Denies Army Sought To Stop Ft. Monmouth Probe

Adams Continues On Stand

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army counsel John G. Adams insisted today the Army had no desire to stop the McCarthy subcommittee's investigation of Ft. Monmouth although he conceded it was pleased when the prospect of a suspension arose last fall.

And he denied the Army (1) ever engaged in "trading favors" for Pvt. G. David Schine in an effort to get the investigation stopped, or (2) sought to "appease" Sen. McCarthy.

Adams said any special consideration for Schine stemmed only from the McCarthy subcommittee's picturing him as essential to its work, and that any special deference for McCarthy was a matter of trying to avoid "open hostility."

Adams was back in the witness chair at the McCarthy-Army hearings for the second day—this time for cross-examination.

At the outset, he swore Secretary Stevens never instructed him to try to halt the McCarthy inquiry into alleged security risks at Ft. Monmouth and that he never attempted to stop it.

But he said, as Stevens did earlier, that they wanted the "type of hearings" ended. Stevens had characterized those hearings as "hampering" the Army on the head.

For the rest of the forenoon session, Ray H. Jenkins, special counsel to the Senate Investigations subcommittee, pressed questions which turned largely about these contentions.

Jenkins climaxed this phase of his cross-examination by asking whether Adams was saying the Army had "no desire, however slight" to stop the McCarthy investigation. Jenkins asked for a yes or no answer.

Adams hesitated. He asked that the question be read back to him by the stenographer. When it was read, he said "the answer is in the negative" and went on to make an explanatory statement as to the desire for an end to the "type of hearings."

Leading up to this point, Jenkins: 1. Recalled that Adams had testified yesterday he was disturbed when Roy Cohn, general counsel to the McCarthy subcommittee, became enraged at being barred from a secret radar laboratory at Ft. Monmouth last fall. He noted Adams had said his concern was because he felt Cohn had the power to prolong the investigation. Jenkins asked if that wasn't "an admission or confession" that Adams wanted the investigation terminated.

Adams declared it was not. He said McCarthy had volunteered previously that the subcommittee investigation was about complete; that it was preparing to turn it over to the Army.

2. Recalled that Adams had testified a Nov. 6 luncheon at the Pentagon, attended by Stevens, Adams, McCarthy, Cohn and Francis P. Carr, staff investigator for the McCarthy subcommittee, was arranged to "further pursue" McCarthy's earlier statement that the hearings might be terminated. Jenkins suggested that indicated the Army wanted the hearings to end. Adams insisted that was not a "fair assumption;" that other circumstances figured in the luncheon.

3. Jenkins asked if it wasn't "appeasement" when Adams and Stevens reversed Maj. Gen. C. E. Ryan, commander at Ft. Dix, N.J., and ordered Ryan to give a weekend pass to Schine, former McCarthy aide and son of a wealthy New York family who was drafted last fall.

Adams had testified yesterday that Ryan called him on Nov. 18 and reported the agreement to make Schine available for McCarthy subcommittee work was getting "out of hand." Ryan was quoted as saying he feared Schine would be seen off the post not on subcommittee business.

Adams objected to the word "appeasement" and insisted he and Stevens were anxious to keep relations with the McCarthy subcommittee as pleasant as possible.

4. Jenkins turned to a press release issued Nov. 12 by Stevens which said the Army knew of no "current espionage" at Ft. Monmouth.

Adams said this "upset" Cohn, with the upshot that Stevens suggested that he and his aides go to New York on Nov. 16 for a conference.

That, asked Jenkins, was "for the purpose of mollifying and placating" Sen. McCarthy?

"Yes, sir," agreed Adams.

5. Jenkins cited also a public apology by Secretary Stevens for having barred Cohn from a secret laboratory at Ft. Monmouth.

Adams objected to applying the word "appeasement" to that or other incidents but said the Army was trying to avoid the "open hostility" of McCarthy, and was trying to keep relations as pleasant as possible.

Speculators Talk Cherry Or Higgins As Hoey Successor

RALEIGH (AP)—Early Capitol Hill speculation on a successor to U.S. Sen. Clyde R. Hoey centered today on former Gov. R. Gregg Cherry of Gastonia and Carlisle Higgins of Winston-Salem.

Irving Carlyle, Winston-Salem attorney also was mentioned, and there was even some talk of a possibility that Gov. Umstead might be urged to appoint former Gov. W. Kerr Scott. The latter is a candidate for the Senate in the May 29 Democratic primary.

Cherry appointed Umstead to the U. S. Senate in 1947 to succeed Josiah W. Bailey, who died Dec. 15, 1946. Higgins, Democratic national committeeman, managed Umstead's gubernatorial campaign in 1952.

Carlyle will keynote the state Democratic convention here next Thursday.

Sen. Hoey died yesterday at his desk in his Washington office. He was the fourth North Carolina senator to die in office in recent years.

The appointment of Hoey's successor will fall upon Gov. Umstead, who surprised politicians last July when he named Alton Lennon, a comparatively unknown ex-state senator to fill the vacancy created by the death of Sen. Willis Smith.

The procedure for filling Hoey's vacancy calls for an appointment by the governor to serve until the November general election, according to Raymond Maxwell, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections.

The State Democratic and Republican executive committees will select candidates to run in the November general election to fill the two years remaining on the 6-year term to which Hoey was elected in 1950.

In addition to Hoey, Smith and Bailey, Sen. J. M. Broughton also died in office in recent years. His death came on March 6, 1949.

Broughton defeated Umstead for the Senate seat in 1948. Following Broughton's death, former Gov. Scott appointed Frank P. Graham, then president of the University of North Carolina, to fill the vacancy. Graham was defeated by Willis Smith in 1950 in one of the bitterest Senate campaigns in North Carolina's history.

Smith died in the Bethesda, Md. Naval Hospital last June 26 following a heart attack, less than a month later Umstead appointed Lennon to the post. He is a candidate to retain the seat.

Terms of the present members of the Democratic Executive Committee will expire and their successors will be chosen at the Democratic state convention next Thursday. In all probability, the committee will select as the Democratic nominee the man recommended by Gov. Umstead.

Tar Heel Senator Dies, Apparently From Stroke

Hoey Rites Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina, an "old school" Southern gentleman who spent a lifetime in newspapering, law and politics died yesterday. He was 76.

Distinguished by a courtly manner, flowing white hair and frock coat, he had served in the Senate since 1945 after a term as governor of his state. He was probably best known for his chairmanship of the subcommittee which investigated the 5 percent scandals in the Truman administration.

Hoey was the fifth senator to die in this Congress. One of the five, Sen. Willis Smith, was also a North Carolina Democrat.

The Senate lineup now stands at 47 Democrats, 47 Republicans and 1 Independent. A Democrat will doubtless be named to fill Hoey's place.

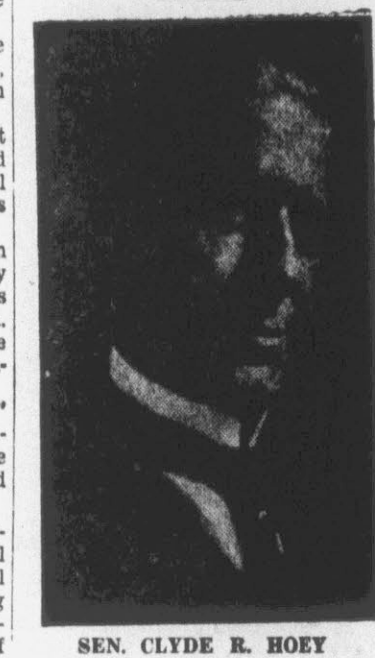

Dr. George W. Calver, physician to Congress, said Hoey apparently suffered a stroke and died in his sleep about yesterday afternoon. He was found seated at his office desk, not long after he had attended a lengthy committee session.

"He went the way he wished," said an aide, who recalled the senator saying that when he died he hoped it would come suddenly and while he was active.

William B. Umstead, North Carolina's Democratic governor, will name Hoey's successor. Unofficial speculation centered on Gregg Cherry of Gastonia, a former governor and Carlisle Higgins of Winston-Salem, a Democratic national committeeman. Umstead himself had no comment.

Tall, slightly stoop-shouldered and sharp-featured, Hoey was a picture on Capitol Hill of the legislator of bygone years. He had glowing white hair and a courtly manner. He wore a frock coat, high-topped shoes, a high collar and old-fashioned ties. He sported a fresh carnation in his lapel every day.

SEN. CLYDE R. HOEY

Born at Shelby, N.C., Dec. 11, 1877, he set out in the business world at age 13 as a printer's assistant. Four years later he bought a county paper, which he edited and published for the next 14 years.

Meanwhile, he studied law and began his way up in politics. He won election to the State House of Representatives in 1896, to the State Senate in 1903 was appointed an assistant U.S. attorney in 1913. In 1920 he served briefly in the U.S. House of Representatives. Then he returned to law practice for 16 years, served as governor from 1927 to 1931 and then came to the U.S. Senate, where he remained until his death.

He will be buried at Shelby Saturday afternoon.

The body will lie in state here today at a (Gawlers) funeral home from 11 noon EST until 8 p.m. tonight.

It will be taken to Kings Mountain, N.C. on a Southern Railway train leaving here tonight at 10:10 a.m. and thence by motor 14 miles to Shelby.

At Shelby, the body will be taken to the senator's home, 602 West Marion St., where friends may call from 12 o'clock noon Friday.

Hoey's sons, Clyde Jr. of Canton, N.C., and Charles Hoey, will accompany the body from Washington to Shelby. The senator's daughter, Mrs. Daniel Paul of Raleigh, is going to Shelby today, they said.

East-West Deadlock Over Armistice Plans

Peace Parley At Standstill

GENEVA (AP)—The Indochina peace talks, tightly deadlocked over rival East and West armistice plans, came to a virtual standstill today while delegates to the Far Eastern conference awaited the outcome of France's political crisis.

Some followers of French internal politics said it was a tossup whether Premier Joseph Laniel's government would survive a National Assembly vote of confidence scheduled for tonight on the Indochina issue.

The feeling here was that if the government fell, the Geneva parley would have to be suspended until a new cabinet was formed.

No formal meeting of the nine-delegation Indochina conference was scheduled for today but diplomats planned numerous private meetings to discuss strategy and review developments so far.

The next formal session on Indochina was tentatively set for tomorrow afternoon, unless developments force cancellation.

This afternoon delegates to the 19-nation Korean conference were scheduled to hear a policy statement from British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, the last of the big power delegates to speak on Korea.

During early stages of the Korean debate, the United States felt it known it was annoyed by the failure of its Western allies to answer sharp Communist attacks on the United States. Since then the U. N. allies have come along one by one to defend the Americans and associate themselves with U.S. policies.

The Western Powers still were having difficulties lining up South Korean President Syngman Rhee behind their efforts to present a common policy for nationwide elections under U. N. supervision. The United States, through Special Ambassador Arthur Dean, has been trying to persuade Rhee for two weeks to give up his insistence that the proposed elections must be held only in North Korea.

A dispatch from Seoul last night said Rhee had rejected the appeals.

In view of the general conviction that a Korean solution is not possible at this time, Western sources here considered Rhee's position important only from a propaganda standpoint. However, these sources said it would be better to present the fairest proposal possible, even if the Communists are certain to reject it.

The Indochina debate up to now also has given little cause for optimism.

There are three plans before the conference—from France, Viet Nam and the Vietnamese.

The French have proposed an internationally supervised armistice, with both sides withdrawing into zones set by the conference. War prisoners and civilian internees would be released, and the Vietnamese would get out of Cambodia and Laos.

The Vietnamese regime of Bao Dai has asked recognition as the only legal government for Viet Nam, free elections under U. N. supervision and international guarantee of the state of Viet Nam. Partition would not be permitted.

The rival Communist-Vietnamese also has demanded recognition as the legal regime for Viet Nam. It also wants recognition for the Communist "governments" of Laos and Cambodia, withdrawal of all foreign troops from Indochina and elections without international supervision.

The Communists have indicated they will take only the Vietnamese plan, although Red China's Chou En-lai said yesterday he was insisting only that it be accepted as a basis for discussion.

The Western Powers are primarily concerned about making sure any armistice has proper international guarantees and supervision. They feel the same way about any elections held after a truce.

The United States has charged that the Communist plan in its present form, would amount to surrender of Indochina to the Reds.

Seaway Bill Is Signed Into Law By President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower signed the St. Lawrence seaway bill today in a White House ceremony.

"Now work can begin on the great project," the President declared as he put his signature to the measure which sets in motion a plan to bring ocean trade into the heart of the American continent.

With more than a score of Congress members and Canadian Ambassador A. D. P. Henney, looking on, Eisenhower used nine pens to sign the bill.

Three of them were made from wood recovered from old Fort Detroit in Michigan, which was the last of the British-held forts in this country.

Seated at Eisenhower's right as he signed were Sens. Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Wiley (R-Wis.) On his left was Rep. Dondero (R-Mich.). All three of the Congressmen played key roles in enactment of the bill.

Eisenhower said he was very happy to sign it and that he was particularly glad the Canadian ambassador was present.

The President himself announced plans for the ceremony at his news conference yesterday. Altogether 43 members of Congress were invited.

The bitterly contested seaway legislation finally cleared Congress last Friday after a 30-year struggle.

The measure authorizes the United States to join Canada in building a waterway deep enough to let ocean ships sail from the Atlantic as far inland as Toledo, Ohio, by going up the St. Lawrence River to the Great Lakes.

Engineers figure it will take about six years to complete the project. There is talk about extending the ocean channel all the way to Duluth, Minn., at the end of Lake Superior, but this will require further congressional action.

When it was shown that he hadn't, Welch made a suggestion which may have had something to do with the ensuing calm. The Boston attorney amiably proposed: "Let's put on a kind of grin of some sort, and all smile at each other a little if we can, and go on with the next witness."

Quit Council To Retain Pension

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP)—Arthur H. Excell elected to the Mountain View City Council less than a month ago, resigned yesterday when state officials informed him the job might jeopardize his pension as retired Mountain View chief of police.

The city councilman's job pays $10 a month.

FORMALLY NOMINATED WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today formally nominated William F. Tompkins, U. S. attorney for New Jersey, to be an assistant attorney general in charge of a new division of Internal Security.

Airstrip Repairs Under Way At Dien Bien Phu

Mercy Lift Hoped Friday

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—The French flew one of Indochina's most eminent doctors to Dien Bien Phu today to arrange for speedy release of French-Union troops seriously wounded in the long defense of the fallen fortress.

French officials hoped the mass airlift of casualties from the Viet-minh-held valley 175 miles west of Hanoi would start tomorrow.

They anticipated it would bring out about 700 men—half of the 1,300 to 1,400 estimated wounded. The Communists agreed at the Geneva conference to release only casualties in the "serious" category.

Dr. Pierre Huard, 62-year-old dean of medicine at the University of Hanoi, headed the group going to Dien Bien Phu by helicopter.

The French anticipated Huard's mission would be quickly successful. French air force observers reported hundreds of coolies already were readying Dien Bien Phu's airstrip to receive the big French transports, filling in the trenches and shell holes which wrecked it during the 56 days of rebel attack.

Huard's party took off from Luang Prabang, the royal Laotian capital 115 miles southwest of Dien Bien Phu. Accompanying him were two French army medical officers, French air transport experts to survey the landing facilities, and the helicopter crew.

Doctors and nurses were mobilized in Hanoi to staff the Dakota transport planes which will bring out the wounded. Most of them were to be brought to Hanoi.

The wife of Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries, commander of the Dien Bien Phu garrison arranged to fly to Luang Prabang today in hopes of word of her husband when Huard returns. The Vietnamese radio has announced only that De Cas-tries was captured when the fortress fell; there has been no word if he was wounded.

The French announced their transports had dropped more than nine tons of ice, food, medical supplies and equipment for the wounded concentrated near the battlefield of Dien Bien Phu. The Vietnamese have marked off the entire area with red crosses and assembled the French casualties in tents there. Doctors in the fortress when it fell are attending the wounded.

The trip to Dien Bien Phu was Huard's second such mercy mission to the Vietnamese.

In Indochina since 1933, he long has been prominent in Red Cross work and is widely respected by the Vietnamese. After the French defeat at Caobang in October 1950, he took a leading role in arranging for evacuation of hundreds of French held by the rebels.

Truman Says Eisenhower Administration Following 'Creeping McKinleyism' Policy

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Former President Truman accused the Eisenhower administration today of following an economic policy of "creeping McKinleyism." He suggested six steps he said would "carry us far toward full employment within a year."

In an address prepared for the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers annual convention, he said the administration seems to be "merely" hoping and praying that things will not get still worse, and recommended:

1. Increasing federal spending by about three billion dollars a year to strengthen defenses against aggression and to meet needs for power and resource development, public works and roads, education health and housing.

2. Raising personal income tax exemptions from the present $600 to $800, which would cut taxes about 4½ billions yearly, or combining some such increase with "equitable readjustments" in tax rates.

3. Tossing "out of the nearest window" Secretary of Agriculture Benson's plan for flexible farm price supports and substituting a program to "support true parity" of income for the farmer.

4. A "clear-cut policy" favoring a rising level of wages, including an increase in the federally required minimum wage to bring the standard "into line with present-day conditions." He said also the government should not try to "weaken collective bargaining by repressive labor legislation."

5. Expansion of unemployment insurance to provide broader coverage, payments for longer period, and larger benefits. He said the administration "program consists merely of exhorting the states to do what everybody knows they will not do without federal action."

6. A vastly expanded housing program, including federal leadership to double the annual rate of home building as rapidly as possible. He said the administration goal of a million houses a year is about equal to the number of houses built in 1925.

"The Republican orators told us in 1952," the former President said, "that they were going to cure the world situation, and achieve peace, and slash defense. They said they were going to give us real peacetime prosperity."

"Well, they haven't been very successful at it."

"The world situation is just as critical and dangerous as it ever was, if not more so. Obviously a change of administration here does not change the problems of Asia and Europe or the minds of men in the Kremlin."

"And instead of having peacetime prosperity, the Republicans have given us a recession."

Truman said this "economic recession" is still here, has already been too big and lasted too long, and that it is time to do something about it, lest this country runs into a "real depression."

"Between now and the end of 1954," he said, "we can elect a new kind of Congress. Between now and the end of 1956 the President can get some new advisers. And toward the end of 1956—well, I won't talk about that just yet."

LITTLE LEAGUE BASEBALL SEASON opened in Greenville yesterday with a good-sized crowd and ideal weather marking the occasion. Preliminary ceremonies included a visit by "Cactus Jim," shown here surrounded by Little League baseball players prior to the opening game. "Cactus" threw out the first ball which got play started in the game between the Elks and the Moose. (Reflector Staff Photo by Bob Boyette)

Joint Hostesses Entertain Round Table At Dinner Meeting

Mrs. E. E. Rawl and Mrs. R. R. Taylor were gracious hostesses to the members of the Round Table and Mrs. Plato Evans at the home of Mrs. Rawl on Tuesday evening. For this last meeting until October every member was present. Lovely spring flowers used throughout the home added to this festive spring special.

A delicious three course dinner was served by the hostesses assisted by Mrs. H. H. Duncan and Mrs. Charles O. H. Horne.

At the conclusion of the dinner, Mrs. Rawl introduced Mrs. Plato Evans who gave an interesting discussion on Bath, North Carolina. Among the many interesting topics Mrs. Evans mentioned were the coming of the early English settlers, descriptions of their life, customs, dress and amusements; also the old St. James Episcopal Church with mention of the bell, the old Bible, candlesticks, communion service and old brick over the doorway; also the establishment of a library as early as the beginning of the 17th century.

The daring exploits of Blackbeard and legends of the Carolina coast gave added color to the history of Beaufort County and visits to old historic landmarks tend to make the visitor relive early Colonial days here.

Mrs. Evans pictured Bath today: the fishing and duck hunting in winter, the lovely scenery and restful vacation advantages in summer, the good schools, the churches, industry and agriculture.

In closing she said, "The people of North Carolina as a whole have been prone to regard their past as not very exciting. Yet one cannot delve into histories, preserved personal documents or even old landmarks themselves without reliving some of the glory which was Bath's and the grandeur of its settlers."

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Rawl presented travel gifts to those whose birthdays were nearest the dates she mentioned.

Mrs. Barrett Reviews Book Before Club

On Tuesday, May 11, Mrs. R. C. Stokes Jr. and Miss Mary Harding very graciously entertained the End of the Century Club at the home of Mrs. Stokes for the final meeting of the year. Lovely arrangements of roses decorated the living room, sun room and dining room, where tables were set for luncheon. Mrs. Jim Elison and Mrs. Wilson Clark of Washington, Mrs. David Evans and Mrs. Agnes Barrett were guests.

Program books for the coming year were distributed. Miss Harding presented Mrs. Agnes Barrett, who in a most delightful manner reviewed the book "Red Carpet for Mamie" by Ruth Montgomery which is the story of the life of our first lady. The book is very warmhearted and gay, especially when dealing with the happy home life of Mamie as a young girl.

In conclusion Mrs. Barrett read a letter which she had received from Mrs. Eisenhower sending greetings to the End of the Century Club, and expressing her interest in the fact that the club was organized in 1899.

In adjourning the meeting, the president, Mrs. Spilman, wished the members a very happy summer vacation.

Eight Students Are Named To Education Fraternity; Initiated

In recognition of their excellence in scholarship, eight East Carolina College students have been chosen as new members of the campus chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary education fraternity.

An initiation ceremony for those receiving the honor was held Tuesday night of this week in the Woman's Club of Greenville, and was followed by a formal dinner. Twenty-four members of the fraternity among students and faculty members at the college were present.

New members of Kappa Delta Pi are Phyllis Carpenter and Mildred Rouse Suits, Kingston; Harriet Ward, Williamson; Gayle Flanagan, Farmville; Isaac P. Davis, Winton; Mrs. William Young, Greenville; John B. Funderburg, Jr., Wilmington; and Barbara Sue Etheridge, Nashville.

Janice Penny of Raleigh was elected Tuesday as president of the fraternity for the 1954-1955 term.

Pocahontas Hold Regular Meeting

Thirty-two members and one visitor, Great Pocahontas of North Carolina, Marian Vincent, met at the Red Men's Hall Tuesday night for their semi-monthly meeting. The meeting was called to order by Pocahontas Thelma Vincent, with only four officers absent.

It was reported that Vannie Hodges was in the hospital and a get well card was signed by all members to be sent her. A get well card was also signed for Ruby and Alton Hodges.

One paleface was adopted by the Council, Myrtle Ruth Mills. One proposition for membership was presented.

Under new business, the Keeper of Records, Betty Nobles, read a letter from Marie Wallace congratulating some of the councils for bringing in so many new members. Some individuals had brought in as many as 25. It was stated that a badge was being presented to each member who brought in as many as five members. A thank you note was read from the family of W. N. Cox.

All members were reminded that the Great Council of North Carolina will be held in Rocky Mount this year at Ricks Hotel, beginning at 2 o'clock Sunday, May 16. All members are urged to attend. Mrs. Geneva Webb and Emma Phillips will represent the Council at this meeting. Memorial services will be Sunday night and are open to the public.

Agnes Landing and Lucy McGowan contributed to the birthday fund and "Happy Birthday" was sung to them. Louise Elks won the door prize. Callie Rue Williams gave a report the way they had been making money for the Great Council of the United States by selling fountain pens and a few other items.

After the meeting adjourned, Lissie Harris and Louise Elks served delicious punch, potato chips and crackers. A nice social get together was enjoyed by all.

As a token of their appreciation of the work done with the pupils here the parents presented Miss Beatty a gift of silver. The presentation was made by Mayor Sam Nelson.

Giving Recital Here Sunday

Ellen Sprinkle of Asheville, senior at East Carolina College, will be presented by the college music department Sunday afternoon, May 16, in a recital of works for the organ. The program is scheduled for 4 p. m. in the Austin auditorium and will be open to the public.

Miss Sprinkle, who will complete her work at East Carolina in May, was chosen by the music department faculty to appear in an "honors" graduating recital. She is a pupil of George E. Perry of East Carolina.

Selections on Sunday's program will include Bach's "In Three Is Joy," Alain's "Litanies," Vierne's "Carillon de Westminster," and Lamar Stringfield's "Prayer," from "Shout Freedom."

The East Carolina student organist is a member of the college band and the East Carolina Orchestra, was a soloist in the presentation of the "Messiah" last winter by the college music department, and acted this year as accompanist for the College Choir and the Student Government Association production of the "Student Prince."

MISS ELLEN SPRINKLE

She has served as organist in Greenville churches and for the drama "Thunderland" portraying the life of Daniel Boone.

She is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Sprinkle, Asheville. Mr. Sprinkle is pastor of the New Bridge Baptist Church there and has held pastorates also in Morehead City, Morganton, and Canton.

STOP HORNWORMS WITH RHOETHANE TDE

as these successful tobacco growers are doing each year

"I have been growing tobacco for 40 years, and have never used a better insecticide than Rhoethane for hornworm control."

T. Bradley Anderson
Rt. #1
Conway, S. C.

"I have used Rhoethane TDE in the past two years to kill hornworms with excellent results. When hornworms appear in '54, I'll be ready with Rhoethane."

H. G. Ward
Rose Hill, N. C.

RHOETHANE is the original TDE insecticide that kills hornworms with safety to the user, crop handler and smoker. RHOETHANE has proved its value as a hornworm killer during several seasons of heavy, widely-spread infestations. RHOETHANE also controls budworms and flea beetles.

You'll find RHOETHANE sprays easy to mix and apply. You can choose between RHOETHANE Wettable Powder or 25% Emulsifiable Liquid. RHOETHANE dusts are also sold by leading dust formulators. Be ready for hornworms with genuine RHOETHANE dusts or sprays. Tell your dealer now to be sure to order a stock of RHOETHANE insecticides for your needs.

Belt Of Showers Is Across South

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
More rain fell in the already wet parts of the South today but skies cleared in nearly all other sections of the country and a little warmer weather appeared on the way.
The showery belt extended from portions of Mississippi, Tennessee and southern Kentucky southeastward across most of Florida. Although there was only a trace of rain in Miami during the night the total for the last 24 hours was more than 2 1/2 inches. The heaviest falls were due to a storm moving eastward along the immediate Gulf Coast.
The only other wet spots early today were along the eastern slopes of the Rockies and in western North Dakota. There were some fog and clouds along the Pacific Coast but other sections of the country reported fair to partly cloudy skies.
Coolest area was the northeastern quarter of the country with temperatures generally in the 40s and ranging to near freezing in northern Maine. Readings were near or a little above normal in most other areas.

You Have To Love Them, Elephant Trainer Says

SWEET NOTHING—George Lewis talks to Judy, Oklahoma City's elephant. "You've got to love them," says George.

AP Newsfeatures

OKLAHOMA CITY — Lanky George Lewis loves elephants although they have almost been the death of him.

Since 1927, Lewis has been an elephant handler for circuses and zoos and he wouldn't trade his job for any in the world.
He has had several close calls with death. In 1937, when he was elephant handler at Chicago's Brookfield Zoo, Ziegfeld, the zoo's meanest elephant once owned by Showman Flo Ziegfeld, went on a rampage. Lewis doesn't know how he lived to tell about it.
Ziegfeld was pretty mean when the showman sold him to the zoo but he became meaner when the zoo set him up in housekeeping with a mate.

"They all go bad during that stage," Lewis says. "Some tame down later on and some don't."
"Anyway, Ziegfeld curled back his trunk and caught me right in the middle. The blow knocked me 50 feet and before I could get up he was right on top of me."
"He tried to gore me. I must have moved just right because, as I turned over on my side, the tusks went past me and buried in the ground. Finally, he raised up and I caught hold of one of his ears and rode right up with him. I started to gouge my hand into his eye, but noticed he stood there and he was stunned. I guess he couldn't figure out why he hadn't killed me."

Lewis says even before his nerves settled down he went back into the yard and led the big animal around without any trouble. Ziegfeld is still alive and considered the biggest in the United States.
Most elephants are easy to train. Lewis believes, but there's got to be a "certain feeling between you and the animal. You've got to love them and they'll love you."

Lewis says that many of the common beliefs about elephants' habits are nonsense. The theory that elephants are afraid of mice is just supposition. Lewis explained that any small animal that moves quickly will excite an elephant. A cat or a dog might cause them to stampede.

And what about memory?
Lewis says if an elephant gets to know a person pretty well he'll remember him for life. However, if it's a casual meeting then he'll forget about him in short time.
And does tobacco make an elephant sick?

Lewis says on the contrary most elephants like tobacco. He said the myth that tobacco makes them sick got started in the 1800s. A circus elephant ran wild and killed a spectator. When the police arrived, a trainer, trying to save the circus

State Treasurer Campaign Is Enlivened By Josh James' Blast

RALEIGH (AP) — There was enlivened action in the Democratic campaign for state treasurer yesterday as candidate Joshua James leveled a blast at his opponent, State Treasurer Edwin Gill.

In a prepared statement, James accused Gill of needlessly lowering the interest rate the banks pay on state funds. The lowered rate, James declared, had cost the state approximately $2,500 a day.

Gill retorted that James "again attempts to distort facts" and his statement "is unworthy of a reply."
Several days ago James requested in a letter that Gill furnish him with a report on bank deposits. In his reply, Gill advised him the information could have been secured from the bulletin board in the lobby of his office. He added that he suspected James "no doubt" had "some political purpose in mind."

James said yesterday that "when a simple request brings forth a cry against imagined ignorance and a charge of false accusation, I begin to wonder what's going on. Perhaps an analysis of the figures submitted gives some indication."
Gill had written James that as of April 30 this year the state had $34,417,097.69 available for operating expenses the bulk of which was deposited in four banks—Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., Raleigh, $18,330,311.36; First Citizens Bank & Trust Co., Raleigh, $6,251,427.24; Security National Bank, Raleigh, $2,207,367.51; and American Trust Co., Charlotte, $2,048,806.17.

Gill said this amount was in the banks to "insure that we had cash to pay checks issued by the state." He added that in the first 10 days of last month checks drawn on the State Treasury amounted to $23,117,134.19.

James said, "A non-interest-bearing balance of some $28 million dollars more than half of all such money belonging to the state, is deposited with only four banks. Of these, one bank alone has held and continues to hold about three times as much as any other bank in the state, but that same bank carried not one dollar of interest-bearing funds."

James' statement added, "On June 20, 1953, the banks were carrying interest-free demand deposits of $34,855,983.42 and interest bearing certificates of deposit amounting to $52,870,286.01. On April 30 of this year when Mr. Gill had been in office 10 months, the interest-free deposits had jumped something over six and a quarter million dollars, to $41,320,023.99. "But in the meantime Mr. Gill had twice reduced the rate of interest being paid the state by the banks. On June 20, 1953, the rate was 2 per cent. In April 30, 1954, the rate was 1 1/2 per cent. Mr. Gill said the total interest bearing deposits of the state amounted to $13,509,006.81. On this basis the loss to the state from the lowered rate amounts to $877,846.04 annually or approximately $2,500 a day."

Collapse Barely Caused A Ripple

WASHINGTON (AP)—The collapse of a woman spectator caused scarcely a ripple of confusion yesterday at the McCarthy-Army hearings.

The office of Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol physician, said the woman is Mrs. E. D. Seaman of Washington, and that her condition did not appear serious. The testimony of John G. Adams, Army counselor, continued as Mrs. Seaman was wheeled out on a stretcher. She was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Good Time To Study Advisory Functions

It seems to The Reflector Greenville's city council should take time out in its whirl of affairs of public business to give critical consideration to the several auxiliary boards which are connected with the city operations.

Just last week the council gave consideration to the possibility of appointing a new zoning board for the city or giving zoning power to the present Planning Board. No action was taken on the matter because the council members felt some time should be taken in considering the matter.

While that particular matter is being considered, it seems to us that the entire matter of auxiliary boards should be reviewed with an eye to their functions and their contribution to more efficiently and more effectively executing the city's business.

Certainly this proposal is not meant as a

New Agency Has Promise Of Being Big Asset

The new division in the Justice Department created for the purpose of prosecuting cases against spies and subversives should be an asset to the federal law enforcement program if it sticks to its work.

As we understand it, this new branch of the Justice department is to be a prosecuting division only. It is not to become involved in investigation work, which, as in the past, is to be left to the tried and proven Federal Bureau of Investigation.

There is no reason this new division of the Justice Department should not expedite the prosecution of cases of treason, espionage and other subversive activities in this nation. The only thing, as we see it, which could stand in the way of its doing a good job, would be the lack of capable leadership, or getting mixed up in politics and becoming a political football as other government agencies have become.

As all other new divisions of the federal government, this one will cost the taxpayers money. If it does the job it is supposed to do it will be money well spent. Yet it should not be allowed to mushroom and become more and more expensive to taxpayers as the years go on.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
DIVINE PERFECTION

There were many things about our Lord which made him unique, but nothing so much as his perfection.

It has been the belief of the Christian Church through the ages that Jesus was perfect and that he was the only perfect Being that ever walked the earth. He was tempted on all points like as we are, yet without sin. Someone has called this "the strangeness of perfection." It was indeed the strangest thing that ever appeared upon the earth.

How necessary it is that the Lord of Life should be perfect! If he had been otherwise, he would not have been a continuously fit example for the whole human race to follow. Greatest of all, however, since he was the sin-bearer—it was necessary that the Saviour of the world be himself without sin. If he had any of his own sin to carry, he could have carried none of ours. He felt all our sins knocking at the door of his flesh and mind. He was not ignorant of the nature of sin, but he kept the door barred against its intrusion. When he came to the cross, he was able to ask the Father to put the sins of the world upon his heart and mind and let him take them down with him into the grave. Only Jesus could do that. "The first Adam (and we are his descendants) became a living soul. The last Adam (Jesus Christ) became a life-giving spirit."

McCarthy Stock Still Falling

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Senator "Joe" McCarthy will not be scheduled as an official Republican campaigner in next fall's Congressional election on a direct order from Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall from the White House. Party strategists believe his star is in descent as a result of his exposure to television in the Stevens-Schine controversy.

Individual GOP candidates, however, will undoubtedly ask for the Wisconsin man's services. If he will, as a matter of courtesy, forward them to McCarthy, but he will appear as simply a member of the Senate, not as an approved Administration spokesman.

The hour for reconciliation between him and the man who headed the nation's greatest military adventure has now passed.

McCarthy's ANTAGONISTIC METHODS—The televised hearings of the Buck Private Schine drama, who allegedly ate steaks at the Stork Club when he should have been doing kitchen police at Port Dix, has been McCarthy's undoing. In the opinion of the Republican high command, they now have no fear of his political potential, despite a few contrary signs and regional misgivings.

McCarthy's manner and methods have, in fact, antagonized even his original sympathizers on the investigating committee, especially Chairman Earl E. Mundt of South Dakota, Senator Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois and Senator Henry C. Dworshak of Idaho. The Democratic members—Senators Stuart Symington of Missouri, John L. McClellan of Arkansas and Henry M. Jackson of Washington—previously quit the hearings out of disgust with McCarthy's behavior and headline proclivities.

Symington's attitude is significant because, as a prospective candidate for the 1956 Democratic Presidential nomination, he cannot afford to be wrong on this issue.

Messy Road Repairs

Somebody Told Me He's Been Telling Everybody

Here's a switch on the fish story: Last night Roy Phelps of Phelps Radio Service showed me the fish, drove away, and later in the evening gave me the fish story that I found hard to believe.

He came by the house with wide eyes and said, "Come out to the car. Got something to show you." Since both of us are amateur radio operators, I naturally figured it was radio equipment.

When he started opening a cardboard box I felt sure it was radio gear. At this point Roy's chest swelled, for he pulled out of the box a bass which conservatively weighed two and a half pounds. From our house he proceeded to take a trip around Greenville showing off the fish to anybody who would look.

But that wasn't enough. He then went to the shop, warmed up his radio transmitter, and started telling every amateur he could find on the air about his catch. When I came home and cranked mine up I heard him telling somebody in Tennessee about it.

So I tuned up on his frequency and when he finished with the Tennessee station I gave him a call. "What you trying to do?" I asked him. "Tell the whole world about that fish?" Never have I seen enthusiasm last so long. Not only did he admit trying to tell the world about it, but he told me about the experience much more in detail than he had earlier in person. The more I tried to compare my meager fishing accomplishments the more Roy talked about the bass.

Here's where the switch in the fish story came: "I sat there for 20 minutes," he said, "and looked that fish square in the face, waiting for him to take my minnow. After I decided that he wasn't going to take it, I changed minnows. Put on one with more wiggle in him. Even then, it was some time before the fish bit."

Since Roy is generally recognized as an honest man I hated to doubt him. But can you picture yourself sitting there watching a two and one-half pound bass for 20 minutes? The fish was caught in a pond, but even at that it's hard to visualize the thrill of watching the fish for 20 minutes.

Roy says he has two witnesses to this feat. But please don't make the mistake of asking him about it. Even though he's already tried to tell the world, he will still wear your ears out, too. And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

JUSTICE BY LOT
(Washington Daily News)

A Recorder's court judge in North Carolina has seen fit to determine the innocence or guilt of a defendant by the flip of a coin.

It so happened that the defendant was freed when the coin was flipped since he called "heads" and it came up "heads."

That method of meting out justice certainly is contrary to the ordinary concepts of justice as handed down to us through the years. The very heart of justice is wounded under such circumstances.

Since this nation became the United States of America, one of the most closely guarded rights of the defendant has been that he is innocent until proved to be guilty. If doubt prevailed, then the defendant is to be given the benefit of that doubt.

If there was doubt in the mind of the judge who caused the coin to be flipped, then it would have been much better and the justice would have been much brighter had he simply freed the defendant instead of making mockery of justice by leaving it to chance.

Suppose the coin should have been "tails" after the flip? Would that have been justice? Would the defendant have been given the benefit of the doubt? Is he less guilty or less innocent because he happened to be lucky at calling the coin?

Of course he is either guilty or innocent. By the queer arrangement of flipping a coin, today he is not guilty. So it is not the whether the man is guilty or innocent which concerns us so much. Rather it is the method by which his innocence was established.

It was only a traffic violation. The punishment would have been light. Yet no man wants to be found guilty of breaking the law, regardless of how insignificant it might be. But to let the flip of a coin determine the status of a defendant's guilt or innocence is an act which tends to break down our system of justice.

It stands to reason that no judge would have used a coin in a serious case. But even then we see little of a mitigating circumstance in this case. It is not how big is the case, but rather how justice is arrived at.

We prefer to think that we have justice under laws and not under men. If men can use the laws in any manner they see fit, then the entire judicial process are broken down.

This case should serve as a warning to other lesser judges. If there is doubt, it should be resolved in favor of the defendant. If there is no doubt, then the defendant should be found guilty. But under no circumstances that we can think of should his freedom or his guilt rest solely on the flip of a coin or by any other method of chance.

Primary Day Vote Estimates Fluctuate From Day To Day

By LYNN NISBET

VOTES — Estimates on the probable number of votes to be cast in the May 29 Democratic primary vary widely and fluctuate from day to day almost like stock market reports. The range is from a minimum of 475,000 to a maximum of 750,000. A month ago, when it seemed certain that an unusual number of hotly contested local races were in the offing and real scrap for the U.S. Senate was expected, some predictions were as high as three quarters of a million. Two weeks later, when some of the local contests failed to develop heat and the Senate race had gathered no speed, top estimates ranged around 600,000 with about 500,000 the average forecast. Now the sights are being raised again, but not back to the 750,000 bracket.

Reports from over the State show a spotted picture. One factor in the forecast is the interest shown in registration. Generally it has been very light. Unless more interest is shown this week (the books close at sundown Saturday) there will be fewer "new" voters than had been expected in the State as a whole.

DIVERSITY — Another factor is the diversity of district and county offices which are claiming priority. There appears to be no real contest in any congressional district. Incumbents L.H. Fountain in the second, Thurmond Chatham in the fifth, Carl Durham in the sixth, Ethel Carley in the seventh and Charles B. Deane in the eighth apparently are sure of re-nomination. In the 10th, now represented by Republican Jonas, heavy odds favor Chesley Sedberry to win over Marvin Ritch, for a place on Democratic ticket in November. All other incumbents are unopposed in the primary.

Some expected State senatorial and solicitor contests also just petered out by reason of withdrawal of candidates or such definite trends in one direction as to make it a no contest race. Furthermore, there are some counties with multiple sheriff-candidate races, or a lot of candidates for county commissioners, in which there is no actual race or doubt about results.

WEATHER — With the obvious lack of interest in statewide races, and the very spotted and diversified interest in local contests, most observers agree that the weather will have tremendous influence on the number of votes cast in the primary—and quite likely considerable effect on which candidate will get the majority of the votes cast.

The fact is that weather conditions had a lot to do with legislative action setting the primary on the last Saturday in May. Primaries used to be held in August, the vacation month, when lots of people were away from home. The date was moved to the first Saturday in June. That hit the busiest week in the year for majority of the farmers, and also made the necessary—often fall on the Fourth of July holiday period. So the legislators some years ago moved the first primary back to the last Saturday in May.

Weather still has a lot to do with the primary, because the last of May is a busy time on the farm, a relatively slack time for business in town and city stores and offices. Extended seasons at beach resorts attract people for weekend vacations, plus the lure of golf courses and drives through the country as Spring moves into Summer. A bright and sunny May 29 will mean a proportionately lighter non-farm vote. It will mean a proportionately heavier farm vote, unless the weather has been bad for farm work for a few days ahead of that date. If it has been so that farmers have not been able to work in the fields during the early part of the week and must "make hay while the sun shines" on Saturday many of them will figure it more important to work than to vote. So, contrary to what has been popular belief, a reasonably "bad weather day" may mean a larger vote than a perfect late May day will bring out.

WHO PROFITS? — The next question is: Which candidates will benefit from a big vote, and which will be disadvantaged by a light vote? There is not enough information at hand to evaluate advantages for local and district candidates. In the senatorial race a big vote will be to the advantage of Senator Lennan. That is somewhat paradoxical, because usually the incumbent official profits by a small turnout at the polls. That is because usually the incumbent starts with a larger dependable nucleus, and the challenger has to get "his" out of the rank and file. This time Challenger Scott had a lot more to start with than did incumbent Lennan. It is assumed that the starting support stands pat; so every added vote gives the low starting man the advantage. The bigger the vote this time, the better chance for Lennan to win.

A total vote of 475,000 or less will mean almost certain nomination of Scott. A total of 650,000 or more will mean almost certain victory for Lennan. Anything between these limits means the result cannot be determined until the votes are counted, with odds favoring one or the other in direct proportion to the size of the total vote.

It would seem from that conclusion that all the impersonal and non-partisan agencies which are urging every voter to exercise the privilege and discharge the duty of voting are indirectly working to the advantage of Lennan. How effective their efforts will be will not be known until after May 29.

How To Hike Sales

By ELMER ROESSNER

Thirteen ways in which salesmen can increase sales were described by Dr. Charles L. Lapp, professor of marketing, Washington University, and sales management consultant, in an address at a recent convention of salesmen. Dr. Lapp's suggestions are:

1. Be a believer. Believe selling is a way of life, not a drain on the productive work of others.
2. Know your products. Learn at least five major selling points for each product.
3. Keep yourself in good physical condition. Selling requires physical energy.
4. Watch your personal appearance.
5. Make what you say believable. Even the truth, if unbelievable, can lose a buyer's confidence.
6. Plan your work, so save time and make the maximum calls.
7. Improve your selling techniques. Organize presentations and strive constantly to improve them.
8. Reconstruct each sales interview to determine what you did best and what you did wrong.
9. Be optimistic, encouraging the buyer to be optimistic, too.
10. Be of assistance to buyers. Pass on news of other's successes when a complaint arises, handle it promptly.
11. Co-operate with all departments in a buyer's company.
12. Set up a self-improvement program. One way: tape-record your sales talk for self-criticism.
13. Learn through the experience of others.

Incidentally, many associations appear to be aware of the present importance of improving salesmanship. Dr. Lapp, author of "Personal Supervision of Outside Salesmen," has been invited to address conventions in a score of different fields in recent weeks.

THREE MAGAZINES COMING ON AUTOMATIC CONTROLS

Businessmen must have a greatly increasing interest in automatic controls—or some publishers are going to lose money.

Three new magazines are about to blossom out in the field. They are: Automatic Control, to be launched by Reinhold Publishing Co., Control Engineering, about to burst forth from the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. and Automation, being readied by Penton Publishing Co.

However, it is not impossible that all three magazines—and perhaps even newer ones—will succeed. Industry is currently spending billions of dollars to increase automatic process; expenditures for this kind of capital goods are now probably larger than they ever have been. And each increase in wage rates makes automation a better investment. This is true if automatic processes increase production with the same manpower, and even if they do not eliminate jobs.

UPTURN COMING, GOVERNMENT LEADERS TELL AUTO MEN

Government leaders are now genuinely optimistic about 1954 business prospects, says "Progress," a new publication of the National Automobile Dealers Association. It quotes Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, Federal Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin, Jr., Senator Arthur V. Watkins (R., Utah) and Representative Richard M. Simpson (R., Pa.) in optimistic forecasts.

The Field Of Food Engineering

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—How can you get bananas to stay ripe longer by making them breathe less? How tough should a jelly bean be?

What is the correct wall thickness of a piece of macaroni? How can you tell whether canned peas are young, middle-aged or elderly?

These problems would baffle the best of housewives, but a man-one man anywhere finds them quite simple. He is George Garnatz, a pioneer in the rapidly expanding field of food engineering.

"I've been stuck with food problems for 32 years," said Garnatz, "every since I wrote a graduate thesis on the soda cracker when I was studying to be a chemical engineer. Nobody before had ever written a thesis about soda crackers. Chemical engineers then didn't pay much attention to the study of food processes."

Today, as director of the Kroger Food Foundation in Cincinnati, Garnatz and a staff of 25 work in a laboratory full of weird machines developed to see that mama gets what she pays for at the grocery store.

"Our devices test food products mechanically and objectively," said Garnatz. "They take the element of human opinion out of it, so we can get down to the real facts about food."

Last year we made more than 197,000 scientific inspections of 1,000 food items. Only a fraction of one per cent had to be rejected because the manufacturers had misrepresented them or they weren't up to government grade."

With a simple micrometer Garnatz can measure a piece of macaroni to be sure that it has the proper wall thickness.

"A quick-cooking macaroni should be about .261,000th of an inch thick," he said. "Slow cooking macaroni can be up to .4100th of an inch. We can allow up to .51,000th of an inch variation and still guarantee uniform cooking quality."

How do you tell young peas from old peas? Simple. By the difference between sinkers and floaters.

"As peas get older they get more dense, because they are converting their sugar to starch," explained Garnatz. "In a can of top grade fancy peas not more than 2 per cent of them should sink more than 2 inches in a 13 per cent salt solution in 10 seconds."

He has an ingenious device which automatically can put a can of peas to this test and separate the tender young floaters from the tired old sinkers.

Other gadgets in his laboratory look as if they had been invented by Rube Goldberg. The fluorometer lights up the vitamins in food and shows if they are present in the right amount. The consistometer measures the density of such products as creamed corn, apple sauce and cake batter. The crust pressure tester squeezes bread and checks its freshness and resistance to staling.

There is also a "cookie torturer" called a shortometer. The cookie or soda cracker is placed across two parallel bars. A third metal arm then swings down and measures how much force is required to crumble it.

"A nice, flaky soda cracker ought to break under 2 to 2½ pounds of pressure," said Garnatz, learnedly. "If it has too much moisture content or is made with too little shortening, it may take more than 3 pounds to snap it. Shows it's too tough."

With a sharp-edged shearer he can also cut through and test beef or jelly beans. A jelly bean that can't stand up to 7 pounds pressure is so soft to keep its shape; one that can take more than 11 pounds is too tough for the juvenile trade.

Once while experimenting with bananas a laboratory assistant saw a can of floor wax nearby and wondered aloud what would happen if they coated a banana with it.

"Let's try it and see," said Garnatz. They found the waxed banana stayed ripe twice as long as untreated bananas.

"Naturally we couldn't sell food with floor wax on it," Garnatz said. "But we have now developed a harmless odorless wax, and you'll see waxed ripe bananas on the market before the end of the year."

Buffet Dinner Is Given For Bridal Couple-Elect

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Ormond and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Harrington entertained at a buffet dinner on Tuesday evening at the Harrington home on East Fifth St. as a compliment to Miss Elizabeth Kittrell and Knott Proctor Jr., whose marriage will take place in June.

The table in the dining room at which Mrs. John Fritchman of Tampa, Fla. and Mrs. Tom Grier of Spartanburg, S. C. presided was spread with a pink damask cloth and centered with a silver epergne holding nosegays of delicate pink rose buds.

Attractive arrangements of spring flowers were used in decorations throughout the home.

Miss Kittrell was presented a corsage and Mr. Proctor a boutonniere.

Red Oak Club Gives To Building Fund

Red Oak Club met at the Community Building Wednesday for their May meeting with Mrs. Ada Evans, Mrs. H. R. Allen and Mrs. Amos Evans as hostesses. Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Sr. presided.

Mrs. B. L. Tyson gave a most inspiring devotional on "Thinking Makes It So" followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The roll was called by Mrs. Amos Evans, secretary, with 16 members present. The minutes were read, corrected and approved.

Old and new business was dispensed with. It was voted that Red Oak Club entertain the Educational Class of East Carolina at a dinner party on Thursday, May 13. There were seven entries in the Fashion Review which was held in the Woman's Club on Saturday, May 8.

The following women entered garments in the Review: Mrs. Clarissa May, Mrs. Hazel G. Tripp, Mrs. Ella May and Mrs. Nina Tripp. Mrs. Fenner Allen gave a report on one of Fred Waring's selections. The club voted to give $100 on the club building fund.

Mrs. Sue May, Agent, gave a demonstration on casseroles, stressing the need of the green and yellow vegetables in our daily diet.

It was announced that Mr. Harold Tyer, minister of Red Oak Church, would have a special sermon on the following Sunday, having as his theme "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World." Special flowers will be placed in the Sanctuary for club members who are ill. The hostesses served assorted cookies, sandwiches, nuts and drinks.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. Wm. Freeman

FARMVILLE — Mrs. Alice Moyer Freeman, 67, widow of William Luther Freeman of Farmville, died at her home here Thursday morning at 7:15 after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at the home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Key Taylor, Methodist minister of South Mills and Rev. Tommy Tyson of Goldsboro will officiate.

Burial will be in Hollywood Cemetery in Farmville. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Ferrell Morgan of Route 1, Apex, and Mrs. Clifton Ellis of Farmville; three sisters, Miss Bessie Moyer and Mrs. T. G. Mewborn of LaGrange, and Mrs. Lucy Brown of Dover; two brothers, Elbert Moyer and W. D. Moyer of LaGrange, and seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Red Banks H.D. Club Equips New Kitchen

Twenty members were present at the Red Banks H.D. Club meeting Tuesday, May 4. The meeting was held in the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hardee Sr. The home was beautifully decorated with several unusual arrangements of plants growing in cypress wood.

The president, Mrs. Herman Sutton, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Hugh Hardee Sr. gave a garden report and Mrs. Hugh Hardee Jr. told how to get the most from expensive coffee.

Mrs. Glenn Hardee gave points on freezing cakes and pies and the size and shape to save space in the home freezer.

Mrs. Martha Forrest told how to fertilize and care for azaleas and other plants.

Mrs. Hardee invited the ladies to the kitchen while Mrs. Little prepared the casserole dishes of mixed vegetables. After the demonstration Mrs. S. B. Tucker said the work on the new kitchen was almost finished and that the committee has purchased two new electric stoves, a hot water heater and refrigerator. The ladies voted to have an apron and cake sale to help pay for the new electric equipment.

The hostesses, Mrs. Hugh Hardee Sr. and Mrs. Charlie Hardee, served delicious refreshments and Mrs. Little served the food she prepared. Everyone enjoyed the meeting.

Keep thyme on hand and use it in poultry stuffing, meat loaf, clam chowder and clam juice and tomato cocktail.

Award Prizes In Exhibit Contest

High school students submitting winning exhibits in the annual contest sponsored by the North Carolina Academy of Science have been announced.

The exhibits were displayed last week at the 51st annual meeting of the Academy at East Carolina College. Winners were chosen in balloting by members attending sessions on the campus here.

Prizes were awarded to the students listed below with the titles of their exhibits: Sally Ludlum, Tommy Thomas, and Alton Mills of the Lake Forest Junior High School, Wilmington, $20 for "Marino Aquarium Display;" Yvonne Westbrook of the Grantham High School, $20 for "Insect Collection;" Angus Duff of the Greenville High School, $20 for "Shaft Coal Mine Model;" Dwayne Lowder of the Albemarle High School, $20 for "Water Purification Plant;" Jane Townend of the Myers Park High School, Charlotte, $25 for "Dyes from Nature;" and Barbara Jennette of the Grantham High School, Goldsboro, $15 for "Analysis of Nuts" from Nutgrass.

The prizes were offered by the Carolina Biological Supply Company, the North Carolina Academy of Science, and Cardinal Products, Inc.

Unperturbed By Incurable Cancer

OMAHA — When the Rev. Daniel J. Lord S. J., of St. Louis was told he had incurable cancer of the lungs, it didn't affect his way of life in the least.

Here for a religious forum, he said, "I'm happy about having a little warning. God was very good to let me know. It makes life more beautiful and it takes the edge off death."

Father Lord a lecturer, author and youth leader, when asked if the cancer warning had affected his way of life, replied, "not in the least. I keep busy with my work. And who knows? I may die by tripping over a rug."

Mrs. Evans Hostess To Inter Se Club

Mrs. Plato Evans was gracious hostess to the members of the Inter Se Club at the Woman's Club on May 11.

The spacious club rooms were lovely with a profusion of roses and spring flowers.

A review of the social history of the White House; its occupants and its festivities was given by Mrs. Sam Northrop.

A delicious salad course with cheese biscuits and coffee was served by the hostess.

New Jet Fighter Photo Released

FARMINGDALE, N. Y. (AP)—Republic Aviation and the Air Force have released pictures of the new YF84J jet fighter, capable of carrying the atom bomb.

The pictures show the craft with swept-back wings in flight while making first tests at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. The date of the flight was not given.

The "J" model still is considered an experimental plane. It is the latest in the Thunderjet and Thunderstreak family of atomic fighter-bombers, thousands of which have been built by Republic for the U. S. Air Force and NATO nations.

Grifton Pastor To Give Sermon

GRIFTON—Rev. Horace Quigley, pastor of the Grifton Christian Church, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon next Sunday night, May 16, at 8 o'clock, in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Paul Braxton, Peggy Buck, Dawn Smith and Pat Stokes will present a program of music.

Nineteen students will graduate from the Grifton High School this year. Principal E. B. Bright announced.

Non-Segregation Proposals Ready

ATLANTA (AP)—Proposals for abolition of segregation within the Presbyterian Church, U.S., will be presented to the 49th General Assembly of the denomination in Montreal, N. C., on May 27.

The church will be asked to "lead rather than follow" in the move to end segregation in a report submitted by the division of Christian relations, Board of Church Extension.

The report is the result of a study directed by the General Assembly itself in 1953.

If approved the proposals would not be compulsory on local congregations. The General Assembly can urge changes in educational and cultural patterns but cannot direct that they be made.

The Assembly will be asked to affirm that enforced segregation is discrimination which is out of harmony with Christian theology and ethics.

A portion of the council's report deals with the Bible and human relationships. Conclusions drawn from the study include:

"People are to be looked upon and treated as people. Whatever injures the growth of human personality is contrary to the law of love. The Christian's conduct toward others must be guided by the law of neighborliness which seeks the welfare and happiness of all people."

Demands County Jail Hold Him

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—A drunk staggered into the county jail and demanded to be arrested and thrown into jail. The sheriff was willing to oblige but asked the man why he wanted to be clapped behind bars.

"I'm going to keep them damned city police from getting me" he replied.

New School Bus Left At Airport

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP)—Any one been missing a school bus for a couple weeks? Are 58 kids walking to school somewhere for lack of transportation?

If so there is a new bus parked at Pangborn Field near here. It has been there ever since the driver parked the vehicle and boarded a plane for Seattle three weeks ago.

West Coast airline officials said the driver bought a round-trip ticket and they presumed he would come back. He didn't.

Austerity Grows More Stringent

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Austerity on Chinese Nationalist Formosa is becoming more austere.

The provincial government has clamped new restrictions on the opening of new cafes and bars, bans Chinese from serving foreign wines and cigarettes except when foreign guests are present, and has placed a tighter curb on the import of luxury goods.

Cooked rice will extend a chicken or lobster salad and taste good in it, too.

May Day Pageant At Falkland

Here is the Maypole dance by girls of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Other events in the ceremony at Falkland included dances by the third, fourth and fifth grades plus a marching drill by boys of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

This picture shows the May Court at the Falkland School May Day and Commencement Exercises yesterday. Emma Lou Fleming reigned as May Queen and J. W. Moore is the May King, with Linda Little and Barley Frank Phillips as princess and prince. These four students were chosen by a vote of the student body.

FAULKLAND—The Falkland Elementary School held its Mayday Pageant on the campus Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Glenn Scott of Greenville, and other teachers directed the program.

Emma Lou Fleming was queen and J. W. Moore was king, with Linda Little and Barley Frank Phillips as princess and prince of the May Court. They were elected by the student body. Sheila Dawn Wooten was the herald and Donnie Allen the trumpeter. Wayne Windham, Roger Everette, Joseph Jenkins and Russell Harris were court jesters.

The Rhythm Band from the first and second grades was directed by Miss Carolyn Cass. The members played and sang and another group from the first and second grades enacted the legend of "The Old Woman That Lived in a Shoe."

Others numbers on the program were: Dances by children of the third grade and the fourth and fifth grades. Boys of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades did a marching drill, with Delano Russell as leader and flagbearer.

As the children finished their parts on the program they took place on either side of the May Queen and her attendants. For the closing number the heralds paid a brief tribute "To Our Country," and then the children joined in singing "America."

The scenes were colorful, the music and singing and dancing excellent and the costuming of the participants received much praise, a school official stated.

Says Iran Women Better Treated

MCCOOK, Neb. (U) — Mehdi Hamidji started to address a women's group here with: "I hate to tell you this."

Then he expressed the view that women in his homeland of Iran are treated more politely by Iranian men than are American women by American men and they lead an easier life, generally speaking.

Hamidji is a premedical student at Kearney (Neb.) State College.

Peach Crop Hurt By Dry Weather

RALEIGH (U) — Dry weather last fall and freezing temperatures in March apparently have cut into prospects for the 1954 Tar Heel peach crop, according to the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

The agency said today a harvest of 1,050,000 bushels is expected. This would be 11 per cent below the 1953 crop of 1,180,000 bushels, which was considered comparatively short. It would be only 64 per cent of the 10-year average of 1,649,000 bushels.

Reports from different sections vary. For example, prospects for the Sandhills are generally poor to fair, while a rather good peach crop is indicated for the Mount Airy section the service said.

A 17 per cent reduction also is expected in the state's commercial early Irish potato production. May 1 reports indicate a harvest of 3,075,000 bushels, compared with last year's 3,705,000 bushels.

However, the yield per acre is expected to average 205 bushels, 15 bushels more than growers realized last year. Harvesting is expected to begin the last week in May, and possibly a week earlier in the Carteret County area.

Being Smart Can Invite Problems

TIVERTON, R. I. (U) — Being a smart fellow can lead to complications sometimes as John P. Moloney, 17, is finding out.

An honor student at De Lasalle Academy, Newport, Moloney won a Naval ROTC scholarship entitling him to choose from 52 colleges with tuition and books paid and $50-a-month subsistence.

Moloney filed applications at Brown, Harvard, Yale and Princeton. Yesterday, he received replies from all four, offering him full scholarships.

Now he's trying to decide which school he'll choose.

Earth-Moving Job In Prospect

PANAMA (U) — John Seybold, Canal Zone governor, says more than two million cubic yards of rock on the Panama Canal of Contractors Hill must be removed in a job that will take months and cost millions of dollars.

He said yesterday that despite the blasting job necessary to clean up the break in the hill, he did not think enough material would fall into the canal to bother traffic.

Pursuit Turned Out To Be Police

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A mysterious stranger in pursuit, James Medley Jr. sped through six stop signs at 65 miles an hour. Finally he barricaded himself inside a drug store.

The pursuer, off duty and out of uniform, displayed his pistol and badge through a glass door. "Thank the Lord, you're a police officer!" Medley gasped.

Police Judge Robert G. Dowd, agreeing Medley had some cause for fright (but not for flight at 65 miles an hour), fined him $60 for passing up the stop signs but paroled him on a $50 speeding fine.

Do-It-Yourself Saved Tax Rate

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP) — "Do it yourself" was the way the city of Northfield decided it could pass a higher budget with the same tax rate.

The city hall needed painting, but the cost $1,500 — would boost not only the budget but also the tax rate. So Mayor George Infield and the city councilmen painted the hall themselves, and the tax rate stayed the same.

Pirates Win Last Game; Little League Play Opens

Cherry, Owen Pitched Two-Hit Win For Bucs

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

Atlantic Christian College's Bulldogs got only two hits yesterday as the Bobunk Bucket came back home.

East Carolina College's Pirates got only five hits but they bunched all of them in the first two innings to score four runs and account for a 4-1 victory over the Bulldogs. The game was the last of the season for the Bucs and was played in East Carolina's College Stadium.

Mack Cherry started for the Pirates and received credit for the victory but he needed help from Clyde Owen in the last half of the game. Owen came on in the sixth inning with the bases loaded and no outs but got out of the inning with only one run crossing the plate.

The two hits given up by the Pirates included one off each pitcher. Cherry gave up a single to Joe Morris in the fifth inning and Owen gave up a single to Jim Williams in the eighth inning. Nothing else the Bulldogs got even resembled a base hit but they stayed very much in a threatening position throughout the contest on the strength of loose Pirate defensive work and wildness on the part of the pitchers.

Gang Up On Marley

The Pirates ganged up on long John Marley for all of their hits and runs in the first two innings. In the first frame, the Pirates put together three hits and an error for three runs and then in the second inning added another run on two hits.

The first inning rally started almost as soon as the Pirates could get the bats into lead off man Cecil Heath's hands. The little second baseman banged a single into left field and then stole second. He went to third on an infield out and then trotted home ahead of Paul Jones' three-base hit into right - centerfield. Jones scored seconds later when Gailther Cline singled into rightfield. Cline stole second and then came all the way around when W. C. Sanderson's grounder to shortstop was thrown away by Ronald Percie.

In the second inning, Heath started another rally with his second hit of the day. He stole second and then came all the way around when Jones rifled a line drive into right center for his second hit of the day.

Curiously enough, after those first two innings the Pirates hardly got another chance to even think about a run. Marley settled down remarkably and although the Pirates had base runners occasionally they never got a man around to score. They threatened once in the fifth inning but Gailther Cline was cut down at the plate on an attempted double steal.

Even Record

The victory evened the Pirates' season standings at 10-10 and gave them a 9-7 record in the North State Conference's Eastern Division standings. The Pirates were eliminated from any chance at the conference title last weekend when they lost to Elon in a doubleheader.

Heath and Jones led the hitting for the day with a pair of hits apiece with Jones holding a single upper hand on the strength of his triple.

Gailther Cline got the other Buc hit.

Phants Beat Washington To Close Successful Year

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

WASHINGTON — Greenville's Phantoms finished the most successful baseball season in many years yesterday afternoon by defeating the Washington Pam-Pack by a score of 3-2 in Washington.

Left-hander Bill Hendrix went the route for the G-men and allowed the Pack only five hits in turning in his best performance of the year. Hendrix fanned five batters and walked seven in the nine innings. Although his wildness kept in trouble throughout the game, Hendrix had his stuff in the pinches to throttle all but two Washington uprisings.

The Greenies drew first blood in the game with their arch rivals in the second inning. With one out Gene Hudson walked, Billy Bost stepped in and singled, and Hendrix walked to load the bases. Shortstop Bob Howell bounced back to the pitcher who forced Hudson at home. Bobby Conway then lined a single into leftfield to drive in Bost, and, when the leftfielder erred the ball, Hendrix came in to score.

In the last of the fifth Washington came back with an unearned run. An error, a ground out, and a single scored the Washington runner. In the seventh Washington tied up the game when Joe Lupton tripled in Clyde Boyce from first.

G-men Rally

The G-men came back in the top of the eighth to go back ahead for the rest of the ball game. Jerry Phillips singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Leroy Quinn grounded out, sending Phillips to third. Doug Morgan then lifted a long fly to right field and Phillips scored easily after the catch.

Hendrix bore down and shut the door on the Pam Pack the rest of the way.

The win gave the G-men a record of 7-4 for conference play this year and an overall record of 8-5. It was the winningest season the G-men have enjoyed in quite a while for baseball.

Big Bobby Conway once again led the Greenville hitting. The 6-2 third baseman slapped out three singles in five trips. He was the only Greenville player to get over one hit. Lupton led the Washington with a triple and a single.

An interesting note on the team is that of the nine starters used by Coach Farley, seven of them were seniors. Only Bob Howell and left-fielder Gene Hudson are not in the senior class. Howell is a junior and Hudson is a sophomore.

20 Strikeouts

FARMVILLE — Striking out 20 of a possible 21 outs, Farmville's Johnny Hinson stretched his strikeout string against Snow Hill Tuesday. In his last two games, Hinson has fanned 35 batters.

Snow Hill was blanked by the home team, 10-0, with Farmville picking up five runs on four hits in the first frame and breaking loose again in the fourth to get 3 runs on two hits.

Snow Hill picked up three hits among them a single and a triple by Hursey, but was unable to score.

A triple by Sigbe Dilda and a homer by Billy Ellis featured the distant-hitting for Farmville.

Elks And Jaycees Win Opening Day Contests

Little League baseball started its fourth season in Greenville yesterday with an opening day doubleheader before a full house of fans.

The two games played were the openers for the two leagues the program will have this year. In the first game, the Elks moved into the top spot in the Tar Heel League standings by slaughtering the Moose 16-4 while the defending champion Jaycees took over the first in the North State League with a 4-3 victory over the Kiwanis.

In the Tar Heel League contest, the Elks had very little trouble with the Moose. They batted out 18 hits in an all-out offensive attack while pitchers Billy Jenkins and Denny Ardee were giving up only six hits and striking out 14 men between them.

Jenkins and centerfielder Merrill Bynum were the leaders in the offense with four hits apiece. Bynum rode the circuit in his hitting with a single, a double, a triple and a home run while Jenkins collected a pair of doubles and two singles. Their hits came off Joyner and Brown who divided the pitching for the Moose.

Only William Stancil of the Moose was able to get through the Elks' pitching for more than one hit. He collected a third-inning double and a fifth-inning single.

A five-run second inning was what wrapped the game up for the Elks. The six-hit attack was featured by two-base hits by Rick Sauve and J. G. Proctor.

Tripp Starts

In the second game of the day, big Jasper Tripp pitched and batted his teammates to victory. On the mound, he held the Kiwanis to three singles while at bat he collected a fifth-inning double that sparked a four-run rally of the Jaycees.

In the fifth-inning rally, Sonny Hodges started the work by singling and going to second on an error by the leftfielder. Tom Vincent followed with another single but Bud Murray halted the rally momentarily by grounding out. Clark Brewer and Gene Nobles singled and then Tripps came through with his double, a rifle-shot down the third base line.

There is only one game scheduled for today, a Tar Heel League contest between Exchange and Pepsi-Cola teams. Tomorrow, the other two clubs in the North State League will get into action when the Lions play the V. F. W.

Summer Slump?

Heck, no! He's been shopping with his wife!

People buy more in Summer than in most other months of the year!

Away on vacation? Heck, no! You can find 94% of the people at home at any time during June, July and August—still shopping at a fast rate. Still reading newspapers. Still buying the things they read about!

As the famous retailer Bernard Gimbel said recently: "There is no excuse for reduced sales effort. The business is there if we go after it—all summer long."

*Based on studies by Curtis Publishing Co. and NBC.

Percentages show how much of this total is absorbed by each month of the year. Only 3 other months outrank June, July, August.

SUMMER MONTHS get their full share of year's business — and more besides! 25.3%. (Source: Dept. of Commerce)

Sales are as hot as the weather!

People spend more money on merchandise in June, July and August than in most other months — as the chart shows.

Are you taking advantage of this?

Business leaders are capitalizing on this!

Mr. Gimbel says: "We're going after summer business because we feel that there are too many valleys between the peaks that have no reason to be there."

And he adds that summer business is "the most neglected, the most under-promoted area in our whole merchandising system."

Are you planning special summer promotion?

And they're using newspapers!

They know there's no summer replacement for the newspaper. People buy and read newspapers avidly all summer long!

If you haven't made big summer promotion and advertising plans, start now.

First Aid Know-How Saved Flye's Life

THANKS A LOT—That's what A-2c Larry E. Flye, Greenville, N. C., indicates as he shakes the hand of Dale Moore, Jayton, Tex., left, who is accredited with saving Flye's life following an automobile accident March 21. Flye's wife is shown standing beside her husband's bedside. The airman recovered in the hospital at Reese Air Force Base, Texas.

A-2c Larry E. Flye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Flye of 1000 West Third Street has reported to duty at Walker AFB, New Mexico, after being seriously injured in an automobile accident near Jayton, Texas March 21. Airman Flye credits the fact that he is alive today, to the

More Seek Jobs But Employment Figures Stable

RALEIGH — In industries covered by the job insurance program, there are as many, if not more, persons working this year and at the same time there are more unemployed.

This was reported today by Col. Henry E. Kendall, director of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission, as he made public figures showing that the number of jobless in the state at the end of April continues to run about double last year's figure.

Kendall reported that the number of persons seeking jobs through the State Employment Service totaled 73,000 at the end of April as compared with 50,000 at the end of the same month last year. He said the commission received claims for a total of 230,400 weeks of unemployment during April as compared with 122,556 in April of last year. Unemployment compensation payments for the month totaled $3,836,500 as compared with $1,606,000 in April of last year.

In the first four months of this year the number of weeks for which claims were made totaled 924,300 as compared with 472,150 in the same period of last year. The amount paid to claimants in the first four months totaled $14,460,500. This compared with $7,159,300 in the same period of last year.

Kendall explained his statement about there being as many if not more persons working in covered industries this year as last. He stated that while the figures showed an increase of 28,000 in unemployment, the total labor force has increased by "considerably more than that."

He said his figures show that the number of unemployed will continue to rise unless industry expands constantly to provide more jobs or else workers will migrate to other states.

Some of the increase in unemployment, he added, is caused by the return to the state from centers such as Detroit where there have been large layoffs in the auto industry.

efforts of a West Texas man who knew first aid and how to use it. Airman Flye, and his recent bride, the former Miss Ira Dell Huff of Gulfport, Mississippi, were enroute from Keesler AFB, Mississippi, to Walker AFB, when Flye's car overturned on a curve near the home of Mr. Dale Moore, injuring Airman Flye critically and inflicting painful but not serious, injuries to his wife.

According to reports, an artery in Flye's neck was punctured and when Moore arrived about two minutes after the accident, blood was spurting from Flye's wound almost two feet in the air.

Moore, who had completed an American Red Cross first aid course one day before in San Angelo, Texas, used first aid to control the bleeding, and when it was certain no bones were broken placed Flye in a car and carried him to a hospital in Spur, Texas for professional care, holding a compress on the wound all the way.

Flye was then transferred to the hospital at Reese AFB where he underwent extensive medical treatment and subsequent recovery.

First Lt. John J. Baughman, who made an investigation of the accident, said, "In the course of my investigation, I concluded that Airman Flye's life was saved by the emergency roadside aid he received from Mr. Moore."

Airman Flye agreed, as it was emphasized that the nearest doctor to the scene was 27 miles away. Mr. Moore, who is associated with the Texas Highway Department, has been cited by the Red Cross, which has initiated an application for a service award to volunteers who perform an act that is adjudged meritorious in the saving of another person's life.

Airman Flye, a graduate of Greenville High, attended East Carolina College prior to his entry into the Air Force in February of 1953.

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colver

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

THE DAYS passed. Mrs. Hunter took it for granted that her plan was acceptable to Joan and every morning she came hobbling upstairs to the little apartment. Then when Joan's kitchen was tidied, there was nothing for her to do but go down with her mother-in-law and help her in return. Her co-operation, on the surface, was amiable, but inwardly rebellion stirred daily as she tried fruitlessly to think of some kind of way of ending this routine. How thankful she was when a sudden emergency summoned Mrs. Hunter away for a day.

The older woman was not orderly or systematic as Joan was, so that the latter found this helping difficult. "Never mind that, just leave it," Mrs. Hunter would say. Or—"Oh, I'll take care of that later. I've got to get off my feet a while. Let's rest here and talk."

Talk! Joan came to realize that that was what Mrs. Hunter chiefly wanted. A receptacle for her memories, her experiences, her fears, her hopes. Joan, herself, hardly ever got a word in edgewise. No wonder the doctor kept to his study for hours on end, she thought. He would have to as a matter of self-preservation!

Yet her mother-in-law was good, generous, gentle. Joan recognized all those fine attributes. "Any time you ever need anything," she would say, "just tell me. I don't care what it is. It's yours. Just as if you were my own daughter. The doctor thinks I ought not to be like that. He says I mustn't be so ready to give 'Young people want to be independent,' he keeps telling me. 'Let them struggle. They like it.' What he forgets is how happy I am to give. It's my greatest joy in life." She had broken off and again Joan had seen her face crumple into sadness. "Still I have to listen to him," she had continued, after a moment, "because once he was right. Shall I tell you?" she had ended wistfully.

Not knowing what was coming, Joan had nodded.

"Well, it was a long time ago, when Todd was in his early teens. He began, then, to sort of pull away from me. He changed, I mean, from being companionable to—well—to being a stranger. We had always been so close. He would talk to me and tell me things. But suddenly he didn't any more. He closed up like a clam. He even locked his door against me. It made me feel terrible. It made me cry. And I couldn't find out what was the matter. He wouldn't tell me. He just kept saying that nothing was wrong. Finally his father said, 'Tilly, let the boy alone. He can't help himself. He's growing up. That's all. And if he did, then he's growing up has to have privacy.' She stopped for a moment. Then she went on.

"He told me he thought Todd might grow up to be a student like himself. And if he did, then he would need lots of privacy and I must never break into it. 'If you want to keep your son close,' he said to me, 'you must let him go from you.'"

She stopped again, her face working so that Joan felt sorry for her. She was like someone who had been bereaved.

"Well, I tried to understand that. I tried to believe it. I tried to do it. But I guess I wasn't very good at it because he never really did come close again. Perhaps boys don't. Perhaps they have to go off that way and be strangers. But girls are different. I've watched you and your mother together all these years. Your companionship is lovely. Perfectly lovely! So when I knew Todd and you were going to be married, I thought: 'Now that's fine. Now I'll have a daughter, anyway. And maybe through her I'll have a son again, too.'"

Joan had been embarrassed and upset. Such a frank revealing of what must have been, and still was, a deep pain, left her not knowing how to answer. She felt, curiously much older than this woman before her, who was actually twice her age. And what had she done? She had laid a double burden on Joan, because for her to assert her independence now would be to wound with a double-edged sword, first as the daughter Mrs. Hunter had always wanted and never had, and second as Todd's wife who was to bring him close again.

"I can stand it for a while," she told herself, "but not forever."

She said nothing to anyone about the matter, because she felt that it was something for her to work out by herself. She would do it gradually, she thought. But on no account would she run back to her own mother for comfort or advice. Nor to the doctor. Either would be—well—immature and her pride forbade it. Nor would she appeal to Todd. Above all, she would not go to Todd, for, watching him with new understanding eyes, she saw that he did, indeed, keep himself to himself as his mother had said. He was always courteous and considerate—she could never imagine him otherwise—but he was distant. Even in his moments of banter he somehow remained aloof. "We shouldn't have come here to live," Joan thought.

"Whenever you want to go to that antique shop over in Clifton, Joanie, I'll be glad to show you the way."

"Thanks, I'll remember."

(But I found my way around Europe, Mrs. Hunter. I really think I could find my way to a shop that's only five miles from here.)

Daily under such provocation Joan's irritation grew, although she did her best to hide it. She forced herself to be patient and self-controlled and tactful meanwhile trying desperately to find a halfway path between a pretended pleased acceptance of all this unwanted interest and assistance and a polite refusal of it. However, in the face of Mrs. Hunter's confident, bland, impervious disregard of the fact that her daughter-in-law might take exception to the plans being made for her, and the questions asked and the advice given, it was impossible. Joan's struggle accomplished nothing beyond a build-up of seething resentment and tension within her which mounted steadily and which reached a climax in an explosion against Todd that surprised and horrified her. It was their first quarrel and it came like a thunderbolt out of the blue.

Best Driver Was Husband's Pupil

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A police car trailed Mrs. Elizabeth Bugg as she maneuvered her automobile through three miles of Richmond traffic. Finally, she pulled over to the curb. The cop alighted, and backstopped by a newsman and an automobile club representative, told Mrs. Bugg she was being ticketed as Richmond's best driver.

Mrs. Bugg said her husband taught her to drive.

Case Of Nerves For Acting Dog

NEW YORK (AP)—A dog who sings on Broadway can become neurotic. "Ted (Sport) Morgan," an airedale, who performed opposite Phil Silvers in the hit musical, "Top Banana," got $300 a week for his stint.

His plight came to light in trial of an agent's breach of contract suit. The spotlight was too much. Sport began to miss cues, shake his head, and when he should have been quiet, his trainer, Nathan Wolman, testified. "He shivered as he waited to go on. He was neurotic — just like a person," Wolman said.

ADDING ROOMS for a growing family becomes an economical project in a house like this. It is planned for expansion. The main part of the house can be built first with attic unfinished. Breezeway and garage can be added. Then the house can be enlarged four ways. Basement and attic provide space for several extra rooms. Breezeway and garage also can be converted for future rooms. This is Plan 52496 designed by Architect Herbert C. Struppman for the Archway Press, 117 West 48th St., New York 26, N.Y. There are 1,215 square feet on the first floor, 685 feet upstairs.

Mount Pleasant News

Sunday, May 2, was election day for the officers of Mt. Pleasant Christian Church Bible School for the coming year. O. J. Stanell was re-elected superintendent for the twenty-first consecutive year. Other officers re-elected were Randolph Fleming, assistant superintendent, and Mrs. C. B. Spain, treasurer. All of the teachers were re-appointed for the following year. They are as follows: Mrs. Lonnie Staton, Beginners; Mrs. Nina Vainright, Primary; Mrs. C. H. Hagan, Junior Class; Mrs. Linwood Harris, Intermediates; P. W. Taylor, Young Peoples' Class; and Mrs. Clifton Bullock, Adult Class.

The winners in the attendance contest which ended Easter Sunday were entertained by the losers on Wednesday, April 21, at a delightful weiner roast on the lawn of the Mt. Pleasant Community Building. The average attendance during the contest was around 140. Several new members were added and there were many visitors.

Judge Charles Wheelbee was a recent guest at prayer services. Mr. Wheelbee, a most versatile speaker, brought a very timely message on Alcoholism. Dr. Humbert, Pitt County Health Doctor, spoke last week on "Accidents to the Personality." His message was well received by those present.

Plans are in progress for the Vacation Bible School which will begin Monday, June 7, and continue through June 18. Attendance last year was 75 and a larger attendance is expected this year.

On Friday night, May 14, at 7 o'clock dinner will be served to the officers and ministers of the churches in the Roanoke District. There will be about 60 present. Mrs. O. J. Stanell is in charge of the arrangements. Proceeds will go towards the purchase of the organ, which is the project of the Junior Choir.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clifton, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Harrington and Mrs. C. B. Spain attended a church conference recently in Kingsport, Tenn. They report an inspirational meeting.

Funeral services were held in Raleigh on April 23 for Mrs. J. J. Jenkins Jr. She had been in ill health for several years and was the mother of Barbara Jenkins of the Mt. Pleasant community.

New driver comfort! New driving ease!

New Chevrolet Trucks...

do more work per day... more work per dollar!

You save time in traffic. New truck Hydra-Matic transmission gets you off to smooth, time-saving starts without shifting or clutching. Imagine how easy this makes driving in traffic and on delivery routes! It's optional at extra cost on 1/2-, 3/4- and 1-ton models.

You save time on the highway. New high-compression power gets you up to highway speeds from a standing start in less time, and saves you time on hills, too. You make trips faster—and the new Comfortmaster cab makes them seem shorter. It's got everything!

You save extra trips, too. That's because of the extra load space you get in the new Advance-Design bodies. New pickup bodies are deeper... new stake and platform bodies are wider and longer. Also, they're set lower to the ground for easier loading.

You save on operating costs. High-compression power saves you money! The "Thrifmaster 235" engine, the "Loadmaster 235," and the "Jobmaster 261" (optional on 2-ton models at extra cost), deliver greater horsepower plus increased operating economy.

You save with lower upkeep. New Chevrolet trucks are built stronger to last longer and save you money on maintenance. There are heavier axle shafts in two-ton models... bigger clutches in light- and heavy-duty models... stronger frames in all models.

And your savings start the day you buy. In fact, they start with the low price you pay—and they never stop. Chevrolet, you know, is America's lowest-priced line of trucks. And it's also the truck that has a traditionally high trade-in value.

Come in and see how much you're ahead with America's number one truck. You'll like the way we're talking business!

Prisoner Disarms Two Deputies, Stole Auto

CHICAGO (U) — Police and sheriffs officers hunted today for a young prisoner who at gunpoint disarmed two deputy sheriffs, forced them to drive him 15 miles, robbed them of about $50 and then stole their car.

Two Du Page County deputy sheriffs yesterday arrested Arthur Peters, 23, in suburban Franklin Park on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The deputies quoted Peters as saying he had been convicted of murder and kidnapping while serving in the Army in Korea and was on 12 years probation.

They quoted him as saying: "One false move out of either of you and you're dead."

The deputies, John Albrecht, 53, and John Eyer, 28, said Peters had agreed to return with them to suburban Wheaton to post bond. They said after they searched him and found no gun, Eyer got in Peters' car with Peters at the wheel. Albrecht followed in his car.

Eyer said that after driving a few miles Peters pulled a .45-caliber automatic pistol from beneath the seat and forced Eyer to surrender his revolver. He stopped the car and when Albrecht pulled up alongside, Peters disarmed him.

The deputies said Peters then forced them into the front seat of Albrecht's car. With a gun in each hand, Peters got into the back seat and ordered the deputies to drive through the western suburbs and return to Chicago.

On the city's South Side, the deputies were ordered out of the car after Peters told them to throw their money on the front seat. They said he fired one shot as he drove away.

Police said Peters' wife Margaret, 19, said her husband had served in Korea before the war in 1949. He and another soldier took a jeep and went drinking, she said, and another man was killed. He was tried by a military court and sentenced to 50 years, which later was reduced to 12 years. She said he was paroled in February 1953 from a military prison in Pennsylvania.

The warrant for Peters' arrest, police said, stemmed from a teenage drinking party in his home last Saturday night.

Mass Nuptials Plan Called Off

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (U) — Thirty Danish civil servants who planned to marry for money, then divorce at once, have called off arrangements for the mass nuptials. Last-minute parliamentary action gave them hope of higher pay by less dramatic methods.

"We part as friends and are only too glad," said Verner Overoe, organizer of the wedding project. The 15 men and 15 women decided to call the whole thing off last night at a meeting called for signing necessary papers for a three-minute ceremony followed by a mass divorce.

The mass wedding was planned as a protest against government regulations giving higher wages to married or divorced employees.

In Parliament yesterday Finance Minister Viggo Kampmann accepted a resolution which would make it impossible for Overoe's group to get any financial advantage from the momentary marriage.

But Kampmann also promised higher pay for some categories of civil servants and promised to consider equalizing pay for single and married employees.

"The politicians freed us of the unpleasant task," Overoe, a customs officer, said. "They made our action useless and at the same time gave us a bit of what we wanted."

Swiss And Swede Neutrals Critical Of Red Actions

MUNICH (U)—Swiss and Swedish members of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission today accused the Communist Czech and Polish members of blocking "satisfactory" policing of Red-held North Korea.

In a letter to the U.N. Command, the Swiss and Swedes said they "decline any responsibility for the state of affairs resulting from the noncooperation of Czechoslovak and Polish colleagues."

The letter answered one from the U.N. Command accusing the Reds of preventing investigation of U.N. charges that the Reds are violating the Korean armistice by bringing men and equipment into North Korea. Under terms of the truce each side may replace, but not build up, men and supplies in Korea.

The four-nation supervisory commission is charged with policing the rotation of soldiers and war material into both North and South Korea.

The letter to the U.N. Command was signed by Swedish Maj. Gen. Paul Mohn and Swiss Brig. Gen. Ernst Gross.

The two neutrals called for a new look by the Military Armistice Commission at the "whole problem of supervision and especially of investigations concerning alleged violations of the armistice agreement."

"Under the present circumstances," the two neutrals declared, "the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission will not be in a position to operate as was probably intended by the signatories of the armistice agreement."

Mossadegh Will File New Appeal

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, his three-year solitary confinement sentence confirmed by an army appeals court, says he will take his case to Iran's highest court.

The appeals court voted 6-1 last night to uphold the sentence imposed by a military tribunal. Mossadegh was convicted Dec. 21 of seeking to overthrow Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi last August. The ex-dictator was thrown out a short time later by the royalist forces of Gen. Fazollah Zahedi, who took over as premier.

Mossadegh said he would appeal to the Iranian Supreme Court. The Shah would have to approve shifting the case from the military to the civilian courts.

The appeals court also increased the prison sentence of Mossadegh's former army chief of staff, Gen. Taghi Riahi, from two to three years. Riahi was convicted of ordering the army to defy the Shah's order that Mossadegh quit.

Dewey's Dairy Talk Irks Coffee Growers

By RAY KOHN
NEW YORK (U)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's assertion that people should switch from coffee to milk has South American diplomats boiling. They even hint our "hemispheric solidarity" may go pot.

The governor, who has his own dairy farm at Pawling, N. Y., strayed into the "cow vs. coffee bean" pasture in an innocent enough way.

New York's cows have delivered an excess of 165 million quarts up to last March.

So said Dewey. If all citizens drank a glass of milk a day the surplus would fade away. State dairy officials applauded the idea.

"Switch to milk," Dewey urged, adding it's "healthier, cheaper and more plentiful" than coffee.

Coffee officials and Latin Americans immediately considered this grounds for complaint.

Joao Carlos Muniz, Brazil's ambassador to the United States, said yesterday such talk is a blow to "hemispheric solidarity."

It's all right, he said, to urge people to "consume a fine beverage" like milk, especially when there's an oversupply.

But he added: "To urge them to do so at the expense of coffee, which is the economic lifeblood of friendly neighbor nations, appears to be undermining United States foreign policy aimed at maintaining and encouraging sound economies in friendly nations throughout the world."

Alfonso Patino, charge d'affaires of Colombia, a coffee-producing country, said yesterday in Washington that Dewey's "Milk Week" proclamation soured the whole concept of U. S. policies on inter-American relations.

Also steeped in resentment was James M. O'Connor, president of the National Coffee Assn. of the U.S.A.

O'Connor protested that Dewey had suggested a "spirit of boycott" against coffee. To curtail the 2½-billion-dollar coffee industry O'Connor said would "put tens of thousands out of work."

There was no immediate comment from Dewey.

Mail Box Turn-Out Idea Spurs Safety

A retired postmaster's idea and energetic action by a woman's club are making highways safer in Florida.

The postmaster was worried about the danger to rural mail carriers stopping on the highway. He thought mail box turnouts would eliminate the hazard.

The Orlando Pilot Club saw even greater possibilities for the idea, and it soon grew into a plan for group action by the Fourth District, Florida, of Pilot International.

Through their effort, 50 rural mailbox turnouts were constructed along Florida highways. It was soon apparent that the crescent-shaped bays were an important safety bonus for box holders, for children boarding and alighting from school buses, for motorists forced to make emergency stops, as well as for the letter carriers.

Their efforts were rewarded when the Fourth District became the first club to win the top award in the 1953 Carol Lane Awards for Traffic Safety, receiving a $1,000 defense bond and a bronze statuette symbolic of their achievement.

The Carol Lane Awards, the nation's only awards which recognize the achievements of women in the field of traffic safety, are administered by the National Safety Council through a grant from the Shell Oil Co.

Heartened by the enthusiastic acceptance of their project, the Florida women are pushing the program vigorously. Mrs. Sara G. Hughes of Orlando, Pilot State chairman of the turnout project and the woman who saw the possibilities of the postmaster's idea, asked that funds for 100 new turnouts be included in the state's 1954 road budget. Instead, 300 turnouts were authorized. The highway administrators, impressed by the work of the club, added $150,000 to the maintenance budget for paving of turnouts.

Two Cornered Gunmen Took Their Own Lives

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Two desperate gunmen committed suicide yesterday when they were cornered by police who sought them for critically wounding a detective in a movie theater.

Police Chief Howard O. Young said one of the fugitives, James Pollard, 26, of Stonington shot himself in the head as Young closed in on him in an apartment house attic.

Police said the other gunman, Clarence Rydstrom, 21, of Waterbury shot himself to death in a taxicab an hour later as police surrounded him with drawn guns.

Shot in a downtown movie was Detective Ralph Palma, 30. He was felled by two bullets in the chest as he wrestled with the pair.

Pollard and Rydstrom had been hunted all over the city's center yesterday in connection with a holdup Monday in Middlebury, where two bandits tied two women and escaped with $1,400 in cash, jewelry and bonds.

Palma, two other detectives and several state troopers went to the movie theater on a tip the fugitives were there.

Palma went into the seats at there was a scuffle. Suddenly two shots blazed and many of the 200 patrons dived under their seats.

The state troopers and other detectives said they held their fire lest stray bullets hit the patrons.

The fugitives escaped but a short time later Pollard was trapped in the apartment house a few blocks from the theater. Rydstrom meanwhile, had caught a cab.

Hundreds of police and thousands of spectators gathered outside the house. A squad of patrolmen fired tear gas bombs into the apartment, shouting to Pollard over loud speakers to come out.

But there was only silence from the inside.

Chief Young stripped off his jacket and put on a gas mask and

Creeks Overflow And Flood Town

WAURIKA, Okla. (AP)—More than 100 persons remained homeless today in a flood which caused the near-drowning of three teen-agers.

Rampaging Cow and Beaver creeks, perennial flood threats in southwestern Oklahoma, overflowed yesterday into the north-west residential area. Flood waters lapped two blocks over in the business district.

The Lincoln schoolhouse, located in a V formed by the creeks, exploded and burned last night. Authorities said boiler fires were extinguished by the water and a gas explosion followed.

The area had been evacuated long before.

Undersheriff Simon Kennedy said three teen-agers, Lavon L. Rogers, Leslie Gay and Helen Gay, were pulled from the streams after their boat capsized. They suffered from shock and exposure.

The homeless were given shelter in public buildings and the homes of friends.

Wrecker Sent To Help Wreckers

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—A wrecker was dispatched yesterday to pull out a wrecker that got stuck in the mud while trying to pull out another wrecker that got stuck while trying to pull out a car that got stuck.

They finally made it despite the best rains in years around here recently.

SHAPE Expects Doubled Losses

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Powers in Europe (AP)—Atomic weapons are expected to double the number of casualties suffered by American armed forces if war should come, the chairman of the 13-nation Allied Medical Conference says.

"Instead of thinking in terms of 6 to 8 per cent of our forces as casualties we are counting on having 12 to 16 per cent of our men injured," Brig. Gen. William J. Kennard, U. S. Air Force, told reporters after the three-day medical discussion closed yesterday. "Some services will suffer even greater casualties," he said.

Honor Fourteen Cadets At Annual Awards Day

Awards for outstanding achievement went to fourteen cadets at the second AF ROTC Awards Presentation Day on the campus.

Presentation of awards was made by Col. Roger G. Fuller, professor of air science at the college, during a ceremonial parade and review conducted by the AF ROTC Cadet Group on the college drill field.

Cadet Col. Albert Vance Medlin of Greenville, winner of the American Legion Medal received top honors of the day. The medal is an annual award to the advanced-course cadet who, in the opinion of the professor of air science and his staff, possesses the most outstanding qualifications for an officer in the U. S. Air Force.

Cadet Robert E. Pennington of Rocky Mount received the Air Force Association Medal, presented to the cadet officer who is most outstanding in leadership, drill, and exercise of command.

Five men were designated as Distinguished Air Force ROTC cadets, in recognition of their excellent scholarship, high moral character, aptitude for service in the U. S. Air Force, and demonstrated leadership in extra-curricular activities.

They are Marvin Ell Brown, East Rockingham; James S. McCormick, Ayden; Robert Wilson Moye, Snow Hill; Willie Ray Sears, Greenville; and Robert E. Pennington, Rocky Mount.

Drill Performance Medals were awarded to the best-drilled cadet in each squadron. Recipients were James Corum, Reidsville; Charles R. Tedder, Cumberland; and Eugene Murray Beacham, Aurora.

Cadet John Welbert Hudson, Kinston, as the most outstanding cadet in the manual of arms, received the Manual of Arms Medal. Cadet Thomas Edward Clemmons, Wilmington, was given the Drum and Bugle Corps Medal for his high standard of performance both as musician and cadet.

Rifle Team Medals were awarded to Cadet Jeter Pritchard Taylor, Jr., Trenton, expert, and Cadet Joe Oliver Clark, Greenville, sharp shooter.

Cadet Robert Wilson Moye, Snow Hill, and Furney Powell, Vanceboro, merited Academic Stars for having maintained the high academic average of 1 in AF ROTC classroom instruction for four consecutive quarters.

Cadet Moye received also the Republic Aviation Award, in recognition of his demonstrating the most outstanding ability and achievement in the advanced AF ROTC course. Cadet Powell won the Cadet Award as the most outstanding sophomore eligible in the advanced course in a category leading to flight training.

Meet In Quest Of Disarmament Plan

By ARTHUR GAYSHON

LONDON (U)—The world's five leading atomic powers meet in this H-bomb-wary capital today in quest of a pact ending the arms race and outlawing atomic and germ warfare.

There were guarded hints from British and American informants that the Western nations, jointly or individually, might put forward revised proposals in a bid to break the years-long deadlock with Russia on the issues.

The secret talks at the British government's stately Lancaster House are under United Nations auspices.

The group is meeting as a sub-committee of the U.N. Disarmament Commission.

Recent disclosures of effects of hydrogen-bomb-test explosions gave new urgency.

Revelations stemming from U.S. tests in the Pacific touched off a chain reaction of nervousness in many parts of the globe and especially in this exposed island. This led the Churchill government to propose that a new effort at control should be made in London.

There were no clues to the possible nature of any new Western proposals for disarming or atomic and germ warfare control.

To start the talks, however, the four Western Powers—the United States, Britain, France and Canada—were reported planning to stand on their old position that establishment of reliable enforcement machinery must precede any ban on atomic weapons.

The West apparently wanted to see whether the Soviets have anything to offer either in the form of concessions or new ideas.

Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd is Britain's chief delegate at the talks. Morehead Patterson, an industrialist, represents the United States. The other delegates at the opening meeting were Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson for Canada, former Defense Minister Jules Moch for France and Ambassador Jacob Malik for Russia.

The five-power group started its discussions with these long-standing rival proposals before it.

Atomic weapons: The "Baruch Plan" of the West would create a world authority to control all dangerous aspects of atomic energy development. It would have complete inspection and enforcement rights. Later existing stocks of atomic weapons would be destroyed.

Russia wants atomic weapons banned immediately and an international control organ set up with full inspection rights. The organ would be subject to the U.N. Security Council, where the Soviets have the right of veto.

Conventional weapons: A Western proposal of 1952 calls for a census of the powers' armaments to be followed by international verification. The Western Allies also proposed limitation of the American, Soviet and Chinese armed forces to a million men each, and of the British and French armed forces to 750,000 men each.

Russia demanded simply a one-third cut of the armed forces of the Big Five, which would preserve the Communist world's considerable superiority in the number of men under arms.

Germ warfare: Russia has urged that a convention, on the lines of the Geneva convention banning the use of poison gas, be written to prevent the use of all weapons and means of mass destruction, whether by germs or atomic weapons.

The West claims that such a convention without provision for sanctions or inspection would be worthless.

Tot Is Adept In Three Languages

TRONA, Calif. (AP)—Yvonne Rose, 3½, may be in demand as a language interpreter when she gets home soon from Japan. She's the daughter of Chief Warrant Officer Robert R. Rose, with the Army, and his wife, Alice.

First she learned some French from her maternal grandmother, who spoke the language. Then she and her mother went to Japan, where she picked up Japanese from a nurse.

The Roses wrote their stateside family that they were coming home but wouldn't stop long in Hawaii. Yvonne might learn Hawaiian, and that would only confuse her parents some more.

'Dragnet' Story Going To Be On Movie Screen

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (U)—Let's take a look at the king-size "Dragnet."

Jack Webb and his crime-busting gang are shooting "Dragnet" these days, but there's a difference. This time they're working not at their usual haunt, Disney Studios, but a mile away at Warner Brothers. And the end result will not be a half-hour TV drama but an hour-and-a-half movie for theaters.

I arrived on the set as the crew was returning from lunch. It looked much the same as the TV layout, except that the sets were bigger and there were more people on the set. First I spotted jolly Ben Alexander, the reliable Frank Smith of the series. His face was bruised.

"It's just makeup," he said. "One of the hoods in the picture roughed us up. He's dead now."

I asked Alexander how the setup had changed for the theatrical movie.

"In a lot of ways it's the same," he remarked. "The only difference is that it takes much longer, since we're shooting in color. We need many more lights, and it takes a lot of time to get a set lighted."

"We don't expect to move as fast. After all, in the TV films—at least the ones I write—I try to write in only three sets. In this picture, we'll have 51 sets!"

Soon Webb also bruised appeared with his writer, Richard Green. They both started in radio in San Francisco with a memorable private-eye show called "Pat Novak for Hire." With them were two noted directors, Delmar Dave and Mervyn Leroy. I also learned that Billy Wilder and George Stevens had visited the set. I couldn't determine whether all these directors were being helpful to a new member of their craft or were merely curious TV fans.

Webb is directing the film, as he does the TV series. That is no easy matter, since he appears in every scene.

When he finished with his visitors, he came over to chat. His conversation is like that of Joe Friday—crisp and full of facts.

I asked him if there were any surprises in his debut as a director of a full-length feature.

"Only in the speed of the crew,"

he replied. "I knew they were good, but I didn't think they would be able to keep up the kind of pace we maintain in TV. I've got 24 days to finish the picture, but I hope to bring it in at 18."

He explained that the movie script like those in TV, was taken from an actual case. It concerns a gangland killing, but is not a whodunit.

"The first third of the picture concerns the how and who of the killing," he said. "The rest of the picture tells how the facts were gathered to present to the courts. This time we will show a division of the police department we have never treated before. It's the intelligence division, which gathers material on a criminal from all departments of the force."

Indochina Defense Plans Run Into Point Of Freedom

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (U)—The United States is in a jam in Indochina. Part of it, or all of it, may fall to the Communists. Unless the Western world can find a way to prevent it, all Southeast Asia may go the same way.

This country now is talking of forming a military alliance in the Pacific to save Indochina, or part of it, and, if that's impossible, then the rest of the area.

In planning for this, the United States must consider a question: should the three states of Indochina—Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia—be brought into the alliance?

Asked about it at his news conference yesterday President Eisenhower said:

No nation can be saved to the free world unless it wants to be saved. Freedom by its very definition cannot be possessed by someone who doesn't want freedom; so unless those states are enthusiastic parties to such an arrangement, then the alliance would have no right to interfere with them.

But that's the whole point in Indochina. It's at the root of the disaster the free world faces there. The people of Viet Nam have wanted their independence from the French, who have held Indochina as a colony for almost 100 years.

The French didn't give it to them. This refusal of the French has, according to American reporters in Indochina, made millions of Indochinese hate the French. In the meantime the Communist-led Vietminh fighting the French for almost eight years, have been able to pose as the leaders of their country although once it became Communist it would be a Moscow-Peking satellite.

Instead of rallying to the French to drive out the Vietminh, many of the Vietnamese have to ask themselves: Why fight for the French if we still cannot be free?

Larry Allen, veteran Associated Press reporter who has covered that area for years, recently sent back from Hanoi a story which said of the attitude of the Vietnamese:

"In this war refugee-swollen city of more than 500,000... the people seem to be unconcerned whether the Vietminh or the French are winning or can win."

In addition, Allen said, a majority of the Vietnamese have a "deep-seated sympathy" for Ho Chi Minh the Communist leader of the Vietminh because he promised them independence.

Secretary of State Dulles has been talking tough but vaguely for months about what this country would do if the Chinese Communists tried aggression in Indochina.

They called his hand in their own way. They didn't send troops into Indochina. They didn't have to.

The Vietnamese in the Vietminh forces were willing enough to fight. The Chinese just had to pour in supplies and specialists to help direct the fight. Now the French are groggy.

Dulles talked behind closed doors to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday. Later the chairman, Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), told newsmen Dulles had said just a few hours after Eisenhower had speculated on whether the Indochinese wanted freedom, that:

The United States couldn't be asked to send in troops unless "full independence was assured the Associated States (Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia) and unless the United Nations could be brought into the picture to clarify the moral issues."

In that statement Dulles was telling the French to guarantee the Indochinese real independence once the Vietminh were licked.

From Now On, It's House Rules

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP)—A man entered a barber shop here and plopped into the chair of A.C. Trull, instructing that his hair be cut to a length of 1½ inches. Trull worked carefully for 30 minutes and the customer gave him a dollar.

Trull then watched as the customer produced a rule, measured his hair, said it was cut too short and demanded return of the dollar. Somewhat amazed and disgusted Trull complied, but says rules are prohibited from now on.

AFL Executive Council Gathers To Consider Plan

CHICAGO (U)—The AFL Executive Council, top policy-making body of the 10-million-member labor group, convenes today to consider a plan for settling jurisdictional disputes between rival AFL unions.

The council approved the plan in outline at a winter meeting in Florida but decided to review a written draft at the Chicago meeting.

Fights between rival AFL unions over the right to represent workers on particular jobs long have plagued the AFL and employers, particularly in the construction industry.

The plan is admittedly an incomplete solution of the problem, but it has been described by AFL President George Meany as a step forward.

The proposal, applying only to unions willing to accept it in advance, would establish a system of mediation of disputes between AFL unions, with a final step of arbitration. That means the subscribing unions would agree to let a neutral work out a binding solution of any job-rights problems.

Those unions unwilling to go would have disputes settled by regular AFL machinery. This has not worked out well in the past, because the larger unions have often disregarded AFL council and convention decisions on job disputes.

A number of major AFL unions are reported unwilling to go along with the new plan, preferring to rely on their strength to battle out jurisdictional fights as they go along.

Approval of the plan at today's council meeting would bring it up for consideration tomorrow at a special meeting of presidents and other top officials of the AFL's

110 unions. This meeting can either approve or reject the plan, vote it into effect immediately or refer the whole problem to next fall's AFL convention.

The council will start its regular quarterly meeting here next Monday to study and consider resolutions on such problems as unemployment, pending legislation in Washington, and Eisenhower administration policies.

Also to be considered next week will be the pending "no raiding" agreement between the AFL and CIO. This is similar to the AFL's own "peace" plan for intra-AFL rivalries.

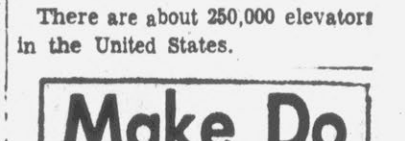

Expects Trouble From That Pole

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Police Sgt. Everett T. Fredin, on desk duty, received a telephone call from a woman. The utility pole in front of her house, she said, was too close to her driveway. Could the pole be moved, please?

"My daughter and I have just learned to drive," she explained, "and I just know that I'm going to hit that pole."

There are about 250,000 elevators in the United States.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U) — The stock market rushed ahead today with vigor and then backed away from its best.

Prices were higher right at the start. Within 10 minutes after the opening the tape was lagging as much as two minutes in reporting actual transactions from the floor of the stock exchange.

That congestion was gone a few minutes later, but prices held and the pace of trading continued good. However, by the second hour prices were under their best and trading slowed. That situation continued in the early afternoon.

At the best, prices were up between 1 and 2 points. Later, however, gains past a point were rare. Small losses dotted the list.

Trading overall hit a fast pace equal to about 2½ million shares for the day. That compares with 2,210,000 shares traded yesterday when the market was advancing.

Railroads were well out in front along with the steels, aircrafts, chemicals, oils, copper, and distillers. The motors were ahead early in the session and then declined to a steady position later.

Among higher stocks were Bethlehem Steel, United Aircraft, Anaconda Copper American Cyanamid, International Business Machines, and Illinois Central.

American Telephone was under some selling pressure from time to time.

CHICAGO (U) — (USDA) — Potatoes: arrivals 70, on track 151; total U.S. shipments 1,156; old stock supplies light; demand good; market slightly stronger, Idaho Russets 5.25-5.35; new stock supplies light, demand good market stronger; Alabama Triumphs 4.65-5.00; California Long Whites 5.15; round reds 4.65.

Joe McCarthy Is Target Of Rally

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (U) — Sen. Joe McCarthy was roundly criticized by students, a political science professor and a state legislator last night at a rally here.

Chanting "Joe must go!" hundreds of students and townspeople followed the Chapel Hill High School Band through town to the stadium to hear Prof. E.J. Woodhouse of the University of North Carolina and Rep. John Umstead verbally lash McCarthy.

Prof. Woodhouse said: "I can't think of any man in the history of this country who has disgraced his state and misrepresented his party as Joe McCarthy has done. Thank God he left the Democratic Party when he did."

"He has disgraced the Senate and made it a laughing stock in the eyes of the world; he had disgraced Wisconsin, even though it's a great state. When you get the wrong kind of man in public office, the consequences are serious and sometimes tragic."

Umstead, known for his fiery speeches on the floor of the House, shouted:

"Joe got into the Senate by deception! Anyone who isn't honest with his God, his country or his fellow human beings doesn't deserve to be called a public-spirited citizen. Why, he's not even fit to be Joe McCarthy!"

"All he has said about Harry Truman and the Army being traitors is a lie."

McCarthy "takes on Eisenhower by thumbing his nose at him and takes on the Army by calling its members traitors." Umstead declared. "Anyone who indicts the Democratic party, George Marshall and Truman is lying."

Umstead told the audience that he spoke to them "not as a partisan, not as a Democrat, but as a plain American citizen."

"I thank the kind providence that McCarthy quit the Democratic party. I would be ashamed to have him as a member."

Somebody Stole The Cornerstone

TRENTON, N. J. (U) — On Tuesday a 200-pound limestone cornerstone for the new women's dormitory at N.J. State Teachers College was laid in a solemn ceremony. The block, for posterity's sake, contained daily newspapers, the school paper and college programs.

Yesterday somebody stole it — from underneath two layers of brick and cement. It hasn't been found.

A quick way to warm up leftover rice is to pour boiling water over it, cover, let stand several minutes and then drain. If you want the rice steaming hot, bring to a boil over high heat after it has stood in the hot water but do not let it cook.

CHICAGO (U) — (USDA) — Salable hogs 7,000; active: 50 or more higher on butchers; sows 25 with spots 50 up; 180-230 lb butchers 27.50-28.00; 200-220 lb 28.00-28.25; 240-270 lb 28.50-27.50; 270-300 lb 25.5 26.75; cows 35-600 lb 20.75-23.50; a few light weights 24.25; good clear-ance.

Gorilla Refuses To Leave Cage

COLUMBUS, Ohio (U) — Columbus Zoo attendants figured the Baron, a 200-pound gorilla, was none too secure in his cage because he would bend his bars. Trying to move him, they used heavy tools to separate the bars but the Baron bent them back into place.

Then they tried to lure him into a trap box using bananas as bait. The Baron calmly reached into the box, stuck a foot on the spring to prevent it from catching and pulled out the bananas.

In desperation, the attendants decided to lure the Baron out by using Christina a female gorilla, as bait and bringing her to the Baron's cage.

There's just one hitch to that. They can't get Christina out of her cage either.

Ready To Play On Prison Team

OAKLAND, Calif. (U) — Things are looking up for the Santa Rita prison farm softball team. Ol' Love And Kisses Love is back to pitch.

Love And Kisses—honest, that's the name he uses—came before Municipal Judge James S. Blaine yesterday on an old and familiar charge, drunk and vagrant. It was the 52nd time since 1942.

"Your honor," said the 54-year-old laborer, "the weather is nice and I'm a good ball player. The softball team needs me."

"Sixty days," quoth the judge, "and I hope you fan plenty of them."

Decorations Of Singer Stolen

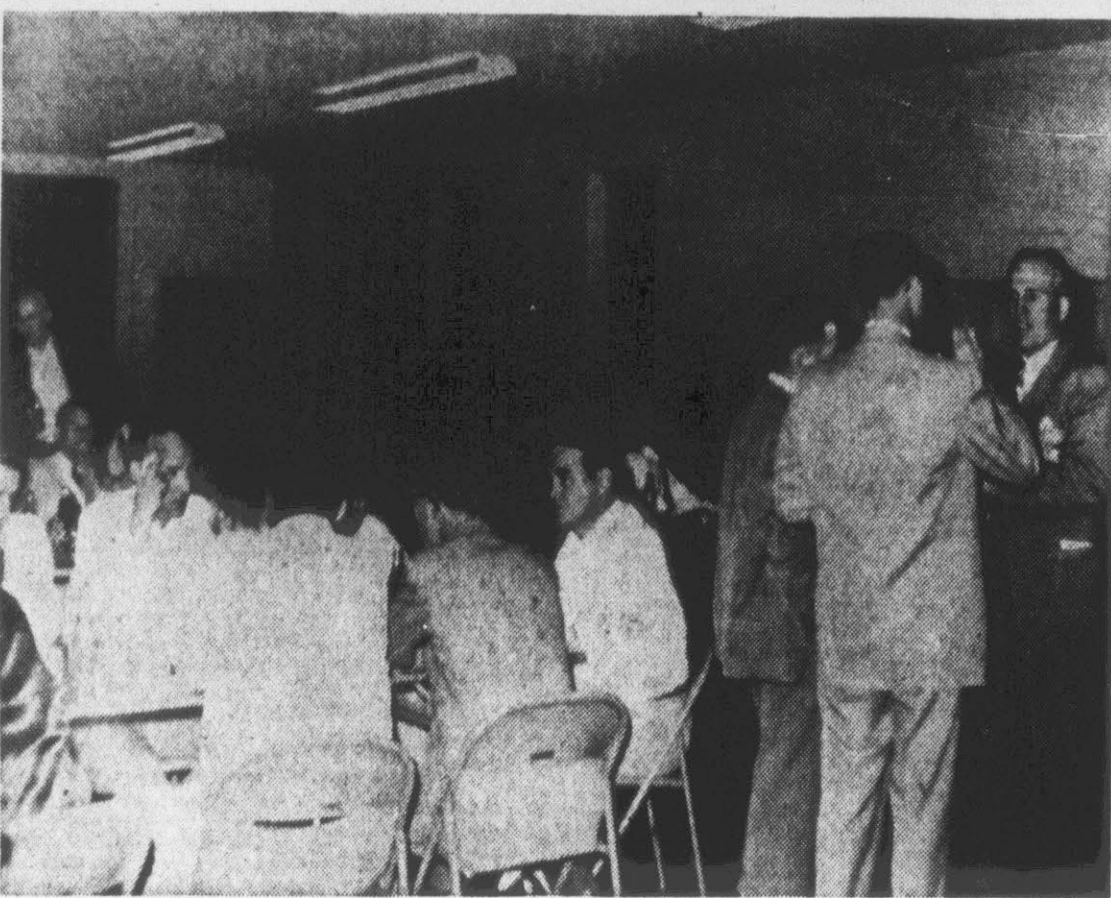

CHICAGO (U) — Two dozen foreign decorations awarded to opera singer Lauritz Melchior were stolen, along with jewelry, from an auto yesterday.

Police estimated the loss at $4,000. But the thieves who broke into the car and stole the leather case containing the medals and jewelry did not disturb cases containing jewelry and clothing valued at $25,000, which were locked in the car's trunk.

Melchior and his wife, Maria, were lunching with friends and the auto containing their luggage had been loaded for a trip to Midway Airport.

Grant Probation In Shooting Case

WILSON — Capt. Obie W. Stover Jr., 31, was given a three-year sentence, suspended on two years probation, here yesterday after a jury found him guilty of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of his wife last June 6.

Judge Don Gilliam passed the sentence after a federal district court jury of 11 white men and one Negro recommended leniency.

Stover's wife, Frances, 28, was found shot in the couple's apartment at the Cherry Point Marine Air Base, where the World War II veteran was stationed.

Local Attorneys Help

It was learned today that two Greenville attorneys, Marvin K. Blount and E. Hoover Taft, played an important role in getting a probable prison sentence suspended, thus placing Stover on probation.

The judge had indicated he was going to give a prison sentence, but after Taft's and Blount's plea the sentence was suspended and he was put on probation.

The jury could have given a verdict of either manslaughter, or murder; however, after the jury gave verdict of involuntary manslaughter, the officer of the jury asked for all leniency possible.

Stover's oldest son, age 10, was in the arms of the defendant at the time the judge pronounced suspended sentence placing Stover on probation. The son jumped out of his father's arms and ran to the judge, throwing his arms around him.

Other attorneys for the defendant included J. Faison Thompson Sr. and J. Faison Thompson Jr. of Goldsboro and James Linder of Hamburg, Ark.

Memorial Rites For U.S. Airmen

HONG KONG (U) — Memorial services were held in the British Royal Air Force chapel here yesterday for two American civilian pilots killed May 6 in Vietnam territory in Indochina.

The fliers, Wallace A. Buford, 26, of Kansas City, Kan., and James B. McGovern, 32, of Elizabeth, N. J., lost their lives when the flying boxcar they were piloting for the French was hit by Vietnamese anti-aircraft and exploded in a crash-landing.

The chapel was packed by friends of the airmen, including officials of the Civil Air Transport Airline (CAT), U. S. Consulate personnel and French air and Army attaches.

Spy Accusations Bring Red Claim

LONDON (U) — Russia today accused a British major now in London of spying on her military secrets and said he could not return to his post in Moscow.

The Soviet charge came just six days after Britain accused two assistant air attaches at the Russian Embassy in London of attempting to engage in spy activities. The two, both majors in the Red Air Force, were given 10 days to leave the country.

Confidence Vote Again Facing French Premier

PARIS (U) — Premier Joseph Laniel sought a vote of confidence today from a balky National Assembly. The outcome will decide the fate of his shaky government and possibly that of the Geneva conference as well.

If 314 negative votes are cast, Laniel will have to resign. His coalition is rounding out its 11th month in office, an unusually long term in France.

Political experts gave him only a slim chance of surviving today's vote.

The issue was the Premier's demand that debate on Indochina be postponed until after the Geneva conference. He won a 311-262 confidence vote on the same question last Thursday, but that was before the fall of Dien Bien Phu aroused nationwide bitterness.

In Laniel's favor, however, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault is in the midst of negotiations at Geneva for much-desired peace in Indochina. To throw out the government now would mean throwing out Bidault as well. While much of the resentment in the Assembly was directed against the foreign minister, many deputies were hesitant about leaving France voiceless at Geneva because of a Cabinet crisis.

The general desire to have France fully represented at international conferences has done much to keep Laniel in office. He won previous confidence votes because of then-impending negotiations, first at Bermuda and later in Berlin.

The deputies have been generally bitter over Laniel's refusal to debate the Indochina situation at this time. Many also feared that if they voted confidence in him, their people back home might interpret it as approval of the Dien Bien Phu situation.

On the other hand a government crisis could lead to dissolution of the Assembly and new elections, which few deputies would relish.

Laniel argued that "an unprepared debate now" on Indochina would lessen the government's authority and would "suspend the work of the Geneva conference."

NAACP Is Given $75,000 Grant

NEW YORK (U) — A $75,000 grant has been presented to the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People by the Philip Murray Memorial Foundation, created in honor of the late CIO president.

The grant, to be used for "educational purposes in race relations," was turned over to the NAACP yesterday by Walter Reuther, Murray's successor.

Turkey Retains President Bayar

ANKARA Turkey (U) — Celal Bayar was assured today of another four-year term as Turkey's president following his nomination by the majority Democrat party.

The parliamentary group of the party, which won a sweeping victory in general elections May 2, decided to put Bayar's name before the new National Assembly when it convenes tomorrow to elect a chief executive.

Three Traffic Accidents Listed

Police reported three traffic accidents yesterday with charges growing out of two of the cases.

At 11:40 a.m. a car driven by Mrs. Eula Lee Forrest of Ayden Route 2 pulled out of a parking space and was hit by a second car driven by James R. Tyson of 112 McClean Street. The force of the impact knocked Mrs. Forrest's vehicle into a car belonging to Carl McKinney. Damage to all three vehicles amounted to $650.

Mrs. Forrest was charged with careless and reckless driving. The accident was investigated by Sgt. W. M. Carr and Patrolman W. R. Elks.

At 12:55 p.m. yesterday cars driven by Otis L. Oakley of Greenville Rte. 1 and Frank Thomas, ECC, collided on the East Carolina campus. Damage to Oakley's vehicle amounted to approximately $200 and to Thomas' car, $150. Campus police investigated and charged Oakley with improper turning and careless and reckless driving.

In a third local accident yesterday vehicles operated by Henry H. Pollard, 108 Ridgeway Street, and Richard Anderson Jr., 110 Hooker Road, collided at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Hooker Road. The collision occurred at 7:55 p.m. and damage amounted to approximately $15. No charges were placed. The accident was investigated by Patrolman M. E. Buck.

Mrs. Ida Sutton Evans Dies Following Illness

Mrs. Ida Sutton Evans, 72, died at her home on 14th Street in Greenville early Thursday morning after a few days of illness.

Funeral services will be at the Wilkerson funeral chapel at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, with her pastor, Rev. Rashie Kennedy, in charge. Burial will follow at Greenwood Cemetery.

The body will remain at the home from Friday afternoon until Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Evans was born in Pitt County and spent all her life in the Greenville community. She was the daughter of the late James A. and Mary Cherry Sutton, and was married to B. Canada Evans. Mr. Evans died in 1935. She was a member of Grace Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville.

Surviving are four sons, Arthur Evans of Robersonville, and Herman, Jimmy and Willie Evans, all of Greenville; two daughters, Mrs. Jack Corey of Greenville and Mrs. A. P. Hines of Jacksonville, Fla.; 25 grandchildren; and two brothers, Leon Sutton of Robersonville and W. A. Sutton of Greenville.
