President Urges Political Unity

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower pledged last night to stay "everlastingly" at the job of uprooting subversion and appealing for political unity on his legislative program...

In a nationwide television and radio address the President turned to the language of the atomic world and urged: "Let us have less political fission and more political fusion."

Who are we going to elect in 1956? "Eisenhower," the crowd roared back. The President grinned. The more immediate job of the citizens committee — organized in 1952 to woo Democratic and independent votes to the Eisenhower presidential banner — is to try to increase the November elections the slim margin by which the Republicans now control Congress.

The President's speech was his first full-scale plug for his legislative program since he announced June 3 that from then on he was going to use every possible opportunity to call for a speedup of congressional action on it. With less than two months to the July 31 adjournment target date, most of the program is still far from law. Eisenhower called it a program "essential to a stronger America," and he pleaded: "Let us, therefore, not rest until these laws are passed."

He was interrupted 32 times by applause with the biggest demonstrations coming when he:

1. Promised to "keep everlastingly" at the job of uprooting subversion wherever it may be found. He said he felt he was not being egotistical in saying "Every American believes that of me."

2. Declared with respect to his controversial plan to shift from rigid to flexible lower-level farm price supports that he is "completely unmoved by arguments as to what constitutes good or winning politics."

He touched off a round of laughter with his only allusion to the Army-McCarthy controversy: "In spite of highly publicized distractions Congress has been hard at work."

Then he ticked off progress on appropriations bills, highway construction legislation, tax cuts, approval of the St. Lawrence seaway project and ratification of a mutual security treaty with South Korea.

"But much still remains which is of vital importance to every American citizen," he declared.

Nat'l Park Roads Program Disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior McKay today announced details of the highway improvement program proposed for the national park system in the fiscal year starting July 1.

President Eisenhower this week asked Congress to approve a supplemental appropriation of $5,275,000.

The budget previously had proposed $4,225,000, which means an appropriation of $9,500,000 is now being sought.

McKay said approval of the supplemental appropriation would permit the department to carry out a 20-million-dollar construction program made possible by authority to enter contracts granted in the federal aid highway act of 1954.

He said the program would be divided equally between parkway construction projects and roads and trails in the parks.

The 10-million-dollar parkway program would include $2,854,200 for the Colonial Parkway in Virginia and $3,971,600 for the Blue Ridge Parkway in North Carolina and Virginia.

One portion of the Blue Ridge Parkway scheduled for construction at a cost of $1,828,800 would close an 18-mile gap in 108 miles of parkway by construction of 8 additional miles and several structures, including a tunnel to a connection with Virginia Route 130 and would reduce a detour from 25 to 5 miles.

Other proposed Blue Ridge projects are: a grade separation on Virginia Route No. 8 at Tuggles Gap at a cost of $100,000; a grade separation where the parkway crosses U. S. Route 60 at a cost of $175,000; $222,600 for completion of two projects in the vicinity of Blowing Rock, N.C., which were started this year to provide good public access to the Moses Cone Memorial Park; grading drainage and stone base, Wagon Road Gap to Beech Gap to complete the project; $205,000; grade separation North Carolina Route No. 181, $156,000; grade separation North Carolina Route No. 18, $125,000; Linville Falls spur, $300,000, to provide a suitable access to the falls; to eliminate dangerous conditions in tunnels and to correct a grade intersection, $144,000; to provide guardrail and guardrail at dangerous locations, $253,500; and for minor sanitation, welfare and safety projects at developed areas in both states such as Humpback Rocks Pioneer Exhibit Mabry Hill, Linville Falls, Crabtree Meadows, peaks of Otter and Craggy Gardens, $461,700.

Details of the Colonial Parkway proposal have been announced previously.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — A physician predicts that researchers soon will isolate an agent in tobacco tars that he says causes cancers.

Dr. Ernest L. Wynder, chief resident in medicine at Memorial Hospital in New York City, told a state health conference yesterday.

"I believe that within the not too distant future we shall have isolated this agent. We will then be able to remove it through different methods of manufacturing to tobacco or by filtering it out."

day's 15-state, closed-door conference on problems resulting from the Supreme Court's decision separation of the races in schools.

Most of the states indicated they will not file briefs, as the Supreme Court invited them to do, before the court issues its final decree, Georgia's Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook told reporters at the conclusion of

Governors Indicate Attorneys May Meet To Hunt Loopholes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The attorneys general of the Southern states may meet this summer in an effort to find legal loopholes that would permit the states to continue their traditional system of racial segregation in the public schools.

A suggestion for such a meeting was just about the most tangible thing that emerged from yesterday's five-hour conference. Governors of nine states and legal and educational representatives of six other states attended the meeting which was initiated by Virginia's Gov. Thomas B. Stanley. At the conclusion of the meeting Stanley read to newsmen this statement:

"It is recognized that the problems are ones requiring the decision of individual states and that a meeting of this kind can only be helpful in the exchange of information. The gravity of the situation in many of the states was emphasized but no conclusions were reached and no group course of action was proposed."

The governor of West Virginia, along with personal representatives of Maryland and Kentucky, stated they were not content with as serious a problem as some of the Southern states, and that it was their intention to conform with the decision of the court.

"The other states represented, eight by their governors, found more of a problem. The conference was most helpful and it has been suggested that the attorneys general consider holding a later meeting to discuss the situation in more detail from the legal viewpoint."

The states to which Stanley referred are North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Virginia.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge Sam J. Ervin Jr., of North Carolina became Sen. Ervin today.

About 100 relatives and friends looked on from the Senate gallery as he took the oath of office as a U. S. Senator. The husky, 57-year-old mountain lawyer resigned from the North Carolina Supreme Court to take the place of Sen. Clyde R. Hoey, who died last month. He is a Democrat as was Hoey.

Ervin's appointment by Gov. William B. Umstead runs until November when North Carolina voters will choose a Senator to serve the two years' remaining of Hoey's term. Ervin is expected to be a candidate.

Once before, in 1946, Ervin was appointed by a North Carolina governor to take the place of a member of Congress who had died.

That time he filled out the House term of his brother, Rep. Joe Ervin.

A special railroad car of Ervin's friends came with him from his hometown of Morganton. They breakfasted at the capitol. Later they joined many Tar Heels living here at a luncheon.

Mrs. Ervin, the former Margaret Bruce Bell of Concord, wore a spray of tawny brown orchids on her beige silk suit and matching shoes and a tiny rolled brim beige hat.

His sister, Jean, professor of speech at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, Conn., flew here for the ceremony.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee today ordered the Defense Department "to speed up its clearance of military and civilian security cases" as it approved a bill providing more than 29 billions of defense funds for the next fiscal year.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) manager for the biggest money bill, told reporters that the directive to coordinate all security and loyalty cases "results from several recent cases and the controversial McCarthy-Army investigations."

It's chiefly because of the delay in clearance for three midshipmen in the recent Naval Academy graduating class and the case of that dentist, Peress," Ferguson told reporters when asked the purpose of the directive.

The case of Maj. Irving Peress, dentist who was given an honorable discharge from the Army after refusing to answer questions in the Senate Investigations subcommittee's investigation of alleged subversion in the Army, has figured prominently in the hearings of the dispute between Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and Pentagon officials.

Ferguson said the committee report will ask the Defense Department to "coordinate all security clearance cases under a single official if possible."

He added that this official should stress two points: "First that the due process of law and rights of all individuals be respected.

"Second that the security of the United States government be protected."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) strode into the McCarthy-Army hearings today and gave Sen. McCarthy a note advising he would make a Senate speech about McCarthy this afternoon.

McCarthy read its invitation to be present and commented: "I don't have enough interest in any Flanders speech to listen to it."

McCarthy then demanded that Flanders, if he has any information about the McCarthy-Army controversy, "take the oath, raise your right hand."

And, if he has "nothing except the usual sneers... from the smear sheets" he should say it before the subcommittee conducting the hearing and not on the Senate floor.

Flanders was observing an unwritten Senate rule in this notification to McCarthy.

The custom is that a senator should give notice when he plans a speech about another senator so that the one attacked may be present and reply immediately if he desires.

McCarthy commented that when Flanders made a recent Senate speech attacking him he didn't have the courtesy to notify him in advance.

McCarthy appeared to be in a cold rage as he challenged Flanders to testify under oath if he had any information.

McCarthy made a gesture as if to step aside and let Flanders take his seat, but Acting Chairman Mundt (R-SD) intervened.

"We can't have this feuding," Mundt said.

McCarthy snapped that he was not feuding with Flanders.

He declared that he thought Flanders' speech about him last week was "not the result of viciousness, but because of senility."

Flanders' notice to McCarthy was short, saying "this is to inform you I plan to make another speech" on the Senate floor this afternoon concerning McCarthy's activities.

The Vermont senator stalked into the hearing room to deliver his notice as McCarthy was testifying under cross examination.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. McCarthy testified today he was being "completely facetious" when he told Secretary of the Army Stevens that Roy M. Cohn thought G. David Schine "should be a general and work from a penthouse of the Waldorf."

McCarthy, under cross examination in the Army-McCarthy hearings, said he was "ribbing" Stevens.

A monitored telephone conversation, introduced earlier in the hearings, disclosed that McCarthy made the statement to Stevens a few days after Schine was drafted into the Army on Nov. 3.

McCarthy also told Stevens that Cohn was "completely unreasonable" about Schine and that maybe Schine could be given weekend off from the Army "so his girls won't get too lonesome."

In explanation of this statement, McCarthy said Cohn, chief counsel to his investigations subcommittee, was insistent that Schine's help was needed in preparing subcommittee reports.

McCarthy said he himself felt Schine could wind up his committee work by spending a couple of weekends a month on the job.

"However, Roy was right," McCarthy said.

Schine, wealthy New Yorker and close friend of Cohn, was an unpaid consultant to the McCarthy subcommittee until he was drafted.

The McCarthy camp has contended Schine got weekend passes from Ft. Dix, N.J., only to complete important work for the subcommittee.

The Army has introduced evidence that on at least one weekend pass, Schine and Cohn had a dinner date with two girls.

Before going into the telephone call, Ray H. Jenkins, special counsel for the hearings, had questioned McCarthy as to whether he had been "lax" in not requiring Schine to complete his subcommittee work during the four months from July to November, when McCarthy knew Schine was to be drafted.

"Mr. Jenkins I heartily disagree with you," McCarthy responded to this suggestion. He said it was certainly "no favor" to Schine to allow him to work when other draftees were "out dancing, going to the recreation hall."

With the hearings in the 32nd day, they apparently were in the home stretch and set to wind up without calling Schine for his full story. The Republican majority of the investigations group voted last night to wind up with McCarthy, Cohn, and Francis P. Carr, staff director of the McCarthy subcommittee, as final witnesses. This could bring an end next week to the televised hearings.

After this vote the Board voted to approve the final plat showing the portion of the subdivision now laid out in lots, with the provision that future development would show a park area. This vote also is subject to the area being zoned as residential.

Other Business After some discussion on the need of a good and permanent filing system the Board voted to ask the City Council for a $500 budget for the coming year.

Prior to adjourning the Board voted to ask the new Zoning Commission to meet with the Planning Board at the next regular meeting to discuss street setback lines.

The four Board members present last night were: Chairman Little, Rivers, Ruffin, Swartz.

Army-McCarthy Investigation May Close Next Week End Of Hearing In Sight

North Greenville's New Water Tank In Service

GREENVILLE (AP) — Greenville Utilities Commission's new 300,000 gallon water tank located in North Greenville began filling with water yesterday and is expected to be in service today.

Putting the tank into operation this week is a little ahead of schedule, according to Martin Swartz, Utilities Consultant. Swartz said the painters finished work on the tank sooner than anticipated. It was reported earlier this week the tank would probably be in operation the first of next week.

Upon putting this tank into operation, fire protection in North Greenville is greatly improved. Swartz pointed out pressure in that area is better. With this tank the fire equipment here can operate at full pressure much longer because of the vast amount in the big tank. Also mains replace the water in the tank at the rate of 500 gallons per minute when it is being used for fire.

Now that the new tank, which cost in the vicinity of $75,000, is in operation Greenville has 1,200,000 gallons of water "in the air." This is an ample amount for the city at the present time, Swartz stated.

The Utilities Commission has four 300,000 gallon tanks in four different sections of the city now.

U.S. Officials Concerned Over New Political Crisis In France

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. officials are deeply concerned over the political crisis developing in the French government. They fear it will have a further paralyzing effect on Allied efforts to halt the Communists in Southeast Asia.

For the fact which stands out in connection with the diplomatic-military campaign which the Communists are relentlessly pressing is this: while the Allies are held to the council table at Geneva, cope with political controversy in Paris and generally debate the conditions for action on Indochina, the Red high command gives every evidence of pressing for a decision on the battlefield.

One Western diplomat put it this way: "There has been a lot of discussion between the United States and France about training Vietnamese troops, but by the time they get it all settled the Vietnamese may not be there to train defense of Hanoi. Efforts to arrange some kind of base for longer term operations against the spread of Communist control in Southeast Asia are virtually paralyzed.

It is in this connection the French government vote of confidence tomorrow is of great significance.

If the Laniel regime is overthrown, it will remain as a caretaker government until a new administration is formed. But a caretaker government can carry on only day-to-day operations. It cannot make basic policy decisions. Thus, in that situation the French delegation at Geneva presumably would be unable either to make an armistice or to quit the conference. France could carry on the war but questions of vital importance concerned with such questions as re-enforcement would be impossible.

All the evidence indicates there is no American plan to intervene with armed forces in behalf of the

Elsie May, Julian D. Mason Jr. United In Double Ring Rites

FARMVILLE — Peabody College students, Miss Elsie May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wooten May of Farmville, and Julian Dewey Mason Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mason of Williamston, were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon in a double ring ceremony at the Farmville Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Edwin S. Coates, the bride's pastor, officiated at the four o'clock service performed in the church. The altar table held an arrangement of white gladioli and ferns and was flanked by floor standards of candelabra in which lighted tapers burned.

Mrs. William G. Arnold of Williamston organist, presented nuptial selections. Elbert Holmes, baritone soloist who sang at the wedding of the bride's parents in 1926, rendered "O Perfect Love" Barnby, before the ceremony and sang "Wedding Prayer," Dunlap, afterwards.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length white diamond-patterned cotton dress made by Tom Ella. The strapless bodice over which was worn a short jacket trimmed on the sleeves with lace medallions, sprinkled with seed pearls. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle was attached to a tiny ran covered with lace medallions and trimmed with seed pearls. She wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom, and carried a white orchid, which centered sprays of English ivy.

As maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth May, sister of the bride, wore a white pique dress made with eight-gored skirt and a lavender bodice covered with white lace. The bridesmaids were Misses Ann Shaw of Red Springs and Mary Kathryn Charles of Winston-Salem, classmates of the bride at Flora Macdonald College. Their dresses were similar to the maid of honor's, except green bodices were used under white lace.

The attendants carried bouquets of mixed summer flowers, tied with ribbons to match colors of the brides.

Best man was J. D. Mason Sr., the groom's father. Ushers were Milo L. Gibbs of Washington, the groom's cousin; Leitch Patterson of Maxton and Co-

DR. ED. HIRSHBERG

Vacation reading is dealt with in considerable detail in this week's New York Times Book Review, which provides "A Check List of the Year's Outstanding Books" consisting of 125 titles to help you pick out the ones you will want to help you while away the weary hours on the beach.

As the two best novels published so far in 1954, Orville Prescott, of the Times book review staff, picks "The Dollmaker," by Harriette Arnow, and "The Night of the Hunter," by Davis Grubb. Both are best sellers, but not at the top of the list. . . . And among non-fiction, prominent titles are "The Rebel," by Albert Camus, "The Measure of Man," by Joseph Wood Krutch, "The Journey," by Lillian Smith, and E. B. White's book of essays "The Second Tree From the Corner." These should keep you occupied for those two weeks at least, especially if it rains. . . .

Of interest to southern readers is news of the forthcoming novel by the sage of Yoknapatawpha County (we think we've spelled it wrong), Mississippi, William Faulkner. He will call it simply "A Fable," and it deals with the unknown soldier in World War I. We understand he has been at work on it for ten years, which seems pretty long to wait. . . . Another southern novelist, Hamilton Basso, born and raised in New Orleans, also will publish a new one soon—to be called "The View From Pompey's Head." That's all we know about it, too.

Perhaps the best series of paperbacks, from the point of view of literary value, is the Doubleday editions that are sold under the name Anchor Books, which have sold 600,000 copies during their first year of publication. Considering the titles, this is a truly remarkable sale. Outstanding for their circulation as well as their quality are "The Lonely Crowd," by David Reisman, "Lafcadio's Adventure," by Andre Gide, and D.H. Lawrence's "Studies in Classic American Literature." Seven new Anchors are appearing on July 1, all of them excellent books by first class authors. . . .

Nature lovers will be interested in a new book just published by Hanover House called "An Introduction to Trees," by John Kieran, "Information Please" fame. . . . In addition to everything else, he apparently knows all about nature too—he has previously written "An Introduction to Birds" and "An Introduction to Wild Flowers." The birds, the trees and the flowers—what next, Mr. Kieran? . . .

And gardeners will want to know about "Animal Control in Field, Farm and Forest: A Comprehensive, Practical Guide to the Control of Injurious Mammals," by W. Robert Eadie, just issued by MacMillan. It's aimed at householders, gardeners, farmers and the like, and brings together much hitherto scattered information about how to eliminate or otherwise control harmful animals, from bats and beavers to wolves and woodchucks.

On the local scene: The Joyner Library at the College has now emerged in all its glory, or part of it, anyway. Summer school students are using the reading rooms, and most of the books have been transferred from the old building. . . . We congratulate Head Librarian Wendell Smiley and his staff on a hard job well done, and wish them well in their new and beautiful quarters. . . .

Dr. E.D. Johnson, Associate Librarian at the College, holds forth again this Sunday over WGTN, doing his usual weekly book chat. His subject: "The Communist Plan of World Conquest." . . . And the college program over TV at one o'clock Sunday afternoon will be on religious aspects of college teaching. Master of Ceremonies will be Dean Leo Jenkins. Dr. George Patti of the Social Studies Department will be in charge. . . .

We'd like to mention the current issue of "Young Wings," the magazine put out by the Junior Literary Guild, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary this month. . . . The oldest book club for children, the Junior Literary Guild sponsors the circulation of good books for children from 7 years old on up. On the Editorial Board are Mrs. F.D. Roosevelt and Angelo Patri, renowned authority on child psychology, among others. . . . Despite TV and the comics, the Guild is an up and coming organization, and holds out some hope that there is still a chance for our children to develop well-rounded intellectual lives. . . .

Speaking of Literary Guilds, this week's review concerns the current Guild selection, and is written by Laura Credie, E.C.C. student and an authoress herself of no mean talents. . . .

Waiting Makes It More Difficult

The importance to the Free World, and the United States, of keeping Indochina free from Communist control has been stated and re-stated time and again.

It's worth fighting for, seems the consensus of many if not most military leaders; yet, only half-measures are undertaken toward that end.

France has not publicly called for outside military intervention or assistance. Willing enough to accept quantities of weapons, munitions and supplies; but unable to devote the full attention of government and military resources to the conflict.

It's Still Up To The Human Race

Just suppose . . . the Little Girl Who Wrote The Martians had her letter answered by a delegation of creatures from Mars, and these visitors set about fulfilling a childish wish: "What business I am writing about is to stop the earth people from fighting. All they have is war, war, war, and I'm getting tired of it, so be here."

Sobering, isn't it, to have so tiny a critic call to the stars for help in setting her world aright! Such an imaginative little girl too, to have addressed her plea to "the Martians" as the only outside physical force she could conceive to fulfill so big an order.

Accepting the fact there are millions of people whose lives have known only war or the cloud or fear of war, we cannot imagine the people of the world docilely accepting a social order for peace imposed by interplanetary visitors.

The human race seems bent on running its own course, seeking peace even if we must knock each other's brains out to find it. Outside intervention is never welcome in a family quarrel; and the peoples of the world would presumably react violently against the interference of angels or BEMs (science-fiction term for bug-eyed monsters.)

No; Man's destiny is for himself to work out. However he blunders . . . and makes life miserable for grown-ups and children. It's still Man's battle, and no one else's.

Strength for the Day

In conversation recently with a young author who has just published his first novel, I remarked that at the present time we seem in this country to be experiencing a moral decline. He was not too sure that the decline really existed, but he was sure that in some fields we have reached new lows. He offered it as his opinion that the most serious delinquency today is the utter ignorance of some people regarding the existence of any standards of right and wrong. This state of affairs has always existed among criminals, but it is shocking to realize that frequently today people who have been brought up in good homes have no other standard of conduct save what appears to them to be personal advantage. If a thing is pleasant, if it contributes to their comfort, if it makes money, if it causes them to be well thought of by the majority of people, then it is right. William James, who was truly a great philosopher and one of the outstanding moralists of modern times, would turn over in his grave if he realized the extent to which his philosophy of pragmatism is being used to justify any conduct in which anyone cares at any time to indulge. If a thing works—that is if it appears to the advantage of the person who does it—then some people believe that this is right, no matter how much it violates long accepted moral principles.

But more eternal than the hills are the eternal verities on which human conduct rests.

National Whirligig

Self-Supporting, Or Financed

WASHINGTON—The American Congress must soon determine whether the expanding commercial aviation industry shall become a self-supporting operation or continue to be financed by flying and non-flying passengers. And powerful lobbies are fighting President Eisenhower's demand for economy in this field, which has drawn $1 billion from Uncle Sam's till since World War II and still receives $140,000,000 annually.

One week ago, a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee agreed with the House in clipping $33,000,000 in outright subsidies from two great international carriers—Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines. The House Appropriations Committee had reduced the grant by $50,000,000, but $17,000,000 restored through a floor amendment backed by the lobby. There will also be a Senate move to cut out this $17,000,000, with a total saving of $50,000,000.

FIGHT AGAINST GRANT REDUCTION—Juan Trippe's Pan Am has now mobilized a formidable array of Republican and Democratic politicians, including former Cabinet members and Congressmen, to block the economy move. He seeks to persuade the full Appropriations Committee or the Senate itself to retain the $17,000,000 and restore the $33,000,000. It is thus a $50,000,000 enterprise.

They have brought heaviest pressure against Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia. With Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Kilgore has been the chief advocate of economy and reform in commercial aviation. With more efficient management and fewer luxuries, he contends that the international carriers can exist without $140,000,000 a year in subsidies and mail pay.

Pan Am has politically influential figures in Kilgore's state. It pays an annual $18,000 retainer to the law firm headed by Louis A. Johnson, former Secretary of Defense. Former Representative Jennings Randolph is an officer in a feeder line, which fears it may be hurt by the proposed cut. Both are regular West Virginia Democrats.

And unwilling, too, to relinquish responsibility for preserving that important segment of Southeast Asia from Communist domination.

We think it most obvious that while the French and Viet Nam military prospects are darkening, those of Red-led Vietnam are steadily improving. Once a hit-and-run guerrilla army of uncertain leadership, the Vietminh can now boast a well-equipped field army that heavily outnumber forces arrayed against them. Furthermore, they possess now the advantage of being on the offensive.

In this country, it seems that responsible leadership is timorous of advocating resolute action to defeat the Vietminh and their Peiping underwriters. The memory of making a political football out of Korea is not a pleasant one for those facing today's situation; and knowledge of the price Americans would have to pay is another deterrent to taking belligerent steps. Nobody likes that prospect.

Still, Southeast Asia "must" be kept from falling to the Communists. Is it worth the price we know will have to be paid? If so, then there should be an end to the Free World's half-hearted measures. The longer France puts off an outright appeal for real assistance, the more difficult it will be to make that help effective.

Personal Records That Belong To The Nation

Disclosures the British Imperial War Museum has asked Field Marshal Lord Montgomery to give it the historic document of German surrender at Luneburg, May 4, 1945, points up a corresponding peculiarity we have noted in recent American history.

Here too, we have seen presidents and generals retain as personal papers great documentary records of national importance.

This is not fit and proper, we are certain. Letters, records and documents involving the presidency, or a military figure acting in the service of his country, are not properly private property.

The presidency is an office . . . not a man . . . not Franklin Roosevelt, nor Harry Truman, nor Dwight Eisenhower; rather, it is the administrative position instead of an individual which can properly claim responsibility and ownership of papers that pertain to the record of achievements and problems of the times.

Nor should exalted military responsibility carry with itself the right to keep as personal files those precious and irreplaceable records such as those said possessed by Marshal Montgomery, or our own General Douglas MacArthur. In the end, such documents are the official records of works and accomplishments of men chosen as stewards of a national undertaking.

The means for preserving and filing such records, as well as a positive regulation for their ultimate disposition should be high in the minds of lawmakers, both in Britain and here at home.

A Little Late Isn't It?

Somebody Told Me

Science Helps Appearances

If you would ask me to name the 10 people in Greenville most interested in their work I would put Miss Billie Carr of Ridgeway's Opticians near the top of the list. Mention glasses to her and she'll fill you in on any facts you want to know.

Yesterday I found out what it is to be propped. Pro-rop is short for prosopoc chromatic analysis, which means analyzing a person's face to determine what would be best for him in the way of glasses, appearance wise.

Greenville's analysts are Billie, Ted Ashworth, and Franklin Redman. When a person comes in for glasses they immediately whip out a diagram that shows a perfect face. Then, with red crayon they begin to sketch on the diagram the variations in the features of the patient.

The text that is used as a guide for prosopoc analysis would amaze you. It gives examples of various characteristics of the human face and shows what can be done to detract from the unsatisfactory features and emphasize the outstanding ones.

While the analysts are sketching on the diagram they are noticing the weak and strong points of the face. For example, if a woman's mouth is tilted to one side frames may be supplied with ornamentation on the side to detract from the shape of the mouth and in a manner of speaking pull the mouth up on the sagging end.

Naturally you don't have to discuss the weak points of a person's face with them. Billie said to me, "Jack, I don't have to tell you what's wrong with your face; you already know it. The same applies to every patient."

Men are just as interested in pro-sopping as women. Billie says, "And patients really appreciate it."

What Other Editors Are Thinking

NON-COMMUNIST MEXICO BEING USED AS BASE BY COMMUNIST ORGANIZERS (Charlotte Observer)

When and if the foreign ministers of the American republics finally decide to call the Organ of Consultation to consider communism in Central America, they should not confine their discussions to Guatemala.

That small country is only a beachhead—though a dangerous one—of communism in this hemisphere. Some of its chief support is coming from Mexico, and the brains of the infiltration movement is the so-called Mexican labor leader, Lombardo Toledano.

Mexico, therefore, has become most the headquarters of this conspiracy. Toledano has been granted a diplomatic passport, and he makes frequent trips to the Latin countries, always working to infiltrate the labor unions. His plan seems to be to get control of the unions in the oil fields of Venezuela, the tin mines of Bolivia, and the nitrate and copper mines of Chile.

All of this is being done quietly. The Communists are biding their time, because they do not want to show their strength too early. When the orders come from Moscow, however, the strikes would be called, and the United States would be cut off from vital supplies of oil, tin, nitrates and copper.

Although the cabinet of President Ruiz Cortines of Mexico contains no Communists, it has several "neutralists." It was Mexico that took the neutralist attitude toward Secretary of State Dulles' anti-Communist resolution at Caracas. These neutralists permit infiltration by Communists if they do not aid and abet it. And it was former President Cardenas of Mexico who sent a message of sympathy to the Guatemalan Communists, and it is he who is chairman of the Society of Friends of Guatemala, an extreme leftist, if not actually Communist, organization.

The Soviet Embassy in Mexico City is so absurdly overstuffed that the obvious purpose of this excessive personnel is to aid the plot of infiltration in Latin America.

Mexico is not yet Communist, but the groundwork for taking it over in an emergency or a period of confusion is being laid according to a familiar pattern. It would be uncomfortable for the United States to have 2,000 miles of almost open border with a Soviet satellite.

Planning For Cities

By ELMER ROESSNER
American cities have had their industrial areas for years—the gas house districts and the gloomy piles down by the pickle works. These have been such an integral part of the structure of so many cities it is difficult to realize most of them just grew.

A river, harbor, highway, railroad—or even the prevailing direction of local winds—have been determining factors in most industrial locations. Residents have been left to arrange themselves around the mills. If one couldn't stand the noise of a stamping machine or the aroma of an abattoir he could move, couldn't he?

The idea of planning industrial areas is not new. The Eisenhower Administration makes no claim of invention, and the idea can be traced back to 1885. But much to foster the idea is being done now by the Area Development Division of the Office of Technical Services in the Department of Commerce—or the ADD, OTS, USDC, to show the Republican alphabeticals are no different from their Democratic predecessors.

Here, as in so many Commerce activities, the weapons are jawbones and printer's ink. The ADD can't tell any city it must plan an industrial area. But when local groups feel things are getting out of hand, the ADD can offer talk and printed matter.

There are some modern fillips to the old idea of industrial areas. Planning is a prerequisite. Inbound and outbound transportation facilities must be planned; so must be access for workers. Latter day considerations include adequate parking, setbacks to eliminate grim industrial canyons, landscaping and enough organization so that plants that feed on one another can be located close together.

Modern thinking is influenced even more by the expansion of industry. It is impossible to relocate old industrial districts, but new plants—created by industrial expansion and the forced trend toward dispersal—can be placed where they can best serve each other and the community and, in turn, be served best.

The ADD can tell cities what others have done, notably Dallas, Los Angeles, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Hazelton, Pottsville, Chicago and Kansas City. The ADD has data on districts in 84 communities. Strangely, only 9 per cent are city enterprises. Railroads have developed 38 per cent; real estate men and promoters have brought forth 25 per cent; industrial foundations have created 5 per cent; and chambers of commerce 3 per cent. The rest have multiple sponsorship.

If your community needs an assist, write to the ADD, OTS, USDC, Washington 25, D.C. Tell them Roessner sent you.

WHO'S WHO IN FIGHT
Much is being said about discount houses. To keep one thing straight, neither Better Business Bureau nor the Federal Trade Commission are "against" discount houses.

When discount houses use come-ons or other traps, BBB's are ag'in 'em; when discount houses violate Federal Trade laws, the FTC will act. But when discount houses abide by Marquis of McCarthy rules, BBB's and the FTC have no quarrel. In fact, employees of both patronize them.

15-10-52 PLAN SELLS CARS;
WHY NOT WHAT YOU HAVE?

The Illinois Federation of Retail Associations has bulletined members about a "15-10-5-2" sales-making plan. An auto agency requires each salesman to send out 15 postcards a day to prospects, to make 10 phone calls to potential customers, ring five doorbells in search of new prospects, and to make at least one surprise demonstration. The program has doubled sales for the agency and the Federation thinks it can be adapted to many other lines.

He Now Hunts Schoolteachers

By HAL BOYLE
WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—The man who organized the Berlin and Korean airlifts has a new supply problem now—finding schoolteachers.

Practically every community school board in America shares the plight of Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, commander of the rapidly growing United States Air Forces in Europe.

"One of our big problems is getting schoolteachers over here," said the big, graying, 47-year-old officer, who is responsible for the air protection of 35 countries in Europe, Africa and Asia.

"We now have 11,000 dependent children in school in our area, and next semester we will have 15,000. That means we require 500 teachers for some 51 elementary and eight high schools in this command. They aren't easy to find."

Any adventurous girl back home with a teaching diploma and a yearning for foreign travel will find a sympathetic listener in the general right now.

His USAFE command has grown from 15,000 men in the spring of 1950 to 80,000. It now represents a fifth of the entire American Air Force, and its basic mission is to guard the skies over an area of 17 million square miles nearly six times the size of the United States. On the combat readiness of his vast force Gen. Tunner confines himself to this crisp estimate:

"We expect to be able to minimize a Soviet attack if it comes." The lives and homes of millions, perhaps the whole pattern of the free world itself, hang largely on the accuracy of this estimate if zero hour ever comes. But Tunner isn't a general whose career has been marked by idle complacency.

"I don't feel we underestimate the capability of any possible enemy," he observed dryly in a briefing delivered to 42 former war correspondents who are making a tour of European danger zones.

His command has no strategic bombers now nested on vulnerable bases of continental Europe itself, and it has pulled all but two of its tactical air units back west of the Rhine.

It also is engaged in the gigantic task of ferrying millions of tons of valuable war material back from dumps east of the Rhine to great depths deep in France, thus lessening the possibility of losing them to surprise enemy ground and air blows.

But operating a huge air force is a much more complex job than just getting airplanes and training men to fly them.

Bases have to be built. Housing, educational, entertainment and recreational facilities must be provided to keep up the morale of American airmen and their families.

Over all hangs the endless task that faces even the simplest housewife: how to spend the available money wisely—or, as Tunner puts it: "The challenge to get the most out of what we've got."

The general is noted as a thrifty operator. Some months ago he moved his headquarters out of 33 high-rise buildings in the center of Wiesbaden and into an old German army barracks on the outskirts of the city. The cost of modernizing the barracks was paid by the German government.

Housing has been a recurrent headache. Some 11,000 additional housing units are badly needed. Tunner is trying to solve this by encouraging private builders in each country to erect dwelling areas near new airfields. In return, he guarantees them 95 per cent rental occupancy for at least five years.

This attempt to save the American taxpayer's construction costs has run into some snags, particularly in France. Because the airfields are usually out in the country, far from settled areas, private builders have been reluctant to invest their capital. As an emergency measure Tunner is providing low coast portable trailer camps.

Some Facts On North Carolina's Segregated Schools

By LYNN NISBET

SCHOOLS—The latest issue of "North Carolina Facts" is devoted to analysis of the distribution of White and Negro pupils, teachers and school houses in each of the 100 counties.

For the State as a whole the total average daily attendance in the public schools for the year 1952-53 was 892,667 of which 29.6 per cent was Negro. There were 30,100 school teachers of whom 27.6 per cent were Negro. Of the 3,234 school houses 35.9 per cent were for Negroes. In other words 29.6 per cent of the pupils, had 27.6 per cent of the teachers, and occupied 35.9 per cent of the school houses. Further interpreted, that indicates smaller plants and larger teacher loads among the Negroes than for the whites.

In value of school property the Negro plants represented 19.7 per cent of the total, while in operating expenses they took 26.7 per cent of the total. In average monthly salaries the Negro teachers fared better than the whites, but when per pupil cost is figured the influence of larger classes and smaller buildings makes the comparison of $161.87 for each white pupil and $140.09 for each Negro.

Five States have a larger percentage of Negro enrollment than does North Carolina. They are Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina. The District of Columbia has the heaviest Negro percentage in the country, more than 87 per cent. (The comparison is made only for the 17 States and District of Columbia where segregation has been practiced. In the other States no distinction is made among the races.)

COUNTIES—The table published by "Facts" showing the breakdown of North Carolina counties has some interesting information. There are three counties which have no Negro schools or pupils—Clay, Graham and Mitchell. Ashe and Avery have slightly more than one percent, while Madison, Swain and Yancey have less than one percent Negro enrollment. These are mountain counties bordering on Tennessee.

EXCESS—Nineteen counties have an excess of Negro enrollment, that is more than 50 per cent, and thirteen counties have more Negro teachers than white. Warren has the largest percentage of Negro enrollment with 73.3 per cent; Northampton follows with 70.9 per cent, and Hertford has 68.8 per cent. The other counties with more than half the school attendance Negro are: Anson, Bertie, Caswell, Edgecombe, Gates, Granville, Greene, Halifax, Hoke, Hyde, Martin, Pender, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrrell and Vance. Franklin is given an exact 50-50 break.

Greene, Hyde, Martin, Pender, Pitt and Vance with more than half the enrollment Negro have slightly more white teachers. Jones county, with a small excess of white enrollment has two more Negro than white teachers. It is noted that except for Anson and Caswell all the counties with excess Negro enrollment are east of Wake, and except for Dare (6.7 per cent) and Carteret (17.6 per cent) all the counties with less than 20 percent Negro pupils are west of Guilford.

DIFFICULTY—This wide discrepancy in distributed population on racial basis is one of the reasons it is so hard to find a common ground for thinking on the segregation issue. It is understandable that West Virginia with less than 6 per cent of its school population Negro might have a different approach from that taken by Mississippi with 50 per cent, or by North Carolina with nearly 30 per cent Negro enrollment.

And in North Carolina it is unreasonable to expect the people in Clay, Graham and Mitchell counties which have no Negroes at all in public schools to react like the folks in Warren and Northampton where there are approximately three times as many Negro as white pupils; or like the people of Robeson county where Indians outnumber whites and Negroes combined in school enrollment.

EQUALITY—It cannot be contended that when 29.6 per cent of the pupils have 27.6 per cent of the teachers and 19.7 per cent of the school property there is "equality." Nor can it be contended that when these 27.6 per cent of the teachers get about 28.5 per cent of all the money paid for teacher salaries that these 29.6 per cent of pupils got approximately 38 per cent of all the State money spent for school buildings during the past five years. Comparison of total facilities for white and colored school children in North Carolina is bound to show advantage for the whites.

What may be of more significance is that the record of the past ten years in State provided teacher salaries and physical facilities shows a distinct advantage for the colored people. Admittedly the trend was long delayed and for nearly 50 years after the "separate but equal" edict of the Supreme Court in 1896 very little was done to conform to the spirit of that opinion. Within the last ten years a great deal has been

Amos Denounces Intemperance

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Busscher

Scripture—Amos 2:6-12; 4:1-2; 6.

Jehovah, through His prophet Amos, reminded the children of the kingdom of Israel that He had raised up prophets and "Nazarites; and ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink, and commanded the prophets saying, prophesy not."

Woe to those who "lie upon beds of ivory, and stretch themselves upon their couches, and eat the lambs out of the flock; that chant to the sound of the viol and drink wine in bowls, and are not grieved for the affliction of Joseph."

Woe to them that "are at ease in Zion, and trust in the mountain of Samaria, which are named chief of the nations. . . Ye that put far away the evil day, and cause the seat of violence to come near," warned the prophet.

"Therefore now shall they go captive with the first that go captive, and the banquet of them that stretched themselves shall be removed," said the Lord God of hosts.

MEMORY VERSE—Romans 13:13.

Amos Denounces Intemperance

HE WARNS ISRAEL THAT ITS SINS WILL BRING GOD'S JUDGMENT

Scripture—Amos 2:6-12; 4:1-2; 6.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. INTEMPERANCE, which is such a terrible problem today, was also rampant in the kingdom of Israel, when Amos was Jehovah's prophet, 2,700 years ago. What can be done to combat the excessive drinking of men, women, even teen-agers? Other so-called "social sins" for which Amos chided his people, are also with us of the modern world. The very poor still live in slum areas, often charged exorbitant rents for hovels by greedy landlords. However, in our country even the "lower income groups" have more of this world's goods, generally speaking, than in any other land, but the poor we still have with us. In the second chapter of Amos, the prophet sets forth some of the sins that will bring down punishment from Jehovah on His people. "Because they sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of shoes. And they laid themselves down upon clothes laid to pledge by every altar, and they drink the wine of the condemned in the house of their God." A poor man might sell himself, but if he did his master must ing of the sins of which the Israelites were guilty. "The Lord God hath sworn by His holiness, that, lo, the days shall come upon you, that He will take you away with hooks, and your posterity with fishhooks." This refers to fish that are caught by hooks and must mean that these sinners were to be taken away into captivity in the most humiliating manner. "And I raised up of your sons for prophets, and of your young men for Nazarites. But ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink; and commanded the prophets, saying, prophesy not." The Nazarite vow called for abstinence from wine made by fermentation, and was a sacred vow to God, but these young men were given wine to drink, and the prophets whom Jehovah had chosen were told not to prophesy. They did so nevertheless, but at their peril. "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion, and trust in the mountain of Samaria, which are named chief of the house of Israel." These were the notable men of the nation who seemed perfectly indifferent to the sins of their not treat him like a slave but as a hired servant, according to the law. The shoes spoken of were sandals, consisting of a leather sole fastened to the foot by straps. "The garments were the outer garments that Orientals use not only during the day, but also during the night. Indeed, the poor have almost no other bedding. It was, therefore, but humane that, as the earliest code known to the Hebrews provided, whenever a poor man had been obliged to pawn his cloak it should always be returned to him at night." Amos accuses the usurers in Israel with disregarding this humane provision, even of spreading the garments of the poor on their couches at religious feasts. Thus were the poor shamelessly disregarded in the name of religion. Wine was an essential of some religious feasts, and the wine was purchased by fines—sometimes by fines unjustly imposed. Amos calls these drinkers of the wine, "Kine of Bashan, that are in the mountain of Samaria, which oppress the poor, which crush the needy, which say to their masters, Bring, and let us drink." I have quoted from the commentary to the lesson which is taken from the writing of H. G. Mitchell, to better the understanding. people or to their responsibilities toward them. "Ye that put far away the evil day, and cause the seat of violence to come near; That lie upon beds of ivory, and stretch themselves upon their couches, and eat the lambs out of the flock, and the calves out of the midst of the stall; "That chant to the sound of the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of music, like David; that drink wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments: but they are not grieved for the affliction of Joseph. "Therefore now shall they go captive, and the banquet of them that stretched themselves shall be removed." Thus Amos chided and warned his people of what was to come, but they heeded him not, and eventually his prophecies came true. The younger children may be asked about their school activities or things that happen in the playground, such as cheating at lessons, being unkind to playmates; not sharing fairly the play equipment provided for all to enjoy. The older ones may well discuss today's growing juvenile delinquency and also the tendency to drinking among their own sets.

Marshall Islanders Fear They Will Lose Home Lagoons In H-Bomb Test

Editor's Note — The March 1 explosion of the hydrogen bomb injured Japanese fishermen and showered radioactive ash upon three atolls charted as safe. The Associated Press sent correspondent William J. Waugh to the Marshall Islands to get the residents' views. Today's article tells of the feelings underlying the appeal of the "poisoned people" to the United Nations. The story was delayed by censorship in the U. S. Defense and State departments and Atomic Energy Commission.

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
MAJURO, MARSHALL ISLANDS, May 29 (AP)—There was a certain eloquence to the letter. Dwight Heine dropped it in the mailbox here April 22 and sent it winging across the 7,500 miles between these coral islands and the glass and stone headquarters of the United Nations.

The letter was signed by parliamentary representatives of the citizens of the Marshall Islands. It said: "We feel that we must follow the dictates of our consciences to bring forth this urgent plea to the United Nations. We request that all the experiments with lethal weapons within this area be immediately ceased."

If these experiments are "absolutely necessary for the eventual well-being of all the people of the world," then it urged better precautionary measures and adequate compensation for uprooted citizens.

The Marshall Islands, scene of U. S. atomic experiments, are occupied by the United States under a trusteeship from the United Nations. With a population of 11,000, the islands are a group of low-lying atolls. All residents of Bikini and Eniwetok atolls were removed from them several years ago so atomic tests could go forward.

Then, in the March 1 test of the hydrogen bomb, 45 persons on Rongelap Atoll suffered radiation burns from falling ash. The 236 residents of Rongelap and Utrik atolls were evacuated on a temporary basis.

The Marshallese are scared. But after talking with them for 10 days, I feel they are most concerned lest the atomic tests force them to lose their home lagoons.

They put the gist of their fears and hopes into the petition they sent to the United Nations in April. Committee of the U. N. Trusteeship Council late in June.

"We spent a month working on it," said Heine spokesman for the committee that originated it. "We purposely did not let Mr. Neas (Maynard Neas, acting district administrator) or other Americans know about it. We were afraid they would get into trouble."

Heine was on a trust territory ship at Kwajalein the day of the hydrogen explosion. "Water around the ship seemed to shake," he said. "There were several explosions that went 'wham wham'."

The ship arrived at Utrik next day. "We were met by many canoes," Heine reported. "The first question they asked was 'Is there a war on?'"

The people said they saw something like flames or shooting stars but too low to be shooting stars. They said children cried and hid in the bush.

Heine later learned that Rongelap and Utrik atolls had been contaminated. He began, with other native leaders, to work on the protest.

Heine is superintendent of the Marshall Island schools. He and Alan Anlen, a teacher, were chief draftsmen of the petition.

"I taxed me and Alan to write it," said Heine. "We worked every day for nearly a month. We would meet with other Marshallese and put down their ideas. Then we would make a rough draft."

"I thought we had too many 'dangers' in it. So I looked through the dictionary and decided on 'lethal.'"

Heine is 35, with dark skin and bushy hair. He went to mission schools, and worked for the U. S. Navy as a guide and interpreter in World War II.

"We like the Americans," Heine declared. "We petitioned Congress with 2,000 names to have you (the United States) stay here."

He says the petition implies no lack of confidence in the trust territory government—that Americans here felt responsible for what happened March 1.

This was borne out by Neas, the acting district administrator, who commented: "I believe officials of the nuclear tests should have given adequate and timely information to the natives so they could protect themselves. To my knowledge this was not done."

There is no question that in dealing with the unforeseen trouble at Rongelap and Utrik a magnificent job was done by all hands—the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, the joint task force, the trust territory government and Kwajalein Naval Air Station.

But why wasn't the possibility foreseen? Actually it was, and when it happened the trouble was quickly detected. As ABC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss announced, the "detonation was larger than expected." It spread over a much wider area as a result. Then a sudden shift in high-altitude winds carried the radioactivity in an unexpected direction.

The weather man, that night of March 1, gave Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson, task force commander, the first tip that something had gone awry.

The next day planes landed at the affected atolls and scientists decided all natives and military personnel must be evacuated. A destroyer completed the evacuation in two days, taking the people to Kwajalein for medical assistance and maintenance.

Besides the natives, 28 U. S. military personnel on Rongerik Atoll—between Rongelap and Utrik—were exposed. All those affected are recovering without serious consequences, officials say.

Since the March 1 detonation two additional tests have been announced—with no significant fallout of radioactive material on inhabited areas. The 1954 series of tests is over.

At the U. N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. has voiced the assurance that American authorities "are doing everything possible to prevent any recurrence of possible danger."

But even that cannot restore the residents of Rongelap to their native soil for at least a year—until it is considered safe. The people of Bikini and Eniwetok may never see their atolls again, and Heine says the Bikinians have not been compensated for loss of their lagoon. How much was it worth?

Mrs. Dorothy Kabua, queen of the Majuro Atoll, replied in Marshallese and Heine tried to give a literal translation: "Hard estimate. Islands grow coconuts breadfruit. The reef has fish. The island home for birds. Lagoon gives many, many years life."

Mrs. Kabua was one of two Marshallese who went to the U. N. last year as representatives of the islanders. This year the State Department said there were no funds for such a trip, Heine said, adding: "It is our desire to have a representative there. It would be advantageous to the United States especially if Russia accuses America of using our people like guinea pigs for experiments. After all, we are an ally and not an enemy."

The Marshallese are a friendly and practical people. They recognize that the nuclear tests may have to continue. If that is the case, says Heine, "our petition outlines satisfactory alternatives."

These include "all possible precautionary steps," education in safety measures and adequate compensation for loss of goods or lands.

"Land means a great deal to the Marshallese," says the petition to the U. N. "It means more than just a place where you can plant your food crops and build your houses; or a place where you can bury your dead. It is the very life of the people. Take away their land and their spirits go also."

What Is 'The Record Of Sam Whitehurst?

In the Daily Reflector of May 27th, 1954, this question was asked. I would like to take this opportunity to answer this question, and to present a true picture of my record as Sheriff of Pitt County from 1926 to 1938. The following facts are a matter of Public Record on file in the Pitt County Court House in Greenville.

For six terms, or twelve years I served the people of Pitt County as Sheriff to the best of my ability. I made every effort to combat crime, to protect the lives and property of our citizens, and to administer the duties of the office of Sheriff in a fair and impartial manner. At each term of Criminal Court, my office, as well as all of the other offices of government in Pitt County, was examined by the Grand Jury. My office received a favorable report by every Grand Jury and I received many personal commendations for my work and cooperation with other Law Enforcement Agencies. While carrying out my duties as Sheriff I made arrests regardless of the social position, color or financial condition, or political influence of the guilty parties. During this entire period my office, as well as the other county offices, was subject to monthly and annual audits by the County Auditor. My office always received a satisfactory report. This is a matter of record.

At the beginning of the Democratic Primary in the Spring of 1938, my political enemies planned a very malicious campaign, at the expense of the taxpayers of this county, to defeat me in the coming election for Sheriff. One A. STORY BATSON, an ex-convict, was hired as a so-called "private detective" to work with the ABC enforcement officers in Pitt County. When I learned of this man's true reputation I had no confidence in him as an officer, and I felt it foolhardy to trust a man of this type who was interested not in law enforcement, but in private gain. This same man, when I incurred the wrath of the ABC board, was assigned to the County Commissioners, on a commission basis, to investigate my office. BATSON, an ex-convict, who was later convicted of a serious crime in New Hanover County, and sent back to prison, conducted this so-called "investigation." He secured several hired witnesses and attempted to gain an indictment from the Grand Jury. These witnesses admitted that they were hired to testify against me, and no true bill was found. I was never tried before a jury, and my only indictment, that of failure to make a report, was not pressed in the court.

Ousterment proceedings in Civil Court, before one Judge, and no Jury, were instituted, using the same testimony that had been rejected by two Grand Juries, and by the Solicitor for this district as being malicious and without basis of fact. The prosecuting Attorney in this proceeding, and the son of the Judge who tried the case, were law partners in Kinston. It is a matter of fact that the Judge and this prosecuting Attorney rode back and forth from Kinston each day in the same car, and were known to have discussed the case together while stopped at public places.

DESPITE THIS ATTACK I WAS ELECTED IN THIS PRIMARY BY A LANDSLIDE MAJORITY TO BE SHERIFF FOR ANOTHER TERM OF OFFICE.

As a result of this ousterment proceeding I was forced to agree to a consent judgment, or be taxed with the court costs, and effect an appeal to the Supreme Court. I was not in a financial position to pay the cost of court, or to pay the charges necessary to take my case to the Supreme Court. I have been told by responsible people that these court costs alone amounted to over $50,000. It was made clear to me by the Judge that if I did not agree to a consent judgment and resign from office that I would be disqualified by said Judge by invocation of Article Six of the State Constitution.

Having suffered many hours of humiliation, and having exhausted my funds, I was forced to sign this consent Judgment. I never admitted any irregularities, nor wrongful acts. I never had a Jury trial before my fellowmen—I sincerely feel that I was more persecuted than prosecuted by a one man court.

I returned to private life, after receiving this huge majority expressing the confidence of my fellow Pitt Countians, because I was tired of the strife, and financially unable to continue fighting.

These are the true facts that I present to you now, the voters of Pitt County. Many of you younger people and newcomers to Greenville have heard it whispered by people who had a selfish reason to do so that "Sam Whitehurst was crooked," and thrown out of office after trial by jury. This is not the true case. I invite you to examine for yourself the court records, the Grand Jury reports and other legal records for my real record. Ask your fathers, older residents, and others just what kind of administration as Sheriff Sam Whitehurst conducted for 12 years. I have been defeated in two elections by this evil whisper and unsigned advertisement campaign. This time I intend to bring the real facts in this matter to the attention of the People, and ask only a fair and impartial appraisal of the FACTS.

Thank you for your kind attention.

Nurse Lady

SYNOPSIS
Cynthia Doyle is a nurse at a clinic for under-privileged children in a city near Washington, D.C. While off duty, she witnesses an accident in which a small boy is struck and injured by a flashy sports-car. She rushes to the victim's aid. An angry mob gathers to threaten Norman Brandt, driver of the accident car, but Dr. Sellars of the clinic arrives via ambulance, along with police, and the injured boy is taken to the hospital. Cynthia proceeds homeward to the apartment shared by her and glamorous Roz Effinger and plain Nora McClary, both nurses. Roz excitedly awaits a "date." He arrives in the person of Norman Brandt, driver of the ill-fated car. In eager surprise he turns to Cynthia, but Roz manages to speed him along their way, blithely making it known that Cyn is in love with Dr. Sellars.

CHAPTER FIVE
"SO THIS is where you live?" The visitor looked around with appreciation and approval. He made himself quite comfortable in the chair Cynthia had vacated. Her white Oxford shoes were still half under the table. He said, with a wide grin and that look of his that again made them guilty partners in crime or in some secret "A cozy little nest. Suits you much better than where I discovered you. I'm glad you're a friend of Roz's. Roz is an old friend of mine which makes us practically acquainted."

"I don't see why it should," Cynthia did not want to sound snippy, but she had to put him in his place. He had spoken of Roz as though she never had been more than a friend of his, yet Cynthia knew that Roz did not feel that way about it. And she resented his saying that he had "discovered her," and taking it for granted that it was a beginning of some kind.

"You know you might give a fellow a chance," Norman Brandt said. "I'm really not so bad, even if I did meet under circumstances that placed me in a bad light. Which reminds me—I went to the hospital, and Julius is doing 'as well as can be expected,' which was all I could get out of that poker-faced doctor of yours."

"It's all the information any doctor could give," Cynthia found herself immediately supporting Dr. Sellars. She thought she should correct the statement that "Poor little tyke," his dark, lean face sobered, "we want everything possible done for him."

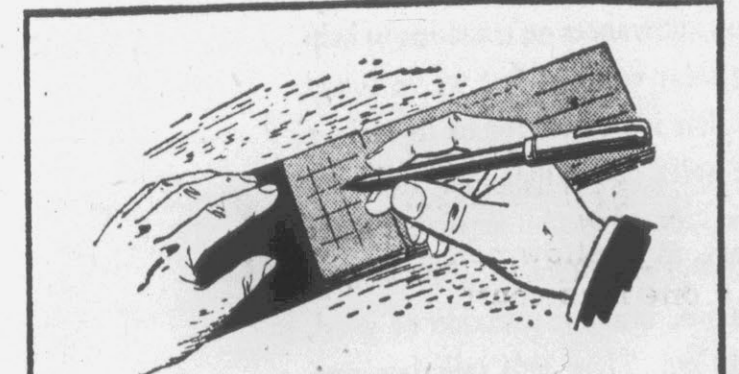

Now was her opportunity to say, "You were not driving that car. And you keep saying 'we,' which must mean the girl with the copper-hair who was driving the car. But before she could say anything more, Roz came in."

Roz certainly was a honey in the black dress. It fit her as though she had been poured into it, with its low-cut square neck and short sleeves. And it matched the queenly hairdo perfectly.

Some men didn't like black, though, Cynthia thought; some men were afraid of too much glamour. That was Roz's trouble; she was apt to overdo it.

However, Norman Brandt got instantly, gallantly, to his feet and made Roz a laughing bow. "My,

Well, now that Norman was back in her life, she certainly was going to do her darndest to land him, Roz decided. Nothing—no one—was going to stop her.

Funny that, thinking this, as they rode together in the taxi Norman holding her hand lightly in his, Roz should remember that queer feeling that had been in the air back in the apartment. As though there had been something between Cynthia and Norman—some secret—or some sort of electrical current.

But of course it had only been her imagination. Nevertheless she was glad that Cynthia was interested in that doctor. There was something about Cynthia, her naturalness maybe, that appealed to men. But Cynthia was a good friend. All Roz would have to do would be to make it plain to her that she had staked out a claim on Norman Brandt.

What luck that she had run into him on the street yesterday. He might not have looked her up again. He probably had had any number of girls since he had dated her last. Yet he had asked where she lived and suggested they have dinner together this evening.

After dating her for weeks a few years ago, he had suddenly dropped out of sight. She had not heard a word from him until yesterday. He had been everywhere. Done everything. Another reason why he could be so attractive to a girl like Roz. And according to him, he did not believe in all the sentimental nonsense about moonlight and roses, either. A man of the world. Just the kind of man Roz admired since she would like to lead the exciting kind of life he must live.

Effect Of Court Ruling On Natural Gas Studied

By WALTER BREEDE JR. (For Sam Dawson)
NEW YORK (AP)—A big question mark was raised this week over the 60 million American homes where natural gas, piped from producing fields many miles away, is used for heating or cooking.

Would a Supreme Court decision giving federal authorities added power to control natural gas prices show up in consumer gas bills?

Opinion was divided.

State and municipal authorities from the big Midwest gas-consuming areas said the ruling would have a tremendous impact on consumer gas rates, and save consumers money.

Some industry sources said the effect would be negligible.

Companies which produce the gas and sell it to the interstate pipelines said the court's action would eventually result in higher consumer prices.

Target of the high court's ruling in the much-discussed Phillips Petroleum Co. case was the so-called wellhead price of natural gas. That's the price the cross-country pipeline companies pay for the gas they buy in the major oil-producing states like Louisiana and Texas. The court said the Federal Power Commission not only has the right to set these prices but an obligation to do so.

Like many other oil-producing companies Phillips sells a huge amount of natural gas, most of it obtained as a by-product of the company's oil-drilling operations. The gas is extracted from the company's wells and delivered to the big interstate carriers over a Phillips-owned "gathering" pipeline system. The interstate pipeline companies transport the gas to consumers as far away as Connecticut, Michigan and California.

The interstate pipeline carriers (they've been subject to federal control of their rates right along) inevitably seek to pass any hike in field prices on to the ultimate consumer as an increased operating cost. In most instances the wellhead cost is a mere fraction if the price paid by the end consumer.

Substitute Was But 4 Years Old

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—Harald Nielsen, 40, went a-partying last night and imbibed too much to be able to drive. He enlisted the aid of a passer-by, gave him a quick driving lesson and asked to be taken home.

The car crashed against a lamp post in Vejle. Police found Nielsen uninjured near the top of a tree, where he had climbed after the accident.

The substitute driver was seriously injured. He was a 4-year-old boy.

Super Market Wins First Contest In Recreation Softball League Play

Redmen In First In Pony League

Charles Staton pitched a flashy two-hit game last night as he led his Redmen teammates into first place in the Pony League race with a 6-4 win over the National Guard.

Staton struck out 15 batters but was plagued by his own wildness as he walked eight. Staton had a no-hitter going until the last of the fourth inning when Johnny Harrison lined a single into center field.

While Staton was holding the National Guard down, his Redmen teammates were racking base hits off Bobby Pridmore in the first two innings.

In the first inning singles by Arthur Andrew, Johnny Johnson, Billy Cox, and Roberts gave the Redmen two runs. In the second the Redmen scored three runs on three hits and an error.

After the two big innings Pridmore held them in check with one run on four hits over the last five innings. The one run came in the top of the sixth when Wayne Suggs lined a home run, his first of the year.

The Redmen had four batters that got two hits each, while only Harrison and Phil Davis could reach Staton for hits.

The win puts the Redmen in sole possession of first place in the league with a 4-1 record. The Guard is second with a 3-2 mark. The Bright Leafs at 2-2 are in third and the Fordomatics are last with a 0-4 record.

The Tobacco Board of Trade Dodgers yesterday won their third straight game in Coastal Little League play to take a firm and undefeated grip on the league's first place.

The Dodgers' victory yesterday was at the expense of the Giants by a 13-1 score. L. Daniels, pitching for the Dodgers, let the Giants down with only two hits, both by second baseman B. Brown.

Daniels, Allen, Smith, and Cox had two hits apiece to pace the Dodgers' 13-hit attack.

Continuing on their unbeaten ways the Elks club swamped the last place Pepsi-Cola 9-1 yesterday afternoon at Little League Park for their eighth straight victory.

Joe Moyer led the fifteen-hit attacks with a perfect four-for-four day. Hardee pitched all the way for the Elks giving up one run on only two hits.

Jack Whitley went all the way on the mound for the Pepsis and pitched good ball except for one bad inning. In the first two innings Whitley sent the Elks down runless, but in the third four straight hits brought in three runs. Whitley held the Elks scoreless in the fourth but the flood gates came open in the fifth when the Elks scored six times on three hits and five errors.

The Pepsis could touch Hardee for only one hit in the fourth and one in the fifth. In the other innings, the little righthander had-cuffed the Pepsis completely.

J. G. Procter and Harry Forbes with three hits each aided the Elks slugging spree.

This afternoon at 5 o'clock the Jaycees and the Lions will tangle in the final North State League game of the first half of the season.

Yanks Picked To Beat Sox With Two Hurlers, One Run

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Sports Writer

If you feel the urge to make a friendly wager on tonight's big clash between the Chicago White Sox and the New York Yankees, you might consider backing the Yanks to win by one run while using at least two pitchers.

The two teams have met four times so far. New York has won three of the four, always with two or more pitchers. And every one of the games has been decided by a single run.

The white-hot White Sox come into Yankee Stadium for a four-game series leading the American League by a game and a half. They've won 18 of their last 19, seven of them in a row.

But a lot of visiting winning streaks have become mere memories in Yankee Stadium. The last time Paul Richards' husters lost two in a row to the same team was the last Yankee series in Chicago when the White Sox led after seven innings in each game only to get beaten 4-3 and 5-2.

The White Sox had a day of rest yesterday as rain washed out their scheduled game at Philadelphia. The Yanks took batting practice against Detroit, beating the Tigers 9-5 on home runs by Yogi Berra, Bobby Brown and Mickey Mantle.

Cleveland fell a game and a half behind Chicago by losing to Washington 8-4. Baltimore took a pair from Boston 5-1 and 9-0.

The New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers continued to share first place in the National League. The Giants edged Milwaukee 1-0 on Bill Taylor's 10th-inning, pinch-hit homer. The Dodgers beat St. Louis 7-4. Philadelphia defeated Chicago 6-0 and Fred Baczewski of Cincinnati pitched his second straight shutout, 6-0 over Pittsburgh.

Ruben Gomez, who says he will be much happier when really hot weather finally arrives, pitched his third shutout as Giant pitcher stretched Milwaukee's string of scoreless innings to 25.

The Giants never threatened until Taylor's home run. They had only four hits off Gene Conley and hadn't moved a man past second. A brilliant throw by Willie Mays caught Henry Aaron trying to score for the Braves after a fly ball in the seventh.

The Dodgers broke a two-game slump with a 13-hit attack on Vic Raschi and Stu Miller. The loss was Raschi's second straight after winning his first five in the National League.

Steve Ridsick and Jim Konstanty combined for the Philadelphia shut out over the Cubs. Ridsick left with the bases loaded in the fifth and Konstanty finished up for his second victory.

The Pirates got to Baczewski for 11 hits but they were all singles. The Cincinnati attack included Gus Bell's third homer in two days and Jim Greengrass' second.

Washington jumped on Bob Lemon of Cleveland for five runs in the third inning, three of them coming after George Strickland threw wild on a potential double-play ball. Dean Stone, a rookie, won his fourth straight for the Senators.

Boston's hopes of climbing out of second division received a double setback from Joe Coleman and Duane Pilette of the Orioles. Coleman spaced seven hits in winning his seventh game in the opener. Pilette allowed only five in the nightcap shutout.

done, and North Carolina was making fast progress toward complying with both the letter and the spirit of the court's pronouncements.

That attempt at full compliance cost the taxpayers of North Carolina many millions of dollars. From the purely economic viewpoint segregation is expensive. It has cost the State about $200 more for each student at Pembroke Indian College and about $100 more for Negroes at N.C. College and Durham than it has cost at Chapel Hill for comparable instruction at university level.

It would require a staff of auditors a long time to figure how much the policy of segregation in public schools has cost in dollars and cents, through duplication of facilities to take care of separate races. Certainly it has been tremendous.

Crowds Increase At Evangelistic Crusade

Joining a church will not make a person a Christian any more than going into a garage will make one an automobile, declared Evangelist Eddie Martin Thursday night in his sermon on "Religious, But Lost."

The crowds are increasing in attendance at the services of the United Revival Crusade, and the singing and other musical features are aiding in the interest in the campaign.

Friday morning, at the Memorial Baptist Church, Pitt County and Greenville ministers joined in a special prayer service on behalf of the revival effort.

Eddie Martin will preach Sunday night on "The Most Important Bible Subject In The Day and World In Which We Live. The Second Coming of Christ," it was announced Thursday night.

Five young Methodist ministers now in preparation for their Christian careers will give their personal testimonies on Friday evening. Eddie Martin told his hearers Thursday evening and he also announced the Monday-through-Friday morning telecasts from Station WNCN at 9 o'clock and the daily radio broadcasts each morning at 9:30. The Martin Evangelistic Team will be featured on Sunday evening on the Carolina Vesper Hour on WNCN.

The church is full of people who have never been saved, Martin declared, noting that baptism is not salvation, nor is mental assent to the truth of the Bible a substitute for saving grace.

The hardest people to reach are those persons who have joined the church and feel they have met God's requirements by that action, the evangelist said.

"When your heart is not right, you do not want to talk about spiritual things. You may have all the outward form, and yet be devoid of a know-so salvation; you may have all the outward ceremonial observances, and be lost if your heart is not right; if you do not have Christian life and do not live the Christian life, you are not Christian," Martin concluded.
