Collector's Item: A Ball Of Paper, One Mile In Length

EVER SEEN A MILE?—Most people have walked, ridden or flown a mile but few have ever seen one. However, now several Grimesland High School students, who are members of the general mathematics classes, made one while studying a unit on measurement. Several of the students made models of a hand, a span, a cubit, a yard, a fathom and a rod. These models were made of strips of colored poster board and scotch tape. They were displayed in the classroom. Two girls, Shirley Dixon and Gay-Hudson, said they had never seen a mile and would like to make one, so using old copies of newspapers from the high school library, they cut 1 1/4 inch strips, stapled them together, measured by the yard and began to wind into a sphere. They soon found the task so great they solicited help from Pat Tucker, Agnes Smith, Dottie Elks, Joyce Beddard, Nellie Cannon and Earl Hardee. The sphere of one mile is now on display in the mathematics room of Grimesland High School and most of the high school pupils can truthfully say, "I've seen a mile." Shown in the photo (left to right): Earl Hardee, Shirley Dixon, Dottie Elks, Pat Tucker (behind the mile), Joyce Beddard, Gay Hudson, Agnes Smith and Anna Bliss Lewis, teacher.

Mrs. W.L. Hall Guest Speaker At Cleo Club

The Cleo Book Club met Tuesday afternoon, April 27, at the home of Miss Annie Shields VanDyke on East Fifth Street. Spring flowers in artistic arrangements were placed throughout the home. The president, Mrs. Luther Moore, presided over a short business meeting. She welcomed as a new member to the club, Mrs. Lawrence Smith. An announcement was made to attend "Blossom Time" which was being presented at East Carolina College on April 28 and 29. The meeting was then turned over to Miss Agnes Fullow who most graciously introduced Mrs. W. L. Hall, the speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. Hall gave a delightful and informal talk on "Foods Around the World." She said that food mentioned in the Bible compares with our times in likeness and that food is a characteristic of any country. Food in Italy, Spain, Portugal, England, France and Holland vary somewhat, but each country has their own way of seasoning and preparing different dishes. In Paris it is said "Simple dishes, perfectly executed, are the mark of a good chef." Wine is very predominant and meals are usually prepared around the wine selected. Mrs. Hall, in her usual witty manner, gave many comments on each country. The hostess served a tempting salad course after which books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

'Books and Stuff'

DR. ED. HIRSHBERG

Can't start things off this week without remarking on how very much we enjoyed "Blossom Time" over at the College last night. Coached by Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the English Department, the performance was as near professional as any we have seen presented by a collegiate group. We loved 'em all, and particularly Frances Smith and Gerald Murphy in the two leads, Frank Hammond as Schober—who stole the show at times—and Ronnie Rose as the eternally suspicious Mr. Kranz. Best musical number, we thought, was "Mitz, Kitz and Fritzi," sung by Miss Smith, Jeanne Pritchard and Carolyn Clapp. And credits also to Dr. Cutbert for handling the orchestra and chorus—the backbone of the show.

Of interest both to the student of music as well as the layman is this recent book about one of the most important composers of the Baroque Era by a distinguished harpsichordist of our day. The account of Scarlatti's life as well as musical happenings in 18th century Italy, Spain and Portugal found in the first seven chapters would interest any musical person, while the remainder of the book with its discussion of the music of Scarlatti is aimed more at the serious student. The Scarlatti in question is, of course, Domenico rather than his famous father, Alessandro.

"Good Evening," by R.D. Darrell. A short book intended for the musical amateur who gets much of his music via recordings—LP's in particular—and who is interested in building up his own collection of records. After covering the whole field of music history and performance in a brief summary that concentrates mainly on the mention of as many composers and compositions possible, Mr. Darrell devotes the last 37 pages of the book to a list of recommended LP recordings of the compositions mentioned. Very readable and non-technical style.

"Paganini," by Renee de Sausseine. A fascinating biography of perhaps the greatest violinist of all time. Paganini's incredible life would befit that of the hero of a modern historical novel, and this book, which only recently was published in English although the original French version appeared in 1938, reads like just such a novel. Throughout the book the emphasis is primarily on the personal side of Paganini's life, especially his love life. An air of authenticity is lent to the book by the frequent quotations from contemporary newspaper articles, diaries, letters, etc. "Caruso," by T.E. Ybarra. . . . Caruso's entire life from his birth in Naples, through his record-breaking 607 performances at the Metropolitan, to his death in his native city at the age of 48, is recorded in this interesting book by the author of YOUNG MAN OF CARACAS. Mr. Ybarra is obviously an ardent fan of Caruso's and the book could accurately be described as a 315-page fan letter. A highly entertaining book made all the more so by the reproduction of 10 of the great tenor's famous caricatures of himself and other musical greats of his day. "S. Hurok Presents," by S. Hurok. Mr. Hurok's second book dealing with his long life as an impresario, this one concerns his activities in the dance world. All of the famous names connected with the dance are here from Isadora Duncan and Anna Pavlova to Margot Fonteyn and Moira Shearer, and from the great Nijinsky to Frederick Ashton and Michael Somes. A "must" book for anyone interested in things danceable over the past 30 years. "Understanding Music," by William S. Newman. Perhaps of special interest to North Carolinians is this recent introduction to the field of music in general by an Associate Professor of Music at the University of North Carolina. Although intended primarily for use in a liberal arts college course, it also is useful to the interested layman. "Music Makers," by Ronald Gelatt. Twenty-one short biographies of some of the great names in the field of music today, both conductors and performing musicians, are found in this book by the Feature Editor of SATURDAY REVIEW. Subjects for the sketches include such illustrious names as those of Toscanini, Flagstad, Dame Myra Hess and the Budapest String Quartet.

Local Gardens Of Farmville Visited By Club Women Monday

FARMVILLE—Mrs. E. F. Gainer was hostess to the Garden Club at her home on East Church Street Monday afternoon, April 26, at 3:30. In the absence of the president, Mrs. L. E. Turnage, and the vice-president, Mrs. John E. Wilkerson, Miss Tabitha M. DeVisconti presided and opened the meeting with "A Summer Creed" by Argow. Miss Bettie Joyner read the minutes of the March meeting. A message from Mrs. L. E. Turnage said she was given the first rose to bloom in the Alice Dale Rose Garden on April 5th while she was a patient in Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Mrs. E. F. Gainer stated that it had been reported to her just prior to the meeting that two women were seen taking branches from dogwood trees on the Fountain highway. An indignant discussion followed in which the State law was reviewed. Mrs. W. A. Barrett was program leader and reviewed an article by L. A. Niven, Horticultural Editor of the Progressive Farmer, which stated that portulaca, zinnia, marigold, petunia, four-o'clock, periwinkle, sweet alyssum, ageratum, tithonia, cosmos, moon flower, balsam sunflower, verbena and nasturtium seed can be planted in the open in May. For bedding borders or flower boxes plant geraniums, begonia, fuchsia, coleus, lantana and wandering jew. Put verbena and petunias to cover the vacant place when the bulbs stop blooming. Dig and reset violets and chrysanthemums. It told how to grow more, better and earlier blooms. Make a second planting of gladiolus now and then at two week intervals until July. Mrs. Barrett reminded all to prune climbing roses right after blooming and how and what to spray for insects and diseases. She emphasized the use of a mulch in summer and said Bermuda or Zoysia grass can be started now. Shrubbery and shade trees need fertilizer now and especially crepe myrtle. Spray them with Bordeaux mixture or dust sulphur to control mildew. This disease is far worse on poorly fed crepe myrtles. Do not cover the roots of shade trees too deep. The roots need air and drainage. Following this was a discussion of "Disappointment Savers" or mistakes made in our gardens. Mrs. Gainer was assisted in serving sandwiches, potato chips, cheese straws, cookies and iced tea, by Mrs. R. W. Rader and Miss Bettie Joyner. Arrangements of red roses, lilies of the valley and mixed spring flowers were used; also pots of African violets. After the social hour the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Turnage, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Miller, Mr. J. W. Joyner and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen were visited.

It is time for each of us to begin thinking about the preventative treatment for typhoid fever. Already in this grand old county we, who can look back ten or more years, remember what a scourge it used to be. Help to derive it entirely out by taking the serum, both old and young. See your doctor or get advice from the Health Department.

Perjury Is A Serious Threat To Justice

The dignity of the court and the seriousness of the business transaction in the halls of justice are too often mocked by individuals who upon their appearance in court, elect to stand as an impediment to justice rather than in the interest of seeing justice done.

Program With A Two-Fold Purpose

The city of Goldsboro has entered into a program to allay the fears of its residents who may be afraid another explosion such as the one which rocked the city 19 days ago might occur.

In the investigation of the terrible explosion in the business district, the city purchased a meter which detects and determines whether gas in explosive amounts exists below the surface of the ground.

After completing the tests in the area adjacent to the site of the explosion in the downtown area, the city has offered the services of the instrument to any citizens who were afraid there may be explosive gases underground in any section of the city.

If a citizen suspects there may have been a gas leak in any area, all he has to do is inform the city he would like a particular area tested with the instrument. This follow-up program which the city of Goldsboro has adopted doubtlessly meets with great popular favor among the citizens of that city. It is a service they will appreciate, and doubtlessly many of the city's citizens will breathe easier after having their own premises checked for possible underground gas.

Goldsboro, without question, should do everything possible to determine the cause of the explosion and to prevent a recurrence of the tragedy. At the same time, it has launched this all-out testing program as a precautionary measure, and likewise as a move to remove unnecessary fear from the minds of its people.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
IDEALS AND HARD CASH

You can generally tell how much a person cares for the moral ideals he claims to espouse by the actual amount in dollars and cents he is willing to relinquish in order to maintain these ideals.

Nothing is cheaper than a glib and enthusiastic endorsement of good projects and high ideals. Words cost nothing. I read the other day of a great television performer in this country whose show is watched by millions of admirers and who turned down an offer of $30,000 a week for a Las Vegas, Nevada, night club appearance. His refusal was given in simple terms. He never works in places where liquor is sold or where there is gambling. He did not even consider the proposal.

Edward Bok, in a description of his father-in-law Cyrus Curtis, one of America's great editors, tells of a campaign Mr. Curtis waged against patent medicines. His magazine almost went on the rocks, but he had an opportunity to get going again on easy street if he would advertise the remedies he denounced. After reading the letter making this proposal and looking at the check, he set it aside and said very simply, "Of course we can't take that." Nor did his magazine go on the rocks. Good causes can get perilously near to defeat and still pull through.

High ideals have a dollar-and-cent value which is frequently most disconcerting.

National Whirligig

He Eyes Unorganized Labor

WASHINGTON—An attitude of greater solicitude for the vast body of unorganized workers has supplanted Roosevelt-Truman devotion to the politically minded bosses of the "big four" unions since James P. Mitchell succeeded Martin P. Durkin, plumbing union official, as Secretary of Labor.

Unlike his Democratic predecessors, Mitchell believes that the 15,000,000 or 18,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the United Mine Workers and the Railway Brotherhoods are fully protected in their rights by existing law and contractual agreements with responsible employers. Although not too successful in recent years, they can also exert political pressure on Capitol Hill and at the polls.

But the 35,000,000 or 40,000,000 employed in non-industrial plants—tradesmen, service people and white-collar employees—need more consideration in order to preserve a well-balanced economy, in his opinion. They are the principal victims in an economic squeeze.

HOPES FOR IMPROVED LOT FOR WORKERS Mitchell does not advocate any new or far-reaching Federal legislation on their behalf, such as was enacted for union members during the Democratic regime. He believes that their lot can be improved through establishment of better and more stabilized relations with the front offices than by bureaucratic laws or action.

He thinks, too, that the 48 states can and should adopt legislation on their behalf. Working together, he feels that Washington and the states can fix and possibly increase minimum wages in these lines, broaden and boost unemployment insurance protection, provide a degree of guaranteed work and improve health standards.

Again reversing previous policies, Mitchell maintains that the Labor Department although established to protect the interests of the workers, should seek the viewpoints and co-operation of employers. He has already found them sympathetic to his plan for a more well-balanced and comprehensive administrative system, with greater emphasis on social relationships than political action.

For the most part these individuals stand out of reach of the law; but once in a while one is caught in his mockery of justice and prosecuted.

Such is the case of a man who was sentenced in Bayboro this week to five to seven years on a charge of perjury in connection with one of the state's most publicized cases in the past year. The man entered a plea of guilty to the charge of perjury—lying under oath—and the heavy sentence imposed by Judge Clawson L. Williams of Sanford seems to us just desert for such an act.

The courts are set up to ascertain the truth and in order that the truth may be weighed by fellow citizens of the accused who determine his guilt or innocence. When a witness fails to tell the truth in court testimony, or when he deliberately bears false witness, he is standing in the way of justice whether his statement be in favor of or against the accused.

The Pamlico County case is an outstanding example of what can happen when a witness commits perjury. The whole action of the court is upset.

To be sure there are probably many people who testify falsely on the witness stand who are never brought to trail for perjury; yet perjury must be recognized as one of the most serious crimes against society and against justice which an individual can commit. If more of the court officials and more of the judges who sit on the bench would clamp down on those who commit perjury in our courts, it would indeed remove one of the most threatening menaces to justice.

The GI Remains The Key To A Situation

The foot soldier is still the backbone of the nation's fighting force. He has been through the years gone by, and is destined to be in the future.

Tactics of combat change from decade to decade, but as each change is demanded by the development of new and more powerful weapons, the foot soldier changes his techniques to adapt himself to the new type of warfare.

In the war games being held now, American soldiers are adopting tactics of ground fighting suitable to new conditions brought about by atomic weapons. If the time comes when an atomic war is actually waged, the foot soldier will still be a key to the victory.

In the early days of World War II there were many who said the development of aerial warfare would largely replace the job of the dogface. Yet it was the GI who moved in under the hail of explosives and took the objective. There has been a feeling that atomic weapons would largely replace the activities of the soldier; but it is apparent the military leaders realize a big part of fighting any battle in the final analysis will depend upon how well the GIs are able to do their job under any conditions.

UNION LEADERS RESPONSIVE—Strangely enough, he has met a responsive reaction from labor union officials, especially George L. Meany, AFL president, and Walter P. Reuther, CIO head. They take the logical position that improved conditions for all workers will have a beneficial effect on the union membership.

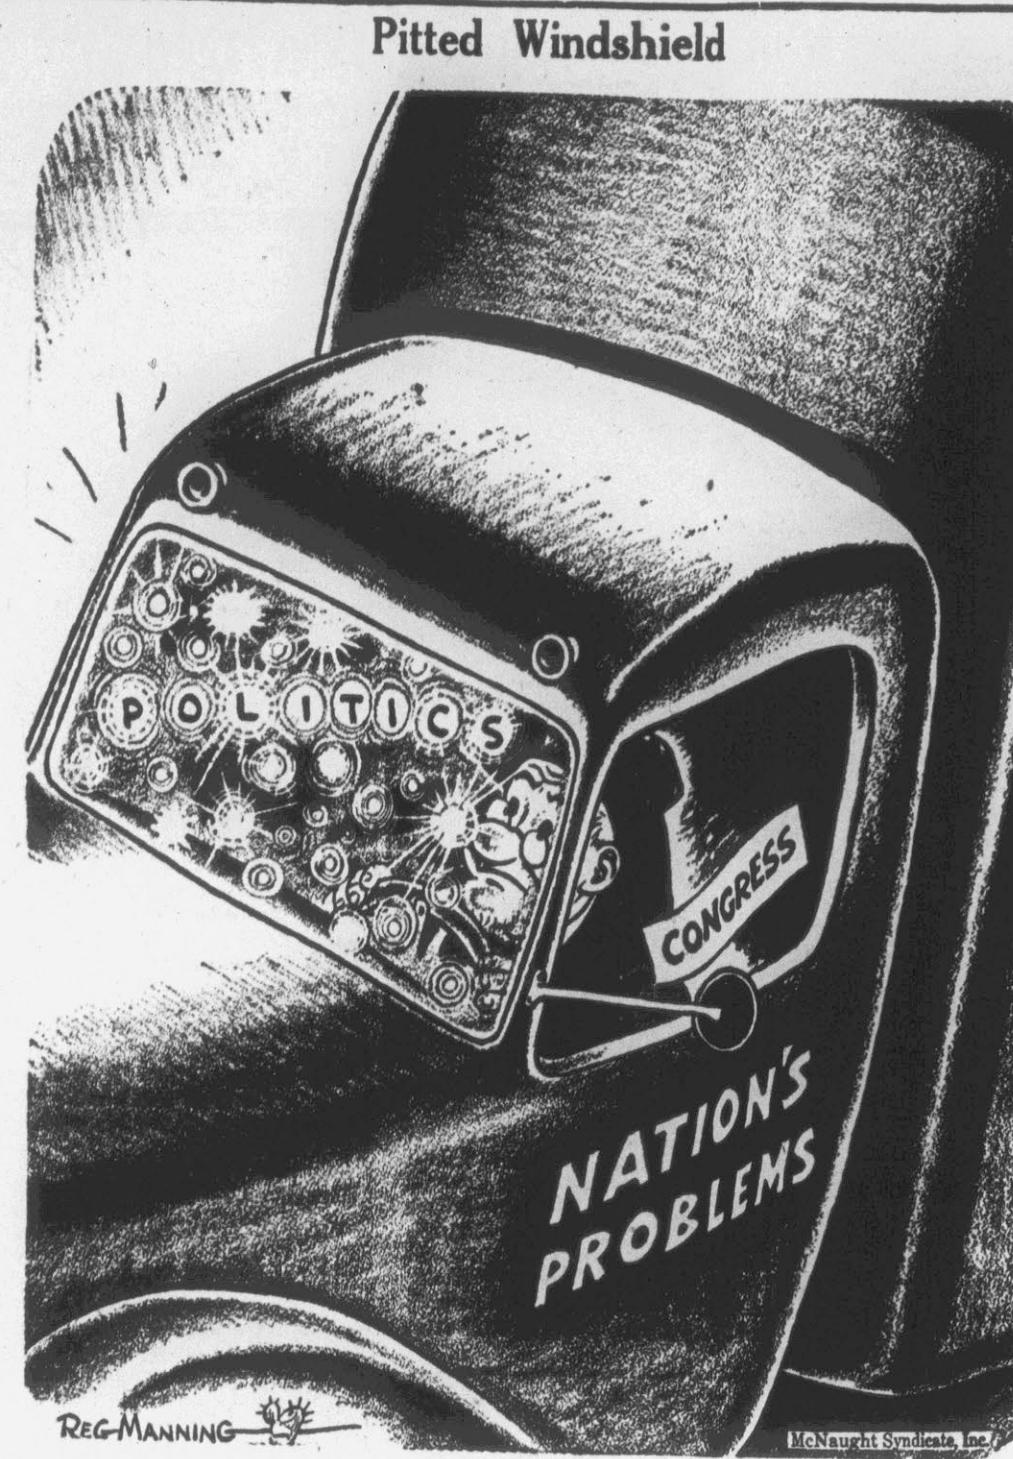

For one thing, by closing the economic gap between 40,000,000 less fortunately placed workers and the unorganized forces in heavy industry, it will remove or lessen white-collar prejudice toward the more privileged employees. By emphasizing the responsibilities of states and management toward the unorganized, it will tend to remove this difficult question from the halls of Congress and the White House doorstep.

Naturally, Mitchell has President Eisenhower's full support in his attempted reorientation of labor policies and objectives. Such erstwhile employers of vast pools of labor as Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson (General Motors), Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey (The Hanna interests) and Mitchell himself are selling the idea on their side of the street through advisory committees.

MORE PEACE ON LABOR FRONT—Certain union leaders still belabor Eisenhower with criticism in his favor business and industry and finance. They feel for professional reasons that they must denounce his proposals for Taft-Hartley revision and tax reform, although the rank and file do not seem to share their misgivings.

On the whole, however, there is more peace along the labor front under Ike than there was under those patron saints of the "big four" unions—Roosevelt and Truman. There are no strikes of essential industries in progress or in prospect. The CIO steel workers' contract expires soon, but it is expected they will settle for a noninflationary 8-cent-an-hour boost, mostly in fringe benefits.

Indeed, if the Mitchell formula succeeds, it is his hope that the labor problem may be eliminated from American politics, or the pressures on this turbulent sector minimized.

Somebody Told Me

Dishwashing Fun, This Time

"Never let my wife know I can do this!" was the exclamation of Ed (NBC) Griffith last night as he washed dishes. What was originally a catastrophe turned out to be a dish washing party. Here's the story:

The St. James Methodist Church served the Episcopal ladies, about 300 of them, at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. The dishwasher who was engaged did not show up, so Frank Strawn took telephone in hand and started recruiting dish washers. At final roll call we had Annie Ruth Highsmith, Louise Marston, Freda Steinbeck, Perry White, Frank Strawn and me.

We had a terrific time! It was actually fun. But I must admit that there was a little work attached. If you think you can visualize dishes stacked up after 300 people have eaten you might be wrong. Compare your family dish washing, divide the number in your family into 300, multiply and see what you have.

Ed Griffith and I were going to have a hand-in-hot-water contest, but he bluffed me out of it. At one time the dish water was so hot that we were debating whether or not a man could hold his hand in it. "I'll hold mine in there as long as you will, Jack," Ed said. Immediately I lost interest in the contest.

The dishwashing team made no bones about insulting America's machine age. The automatic dish washer sat idle while we did the job by hand. In spite of their many advantages, for a large quantity of dishes it would have taken us all night to use the washer.

What a pity that every bit of work can't be done along with socializing. Even cutting the grass would be fun if you had a group of interesting people walking around the yard chatting as you cut.

Ever have a late-evening snack with the neighbors and then wash the dishes afterwards? Washing the dishes in that situation is almost as much fun as the feast, provided everybody participates in some small way, even if it's simply standing around and talking.

Did we gossip any in the church? Certainly not! We discussed people, but you couldn't call it gossip. Anyway, not while we were participating in such a worthy cause.

(Short-wave radio note: Last night before the dishwashing party I talked to Cambridge, England, with no trouble at all.) And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

NEW DOCTORS NEEDED (Portland Oregonian)
In the public discussion of the nation's health and medical problems and the steps that might be taken to solve them, too little consideration has been given one of the most vital factors, the supply of doctors.

The Statistical Abstract of the United States and its supplementary historical statistics reveal that just a half century ago, in 1904, there were 180 medical schools in the nation. In 1952 there were less than half that number, 79. This is not a true measure, of course, of medical education. Many of the discontinued schools were small and inadequate. But a review of the tables of the number of medical school graduates is not reassuring.

In 1904, a total of 5,747 medical degrees were issued. By 1952, this number had increased only to 6,080. This represents a gain of less than six per cent in medical graduates in a period in which the population gain was greater than 50 per cent.

The number of physicians in America has steadily increased, largely because they, like everyone else, are living longer—thanks in great part to the doctors themselves. But the increment cannot match that of other professions—of teachers, for example, requirements for which are tied pretty rapidly in most states to the expanding population.

Medical education in 1954 is much more complicated than in 1904. Cost per student is many times that of a half century ago.

That is one of the reasons, of course, why medical degrees have not kept up the quantitative pace. But this is merely an aspect of the problem; it does not qualify as an excuse.

The nations that have resorted to public health insurance and the regimentation of doctors have discovered that such measures lead to the inevitable deterioration of medical care. The pressure that have built up for such experiments in America can be dissipated by a widespread effort on the part of the states to increase medical training facilities. These are by no means adequate to serve all the promising young men and women who would like to pursue a career in medicine.

Highly honored as North Carolinians are that the President of the United States is coming to the State, few of them are naive enough to think the visit does not have partisan political import.

ORGANIZATION—Take it from a man who knows, the current senatorial race will be determined by the effectiveness of precinct and county organizations. Personal visits by the candidates, radio speeches, newspaper advertisements, letters from state headquarters and other types of printed material are necessary trappings of a political campaign, but their chief value is to supplement and complement the activities of the precinct workers under direction of the county organization.

That's what William Umstead says, and his experiences qualify him to speak with authority. He has been in numerous campaigns for offices ranging from solicitor for a county court through superintendent of the State Highway and U. S. Senator to Governor of North Carolina and he never lost but one time. Besides his own races he chalked up a victory as manager for Gregg Cherry in the Governor's race in 1944.

The only time he lost was to former Governor J.M. Broughton for the Senate in 1948. And he still thinks that if President Truman had not called a special session of the Congress in the fall of 1947, taking him out of the campaign to perform his duties in the Senate, he would have won that time, too.

A charming personality, the ability to make a good speech and a record of past success are big assets to a candidate, but they cannot take the place of grassroots organization, in the opinion of the Governor. That is just another way of saying, he added, that there is no easy way to win an election campaign and there is no substitute for hard work by efficient organizations.

ISSUES—As the senatorial campaign moves into its final phases there is still an amazing lack of definite issues on basis of which voters can base intelligent action at the polls. Such candidates as have been publicized are in degree rather than in kind.

Both the leading candidates are standing on their records. Scott has a much longer record of public office holding, most of it at State administrative level. Lennon has a shorter experience record, mostly in State and national legislation, with service as county judge added. Scott insists that his longer service entitles him to preference in the voting for Senator. Lennon contends that since he is the only candidate with legislative experience, and it is a legislative office at stake, he is better qualified.

Scott is emphasizing in campaign speeches and literature on the record of road building during his administration as Governor, deposits of State money in banks, nor, and the interest collected on with promises to try to carry these policies into federal activities.

Lennon is talking more about necessity for meeting conditions of the atomic age with special reference to international relations.

Alvin Wingfield, only other candidate who has enunciated any sort of platform, is for further curtailment of Federal spending for social services—including roads and schools—with consequent reduction of Federal taxes, but necessary increase in State tax levies or in private spending.

The real issue in the campaign is not apparent on the surface, and has no direct connection with the United States Senate. This race is an episode in the long drawn out rivalry between two factions for control of the Democratic party in North Carolina. For lack of better names the factions are dubbed conservative and liberal. And, also with some limitations, Lennon is recognized as carrying the colors for the conservative group and Scott for the liberals.

Worth Noting

NATIONAL CAN WEEK TO BE CORNY (NATCH)
Probably the only way to avoid National Can Opener Week is to leave the country Sunday night and not come back for a week. The object is to get everybody conscious about can openers, especially the wall models, which take more steel to build. And the reason for that is that one of the sponsors is Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. The others are makers of wall-model can openers.

The week is complete with advertisements, displays, posters, a publicity man named Luther Conant, Jr., and a "Miss Home-maker 1954." The suggestion of finding a "Miss Can" was dropped after a brief discussion.

Business Today

Carrying Inventory

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the most costly factors in retailing is carrying of the inventory. A store with a $100,000 stock has that much worth of cash or borrowed capital tied up, and that means between $3,000 to $8,000 in interest, lost or paid, each year.

That much stock also requires insurance, warehousing, watchman service, handling, record-keeping, inspection and other attentions; there are recurring losses, such as accidental damage, usually not covered by insurance. Depending on the line of business and the nature of the goods, just carrying that much stock can cost an enterpriser from $5,000 to $20,000 a year. The profits on a staggering number of sales each day must go simply to support the stock.

With sales becoming harder to make, and merchants therefore seeking ways to cut their costs, management more frequently is seeking ways to lay off the costs of maintaining inventory. This is especially true where inventories tend to be large in size (requiring warehousing) and large in value (tying up capital).

As a consequence, shoppers today are being shown more sample displays of rugs, carpeting, tiling, paints, upholstering fabrics, wallpaper and other household furnishings: This is a reversion to pre-war techniques. During the war and the postwar boom, retailers acquired as much stock as possible in these lines. Turnover was sure, and it was faster if there were ample stocks on hand. Besides, large stocks were an insurance against price rises.

Now retailers want to carry as scant stocks as practical and those manufacturers who are geared to carrying their own inventories are stepping up advertising of easels, racks and other displays that enable dealers to sell without carrying inventories in depth.

A large Chicago chain recently got some nasty looks when it announced that it was seeking deals whereby manufacturers would ship directly to customers. This would save a large chunk of shipping, the chain pointed out. It did not stress the fact that it would also cut its inventory investment.

Nor was the chain out of line. An Oshkosh furniture manufacturer has been offering direct-to-customer shipments, requiring dealers to carry only floor samples. In two years the company's volume had quadrupled and its number of dealers had quintupled. What's more, it has been able to put its employees on a 52-week-a-year basis, which just about guarantees better work. And this week one of the largest makers of mirrors announced a plan whereby dealers can carry its line with nothing more than floor samples.

It appears that manufacturers who can devise systems to take the inventory loads off retailers' backs can build a vast amount of dealer enthusiasm these days. This is true in almost any line—food, tools, apparel and on and on—but it is only true as long as the manufacturer has the resources with which to sustain the burden.

Trellis Mae's Report On Probe

By HAL BOYLE
HOMETOWN, U.S.A. (AP) — Trellis Mae Peeble, America's average housewife, gnawed her fingernails in despair as she sat at her writing desk scribbling on a sheet of paper.

"Oh, Wilbur, I'm glad you're home," she exclaimed, as her husband entered.

"Why?" he asked warily. Like most husbands, Wilbur was too practical a man to see any real reason why his wife should be glad to see him.

"I need your help," said Trellis Mae. "Tomorrow it's my turn to make the weekly current events report to the ladies of the Minerva Literary and Gin Rummy Club. And I'm stumped."

"What's your subject—new trends in girdles?"

"No, it's that McCarthy-Stevens hearing in Washington. I've been watching it on Mrs. Smith's television set next door, and I can't make heads or tails of it. The most interesting thing happened the third day."

"What was that, dear?"

"Mrs. Smith's baby got her first tooth."

Wilbur shook his head and sighed. "Well, honey, what do you want to know about the hearing?"

Lifting her pencil to take notes, Trellis Mae asked:

"First, why is Secretary Stevens trying to draft Sen. McCarthy into the Army? That confuses me."

A look of suspicion crept into Wilbur's face, then wonder, then utter joy. At last he thought he saw a way to get even with Trellis Mae's club ladies, whom he thought a bunch of dizzy, time-wasting dames.

"Why, that's easy," he said, thinking fast. "Secretary Stevens wants to send McCarthy on an Army mission to Africa to organize the Mau Mau there against the Indonesian invaders. But Adm. G. D. Schine—he—you've heard of him?"

"Of course, silly. Everybody knows him."

"Well, Adm. Schine is fighting against Sen. Stevens for McCarthy's services. He wants the senator to direct a secret Navy project to build an atom-powered rowboat. It'll free the Navy of oars forever—if it works."

"What won't they think of next? How about Roy Cohn? Is he against Secretary Stevens and to be too mad at Sen. McCarthy?"

Adm. Schine? He doesn't seem to plan. He wants McCarthy to drop "Far from it. He has a third with some paratroopers on a Sioux Indian reservation out West—its crawling with Reds—and avenge the Custer Massacre."

"I should think it's high time we did something about that," said Trellis Mae warmly. "Sen. McCarthy must feel pretty lucky to have three big shots like that all fighting to get him to come to work for him. Just one question more. Why do they have all those Klieg lights in the hearing room?"

"The politicians are trying to find a way to make daytime politics as popular as night baseball."

"Well, I'm not much of a baseball fan, but I will say that even in a night ball game it's easier to tell who's got the ball," said Trellis Mae, folding up her notes.

"But at least, thanks to you, dear I know now what the hearing's all about. Men do have clearer heads than women when it comes to politics."

The next night Wilbur came home late and opened the door cautiously. A grimly silent wife met him.

"How did the ladies like your current events talk?" he asked, smirking.

"Oh, they said it was wonderful. They asked me to make another talk next week on the same subject—it was so interesting."

"They did?" Wilbur's face fell. "Then what are you mad about?"

"Well, I don't think a single member heard a single word I said. Two ladies showed up wearing new dresses that were exactly alike... down to the last polka dot. And everybody was watching to see what would happen."

"What did happen?"

"After the meeting both ladies fumed up and tried to resign from the club. But we voted to accept only one resignation."

"Which one?"

"Why the one from the lady who never serves us anything but peanut butter sandwiches when the club meets at her home—of course," said Trellis Mae.

Judgment on Jeroboam

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Fearing that the people of Israel would return to King Rehoboam's kingdom...

King Jeroboam's son became ill, so Jeroboam told his wife to disguise herself...

Ahijah's eyes were dim, but the Lord told him of the coming of Jeroboam's wife with the child...

Returning home Jeroboam's wife no sooner came to Tirzah when, at the very threshold of the palace, the child died...

MEMORY VERSE—Deuteronomy 8:11.

Judgement on Jeroboam

HE SINNED AGAINST JEHOVAH AND WAS PUNISHED

Scripture—I Kings 12:25-33; 14:1-20.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

JEROBOAM, the "mighty man of valor," to whom Solomon had given a post of honor...

among the people, and made the prince over My people Israel, and rent the kingdom away from the house of David...

"Therefore, behold, I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam, and will cut off from Jeroboam, and will take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam..."

Then Ahijah said that the woman should go home, and "when thy feet enter into the city, the child shall die."

He first built two new places of worship, one, Shechem on Mount Ephraim, and then Penuel.

Jeroboam had been blessed by Jehovah. He had been made a ruler, accepted by his people, and might have made his kingdom a happy, God-fearing nation.

He first built two new places of worship, one, Shechem on Mount Ephraim, and then Penuel.

Jeroboam thought to himself, "If this people go up to do sacrifice in the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, then shall the heart of this people turn again unto their Lord, even Rehoboam, king of Judah, and they shall kill me."

Jeroboam was a selfish man, you see, concerned only with his own security, or what he thought was that. He had seen what happened to Solomon when he forsook the Lord and worshipped idols.

He could have established these places for the worship of the Lord, but he had not learned his lesson. Jeroboam made two calves of gold, putting one in Bethel and the other in Dan; he made priests of the lowest of the people, and he ordained a feast in the eighth month and offered sacrifices to the golden calves he had made.

Then his young son, Abijah, fell sick. Jeroboam told his wife to disguise herself so that no one would recognize her, and to go to the home of Ahijah, the prophet who had prophesied the division of the kingdom, and to take the child to him to find out what was to become of him.

However, the Lord, acquainted Ahijah that Jeroboam's wife was on her way to him, in disguise, so that when she entered Ahijah's house he said to her: "Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam; why feignest thou thyself to be another? For I am sent to thee with heavy tidings."

"Go tell Jeroboam, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, forasmuch as I exalted thee from being a lowly man, and have made thee king over Israel, and have given thee all that thou hast desired, and have not forsaken thee, and thou hast forsaken me, and hast worshipped other gods, and hast provoked me to anger, and hast cast Me behind thy back..."

"And they buried him and all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the Lord, which He spake by the hand of His servant Ahijah the prophet."

Jeroboam reigned "two and twenty years," according to Scripture, and then he died and his son, Nadab, reigned in his stead. Thus ended the life of this self-seeking man who not only turned away from the worship of Jehovah who had established him in his kingdom, but led his people to do likewise, incurring the wrath of the Lord.

All of us, from the youngest to the oldest, have our "spheres of influence." We cannot lead a whole people to do wrong by our sinning, but we can set an example to all those with whom we come in contact, and help them to take the right path and be true to God and trust in His goodness by worshipping only Him.

Writer Takes Up Issue Of Man vs. Machines

By W. G. ROGERS Associated Press Arts Editor NEW YORK (AP) — How are we doing? It's nip and tuck whether science is going to get the better of us or we of it, according to a book out tomorrow. The question isn't, are we mice or men, but are we machines or are we men?

There is still a chance that blood and bone and gray matter will triumph over wheels and gears, knobs and buttons, as you will read with fascination in Joseph Wood Krutch's "The Measure of Man" (Bobbs-Merrill).

Just 25 years ago, in "The Modern Temper," Krutch berated science for taking the humanity out of man and out of man's society. The new book provides the new look. There's a ray of hope, but only a ray, for Krutch considers us, assays us, and now concludes that "we should think twice" about our problematical future or "we may never be able really to think again."

But can we think even now? Some people these days have the idea that having an idea may get them in hot water. A month ago Elmer Davis' "But We Were Born Free" wondered how free in fact we still were, and that was the gist of Norman Thomas' "The Test of Freedom" (Norton). A couple of weeks from now the same question is posed again in some collected essays and speeches by Henry Steele Commager, to appear (Oxford) under the explicit title "Freedom, Loyalty, Dissent."

They are talking about the immediate, front-page world in which we live, the world of politics, of Communist menace and of imagined "book burners," of congressional committees that talk to witnesses but don't let them talk back. The significant thing about all these books is that there has burst forth all of a sudden such a rash of questioning of ourselves. There has always been some scrutiny, and often it was nasty. But this season, more than usual, some very smart examiners have been running us through a series of telling tests. It's no use pretending they don't hurt. But it's no use saying that because they do, they are not dependable.

Until Krutch, the one that bowed and bled us the most was Louis Kronenberger's "Company Manners." But as Thomas, Commager and Davis limit their field, so too he cut deep, worked within a single field, the cultural.

After him came Jacques Barzun, who gave to his "God's Country and Mine" the subtitle "A Declaration of Love spiced with a few harsh words." If there's corruption here, so is there abroad, he assured us. While like Kronenberger he complained of our immature stage, he had praise for ballet.

In several matters he and Krutch covered the same ground. Barzun would agree with Krutch that Shakespeare on the subject of man and man's conduct "is likely to be as true as, and rather more important than, what the summarizer's ten thousand questionnaires can tell us." Both men have tart comments on Kinsey; on the curious inadequacy of our vaunted intelligence and aptitude tests; on what they alike regard as the unbridgeable gap between the machine, no matter how smart it is, and the man, no matter how dumb he acts.

But while Barzun is an urbane, civilized and witty observer, Krutch — like Kronenberger an habitué of the theatre — is the philosopher. He sees us in depth, he sees the surface and the foundation. He cries out to us eloquently to take our destiny back again into our own control.

Scientists have let science run away with them, he charges; and so with us, too. Man is more than a statistic, an average, a machine. Going back to Descartes' "I think, therefore I am," Krutch calls on consciousness to demonstrate the unique man quality of man. Man is not helplessly conditioned by his society; he can in fact condition it. Krutch proclaims, if he will wake up to the great task before it is too late.

Mitchell Says He Is Intrigued By Senate Hearing

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Stephen A. Mitchell, national Democratic party chairman, says he finds the Army-McCarthy hearings "fascinating, watching all this on TV, wondering what is the secret of Schine's success and wondering which Republican, or Republicans, will turn out to be the liar, or liars."

"We know," he said, "somebody lied and it was not a Democrat." Contending Republicans are "playing politics" with the nation's foreign affairs, he said:

"To our friends abroad, America does not appear as a calm, serene and land sure of our strength and confidence in our leadership. Instead it appears as a quarrelsome, suspicious, divided nation with Republican energies being spent in charging Democrats with treason and, when they run out of Democrats, saying the same things about one another."

VIOLATIONS Are Regular Thing OMAHA (AP) — Last week John Geis Jr. of Lincoln came before County Judge Robert Troyer and was fined $300 and costs on charges of having expired truck license plates and no registration certificate.

At the time the judge said Geis' record showed 31 traffic violations and fines totaling $1,194 since 1941. This week Geis was back before Judge Troyer—this time on a charge of driving 85 miles an hour while returning to Lincoln after his court appearance last week.

The judge sentenced Geis to 10 days and ordered his driver's license suspended for two months.

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colver

SYNOPSIS

Like any young couple ardently in love, Joan Foster and Todd Hunter are eager to wed. But Todd has not yet been placed in his chosen profession of teaching, and the little money which Joan earns by writing, is not enough to maintain a home. Todd had fought gallantly to acquire the education which qualified him to teach German, but there seemed to be no call for teachers of the German language now. Arriving at the Foster home for dinner, Todd promises to reveal some exciting news to Joan later, when they are alone. His news proves disappointing. He can get a job teaching fourth-graders in a near-by private school, a mark far short of his hopes and dreams.

CHAPTER FIVE

TODD continued telling Joan about his job offer.

"Honey, Gilly said they would pay me twenty-three hundred dollars. It's not a great deal— He struck a folded fist into the palm of the other hand. "The policemen here in town who have only a high school diploma get as much as that. But it's all a green teacher can expect. I couldn't do any better anywhere, not even in a college. In fact, I might not do as well."

"I know,"

"I don't mind the small salary. I knew what I was up against when I decided to go into this game. Its well—it's the thought of handling kids so darned young. I'm not prepared for that kind of work. I'm just not prepared."

He unclenched his hand, looked down at it for a moment, then reached over and laid it on one of Joan's.

"Seems there's a great shortage of grade school teachers but plenty for prep schools and colleges." He looked at her. "It's our chance, Jo-Jo. The first real one that's come our way."

"Yes," she said.

"We could get married in June. He'll send me a contract and we'll be all set."

"Well?" she said again.

Never had she known that being engaged was going to involve making decisions like this. Never had she the slightest notion that planning to be married could mean such a division of feeling. She had always imagined that once you had discovered you were really in love and had an engagement ring slipped on your finger, everything was then practically settled. All you had to do was to choose the day and walk up the aisle. What a young ideal! Actually, what happened was that you ran plump into economic problems and these involved a conflict of dreams with facts which, in the end, demanded a compromise.

Because that's what it would be. If Todd took this job, he would be teaching—yes—but not what he wanted to teach. He would be getting experience—yes—but not in his chosen field.

She spoke at last.

"Todd I can't say what I think, because I don't know."

Besides, it's what you think and want and feel. It's well—I'm just going along with this proposition. Or not going along, if you decide against it."

She looked at him with a sober face, waiting for his reply.

"That's it. That's the thing. I want you to go along. I want us both to go along—together—from here." He folded her hand in both of his and held it tight while his voice deepened with his emotion.

"I've waited as long as I'm willing to wait, Jo-Jo. Practically all my life, you know."

She was silent then, her head against his arm. It did not matter to her, personally, really. She was just terribly disappointed for him. And a little afraid for him, too, since he would be tackling something for which he had had no training. She said slowly, "I don't want to put any pressure on you. That would definitely be wrong. All I know is that you mustn't get started wrong. You mustn't get into a groove you can't get out of. It's your whole future. And it's all ahead of you."

"No, you're wrong. My future is here, now, today. Every day is my future. And every day it becomes my past. You can't look too far ahead. I think, No, this is what I've decided. I'll take the job. If I hadn't written all those letters—if they hadn't given me a pretty clear idea of the chance I have, or rather, haven't of teaching German in a prep school or college, I'd hesitate longer. But they told me, Jo-Jo! All my interviews have told me, too. And high schools are out because I'm not qualified. What choice is left? Nothing except grade work in some private school. None, that is, unless I decide to abandon the idea of teaching altogether. And I'm not quite ready to do that—yet."

"You don't think if you waited until June—or even later in the summer—"

"The Columbia agency suggested that, too. They said something might turn up then. But they wouldn't guarantee it. And"—he turned toward her and she saw his gray eyes flash with an impatience he rarely showed—"as I said a minute ago I've waited for you as long as I'm willing to wait."

She could feel her heart beginning to beat a little faster. He meant it. Her wedding day, that only a few hours ago had seemed out of reach, was right ahead of her.

He finished quietly, "Taking this job that Gilly's offering me means an end of waiting, honey. It means a beginning of life together at last."

She lifted her head and looked at him, her brown eyes clear and steady and warm with her love.

"Well, Todd, if that's the way you feel—if that's the way you want it—I'm ready."

Wonderful to have it settled! To be able to plan definitely for the event about which she so long had dreamed. The details of it were all quite clear in her mind. She wanted—and so did he—to be married in the little church across the street where his father had been pastor for the past fifteen years. And, of course, Dr. Hunter would perform the ceremony. She wanted an afternoon wedding, too, not too formal but at an hour late enough so that she could appropriately wear a white dress with a veil and a train—a tiny one—even though the ushers wore business suits. Betty Andrews was going to be her maid of honor—and, well, she had not fully decided about the rest of the bridal party.

Life Ran Smoothly For J. G. Lucas Until One Day He Appeared On Television

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—John G. Lucas Jr. hoped for years that someday he would own a music store. He is now 42 and has given up the idea of having his store, but he has a music store in his home. He always liked music and still does. He used to play the French horn. But the closest he gets to music now is playing the phonograph at home. He does that and he works in the garden.

The thought that millions of people might one day be peering into his strained and anxious face never occurred to him. He is not a handsome man. He is an earnest-looking man, who looks like many other men.

And one day recently he suddenly appeared on TV screens everywhere, looking out nervously through his rimless glasses from the witness' seat at the Senate inquiry into Sen. McCarthy's row with Army officials. He kept swallowing.

Seven senators were questioning him. So was his special counsel, Ray Jenkins. McCarthy was looking at him, asking questions.

His life until that moment had been running along a smooth and even channel. It might have run on that way until he reached retirement age. He had been content with his obscurity behind a desk in the Pentagon.

Of all those who have appeared in the hearings so far he is the only one of whom some other man who never expects to be in headlines, watching his TV screen in New York or Iowa or Illinois, might say: "That might have been me; I know how he feels."

Back home in St. Louis he played the French horn in the high school band. And he played it in the band at Northwestern University, where he got his bachelor of arts degree. As he grew older he grew away from the horn.

After he finished at Northwest-

Lucas got a job in the office of the secretary of the Army. He saw a number of secretaries come and go. One of his jobs was to listen in on the phone when someone called his boss, and to take down the conversation in shorthand.

Lucas and his wife who have two children, lived in an apartment for awhile. Then they bought a Cape Cod house in Falls Church, Va. They both like to work in the garden.

On the morning of April 23 Mrs. Lucas was watching the McCarthy-Army hearing on her TV set. Secretary of the Army Stevens, her husband's boss, was testifying. Suddenly she heard the announcement her husband would be called to testify at the afternoon session about the shorthand notes he took on some of Stevens' telephone conversations.

Mrs. Lucas called her husband and asked if he'd like her to be in the hearing room when he testified. He said he would. She got a neighbor to care for the children and went up to the hearing. She couldn't see Lucas' face as he testified. She could hear him, though.

When he finished and went outside with her, she says, she thought he looked "a little ruffled."

"I didn't know how ruffled he was," she says, "until that night when one of the local TV stations showed some of the scenes from the day's hearing and I saw his face."

Although he looked frightened at the way through his testimony, Lucas himself says he was a little nervous only in the beginning. "The nature of the forum," he says, "was enough to awe anyone."

Busy Peg Lynch Leads Three Lives As Actress, Script Writer And Housewife

DOMESTIC BLISS . . . Peg Lynch and Alan Bunce depict marital content as TV's "Ethel and Albert."

By CYNTHIA LOWRY (AP Newsfeatures Writer)
Peg Lynch, a blue-eyed brunette who is more widely known to television audiences as Ethel of "Ethel and Albert," recently met an old friend she hadn't seen in years. After a brief, highly affectionate greeting, Peg rushed on to rehearsal, saying, "Darling, we must get together for a good long talk—sometime next fall."
Miss Lynch really does intend to look up her old friend next fall. The problem in her life is that she not only plays Ethel on her television show, but writes the half-hour script as well. This makes her one of the busiest women in the world.

"I write the script on Mondays and Tuesdays, like mad," she explains, "and then we start rehearsal Wednesday, and keep it up until the show Saturday night. Then I go home to Stamford, see my husband and baby, worry around—and by Sunday night come back to New York to the apartment here and start beating out another script!"
Peg thinks she's trying to do too much, but doesn't know how to get out of the center of the snowball she's rolled up around herself.

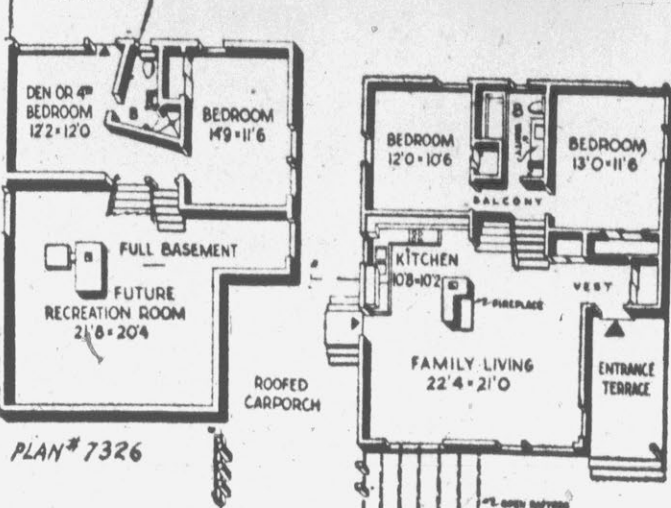

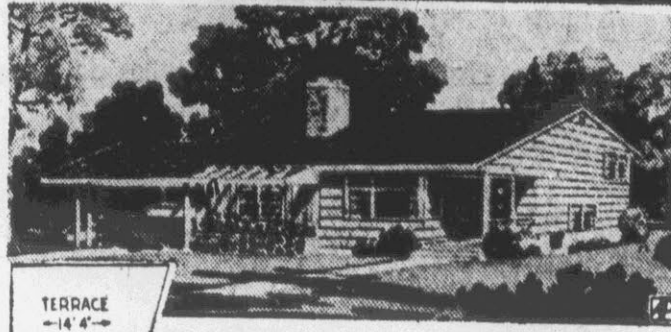

"Ethel and Albert," Peg's weekly and believable peek into the lives of an average couple in moderately good circumstances, last fall, came of age as a full-fledged television show complete with sponsor after a break-in period of two years on Kate Smith's day-time show. Before that, it had been a perennially popular network radio show. Peg originated the idea when she worked on station KATE in Albert Lea, Minn.

She doesn't really approve of plots.
"Events in real life aren't plotted," she says. "Crises and circumstances are just strung together and somehow they work out."

In real life, she loves the 1728 home she and her engineer husband, Norwegian-born Odd Romning bought a couple of years ago in Stamford, Conn., not far from the home of Alan Bunce, his wife and three children. Bunce, almost since the beginning, has played Albert in the show—and one of the hardest jobs Peg had is convincing her credulous fans that they aren't really man and wife. The Romnings have a 5-year-old daughter, Elsie.

Ethel and Albert don't have children in the TV show, although they had a child, Suzy, on the radio version. Peg is cannyly hazy about specific details which might interfere with this identification thing. Age, geographic location and other such items aren't brought up.
"It's funny," said Peg, "some Stamford people are absolutely certain Albert is a commuter—and viewers in the Midwest are just as certain that he's copied from some one in their town."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A NEW IDEA in split level construction, this house has a one-story front, two-story rear, with bedrooms half a flight up and half a flight down from the living room. Only the fireplace and chimney separate the kitchen from the rest of the open planned family room. This is plan No. 7326 by Herman York, architect, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 2, N.Y. The house was built and sold with a quarter-acre of land in Eastwood Village, Centereach, N.Y., for $13,000. The upper levels cover 939 square feet; the lower level at rear covers 391 square feet. # Once-Ragged Urchin Is Pastor Of Own Church, Just For Kids

By GENE KINNEY
AP Newsfeatures
OKLAHOMA CITY—Five years ago they were Oklahoma City's forgotten children. Today they are leading better lives because a ragged urchin, many years ago, was dragged to Sunday school by a friend.
The children are the congregation of the non-denominational Children's Church of America, founded by the former ragged urchin, the Rev. L. M. Stevenson, "bicycle preacher."

EVANGELISM is important for James Leroy Pritchard, 12.

They laughed when he first pedaled through the streets, coaxing youngsters to Sunday school and riding them there on the handle bars. He cut a ridiculous figure, he admits, but there's nothing funny about the change he has made in young lives.

More than 100 children come from a section known to police as a spawning bed for juvenile delinquents and criminals. "The Reverend" has graduated from his bicycle. For a time he used taxicabs, then a station wagon. Now he is buying a bus. He goes out after the members.

Stevenson, at first, was disconcerted that many children who promised on Saturday to be in church Sunday weren't there.

"More often than not," he says "they were in jail."
He set out to get them out of jail and into church. When juvenile officers give up on a child in trouble, the minister takes them into his home if they have no other place to go.

His project is backed by the inter-denominational Wesleyan Youth, Inc., organized by Stevenson and supported by more than a thousand businessmen.

One of his "incurables" at 16 had a criminal record that shocked even a hard-bitten judge. On Sundays you can find this erstwhile tough guy at the Children's Church teaching Sunday school.

Such cases have drawn nationwide attention. District judges here swear by him and jurists elsewhere have written to learn his formula.

"I lay claim to no magic formula," he says. "But I do not deal with juvenile delinquents. I have never met any juvenile delinquents—only kids who need help."

His charges range from tots to 18-year-olds.

Each Sunday morning he delivers a sermon. That night it's the children's turn. Someone is assigned a topic to talk on, and must seek out quotations in scripture.

"It's something," Stevenson smiles proudly, "to watch a 12-year-old who used to spend his nights stealing, or smoking marijuana, lecturing his fellows on faith."

The member who brings the most visitors to Sunday school gets a prize—the choice of 50 cents or a Bible. These broke youngsters invariably choose the latter.

On Monday nights they all go roller skating and there are picnics and other outdoor festivities to keep the mischievous from backsliding.

"The children were sullen and unruly at first," he recalls, "and some parents were even hostile."

Now many remain to pray—literally. As many as 20 youngsters linger after regular services to gather at the altar for their own private prayers.

More than 2,000 different kinds of automobiles were marketed in the United States before 1912.

Impressions Of Russian Life Noted In Article

Editor's Note — Bill Boss, correspondent of the Canadian Press, spent five months in the Soviet Union. He lived in Moscow but made a 6,000-mile trip to within 500 miles of the Chinese border. He is now back in Canada. This article distributed by The Associated Press contains some revealing paragraphs from his notebooks.

By BILL BOSS
Keeping up with the Joneses is little worry in the Soviet Union. The Joneses too have almost nothing.

Clothes for adults are almost prohibitively priced. Most Russian men have only one suit and one pair of shoes. At upwards of 500 rubles a suit costs almost three weeks pay for the ordinary Russian and he spends two to three weeks pay on a pair of shoes.

Russians I met in railway stations, on trains, in restaurants, were far more interested in the comforts of our life than in our politics.

As for as civil defense and air-raid precautions are concerned there is no obvious setup. There are no signs pointing to the nearest shelter; no instructions about what to do in an emergency.

The government is trying to patch up a boner by Joseph Stalin that set Soviet agriculture back at least 25 years. The boner was collective farming. Although two thirds of Russia's 210 million citizens are peasants and country dwellers the Union has less cattle than it had under the czars, and doesn't produce enough wheat and other grains to fill its market baskets.

Truck driver Vasili Artumov (not his real name) lives in a mud-and-plaster hut in Samarkand, a market town in central Asia. The one room he shares with his wife has no running water, only a sheet-metal stove for cooking and heating in Samarkand's below-zero winters.

Artumov said he earns between 400 and 500 rubles a month, his wife the same amount as a factory hand. His rent is 100 rubles. For this they get a dirt-floored, 15-by-11-foot room. He said:

"Two years ago the landlady said she was going to have the house wired so we bought a radio for 700 rubles. Then she said we didn't need electricity, so we have a radio we can't use. Later we

Sex doesn't draw as much criticism as drink in Moscow. Bobby-soxers aren't recognizable by dress. But teen-agers give the same screaming applause to their heroes of stage and ballet.

The Russians are a race of frustrated litterbugs. Let a dance beat start something different from the dreary, conventional dance music, the Communist regime authorizes, then watch the capers they cut. Russians seem to dance on springs. When they tumble toward a jive it's side-splitting. One of the most popular things the regime could do would be to loosen up on dance music.

Signs of middle class culture are coming back. It is uncolored not to wear a necktie—but it takes time to break 30 years' incultation against them. It is uncolored to take off your jacket when dining out.

Picket Line Broken When Mayor Reads Riot Act

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Police broke up a picket line around the strike-bound Motor Cargo, Inc., freight dock yesterday after Mayor Leo A. Berg read the riot act.
The firm—struck by owner-operators objecting to a plan to pool trailers—had obtained an injunction against pickets halting trucks.
The mayor read the act to the company, owner-operators and the AFL truck drivers as a line of pickets prevented trucks from moving.

Then Police Capt. Stephen J. McGowan three times called out: "In the name of the state of Ohio, go to your homes."

After that police moved in, broke up the picketing and a chain of trucks moved out.

Harvey Burton 37, of nearby Monroe Falls suffered minor injuries in the incident and was examined at City Hospital.

Six men were arrested. Five gave Pennsylvania addresses. They identified themselves as William Wise, 29, Scottsdale; Jacob Appel, 35, Quakerstown; Elwood Swank, 35, Paxinos; Howard De Long, 27, Catsasqua; and Harry N. Clinton, 51, Coatesville.

It was the second violent incident in the walkout. The other occurred Wednesday.

Mayor Berg said he was disturbed over an influx of what he called "out-of-town people with baseball bats."

"If they show up again," he said, "they will see what the inside of our jail books like."

Rejoins Spouse In County Jail

GRUND, Va. (AP)—Somebody left a door unlocked yesterday in the women's section of the Buchanan County Jail here and Mrs. Audrey Lester, 23, awaiting trial on a charge of petty theft, took off.
Police located her a short while later—perched in a tree not far from the jail. She finally agreed to come down when her pursuers threatened to climb up after her. Back she went to jail—to a cell near her husband Sanford, who is awaiting transfer to the state penitentiary to serve a two-year sentence for grand larceny.

Phantoms Upset For First Track Loss In Two Years

Raleigh Beats G-Men With 65 1/2-47 1/2 Show

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
RALEIGH—It took two long years to build up a streak and in a matter of two hours yesterday it was torn completely down.

The Greenville Phantom track team had won five consecutive dual meets over the last two years until yesterday afternoon, when the Raleigh Capitals defeated the G-men by the score of 65 1/2-47 1/2.

In the first meet of the season the Green Phantoms ran over the Capitals by a 65-46 score, but the Capitals were on their toes yesterday and took the measure of one of the East's strongest teams.

The Raleigh team dominated the first places and the Greens could not get enough seconds to catch up. In all the Caps took first in eight events to the Greens four, while the two schools tied for the high jump.

Speight, West Lead Scoring
James Speight led the scoring once again for the Green Phantoms with 11 points. The versatile track terror took first in the broad jump and the 440-yard dash. Speight also placed third in the 100-yard dash.

Sophomore Pete West took second place in the scoring with 9 points. West tied for first in the high jump, tied for second in the pole vault, and took second in the high hurdles. Bill Taft garnered eight points on the basis of a first place finish in the 220-yard dash, and a second in the 100-yard dash.

Wilkinson Shines
Freshman Edwin Wilkinson was one of the best stars of the Greenville brigade. The speedy half-mile sensation burned around the State College track in 2:12.3 for the half.

Wilkinson ran his best race of the year for the G-men. He let Raleigh's outstanding half-miler Reggie Ponder set the pace for the entire first lap, then pulled up and passed Ponder on the straightaway of the last lap. Wilkinson slowly pulled away and beat Ponder by about 10 yards at the finish line. The win was a personal triumph for Wilkinson, who defeated Ponder once before when the Raleigh ace was sick. Ponder had no excuse today, however; he was just run in the ground.

The G-men had several other players that scored fairly well, although they did not come through in their specialties. Captain Cleidith Oakley had one of his really off days in the discus, throwing it only 111 feet for a second place; but he came through with a good performance in the low hurdles to place second for the Green Phantoms and was beaten in the shot put by Bob Mangum, but took second in that event and a third in the disc.

Edwards Slick
Big Harold Edwards missed the meet for the Green Phantoms and his absence hurt the Greens considerably. The tall high-jumper was a certain first place winner if he could have made the trip; but he was sick and it was impossible to do so.

Edwards was not the whole difference anyway as the margin of victory was too great for that. The G-men just had one of those days when everyone is off, and Raleigh was on. The G-men still have a record of the year of two wins and one loss in dual meets, and they came in second in the Eastern Regionals.

Next meet on line for the Greens will be Monday in Fayetteville. In an earlier meet the G-men downed Fayetteville 65-48. The final meet of the year will be the State Meet next Friday, May 7.

Summary:
Shot put — 1. Mangum (R). 2. Smith (G). 3. Powell (G). Distance: 43 feet.

Pole vault — 1. Upchurch (R). 2. Shackelford (G) and West (G). Height: 10 feet, 6 inches.

High jump — 1. Tie between Mangum (R) and West (G). 3. Tie between Upchurch (R) and Drum (G). Height: 5 feet, 4 inches.

Broad jump — 1. Speight (G). 2. Jones (R). 3. Johnson (G). Distance: 18 feet, 8 1/2 inches.

Discus — 1. Mangum (R). 2. Oakley (G). 3. Smith (G). Distance: 117 feet, 6 1/4 inches.

Human Tide Rolls Into Louisville

By ORLO ROBERTSON
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A human flood threatened to engulf this Ohio River town as time approached for tomorrow's running of the 80th Kentucky Derby with a near record field in prospect for the $100,000-added race for three-year-olds.

The city was bulging at the seams as the trainers of an expected field of at least 30 marched into the secretary's office at Churchill Downs to drop the names of their hopefuls into the entry box for perhaps the richest of all Derbies.

They came from far and near by automobile, regular and special trains and airplanes. And there were some known even to be en route by shank's pony. Hotel men said there wouldn't be an available room within 100 miles of Louisville by nightfall.

Few sporting events can match the Derby in color and this year is no exception. The Downs itself is a thing of beauty with its multiple colored flowers and plants and closely cropped grass.

Streets and stores are gaily decorated in horse motifs. Conversations, many of them over the traditional Derby mint julep, start out on almost any subject but quickly shift to the Derby. The H-bomb runs second to King Thoroughbred for the day. McCarthy and his differences with Secretary of the Army Stevens may not have been forgotten but they sure have taken a back seat.

A man on the street was asked the latest on McCarthy and he replied: "Didn't know he was starting in the Derby. What's his odds?"

Post time for the Derby is 4:30 p.m. (EST) and by that time the three-eighths mile long stands and the infield are expected to be packed with more than 100,000 spectators. The mile and a quarter classic will be televised from 4 to 4:15 p.m. and broadcast from 4:15 to 4:45 by Columbia Broadcasting System.

Robert S. Lytle's long-striding Correlation winner of the Florida Derby and Wood Memorial, remained the firm 5 to 2 choice as the entries began coming in.

Goyamo, jointly owned by Royce G. Martin's Woodvale Farm and Mrs. W. Alston Jones, was still the second choice at 7 to 2. But there was a strong possibility he might be superceded by either Hasty Road from A.E. Reuben's Hasty House Farm or Andy Crevolin's little grey. Determine, when the crowd starts pouring money into the pari-mutuel machines.

C.V. Whitney's stretch running Fisherman was next in line.

Chicod's Gaskins Pitches No-Hitter

CHICOD — Righthander Jerry Gaskins pitched his second no-hitter of the year here yesterday to defeat Stokes 2-1 in a Pitt County Conference baseball game.

Gaskins was in trouble frequently during the game but he always managed to work himself out of the tight situations without any damage except in the fifth inning when Stokes pushed across its only run of the game. Gaskins struck out eight men and walked six in working out of the other tight spots.

The winning run for the Hornets came in the bottom of the fifth when two infield hits and some daring base running dazzled the Blue Jays. Bobby Fornes led off with the first of the infield hits and then stole second. J. T. Mills followed with another infield hit and while the Stokes players were trying to cut Mills down Fornes raced around from second with the winning run.

Archie Oakley, Gaskins' number one aide in the pitching department who plays outfield when he's not on the mound, led the hitting for the day. He got two of Chicod's four hits in three trips to the plate.

The victory was the eighth straight win of the year for Chicod. Next game for the Hornets will be next Tuesday when they meet Winterville in Chicod.

Gaskins was in trouble in the second and fourth innings besides the fifth. In the fourth, two men reached on walks but the next two were retired on infield outs and the fifth man to bat in the inning went down on strikes. Spokes got its only run in the fifth when Tripp reached on an error, went to second when the man behind him walked, was sacrificed to third and then scored on an error by Chicod catcher Billy Cooper.

Score by innings:

Chicod's Gaskins Pitches No-Hitter

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP)—Billy Joe Patton, sometimes erratic, usually spectacular, loomed as the man to beat as the North and South Amateur Golf Tournament moved into the semifinals today.

Patton, whose daring play just missed winning the Masters tournament three weeks ago, met William Hyndman, Abington, Pa., insurance agency operator, in one 18-hole match today with Alex Welsh, Rockford, Ill., attorney, and Frank Meacham, Roanoke Rapids veteran, in the other. The winners meet over 36 holes for the title tomorrow.

Patton played what for him was a typical round in yesterday's quarterfinals as he smothered Curtis Person, Memphis, Tenn., 6 and 5. Billy Joe was in trouble off the tee on seven of 13 holes, yet he recovered so magnificently and putted so effectively he was two under par for the distance.

The 32-year-old Morganton wholesaler hardwood lumber dealer repeatedly came up with a breathtaking approach to the green or a well-stroked, vital putt of four to eight feet. Patton makes a full quota of mistakes in almost every round he plays, but his almost careful approach to his problems and his Houdini-like solutions with a great iron shot or a pressure putt makes him always interesting to watch. There are few dull moments when Billy Joe is in action.

He turned four up against Person with a par 36. Patton took only 16 putts for the 13 holes. The usually poised Person was so flustered by a succession of iron shots Patton unfurled coming back that he was not aware the match was over when Patton birdied the 13th hole, was walking in four feet. Person was walking in four feet. Person was walking in four feet.

Both were in trouble often, especially on the front nine. But while Patton got out, Person seldom did. His biggest misery came in the traps.

Hyndman, 38, is, like Patton, the father of three. Last year the tall Pennsylvanian lost in the semifinals to eventual winner Bill Campbell.

Hyndman had his tee shots working and his putter behaving better than at any time during the week in running away from William Look, Seaside, N. Y., 6 and 5. Hyndman was one over par and didn't lose a hole. He turned even par and was six up. Four halved holes coming home were enough for the victory.

Welsh and Meacham both qualified with 75 Monday over the par 72 Pinehurst Country Club No. 2 course.

Welsh, a third round loser last year, has played very little this year. He grived only a week ago from Illinois and has, as he put it, "just been having some fun" here this week.

He took on Dick Chapman, the Pinehurst veteran of 25 North and South tournaments who has been trying without success to win this one before the home folks. They came down to the 16th with Chapman two down. But Dick gave his supporters hope with a great winning birdie four to stay alive. However, the steady Welsh matched his brilliant pars on the last two holes to close him out.

The match was the most tension-packed of the day. Welsh had to win the fourth to get even, then took Nos. 6 and 8 for a two-hole lead. Chapman's par on the short ninth cut the lead to a single hole at the turn, which Welsh reached playing par golf, although his bogie six on the 10th squared the match. Welsh won the next two holes and clung to his lead despite a grim challenge by Chapman, who didn't lose another hole.

Meacham was one over par in closing out 19-year-old Clinton White Toms, Duke freshman from Durham. Meacham never trailed after getting even on the third. He won the eighth and ninth and held on at two up through the 14th. A par on 15 and a birdie on 16 closed out Toms.

Pirates Play

East Carolina College's baseball Pirates, still in the thick of the battle for North State Conference championship honors, take on Guilford College's Quakers on the college diamond today. Starting time will be 2:45.

The Pirates are in second place in the Eastern Division standings with a 6-3 mark. Elon leads with a 10-2 record.

No pitching choices have been named by Coach Earl Smith of the Bucs but righthander Mack Cherry is expected to start. Cherry is the freshman ace from Robersonville.

The Pirates will travel to Wilson tomorrow to meet Atlantic Christian.

High Point Loses 18-0 To Pirates

Number two man Dave Martin fired a two-over-par 74 yesterday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club to lead East Carolina College's Pirates to an 18-0 victory over High Point.

Martin's 74 took medalist honors for the day. Harry Rainey, also of the Bucs, was runner-up with a 75. The victory gives the Bucs a 2-0 record in conference competition. The only loss suffered this season was to Salisbury Country Club in a non-conference match.

THURSDAY'S STARS
By The Associated Press
PITCHING—Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phillies, stopped the Milwaukee Braves on one hit, winning his 24th major league shutout 4-0.

BATTING — Junior Gilliam, Brooklyn Dodgers, hit two home runs and a double driving in three runs, as the Dodgers beat Cincinnati, 7-5.

Hitters beware! Philadelphia's Robin Roberts is back in form — with a vengeance.

The tireless right-hander has been mowing down the opposition with amazing regularity for 8 1/2 seasons. But he hit the skids in the last six weeks of the 1953 campaign, losing eight while winning only three.

After showing next to nothing in spring training Roberts was kayoed by the upstart Pittsburgh Pirates on opening day 4-2 and they began to sing the blues in Philadelphia.

But that's all over and forgiven now. He topped the Pirates the next time out with a four-hit shutout, lost a 1-0 heartbreaker to the New York Giants last weekend and then last night stopped the Milwaukee Braves on one lonesome hit 4-0.

Del Crandall's third-inning double put the only dent in one of Roberts' best ever performances. The 27-year-old Michigan State star faced 30 batters, walked two and struck out six.

The one-hitter was Roberts' first anywhere.

In other major league action yesterday the Brooklyn Dodgers pounded five home runs in beating the Cincinnati Redlegs 7-5 but the Redlegs held on to first place in the National League as Pittsburgh nipped St. Louis 4-1. Baltimore edged Washington 2-1. Cleveland defeated Boston 6-3 and the New York Yankees evened matters with the Chicago White Sox 5-4. The four other clubs weren't scheduled.

Junior Gilliam led the Dodger home run barrage in Cincinnati with a pair and added a double to the 10-hit attack against Harry Perkowski. Dick Williams, Pee Wee Reese and Gilliam all homered in the sixth inning. Snider got one in the first.

A pair of doubles a walk and a sacrifice fly got a Redleg rally going in the ninth but relief ace Jim Hughes retired Jim Greengrass on a foul fly with the tying runs on base.

Bob Furkey, one of the score of Pittsburgh rookies, won his first major league start as Dick Cole singled home two runs in the top of the ninth at St. Louis. Harvey Haddix struck out 13 Pirates in suffering his third loss.

Casey Stengel, who rewrites the rules of baseball strategy almost daily, brought in left-handed Eno Slaughter to pinch hit against lefty Billy Pierce in the sixth inning in New York and the former Cardinal star delivered a single that tied the game.

Eddie Robinson, another pinch hitter, followed with another single that meant another run and Allie Reynolds saved Eddie Lopat's 150th major league triumph with three hitless innings in relief.

Cleveland warmed up for a two-game series with the Yankees by pounding four Boston pitchers for nine hits. The Indians got five of their runs in the first two innings as Willard Nixon suffered from wildness.

Bob Turley of the Orioles who was beaten by Cleveland in his last start after pitching no-hit ball into the ninth inning, was in fine form again against Washington. He struck out nine, making him the league's leading strikeout artist, and allowed only five hits.

The Sporting News predicts that a big league franchise will be shifted to Dallas within a few years and seems to feel that Los Angeles and San Francisco have lost out. Travel to Dallas, it points out, would present no great problem.

The Texas metropolis boasted a population of 434,462 in the 1950 census and is believed to be at or over the half-million mark now. Milwaukee, by comparison, had a head count of 677,292 in 1950, and the Braves expect to draw two million at the gate this season.

There is no hint of the club which might open up the Southwest to big league ball, but men in the business regard the Philadelphia Athletics as hot prospects unless their attendance improves in a hurry. Dick Burnett, the oil tycoon owner of the Dallas franchise in the Texas League, is said to have the money which would be needed to swing such a deal.

Defending Southeastern Conference Champion LSU and Florida were tied for second with 292. Then came North Texas with 293 and Wake Forest with 294.

Team champions in both the Southern Intercollegiate and SEC are determined after 36 holes. But the individual titles depend on the outcome of tomorrow's 36 holes of play, when the field of 149 will be trimmed to the low 40 and ties.

Eddie Merrins of LSU, the defending Southern Intercollegiate champion and a co-favorite with Palmer, could do no better than 72.

Darkhorse Delich scored an eagle on the par five fourth hole with 122 fine wood shots and a six-foot putt. His 69 was just two strokes off the best round he ever shot—67 on his home course in Chattanooga.

Zulueta And Rosi In TV Feature

NEW YORK (AP)—Orlando Zulueta, the Cuban lightweight who neither damages nor gets damaged takes on Paolo Rosi, the balding Italian tonight in the top 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

The fight, which will be televised over NBC and broadcast over ABC is scheduled to start at 9 p.m. (EST). Although Rosi started out as the surprising favorite, the odds settled down to pick 'em early today.

On the basis of past performances, the battle should be rated a toss-up. Zulueta, who is only 25 years old but has had 76 fights, is a light puncher and has scored just one knockout in his career. On the other hand, he never has been knocked down much less out.

Zulueta is a clever boxer and is rated No. 2 in the lightweight class. His high ranking no doubt stems from the fact that he has whipped Paddy DeMarco, the current champion in two out of three bouts. However, he has been whipped 19 times and has drawn in nine other bouts.

Hard of hearing persons often say their ability to hear is lowered when they are nervous or upset.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U) — The stock market continued its strong bullish drive ahead today into new high ground for the past 24 years.

The force of the forward movement was so great at the opening that the high speed ticker lagged behind in reporting the buying and selling on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

Key stocks, most in the class called blue chips spurred forward strongly. The movement of large blocks was frequent.

The pace slowed within the first hour of trading, however, and business proceeded on a somewhat quieter basis.

Most issues held to their gains in good fashion, but there was some evidence of profit taking into the early afternoon.

Gains ran to around 2 points as a general rule, but some issues pushed their advantage to about 3 points at times.

Business was around the fastest pace of the year. Yesterday's total volume was 2,510,000 shares, second highest this year.

Heavy gains were scored by Republic Steel, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, International Paper, Union Tank Car, Bullard, Illinois Central, and Standard Oil (N.J.).

J. I. Case, whose directors took no dividend action, was down severely after opening off 1 1/2 at 14.

Committee Reports On Shrine Ceremonial Program Are Heard

Plans for the coming Shrine Ceremonial to be held in Greenville May 25-26 are progressing nicely and in some instances committees have already completed arrangements and are ready for the gala event. Reports by committee chairmen were made at a special meeting held yesterday by Chairman L. M. Buchanan presiding.

Co-Chairman James W. Brewer reported that the program committee had completed its work and that the souvenir program, the largest ever prepared for a Sudan Shrine ceremonial, would be mailed out about the 15th of May.

The committee for the luncheon to be served Shriners, their guests and all parade participants on the 26th, reported that final arrangements had been made and contracts let for the affair.

Housing committee co-chairman, Kenneth Phillips reported that some Shriners who had requested reservations for the event had misunderstood the plan for housing the visitors at the college. He said some of them seemed to think that the dormitories were of barrack type and that many persons would occupy the same quarters. He emphasized that the dormitories at the college had private rooms with twin beds and that guests would be registered and served in the dormitories the same as if they were in hotels. He said it was necessary to require that each visitor bring his own linen as there was no place in the state where the amount of linen needed for such a big occasion could be rented.

R. W. Davenport, co-chairman of the decorating committee, reported much progress in solicitations and stated that no doubt all business houses along the route of the parade would be decorated for the occasion.

Glenn Scott reported that the transportation committee was making headway in its plans for providing necessary transportation for the parade, but stated that many more convertible cars would be needed and he urged that owners who would lend such cars for the parade contact him at once.

Parade Co-Chairman Tom Brown reported that the parade would probably be the largest ever held in this community and would include upward of 25 bands, a number of floats, cars and marching units. He said that about 20 highway patrolmen, together with police officers from surrounding cities and towns would assist the local police department in handling traffic during the parade.

Paul Scott and Leslie Garner, reporting for the jewelry committee, stated that all their plans for the ceremonial had been completed. Tige Gardner reported that all arrangements for the oriental pageant together with the two dances had been made. Jesse Laughinghouse reporting for the refreshment committee said his committee had all their plans made and ready to put into operation. Other chairmen reporting completed arrangements were Marvin K. Blount, potentate's banquet at the country club; B. B. Sugg, entertainment of special guests; George L. Smith, welcoming committee; and W. E. Boswell, lighting and sound effects.

Just as a Union Pacific freight train roared down the track, two unidentified Fremont, Neb., youths yanked him from the car, which the train demolished.

Utilities Circuit Was Briefly Out

Greenville Utilities Commission's Circuit No. 6, which serves the local television station and the town of Vanceboro plus patrons along Highways No. 17 and 43, went off last night at 8:53 p.m.

Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz said that farmers saw a large arc near Bell Fork on Highway No. 43 and then the line burned down.

Television station WNCN was off the air until 7:26 due to the power failure and it was 8:30 before power was restored over the entire area.

Circuit No. 6 leaves Greenville via Evans Street Extension, then goes on out and over to Bell Fork. From Bell Fork the circuit goes to Vanceboro down N.C. No. 43 and to Chocowinity on Highway No. 17.
