RALEIGH (AP) — With the Democratic primary only two days away, the tempo of the senatorial campaign continued to increase today as W. Kerr Scott carried his campaign into Richmond County and Sen. Alton Lennon prepared to address a Wake County rally tonight.

Lennon forces have implied by questions that Scott paid less than $100 income tax in 1952. Scott said he was making the speech "to set the record straight" on charges made against him. He leveled them false.

His 1953 income tax return, he said, has not been audited, although he would welcome such action. He added, "After all, another refund check would come in mighty handy right now."

Large Number Of Unopposed Candidates Is Stand-Out Feature Of Saturday's Vote

By BOB BOYETTE Reflector Staff Writer Pitt County voters will go to the ballot boxes Saturday to vote for candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for State District, County and Township offices.

With the deadline drawing near probably the outstanding feature of the primary is the large number of candidates who got the Democratic nomination automatically since they were unopposed.

On the other hand there is a race for U. S. Senate. Judge of the Fifth Judicial District, Solicitor of the Fifth Judicial District, for members of House of Representatives, for Pitt County Sheriff, and for County Commissioner in two districts of the county.

There is also a race for State Treasurer and Commissioner of Insurance. County's Automatic Nominees Pitt County candidates who received the nomination since they were unopposed number 11.

Senator Paul E. Jones of Farmville received the nomination since he was unopposed for his Senate seat. Clerk of Superior Court D. T. House Jr. of Bethel was unopposed for his office; therefore, he got the nomination.

Judge Dick James is again the nominee for Judge of the Pitt County Court. James C. Lanier Jr., running for Solicitor of the County Court, got his automatic nomination since he was unopposed. H. Horton Rountree of Farmville is the past solicitor, but he is running for district solicitor now.

In the race for County Commissioner three new candidates were certified since they were unopposed. This is in Districts I, II and III. In District I, J. Vance Perkins is the only candidate. F. F. Hendrix is County Commissioner now, but he is not running for re-election.

In District II, W. Jasper Smith of Bethel got the nomination automatically since he is the only candidate. J. T. Dupree is the present commissioner, but he did not run. In District III, incumbent C. C. Harris first said he would seek reelection, but due to his health he withdrew from the race.

The Tar Heel Club of Washington held its annual election meeting last Saturday afternoon, electing Mrs. Raymond S. DeMott, the former Mary Siler, of Siler City, and Raleigh, as president.

Plans were announced for the club's next affair—a fashion luncheon for members and their guests to be held Saturday noon, June 12, at the Fairfax Hotel in Washington, featuring the latest summer styles by models of the Hacht Company.

Mrs. DeMott began her second year as president of the Tar Heel Club, a social organization that celebrated its third birthday with a meeting and election, followed by a reception, at the Chavy Chase, C. home of Mrs. Mary Crosthair, of Greenville.

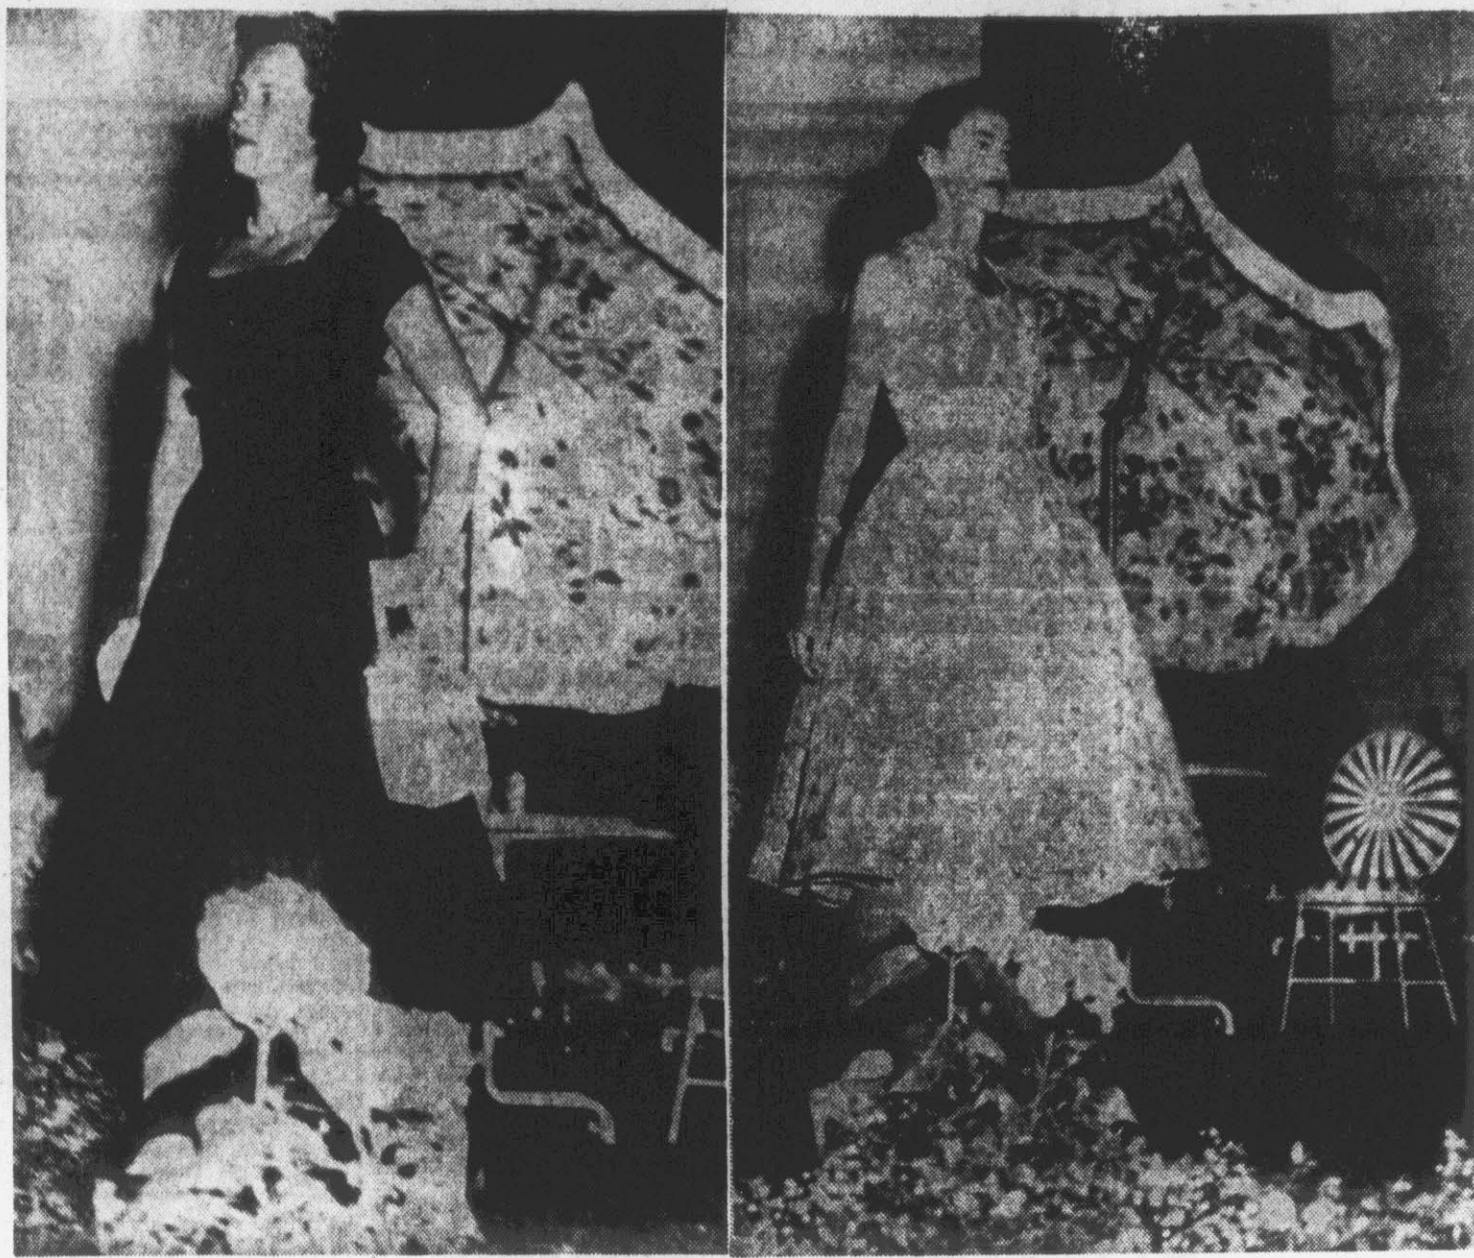

Eugene N. Riddle, Jr. of Jackson, Northampton county, 26-year-old Georgetown University law student, was elected vice president, succeeding William A. Creech, of Smithfield, State Department foreign service officer, who did not stand for reelection because of temporary department duty that will keep him in London until September.

Riddle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene N. Riddle, of Jackson, came to law school in Washington after having served overseas in a civilian capacity with the Sea Supply Corp. in Siam.

Miss Sara G. Falkner of Goldsboro, who serves in the State Department here, was reelected secretary, and Miss Blanche Armfield, of Concord, was named treasurer. She succeeds Robert H. Ross, of New Bern, Washington insurance executive, who had served in the post for the two-year limit.

The club fashion luncheon at the Fairfax on June 12 will feature "a parade of pretty girls." Mrs. DeMott said, in issuing a special invitation to the male members of the Tar Heel Club to be present. North Carolinians in Washington are invited and tickets will be on sale at the door before the affair begins.

The North Carolina State Association of Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs held their annual convention jointly with the North Carolina Merchants' Association in Raleigh, on May 16, 17 and 18.

The first event in a crowded three day schedule was the tea, given in honor of Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, State President, by the Greenville and Rocky Mount clubs, in the Governor's Suite of the Sir Walter Hotel on Sunday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock.

From 6 to 8 o'clock the same evening, a joint reception of the Credit Women and Merchants' Association was held for delegates of the convention. Miss Sadye Harris of Raleigh introduced guests to the receiving line, composed of Mrs. Copeland, Mr. Ansel Fowler, Winston-Salem, president of the N. C. Merchants' Association, Mrs. Evelyn Ray, Asheville, President-elect of the CWBS, Dr. J. G. Pfaff, Salisbury, president-elect of the N. C. Merchants' Association, and other officers of the organizations. Tables for refreshments were set up at either end of the Cafe Garden dining room, and guests were served buffet style. Music, group singing and general good fellowship was enjoyed.

Monday's events began with the Past Presidents' Club Breakfast at 8 o'clock in the Cafe Garden, followed by the Merchants' Association general sessions, and Credit Women's Luncheon and first business session at 12 o'clock. Dr. Doris King, head of History Department, Campbell College, Buies Creek, was guest speaker. Her topic was, "Why I Love North Carolina." Dr. King, a native of Georgia, delivered a thought-provoking and stirring message, which was a challenge to native Tar Heels.

With President Dorothy Copeland presiding at the business session, officers for the next year were elected as follows: president, Mrs. Evelyn Ray, Asheville; first vice-president, Miss Nell Olingman, Winston-Salem; second vice-president, Mrs. Mary Wray Howard, Fuquay Springs; recording secretary, Mrs. Beulah Sullivan, Burlington; treasurer, Mrs. Wilda Vick, Rocky Mount. The State Project Award, given by Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, was won by the Burlington Club, with Greenville getting second place.

From 4 to 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon, Mrs. William B Umstead was hostess to the State Association of Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs and Convention delegates at the Executive Mansion. Mrs. Sadye Harris and Mrs. Jean Plymale introduced guests to the receiving line, composed of Mrs. Umstead, Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, Mrs. Evelyn Ray, Mrs. Mildred Oliver, Mrs. Thaddeus Furr, Mrs. Sara Browning and Mrs. Frances Cassick. Mrs. Umstead presented the state president, Mrs. Copeland, with a beautiful ruby-throated white orchid.

Local presidents of the Association's twenty-two clubs served as assistant hostesses, showing guests through the six first floor rooms and giving brief histories of the historical furniture pieces, objects of art, crystal, silver and foreign gifts to the mansion. Mrs. Hattie Melvin, Greensboro, and Mrs. Ethel Wilkinson, Charlotte, past state presidents, served punch from the beautiful silver mansion punch bowl. An assortment of fancy sandwiches, dainty tea cakes of many varieties, crisp English tea biscuits and wafers were served with nuts, mints, cheese straws and other party delicacies. Mrs. Umstead was a charming hostess, who appeared genuinely pleased to show her guests interesting objects famous in the State's history, even conducting interested groups through the upstairs family rooms. She remarked that it was wonderful living in the mansion now that there was an elevator.

A dance and cabaret in the ballroom of the Sir Walter at 9 o'clock Monday was the feature of the evening, with music by Harold Burt and his orchestra.

At the annual Credit Women's Breakfast on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock the following awards were presented: Scrap Book Award, donated by Mrs. Valie Henderson, was won by Winston-Salem, first; Fuquay Springs, second; and Rocky Mount, third. The State Trophy award was won by the Concord club.

At the Tuesday luncheon the newly elected officers were installed by Mrs. Mary Etta Johnson, past Dixie Council president, using the impressive candlelight ceremony. President Evelyn Ray appointed Mrs. Alla May Holland, Raleigh, parliamentarian; Miss Eloise Hartline, Salisbury, historian, and Mrs. Beth Gilbert, Asheville, corresponding secretary. For State Sponsors she appointed Mr. Reuben Grand and Mr. Charles Grand, her employers, and Mr. Alston B. Brown of Asheville. Officers and members of the State Association presented the retiring president, Mrs. Copeland, with a white gold diamond Gruen wrist-watch, with the inscription, "NO CWBS to DSC-1964."

At the annual banquet on Tuesday evening, Mrs. Alla May Holland presented the Breakfast Clubber of the Year award to Mrs. Beulah Sullivan of Burlington, and announced that Mrs. Henrietta Johnson of Greenville won second place. She said the two were so outstanding and so close that it was necessary to give second place for the first time, and that thirteen clubs out of twenty-two had submitted candidates for the award. ## Shower Is Given To Honor Miss Branch

Mrs. Charles Branch and Mrs. P. L. Goodson Jr. were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Miss Joyce Branch, bride-elect of May, at the home of the latter on Tuesday evening, May 18.

Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Faye Branch and invited into the living room, where they enjoyed a number of games.

Upon arrival, Miss Branch was presented a white carnation corsage. The house was decorated throughout with pink snapdragons, pink and white sweetpeas and greenery. Guests were invited into the dining room where the table was laid with a beautiful green cloth and centered with an arrangement of white carnations and white candles in silver candelabra.

Refreshments of chicken salad on lettuce, fruit punch over lime ice, potato chips, green and white mints, pickles and ritz were enjoyed by all. The honoree was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Goodson.

Lightning Ended Consoling Words

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Announcer Tom Van Tol was giving a daily newscast over Radio Station WGRD. He was soothing jittery listeners that no tornado threatened the area.

"There is no tornado in this area," he was saying. "I repeat, don't worry, you are in no... and at that point silence.

Lightning had hit the stations transmitter causing a power failure. A half-hour later the listeners weren't the only nervous persons in Grand Rapids. WGRD's switchboard operators worked up a sweat explaining what happened.

A Day For Voters To Vote

How many Pitt County voters are going to the polls Saturday and cast a ballot in the Democratic primary?

Or we may put the question another way. How many of the 17,000 registered voters are going to sit at home Saturday and let the other fellow determine which candidates are elected to office?

If past patterns are followed Saturday, sad as it is, about 50 to 60 per cent of the registered voters will go to the polls and the other 7,000 or 8,000 registered voters will not cast ballots.

The citizens of Pitt County have no greater responsibility to their county or state government than to participate in Saturday's election. If the registered voters will

And A Good Time Was Had By All

Greenville seems comparatively quite today after the two-day Spring Ceremonial of Sudan Temple Shriners.

We hope the Shriners and their ladies enjoyed their visit to Greenville. It is obvious from comments that citizens of Greenville thoroughly enjoyed the Shriners' visit.

In spite of the fact that all the activities of the ceremonial could not be open to the public, local citizens got plenty of free entertainment during the ceremonial.

The big feature, so far as the public was concerned, was the gigantic parade which is unsurpassed in Greenville's history. Such an array of clowns, cars, contraptions and costumes which appeared in the parade is difficult to imagine without having witnessed it. The parade in itself provided entertainment aplenty for the many thousands who jammed the sidewalks to see it.

The band concerts, singing of the Chanters precision drills and other activities at the college stadium afforded much entertainment for local people also.

Frankly, looking back over the past two days, we can't recall ever having seen so many people having such a good time.

Things in Greenville have returned to normal here since the festivities ended last night. But the memory of the Ceremonial will remain with local residents a long time.

We trust the city proved as fine a host as the Shriners and their ladies were guests.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THAT GOOD OLD SUNDAY
Some time ago an article in this column was entitled "The Passing of Sunday." One of my readers has written me as follows:

"I liked so very much 'The Passing of Sunday.' I often think of when we were children. My wonderful father was a carpenter, a musician, and a farmer. In the eyes of the world we were poor. But since I have grown older, I realize we had so many things that money could not buy. We had so much love and laughter. Never heard an unkindness. We could all play some musical instrument. And had so many gay times. Looking back I realize more than ever, one does not need a lot of money in order to be happy. My father each morning would read from the Bible. And then we would all get down on our knees and pray. We started each day with a song in our hearts. Beautiful to think about. May God bless and watch over you. I hope you live for at least one hundred years." Now your last good wish, my dear lady, is just too much. I have been reading about the hydrogen bomb, and I do not care to live one hundred years. The ideal is to live as long as one can be useful and to pass on with as little fuss and discomfort as possible. Only—always in the Lord.

National Whirligig

Faux Pas Ruined His Chances

WASHINGTON—Governor Thomas E. Dewey has apparently "milked" himself out of a possible appointment as Secretary of State or to any other post in the Eisenhower Cabinet. His promotion to Washington would embitter every South American Republic, where Russian Communists are now trying to establish a beachhead, on the American Continent.

There has been serious talk that Dewey would be given a national spot, if he will run for re-election next November and try to hold the great Empire State for the Republicans. Both President Eisenhower and National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, a New Yorker, are extremely anxious to repulse an attempted Democratic comeback in this important battleground, especially if an out-and-out New Dealer—Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. or Averell Harriman—should be the opposition's standard-bearer.

This agreement is known in national political circles as the Eisenhower-Dewey bargain.

HINDERED PROSPECTS—For several reasons, there are only two Cabinet positions available to a re-elected Dewey—namely, Secretary of State and Attorney General. They are the Cabinet assignments for which he is presumably qualified.

Both are now held by New Yorkers, and a third man from this state would create political and geographical imbalance. Either Dulles or Brownell would have to resign to make room for their political daddy.

conscientiously carry out this responsibility, at least 15,000 votes should be cast by Pitt citizens.

It has often been said, and wisely so, that bad officials are elected to office by the good people who stay away from the polls on election day. Too many good people, for some unexplainable reason, seem content to let other people worry about who is elected to office; and to let other people do the voting.

Certainly, the tone of government on any level is set to a great extent by the participation of the voters on election day.

The Reflector strongly urges every registered voter in Pitt County to go to the polls Saturday and cast his ballot. This is an important election in Pitt County and in North Carolina, just as all other elections are important. Only if the vast majority of registered voters go to the polls can the sentiment of the majority of the people be determined.

At Last, Those Signs Have Been Erected

At long last, Greenville has the street signs it has sorely needed in its business district.

This week members of the Street Department completed the installation of those signs at intersections in the business district.

We don't know why it took the city so long to get the signs and put them up, but at last we have them.

With the aid of the new signs, strangers to the city will know what streets they are traveling when they reach the business district. Heretofore, they could only guess which streets were which, or ask a passer-by for the information. The absence of those signs have caused a great deal of unnecessary difficulty for visitors to the city in the past.

At last, official signs have given streets in the downtown section recognition equal to that of the streets in other sections of the city.

Ode To The Curve Ahead

Every now and then, someone's brain child pops up to attract public attention.

Among the latest of these is a series of highway signs erected in the state patterned after the famous shaving cream ditties. Only these are signs of the State Highway and Public Works Department, calling motorists' attention to highway safety.

We doubt the wisdom of such signs as:

"Watch the curve ahead
"Or you'll be picked up dead."

The Greensboro Daily News candidly voiced its case against such signs with its editorial statement:

"Such a sign may work all right with a slow driver and a fast reader. But suppose a fast driver and slow reader gets so engrossed in the ode to safety that he doesn't see the curve ahead.

"He won't add much to his literary learning or his life expectancy."

Executive and farmer—part-time, of course. His suggestion has created what is known in the Dulles Department as an "international incident."

The Ambassadors from several coffee-producing South American countries, especially such friendly nations as Brazil and Colombia, immediately registered a formal protest with the State Department. Such an attack by the Governor of our greatest state and an Eisenhower crony, they complained, was an indignity.

Not understanding our system of the states' reserved powers, especially in the field of political publicity, they demanded that Secretary Dulles issue an official rebuke to the milkman at Albany.

BENSON FOR DEWEY PROPOSAL—Secretary Dulles could hardly oblige to that diplomatic degree. More important, Dewey's proposal accords with the program advocated by Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson for increased consumption of dairy products. He hopes thereby to get rid of his $6.5 billion accumulation of farm surpluses. And Benson doesn't like coffee, either.

State did, however, contact Dewey, informing him of the South American protests, and suggesting that he issue a clarifying statement. With Communist arms reaching Guatemala, and with growing signs of a "hate America" spirit extending from the Rio Grande River to Magellan Straits, Dewey was told that this is no time to rock the continental ship of State.

However, a few days later, Governor Dewey again called for a crusade of milk versus coffee drinking. His nondiplomatic appeal to update farmers—and New York ranks near the top as an agricultural area—furnishes additional evidence that he plans to run again on an Eisenhower-Hall ticket.

But it appears now that he has disqualified himself for a Cabinet job. In which case, he may decline to run for Governor. He is expected to announce his plans within a few weeks.

Somebody Told Me

Gifts That Make It Possible

You can ride through any neighborhood in Greenville on an afternoon like yesterday and see the ladies sitting out in the sun relaxing.

If you want to get a rise out of them, just make a gentle remark something like this: "You girls have got it made. Just sitting around in the sun while the men have to work to bring home the bacon."

Yesterday I made this remark at the wrong time. About the time I did one of the children hit the other one on the head, another fell down and started screaming. "Say we got it made, huh?"

Then some of the older children (there were seven, top age six, in the group) decided they wanted to have a tea party, so arrangements had to be made to keep them happy. At this point I am beginning to wonder how much of a cinch this nursing is. After all, the relaxing part of it is just the breathing spell between jumping up and waiting on the children.

Any man who is the father of small children will have to admit that there are times when he's glad the lunch hour is over so he can go back to the office where there's peace. No matter how much you love children, there are times when their actions do not suit your disposition.

On occasion they can pour their soup all over themselves and the floor, bang on the table with their silverware, refuse to eat and throw my food off the table without getting more than a mild rise out of me. Yet, there are other times when their actions encourage me to pull my hair out.

But how about Mother? She has to cope with the situation most of the day, no matter how she feels. There's no doubt that God gave the mothers an additional bit of patience, love, or whatever that quality might be that makes it just routine to her.

So when you come down to it, the girls do have it made. They have this additional gift, and the task to go with it. When you see them sitting in the sun nursing, don't feel sorry for them. First, notice how many times they have to jump up. Then, consider the additional gift from God.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

GREEN LIGHT FOR CONTROL (Henderson Dispatch)

Banning of segregation in the public schools opens the way for Federal control of education on the common school level. The court decision upholds Federal authority as to who shall and shall not attend the schools, and that means government money will be made available with all strings attached in Washington. It is a definite move toward a stronger centralized government in the national capital, and takes away a further segment of State sovereignty.

The movement along this line has been very evident for the past twenty years, picking up momentum all the way, and this newest court decree is a tremendous shove toward making the individual States but little more than colonial possessions of the national establishment.

All-out Federal aid to education has been resisted on the ground that it would mean control from Washington. Gradual and accelerated surrender of that principle may be looked for from here on. Already the public schools are as good as run from Raleigh, but when millions are dumped in by the United States Treasury, even Raleigh will take orders from higher up. Local government is virtually a thing of the past except in some areas of activity.

But no more than that could rightfully be expected when local and State units are constantly being a path to Washington for money to do this, that and the other thing that is desired. The more there is of that practice, the more directives there will be from Washington and the less freedom left on the local level. Only the most heroic stand can reverse the trend, and there is small indication that sufficient stamina is left to muster such resistance.

Handouts and so-called free money are entirely too tempting to be pushed aside when dangled before the eyes of so many who crave what they misinterpret as something for nothing.

The green light for control of local public schools was flashed to the Federal government when the Supreme Court handed down its anti-segregation decision. That will become more and more evident as time passes.

Around Capitol Square

State Officials And Workers Will Vote In Home Towns

By LYNN NISBET

VOTERS — Government officials and employees are permitted to maintain two places of residence—official residence where their work is and voting residence where they formerly lived. Most of them like to keep the back-home contacts, even though it is burdensome to return on primary day. Absentee voting is not allowed in primaries.

Check-up on top level officials around Capitol square shows that unless prevented by circumstances beyond their control these folks will vote at these places:

Governor William B. Umstead at Durham; Thad Eure, secretary of state, at Winton in Hertford county; Henry L. Bridges, state auditor, in Greensboro; Edwin Gill, state treasurer, in Laurinburg; Charles F. Carroll, superintendent of public instruction, in High Point; L. Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, at Varina in Wake county; Charles F. Gold, commissioner of insurance, in Rutherfordton.

Attorney General Harry McMullan will vote in Washington; Assistant Attorneys General Wade Bruke in Troy; Claude Love in Asheville; Ralph Moody in Murphy; Beverly Lake in Wake Forest; J. H. Paylor in Farmville; and Harry McGalliard in Raleigh.

Chief Justice M. V. Barnhill will go to Rocky Mount (Nash county); Associate Justices Wallace Winborne to Marion, Sam J. Ervin to Morganton, Jeff D. Johnson Jr. to Clinton, R. Hunt Parker to Roanoke Rapids, William H. Bobbitt to Charlotte, Associate Justice E. B. Denny moved his voting residence from Gastonia to Raleigh several years ago.

Chairman Stanley Winborne of the utilities commission also votes in Raleigh, as does Commissioner Harry Westcott. Commissioners Fred Hunter will go to Huntersville, Ed McMan to Brevard and Sam Wright to Greenville. Ben E. Douglas, director of conservation and development, votes in Charlotte, and assistant Director Eric Rodgers in Scotland Neck.

Eugene G. Shaw, commissioner of revenue, and D.S. Coltrane, assistant director of the budget, will go to Greensboro to vote. Highway Chairman A.H. Graham votes in Hillsboro and Ed Scheidt, commissioner of motor vehicles, in Raleigh.

Several hundred lesser officials and employees will go to their homes in various parts of the State to cast their ballots Saturday. Honors probably go to Ralph Moody, assistant attorney general, for making largest effort to perform the duty of voting.

He will travel about 750 miles to and from Murphy. Dick Mauney of the treasurer's office travels the same distance, but he has the added incentive of being a candidate for the House of Representatives from Cherokee county, and the additional "profit" of an extra vote for himself.

VOTERS — These State worker votes will swell the totals in their home precincts, but nothing like enough to bring current estimates up to early predictions of state-wide totals. Most forecasts now range around 500,000 to 550,000 as compared with 650,000 to 750,000 two months ago.

The drop is due to failure of numerous local races to stimulate popular interest. There was never expected a great deal of lively interest in the senatorial campaign, but there was a period when it was duller than even the most pessimistic had believed possible. Within the past ten days it has perked up and in some places there is more interest in the big contest than in any local races.

Numerous estimates of the total vote fall well below the half million mark. There is some justification for the small figures. The 1948 governor's race featured by Johnson and Scott brought out only 423,125 votes, and the senatorial contest that year between Broughton and Umstead yielded only 395,025 ballots. The biggest vote ever cast in a Democratic primary was 618,479 in the 1950 first primary for the U.S. Senate, featured by Graham and Smith.

Next was the 564,505 cast in the Olive-Umstead race for Governor two years ago.

DIFFICULTIES — What makes it hard to predicate current estimates on past voting records is the diversity among counties of heavy and light voting. Compare, for example, the 1950 senatorial vote and the 1952 vote for Governor, in three big counties.

Guilford county cast 25,646 votes in the 1950 senatorial primary, only 21,576 in the 1952 gubernatorial race, a drop of more than 4,000. But Mecklenburg in 1950 cast 26,682 for all the senatorial candidates, and 29,676 for the gubernatorial contestants two years ago, an increase of about 3,000. The Wake vote in 1950 was 22,216, and in 1952 it was 27,591.

Business Today

Too Few Executives

By ELMER ROESSNER

In the midst of today's unemployment there are shortages and with the exception of physicists and engineers, the greatest shortage is that of executives.

The shortage is worse among small businesses. The big corporations attract a large part of the upcoming talent and they can always increase the gravitational pull by spending more money for recruitment and salaries.

So, says the Small Business Administration, smaller firms face the necessity of developing their own executives. To assist this process, it has just published a 44-page booklet, "Executive Development in Small Business." Copies are available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D.C., for 25 cents.

The process of rearing executives, the authors of this booklet say, consist in first charting the future needs, then the selection of likely talent and, finally, training the candidates so that they can assume responsibilities.

In picking a man for training for greater responsibilities, this check list is proposed:

Is he approximately in the age range you want? Does his appearance and manner inspire confidence? Does he have the right degree of health and energy? Does he behave in a tactful, sincere, self-controlled manner? Is he adaptable to the whole organization? Does he work well with others, avoiding any tendency to work in corners? Does he run his job, not let it run him?

Is his ability to write in keeping with his job potentials? Does he have the ability to make decisions when sufficient facts are procurable, and the faith to act on probabilities? Is he good at expressing his ideas and instructions clearly? Does he have a sense of proportion, correctly distributing his time, interest and sympathy over the whole job and the people connected with it? Does he have the enthusiasm that promotes among others a spontaneous cooperation and effort?

The booklet offers suggestions on how to train such individuals, both in the office and outside. The training section appears to be the weakest in the publication. Because so few small businesses will be able to get candidates that can score 100 per cent on that check list, the training problem will usually be quite large. Furthermore, a lot of small-business owners will ignore that check list for this one-question check list:

Is he your son?

STATE TAX LEVIES UP TO $89 A HEAD

State governments collected more and spent more in fiscal 1953, Commerce Clearing House reports on a basis of figures from 25 states. These states collected an average of $88.02 per inhabitant, an increase of 8.6 per cent. As anyone could have guessed, they spent almost all of it.

Hair Stylist Strikes It Rich

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—"Women are wearing their hair shorter than men now," complained ex-Sgt. Larry Mathews, "and this summer it's going to be even shorter."

Mathews, a tall, husky hair stylist who flew on bombing missions in Europe during the last world war, now operates what he believes is America's only all-night beauty parlor.

Situated in the Great Northern Hotel, it draws a fabulous clientele after dark, ranging from housewives with insomnia to Metropolitan Opera singers, actresses, night club chorus girls—and female impersonators.

"My hair is longer than half my clients'," remarked Mathews. "The high style for women right now is the butch bob—very masculine."

"It makes a girl look like a Yale freshman in front, and duck in back, and has just a few wisps of hair about the face to suggest femininity."

"The butch bob? You know what we call it in the trade? The idiot look: Trying to bring out a woman's natural beauty with a hair style like that is like trying to decorate an empty room. But it's what the girls want."

Larry, who had done aerial photography for Uncle Sam, decided when he returned from the war he would let the same uncle teach him a peacetime trade. He studied hair styling under the GI Bill of Rights program.

"You'd never believe the intimate things about their lives women tell their hair stylists," he said. "Maybe, because we also deal with their psychiatrists."

But running an all-night beauty parlor hasn't given Mathews any particular new insight into feminine psychology.

"They're no easier to figure out after midnight than they are before," he said.

Larry and his wife, Norma, operated a daytime beauty parlor for sometime.

"But our little daughter complained she hardly ever saw us except for a few minutes in the morning and just before her bedtime," he said. "I thought that if I opened a night place, I could spend more time with her.

"About a year ago the place really got going. My wife came by for a look one night, saw a bunch of chorus girls in the place, and said 'this'll never do.'"

"The next day she had a 'for sale' sign on her shop. Two nights later she was working in the shop with me."

Larry and Norma now have 12 employees, operate their beauty shop around the clock, close it only on Sundays.

"Most of our night clientele are show people," said Larry, "and often our place looks more like a rehearsal hall than a beauty salon. Sometimes we'll have three singers in the same row of dryers rehearsing three different songs at the same time."

"Sure we get some unusual requests late at night. One girl came in to get a martini washed out of her hair. Her boy friend had tossed it on her."

"About once a week a girl performer may show up with a black eye that has to be painted over, and dancers come in with black and blue marks that have to be covered up."

"One night a society playboy came in and insisted he wanted a permanent wave, but we just waved him out. Except for female impersonators in all parts of the women clients. We do make and style wigs for some 200 female impersonators in all parts of the country."

"No, we haven't gone into toupees. But, boy, that's a growing field. I know some toupee makers who have become rich in the last few years. A good toupee sells for $100 to $300—and they wear out in a year."

His post-midnight trade has been so good Mathews is now planning to open a second all-night beauty parlor in an upper New York State resort hotel this summer.

"Two years ago I couldn't borrow $200 to buy a new chair," he said. "And now I've got everybody from bankers to bookies wanting to go into business with me. Can't figure why the idea of investing in an all-night beauty parlor interests them—unless, like some of the customers, they've got insomnia, too, or maybe 'just like to count profits after dark.'"

More 'Bounce' Per Ounce In Ballerinas

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor
Lovely ballerinas have a simple recipe for shaking winter kinks: Relax tense muscles.

Office girls, factory workers and housewives will find muscles tense and vitality low at this time of the year. But ballerinas must be the epitome of grace and charm as they pirouette across stage at any season of the year. The skill of these lithe ladies at the entrechat and tour de force frequently depends on how well they relax off stage.

Maria Tallchief, charming prima ballerina of the New York City ballet, concentrates on loosening tired muscles to keep her in a relaxed mood. Says she: "When I'm really tired I take a hot, then a cold shower between ballets at a performance. I like to sit and soak in the tub, too. After a shower at the ballet, I am likely to treat myself to an extra tubbing when I get home."

Miss Tallchief especially likes the old tried-and-true neck shake. Any working girl should find this relaxing any time of the year. It's as simple as this: Turn your head far as possible to each side without moving the shoulders, then roll your head around in a circle, dropping it to each side in complete relaxation. She explains:

"Besides being invigorating, this exercise gives muscles a more relaxed look. Whenever I feel tense before or after dancing I devote a few moments to it."

Exercise and relaxation are good therates for warding off colds, too, Miss Tallchief believes. She remembers being ill only once. When she occasionally feels a cold coming on, she attends classes and finds she has shaken the shivers by the end of the dance session.

Feet get a good deal of her attention, of course. And raising the feet whenever possible, resting them on a surface of coffee table height is especially good. She says: "I always put my feet up when I sit down, if possible. I use the coffee table as a foot rest at home. Too bad all theaters don't have something like it."

She likes the ankle-rotation exercise, too, rotating her ankle 20 times in one direction and 20 times in the other. After dancing she is likely to sit on the edge of the bathtub, and alternately run hot, then cold water over her feet.

Offstage her skin gets a rest from cosmetics and her complexion has that soap-and-water scrubbed look. On stage she wears the routine makeup. She fastens her shoulder-length hair with two nets, one for the crown, another for her chignon, believing that on stage every hair must be in place or the audience will be distracted. Her legs are slim and kept smooth with razor and soapy lather. She thinks that dancing helps develop the natural contour of the leg and that ballet lessons would be helpful also in helping the average woman develop poise and grace.

Evangelist Opens Crusade June 6

Evangelist Eddie Martin, (above) a successful young revivalist, will lead Greenville in a united evangelistic crusade starting Sunday night June 6. This campaign is sponsored by over 78 local and county churches.

He will come to Greenville from Paris, Texas, where large crowds are hearing him nightly. One of the evangelistic crusade promoters said, "Martin is doing in the smaller cities what Billy Graham is doing in the metropolitan areas."

A standard safety tent with 3,000 seating capacity will be erected in the western suburbs of Greenville to house the crowds that attend the evangelistic meetings. The "Greater Greenville Evangelistic Campaign" will continue for three weeks. Present plans are that the big tent will be erected the week of May 31, with volunteer labor from the cooperating churches.

HERE ARE THE FACTS, KERR SCOTT!

You said, Candidate Scott, in a speech at Durham as quoted in The News and Observer on May 22, 1954: "All the people want are the cold, hard facts and the opportunity to pass upon them. The people want from their political leadership clean, fair and honest campaigns."

THESE ARE COLD, HARD FACTS, KERR SCOTT!

1. You received from the State in 1952, while you were Governor, $12,658 for highway right-of-way through your 2300-acre plantation.
2. You leased a rock quarry on your farm to a contractor building roads for the State, and thus profited in another way from the road program.
3. Since you were acknowledged as Boss by your Highway Commissioner, a total of 19.5 miles of secondary roads were built in and around your 2300-acre plantation.
4. Your son used a State car to travel to and from Raleigh while he was a student in Duke University.
5. You accepted pay from East Carolina College for making a speech at this State Institution while you were Governor, and went to Greenville in a State car and all expenses were paid by the State.
6. You accepted gratuities as Governor, including $1,141.87 worth of nitrogen solution delivered to your farm by the Liberty Manufacturing Company of Red Springs to fertilize your pastures for a political rally you never held.
7. You have refused to make public your income tax returns so the people can decide for themselves to what further extent you enriched yourself as Governor.
8. You fired or attempted to fire numerous State employees because they did not vote for your hand-picked candidates as you dictated.

Loss Last Night May End Davey's Fighting Career

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP)—To all intents and purposes, Chuck Davey appears through as a professional boxer, ending one of television's first births of a national sports hero.

Davey was more than self-made; he was television made. He advanced undefeated through a series of warmups, backed by the International Boxing Club, until he reached the top—a title fight with welterweight champion Kid Gavilan 15 months ago.

His bubble, incubated with painstaking care with an eye on a national following born from television, was then burst by Gavilan, who stopped him in the 10th.

Vince Martinez last night in the same Chicago Stadium ring showed less mercy than Gavilan. He kept Davey, the ex-Michigan State collegiate champion, off balance with strong left jabs—something unheard of by a right-hander against a southpaw like Chuck.

And when he threw his rights, the balding Davey was shaken down to his dancing feet. Davey went down four times—in the first round from a steaming right to the jaw; twice in the third from stiff left hooks, although Referee Frank Sikora ruled a slip on one of them; and again for an eight count in the sixth from a series of rights.

The nationally televised bout drew a ringside crowd of 3,585, who contributed to a gross gate of $10,667. Davey weighed 149 and Martinez 148½.

"It's a rough statement to make that Davey is through," said his manager, Hec Knowles, after the heartbroken boxer with a masters degree in education had been led to his dressing room.

"But I will recommend that he quit the ring now. He was 100 per cent in condition coming into this bout. What happened? I don't know. His legs, he didn't have it there. I asked that the bout be stopped after the doctor looked at Davey."

"Our projected fight with Art Aragon (signed for June 25 in Los Angeles) is now out the window."

The defeat by 25-year-old Martinez, the 8-5 favorite from Paterson, N. J., and boxing's Rookie of the Year in 1952, left Davey making the first plea to the press in his career.

"Listen, fellows, give me a break," he said in his dressing room. "Don't ask me if I'm going to quit. Let me sleep on it a couple of days. That Martinez has the best single punch of anyone I've met. He doesn't flurry like Gavilan, but that right of his—ouch! I have no excuses for losing."

Marshall Tatum's Jaycees took over first place in the North State League yesterday afternoon with a 9-5 victory over the Kiwanis and a loss by the Lions to the up-and-coming V.F.W.

The Jaycees' Jasper Tripp pitched one-hit ball for five innings but weakened in the last inning to walk in two runs with the bases loaded. Clark Brewer came in to put out the fire by getting three batters without letting in a run.

The Jaycees now lead their league with a 4-1 record, a half game ahead of the Lions who have a 3-1 record.

Jenkins Hurts Shutout
In the opening game of the day Burt Jenkins had a great day for himself, pitching a three hit shut-out to win the game as pitcher and led the hitting for the day with a double and two home runs in three trips.

Jenkins walked four and struck out nine in the six inning game and never was in serious trouble. While Jenkins was pitching his way to the win his teammates would get on base and let the versatile V.F.W. star knock them in. Jenkins counted five runs batted in for the day's work.

The win showed the V.F.W. are beginning to find themselves and are becoming one of the league's best teams. It is their second win in their last three games.

Linwood Cates was the only player that had any success at all against Jenkins. Cates lined out a double and a single in two official trips.

In this afternoon's action the Exchange will go against the Elks in a Tar Heel League game.

Greenville's third season of PONY League baseball will be launched tonight in Guy Smith Stadium. The National Guard and Fordomatics teams of the league will meet each other at 7:45 in the stadium. The Fordomatics team is managed by Reynolds May and W. L. Allen while the National Guard squad is directed by N. A. Roebuck and Johnny Foell.

Friday night at 7:45, the other teams in the league will play their first contest when Manager Junior Yohn's Redmen meet Manager Bill Klittner's Bright Braves.

PONY League ball gets its name from the slogan "Protect Our Nation's Youth" and is for boys who are 13 and 14 years of age. Boys who will be 15 prior to August 1 are not permitted to play.

(The PONY League games will not interfere with the regular schedule of Recreation Softball games that are scheduled for Guy Smith Stadium. By BEN PILEGAR
New York Giant fans, still basking in the fading glories of 1951, bragged today about a five-game winning streak, then cautiously crossed their fingers. Brooklyn's coming.

The Dodgers invaded the Polo Grounds for a three-game series starting tomorrow night against a Giant club that has been showing more signs of life than most experts expected.

Leo Durocher's athletes have tended to streaks this spring and the last five days have been one of their good periods. By whipping Pittsburgh 2-1 yesterday they took over second place, a game and a half behind Milwaukee.

The Brooklyn series won't make or break the Giants. But if they decide to sweep three games, or even gain a 2-1 edge in decisive fashion, they'll find themselves in the midst of the hottest pennant talk since they knocked off Brooklyn three years ago.

In yesterday's game New York got only four hits a single and a home run by weak-hitting Davey Williams and two doubles by Willie Mays. Williams' single figured in the first run; his homer provided the winning margin.

Mays' hitting has been one of the brightest features of the current streak. He's raised his average from .260 to .304 with 10 hits in his last 15 times at bat. Included were two homers, two triples and two doubles.

Brooklyn fell to third last night, half a game behind the Giants by bowing to the Philadelphia Phillies 8-6. Milwaukee won its ninth straight, 7-6 over Cincinnati. Chicago crushed St. Louis 15-5.

In the American League the Chicago White Sox closed to within half a game of league-leading Cleveland by beating the Indians 5-4. Washington shaded New York 2-1. Detroit handed Baltimore its sixth loss in succession, 6-3, and Philadelphia shaded Boston 6-5 in 10 innings.

Two pitching streaks were broken. Robin Roberts, a loser in his last seven appearances against Brooklyn, went the route to victory in Ebbets Field despite a 10-hit Dodger attack. Eddie Lopat of the Yankees was beaten by Washington for the first time in 13 games, since June 26, 1951.

Del Ennis drove in five runs in support of Roberts and Willie Jones added to the Philadelphia total with a run-scoring triple and a home run. Duke Snider and Gil Hodges homered for Brooklyn.

Lopat got beaten in the last of the ninth inning when with two out he gave up successive singles to Pete Runnels, Ed Fitz Gerald and pinch hitter Jim Lemon. The victory was the fifth straight for Bob Porterfield.

Cincinnati fell one run short of catching up with Milwaukee with a four-run rally in the eighth. The run that made the difference came in the top of the eighth on Danny O'Connell's double, an infield single and a single by Andy Patko, his fourth hit of the night.

Hank Sauer and Dee Fondy led the Chicago wrecking crew against the Cardinals. Sauer hit his 13th homer and drove in four runs. Fondy collected four hits, including a home run.

Chicago's second straight victory over Cleveland came in the last of the ninth when Cass Michaels slammed a Hal Newhouser pitch over Larry Doby's head in center field with the bases loaded. The Indians had tied the score in the top of the ninth on a pinch-hit triple by Joe Ginsberg, his first hit of the season.

Art Houtteman opened the ninth as the Cleveland pitcher but was yanked in favor of Newhouser when he loaded the bases without getting anybody out. Newhouser retired one man on a force at the plate before Michaels unloaded.

Gus Zernial hit a grand-slam home run for the Athletics who finally edged Boston in the 10th on a pinch-hit single by Bill Renna. A double by Jim Piersall and long flies by Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen tied the score in the ninth.

George Zuverink got his first starting assignment of his major league career from Detroit and went the distance to victory over the slumping Orioles despite home runs by Vic Wertz and Sam Mele.

Sub-Par Rounds Feature Practice For Texas Event

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) Ben Hogan, Bob Toski, Cary Middlecoff and a terrific amateur, Ernie Vossler, were given the longest look today as the eighth $25,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament rolled into its first round.

Most eyes were on Hogan, the little Texan who has won about everything golf has to offer and wants. Par on the Colonial Country Club's 7,035 yards has proved of little concern to the Mighty Bantam, who has shot two 68's and a 69 in tuneup rounds.

The hottest of the "shadow boxers," however, has been Vossler, the Fort Worth amateur who's known mostly in Texas. Ernie did a 65 to tie Hogan's competitive course record and then turned in a 66, although missing two birdie putts, in his final practice swing yesterday.

Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist, who won the Colonial title in 1951, breezed through a 68 in his only tuneup. Toski, the little man from Livingston, N. J., who is the year's leading money winner with $10,988.74, didn't arrive in time for more than one practice round. He did an easy 71.

Probe Into Tax-Exempt Foundations Is Noisy, With Value Still Undecided

WASHINGTON (AP)—The investigation into tax-exempt foundations—including Ford and Rockefeller—is about as quiet as five people dancing barefoot on a hot stove.

The special House committee making the inquiry has three Republicans and two Democratic members. In the past few days the two sides have been in pitched battle.

This is how it started:

There are about 38,000 organizations exempt under law from paying taxes on any income they get, whether from dividends on stock they hold or from contributions, because of the way they spend the money:

On charity, scholarships for scientists or artists, funds for a college doing special research in medicine or science, or a study of civil liberties, human relations or foreign affairs.

These organizations range in size from the giant foundations with assets in the hundreds of millions to those with no endowment but with incomes from contributions of a few hundred or a few thousand dollars.

The very biggest ones were set up by rich men or their heirs. The five biggest, and their assets, are: Ford, 500 million dollars; Rockefeller, 321 million; Carnegie, over 117 million; Duke, 131 million; Pew, nearly 106 million.

Since these foundations enjoy tax exemption, Congress has a right to investigate to see how they spend their money. It set up a special House committee in 1952, under the chairmanship of the late Rep. Eugene Cox (D-Ga.) to do that and to see whether the foundations were using "their resources for un-American and subversive activities or for purposes not in the interest or tradition of the United States."

The committee questioned the heads of the big foundations, others who liked or disliked them, and some who suggested the foundations had been invaded by Communists.

The committee did its work in the last six months of 1952—it had to finish by Jan. 1, 1953. Cox died on Dec. 24, 1952. Eight days later the committee report was issued by Cox's successor, Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.).

The report acknowledged the committee had too little time to do a complete study, but praised the foundation's for the good they had done and would do.

The committee said Communists had captured a few small foundations, and infiltrated others, but that its study indicated "few actual Communists or Communist sympathizers obtained positions of influence in the foundations."

This didn't satisfy Rep. B. Carroll Reece (R-Tenn.), who had been a member of Cox's committee. Reece, chairman of the Republican National Committee from 1946 to 1948, was Southern manager for the late Sen. Robert A. Taft's campaign for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952.

In 1953 Reece persuaded the House to create another special committee, saying he wanted to look not only for Communist influence but Socialist influence too.

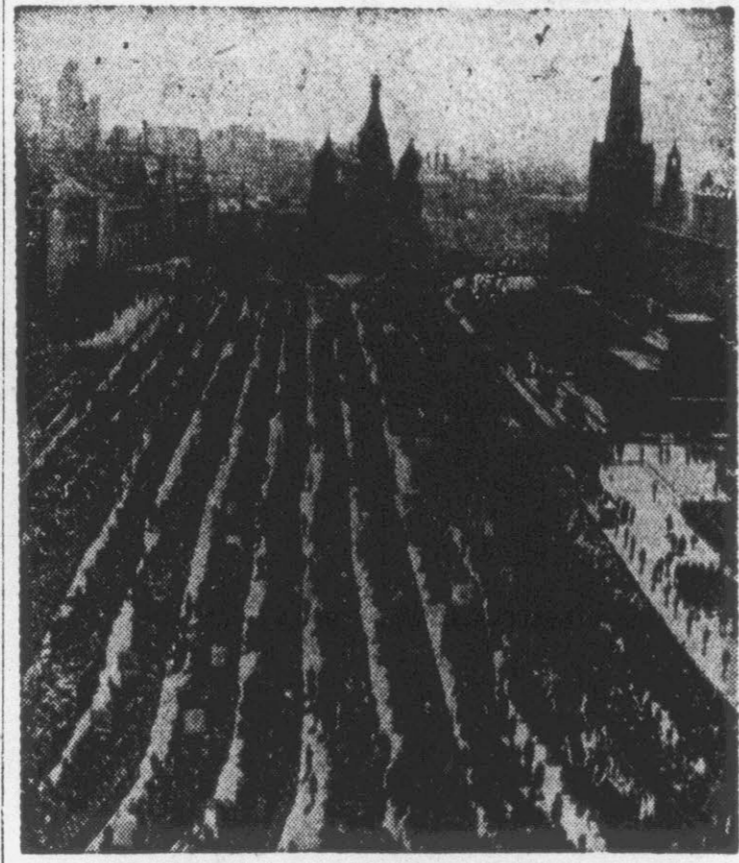

Rep. Hays protested the Cox committee had done all it should do, that if the House wanted to check on Communists in foundations that was a job for the Un-American Activities Committee and if it wanted to check on how foundations used their money that should be done by the House Ways and Means Committee, which handles tax matters.

And Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio) pointed out that Reece, while urging a new investigation, had attended only three of the Cox committee sessions. Reece explained he couldn't attend because of family illness.

The House went along with Reece, and his committee has now started hearings. The two other Republican members are Representatives Jesse P. Wolcott of Michigan and Angier L. Goodwin of Massachusetts.

The Democrats on the committee are Rep. Hays of Ohio and Mrs. Gracie Pfof of Idaho. The two Democrats have been battling the Republicans over a witness who insisted the foundations had contributed to New Deal thinking. This investigation may go on for months.

Movie 'Deal' Signed Between Show Acts

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How are movie deals made? Here's one that was accomplished between acts of a Broadway musical.

Cecil B. DeMille summoned the press to attend a luncheon and meet Yul Brynner, who is appearing in Los Angeles in "The King and I." The 72-year-old director has signed the actor to play Ramesses II in his forthcoming epic "The 10 Commandments." He told how he encountered Brynner.

"About a year and a half ago, I was in New York," he related. "My granddaughter and my secretary were urging me to see a show called 'The King and I.' I didn't want to go but they were so persistent that I had to. When we arrived at the theater, they sat on each side of me, so they could nudge me if I fell asleep."

"During the first act, they wondered why I said nothing. I couldn't. I was seeing a rare theatrical experience—a performance of dramatic integrity."

When the curtain went down, DeMille wanted to know who played the King. When told it was Yul Brynner, he said "What is that?" He had never heard of the actor, whose name indeed sounds like a Christmas log or something.

The director strode backstage, spoke to Brynner for a few minutes and assigned him the role of the Pharaoh. They shook hands on the deal. "Then we turned the details over to his agents and to Paramount and we both ran," said DeMille.

Brynner told the story from his side: "I had been warned that DeMille was in the theater. That merely added to the nervousness I get every time the half-hour warning is given before a performance. But after the show started, I was too busy to think about it. I wasn't able to see his reaction. ...

"In four years, I have never had a visitor between acts of the show—except Mr. DeMille. There are only 7½ minutes between acts. But he started talking and I was impressed by the tremendous amount of research that had been done on his picture. By the time I had to go on-stage again, I had not only agreed to do 'The 10 Commandments' with him but another picture following it."

Brynner, formerly a TV and stage director, has done only one previous picture. That was a 1949 picture made by the now defunct Eagle-Lion, "Port of New York." The picture starred Scott Brady and Brynner played the heavy.

"I never did find out what the picture was about," he said "I'd just report to the set every day, and they'd give me some pink sheets of paper with my lines on them."

"I never saw the picture when it came out. When I was playing 'The King and I' in Cincinnati, I asked the Paramount man there if he could find me a print. He did. The picture wasn't bad."

Hail Damage To Tobacco Reported Relatively Light

Last week's hail damage to farm crops, while largely in the southern part of the county, was not general in that area, Assistant County Agent Sam Weeks says.

After viewing crop damage in the area below Ayden and around Grifton, Weeks noted that the hail area apparently ran in a streak across the southern section of the county.

"It was not a solid streak," he said, "but in that streak of damage runs anywhere from light to severe and there are some spots in the streak where you don't have any damage."

Weeks stated that he had not seen anybody re-planting tobacco so far there could be a few.

"The majority of the farmers who had hail damage did not find it severe enough to justify plowing up and planting over," he said.

The assistant county agent noted that based on experiment station observations it might be best to cut the stalk off two leaves above the ground and let it grow rather than re-plant the field provided the root system is not dead.

He said that now the plants are small enough so that usually they can be left to grow without cutting off the stalks.

Weeks recommended that most farmers now leave the plants and let them grow without re-planting if they have had hail damage.

Plants Available
"If, however, there are any farmers in the county who desire to re-plant information relative to the source of tobacco plants can be obtained at the county agent's office," Weeks said.

Weeks stated that a number of diseases have been reported in tobacco fields recently.

"Several farmers have reported diseased conditions in the field which proved to be blue mold," he said.

"There is no recommended control for blue mold in the field," Weeks continued. "Treatments used on the plant bed for blue mold are preventative treatment instead of control treatment."

He noted that blue mold appears as yellowish to brown spots on the tobacco leaf and upon close examination the blue mold spores can be observed on the underside of the leaf.

"The weather conditions for the past two weeks have been favorable for blue mold to spread from one plant to another," the tobacco specialist stated.

He noted that the week of May 17-22 was especially favorable for the disease but that a spell of warm weather will stop its spread.

Physiological Breakdown
Weeks also said that cases of physiological breakdown in tobacco plants had been observed in the county.

"Plants with this condition show small brownish spots on the leaves—smaller than blue mold," he said.

Weeks noted that the condition is usually found on tobacco which has been planted in a heavier type soil than that on which tobacco is usually grown.

"There is no control recommendations for this condition," he said. "It usually occurs after an abrupt change in moisture content of the soil."

The agent noted that he had not heard any reports on cut worm damage to crops this week. He said he was hoping that it was a sign that the cut worm menace is lessening.

Toll Men Want Their 60 Cents

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)—The State Highway Department sent a bill for 60 cents to the Town of Greenwich. It covered six trips at 10 cents each made through the Merritt Parkway toll gate by Greenwich police cars and a fire truck responding to emergencies. The highway department said only state-owned vehicles are exempt from the toll. Greenwich officials retorted it's going to be a long time before the town pays the 60 cents. "It isn't the money it's the principle of the thing," asserted Greenwich First Selectman C. Carlton Gisborne.

Amateur Radio Relay To Try Span Continent

By EDDIE LEE
ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—The first official attempt to span the continent by amateur radio relay on two meters is scheduled Saturday and Sunday and New Mexico hams apparently hold the key to success.

In a manner reminiscent of the early days of radio, messages will be passed from station to station all across the country. It's never been done on the two-meter amateur band—a very high frequency band where transmissions are normally limited to line of sight.

"The toughest place to cross is the Arizona-New Mexico-Texas Panhandle stretch," said A. David Middleton, one of the leaders in the project. "Towering mountains and the distance between the communities pose particular problems," he said.

The project was conceived by the Two Meter and Down Club of Los Angeles. The Albuquerque VHF Club and similar organizations and individuals all across the country will take part.

An effort will be made to move messages both ways across the nation. At opposite ends of the relay are the headquarters of the Los Angeles club and the headquarters of the American Radio Relay League in West Hartford, Conn.

The ARRL is a national organization of hams formed 40 years ago to handle just such relays as this. The first transcontinental relay on low frequency bands in the vicinity of the present broadcast band was completed in 1917.

The situation they faced then was similar to that facing the hams engaged in the higher frequency test now. The average two meter signal will travel between 100 and 200 miles.

An unofficial practice relay attempted last Sunday failed when the messages going both ways bogged down as the result of an abnormal change in weather conditions which interfered with reception at Amarillo and Sandia Crest, east of Albuquerque.

"They'll try it again this week with several added stations. 'The day might come when a two-meter relay across the country could prove a lifesaver in getting an important message through,'" Middleton said.

WHAT ABOUT THE SHERIFF'S RACE?

In The Daily Reflector of May 25th, 1954, Mr. Sam Whitehurst solicits the support of the voters of Pitt County on his stated Platform.

What Is The Record On Sam Whitehurst?

According to the records of the Superior Court of Pitt County in 1938, then serving as Sheriff, he was tried for malfeasance and misfeasance in office in a long drawn out trial before Judge G. V. Cowper and at the conclusion of all the evidence, agreed that judgment should be entered removing him from office and resigned as a candidate to succeed himself, and judgment was entered removing him from office and declaring the office vacant (See Judgment Docket 36, page 423).

On this record, we cannot see how he can now ask the voters of the County to elect him again as Sheriff. It is hoped that the voters of the County will vote for a stable, capable, honest, sober and experienced Sheriff on May 29th. We plead with you accordingly.

Grifton High School Holds Graduation Exercises

GRIFTON — Dr. Richard C. Todd of East Carolina College's Department of Social Studies cautioned Grifton High School graduates to follow the rules according to the Creator and not the imitator in the principal address at Grifton's Commencement Exercises Monday night.

Dr. Todd told the graduating class that they were at the crossroads of their lives and to remember that they had promises to keep to themselves, their parents, and others who had been responsible for their being where they are at the present time. He compared the road of life to a three-lane highway on which the students will broaden their economic, social, and political characters. He told them to be proud of the work they choose for their lives since honest endeavor is both honorable and noble.

Dr. Todd was introduced by Principal E.E. Bright after the Reverend R.C. Mooney's invocation.

The Valedictory address was made by Phyllis Jackson and the Salutatory address by Joyce Dennis. Special music was rendered by Peggy Buck, Dawn Smith, and Pat Stokes with Mrs. Paul Braxton at the piano.

Scholarship awards were presented to Joyce Dennis, Phyllis Jackson, and Bobby Cole. The awards presented were the Pitt County award, presented by W.I. Bissette in behalf of the school; the W.I.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market stepped ahead briskly today and then in the early afternoon backed down from its best under light profit-taking.

Yesterday the market went to new highs, and that action brought on selling to cash in on profits today.

Gains went to around a point at the best. Losses were not numerous and almost all were fractional. Trading was brisk, especially during rising phases of the session, and trading hit a high pace around two and a half million shares for the day. Yesterday's total came to 2,180,000 shares.

The steels and aircraft were in demand in early trading along with the motors and non-ferrous metals. In later trading, however, the steels and motors turned mixed, the aircrafts backed down from their best while the non-ferrous metals held around their best. Some oils did well.

All are possible beneficiaries of increased defense spending. The steels industry is looking forward to continued good business, and there are reports the government is considering opening a new phase in its strategic metals stockpiling program.

Board Of City School Trustees Honor Athletes

The Board of Trustees of the Greenville City Schools last night honored the Greenville High School varsity basketball squad at a dinner at the Third Street School.

Mrs. W. J. Stell of the Board of Trustees presided at the dinner. Present also were Mayor W. L. Whedbee, Dr. Walter C. Humbert, Dr. E. B. Aycock, Coach Howard Porter of East Carolina College, Coaches Farley and Kittrell, Principal O. E. Dowd, and Superintendent J. H. Rose.

At the close of the dinner appreciation was expressed to the members of the squad for the fine work done during the year. They were praised not only for their athletic ability but for their general attitude, scholastic achievement, and willingness to keep in good physical condition.

Drs. Aycock and Humbert and Coach Porter all made the point that an athlete can not be good unless he trains voluntarily twelve months to the year.

Mayor Whedbee voiced the hope that voluntary self-discipline would become a normal thing for athletes in Greenville High School.

Principal O. E. Dowd paid tribute to the scholastic achievement of the squad. Superintendent J. H. Rose echoed the sentiment previously spoken that the athletic group of the Greenville High School take upon themselves the responsibility of self-discipline. Mrs. Stell spoke for the School Board expressing appreciation of the Board of Trustees for what these boys have done for Greenville High School.

Fire Blazed Up Just As Parade Began

The above photo shows a view of the fire which sent columns of smoke high into the sky during yesterday's Shriner's parade. Most of the crowd which viewed the long procession was unaware of the blaze, however, since the alarm was not sounded over the fire whistle. In spite of the smoke little damage was done. The fire was confined largely to old automobile tires stored at Fleming's Junk Yard on North Greene Street. It was believed to have been set by an acetylene torch (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor)

Firemen were called to Fleming's Junk Yard yesterday afternoon at the height of the Shriner's parade when some old auto tires caught fire in the yard.

The fire sent columns of smoke high into the sky but many of the thousands of persons who viewed the parade were not aware of the blaze.

Fire Chief George Gardner said that the outside fire alarm was cut off during yesterday's parade so that calls came in only to the fire house itself. All paid firemen were on duty yesterday.

The chief said that no trouble was encountered by firemen in reaching the fire since Greene Street was not included in the parade route.

No damage was reported other than to the tires, Gardner stated.

Firemen poured water on the burning rubber for nearly three hours before the blaze was finally extinguished.

The chief said the fire was believed to have started from an acetylene torch.

Firemen were also called to a home at 413A Hudson Street at 7:08 p. m. when a bag of wood and coal caught fire near a stove. Only slight damage resulted.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A North Carolina man, fatally shot by police who caught him looting a tavern, had been urged by his minister father to "try to start a new way of life," police reported.

Charles E. Ruffin Jr., a Sanford, N.C. printer, died in an Indianapolis hospital yesterday of wounds in the leg and abdomen. Police said Ruffin was shot as he fled the tavern after being ordered to come out with his hands up.

Officers said they found a letter in one of Ruffin's pockets from his father, the Rev. C.E. Ruffin, a Baptist minister from Broadway, N.C. The letter urged the younger Ruffin to "join a church, seek the advice of a minister and try to start a new way of life."

Cases Heard In City Police Court

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee taxed Marvin Earl Moore, Negro, with $5 on court costs, on the police charge of failure to heed a fire department siren on May 24.

Testimony was that traffic was stopped at an intersection and that there was some confusion about right of way. No damage resulted, testimony showed.

In the case of Edith B. Harrington, who was charged with failure to stop at a stop sign, the court not pressed the case with leave.

Herman A. Tillery, vagrancy, three months on the roads, capias and commitment to issue at 11 a.m. Wednesday. Tillery had left town at 11 a.m., a court official stated.

William R. Edwards, charged with driving drunk, and careless and reckless driving had his case transferred to Superior Court for jury trial.

Truck Overtakes While Passing

A one and one-half ton truck overturned near Falkland this morning while attempting to pass a mule and cart.

The truck was being driven by James W. Avent of Rocky Mount, according to investigating Patrolman Shep Newman.

Avent told the patrolman that he was riding behind a hog truck which passed the mule and cart. He stated that he did not see the mule and cart in time and swerved to miss it, losing control of the vehicle. Avent's truck overturned. Damage was estimated at approximately $100 and no charges were placed.

SOME QUESTIONS FOR Former Sheriff Sam A. Whitehurst

Having noted the platform on which you are now running for Sheriff we cannot but remember the differences in what you now offer to do for the county and how you conducted yourself while sheriff of Pitt County.

When sheriff, did you cooperate with the highway patrol?

Did you cooperate with the city police and with the county ABC officers?

Did you cooperate with the county board of commissioners?

Beginning with 1929 when the board of commissioners asked you about certain fees not being accounted for, did you not fail to cooperate and were not some of those fees being unaccounted for one of the reasons for your being removed as sheriff of Pitt County?

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa Gov. William S. Bardsley, concerned over the growing traffic death toll in the state, wanted Iowa teenagers to develop their own highway safety program.

He called a state conference of teen-agers to discuss traffic problems. To make sure the conference would be a success, the governor fed approximately 650 teen-agers barbecued beef from his own Iowa farm.

Blue Fire Truck Has Following

SIDNEY, Neb. (AP)—Sidney Rural Fire District No. 1 has come up with a color which may be altogether new to civilian fire wagons: blue.

The color picked out by the firemen has been dubbed "smoke blue" by the truck's manufacturers. It won't be new for long, apparently. Other places already have expressed interest.

THIS MOOSE FLOAT passes down Evans Street in this photo. It was one of the more than 20 floats in the big Sudan parade.

ASK ANYONE WHO HEARD IT— Unbiased Editor Says— SCOTT— "LAMENTABLY IGNORANT OF NATIONAL AFFAIRS"

THE DURHAM SUN
WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 23, 1934

Qualifications

Six candidates for the United States Senate seat held by Alton A. Lennon, including Mr. Lennon, spoke before the North Carolina League of Women Voters in Raleigh last night and answered, or attempted to answer, questions submitted by the audience. It was, in several respects, a depressing spectacle.

The friends of some of the candidates, listening to the radio presentation, must have squirmed at the showing most of them made. Senator Lennon excelled by contrast. He made a good appearance. He understood the issues. He could express himself upon them. Former Governor Kerr Scott revealed himself as shockingly uninformed and woefully inarticulate.

They are the two real contenders in the Democratic primary contest. The Republican candidate, Paul C. West, will go through the campaign motions but the issue will be decided in May as he knows as well as anyone else. Of the other Democratic candidates, Alvin Wingfield Jr., also is informed. He understands the issues after his fashion; but we are constrained, for our part, to regard him as a crank and an exhibitionist who must have other motives than the Democratic nomination.

Senator Lennon spoke frankly and clearly to the point. What his position on various issues were is not our point here today. Our point is that he understood the issues, was able intelligently to discuss them and possessed the ability to express himself concisely, coherently and in good, sound English. He seemed of the stature and presence to command attention and respect as a representative of North Carolina in the United States Senate.

On the other hand, whatever may be Mr. Scott's merits, he proved himself so lamentably ignorant of national affairs and principles involved in current issues as to be unable even to understand the questions. He obviously did not know what some of them, simple as they were, meant. It is doubtful, judging by his performance last night, that he even understands the variations in the application of the principle of farm price supports, which he favors. If he goes to the United States Senate, he may impress his fellow senators as a diamond in the rough; but, man, he is rough.

Adjustments Also Face Big Negro High School

By BRUCE HENDERSON
DALLAS (AP)—Like hundreds of others in the 17 segregated states, Booker T. Washington High of Dallas is an all-Negro school. Its 1,232 students and 47 teachers face about the same problems as those anywhere in adjusting to the Supreme Court's decision outlawing segregation. This is the way some of them feel about it.

Peggy Jo Wedgeworth, 15, a freshman, has had little contact with white children. If segregated schools are merged before she graduates three years from now, she might find herself attending class with them. "I think we could get along all right if both sides tried. It would take time. But I'm glad. I think if the court ruling is real nice—wonderful."

Claudette Roblow, 16 felt the same way. "We wouldn't want to force ourselves on the white children, just try to make them like us. You can always do things for people to make them like you, if it's only giving them an aspirin for a headache," she said.

Emmett Brown, 18, a lanky star on the track and basketball teams, thinks that "everyone wants a good team. I don't think Negroes would have trouble making the team if they were good enough."

Washington students said, however, their main objective is not mingling with Whites but to make sure Negroes get equal educational opportunities. Most of those interviewed said they're ready to sit with white children and hope, in time, to make friends.

Dallas is noted for its Negro schools. It has two high schools and 14 elementaries to serve some 16,000 Negroes out of a total enrollment of 90,000. The Negro schools are in good shape, many built in a bond program the last few years.

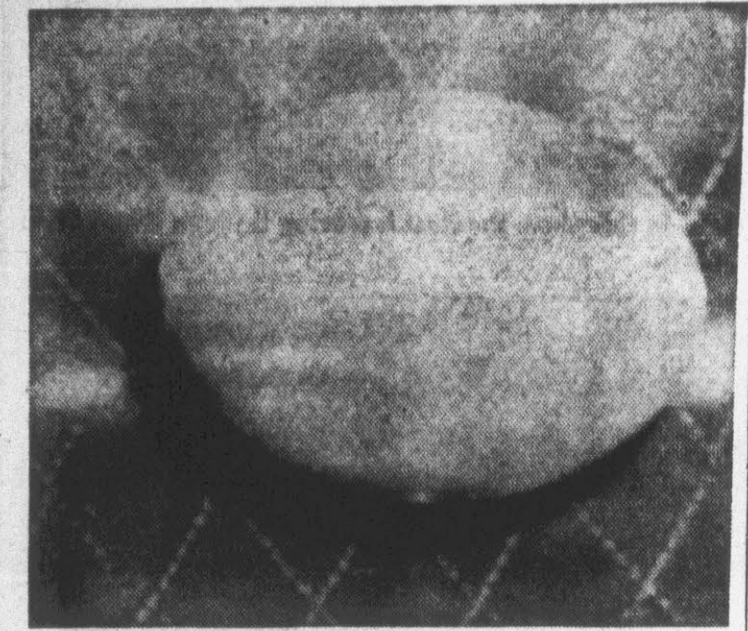

An addition costing almost a million dollars was finished at Washington High just two years ago. "Booker T. is a fine school, and I'd be satisfied to stay right here," said Cleveland Turner, 17, an honor student.

"But what about other communities where facilities aren't equal? I believe the court decision will give all students equal opportunities."

Teachers at Washington High said they're not afraid of losing their jobs if segregated schools are merged—that, somehow a place

G. A. Clark of Greenville holds an oversized hen egg laid by a Red Rhode Island hen. The egg measures seven and one-fourth inches in circumference, is four and one-eighth inches in length and weighs four and one-fourth ounces, according to Clark. will be made for them.

A homemaking teacher who, with bachelor and master degrees, earns $4,450 a year, said: "I feel I could teach white students without difficulty. I just can't see why it wouldn't work." She would not be quoted by name.

Head Coach Raymond Hollie said the success of Negro athletes "would depend solely on their ability, and as for teachers—I think it would work the same way."

Students and teachers know it may be a long time before these problems are upon them.

The high court has called for further arguments in October on how to effect its judgment. Gov. Allan Shivers has said it might take years in this state. Texas Education Commissioner J. W. Edgar has advised superintendents to plan for the 1954-55 school year on the basis of continued segregation.

Mr. Noona has just been notified by Dr. T. Noel Stern, director of the Foundation des Etats-Unis of the Cite Universitaire in Paris, that he was chosen for the honor by the Board of Directors of the Foundation.

ferred to student artists and musicians each year, carries a stipend of $1000 payable in francs at the current rate of exchange.

The Woolley Foundation Scholarships are granted to students of great promise who have been graduated with high academic standing from an American college or university and who have shown themselves capable of study on the graduate level.

A Message To The Voters Of Pitt County From SAM O. WORTHINGTON Candidate For House Of Representatives Democratic Primary May 29, 1954

If I have not spoken to you personally during the campaign, may I say now that I will appreciate your vote and help.

A native of Pitt County—reared on the farm near Winterville—I am engaged in farming—have had 33 years of experience in the practice of law.

It has been my privilege to serve eight terms in the House of Representatives, serving as chairman of some of the most important committees of the House. I am willing to stand on my record there.

I believe my legislative experience will enable me to do a better job now and be of much help in the coming session.

It has been my ambition for some time to be SPEAKER of the House. This is possibly the opportune time. I do hope my friends will not let my service on the Utilities Commission keep them from voting for me, rather, I hope you will send me back to the Legislature with the hope that I may bring this honor to Pitt County.

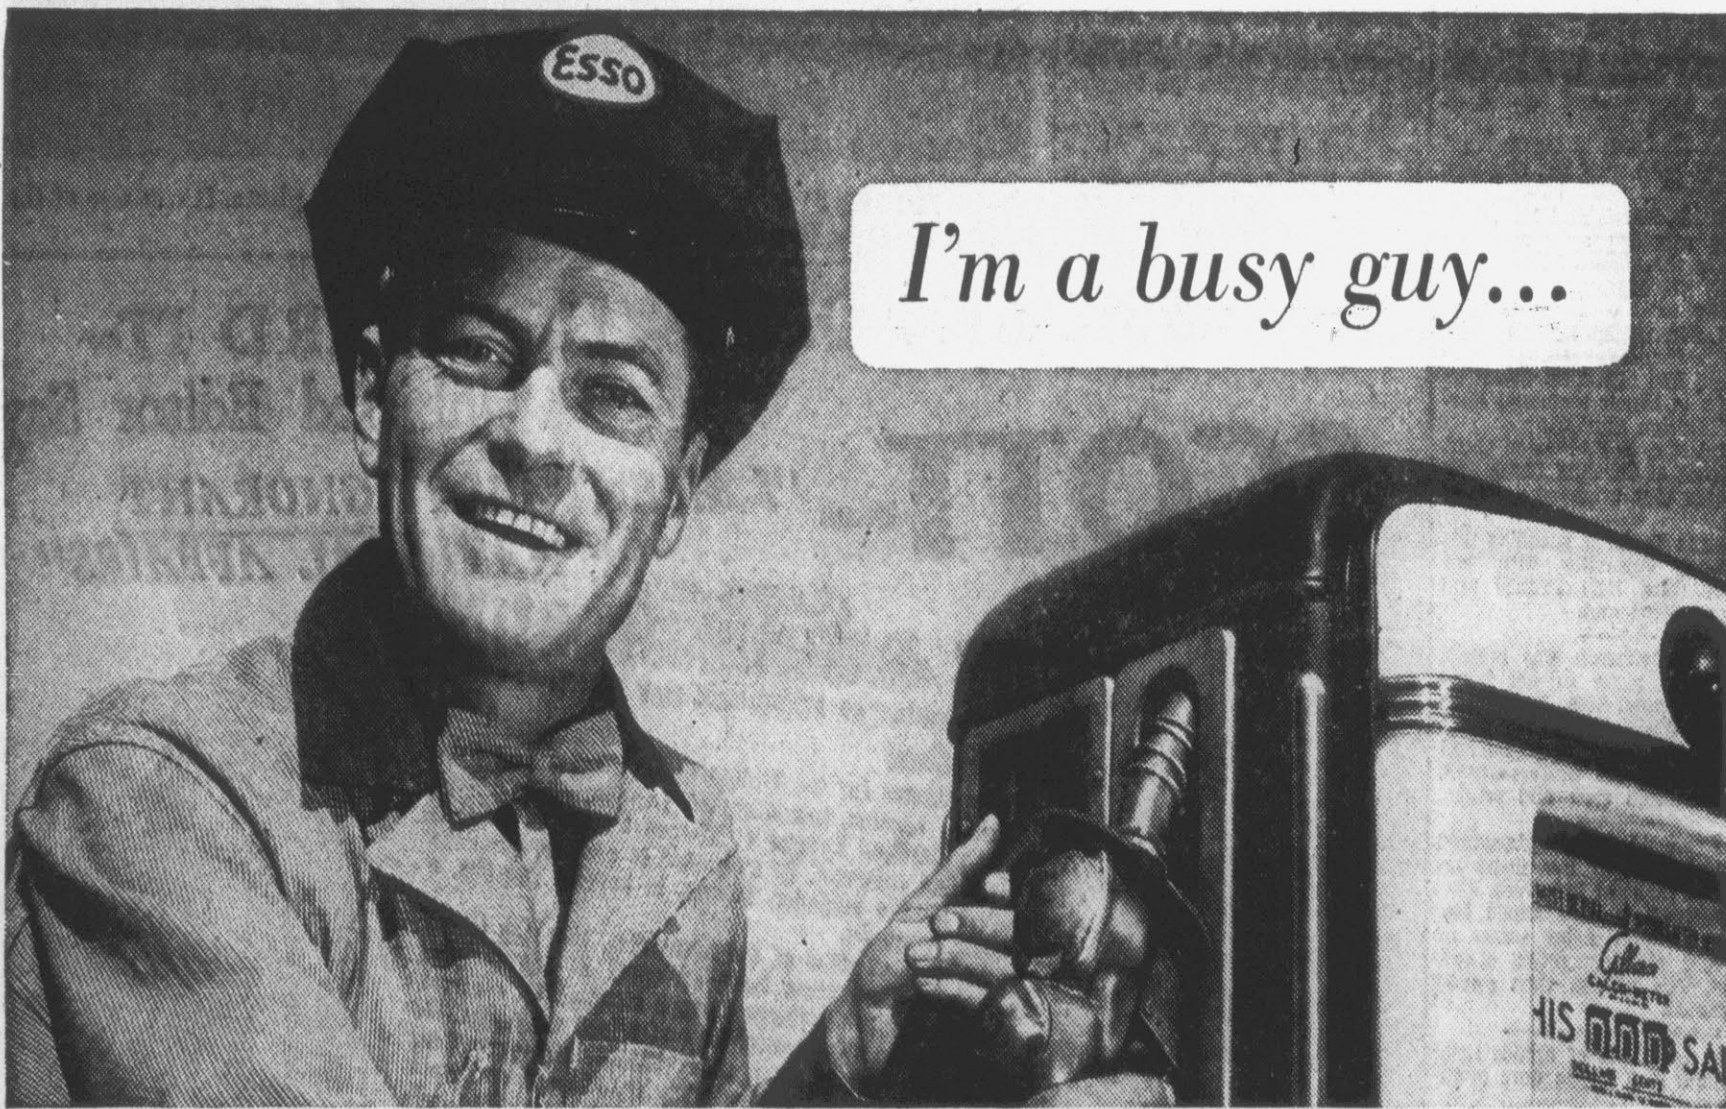

No law affecting the liberty, freedom and property rights of any person or groups of persons should be passed without ample notice and opportunity to them that they may be heard. Persons with matters of legislative importance should likewise be given opportunity to be heard thereon, and such matters determined on their merits. This is Democracy.

I am firmly of the opinion that any basic change in our public school educational program should be passed on by the people. They are most affected.

I have never taken part in any race in a campaign other than my own. I have not, and am not now, taking any part in any of the other races in this campaign.

I want here and now to warn the public against wild reports on legislative efforts to license farm tractors and other matters adversely affecting farmers' interests. These are idle rumors and before accepting them it might be well to look into the legislative record for confirmation.

I am deeply appreciative of the support you have given me in the past. I ask for your support and help now. I promise you the very best service and representation I am capable of giving.

BELK-TYLER'S OF GREENVILLE

Joan Foster, Bride

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT
MISS BISHOP was all swift sympathy as she listened to Joan's tale of woe. "I'm so sorry to hear about this. But he is all right now? Out of the hospital and home again?"

"Oh, yes! He's home. He's going back to work soon. But—well—I had to sell one of our antique pieces to pay the hospital bill and—"

Finally she was finished. Miss Bishop said gently, "I'm truly sorry about all this. Very sorry, indeed. I suppose you don't like to call on your parents?"
Joan shook her head. "We don't want to and we don't feel we should. My mother is a widow, living on a very limited pension and whatever she can get by renting rooms. Todd's people are elderly and not well, either of them. Besides, they are facing retirement at an early date. We think—we've always thought—that we should manage life, however it comes to us, by ourselves. Todd has a couple government bonds and we're going to sell those, but they haven't matured yet and they won't be nearly enough."

The older woman regarded Joan quietly for a moment. "Of course," she said presently, "I am in no position to promise you anything for the firm. I shall have to pass on your story to Mr. Adams. But I'll be glad to do that as soon as possible."

"Do you think—today, perhaps?"
"Yes today," she paused. "I know he will ask me if I have reminded you that what you are doing actually is mortgaging your future. He will want to know if I have pointed out to you that whatever extra advance is made to you now must, of course, be deducted from your next statement."

"I understand that."
"And we don't, naturally, make a practice of this sort of thing."
"No, you couldn't. Please believe, Miss Bishop, that I just hate to ask this. I thought about it for quite a while before I decided I would. But—well—I really think I'll be able to do better work on my book, if I'm not too worried about money."

"That's probably true. Well, don't worry, then. Take home with you the thought that I will do my best to present your story for you and that I know Mr. Adams is understanding."

Joan stood up. "There's only one thing that can possibly be nicer than being a writer," she said, a trifle unsteadily.
"What's that?"
"Being a publisher. Being able to do such things as this. Goodby, Miss Bishop. And thank you. Thank you ever so much. I'll try to make this third book my best."

Joan had only briefly sketched in the story of the predicament that she and Todd were in to Miss Bishop. Todd had been more than angry with her for selling the chair. He had been quite stricken. "It certainly makes me feel like a heel," he said from his hospital bed. "Just exactly like a heel, only worse. You selling the furniture and using your royalty to get me out of hock here."

"You make it sound awful. To me it seems sensible. We both have always said those antiques were an investment. Well, now we've proved it. Besides, I'm the heel, not you. It was I that wanted to spend all our wedding money. And I frittered away my own, too."

"You used not fritter it away! You used it to feed us through August. Don't think, I don't know it!"
"Not all of it, Todd. Some of it was frittered. I don't know where or how, I'm sure—but—"
"The point is—it was yours. You earned it. You should never have had to spend it except any way you pleased."

"Todd, darling, we've been over this before. You're saying again that what's yours is mine and what's mine is my own. And that's not fair. This is a fifty-fifty partnership."
Todd shook his head. "I don't see it that way. I never did and I never will. Besides, you loved that chair. You found it. You refinished it and—well—you loved it. I certainly do feel like a heel," he repeated, flapping the covers on his bed angrily.

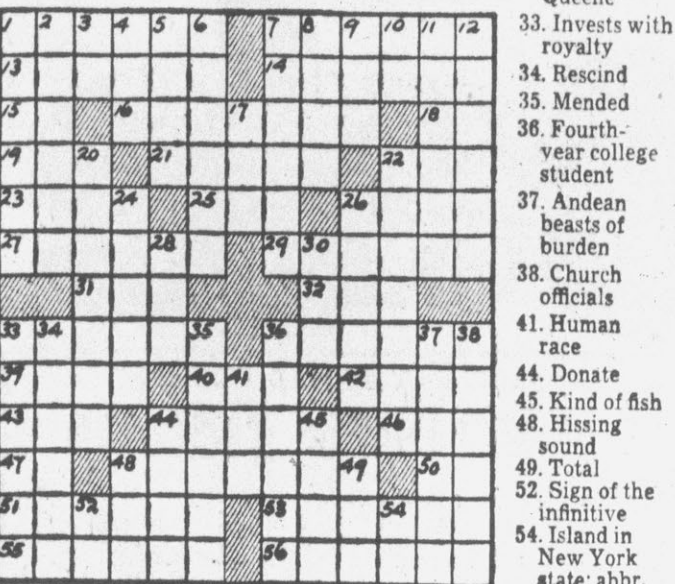

Joan said nothing. It was best to let him get all his anger out of his system.

"No," he said presently, "being strapped this way is my fault, not yours. I should have taken out insurance weeks ago. I thought about it. I had those two government bonds and I could have sold them. They'd have more than paid for one year. But I thought I ought to hold on to them until they matured. Or I could have been firmer with you about buying our antiques," he finished.

"We were both wrong, darling. Let's admit it. We were foolish."
"Me more than you!" He yanked at the covers again. "It was up to me to watch our finances. I took on that job. You washed your hands of it. Remember? Good grief! What kind of husband am I anyway? I not only don't earn enough to take care of my wife, but I can't take care of what I do earn!"

"Oh, Todd, please! You're just working yourself up! And it isn't necessary. We'll get out of this! We'll manage! Who's complaining?"
"I am—and loudly—and over and over again I don't like the situation. I don't like myself." And he had lain there, glowering at her until she bent and kissed him softly.

"Things could be worse, you know," she whispered.
One arm came up and went around her shoulders. "You're a honey. But hear me swear this. Some day you're going to have a house filled to the roof with swan-arm chairs. Upstairs and downstairs! And you won't have to spend your hard-earned royalty on me, either. You won't even have to write books."
She laughed. "But I could if I wanted to, couldn't I?"
"Oh, yes, if you wanted to, I suppose. But the money from them will be—well—cream in our coffee. Jam on our bread. A luxury. Not a necessity."

The check came on the day that Todd first went back to teaching. She tore open the familiar envelope with a pounding heart, not daring to expect too much, yet unable to help hoping. And there it was. One hundred dollars! And with it the very nicest note she had ever received from her publishers. Her eyes raced over the sheet.

"—so sorry to learn from Miss Bishop of your husband's recent illness—understand from her that you have your next forthcoming book well organized—pleased with the sales this series is making—thought perhaps a little extra income at this trying time might not be unwelcome—enclosing—charged—royalty account."
The thing to do now was to get busy and write Jane at Home. Or should she call it Jane in Business?

Then suddenly that, too, became a sobering thought, for with the paltry knowledge she had of antiques, how was she going to write such a book as she contemplated? Honestly, she had the most colossal nerve when she stopped to think about it! You could not write if you did not know what you were writing about. She had learned that long ago. You could not bluff. You had to know.

"I'll get books," she thought.
"I'll go to the library and get books. I'm sure there must be plenty there that will help me."

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—A black bear was discovered in Michigan's Blaney Park making like a bird.

Unlike brother bruins hibernating in dens in the ground, this bear slept in a pine tree 53 feet above the ground. The bear came wobbling out of a hole near the top when the giant tree was felled. It lumbered off, unhurt.

Diversification Sought As Means To Beat Recession

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Diversify — and beat the rap in the next recession.

Cities and whole regions are trying it today. An increasing number of industrial corporations are trying it.

Variety as the insurance of prosperity is a goal now — even in cities that still relish being called the Auto Capital or the Steel City.

The movement has been under way ever since World War II in some cities and in many big concerns.

But it took this recession to point up the virtues — or the need.

The community with many sources of income often fared better than the one-industry town. That's because the postwar pattern has been for first one and then another industry to adjust—that is, slow down and then recover.

The city with its economic eggs in many baskets usually had only one or two factories down at a time — not all of them shut, as in some one-industry towns. It makes a lot of difference.

Corporations had the same experience. Those with many products often fared better than those with just one, when customers proved fickle.

Many cities these days are offering inducements to corporations to open new plants.

Some, notably in the South, have offered tax concessions or have floated bond issues to finance the building of new plants.

More, however, have tried other measures: surveying for possible industrial sites, zoning to encourage them, providing transportation for materials and highways for employees' cars, planning the social and physical services needed by new factories, new families.

Diversification is taking many forms — replacing outmoded industries, luring new ones, adjusting to the cold war and the coming atomic age.

New England, faced with closing textile mills has ardently wooed metal-working and electronic firms. It is nourishing entirely new industries, many born in test tubes in New England's research laboratories.

Pittsburgh, on the other hand is proud of its steel and coal industries, but has a great drive on now to diversify. Nonmetal working types of factories are being courted. "We can use soft goods industries," they tell you there.

In the South the drive is to turn a once largely agricultural economy into one where industry and farming balance and all the region's resources are used. Textile mills capture the headlines, but the South is welcoming many other types of industry.

Florida, for example, is padding out its citrus and citrus industries with many small manufacturing plants, making everything from clothing to aluminum awnings.

Or take Syracuse, N.Y. Proud as it is of its big industries — electronics and air conditioning — the Manufacturers Assn. of Syracuse boasts most of its imposing list of smaller firms, ranging from makers of candles to washing machine manufacturers. Diversification helped cushion the shock of business adjustment in Syracuse.

They'll tell you the same thing in New Orleans and Kansas City.

The nation's military program and defense problems play a role.

Take Seattle. Its two big Boeing aircraft plants are a mainstay for the merchants — and a worry for the military lest they offer a concentrated target for the enemy.

Seattle tackles the problem this way: it's busily looking for new industries, but a survey has uncovered many sites, well scattered but still accessible — with the transportation systems the city promises.

Seattle's twin solutions: diversify and prosper; disperse and survive.

Political Vacuum Exists In Rich, Unstable Indonesia

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
GENEVA, May 26 (AP)—A polished young Indonesian political leader, laughing in spite of himself, said: "My country is like an army without sergeants."

It was bitter laughter. The analogy he drew was of an army in which too many generals ready to plan and theorize, but with no noncoms behind them to carry out the job.

Riotously rich in nature's gifts, the sprawling island chain is poor in political fiber. The apathy of the Indonesian people, their illiteracy, their disillusionment with talk of democracy, all tend to create a dangerous political vacuum in a country newly emerged from colonial domination.

The Indonesians are dreadfully tired of years of civil war and years of violence at the hands of such terrorist organizations as the fanatical Dar-Ul Islam. The weariness extends to the top to the thin layer of able, educated intellectuals left behind when the Dutch withdrew. The Dutch, unlike British colonists did not see fit to leave any broad civil service to administer the nation.

From all this, the observer gets the impression of a country on the verge of a national nervous breakdown. And the impression is strong, too, that Indonesia offers the next line of least resistance to Communist expansion plans.

Here in Geneva, the Communists are displaying an all-or-nothing attitude on the question of Indochina. The implication is that eventually they expect to take all. Then the next move in the step-by-step expansion program of world communism could be Indonesia, bypassing Burma, Thailand and Malaya. Moscow could well use Indonesia's oil, tin and rubber.

Does Communism have immediate designs on Indonesia? "Semicolonial Indonesia is subject to permanent economic crisis," says the Indonesian Communist party's most recent directive. "The way to eliminate this situation is to liquidate this semicolonial status and replace it with the system of people's (Communist) democracy."

Indonesia has 80 million people. The party claims only 126,000 members and candidate members. But it is warring to capture the minds of that section of the literate population which is the only significant force. Conditions are fertile. There are political disorganization, terror, confusion and chaos.

Under the watchful eye of Moscow, the Communist party has wedded itself to the Nationalist (PNI) government of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo. Its votes in Parliament could bring about the fall of the government.

The Communists warn the government not to "deviate to the right." But they are under party orders not to support the government because rule might otherwise "fall into the hands of the ultra-reactionary Masjumi (Moslems) and PSI (Socialists) who would certainly suppress the people's movement cruelly."

Meanwhile, the party publicly demands arms from the government—vain so far—to fight terrorism. On the surface, the party appears to have no military striking force of its own but it controls the Perbepsi, a union of former guerrilla fighters.

The government has outlawed the Bambu Runtjing (Bamboo Spear), an armed gang inclined toward the Communists, but winked at the use of this organization to fight guerrilla bands.

The chief source of terrorism is Dar-Ul Islam, originally made up of Moslem fanatics demanding a pure Moslem state. The movement is no longer pure. It has been infiltrated from all sides, not excluding Communists. With a nucleus of 10,000 armed men and a pool for recruits 10 times that size, Dar-Ul Islam is well organized. It has an intelligence system which some consider superior to the Indonesian army's. Its periodic murder and pillage contribute to unrest and tension.

Indonesian Nationalist leaders profess to see no connection between communism and what is going on in Indochina. They will admit—a bit grudgingly—that communism "from the outside" is a menace to Indonesia, yet they reject the concept that the Vietminh in Indochina was influenced by communism. As Nationalists they consider as patriotic any movement aimed at routing the foreigner.

There is much Marxism — as distinguished from Moscow communism — in Indonesian leaders' thinking.

A violent anti-American campaign by the Communists, while it has not eradicated a large well of good will toward Americans, has caught on to the extent that it has made the sensitive Nationalists suspicious of all things American.

Chess Masters Of Russia Will Meet U.S. Team

By GEOFFREY GOULD
NEW YORK (AP)—The best chess players in Russia are coming to America for the first time to lock wits with a handpicked American team in an international match opening June 16.

The Russians, who almost came here last year but changed their minds at the last minute, will be led by world champion Mikhail Botvinnik.

In many ways the eight-day tournament will be remarkable. It will be the most definitive meeting thus far between Russian and American teams, although an American team lost to Russians in Moscow eight years ago. It will be the first time the Soviets have met America's best on their home grounds.

Botvinnik, who has dominated the upper echelons of the chess world for many years, will be pitted against the American Samuel Reshevsky.

Other pairings have not been announced.

The Botvinnik-Reshevsky match Reshevsky, who is 43 is generally acclaimed by his colleagues as the chess champion of the Western world.

NEW STREET SIGNS have been going up on street corners in the business district. City Manager James S. Hughes reported these signs have been ready to go up for a few days, but only this week the clamps necessary to put them up came in. Hughes says other signs will go up on streets in residential areas later. (Reflector Staff Photo by Alvin Taylor)

Brakes Repaired A Little Late

HUTCHINGSO, Kas. (AP)—The brakes on his pickup truck weren't acting right, thought Carle E. Baker. So he headed for the garage, halting at several stop signs and busy intersection.

At the garage they fixed both his brakes and the door of the garage, which Baker smacked into when his brakes failed to hold as he turned in.

Never heavy, never too sweet, today's Pepsi is reduced in calories

AMERICANS have decided, it's more fun to be fit. Today's most popular food and drink are those that are kind to the waistline—which is all to the good for looks, for health, for more active living.

That is the trend—with which Pepsi-Cola has steadily kept pace.

Pepsi today is up to date with modern taste—light, dry (not too sweet), reduced in calories. It refreshes without filling.

This week-end refresh without filling. Drink Pepsi. Take it along on picnics. Serve it at home.
