Parade Route Two Miles The parade route winds through two miles of Greenville streets, starting at the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad on Dickinson Avenue. It will move up Dickinson Avenue to Washington Street and up Washington to Third Street turning down Third to Evans Street and then down Evans to Five Points. At Five Points it turns down Fifth Street and goes to East Carolina College, where all people marching in the parade will eat lunch along with Shriners and their ladies. Lt. Tom Brown, Sgt. J. B. Boyd and Guy Langston, parade co-chairmen, have been in charge of preparation of the parade with the assistance of a 20 man committee. Lt. Brown said yesterday that he expects the parade will last at least one and one-half hours. Visitors are urged to follow directions of the traffic police, who will send them to one of five Greenville warehouses which will be open for parking. These warehouses are all within a short distance of the parade route.

Elaborate Plans Worked Out To Route Traffic And Keep Parade Streets Clear

City police reminded once again today that no parking will be allowed on the Shrine's parade route tomorrow until after the parade is over. Acting Chief of Police H. E. Wooten said that no parking signs will be placed along the route early tomorrow and the streets will be kept clear until after the parade, which begins at 12 noon, is completed. Wooten said that if anyone leaves a car parked in the parade route, police would have a wrecker tow the vehicle away and the owner would be required to pay the towing charges. "I certainly don't want to be embarrassed by having to tow in a vehicle and I don't want them to be embarrassed by having their vehicle towed in," the acting chief stated. He emphasized however, that with the narrow streets along the parade route it is absolutely essential that the street be kept clear. Wooten noted that officers would be stationed along the route tomorrow morning to keep cars from parking and to assist out-of-town drivers. He said that two of the three shifts of the local police force will be on duty. In addition 30 highway patrolmen are expected tomorrow, 3 police officers from Warrenton, 2 from Farmville, and one each from Kinston, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson, New Bern and Washington. Wooten stated that possibly other towns will furnish officers tomorrow also. A number of near-by towns are sending motorcycles to help with tomorrow's expected crowds. In addition, firemen and National Guardsmen will assist law enforcement officers. Wooten particularly urged spectators who plan to view the parade tomorrow to stay back on the sidewalks. He said that the entire width of the streets is needed for the parade and asked that everyone cooperate with officers when requested to remain on the sidewalks. Barricades will be placed at the intersections of Fourth and Greene Streets, Washington and Second, Eighth and Evans, Third and Cotanche, and at the intersections of streets entering Dickinson Avenue. The barricades will be put up at 11:55 a. m. To route traffic through town an officer will be placed at the intersection of Boyd and West Fifth Streets at 9 a. m. to turn all downtown traffic and traffic for N. C. 43 south, N. C. 11 south, U. S. 264 east and west, right on Boyd Avenue. At the intersection of West Fifth and Albermarle Streets, traffic for N. C. 11 north, the downtown business district and the residential area north of East Fifth Street will be directed to the intersection of West Fifth Street and Albermarle Avenue where the flow of traffic can either go to the left or follow West Fifth Street. In addition, officers will be stationed at other intersections to direct traffic around the parade route.

Plans For Integrating District Of Columbia Schools Prepared

WASHINGTON (AP)—A blueprint for integrating white and Negro schools in the nation's capital, which may provide a pattern for action elsewhere goes before the District of Columbia Board of Education for approval today. The board must decide how and when—to end separate schools for the two races in the light of the Supreme Court's decision last week that racial segregation in public schools violates the constitutional guarantee of equal protection of the law. In a series of follow-up decisions yesterday, the tribunal issued orders aimed at giving Negroes admittance to publicly supported colleges and universities, theaters, golf courses and housing projects. In some instances the rulings were final. In others, lower courts, were to do so considering on the basis of the May 17 decision striking down segregation in public schools. The District of Columbia commissioners quoted Eisenhower as expressing great interest a week ago in plans for ending school segregation here in Washington and asking them to keep him posted on progress. There are more Negro than white children here. And aides said the President feels a successful plan to end segregation in the capital would ease the way for the change in the 17 Southern and border states where school segregation has been practiced. While some Southerners have expressed a willingness to comply with the Supreme Court decision, others are declaring angrily they never will be combined white and Negro schools. Appearing on a recorded MBS radio program last night, Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia said Eisenhower will be hurt politically in the South.

Red Arms Make Guatemala Strongest Power In Central America

Dulles Sees Threat To Panama Canal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the Reds must have shipped arms to Guatemala in order to build up a Communist bastion near the Panama Canal. Dulles told a news conference that was one possible objective of the arms shipment last week from Poland amounting to 2,000 tons valued at 10 million dollars. He said this had made Guatemala the dominant military power in Central America. Dulles also declared: 1. The United States would support an appeal to the United Nations for the dispatch of a peace observation mission to Southeast Asia. Dulles also said that the prospects for some kind of United Nations action looked better now than they had recently. 2. The United States government had made clear to the French in talks now under way the terms and conditions under which it would be possible to consider American intervention in the Indochina War. The conditions include, he emphasized, approval by Congress and the creation of an anti-Communist coalition in Southeast Asia. 3. The United States is about to send a new note to Russia on President Eisenhower's proposal for international atomic energy peace pool. Dulles said that consultations are going forward with Allied countries on the note. Such countries in this case are primarily Britain and France. 4. Prime Minister Mendez of Turkey will visit the United States in the period June 1-4 to discuss economic and financial matters. Dulles discussed the Guatemalan and Indochinese situations in response to questions from reporters noting that Guatemala is the only American nation to have received a "massive shipment" of arms from an Iron Curtain country. In a move to counter the Communist shipment of arms, the United States is flying rifles, machine guns and other light combat gear to friendly nations in Central America. The State Department announced last yesterday that arms are being airlifted as "rapidly as possible" to Nicaragua and Honduras, Guatemala's neighbors to the south. Moscow radio immediately called the action preparation for "an attack against Guatemala." But Guatemala's foreign minister, Guillermo Toriello, told newsmen, "We do not believe the arms shipment has anything to do with us." He pointedly sidestepped any mention of Nicaragua, which has recalled its envoy from Guatemala. But he said Honduras is a good friend. However, the Chicago Tribune said last night that war seemed imminent between Honduras and Guatemala. Tribune staff writer Jules Dubois wrote from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, that Honduran border guards captured five armed Guatemalan Communists inside Honduran territory Sunday. He also told of reported troop and military air activity in both countries. U. S. Ambassador John E. Peurifoy said he had heard of no such border incidents. In Washington, Lincoln White, State Department press officer, said the department had no information that a war was impending, but he added that U.S. diplomatic officials knew there was considerable tension between the two countries. Meanwhile, dispatches from Guatemala quoted long-time American residents of that country as saying they could not recall a similar strained atmosphere. There were reports of workers shouting "Go Home, Gringo Yankee!" to North American women. Developments have piled one upon another since the State Department last week announced the arrival of a freighter-load of arms at a Guatemalan port. The department said they were loaded at Stettin in Communist Poland. That shipment reportedly was the equivalent of 70 freight cars and worth 10 million dollars. More arms were said to be on the high seas bound for Guatemala, which this country has charged with following the Communist line. Guatemala's foreign minister denied this emphatically. Of the original shipment, Toriello said: "The equipment Guatemala has bought will never be used for anything else than to maintain internal peace."

Four Endorsed By Umstead For Shuford's Post

RALEIGH (AP)—The names of four persons have been endorsed to Gov. Umstead as possible successors to state labor commissioner Forrest H. Shuford who died last week. They are Lewis P. Sorrell, who has served as Shuford's assistant for several years; George Cherry, state superintendent of public buildings and grounds; Dr. T. C. Johnson, former state parole commissioner; and Ralph Rochelle of High Point. Umstead will appoint a successor to serve until the general election next November. The state Democratic and Republican executive committees will name party nominees to be voted on the general election. Meanwhile, the governor's office reported that three more names have been added to the long list of persons endorsed to fill the vacancy created by the death of Sen. Clyde R. Hoy. They are Federal Judge Wilson Warwick of Newton, State Sen. O. Arthur Kirkman of High Point and J. Russell Kirby of Fremont. Gov. Umstead said he will wait until after May 31 to name a successor to Hoy. Political observers say they expect him to wait until after that date to appoint a successor to Shuford. Former Gov. R. Gregg Cherry continues to be mentioned a lot on Capitol Hill in speculation on the appointment for the Senate seat. Others figuring prominently in speculation include Irving Carlyle of Winston-Salem, who keynoted the state Democratic convention last week; Carlisle Higgins of Winston-Salem, Democratic national committeeman; and former state treasurer Brandon P. Hodges.

McCarthy Claims Charts 'Phony' And 'Dishonest' Pvt. Schine's Record Aired

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maj. Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan testified today the McCarthy subcommittee staff repeatedly asked special leaves from Pvt. Dix, N. J., for Pvt. G. David Schine but said he had no knowledge the requests were for any purpose other than subcommittee work. Ryan, commander of Ft. Dix, gave an account of the leaves with illustrations provided by two Army-prepared charts which drew hot blasts from Sen. McCarthy. McCarthy called the charts "phony and dishonest" and "an attempt to deceive the American people." One of his objections was that the charts depicted in large black squares the days Schine enjoyed leave privileges during his basic training, and in relatively unblemished white squares the pass privileges of the "average" inductee. McCarthy tried to get Ryan to agree with him that the charts were "dishonest" but the general told him: "I don't see anything dishonest about them at all. I say they reflect the truth and are not misleading or inaccurate." And, in another exchange, Ryan said: "I don't think anything put out by the Army is dishonest." Ryan's aide, Lt. John Bruce Blount, took the stand to relate telephone calls with Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel for the McCarthy subcommittee, about Schine. He said Cohn was "extremely angry" over treatment of Schine at the fort and let him know about it "in no uncertain terms." Asked if Cohn used "abusive language," Blount said that was a very loose term and "no swear words were used." Blount said one incident was a call from Cohn Jan. 9 about a Jan. 10 assignment of kitchen police duty to Schine. He said Cohn accused the Army of "renegeing" on an agreement to make Schine available for McCarthy subcommittee work when it would not interfere with his Army training. Blount said he told Cohn the Army considered kitchen police duty a part of Schine's training and "so far as we were concerned"

New Tangle Develops Over Indochina Peace Geneva Talks Still Snarled

GENEVA (AP)—The Indochina peace talks apparently were snarled again today in questions of procedure. The nine-party conference meets in its sixth secret session to try to unravel the new tangle that developed at yesterday's meeting. Western diplomats, more than ever, expressed belief the Geneva conference had reached a decisive stage. With both the Indochinese and Korean negotiations bogged down, the West generally agreed this week or next would show definitely whether there was any use for further talk. The latest hitch developed when Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov demanded the conference devote its efforts to general political problems of permanent peace. The Soviet diplomatic chief, who had presented a five-point program Friday for getting down to brass tacks on a cease-fire, said the military aspects of the question should be handed over to the "two sides"—France and the Communist-led Vietnam. Western delegates were caught by surprise. They had believed the procedural problem settled, at least temporarily, since Molotov's Friday proposals dealt solely with military problems. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was reported ready to put up a stubborn fight against any discussions on a possible political settlement before a cease-fire is arranged. U. S. Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden were ready to back him up. Unless either side gives ground, this means all the apparent progress of last Friday has been nullified. The program suggested by the Soviet foreign minister Friday called for an agenda based on the following points: a cease-fire, assembly zones for grouping opposing army units, the question of foreign reinforcements, supervision and control of the cease-fire, and guarantees of any agreements reached. Some quarters here had interpreted the proposal as a "peace plan." The immediate problem was how to reach an agreement on procedure which would allow the conferees to get down to work on the problems of an Indochinese peace. The Indochinese talks will be in recess tomorrow while the 19-nation conference on Korea goes back into session to hear the United States and other nations comment on the latest proposals advanced by South Korea and Communist China's Premier Chou En-lai. There still was no information here as to what instructions Eden brought back with him from London yesterday after conferring with Prime Minister Churchill and other members of the British Cabinet. It was understood, however, the British were nearing the end of their "wait and see" policy. Western delegates still were not ready to break off the talks—now in their fifth week—but were reported giving serious consideration to fixing a time limit.

Contests Feature May Meeting Of Homemakers' Club

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Henry Everett's home on Green Street was bright with lilies and many other beautiful spring flowers Thursday night when she was hostess to the Homemakers' Club.

The president, Mrs. Harvey Roberson, called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock, then household hints were given in response to the roll call. The minutes were read by Mrs. Roberson who substituted for the secretary, Mrs. Robert Taylor. Mrs. C. M. Hurst Sr. gave the financial report after telling of cards sent to sick friends.

The evening was then turned over to Mrs. Everett, who entertained with an ice contest that had answers ending in "ice." For example: What is good for the teeth? Dentifrice. The winner was Mrs. Hattie Hardy. The group was divided before each person was given a teaspoon with instructions to hold the handle between the teeth and without the aid of hands to put the peanut into the bowl of their neighbor's spoon.

Failure to abide by the rules or dropping the nut caused the offender to start anew. Mrs. Lena Roberson was the most successful. The sewing contest with 15 questions to be answered with parts of a dress was won by Mrs. Mack Wynn.

Each lady was given two pages from a magazine. Two members then started from the front of the living room and raced to the dining room by moving the paper and not putting their feet on the rugs. The one who reached her destination first could select a prize. When they returned the next were in competition. The gifts went to Mesdames J. C. Keel, William Hurst, R. E. Grimes, Cartwright Taylor, N. C. Everett, Hattie Hardy and Katherine Wynn.

The award for the nursery contest was captured by Mrs. Ella Keel and Mrs. J. C. Taylor carried the guessing box home.

Much merriment was had after the hostess gave each person a blown-up balloon on a string, in-

Miss Hines Honored At Tea

Mrs. Bill Sermons and Miss Faye Sermons were hostesses at a tea Saturday afternoon for Miss Carolyn Hines, bride-elect, at the home of Mrs. Sermons on Student Street. Guests were greeted at the door and introduced to the receiving line composed of Miss Hines, Miss Sermons, Mrs. A. P. Hines, mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. Muse of Tarboro, mother of the groom, and Miss Chris Britt, aunt of Mr. Muse. The home was decorated throughout with pink roses. Miss Hines was presented a pink rose corsage upon her arrival. The hostesses remembered her with a gift of silver. The dining room table, from which Mrs. E. R. Sermons poured tea and Miss Jean Teterton served the party refreshments, was covered with a cut-work cloth and centered with a lovely arrangement of roses. Approximately 35 guests called during the afternoon. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Billy Whitley.

Kindergarten Pupils Present Operetta

Mrs. C. D. Smith presented her kindergarten students in a fairy operetta "Happiness In Fairyland" at West Greenville School auditorium on Monday night, May 17. The performance was a musical enactment of the famous story-book characters which showed many of the things the children had learned during the year. The first act depicted the children listening to their favorite bedtime stories. As they were being tucked in bed by their parents, the prince of happiness appeared. He made it possible for the children to have a wonderful dream that took place in fairyland. The second act showed that the king's jaw had been changed to fairyland by the little fairies and elves. Action and music centered around each of the children as they dramatized many of the best loved characters of children's stories. The concluding number was "Young at Heart" sung by Irving Ennis accompanied by Charles Starnes of East Carolina College. The class enacted this scene. Assisting Mrs. Smith in the direction of the play were Mrs. H. D. Jefferson, Mrs. R. C. Rogers, Miss Jean Sutton, Miss Carol Anne Pitt and Mrs. C. L. Lupton. Those in charge of the scenery were Mrs. Charles Flanagan, Mrs. W. M. Reading, Mrs. A. Hartwell Campbell, Mrs. Graham Jefferson, Mrs. Robert E. Wilfong, Mrs. Norman Wilkerson, Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts and Mrs. Joseph M. Taft. Marshals were Sara Webb, Lois Sermons, Judy Tucker, Myrtle Moon Billore, Joanne Smith, Anna Taft and Donna Day Bissette. Children taking part in the production were Charles Rogers, Sue Rogers, Edgar Taft, Louis Taft, Bobby Roberts, Carol Jane Roberts, Ricky Cox, Linda Jefferson, Jimmy Hale, Elaine Mathis, Angela Allen, Danny Joyner, Jackie Williams, Roger Riddick, Ina Bynum, Peggy Smith, Ginger Strawn, Anne Sermons, Jonathan Wilfong, Billy Russ Darrow, Van Campbell, Joy Moseley, Ed Flanagan, Warren Wilkerson and Billy Reading.

Pupils' Songs Become History

SINGING THEIR HISTORY — Sister William Patrice with some of her students.

AP Newsfeatures

DETROIT — Sister William Patrice keeps her students in tune with the times. She does it with a history book and a pitch pipe. Sister Patrice finds her students at Visitation School more easily can recall a period of history if a song flits through their minds. For example, during the study of Columbus' arrival in the New World the lass learns that the explorer's crew upon sighting land sang a jubilant, "Te Deum." The class sings "Te Deum Laudamus." Holy God We Praise Thy Name. Then moving into the study of the Civil War period, the students learn of slaves. They sing a Negro spiritual. They identify World War I with "Over There," and World War II by "Coming In On A Wing And A Prayer." The theory of teaching history with music was the idea of Sister Mary Francis, a compatriot of Sister Patrice in the Dominican order. She tested the theory at Visitation School. Now youngsters in all parochial schools in the archdiocese of Detroit are learning their American history by singing.

A Word To The Class Of '54

This is the season when graduates leave the familiar halls of academic learning and stride confidently or self-consciously into the world.

A Suggestion Which Deserves Consideration

The President gets a great many invitations and a great deal of advice—mostly unsolicited—about what to do to better run the country.

Most of these of course, have to be ignored, or the President would never find time to attend to the many affairs of state.

Recently, however, there has been a suggestion made that the President might well consider. A London newspaper headlined its front page Sunday with the big letters: "Come on Over Ike." It said the "Anglo-American partnership is in mortal danger." At the same time it urged President Eisenhower to come to England to talk things over with Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill and "draw up a truly joint, long term policy."

President Eisenhower, of course, would not consider going to London to talk with Churchill on the invitation of a newspaper. He might, however, accept the invitation were it issued from Sir Winston.

Certainly the United States and Great Britain must keep their ties strong and their international policies in harmony in meeting the threat of communism. There have been indications that the nations are getting out of step with each other in this sphere of operations.

In the past, such meetings of the heads of the United States and Great Britain have proven helpful in keeping the policies of the nation in accord. There is no reason to believe a similar meeting now would not help in bringing the two nations together on a more positive program against communism in international circles than is now being followed.

Strength for the Day

The ideal of the "golden" mean is pagan in origin, but it none-the-less has a certain virtue. Balance between two extremes generally brings one to a knowledge of the true, and the tendency to push even the most commendable virtues to an extreme may produce embarrasment, discomfort, and sometimes evil itself. Plato said, "For every good there are two evils, the extremes on both directions."

National Whirligig

Life is a serious proposition, but people who go around with a sour look on their faces all the time are bores and annoyances. On the other hand, there is probably no one more irritating than the type of person who is always smiling and bubbling over with optimism, even when the hurricane warnings are being sounded full blast.

Truth usually resides about halfway between extremes. There are always two sides to every question. Even a virtue pushed to an extreme may become a vice. Watch out for evil which flows out of good unwisely utilized, or a virtue pressed too far.

most 500 youngsters donned their caps and gowns and received high school diplomas. At East Carolina College more than 300 others received their college degrees. Next week more than 100 graduates will stride across the stage to receive diplomas from the Greenville city schools.

For these young men and women who are graduating, the future holds a brightness which has no equal in the past. To be sure there are perils ahead and dark clouds here and there in the sky; but the wide blue of opportunity beckons as it has to no other graduates.

These are troubled times indeed. The cry for sound leadership can be heard at every hand. Those who have weathered the strain of leadership for years are looking for strong young shoulders to which to pass the burden with confidence in years to come. Individual communities are looking to their youth for inspiration and concrete contributions toward bettering the way of life.

The commencement, many think of as the of a period of life. More realistically, it is the beginning. It is the beginning of opportunity for service to one's own community and to one's fellow men. It is the beginning of construction of a worthwhile life upon the foundations which have been laid.

Time past, and neglected opportunity can not be called back. The community which neglects its new adults, who each year stand ready to assume responsibility, can not recall its loss. The individual who neglects the responsibility which comes with maturity can not regain the time which is wasted.

Welcome To Shriners For Their Ceremonial

The Reflector joins with the rest of Greenville in welcoming to the city the several thousand Shriners and their ladies, here for the annual Spring Ceremonial of Sudan Temple.

It is indeed a rare privilege for Greenville to have the opportunity to be host to such a group of fine people. This is the first time Greenville has been chosen as the site for the annual event. Local Shriners and other citizens have contributed a great deal of time, effort and money in making preparations for the ceremonial.

The keys to the city have been placed in the hands of the visiting Nobles and their ladies for the two-day festival. We hope the visitors enjoy their stay in Greenville, and we are confident local citizens will enjoy their role as host and spectators at the outstanding event.

The Reflector trusts the visitors will find during their stay here, Greenville living up to its slogan: "Our Greenville, Yours if You Come."

must be offset against each other, and the total subsidy figured on the net loss.

But CAB, besides failing to make any audits of these subsidiaries' finances, failed to follow the Supreme Court's formula in presenting a 1955 budget of $143,000,000 for these grants. The House reduced this figure by $42,000,000, insisting that CAB base 1955 payments on the Supreme Court's finding. Despite this mandate, which was accompanied by severe criticism, CAB again submitted its original swollen budget to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield insists that at least $35,000,000 in unjustified subsidies have been paid out under CAB's apparently illegal and politically inspired generosity. Both Truman and Eisenhower, as well as three Congressional Committees, have long insisted on greater economy in this field.

Somebody Told Me

Relaxing Easy In South Creek

What I would like to know is how the big city folks survive. Whenever I get away from the tremendous city of Greenville, down on the creek bank, it's so relaxing and such a pleasant change that I wonder how people who have to face the big city day after day get along.

Over this past weekend it was South Creek, where one of the main projects was sitting on the porch and looking out on the water. Elmo and J. T. Dupree's cottage is located near the settlement of South Creek, within a few hundred yards of the Post Office, yet on a point that allows breeze off the water from either side. The Post Office itself is a curiosity. It could be placed of the bed of a pick-up truck without being off balance.

One of the two merchants in South Creek is a Negro whose name escapes me at the moment. He does a steady business and has about the neatest store I've ever seen to be crowded as it is. In his garage near the store is a shiny four-door car, that looks brand new.

Here's the story that is told about that car: The man went to a dealer's show room and asked the salesman if the car on display was for sale. The salesman thought that to be a rather peculiar question, but disregarded it and continued in his day dream.

The man walked out of the show room and on to the used car lot, where a more eager salesman approached him and was pleasantly surprised when told, "I want to buy that car in the show room. How much is it?" When the salesman started filling out papers the man pulled out a roll and paid cash for the car. When the two came back in the show room the day dreamer was wide awake, but too late to make the commission.

In the process of buying furs, Elmo Dupree learned years ago every road in Eastern Carolina, including those around South Creek. One took us by Frank Parker's store, which is as quaint as any I've ever seen. Beside the store is Frank's tomb, which he built himself. He is 78 now and plans to be put in his permanent rest in the tomb he built. The inscription says, "F. A. Parker in God I trust. Born 1876." Both 's are small. The first "r" is written correctly and the "n" in born is backwards. The tomb is above ground, well built and neatly painted.

Frank no longer operates his store, but it stands as an additional monument to his life. A large sign in front reads "Old Frank." The eaves are decorated with broken glass, imbedded in cement. If you are ever within range, ask someone where Old Frank's store is. It's worth quite a few miles drive.

Tomorrow's column will be an interview with a South Creek citizen who crabs for a living. And I thank you.

JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE DEMOCRATIC COURSE (Washington Daily News)

Irvig Carlyle, keynote speaker of the State Democratic convention in Raleigh this week, placed the party squarely on record as willing to "abide by the decision of the Supreme Court" on the segregation issue.

What other course is there to follow? If we choose any other course now, we would be taking the road along side the radicals and rabble rousers. If there is to be trouble, we should make sure that it does not come with the blessings of the thinking people of North Carolina.

Mr. Carlyle merely spoke words of wisdom as an individual. But in so doing, he hit at the very heart of the attitude which North Carolinians must accept if we are to be in accord with the decision.

Such a momentous decision has left many people bewildered and disappointed. There is always a tendency for some spark to set off an unfortunate incident. Mr. Carlyle would accept the decision in the true spirit of North Carolina greatness.

Some people would blame one party or the other for the decision. But let us become confused and mixed up, this is no one party matter. There are nine justices on the high court, and the decision was unanimous. And of those nine justices part belong to the Democratic party and part to the Republican party. It affects all people, and it is not a strictly partisan matter.

We have Republicans as well as Democrats in North Carolina. Both parties are directly involved in the decision to carry out the letter of the law. The children of Republicans and the children of Democrats will be going to schools together.

Disappointment is one thing, but open rebellion against a rule is another. Whether colored children want to go to white schools is no longer a question for debate. The law as interpreted by the Supreme Court has taken care of that question. The big question now is "how shall we go about the matter?"

Since all communities are affected, whether we want to be or not, the correct and sensible thing to do now is to work for the best solution possible under existing circumstances.

The white and colored leaders should sit down and try to work out this matter as easily and peacefully as possible. Both races have a stake in the solution. One race cannot affect a happy solution alone. But if both races will show a spirit of determination, then it will pay rich dividends in a happier state.

The colored people must be prepared to accept their full responsibility. If they are not now prepared then they should make every attempt to prepare themselves. If we go about this thing sensibly, we'll be much better off in the long run. The more ideas which are advanced, the better off all of us will be because our thinking will be enlarged and more inclusive.

That, as we see it, is the theme of the Democratic stand in North Carolina today.

Business Today Latin America Trade

By ELME ROESSNER
American business today is facing the loss of a sizable part of the Latin-American market. There are three sources of trouble: 1.—Our relations, both governmental and private, appear to be especially inept.

2.—Western Europe, with industry restored (partly by our tax-grown money), is bidding for more sales. 3.—Iron Curtain countries, with political as well as economic objectives, are trying to gain more footholds.

There may be a fourth source: The willingness of some Latin-American opportunists to exploit the first three for their own advantage. Under the first point are our inability to negotiate a settlement of the migrant labor problem satisfactory to Mexico; the proposals to restrict the importation of foreign petroleum, which would damage the Venezuelan economy; the talk about boycotts on coffee and Governor Thomas E. Dewey's call to use milk instead, and unsympathetic attitudes toward many other economic problems south of the border.

Under the second point, it may be observed that Latin America has long had strong ties with Western Europe; "Latin" named Schmidt, Kowalski and Van Dyke are not rarities, and industrial Europe had a large share of Latin-American trade before the war. Now European salesmen are swarming over the territory, making deals. William Anders, a Pfaunder Co. engineer, returning from a survey of Mexico, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia and Venezuela, said that French and German Companies are offering from three-to-five year credits to South and Central American buyers.

Under the third point is the fact that the Guatemalan arms deal appears to be only one of a number of contracts negotiated through Latin America by Red agents, although most of them have involved non-military goods. Iron Curtain salesmen are offering Czech, Polish and other products; its buyers are seeking tin and copper. Again, easy credit and payments in local currencies are the bait.

Local currency, of course, can be used to support subversive movements in Latin America. The troubles in Guatemala, Honduras, British Honduras, British Guiana and Chile have Communist support if not instigation. There is no pat formula for overcoming all these difficulties. Certainly, we must share part of this market with other democratic nations. Beyond that, both government and business policies require close examination and perhaps some drastic overhauling.

WAGES, SALARIES DOWN;

INTERESTS, DIVIDENDS UP
The decline in total personal income in March was less serious than some headlines indicated. March income was at an annual rate, seasonally adjusted, of $28.8 billion. That's higher than it was in April, 1953, and at any time previous to March of that year.

The changes in the composition of the March income, while slight, will undoubtedly stir a lot of indignant talk in labor circles. While the total income is only $800,000,000—all this is at annual rates—less than in March, 1953, the wage and salary disbursements total is down $2.8 billion and personal interest income and dividends is up $1.2 billion. Labor's net was further lowered by the increase in Social Security rates. The only other source to show a sizable gain over a year ago, was transfer payments—mainly Veterans' payments and Social Security benefits—which were at an annual rate of $2 billion higher. Agricultural income was down $900,000,000 at annual rates.

The Place For A Sensible Man

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Peppi Paunzen, one of the Orient's most celebrated bachelors, is now touring America—and has decided this is the place for any sensible man to spend his life.

Let any single girl think this is heart-warming news for her, however, let me quote Peppi on the advantages of living here: "A man has such a wonderful feeling of freedom. The little pies come in colorful bags. The bread is already sliced. You can get your laundry done by electricity."

"What possible need is there for a man to get married? It is no longer necessary. He already has paradise."

Peppi, a methodical bachelor who requires prospective fiancées to fill out a printed questionnaire, has been overwhelmed by the beauty of American womanhood. "The girls here are the most chic in the world," he said. "Also the most independent. But I have great curiosity to see one at 7 o'clock in the morning. How do they look without makeup? Has this ever been found out?"

Who is the brash man who seeks to know about the real face behind the great American female facade? Well, Peppi is a kind of human question mark himself, one of those rare people whom thousands hail as a friend but who spend their lives trying to discover themselves.

Peppi is a career refugee. He fled his native Austria to get away from Hitler. He spent several years in Shanghai as an involuntary guest of the Japanese Army. He was squeezed out of China by the Communists.

For the last four years he has been manager of the Press Club in Hong Kong. There, as a friend wrote, his hospitality, skill at the piano, and sense of humor "endared him to man and beast alike throughout the Orient." The gentle smile and wryly hopeful outlook of this greying Viennese—his by-word is "be happy, like Peppi"—has made him something of a living legend in the Far East, where many a lonesome stranger has been made to feel at home by his kindness.

When he finally left Hong Kong, his friends threw so many farewell parties for him that Peppi says for safety's sake he had to write on his forehead: "This side up-handle with care."

Coming to America, where he wants to be a citizen, has been the big adventure of his life. He was held back for years by the small Austria quota. "I was told I could get in quicker if I married an American girl first," he said, "but the feeling of real freedom was what I wanted—and how can man ever reach a land of freedom, if he gives up his freedom before he gets there?"

"It's odd about the United States. Everybody seems to like it except the Americans who are away from it.

"In Hong Kong the Americans I met said, 'better don't go, Peppi, stay here.' But I like it over here much better, even though I went to Times Square and did not find it square."

"Now I would like to travel about this country and write a column explaining America to the Americans."

Peppi has spent so much of his life filling out government forms that he has invented his own bachelor questionnaire form Z2330—for prospective fiancées. "Marriages always have something to do with governments," he said, "so why not engagements?"

His questionnaire contains such queries as: By the way, what is your own form, if any? Do you talk too much? If yes, why not? Do you eat crackers in bed? Toast? Popcorn? Do you giggle? Do you snore? What other musical accomplishments have you? What hours are you free? What games do you play?

Life itself has been a rough game that Peppi always plays with a steady, wistful cheerfulness. "Sometimes I think I should get married," he said, "because it's true I am too happy."

"The trouble with most girls is they don't realize the importance of food to a man. They try to break his heart instead of trying to break in his stomach to a better way of life. 'Good husbands always come home to good cooks.'"

Switching Of Party Affiliation; Referendum Brush-Off

By LYNN NISBET
SWITCHING—Delegates to the recent Democratic State convention brought reports of unusual trend of registered Republicans switching party affiliation this year in order to be eligible to vote in the Democratic primary. There have been also more than usual number of national Republicans, who have been registered as Democrats, changing over in order to participate in their local nominating primaries. The net gain is believed to be several hundred for the Democrats.

REFERENDUM—Pre-convention rumors that real effort would be made to get a state liquor referendum plank in the Democratic platform failed to materialize. There seemed to be no semblance of organization or coordination among sponsors of the movement. There was evidence of cohesive organization among those opposed to such a movement.

At least four counties had adopted resolutions calling for referendum planks, and there were rumors that powerful influences, including that of Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges, would be behind them at the State meeting. Hodges had written some of the dry leaders that other duties would prevent him attending the convention. He was on hand but took no part in platform discussions. Other expected high level support did not materialize, and when the referendum item was reached in committee discussion it was brushed off with a quick motion and unanimous vote to table the idea.

Important as the liquor vote may be to a lot of people, it was overshadowed at the convention by the serious situation incident to the Supreme Court non-segregation decision. That question seems likely to overshadow everything else in the next General Assembly.

REVENUE—North Carolina is not the only State with declining revenue and increasing obligations. Very probably it is only one of 48 States in that fix. A recent issue of the Wall Street Journal has this to say about the matter: "State revenues are leveling off but spending is still rising. That's the conclusion of a survey made by the Federation of Tax Administrators of state budgets proposed for this year. Since 1954 is a legislative 'off-year' for most states, budgets will be adopted only by 14 states this year."

In about half of the states recommendations were made or action was taken to increase tax rates, terminate tax credits or adopt administrative measures designed to swell tax collections. Even with these measures in effect, the Federation says, 1954 budgets suggest future difficulty in financing expenditures from present revenue sources."

Proving that North Carolina has good company in its misery of potentially inadequate revenue, the WSJ story appends a footnote stating that among the states whose proposed budgets indicate spending in excess of revenues are California, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi and New Jersey.

It is further true that some states are calling special sessions of the legislature this year to meet problems of revenue deficiency; and nearly all of them are carefully planning tax and revenue bills for the regular legislatures next spring. All of which adds emphasis to the importance of the campaign being waged by Governor Umstead and the Department of Conservation and Development to bring new industry into North Carolina and to expand established operations to assure more tax dollars for the State bill.

Some dogwood still almost in full bloom along the upper reaches of the Pigeon river in Haywood perature that day was in the low 50's, there was a drizzly rain falling, and that watermelon looked about as forlorn as the people who left it must have felt.

Projects Go To National Board

RALEIGH (AP)—The National Rivers and Harbors Congress was expected to receive 14 proposed North Carolina improvement projects today in Washington.

The projects, endorsed by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, include flood control measures and the improvement of navigation and fishing facilities at a number of places.

One of the projects calls for a survey of the Neuse River basin to determine the feasibility of providing improvements so as to reduce floods, facilitate drainage, and permit greater utilization of land and water resources.

Another proposal calls for a study to determine the feasibility of providing for flood control, drainage, and for other purposes in the Cape Fear River basin.

A request for early work was expected on a plan for a channel 35 feet deep and 400 feet wide on the Cape Fear River at and below Wilmington.

SURE IS DRY

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—The mail brought Gov. Edward F. Arn a reminder of the drought. A letter from a friend, C. C. Evans of Russell, Kan., bore notations that the stamp was affixed and the back flap closed with pins because "no moisture is available" to seal them.

Robert Taylor And New Bride Returning Today

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP)—Movie actor Robert Taylor and his bride of one day actress Ursula Thiess, fly back to Los Angeles today after their semisecret wedding on picturesque Jackson Lake.

They were married yesterday afternoon aboard the cabin cruiser of Jess and John Wort, hotel operator brothers. Taylor, who has a share in some Wyoming oil operations, has stayed with the Wortes in the past and fished at Jackson Lake, at the foot of the 13,000-foot Teton Mountains.

Justice of the Peace Russell Robinson performed the ceremony. He said the only witnesses were Taylor's secretary, Mrs. Ivy Pearson, and his pilot, Ralph S. Couser. The party flew here from Los Angeles yesterday morning.

Taylor listed his age on the wedding license as 42 and Miss Thiess gave her as 30. They met two years ago.

A record 106,200,000 tons of iron ore was carried on the Great Lakes in 1953.

Stopped Traffic To Recover Shoe

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP)—Several little girls ran across Richmond's main street (U.S. 40) en route to school. A little shoe flew from one foot in the middle of the busy highway. But the girl couldn't stop because of the heavy traffic.

The driver of a big semitrailer stopped, got out as other traffic sped by, picked up the shoe and carried it to its little owner, waiting anxiously on the curb.

Reports Glacier Retreat Slowed

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP)—M. E. Beatty, Glacier National Park chief naturalist, says increased precipitation, despite warmer weather, has slowed the retreat of the park's 60 glaciers.

During the 1940s and of the glaciers was predicted before the year 2000. In 1900, Sperry, largest of the park glaciers, had an area of 840 acres. By 1950 it was down to 300 acres.

Firemen Lower Youth To Safety

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An 18-year-old amusement park attendant was trussed up in a fire department rescue bag and lowered 70 feet to the ground after threatening to jump from a thrill ride yesterday while thousands of school children watched.

Police identified the youth as Robert George Adelsberger of suburban Jennings, an attendant at an "aeroplane swing."

Adelsberger, who police said was a patient at a psychopathic hospital last January, climbed an iron ladder up the center pole of the swing to a small platform.

Then, shouting that he was going to jump, he removed his shoes, wrapped his arms around one of the cross poles and dangled in the air about 70 feet above the ground.

Firemen manned life nets below as Jesse Reed, another park employe, climbed to the platform, grabbed Adelsberger and hauled him back to the platform, where he was tied up and lowered to the ground in a rescue bag.

Police quoted Adelsberger as saying he had a dispute with his girl friend.

Report Enlarged Russian Colony

TAIPEH, Formosa. (AP)—The Interior Ministry's Ta Tao News Agency said today at least 20,000 Russians now live in Tsingtao, an important naval station on the north China coast.

The News Agency, which claims reliable underground contacts on the China mainland, said 70 per cent of the Russians are advisers to the Chinese Reds, naval personnel and their dependents.

Amateur radio stations in the United States are limited to 1,000 watts of power output and some stations use as little as 10 watts.

U.S. Occupation Forces Order New Issue Of Scrip

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The U.S. Army announced the conversion of its currency in Germany today and ordered all holders of military scrip to turn it in for the new issue by noon.

No reason was given immediately for the action.

In a similar move, U.S. Army headquarters in Tokyo said it was changing its scrip for the first time in nearly three years. The Tokyo report indicated the change was aimed against black market operators in military currency.

The military moved fast after publication of the conversion order, preparing to issue millions of new scrip dollars. Such changes are among the Army's best-kept secrets.

An Army spokesman said the order would extend to scrip holders in France and England, where American personnel does its buying at post exchanges.

He said those entitled to use military scrip who were temporarily outside Germany would be permitted exchange for the new issue

"after filling out some affidavits." The order affected more than 200,000 servicemen and their dependents in Germany. It was the fourth time since 1946 the Army ordered conversion of its scrip. Previous conversions aimed largely at smashing black market operations.

PLINT, Mich. (AP)—Mrs. Robert Dolan's Irish Setter, Bridget, came home with a four-pelt fur neckpiece, Mrs. Dolan claimed police.

At the Chicago World's Fair in 1939, one firm exhibited a huge typewriter, 1,728 times larger than normal weighing 14 tons.

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP)—A White House aide's criticism of Democrats in Congress raised a question today whether President Eisenhower himself may be getting ready to toss a few political bricks.

If he does, it will be a sharp departure from the be-kind-to-Democrats role he has played consistently since taking office 16 months ago.

Criticism of the opposition party voiced yesterday by Bernard M. Shanley, one of the President's key aides, was something quite new. Speaking off the cuff to a meeting of the Wine and Spirits Wholesalers Assn., Shanley accused Democrats in Congress of throwing "important roadblocks" in the path of the administration's legislative program.

It was the first time anybody high on the White House staff has sounded off so bluntly against the Democrats.

In doing so, Presidential Special Counsel Shanley reportedly had Eisenhower's approval. And that touched off speculation that the President may be getting set to speak out himself, perhaps with an eye to the coming congressional elections.

Eisenhower has said that unless the Republicans enact what he terms a dynamic and progressive program, they won't deserve to win in the November elections. But so far he has refrained from cutting loose at the Democrats.

One obvious reason is that his program can't be put across without their cooperation, so closely is Congress divided.

The President also has said he plans no barnstorming campaigning in behalf of individual Republicans, but indications are he will travel around the country to plug for a workable Republican majority in the next Congress.

The Democrats and Republicans now each have 47 senators. In the House, the Republicans barely outnumber Democrats.

In his speech Shanley also suggested that former Vice President Alben W. Barkley and other Democrats are trying to ride to victory in November on Eisenhower's coattails. Barkley is bidding for election to the Senate seat now held by John Sherman Cooper, Kentucky Republican who is seeking re-election. Shanley did not mention him by name.

Barkley said in New York that if Shanley's statement "had reference to me it is utterly preposterous."

Listing the "roadblocks," Shanley spoke of the solid vote of the opposition party to the major portions of the President's program.

He mentioned the Democratic votes against (1) administration tax revision proposals in the House, (2) amendment of the Taft-Hartley law in the Senate and (3) a proposed constitutional amendment to lower the voting age to 18.

The tax bill passed the House, but the labor and suffrage measures were blocked in the Senate.

A DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Mabel Whittitt's hat shop was spic and span and ready for the first customer. When the door was opened a big Dalmation dog slipped inside, snatched a stuffed poodle from the show window and then made his getaway.

Startled clerks followed him for half a block but quit the chase when the Dalmation had placed the poodle gently beside a tree and turned to defend his fuzzy friend against any attackers.

Usually Need First Aid For Comedians

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Attendants stand by with bandages when Abbot and Costello come off-stage after a show such as their TV Comedy Hour performance.

"They gotta be ready," says Lou Costello. "There's no telling how injured we're going to be."

He isn't kidding. Although Lou is under doctors' orders to lay off the rougher routines, his violent kind of comedy puts him in jeopardy. Abbott, too. He's the straight man, but he has had his share of knocks.

The boys were telling me about their mishaps. I concluded they should have a charge account at some nea by hospital.

"Whenever I finish the TV show I'm bloody and bruised," Lou said. "After they touch me up with plaster and bandages, the first thing I have to do is call my mother. She's a very nervous type and I have to assure her I'm not badly hurt."

"Once I did a routine with a steel helmet that slipped and cut up my face. When I walked out of the theater that night, a man said to me, 'I just saw Art Aragon get whipped in the ring by Jimmy Carter, and he looked better than you do!'"

On one show the punch line in a sketch was to have Lou get hit over the head with a vase. But the vase broke early in the act, and Bud had to scurry around backstage to find another one. It turned out to be a real vase, not a breakaway. A girl clouted Lou with it and nearly knocked him out.

"I got mine during a show we did in New York," said Bud. "We had a sketch where a lady took Lou to court for breaking her umbrella. It was supposed to break when she hit him over the head with it. But the prop man had switched in a real umbrella."

"It had to be bent, because that was the payoff for the next scene. When the gal hit Lou and nothing happened, I took it and bent it over my knee. One of the ribs had broken, and it stuck into my leg four inches. I was bleeding like a stuck pig. Lou saw what was happening and ordered me off-stage so I could get bandaged up."

Civil Defense Is Church Project

PREPARED — Church members assemble the items which go into the home disaster kits.

AP Newsfeature

TACOMA, Wash.—A Tacoma pastor and his flock believe they have the answer to the question: "What can we, as average families, do to prepare for a civilian defense emergency?"

The Rev. DeWitt S. Osgood of the Central Seventh-day Adventist Church, who once was a medical student, explains:

"As I talked to the folks and to doctors, I would ask: 'What can we do?' This is what evolved."

He pointed to a battered looking can, painted a spotless white and lettered in red: "Disaster Kit."

The can was an old 25-pound shortening container.

It was one of the kits that were prepared in a joint effort by the congregation—by salvaging, soliciting and buying—and which now stand ready for emergencies in the basement of each of the more than 200 church families.

Each can is packed with emergency medical supplies.

Val Peterson, nited States civilian defense director, sent a "fine work" commendation to the church.

The project has drawn praise from the mayor and the local civilian defense director.

They lauded it as a step to have the supplies where they would be needed first and worst—at the home level—without the delay of distribution from a collection center in an emergency.

Frank Evans, city CD director, commented:

"These people have done an outstanding job in providing these kits for their homes. We are hoping to get all churches in the city to do the same. I certainly approve and give my blessing to the project and wish every home in Tacoma could have the same thing."

The idea shows promise of spreading to other church and non-sectarian groups.

"The first essential was to get the kits in cheap form," explained Osgood, who came here from Chicago two years ago.

Members of the congregation and their children solicited the cans and then collected old sheets, shirts, etc., which were cleaned, cut up and would into bandage rolls.

"Then boys collected tomato crates and cut up the slats for splints. We collected bottles and jars and sterilized them, and the women bought unbleached muslin and made bags for various-sized dressings. They used medical equipment for sterilizing them.

"A drugstore gave us 300 rolls of war surplus adhesive tape and we got petroleum jelly in 25-pound drums after we were told it was as good as anything for burns."

A jar of the petroleum jelly in a sample kit still bears on the lid its original "peanut butter" label.

The kit cans were filled by individual families cafeteria style. A member of each family filled a can from the array of the supplies laid out on tables.

"We bought gauze and cotton by taking up two special offerings at church," the Rev. Mr. Osgood said. "We figure the actual cost of the contents of each kit came to about $4 and estimate the cost would have been about $19.25 if the materials were bought readymade."

A 15-page set of instructions also is given each householder, prefaced by the admonition:

"Your first defense is God;

"Your first preparation is prayer."

The pastor who sparked the plan came to Tacoma from the Beverly

Hep Prof Gets Doctor's Degree By Mail In June

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON JR., DENTON, Tex. (AP)—The craziest college professor in the country, man, is getting his doctor's degree.

Craziest is what his students call M. E. (Gene) Hall, meaning he's hep—the greatest.

Hall, who has trouble switching between scholarly conversation and bopster lingo, runs a real cool jazz music course at North Texas State College here. As far as he knows, it's the only course in the United States that will get you a degree as a bachelor of music in jazz from an accredited college.

By mail the first week of June, his doctor of education degree should arrive from New York University.

"I'm not going up there to get it because it costs money," he said. "I've got grocery bills and kids in school, you know."

Hall, a big, bespectacled man of 40, has been fighting grocery bills since he got out of school at White Wright, a little town in north Texas.

During the depression, he played the saxophone in a panic band. That doesn't mean the band panicked the people. Most of the time the band was in a panic, wondering where it was going to play and eat next.

He saved and entered NTSC. When his money ran low he'd go out for a year of one-night stands. By 1943 he had his master's degree.

While he was a graduate student he started teaching a couple of west Texas boys how to arrange popular music and pretty soon he had a class of 15. The course has been taught ever since.

But Hall left for a while to teach band in Victoria, Tex., High School and to work at a radio station in Fort Worth.

In 1947, the college brought him back to build up the jazz curriculum to qualify it as a degree program.

Hall has the kids study traditional music courses. When they're old friends with Bach, he lets them work into his courses on jazz.

"They're young, and very impressionable," Hall said. "They get their vocabulary out of Downbeat. And with some of them it may be a device to hide inferiority feelings."

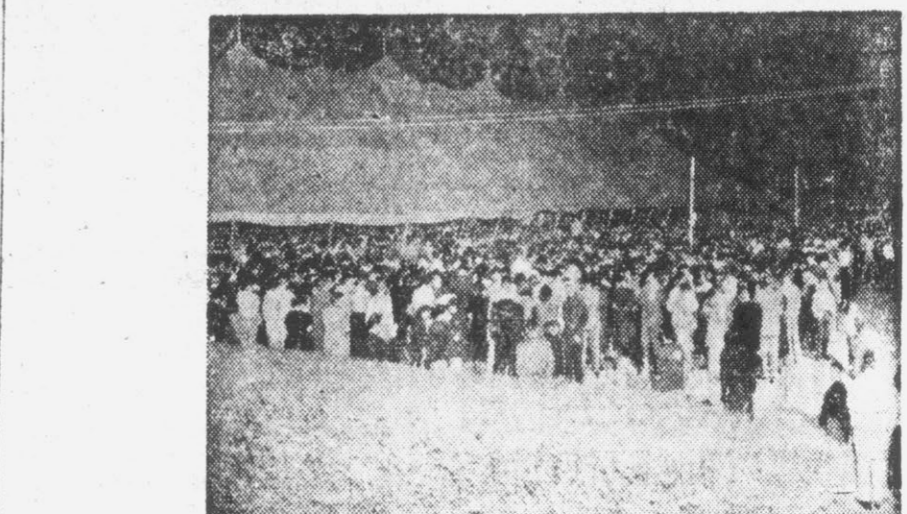

"But I talk the language with the cats. Sometimes I even find it creeping out in my conversation when I'm talking to people."

Anyways, the students think he's real crazy.

"But opinions vary," Hall said. "Sometimes they let me know I'm a moulidy fig."

"That's a square, you know—not hep."

"I found out someone else had stolen the stuff and I was just returning it."

Recorder's Judge Joseph Gillis cocked a quizzical eye, but found him innocent.

Two weeks later the man was back before the judge, with this explanation of 14 one-pound bags of coffee found by a hospital guard who noticed a suspicious bulge under the defendant's coat:

"I knew someone else was planning to steal this coffee, so I just decided to take it first."

The man got 90 days in jail.

No Indication Reds Will Accept Any Terms Other Than Surrender In Asia

Editor's Note—William L. Ryan spent six weeks in Southeast Asia, traveling to Indochina and the nearby countries endangered by a Communist sweep southward. He then went to Geneva to check his findings at the Geneva conference. This is the first of four articles this week on the prospects in "The battle for Asia."

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
GENEVA (AP) — There is not the slightest indication at the Geneva conference that the Communists will accept anything but surrender of the West in Asia. Apparently, they are sure communism is on a victorious march, with the decisive battle for Viet Nam all but behind them. The Russians are calling the tune here, even preparing the speeches of the Communist Vietnam representatives in the Russian language. After a month of talk, there seems no prospect of anything but obstruction and deadlock. The Russians exude confidence that they hold the trump cards.

Communism is relying heavily on a drive to turn Asian nationalism and Asian fears into potent weapons against the West in a long-term struggle for domination of a continent.

The United States has been losing battles in this propaganda war, though it has not yet, by any means, lost the war. Asian distrust of the West, after a century of colonial domination, is being twisted and turned against the United States in a political-psychological offensive designed to win cheap victories. The Communists are not concerned with masses now. This war is for the intellectuals, the educated layer of Asians from whose ranks come the raw materials for government and leadership.

In those ranks, America has been losing friends. They are not going over to the Communist side, but in frustration are retiring into a neutral shell. And that serves the Communist cause.

For one who has just returned from Asia there is an atmosphere almost of fantasy here in Geneva. Talk of "united action" in Asia seems removed from reality. At the moment, prospects seem dim for any Southeast Asia defense system under United States inspiration or protection. That may yet change as the Communists breath gets hotter on Southeast Asian necks. If so, the United States hopes to have the framework of an alliance which those nations can join if they choose.

But in an extensive tour of that vast, underdeveloped poverty-ridden area I found that, with few exceptions Asian leaders cling to the view that any involvement in a bloc—however defensive it may be—will make Asia the cockpit for World War III.

With the understanding they would not be quoted by name, Asian leaders spoke frankly of their fears and frustrations in trying to build new nations in an area whose unplumbed riches and geographical position make it a tempting target for Red expansion.

"Those who want to be friends of the United States are falling silent now," an elderly pro-American statesman told me sadly. "It is becoming just as politically unwise in this part of the world to take the side of the United States as it is for you in the states to take the part of Red China."

Asian leaders are alive to the internal Communist threat and have been fighting it consistently. They fear communism. But first of all they fear a new general war.

Because of this, however mistakenly, they fear the United States. They do not believe Americans have any aggressive designs on them. But they have a dread that actions of the United States in a head-on clash with the Soviet Union might plunge Asia into the most dreadful of all wars.

Two-Way Radio Given Economy Role In Factory

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—The two-way radio is moving indoors. It saves factories a lot of money — but makes it hard for a workman to disappear behind a stack of boxes for a restful smoke.

Nine months ago, low-power, two-way communication jobs were freed from government restrictions. Now they're increasingly becoming part of the factory scene.

General Electric engineers here say that putting two-way systems on indoor trucks and other factory transportation systems has resulted in making four trucks do the work of five. Trucks carrying materials or finished goods can be quickly directed in vast modern factories.

Savings in the cost of buying and maintaining trucks is sizable. Perhaps even greater is the saving on the cost of the labor to operate them.

And then there's the matter of the fork-truck operator who used to become lost around the factor somewhere—for about the time it takes for a smoke. In the old days he "didn't know where he either wanted" him. Today he either answers when the superintendent buzzes him up or the two-way system—or thinks up a reason why he was away from his truck.

Together, sales of the older high-power and the newer low-power systems total around 40 million dollars a year, GE engineers estimate.

The industry got its big boost in wartime, supplying military needs. First big civilian users of the high-power systems were police departments. Then came taxicab fleets.

Industry moved in next. Oil companies speeded traffic of oil field trucks and direct the relatively few workers around the great spaces of oil refineries.

Utilities have become top users. Repair and maintenance crew efficiency is increased and costs cut when central supervisors direct workers to emergency spots.

Communication engineers say the construction industry will soon be their biggest customers. Highway builders need fewer trucks if those in use can be directed by two-way radio where the need arises.

Baby of the industry is the low-power system for factories. First to try them were their own electronic factories, for quick distribution of parts to assembly lines. Steel, rubber and auto companies are putting them in.

In 1933 a Royal Canadian police boat rescued a bull moose several miles out in the Atlantic off Labrador, bucking high waves and swimming straight toward Europe.

West Point Facing Large Vacancy List

WASHINGTON (AP)—When this year's class graduates, West Point is going to have the greatest number of vacancies in the 152-year history of the U.S. Military Academy.

The famous Army school for officers, with a maximum capacity of 2,496, will have an estimated 1,016 vacancies after graduation. But the Army seems neither worried nor surprised.

Army officials questioned today said they do not believe the current trend toward a smaller regular Army nor reaction to congressional investigations of the Army are responsible.

They said the large vacancy list at this time stems from several factors, including:

1. Postwar letdown. Enrollment usually slumps for a time after each war because of a letdown in national interest in military matters. This time the slump seems to have been a little larger.

2. Delay in nominations to the academy made by senators and congressmen. This too, may be following a normal pattern. In congressional election years, the Army has found that Congress members often hold off on nominations of students until after election. The legislators are allotted 85 per cent of appointments to the academy; the others are filled on competitive basis.

West Point officials say that even though they probably could find qualified candidates to fill all vacancies, they would not want to do it. The practice is to admit between 750 and 775 each year. A greater number imposes an overload on the teaching staff of the school.

American moose are somewhat smaller than Alaskan moose, but just as belligerent.

RECREATION SOFTBALL then scored on another single by Walker to account for the tally and to put Carolina Dairies ahead for good. The Dairy batters got a total of six hits but no single batter could manage more than one safety. Mc-Dowell, with a triple and Perry, with a double, led the hitting for the team. All of the Graniters' hits were singles. In the second game of the evening, Garner-Wynne-Manning scored three times in the first inning for a quick lead they never relinquished. Boyd, Moss, and Manley led off with singles and Curry and Joseph reached on errors to account for the runs. The Builders got only two hits, both triples, off G-W-M's Umstead. Bob Boyette led off with a triple in the second inning and Lupton led off with a triple in the sixth inning. All of G-W-M's six hits went to different batters although Moore and Phillips both had two-baggers. One schedule change for the coming week was announced today by George MacMilland of the Recreation Department. That will come Thursday night when the Jolly Rogers will meet the Graniters at 7:30. National Guard and Carolina Dairies, originally scheduled to meet at that time, will play the first game Friday night.

Carolina Dairies became last night the only team in Greenville's young Recreation Softball League to remain undefeated after three games. The Dairy team knocked off the red-hot Graniters 3-0 in the feature game of last night's double-header at Guy Smith Stadium. The game was the first shutout of the season for any team and boosted the Carolina Dairies team into undisputed possession of first place in the league.

Manager's Death Crushes Baksi

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (AP)—Bulging Joe Baksi sobbed deeply with head hung low, crushed by the death of his manager during his losing comeback fight. All he could do was shake his head, mopping his face with a sponge while he considered the bleak future. His manager, Lee Feuerisen, 56, had collapsed in a ringside seat after the sixth round of Baksi's losing fight with Bob Baker of Pittsburgh. He never regained consciousness and died of a heart attack in the dressing room despite the efforts of the doctors. Baksi did not learn about the death until after the fight.

The Baksi-Feuerisen team had been reunited last winter at Baksi's request after the death of Natie Wolfson, his former manager. Feuerisen, a senior officer in the New York State Department of Licenses, had been one of three partners who managed the hulking coal miner from Kulpmont, Pa., in the early days of his career. Feuerisen had broken off with the others after Baksi knocked out Bruce Woodcock in London in 1948, then took another fight with Olle Tandberg instead of coming home to a certain title bout with Joe Louis. Everybody knows that Baksi lost his chance at the championship by losing to Tandberg.

Baksi, 32 and low on cash, sought out his old manager last December. He was sent to Florida with a trainer, Jimmy Leto. After two months in the gym, the veteran parred down from 260 to 236 pounds. He took a fight with Jimmy Smith in Jacksonville and knocked him out in one round, March 30, his first bout since 1951. On the strength of that success, Baksi continued. Feuerisen signed for a TV bout at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway with Baker. Now it was over. Baksi had lost a unanimous decision. "I don't know. I don't know," he said when they asked if he would continue. Then he said, "I guess I've got to go on for Leo."

Robert Lee Named New Head Coach At Jacksonville

Robert Lee, coach at Robersonville High School for the past four years, has been named athletic director and head coach of football and basketball at Jacksonville High School. The announcement of Lee's appointment was made by A. J. Lewis, chairman of Jacksonville's school committee. Lee will succeed Lou Savini in the Jacksonville post. Savini resigned this spring after four years as athletic director and head coach of the Cardinals. Robersonville has won the Class A Coastal Conference football championship for the past four years. Last season the football team was undefeated. The Rams have also enjoyed considerable success in basketball. Lee is a native of Winston and was graduated from East Carolina College. He is married and has a three-year-old daughter. Jacksonville is a member of the Northeastern Conference, having succeeded Edenton at the beginning of the present school year. Prior to entering the Northeastern, the Cardinals were perennial champions in the Class A East Central Athletic Conference.

Class A Playoffs Matches Hertford, Southern Pines CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—The state Class AA high school baseball champion and the Class A finalist will be decided in best of three series this week. Here's the lineup as announced by Hap Perry of the North Carolina High School Athletic Assn.: In AA, Gray of Winston-Salem meets Sanford Thursday night and Saturday afternoon at Sanford. A third game if needed will be played Saturday night at Sanford. Kernersville and Mt. Holly meet for the Western A title and Southern Pines and Hertford play for the Eastern crown.

In the East the first game will be played at Hertford tonight and the second at Southern Pines Friday afternoon. If another game is needed, it will be played at Southern Pines Saturday afternoon. In the West, the opener will be at Kernersville tomorrow night and the second game at Mt. Holly Thursday night. If necessary, a third game will be played Saturday on a neutral field. Gastonia won the AAA championship in two games over Wilmington last week.

Falkland Wins Two From Farmville In Tobacco Belt

FALKLAND—Good pitching and timely hitting gave Falkland's Tobacco Belt League team a pair of victories over the past weekend. Mark Stancill pitched an 8-7 victory for Falkland Saturday, defeating Farmville in 11 innings. Sunday, East Carolina College's sophomore ace, Ken Hall, gave up only four hits in hurling a 10-0 victory over the same team. In Saturday's game, Stancill was his own best friend in Falkland's eight-hit batting attack with three hits in six trips to the plate. Paul Jones got two for five but the big hit of the day was Harvey Strickland's 11th inning single that turned in the winning run.

In the Sunday game, Hall had no trouble at all with the Farmville club. No Farmville batter got more than one hit while Billy Webb sparked a 10-hit Falkland offense with two hits. T. Beaman started for Farmville and gave way in the fifth to Johnny Hinson, the Farmville High School star of this spring. Falkland did not score off Hinson. # If McCarthy Walk Out, No Likelihood Of Real Censure

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—If Sen. McCarthy should change his mind and walk out, the senators investigating his fight with Army officials would have the choice of doing nothing about it.

The Wisconsin senator says he will be available for testimony unless something unforeseen turns up.

Because the Constitution says a member of Congress can't be arrested during a session of Congress except for treason, a felony or breach of the peace, the senators might feel they could not legally subpoena him if he refused to testify.

Because he's a senator, they might be reluctant to do anything anyway, although a plain citizen who refused to answer their questions would be called with a contempt of Congress charge in a hurry.

Senators have never been eager to use extreme measures on one another. They jaw at one another.

Sometimes they campaign against one another, but it's a rare day when a senator is expelled or even rebuked.

This kind of consideration for one another is probably a form of self-preservation. Whatever they do to any one of their number today might be done to any one of them tomorrow.

This kind of regard which senators have for senators is more a matter of you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours than it is of senatorial courtesy, a phrase which gets thrown around a little carelessly. Among political scientists "senatorial courtesy" has a very special meaning limited to a case like this:

The President nominates a Californian for a government job but fails to consult one of the California senators beforehand. The nominee cannot have the job unless the Senate approves. But one of the senators from California objects, and the Senate does not approve. Senators being politicians with a normal appreciation for the value of patronage, like to have a hand in naming a home state man to a government position. For that reason, they like to be consulted, at least, when the President does the picking.

The objecting senator can let his feelings be known without using the traditional phrase of objection: "This nominee is personally obnoxious to me." Sometimes the other senators go along with him and withhold their approval, sometimes they approve over his objections. Senatorial courtesy is not an ironclad rule.

Senatorial courtesy started in the first session of Congress. George Washington named Benjamin Fishbourne to be naval officer at the port of Savannah, Ga. But the two Georgia senators had a candidate of their own in mind and objected. The Senate did not let Fishbourne have the job, although Washington protested.

It may seem like a lack of senatorial courtesy when, during the McCarthy-Army hearings, McCarthy says two of the investigating senators are trying to block his hunt for Communists and one of them snaps back that in effect a crack like that is just about what he'd expect from McCarthy.

That may be discourteous, but it has nothing to do with senatorial courtesy in the technical sense.

The Senate, which has no rule on courtesy, has rules on decorum. For example, a senator is not supposed to speak in a derogatory way about another senator or even about his state. But the worst punishment he can suffer is being made to sit down and stay quiet a while, if the other senators vote for that. They don't always do it. Still that rule applies only on the Senate floor. It does not apply to senators in committees. Some committee rules of decorum are pretty loose.

WNCT SCHEDULE

As of Friday, May 21, 100 feet of the 800-foot transmitting tower for WNCT-TV, Greenville, was standing. At the point, the original goal of six weeks was extended one week because of unavoidable delays.

Guy Wire Connections
Delay has been experienced in connections for the guy wires. The one-inch steel cable that is used to guy the tower is connected to the anchors by a special zinc socket, installed by the Southern Elevator Company of Greensboro. The cable is spread within this socket and melted zinc is poured into the joints to make a seal.

Anchor
Nine anchors will be used in attaching 18 guy wires at six levels from three different angles. The anchors consist of a block of concrete 10 by 10 by 10, sunk 15 feet into the ground with a bracket rising for the connection.

New Shows
Sunday, May 30, "Earn Your Vacation" will be viewed from CBS and continue in the WNCT schedule. Garry Moore's "I've Got a Secret" will start June 4 and "Strike It Rich" with Bert Parks will begin June 22.

Ultimately, It's Up To Doctor To Handle Tonsils

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

During childhood, tonsils are much larger than they are in adult life. Just because they are large, tonsils don't have to come out. So long as tonsils are healthy, they serve a useful purpose and should stay where they are.

If a child has had many attacks of tonsillitis his tonsils may be diseased. Simple head colds, sinus infection or hay fever do not have much effect on tonsils. But sore throats or tonsillitis do.

The first point to be considered then, if you are thinking about a tonsillectomy, is the history: Has the child had a lot of sore throats? If he hasn't, the chances are that his tonsils are all right.

If he has had many sore throats, the next question is: what do the tonsils look like? A normal healthy tonsil is smooth and glistening. It looks like a head of cabbage, except that it is pink not green. It may be large or small. A diseased tonsil does not glisten and is not smooth; its surface is pitted. It looks like a head of cauliflower, except for its color.

Diseased tonsils usually drain in to the glands at the angle of the jaw. The condition of these glands is the third point to be considered. If the glands are large and a little tender, and stay that way even when the child does not have a sore throat, the chances are his tonsils are not doing him any good and he'd better have them out.

The fourth point when you are thinking about removing tonsils is the child's hearing. Many things can affect hearing but one of the commonest is enlarged tonsils growing around the opening of the Eustachian tube—the tube that connects the middle ear with the throat. If this tube is blocked, the ear just doesn't work well and the child can not hear as he should.

Does the child breathe with his mouth open or does he snore in his sleep? If he does, he has an obstruction to the airways in his nose. The most frequent cause of such an obstruction is enlarged adenoids.

Lastly, is the child growing and developing as he should? There are many things that can interfere with normal growth. One of these things is absorption of poisonous material from diseased tonsils.

It is the doctor who must decide whether tonsils and adenoids should come out. He will take into consideration all these points, the history of sore throats the tonsils, appearance, the condition of the glands, the child's hearing, the presence of mouth breathing, the general health of the child.

Removing diseased tonsils and adenoids will improve a child's health, but removing healthy tonsils will do the child more harm than good.

It's the doctor's job to decide.

Wrote His Book Riding On Bus

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A passenger on a bus between here and Hollywood took the same seat in the bus every working day for the past three years and always kept busy writing in a notebook during the ride.

Now the passenger carries on the bus another book — one just published as a result of his years of notebook writing. It's called, "The Window Cleaner: A Quiet Book for a Noisy World."

The author is Sydney J. Taylor, who came here from Scotland 20 years ago. Said Taylor, "I can't stand to waste my time while riding the buses."

VOTE FOR Sam A. Whitehurst FOR SHERIFF OF PITT COUNTY

In The Democratic Primary Saturday, May 29, 1954 If Nominated and Elected, My Program in Office Will Be As Follows:

FIRST, What will be the primary objectives of the Office of Sheriff?

1. To rehabilitate, and thereby eliminate, youthful and adult offenders or delinquents rather than merely to sit, talk about the problem, and do virtually nothing.
2. To cooperate faithfully, conscientiously, and efficiently with all local, municipal, state, and federal law-enforcing agencies in order to make it possible to achieve the rehabilitation and elimination of crime in Pitt County.
3. To lay the foundations for a strong, highly efficient, and highly regarded county-wide police system.
4. To help make Pitt County a safer and healthier place in which to live.

SECOND, How will the Office of Sheriff be operated?

1. Strict business will be the order of the day—EVERY DAY.
2. The office will be open to the public constantly, with EVERY citizen of Pitt County receiving a warm welcome. After all, the Office of Sheriff is the people's office—the office entrusted with the responsibility of helping to keep Pitt County and Pitt Countians safe and free and happy.
3. One of the greatest obstacles to the creation of an efficient county-wide police system is the local politics in which the police throughout most of the country are enmeshed. Here, a barbed-wire entanglement of various factors confronts the man who has the responsibility of law enforcement on his shoulders. There is a maze of politics from top to bottom in many instances, and this political infection has resulted in a lack of the cooperation between the police and the public which is essential to the success of police agencies under democratic institutions in general, and county-wide police agencies in particular. THEREFORE, POLITICS IN THE OFFICE OF SHERIFF AMONG ANY OF ITS PERSONNEL WILL BE POSITIVELY FORBIDDEN.
4. The personnel of the Office of Sheriff will be trained while in-service by means of personal cooperation with numerous F.B.I. Schools, the county, state, and federal law enforcement schools conducted periodically at The University of North Carolina, and any other means by which the personnel of the Office of Sheriff might be improved.

THIRD, What qualifications will be required of the personnel of the Office of Sheriff?

1. The character of each employee must be unimpeachable.
2. The persons employed in the Sheriff's office must be able to prove beyond a doubt that they possess the proper aptitude toward the job of law enforcement.
3. Each employee of the Office of Sheriff must possess a personality that wins the confidence and trust of all citizens.
4. Each employee of the Office of Sheriff must be sincere and conscientious in the administration or carrying out of his duties.
5. Each employee of the Office of Sheriff must have a true desire to HELP people—not hurt them—in order to make it possible to eliminate juvenile and adult delinquents.
6. Each employee of the Office of Sheriff must be an inveterate worker, because laziness or unwillingness to work for the best interests of all the citizens of Pitt County and North Carolina will not be tolerated.

county more than a month after it was all gone down east. . . . The "Cotton Fort" on the Cleveland county courthouse square at Shelby. Constructed of 36 bales of cotton, nine 4-bale tiers, with simulated cannon made of stove pipe, and designed to show the importance of cotton in national defense. Placards atop the fort listed the big wars in which cotton has played a part—1776, 1808, 1914, 1941, 1950—and a blank space for the next one (?). An attractive and impressive display, but the casual visitor wondered why the war beginning in 1861 was omitted. Cotton played an important part in the actual fighting of that war, but more significantly it was, through the ramifications of changing economics, slave labor and what have you, one of the major causes of the war. . . . The water level in Fontana reservoir down about 63 feet, with fish dying and the lake practically out of use for recreation purposes—while reports said Tennessee lakes in the TVA system were maintained at normal level. Is this another instance of TVA "bleeding" North Carolina natural resources to build up other States.

"While it is important to look back at progress, it is more important to look ahead," the speaker asserted. "The resources which we now rely upon are not inexhaustible. Already the United States has become a 'have not' nation in many vital metals."

By 1975, he said, the United States' population will increase by 25 per cent and will need twice as much power as now is available. Fifty per cent more iron, copper, zinc, and lead will be needed if substitutes are not found. Also, he said water resources one day may be a problem.

Three elements are essential for successful research, the speaker said: free environment for research; competition as a stimulus for research; and a pioneering spirit of young men and women engaged in research.

New Execution Date Is Set For Convict-Author

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Kidnaper-rapist Cary Chessman is scheduled to die July 30.

The stay of execution granted the convict-turned-author on the eve of his scheduled death in San Quentin's gas chamber May 14 was terminated yesterday and a new date set.

Superior Judge Thomas E. Keating of Marin County denied a petition of habeas corpus and revoked his own previous order that stayed Chessman's execution.

In Los Angeles, Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke, who presided at Chessman's trial, set the new execution date.

Chessman's attorney, Berwyn Rice, said he would appeal again to the State Supreme Court and the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Rotarians Told More Research Key To Progress

If progress in the United States is to continue, research laboratories must continuously be cultivated, Robert Wilfong asserted last night in addressing Greenville Rotarians.

Wilfong, member of the staff of the Kinston DuPont plant, spoke on chemical progress, tracing briefly advances through chemical research and the needs for continued research.

At the turn of the century, Wilfong said, chemical research in the United States was hardly existent, and by World War I it was still in knee-pants, making this nation heavily dependant upon Europe for chemical research findings. Today, he said, the United States has forged ahead in chemical research to the point where some 15,000 chemists are engaged in research for which approximately one-half billion dollars are spent annually.

Chemical industries, he said, are built upon research, and without it chemical progress would be impossible.

Wilfong discussed briefly the developments through research which have been brought about in the fields of medicine, agriculture, production, domestic products and other phases.

Seek History Of Domestic Herds

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP)—Where did man first domesticate sheep and goats? A Philadelphia anthropologist, Dr. Carlton Stevens Coon, is searching ruins of early Afghan civilizations for the answer.

Dr. Coon said his expedition to Iran in 1951 established that goats and sheep were domesticated as early as 6,500 to 6,000 years before Christ. Deposits of bones showed that herders had domesticated the animals, the scientist said. His findings, he explained, were based on the ratio of the bones of young animals to mature ones.

"Where the ancient people were hunters only, bone deposits reveal almost wholly mature animals," said Dr. Coon. "When man advanced from hunting to herding, the ratio changed to about 25 per cent young animals. When civilization went from herding to the growing of cereal crops the ratio of young to mature animals jumped to approximately 50 per cent each."

Joan Foster, Bride

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX
TODD was both comical and forlorn, she thought. And each night as he recounted his experiences of the day, she saw him the same. He was at a loss, fighting his battle in the dark. Sometimes he came home feeling himself a victor, and sometimes he came home in a spirit of depressed and abject defeat.

By the end of the month Todd appeared one night with a small abashed smile on his face, and when Joan asked him what that was for he said, in a tone of surprised triumph, "They like me! The kids like me! They really do!"

"Out of all the teachers there, they voted me to help them with their Christmas pageant."

"How amazing!" Joan's brown eyes danced. "I never would have believed it. They like you! Imagine that now." She threw him a kiss across the table. "That makes everything different doesn't it?"

"In a way. Yes, in a way, of course. But—"

"Now! Now! But—what?"

"Well—" he paused. "Well, if it just doesn't make me too easy with them—this popularity, I mean. You know I'm so glad to have them like me and so eager to have them keep on liking me that—"

"He gestured.

"You'll work that out, Todd."

His eyes rested on her face. "You always sound so sure of me, Jo-Jo," he said. "It certainly helps make me feel sure of myself. Did I ever tell you that?"

better go over there. This isn't the first—But I thought—" He dropped into a chair again, doubled over in his distress.

Joan lew downstairs to the Hunter's telephone. Yes, the doctor was at home. Yes, he would see Todd, certainly, though these were not his office hours. Could he get there all right or did he want the doctor to come to the manse? Joan thought Todd could make it to the office, she told him. They would be right over.

Hanging up the receiver, she turned to face Todd's mother, who had limped out from the kitchen in alarm to find out what was going on. Joan said quietly, "Todd isn't feeling very well. Mother Hunter. We're going to see the doctor."

"Oh, my goodness! What do you think's the matter?"

"I don't know. It's probably just something he's eaten."

She did not believe this herself. Nor was she surprised when, a little later the short, jovial, rolypoly doctor, who was an old friend as well as the family physician, made his pronouncement.

"Acute appendicitis. We must get this young man to the hospital immediately."

Joan's head spun. An operation and the cost. She remembered that Todd had not yet taken out hospital insurance for them.

"What do you want me to do doctor?"

"I guess there's not much you can do. It's up to me. I've called the ambulance. That wasn't absolutely necessary, perhaps, but it's the quickest way to get there and—"

He turned as Todd came slowly out of the office, dressed again but moving carefully and with his face gray.

Joan moved swiftly to his side. "Well, we know the routine, darling, don't we?"

He nodded, his smile stiff.

"The works." He turned to the doctor. "Guess I should have come to you a month ago, but I thought it was something that would pass."

The doctor grunted. "People think that too often. Be with you in a moment." And he disappeared. Through the half-closed door they heard him telephoning crisp, sharp orders. Before he had finished there came the sound of the siren down the street, and he emerged again, his black bag in hand.

"Well, here we go," he said cheerfully.

Todd on the stretcher. The doctor and the orderly beside him. Joan wedged in, too. The wailing note of the warning siren and the streets to the hospital.

Todd said "I'll be all right, honey."

"Of course."

"Better call my folks. This will be something of a shock to Dad, so if he answers, be careful. His heart, you know."

"I know."

And then—bless him—he grinned and said to the doctor, "Will I be fit to eat Thanksgiving turkey, Doc?"

"Next week? Sure thing. You can count on double helpings."

At the hospital Joan waited alone in the solarium. She called Todd's mother and gave her the news, saying she would call again soon. Yes, she would wait here. Yes, they would let her stay. No, please don't bother to have supper. She wasn't hungry and did not know when she would get back. She would get something out of her own icebox later if she wanted anything. And would Mother Hunter call Joan's mother and tell her the news? There were so many people waiting to use the phone at the hospital that Joan did not want to hold it longer.

Uranium Boom Swamps Market

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A uranium boom swamped Salt Lake City brokerage firms yesterday, with an estimated five million shares of uranium stocks changing hands in over-the-counter trade—which accounts for most of the uranium stock business.

Issues listed on the Salt Lake Stock Exchange also were active and made substantial price gains.

E. N. Bagley, manager of the J. A. Hogle and Co. office, attributed the brisk trade to demand that has been "building up for several days." He said "a lot of outside money," coming mostly from Texas, New York and California, boosted the volume and also the prices.

Needs Full Cooperation For Farmers Day Plan

Farmers Day Chairman Bill Watson outlined the Farmers Day tentative plan and told the Merchants Association Board of Directors unless 100 per cent cooperation is received from the townspeople the program would not be a success.

Watson told the directors at their monthly meeting last night that the main streets will be roped off and the Service organizations of Greenville will be asked to accept the responsibility of providing entertainment in different sections of town.

He explained that plans are to have tickets printed and let the merchants distribute them, inviting people to Farmers Day.

These tickets will be deposited in boxes and be used for prizes such as television sets, refrigerators, and an automobile.

He said the tentative date for Farmers Day is August 12. The Board of Directors "thought well of the idea."

It was voted last night to have July 5 as a holiday this year since July 4 falls on Sunday.

A letter was read from L.M. Buchanan, general chairman of Sudan Temple Spring Ceremonial, expressing thanks to the Merchants Association for their fine cooperation shown as plans for the Ceremonial have been made and for allowing stores to remain open Wednesday afternoon, May 26.

There was a report made on the Merchants Association Convention held in Raleigh May 16, 17, and 18. C.A. White, chairman of the Off-Street Parking Committee, reported that definite plans had been made with the Traffic Engineers to proceed with the off-street parking survey early in June.

Other committee reports were also made. President B.D. Johnson presided at the meeting held in the Association Office in City Hall.
