Award Winning Play Is Reviewed For Semi-Centi Club

Mrs. Frank Dall was hostess to the Semi-Centi Book Club which met Tuesday night in her attractive home.

Mrs. Dall, new vice president, led a short business meeting which concerned plans and discussions for the new year.

Mrs. Philip J. Smith was welcomed into the club as a new member.

Guest speaker for the night was Mrs. J. B. Spilman, who reviewed the superb comedy "Picnic," a summer romance by William Inge. This play was winner of the New York Drama Critics Award, 1953. It is emotionally touching, affectionate, understanding and interesting. The action of the play is in a small Kansas town. The main characters include a widow and her two daughters; a neighboring widow and a young man whom she has befriended.

Not only was this play superlatively done but also superlatively reviewed chiefly because Mrs. Spilman saw the play herself on stage in New York.

During the social hour the members questioned Mrs. Spilman about other plays she has seen. The hostess served hot coffee and lemon tarts. Books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Book On Best Seller List Reviewed Before Chatham Club

Mrs. C. E. Blair was a most gracious hostess to the Chatham Book Club for its meeting of April 27th. Her lovely new home was tastefully decorated with roses in various arrangements.

Mrs. W. P. Moore called the meeting to order with 15 members answering roll call. She welcomed a former member, Mrs. David Robertson of Janville, Ky., and another guest, Mrs. Agnes Barrett. Mrs. C. A. Bowen, the incoming president for next season, appointed her committees for the year's work.

Mrs. Beard, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Barrett who gave an excellent review of Norman Vincent Peale's "The Power of Positive Thinking." The appeal of the book is attested to by the fact that it has been on the best seller list for 77 weeks and its popularity must show an awakened interest in religion. It is not written in a pious view and is most practical, simple and full of common sense. The club feels indebted to Mrs. Barrett for such an inspiring talk.

Mrs. Blair served a salad course with coffee and nuts after which the books were passed and the club adjourned.

Passing Up Big Publicity Stunt

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—New Mexico is passing its latest publicity opportunity, regretfully.

A Jamaica, N. Y., firm asked for two million New Mexico pebbles to distribute and bring New Mexico a "great deal of favorable publicity" plus stimulating travel.

The State Tourist Bureau said it couldn't swing the deal because it could not afford to ship the marble-sized pebbles free, as the firm asked.

After the usual business session, the president, Mrs. Thomas L. House, welcomed the guests. The hostess then presented a musical program.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. Calvin Smith Friday afternoon, April 30.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR April 29, 1924 The Country Club was a scene of loveliness on last Friday evening when the Junior Class of Greenville High School entertained the Senior Class and faculty at an elegant three course dinner. Tables, extending the length of the spacious club room, were made beautiful by large baskets of flowers and rabbits nests which formed the centerpiece. At each place were attractive Easter favors and a printed program for the evening. On their arrival the guests were welcomed by members of the Junior Class, and after a few moments of general conversation were asked to find their places at the tables.

Luther Moore, on behalf of the Junior Class, welcomed the guests, after which all the Juniors joined in the welcoming with an appropriate song. Much merriment was created by the stunts and songs between courses. After farewells Henry Fleming, president of the Senior Class, expressed the appreciation of the guests in a few appropriate words. The banquet indeed proved to be one of the most successful and enjoyable entertainments in the history of Greenville High School.

He says his business is best during religious broadcasts.

OMAHA (AP)—Military habits are hard to shake. A visiting Army officer found a note in his hotel box to "Call Mr. Smith AT 0300." Not acquainted with Omaha telephone exchanges (AT stands for Atlantic), he interpreted the message in military language as meaning to call at 0300 hours—or 3 a. m. So he called Mr. Smith at 3 a. m.

The program was given by the first and second grade pupils under the direction of Mrs. Koma L. Walker, first grade teacher, and Mrs. Ann W. Mercer, second grade teacher. The secretary's and treasurer's report was given. Officers for the P.T.A. for the year 1954-55 were elected as follows: president, Mr. Edwin Newton; vice-president, Mrs. Carter G. Smith; secretary, Mrs. E. B. Beasley Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. Ruel Dilda. Meetings will be held the second Thursday of each month.

Parmele H.D. Club Plans Memorials

ROBERSONVILLE—The Parmele Home Demonstration Club held the April meeting at the home of Mrs. C. L. Wilson on Main Street. In place of the regular devotional, a moment of silent prayer was observed in memory of Mrs. W. K. Bowers, a former member. A report was made by the finance committee on the underpinning fund for the Parmele Methodist Church, which is the project for the club this year.

Mrs. Wilson made a motion that at the death of a member a memorial gift be given to any project of their choice of the church of their membership if in the judgment of the committee it was the desire of the deceased, otherwise the usual flowers would be given. Mrs. George James, Mrs. John Dickson and Mrs. Arthur Keel were appointed to carry out this plan. The tour to Washington, D. C. for the clubs of Martin County will be on the weekend of April 28. National Home Demonstration will be observed May 7 and 8. It was requested that a history of the club be written for a report at this time. Mrs. Harrison announced that the District Meeting will be in Jackson next year.

'Blossom Time' Enthusiastically Greeted By Audience Last Night

By W. EDMUND DURHAM
An enthusiastic audience greeted the performance of "Blossom Time" in Wright Auditorium last night. This musical play, an adaptation of the life of Franz Schubert, is being presented by the Student Government Association of East Carolina College.

Giving a very sensitive performance of the great nineteenth century composer was Gerald Murphy, a sophomore music major at the college. Aboard assisting him were Frank Hammond as Baron Schober, George Starling as Vogl, Frances Smith, Jeanne Pritchard and Carolyn Clapp as Miti, Kiti and Fritz. Patsy Pappendick at Bellabruna, and a great many others.

The entire production is to be continued. The feature parts were sung and acted professionally; the secondary parts were performed with ability; the orchestra played with verve and precision. The technical features of stage, settings, lighting and make-up left nothing to be desired.

Especially noteworthy were the performances of Frank Hammond as the Baron Franz Schober, Frances Smith as Miti, Patsy Pappendick as Bellabruna, and two non-singing actors: Carl Carter, who played Count Scharnoff and Ronnie Rose, who, as Mr. Kranz, handled this comedy role to perfection. Other highlights of the performance were the trio of Miti, Kiti and Fritz, played by Frances Smith, Jeanne Pritchard, and Carolyn Clapp, and the performance of "Ave Maria" by the chorus.

The dance routines which have been directed by Mrs. Grace Eaton and Mrs. Margaret Punderberg were very effective. Especially well received were the dances by Susie Denton (a former member of the Radio City Rockettes) and Nancy Crouse. The musical is directed by Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the department of music, with Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the college English department directing the dramatic phases of the production.

The performance will be repeated tonight at 8 o'clock in Wright Auditorium.

Movement Started To Make Town Bird Sanctuary

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Clinton House was hostess at the mid-April meeting of the Ex Libris Club. Mrs. Paul Roberson presided during the absence of the president. At the conclusion of the regular business session a motion was made and carried to make Robersonville a bird sanctuary. Mrs. James Gray Sr., Mrs. Alton Rodgers and Mrs. Charlie Gray were appointed to present this before the town board of commissioners. Books were exchanged before the program.

Mrs. Leo Everett had as her subject for the evening "Life On the Other Planets." She gave some interesting information about flying saucers, quoting Major Arnold Keyhoe, author of "Flying Saucers From Out of Space."

The hostess served strawberry ice cream pie, salted nuts and large Easter eggs filled with miniature candy eggs.

Mosquito attacks sometimes have killed cattle and they often cause weight loss and lower milk production.

Book Club Has Meet

On Tuesday of this week, Mrs. Howard T. Waldrop entertained the Lector Book Club at the home of Mrs. J. Carroll Waldrop on West Fourth Street. Upon arrival, guests were invited into the dining room for iced drinks, assorted sandwiches, fudge/bars and mints. The table was lovely with an arrangement of red summer roses.

The program for the afternoon was given by Mrs. John Collins Jr. The topic was the famed North Carolinian, Thomas Wolfe, author of the novels, "Look Homeward, Angel," "Of Time and River," "The Web and the Rock" etc. His life from the time he entered the University of North Carolina at the age of 16 until his death at the early age of 38 was one tortured by self-doubt. Writing was the one interest of his life and since his death worldwide fame has been proclaimed him.

After a short business meeting, the club adjourned. Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Howard Hodges Jr., Mrs. Charles Gaskins, Mrs. R. P. Badham, and Mrs. L. H. Izlar of Charleston, S. C.

Dr. McNeil Attends Purdue U. Meeting

Dr. Bessie McNeil, director of the department of home economics at East Carolina College is attending this weekend the Groves Conference on family life on the Purdue University campus, Lafayette, Indiana.

While there, she will appear as a speaker on a panel discussing "The World Studytour as a Method of Studying Family Life in Other Cultures." Last summer Dr. McNeil traveled with "The Marriage and Family Life Studytour" and visited France, the Netherlands, Germany, Sweden, and England.

Atheneum Book Club Concludes Programs Of Old Testament

Mrs. C. H. Edwards was luncheon hostess to the Atheneum Book Club Tuesday at their last meeting of the 1953-54 club year.

Mrs. Edwards' home was beautifully decorated with many arrangements of garden flowers. Red roses and lilies of the valley centered the dining table and canasta tables set in the living room where a delicious two course luncheon was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Claude Gaskins.

After lunch Mrs. Edwards presented Dr. Eva Williamson of ECC who gave a very impressive program. Dr. Williamson's subject was "The Gift of Job." She brought with her a lovely package tied in red satin ribbon, a gift which she used to illustrate her message.

After summarizing the Book of Job, which is considered by many one of the masterpieces in literature, and telling of Job's love of God, she opened the package symbolizing Job's gift which, when opened, formed a white cross on which were printed these words: God and Love. Dr. Williamson's talk concluded the club's series of programs on the Old Testament.

After a short business session at which time the gavel was turned over to the new president, Mrs. Owen Marshburn, the books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Edwards' guests besides club members were Mrs. J. A. Neilson, Dr. Williamson, Mrs. Carl Richardson and Mrs. Claude Gaskins.

Farmville Pianist In Recital Sunday

Jack Williford of Farmville, sophomore at East Carolina College, will be presented Sunday afternoon, May 2, by the college music department in a recital of works for the piano.

A pupil of Elizabeth Drake of the East Carolina faculty, Mr. Williford is one of a small number of talented undergraduate students chosen to give recitals during the present school year.

Sunday afternoon's program is scheduled for 4 o'clock in the Austin auditorium. The public is invited.

Mr. Williford will play Beethoven's Sonata, op. 31, No. 2 (The Tempest) and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 5. Other numbers on the program will include compositions by Bach, Schubert, Prokofiev, Khachaturian, and Glinka.

During his two years at East Carolina, Mr. Williford has acted as accompanist for the Varsity Glee Club, choral organization of men students. Last year he was a member of the East Carolina Orchestra.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Williford of Farmville.

Ada Cherry Class Plans Prison Project

On Monday night, April 26, the Ada Cherry Sunday School Class of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. R. H. Briley. The house was decorated throughout with beautiful spring flowers.

Mrs. W. H. Taft, president, opened the meeting and Mrs. Leslie Jones gave a very inspirational devotional, ending with prayer.

Several items of business were brought up, among which was the class project—working with the Prison Camp. Mrs. J. B. Newman, chairman of the Prison Camp project, urged the members to cooperate and attend the visits on Sunday. Special attention was called to the Sunday morning worship services which the class is sponsoring at the camp.

The next, and last meeting until September, will be in June. Definite plans for this have not been worked out, but it will be an outdoor meeting.

The meeting was then turned over to the recreational committee, and the class enjoyed the contests.

Just before adjournment delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Withla Council Adopts New Member

One new member was adopted by the council, Myra Stanley. Betty Nobles reported on the District Meeting which was held in Farmville and stated that the U. S. Flag and Christian was presented and dedicated at this meeting. It was reported that George Edwards donated $5.00 on the building fund. It was also motioned and carried to cash in a $100 war bond which had reached maturity and this is to be used in decorating the interior of the new building.

Lisette Harris gave good of order. Her topic was "Practice of Praying." Resolutions of respect were signed for Betty Cox for the loss of her husband.

Jennie Stokes contributed to the birthday fund and "Happy Birthday" was sung to her by all members. Jean Bright won the door prize.

After the meeting adjourned, delicious refreshments were served to all.

Violence, A Threat To Free Elections

American people have become accustomed to reading about violence which occurs in some other nations in connection with civil elections. There have been a few isolated incidents in our own country where violence flared on election day in certain localities and prevented the people from exercising their right of a free vote.

What can happen in any sort of election where strong arm methods are substituted for the free choice of the electorate is pointed out in the National Labor Relations Board's order for a new election in the case of rival longshoremen's unions in New York.

Don't Forget To Register Saturday

Another reminder to Pitt citizens: registration period begins Saturday, and every qualified voter who expects to vote in the Democratic primary May 29 must register during the 15-day registration period.

By now, most of the people of the county are aware of the dates of the new registration period. Most of the people should be aware that former registrations are no longer valid because of changes in the county's voting precincts, and it is necessary for every one to register again in this period to be eligible to vote in the coming primary.

The two-week period allowed in indeed a short time for a completely new registration in this county which should have 15,000 to 20,000 registered voters. Yet the registration period can not be extended beyond the May 15 deadline. It means of course that an average of more than 1,000 people per day during the 13 day period (excluding the two Sundays) must register if the county is to reach the minimum level of 15,000 registered voters.

Obviously there will be a good many people who will not be registered if the majority of the citizens of the county put off until the last few days of the period the matter of registering.

The citizens who procrastinate and do not execute this important responsibility of citizenship will be cheating themselves out of the opportunity of voting in the May 29 primary.

When thugs become big forces in politics as they have advanced in other circles of activity, they pose a threat to the freedom and the liberties of the people. They pose a serious threat to the position of the people as the ultimate voice in government.

It is a vicious thing these efforts to gain power by threats and violence. It is a menace which free people must constantly guard against and be ready to combat.

It was announced some time ago that a survey was to be made to determine what off-street parking facilities are needed in the city and what can be done to provide off-street parking. The survey, as yet has not been made.

While the city, officially, is still not committed to a program of providing off street parking, it is obvious that some additional parking space in or adjacent to the business districts is needed now, and will be more acutely needed in years to come. It seems to us, in view of that, more expediency is needed in getting the survey made than has so far been shown.

More Progress Needed In Off Street Parking

Time is dragging on, and little progress is apparent toward the solution of the parking problem which Greenville has in its business district.

After a survey is made, it will take considerable time to thoroughly analyze the findings and to determine what off-street parking facilities, are needed by the city. After the needs are determined, it will take another period of time—probably considerably longer—for provisions to be made for meeting those needs.

In the meantime, the number of vehicles on the streets continues to increase at a steady pace.

PROJECT WON'T BE SELF-LIQUIDATING
The proponents claim the St. Lawrence Waterway project would be self-liquidating over a 50-year period, BUT they are almost hysterical over the proposal of Congressman Brownson of Indiana, to sell the $105,000,000 worth of bonds to the public without Government guarantee. In other words, make them wholly dependent upon the revenue. They want the Treasury to take the bonds.

No substantial proof has ever been presented to show that the waterway could be self-liquidating.

WASHINGTON—Any firm which has a disproportionate share of its retail market, such as Ford and General Motors enjoy in the automobile field, operates a monopoly under the Eisenhower Administration's anti-trust philosophy, even though its dominant position has been achieved only by superior management, selling techniques and industrial genius. It does not have to engage in unfair, unethical or illegal practices to be guilty of violating the Sherman Act.

To the amazement of prominent lawyers and industrialists, the Department of Justice and Federal Trade Commission are applying this yardstick in their current investigation of the automotive giants, and especially the sales race between Ford and Chevrolet cars.

Under this interpretation, a civil suit may be lodged at the conclusion of the four inquiries now under way. Other industries alleged to dominate their markets are under examination.

COUNTER TO COURT'S RULING—This interpretation of the antimonopoly statutes seems to run counter to a Federal Court's decision in the Truman prosecution of the du Pont interests. In that proceeding, the Court dismissed the indictment on the ground that the law was not designed to "penalize" mere bigness or efficiency.

Attorney-General Herbert Brownell Jr., however, believes that the statute should be invoked to prevent a few great corporations from crushing their competitors, thus creating industrial imbalance, unemployment and ghost towns, and destroying a strong, healthy, competitive structure. No matter how attained, he envisages the inevitable result as monopoly.

New Antenna Can 'Reach Out'

For short-wave radio operation there are many different kinds of antennas, but I have constructed one of the most popular: the rotatable beam. This monster is 33 feet by 22 feet and is mounted on top of a 40-foot pole. It has been in operation only a few days, and then only during a few free hours. But the results it has obtained have been amazing.

Last night I put out a call for Oakland, California. An amateur 30 miles away answered and said he would be glad to call any message to Oakland for me. It wasn't that pressing, however, because I was interested in getting into Oakland for future contacts with L. D. Page of Greenville, who is enroute there to see his daughter, Ruth Allen.

Mrs. H. L. Conney has a friend or relative (Joyce Hockaday)—I have forgotten which—in Mesa, Arizona, and last night I hit an amateur near there who relayed a message.

L. P. Downing also an amateur radio operator, used my equipment to get a message to his parents in Redunda Beach, California. At the same time he contacted an amateur in San Diego whose wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Manning, Route 2, Box 239, Greenville. A schedule has been arranged between this amateur and me in an effort to get the daughter and parents together.

Yesterday at noon Mrs. H. W. Davis and her brother, Lt. Kenneth Woolard, were brought together. Kenneth is in the Navy and is stationed in Cuba.

These examples illustrate that the antenna works, but it also illustrated that I have had a maximum amount of luck in a minimum of operating time. Some amateurs try for months and months to hit on certain localities without any luck.

Right now I'm on the lookout for Montreal, Canada, for a college student to contact her parents. Also, Minneapolis, Minn.

Last night I hit on the Hawaiian Islands again, the Naval base eight miles from Honolulu. There is one connection between a friend in Greenville and that Naval base, but last night conditions were not good enough to allow that contact.

This is only the beginning of the use of this 20-meter beam. But it has limitless possibilities. It almost makes you wish that you were in the position so you wouldn't have to work for a living.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

OUR BIGGEST REALTY DEAL (Henderson Dispatch)

April 30 marks the 151st anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase one of the greatest real estate deals of all time. It wasn't a grab, nor was the land acquired by conquest, but by outright purchase mutually agreeable all around, even as Alaska was bought from Russia for seven million dollars and the Virgin Islands acquired from Denmark several decades ago.

The Louisiana Territory, it will be recalled, was owned by France by right of exploration and claim the early days after the discovery of America. Napoleon Bonaparte, then ruler of France, was desperately in need of cash, and the $15 million paid by the United States was real money for this country and for the French dictator alike.

What was gained by this huge deal is now the States of Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Montana, most of Minnesota and parts of Wyoming and Colorado. All for $15 million. Its value today is hardly conceivable, what with the development and progress that has followed since 1803. It was thought at the time that it might take a century to settle it. But as it turned out, by 1848, or forty-five years, the tide of westward migration had rolled beyond this huge area and on to the Pacific coast.

Money paid for the Louisiana Purchase was raised by Treasury securities which were sold to Americans.

They had no hesitation about subscribing to the loan, but like most such obligations, the deal cost the government $27,267,622 in all, including interest that had to be paid on the loan. Even at that figure, it was a giveaway for old Bonaparte at four cents an acre. As an indication of the development and prosperity in a century and a half, citizens of the Louisiana Purchase area bought $713,276,000 in U. S. Savings Bond in 1953 alone.

Americans in 1803 had confidence in the future of their country even as generations that have followed them have had. So long as the people of this nation have faith in their land and are ready and willing to preserve their freedom against all challenges, in a righteous cause, under God, America will continue to be secure.

McMullan Hopeful Court Duplications Can Be Ended

By LYNN NISBET

COURT REFORM — Harry McMullan, attorney general of North Carolina and a past president of the National Association of Attorneys General, is optimistic about chances to eliminate duplicative Federal court processes in cases which primarily involve only violation of State law.

Nearly every State has experienced delays in judicial process by reason of appeals on untenable technical points to Federal courts. Within the past few North Carolina has had men on death row for periods ranging from 30 to 48 months, notable examples being Raleigh Speller of Bertie and the Daniels cousins from Pitt county, while lawyers were making forlorn and futile attempts to get their cases reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Such powerful organization as the National Association of Chief Justices, the National Conference of Federal Judges and the National Association of Attorneys General, took cognizance of the undue delays and inordinate expense involved in these technical appeals, many of which were obviously without basic merit.

An overall committee of which Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte, senior judge of the fourth circuit court of appeals, is chairman and Harry McMullan is a member representing the State attorneys general, is working on a bill to revise procedure to the end that no person's actual rights will be violated but to eliminate a lot of the purely technical bases for moving from State to Federal jurisdictions.

Judge Phillips of the Federal Court at Denver has prepared a tentative draft of a bill which our attorney general thinks, with perhaps a few changes in phraseology, will afford the desired relief from undue delays without infringing upon the rights of any citizen to appeal for a case. A meeting of the committee has been called at Washington on May 18 to act on final phases of the proposed bill.

HIGHWAYS — The prepared agenda for the meeting of the State Highway and Public Works Commission at Nag's Head contained nothing except routine matters requiring immediate attention. Those items consisted mainly of additions to the secondary and neighborhood road mileage, awarding of construction contracts based on bids approved since the last meeting, and a report of the chairman on the proposed detailed survey of highways conditions by an engineering firm.

Chairman Sandy Graham was authorized by the commission at the March meeting to employ a competent agency to make the overall survey of needs and recommend methods of financing a primary highway improvement program. Pursuant to that authority he negotiated a contract with the firm of Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Hall & McDonald at a cost of $110,000. He told newsmen before taking off for the Nag's Head meeting that the amount was about half the maximum which some commissioners had thought the survey would cost the State.

He also said that the firm was not employed until after conferences with officials in the Federal office of public roads and the National Safety Council.

The same firm is nearing completion of a waterways-use survey for the Board of Conservation and Development. Chairman Graham said there is no direct connection between the two projects, since an entirely separate phase of development and a different type of engineering is involved.

Such matters as report on distribution of highway funds during the past 20 or 30 years, consideration of long range plans respecting prison operation, and other lacking urgency, will be taken up at subsequent meetings—in order to let the commissioners and their wives and guests have more time for recreation at the beach and deep sea fishing. (Incidentally, the officials get pay for one day's work and mileage from their homes to and from Nag's Head at public expense. All other spending is out of their own pockets or at expense of their local hosts.)

TITLES — The Governor's office, either deliberately or inadvertently, established protocol for titles in the news release about 14 delegates appointed to represent North Carolina at the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington on May 25.

The list included Colonel Richard S. Marr of Wilmington, who is director of the State Ports Authority. There are three "honorary" — Hon. T. J. Collier of Bayboro, Hon. Bruce Etheridge of Manteo and Hon. Bascom Sawyer of Elizabeth City—who are members of the General Assembly.

All of the others, including Federal and State officials and promoters of water commerce, are

Competition Results

By ELMER ROESSNER
The intense competition between and among natural and synthetic fibers is producing results in form of better clothing and household textiles that will benefit consumers and merchants both.

Tags are attractive now, too. The leading natural fibers—cotton and wool—have been selling at bargain prices for some time. So has the older man-made fiber—rayon. (In fact, one of the leading rayon weavers has announced present prices of rayon do not cover costs of production and is accordingly curtailing operations.)

But price tags on newer synthetics have come down sharply, too, as production has increased and as competition builds up among producers. For example, the newer Acrilan is a strong competitor of the only slightly older Orlon for many uses.

The older fibers are not merely lying down to be counted out. Strong efforts are being made by wool and cotton interests to improve their products by removing some of their disadvantages while retaining traditional virtues.

The great virtue of a cotton material is strength. It is easily launderable, too. But its notable defect is its tendency to wrinkle. Now chemists are working overtime to produce finishes that will make cotton more wrinkle-resistant. One company (American Cyanamid) has announced a new finish it claims will improve wrinkle recovery as much as 31 per cent after washing, over finishes now used on cottons.

In the case of wool, which has many miracle qualities of its own, chemists are working with weavers to improve its water repellency, stain resistance and abrasion resistance. Improved water repellency, stain resistance and abrasion resistance. Improved water repellency would be a great help. The tendency of wools to sag and bag in humid summer weather provided a good opportunity for the more moisture-defiant synthetics to capture much of the lightweight suit market.

The latest attempt to impart water repellency to woolen fabrics is through a silicone finish (developed by Dow Corning Corp.) Thus, another modern miracle product—the silicones—is being exploited to resist the encroachments of another product of the chemical laboratories—the new synthetic fibers. The chemists are working both sides of the street, but to the public's benefit.

TEACH SALES PERSONNEL FACTS ABOUT SYNTHETICS
If further consumer disillusionment is to be avoided, merchants and sales personnel will need more exact information about the properties and care of the synthetics for this summer's selling. Loose claims for easy washability should be avoided. Many women have been led into thinking they can simply toss one of the newer synthetic garments into a washing machine, but have sometimes found these garments damaged by such treatment. Certainly the synthetics wash and dry easily, but mild laundering methods are safer. Textile experts also warn that garments made of synthetic fibers should have generous seams, preferable with overcast edges. Because of their inherently slippery nature, garments made of synthetic fibers tend to yarn shifting, and to slip, ravel or burst at the seams.

COLOR PREFERENCES
Studies have been made of purchasing habits by age, by income level, by education, by racial stock and by place of residence. Now a large textile company is trying to determine women's color preferences by the shade of their skin.

Babies Doing Big Job For U.S.

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—If you see any babies today, don't hesitate to smile at them, pat them on their little backs and tell them what a great job they're doing for the country.

For this is National Baby Week, a proper time to honor the new hero of the American economy.

The baby always has been a big heart throb in the home, but he hardly was regarded as a big figure in industry.

He is today. The kid in diapers is a kingpin of our national prosperity. It is everybody's business to be nice to babies, because babies are nice for practically everybody's business.

The financial giants no longer forecast the future merely by keeping tab on the stock-market ticker. They also check the baby statistics, and the statistics make pleasant reading.

Catering to babies is now a five-billion-dollar-a-year business. In 1953 some 3,800,000 babies arrived here, 70,000 more than the year before, and the production lines are still going full blast.

No wonder that, even in as small a country as Holland, it is against the law to shoot storks.

Typical of the businessmen who have benefited from the nation's rising infant crop is Jack Turk, who manufactures baby garments. Before the baby boom started, Turk had 12 employees and made only blankets. Now he has 300 employees in three factories that turn out 75 specialized products for babies.

"Babies come into the world bare of any inventory," said Turk contentedly. "They need a lot of things right away."

"As a matter of fact, babies are customers even before they are born. The average parents now spend $50 for a layette in advance of birth."

A survey Turk made of 10,000 infant wear outlets showed some new trends in the market, such as: Because parents now buy more baby clothes in advance, the old tradition of "pink for the girl and blue for the boy" no longer holds true. The favorite colors now are mint, maize and white.

Some 60 per cent of all baby goods are bought as gifts. Less than 5 per cent of men shop for baby items.

Grandmas has a lot to say about what is bought for the first baby, but when the second baby arrives the parents are on their own.

"The trend now is to make items for babies that are safer, more comfortable and more colorful," Turk said. "We are finding that color is an important factor in satisfying the psychological and emotional needs of the infant."

This has resulted in such innovations as plastic nursing bottles that won't shatter, folding carriages that take up less space, and disposable diapers. Turk himself has pioneered with acetate fiber garments for babies allergic to wool, and a blanket with sliding rings that can be attached to crib slats to prevent babies from smothering.

A business recession? "I can't see one in sight in our field," Turk said, "not the way people are getting married and having larger families."

Turk and other men in the field are highly annoyed, however, over what happens when babies get a little older and start picking out their own clothing. They all seem to want to go around in dungarees and polo shirts.

"We are launching a big campaign to get them to dress up more," he said, and added severely, "Why, it is getting hard to tell little girls and boys apart. This dungaree habit has become a terrible threat to the proper development of their personalities."

What it is doing to the personalities of children's wear manufacturers is even more. Ulcers—in technician.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee continued prayer for judgment on payment of court costs in the case of Erma C. Stapleford, Negro, 202 Cadillac street, who was charged with failure to yield right of way.

Testimony was that the Stapleford car and a Carolina Dairy truck driven by George H. Brown were in collision at Fourth and Tyson streets on April 14.

Ulysses G. Lee of Oriental, charged with speeding, was called and he failed to answer to his name. The court ordered an instant capias to be issued to bring him into court for trial.

Mrs. Alice W. Fornes paid $5 for not stopping at a stop sign.

Paul R. Julian was found not guilty of failing to yield right of way in connection with a collision with a car driven by Charles W. Cherry 305 Eastern street.

An unusually heavy docket is scheduled for trial Friday.

Build 150-Foot City Water Tank

A 300,000 gallon, 150 foot tall water tank is now being erected in North Greenville.

The tank, which is being built to give adequate fire protection to that area across the Tar River, will cost approximately $75,000 including the necessary pipes to connect it to water mains already in that area.

It is being erected by the southern branch of the Chicago Bridge and Iron Company. This company will erect, paint and make the tank ready for use by the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz said this morning that tools and equipment arrived April 16 and work began on the tank on April 19. He did not say exactly when the tank would be ready for use but said that after it is erected it will be filled with water and tested. "After it is tested," he added, "it must then be emptied and dried for about a week before painting can take place."

Wives To Offer Take Over Jobs Husbands Left

COLUMBIA FALLS, Mont. (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Woolsey has a plan which she hopes will end the strike of 1,000 construction workers here. She said she and at least five other wives of workers idled may offer to go to work in place of the men.

The men are idled by a carpenter's strike at the Anaconda Aluminum Co.'s 50-million-dollar plant. Other crafts are honoring picket lines set up by the carpenters. Negotiations between the company and the carpenters are at a standstill.

"We're the ones who lost the pay check," Mrs. Woolsey said. She has asked wives of all idled workers to attend a mass meeting Saturday.

The carpenters are seeking a 15-cent-an-hour pay increase and some undisclosed modifications in their working agreement.

Brownell Starting Anti-Trust Probe Of Automotive Industry

NEW YORK (AP)—Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. says the Justice Department is starting a probe of the auto industry for possible antitrust violations because of a "developing pattern of concentration."

Speaking last night before the Economic Club of New York, Brownell said:

"We know well that increasing concentration in an important industry contains dangerous potentialities.

"We do not know what is the explanation of the developing pattern of concentration in the automobile industry. We want to find out whether this pattern is nothing more than the consequence of competitive forces at work, or whether any one or more of the facts which amount to collusion or the suppression of competition has been at work."

Recently the Antitrust Division of the Justice Department disclosed it was looking into four specific phases of the auto field. The phases were not enumerated.

Last month, Rep. Shepard J. Crumpacker Jr. (R-Ind) introduced a resolution charging that independent car producers suffered from what he termed high pressure competitive practices by Ford and General Motors.

Congress has taken no action on Crumpacker's proposal.

Crumpacker also asked the Federal Trade Commission to investigate whether Ford and GM were trying to monopolize the auto industry and whether their battle for sales leadership had violated any antitrust laws.

General Motors and Ford both denied their companies were engaged in a race for business or were trying to monopolize the market.

So far this year, Ford and GM have accounted for slightly less than 84 per cent of the automotive market. Chrysler has around 12 per cent, while the small independents share the remaining 4 per cent.

A General Motors spokesman says the company is basing production only on market requirements. Ford and GM further maintain that their production merely reflects public demand for their products and deny Crumpacker's assertion the two companies were forcing cars on dealers "through overproduction."

Speaking generally, Brownell said:

"The Department of Justice does not assume that any given number of competitors in an industry is the proper number, or that any question of concentration can be considered without regard to the forces of the market place.

"Where it appears, however, that there may be danger of a serious shrinkage in the number of competitors engaged in a basic industry the department believes that the causes are worth examination.

"For it is the American philosophy that freedom and progress are best served by multiple centers of activity rather than by undue concentrations of power."

In Detroit, there was no immediate comment from automobile firms.

Boy Buried At Play In Sand Bin

BALTIMORE (AP)—Thomas Williams, 12, was playing around the work yard of the American Paving Co. yesterday when he either jumped or fell into a huge sand bin beside a railroad siding and was completely buried.

A companion saw him disappear and ran for help. Two company workmen rushed to the bin and started digging furiously. They were soon joined by a fire department engine company and a rescue squad.

After the boy's head was uncovered firemen supplied the unconscious youth with two bottles of oxygen. He was treated for suffocation and shock at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Pirates Split Doubleheader With High Point Panthers

By JIMMY EELLS

Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina College's Pirates dropped farther off the pace in the race for the North State Conference's Eastern Division honors by splitting a doubleheader with High Point College here yesterday.

The Panthers were the first game of the twin-bill by a 2-1 margin with the Pirates coming back in the nightcap to take a 3-2 victory.

The victory in the second game boosted the Pirates to a 6-3 record for the year but it still left them far behind Elon's league-leading Christians. The Christians have a record of 10 victories and only two losses. Both teams will play a total of 16 conference games. High Point is well out of the picture for the division honors with a poor 3-11 record for the season.

Panthers At Best
The Panthers were at their best yesterday and were able to take advantage of every opportunity to win the first game. They actually got their winning run in sixth inning when Bob Duncan led off with a single, went to second on an error by ECO's Gatcher Cline, scooted to third ahead of a sacrifice and then came home on a squeeze play.

The Pirates had their big chance in the bottom of the sixth but blew it with a bit of loose play.

Bill Cline started the late-inning rally after one man was retired with a double into centerfield. He scored when pinch-hitter William Hux kned a pitch into rightfield that went for three bases after it skipped over the head of the High Point outfielder, Boyd Webb, representing the tying run, was sent in to run for Hux but he was cut down by a wide margin at the plate when second baseman Cecil Heath picked on a 3-0 pitch and tapped a rather easy grounder to the shortstop. Major Hooper grounded out to first to end the inning and to leave Heath stranded.

Heath came back in the second contest with some outstanding play to lead the way to victory.

He carried across the winning run in the fourth inning after stealing a pair of bases. The big frame had started when shortstop Wilbur Thompson drew a base on balls. Thompson went to second on a sacrifice by Ralph Britt and then carried all the way around to score when pinch-hitter Bob Penley reached on an error. Heath forced Penley at second but reached on the fielder's choice. He stole second, went to third on a balk by High Point's Jim Varner and then stole home while Varner was taking an extra-long stretch.

Barnes Wins
Freshman lefthander Jimmy Barnes got credit for victory in the second game out he needed help to keep the Panthers quiet. Jimmy Piner was the first of the relief hurlers, coming on in the fourth inning and giving up only one of High Point's five hits in two innings. Clyde Owen pitched the last inning and had no trouble at all.

In the first game, freshman lefthander Dave Harris was socked with the loss. He gave up only three hits but two of them were in the third inning when High Point got its first run and the other was in the sixth when the Pirates committed an error. Harris gave up two walks, and High Point laid down a pair of highly-effective sacrifices. Harris was pulled from the game after the sixth inning with Ken Hall coming on to lock up.

The loss in the first game was a rather costly one for the Bucs. They are the only team in the division with a chance of overhauling Elon and the defeat put them in a rather precarious position. They have two games left with the Christians but the games will be played on the Elon field and Elon's strong pitching staff has been getting considerable rest between starts.

In the first meet of the year for the G-men, they downed the Capitals by an overwhelming margin of 66-47. Since the meet will be staged in Raleigh, the Green Phantoms will have to participate in the hurdles events. Greenville does not have any hurdles, so when an opposing team comes to Greenville the visiting team either takes the 18 points for both hurdles events or runs two extra relay races with the G-men. The Raleigh team was obliging enough to run the relay races instead of taking 18 points they didn't earn.

Whenever the G-men go out of town they enter the hurdles, however, even though the players do not have much experience with them. Mitchell Johnson showed up well in the Eastern Regionals in the low hurdles event and will be used today. Other Greenville hurdlers will be Bob Shackelford and Pete West.

Swept Dashes
In the last meet with Raleigh the powerful Phantoms swept the dashes. Joe Taft, Bill Taft, James Speight, and Billy Sermons took 34 of the 36 possible points in the 100-, 220-, and 440-yard dashes. Although it can hardly be expected that the G-men will dominate that part of the meet so one-sidedly, the Greensies should take the dashes by a good margin.

In the discus and shot put the two teams are fairly well evenly matched. Although the Greensies have only two players in the two events, both have an excellent chance of finishing first. Tommy Smith has defeated the Raleigh shot putter once of two meets, and Captain Cleddith Oakley is a sure bet to take the discus throw for the G-men.

In the hurdles the Raleigh team is expected to have an edge on the Greensies because of their experience in the hurdles events. In the distance runs the Raleigh squad will also have an edge. The Green Phantoms will probably take about five of the 18 points in that event.

In the last meet between Raleigh and Greenville, Raleigh took eight points in the mile and five in the half-mile. The only Greenville boy to place in those events were Edwin Wilkerson, who tied for first in the half, and Benny Perry, who finished third in the mile.

After this meet the Greenville team will have only one more dual meet. That one will be in Fayetteville against a team the Phantoms have already defeated once this year. The State Meet will be next Friday in Chapel Hill. That is the meet of the year, as far as high schools in North Carolina are concerned and the G-men are going to have to be right for that one.

NEW ORLEANS (U) - Dancing master Ralph Dupas, 18-year-old New Orleans high school student, glanced up the lightweight ladder for higher recognition today after speeding to a convincing decision over fleet Dennis Pat Brady.

The stout Dupas, rated No. 5 in the lightweight division and an accomplished artist at hit and run tactics, sped to a unanimous 10-round decision over the rugged New Yorker in a nationally-televised fight last night. Dupas weighed 137, Brady 138 3/4.

Dupas departed from his usual touch and go attack in the early rounds and continually beat the befuddled Brady to the punch. The French Quarter flash, making his third appearance over the 10-round route, opened a gash over Brady's eye in the first round and the cocky Irishman's eye bled throughout the fight.

"He's one of the fastest guys I've ever fought," Brady said after the fight as he nursed a battered eye in the dressing room. "He didn't punch hard enough to hurt me, but he can really move."

Phantoms Meet Raleigh With Perfect Record

By WAYNE BISHOP

With a perfect 5-0 record in their dual meets over the last two years, the up-starting Greenville Phantoms put their vaunted undefeated mark on the line this afternoon against Raleigh High School's Capitals in Raleigh. Although the Raleigh team is much larger than Greenville, Coach Bill Kittrell does not expect to have much trouble with the Caps.

In the first meet of the year for the G-men, they downed the Capitals by an overwhelming margin of 66-47. Since the meet will be staged in Raleigh, the Green Phantoms will have to participate in the hurdles events. The St. Louis Cardinals are stealing their way back into the National League pennant picture.

Running bases with an abandon no Redbird team has shown since the last St. Louis flag winner in 1946. Manager Eddie Stanky's club has moved from dead last at the start to within a game of the top.

In 12 games the Cards have swiped 12 bases. They need only half a dozen more to equal their total for the entire 1953 season.

Winning Cardinal teams almost always have been running teams. One of the greatest was the 1931 aggregation. That was the year Frankie Frisch, the Fordham Flash, led the club with 23 steals, and Pepper Martin virtually stole the World Series away from the Philadelphia Athletics with his head-first belly slides.

The 1931 Cardinals stole 114 bases. The 1946 pennant winners, last National League team to win the World Series, stole 58. But look at the totals for some of the lean years — 28 in 1947, 24 in 1948, only 17 in 1949, 23 in 1950, 30 in 1951 and 33 in 1952. In every instance these figures placed St. Louis last or next to last in the league in bases stolen.

Stanky claims there is no radical difference between the base-running tactics of the 1954 outfit and last year's club.

"We're just trying a few things and they're working," he said. Nevertheless, the figures are doubly interesting in that 10 different players on the team have stolen bases, including one pitcher — Harvey Haddix.

A steal figured directly in the result of yesterday's Cardinal game when the Redbirds edged Brooklyn 6-5 in 10 innings. Bonus baby Dick Schofield, running for Ray Jablonski, who had walked with two out stole second on pitcher Jim Hughes and rode home on Steve Bulko's single, the second hit of the season for the massive first baseman.

The defeat, Brooklyn's second in a row in St. Louis, dumped the Dodgers into a third-place tie. They went West over the weekend in first place. The Cincinnati Redlegs, who replaced the Dodgers at the top on Tuesday, stayed there with an 8-4 verdict over the Pittsburgh Pirates, and the New York Giants moved into a tie with Brooklyn by nipping Milwaukee 3-1.

Rain and bad weather caused the other five scheduled games to be postponed.

Spectacular relief pitching by little Jackie Collum preserved the Cincinnati victory after the Reds rallied for five runs in the third inning to gain a 7-4 lead. Collum stopped the Pirates on one hit through the last 6 1-3 innings after they had battered starter Fred Bacewski for nine in the first 2-3.

Ruben Gomez pitched six shut-out innings and drove in the first New York run at Milwaukee before leaving the game with a wrenched back after running the bases in the seventh. Al Dark doubled with the bases loaded, also in the seventh, for the other two New York runs. Gomez' injury was not considered serious.

WEDNESDAY'S STARS
By The Associated Press

PITCHING—Jackie Collum, Cincinnati Redlegs, allowed only one hit in 6 1-3 innings of relief work as the Reds beat Pittsburgh 8-4.

BATTING—Stan Musial, St. Louis Cardinals, collected two singles and a double, driving in two runs, as he raised his average to .356 in the St. Louis victory over Brooklyn 6-5 in 10 innings.

Two Estimates Of Soviet Military Might Are Offered

By ELTON C. FAY WASHINGTON (AP)—Two new estimates were before the American people today on how their air strength stacks up against Soviet Russia's:

1. Word from U.S. diplomatic sources that there has been a "rapid increase in Soviet air potential" through the conversion of much of Russia's 20,000-plane force to modern jet planes.

2. A statement by Rep. Scrivner (R-Kan.), chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee handling Air Force funds, that the United States outnumbered Russia 3-2 in the air and that the Soviets have no long-range bombers able to reach the United States and return to home bases.

The views were given out at the time of these events in Washington and elsewhere.

Congress was considering the annual Air Force appropriation bill. Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, had just talked with President Eisenhower after a hurried trip to Europe and a visit with British Prime Minister Churchill. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization and other diplomatic officials, who may not be named, yesterday may not be named, yesterday made available an over-all summary of Communist military strength—six million men under arms in Russia, Eastern Germany and the satellite countries.

They figured that 4 1/2 million of the six million are in ground forces; that 22 divisions are in Germany, constituting "a ready-made spearhead" for a rapid advance into Europe; that the bulk of the 22 divisions are armored outfits with nearly a complete complement of tanks and self-propelled guns.

Backing up the 22 divisions are another 60 Soviet divisions based in western Russia and Eastern satellite nations. And the satellites themselves have about 80 divisions, twice the strength of 1947.

Communist air strength was calculated this way by the diplomatic officials:

New types of medium and heavy bombers, including jet models, have been observed. (These presumably would include at least two new designs of long-range planes, one four-engine, another six-engine, powered with propellers driven by jet engines. The six-engine bomber obviously is intended to counter the U.S. Air Force B36.)

Since 1951 the number of medium bombers, called by the Russians TU4 and closely resembling the appearance and capability of the American B29 or B50, has doubled.

Almost all Soviet fighter planes now are jets; in 1951 only 20 per cent were of these modern types. In 1951 the Red air force fleet of light bombers had no jet-powered planes. Now more than two thirds of the light bombers are jets.

The diplomats said the Soviet air force remains at a steady overall strength of about 20,000 planes but that it is the thoroughgoing modernization that is increasing the potential so fast.

Scrivner also used the 20,000-plane figure, saying it was an estimate given by Gen. J. Lawton

Collins, United States representative on the Military Committee of NATO. (Collins also has said that there are available to the command of NATO forces about 2,000 planes ready for immediate fighting and that on the ground there are available about 100 divisions.)

Scrivner told the House, during debate on military appropriations, that balanced against Soviet air strength were more than 21,000 planes of the U.S. Air Force, plus 10,000 more Navy and Marine planes.

He said that even though present Russian planes could not make a two-way flight to bomb the United States they might try one-way suicidal missions.

Reports H-Bomb Tests Have Not Raised Hazards

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru has told Parliament his government did not know of any injurious effects in India from American hydrogen bomb experiments in the Pacific.

Another government spokesman, D. D. Malaviya, deputy minister of natural resources and scientific research, confirmed that radioactive dust had been found on planes arriving at Calcutta from Singapore and Bangkok.

Malaviya, replying orally to questions in Parliament denied reports that such dust also had been found on the roofs of Calcutta buildings.

Nehru's statement was contained in a written reply to questions previously raised in the upper house.

Seagulls Keeping Pavement Even

LONGPORT, N.J. (AP)—Seagulls are helping maintain streets in Longport.

The birds open clams by flying over streets and dropping the shells on the pavement. The clams crack open and the gulls get their dinner. The shells, ground fine by passing cars, fill in cracks in the pavement.

Hens Apparently Know Alphabet

SALISBURY, Md. (AP)—Bliss U. Melson of nearby Rockwalkin thinks he has some educated hens. Periodically he finds eggs with initials on the shells. The latest alphabetical egg was laid by a White Rock and initialed with the letter "B."

Melson has found other eggs with "T," "N" and "O" on them.

Haircut Before One Month Old

SALISBURY, Mo. (AP)—Donald Clickner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clickner, was born with such a heavy head of hair he had to have a regular barber's haircut before he was a month old.

Donald sat on his mother's lap and endured the operation in grim silence.

SCOTIA, N. Y. (AP)—Beginning May 3, merchants in this Schenectady suburb will take wooden nickels. The merchants will issue them as souvenirs of the village's golden jubilee celebration. They will be 2 1/2 inches thick and 4 inches in diameter.

Until noon June 8, the coins will be worth 5 cents in trade at local stores or a nickel in cash at the Greenville National Bank.

PRICE WAR OSAKA, Japan (AP)—You can get clipped in Osaka for a dime. Shave and shampoo free. Osaka barbers in a price war shaved the cost of the combo job from 40 cents.

Then H. P. Stratton 82, of Sealie walked in with his father, W. H. Stratton 107. Hage paid for their meal.

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colver

Like any young couple ardently in love, Joan Foster and Todd Hunter are eager to wed. But Todd has not yet been placed in his chosen profession of teaching, and the little money which Joan earns by writing, is not enough to maintain a home. Todd had fought gallantly to acquire the education which qualified him to teach German, but there seemed to be no call for teachers of the German language now. Arriving at the Foster home for dinner, Todd promises to reveal some exciting news to Joan later, when they are alone.

CHAPTER FOUR
FROM now on, Joan thought, Gram could not be left alone. Any time she might forget where she lived and go running off looking for her old home. Without Gram here she would probably just grow more and more confused. She was sweet and tractable in her mental wanderings and easily reassured. But there would have to be someone around to give her that reassurance. Perhaps if she—Joan—married Todd soon, her mother would need to get Annie back. She might be too old to be of much help with the housework, but she could at least sit with Gram now and then. As just a companion for Gram she might be willing to come for less money. Indeed she had been in the family so long she would want to keep some contact with them just to get the news. Just to feel herself still a part of their group. She might even be a "sitter."

The meal ended at last. A horn tooted outside and Mrs. Foster hurried off to the car of a friend who was driving her to the library meeting. The Bannock sisters came down the front stairs and went quietly out the front door on their way to their school. Gram insisted on helping Todd and Joan with the dishes before she excused herself to go write her letters up in her own room. Not until then were the two young people alone.

"Let's light the fire," Joan suggested. So Todd arranged some logs and kindling and paper and put a match to the pile. Joan thought, "I won't ask. I'll wait till he's ready. He'll tell me when he's ready." And she curled up at one end of the sofa, her feet tucked under her, her eyes on the blaze. Presently Todd joined her, and she leaned her head against his shoulder in a companionable silence.

She loved this room. It was warm and glowing with color. The fireplace, in which the flames now crackled cheerfully, was framed by rosy marble. The upholstery on the sofa and two easy chairs had been matched to the rich red background of the big Oriental rug on the floor. Blue cushions, a blue footstool and a blue Chinese lamp that stood on the dropleaf mahogany table offered a clear and striking contrast to the ruddy tones, while pale cream walls and thin curtains of ivory gave light to the whole. Looking around with affectionate and approving eyes, Joan hoped that when she had her own home she could have a room as attractive as this.

Todd's arm tightened about her. "You've been very patient, honey," he began. "Well, here it is. I have a chance at a job. A good chance. In fact, it's mine if I want it."

She sat upright in her astonishment. "You have it? But—my goodness! Why that's wonderful, Todd! Simply—"

He interrupted. "I don't know whether it's wonderful or not. But if it means we can get married! It does mean that, doesn't it?"

"Yes, it means all that all right, Jo-Jo."

"Then what on earth's the matter?" She beat a closed fist against his arm. This was bewildering. Maddening! It didn't make sense. "What's the matter?" she repeated. "Don't you like the school? Or is it the salary? Or—?" Suddenly she knew and all the jubilation dropped from her voice. "You aren't to teach German," she said.

"That's right. I'm not to teach German."

"What will you teach?"

"Everything else."

"Everything! What do you mean?"

"It's a fourth grade position, Jo-Jo."

"A fourth grade—Oh, no!" Her protest was vehement, but he said, "Wait. Let me tell you about it."

She couldn't wait. Gone was all her rejoicing over his news. Gone all her sudden wild hopes and delirious happiness. Yet she felt no pity for herself. She could only think of Todd and the deep disappointment this must be to him. The first offer of a job and it was to teach in the fourth grade. Not German. The three R's—but not his beloved German. She spoke quickly.

"Todd, listen. You mustn't even consider it. Not for a minute. After all your preparation and study—"

She stopped. Then she went on carefully. "They're apt to be imps, you know, at that age. Unbearable imps. I handled some like that in the playground the summer before I went to Switzerland. I'm afraid you'd spend all your time disciplining. And you want to teach. Not reading writing and arithmetic, either. Let someone who doesn't know and love Goethe's philosophy teach the three R's. Let someone who's trained for it do that—you stick to your guns. You aren't serious about this, are you sure?" she ended.

He got to his feet and began walking about the room his hands thrust deep in his pockets. Once he paused to straighten a picture on the mantelpiece. Once he kicked at the little blue footstool. Once he just stood and stared down at the flames in the fireplace. She waited, watching him. Perhaps she shouldn't have said so much. Perhaps she shouldn't have said anything. It was for him to settle, not her.

"Come sit down again, darling, and tell me more about it," she said after a few moments. "I guess I spoke out of turn. I don't even know yet where the school is or how you heard about it."

He faced her, still standing, a frown cutting his forehead, but he made no move toward her.

"I had just come out from interviewing the dean from Virginia," he said. "I was feeling pretty low. Another hope dashed! The trouble there was—again—that I had had no teaching experience. How do you get it, if no one will give you a chance? Well, anyway who should I run into at that moment out in the hall but Gilbert Levering. You don't know him. He was a senior at college when I was a freshman. We were in the same frat and I've always liked him. I've kept in touch with him through work we both did on the alumni committee to raise money for our frat house and the college. And I've seen him at reunions, often, of course."

"Well to make a long story short, Gilly's in the educational set-up, too. He had just been to the agency there at Columbia to get a line on prospective teachers and had been given my name and records. He said he was planning to get in touch with me when we met. He's connected with a country school up the Hudson a little way. He's acting dean there. Quite a job. But he's six years ahead of me, don't forget, counting my year getting an M.A., my year abroad, and this past year, too. Besides, he had a little luck. The regular dean at his school became ill last winter and is out for good. Gilly had to take over his work. He thinks—in fact, he's been definitely asked to stay on and continue as dean, so he's doing all the hiring and firing this spring. He told me about this opening there while we were having lunch together and he said it was mine, if I wanted it."

"It's a private school?"

"Todd nodded. And now he returned to the sofa and sat down again beside her."

Twelfth Divorce To Be Her Last

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Domestic Relations Judge Richard Douglas, in granting Mrs. Edna Hunt Tankersley's 12th divorce, said that as far as he's concerned, it's her "final final decree."

Miss Hunt, whose maiden name was restored, was divorced yesterday from Hillard C. Tankersley on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. Her 11th divorce was granted Sept. 29 from the same man. It was Tankersley's seventh divorce.

The couple remarried Nov. 6.

Baby Can Learn To Sleep In Crib Alone

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Newsfeatures

It was 3 A.M. The house was quiet and still. Everyone was asleep. Suddenly a piercing cry from Freddy's room woke mother with a jerk. In the flash of an eye she was in there with her baby. He was standing up in his crib, and the terror in his voice was matched by the agony in his face. He clung to his mother and sobbed into her ear. Finally his little body relaxed and the cries subsided.

Mother sat down in the rocking chair in Freddy's room and soothed the baby. He fell asleep. Mother tried to put him back to bed but the minute he felt himself laying in his crib he wakened and began to cry again. Several times mother tried to put him down and each time Freddy objected.

It was cold. Mother was tired. "Bring him in here," called out Freddy's father. "He'll be quiet here and we'll all be able to get some sleep."

Mother did just that. Freddy snuggled down in his parents' bed and fell soundly asleep.

A few nights later he did it again and again. Mother took him into their bed. It wasn't long before it was every night that Freddy managed to get into bed with his parents. He'd wake up, cry a little and wait for mother to come get him.

A few months later, when Freddy was a little older he learned how to climb out of his crib. He'd wake in the night, climb out and piddle into mother and Dad's bed. He no longer cried, he'd just come in. Mother and Dad didn't sleep very well with Freddy in their bed. They didn't like it, but attempts to refuse him resulted in yells and screams. Rather than waken the neighborhood they put up with it.

It's not best to start taking a child into your bed.

If he wakes up frightened, go in and comfort him; never let a terrified child cry it out. But insist that eventually he return to his own bed. That first time if he is really scared, you may have a long seige. Perhaps you'd better get a good warm bathrobe or blanket around you and sit down beside the child while he lies in his bed. Don't try to leave him until he is soundly asleep.

It will be a bad night for you but it's better to have one or two bad nights and avoid months and months of nights spent three in a bed.

If your youngster is coming into your bed now, try to break him of the habit. Pick him up and take him back to his own bed. Insist that he stay there, even if it takes a little gentle force in your hands to make him lie down.

Be consistent firm, but friendly. If you can manage to be all these things it ought not to take you more than a week to break even a firmly established habit.

Construction Forges Ahead On Big New Water Tank

Supports for the new water tank which is being built on North Greene Street have been erected. The above photo was taken at the base of the project. City officials have considered the tank necessary for some time to provide adequate water pressure for the section of town on the north side of Tar River. Construction of the structure was begun recently. (Reflector photo by Alvin Taylor)

Above are pictured part of the multiple number of generators and air compressors which are necessary in the erection of the new water tank which is now being constructed in North Greenville. The new tank is being built on a plot of land directly across from the North Side Lumber Company offices at the intersection of North Greene Street and the Airport Road. Urges Help For Pigeon Family

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A reticent telegraph clerk has asked Mayor Norris Poulson to help finance his real-life saga of "The Egg and I."

Harry Reade, 65, wrote the may or that a pigeon couple has set up housekeeping in his room and produced one egg.

"Since I am not inclined to disturb or frustrate the act of God," he wrote "I was therefore compelled to relinquish my room and pay again rent for still another room."

With novel legal logic, he contends that since the city protects the birds against shooting, the city actually owns them. Thus since city property has forced him to rent another room, he states, the city should accept the financial responsibility, until after the egg is hatched.

Accompanying the letter was a rent receipt for $35.

Reade told a newsman yesterday that he left the window of his room open for health reasons and about 10 days ago he noticed a small egg in a corner on the floor.

"Soon the mother and father pigeon came with straw and began to build a nest around it," he said. "The mother bird—she's very nice—has stayed in the room ever since. The father comes in the morning with straw to add to the nest."

"I put bread and water near the mother and she eats when she's hungry. She is very tame."

To make certain she is not bothered, Reade has hung a "Do not disturb" sign on the door and keeps the room locked. The room is in a hotel in suburban Venice. Reade said he now occupies the adjoining room himself.

Will he claim the egg, which should hatch 14 days after it was laid, as his own?

"That depends on whether city treasury helps me or now," he said.

The Chinese, too, want to avoid the appearance of any Munich.

All these factors would have been considered before the final okay was given to such an important declaration as Chou's speech. By loudly slamming the door on the West, it appears as if Chou has given notice that the Communists will not go out of their way to make peace at Geneva.

At the same time Chou clearly laid down a foundation for the next phase of the Communist campaign — an intensified effort to win the highly important, anti-colonial millions in western Asia.

Chou En-Lai Seemingly In Bid To Torpedo Conference

Editor's Note—The writer of this story is a long-time Far Eastern correspondent, most recently as Associated Press chief of bureau in Tokyo.

By RUSSELL BRINES
WASHINGTON (AP)—Red China's Premier Chou En-lai made what appeared to be a strong start toward torpedoing the Geneva conference yesterday by laying down a policy line carefully calculated to alienate the West and entice other Asian countries.

The suave Chou, in his first speech at a major East-West parley, demanded the evacuation of Asia by non-Asiatics, presumably not including the Russians, and the elimination of their military bases. He said Red China would continue growing stronger.

He also demanded outlawing the hydrogen bomb and condemned rearmament of West Germany, proposed by the West.

This was Red China laying down peace terms as a victor, instead of participating at Geneva as a defendant before the bar of world justice, as Secretary of State Dulles had described his role.

And, doubtless, Chou's aim was to make Peiping appear as an equal participant in talks on such non-Asian subjects as West Germany.

But beyond that he clearly was talking primarily to the restless, unconquered Asian world and particularly to the key nations now meeting in Ceylon to work out closer cooperation among themselves. The Ceylon conference includes the leaders of more than 400 million people in India, Indonesia and Burma who remain neutral and are therefore highly eligible for Communist conquest.

Chou carefully echoed many of the phrases about an Asian Monroe Doctrine that are certain to appeal to such men as India's Prime Minister Nehru as well as to segments of every Asian nation.

He went further, however, in demanding Western scraps than was necessary just to win attention in Ceylon or to further the Communist propaganda line.

The Communists knew that under no circumstances could Western officials agree to an Asian blueprint that would leave South Korea, Indochina, Formosa and other territories as prey for Red armies. Nor would the United States agree to eliminating the Far Eastern air bases on which it depends for primary protection in any possible war against Siberia-based Soviet bombers.

If Chou had intended to start legitimate bargaining over Korea and Indochina at Geneva, the Oriental way to do it would have been to limit his policy declaration to sentiments that could be revamped to as circumstances dictated without causing him to lose face.

But even the wily Premier would find it difficult, if at all possible, to make any equal peace now without giving Asia the impression that he was backing down from the first declaration of his position.

Lionel Barrymore Will Stay With Profession

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lionel Barrymore marks his 76th birthday today, and the crusty old gent shows no signs of giving up his family profession.

"Me quit?" he snorts. "The day after I retire, I'll curl up and die."

I saw the eldest of the acting Barrymores at CBS, where he reported for a rehearsal of his radio show Hallmark Playhouse. He drove up in his vintage automobile, switched gingerly to his wheelchair and sailed into the studio. Although a hip injury has cut down his mobility, his mind remains as agile as ever.

He pretended to be pained that people were remembering his birthday. He shuns all forms of sentiment.

"Celebrate my birthday!" he growled. "I should say not! I'm trying to forget it. Jack Benny is only 39; I'm 180. When you get as old and broken down as me, you want to forget birthdays."

Lionel, 76, is prone to exaggerate, just like Benny, who is really 60. And although the distinguished actor scoffed at celebrations, he beamed as songstress Martha Tilton came from a nearby studio to give him a birthday kiss for the camera.

I asked him how long he expected to live and he said he had no idea. His sister Ethel is 74, and many others in his family lived to an advanced age.

"Of course, not all of the family lived a long time," he added. "There was my grandfather, John Drew, who died of drink at 31."

He said that he intends to go on acting as long as he is able. In fact, he is eager to get into the medium, television.

"The only thing holding me back is the studio," he declared, referring to MGM. He started his contract there in 1926. Since Lewis

Camera News

SALESMAN—The picture tells the story.

By MA XDESFOR (For Irving Desfor)

AP Newsfeatures
We're living in a wonderful era of cameras. There is a camera for every purpose for every man. Cameras are grinding away from the insides of the highest flying planes and missiles to the lowest descending bath-spheres at the ocean's bottom.

Ingenuously devised cameras are created to record scientific details which hitherto never have been seen. With marvelous precision they stop in infinitesimal fractions of time the blossoming nightmare of an awesome H-bomb. Somewhere at a distance are the scientists who operate these marvelous mechanical mediums.

Somewhere else, though, you are happily operating a camera that is recording a picture for the family album or for the camera club or salon exhibition.

That is where the human element enters into the picture. The person behind the camera is the important factor. It is you who make the picture you want with the type of equipment you chose from a vast selection.

The picture you make can be a natural or one you created, using both terms loosely. Still broadly speaking, the former may include such types of pictures as scenic, a spot news shot, a fleeting expression of someone unaware of a camera.

The photographer can feel a picture and make that feeling apparent. Whatever he is trying to show in the photo he should do it in recognizable form. The picture should convey its meaning by having a certain clarity, straightforwardness and good printable quality.

I don't like the type of picture that calls for a critic or photo editor who must read meanings and interpretations into what the photographer originally had in mind. By looking at an abstract picture the viewer apparently claims he can give the thoughts of the photographer.

A picture may be worth thousands of words but it is the viewer sometimes who provides a thousand words to give meaning to some pictures. The picture itself may consist of all the elemental errors of photography but someone will give a lengthy discourse on the "character" of the picture. The picture may be out of focus or badly exposed but I have read where someone will say such a picture has "mood". The photo may consist of nothing but a blur, a streak of nothing-like lines running through the print but someone will say it is creative, that it denotes something.

I have noted a certain tendency to call a fault a piece of art. Basically the picture started out as an error but by long discussion it becomes a masterpiece.

If a picture needs long explanations and a side lesson in psychology to tell you what it shows and what the photographer had in mind—neither of which is apparent in the print—then it is not a print.

I am reminded of the young man in the office who came to a photo editor, negative in hand. The lad asked him what was wrong with it. The experienced man took a quick look and told him he had the most beautiful bit of reticulation he had ever seen. And went on to explain that reticulation was a pattern formed by the running of the emulsion when the negative was processed in solution that was well above normal developing temperature.

Some time later the young man came in and thanked the photo editor for his help—and proudly displayed a certificate. He had just won a photo contest with a print from that reticulated negative.

Assorted Meats Are Good Buys This Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Housewives will find a good assortment of meats on the list of specials in the nation's food stores this weekend. Favorites: beef, chicken veal and lamb.

Generally meat prices will be down a bit from a week ago reflecting slight declines in wholesale prices. In the case of pork, however, prices are still so high that only rarely will you find it among the weekend features.

By and large, retail beef prices are at the same levels as a year ago, although wholesale prices are slightly higher. There are plenty of steers available, however, which means good eating at reasonable prices for a long time to come.

Among beef cuts mentioned as features for the weekend were boneless chuck pot roast, round bone shoulder roast, steaks and rib roast. Price reductions will range up to eight cents.

Stewing and frying chickens will be among the specials in a good number of stores. The average price cut will be around two cents a pound. The Poultry and Egg National Board reported that last week 15,454,000 broiler chickens were placed in brooder houses, largest number so far this year. They'll be ready for eating in 10 to 12 weeks.

Some markets will trim prices on legs and rumps of veal rated as one of the best of the current buys. Leg of lamb prices also will be down in some stores.

Onion prices have shown some improvement in the wholesale markets, but that vegetable remains high on the list of good buys. Also recommended: old crop potatoes, spinach, celery, asparagus, radishes, escarole and romaine and big Boston lettuce.

The first California long white potatoes showed up in eastern markets this week, and from Florida came the season's first domestic watermelons. Elsewhere in the vegetable division, cabbage, beans, peppers, tomatoes and corn moved higher. Produce men noted that the quality of beans and peppers is improving.

Strawberries were nominated as the best buy in fruits this week. Louisiana is shipping a lot of them and Carolina berries also are moving north. The first from California are expected in the east early next week.

Citrus fruit prices went up this week, but many stores will feature Florida valencias at special prices.

TEEN TALK

Dear Judy

AP Newsfeatures
Modern teen-agers travel the high seas, go on jungle safaris and climb the highest mountains for excitement. Country kids go to cities and city kids to farms. All seek adventure on another lawn.
So many young people spend weekends and vacations in cities these days that hotels try to make their stay happier, safer and less expensive.
One New York City hotel has a college representative, Anne Hillman, to help young people organize their trip and answer questions timid teens normally hesitate to ask.

Here are some of Miss Hillman's helpful hints for travelers:
1. Hotel reservations should be made at least two weeks before leaving home. Special rates and arrangements are made for students by many hotels, so inquire. If you want quick hotel confirmation of your reservation, expect to pay for the collect wire.
2. In choosing a hotel investigate the section of town it is located in. It costs just a little more for a better neighborhood most times.
3. If arriving with a group give details. Tell how many and give each person's name. Tell the hotel your arrival and departure time. After 6 o'clock the hotel doesn't need to hold a reservation but will if you give an exact time. If plane or train is delayed, wire the hotel at once so your reservation will be saved. Checkout time is 3 p.m. but the hotel will give you more time if needed. Just ask.
4. About tipping—bellboys expect 25 cents a suitcase, 50 cents for three. He must take you up to your room to make sure everything is in order, so don't say "I don't need a bellboy." If you plan to stay at a hotel, figure those tips into the rate automatically. In a restaurant 15 per cent is considered standard. If a maid does special services, she'll expect a tip.

5. Learn how to read a menu. A complete dinner always states "complete dinner." Coffee shops are your best bet if you want good food at reasonable prices. Main dining rooms in hotels are likely to offer only a la carte service. If you wish to go into a main dining room where there is entertainment without a date, inquire of Asst. Manager or college representative if it is permissible.
6. Room service is an expensive luxury. You'll pay plenty for it and the waiter will expect a fat tip.
7. It is sheer foolishness to speak to strangers. And don't be impressed by flattery. Don't visit hotel rooms of new acquaintances.
8. College girls should remember hotel rooms are not dormitories. Even if rooms are all together, your group shouldn't dash around in halls wearing night clothes, curlers, etc.
9. As far as your room goes—keep it neat and don't leave valuables to tempt someone. Money, jewelry etc. should be left in the hotel safe.

10. If you are ill call the physician who is always on duty in a good hotel.
Old Bailey Is Becoming Human
LONDON (AP)—London's grim Old Bailey (the Central Criminal Court) is going human.
Rebuilding of the war damaged building, at a cost of more than 1½ million dollars, has included a suite of rooms where jurors can relax while awaiting their call. Additionally, a basement restaurant has been opened and, for the first time jurymen, witnesses and spectators can eat inside the building.

McCarthy's Team Suddenly Ran Headlong Into Skillful Needler

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) For three days an elderly, gentle-looking Boston lawyer, Joseph N. Welch, sat almost speechless at the Senate inquiry into Sen. McCarthy's feud with Army officials.

Mild, almost detached in a room where emotions were steadily rising, he had a good-humored look in his eye as if he were saying over and over to himself: "Oh, dear, what a very strange place."

For a good part of three days Secretary of the Army Stevens, who had hired Welch to be attorney for him and his Pentagon partners in the case, was slammed with questions. For the first two days Welch said almost nothing.

A couple of times he asked Ray E. Jenkins, the Senate subcommittee's special counsel, to go a little slower on the questioning. Several times he repeated, but never with excitement, he'd ultimately give the committee all evidence requested.

He seemed to enjoy the effect created by a slightly exaggerated phrase—as when he told Jenkins the latter could do no wrong and asked the chairman, Sen. Mundt (R-SD), to use his "enormous" power to get him a microphone.

Always punctuating his remarks with gracious gestures, Welch seemed at times like a man who had stepped out of an earlier and courtier page in history.

Suddenly, Tuesday, he turned out to be a needler. When Roy

M. Cohn, chief counsel of McCarthy's subcommittee and one of the principals in the case, took the stand to testify under oath, Welch went to work on him.

He asked Cohn to look at a photograph. Cohn said he had to pull it closer because he was nearsighted. Welch, very softly and courteously, agreed that Cohn was nearsighted, implying that Cohn had displayed that tendency before.

Cohn was stopped cold—which was unusual for him. He confessed he couldn't match Welch's quips.

If what happened there is a sample of what's to come, then McCarthy may be in for an unusual experience when he testifies under oath and is cross-examined by Welch.

McCarthy has been called a lot of names since coming to Washington in 1946. He's called a lot of names himself. He's ridiculed others and been ridiculed. He's tried to be humorous. But he's heavy-handed. So are most of his critics when they try to be funny at his expense.

Welch may turn out to be heavy-handed too, but if he keeps the light touch he showed Tuesday, his encounter with the senator may be the highlight of this hearing.

McCarthy has shown from time to time that he too can be needed. Nobody has ever used a light needle on him. So no one, perhaps not even McCarthy, can predict how he'd react to that.

It's possible the Army may have picked Welch for the very qualities he displayed yesterday in the belief that, while McCarthy had shown himself a match for the heavy hand, he may be vulnerable to a light one.

This is how the photograph Welch showed Cohn figures in the dispute before the investigators: McCarthy's staff—it turned out to be Roy Cohn—provided Jenkins with a picture, taken by a service photographer, of Stevens and Pvt. G. David Schine standing side by side, by themselves.

(The whole McCarthy-Army feud started, Stevens says, when he refused to let the McCarthy team pressure the Army into giving draftee Schine special treatment. McCarthy charged Stevens and his aides with trying to "blackmail" him into calling off his investigation of alleged communism in the Army.)

Jenkins made much of the picture in quizzing Stevens: Why did Stevens have himself photographed alone with Schine? Stevens said he couldn't remember doing that.

At the very start of the hearing Tuesday, Welch produced another picture, which he said was the original, showing Stevens, Schine and an Air Force colonel standing together. Welch charged the picture given Jenkins had been "doctored" to make Stevens look bad. In a moment, McCarthy was accusing Welch of lying. The McCarthy team spent most of the morning explaining.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market hit a new high for the year today with good gains registered in most major divisions.

The market yesterday as measured by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks reached a level equal to the April 15 high of the year, and today the market stepped on up into new territory.

At noon, the Associated Press average was at $120.90, highest level in the past 24 years.

The rise carried prices up between 1 and 2 points in many instances. Losses were small and scattered.

Volume stepped up smartly at a rate around 2 1/2 million shares for the day. That compares with 2,120,000 shares traded yesterday.

Oil was well ahead with Standard Oil (N.J.) higher on an increased dividend.

Also higher were the steels, motors, aircraft, chemicals, electric equipments, railroads, motion pictures, and the utilities.

General Motors was higher on its good earnings report, and others gaining included U. S. Steel, American Telephone New York Central, Texas Co., Paramount Pictures, Kenecott Copper Chrysler, Boeing, North American Aviation, Du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, General Motors, Bullard Co. and Outboard Marine.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Central North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers steady at 22; Raleigh eggs steady, A large 40-42.

Asheville fryers and broilers steady at 21; eggs steady, A large 38-40.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog prices 25 to 50 lower. Tops of 26.25 at Hillsboro; 25.75 at Kenly, Beaufort, Warsaw, Micro, Whiteville, Tabor City, Laurel Hill, Elizabethtown, Siler City, Freeman, Kingston, New Bern, Benson, Lumberton, Fayetteville and Clinton; 25.50 at Enfield, Tarboro, Hamilton, Scotland Neck, Plymouth, Windsor, Colerain, Wilmington, Jacksonville, Edenton, Weldon, Burgaw, Dunn, Mount Olive, Newton Grove, Wilson, Goldsboro, Fair Bluff, Clarkton, Bailey, Rocky Mount, Smithfield, Rich Square and Woodland; Richmond 25 lower at 26.25.

Fine Print Had Intent Reader

The question arose about noon yesterday as to whether a local stenographer had become "historical minded" or had her curiosity just gotten the better of her.

Miss Alma Joyce Paramore, a stenographer in the Register of Deeds office in the Pitt County Courthouse, happened to read the statute on the Court House lawn which honors "Our Confederate Dead."

Seeing the incident from the window of The Daily Reflector this reporter decided to ask Miss Paramore if she had suddenly gotten a bug to "brush up on her history."

"No," she replied, "I just wanted to see what the fine print was on the statute. I have been working in the Court House for about a year and just decided to see what was printed on the side of the statute."

It all goes to show that love of history is not bothering local women, but a woman's curiosity must always be satisfied.

Leaving Today For Conference

J. H. Rose of Greenville left today for Washington, D. C. where he will attend a conference of state chairmen of the commission employing the physically handicapped.

In Washington, Rose will meet with chairmen from other states to discuss the placement of physically handicapped persons in positions of gainful employment.

Touring Russian Artists Avoid Any Controversy

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP)—A troupe of six Soviet concert artists currently touring this country find things in Canada "charasho"—very nice—and so is everything in Russia.

Thus the group cautiously avoids all controversial issues that might raise a howl in Canada or get the artists in trouble back home.

The stars include a violinist with a state-supplied Stradivarius, two ballet dancers, a soprano, a tenor and a pianist. They have been drawing capacity crowds in civic and school auditoriums across Canada since they arrived April 15 under the sponsorship of the Soviet Embassy in Canada and the Soviet Friendship Society.

The general audience reaction is one of polite coolness.

Violin virtuoso Leonid Kogan, 29, who boasted the Soviet Union had financed his entire training, and even gave him the 1730 Stradivarius he was playing, refused to be drawn out on differences between Canadian and Russian audiences.

"I don't like comparisons," he declared to interviewers through the nonmusical interpreter attached to the tour.

A questioner in Edmonton last Sunday asked Kogan if he would like to stay in Canada. The violinist, who has a wife and a 2-year-old son back in Moscow, replied: "Such a question makes me smile. It takes only a month and I'm homesick."

This was the general tone of the remarks by the other members of the troupe—38-year-old ballerina Sophie Golovkina; ballet soloist Leonid Zhdanov; soprano Elizaveta Chavdar; tenor Arturs Frindbergs; and pianist Pavel Serebryakov.

The coolness of the Canadian reception was reflected in Fort William. There the Moscow stars had to settle for a high school auditorium because the sponsors had difficulty renting a more elaborate concert hall.

The tour's Canadian manager, John Boyd of Toronto, said the Russians had to cancel plans for two performances in Quebec because audience owners feared Red-hating Provincial Premier Maurice Duplessis would padlock their places.

"Dirty Communist propaganda as usual," Duplessis retorted. Solicitor General Antoine Rivard said the government hadn't been approached about the tour.

Curiosity is part of the reason for the big turnouts to hear the Russians, since the Reds seldom have sent concert stars to the Western Hemisphere.

Kogan's impression of the tour was: "I find Canadians interesting and clever regardless of political interest. They attend our concerts because they are interested in music. I am not a politician but it seems that music is art is one of the bridges which would facilitate understanding of the peoples of the world."

Enters Forestry Contest With Large Project

PINETOPS —Sophomore Phil Carlton of South Edgecombe High School has entered the state forestry contest with a 25-acre project.

He earned the right to participate in the state contest by winning in two previous contests.

Carlton first won the Nash-Edgecombe Federation contest with a 25-acre tract of forest, and then he won first place in the 22-county district contest. His first project was started in 1945 with 5,000 pine seedlings. He added 3,000 more pine seedlings in 1951. In 1954, Carlton thinned 15 acres of trees and sold 50 cords of pulpwood. Recently he had "fire lanes" cut through his 25-acre forestry project.

STRANDED

TOKYO (AP)—Millions of Japanese who planned pilgrimages to celebrate the Emperor's 53rd birthday today were stranded at home or in the country when employees of 37 railroads struck for 24 hours.

The wobbling of the earth on its axis is called the procession of the equinoxes and one complete wobble takes place every 25,800 years.

Mayor Gets Inspection Sticker

Mike Kachmer, White Chevrolet Company mechanic, places a green sticker on W. E. Whedbee's car signifying that the car has been inspected under the new voluntary inspection program as Whedbee looks on. Under the plan garages will inspect autos and if they are found to be in good condition the green sticker will be placed on the windshield. (Reflector photo by Alvin Taylor)

Roosevelt's Wife Claims Suit Is Political Scheme

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. James Roosevelt has accused her estranged husband of political scheming in suing her for separate maintenance. She says he sought to avoid the publicity of a divorce because he is running for Congress in the 26th District.

The wife, Romelle, who also seeks separate maintenance, made her latest charges in the domestic controversy yesterday when she answered Roosevelt's petition to amend his complaint.

Roosevelt now wants a divorce instead of separate maintenance, and he wants the court to rule out of evidence a letter, signed by him, admitting infidelities. He has since denied any indiscretions.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her counsel said his "scheme constitutes the ultimate in bad faith."

"Apparently feeling that a divorce action would prove unpalatable to the voters," her statement said, "he seized upon the following plan: he would ask in his complaint that he be permitted to live separate and apart from the defendant; that he would later claim he was forced to ask for a divorce by reason of circumstances beyond his control."

A hearing on the petition to amend Roosevelt's complaint, and on Mrs. Roosevelt's answers is scheduled for tomorrow. Roosevelt's attorney, Samuel B. Ficone, has offered to submit his case on the documents already filed.

Officers Elected By Association

Officers were elected for the coming year at a meeting of the Greenville Service Station Association last night.

Elmer Moore was elected chairman and the vice-chairman. L. D. Page was elected vice-chairman.

The Association voted to discontinue the monthly meetings during the summer months and to start meeting again next September.

Outgoing Chairman J. Ed Ricks announced that a member, Elbert J. Peaden, was in the hospital in Durham.

Upon taking the chair after being elected Moore thanked the group for the confidence placed in him. He said he would do his best to carry on the functions of the organization as in the past two years.

A rising vote of thanks was given retiring Chairman Ricks for the services he has rendered during his term as chairman.

The speaker enumerated many of the problems with juveniles, and he gave some suggestions about "dealing with the boys and girls in an understanding and sympathetic manner." He stressed the importance of directed public recreation.

South Edgecombe PTA To Support Purchase Of New 'Activities Bus'

PINETOPS —The South Edgecombe High School Parent-Teacher Association at a recent meeting voted to underwrite the purchase of a new "activities bus" for the four South Edgecombe District schools.

The bus, when bought, would serve the Crisp, Maclefield, Pinetops and South Edgecombe schools.

The P.T.A.'s decision to buy the special bus was the result of an investigation by a special committee composed of R. L. Dunn, J. C. Carlton, J. D. Thorne and Principal Morris S. Clark of the high school. The four schools are being served by an "activities bus" that has been in service 14 years, and it has served the 850 students of the four schools in athletics, club activities, band rehearsals and class field trips, a P. T. A. official stated. A drive is now underway to raise money to buy a new bus.

Mrs. K. B. Edwards, president, who presided, gave a brief report of the State Parent-Teacher Congress which met recently in Raleigh.

The South Edgecombe P.T.A. voted to send President Edwards or an alternate to the State P.T.A. Institute to be held next summer in Greensboro.
