Students Take Over City Offices, For One Day

New City Administration

Greenville's 'City Clerk' Joe Stell, left, and 'Mayor' Billy Bost, right, are shown here getting information on 'how the city budget is made up' from Mayor W. L. Whedbee. These boys are members of Greenville High School's Student Council and they are 'running the city for the day.' This is the first time the high school has had 'Student Government Day,' a time when high school students move into the offices at City Hall. (Reflector Staff Photo by Bob Boyette)

By BOB BOYETTE Reflector Staff Writer The City of Greenville has a new mayor and completely new group of city officials today. No, Mayor W.L. Whedbee, City Manager James Hughes, and others have not been fired—it is just Greenville High School Student Government Day, and today there is a new mayor, city manager, chief of police, fire chief, superintendent of streets, city clerk and superintendent of city schools. Billy Bost, who is the 'Mayor for the Day,' explained that these boys, who are working in these respective offices today, are active in the Student Council—the governing body of the high school. All the boys who are 'running the city' are seniors and were appointed by the Executive Board of the Greenville High School Student Council. It is a project of the Student Council with the purpose: 'To familiarize the students with the mechanics and the operations of the city.'

People who have a complaint for the Chief of Police today will talk with Bob Langston, who this morning was checking on a man who is wanted for murder of a Tuscaloosa, Ala. police officer May 14. If a person wants to talk with the fire chief about getting permits to burn property the man to contact today is 'Fire Chief' Clede Oakley, who is acting in that capacity in place of Fire Chief George Gardner. If you have a tax complaint call 'City Clerk' Joe Stell. This morning young Stell and 'Mayor' Bost were talking with Mayor Whedbee on the way the 'city budget is made up.' If someone has a complaint about the city general just dial 368-3 and ask for 'City Manager' Jimmy Phelps. Phelps and City Manager Hughes were out 'checking around town' this morning. Should some garbage collector miss picking up the garbage today the man to call is 'Street Superintendent' Dixie Hogood. Finally, if you want to get an opinion on 'segregation in the public schools,' the man to get that statement from today is 'Superintendent of City Schools' Bruce Tyson. Completing the list, if the City Council fails to meet your approval in one of its actions, call 'Mayor' Bost and he will try to get it straightened out in the special call meeting of the Council this afternoon when it meets to explain its functions to the new city officials. Yes, it's the first annual 'Student Government Day' so when the new mayor and his staff go back to report what they found to the rest of the high school students the people of Greenville will learn more about its city from the students who 'took over for the day.'

Only Brief Reference By Convention Keynote To Court Ruling 'No Other Course'.. Demos Told

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Democrats were told today that the U.S. Supreme Court has spoken on the subject of school segregation and "as good citizens we have no other course except to obey the law as laid down by the court." Irving Carlyle, Winston-Salem lawyer and keynote, told the 3,000 Democrats at their biennial state convention, that "to do otherwise would cost us our respect for law and order and if we lose that in these critical times we will have lost that quality which is the source of our strength as a state and as a nation." This was the sole reference to the epochal Supreme Court decision in Carlyle's address which was devoted in the main to praising the records of Democratic administrations in the state and nation and to lambasting Republicans in general and Sen. Joseph McCarthy in particular. Carlyle asserted that the problems confronting the nation at home and in its role of world leadership "will never be solved by inept, inexperienced and divided leadership." He added that since the Republicans assumed power nationally "We have become a confused fearful and frightened people."

He referred to the McCarthy-Army hearing as "a disturbing and degrading spectacle" featured by "doctored photographs and shouting voices and fabricated letters" and said it "calls to mind that other tragic era when Nero fiddled while Rome burned." Referring again to Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.), Carlyle recalled that a few months ago he (McCarthy) "condemned our great Democratic leaders of the past 20 years and the Democratic party itself as agents of treason."

That was simply a base appeal to the fears of the people by a man ambitious for personal power who knows that fear feeds upon fear," Carlyle added. "The tactics of smear fear and hate, representing McCarthyism at its best, reached their peak under Hitler, and carried Germany to its ruin." Carlyle said that when the history of the 20th Century is written the verdict will be that the Democratic party and its leaders "rescued our private profit system from revolution, made government responsive to the needs of the people and saved the free world from communism." He described the Democratic party as following the middle road between the extremes on the left of communism and socialism and on the right "the ultra-conservative doctrines... represented by McCarthyism and fascism and the Republican Old Guard, which is now and always has been in control of the Republican party."

Senate Candidates Are Chief Topic Of Conventionites

RALEIGH (AP)—Delegates to the Democratic state convention today wondered if the subject of segregation would come up again at their biennial gathering following the defeat of a resolution in the Second Congressional District caucus last night. The resolution, offered by Tom Mewborn of Kinston, called on Gov. Umstead to summon a special session of the State Legislature to decide in what action the state will take as a result of the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court outlawing segregation. H. V. Bridgers of Tarboro, who presided at the caucus, expressed the opinion Mewborn's resolution was out of order and it was tabled. Bridgers said, "If the delegation desires to adopt a resolution it should be done at the district convention." The district meeting was held this morning. Upwards of 2,000 Democrats were expected for the convention which assembled in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium at noon following the meeting of 12 district conventions. These meetings were held all over downtown Raleigh, in theaters the State Capitol, courts and in the Auditorium. As usual, the vanguard of the delegates arrived in Raleigh last night. They milled in a colorful confusion in the lobby of the Sir Walter Hotel — which is often referred to as the state's second capitol. The major topic of talk among the Democratic faithful was the Senate primary race among former Gov. Kerr Scott, Sen. Alton A. Lennon and five other hopefuls. Running a close second was speculation over whom Gov. Umstead will name to succeed U.S. Sen. Clyde R. Hoey. Two of those prominently mentioned in speculation over the post were among the early arrivals. They are former Gov. R. Gregg Cherry of Gastonia and Democrat National Committeeman Carlisle Higgins of Winston-Salem. Cherry reported that his doctors had found him in good physical condition and he allowed that he is "interested" in the appointment. Scores of the delegates proudly wore buttons or ribbons proclaiming their allegiance to this candidate or that in the May 29 primary. Backers of Lennon appeared to be in the majority. Many of them said they had noted an upsurge of Lennon strength in recent days. However, some of these conceded that Scott still appeared to be in the lead in their balliwick.

Unable To Force McCarthy To Take The Stand Can't Make Him Testify

By JACK BELL WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Potter (R-Mich) said today he knows no way senators investigating Sen. McCarthy's row with Army officials could force the Wisconsin Republican to take the stand if he should decide to walk out. McCarthy has left in doubt the course he may follow when hearings resume Monday. Potter and several other members of the Senate Investigations subcommittee expressed belief a major obstacle to continuance of the hearings had been removed by a statement from Secretary of the Army Stevens shouldering full responsibility for Army charges against the Wisconsin senator. This followed President Eisenhower's refusal to modify an executive order against some testimony. McCarthy's complaint about continuing the televised hearings with a "stacked deck" prompted speculation in Congress that he might decline to testify personally and call for what he has characterized as a directed verdict in his favor. McCarthy told newsmen he is "at a loss on just what to do." The subcommittee scheduled a closed-door meeting this afternoon. McCarthy said he will attend if he's invited. He normally heads the group, but has stepped off for the duration of this inquiry. If he does attend the meeting, McCarthy said, he "does not plan to ask them for a 'directed verdict.'"

Stevens and Army Counselor John G. Adams have accused McCarthy and two aides, Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr, of bringing improper pressure on the Army for favored treatment for a former associate, Pvt. G. David Schine. McCarthy responded with charges that Stevens and Adams used Schine as a "hostage" in an attempt to shut off an investigation of alleged Communists in the Army. McCarthy told a news conference last night he had tried, but failed to get a date with Eisenhower "about a week before this thing exploded" in mid-March. He said he had wanted to tell Eisenhower then — sometime soon after Feb. 20 — that "I suspected he was not getting all the facts" about the row then simmering between McCarthy, Stevens and other top Army people. At his request, McCarthy said, his friend Victor Johnson telephoned the White House to arrange an appointment. He said Johnson, director of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, talked to Wilton B. (Jerry) Persons, legislative liaison aide at the White House. Persons agreed to ring them back if he lined up the appointment. McCarthy said, but "he hasn't called back yet." He again said he hopes the hearings will be completed quickly because they are diverting attention from more important matters.

See Priority For Guatemala Arms

WASHINGTON (AP)—American authorities said today Communist Russia has apparently put a high priority on arms aid to leftist Guatemala to promote strife in Central America. These officials noted too that this was the first time the Soviets sent any significant amount of arms into Latin America, so far as is publicly known. This obviously shows Russian confidence that Guatemala Communist will further Moscow's aim in this hemisphere, they said. The State Department disclosed the arms shipment to Guatemala late Monday and said it was an "important" amount. Other sources have said the shipment totaled 10 million rounds of ammunition. Noting that the shipment came from the Baltic port of Stettin in Communist-controlled Poland, the U. S. officials said no such shipment of arms could have been made without the Soviets first authorizing it and making the guns and ammunition available. But of more far-reaching importance, these officials said, is that the arms were shipped to Guatemala at all. They said Moscow must have been convinced that the guns would bring a high return for the Communist cause in this hemisphere. Immediate Red aims in Central America were described as promotion of strike and unrest in the weak and unstable countries north of the strategic Panama Canal.

Death Was Only 15 Minutes Away Fellowship Club Has Its Annual Meeting

SCOTTSDALE, Ky. (AP)—Death was only 15 minutes away when two small girls were rescued from the refrigerator in their home. Sheriff Arthur Hobby made the estimate yesterday in telling how Mr. and Mrs. Earle Lawrence Slaughter returned home and found their 5-and 7-year-old daughters imprisoned in the box. The girls related a strange man and woman came to the house and locked them up Tuesday, but the sheriff said he wondered if the youngsters weren't just trying to escape punishment with that story. The parents came in from the tobacco field and noticed some refrigerator shelves and food on the floor. Quickly they opened the box and found their daughters. One girl had a bruise on her back and the other was ill. The sheriff searched for an old model green automobile in which the girls said the strange man and woman were riding.

Fellowship and barbecue were the big items yesterday at the annual gathering of the John Pierce Fellowship Club at Camp Contentment near Ayden. More than 225 men from Pitt, Beaufort, Greene and Lenoir Counties gathered for the annual outing of the club which was formed in the mid-1920s. Highlights of the gathering were the barbecue dinner served at 1:00 o'clock yesterday, and the brief business meeting which followed the dinner. New officers elected by the club were Wayland Hunsucker of Winterville, president; Guy V. Smith of Greenville, vice president; A. F. Rowe of Ayden, secretary-treasurer; and R. H. Worthington, assistant secretary-treasurer. Retiring president Walter Jones of Farmville presided at the meeting, and Henry Oglesby of Grifton acted as master of ceremonies. Oglesby recognized county officials and municipal officials present at the meeting, and also the many candidates seeking nomination for various offices in the Democratic Primary May 29. Congressman Herbert C. Bonner addressed the group briefly, and Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, commented on the growth and progress of the institution. Also recognized at the meeting were the four charter members of the organization present at the meeting. Charter members present were Blaney Sumrell, Dr. G. G. Dixon, George W. Prescott, and Congressman Bonner.

Will Make Close Study Of Relaxed Trade Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Bridges (R-NH) said today the Senate Appropriations Committee will make a "searching inquiry" into the extent to which free world allies have agreed to relax bans on trade with Red China. Bridges' plan for an investigation of this issue came after Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) told the Senate yesterday it would be "criminal folly" not to cut off U. S. financial aid to nations which ship "the sinews of military and economic strength" to the Communists. McCarthy had barely finished his floor address before Foreign Aid Administrator Harold E. Stassen shot back with a statement that what the senator said was "fantastic unbelievable and untrue." Stassen, who has tangled with McCarthy before said, "We are steadily building for peace under President Eisenhower's leadership." And in an obvious reference to McCarthy's "relaxed trade" ban, Stassen declared, "Sen. McCarthy is frankly reaching for diversionary headlines after the sorry spectacle of his record in recent hearings." McCarthy, in what he said was a "painful and unpleasant" discussion of Republican "shortcomings," called for the listing by Stassen of "every type of material which we have agreed that our allies can ship to our enemies." Bridges said in an interview today that the appropriations group, which passes on foreign aid funds, "already has taken cognizance of Stassen's statements indicating a weakening of the ban on trade with the Reds."

Million-Dollar Morehead City Project Advised

MOREHEAD CITY, N. C. (AP)—A million dollar harbor improvement project has received preliminary approval of South Atlantic Army Engineers as one of the final steps toward approval by the Senate Appropriations Committee. The $1,127,000 program, which might enable the port to accommodate all but the largest of ocean-liners and Navy vessels, calls for channel dredging and other enlargement measures. Port Manager J. D. Holt said that both the Navy and commercial shippers have expressed a desire for larger harbor facilities. The plan will now go to the Army Engineer Committee on Rivers and Harbors, which authorized the project, and then to the Senate for final approval.

Private Talks Held In Attempt To End Deadlock Over Indochina

GENEVA (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden planned private talks with top Communist delegates today in another try to get the deadlock in Indochina conference moving. Formal negotiations were suspended for due to continued Red demands that the Communist "resistance governments" of Laos and Cambodia be invited to Geneva. The Western Big Three regard these as Communist-invented "phantom" regimes with no following and no right to representation. Negotiations dragged to a complete standstill last night after three long secret sessions between the nine participating delegations. A proposal by Eden for a one-day "cooling off" period was accepted, and the talks were suspended until tomorrow afternoon. During the lull in formal talks, Eden — representing the Western Big Three—hoped to find a solution in conferences with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Communist Chinese Premier-Foreign Minister Chou En-lai. When the Cambodia-Laos issue first threatened to stall the conference 10 days ago, Molotov agreed in a private talk with Eden to get on with the negotiations without acting on the Red demands to invite the resistance groups. The Vietminh Communist leaders raised the question again this week. Western delegates, anxious to get the discussion back to ways of ending the fighting in Indochina, flatly refused the renewed Red proposal. Conference sources said Molotov also expressed hope yesterday the delegates could soon get down to a study of the actual drafts of armistice proposals, particularly their military aspects. The Western Powers tried to limit discussion to key points at the opening of the secret sessions. Bidault, however, touched off controversy over Laos and Cambodia by demanding that Communist forces be withdrawn at once from the two Indochinese kingdoms. A major provision of the French plan for ending hostilities in Indochina is that the problem of Laos and Cambodia be completely separated from the proposed armistice in Viet Nam. The Communist plan, on the other hand, calls for an armistice for all three states to take place after political agreements have been reached. Molotov has declared this plan must be taken as a basis for peace negotiations.

Chiang Calls For More Support

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek began his second term as president of Nationalist China today with a call for more military and moral support and a strong alliance of anti-Communist Asian nations.

Inauguration day was a festive occasion on this Nationalist Island despite the threat of Communist air attack from the nearby Red held mainland.

Thousands of exploding fire-crackers provided a noisy background as Chiang and Vice President Chen Cheng took the oath of office in a city hall built during the Japanese occupation.

In a brief inauguration address Chiang declared that his Nationalist armies could recover the mainland of China if given a "reasonable amount of moral and material support from the free world and an adequate supply of the implements of war."

He also called on all Asian nations facing a threat of Red invasion to "establish on the Communist periphery a strong collective organization capable of collective action."

Chiefs of all diplomatic missions here were in the audience. Also attending was U. S. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and top American military and diplomatic representatives in Taipei.

Korea Election Is Staged Today

SEOUL (AP) — Koreans from crowded, bomb-wrecked cities and shell-pocked farms trekked to polling booths today to vote for a new South Korean National Assembly. The election has been called an off-year test of President Syngman Rhee's popularity. Rhee and his wife were among the first to cast ballots in Seoul this morning. An estimated eight million ballots were cast, before the polls closed at 5 p. m., and it may be two days before complete returns are in. Good weather helped bring out a heavy vote. Despite cries from the independent and opposition blocs of police intimidation and interference and equally strong denials by government authorities of such activity, the voting appeared to be peaceful. The nation is under an emergency police alert.

Rhee's Liberal party says it expects to win 110 of 203 Assembly seats. The major opposition Democratic Nationalists are pessimistic. They look for only 20 of their men to be elected. Rhee's forces hope to capture enough seats to gain a working majority in the legislature—something they have not had since 1952.

Recreation Maximun Not Sufficient

It is apparent local legislation should be put through the 1954 General Assembly increasing the maximum amount Greenville can spend for its recreation program.

A tentative budget of $30,000 was adopted by the Recreation Commission this week for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Under existing legislation, this is the maximum the city can spend annually for its recreation program.

In order to keep the recreation budget within the $30,000 maximum set by law, it was necessary for the commission and the city manager to place certain maintenance items which normally go into the recreation budget under the public works budget.

When Greenville's recreation legislation Take A Lesson From The Housewife

What would George Washington say if he made a return visit to Greenville? The hand-me-down stories say the first president referred to Greenville as a "dirty little town on the South side of the Tar."

We've often wondered if, by modern standards, Greenville looks and cleaner to visitors now than legend indicates it did to the first president.

When company is coming for a visit, the average housewife turns her home upside down getting it spick and span, shiny as a new dollar. She wouldn't think of having special guests under any other conditions.

Greenville is going to have special guests next week. We are going to have several thousand guests, in fact, at the annual Shriners ceremonial here. What sort of impression will they get of the city?

Will they get the impression that it is unkempt, and perhaps a little dirtier than their home towns, or will they be impressed by its clean appearance?

Naturally we hope the latter impression is the one which remains with the visitors when they leave. But if it is to be, the city should, in the next few days, take a lesson from the housewife who is expecting guests.

There's a good bit of sweeping, dusting and washing of windows to be done.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE LAST BATTLE

The fact has often been pointed out that nations frequently lose battles and win wars, and, conversely, that nations win battles and lose wars. It is not the battlefield but the peace table which often decides a war.

So too in the case of the Lord's great battle against hostile forces. It is not this skirmish or that hard-won victory which determines ultimate victory. Humanly speaking, the triumph of good over evil has to be measured in terms of centuries and millenniums. Devinely speaking, the final victory will not be won until the heavenly legions descend upon the earth and the kingdoms of the world become the kingdom of our God and of his Christ.

Just remember that the Lord always wins the last battle. He wins it in the case of every individual that ever has lived or that ever will live. He wins it in the case of every race and every nation. Individuals affront God and oppose Him. Nations and despots fly in the face of his providence.

But to what avail? God always wins the last battle. We read accounts in the newspapers sometimes which convey the impression that some evil cause has triumphed or that some good cause has suffered irretrievable defeat. This is absurd. Men lose battles but God wins every way. His word is final and eternal.

Our Reasoning On Indochina

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Military and moral reasons underlie the Eisenhower-Dulles refusal to throw troops into Indo-China to make the same stand against Communist expansion and aggression that we did in Korea. The two situations differ entirely, as President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles have explained in blunt language to the statesmen at London, Paris and on Capitol Hill.

The Administration's refusal to intervene in Indo-China, in view of the background to be described here, heralds a major change and advance in United States foreign policy. It is as important in its world-wide implications and repercussions as the Monroe Doctrine and the Marshall Plan. And, in tribute to its real author, it should be known in history books as the Dulles Declaration.

Simply phrased, it means that the United States, alone or in alliance with other nations, will never fight to preserve the ancient and outmoded system of colonialism. We will go to war only when and where the countries attacked by the Red hordes are struggling for absolute independence, and show that they are willing to fight for it themselves. Those conditions do not exist in Indo-China.

OUR BELLIGERENCY MUST BE JUSTIFIED—There is a final and conclusive qualification. Not wanting to squander what Wendell Willkie called our "reserve of good will" after his international tour in early 1951, we will not engage in war unless we can justify our belligerency before the court of world opinion. We must have angels as well as aircraft on our side.

Finally, we will not "go it alone," as we did virtually in Korea. We will not rely on the United Nations because Russia's veto on the Security Council can block any positive action, and because, as the Korean "police action" demonstrated, the U.N. is not a military organization.

We are not, however, abdicating our role as the world's major and strongest anti-Communist bulwark.

was approved by the governing board and submitted to the General Assembly several years ago, the recreation budget stood at approximately $12,000. The board requested the maximum figure to be allowed annually for recreation in the city be set at $30,000. Compared with the amount the city was spending at the time, the $30,000 maximum seemed adequate for a number of years.

In less than five years, it has become obvious the maximum is too low to provide the city with the kind of recreation program it needs. And recreation is becoming an increasingly important part of local government operations in municipalities of this area.

If the local recreation program is not to be stymied and stifled in the next few years, the maximum amount which the city can spend annually for its recreation program must be raised. It seems to us new local legislation raising this maximum should be planned to take care of the city's recreation needs for the next eight years at least.

Only if such long range planning is used in drafting the local legislation, will it prevent the necessity of returning to the General Assembly with a similar local bill every other session.

Prisons Are Not Intended To Become Country Clubs

North Carolina officials should make every effort to keep prisoners of the state in line and avoid further riots and demonstrations in its far-flung prison system.

This state has been more fortunate than many others in that it has not experienced the trouble with prison riots which other states have.

Nevertheless, North Carolina has already had too much prison trouble with its convicts.

Men and women who are sent to prison are sent there to pay a just penalty for crimes against society. The people of the state demand that humane treatment be given these people in prison. At the same time, prisoners who are paying a penalty for crimes should not be coddled and pampered.

Prisons are meant to be places of hard work for inmates as well as places for confinement. They were never meant to be playgrounds or have country club aspects.

If state officials see to it that prisoners are constantly reminded of this fact, we believe North Carolina can avoid trouble in its prison system. Once prisoners get the idea they can, by mass demonstrations, set prison policies and dictate terms to the state, there will be no end to trouble.

MEDFORD, MASS. MERCURY: "... all of us need to be more wary and on the lookout for improper solicitations because the demands and needs of established services and charitable agencies and research groups are greater than ever and warrant more intelligent support than ever. Who, therefore, can afford to 'screw away' cash on sob stories which will not bear the light of fair and impartial investigations?"

We simply insist that the nations and peoples under Red guns, whether it be France or Indo-China, bestir themselves instead of relying solely on Uncle Sam.

UPHOLDING U.S. TRADITIONS—In view of this revision and restatement of American foreign policy, it is now obvious why we could not agree to the Laniel-Bidault plea for active military reinforcement of the symbols but overrated jungle fortress at Dien Bien Phu.

In Korea, we fought because a republic whose independence and eventual unity we had guaranteed at the ill-fated Cairo Conference, had been assailed wantonly by North Korean and Chinese Communists. Our national honor was at stake. We were upholding American traditions and treaties.

To have intervened in Indo-China would have placed the United States in the position of preserving a colonial system of economic oppression and subjection. It would have furnished fresh evidence to support Molotov's recurrent charges that the U.S. is an "imperialistic and warmongering power."

In short, we are now waging both a moral and military offensive against Russo-Chinese Communism. Although it may result in temporary loss of territory to the free world, it may win us the support of people of good will everywhere. And Secretary Dulles believes that they still represent the majority of men and women.

DULLES' STURDY HEALTH—Secretary Dulles' unlined face and other evidences of sturdy health belie his travels and travails, a grinding routine which none of his predecessors suffered. He even sees a humorous aspect of the ordeal.

He recently told this writer of a colloquy with a fellow Cabinet member. In recounting the thousands of miles he has covered on diplomatic errands, Dulles remarked that he could not have traversed so much territory had it not been for the airplane.

"True, John," remarked the listener. "But had it not been for the airplane as a weapon of atomic war and a destroyer of time and space, you would not have had to make so many diplomatic trips."

Sadly, Secretary Dulles agreed.

Help Get Him In The U.N.—

Somebody Told Me

Light Handcuffs A Luxury

Yesterday I had the principal of Greenville's Brookgreen school in chains. James A. Vinci's life story has been the subject of a continuation of columns that started Tuesday. He was born in Sicily, lived there until he was eight and a half, came to America, finished high school here and stowed away to get back to Sicily to see his mother.

As of yesterday's column, he was put in chains when he had a fracas with an Italian official who insulted him with one breath, spit on him with the next.

One of the guards who took Vinci to prison turned out to be his cousin, who treated him like a king. The first thing he did was to have the chains removed. The trip to prison was like a grand tour, with the guard showing the prisoner all of the sights. "This was a supreme sacrifice, for a guard," Jim recalls. "They usually make a big show out of escorting a prisoner in his chains."

But the luxury ended when he reached prison. The cousin could be of no help. Both of Jim's cell mates had been there long enough to be insane and he recalls, "If I had stayed there much longer I would have been." During the nearly three months he took advantage of every mouthful of food available. "One of my cellmates was too sick in the head to eat. At first I wouldn't eat his food, hoping that he would eventually take it. But after he kicked at it a few times I changed my mind."

"The designs of bars on each cell wall would drive you crazy if you tried to figure out how they were made. Every few hours the guards on duty would come around and rack their sticks on those bars to check their sound. They were built in such a way that the least alteration could be detected by the sound. The place was escape-proof. All of us would pray for release. At first I would look at my crazy cellmates with pity, then I faced the possibility that I would soon be in their condition."

"But it so happened that my grandfather knew the mayor back in my home town. The mayor told my grandfather about my imprisonment, my grandfather wired my father in the U. S. about it, and he started the ball rolling to have me released. Some time afterwards the guards came in and told me, 'Vinci, prepare your robe,' meaning to get my clothes ready to leave. The only catch was that I didn't have any clothes to prepare. In fact, we didn't have any beds in that place. When Mussolini was preparing for the war he had all 'unnecessary' metal turned into firearms and we slept on gunny sacks."

So Vinci was released, in handcuffs, again if only temporarily. "American handcuffs are a luxury," he reminded me again. "Those weighed almost as much as I did."

And I thank you.

JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE END OF ANOTHER AMERICAN INSTITUTION (The Carolina Israelite)

Another great American institution is disappearing from the scene—the village atheist. Across the length and breadth of our land, in every city, town, hamlet, and crossroads—there was always one stubborn man, the dissenter, the non-conformist, the fellow who by his atheism ennobled the character of those who wanted to "save" him, and strengthened the faith of those who were already "saved." He added interest and lustre to his community, and he was as American as the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia, the whaling ships on the Gloucester coast, and as much a part of the American scene as the Baptist Church on each of the thousands of Elm Streets up and down this land. The village atheist entered our civilization at the very beginning of our country—from that first man whom our Cotton Mather sent into the woods with a one-day's supply of water and bread to "think it over." The village atheist of America had about as much affinity with Russia as he did with Cambodia—probably less. But today he has been chased off the stage of our life.

This American, who harks back to the old days of America, when individualism was prized above all other virtues, even to the point of eccentricity, has become identified with ideologies which were completely foreign to him. Now that it is gone it is well to look back upon him as a part of the wonderful American scene of the past. He was the fellow that the high school kid of another generation would seek out to ask about Homer and Shakespeare—that is, if the High School kid's mother wasn't looking. But the kid's mother was not really worried;—it was only that she didn't want the neighbors to see her son cavorting with "old eccentric Bill." And then finally, when the village atheist died, there was always one understanding clergyman in the town who would be sure to say, "Bill claimed to be an atheist, but he was one of the best Christians I've ever known." Thus, as the erosion sets in on our individualism, our great American institutions go— one by one—and one of the first to go was this noble product of the American soil—the village atheist.

Special Session Of Legislature Doesn't Seem Likely

By LYNN NISBET

SEGREGATION — There seems little likelihood that a special session of the North Carolina General Assembly will be necessary to deal with problems arising out of the U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in the public schools.

Monday's unanimous court opinion that segregation, even with equal facilities, violates the spirit of the constitution, included provision for further study and argument as to when and how the non-segregation policy would be effectuated.

The court asked the Attorneys General of the United States and the 20 affected States to present arguments this fall on four questions, two about when the plan should be put into practice, and two about what agency should enforce the decrees of the court.

The four questions submitted are: (1) Should Negro children be admitted without further delay to "schools of their choice?" (2) Should school districts be allowed time for a gradual transition to a non-segregated status? (3) Should the Supreme Court appoint a special master to hear evidence and recommend specific terms of decrees to be ordered by the court? (4) Should the high court send the segregation cases back to the lower courts with instructions to frame decrees for implementing the non-segregation decision; if so, what procedure should the lower courts follow in arriving at specific terms of the decrees?

So far as North Carolina is concerned, it would seem to make little difference whether the Supreme Court or the district courts administer the program, although there is probable preference for keeping administration as close the scene as possible. What disturbs Tarheel officials is the assumption that the courts, rather than the legislatures, are writing the laws; and the judicial rather than the executive branch, is assuming authority for administering them.

TIME — The time element is far more vital. The difference between "without further delay" and "time for a gradual transition" could well mean the difference between orderly process and mob violence. Attorney General Harry McMillan points out that in any event the decision will not affect the placement of pupils at beginning of the 1954-55 school term.

There is presently no order or decree putting the non-segregation rule into effect. None can be issued prior to the hearings slated to begin on September 15, which is after the opening date for North Carolina schools. Until such orders or decrees are promulgated the court decision stands only as a declaration of policy for future implementation. It appears that earliest possible effective date will be the opening of the schools in September of next year—some 16 months away. Chances are more time will be allowed for "a gradual transition."

That means there will be time for the regular session of the General Assembly to deal with the problem and make appropriations for the 1955-56 biennium based on the new order.

formulating legislative programs. There is imposed upon the advisory budget commission the tremendous burden of preparing a budget in advance of knowledge as to what the program will require for financing its operation. A new congress will convene at about the same time as our regular General Assembly, and there is prospect that State legislation may be affected by Congressional acts, particularly in the area of Federal aid. The court decision removes some of the objections which have been voiced against Federal aid. One Veteran school teacher observed that since the Federal courts have assumed control of the schools anyhow, there is no merit to the argument that Federal aid means Federal control—"and we'd just as well get all the money we can."

CONSTITUTION — The State constitution will have to be amended to comply with the new order. The extent of changes will depend upon the decrees promulgated after the arguments next fall. It might be possible to comply by simply deleting the last sentence of Article IX, Sec. 2, which provides for segregation. Or, it may be necessary to completely re-write the entire article on education to meet Federal requirements, based on the court decrees. That is one of the arguments advanced against a special session. As of now, the Legislature would not know what sort of amendments to propose. Amendments submitted by the General Assembly must be approved by the people at the next general election. In this case that means it will be late in 1956 before they can become effective.

Cities 'Impossible'

By ELMER ROESSNER

Whether the day of the big city has passed is still the subject of endless debate; there are regions and more costly services required of cities are making them all but economic impossibilities, and there are others who point out that investment in businesses in cities is rising faster now than ever before.

Now comes Paul Tishman, national famous builder, with a new slant on the question, one rooted in very practical experience.

He points out that it is becoming impossible for the average family to live in a city. The cities of America, he says, are only for the very rich or the very poor. Governmental subsidies have produced considerable housing for the low-income group in most cities, and many of our proudest cities have slums where the ultra-poor are packed in. And the rich, of course, have fine hotels, costly apartments, penthouses and other residential facilities at the flip of a checkbook.

But the middle-income group is finding fewer suitable places. In New York, Mr. Tishman points out, old brownstone buildings are being torn down to make room for swank apartments or office buildings and many older apartments and flats are being chopped up into tiny spaces for rent for the poor. Families with incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 and a couple of youngsters cannot find good, reasonable apartments in New York or in many other cities, he says.

"These families have been bypassed by the private building industry and ignored by the government," he said. "They make too much to qualify for public housing developments and too little to get into more expensive apartments."

Mr. Tishman proposes the creation of housing foundations for the erection of housing for middle-income families. He suggests that savings banks and insurance companies set up such foundations; that cities be asked to assemble land by condemnation, and in a city such as New York apartments could rent for $27.50 a room a month, and that banks and insurance companies could get a return of 5 to 6 per cent on their investment. Since Mr. Tishman has put up more than $47,000,000 worth of housing, his figures ought to have a realistic base.

HOW TO TELL IF FIRM HOLDS OWN IN INDUSTRY

Advertising agencies whose billing hasn't increased by at least 60 per cent since 1948 and by 300 per cent since 1938 have actually lost a share of the market, S. R. Bernstein, editor of Advertising Age, told a regional meeting of advertising men.

His argument is mathematically sound, since the dollar volume of advertising has increased by those percentages over that time. Similar formulas can be applied to businesses in other industries. All management has to do is to find out from its trade association or trade publication, or the appropriate government agency the rate of increase in dollar volume in the industry since any given date.

If the individual business dollar volume has increased less than the industry rate—even though the gain seems satisfactory—then the business may actually hold a smaller share of the industry's sales.

Are You Blamed For Insomnia?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Lately I've been running into a lot of sleepless wives.

Can't figure out the reason, but naturally this sleeplessness must be caused by husbands.

When a man gets insomnia, he generally shoulders the full responsibility for it himself. He figures he drank too much coffee, ate the wrong combination of foods, or else took his business or personal worries to bed with him.

A wife approaches the problem from the opposite direction. "I can't sleep," she moans. "Why? What has my husband been up to now?"

Her only task then is to find something her husband has done wrong. As this isn't very difficult for the average wife, she pins down his latest error, bawls him out roundly, and then is able again to sleep the sleep of the just.

Sometimes a husband discovers his wife's insomnia has been caused not by something he did but something he didn't do.

Why didn't you stop me from eating that rich dessert last night?" she tells him. "You knew it wouldn't agree with me. But there you sat like a complete dolt, and let me go right on eating it. Sometimes I don't know what I'm going to do with you. I never slept a wink."

Every husband over the years gets thoroughly familiar with that wifely phrase—"I never slept a wink." For some reason known only to women, however, you never hear a wife admit, "Well, I slept a wink last night."

There are several common types of insomnia among wives, and perhaps you have one of the following in your own home:

1. The empty stomach insomnia—This plump lady wakes up every hour on the hour, then raids the refrigerator, wolfs down half a chicken—and sleeps like a baby for another hour. Her real problem is that she wastes time waste time sleeping when she could be eating. The best way to solve the situation is to move the refrigerator to her bedside, or else set her up a cot in the kitchen.

2. The choker—She wraps her arms around her husband's neck, slowly throttling him. The last words he hears just before he blacks out unconscious are her moans, "Why can't I sleep?" If you check this wife's family tree, you will probably find that her great-great-grandmother was a boa constrictor.

3. The false insomnia—This wife snores like a den of roaring lions from midnight until 8 a.m. then looks accusingly over at her red-eyed sleepless husband and says, "You simply have got to do something about your snoring. It kept me awake all night."

4. The traveling insomnia—She wraps herself in a sheet and two blankets—and prowls the house in search of sleep. She dozes in every bed and chair and winds up on the living room rug. But as soon as her husband goes to work, she lies down on a couch and sleeps like an angel all day.

5. The intermittent dream—"I just dreamed I was walking barefoot in my nightgown through a meadow full of $1,000 bills," she says, shaking her husband awake. "What does that mean?"

6. The suspicious insomnia—She steels herself to stay awake all night hoping her husband will talk in his sleep and reveal the name of the blonde she is sure he is keeping on the sly.

7. The share-and-share alike insomnia—"Don't you dare go to sleep before I do," she sternly warns her husband. "Marriage is a 50-50 business. If I can't sleep, why should you?"

What can a man do to cure his wife's insomnia. Of course, he should understand her with sympathy and smothering. But the best thing he can do is earn more money for her, nothing relaxes a woman better—or puts her in more of a restful mood—than spending a lot of money.

The worst thing a husband can do is to tell his wife, "why don't you do a little more work? The reason you can't sleep is you are overworked from doing nothing so hard all day long."

That is a sure way for him to get insomnia himself.

Salvation Army Official At Meet

The Division Commander of the Carolinas Division of the Salvation Army attended the quarterly meeting of the Advisory Board, to the Greenville Corp yesterday.

Also attending the luncheon meeting from Division Headquarters in Charlotte was the Divisional Girl Guard Director along with five members of the local advisory board and the Greenville Corp Commander and his wife.

A report of Greenville Corp activities from January through April, 1954, was made by Lt. B. T. Lewis, Greenville Corp Commanding Officer, and there were also short talks by Lt. Col. G. A. Stephan, Carolinas Division Commander, and Captain Violet Bivans, Divisional Girl Guard Commander.

Colonel Stephan, in his talk on the work of the Army, told the advisory board, "The Salvation Army depends a great extent to the leadership coming from the advisory board, and the work of the advisory board works."

He explained to the local board that the Army works to touch the spiritual side of man. The Salvation Army is "the finest thing God has ever let coming into being," he said.

Colonel Stephan thanked the board for its interest and complimented Lt. Lewis and his wife for their work in Greenville.

Captain Divans, who is in Greenville this week in conjunction with the anniversary of the founding of the Girl Guard 39 years ago, told the advisory board that 28 members are registered with local Girl Guard unit. She added that average attendance at the meetings total 40, however. She said the Girl Guard is a scouting organization with a spiritual relation.

"We like to give the children a chance to feel they belong to an organization," she said.

Greenville Corp Report

In Lt. Lewis' report to the Board it was shown that 112 senior religious activities had been held and 2,771 had attended these meetings since January 1.

Also, there has been 126 meetings for young people with 3,645 attending.

His report showed that 28 lodgings have been given, 56 meals, four sets of clothing and shoes, nine people have received transportation, five women assisted and two other aids given.

In family relief here there have been 42 grocery orders given along with 1,063 articles of clothing, 226 pair of shoes, four prescriptions of medicine, two have received cash relief, 43 have gotten household articles, one unmarried girl has been sent to the hospital and one family has received fuel.

Lt. Lewis concluded his report by saying, "There are other services rendered by The Salvation Army which are not included in this report, such as visits to prison and hospital and transportation provided on a number of occasions for those going to hospitals and specialists."

The Advisory Board will hold its next meeting on Tuesday, July 27. J. W. Butler presided at yesterday's meeting. Other board members present included T. Y. Walker, Elbert Bennett, W. H. Watson and Mrs. J. H. B. Moore.

Colonel Stephan thanked the board for its interest and complimented Lt. Lewis and his wife for their work in Greenville.

Captain Divans, who is in Greenville this week in conjunction with the anniversary of the founding of the Girl Guard 39 years ago, told the advisory board that 28 members are registered with local Girl Guard unit. She added that average at-ternationally known clergyman, editor of the Christian Herald, and Chaplain of the Chapel of the Four Chaplains, Philadelphia, will deliver the commencement sermon in the Wright Auditorium.

7:30 p. m. The YMCA and the YWCA will hold their annual vesper service in the College Theatre. A traditional and symbolic candle-lighting ceremony and the installation of new officers will be part of the services. The public is invited.

Shoe Appears To Outlast Wearers

LONDON (AP)—A shoe guaranteed to outlast the wearer has British children baffled. A West of England manufacturer issued a pair free to each of a group of children with instructions to report back in half a year.

They have just checked in — every last shoe intact. They reported they had climbed and crawled, slid and scamped, kicked and scuffed and scraped but the shoes would not wear out.

The uppers are of leather, but the soles — attached in such a way it is virtually impossible to part them from the uppers — are solid rubber. The manufacturers say the new shoes cost less to make than ordinary footwear because fewer processes are required.

UXBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Princess 33-year-old mare owned by Mrs. Lillias Farnum Daigle, would not stand still. Mrs. Daigle apologized.

"Princess always wants to be on the go once she's saddled and you ought to see her run in the corral. It's hard to believe she's so old, but my father bought her in 1926 at an auction in the Chicago stockyards. She was five years old."

Dr. Royce Simpson of the Angell Memorial Hospital in Boston says "It's an exceptional age for a horse, even if it doesn't break any records." He says horses may live into the 40's. And the way Princess frisks and canters now, she may be heading for a record.

CHAPTER TWENTY TWO

JOAN'S answer to Betty's question about teachers was based on the memories of her father's experience and now on Todd's prospects.

"In the public school system they're supposed to have regular raises—yes. But it's always a fight to get them established and when they finally do, the salary schedule is never commensurate with the cost of living. And teachers are allowed days off for illness, of course. And they do have a pension system, in the public schools, at least, because Mother couldn't have carried on without Dad's. But something is awfully wrong or why are teachers all over the country always struggling to get more money? They are listed as the poorest paid professional people in the country excepting only nurses." She paused and then answered her question herself. "The trouble is that they have too low a starting salary. And by the time they have wrangled adjustments from the local boards, the cost of living has gone up again and they are still behind. Most of the teachers I know have to hold down two jobs to make ends meet. The men work at night a lot of them, and of course all summer, too. When you consider how much time and money it takes to qualify for teaching everything seems cock-eyed."

"How is it where Todd will teach?"

"We won't really know till he gets there. All we are sure of is different requirements for each. They aren't reciprocal in any way."

"I see what you mean."

"What's more, Todd has to complete his Ph.D. in order to get a decent college position. He'll be only a little more than half through by the end of this summer. And where's the money coming from for him to go on? If we should happen to have a baby soon, Todd would be stuck. He couldn't pay for a baby and study for his Ph.D. too! Well, he might, perhaps, if we stayed where we are, but—"

"But you want your own place, I know."

"Yes," Joan said. "I do. Things are pretty good right now. Betty. They've worked out better than I thought they would. But—well—you never know how long it will last. Besides if we had a baby while we were in that apartment, where in the world would we put it? After it was a year old, I mean. In the kitchen sink, I guess!"

"Anyway, that's not a present worry, is it?"

Joan shook her head. "No, but you have to think about it and plan ahead, just in case." She paused. "You see, Betty, the thing is I don't want Todd stuck in a job that should really only be temporary because he's not trained for it and because it's not what he wants, on account of me and a baby. I don't want the two of us to be a millstone around his neck."

"Of course not. What about your writing, though Joan? Doesn't that income of yours help?"

"Oh, a little. But only a little so far." Joan fell silent. "It will get bigger. Mr. Adams keeps telling me it will. He says that each book in a series helps sell the others."

"Are you writing now?"

"No." Joan looked a little troubled as she replied. "I'm not doing a thing except refinishing furniture. I'm going to get started in the fall, though and I'll have it ready when it's due in May."

"What will it be about this time?"

"That's another worry! This started out to be a travel series, you know. Jane in Arizona, then Jane in Switzerland. But I'm not going anywhere this year, so what do I do?" She spread her hands in a helpless gesture. "It bothers me—not knowing I keep thinking about it and not getting anywhere. That's one reason—the main one, really—why I've done nothing yet. You can't write till you know what you want to write about! Oh, Betty! Here I am, as usual, spilling all my troubles on you."

"You're not doing much spilling."

"I don't know what you'd call it."

"Why, you're just seeing your problems clearly and facing them. Trying to find the answers. That's all. Why don't you write a book about Jane at Home? I should think you might find enough to say about that."

"Well, it did occur to me. The only trouble is that 'Jane' in my series is not a married gal. And besides, I don't know whether my publishers would want me to stop writing travel books. Maybe I'd better go in and see them before I decide."

"That would be smart."

They went on then to talk of other matters. And of Pamela and Tom.

"He's still job hunting, I believe," Joan said. "It's hard for him to find anything. Pam writes. For one thing, he got back here to this country after all the college grads had grabbed off the best openings. It was July before he really settled down seriously to look."

"What is it he wants to do?"

"He's not quite sure himself. I think he's been trying to get into diplomatic service. But that's always a long wait and I guess he's tired of it. To be sure, they don't have to worry a great deal. Pam's people are delighted to have them stay there as long as they will. They live just outside Albany, you know. And I guess Tom has a little income from his mother's estate. Still, it's not much. Pam said he used most of his principal to stay abroad those two years." She looked at Betty. "It seems to me all our generation is doing is thinking about ways to earn money!"

"Well, it's pretty important."

Joan nodded. "I never realized how important until I was married. Betty—" Her face clouded and Betty saw her eyes troubled again.

"What?"

"Oh! I'll feel terrible if Todd gets stuck teaching fourth graders and can't get away! It haunts me. There's no future there for him. The top salary any teacher gets in that school is three thousand. And if he can't see ahead—and get ahead—to the thing he wants to do—to his German I mean—he'll—well—wither on the stalk."

"Todd isn't the kind to get stuck. Or to wither on the stalk. He'll find an out for himself. Don't worry."

"He might find one. But would he take it? He'd think of me. What Jo-Jo Listen! Don't I hear Beth? Yes, I do. Come on in with me. She's so cute when she wakes up. Look! While I think of it, how about the four of us—you and Todd and Mike and me—going for an all-day picnic at Jones beach some time soon? Don't you think that would be fun?"

Any Girl Who Can Sew A Fine Seam Can Make A Bridal Veil Like A Dream

BRIDAL HOMEWORK . . . These two wedding veils are easy and thrifty to make at home.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
It's a sentimental gesture, as well as a thrifty one, for a bride to make her own wedding veil.

Local sewing center experts have worked out directions for two veils that are lovely to look and easy to sew.
A charming short veil, suitable for a home or garden wedding, is made from a square of lace and requires little stitching or fitting. Materials required are: 1 square yard of lace; 4 1/2 yards of lace banding about 5 inches wide, 1 bicycle clip about 1/2 inch wide, 3/4 yard of white satin ribbon about 1/2 inch wide and 8 orange blossoms. Dacron thread is suggested for stitching the lace.

To make the veil, first cut lace banding along heavy scalloped edge. If the lace to be used for the body of the veil is more than a yard wide, trim it to a 36-inch square. Pin lace edging all around the square, mitering the corners, and making sure the miter does not fall in the middle of a scallop. Use a half-inch seam allowance. Baste banding in place, and use the zigzag attachment on your sewing machine to stitch. If you back the lace with tissue paper, your sewing job will be easier. Remove bastings and tissue paper and tie threads with dressmaker knots. Cut away seam allowance. Clip mitered seam to a 1-4 inch and press open.

You now have a finished square of lace. Cover the bicycle clip with satin ribbon, wrapping it around and around and securing with tiny stitches. Find the middle of the clip and pin to the middle one corner of the lace square, at the seam, leaving the mitered point of edging to fall over the forehead. Pleat 1 1/2 inches on either side of the clip in 3/4-inch pleats and secure by tacking orange blossoms to each side.

A dramatic long veil may be made of nylon tulle with rows of lace stitched at intervals the entire length of the veil, giving a sunburst effect when the veil is worn. Required materials are: 3 yards of nylon tulle 57 inches wide, 20 yards of 2-inch lace banding, 1 small buckram frame for headpiece, 1-4 yard of satin or fabric to match the gown, and 3/4 yard of grosgrain ribbon 3/4-inch wide.

The entire three-yard length of tulle is used for the veil. Lay the tulle on a sheet spread on the floor and trim ends so they are precisely straight. First pin and then baste a lace banding along the long edges, then measure nine inches apart for placement of the four other strips of lace. Again backing the tulle with tissue paper, zigzag stitch along both sides of each lace band. Tie threads, remove bastings and tissue. Gather one end of veil to measurement of back of headpiece.

Now cover buckram frame with satin or with the fabric of the gown. Pleat remaining lace banding down the middle, using the ruffler attachment of your sewing machine, making 12 to 15 stitches to the inch and a pleat about every 12 stitches. Stitch with the ruffler down the exact center of the banding. Now fold banding along the center row of stitching so that it makes a double row and tack to back of headpiece about a 1-4 inch from the edge. Take another folded row above this. Tack gather-

Gas Bill Cut Is Just Oversight

DES MOINES (AP)—There was joy in the big potato chip firm here when the first oven-heating bill came in after conversion from oil to gas. The fuel expense had been running about $500 a month; the first gas bill was $50 a month. It went along this way for some months. Then the gas company called to explain:

For almost a year the gas meters in the chips plant had been misread; hundreds of units had been calculated in place of thousands. Would the chips firm please adjust to the tune of about $3,000?

No Sale, Though No Car Either

Shelby got out at the address to look for the buyer. When he got back after failing to locate the prospective buyer, the car was gone.

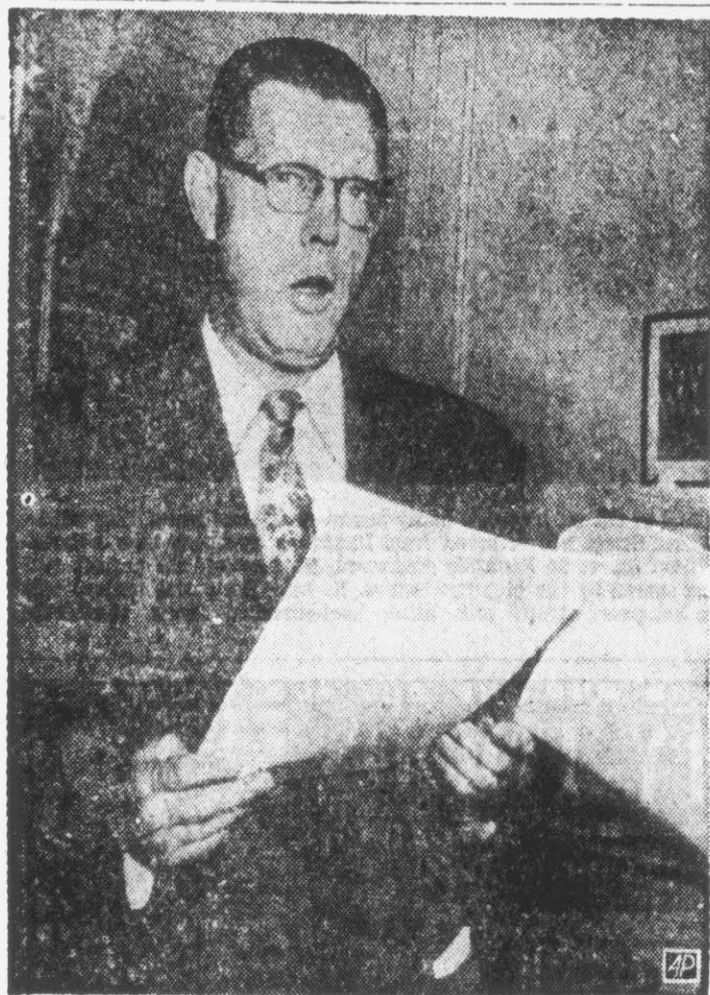

ed end of veil to back of headpiece, under ruffler. Finish the veil, if you like, with a lace band stitched along the bottom. Finally, slip-stitch grosgrain ribbon around inside edge of headpiece—and you're all ready for the wedding march.

McDuffie of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation (right) hurry Tom Williams to their auto after capturing the slaying suspect near a swamp outside Moultrie, Ga. Williams, a 47-year-old Negro ex-convict, is charged with one of two double murders and has been definitely linked with the other. Williams was taken into custody about 24 hours after the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Rowland were found with their throats cut. The Rowland couple had obtained a parole for Williams only five years ago. The Negro was serving a life sentence for the murder of another Negro at the time of his parole. (AP Wirephoto)

TOKYO (AP)—A recent Peiping broadcast told a meeting by the "presidium of the East China Writers Union." It was decided there should be three historical novels this year.

A committee of writers was organized "to study life in factories, villages and building sites."

After that, the presidium decided it would be appropriate to study "the training of new writers."

Tax For Indians Finally Imposed

OKANOGAN, Wash. (AP)—The Okanogan County assessor says Indian-owned cattle and farm machinery are being listed for the first time for state property taxes. He said state officials have ruled the property taxable unless it was issued originally by the federal government.

The Colville Indian Reservation is a large part of the county. The Indians, says the assessor, are very cooperative.

Diplomatic Break Over Guatemalan Violations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nicaraguan Ambassador Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa said today his government broke relations with Guatemala yesterday, charging that Guatemala had violated an agreement by spreading Communist propaganda in Nicaragua.

The ambassador's statement confirmed earlier word from other sources here that the diplomatic break was not directly related to a recent arms shipment from Communist Poland which President Eisenhower described yesterday as "disturbing."

But it obviously provided additional backing for the view that the Nicaraguan move would help speed up a showdown on the whole situation in Guatemala, for months the target of accusations of pro-Communist activity.

Sevilla Sacasa told a reporter his government handed passports to the Guatemalan ambassador in Managua at 5 p.m. yesterday, along with a note explaining the action.

Nicaragua's government long has been at odds with the regime in Guatemala, accusing it of pro-Communist activities. The reaction here has not been greatly different. The State Department has often accused the government of President Jacobo Arbenz of clearing the way in Guatemala for full cooperation with the Communists.

The State Department has sent reports of the "important" arms shipment to every American nation, apparently to feel out sentiment about calling the countries of this hemisphere into consultation on some course of action.

First reports here gave no details on Nicaragua's move but dispatches from Guatemala said the whole Nicaraguan diplomatic delegation flew home suddenly yesterday on orders from Managua. Guatemalan officials said they did not even have official word the

Pacific Bastions Gearing Only For U.S. Offensives

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—Western Pacific islands form America's front-line defense against communism in the Pacific today but the only guns you find there are the rusted relics left by a beaten Japan.

The reason is the old military dictum that the best defense is a good offense.

Millions of dollars are being poured into key islands but it isn't being spent on shore defenses or combat troops.

In nearly a month of travel from the Marshalls north to the Bonin Islands, I didn't see one shore-based fighter plane or infantry unit.

These islands once bristled with shore guns of an imperialistic Japan. America uses them today as military transport airports and supply depots.

On Kwajalein, for instance, the 6,500-foot airstrip on the 2 1/2-mile-long island is a major link in our military global air route. In event of war it and the strip on Roi Island, 60 miles to the north, could in a matter of days be operating bases for bomber and fighter craft. The only planes operating from Kwajalein today are patrol craft. The only guns are small arms. Guam, obviously the key island in the central Pacific defenses, has many shore guns — but all rusting weapons put there by the Japanese during World War II.

Only two of Guam's airfields—Anderson Air Force Base and Agaña — are operational. Oroquieta Northwest and Harmon fields have been abandoned but the strips are usable.

Supply and ammunition areas on Guam cover miles and miles. The island is capable of supplying and servicing all types of ships and aircraft.

Tinian, with its two huge airports, is virtually unmanned from a military standpoint. Two enlisted men are there.

But those airports — one with 10,000-foot runways from which the able. Saipan has only a small force, about 100 men.

Two Jims is manned by the Air Force. But the force, except for one plane used in air-sea rescue work, is entirely maintenance. Military planes use it as a stopping place on transoceanic flights.

Japan built its strongest island fortress in the Bonin Islands, Chichijima, main island in the group, was not invaded. Today amid the shambles of the once powerful Japanese outpost the Navy keeps a small unit of three officers and 14 enlisted men.

As long as there's peace in the Pacific no larger weapons are needed. If war should come, the United States plans to be swinging so hard and so fast it won't have to worry about island invaders.

Sky Watchers In Meeting Friday

BETHEL — Civil Defense officials and Air Force Ground Observer Corps personnel have designated the Town of Bethel as a location for an Aircraft Observation Post.

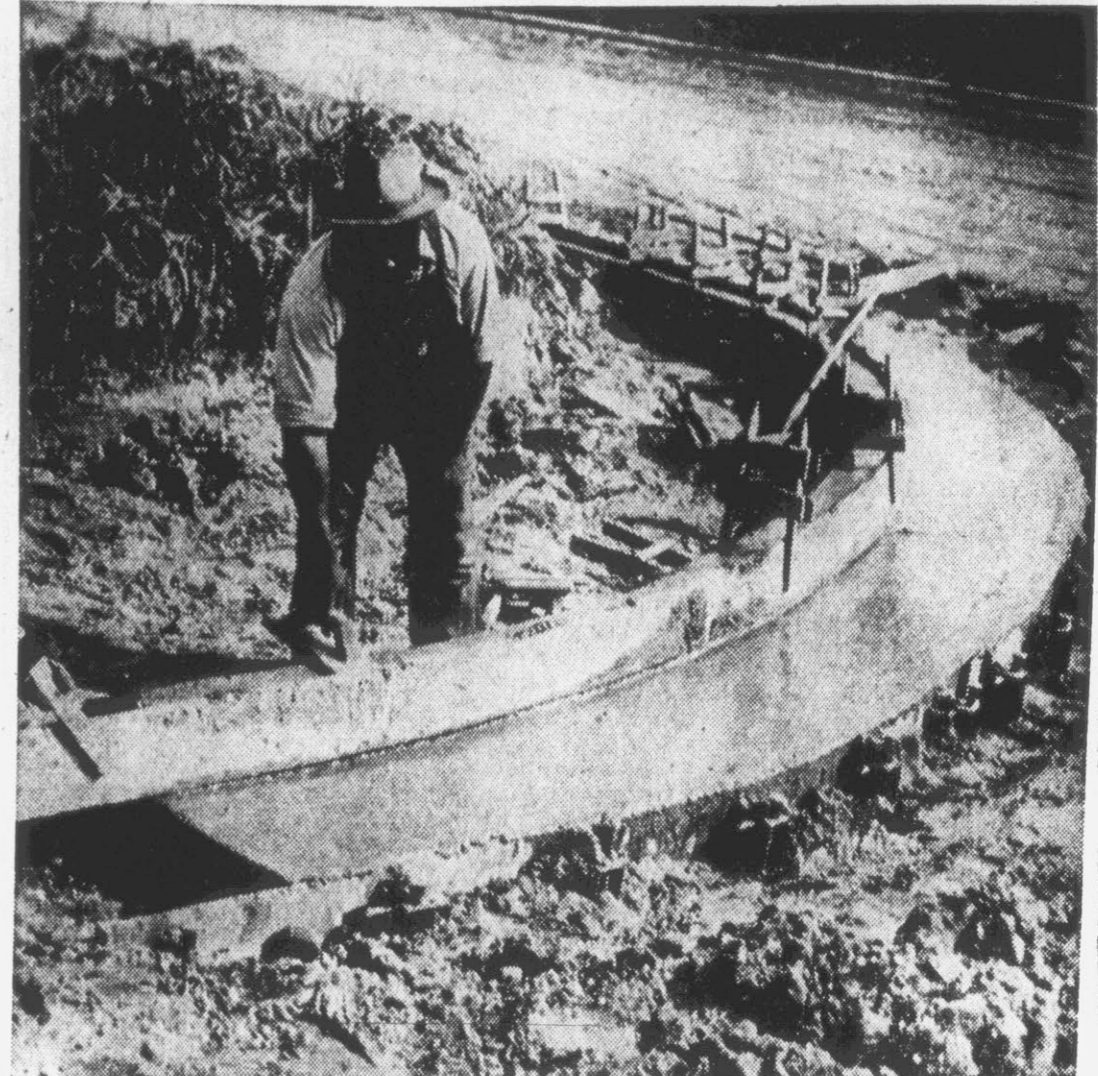

Mayor R. L. Martin said the first meeting of volunteer aircraft observers will be held at Bethel Town Hall Friday, May 21, at 8 o'clock. United States Air Force personnel will be present to explain defense requirements and a motion picture will be projected showing the simulated destruction of one of our largest American cities.

Bethel citizens are being urged to share in this vital community project and to attend the volunteer meeting. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Henry M. Andrews or Mayor Martin.

Persons who volunteer for duty with the Observation Post will not be required to participate daily. Participation will be required only during practical exercises, approximately once every two months, except in emergency alerts and in the event of a national emergency. Young people as well as adults are expected to participate in this civil defense work.

It has been determined that a Ground Observation Post is required in Bethel in order to obtain more adequate coverage in the area in so far as spotting of aircraft is concerned in the event of a national emergency, the mayor stated.

Finishing Touch To Paving Work

A workman is shown as he finishes part of the curbing now being poured on Wilson Street. City Manager James S. Hughes said today that Wilson Street will be paved from Dickinson Avenue to Line Avenue. The paving will then continue from Wilson Street to Farmville Boulevard. Hughes said the project will cost approximately $10,000 which is being shared by the property owners. He said the paving project will connect the Village Grove section which has paved streets with other hard-surfaced streets. (Reflector photo by Alvin Taylor)

Coal Industry Has Dim View Ahead

By SAM DAWSON

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Coal mine operators and miners alike look down a dreary road today. Output, consumption, jobs, work weeks, all are limping.

Lower prices would help sales, thus jobs—but how to cut them? Two days from now some of the soft coal mine operators are planning to meet in Chicago to see what can be done. They think Uncle Sam could help—and have definite ideas how.

If they also have any ideas about squirming out from under contracts with the United Mine Workers with their high wage rates and welfare fund royalties—well, John L. Lewis has just publicly stated he'd take a very dim view of coal companies' trying to work on an open-shop basis. He indicated that his men would take an actively antagonistic view too.

Some of the big operators around here aren't hurting so much. In the last 18 months, seeing this day coming, they've cut off marginal mines, concentrated on more profitable ones. But many of the little fellows have closed down.

Only about 280,000 miners are reported working now, compared with 400,000 two years ago.

One thing both owners and miners want to see is some government action to stop the flow of foreign residual oil into this country, which coalmen say undercuts their markets.

They're also feuding with the railroads over freight rate hikes. They want government agencies to make the roads cut rates for the ailing coal industry. The rails used to be one of coal's biggest customers. During the war they bought around 10 million tons a month. This year it's down to little more than one million a month, thanks to the change-over to diesel engines.

Coalmen also don't like their government's abetting and financially aiding the European Coal and Steel Community, the Schuman Plan for unifying and building up Europe's twin industries. Coalmen blame this and European tariffs for part of the drop in American coal exports.

The immediate view is gloomy. The National Coal Assn. reports production this year is 18 per cent lower than last year, which was no great shakes itself. U. S. Bureau of Mines figures indicate, however, that consumption this year has been topping production, whittling consumers' stockpiles down to about 65 days supply.

Executives in the big coal companies here say you may have to wait five or six years to see the day again when coal unaided by government can hope for an assured even break with its rivals, oil and gas.

They base that on the belief—maybe just the hope—that by 1960 petroleum production in this country will have reached its peak. Oilmen don't go along with that of course. But coalmen contend that when the peak is reached oil companies will have to step up product return from their refineries, if they're to make money, and thus will have less residual oil to peddle in competition with coal.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

How to combat rust on metal work around the exteriors of our homes is one of the headaches we get every time the Spring clean-up, paint-up, fix-up season rolls around.

For the farmer and his outdoor machinery, this is a perennial pain in the neck. For the average householder, it is a mild heartbreak—especially to find his neat white painted home blossoming with "rust measles" when he knows that the nails bleeding their rust through that paint were called "galvanized" when they were purchased.

It's common around any neighborhood to see brown stains on window frames where water dripped down from screen and storm window fixtures. Concrete porch floors often look like their iron railings must have been installed with bolts made out of chewing tobacco.

You can fight rust and check its ravages in many ways. There are new paints on the market that will stick to galvanized iron eaves-troughs and downspouts as tightly as any good paint will stick to dry wood. In the past, chemical reactions were inevitable between the shiny zinc covering of galvanized iron and the vehicle used in ordinary paints. But zinc will stick to zinc, so paint makers have come up with a new trick.

You can now get galvanized metal primer in a two-compartment container—one being zinc dust, which mixes readily with a specially formulated synthetic vehicle in the accompanying can of primer to make the mixture stick to galvanized metal.

The laboratory technicians, who developed this primer, say that its advantage over a ready-mixed metal paint is that it can be stored successfully and you can mix just enough for the job in hand. Incidentally, it makes it possible to paint galvanized garbage and trash barrels the same colors as your house trim. You can use this primer on copper, too, to prevent stains.

A little special technique is called for in painting metal. For new galvanized ware, you have to remove the factory-deposited oil and grease with a thorough turpentine wine-down. If the galvanizing has been well-weathered, soap and water and a clear rinse will be enough. But rusted areas have to be sanded clean.

"Paint line of yesterday," says a paint authority, "called for the use of vinegar for this purpose to improve paint adhesion on galvanizing. Just about all this practice accomplished was to eat away a portion of the protecting galvanized film."

The usual procedure in handling rust is to clean it thoroughly to the bare metal by using steel wool, emery cloth or modern production papers. No painter, who knows his ropes, will paint over rust because he knows that rust will continue to develop even under paint.

So roof gutters, cornices and other outside metal work are carefully cleaned. A stiff wire brush removes loose scales, steel wool or other abrasives down to the shiny metal. Then the spots are touched up with zinc chromate primer available at any paint store.

Now, however, there's another rusted surface once the loose scale vestiges of hot-dip galvanizing. It's new paint that is used right over a

Talmadge Phone Kept Ringing

ATLANTA (AP)—The telephone rang far into the night after Gov. Herman Talmadge commented on the U. S. Supreme Court decision striking down public school segregation.

Outstanding Pitching Marks Little League Contests

Bynum and Ken Joyner Hurl Loop Victories

Two brilliant pitching performances highlighted yesterday's Little League action at Elm Street Park. Big Merrill Bynum of the Elks hurled a sparkling one-hitter at the Exchange as his team won by a 17-2 margin. Little lefthander Kenneth Joyner pitched a snappy five-hit shutout against the Pepsi-Cola as the Moose won that game 10-0.

First Game
In the first game Bynum wheeled his blazing fast one past the Exchange without any trouble until Erskine Duff singled in the fourth. After that Bynum looked even tougher in turning back the Exchange in the last two innings. Bynum and Joe Moye led the Elks at the plate with two hits apiece.

Second Game
Little Ken Joyner twisted off his lefthanded slants to the Pepsi-Cola like a pro as he shut out repeated attempts to score by Coach Emu Boado's team. The Pepsi bunched five hits off the little lefty but when the going was rough Joyner burned them in there harder. In the fourth inning game, abbreviated because of darkness, Joyner struck out eight and walked four. Kenny teamed with his brother Donald to form a pitcher-catcher brother combination.

Attention Goes To Kansas Miler In Big 7 Games

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—The spotlight is focused on miler Steve Santee of Kansas in the Big Seven Track and Field Championships here tomorrow and Saturday but several other top-flight athletes may set new conference records.

Competitors in the meet at mile-high Folsom Field have equaled or surpassed this season seven of the records on the conference books. Only marks made in the league meet are accepted as conference records.

Santee, fastest miler in U. S. history, has registered better-than-record time in the 880-yard run, the mile and two-mile. But track experts figure the rarefied air will keep him from setting conference records in the mile and two-mile runs.

No Title Shouts After Fiore Win

By JOE FALLS
DETROIT (AP)—Cy Crisler is a reasonable fight manager, which is something of an oddity.

His belter from Brooklyn, Carmine Fiore, scored a unanimous 10-round decision last night over Jed Black of Janesville, Wis., and not once—not once, mind you—did Crisler clamor: "We want the champ next!" He merely said:

"Maybe now they'll rank my boy." This refreshing twist followed an impressive performance by Fiore, who is unranked among the welterweights. Using a solid left, he twice floored Black for eight counts to pile up an impressive margin on the cards of all three officials.

It was Fiore's eighth straight win and ended Black's string of 27 fights without a defeat. The Army-bound Black was surprised by a wild left in the third round. He was up at the count of "two, ready to go, but Referee Jackie Swartz said, no, you must take a mandatory eight count.

There was nothing mandatory about the second knockdown, however. In the seventh, Fiore thumped a solid left to Black's head, and the ex-collegiate fell over on his side, completely dazed. He arose rubber-legged but before Fiore could file him under "knockouts," the bell ended the round.

Referee Swartz was the most impressed with the bruising Fiore. He called it 96-92, while Judge Bill Appleton had it 93-96 and Judge Joe Greenberg 95-85.

Chopping away with pounding lefts and rights, Fiore turned Black's sides to a tender, beefsteak red. This, of course, didn't show up on the black and white TV screens from coast to coast.

"But I felt them, and my back and sides still hurt," Black said in the dressing room. It probably was Black's last fight for some time. He will enter the Army Sunday.

Fiore weighed 148 1-4 and now has a record of 27-26-5. Black, 144 1/2, is 28-2-1. A slim crowd of 1,662 paid a gross of $2,645.10.

It all seemed worthwhile after trainer Kelly suddenly began making Ring King sick. Last year, Ring King failed to race because he had a funny leg action that suggested knee trouble.

Kelly, a 35-year-old native of Pikesville Md., became trainer for the Rices last November. In January, they sent him Ring King in Florida and told him, "Either make him run or break him down."

"I did what the boss told me," relates Kelly. "I made him run. Every time the colt went on the race track I had the exercise boy carry a stick."

At first nothing appeared to result. Ring King ran three times and failed to win. Then he came north to Laurel and won three straight, including two stakes, the Cherry Blossom and Chesapeake.

He ran for the first time since March 27 in the Preakness Prep on Monday and finished third behind Correlation and Hasty Road.

Raggedy Ann Colt Is Typical

BALTIMORE (AP)—Ring King, a Raggedy Ann little colt even to the ratchet he made him whatever racehorse he is, typifies entries being made today for Saturday's Preakness in the face of knowledge that the formidable Correlation and Hasty Road already are down to start.

Trainer Tommy Kelly is full of doubt that Ring King belongs in such a high-caliber race as the $100,000 middle leg of the triple crown. But there's only one way to find out for certain and that's to try, admits.

This is the first time in recent history of the Preakness that horses have been entered before the regular opening of the entry box on the day before the race. Scratch time for the race is 5 p.m. Friday.

Robert S. Lytle, owner of Correlation, and Alie Reubens, owner of Hasty Road entered their favorites yesterday. So did Howard A. Jones with FOR Free and Sunny Blue Farm's Admiral Porter.

Still expected to dare to come in, besides Ring King are Maine Chance Farm's Jet Action, Walmac Farm's Hasseyama, Woodvale Farm's Goyama, Joe W. Brown's gigantic and maybe T. A. Sears' Niral Lad and E. M. O'Brien's Galdar.

Some of the excitement is that after the first prize of around $80,000 there is $25,000 for second, $15,000 for third and $7,500 for fourth. Mrs. Ada L. Rice put up the equivalent of fourth prize money just to make Ring King eligible and pays another $1,000 to enter and start.

Yankees Returning Home After Good Western Trip

Naming A Horse Sometimes Has Strange Results

By FRANK ECK
AP News Features Sports Editor
In 1948 C.T. Clifford of San Francisco had trouble finding a name for one of his thoroughbreds. Name after name was rejected by The Jockey Club. Finally, in despair, he scribbled out 'U name it' and mailed it to New York.

And that's exactly how The Jockey Club registrar filed the card. Naming thoroughbreds is a fascinating pastime for many owners. When Col. E. R. Bradley first got the idea to start names of his horses with the letter "b" he stuck with it. His Kentucky Derby winners were Behave Yourself, Burgo King and Broker's Tip. His Derby seconds were Black Servant, Bet Mosie, Bagen-baggage and Bimblech.

The person who probably knows the most about naming horses is Mrs. Lillian Brennan, 48, a pleasant gray-haired woman from Oradell, N.J. She has worked for The Jockey Club 26 years, the last three as registrar.

Each year 9,000 names pass through her fingers. "There are a few simple rules to follow in naming a race horse," says Mrs. Brennan. "The name must contain no more than three words. Fourteen letters, including spacing and punctuation marks, are the limit. It must not duplicate the name of any horse which has been in racing or in stud within 15 years, and must not duplicate the name of any prominent horse regardless of time.

No trade names are permitted, nor names of books, movies, songs or plays with a copyright. In naming horses after people The Jockey Club must have written permission from the person whose name is used."

John W. Galbreath of Columbus, Ohio, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates and master of Darby Dan Farm, beat the permission angle two years ago when he called one of his horses Bee Arr. The horse was named after Branch Rickey, Pirate general manager.

Turn-to (lower case t because that's the way The Jockey Club has it on file), was named by Harry F. Guggenheim.

This colt, a candidate for 3-year-old honors, was known as Source Royal in Ireland where he was foaled. When Guggenheim, a former Navy captain, bought him he changed the name to Turn-to which in Navy jargon means "start to work" or "bear down." Incidentally, Turn-to's proper spelling wasn't discovered until about the time he won the world's richest horse race, last fall.

Mrs. Brennan probably knew it all along, but her job precludes checking on racing programs or how sports writers spell horses' names. She's continuously busy at The Jockey Club's Park Ave. office.

Busiest time for Mrs. Brennan is the last two weeks of each year. That's when Jan. 1 is the universal birthday for thoroughbreds.

"Busiest week is between Christmas and New Year's," says Mrs. Brennan. "For example, a horse foaled in 1953 must be named by the end of 1954. That's why we get a last minute rush. Thoroughbred owners are no different from people who wait until the last minute to get new license plates."

When an owner forgets to name his yearling before Jan. 1 when the horse becomes a 2-year-old—the owner faces a penalty. However, in the case of the unnamed filly that will be presented to the person naming her in a national contest—on May 1 at Churchill Downs, Ky., by a Wheeling, W. Va., tobacco firm, the owners were aware of the penalty rule. To avoid the penalty the owners sent in a blank naming her "Pennant." It was disallowed because Pennant was a famous racer and well known as the sire of Equipse. It was one case where the owners of a horse were happy about a rejection.

An appropriate name for this bay filly by Attention—Banish Ruth foaled May 22, 1952 at Henry H. Knight's Almahurst Farm, Lexington, Ky., and purchased at auction last September, might be Look Ruth or See Here Ruth.

That's how 75 per cent of the owners of big racing stables arrive at a name. They form a combination that applies to both the sire and dam. As witness some of the names of the 3-year-olds eligible for the 1954 Belmont Futurity:

Model Busher was named after his sire Mr. Busher and his dam Model Beauty; Mr. Looknow after Mr. Busher—Look Now. Privacy was derived from the sire Request and the dam Quarantine. Hall Shell came by his name because he's by Half Crown—Sea Snack. And War Doings is by War Admiral—Big Doings.

Remember! Don't make the mistake an owner made when he named his horse Alcibiades, a Greek owner made when he named his horse Alcibiades, after a Greek general. Alcibiades, the horse, was a filly. And when some racetracks see a masculine name it gives them a laugh when the horse turns out to be a filly.

Pro Grid Players Like Television

By GAYLE TALBOR
NEW YORK (AP)—If one gets around and keeps his ears open he can learn something new about athletes almost every day. The latest authentic information gathered in this manner appears to prove that certain professional football players think more of performing before the television cameras than they do of making money.

It has been known for some time, of course, that the average sports figure does not object to lending his talents to the home screen. Even umpires have been accused of turning their better profile during diamond debates. But it has not to our knowledge been previously disclosed that the more badly bitten of our sweaty heroes are willing to pay their way in.

We might never have known it but for the fact that, through a debt move, NBC has arranged to telecast games of the Canadian Football League on nine Saturdays during the coming season in a sort of battle to the death with our own colleges' "Game of the Week." An official of the TV firm observed that, as a result of the pact, the Canadian clubs would suit up more of this country's All Americans than ever before, and he was asked why.

"They'll all want to go up there now," he explained with a patient smile. "The biggest trouble the Canadians have had getting the superstars to play with them in the past was the fact that their home folks wouldn't get to see them play, as they would if they signed with a National League team."

"Maybe the Canadians would offer a player $9,000 against the $7,000 he could get here. The player would say, 'Yeah, but if I go up there I might as well be at the North Pole—nobody'll know where I am and my name will be forgotten by the time I'm through.' So he'd take the $7,000 and appear on television. There won't be any more of that."

BROOKLYNITE SWITCHES
LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—Joe Mastrogiovanni, 1953 sophomore tailback for the University of Wyoming, will switch to blocking back this fall. Mastrogiovanni is a 5-foot-6 Brooklynite weighing 195.

Chico Carrasquel, the White Sox shortstop, got the stakes against the Yankees in the last two innings and the Yankee came from behind to win. In the eighth, with a man on first, Chico let Hank Bauer's double-play grounder roll through his legs and Bauer later scored the tying run on Yogi Berra's single.

In the ninth with one out and runners on first and third, Eno Slaughter hit to Carrasquel, who had the choice of throwing to the plate or starting a double play but he fumbled the ball and by was a force at second while the winning run came home from third.

Bob Lemon picked up victory No. 6 for Cleveland as he allowed the Red Sox just four hits. Two errors by Milt Bolling gave the Indians two unearned runs in the eighth.

Detroit overcame the Athletics in the ninth when Al Kaline singled after the Tigers had loaded the bases without a hit.

The Orioles, whose hits this spring have been few and far between, bunched six singles after two were out in the sixth to score four runs against Washington.

Detective Winds Up In Jail After Shadowing Ball Player

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The ball club hired a detective to shadow its second baseman and the private eye wound up in the clink. That could be considered a rather humorous situation except that a lot of people in the business are wondering how long this sort of thing has been going on and how general it is in the baseball world.

The ball club involved is the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League. The second baseman is Granville Hamner. The private eye identified himself as Charles Leland, 36, working out of Wilmington, Del.

The story "broke" yesterday afternoon when it was revealed Leland had been taken in custody on Hamner's complaint someone followed him home from the Phillies' ball park after the Tuesday night game.

Hamner said he left Connie Mack Stadium, climbed into his gray Cadillac and drove off a parking lot. He told the cops he observed another car following closely.

And, said Hamner, when he parked at home and went into the house, he saw this other automobile round a corner, then drive past the Hamner house once more.

two-tone gray Cadillac in connection with a divorce action.

Leland according to Detective Sgt. James Teevins said he followed such a car from Philadelphia's International Airport to a parking lot near the ball park. Then, he said when Hamner drove off later, he followed—thinking he was still on the trail of his divorce case suspect.

Leland was arraigned before Magistrate William Hagen and held in $500 bail on charge he violated the Uniform Firearms Act.

Then, Phillies owner Bob Carpenter exploded a bombshell. "This was no case of mistaken identity," Carpenter announced in a statement. "It was a case of my employing a detective agency to check on some of my players."

"Most major league clubs follow the same policy. Each year I have checked on my players both at home and on the road, so that I could be assured that our rules of midnight curfew after day games, and 2 a.m. curfew after night games would be observed."

of private investigators. He added that he had been using this tactic for a number of years. He said he wanted a baseball team physically and mentally prepared to face the rigors of a major-league pennant race.

"I want to be cleared of the implications and inferences that being followed shows something wrong in a person's private life," Hamner said.

"I know I am of some value to the team. If what I have to say means they're going to trade me, I'm going to speak my piece. I don't like this sort of stuff."

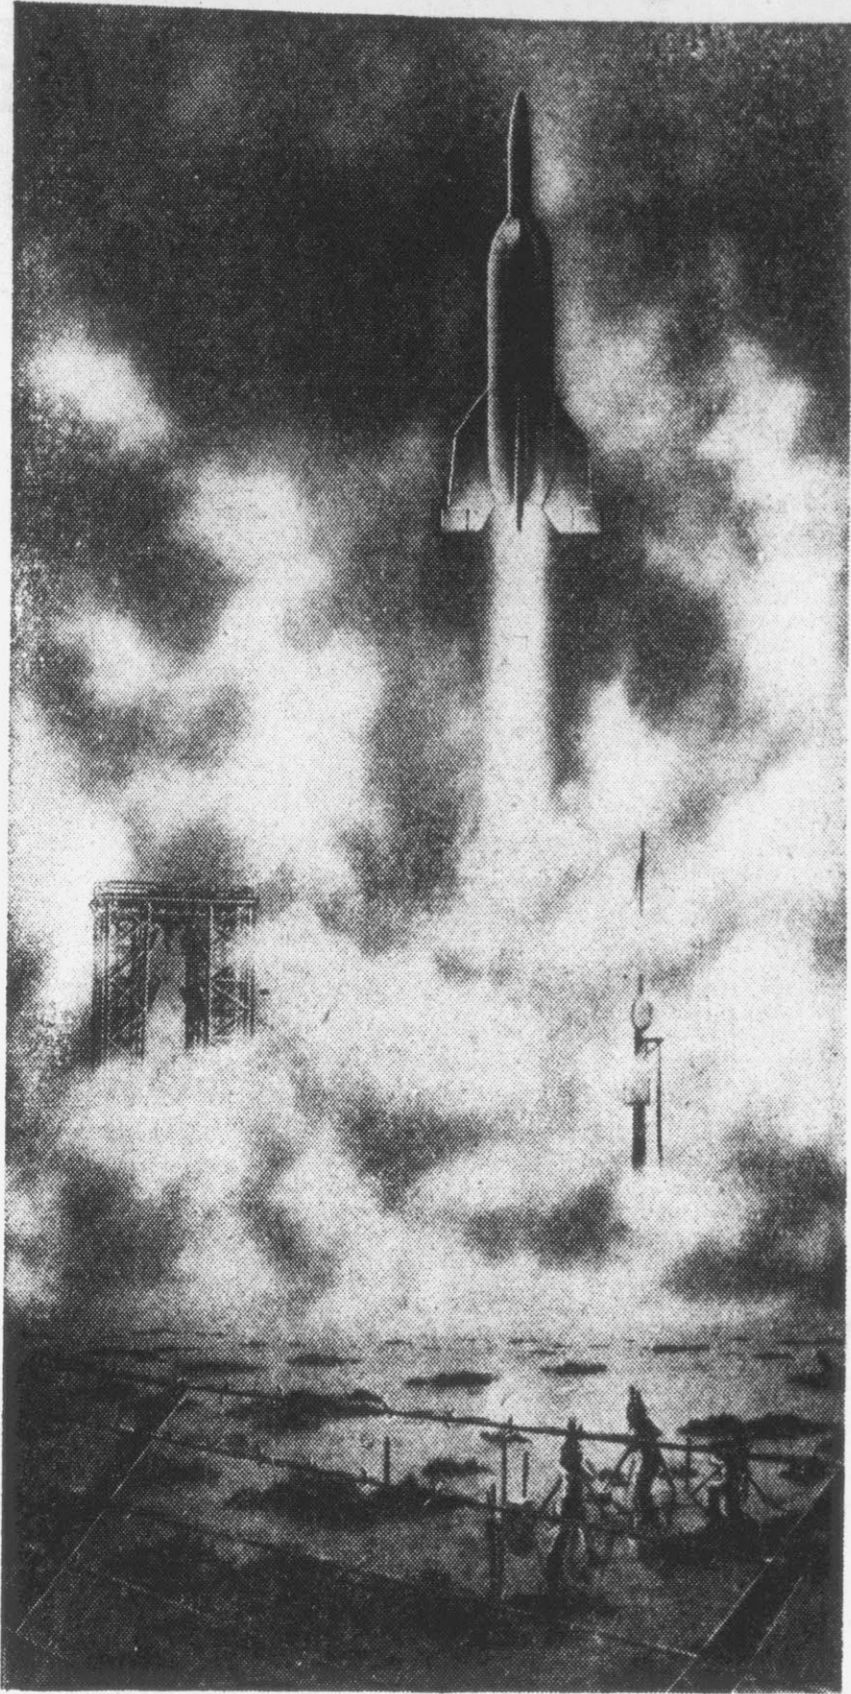

Hamner already has felt the reaction of the episode. The barbs of sharp-tongued fans and some of the bench jockeys on the opposition—the Milwaukee Braves last night—opened up on him. He went hitless in four times at bat and dropped to second place in the National League batting average race with .365.

Several fans shouted, "Who's trailing you tonight, Hamner?" "Going out on the town after the game?" "Got a date for tonight, fella?"

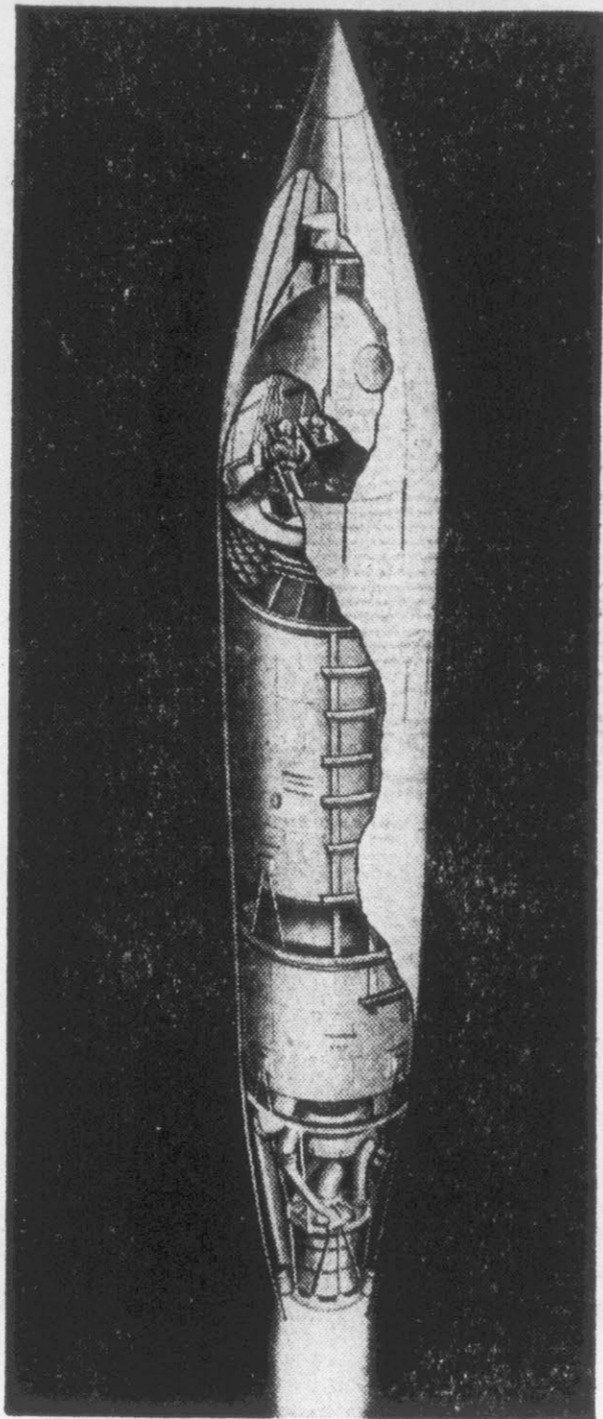

Meanwhile Charles Leland, 36, of St. Georges, Del., an investigator for the Brandywine Investigation Agency in Wilmington, was held in $500 bail for a further hearing Monday by Magistrate William Hagen on charges of violating the firearms act. Leland is the investigator arrested by police on Hamner's report. A revolver and a target pistol were found in Leland's car.

SPACE RIDERS

1. Multistage rocket roars upward from its launching pit. Its instrument-packed final stage will remain forever in space.

2. This two-man space ship is adaptation of research rocket proposed in 1946 by two British interplanetary designers R.A. Smith and H.E. Ross.

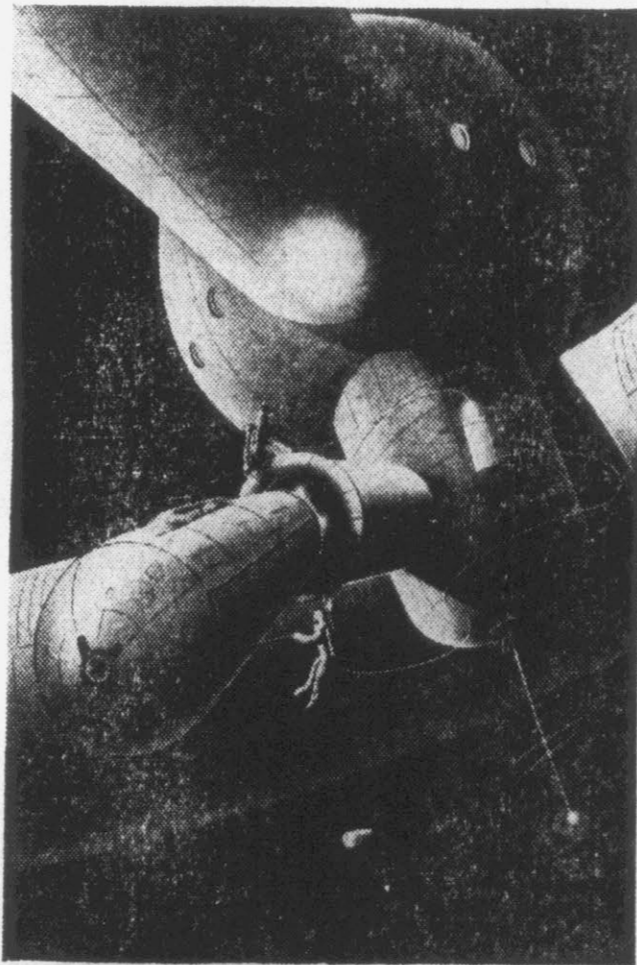

3. Space satellite is set up in 1,075-mile-high orbit above the earth by spacesuited men from shuttle rockets. Ring satellite, proposed by Dr. Werner von Braun, technical director of U.S. Army guided missile development group, is 250 feet in diameter with three "decks" for operational and living quarters.

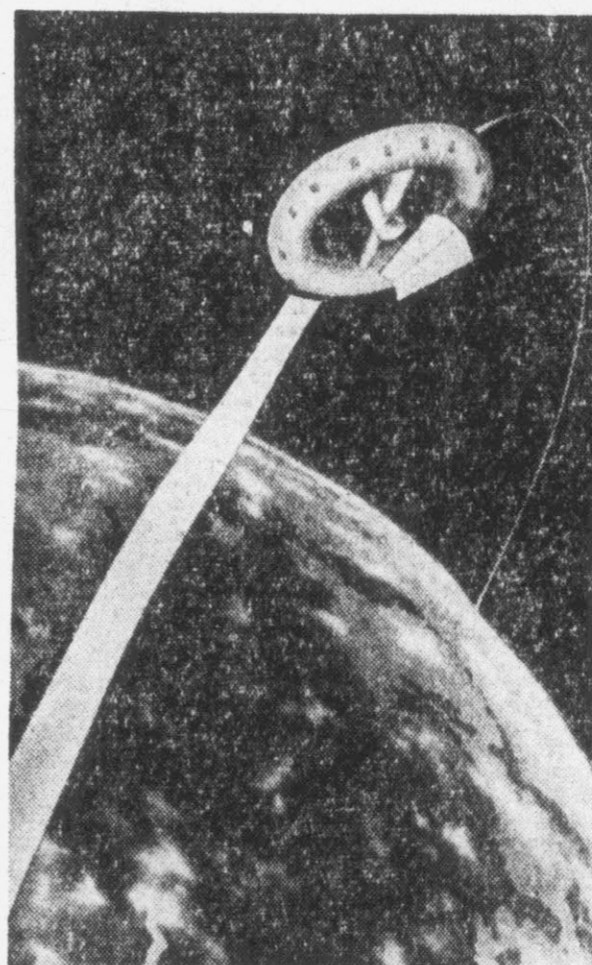

Man one day will travel to other planets. This is the opinion of many scientists. Right now problems are being solved on the drawing boards of space engineers. How it will be done is anyone's guess, but the way has already been partly prepared by jet propulsion, rocket ships, launching platforms. These were wild flights of the imagination just a few years back. So a trip to the moon via man-built satellite stations might be just as likely in the near future as was a pilot's crashing of the sonic barrier in the immediate past.

There are myriad obstacles to man's survival in space. There are zero gravity and its attendant problem of weightlessness, explosive decompression, intense heat created by friction, terrible cold, meteors and the dangers of rapid acceleration and deceleration. It's all a tremendous challenge. But has man ever shrunk from challenges?

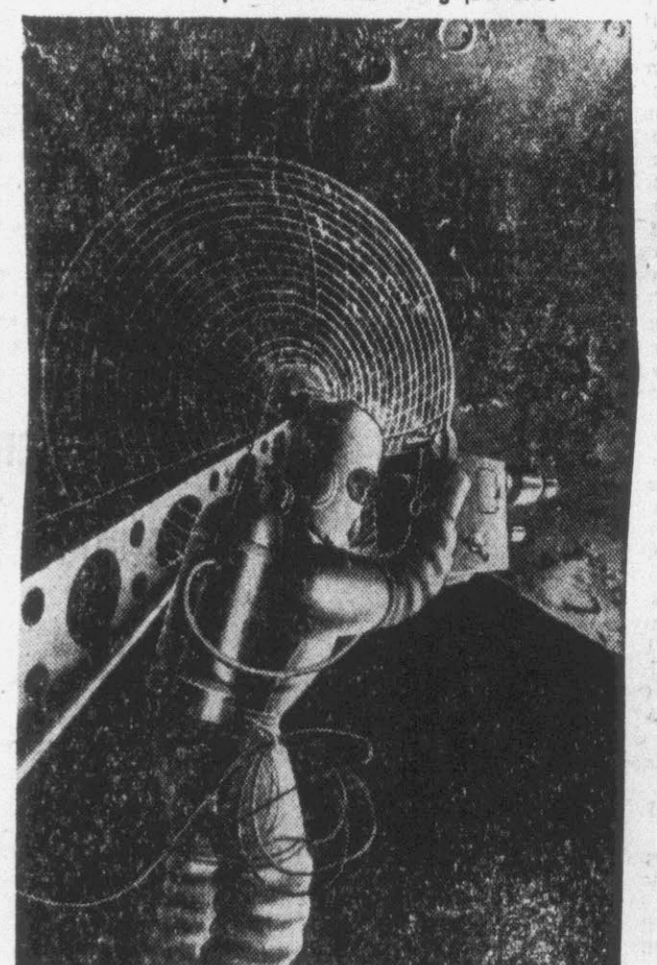

How this journey into space can be accomplished is shown in these unusual sketches drawn by Fred L. Wolf for Martin Caidin's new book, "Worlds in Space," published by Henry Holt and Company, Inc.

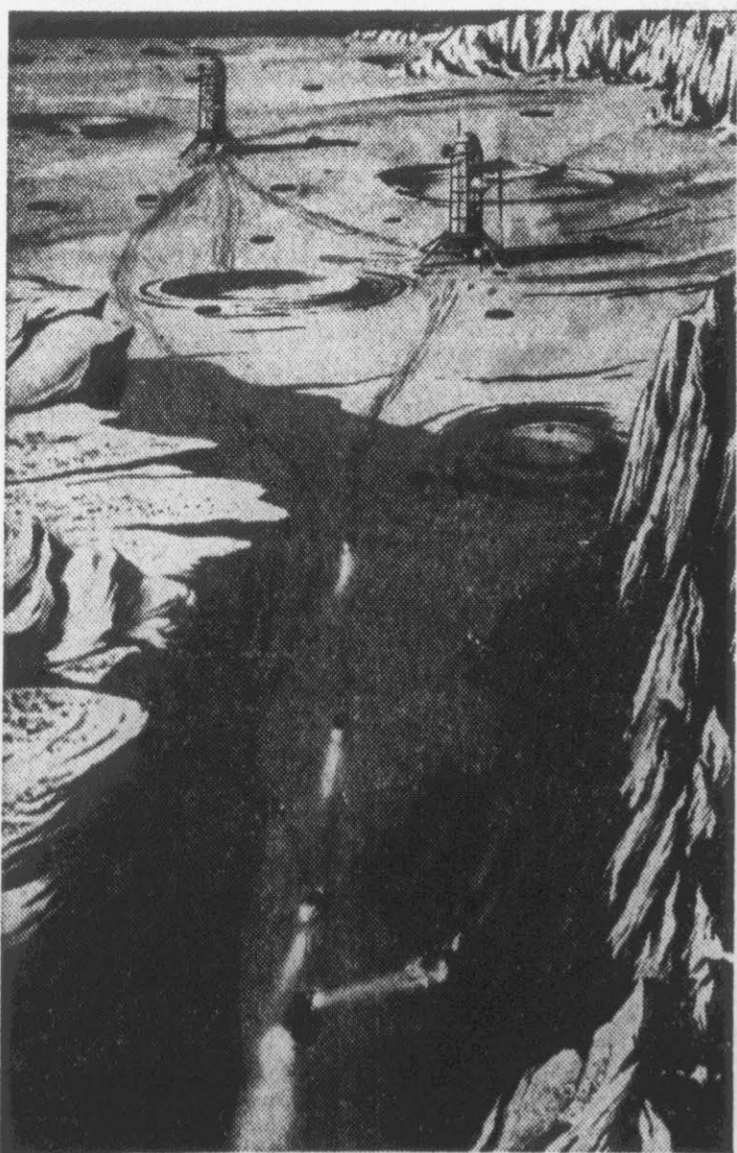

4. Cargo transfer between the shuttle rockets making round trips from the earth to the satellite is accomplished with use of special "space taxis."

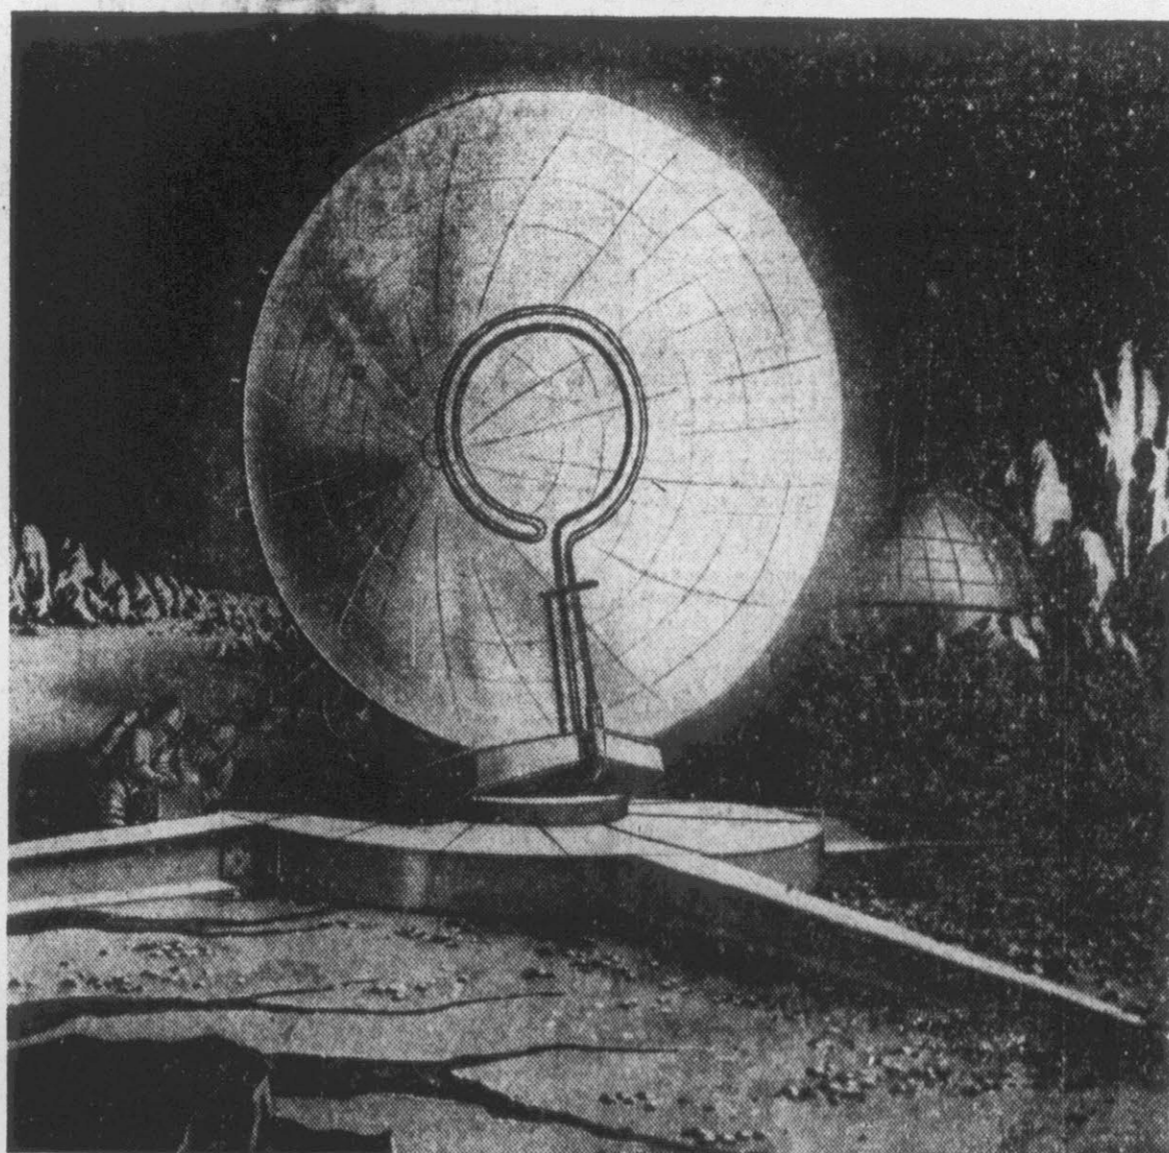

5. Space satellite follows a precise orbit of specific height and velocity that cannot be altered. It can be attacked by guided missile.

British Husbands Best Declares Englishwoman

By SANDRA NEMSER
AP Newsfeatures
NEW YORK — "It's more fun to go to dinner with an American, but I'd rather be married to a Britisher," says Jill Craigie, British script writer who recently completed her first screen play for an American film company.

Interviewed during her first visit to this country, Miss Craigie, wife of a Member of Parliament and mother of a 17-year-old daughter, conceded that American men are more attractive, have more dash and are gayer than Englishmen, explaining:

"If Americans think a woman looks nice, they say so. They take for granted she is intelligent." An Englishman, says Miss Craigie, seldom sends flowers and if he thinks his wife looks pretty might remark to someone else: "She's looking a bit of all right tonight."

The hazel-eyed scenarist-journalist claims she would rather marry a Britisher because he's steadier, pointing out that a look at American divorce statistics will prove that. She adds that Britons are much better at compromise in marriage. "We don't expect a man to be the sun and moon and stars. We put up with faulty refrigerators; we put up with a husband. Marriage has to be jolly well serious."

Miss Craigie had an opportunity to observe American male charm in the person of Gregory Peck, star of her film play, "Man With a Million," during its filming in England. In expanding an 18-page Mark Twain story to film length, she felt it to Peck to insert Americanisms into the dialogue.

She expects to write a series of articles for two London newspapers on her observations of American life. One of them will deal with the woman over 40. Miss Craigie feels young girls here "look terrific," but older women dress as little girls. She says:

"They wear too many jingle jangles. Women here work too hard at being young; British women are inclined to give up." Though she admires most things in America, such as its modern homes, its automobiles and its men, Miss Craigie holds no brief for American slang, and spends her time trying to rid her daughter Judy of such Americanisms as:

"You're telling me! Let's face it! What's it to you?" And just plain "O.K."

Cocoa and banana plantations no longer get the moisture needed for full development. A spell of drought brought near disaster. Experiments were started with a new method which dispenses with airplanes. Wood, soaked in silver iodide is burned; the smoke carrying the chemical into the air. # Singer Vic Damone, An 'Ordinary' GI

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lately the papers have been full of reports about famous Army privates with special privileges. Here's one who claims he got none—singer Vic Damone.

Congressional probers have been looking into charges of out-of-the-ordinary treatment for sports stars, hotel heirs, etc., who have been drafted. There have been rumors that some show business figures also have been favored in the Army.

"Not me," says Damone. "I received no special privileges. I went through four months of basic training, just like anyone else. I spent a year in Germany. Then I came back and stayed eight months at San Antonio. I was doing recruiting work part of that time."

"During my first five months in Germany I did no singing at all. I worked in the costume shop at Nuernberg, which was the central point for all the shows in Europe. It seemed wrong to me that I wouldn't be used as a singer. I had been earning $5,000 a week as an entertainer before I went into the Army. The USO shows which were being given cost the taxpayers money. They could have had me for a bargain—$50 a month."

"Once I was invited to attend a meeting with some officers who were trying to plan entertainment. It was proposed that entertainment specialists — girls who had some background in show business — would write, direct and produce some camp shows. "I told them that was all wrong. I know what it is to put on a show, and one person can't do it. I suggested putting on shows like 'This Is the Army' with material that had been proven. They didn't go for my ideas at all. I went back to the costume shop and never heard any more about it."

Vic said he might have served out his overseas time there except for a ruckus over a foreign car. "I had saved up some money and I wanted to buy a Jaguar," he related. "Another private on the post had a Jaguar and a corporal had a Porsche. I talked to the fellows in my barracks about it, and they thought it was a great idea. They were all for it."

"But a major heard about my plan and called me on the carpet. He said it wouldn't be a good idea, that the other soldiers would resent it. I said that my buddies were all for it. He argued some more and I said, 'You mean the officers would resent it.' I told him I had the right to do whatever I wanted when I was off duty."

"A week later, I was transferred to the 7th Army headquarters. Damone said he found more understanding there and started talent shows along the lines of the Arthur Godfrey TV program. He added that when he left Europe there were three such units entertaining the troops.

Damone's career is getting back into high gear after the two-year lapse. He is doing his first film since his Army absence, "Athens" with Jane Powell, Debbie Reynolds and Edmund Purdom.

Just the thing for summer showers is a smart two-piece rain outfit — cape and skirt. The skirt may be made large enough to fit over several crinolines.

Directions worked out by local sewing centers are followed easily as you will see here. Or if you prefer, perhaps you'd like to take a few lessons in special classes for teen-age seamstresses.

The plastic film used for this outfit is vinyl.

Three yards of vinyl plastic fabric, 54 inches wide makes the cape and skirt. One-eighth yard in contrasting color is sufficient for the trim.

Cape Collar
Take a 45 inch square of fabric. Fold it over twice—once across the length and once across the width. On folded point cut out about 2 1/2 inch circle to make the neckline. On opposite corners to folded point trim to curved edge for lower finish.

Open fabric to width and cut front opening at neckline center. Turn under three-quarters on each front opening to form a facing for each side. Stitch a band around the neckline 1 1/2 inches wide in contrasting fabric. To do this start at center back of neckline with exact middle of the fabric strip. Cut this strip at least 40 inches long so that you will have enough left to form front ties. Before stitching anchor the strip to neckline with paper clips, removing clips as you stitch.

To finish front closure place dot snappers along front facing according to instruction on snapper package.

When sewing on plastic fabric use light tension and light pressure. Use a thin needle and mercerized thread. Set your sewing machine for a slightly longer stitch than used for most fabrics.

To Make Skirt
This skirt is made in two sections. First cut a paper pattern to a 34 inch square. Trim off one corner to make a perfect quarter circle. From opposite corner trim a quarter-circle so that it will measure one-quarter of your waistline measurement.

Using this as a cutting guide, fold plastic crosswise and place pattern on fabric with one edge against raw edge and the other edge against fold. Cut. Repeat for second section. This gives you two half-circles. Sew half circles together to form back seam. Turn front edges back one inch to form facing. Make waist-band with strip of fabric as made for cape neckline.

To finish front closure, place dot snappers along front facing according to instructions on snapper package.

It is a good idea to work these garments out with newspaper first. When you get the hang of it, cut into your fabric.

Springtime And Measles Appear Seasonal 'Team'

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures
Measles is a springtime disease. Just why this is so nobody seems to know, but the fact remains that every spring measles appears out of the blue. It spreads from child to child and then as spring melts into summer, the number of cases slowly diminishes until the disease fades away, only to recur the following spring.

Children are pretty sick with measles, that is, with red measles—sometimes called regular measles, or seven-day measles. There is another disease called German measles or three-day measles. This is a mild and completely different disease. It's too bad the word measles is used for both diseases, because there is no connection between the two.

Regular measles begins with symptoms of a cold. A child has a runny nose, red eyes, a cough and fever. These symptoms persist for anywhere from three to five days then the youngster breaks out in a rash. His fever remains high while the rash is coming out—and it may be very high, 104 is usual and 105 quite frequent. As soon as the rash begins to fade the temperature drops, the cough gets better and the child is on the road to recovery.

Measles is a disease in which complications are not infrequent. Good care during the acute stage will do great deal to prevent after-effects. Be sure to call your doctor right away if your child shows the symptoms, and follow his instructions most carefully.

Measles is a highly communicable disease. Practically everyone has measles once in his lifetime—and only once, in spite of all the stories you hear about many attacks of measles. Every rash is not measles.

We have no method of permanently preventing measles. The only way to get an immunity to the disease is to have it.

However, we do have a material, gamma globulin, which if injected into a child soon after he has been exposed to measles will either prevent the disease or make the case mild. Unfortunately, the effect of gamma globulin wears off in about a month's time.

Most doctors agree that young babies ought not to have measles. Therefore, if you know that your baby has been exposed to measles, your doctor will probably give him a shot to protect him.

But for the majority of health children over 2 years of age it is better that they acquire measles and get it over with since they are almost sure to get it sometimes in life. However, when we know that a child has been exposed to measles, it is possible to give him a small shot of gamma globulin so that he will have the disease mildly and yet develop his immunity.

Designers Turn To Baby Clothes
By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor
Now that some of the highest-priced talent in the country has turned its attention to baby clothes, things are looking up for the youngest set.

Time was when mothers considered it necessary to swaddle their protesting infants in layers of handmade petticoats and long lacy dresses, frilled bonnets and fussy coats. Nowadays the idea is to let baby wear as little as possible, but make the minute garments functional, comfortable and cute.

Babies need freedom of movement. They need light, soft, comfortable clothes that don't blind and that leave plenty of the body exposed to healthful sun and air. And their mothers welcome the new trend to garments that are easy to care for wash in a jiffy, need little or no ironing and keep their color and crispness through repeated launderings.

Some young mothers take joy in making baby clothes, but for those who don't, there are available nowadays scores of charming and functional baby styles that will keep baby fashionably comfortable at minimum expense.

Plastic-lined diaper covers keep him socially acceptable, and come in a wide array of styles and colors. For baby hables there are strictly tailored masculine styles in creeper sets, shirts and sun suits. For girls there are diaper covers and sun suits with gay Can-Can ruffles.

The new miracle fabrics also are having their innings in baby wear, with nylon, Orion and Dacron blends bringing washday freedom to mothers.

Tests Prove Foam Cleans Carpets Brighter

Naturally you want your carpeting and upholstery to look bright after you have worked to clean it. Make this test; clean the carpeting in one room with famous Fina Foam and another room with any other type of rug cleaner. Let the results of this test be your guide. Nothing cleans carpets like foam and no foam like Fina Foam. Available at BELK TYLER'S on the third floor.

A committee appointed by this group to complete a program for the workshop will meet next Wednesday, May 26, in Kinston. Members are Mr. Davis, chairman; Mr. Bullock, secretary; Dr. Long; and Dr. Jenkins.

Dr. Long has issued letters to sixty-six city and county superintendents of schools in Eastern North Carolina inviting them and their teaching and administrative staffs to participate in the workshop. Response, he states, is encouraging and points to the success of the event.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Low-priced railroads romped ahead in a flurry of activity today on the stock market. Prices were a little under their best in the early afternoon.

Gains extended to between 1 and 2 points while losses seldom were more than a point.

Trading was moderate with the pace around the two million share mark. Yesterday's total with the market mixed came to 2,170,000 shares.

As the low-priced rails went ahead, other carrier shares also advanced. Up with them were the steels, motors, coppers, chemicals, electrical equipments, utilities, and rubbers. The oils, aircrafts, and distillers were dotted with minus signs.

Among higher stocks were New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania Railroad, Western Union, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Goodyear, American Cyanamid, and American Woolen.

Lower were Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Cities Service, Schenley Industries, and Douglas Aircraft.

Had A Custom Of Sales Trickery

BALTIMORE (AP)—Robert F. McFarlane was sent to prison for three years yesterday because police said he had a custom of ordering pianos and organs for churches, then selling them without paying the music firms in full.

The 50-year-old defendant posed as a minister when operating his scheme, it was testified.

McFarlane pleaded he had made restitution of all but $800 and was prepared to take care of that.

Ovation Is Given To Gov. Umstead

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Umstead was given a standing ovation after he briefly addressed the Sixth District Democratic meeting. He expressed his greetings and stated, "I am happy to be here once again."

U. S. Rep. Carl T. Durham commenting on a resolution adopted by the Sixth District condemning "McCarthyism in the U.S. Senate," said the resolution was "of great concern today." He stated there was a "concerted and widespread attempt of the Republican party to put the Communist label" on the Democratic party.

In his 16 years in Congress, he said, he had never seen "more confusion and indecision. Issues must be met . . . with firm decision. We can't say 'we're going to have a systematic foreign policy' and then not have one."

Former Ambassador to Nicaragua and Columbia Capus Waynick of High Point said he recently left Washington after conferring with Democratic party chieftains "with a great feeling of confidence in our party's future this fall." He also had high praise for Labor Commissioner Forrest H. Shuford who died yesterday.

Inquest Slated Friday Evening In Gun Fatality

A coroner's inquest into the death of Herbert Whichard, Negro, will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Municipal Building Court Room, Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse announced today.

Whichard was shot last Saturday morning in the home of Julius White at 117 West Fifth Street. He was allegedly shot by Lawrence Haggans, also Negro, who was wounded in a gun battle in White's house. White is the father-in-law of Haggans.

Rouse stated that Haggans is to be released from Pitt Memorial Hospital today.

Says Inquiry Is Damaging U.S.

RALEIGH (AP)—Rep. Graham A. Barden of New Bern told the Third District constituents today that the McCarthy squabble in Washington is doing the country "a lot of harm."

Rep. Barden, speaking at the Third District Democratic meeting, said, "Of course, there is a committee functioning in Washington that has got to be famous — or infamous."

"Probably it is doing some good, I don't know. I do know it's doing a lot of harm. It has got the Republicans kicking each other's teeth out. I think Joe (McCarthy) got ambitious—caught a vision, perhaps, of the presidency."

The row, Barden said, "has stirred up a lot of confusion among Republicans from the President — on down. They (the Republicans) are saying that nothing good was ever done by any Democrat, while they're so busy killing makes that Joe digs up."

One Republican Praises Truman

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass. (AP)—Here's one Republican who wants to give Democratic former President Harry Truman "credit for trying to get the Communists for three years in Korea."

Rep. Walter Judd (R-Minn), chairman of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Far East and a one-time medical missionary in Asia, told the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs convention last night.

"If the Communists hadn't gotten tied up in Korea they would have gone directly to Indochina and, by this time, they would have it. During the Korean war, the truth of communism leaked out."

The infant, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will W. Summitt, was accompanied by a nurse. She will receive treatment in the premature nursing center at the Winston-Salem hospital.

Protests Proposal To Hit Liquor Advertising

WASHINGTON (AP)—A liquor industry spokesman today called a bill to impose a nationwide federal ban on interstate liquor advertising "a step to the return of national prohibition."

As opponents of the proposal took their turn before the House Commerce Committee, R. E. Joyce, vice president of the Distilled Spirits Institute, appearing as an industry spokesman, declared in prepared testimony:

"This bill should be recognized for what it really is—a clever attempt to erect a sizable obstacle in the path of orderly sale of alcoholic beverages as a step to the return of national prohibition by a minority who, if they had their way, would completely prohibit the manufacture and sale of the product."

The current hearing represents the fifth time since 1947 that congress has considered measures to ban interstate dissemination of alcoholic beverages advertising in newspapers and magazines, and over radio and television.

Spokesmen for temperance and church groups gave the proposal their solid backing yesterday. Joining Joyce in attacks on the bill were Clinton M. Hester, speaking for the U. S. Brewers Foundation; Arthur P. Bondurant, a vice president of the Glenmore Distilleries Co. of Louisville, appearing for the Distilled Spirits Institute and the Kentucky Distillers Assn.; and Patrick Cavanaugh of Philadelphia, vice president of the National Licensed Beverage Assn., trade organization of retail dispensers.

Hester's prepared testimony accused "professional drys" of "undermining confidence in government authority" and of trying to pressure Congress into passing "unconstitutional and discriminatory" prohibition legislation.

Bondurant's statement said distilled spirits advertising is ethical and does not influence liquor consumption, which he said is declining on a per person basis.

Cavanaugh said in prepared remarks that the proposal not only discriminates against an industry "specifically authorized to exist by vote of our entire people," but that it also would discriminate against establishments selling both food and alcoholic beverages in favor of places serving only food.

No Meeting For Dixie Governors

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Gov. Johnston Murray, chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference announced today there will be no special meeting of the group at this time to consider the U.S. Supreme Court decision against segregation in common schools.

Most of the governors in the group are accomplished at this time by an extraordinary session, he said. The meeting was requested by Gov. Charles Johns of Florida Monday after the court ruled that segregation in schools is unconstitutional.

"Each state has its own problems to consider in this," Murray said. "At a meeting about all we could do is tell what each state plans."

Murray said governors of states affected by the court decision probably will discuss it at the next National Governors' Conference in Lake George, N.Y. July 11-14 and appoint a panel to study it.

Murray said he has talked to governors of Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Kentucky and has received word from the governor of Virginia.

Candidate Took Three Tries To Officially File

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—It took Clarence R. Bristol of Ansley three tries to file for governor of Nebraska before he made it official.

A week ago he appeared at the Statehouse to complete the filing. He misread that time because he didn't have a receipt for the fee required in a candidate's home county.

Two days later, he mailed in a receipt for a $50 fee. That backfired because $50 is the fee for filing for U. S. senator while for governor it is $10.

On the third try he got it all straightened out and his name officially went among the list of Republican candidates for nomination.

Omitted Words Mean A Fortune

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP)—Omission of two words from a land title deed 46 years ago spelled out a fortune today for Anton Turta and his son Nick, who farm in the heart of Alberta's Leduc oil field about 20 miles south of here.

The two hold title to 160 acres of land on which mineral rights have been valued at more than one million dollars.

After a two-year legal fight, the Supreme Court of Canada yesterday dismissed claims by the Canadian Pacific Railway (CPR) and Imperial Oil Ltd. for the oil rights on the land.

Also benefiting from the ruling were the Montreal Trust Co., which holds a lease on Anton Turta's portion of the land, and William Sereda, who holds a lease on the other half.

Turta acquired part of the land in 1911 and the remainder in 1918 from Mike Podorsny, who had purchased the tract in 1908 from the railway. A clerk in the land title office here erred in drawing up Podorsny's title, reserving to the railroad the rights to "all coal" subsequently found but omitting the words "and petroleum."

The error went unnoticed until Alberta's oil boom. In 1943 the deed was changed to read: "Reserving unto the CPR all coal and petroleum."

The CPR leased the land to Imperial Oil in March 1951. Turta went to court.

In May 1952, the Alberta Supreme Court ruled in the farmer's favor. Justice W. G. Ebert held the land titles office did not have the authority to change the deed.
