science, we should listen with rapt attention. If he is a physicist and tells about some new laboratory discovery, we should strain our ears to catch every syllable of his pronouncement. But when he speaks of religion, let us ponder the fact that he is out of his field, that he is dealing with something which does not respond to the techniques of science, and the chances are that he is just as unlearned in the field of religion as most of us are in the field of science.

Religion deals with the unseen world, and unseen spiritual truth can be arrived at only by the exercise of a faculty known as faith. Spiritual truth must be spiritually discerned.

The Source Of Our Confusion

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The American people's confusion over such grave problems as possible atomic blundering, Communists in government and the Indo-China threat of war has been aggravated by strange and misleading events at Washington in recent days. The public apathy and misunderstanding exist, the fault lies at the Nation's Capital.

Instead of straightforward talk and information from responsible officials, the public has been fed with partial and belated facts, misled by so-called "trial balloons" and subjected to propaganda pressures. Rarely has there been such a race by the principals in these controversies to settle them in the headlines, and not in or by the agencies charged with the orderly management of public affairs.

President Eisenhower reiterates that our greatest need in the world crisis is unity and understanding. But, consciously or unconsciously, he permits certain spokesmen to resort to methods which shatter public confidence. In turn, or in retaliation, certain private individuals have adopted the same secret and furtive strategy. The result has been to create a spirit of national bewilderment.

DRAMATIC EXAMPLE—The Oppenheimer case furnishes the most dramatic and enlightening example of this kind of hocus-pocus operation. It casts discredit on both sides.

Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, suspended the famous scientist last December on the basis of an FBI report. But there was no official announcement of this action, although it soon became common knowledge at Washington and within scientific circles.

The Strauss secrecy is difficult to explain. At the very time that he withheld his sensational news, Attorney-General Herbert Brownell Jr. was charging that Harry S. Truman knowingly retained traitors in key posts.

Was the Strauss secrecy due to the fact that he was not sure of his case? Or did he feel that an atomic scientist, no matter how eminent, deserved greater protection and consideration than a former President of the United States?

Business Today Promoters, Losses

By ELMER ROESSNER

When homeowners are over-charged for home-improvement projects, especially by the crews of traveling promoters known as "dynamiters," local business loses seriously, too. A town's merchants and contractors lose not only the amount of overcharge, but must contend with a residue of bad will aimed at the local banks and contractors involved, sometimes innocently.

When the Congressional committees stop arguing over which has prior right to look into the housing malpractices, they will finally hear a rather sad story of homeowners who paid high prices for storm windows that didn't fit; mastic paint jobs that didn't last (sometimes not more than a few weeks); water-conditioning systems they may or may not have needed; fire-detection systems at prices up to $1,000 that may be valuable but that the homeowner could not afford; costly furnace repairs that may or may not have been needed, such as expensive charges made by some traveling promoters for "gasproofing" furnaces, and many other projects.

Take the case of the phony storm windows. One home buyer, making a moderate salary, ordered a set of aluminum storm windows from a salesman. The set cost several hundred dollars. When the windows were delivered, our man wasn't home and his wife signed a paper which she thought was a receipt for the materials. When our man tried to put up his new storm windows they just didn't fit. But the "receipt" his wife had signed turned out to have been an official FHA "completion certificate," certifying that "the work or materials have been satisfactorily completed or delivered." The storm window people had already turned the man's FHA note over to a bank so they have their money. Now our

Are Present Unemployment Figures Very Misleading?

By ROGER BABSON
WASHINGTON, D.C.

I am convinced that the present figures on unemployment are very misleading. With retail sales holding up reasonably well, these figures surely are not due to any so-called "Business Depression." The public must learn that we can now have both unemployment and reasonable prosperity at the same time.

VITAMIN PILLS AND GOVERNMENT FIGURES

The basic reasons for the present number of unemployed are: (1) our increased population; (2) the large number of women employed and (3) the constantly increasing number of able-bodied persons over 65 years of age. It can honestly be said that many in this older-age group are listed in the "unemployed" category who would not have been so classified some years ago. The vitamin pills taken by older people undoubtedly keep them in the "employable" ranks longer. There are about 7,000,000 more of these people now than there were 25 years ago!

The constant introduction of new automatic machinery results in both unemployment and continued prosperity. One of my associates just visited a chemical plant where three men are now doing the work of eighty men. Fertilizing plowed fields has been done by hauling fertilizer in bags to the field, opening the bags and sprinkling the fertilizer by hand. Now an airplane loads with fertilizer at the factory and carries it in bulk to the fields, where it is sprayed on the ground from the air. No manual labor, no bags, and better results.

OFFSETTING HIGH LABOR COSTS

The rapid increase in self-service stores and coin machines is

Around Capitol Square Friendliness Marks Spirit Of Festival At Fairmont

By LYNN NISBET

FRIENDLINESS — The prevailing spirit at the Farmers festival at Fairmont was friendliness. The 25,000 to 30,000 people who lined the streets for the parade Thursday were pretty evenly divided among whites, Indians and Negroes. One of the most attractive floats in the parade emphasized the cordial relations by the presence of a well known minister from each of the races. Another float paraded the equal opportunities in education and health.

The school bands, the boy scout troops and other special groups made up of Indians or Negroes

This Is Year Of The Big Sneeze

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Heard any good sneezes lately?

If we laborers of the year are the Chinese do, this one should go down as the "year of the big kerchoo."

I can't remember a spring, off-hand, in which more people complained of having colds, laryngitis, grippe, flu, strep throat, bronchitis, sniffles, sniffles, and the more popular virus infections.

Every year the common cold seems to get more uncommon and fewer people will admit that is what they have. We have become a nation of medical social climbers, and if we can't be stricken with a malady that carries with it a sense of mystery and has a fascinating name we would almost as soon stay well.

The man who used to grumble at the first sneeze, "must've gotta bug somewhere," now has a son who announces with doleful bravado, "guess I picked up a virus."

Whenever I hear a man use that phrase, I get a vivid mental image of man sleepingwalk. Suddenly he comes to a virus on the floor (it's rather like an octopus except it's a green color). The man bends down, picks up the virus in one hand, cradles it in his arm like a puppy, and walks on into the night, still sound asleep and with one arm held straight out in front to keep from bumping into anything.

Whatever people pick up—a bug or a virus—they end up with one of the 57 varieties of the common cold. Perhaps, if you work in an office or factory, you have run into one of the following general types of runny-nosed heroes:

The tragedian—Camille, racking her life out from her lungs, was a gay soubrette compared to this hunk of art. His sepulchral cough booms through the office every hour on the hour until the boss says, "Joe, you better take that cough home and put it to bed." Joe looks up gratefully through glazed eyes, plods home spends home buyer must pay the bank or lose his home.

The mastic paint situation is another sticky issue. From California to New York, there are now in the courts scores of cases involving the sale of mastic paint jobs. Many of which cost the homeowners more than $1,000 per house. Now mastic paint is a product of possible merit if properly applied, although it is still too new to take literally the claims some sellers make of its "permanence." But it must be applied under pressure and the surface must be carefully prepared. Several companies were set up throughout the country to sell mastic paint jobs (one of the largest in the East recently went bankrupt), and other mastic jobs have been sold to homeowners by dynamiters. In some cases the jobs lasted only weeks.

REASONABLE PRICES FOR SUMMER SYNTHETICS

The new low prices on various types of summer garments made from modern synthetic materials should be a real business booster for aggressive clothing and apparel shops this year. There's a broadened market now for such desirable garments as men's suits of Dacron-worsted blend, now that they are widely available to retail at $55 or less, compared with the $85 tag they bore only two years ago. The suits of Dacron-rayon are available for even smaller amounts so no man need be without a summer suit. And with nylon dresses available this summer to retail for as little as $5, every man's wife can have a varied wardrobe.

GETTING MANUFACTURERS, INVENTORS TOGETHER

A bulletin listing manufacturers who are seeking inventions to put into production as new products is being published by Science and Mechanics magazine, 450 E. Ohio St., Chicago 11. There is no charge for listings.

Worth Noting

cleaners had one float together; so did the druggists and the grocers.

Robeson county has separate schools for the races, and only in a few instances do the different people attend the same churches. There was not enforced segregation at any of the big day doings. Everybody pitched in to do his or her full part, giving and accepting help whenever it was appropriate.

An interesting side comment is that while population is about equally divided, there are more Indian children in the Robeson county schools than whites and Negroes combined.

RECOGNITION — There are seven candidates for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate in the May 2 primary. In their capacity as candidates they are entitled to exactly the same kind of treatment and consideration. The election laws guarantee that quality. They were required to pay the same fee to enter the race and their names will be rotated on the printed ballots (it is understood that where voting machines are used the names cannot be switched but will appear throughout the day in the same order.)

It happens this time that two of the seven candidates, and the two who are conceded to be the only real contenders, have claims to recognition beyond the mere fact of their candidacy.

Alton Lennon is the incumbent junior United States Senator. Like

Joint Hostesses Honor June Bride-Elect At Coffee Hour

Mrs. W. H. Woolard and Mrs. D. H. Conley were gracious hostesses at the Woman's Club on Saturday at 11 a.m. at a coffee hour honoring Miss Elizabeth Kittrell, bride-elect.

Upon the arrival of the honoree the hostesses presented her with a bridal corsage.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Woolard, Mrs. Conley and Miss Kittrell and invited to be served by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor. Refreshments consisted of Russian tea, assorted sandwiches, cakes and nuts.

The Woman's Club was attractively decorated with mixed summer flowers. Arrangements of tulips, roses and scotch broom adorned the mantel and many end tables. The serving table was covered with a cut work linen cloth and held a crystal bowl of white narcissi, tulips and roses. One table was beautifully decorated with a bowl of sweet-heart roses.

The bride-elect was the recipient of a plate in her chosen china pattern and a silver teaspoon.

Claims Punches Gave Nightmares

SALEM, Mass. (AP)—A Navy doctor's wife testified at her divorce suit in Essex Probate Court yesterday that her husband punched her so hard she had nightmares about movie actor Orson Welles. Mrs. Paul Hart, 27, told Judge John V. Phelan her husband "slapped me and used his fist so that I dreamed that Orson Welles was chasing me and trying to drive me into a fire."

Mrs. Hart is seeking a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Funeral Tuesday For Mrs. Edward Arnold

Mrs. Annie Gaskins Arnold, 65, widow of Edward S. Arnold, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elbert B. Evans, at Cox's Mill at 7:40 o'clock Sunday night following a year of illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Black Jack Free Will Holiness Church Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. D. J. Little, Holiness Minister of Greenville, assisted by the Rev. George W. Turner, pastor of the Black Jack Holiness Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. The body will remain at the Wilkerson Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mrs. Arnold, daughter of the late Richard and Elizabeth Smith Gaskins, spent all her life in the Sheldonsville and Black Jack communities. She was a member of the Black Jack Free Will Holiness Church. Her husband died in 1924.

Surviving are a son, Carl Arnold of Black Jack; two daughters: Mrs. Elbert Evans of Cox's Mill and Mrs. Norman Earl Tyndall of Greenville; two step-daughters: Mrs. Zeno G. Mills of Black Jack and Mrs. Paul Vincent of Greenville; five grandchildren; four brothers: Major Gaskins of Black Water, Va., and Clayton, Jarvis, and Lem Gaskins, all of Greenville; and a sister, Mrs. Lass Bailey of Bailey.

School Board Again Elects Sam D. Bundy

FARMVILLE — The Farmville School Board at its meeting last Friday night elected Sam D. Bundy principal of the Farmville white schools for the eighth consecutive term.

The board elected Mrs. Lula Beaman for her second term as building principal of the Farmville Primary School.

Prof. H. B. Sugg was elected for his 36 consecutive term as principal of the H. B. Sugg Negro School, named in his honor for long and distinguished service.

The Farmville School Board recently was reorganized. T. B. Tyson and J. Y. Monk, Jr., were elected to succeed John B. Lewis and Dr. John M. Mewborn, who retired April 1 after outstanding service.

The board elected W. A. Allen chairman and Mrs. Sara Albritton secretary.

The Farmville schools are undergoing rapid expansion, it was stated at the trustees meeting. Plans are now under way for additions to the new primary white school building and construction of a combination gymnasium and auditorium for the Negro School is now under way. The total enrollment for the white and Negro schools in Farmville is approximately 1,750, it was stated. Both the Negro and white schools are in line to receive to gain additional high school teachers, based on the present year's attendance, a school official stated.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. Zeb Tripp Today

Mrs. Ada Ormond Tripp, 65, died in the Morehead City Hospital, Sunday morning at 11:45 o'clock. She had been in failing health for the past six months and critically ill for the past three weeks.

Funeral services were conducted at Juniper Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Vanceboro Monday afternoon at three o'clock and burial was in the churchyard. The Rev. A. P. Hill, Methodist minister of Vanceboro, conducted the services.

Mrs. Tripp was born and reared near Griffon, but moved with her family several years ago to Newport. She was a member of the Edwards Chapel Methodist Church near Griffon.

Surviving are her husband, Zeb Tripp of Newport; two sons: Billie Tripp of Vanceboro and Herman B. Tripp of Newport; two sisters: Mrs. Fannie Brooks of Griffon and Mrs. Joe B. Bland of Fort Barnwell; and two grandchildren.

FORTUNE IS ERROR
PETALUMA, Calif. (AP) — For three hours retired electrician O. V. Berg, 66, thought his big coin collection contained an 1882 $5 gold piece worth $15,000. But it was a typographical error in a coin trade paper. The date should have read 1822.

Advices Clean Up Of Medicines

CINCINNATI (AP)—Get rid of the things in that cluttered medicine cabinet is the warning of Dr. Carl Wilzbach, city health commissioner. Old adhesive tape, cotton and iodine can cause a lot of trouble, he told a newsman, adding: "Most medicine cabinets are loaded with dynamite." The usual, fresh, first-aid articles always should be kept on hand, however, the physician said.

MARINES GET ACTION

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Marines fired a single-gun salute and the city's peppy pigeons took off from the Civic Center like frightened jets. City officials, who have tried many ways to get rid of the birds, were disappointed when they soon fluttered back.

Members Of Science Club Make Annual Educational Tour

Thirty-five members of the Science Club at East Carolina College made their annual spring educational tour Friday and Saturday, April 23-24. They were accompanied by their faculty advisors Dr. Christine Wilton and J. O. Derrick.

The group traveled by chartered bus and visited various points of interest in the state. The trip took them to Morrow Mountain State Park near Albemarle, the Aluminum Company of America at Badin and the power plants there and the Planetarium at Chapel Hill, where they saw the Easter show.

The trip was arranged by Ray Kirby of Warsaw, president; Lois Ann Tucker of Greenville, vice president; Pete Williams of Dover, tour chairman and other officers of the Science Club. Those who made the tour are active participants in the club program during the school year and students with no unexcused absences from their classes. Funds were raised at the annual celebration on the campus of Sadie Hawkins Day, a project of the Science Club.

Pirates Defeat Atlantic Christian 9-7 In Wild Game

Piner Pitches Win; Heath Leads Batting

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

It took roughly two and a half hours and enough constitution to survive most anything but East Carolina College's Pirates defeated Atlantic Christian 9-7 Saturday afternoon and scored the Bohunk Bucket back to Greenville.

The North State Conference (Eastern Division) victory also moved the Pirates farther ahead of A.C.C. in the chase after Elon in the division standings. The defeat dropped the Bulldogs to a 5-5 mark for the year while the Pirates have a 5-2 record. Elon, in first place and the defending champion, is in first place with an 8-1 record for the year.

The game Saturday was one of the type that keeps you guessing and which finally drives the customers away. First of all, there were 16 errors in the game, 10 of them by the winning Pirates. There were 19 base hits, 10 of them by the losing Bulldogs. There was a home run, three triples, a pair of doubles, and a mess of singles. There was even rain for eight minutes of the fourth inning.

Two pitchers paraded to the mound for each team but endurance honors, and credit for the victory, went to East Carolina's Jimmy Piner. Piner, the senior right-hander from New Bern who was making his first start of the season, pitched to all but the last man in the A.C.C. batting order. He finally gave way to Mack Cherry in the ninth inning with two outs and Cherry got the last man to retire the side and end the game. Piner went eight and 2-3 innings, gave up 10 hits, walked three and struck out two.

Losing pitcher for the day was A.C.C.'s John Marley who wasn't around when the game finally ended. Marley, the 6-10 freshman basketball star, lost his touch at getting Pirates out (he beat the Buccaneers 3-2 a week earlier) and went to the showers in the sixth inning. Ken Fulghum came in to lock up but he didn't escape without some pounding from the Bulls.

Marley gave up all of the East Carolina runs in the loosely played contest. Included in the total were three in the sixth inning that wrapped the game up for Coach Earl Smith and his boys.

Three Runs
Bill Cline and Jimmy Piner started the sixth by drawing walks from Marley. Cecil Heath then fired a hot grounder back to the mound and Marley made a nice stop of the ball before tossing to third to retire Cline on the fielder's choice. Major Hooper popped up to second base but Paul Jones came through with a shot single to center field to score Piner and to send Heath to third.

Heath came home with the third run of the inning when A.C.C. catcher Charlie Jones dropped a third strike on Bob Penley and then tried to catch the fleet Heath at home. Heath slid under Marley by a comfortable margin of safety and Paul Jones went to second. Jones and Penley then got together on a double steal with Penley taking second and Jones coming home with the third run of the inning. Marley threw one more pitch to W. C. Sanderson and then was jerked from the game in favor of Fulghum.

Heath led the hitting for the Pirates with a double and triple in five trips to the plate and Major Hooper had a double and a single in five trips but real batting honors of the day went to A.C.C.'s Jerry Williams. Williams had two singles, a triple, and a home run in five official trips. His homer came in the fourth with nobody on and his triple came in the ninth with two men on base. On the ninth-inning triple, Williams was thrown out at home trying to stretch the hit into a home run.

W. C. Sanderson and Paul Jones of the Pirates and Scott McPhail of the Bulldogs had a pair of singles apiece to follow in the batting.

The Pirates will play again tonight when they meet Wake Forest in Edenton. Their next North State game will be Wednesday when they play High Point here in a double-header.

Bears Pulling Up In North State's Western Division

GREENSBORO (AP)—Defending conference champion Lenoir Rhyne jumped into a tie with Western Carolina for first place in the North State Conference baseball standings in the Western Division, while Elon stayed on top in the Eastern Division.

Elon, seeking its third consecutive division crown, took two double-headers during the week for an 8-1 record. Outstanding pitching and consistent batting did the trick.

East Carolina beat Atlantic Christian 9-7 and ran its record to 5-1 after an earlier 6-4 victory over Guilford.

High Point tasted victory for the first time Friday in a 5-4 win over Guilford.

In the Western Division, Western Carolina stayed for a first place tie by splitting a double-header with Appalachian, Saturday.

Earlier Catawba gained a 3-3 record by downing Appalachian twice.

Today Elon is at High Point in a double-header, then takes on Guilford Wednesday. East Carolina entertains High Point in a pair Wednesday and goes to Atlantic Christian Saturday.

Lenoir Rhyne is at Appalachian today and plays host to the Appes Wednesday. Friday and Saturday Lenoir Rhyne entertains Western Carolina.

Clemson Defeated For First Time In ACC Loop Play

RALEIGH (AP)—It was a long time coming, but when Clemson met its first defeat in the Atlantic Coast Conference this baseball season, there was no doubt about the results.

The Tigers bowed 11-0 to the Duke Blue Devils last Saturday, but still managed to stay on top of the league. Action this week for the Tigers is restricted to a two-game series with North Carolina, Friday and Saturday.

Clemson's record is now 6-1, and in the all-game standings, 11-4. The Blue Devils' decisive victory didn't do much for their standing however. Duke is in fifth place, a one-notch drop, after losing three previous league games last week, for a 3-5 conference record.

The win broke a five-game winning streak for Clemson pitcher Billy O'Dell.

Other action last week showed Wake Forest into second place. The Deacons beat North Carolina

Former Duke Golfing Star Wins Rich Las Vegas Meet

By BOB MYERS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A cool disposition, an antiquated hickory shaft putter and a baseball grip were major factors in the victory of Art Wall Jr., in the $35,000 Tournament of Champions.

The 30-year-old native Pennsylvanian from Pocono Manor today could stow $10,000 into the bank for the triumph over 18 other selected players in the second annual champions' tournament.

Brilliant rounds of 69, 66 and 70, followed by a cautious one over par 73 yesterday, brought Wall in safely by six strokes over his nearest rivals.

A professional for almost five years, and winner of but one other open event in his career — the Fort Wayne Open which earned the chance to play in this rich competition — Wall outscored such seasoned campaigners as Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum, and Cary Middlecott.

He began the round with a seven stroke lead over Middlecott, with Mangrum Gene Littler and Doug Ford one stroke back.

Did he feel the pressure, despite the big margin? Wall smiled and nodded. "I never gambled once. I just hit for the middle of the greens and depended on my putter to do the rest."

The putter, which was ancient when it was given to Wall 10 years ago, worked all right. He did not three-put a green in the 72 holes.

The winner holds his clubs in a unique manner. Instead of the orthodox overlapping style of most professionals, he prefers a baseball grip.

"I started with it as a kid," he says. "A few people tried to change it, but I always came back to it."

As the play came out, Mangrum held on to gain a tie for second place with last year's surprise longshot winner, Al Bessellink — Mangrum with a 71 and Bessellink a 68 for 284. Each won $3,750.

Snead finished far back with a last round 72 for a 291. He could merely pick up the $1,000 check guaranteed each golfer who participated. Just ahead at 289 were Littler, who took his second straight 76 and Dave Douglas, with a 71.

Fast-Moving Phantoms Meet Elizabeth City

Boxing Notes

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Hurricane Tommy Jackson, who moved from pre-lim boy to No. 3 heavyweight contender on three stunning victories, takes on a tough assignment tonight at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway in Jimmy Slade, a "spoiler" with the style to bother him.

The 10-round bout, for the New York state heavyweight "championship" will start at 9 p.m. (EST) with television coverage over DuMont.

When he stopped Dan Bucceroni a month ago, after knocking out Rex Layne and outpointing Clarence Henry, Jackson captured the imagination of fight fans. The headlong style of this tireless young Negro from Rockaway Beach who shakes off punishment like raindrops makes up for his crude awkwardness.

In Slade, Jackson will be fighting a rough customer who punches hard to the body out of a crouch. He may be able to weave under the Hurricane's wild gusts and end the Jackson boom. He is the No. 3 lightweight challenger to Archie Moore.

Paola Rosi, promising Italian import, moves up in class to box Orlando Zulueta, the second ranked lightweight challenger, Friday at St. Nicholas Arena. Rosi looked good stopping Eddie Compo April 9, showing a sound style and a solid wallop. It's the usual Friday network show (ABC-radio and NBC-TV).

The winner will be in there pitching for a title shot at the Paddy DeMarco-Jimmy Carter rematch at San Francisco June 2.

Two other lightweights with title ambitions for Saturday night (ABC-TV) at Cincinnati when Wallace (Bud) Smith meets Johnny Gonsalves.

Smith will be out to make up for his knockout loss before the home fans by Joe Miceli, Feb. 20, his last fight. Gonsalves, top ranked challenger at one stage, has one of the finest left jabs in the business.

Ralph Dupas, the New Orleans schoolboy flash, takes on Dennis Far Brady, New York campaigner, in a lightweight 10 Wednesday (CBS-TV). Dupas is listed No. 4 among the 135-pounders at the age of 19. He has lost only five of 54 starts, one to DeMarco Jan. 2.

With three consecutive conference wins under their belt, the fast improving Greenville Phantoms take on the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets in Elizabeth City tomorrow afternoon.

In the only meeting between the two clubs so far this year, Russell Hastings of EC spun a three-hit shutout at the G-men. Left-hander Bill Hendrix pitched his best game of the year in that game for the Greenies, but his mates could do nothing with the sharp slants of the Yellow Jacket ace.

The loss to Elizabeth City is one of the two conference losses by the Green Phantoms this year. The other loss was to Roanoke Rapids by 5-4. Coach Bo Farley's crew has posted four wins in the family competition, over Washington, New Bern, Jacksonville, and Kinston.

A win is almost essential for the Green Phantoms tomorrow if they are to stay in the running for the conference championship. Kinston's Red Devils are leading the pack with only one loss and four wins. Since the Red Devils and the Greenies play once more this year, the final game probably will be the clincher.

Coach Farley will probably send his left-handed ace to the mound tomorrow against the Yellow Jackets. Hendrix enjoyed good success over the Jackets last time and with a little more help from his comrades could register the win this time.

The Green Terrors will probably employ the same line-up tomorrow as they have been using during the winning streak. That would have Charles Joyner at first, Jerry Phillips at second, Bob Howell at third, Bobby Conway at third, Gene Hudson in left, Dixie Hobgood in center, Harold Edwards in right, and Bobby Nunn catching.

PONY Leaguers Meeting Tonight

There will be a meeting of PONY League managers, parents, and other supporters tonight at 7:30 in the Recreation Building. The meeting will be primarily devoted to discussion of plans for the coming season.

Little League baseball players are also asked to remember that today is the last time they can work out if they are not already a member of one of the eight Little League teams. Little League managers will meet tomorrow night to choose new squad members.

Great Plains Area Economy Is Firm

By SAM DAWSON
MINNEAPOLIS, (P)—The northern Great Plains states see their economy sailing into the spring season on a pretty even keel—with some new oil fields for ballast but with iron mining dragging its anchor a little.

The business and industrial storms of the winter seem to be dying down. Manufacturing follows pretty closely the course set nationally. The farm and livestock outlook is perhaps more closely tied this year than usual to the twin forces of weather and government price support policies.

More men are out of work in the industrialized sections than last year. Pay checks have shrunk some with the ending of overtime. But economists for the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis say that the number of unemployed workers in the northern Great Plains is a smaller percentage of the labor force than is the case in the nation as a whole.

And perhaps because of this, retail sales compare favorably with a year ago, although sales of appliances are down, and it's a little more work to collect on payments.

The 9th Federal Reserve District, which the bank serves, includes the states of Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and the northern half of Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Most folk you talk to in the Twin Cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis say: "Sure, things aren't quite as booming as they were awhile back. But how could they go on being like that? Business is still pretty good."

City To Attempt Big Evacuation

SPOKANE, Wash. (P)—Spokane gives civil defense a maximum effort today in "Operation Walk-out."

It is the nation's first test exercise to involve evacuation of a metropolitan area and observers are here from all parts of the country.

The assumption is that an atomic bomb, twice as powerful as the one that hit Hiroshima, is headed this way. At 9:35 a.m. a siren downtown gives the "red alert."

Some 20,000 persons are expected to walk out on that signal. Everyone has been asked to leave a 50-square-block area in the center of this city of 175,000.

The evacuees, who aren't required to take part, will gather outside the target area and wait. The farthest anyone will have to walk is five blocks.

At 10 a.m., the "bomb" is dropped. The exercise ends with the "all clear" at 10:05.

Bombers, jet planes, antiaircraft guns on downtown rooftops, tanks and troops will add realism. All traffic will be stopped. Stores and banks will be closed.

Questions To Be Answered If U.S. Goes Into Indochina

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, (P)—The American people no doubt will want some questions answered if they have to go into Indochina to bail out the French in the war with the Communist-led Vietnam.

These are the main ones:

1. Just how much effort have the French put into the war? How much more would they put forth if this country got in?
1. What would happen if, through American help, the Communists were crushed? Would this country have a deciding voice in Indochina's future or turn it back to the French?

American troops sent in as a last resort would include regulars and draftees. The draftees would have no choice.

But French draftees are not sent to Indochina unless they volunteer to go. Would the French change this if American draftees were sent into the fighting?

American youths are drafted for 24 months. French youths for 18 months.

Every year in France itself between 250,000 and 275,000 youths are drafted when they reach 21.

Why is none sent to Indochina unless he volunteers?

That question was asked the French Embassy here last night. This was how the conversation went:

Q—Why aren't draftees sent to Indochina?

A—Because they are drafted for only 18 months and it would be uneconomical to send them to Indochina to train and then fight. They'd have perhaps only three months' fighting service and then be brought home.

Q—You send no draftees at all?

A—Yes. But only draftees who volunteer.

Q—Does that mean once they volunteer to go to Indochina they must serve more than 18 months?

A—No. They are returned to France at the end of that time.

Q—How is that? If you say it's uneconomical to send draftees because their service is for only 18 months and they'd have perhaps only three months of fighting, why do you send any at all?

A—Because it's less uneconomical to send perhaps a hundred than a thousand.

In the three years' war in Korea American casualties were 142,000, of which about 30,000 were battle deaths (an average of 10,000 a year), and wounded was 47,000.

That includes only men from France proper. In over seven years, total casualties for the French, including troops from North Africa, were 150,000, of whom 50,000 were killed or missing.

The number of French officers killed each year has run about 750. Frenchmen say this is the equivalent of each year's graduating class from St. Cyr, the French officers' school similar to West Point.

But the French have held Indochina as a colony for almost 100 years and even in the past seven disastrous years have failed to train an Indochinese officer corps that could replace the French.

Further, the French delayed training the Indochinese administratively so they could someday take over the country if the French gave it independence. Reluctance of the French to let the people have independence has been one of the main reasons for their disaster.

It is this country's stated policy Indochina must not fall to the Communists. Yet if this country got into the fighting without exacting from the French guarantees about the future of the Indochinese — to the liking of the Indochinese — then:

Instead of turning the Indochinese into American friends and allies the result might be to leave them sullenly resentful and waiting for the future day when the Communists could try again.

C-of-C President Urges Stronger School System

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON, (P)—Richard L. Bowditch, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, today called for a stronger school system and said "nothing must hamper its freedom of inquiry and discussion."

This nation was conceived and rose to world leadership on the ideas of nonconformists and free-wheelers, of men and women of integrity and wide vision, of individuals with bold far-reaching minds, who insisted on crossing the frontiers of the unknown," Bowditch said. "They dared to disagree on many things, but our country and our culture are infinitely richer and stronger for their challenge."

In his "keynote address" prepared for the annual meeting of the national business group, opening today, Bowditch said a strong school system should be America's "first line of defense against freedom-killing communism."

He said America's objective "beyond all others" is to "prevent the outbreak of an all-consuming World War III." This requires spending "unknown billions" for arms, skilled negotiating and "above all . . . the united effort of the American people and our allies," he said.

But Bowditch, a Boston steamship executive, said this country cannot act as a world leader and defend itself without the "difficult and painful process" of molding its youth for democratic responsibilities.

"To our public school teachers we turn over the most precious thing in America," he said. "But all too frequently, we ask these teachers to carry on their vital work in cramped, outmoded physical plants which we should never tolerate in our businesses—and at salaries less than we pay our secretaries."

Describing education as "our first line of defense," he said it must be given "more money for more and better schools, and more money for more and better teachers."

Briefs Syngman Rhee On Geneva

By FORREST EDWARDS
SEOUL, (P)—U. S. envoy Arthur Dean today gave South Korean President Syngman Rhee a rundown on the problems facing the allies at the Geneva conference on Korean unification.

Dean, a special envoy of Secretary of State Dulles, conferred with Rhee for an hour in his reported role as a pacifier of Rhee's fears that the Geneva conference will end in failure for the West.

Dean also transmitted to the 79-year-old South Korean President the "personal regards and best wishes" of President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon and Dulles.

Neither Rhee's office nor Dean would discuss their meeting.

However, observers assumed Dean reassured Rhee that the United States would stand firm in its backing of the republic's demands that red troops be pulled out of North Korea and that election for all of Korea be held under United Nations supervision.

Dean arrived at Rhee's presidential mansion with American ambassador Ellis O. Briggs. The special envoy probably will meet daily with Rhee to keep him advised on Western progress and strategy at Geneva. A statement issued by Dean merely expressed his pleasure at renewing the "warm friendship" of his previous visits to Korea.

Dean was last here for the unsuccessful Panmunjom negotiations to arrange a Korean peace conference. He walked out on Red negotiators after they accused the U. S. of "perfidy."

Revelry Kept Up 'Til Nearly Noon

SAN FRANCISCO, (P)—About 30 revelers at Saturday night's Bachelors' Ball kept their high society party going until the unprecedented hour of 11:20 a.m. yesterday to the chagrin of the Palace Hotel management because a church meeting was going on in an adjoining room.

The bachelors and their guests were dancing to a jazz band, drinking milk punch and shooting firecrackers.

The hotel authorities began at 10 a.m. encouraging the revelers to go home. But one of them said they had lost an hour in the switch to daylight saving time and they were going to make it up.

Most Of Candidates For Senate See Changes Needed In Federal Tax Laws

RALEIGH (AP) — Most of the candidates for U. S. Senate in the May 29 primary agree that changes should be made in the federal tax structure.

Six Democratic candidates and one Republican candidate were submitted four questions by the League of Women Voters of North Carolina. One of the questions was "What specific changes would you recommend in our federal tax structure?"

Five Democratic candidates sent in replies. Olla Ray Boyd, Democratic candidate of Pinetown, and Paul C. West, Republican of Raleigh, did not reply.

W. Kerr Scott of Haw River said he favors "a change in income taxes designed to increase the purchasing power of the lower-income group."

Sen. Alton Lennon of Wilmington stated: "We must develop a more realistic approach of our tax structure to allow for a more flexible use of taxes to stimulate business and to maintain high employment during periods of recession in order to halt a slipping economy. By the same token, we must prepare for a budget surplus during highly inflationary periods." He added the tax structure "should be carefully studied with the view to determining the most effective and efficient way of sharing the tax burden. . . . We must attempt to keep down the federal debt in order to eliminate the high cost of heavy debt management."

Alvin Wingfield Jr. of Charlotte said he would specifically "recommend the immediate lowering of the confiscatory income tax rates in the high 'upper brackets' which are severely hurting the poor people who would benefit from the risk-taking business ventures of those who would be willing to risk large losses for the sake of the chance to make large profits."

A. E. Turner of Palmira stated: "No income should be taxable until it reaches $2,500, which I consider necessary for minimum living expenses."

Henry L. Sprinkle of Greensboro said, "Change our reports to enable one and all to understand them and tax according to ability to pay."

W. M. Bostick of Cary commented that "tax should be on a flat per cent to at least 10 thousand per year." He suggested "fair, simple and adequate tax laws, with wise spending."

Another question asked was, "In what legislation are you especially interested?"

Scott replied that he is interested in working for a sounder farm program, adding: "I will work for all legislation designed to increase our chances of permanent peace."

Lennon said: "The challenge to our generation is the question of world peace and international order, based on Christian fundamentalism and the brutality of communism and fascism. With this in mind, I shall always place my first devotion as I am now, in the pursuit of these ideals."

Wingfield answered that he favors "the repeal of peacetime conscription and paying soldiers enough to raise our armies, navies and air forces by voluntary methods without taking away the liberty of young men who have committed no crimes." He added he favors "eliminating the terrible cycles of boom and depression which have frightened our people into the gradual abandonment of their liberties. This can be done by a gradual reform of the banking system to eliminate the means by which government manipulates the money and credit of the country. I favor a modified Bricker amendment to save the Constitution."

Turner said he favors federal aid to assist hospitalization, social security "to cover everyone," and government support for farmers "as long as labor union contracts stay in force."

Sprinkle said he is "particularly interested in foreign trade and firmly believes the trade barriers should be reduced."

Bostick included in the proposals he favors: better social security, 90 per cent of parity, giving surplus food to needy, balanced budget, controlled inflation, try to keep any tax under 10 per cent, increased federal minimum wage, and federal spending apportioned among the states in accord with population.

Underground Is Toiling Against Russian Rulers

By ROY ESSOVAN
HONOLULU, April 24 (AP)—The Kremlin struck back at the anti-Communist NTS with the bludgeoning of one of its officials last week and the abortive murder plot announced by U. S. authorities in Germany.

Just what is the NTS? It broke into the news last week when West Berlin police said an NTS leader, Dr. Alexander Truchnovich, was beaten unconscious and kidnapped by Soviet secret service agents.

A U. S. spokesman in Bonn, Germany, said yesterday three Soviet agents assigned to murder George Okolovich, another NTS official, had given themselves up to American authorities.

I spent three weeks in the fall of 1951 talking to NTS officials on the U. S. West Coast. Some had escaped from the Soviet Union during and after World War II. All were engaged in a silent war to undermine communism in Russia.

The NTS is a little-known Russian resistance group working inside and outside the Iron Curtain. Its official title, loosely translated from the Russian, means National Alliance of Russian Solidarists.

The Solidarists—as they prefer to call themselves—were organized in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, 24 years ago by a small group of fugitive Russian student philosophers and economists.

Since then, they told me, their agents have spread into every big city in Russia and have infiltrated the Army, the Communist party and the secret police.

When I talked to them the Solidarists were seeking recognition and support in the United States. The Kremlin's actions this week indicate they have won recognition at least in the Soviet Union.

Their leaders said the objective of the NTS was the eventual overthrow of the Soviet regime from inside Russia.

"But first," one official told me, "we must tear down the wall of lies in Russia and break down the Russian fear of the secret police."

"The Soviet's main weapons are fear and lies. Break that down and then we can think of revolt, but not before."

YORK, Pa. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Pietro Pennino are in York County Jail charged with armed robbery because of the way they collected rent from a tenant.

Patrolman Richard Enders said Pennino held a .32-caliber pistol on Randall Marvel while Mrs. Pennino took $11 rent money from his wallet. Marvel was being dispossessed at the time.

TUXTELA GUTIERREZ, Mexico. (AP)—Rescue teams reached the scene of a commercial airliner crash yesterday and reported that six persons aboard the plane were dead.

They were the pilot, co-pilot and four passengers, including a 4-year-old boy. The plane struck a peak just north of Guatemalan frontier Saturday.

Police ordered the red lights taken down because custom dictates they signify police and fire stations.

Woman Arrested By ABC Raiders
ABC officers Saturday night arrested Georgiana Little, Negro of 806-B Pamlico Avenue on charges of illegal possession of liquor.

The woman was recognized for appearance in city recorder's court after officers found a small quantity of whiskey on her premises. Taking part in the search were ABC officers J. M. Ward, H. B. Lilley and Glynn Perkins, and Deputy Sheriff Elmer Haddock.

ECC President Says Three R's Being Taught Better Than Ever

Pertinent answers to the question "What is happening in education?" were given by President John D. Messick of East Carolina College in an address to Forsyth County teachers, school board members, and guests Friday night. He spoke at their annual meeting at Mineral Springs.

Dr. Messick said the American Association of Colleges for Teachers Education, in which he is chairman of the Accrediting Committee, has done more to improve the pattern of instruction of teachers than any other agency interested in teacher education in the last twenty-five years. Seven North Carolina colleges and universities are members, he said.

Greater emphasis is now being placed on general education and a broadening of the teacher-education curriculum, he explained. Students preparing themselves as teachers in elementary or secondary schools are receiving, he said, much training in general education and the traditional subjects, including language, mathematics, science, art, music, and philosophy.

Much criticism is at present being directed toward the public schools, Dr. Messick stated. "While there are enough examples that can be found in almost any community to justify some criticism based on the accusation of the antagonists of public schools, the positive side far outweighs the negative," he declared.

"More teachers are being employed than ever before," he said, "but because of the great increase in the number of children coming to school and because of the paucity of well trained teachers during the war years and the poor salaries which drove many well trained teachers into other work, many children have inadequate training."

Testing shows that reading, writing, and arithmetic are being taught better now than twenty-five years ago, he stated. Critics who say that the Three R's are not being taught as well as formerly "have no real basis for their judgment," he pointed out.

Mass education, he said, has changed the school population and has made the problems of public school education more complex and difficult to solve.

"We also forget," he continued, "that formerly we educated children mostly for the local communities. . . . Now we educate a student for world citizenship, and the curriculum is of necessity much broader." He pointed out that "about three fourths of the curriculum in North Carolina is devoted to the traditional subjects while one fourth is given to vocational or avocational interests."

Noted Novelist Hergesheimer Dies In Hospital

SEA ISLE CITY, N. J. (AP)—Joseph Hergesheimer, prolific novelist who shunned soft "social" living, is dead at 74.

The noted author, who turned out 20 novels in as many years between 1914 and 1934, died yesterday in Mercy Hospital after a brief illness.

Originally an art student, he turned on impulse to literature. As proof-reader for a woman novelist, he thought her work was so poor that he decided "even I could do better."

But for 10 years he went unrecognized, although he produced many novels and stories.

Then in 1917 he won attention with "The Three Black Pennies." His next novel the following year, "Gold and Iron," proved a best seller. "Java Head" in 1919 was responsible for worldwide fame.

A native of Philadelphia, Hergesheimer was a sickly youth who attended Quaker academy. He entered the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts when he was 17 to take up painting.

But he had an aversion to study. So when he inherited "a satisfactory sum" of money four years later he went to Europe. He lived a life of luxury in Venice until his funds ran out.

He returned to this country, unsure about his future as a painter. And then he met the "lady novelist" whose proofs he read and who indirectly was responsible for his turning author.

Hergesheimer loathed soft "social" living. Rather than mix in high society and with what he called the "cocktail crowd," he preferred the company of literary intimates.

For the past 10 years, he lived in Stone Harbor, which is about six miles south of this Atlantic Ocean resort town in southern New Jersey. His widow Dorothy survives.

Test Of New Polio Vaccine Has Final OK From Polio Foundation

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The test of the new polio vaccine in selected areas across the nation gets under way today.

Final sanction of the tests was given late yesterday by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis after an advisory committee of polio experts had recommended the go-ahead following a two-day appraisal, primarily for the standpoint of safety.

The U. S. Public Health Service also approved the decision, which stipulated certain conditions for the vaccine first developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh.

The foundation's action released stocks of vaccine which already had been delivered to 20 of the 45 states scheduled to participate. Vaccine for the other states is expected to be delivered in a fairly short time.

Officials estimated that approximately 500,000 children in some 170 communities of the 45 states eventually will receive the vaccine, with 400,000 others receiving inoculations with an inert substance.

These latter children will be among youngsters who will be used as "controls" for the test-an evaluation report on which is not expected before late in the fall.

While the vaccine has shown an ability to stimulate the body's production of antibodies of the type deemed protective against polio, it remains to be seen whether it can actually protect against an attack by virus under natural conditions — and that's why the nationwide field trials are being held.

The first inoculations today are in areas of Alabama, Colorado, Virginia, Nevada, Utah and Washington.

"Will it protect and for how long?" is the question to be answered by the tests, President Basil O'Connor of the polio foundation told reporters.

The advisory committee said certain specifications for manufacture of the vaccine had been set up some time ago and added that:

"The possibility of infectious activity remaining in any vaccine meeting the specifications and minimal requirements has been reduced to a point below which it cannot be measured by practical laboratory procedures."

Japanese Temple Bell Is Returned

TOKYO (AP)—A 262-year-old Japanese temple bell carried off to the United States as a trophy of World War II, arrived in Japan today for return to its owners.

The U. S. Far East Air Forces flew the 200-pound bronze bell into Tokyo. The U. S. Navy will carry it to the fishing town of Ohara, where it will be returned in a ceremony next Sunday.

The Buddhist bell was flown here from Duluth, Minn., which had received it as a present from men of the U. S. cruiser Duluth. The Navy men had carried it off from storage in the U. S. naval base at Yokosuka.

The town of Ohara had contributed the bell in 1940 for scrap. But it somehow was preserved during the war.

Mayor George Johnson of Duluth agreed to return the bell at the request of an Ohara native who came to this country to study.

Share Expense Of Televising Heated Hearing

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Sun-Times and television station WBBK today announced they will share expenses of live telecasts of the remaining McCarthy-Army hearings "as a public service."

The arrangement calls for the newspaper to pay a "major portion" of the revenue the station will lose by dropping regular commercial-sponsored programs. It prevents a threatened TV blackout of Chicago on the remainder of the hearings.

The Chicago outlet of the National Broadcasting Co., the only local station which carried the full hearings during the first two days had announced it was dropping the telecasts because of loss of revenue from regularly sponsored programs.

Candidates Slated To Step Up Pace

RALEIGH (AP)—With the May 26 primary less than five weeks away, the U. S. Senatorial candidates will step up their campaigns this week.

The two major candidates, Sen. Alton Lennon and W. Kerr Scott, have several engagements scheduled. Lennon will be in Raleigh tonight to present an award at the convention of the Southern Retail Furniture Assn. He is slated to go to Chadbourne Thursday for the annual Strawberry Festival. On Friday evening at 7 o'clock, he will be in Greensboro for a telecast over Station WFMY-TV.

At least three schedules stops are on Scott's itinerary. He planned to be in Goldsboro today for a Wayne County Future Farmers stock show. On Thursday, he will attend the Strawberry Festival at Chadbourne. He will be in Pink Hill Saturday to present calves to the winners of the recent 21-mile walk between Kinston and Hargett's Crossroads.

In an address at Wentworth Saturday, Lennon charged that Scott personally enriched himself more than any other office holder in recent North Carolina history.

Lennon addressed 500 persons at Young Democrats. He told them, "My opponent, who refused to attend this rally, had hardly warned the governor's seat before asking for a 200-million dollar bond issue."

Lennon added that Scott had said earlier there was no need for a bond issue for secondary roads.

He asserted Scott "got for his own personal use 19 miles of secondary roads around his 2,500-acre farm. He also got $12,662 for damaged lands, although overpasses and underpasses were built to take care of his cows."

Lennon told the group: "If the Democrats recapture the presidency in 1956 and I'm sure they will, it will be due to the militant Young Democrats in the country."

"The national administration," he added, "seems to be lost as far as knowing which way to go. There have been complete reversals of policies."

Aly To Help Rita In Negligence Charges

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Rita Hayworth, "dreadfully upset," came here today to fight charges she neglected her two daughters. Prince Aly Khan, a former husband of the actress and father of one of the girls, flew into New York from the West Coast a few hours later to "find out" what he could about the case.

His attorney, Charles Torem, said the prince expected to meet Miss Hayworth.

She and her present husband, crooner Dick Haymes, drove to White Plains shortly after midnight from Washington, where they first learned of the charges brought by Westchester County

Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The couple had been vacationing in Florida.

Miss Hayworth was reunited with the children in the modest White Plains home of Mrs. Dorothy Chambers, their governess. Mrs. Chambers described the actress as "so upset she was ill."

"I have no comment on the whole situation," the prince said at Idlewild Airport, but he added he would "try to find out" about it.

The prince is the father of Yasmine, 4, the younger of Miss Hayworth's two children.

Big Hailstones, Snow And Dust

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hailstones the size of baseballs in the Texas Panhandle, snow and 22-degree temperatures in Montana, blowing dust in Nebraska—

Those were the highlights of a weather picture pretty generally rainy over northern United States today.

An outside hailstone gashed a man's forehead, requiring seven stitches, at Tulsa, Tex. It fell through the already broken windshield of his automobile. The violent storm flooded a highway. Hailstones flattened to a measured 11-inch circumference on the highway surface.

Tulsa is in the southwest drought area which had received less than two inches of rain in the past 17 weeks. The thunderstorms dumped .65 of an inch at Amarillo, Tex., and amounts up to Russell's 1.32 in western and central Kansas.

Cutbank, Mont., was the nation's cold spot with 22 degrees, accompanied by snow. There were flurries of snow along the southern shore of Lake Superior, and Grand Marais' 42 was a sample of the chill in that sector.

Grantsburg, Wis., got a two-inch downpour along with hail and thundershowers were scattered throughout the southern Great Lakes section, the northern Plains, northern Pacific Coast and in Virginia.

Imperial, Neb., reported blowing dust cut visibility to five miles. The early morning temperature there was 63.

THIN SLICED Southern BREAD

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colver

CHAPTER ONE

IT WAS April in New Jersey. Winter could still be felt in the sharpness of the air but the ground was responding to the sun's warm wooing. Crocuses had long ago spread a royal carpet of purple and gold beneath the budding apple trees in the Fosters' side yard. Jonquils and tulips now nodded their bright heads along the graveled walk that led over to Todd Hunter's place next door. Spring, Joan thought, almost June, the month in which she had been sure she would be a bride.

How long, now, since she had been sure Todd was meant for her and she for him? Over a year. Yes, it was just a little more than a year ago that he had been taken so suddenly and terribly ill there in Paris. She remembered it all as if it were yesterday.

The day-long train ride returning to Zurich with Todd increasingly dazed by his mounting fever, and increasingly willing to let her manage all details of that trip for him. Her thankfulness to find Louise and Martin Kretzmer at the apartment upon their arrival. Louise, who had been trained as a nurse, competently taking over, getting Todd to bed, calling a doctor. Then, early the next morning the phone call from Louise to where Joan lived, and the ride to the hospital in the ambulance with Todd, who, hollow-eyed and pale and in great pain, had said gaspingly, "Nice of you to come along, Jo-Jo."

"Todd, I wouldn't."

"Mustn't let me interfere your plans."

And her answer, "I haven't any except to be of help to you."

Then she had known. Then it had come to her "like lightning," as Don Barton had once told her it would. And in that moment all her doubts and uncertainties had been swept away forever.

There Todd had been all the days of her life and yet she had never really seen him until she had so nearly lost him. Well, that wasn't quite true. She had seen him at her Senior dance at college, when Don Barton had given her such a shock by going straight up to Elaine upon his arrival instead of coming to seek her. Todd had been right beside her then, supporting her in the sudden weakness that Don's default had given her, protecting her from the curious stares of those around them, and—best of all—understanding how she felt.

That was the time he had told her he loved her. What a moment for him to choose! He had seen her stripped of everything, of all pride and pretense and courage. She must have been a pitiable figure. Yet he had told her he loved her.

She had known it was true, too. It had always been true. He had loved her through thick and thin, in fair weather and foul, no matter what she did or how she looked or what she said. From high-school days he had loved her like that. And he always would.

"I will build my house upon a rock."

The phrase came to her unexpectedly, changing the wording of the Bible to fit her own situation. But that was exactly what she was planning to do. Todd was a rock. Her mind went back again to the hospital in Zurich and the long anxious weeks when he had been fighting his way back to health. The passage of time lent it unreality now. Even Walter Fretz, the young Swiss who had been so kind—and who had so nearly ruined everything between her and Todd—was only a vague figure. Impossible to believe he had once been a real threat to her happiness.

Yes, impossible. Because after she and Todd had finally cleared away the shadow that he had cast between them, their love had grown steadily in depth and sweetness and sympathetic comprehension of the kind of person each was. All this past year, since their return from Europe, it had grown that way. He had been busy with his studies at Columbia University and she had been busy writing her second book, for which she had a contract with a New York publishing house. But there had been time, in the evenings and over the week ends, to go on discovering each other and to find, with each fresh discovery, how much they enjoyed together, how much they thought and felt alike on important matters, and how truly great their desire was to marry and found a home and a family.

It was worth all the heartaches and waiting to have this certainty now.

The heartaches of course were long since over and it was high time the waiting was. Todd had told her on the boat coming home—oh, how blithely and confidently he had told her—that by this spring they would be married. Yet here it was spring and no plans made at all.

It wasn't his fault (Joan's thoughts went on) that he and she had come to an abrupt halt in all their planning. He had done and was still doing his best to land a job. But he couldn't get one. And they couldn't be married until he did.

That much was clear. What wasn't quite so clear—but it loomed up in her mind as more and more of a threat—was the thought that even with a job, perhaps they couldn't marry yet. It was the high cost of living that threw such a scare into her.

His salary as a beginner would, of course, be small and the income from her writing was meager. Two of her books had been published, but the money which they earned for her was in limited amount.

"Wait, wait," Joan muttered.

"Wait for what?" her mother asked, coming through the door from the living room to the porch where Joan was seated.

"To get married! If only the apartment on our third floor that Gram and Gramp used to have were available! We'd take a chance, then. We'd get married, job or no job."

"Yes, it's too bad," her mother agreed. "But you know that when you were in Europe and Jack was off at college, the house felt pretty big to me. Then, too, I thought your grandparents were getting too old to climb those extra stairs every day so it seemed the right thing to bring them down on the second floor with me and rent up there. Besides, I need the money."

"I know, Mums."

And those two women teachers, the Bannock sisters. M. Foster went on, "liked the place so much that when they asked for a two year lease I just couldn't see ahead to your needs, darling. How could I?"

"You couldn't," Joan put out a hand and touched her mother's in quick contrition. "Please don't think I'm blaming you or criticizing you or anything. I'm not at all. It's just that it would have been a solution, maybe. Anyway, after Gramp broke his hip, it was certainly a good thing they'd moved down, wasn't it? You never wrote me about that, by the way."

"I thought you had worries enough with Todd being so ill. Besides, there was nothing you could do. You had already started for home. Hadn't you?"

"I guess I had."

March Business Trends Indicate Rise For N. C.

RALEIGH (AP) — The overall general level of business in North Carolina for the first quarter of 1954 was below that of the same period last year, according to the North Carolina Research Institute.

However, the institute's weekly bulletin, "North Carolina Facts," said in its latest issue, the same economic indicators for March, 1954, were above those for March, 1953. This may indicate the downward trend has been stopped, the bulletin said.

Factors showing a slowdown during the quarter were bank debits, sales and gasoline tax collections, building permits, corporations chartered, auto purchases, plus increased unemployment.

The only indicators showing improvements during the quarter, according to the institute, were state income tax collections, postal receipts, and sales of ordinary life insurance.

NEW! "JIM BO"
Introducing Jim Bo—the most sensational invention in the history of fishing—the artificial minnow that swims. No more live bait to buy. This is the lure sensation of the 20th century.
IT SWIMS—no springs, uses no fuel; it swims as long as you leave it in the water. Swims by unique process of balance and gravity. Fish any desired depth—in lake, stream, gulf, bay. Any fish that will strike a minnow will strike Jim Bo. This is no gag. Look and swim like a live minnow.
This is the lure of all lures—beautiful silver leaf plastic. Buy one for your friends also. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send $1.00 only for each lure. Send check or cash. We pay postage.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION ON A BOND ORDINANCE FOR $250,000

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special election will be held in the City of Greenville on the 15th day of June, 1954, on the question of the approval or rejection of a bond ordinance adopted by the City Council of said City on April 1, 1954. The maximum amount of the proposed bonds to finance the construction of two swimming pools with bath houses and other necessary appurtenant buildings and structures, the equipping of playgrounds and recreation facilities, and the acquisition of necessary land therefor is $250,000. A tax will be levied for the payment of the principal of and interest on said bonds and said issue of bonds will be submitted and voted upon by the voters of the City of Greenville. The resolution adopted by the City Council of said City calling said special election is published in full below and made a part of this notice.

H. H. DUNCAN, City Clerk

RESOLUTION ORDERING THE SUBMISSION OF A CERTAIN BOND ORDINANCE TO THE VOTERS OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE AT A SPECIAL ELECTION TO BE HELD ON JUNE 15, 1954

Whereas a certain ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Authorizing the Issuance of $250,000 of Bonds of the City of Greenville, North Carolina to Finance the Construction of Two Swimming Pools," was adopted by the City Council of the City of Greenville at the regular meeting held on April 1, 1954, which ordinance is to take effect when approved by the voters of said City at an election to be called as provided in the Municipal Finance Act, as amended; now, therefore,

Be it resolved by the City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina:

Section 1. That a special election is hereby called to be held on the 15th day of June, 1954, for the purpose of submitting to the voters of the City of Greenville the question of the approval or rejection of the bond ordinance adopted by the City Council of said City on the first day of April, 1954, entitled as set forth in the preamble hereof.

Section 2. That no new registration shall be held for said special election and all qualified voters residing in the City of Greenville shall be entitled to vote at said special election.

Section 3. That said special election shall be held at Pitt County

Court House and Greenville City Hall

Mrs. Frank Dudley and Mrs. Rosa Brown are hereby designated and appointed registrars, and Mrs. Ruth Mills, Mr. Thurman Dail, Mrs. E. J. Dees and Mr. A. P. Jarvis are hereby designated and appointed judges for said special election.

Section 4. That for purpose of registration of any new electors who are not now registered pursuant to Section 160-37, General Statutes of North Carolina, as amended, the registrar shall keep open the registration books for the registration of such new electors between the hours of 9:00 o'clock A.M. and 5:00 o'clock P.M. on each day (Sundays excepted), commencing on June 2nd, 1954, and ending on Saturday, June 12, 1954. Such registration books shall be kept open during said period until 9:00 o'clock P.M. of each Saturday.

Section 5. Saturday, June 12, 1954, shall be challenge day at which time any qualified voter in said City may appear and object to the qualifications of any other registered voter.

Section 6. That a copy of this resolution signed by the City Clerk of the City of Greenville shall be published as a notice of said special election and the registration of new electors. Such publication shall be made in the Daily Reflector, a newspaper published in said City, for three successive weeks beginning April 26, 1954.

Section 7. This resolution shall take effect immediately.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels and air-crafts were strong today in a moderately higher stock market.

These two divisions stepped ahead as President Eisenhower said that this is "a time of great decisions" in world affairs and Defense Secretary Wilson said that the United States may have to take a full-scale new look at the American military plans, policies and spending.

Gains in the aircrafts went from 1 to 4 points while the steels were up fractions to a point. Douglas was at the top of the rise in its division. U.S. Steel, the day's most active issue on Friday, started today with a rush and gained ground rapidly.

Elsewhere on the market, gains and losses were easily covered by a 1-point spread in the early afternoon.

Oils did well as did the utilities and many individual issues. Otherwise the major divisions were steady to mixed.

Higher stocks included Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, American Telephone, Westinghouse Electric, Superior Oil of California, and Allied Chemical.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA) Hog markets were 25 to 50 lower today. Tops of 26.25 at Kenly, Beaufort, Warsaw, Kingston, New Bern, Benson, Fayetteville; 26.00 at Micro, Whiteville, Tabor City, Laurel Hill, Elizabethtown, Siler City, Hillsboro, Freeman, Enfield, Tarboro, Hamilton, Scotland Neck, Plymouth, Windsor, Colerain, Wilmington, Jacksonville, Edenton, Weldon, Burgaw, Dunn, Mount Olive, Newton Grove, Goldsboro, Wilson, Fair Bluff, Clarkton, Bailey, Rocky Mount, Smithfield, Lumberton, Clinton, Rich Square and Woodland. Richmond was steady at 27.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Central North Carolina live poultry markets today, fryers and broilers weak following decline of two cents at 22; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 40 to 42.

Two Car Mishaps In City Sunday

Autos driven by James Manning of Ayden and James Kilgo of 613 East Tenth Street collided at the corner of Center and Dickinson Avenue yesterday.

Damage amounted to approximately $60 and no charges were placed.

In a second Sunday accident autos operated by F. W. Oaks of 313 West Fourth Street and William R. Holland Jr. of 201 Vance Street were involved in an accident. Damage was light and no charges were placed by police.

Insurance Agent Attends 5-Day Course

WINSTON-SALEM—Aubrey B. Taylor of Greenville, N.C., district sales manager for the Farm Bureau Insurance Companies in Greenville, Lenoir and Pitt counties, is attending a five-day school in advanced sales management at Hotel Robert E. Lee.

Conducting the school, which will end Friday, April 30, are Edwin E. Gale, supervisor of management development associates.

Four-Day Food Service School Attendance High

There were 253 restaurant operators and employees registered for the four-day Food Service School held here last week.

According to Dr. Walter C. Humbert of the Pitt Health Department, 691 people attended the eight sessions of the school.

Dr. Humbert stated that the school will be held annually from now on. He said that making the school an annual event came after comments by the various restaurant operators. "Most of the operators asked that it be made an annual event," he said.

A total of 105 people attended every day with 52 restaurants, lunch-rooms, and school cafeterias taking part in the school.

The largest day attendance was last Tuesday when 269 were present for the two sessions.

A number of Greenville restaurants had employees to attend sessions every day. They will get certificates to display in their restaurants showing their 100 percent attendance. They included: Bissett's Drug Store, Jim's Quick Lunch, Mary Ann Soda Shop, Dora's Drive-In, Respass James Barbecue House, Silo Grill, Dixie Lunch, Carolina Grill, Mrs. Marie Clark's Sandwich Manufacturing Company, and Kares.

In the county the following restaurants attended every day and will receive certificates: C. C. Quick Lunch of Ayden, Shore View Inn of Grimesland, Eddie's Grill of Farmville, and the Pitt County Training School lunchroom of Grimesland.

Every employee or operator who attended every day will receive individual cards showing their 100 percent attendance.

Dr. Humbert said that sanitarians from the Edgecombe County, the Wilmington-New Hanover City-County, and the Dare-Currituck Health Departments attended the school.

The local Health Department director expressed appreciation to Jarvis Memorial Church for use of their Recreation Room during the school and to Carolina Dairies, Inc. for the refreshments they served. Carolina Dairies also paid the cost of having programs printed.

In conclusion Dr. Humbert said now restaurant operators understand why inspections must be strict and plans are for next year's school to be even bigger and better than this year's.

The school, for Pitt County and Greenville restaurants, was conducted by the Pitt Health Department, the N.C. Board of Health, the N.C. Association of Quality Restaurants, and the N.C. Department of Conservation and Development.

Local Banking Institute Chapter Met Saturday

The Greenville Chapter of the American Institute of Banking held its third annual supper meeting at the Woman's Club Saturday night.

Featured speaker for the evening was James W. Butler, alumni secretary at East Carolina College.

The meeting was opened with an invocation by James W. Joyner. Hilda Avery introduced the speaker for the evening.

Herbert Waldrop presented certificates to Margaret Register and A. W. Mewborn for completion of four AIB courses. It was also announced that four courses had been completed by Raymond Gaskins of Ayden.

Johnny Overton sang two numbers accompanied by his wife preceding Butler's talk.

Several out-of-town guests were present for the meeting which was followed by a dance with music furnished by the Riggs Brothers of Farmville.

Officers elected for the coming year by the chapter included: Hilda Avery, president; A. W. Mewborn, first vice-president; Eloise Warren, second vice-president; and James W. Joyner, secretary-treasurer.

The Board of Governors includes: Luther Cowan, Etta Taylor, John Ray Hardy and Claude Taylor.

The members also attended a social hour at the Hotel Proctor preceding the banquet.

Patrolman Urges Drivers To Have Auto Inspected

Corporal Carl Whitfield urged local auto owners to cooperate in the voluntary auto inspection program now being conducted by local garages.

"It's free and is being sponsored by all garages," he said. "If your car is okay they will put on a green sticker."

The corporal noted that many accidents are caused by faulty equipment.

"Even a new car can be defective," he said.

Whitfield said that from a safety standpoint the inspections are a good thing. He emphasized that the program is entirely voluntary and that auto owners are not required to have their vehicles inspected.

Association To Elect Officers
