Bloodmobile Visits Set June 7, 8

Last Calls Until September; County Reminded Quota Not Met Of Late

A special call goes to all citizens of Pitt County for help as the bloodmobile makes its last visit to the County until next September.

Used A Lot Of Blood Dr. Humbert reminded Pitt citizens that there has been 910 cases of measles since January 1 and during this epidemic 850 ampules of gamma-globulin has been distributed through the Health Department.

It takes one pint of blood to make two ampules of gamma-globulin so we have used 425 pints of blood. It would be a good gesture if one parent of each child who has received gamma-globulin donate a pint of blood during this visit," he asserted.

He added that parents in the Stokes and Bevoir areas could go to Bethel on June 7 to help make the quota there.

This blood was distributed by the Health Department to private physicians for use during this measles epidemic and Dr. Humbert hopes the blood can be replaced.

Hours at Bethel on Monday, June 7, is 12 to 6 at the Elementary School Cafeteria. At Greenville on Tuesday, June 8, the unit will be at the National Guard Armory from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

County Schools Wind Up Term; 470 Graduating

Today, students in schools around Pitt County completed this school year.

County Superintendent of Schools D. H. Conley reports "a very smooth year with all people working together."

He said that approximately 302 white students will receive diplomas at the nine Pitt County high schools while approximately 170 Negro students will receive diplomas at the five Negro schools tonight.

Conley said that he did not know the exact number of new students that would enter the first grades next Fall, but added that the number will be higher than those graduating this Spring.

Port authorities said there were two officers and 10 men aboard.

Claims Full Responsibility For Charges Against McCarthy Sec. Stevens Again Heard

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Army Stevens assumed full responsibility under oath today for the Army's charges against Sen. McCarthy but acknowledged he had consulted with higher administration officials.

Under hammering cross examination by McCarthy, Stevens said "certainly, there was consultation and advice" with individuals holding high office in the executive department.

McCarthy said Stevens knew "a long time ago" that the charges were prepared with the assistance and advice of White House aides.

"No, I don't know it," replied Stevens.

Were they prepared on his own orders? McCarthy asked.

"Yes," said Stevens, saying he gave the order some time after he arrived back from the Far East early in February. The charges were sent to members of Congress March 10.

Stevens, in reply to questions as to his consultations said he had kept Secretary of Defense Wilson informed.

McCarthy demanded if Stevens took the advice of anyone in the executive department other than Assistant Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel and a Defense Department official, Francis X. Brown Brown is an assistant general counsel of the Defense Department.

"Very likely I did," acknowledged Stevens.

McCarthy demanded McCarthy.

Stevens sat silently for a moment. "Who?" repeated McCarthy.

Finally Stevens said that in addition to Brown and Hensel, he talked with Fred M. Seaton, and "there may have been others, I can't recall any at the moment."

Seaton is assistant secretary of defense for legislative and public affairs. A former Republican senator from Nebraska he has been close to the White House.

McCarthy sought to develop that the executive department primed Sen. Potter (R-Mich) to get the charges from the Pentagon.

Potter got a copy of charges by writing Secretary of Defense Wilson that he had heard they had been prepared and would like to see them.

McCarthy said he understood someone high in the executive department had suggested that Potter ask for the charges. McCarthy said he "wasn't speaking of someone in the Pentagon," either.

Potter said the facts were not altogether in accord "with what the senator has stated."

He said he had talked with the official and was informed then that such charges were to be released to others, and he then merely asked Wilson for a copy so Republicans on the subcommittee itself could be informed.

Publication of Wilson's reply led to the current public row.

edged Stevens.

Potter said his request for information about the Army's charges was made after a telephone conference with someone "high in the executive department," but didn't give the official's name.

Stevens said he "feels in my heart that the responsibility was completely mine." McCarthy said that wasn't responsive to the question and asked it again.

To the best of his recollection, Stevens said he conferred with Secretary of Defense Wilson and Asst. Secretary Hensel but "undoubtedly I did order them (the charges) made up."

"You can't cover up for anyone by accepting the responsibility," McCarthy stormed.

"I'm not trying to cover up," Stevens replied angrily. "There isn't anybody to cover up."

He said the case against McCarthy grew out of the necessity for the Army Department to answer inquiries that had been made by Sen. Potter and others about the Schine case. It is to answer these inquiries, he said the Army's chronology of events was drawn.

Stevens repeated time after time that the responsibility for the filing of charges against McCarthy was his. When he smiled at McCarthy's insistent questioning as to who authored them, the Wisconsin senator erupted.

"This is no laughing matter," McCarthy said his voice rising. "I want to find out whether you are telling the truth and you grin, smirk and laugh. We must find out what day you were telling the truth."

"I think that is a bit uncalled for, senator," Stevens broke in. McCarthy asked "which is true"—whether Stevens didn't know who started preparation of the charges or "as you said today you ordered them prepared."

Stevens said he "feels in my heart that the responsibility was completely mine." McCarthy said that wasn't responsive to the question and asked it again.

To the best of his recollection, Stevens said he conferred with Secretary of Defense Wilson and Asst. Secretary Hensel but "undoubtedly I did order them (the charges) made up."

"You can't cover up for anyone by accepting the responsibility," McCarthy stormed.

"I'm not trying to cover up," Stevens replied angrily. "There isn't anybody to cover up."

He said the case against McCarthy grew out of the necessity for the Army Department to answer inquiries that had been made by Sen. Potter and others about the Schine case. It is to answer these inquiries, he said the Army's chronology of events was drawn.

Eden Returns To Geneva Bringing 'Final' Proposal

GENEVA (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden flew back to Geneva today for a final effort to break the East-West deadlocks on Indochina and Korea.

Arriving from London, where he consulted Prime Minister Churchill and other Cabinet members, Eden declined to comment on secret instructions he was reported to be carrying.

Before leaving London, however, he agreed with Western sources here that the next week or two will be decisive.

It was expected Eden's instructions might determine how much longer the Geneva conference would last. Today's secret nine-party session on Indochina opened its fifth week.

The United States already has made it clear to Britain and France it is ready to end the East-West talks on Korea and Indochina at any time.

Western delegates were agreed few days should show whether the Communists actually are willing to negotiate a settlement or merely are stalling to gain military advantages in the Indochina fighting.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, who returned from Paris this morning, was reported to have talked over the general Indochina situation with French officials.

Western delegates were agreed the chances for a settlement on either Indochina or Korea seemed slim.

Saw Bull Catch Two-Pound Bass

CROSSVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Afraild people might laugh, rural mail carrier Mark Dunbar caught three days to tell of watching a bull catch a two-pound bass.

Dunbar related yesterday that he was driving past a pond and noticed a big fish thrashing about at the end of a line. Walking over to congratulate the fisherman he saw a bull that had been wading in the shallows stalk away with a line tangled on one foot, pulling the bass up on dry land.

Viet Nam Gov't Position Growing Weaker French Gain Minor Victory

SAIGON, Indochina (AP)—The French High Command claimed victory today in a midsize battle of the Dien Bien Phu type at Nam Tha, in northern Laos.

The French - Laotian garrison vanquished an attacking force of about 400 of the Communist-led Vietminh after being harassed for six days by continual mortar, machine gun and light arms fire, a spokesman said. The rebels outnumbering the defenders 3-2, were reported to have lost 55 men, while the garrison's casualties were "very light."

Nam Tha lies on an eastern tributary of the Mekong River 100 miles west of Dien Bien Phu, the French Union fortress which was overwhelmed May 7. It is 18 miles south of the frontier of Red China's Yunnan Province and barely 50 east of Burma's border.

Five more men of the Dien Bien Phu garrison, all Thais, were disclosed to have escaped and reached the safety of a French defense post in Laos yesterday after a long, dangerous trek through jungle and swampland. Five other Thais, natives of mountainous northwest Indochina had stumbled into friendly camps May 12.

Three of the wiry little men were from the central section where Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries had his command post. All the others were from Isabelle, a supporting strong point to the south where most of De Castries' artillery was concentrated.

On the political front in Indochina, the various religious groups, including the Cao Dai, the Hoa Hao and the Binh Xuyen, announced they will hold a national Congress beginning Wednesday. The Congress is expected to protest any partition of Viet Nam, an idea which it ascribes to "the colonialists and imperialists" at Geneva.

American diplomats here say Viet Nam's political situation has deteriorated rapidly since the fall of Dien Bien Phu. They contend only bold steps can save the government.

This became known today as a French study of steps necessary to bolster Indochina's defenses reached near-completion. Washington reports have said this study is expected to open a new phase in French-American talks on possible U.S. intervention in the Indochinese war.

American diplomats are worried, however, lest the French-sponsored Vietnamese government of former Emperor Bao Dai collapse before outside help can be brought to keep it on its feet.

In overwhelming French Union forces at Dien Bien Phu, the Vietminh dealt a heavy blow at the morale of the Vietnamese backing Bao Dai's administration.

As a first measure to bolster it, the United States will recommend soon that Bao Dai hurry home from Europe to take over active leadership again. The Viet Nam chief has been on the French Riviera for more than a month awaiting the outcome of the Geneva conference on Asia and negotiations for complete independence which his officials are carrying on with the French at Paris.

Lennon In Washington As Race Hits Stretch Campaigners In Final Week

RALEIGH (AP)—The U.S. Senate campaign heads down the home stretch this week for Saturday's Democratic primary.

The answer from the people that day. Between now and the time the polls close Saturday there will be plenty of campaigning, handshaking, speech-making, TV appearances, statements and newspaper ads.

One of the chief senatorial candidates, Sen. Alton A. Lennon, says he will have to spend most of the remaining time of the campaign attending to his senatorial duties in Washington.

His campaign leaders will carry the banner for him. They plan to deliver several radio talks and TV programs this week.

The other leading candidate W. Kerr Scott, is making arrangements to deliver a radio talk to comment on charges made against him during the campaign, according to his campaign manager, Terry Sanford.

The speech, Sanford said, will be delivered Tuesday or Wednesday night over a 60-station network.

In a statement yesterday, Sanford said the former governor "feels that his friends are entitled to have his comments on a number of the malicious charges that have been made against him during the campaign. He may not, however, confine his talk to comment on these charges alone."

He added that Scott "says that many young people voting this year for the first time, have told him that they have become confused, as to what the real issues of the campaign are, by malicious whisperings and the asking of vague questions. Gov. Scott's friends can be sure that he will set the record straight."

The senatorial race will be the main attraction in Saturday's primary. Many counties have not longed to his campaign manager, Terry Sanford.

Other senate candidates include Alvin Wingfield Jr. of Charlotte, A. E. Turner of Palmyra, W. M. Bostick of Cary and Henry L. Sprinkle of Greensboro.

Lennon will go to Wilmington to cast his vote Saturday. He will return to his state headquarters here where he will await the returns Saturday night with his campaign manager, John Rodman.

Scott will vote in his home precinct and come to his headquarters in Raleigh to await with his manager the counting of the ballots.

Minshew-Knott Vows Are Spoken In Afternoon Ceremony Sunday

The marriage of Miss Virginia Ann Knott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Randolph Knott of Creedmoor and George Ricks Minshew, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rose Minshew of Greenville, was solemnized on Sunday, May 23, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in Creedmoor Methodist Church. The Rev. W. G. Farrow officiated using the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Franklin Keaton, organist and June Crews and George Stallings, soloists. Miss Crews sang, "If God Left Only You" and as a benediction she sang, "The Lord's Prayer." Mr. Stallings sang as a solo, "Calm as the Night." White glads, seven branch candles and palms were used in decorations of the church. The pews were marked with white satin ribbons and white candles.

The bride entered the church with her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory Duchess satin fashioned with a basque bodice, deep V-neckline with a small collar trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones, and long fitted sleeves with the jewel motif repeated on the points at the wrists. The full skirt of unpressed pleats extended into a cathedral train. She carried an imported linen and lace handkerchief belonging to her maternal great-grandmother. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of matching satin trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a white satin prayer book topped with a white purple throated orchid.

Miss Lou F. Knott, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of cornflower blue chantilly lace and nylon tulle designed with a fitted bodice and worn with matching lace fishu. Her headdress was a matching lace bandeau. She carried white pompons with blue baby's breath tied with white satin ribbons.

William Rose Minshew Jr. was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Ben L. Hesketh, of Creedmoor, uncle of the bride, Lee Ricks, of Pantego, cousin of the groom, Robert J. Whitfield, of Creedmoor, J. Glad To Report List Is Erroneous

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Thursday will be a day for Elmer T. Walter to remember — he plans to attend memorial services for St. Louis attorneys who died last year. His name was erroneously listed among the deceased.

Everett Hullverson, president of the Lawyers Assn. of St. Louis, which sponsors the services, said the list had been checked and double-checked before invitations were printed. But through some error Walter's name was included on the invitations, which also carried the names of 42 dead lawyers. Walter remarked: "I don't know how it happened," but "I'm glad to report it is erroneous."

Surviving are his wife, the former Virginia Glaros of Youngstown, Ohio; a son, George James Kares of Columbia; a brother, Chris Kares of Greenville; and five sisters, all of Greece.

Rolling Tremor At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A momentary, rolling earth shock sent residents to their telephones and rattled a few dishes yesterday, but no damage was reported. At Berkeley, The University of California seismograph station said the quake appeared to be centered in the Tehachapi Mountains.

Winning The Peace Said Today's Task

Dynamic, religious faith is the answer to the challenge of our times, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald and internationally famous clergyman, told the graduating class of 1954 at East Carolina College Sunday as he delivered the commencement sermon before students and visitors on the campus.

Communism, he said, is "Freedom's immediate challenge," and must be met by Americans working in a spirit of unity and with an intense love of liberty.

Today's great task is winning the peace, he said. The founders of our country and the pioneers who built it purchased for us "our unique heritage of freedom," he stated, and in our times American soldiers have fought to preserve it.

"Always, and in each generation," he declared, "the price of freedom has been paid. From that price, we cannot detract and to it we cannot add."

We live in a confused world, he said, and warned his audience that "civilization itself trembles upon the brink of the ultimate disaster."

Those who died in World War II, he declared, "got for us the chance, the fighting chance, to win the peace. Winning the war and winning the peace are one. These dead have not died in vain unless we, the living, live in vain."

Between "anti-God, atheistic Communism and American Freedom there is an 'impassable chasm,'" he continued. But he gave a definite "no" to the question of whether "all-out World War III" is inevitable.

Explaining his answer, he said that Communism carries within itself "the seed of its own death," and will destroy itself, "given time and the eternal vigilance of free peoples."

We must be strong as this seed germinates and comes to harvest, he urged. Moral, spiritual, and physical strength, he declared, are essential to us.

He closed his sermon with an inspirational call to a greater trust in Christ and His teachings, and urged graduates to believe that even in a troubled world, "I can do all things."

Miss Peggy Barrow Is Honored At Bridge Thursday

On Thursday evening as a compliment to Miss Peggy Barrow, bride-elect, Mrs. H. T. Savage Jr. entertained at bridge at her home on the Farmville Highway.

In the den where guests were seated for play, beautiful arrangements of pink sweetheart roses were used in profusion.

Mrs. Eugene Ayers received high score and Miss Carolyn Clapp received low score.

Miss Barrow was presented a corsage and a gift of crystal from the hostess.

Police Captured 'The Killer' But Didn't Want Him

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A fringed Los Angeles housewife's police in California's two large cities hunting Charley the Kill yesterday.

They found their man in a hot here—but let him go after he admitted he was a killer.

"A man just phoned. He said 'I'm Charley the Killer,' and hung up," Ruth Grossman of Los Angeles reported to police there at 4 a.m. yesterday.

The call was traced to the hotel room of Charley Kays of Eureka, Calif., here.

"I was trying to get Ruth Grossman in Beverly Hills and they gave me some other Ruth Grossman," he told Inspector William Stanton. "So I hung up."

"Killer? Oh, yes. In Eureka, everybody calls me 'Charley the Killer.'"

"I run the Eureka Termites Exterminating A!"

Hatched Egg In Tiny Incubator

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Kavin, persistent for a 9-year-old, has a baby bird today because he insisted that his baby sitter rig up an incubator for an egg he found two weeks ago.

Mary Ann Varga, 27, put the egg and a small electric light globe in a cookie tin.

The other day there was a chirp in the cookie tin. Miss Varga thinks the bird is a meadowlark. She feeds it egg yolk and mashed potatoes — every eight minutes.

Produce Market Opens Season

PLYMOUTH — The Plymouth Produce Auction Market opened its selling season this morning.

Snap beans, cabbage and Irish potatoes are the first crops to be offered on the market. All produce is being sold "Farmers Grade, Farmers Pack" according to W. M. Darden, co-operator of the market. The market operators are asking all growers to pack and grade their produce to meet the requirements of the trade so that it will bring top prices.

The county agent of the Extension Service at State College in Raleigh can give assistance in grading and packing.

A substantial acreage of the princely, tomatoes and peppers has been planted and they look very "go" in the fields according to Darden, who has been traveling through the area observing the crops. He said that a very promising crop is in prospect.

Joe Moyer of Robersonville is the market auctioneer.

After the Spanish conquest of Mexico, historians estimate that about 300,000 Spaniards entered the country and settled in a population of several million Indians.

Cost-Pricing Trends

By ELMER ROESSNER
Cost pricing may have crept into our body of law through a bit of confusion, Robert W. Austin, professor of business administration, suggests in the current Harvard Business Review. Mr. Austin, a distinguished lawyer as well as a professor of Harvard Business School, uses the title, "Let's Get Cost Pricing Out of Our Laws."

American thinking has generally opposed monopoly, yet for good reasons it became necessary to grant monopolies in the railroad and other utility fields. To keep monopoly in check in this area, it became necessary to control prices and the idea that cost plus a fair profit became the basis of regulated prices.

Thus, cost-plus pricing became associated with regulation of monopoly and as Congress proceeded with legislation to prevent the rise of monopoly in other fields, the old cost-plus idea kept popping up. (That's not Mr. Austin's language; he's real deep.)

This confusion entered the Federal Fair Trade Act, which permits a manufacturer of a trademarked article "to impose cost pricing on his distributors right through to the ultimate consumer." In setting a retail price, a manufacturer must estimate the retailer's cost of doing business as well as the cost of the article, Mr. Austin points out.

More recently, states have enacted "unfair sales" acts, in which retailers are forbidden to sell any products at less than cost plus a uniform markup. All this, Mr. Austin points out, protects competitors rather than competition. Prices to bring about a monopoly can be manipulated above cost as well as below cost, the professor observes, adding "Once all are treated equally, there can be no injury to anyone and, of course, there can be no competition."

Another effect of the reliance on cost pricing is that the assumption grows that cost pricing is good pricing, he writes, noting that the Federal Trade Commission seems influenced by that idea. And unless we "break the bonds of this straitjacket kind of thinking, our philosophy of a competitive economy will have been changed with no awareness of what has been done!"

22 FAMILIES TO LIVE COOLED YEAR FOR SCIENCE
Twenty-two families are now packing up to move into 22 homes in a village in the suburbs of Austin, Texas, to become human though air-conditioned — guinea pigs.

They are participating in a project sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders and 50 other organizations. Each of the buildings is of different structure and each is equipped with a different kind of year-round air-conditioning and heating equipment. All the residents will live normal lives.

For a year, they will be closely studied in efforts to find out whether complete air-conditioning is practical in houses costing as little as $12,000, what costs of operation are, whether health and susceptibility to allergies seem to be affected, and other effects on the inhabitants. Moving day—probably to the accompaniment of still, movie and TV cameras—will be June 2.

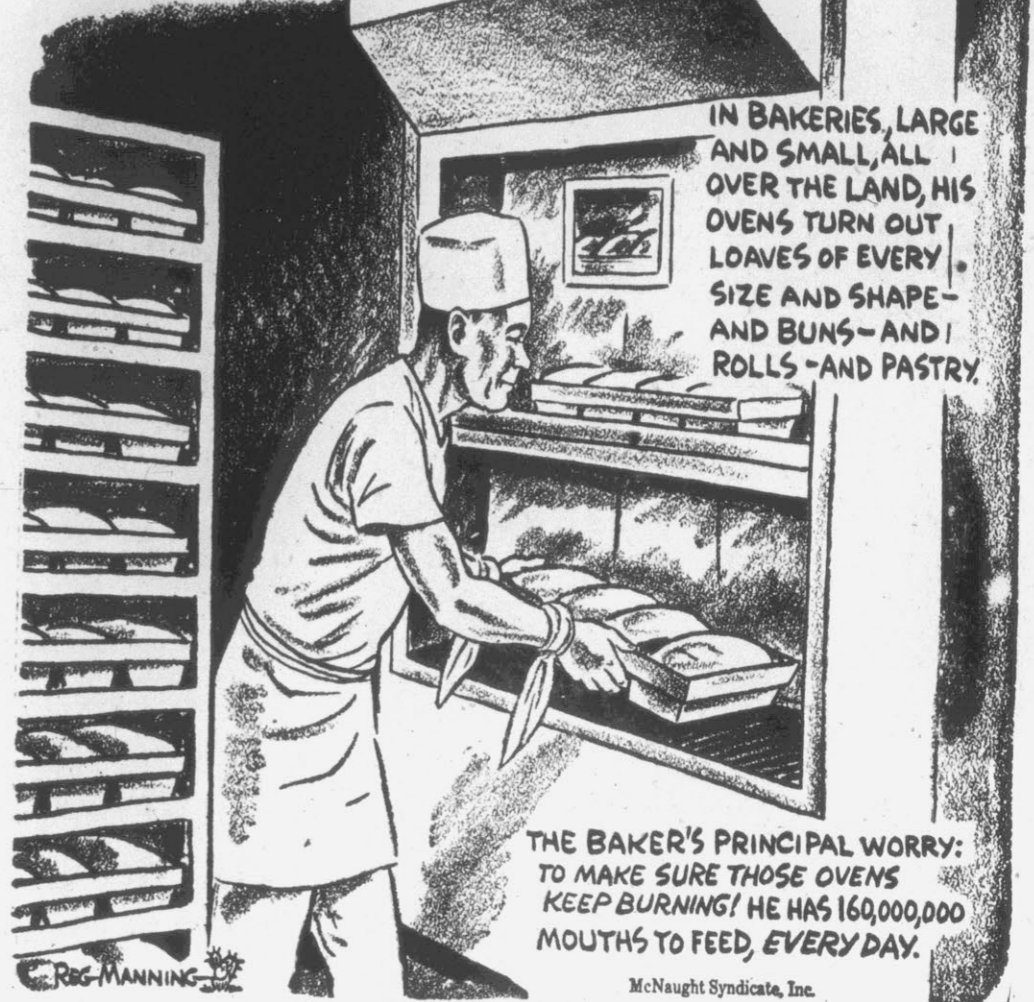

MORE INTEGRATION NEEDED, SAYS LUMBER EXECUTIVE
Greater integration in distribution is essential to the future economic development of the country and the world, Julius Stulman, lumber executive, told the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

In explanation, he said, "The Retail lumber dealer, as we knew him in the past, is vanishing. He cannot specialize. He must integrate."

States Repulse Another Major Assault

State's rights staved off another assault this week as the Senate defeated a proposed constitutional amendment which would have lowered the voting age from 21 to 18.

Had a simple majority vote been all that was required for the bill, it would have passed. But proponents failed to muster the two-thirds majority in the senate although 34 senators voted in favor of the legislation and only 24 opposed it.

Setting the age limit and qualifications for voters has always been a right retained by the states of this union. The federal constitution upholds this right by providing that voters who are qualified by individual states to vote for members of the largest house of the state legislature are also qualified to vote in federal elections.

The constitutional amendment which was defeated in the Senate last week would have changed the constitution to set the voting age at 18. Were the amendment endorsed by a sufficient number of states, it would, of course be tantamount to lowering the voting age of all the states to 18. Thus we would have another prerogative of the states taken away and given to the centralized federal government. In our opinion, it would not be in the best interest of the nation.

There is a great deal of popular appeal for lowering the voting age to 18. Georgia already has lowered her voting age from 21 to 18. Even in that case, we doubt the wisdom of the action.

Legally the age of responsibility of the individual is 21. Certainly proposals to lower the legal age of responsibility to 18 would be bitterly fought even by many who propose lowering the voting age. And in the final analysis, there is no greater responsibility an individual has than the responsibility for his own vote.

President Eisenhower and others who would make a political football of this matter of lowering the voting age should look elsewhere for less harmful political issue to kick around in an effort to gain votes.

The states have done a mighty good job over the period of years in regulating their own voting qualifications. The nation will be much safer if the matter is left in the hands of the states rather than being turned over to the Wonderful Wizards of Washington.

A Feeble Promise Comes Too Late

At least, new ground rules seem to be in making for Senate investigations.

The revision of the rules—if indeed there have been any rules—has long been needed, and has many times been called for. At least Senate Republican leader Knowland has heard the call and pledged to do something about it.

Coming as late as it has, the assertion that the Republican leadership will back changes at the opening of the next session of Congress, makes the situation appear a political maneuver.

It may have come too late to help strengthen the Republican position at the polls next November, but at least the GOP leadership has spoken.

We interpret the statement by Knowland as an indication the Republican leadership is more ready now than in the past to openly repudiate McCarthy and his tactics. We also read between the lines the GOP opinion that the McCarthy - Army hearings has done real damage to Republican chances in the November elections.

If Knowland's statement is a promise aimed at stemming the tide of disgust toward the GOP for its unduly long toleration of McCarthy, we doubt it will have the desired effect with voters of the nation. McCarthy should have been rebuked by GOP leadership many months ago. Knowland's statement, which we interpret as a sort of left handed promise that the rebuke is to be forthcoming next year, is, at best, a feeble stand.

It is our guess the voters of the nation are going to turn effective control of Congress back over to the Democrats at the November election. There is no doubt the Democrats will pin back McCarthy's ears, whereas the GOP may continue to procrastinate while the Wisconsin Senator makes political hay in his attempt to gain popular support and control of the GOP.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
AN INFALLIBLE FORMULA
What is the secret of all intellectual and moral growth? That can be answered in one sentence. The secret of all intellectual and moral growth abides in the capacity for self-criticism. If a person lacks that, he lacks the initial means by which the learning process begins.

Many people believe that the way to gain wisdom is by becoming highly skeptical toward everything universally accepted as true. There is a certain virtue in this but what we need most to become skeptical about is ourselves, our own wisdom, our valiantly defended conclusions in the field of morals, we never get anywhere until we stop criticizing others and begin criticizing ourselves.

The Pharisees who opposed Jesus were men who had lost the capacity of self-criticism. The crowd in Athens that did not believe in the new religion who could criticize everything but themselves and their own opinions. The authorities of the seventeenth century who forced Galileo to his knees in recantation were men who either had lost, or had never possessed, the power of self-criticism.

Watch out for such people today. They are to be found in high business positions, in legislative halls, on college faculties, in pulpits, on newspapers, and on the golf links. We can rely on this formula—all intellectual and moral growth depends upon one's capacity for self-criticism.

Spirit Of Repression Grows

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—A disturbing spirit of repression, censorship and tampering on individual and state rights has become increasingly evident at this session of Congress. It resembles the "biunose" and puritanical urge to remake and reform society which led to enactment of prohibition and other arbitrary statutes during and after World War I.

Indeed, it seems that every great conflict promotes movements of this kind, whether they assume the form of tapping a private phone or the Supreme Court's abolition of a social and educational system such as that erected so laboriously and painfully in many Southern states.

Although the Brownell demand for a wire-tapping authorization and the Warren opinion on school segregation are not closely related in their effect, they spring from the same sympathy for Federal regulation, reform and straitjacketing of human behavior.

IN ROOSEVELT, TRUMAN REGIMES—Under Roosevelt and Truman, this philosophy undertook to revise fundamental economic laws. The Federal government tried to appropriate complete control of business, industry and finance, including an attempted seizure of the steel mills. It sought to redistribute wealth, to "yardstick" the charges which private industry might ask for its products, to fix prices and allocate quotas.

It guaranteed to bring the Promised Land to each individual. It offered minimum wages, pensions, old-age benefits and health insurance. It sponsored a "welfare state" which critics assailed as "socialistic," and which the voters repudiated, in part at least, at the 1952 polls.

Now, in a continuing and offshoot effort, numerous New Dealish members have introduced measures to regulate and restrict the individuals' very appetites and conduct—what he may read and see and drink and smoke. It would transform his non-working hours into a grim and colorless existence, if not worse.

TIME COULD BE USED TO BETTER EFFECT—

War Fears Affect Housing Trend; Inflation Inevitable

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Old houses may now be a sale. Women have gone crazy about over one-story houses (ranch type) and over ultra-wide skirts. There is a style in houses, like styles in dresses. Well-built and well-located large houses are now out of style. How long it will be before women get sensible and buy such houses again is anyone's guess.

FEAR OF WORLD WAR III
But one thing will always be in style, and that is vacant land—whether small city lots that can be used for parking, or fringe acreage just outside cities and towns. Thus far people have not taken seriously the fear of World War

III, but now, with these "Evacuation Days," they are beginning to give up their rented city houses and buy in the suburbs. If World War III should really look threatening, you will see a big boom in suburban property twenty miles out. Unless the price of land is frozen, it could double in value in a few weeks. Well-drained and well-located vacant land should not now be sold.

SOME THINGS BEING OVERTOWNED
If World War III threatens, farms outside big cities which cannot now be sold at a fair price may again come into demand. I, however, am not bullish on all commercial farm land. This especially applies to many citrus groves, apple, peach, and other fruit orchards. With the new big Federal power and irrigation projects, there may be a surplus of high-priced irrigated lands. Irrigation can be moved over, the same as the building of motels and the manufacturing of automobiles. We may be approaching a time when there will be too many filling stations and automobile agencies. More consolidations will be witnessed.

WHAT ABOUT INFLATION?
In view of what is happening in Indo-China, it now seems as if more inflation is inevitable. This may be hard on the housewife and those with fixed incomes, but it should help well-located vacant land and certain other real estate. In view of the preferred treatment received during World War II by the owners of business property, some vacant business property may now be a good purchase. Inflation should also help farm crop prices and aid merchants. I am especially bullish on the market prices of the securities of the drug and variety chains. Many of these stocks now yield from 5 per cent to 10 per cent and should benefit from mild inflation. Too much inflation can harm everybody except the stock brokers, who are foolishly urging inflation along.

TAFT-HARTLEY AND INFLATION
I forecast that the proposed legislation to amend the Taft-Hartley Bill will remain buried until after the November elections. If it had passed Congress as President Eisenhower wanted, it would have made your dollar worth more. If it had passed amended as certain labor leaders wanted, it would have made your dollar worth less. As any action has now been delayed, its present effect on inflation will be nil.

Considering all other Congressional legislation to date, I forecast the net result will be mildly inflationary. This should help most land values and all producers. The ultimate consumer, however, will suffer from higher prices. Good mining properties should benefit. Hence, if you are selling vacant land, retain the mineral and oil rights.

Demo Convention Appraisals Indicate Good Harmony

By LYNN NISBET
INQUEST — Capitol square regulars and a few left-over visitors have been conducting a sort of informal inquest over the late Democratic State convention. The verdict is reminiscent of the familiar coroner's jury verdicts in which the word "unknown" is emphasized.

It was a good convention from the attendance angle. It ran smoothly with surface harmony oozing out all over. The usual scrapping for positions on committees and for advantages to candidates was conducted without discord or ill feeling, although at times differences of opinion were quite marked.

Pre-arranged "spontaneous" outbursts for the leading senatorial candidates fell somewhat flat, despite a lot of noise. Except for the brief and obviously forced demonstrations at the auditorium for Lennon and Scott, there was far less than usual exuberance and hilarity among the delegates. Sudden deaths of Senator Clyde Hoey and Labor Commissioner Forrest Shuford cast a damper on the occasion.

Much more influential as sobering element was the death by decision of the United States Supreme Court and after a lingering illness of the "separate but equal" rule as to segregation in public schools. Segregation is dead. Comment on the court decision ranged all the way from charges of first degree murder with premeditated malice to acceptance as the merest killing of a hopelessly doomed idea.

VERDICT — Preponderant majority of expressed opinion is that the hot-tempered "murder" charges were unfortunate, but that the situation existing before last Monday did not justify a "mercy killing." The patient wasn't that sick.

The resounding applause which greeted Keynote Irving Carlyle's off the cuff statement at the convention has been echoed in subsequent comment. He said: "The Supreme Court of the United States has spoken. As good citizens, we have no other course except to obey the law laid down by the court. To do otherwise would cost us our respect for law and order, and if we lose that in these critical times, we will have lost that quality which is the source of our strength as a State and as a nation."

REACTION — Appraisal of the composite reaction of convention attendants indicates determination to work out of the situation in an orderly manner. There was general commendation of the statements issued by Candidates Scott and Lennon, coupled with some criticism of Lennon's extra words injecting the issue into the senatorial campaign.

Opinion seemed to be that while Scott's close affinity with the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower philosophy on this matter probably justified pointing it out, the Supreme Court decision has made the issue purely academic so far as the Senate race is concerned, and its injection is now more an appeal to prejudice than to sober thought.

CANDIDATES—Much interest was manifested during and after the convention on the showing of relative strength of Lennon and Scott. Lennon supporters arrived earlier and preliminary activities indicated preponderant sentiment for him. The Scott folks moved in Thursday morning, and by convention time there seemed to be a fair balance of strength, with perhaps a few more people wearing Lennon ribbons than wore Scott blue mules, but with Scott folks making more noise and putting on a better demonstration.

Other candidates for the Senate who were present failed to make any impact upon the consciousness of the delegates. There is increasing opinion, however, that their combined vote may quite likely be enough to occasion a run-off primary between the leaders.

RUN-OFF? — The most ardent supporters of both Lennon and Scott refused to talk about a second primary, each group claiming complete victory next Saturday. Among the rank and file of the more or less indifferent partisans of each leader there was growing belief that a run-off may be necessary. And there was practical certainty that a second race will be called, even the qualifying caller gets in that position by only one vote.

Predictions on the size of the total vote range much lower after the convention than before. Majority opinion now that a total of half million may be a high estimate, whereas a few weeks ago many forecasts ranged above 650,000. The main reason for the indicated smaller total vote is the unexpected lack of interest in numerous local races. Reports from Buncombe, for instance, are that the vote will be the smallest in a dozen years. On the other hand, reports from Mecklenburg and Halifax are that record-breaking votes will be cast in those counties because of local races.

In some quarters to heavy vote will benefit Lennon, in others it will help Scott. Consensus among conventioners, as gathered CANCER COSTS for U.S. people are largely the loss of goods and services which might have been created had people not been disabled or killed by the disease according to estimates by the American Cancer Society. Conservative figures put such losses at 12 billion dollars a year, society officials say. Hospital and medical costs are thought to add at least another half billion dollars, but the experts admit they know very little about those costs. They might be much larger.

Take The Wife Along On Trips, Get Attention

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—If you are planning to go abroad this summer, why not take along something to get your wife's attention. For example,

A good sound wife can often perform invaluable services that more than make up for the cost of her passage. She makes a fine talking crutch to lean on in those little emergencies that leave a man helpless.

"Women really do stand up better under travel than men, generally speaking," said Horace Sutton, who has written seven books for footloose folk and armchair tourists.

But this isn't necessarily because husbands are like some fine French wines, too delicate for far journeys, or because wives are like bottled ketchup, durable in any climate.

"I think the real reason is that a man usually goes on a trip for a rest," said Sutton. "He starts tired. But his wife is looking for fun, and she starts fresh and stronger."

Under these circumstances a man often becomes short-tempered at travel hardships, whereas a woman, accustomed to getting her own way under all conditions, can evaporate most difficulties with her firm charm.

his wife on his travels, even business trips abroad," said Sutton. "because through her he will be paid more attention."

"American women hold a fascination today for foreigners, who have heard of their independence and their power over men. They want to meet and talk to them. An American wife right now makes a much better good will ambassador for our country than the average husband."

Horace, who is 35, red-haired, and married, served as an Army counter-intelligence agent in the last war. He is travel editor of The Saturday Review. To get material for his latest book, "Sutton's Places," he tripped 100,000 miles through some 20 states and 25 foreign countries, ranging from Finland to Japan. Whenever possible he took his wife, Nancy along.

"She travels better than I do, too," he admitted manfully. "I wore me down on a hike through a snowfield in the Arctic Circle. On a mountain peak in Switzerland she skipped and danced around. I was panting and dizzy. You know—the altitude."

Horace dutifully samples the local dishes wherever he goes, including cactus candy in Arizona, cold octopus in Italy, dried reindeer and salted coffee in Swedish Lapland, boiled seaweed in Japan. "Actually I have a lousy stomach," he admitted, "and I think anybody traveling purely for enjoyment can overdo this exploring of foreign foods."

Here are a few Sutton tips to travelers who want to go abroad, have a good time, and return in reasonable shape:

"Don't start off drinking wine three times a day unless you are used to it. It costs you money to be sick abroad."

"Don't eat three rich, heavy meals every day; in Latin countries limit the number of foods you eat that have been cooked in olive oil."

"Don't use ice cubes in drinks in countries where you must drink only bottled water. Bottled beer is usually all right."

"Travel light. At some railway terminals it is impossible to get porters. The best rule is never to take along more baggage than you can carry yourself without strain."

POGO

ATLANTA (AP)—Negro leaders throughout the South will petition local boards of education to eliminate school segregation immediately in the first mass follow-up of the U. S. Supreme Court ruling on segregation.

That strategy was disclosed yesterday after a conference here of leaders of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People from 18 states.

Issuing an "Atlanta declaration," the NAACP officials called for integration at all school levels and advocated Negro teacher assignments and federal aid for education.

Thurgood Marshall, special legal counsel for the NAACP, and Walter White, executive secretary, were the chief spokesmen in a news conference after the closed meetings.

Marshall, who represented the organization in the Supreme Court arguments, said there would not be "time for imaginary problems" in ending school segregation. He did not estimate how long it would take, however.

He warned against juggling school districts to evade the court ruling, although he said he recognizes the right of school boards to set up district lines.

The NAACP will take up the subject of segregation in other fields when it meets in Dallas next month, Marshall said.

White assailed three critics of the Supreme Court—Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia, Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina and Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.). He described Talmadge and Byrnes as "the most pathetic figures in American life today . . . in their frustration and bitterness."

Both governors are shaping plans to evade the court ruling.

White made this comment in speaking of Russell: "Frightened by the possibility that Herman Talmadge might run against him for the United States Senate, Sen. Russell made one of the most intemperate speeches of recent years on the floor of the United States Senate denouncing the United States Supreme Court."

The NAACP leader added that this scotched Russell's "burning ambition to be president of the United States" and at the same time supplied the Kremlin with propaganda material.

Russell said in Washington that he had no comment.

In the statement issued here the NAACP officials noted that "school officials will have certain administrative problems in transferring from a segregated to a nonsegregated system," but added: "We will resist the use of any tactics contrived for the sole purpose of delaying desegregation."

Talmadge did not comment afterwards on the NAACP's plan for approaching local school boards. He did say, however: "The people of Georgia well know my views. As long as I'm governor of Georgia there will be no mixed schools. I am not interested in pleasing Communists at home or abroad."

Talmadge said on a CBS program yesterday that the state will not comply with the Supreme Court decision.

"It would take several divisions of troops to police every school building in Georgia and then they wouldn't be able to enforce it," he said.

Another defiant note came from Sea Island, Ga., where Leander Perez of Baton Rouge, La., declared that interracial marriages are the "ultimate objective" of the NAACP.

Perez, national director of the States Rights Committee, appeared with Georgia's Lt. Gov. Marvin Griffin on an MBS program. Both said the South will not accept the decision passively.

About 15 million people in the United States have some degree of hearing impairment according to estimates of the American Hearing Aid Association.

Railroad Rivals Meet As Climax In Struggle Near

NEW YORK (AP)—William White and Robert R. Young met face to face last night for the first time since they joined battle last February for control of the New York Central Railroad.

With a showdown stockholders vote on the dispute scheduled for this Wednesday, the meeting in a television studio was hardly cordial.

Both men smiled tightly when they shook hands before start of the program, Meet the Press, on CBS. Asked to repeat the hand-shake for benefit of photographers, White, who is now president of the railroad, refused.

"This is serious. I'm not going to make a pink tea of this," he said.

For the remainder of the half-hour program, in which the two railroad titans answered news-men's questions, they avoided any further direct contact.

Most of the questions covered issues that had been repeated and answered over and over again in the tense contest for stockholders' proxies. The proxies are to be voted at the railroad's annual meeting in Albany Wednesday unless a court decision postpones it for another month.

Both White and Young claimed they were sure of victory, although when asked for figures on proxy strength, White replied:

"In a battle such as this, I don't think contending sides disclose their real strength. I don't propose to."

Young said he was sure of winning, even if 800,000 shares bought by two Texas friends of his are not voted. White has challenged the transfer of this stock from the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, which Young formerly headed, to Texas millionaires Clint W. Murchison and Sid W. Richardson.

The television show focused on the proxy campaign, taking its cues largely from charges made by the other side.

White was asked, "If you're running the railroad so efficiently, why is there any fight among the stockholders on whether you're going to stay in the saddle?"

He answered, "There wasn't a fight . . . until someone started one . . . (with) pie-in-the-sky promises."

White was asked whether, if he were victorious, he would name Young to the board in view of Young's large holdings of Central stock.

"My heavens, I rather doubt that," he replied.

Young, questioned about claims that he was a "smart promoter" who knew nothing about railroads, replied:

"I rehabilitated five sick railroads . . . I took control of the Nickel Plate at $7 a share and in 18 years got it up to $240 a share. It was a streak of rust when I took hold of it. So was the Pere Marquette. I'm an expert on sick railroads."

Asked if the Central's passenger service was operated at much less cost than the C&O's, Young said: "Yes, it's a lot easier to take a passenger to Chicago and back than to take him up a creek in West Virginia."

White Sox Buy George Kell From Bosox For $100,000

By TOM BRANAGAN

CHICAGO (AP)—In a lavish, uncharacteristic gamble, the Chicago White Sox paid a reported $100,000 for hard-hitting George Kell and now are ready to acquire another famed slugger, Phil Cavarretta.

Frank Lane, the Sox general manager, got third baseman Kell from the Boston Red Sox for reserve infielder Grady Hatton and cash — so much that Red Sox General Manager Joe Cronin "couldn't turn it down."

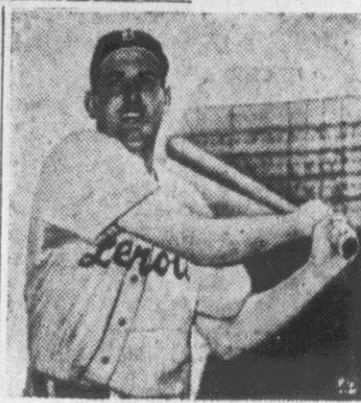

Lane didn't announce the amount involved but Manager Paul Richards, when asked if it was $100,000, said: "I think that's pretty close."

In a further effort to shore up the Sox for a determined pennant drive, Lane appeared on the verge of taking on Cavarretta, the deceased Chicago Cubs manager, as a pinch hitter and coach.

Kell has hit over 300 the last seven seasons and Cavarretta has a lifetime .292 batting mark in 19 seasons at first base for the Cubs.

With the Sox pitching staff manned by experts — Richards says it's the best in the American League — the weak-hitting committee club needed a player of Kell's batting ability badly. Richards said only Saturday that the club had to find a dependable slugger to stay in the race. Sox pitchers were hurling five and six-hit games and losing.

If Cavarretta is obtained and can regain even a respectable fraction of his old form, another Sox problem would be near solution.

GEORGE KELL ... Goes to White Sox

Richards hasn't been able to call forth a reliable pinch hitter in clutch situations. He sent pinch hitters to the plate 35 times this season before one of them — pitcher Bob Keegan — produced a hit.

The ex-Cub pilot, relieved during spring training and replaced by Stan Hack, was due in Chicago today for a talk with Lane. They were reported close to an agreement.

Hasty Road Wins Preakness With Thrilling Stretch Run

By ORLO ROBERTSON

BALTIMORE (AP)—Regardless of what he does in the Belmont Stakes three weeks hence, Hasty Road will go down in turf history as the horse of thrilling finishes.

When Allie Reuben's blazed-faced 3-year-old son of Roman won the richest of all Preakness Stakes last Saturday, it marked the sixth race limped at the finish.

Two of the thrill-packed races, the Kentucky Derby Trial and the Preakness, he won. In the other four, including the derby itself and the Preakness prep, he was second by margins often so slim that a photograph was needed to separate him from the winner.

If Hasty Road does go in the Belmont, New York fans can look for a thriller. For Correlation, who beat the Toledo-owned colt in the Preakness Prep by a head and lost to him by a slim neck in the Preakness, also is headed for the Belmont.

Correlation was involved in some bumping just as he was in the derby and Preakness Prep. The judges listened to the complaint of Arnold Kirkland, who rode Haseyampa into third place, but finally let the order of finish stand. Haseyampa, also third in the derby, was a length and a half back as Hasty Road and Correlation crossed the finish line almost as a team.

Six more lengths back came Goyamo. The time for the mile and three-sixteenths was a fair 1:57 2-5. The gross value of the Preakness was a record $140,150. Hasty's share of $91,600 boosted his winnings for the year to $117,200 and for his career to $394,432.

Very few changes over last year's rules were proposed at the Norfolk meeting. At the nine district meetings sportsmen will be given an opportunity to express their views and desires as to how the official 1954-55 hunting and trapping rules should be set, the Pitt county game and fish protector stated.

Hunting Rules To Be Talked June 3

Fish and Game Protector J.O. Teel of Greenville today reminded of a public meeting of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission to be held at the courthouse in New Bern Thursday, June 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Tentative hunting and trapping regulations set up at the April 30 Norfolk meeting will be submitted to interested sportsmen at a series of public meetings. The first meeting will be held at Sylva May 25. The last meeting will be held at the courthouse in Edenton Friday, June 4 at 7:30 p.m.

By sneaking over a run in the last of the fifth inning the Lions took over first place in the North State League Saturday afternoon as they downed the Jaycees by a 4-3 score.

In other action Saturday Coach Eugene Ayers' V.F.W. squad rallied in the fourth and fifth innings to defeat the Kiwanis 7-5. The win pushed the V.F.W. into third place in the North State League and shoved the Kiwanis into fourth place.

In the Lions-Jaycees game both teams received good pitching but the Lions spaced their hits when they needed them most. Jasper Tripp on the mound for Coach Marshall Tatum's team gave up only three hits in the game but all three were directly responsible for runs. In the third inning with the bases loaded and two out, Catcher Aubrey Harrison smashed a line double to knock in two Lion runs. Tripp walked in one run just before Harrison's blow. In the fifth Mac Mackenzie led off with a double and was worked around for the score.

Little Charles Puryear went the route for Coach R. B. Starling's squad and turned in a good clutch performance. Although Puryear gave up 7 hits in the six inning game, he stayed out of deep trouble in the fact that he did not give up any walks.

Gene Adams led the Jaycees at bat with three hits in three trips to the plate to run his string of eight consecutive hits over the last two games. Harrison with a double and two runs batted in led the Lions with the stick work.

Pitcher Lee Jenkins led the V.F.W. in their win over the Kiwanis. Jenkins parked a home run with one on base in the fifth to drive in the winning runs. Jenkins also went the route on the mound and gave up only three scattered hits. Jenkins stayed in trouble, however, throughout the game as he allowed nine walks. Jenkins was rough in the clutches to strike out 10 opposing batters.

The V.F.W. had to come from behind to down the Kiwanis. As they came up in the bottom of the fourth they trailed 5-3. They worked in two runs on two hits in that inning and Jenkins accounted for the others in the fifth with his homer.

This afternoon the V.F.W. will go against the Jaycees at 5 o'clock at the Little League Park.

After the first game of the double-header Saturday, George McMillan of the Recreation Department thanked the parents and Little League supporters for the response in making the Benefit Chicken Supper an opening day success. Approximately 1200 people attended the supper. A net profit of $703.34 was made.

Between games Mrs. Jack Cobb, of the Supper committee, presented a check to Mr. Jay Tripp of the Building Committee for this amount. This check will pay not only for the permanent bleachers but also for further improvements such as storage room for equipment and to build much needed steps up the hill at the park.

A's Chief Bender Dies Of Cancer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Charles Albert (Chief) Bender, all-time pitching great with the Philadelphia Athletics, and one of the most beloved baseball figures of the century, died Saturday night at the age of 71.

The old Chief wasted by heart disease and cancer had been confined to the hospital for some months. His devoted wife of 40 years was at the bedside when he died.

Always a favorite with both fans and players, Bender spent virtually his entire career with the Athletics.

He was discovered by Connie Mack shortly after the turn of the century while playing at the Carlisle (Pa.) Indian School, alma mater of another late great Indian athlete, Jim Thorpe.

In his major league competition, which stretched from 1903 to 1917, Bender had an overall record of 212 wins and 128 losses. He won 21 and lost four in world series contests.

More recently he had been on the A's pitching coach staff where he developed several youngsters including lefty Bobby Shantz.

Joan Foster, Bride

By Alice Ross Colver

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

In October Joan decided she would plan several parties and a get-together of some of her classmates. Betty Andrews, of course, could come from Foughtkeepsie. And Sue Peterson did not live too far upstate in New York to put in an appearance, especially if she stayed overnight at Joan's mother's house. She could bring her twin babies along if she liked. Joan was crazy to see them. Betty could bring her little girl, too. Mrs. Foster would welcome them all for her big house was lonely with Jack away. Johnette Pierik might get here, too since she was teaching in nearby Connecticut. And hadn't someone said that Kay Porter was with the United Nations and living in the city these days? If so, she would make a fifth-counting Joan herself. There were probably others lurking in the vicinity, too, if Joan could find her class record with its addresses.

Oh, it promised to be a busy month, all right, she told herself happily. A busy month filled with the glitter and gleam of bridal crystal and silver and the pleasant stir and gaiety that goes with entertainment.

The parties went off as Joan had planned. Jack and Diane were informal and irresponsible guests — Jack suspiciously tasting every dish that came on table and pretending to be very much surprised when each proved palatable, commenting with an owner's pride on the furniture on which he and Diane had (he said) done the major part of the work, and finally insisting a riotous game of canasta that lasted past midnight. The family dinner was a quieter affair at which Gram, who went out to very few places, probably enjoyed herself the most. The big tea for the older women was eminently successful, too, but it was the small reunion with her classmates that gave Joan the greatest delight.

It was so good to see all the girls again! And how unchanged they seemed. Sue, roughly affectionate with her twins — a boy and a girl whom she had called Pete and Pat — and talking to them as she had talked in college to her contemporaries. "Hey you Pete," she would say, "cut the comedy and keep your food down where it belongs. That's no way to act before ladies." Or — "Pat, if you don't hush your howling, I'll get out my little violin which I can make screech louder than you and will that put your nose out of joint? No baby talk for Sue. Yet underneath her bluff manner, which was actually only a curtain for her shyness in a role to which she was not yet accustomed, she was all tenderness and pride and love.

Johnny came, too. Dear big Johnny with her deep reverberating voice and her robust enthusiasm for being a physical education teacher. "You're just the same, Johnny, only more so," Joan told her. And Elma Hubbard, now employed in an advertising agency, and Nancy Estabrook, who was a "Girl Friday" for a big executive in a real estate office and Binks White, who had a minor part on a radio program.

Kay Porter, also. Kay had been a leader at college from the first year. She had always been considered the "brainiest" of her class the most adult the most competent and one of the most attractive. She still was all of those things. She sat there in Joan's living room, small, well-groomed, composed, friendly, alert and smiling, thoroughly enjoying the babies, much interested in Betty's calm sweet handling of her little girl, vastly amused by Sue's pretended gruffness, drawing out Johnny to tell of her teaching experience, drawing out Binks to recount her doings on radio, and Elma, to speak of her advertising work, and, of course drawing out

Joan to talk about her year abroad her writing and now her antiques. Yet all the time she remained slightly aloof, her own interests centered on bigger affairs — the momentous goings-on in the world in which she was now taking a small but active part at the United Nations gatherings.

"You'll hear of Kay one of these days," Betty said, after the tea was over and only she and Sue, who were to stay overnight with their children, remained. "She'll be heading up some important international committee some time. She'll be in the public eye. Wait and see!"

"Let her have it," said Sue. "I'd rather have my twins."

"And I'd rather have my Beth."

"What about you, Jo?" Sue asked curiously.

Joan gave a small laugh. "Oh, I'm a glutton for life, as usual," she said. "I want my family and a career on the side, as well. Think I can manage?"

"Well, with the career you've chosen which you can carry on in your own home, I would say yes," Betty answered.

"What's the matter, Todd?" Joan asked one night after the last party was over. "You're coming home these nights as tired as if you'd been in a battle all day long."

"Well, I have," he replied. "Don't believe it when you hear that teaching is easy. Or that anybody can do it. I rate myself fairly intelligent and in top physical form, but I'm telling you after a day with those kids I'm bewildered and bushed."

He cast himself into the Boston rocker and stared at Joan so glumly that she could not help but laugh.

"Are you trying to tell me you're heading for a nervous breakdown?" she asked. "After such a short time? I've always thought you were a man of iron."

"You should know I'm not. Haven't I always been putty in your hands? And now with these kids I'm nothing but a well-a-muddle."

"Oh, come now!"

"Okay, I'll speak seriously." He ran a hand through his hair and sighed. "I see now why the public schools insist on courses in pedagogy and weeks of practice teaching before they give out certificates to aspiring young teachers. If I'd taken pedagogy, I'd have known what to expect from youngsters of eight or ten or twelve years. As it is, I don't know. Either I'm surprised by their intelligence or overwhelmed by their stupidity, infuriated when they are mischievous or flabbergasted when they are angelic. Talk about being on a hot seat! That's me. It takes courage to face that roomful of little imps every morning. Because they're trying me out and I know it." He cocked an eyebrow at Joan in his familiar rueful way. "Don't think they aren't smart enough to be aware when a teacher isn't sure of himself. Brother! And he let out a groan. "They've got my number and I haven't got theirs. That's the whole thing in a nutshell. If I'd ever done any practice teaching, I'd at least have a little gumption about this business. Now I haven't a bit. I feel like a — like a jet pilot who's been asked to do an act on a flying trapeze just because he's used to being in the air! The medium is the same for both but the training isn't. That's about the size of it."

"You have plenty of gumption!" Joan retorted. "And you'll acquire more in time."

"If I last that long." He paused. "In this game you learn by doing."

Joan asked one night after the last party was over. "You're coming home these nights as tired as if you'd been in a battle all day long."

"Well, I have," he replied. "Don't believe it when you hear that teaching is easy. Or that anybody can do it. I rate myself fairly intelligent and in top physical form, but I'm telling you after a day with those kids I'm bewildered and bushed."

If I'd taken pedagogy, I'd have known what to expect from youngsters of eight or ten or twelve years. As it is, I don't know. Either I'm surprised by their intelligence or overwhelmed by their stupidity, infuriated when they are mischievous or flabbergasted when they are angelic. Talk about being on a hot seat! That's me. It takes courage to face that roomful of little imps every morning. Because they're trying me out and I know it." He cocked an eyebrow at Joan in his familiar rueful way. "Don't think they aren't smart enough to be aware when a teacher isn't sure of himself. Brother! And he let out a groan. "They've got my number and I haven't got theirs. That's the whole thing in a nutshell. If I'd ever done any practice teaching, I'd at least have a little gumption about this business. Now I haven't a bit. I feel like a — like a jet pilot who's been asked to do an act on a flying trapeze just because he's used to being in the air! The medium is the same for both but the training isn't. That's about the size of it."

"You have plenty of gumption!" Joan retorted. "And you'll acquire more in time."

"If I last that long." He paused. "In this game you learn by doing."

Old Sailing Skipper Never Tried Strong Drink, Coffee

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — Ebenezer Shrubshall is a sailor with a difference. Never in his life has he tasted strong drink — coffee, tea or cocoa.

Ebbie is skipper of the Kitty, one of the last sailing ships to trade in British waters. Properly called a spritsail barge, the Kitty is a seagoing ship with all the grace of the days of the windjammer.

More than a thousand sailing barges once plied between the Thames River and Britain's coastal ports. Now only 30 are left. They too will go to the breaker's yard as their old skippers die. Youngsters these days don't stick with the life afloat.

Ebbie told his story as he steered the Kitty down the Thames bound for Ipswich on the east coast with 100 tons of maise. John Burford, mate, deckhand and ship's cook all rolled into one stood in the bows, tending the foresail and keeping watch for other shipping.

"I started when I was 13 as mate to my old father," Ebbie said. "His father was a sailorman too. Now I'm 66 so that makes 54 years afloat."

"Not so many years ago probably a hundred barges would be going down the estuary on this tide. Today we might see a couple — and we might not. Cargoes aren't so easy to find for the sailorman. Too much competition from the motor barges."

"The trouble is that these days everybody wants everything in a flaming hurry."

"We might get around to Ipswich for instance, in a couple of days, given a fair wind. On the other hand, if the wind stays around in the east, we might take a fortnight. And if we do, there won't be much money in it for Ebbie."

"We get paid by the cargo. Half the freight money goes to the barge owners and half to me and my mate. Fair wind and a quick voyage and we're in the money. Foul wind and a long drag and we don't get much butter on our bread."

"Still, I don't smoke and I only drink water so I get by all right. I reckon my only vice is chocolate biscuits — I can always eat a few of them."

Buyers' Market Building Up In Air Conditioning

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A buyer's market is building up in a still strikingly booming business — keeping people cool.

There are the usual hallmarks: pre-season price cutting here and there, and a tendency for inventories of room air conditioners to pile up.

But the cause of this buyer's market is unusual: too many potential customers.

The long-range prospects are so good for the air-conditioning industry, its spokesmen here say, as to show signs of being overtempled to manufacturers.

Mushrooming sales in the last two years of the industry's wonder child, the window cooler, and predictions that the lick-the-weather market will grow even more with the years has lured many more manufacturers into the field this spring. There are three times as many now as two years ago.

They have the capacity if they all try to turn out more room air conditioners than this booming market seems likely to absorb this summer, industry spokesmen admit.

And in large hunks of the country the weatherman has been no help. A cool, wet spring has piled up stocks in many dealers' warehouses. Some are asking manufacturers to hold up shipments.

Old-timers in the field, like Carrier Corp., here, look for room cooler sales competition to be fierce this summer.

"You'll see the pressure at the dealer level," Cloud Wampler, Carrier president, believes. "Distribution is going to be the big thing from now on. Industrywide, the distribution system is pretty spotty. Some companies haven't good enough dealer organizations to do the right job on sales, repairs and services."

"These services, in the long run, will settle the competitive battle among the manufacturers."

He says that for months now Carrier has tailored output of window coolers to what it knows its dealer organization can sell and service, so for his company there's no output slowdown at present.

He is prone to minimize room cooler business for the long term anyway. He looks for the industry's big future gains to be in year-around air-heating units for the entire house, and in factory and commercial building air conditioning.

Just now, however, the window cooler is still the glamor item on the sales charts. Around 900,000 were installed last year. The industry is shooting at selling 1,200,000 this summer — when it warms up.

Fighting for this market will be almost 50 companies making nearly 100 different brands.

Customers are getting breaks. List prices have come down to the level of more pocketbooks. Competing companies are streamlining the gadgets, making them fit windows better and less conspicuously, offering a variety of colors to match room decors and cutting down the noise of the motor.

Animals Make News In Events Of Last Week

By BOY KORN
NEW YORK (U. S. —) Here's the latest on animals in the news: Soft-hearted men go for hard-shelled armadillos; sore-armed dancer picks python over puma; duck-billed Cecil re-woods Penelope the platypus.

At Riverhead N. Y., Sidney Schwartz complained Thursday he was up to his ears in armadillos. Two lady armadillos, which he bought in order to write a thesis on their birth habits for a New York University doctorate, produced seven armor-plated babies. Armadillos habitually sleep during daylight hours and whomp it up at night. And they eat like hogs, not armadillos. Schwartz said local zoos and dealers wouldn't take the mothers and sighed hopefully: "There must be somebody who likes armadillos."

Well, there is. Yesterday in Toronto, Can., the Riverdale Zoo said they'd adopt an armadillo. And Arthur Waston, director of Baltimore's zoo, said he'll be glad to take the entire batch—and even pay the express charges.

Schwartz feels much better now, although he says, "there's nothing final about it yet."

Francing about in Putnam Valley, N. Y., yesterday was a puma, a dancer, some newsmen—and a dress agent.

The dancer, Lonnie Young, 26, apparently keeps the puma—a pint-sized panther—in her hotel room. Miss Young said she was switching her night club act with a python to the puma—only she didn't know. Just the other day she said, the puma took a bite out of her arm.

Anyway, with newsmen present, the dancer let the puma out of its cage. The puma roared and the news hounds retreated. Miss Young cracked a whip. The puma merely looked annoyed and seemed to toy with the idea of taking another bite out of his mistress' arm.

According to witnesses, a piece of lacy lingerie saved the day. Miss Young tossed the garment into the bathroom and the puma bounded after it. Miss Young slammed and locked the door. The cage was shoved in front of the door, the door was opened, and the puma raced into the cage.

Thinking it over, Miss Young said, she guessed she'd stick to plain old pythons.

Now back to New York City and up to the Bronx Zoo. The "who's who" of the zoo, for several years, has featured Cecil and Penelope, the duck-billed platypuses.

The zoo has been trying to get the egg-laying, Australian-born animals together so they could raise a family.

Last summer, Penelope retired to her tunnel early, a sign of motherhood. Keepers pried her with goodies and felt "this was it."

But, Penelope was only fooling. It turned out she'd laid no goodies.

But this is another spring, and Cecil is chummy with Penelope—who doesn't seem to mind at all.

Proof Of The Adage To Be Good, Be Bad

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (U. S. —) Donna Reed is living proof of the adage that as an actress you've got to be bad to be good.

It is now history that Miss Reed walked off with an Oscar for playing a shady lady in "From Here to Eternity." This was after playing nice girls for more Hollywood years (13) than she would like to recall.

I paid a lunch call on Donna to find out what the Oscar has done for her and to her. She is back at her home lot, MGM, where she apprenticed eight years in Andy Hardy. This Man, Dr. Gillespie and other films before reaching stardom. She came back to the studio as a free-lancer, appearing with Liz Taylor, Van Johnson and Walter Pidgeon in "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

"The role I play is not really a good girl," she remarked, "but she turns out to be all right in the end. No, it's nothing like 'From Here to Eternity.' That kind of a part comes along only once in an actor's lifetime—if he's lucky."

I asked how the Oscar has changed her professional life. She replied that more scripts are being submitted to her, and the roles are better. But she hasn't noticed any increase in films that would cast her as a bad woman.

"I guess people still can't get used to my playing such a role," she sighed.

Donna admitted that she fell into the "Eternity" role somewhat by chance. When she first became acquainted with the part, she played her as a brunette in a test with Aldo Ray, who was trying out for the role Montgomery Clift eventually did. She never thought much about actually getting the part.

Then she did another test with Ray, this time as a blonde. Now she began to get enthused and made a pitch for the role with Columbia boss Harry Cohn.

"Absolutely not," he replied. "We've signed Deborah Kerr for the other girl's part. That's one lady switching her type. We can't have another."

But a day later she was assigned to do another test, again as a brunette. She convinced the brass and won the role.

The picture did wonders for her career—"It was good for everybody connected with it." Oddly enough, she left her Columbia contract shortly before she won the Oscar.

She is now busy on the free-lance circuit. She was also set to play Jose Ferrer's wife in the Sigmund Romberg biography, but had to cancel when Liz Taylor's illness stalled the "Paris" pic. She said she'll never again sign a term contract at a studio, although she has had handsome offers. After 13 years at studios, she cherished her independence. She wants to devote more time to her family.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced in heavy trading today, but progress slowed in the early afternoon.

Gains generally remained in a fractional range. A few issues made substantial moves ahead. Losses were small and in some cases had a tendency to concentrate.

Trading was unusually fast at the start and then slowed down a bit. However, a pace was maintained right around peak levels of the year comparable to Friday's big 2,620,000 shares traded with the market rising.

Aircrafts were well ahead along with the steels. The railroads were somewhat spotty as were the chemicals and distillers.

Quite a few individual stocks scored big gains. Bullard, which was up 2 3/4 Friday, started today on 2,300 shares up 2 to 49 and then continued higher.

Eastman Kodak was quite firm, and also higher were American Wipac Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Republic Aviation, U. S. Steel, Chrysler Illinois Central, and Raytheon.

Scoutmaster Had Home Painted

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Boy Scouts of Troop 666 did their good turn yesterday — for their scoutmaster.

First they had to get him out of town. They contacted Jim Stevens' sister in Fresno and arranged for her to invite him up there for a visit.

Then they set to work, with parental supervision, and painted his house — a job they knew he had been planning but had postponed to work with them. It helped that a painting contractor was chairman of the parents' committee for the troop.

"We figured that since he'd given so much of his time to us, we owed him a little in return," said a 15-year-old Scout Warren Smith.

New Frog-Jump Record In Event

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP)—Lucky Lager, with three prodigious leaps totaling 16 feet 10 inches, set a new frog jumping record and won owner Roy Weimer $1,000 yesterday in the 27th annual contest based on Mark Twain's famous story.

Lucky Lager bettered by 8 inches the mark set in 1944 by Maggie.

In Twain's story "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," a villain loaded the favorite with buckshot and it never got off the ground.

Elaborate Floats In Shriners' Parade

Above is shown the float on which Potentate J. Ed Rooker will ride in the parade that is to highlight the Shrine Spring Ceremonial here this week. The parade will start at 12:00 noon Wednesday, with approximately 100 units participating.

Twelve of the 20 floats for the Shriners' parade, one of which is shown above, are being constructed by a professional decorating company which has been contracted by the Shriners. Several thousand Shriners and many thousands of visitors are expected here for the two-day event. (Reflector photos by Alvin Taylor)

Some 20 major floats are to be entered in the Shriners' parade. In addition, 20 bands are expected to participate in the procession. The parade route, down Dickinson Avenue to Washington Street, Washington to Third, Third to Evans, Evans to Five Points and Fifth from Five Points to East Carolina College, will be cleared of all parking Wednesday morning and until after the parade is concluded.

CAP Squadron Attended Annual Training Mission

Two Greenville Squadron Civil Air Patrol officers attended the statewide annual Search and Rescue Training Mission at Fairchild Airport at Burlington over the past weekend.

1st Lt. Joe Bynum and 2nd Lt. Walter Briley flew their aircraft to Burlington for the two-day event.

On hand at the ceremony in Burlington were 122 senior CAP members, 115 cadets and approximately 20 aircraft.

Actual search operations included searching for a target planted by the U. S. Air Force's Air Rescue Service. The target represented a crashed jet aircraft.

There was also a private aircraft supposedly lost for search work over the weekend.

Since the CAP is a component of the Air Rescue Service, Air Force personnel monitored the mission and judged the operational efficiency.

The mission was designed to train personnel for one of the CAP's most important peacetime functions — that of searching for lost aircraft. Procedures followed in the search missions also are utilized in such wartime duties as coastal, border and forest patrol, tow target and tracking missions, anti-sabotage patrols, courier service and other similar activities.

The local unit is making every effort to get control of the lights at the local Pitt-Greenville Airport so they may train for their mission, but as yet have been unsuccessful.

Two Divorces Granted In Court

Two divorces were granted this morning as Judge Clawson L. Williams opened a week's mixed term of Superior Court here.

Slated for trial this week are a number of civil actions, and a few criminal actions involving jail cases.

Divorces were granted on grounds of two years separation this morning in the cases of M. E. Sutton vs. Ottilie P. Sutton, and Kenneth L. Potter vs. June M. Potter.

Capitol Square

(Continued from page four) from post convention interviews with persons who talked to a lot of people, is that if the trend toward Lennon continues at the same rate it has for the past ten days, he will overcome the Scott lead by next Saturday. That puts the result of the primary back into the element of chance and the efficiency of the two opposing organizations to capitalize on developments.
