Mr. Neilson Is Guest Speaker At New Comer's Club Meeting

Mr. J. A. Neilson, minister at Immanuel Baptist Church, was guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Newcomers Club held Thursday at the Woman's Club. The subject that Mr. Neilson chose was "Woman," which proved to be a most interesting and pleasant subject full of wit and humor. A number of poems were read and numerous stories were told that gave an insight into the nature of woman. "Hints to a Husband," "I'm Tied Down" and "The Longest Hour" were very appropriate and entertaining selections. In conclusion, Mr. Neilson paid tribute to the two women who had influenced his life—his mother and his wife. He stated that his mother planted seed in his early life that bore fruit in later years. He attributed her with giving him his high ideals of woman, home and marriage. Mr. Neilson said that as they had shared life together he had come to appreciate woman more fully. During the business session, Mrs. Fred Hall, president, thanked the club for its contribution to Open House held recently at the club. She thanked Mrs. James Hughes and Mrs. E. J. Keister particularly for their musical selections during the tea hour. Newcomers Council meeting was announced for Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the president's home on Cotanche Street. Secrecy, Good Government Incompatible

The people of North Carolina want their government's business to be handled in the open as it should be.

They want no iron curtains or locked doors between them and the elected officials who are charged with the responsibility of spending the money which is collected from the people of the state as taxpayers.

The sentiment of the people of North Carolina on this important issue of keeping the public's business public is reflected by the candidates for the legislature in the current campaign.

The vast majority of the members of the 1953 legislature who supported the secrecy legislation last year have now pledged their support to a movement to repeal the secrecy legislation. Most of the candidates who were not members of the 1953 General Assembly have likewise pledged their efforts to removing the ill-advised secrecy legislation from the statutes of North Carolina. They realize, as do the majority of the rank and file citizens of North Carolina, the danger of such secrecy in government.

Yet there are some legislative candidates who supported the secrecy bill in the last session of the General Assembly who are still in favor of keeping the peoples' business hidden from the people.

These individuals are seeking — we hope in vain — to convince the good people of North Carolina that secrecy is necessary for good government. They are striving to hoodwink the people of the state into believing that the way for the members of the General Assembly to do their best work is behind locked doors to keep interested citizens from knowing what is going on until the final issue has been cut and dried, and there is nothing left to do but go through the formality of adopting or rejecting a piece of legislation.

If public business is to remain public, there must in the 1954 General Assembly and all the others which follow, a sufficient majority of members who are dedicated to the principle of keeping the peoples' business at all times open to the people.

The choice is up to the voters who will elect the men to represent them in the 1954 General Assembly.

Another Great Loss For North Carolina

The loss of Senator Clyde R. Hoey will be keenly felt throughout the state of North Carolina and in the halls of the United States Senate where he has been a staunch leader and a statesman of quiet dignity.

The frock coat, the winged collar and the rose in the lapel which have been the trade marks of the former governor and senator will long be remembered on the North Carolina scene as they will on Capitol Hill.

Clyde R. Hoey served the people of his state well from the time he entered the political arena at the tender age of 20 until his death this week. As a member of the Senate from 1945 until his death he was a stalwart Democrat, clinging tenaciously to the principles of Jeffersonian Democracy in his service to the people of the nation.

Thousands of words have been written North Carolina. His life's story from school in the past few days about this leader at the age of 12 to country newspaper editor at the age of 16 to the state legislature at the age of 20 has been told and retold.

The bitter campaign which swept Clyde Roark Hoey into the governor's mansion in 1937, and the reign of progressiveness and harmony throughout the state which developed under his leadership as chief executive of the state for four years have been revived afresh in the minds of many North Carolinians.

His sound leadership, his fair play and his statesmanship as a Senator have been called to the attention of the people by newspapers throughout the land since his untimely death.

The death of Senator Hoey indeed comes as a bitter blow to the people of North Carolina. It leaves the state without appreciable seniority in the Senate, and it deprives the state of further service of one of its most outstanding political leaders which developed during the past half century.

The loss of Clyde R. Hoey is keenly felt now by the people of his native North Carolina, and the loss will be felt just as keenly in the months to come.

Selected Shorts

TWENTYNINE PALMS, CALIF. DESERT TRAIL — "One of the plagues of the small town editor is the remark heard that 'nobody reads the local paper.' If no one does why is it that the editor gets bawled out if he allows a mis-spelled name to get into print. Why do local organizations and persons seek aid of the paper when they have some community project to put over? A community newspaper is an integral part of the family circle."

VIRGINIA, MINN. MESABY DAILY NEWS — "That the buyers' market is here is not to be denied. For many years we have been in a sellers' market. What you wanted, you went to a seller to get, and that's all there was to it. Now salesmanship technique is getting attention and the buyer is being sought out. This brings into play those elements in competition to which this nation owes its growth and its achievements."

STANDING AMONG POLITICIANS whose daily greetings has been a growl.
GOP MISTAKES SOLIDIFY DEMOCRATS — In such an atmosphere, if it lasts, the two antagonistic wings may find themselves able to present a united front against Eisenhower and the Republicans next fall and in 1956. A victory in the Congressional contests, with possible bright auguries for 1956, could be a successful surgical operation.

LIKE PURSUING PREDECESSORS' PROGRAM? — Most Southerners, in fact, backed the major portions of the Roosevelt-Truman foreign policy, which Eisenhower lashed so bitterly in the campaign. But now they believe that he is pursuing the main principles of the program he had ridiculed.

DESPITE SOUTHERN SUPPORT, Ike has not taken friendly and sympathetic Democrats into his confidence. Otherwise, Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia would not be fighting his reduction in defense and farm parity levels. Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia's failure to whittle down Federal cost and personnel. Senator Walter F. George of Georgia his tax schedules, and Senator Johnson his handling of the Indo-China crisis. Otherwise, the Democrats would not have voted solidly against him on Taft-Hartley revision.

These developments indicate that the Republican dream of dividing the Democrats permanently, and of building a permanent GOP organization below the Mason and Dixon Line, has vanished. The Democratic lines here and elsewhere still hold.

Big Wheels OK If You Like 'em

Somebody asked me yesterday if I have interviewed any big wheels since I've been writing this column. "I guess there were some you could call wheels," I said. "But I have enjoyed interviewing local people much more. So many big wheels realize their importance, others conceal it." Here's the list as I recall it:

Gary Moore, television: Over a year ago I wrote Gary, told him I would be in New York at a certain time and "my paper would be impressed if I could arrange an interview with you." His secretary called me at the hotel, left arrangements at the stage door for Wife Rachel and me to come in and sit on the front row and lined me up to see Gary after his TV show.

He was very cordial, but I actually think he looked on the interview as simply part of a day's work. His secretary supplied me with a mimeographed biography that was ump-teen pages long, which I could have written a short book about.

Dave Garroway, television: On the same New York trip I bumped into Dave in the RCA building, by accident. He got on an elevator and I talked him up to the eighth floor. Once alone in the hall I approached him for an interview. Of the few celebrities I have talked to, Dave was by far the most receptive to a small-town boy. He invited me into the studio to observe his NBC radio show, which doesn't have an audience. During the so-called rehearsal I was persuaded to have coffee with the staff. Band leader Skitch Henderson was around in the hall session, which was more interesting and made mole column material than the interview did.

One of Dave's yes-men gave me a biography on him, which revealed that he came to NBC as a page boy in 1937, when NBC's president was living in a pent-house on Fifth Avenue. Now Dave lives there. He's my choice of the so-called wheels.

Lawrence Melchior, Metropolitan opera star, who performed at East Carolina College, is interested in any publicity he can get. When I tried to break into his dressing room during the intermission I met a blockade at the door. When he overheard my statement to the doorman that I was from the press he bellowed: "Let the press in!" Melchior is very well aware of his importance. I would say, yet very friendly. It was much more fun to interview Patrice Munsel, also of the Met, when she was in Greenville. The one word that describes her is lush.

Would you consider Band Leader Tex Beneke a celebrity? If so, he would be on the list. In his case I tried to learn all I could about the Glenn Miller days without underplaying Beneke.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

OUR MANAGED CURRENCY (Wilson Times) — Until we abandoned the gold standard in 1933, we heard little or nothing about a managed currency. But when we abandoned that standard we threw all caution to the winds. Was it good or bad for the nation? Much depends on your understanding of the words managed economy. If you think that the Secretary of the Treasury can sit in Washington and manipulate buttons, causing business to go up or down at will, you're badly mistaken. If, on the other hand, you think that, without restraints, the flooding of the nation with printed dollars is inflationary and therefore bad, you're somewhat orthodox in your beliefs.

When Roosevelt neutralized gold, allowing the American dollar to seek its own level in international trade, he gave away what was equivalent to a billion and a half of American merchandise each year. For you must remember that the people of South America don't go around with American dollars in their pockets. Thus, when they wanted an American typewriter that cost $100, they took their money to the banks and exchanged it for American dollars. Where before they got one for one, after the revaluation they got two for one. Thus, it was possible for a South American to buy an American typewriter for $50 while we in America were paying $100 for it.

Not many Americans understood the effects of that revaluation. Our imports were increased and more unemployed Americans were called back to work. But that wasn't the only effects of the devaluation. We could and did revalue gold, quite arbitrarily, which made possible the issuance of more paper money. But what was behind that money? If it weren't acceptable elsewhere what value would it be to you if you were outside the states? Since, however, we've had a so-called managed currency. The government, supposedly at will, can raise or lower its buying power. But wouldn't you feel safer if it were backed by some metallic base? Then the government behaved as any business behaved; since, whether we like it or not, it's the arbiter of its own decisions.

Senatorial Candidates And League Of Women Voters

By LYNN NISBET
COMPARISON — Five candidates for the Democratic nomination and the Republican nominee for the United States Senate appeared on the same platform Tuesday night, affording the first opportunity of the campaign for immediate comparison. The occasion was the dinner at the Sir Walter Hotel incident to the annual convention of the North Carolina League of Women Voters.

The candidates were asked to spend about five minutes each discussing the kind of trade and tariff laws best adapted to increasing unity in the free world, and then to answer questions from the floor on various pertinent issues.

Presented to the dinner guests and a large radio audience in order of their ranking for office were: W.M. Bostick, W. Kerr Scott, Alton A. Lennon, A.E. Turner and Alvin Wingfield Jr., Democrats, and Paul C. West, Republican.

All of the panelists handled themselves well in the original presentation, with nothing new or different from the expected in their statements. Scott and Lennon hold similar beliefs in support of Democratic tariff policies, reciprocal trade agreements and other phases of the problem. Scott was more specific in support of extending existing agreements for three to five years, Lennon somewhat more specific with respect to exchanging goods and dollars. Both indicated preference for trade rather than direct aid in international economics.

Wingfield was more sure of himself, more ready with responses, but weakened his position by evident desire to prove his erudition by quoting German and citing authorities of ancient Greece and Rome. He was a bit too high brow for his audience. West was ready with answers in understandable terms and gave the impression of sincerity and loyalty to convictions.

It being generally conceded that either Alton Lennon will remain in the Senate or will be replaced by ex-Governor Kerr Scott, major interest centers on their responses to the questions. Several of Scott's most loyal supporters conceded that he came out a poor second in that comparison.

Answering a question about proposed changes in rules of the Senate, Scott said he had a little matter on his hands in North Carolina recently and had not given much attention to "the boysup there." Lennon was definite in opposition to one-man investigating committee procedure, and high-handed treatment of witnesses.

Another question was directed to Scott as to his position on the George amendment, a substitute for the Bricker amendment to the Federal constitution designed to restrict the power of the President to negotiate agreements with other nations without congressional approval. His answer was that he had gotten along all right with the constitution as it is, "but if you will tell me what the George amendment is, I'll try to answer." Mrs. M.W. Peterson, who as moderator was relaying the questions, replied that she did not write the questions but was just passing them along, then called upon Senator Lennon to explain the George Amendment, which he did.

ASSURANCE — There was no material difference in opinions expressed by Ex-Governor Scott and Senator Lennon in answering questions about farm price supports and electric power. Both favor rigid 90 per cent of parity on basic crop price supports and both favor continuation of government sponsorship of electric power generation within reasonable limits. Even in these areas where Scott is supposed to be an authority, Lennon's answers were clearer and quicker, indicating more assurance and as much real knowledge of the problems involved.

Retailers' Advertising

By ELMER ROESSNER
Retailers have just been doubly spanked for their advertising once by Charlotte Montgomery, Tide magazine columnist, and once by Edward Carroll, a department-store promotion manager. Miss Montgomery let members of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, meeting in Washington, D.C., have these complaints: Advertising often lacks essential information, such as the store's address, its phone number and its hours. "Once in a while," she said, "I can't even find the name of the store without real searching."

Association conference at Atlantic City. Using a Marilyn Monroe type of model to hold a map in a kitchen scene, a Marjorie I. Trich type at a kitchen range, an Ava Gardner counterpart wishing a vacuum cleaner is a form of misrepresentation, he declared. A Tyrone Power might, in an ad, sell fancy dress shirts, he said, but for a sale of coat sweaters, a Wally Cox would be better. And for advertising models displaying work pants, corduroy jackets and overalls, he recommended the Andy Devine type. SHOPPERS LACK LOYALTY... UNIVERSITY SURVEY SHOWS.

Much advertising, she said, lacks sufficient information. Ads offer stockings in "Bark," "Ombré" and "Gay Blade" colors, with no explanation of what they are; they offer flashy promotion of the name of a lipstick color, but tell nothing about how to put on a prettier mouth.

Only about one in eight customers has any degree of store loyalty, the New York University School of Retailing concluded after a survey of former credit customers of the Loeser store in Brooklyn which closed in 1952. F. Dart Ellsworth, writing in the school's Journal of Retailing, said the customers made only slightly more than one in 11 purchases at the store. While most customers said they had a favorite store, they made only a little more than one in six of their purchases in the favorite.

Advertisements say "easy" far too easily, she said, adding "I wonder whether the copywriter who says this or that goes together in a flash has ever laid a floor or papered a wall or painted unpainted furniture, using the manufacturer's directions." She suggested that erring copywriters be sentenced to waterproofing a cellar with one of the "so easy" compounds.

And while the customers had a wide selection of goods in Loeser's and other Brooklyn stores, for some reason they had a strong disposition to journey to Manhattan for purchases of men's outer coats, men's shoes, women's cloth coats, men's suits, rugs and carpets, bed sheets, women's handbags, major furniture pieces and bath towels. The survey could not determine the cause of gregariousness when shopping for these particular items.

Soldiers Always Disillusioned

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—During the American Revolution a considerable number of Frenchmen, following Lafayette's example, came over here as volunteer fighters for freedom. Many of these Gallic idealists, however, were sadly disillusioned by the treatment they received in frontier America. They wrote long letters of complaint back home to their friends in France, the gist of which was roughly as follows: "What a crude and ungrateful people these Americans are! Here we have crossed an ocean to help them fight for and win their liberty."

Great Britain. A poll of 5,000 U.S. soldiers and airmen there by a British newspaper showed that more than 8 out of 10 believe shopkeepers, landlords and cab drivers are gouging them merely because they are Americans. Taken at its face value, this poll might be viewed as indicating a serious rift between our servicemen and our British allies.

"And how do they show their appreciation? These farmer 'patriots' refuse to give us hay for our horses unless we pay in advance. The American storekeepers are all robbers—every one. As soon as they find out we are French, they immediately double the price on everything. They seem to think every Frenchman is a millionaire."

It is unlikely, however, that the poll really proves any such thing. Soldiers-ever since the Romans—have been firmly convinced that, wherever stationed, the civilians take them for suckers and hike the prices on them.

Would you consider Band Leader Tex Beneke a celebrity? If so, he would be on the list. In his case I tried to learn all I could about the Glenn Miller days without underplaying Beneke.

A poll among troops at most bases in this country would show probably a majority of the men are firmly convinced the storekeepers in the area are engaged in a mass plot to overcharge them. Certainly they felt that way in war-time, and it must be admitted that often they were right. They were gulled by many a pinch-penny profiteer.

"Believe me, my dear Andre, if you are still planning to come over to help in the struggle for independence, you would do well to abandon such ideas at once and remain where you are in our beloved Paris. These Americans are a race of bandits. Far from deserving their freedom, they should in my opinion all be thrown in jail until they learn a little honesty."

There is undoubtedly justification for the complaints made against British shopkeepers, a number of whom are convinced all Americans are rich and that the U.S. motto is "Fun at Any Price." It is also true, as the paper which made the poll pointed out, that the longer American servicemen stay in Britain the better they like the country. Most of our men who serve in Britain have a good time there and make firm friends.

Looking at the other side of the picture, it must be realized that it is difficult for a people to have foreign troops quartered among them, even though they are allies and speak roughly the same language. Britain, it has always seemed to me, meets this problem with more grace and hospitality than any other nation. One measure of this hospitality is the fact that between 1946 and 1950 American servicemen returned home with 35,469 British brides.

A U.S. soldier has one simple way to deal with a British shopkeeper he feels has swindled him. He can always marry the guy's daughter and demand his dough back in the form of a dowry.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
A STITCH IN TIME
Recently a pipe broke in a closed theatre in New England. For two days the water poured in unnoticed, and when someone finally discovered what was happening, it was sixteen feet deep in some places. Repairs to the theatre cost about ten thousand dollars.

All that damage came from a single small hole in the many hundred feet of pipes in the theatre. All the rest of the piping was sound. But one leak was enough; the damage was done.

I know a man just like that theatre. In most respects, he is admirable; he is intelligent, educated, successful, wealthy, respected—or, at least, he was respected. But he has one serious weakness, one that was hidden for a long time but now at last has grown too great to hide: alcoholism. And through this single break are gradually pouring his position, his success, his money, his happiness, his health, and, no doubt, in the end his very life itself.

What is the answer? Well, it is the same for the man and the theatre. If the plumber had come soon enough, the damage could have been prevented. If that man in question had sought—and accepted—help from his clergyman, his physician, perhaps his friends, he could have been saved.

The time to stop the leak is when—or even before—it starts.

Extraordinary Demo Harmony

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The maximum number of Democratic Senators who have deserted the Party on five key votes at this session is three. It is an extraordinary record of harmony for a minority group that threatened to founder when President Eisenhower won all but five states in 1952, with valiant support from Dixie.

Senate Minority Leader Lyndon Johnson is not deceived by this floor show of solidarity. He recognizes that the Byrd-George and Lehman-Humphrey factions are still split wide apart on fundamental issues not involved in these five tests. But his patience and restraint are paying temporary dividends that may be reinvested in long-term rewards.

Both the relatively youthful Texan and his partner from the Lone Star State, House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn, have been criticized by their colleagues for want of a belligerent spirit. Their answer has been that they were simply waiting for Eisenhower and his discordant GOP to occupy a more exposed position. They planned to capitalize on the Republicans' inherent weaknesses, politically and legislatively.

It was a "Wait until you see the whites of their eyes" strategy.

BASIS DISAGREEMENTS STILL EXIST—Johnson has called only one caucus because he knew that it would accentuate Democratic differences. Instead, he held his fire until he had a broad target to shoot at—namely the White House batch of proposed legislation. The opposition's unity had to be negative before it could become positive.

Illustrated Talk About Honduras

James H. Webb, Jr., of the U. S. Information Agency gave East Carolina College students a glimpse of the Republic of Honduras in an illustrated lecture at the College Thursday. He emphasized the importance of U. S. aid in furthering Honduran progress and fostering better international understanding.

Now on leave as Public Affairs Officer with the U. S. Information Agency in Honduras, Mr. Webb has recently returned to this country from Tegucigalpa. He spoke at the college under the sponsorship of the social studies and the foreign languages departments.

An initial travelogue by Mr. Webb was illustrated with lantern slides and depicted the beauties of Honduras and its history, dating back to the ancient native civilizations and the Spanish Conquest.

The export trade and such industries as lumber, coffee and banana growing and mining are most important in the developing economy of the country he said.

In a brief account of cooperative measures between this country and the Republic of Honduras, Mr. Webb stated that U. S. aid has been effective in helping the Hondurans to better their educational, health, and agricultural programs.

Laborites Gain In Council Voting

LONDON—Britain's Labor party surged forward today with a net gain of 512 seats in returns from borough council elections in England and Wales. The Conservatives suffered a sharp setback, showing a net loss of 388.

Results of yesterday's balloting showed the Laborites had wrested control of 13 borough councils, including York, Northampton, Reading, Colchester and Ipswich. All 13 had previously been dominated by Conservatives or independents.

The count showed the Laborites gained 546 council seats while losing 34. The Conservatives picked up 60 but lost 448.

There was a similar swing to the Labor party in borough elections held last week in Scotland.

Despite the sharp swing to Labor, the local elections did not necessarily provide a key to the national political situation. Nationally, the Labor party is badly split as a result of left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan's rebellion against the endorsement by the party's moderate leadership of the Conservative government's "pro-American" foreign policy.

Practice In Rain Pays Off For Chapman In Tourney

Jameson Leading In Women's Open

By KEN ALYTA

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Practice in the rain pays off. Some eight weeks ago during the North and South Women's Golf Tournament at Pinehurst, Dick Chapman played the rugged No. 2 course in a driving rain in par 72 figures. He reported the score, drenched but happy, to a reporter who hadn't dared put so much as a big toe out the door in view of the cloudburst.

The rain wasn't as heavy yesterday, but it was a day-long drenching that greeted the field for a double round in the Carolina Golf Assn. tournament and Chapman showed the benefits of his earlier rugged training methods. The former U. S. and British Amateur king ate up the Myers Park Club course in his morning test. He shot five under par, to stump Dick Rendleman of Salisbury, 6 and 5.

Chapman was two over in the afternoon, but a sensational rally that saw him win four holes in a row starting at 12 carried him to a 2 and 1 decision over upset-minded Keeley Grice Jr. of Charlotte. That double victory sent Chapman into today's 36-hole semifinals against another Charlottean, John McCann Jr.

The other paired Ed Gravely of Rocky Mount and John White of Sparta, 6. C. Thirty-six hole finals follow tomorrow.

Chapman has been most complimentary of McCann's swing and his game in general. Today he got his chance to observe it first hand.

The 25-year-old insurance man played par golf in both matches yesterday as he stopped Ken Powell, Charlotte 2 and 1, and George Brownlow, Winston-Salem, 1 up. Brownlow had beaten Ray Taylor Jr. Greensboro, 3 and 2, after winning the first four holes in his first match of the day.

Gravely shot par golf to stop Bill Belton of Gastonia, 4 and 3, then slid two over in scoring over Jack Starnes of Charlotte, 3 and 2. Starnes had put out husky Harry Welch of Salisbury, 2 and 1.

White put on two amazing rallies to remain as South Carolina's only representative. The paper bag manufacturer edged Charles Conner Jr. of Charlotte, 2 and 1, after trailing by three at the turn. In the afternoon he won from Edison Ford, also of Charlotte, 3 and 1, after leaving the 11th tee two down.

He hadn't won a hole to that point, but took 11 and 12 with pars to get even. Then White's pars on 14 put him ahead and he birdied No. 15 to go two up. He won 17 to close out the match.

Chapman really is on the spot because his past record hardly merits a Garden main event. He has won only one of his last eight although his career record, dating back to 1948 is much better, 34-14-1. The 26-year-old blond has fought them all in Europe, giving up his French middleweight title when he came over here.

Royer will have to be a rough customer to take care of Jones who has been improving with each start in recent months. Beaten last August by Kid Gavilan at 153 pounds, Jones stopped Bobby Dykes and easily whipped Billy McNece at his normal weight 157 pounds. The latest ring ratings placed him behind Joe Giardello and Castellani as contenders for Bobo Olson.

Doubles play also is scheduled to get under way today. Rain interrupted yesterday's opening play after 24 matches were played.

TOKYO (AP)—Japan and the United States today signed an agreement transferring two U. S. destroyers and two destroyer escorts to Japan on a loan basis.

Finals To Start

Finals in the 1954 Greenville Golf and Country Club tournament will open tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 on the local course.

The 36-hole action, 18 holes tomorrow and 18 holes Sunday, will match young Milt Massey against veteran Reynolds May for the city championship. Massey eliminated four-times champion W. L. Allen in last week's semi-finals while May was disposing of defending champion Simon Moye.

The public is invited to watch the rounds. Large galleries followed both teams in last week's rather sensational semi-final rounds.

Five Top Drivers In Raleigh Race

RALEIGH.—Five of the top eight drivers in Grand National Circuit standings, including current leader Buck Baker of Charlotte, will compete in the sportsmen's races at Raleigh Speedway tonight. Track Manager Jim Chesnut announced today.

In addition, Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., winner of the national modified championship last year, will race for the first time on the asphalt quarter-mile Speedway track. Another champion in the Friday speed events will be Herb Thomas of Olivia, 1953 Grand National winner and current holder of fourth place in national point standings.

Other big-time race drivers competing here will include Dick Rathman of Daytona Beach Fla., third place man in national point standings; Ralph Ligouri of The Bronx, N. Y., and Fayetteville, holder of seventh place; and Curtis Turner of Roanoke, Va., who occupies the eighth spot in national standings.

Rathman will drive the white No. 20 owned by Howard Finch and J. L. Justice of Raleigh.

Appearance of these star drivers assures plenty of action in the sportsmen's races, which will include three heats and the 25-lap feature.

Amateurs will race in two heats and a feature.

Warm-ups will start at 7 o'clock and the first race is set for 8 o'clock. Children under 12 will be admitted free if accompanied by adults.

Good Year For G-Men In Spring Athletics

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer
This year Greenville High School enjoyed one of its greatest spring sports seasons in many, many moons as the track and baseball teams racked up impressive wins.

The track squad won three-out of four dual meets, came in second in an All-Eastern Regionals, and placed ninth in the State Meet. The baseball squad finished third in conference baseball play with a 7-4 record, the best turned in by a Phantoms baseball team in the last decade.

The season opened its season at home and won from Raleigh by a 65-46 score. They then turned back Fayetteville by a score of 65-48. Then came the Eastern Regionals with the Greensles proving they were the second best team in the east with 26 points, 10 ahead of the next team although they were far behind winner Durham.

In Raleigh the Greenville team experienced its first defeat in the past two years in dual competition when the Capitals ran over the Phantoms by a 65-47 score.

The team got some of its prestige back, however, when it defeated Fayetteville by a 59-1-6 to 53-5-6 score the next week. Then came the State Meet in which the Greensles own Harold Edwards became the new State Champion in the high jump.

Baseballers Year
For Coach Bob Farley baseball team, it was their year. They turned in a surprising amount of victories compared to the teams before them. The G-men had an overall record of 4-5.

The season opened in Rocky Mount where the G-men were edged out by 5-4. Then Farmville was downed 1-0 behind the brilliant twinning pitching of freshman Hudson Miller.

The rest of the Greenville games were conference games after the first two non-conference affairs. They downed Washington 12-5 to get off to a good start in conference play, then Elizabeth City shut out the Phantoms 2-0 and Roanoke Rapids squeezed out a 5-4 victory before the G-men could get right again.

After the two losses in a row the Phantoms settled down and won five straight games to put them near the top in the conference pile-up. The victims were Jacksonville 10-6, Kingston 7-6, New Bern 10-4, Elizabeth City 4-3, and Roanoke Rapids 10-6. Jacksonville upset the Greenville plans of winning the conference title by upsetting the Phantoms 8-3. Kingston stepped in and booted the Phants while they were down by the tune of 10-7. Coach Bob Farley's Phantoms had to end the season right, however, so they edged past Washington's Pam-Pack 3-2 in the season's finale.

All in all it was a pretty good spring for Greenville High School.

Bannister Warned Off TV To Protect Amateur Status

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Bannister, the four-minute miler, must feel like his famous countrywoman Alice did when she tumbled down the rabbit hole.

And Roger isn't the only one. There must be literally millions of red-blooded Americans and Britons, both who are wondering what happened, and why, after the latest miracle runner landed here a couple of mornings ago thinking he was going to appear on a number of television programs.

The average, lightly formed impression probably is that Bannister was warned off the project which was purely a patriotic one on his part, because it might endanger his amateur standing and render him ineligible to run in the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne.

It is true that our own amateur athletic officials, being extremely conscientious about such matters, did slip the word to their opposite numbers in Britain that it was against the rules for Bannister to appear on a program which was commercially sponsored—with certain reservations. It also is true that our British cousins took the hint and advised their flying object to watch himself. But that's about as far as the mixed-up affair Bannister makes sense.

The plain, undisputed fact is that number of American track stars—at least one of them a winner in the last Olympics—have shown their smiling faces on various commercial programs in recent years.

Why, then, did everyone connected with the "secret" trip swoon dead away upon receipt of word from the AAU that this country, unlike Britain, had commercial television? It is a puzzler, but an executive of the AAU, which was to have transmitted the Bannister show thinks it is a clue.

"Since Bannister, says his 3:59.4 mile," he said, "has been extended official invitations to compete in at least three track meets in this country. He turned them all down, saying that his medical studies made it impossible. Then all of a sudden he turns up here, not to run, but to appear on a TV show. I don't imagine that pleased our officials very much."

The man's dark suspicions possibly are not justified, but at least no one has yet come up with a better explanation. In justice to the AAU, that body insists it merely was being helpful.

Will a present-day pitcher ever pitch a perfect game? This fine old baseball debate was revived again today after the latest feat of near-perfection by Robin Roberts, the right-handed half of the Philadelphia Phillies' "Gold Dust Twins."

Roberts gave up a home run to Bobby Adams, leading off for Cincinnati last night, and then retired 27 men without another one reaching first base. He won 8-1.

Except that it was a home run instead of a single, Roberts' game was virtually a carbon copy of one tossed a year ago this week by his buddy, lefty Curt Simmons. Simmons mowed down the Milwaukee Braves in order through nine complete innings after Billy Bruton had singled as the leadoff batter.

Neither Roberts nor Simmons was born when Charles Robertson of the Chicago White Sox beat Detroit in April 1922 in the majors' last perfect game—no runs, no hits, no base runners. Only three others ever have recorded in the modern majors, none of them in the National League.

Two weeks ago Roberts pitched his first one-hitter, against Milwaukee. That time he walked three men.

The Phillies maintained their half game, first-place lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who beat St. Louis 10-3. Milwaukee defeated Pittsburgh 4-2 and New York whipped Cincinnati 6-3 in other National League action.

In the American League, New York edged Detroit 5-3 in 10 innings on Yogi Berra's two-run homer; Boston beat Baltimore 9-1; Philadelphia defeated Chicago 3-2; and Cleveland shaded Washington 8-7 in 11 innings.

If the Cardinals could figure out a way to miss Brooklyn on their Eastern swing they undoubtedly would be much happier. They lost in Ebbets Field for the 12th straight time in two seasons, this time to southpaw Johnny Podres, who won his fourth in a row. A six-run uprising against Gerry Staley in the sixth inning finished off the Cards' chances.

Chet Nichols, who was supposed to take up the slack left in the Milwaukee pitching staff upon the departure of Johnny Antonelli and Max Surkont, won his second game after three losses in beating Pittsburgh. He gave up eight hits, all singles.

Milwaukee moved ahead of both Cincinnati and St. Louis into the first division.

The Giants laid down a home-run barrage that left the Cubs staggering in the Polo Grounds. They hit five, including two by Monte Irvin.

Home runs by New York's American League representative ruined the evening for baseball's largest crowd of the season—50,916 at Briggs Stadium in Detroit. Trailing 3-1, the Yankees caught up in the eighth on Irv Noren's two-run homer and then won in the 10th when Berra parked one into the upper right-field seats with one aboard.

Inspired by a practice home run by Ted Williams, the Red Sox broke out of their hitting slump and slammed Baltimore pitching for 11 safeties. They bunched five of them, along with two Oriole errors, for six runs in the third. Williams, although dressed, was not in the playing lineup.

The Athletics used a two-run rally in the ninth to snap a six-game losing streak at the expense of the White Sox. A single by Gus Zernial and a double by Pete Suffer drove in the winning runs off Virgil Trucks.

The Indians beat Washington although they went into the last of the ninth inning trailing by six runs. Al Rosen touched off the late spree with a home run and doubled in the winning run in the 11th.

Qualifying Heats Scheduled Today

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Qualifying heats were scheduled here this afternoon to determine entrants for tomorrow's finals in the Atlantic Coast Conference track meet.

The University of Maryland is host to Duke, North Carolina, N. C. State, Virginia, Clemson and South Carolina for the meet. Only Wake Forest among the eight ACC members will not participate.

This is the first track meet for the new Atlantic Coast Conference, which was formed by members breaking off from the Southern Conference. Maryland dominated Southern Conference track for the last three years, but is expected to get a lot of opposition from Duke and North Carolina today and tomorrow.

Elijah Rebukes Ahab

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Kings 21.

King Ahab of Israel asked his neighbor, Naboth, to trade him his vineyard which, Ahab wanted to make into an herb garden. Naboth refused to give it up because the vineyard was part of his inheritance.

King Ahab was so disappointed that he threw himself on his bed and refused to eat or drink. Jezebel told the king to cheer up, that she would get rid of Naboth and then Ahab could have the land.

Jezebel wrote letters in Ahab's name proclaiming a fast. Naboth was to be set high above the people, then two men would accuse him of blasphemy to God and he would be carried out and stoned to death.

Elijah warned the king that for this evil deed and his wife would die ignominiously. Frightened, Ahab dressed himself in sackcloth and fasted, humbling himself before Jehovah.

Elijah Rebukes Ahab

PROPHET FORETELLS FEARFUL DEATH FOR THE KING AND HIS WICKED WIFE

Scripture—I Kings 21.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. COVETOUSNESS seems at first glance a fault, not a crime. If not curbed, however, it may lead to theft, even to murder, as it did in the case of King Ahab of Israel, aided and abetted by his wicked wife.

feast and "set Naboth on high among the people." Then two men would come forth—accuse him of blasphemy of God and king, and he should be carried away and stoned to death.

This dreadful plan was carried through, so Ahab had his plot of ground, but we may wonder if he enjoyed it very much.

The Lord's word came to Elijah, telling the prophet what Jezebel and Ahab had done, and that at that moment Ahab was in Naboth's vineyard. Elijah went and confronted the king, telling him that the Lord said that as he had killed Naboth for his land, he too would die a shameful death and the kingdom would be taken away from him.

When Elijah stood before Ahab, the guilty king said: "Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?" Jezebel too would die a dreadful death because of her wickedness in plotting the death of Naboth, Elijah said.

Because of Ahab's evil deed and because of his idol worship these things would come upon him and his household, the Lord said, and Ahab was frightened. He rent his king coveted. The owner's name was Naboth, and Ahab spoke to him, offering to give him a better piece of land in exchange for the vineyard which the king wished to convert to a herb garden. Naboth told the king that the land was an inheritance from his fathers and he could not part with it.

clothes and "put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and lay in sackcloth and went softly." Then the word of the Lord came again to Elijah, saying: "Seest thou how Ahab humbled himself before Me? because he humbled himself before Me, I will not bring the evil in his days but in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house."

So punishment for King Ahab's evil deeds was postponed for a time because of the Lord's goodness.

How few people, it seems, can be trusted not to misuse power. We have seen it happen in our own day. Adolf Hitler might have been a power for good in his country if he had chosen the right road. The Russian nation under a truly democratic leadership might be an influence for peace and benevolence in the world, in stead of using its powers to enslave other nations and hold them in subjection.

It is for us as individuals to help the world, even in small ways by rejoicing with those who do rejoice, and weeping with those who mourn. We can train ourselves to be unselfish, to follow Christ's teaching, to love our neighbors as ourselves. We will be much happier ourselves and help others to be so too.

At Least One Brando Is Working On Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At least one Brando is working in Hollywood these days. It's Jocelyn, pretty sister of muscular Marlon.

Jocelyn is playing opposite Randolph Scott called "Old Reliable" because of his box-office potential; in a Western named "Violent Men." It's just about run the cycle," she observed between scenes. "My first picture, 'The Big Heat,' was a crime picture. The second, 'China Venture,' was an adventure film. Now I'm doing a Western. All that is left is parlor, bedroom and bath."

"I like doing pictures. If Columbia picks up my option we may move out here to live. My husband is a writer, so he can work almost any place. Right now he is in the throes of having his first novel published."

Until now, she has lived in New York with her husband, Eliot Mrs. Winifred Nelson has returned to her home after being a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Burney spent last week with relatives in Raleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kittrell accompanied their son, L. L. and J. C. Andrews to Norfolk, Va. on Sunday where they leave for duty. They both are in the Navy.

Mrs. Tucker Tripp entertained the members of her club at her home on the Ayden highway on Wednesday night. At the end of play novelty drawings were given Mrs. Chester Hart, high, while an apron was given Mrs. Irma Belle Collins, low.

The hostess served a salad course with Coca-Cola to the following: Mesdames Hart, Collins, Darrell Jackson, Cary Garris, Nathan Thomas, Ray McGlothlin, Velma Saunders and Bonnie Ruth McCormick.

Asinol, and their two children. She is under contract to Columbia and so far her option has been picked up. Another option period is approaching. That will tell the story.

Jocelyn is an attractive, strong-featured blonde with a firm will, a family trait no doubt. I began asking her questions about Marlon. She replied with the natural concern of one who has sometimes been in the shadow of her more famous brother: "Is this going to be an interview about Marlon?"

"Partially," I answered. She acquiesced. I asked her if she thought her brother was temperamental.

"Not at all," she replied in strong defense. "He isn't the least bit temperamental. He's an honest boy who tries to be strictly honest with everyone he deals with. The trouble is that he is not always honest with himself."

"He has great talent and integrity as an actor. This business about his being a character has been created about him. About the difficulty with Fox, that was unfortunate. But apparently it has all been resolved and the studio is happy now."

"He's a nice boy. I admire him a great deal."

She recoiled to his beef with 20th Century-Fox, which complained because he failed to report for "The Egyptian." In fact, the studio contributed to the tune of a two-million-dollar suit. But it was later settled after he agreed to play Napoleon in "Dairee."

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colgate

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

THEY were at breakfast enjoying it in a leisurely way because Todd need not leave until half-past nine today. F now some order had been created out of the chaos of this room. The closet door, behind which a multitude of things lay hidden, was closed tight. Their lamp stood on one tray stand, their electric toaster on the other.

Mrs. Foster had loaned Joan a card table, which was serving as a desk. But the cartons, the books and the records were still stacked on the floor.

Joan, thinking of the teas she wanted to plan spoke suddenly.

"Honestly, Todd, we simply must get some furniture. We can manage without a desk, but I do need a china cabinet and a chest of drawers. And at least one more easy chair." She stopped abruptly and clapped a hand to her forehead as a memory struck her.

"What does she want? Why don't we go ahead and get them? We have money enough!"

Todd said drily, "Have we, really? Since when?"

"Since our wedding. From all those relatives who didn't know what to give us and sent us checks. Don't you remember? It came to nearly five hundred dollars. What a find! Let's spend it right away, Todd. Let's go out this afternoon when you get home and buy what we want."

"It would be fun," he said slowly "but—"

"But me no 'buts'!" Joan cried gaily. "Don't you realize that that sum will get us practically everything? Especially if we rummage around in antique shops for stuff in the rough and refinish it ourselves. And that's what I'd like to do."

Todd reached across the little card table and laid his hand on hers. She saw his gray eyes warm with his love. She saw something else in them, too, but she was too excited to recognize it for what it was.

"How can I say 'no' to you when you look at me like that?"

"You can't. Why should you, anyway? It's a gift. We were meant to spend it. She stopped abruptly, tipped her head to one side and regarded him with a little anxious impatience that she tried to conceal beneath lightness. "Do you feel you ought to say 'no,' Mr. Hunter?"

"I do, Mrs. Hunter." It's ours. And it was a free gift. No strings attached as to what we should get, I mean."

He shook his head as he took back his hand. He was perfectly serious now.

anger against him she had felt since their marriage. He had extinguished hope too quickly. He had dashed cold water over a dream too readily. Especially when it was a dream that she felt it was quite possible for them to realize.

"Let me get this straight," she said, and her tone now held a slight tremor. "You won't let me spend my own money that I have earned. And you won't let me spend any that was given to me, either. To us both." She corrected herself. "That's the way it is, isn't it?"

He said gently "I can't, of course, honey, actually tell you what you can do with your own money. Neither can I say that you aren't to take any of our wedding money since strictly speaking, half of it belongs to you. It's just—"

"Just what?"

"That I have a horror of being caught in a jam with nothing in the bank."

"But there'd be something in the bank! There'd be my money! Or else there'd be the wedding checks! I'm not saying spend both. Just one or the other. What jam, anyway? What are you afraid of?" she finished, with her eyes flashing scorn.

He leaned toward her.

"Sickness, Jo-Jo," he said. "And I'm not afraid of it. I mean—not in the sense that I'm anticipating it or borrowing trouble ahead of time. I'm simply remembering. I'm remembering that time in Zurich when sickness caught me short. Well, that could happen again. To me or to you. And it costs a heap of money to be sick."

"You didn't have to pay, though."

"No, I didn't. I was lucky. The Zurich university had insured all its foreign students for a considerable sum. So I was lucky. But I thought I was going to have to pay for quite a while before I found that out. And I was worried. It's an awful worry, Jo-Jo, for a man who's flat on his back to know his expenses are mounting way beyond his pocketbook. Next fall I'm going to take out Blue Cross for us. I can't right now, but next fall I mean to do it. And that's the point. That's what I'm driving at. With cash socked away, if anything happened to us between now and then, we could meet an emergency."

"In other words, you wouldn't mind taking help from me in a pinch."

"No, I wouldn't."

"Only you have to be the one to decide whether it is a pinch."

"Honey!"

Plan Organize Ambulance Units

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina funeral directors plan to organize 14 Civil Defense ambulance companies as part of the mobile support regiments being organized for state Civil Defense. CD Director Edward F. Griffin announced today.

Griffin said a resolution endorsing the plan was adopted at the annual convention of the North Carolina Funeral Directors and Burial Assn. in Asheville May 6.

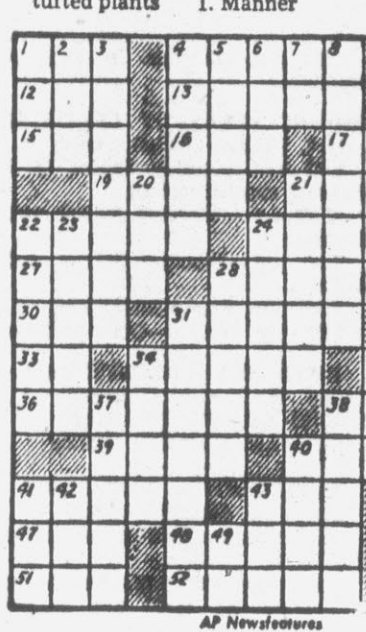

The Civil Defense program calls for a mobile support regiment for each of the state's 14 highway divisions. The State Highway Commission also has approved the project and promised its support.

Baseballer Had Finger Bitten

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (AP)—Dennis Carlson, 9-year-old third baseman on an elementary school baseball team, started out chasing a grounder yesterday and ended up receiving a tetanus inoculation.

Dennis reached into a hole for the elusive ball and a ground squirrel bit his finger.

Durable Goods Industry Has Signs Of General Recovery

By SAM DAWSON

CLEVELAND (AP)—It's been called a hard-goods recession. And this area of high focus on the making of long-lasting products and basic materials is disinclined to quarrel with the term.

Many communities in the highly industrialized region have felt the slump.

But the tumble wasn't as bad as some feared when the durable-goods industries started sliding fast late last year.

The economy by now has all but stopped skidding. Some report signs of recovery. And even the cautious predict that for some months to come there should be only a gentle settling back, with a fair chance of a pickup next year.

Cleveland industrialists are clear-eyed about the dip in production. But you'd have to dig deep to find one who'd admit he's gloomy about the future.

The iron and steel makers, the suppliers to the auto industry, the fashioners of home appliances have seen the biggest production dip, the most layoffs.

But even among the hard goods the recession has been selective—one of the most unorthodox on record.

Steel companies, for example, that make structural shapes—used by the till prospering building industry—show up much better on the production, sale and earnings charts than do some of the companies around Cleveland turning out the kind of steel that winds up in an auto or a gadget for the home.

Or take the way the consumer is behaving.

Cleveland's jobless roll call is much longer than this time a year ago, and the total was creeping higher in April. Most of those at work have lost an overtime they might have had. Some are working short weeks and taking home slim pay envelopes.

And yet the sale of used cars in Cleveland this year is about the same as a year ago, Cleveland's Federal Reserve Bank reports. And the sale of new cars (while trailing in the early months of the year) in recent weeks has climbed a trifle ahead of the figures for the same time last year.

Car dealers, moreover, report that their customers choose the higher priced models in the lines.

Retail sales for the year to date are off about 6 per cent in the 4th District which the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland serves. The district covers Ohio, western Pennsylvania, eastern Kentucky and part of West Virginia. For the nation as a whole the drop is 3 per cent.

Larger declines appear in the industrial centers like Cleveland, Toledo and Akron than in the 4th District as a whole.

But the soft goods, with the exception of some apparel lines, are selling well. And spending on most of the services stays high.

They're still building new homes around here, Cleveland Trust Co. executives point out, though not at last year's rate and vacancies are now beginning to show up. Older homes aren't selling as easily as in the postwar shortage years. But, shorter work weeks or no, the people pricing homes want all the new gadgets.

The reason for this unorthodox type of recession—one that doesn't spiral as others have, that finds neither businessman nor consumer showing signs of panic?

Some businessmen here conjecture that it's because: (1) few people expected the boom to stick on its high stilts; (2) most have come to feel that a really bad tumble isn't likely now.

In short, even in the areas where the slowdown is felt the most, this recession is accepted as "an adjustment."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market inched ahead today with some difficulty.

Scattered minus signs running to around a point provided a brake on an advance that extended to between 1 and 2 points at the best.

Prices were quietly higher at the start, and this moderate progress continued into the early afternoon.

Business was at a pace considerably under yesterday's heavy 3,340,000 shares.

There was no particularly outstanding group in the market, but the rails, steels, motors, and oils were mostly higher.

The rubbers and the electronics issues had some trouble but it never was serious. Other major divisions were steady to mixed.

Higher stocks included Seaboard Railroad, Texas Co., American Tel. and Tel., Republic Steel, General Motors, Allied Chemical, American Can and Vanadium.

Lower were Goodrich, Southern California Edison Cities Service, International Harvester, General Electric and Goodrich.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—Hog markets today were steady to 25 lower. Reach Showdown In War Of Nerves

DETROIT (AP)—A showdown came yesterday in mailman Edward Foster's war of nerves with two dogs that have been snapping at his heels and growling threats at him for some time.

A police cruiser got a call: "Mailman trapped by dogs on porch."

Police rescued Foster. Mrs. Dorothy Maxwell, owner of the dogs, apologized and assured Foster, "Those dogs don't bite."

"That's what you say lady," said Foster. "Those dogs tell me different."

Describes Heavy Schine Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army Counselor John G. Adams today described as "nothing short of fantastic" the pressure he said was applied by the McCarthy investigating subcommittee for favors for Pvt. G. David Schine.

While it came chiefly from Roy M. Cohn and Sen. McCarthy, Adams said, he regarded Francis P. Carr as a "co-participant."

Cohn is chief counsel to McCarthy's investigations subcommittee and Carr is its staff director.

Adams used the "fantastic" description in relating a call to his office asking that Schine, wealthy young New Yorker and former McCarthy subcommittee staff consultant, be excused from kitchen police duties at Ft. Dix, N.J.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) was cross-examining Adams, on the stand for the third straight day in the 17th day of Senate hearings on the raging controversy between Pentagon officials and Sen. McCarthy.

Adams said he didn't know who originated the call about KP duty but he assumed it came from Cohn. He said he refused to take the call when he found out what it was about.

McClellan asked if it wasn't most unusual for a call to come to such a high post in the Army regarding KP duties for one private.

"It was so unusual it was nothing short of fantastic," Adams replied in his soft, precise tone.

It was in response to questions from Chairman Mundt (R-SD) that Adams called Carr a "co-participant" in the alleged pressures.

Mundt said Adams' direct testimony had pointed toward Cohn as the chief source of what Adams called extreme pressure, abuse, obscene language, and hounding and pounding.

Mundt asked that Adams state specific charges of "evil doing" by Carr, if any.

Adams said he considered Carr as a "passive participant" and a "co-participant" in pressure.

He said for example that on Dec. 10 Carr attended a luncheon in which McCarthy pressed for a New York City assignment for Schine and that Carr "did not disassociate himself" from the request.

Adams added he felt Carr's "sitting there quietly makes him a co-participant." He said Carr once called him in South Dakota, and again in Amherst, Mass., about Schine, but he couldn't say whether he was calling on his own or was acting as intermediary for McCarthy and Cohn.

Child Slightly Hurt In Traffic Accident

A five-year-old Negro child was injured in an auto accident on Reade street yesterday.

The child, Lonora Hunter, apparently ran into a car driven by William Stokes of Greenville Route 2. Stokes told police that he was pulling from a parking place on Reade Street and saw the child coming. He said he stopped and she ran into the fender of the car. Stokes took the Hunter child to the local hospital and she was found to have suffered abrasions of the thigh and leg.

A warrant was sworn by Andrew Hunter, father of the child, charging Stokes with failure to keep a proper lookout. The accident was investigated by Patrolman H. H. McGowan.

Also yesterday cars operated by H. B. Gaskins and Jonnie J. Sullivan of Winterville Route 3 collided at Five Points. Damage to both cars amounted to approximately $40 and no charges were placed.

In a third accident yesterday a car driven by Robert Lee Walker of 108 West Moore Street was involved in a collision with a tractor-trailer operated by James W. Brinson of Grifton. Damage to the truck amounted to approximately $50 and to the car, $500.

Walker was charged with careless and reckless driving as a result of the accident.

At 4:50 yesterday afternoon cars driven by Miss Ann Newell Sutton of 1001 Johnston street and Grether Goodman of 115 Maple Street collided at the corner of Third and Lewis streets. No charges were placed against the drivers. Patrolman Marvin E. Buck investigated.

Insurance Group Hears Speaker

The Pitt County Insurance Exchange was host on Thursday night to the Executive Secretary of the North Carolina Association of Mutual Insurance Agents, William A. Stringfellow of Raleigh.

Stringfellow, while a native of Kentucky, has spent most of his life in North Carolina, and has worked for the past twelve years in the production and underwriting of Fire and Casualty Insurance. Previously he was a practicing attorney in Asheville, N. C.

He spoke at the Exchange meeting on the post war problems of the American Agency System, and on the plans of various agency and company groups to better meet the needs of the public.

Mr. Stringfellow said that like the incident in Mark Twain's life, "The story that the agency system is dead or dying is grossly exaggerated. As a matter of fact, the American Agency System is just beginning to come into its own, and those working in this field today are lucky to be a part of the movement."

Stringfellow serves as Executive Secretary of an Association of over five hundred members in North and South joined together for the advancement of agency insurance.

The Pitt County Insurance Exchange is made up of Fire & Casualty Insurance Agents in Pitt County. President J. B. Smith Jr. presided at the meeting.

To Try Swimmer As Disorderly

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A 68-year-old man goes on trial in City Police Court here June 2 because he likes to swim by himself half a mile from shore.

The charge is disorderly conduct.

Lifeguard Capt. Don Kirkwood complained that every time A. W. Johnson indulges in his feat crowds gather on the beach. Lifeguards have to devote their attention to Johnson rather than to people closer to shore who might need real assistance, Kirkwood said.

Man Unconscious Following Wreck

Henry Freeman, 67-year-old local Negro, is in an unconscious condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital following a traffic accident yesterday afternoon on the Falkland highway.

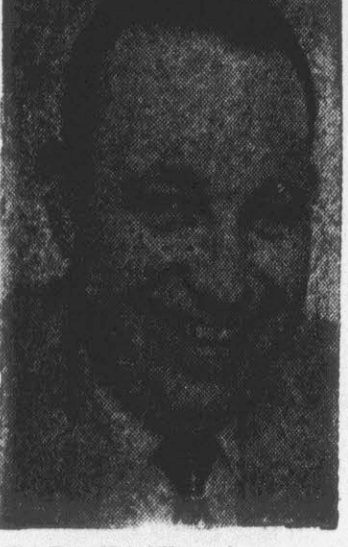

Investigating Patrolman Shep Newman said that the accident occurred almost in front of the hospital. He said that he had located no witnesses and had not been able to talk to the elderly man since he has been unconscious since the time of the accident.

Newman stated that apparently the car ran into a ditch, bounced back on the road, hit a second ditch and bounced once again on the highway.

Doctors described Freeman's condition as poor this morning. They said he has some kind of injury but the exact nature was not known.

Newman said that the car which Freeman was driving was a total loss.

Knifing Said To Be Real Favor

DETROIT (AP)—Samuel Wilson stabbed Felix Hammett in the stomach and actually did him a favor, police reported. They explained it this way:

The pair argued and Wilson slashed Hammett. Doctors at Detroit's Receiving Hospital looked at the wound and discovered Wilson had laid bare Hammett's appendix.

The appendix was badly infected. Doctors finished the appendectomy and the patient recovered.

Wilson didn't seem to mind the 60-day jail sentence, but said he was unhappy about having to pay Hammett's $373 medical bill.

Robbers Slay Two Victims

MOULTREE, Ga. (AP)—Robbers slashed to death two men in an all-night drive-in and fruit stand just outside this south Georgia city early today.

The dead men were E. T. Norman, about 40, attendant at the drive-in and Broome Croft, about 42, night watchman at a nearby motor company.

The throats of both men were cut. Norman was found crumpled up by the cash register, and Croft slumped by a chair at the rear door. There was no sign of a struggle.

The cash register, containing hardly more than $15, had been rifled.

Police Chief C. R. Ranew said the only motive he could advance for the murders was robbery. He noted that the loot was small and said nobody would expect to find a large sum at the drive-in.

"But," he observed, "they'll kill you for little or nothing nowadays."

Ranew said the absence of a struggle made it almost certain that two or more persons were involved. Apparently he added, different persons came up behind or near the victims and slit their throats without ado.

The murders were discovered by Jerrell Rogers, a youth who had stopped for a cup of coffee just before 4 a.m. A night police officer had seen the two men drinking coffee at the drive-in at 3 a.m.

Storm Strikes Beach Resort

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N. C. (AP)—A raging storm, with gusts up to 85 miles an hour, ripped across this coastal area last night, leaving property damage that may exceed that caused by Hurricane Barbara, last August.

At the southern end of Wrightsville Beach, where a $170,000 addition was completed recently, heavy pier damage was reported.

Police said many porches were torn from houses at Carolina Beach and surf lapped under many homes.

Communication lines were blown down and several trees blocked highways on the mainland. Road crews worked hurriedly to remove them.

Many small craft were torn from moorings to drift or sink.

Belgium Reduces Length Of Draft

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Belgium's new Socialist-Liberal Cabinet decided today to reduce the NATO nation's draft period from 21 to 18 months.

The move means that 15,000 of the country's 80,000 conscripts will be released within two weeks. The total strength of the Belgian armed forces, including career soldiers, is about 145,000 men.

The Cabinet action was the first major move by Socialist Premier Achille Van Acker following his 49-victory yesterday in his initial Senate vote of confidence. Last week the House voted its confidence in the government.

Van Acker's government has pledged itself to continue Belgium's close cooperation with the West.
