Bond Election Turnout Not Very Heavy In Morning Steady Stream Of Voters

The "steady stream of voters" are shown waiting in line at the Court House to vote in today's $250,000 recreation bond issue. This photo was taken at the Court House voting box at nine o'clock this morning. (Reflector Photo by Edwina McMullan)

From the way things looked this morning, Greenville will have a good vote in the $250,000 recreation bond issue today.

Both registrars reported a "steady stream of voters" this morning. Voting continued steady at 11:45 this morning when the two registrars reported 439 people had cast ballots in the bond election. The vote total in Wards 1 and 2 at the Court House amounted to 223 while 216 people had voted in City Hall from Wards 3, 4 and 5.

City Hall Registrar, Mrs. Rosa Brown, said 20 people had voted by seven o'clock, thirty minutes after the polls had opened.

She added that 50 had voted by 8:30 and 119 had cast ballots by 9:30.

Mrs. Mavis Dudley, registrar in the Court House, also reported a good vote. By nine o'clock she reported 104 people had cast their vote.

Should the citizens of Greenville vote for the $250,000 bond issue there will be two swimming pools built here — one at Elm Street Park and one at South Greenville Park. Cost to build the two pools is expected to run in the vicinity of $200,000.

The remaining $50,000 is intended for other recreational facilities here. Recreational Director Warren Carroll, commenting yesterday on the vote, said, "one of the key advancements of future recreation in Greenville would be the construction of the two swimming pools."

Voters living in Wards 1 and 2 (north of Fifth Street) are voting today in the Pitt County Court House. Those living in Wards 3, 4, or 5 (south of Fifth Street) are voting in the lobby of City Hall.

McCarthy Aide Raps Army Officials' Tactics Claims Probe Obstruction

WASHINGTON (AP)—Francis P. Carr testified today he thinks Secretary of the Army Stevens and Army Counsel John G. Adams used "quite improper" tactics in efforts to block Sen. McCarthy's investigation of Reds in the Army.

Carr, staff director of the McCarthy investigations subcommittee, expressed that opinion under questioning by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark). Carr declined, however, to appraise whether the conduct of the Army officials could be described as contrary to "the security of our country."

Carr was in the witness chair for the second day at Senate hearings on the row between McCarthy and Army officials. He testified yesterday that both Stevens and Adams tried to stop McCarthy's investigation and, in doing so, talked of favored treatment for

Pvt. G. David Schine, drafted former consultant to the subcommittee. In response to questions from James D. St. Clair, one of the lawyers representing Stevens and Adams, Carr said today that Adams tried to block hearings on alleged Communist infiltration of secret radar laboratories at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., even before the hearings started.

He said Adams told him "there was no need for any hearings." The Republican majority of the hearings subcommittee is aiming for a wind up of the hearings on Friday, but continued feuding between Sen. McCarthy and Sen. Symington (D-Mo) could delay that.

McCarthy and Symington have tangled repeatedly during the hearings. Their feud flared anew late yesterday with McCarthy accusing Symington of a "smear" against his aides and Symington retorting that secret information in McCarthy's files has been handled laxly with respect to security regulations—"dangerously," Symington put it.

At the start of today's hearings, Chairman Mundt (R-SD) ordered a Capitol Police officer to place more men on duty. He publicly directed police to be "particularly alert" to remove from the room promptly anyone applauding or otherwise audibly expressing his feelings.

There had been some show of partisan feelings among spectators as the senators assembled. Applause broke out as Symington walked toward the committee table. There also were a few subdued boos.

'Sporty Looking' Pair Sought In Bank Hold-Up

CALYPSO, N. C. (AP)—Officers scoured Eastern North Carolina today for a "sporty looking" couple who held up a Calypso bank yesterday and made off with $3,287.

The youngish couple held up Mrs. Alice Sanderson, manager of the Calypso Branch of the Bank of Mount Olive. She said the man drew a gun, forcing her to put the money in a pillow slip he held.

A car believed used in the robbery was found abandoned in Mount Olive a few hours later by the Highway Patrol. It had been stolen there earlier. In it was a pillow case, Mount Olive is three miles north of here.

Police theorized the pair left their car in Mount Olive, using the stolen car for the robbery. It belonged to Louis Parker, an assistant cashier of the bank.

Paul Brown, who was seated in a car across from the bank, said he saw the couple enter the bank but "suspected nothing until someone said the bank had been robbed."

He said both wore brown and the woman wore a kerchief over her head. Brown described the man as bareheaded with brown hair.

Mrs. Sanderson said while the man was taking the money, the woman urged him to "hurry." Before the couple left, Mrs. Sanderson said she was forced to lie down.

New Raleigh, Greenville, Washington Bus Schedules

By EDWINA McMULLAN Reflector Staff Writer

A new bus schedule between Raleigh and Washington via Greenville now includes four round trips per day instead of the three which have been in effect since May 3, it was announced last night at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

The new schedules were worked out by Commissioner S. O. Worthington of the North Carolina Utilities Commission with the Carolina Coach Company and went into effect June 11.

The Transportation Committee announced the following schedules: Buses will leave Washington at 6 a.m., 11:15 a.m., 2:30 p.m., and 6:15 p.m. These buses arrive in Greenville at 6:35 a.m., 11:55 a.m., 3:10 p.m., and 6:55 p.m., and in Raleigh at 9 a.m., 2:35 p.m., 5:35 p.m., and 9:30 p.m.

will reach Greenville at 9:40 a.m., 4 p.m., 6:35 p.m., and 9:55 p.m. Arrival in Washington will be at 10:20 a.m., 4:40 p.m., 7:45 p.m., and 10:30 p.m.

Commissioner Worthington recognized that the 6:35 a.m. schedule from Washington is too early for domestics from Grimesland, "but it is about the best we can hope for, as a later bus would not enable an appreciable number of commuters beyond Farmville to arrive in Wilson in time for work."

Committee Report The Public Relations Committee last night presented to the Chamber of Commerce Directors a series of seven tentative advertising projects for consideration.

These projects are designed to advertise Greenville as an "educational, marketing and trading center," according to Manager Willard T. Kyzer.

The former meeting is sponsored jointly by various state Chamber of Commerce executive organizations a tentative campaign for membership. "We are looking toward putting the Chamber of Commerce in a better position to carry out the progress for the development of Greenville," Mr. Kyzer stated.

Announcement was made at the meeting of a new member, Fleming's, a gift shop on the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets.

Kyzer To Attend Meets The Directors voted to instruct Manager Kyzer to attend two forthcoming Chamber of Commerce meetings: the Southeastern Institute for Chamber of Commerce Executives at Chapel Hill during the week of June 20, and the annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives in Blowing Rock on July 8, 9, and 10.

in the Southeast, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the University of North Carolina.

Manager Kyzer serves as a member of the Board of Directors of both the Southeastern Institute and the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives.

SBI Moves In To Assist Investigation Of Robbery

State Bureau of Investigation agents today moved in to assist Pitt County Sheriff's Department deputies in their investigation of a break-in and robbery at the studio offices of WNCN.

Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews said this morning that the agents entered the case yesterday. Investigation of the robbery started yesterday morning soon after officials of the television company discovered the robbery.

The TV officials were expected to complete an audit of their records today to determine the exact amount of the loss. A number of checks and a small amount of cash are missing but the officials were not able to make an exact estimate because the company bookkeeper had the day off yesterday.

The office was entered sometime over the week-end by prying a plywood panel out of a wall that separates the office and another room that was not locked. Deputies and company officials have not yet determined how the thief entered the building which is located South of Greenville on Evans Street Extension.

CHURCHILL VISIT SET Will Meet President In 10 Days

WASHINGTON (AP)—Britain's Prime Minister Churchill will meet President Eisenhower here in ten days.

Secretary of State Dulles said today he hopes the informal talks will lead to closer understanding on collective defense of Southeast Asia against communism.

Dulles, who will take part in the conferences along with British Foreign Secretary Eden indicated at a news conference that alternatives to a European Defense Community will be considered along with the Southeast Asia situation.

The European army issue is a critical one at the moment because of the French government crisis and the American desire for French approval of a collective defense setup.

Dulles made it clear that France will not be represented at the meeting but said that no decisions will be made anyway. He said it is not unusual for the President to meet separately with either British or French officials.

Dulles met newsmen for his weekly conference a few minutes after the White House had issued a brief announcement that Churchill and Eden will visit the President over the weekend of Friday, June 25.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerly, announcing the forthcoming visit, told reporters there will be "an informal meeting between the President and his two old friends" without any formal agenda.

"Many things, a lot of things, will be discussed," Hagerly said.

The meeting comes at a time when Great Britain and the United States, powerful allies in World War II, no longer see eye to eye on various aspects of foreign policy and the effort to check communism.

Says Nation Has Long Way To Go

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal civil defense authorities took final steps today to deal with the mock emergency created by yesterday's make-believe atomic attack on major U.S. cities.

Until the 24-hour drill ended, civil defense crews went through all the motions of meeting theoretical demands for medicine, food, clothing, doctors and nurses and mobile support for "stricken areas which have exhausted their own resources."

The drill was officially over at 10 a.m. EST. Val Peterson, federal civil defense administrator, said of yesterday's aerial "bombardment" by an unidentified enemy:

"We know that 30 cities have been hit. Estimated are 7,276,000 killed and 3,344,000 injured with many more dead and injured still unreported."

The 10-minute "attack" was history's first continental air raid drill. The exercise was based on the premise that atomic and other weapons blasted 54 cities in the United States, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Peterson said the drill, designed to test civil defense readiness and public discipline, "has thus far proved effectively what we had assumed—that the nation's civil defense team still has a long way to go in the field of operational readiness."

However, he said the drill did point up "the amazing scope and effectiveness of what has been accomplished up to this hour."

Ex-Governor Of New Jersey Said To Have Embezzled $300,000 Will Air Hoffman Charges

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Gov. Robert B. Meyner said he will announce today detailed charges of misconduct against the late ex-Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, whose daughter disclosed that he embezzled $300,000 in bank funds to finance his stormy political career and pay off a blackmailer.

Meyner told a news conference yesterday Hoffman wrote a letter May 1 to his daughter Mrs. Ada Leonard of Madison, to say he embezzled the $300,000 to pay expenses during his four years in Congress from 1927 to 1931 and for his successful 1934 gubernatorial campaign.

Mrs. Leonard, in a letter to Meyner last night, pledged that the Hoffman family would repay every cent of the money. Her mother last Monday was voted a $5,000-a-year pension by the State Legislature. The bill awaits Meyner's signature.

Hoffman, affable after dinner speaker and president of the fun-loving Circus Sains and Sinners, was suspended March 18 by Meyner as director of New Jersey's Division of Employment and Security, a $13,500-a-year post he had held since he left the governorship in 1938.

At the time of the suspension, Meyner said he had evidence of "widespread irregularities" in the purchase of division supplies and equipment.

An authoritative source said the charges against Hoffman include a reference to the $300,000 and recommendations for the dismissal of several persons, including one in another department.

Atty. Gen. Grover C. Richman Jr., who directed an investigation of accounts of the South Amboy Trust Co. of which Hoffman had been president.

Hoffman, a Republican, died of a heart attack June 4 in New York at the age of 58, and the next day Mrs. Leonard demanded that Meyner clear her father's name immediately. In her letter to Meyner last night, Mrs. Leonard apologized to the Democratic politician because "for almost two weeks you have appeared in a crucially unfair position."

In an affidavit recounting the letter written to her by her father, Mrs. Leonard quoted him as saying a "certain wealthy elder candidate who is now deceased" promised to meet his congressional campaign costs but did not, leading the way to the embezzlement, which "got deeper and deeper."

Hoffman also was quoted in the affidavit as saying another unnamed state official blackmailed him of $150,000 after learning of the embezzlement. The state official also is dead the affidavit said.

Mrs. Leonard told a reporter she has a good idea who the "elder candidate" is, but would not identify him because she didn't want to bring "grief" to his family.

The blackmailing official, she said, "I'd tell you if I knew." Richman said his office has begun an investigation to determine the identity of the two men.

The affidavit told of Hoffman's making commitments "which I temporarily covered by drawing from inactive accounts at the South Amboy Trust Company. "What with the high cost of Washington living, the maintenance of two homes, and what I can only label as the expensive naivete of a newcome congressman, things instead of bettering got worse."

At the news conference yesterday, Harry Green of Little Silver, Hoffman's attorney, said he had seen the charges brought against the former governor. Green said the charges were shown to him the day Hoffman died and that a tentative agreement had been reached to have the late governor submit a letter of resignation rather than face a hearing on the charges.

Meyner, Green and Richman told how Mrs. Leonard visited Green at his Little Silver home last Wednesday and showed him the letter from her father. She later showed the letter to an officer of the South Amboy bank, and then destroyed it.

Green said it took several hours Thursday to convince Mrs. Leonard the contents of the letter should be made known to Meyner. When she consented, Green called the governor and he began an immediate investigation.

Eden And Molotov Meet In Hurriedly Called Private Talk Geneva Conference Nears Breakdown

GENEVA (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Russia's V. M. Molotov met in a hurriedly arranged private session today as the Geneva conference appeared moving rapidly toward a breakdown.

The Soviet foreign minister requested the meeting as the 16 nations which fought in Korea on the United Nations side drafted a declaration saying further talks on Korean unification were useless at this time.

The 16 planned to present the statement at a session of the 19 nation Korean conference this afternoon. The U.N. allies want to refer the Korean issue back to the international organization.

Authoritative quarters said the U.N. Korean allies agreed unanimously this morning that today's session would be the final one on Korea.

The Indochina phase of the conference was in recess until tomorrow when it will take up the Western demands that Communist-led Vietnam forces get out of Laos and Cambodia.

Western sources said Communist reaction to these demands on Laos and Cambodia would determine whether the Indochina talks will continue.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden made this clear at a secret session yesterday. He told the nine-party meeting that the Indochina conference had made but one solid achievement in its seven weeks of deliberation—the start of military discussions between representatives of the French Union and the Communist-led Vietnam.

Eden was understood to have added that if the parley fails to make progress tomorrow on the problem of Laos and Cambodia, he was not sure it would be worthwhile to continue debate.

He suggested that a wise course might be to suspend discussion until the military commission finishes its work of drawing cease-fire lines. Informed quarters said the Briton was not thinking of any overnight recess, but of a considerable interval.

This was regarded as particularly significant since Eden in the earlier stages of the conference had been the most patient of the Western leaders.

The Communists previously have refused to treat Laos and Cambodia separately from Viet Nam, contending that the fighting in all three states stems from nationalist movements. France and her allies contend that Vietnam forces from Viet Nam invaded the two neighboring kingdoms.

Russia's Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov made a slight concession yesterday. He said the neutral nations commission for supervision of an Indochina cease-fire might, under certain conditions, take decisions by a majority vote.

Ransom Money In Kidnap Case Now Recovered

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Discovery of the $75,000 ransom money cleared up a major mystery in the puzzling Evelyn Ann Smith kidnaping case today.

The missing cash, bundled in a man's work shirt with a shiny pistol lying on top, was found near the Superstition Mountains yesterday. The "hiding place" was less than 10 feet from a road over which dozens of officers had traveled since Friday.

About 100 yards away is a ranch house near which Daniel J. Marsin, an unemployed Phoenix welder, was arrested shortly after the ransom was paid by Mrs. Smith's husband Herbert.

Marsin, 41, was identified by Mrs. Smith as her abductor. Police continued the search for a rifle and binoculars the kidnaper was reported to have used.

Meanwhile Marsin waited in jail for a preliminary hearing on a charge of kidnaping tomorrow. Marsin's attorney, John J. Flynn, has said "lots of answers will be given" at that time.

The questions to which Flynn referred and the sudden discovery of the payoff money prompted County Atty. William P. Mahoney to call this "the most fantastic kidnaping case in American history."

He said he believes the intricate planning that went into the kidnaping would link Marsin to the crime.

Last night the FBI was accused of having delayed a description of the kidnaper.

Guatemalan Exiles Say 'Spark' Can Blow Out Reds Report Army 'Near Revolt'

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP)—Two former Guatemalan defense officials who fled their Communist-tinged land say most of Guatemala's army is on the verge of revolt.

"All we have to do is put the spark that will blow out all the Reds," former Defense Under Secretary Miguel Angel Mendoza told reporters last night. "I think there is a great division in the army and I am sure that when the moment comes, most of them will take the course for which we are fighting."

Official quarters in Washington received a report last night that Guatemala's army had given President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman an ultimatum to quit sometime today.

The report, which was described as lacking full official confirmation, said Arbenz had agreed to get cut provided the army guaranteed not to molest any Guatemalans.

Observers generally concede that Arbenz himself is not a Communist. But his regime has had strong backings from the Reds, and in return he has made numerous concessions to them and given them key government posts.

Mendoza and his brother, former air force chief Col. Rodolfo Mendoza, arrived here Sunday. They told reporters a "reign of terror" gripped their homeland and at least 600 persons were in jail.

They said the situation in Guatemala appeared to be nearing a climax. They said Guatemalans were convinced revolution would explode at any moment.

Press dispatches from Guatemala have been subject to a strict censorship since Arbenz suspended civil liberties a week ago and charged a plot against the government had been uncovered.

Travelers arriving in Honduras from the Guatemalan capital reported growing tension and many army desertions. There was a recurring rumor that Gen. Carlos Sarti army chief of staff had disappeared.

FLY THAT CAR? GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The only injury of Patrick H. Cain, 21, was a bruised ankle after his car left a road, dashed 185 feet through a gravel pit, ran up a 25-foot embankment, and hurdled a five-foot fence while soaring 135 feet in the air before landing and rolling over several times in a field.

With summer temperatures flitting past the 110-degree mark day after day, life in New Delhi becomes a constant battle against the heat, unless, as many Indians do, one's just retreats and accepts the weather for what it is.

Those who can afford it—and have the hard-to-obtain electric power—have a form of air-conditioning. Some homes now have complete installations, but the majority depend on cooling one or two rooms with window coolers.

Next in popularity are the so-called "desert coolers," an old Indian favorite by which electric fans drive currents of air through moistened reed mats.

Those who can afford only fans augment their cooling powers by filling their sleeping rooms with open-necked jars of water. In Delhi's dry hot climate moisture from the jars circulated by the fan's blast knocks the temperature down sufficiently for a few hours sleep each night, when outside heat drops from above 110 degrees down to the upper 80s for a brief period.

But thousands of Delhi's people lack either fans or electric power. These try, if they can to erect mats of khus khus, a peculiar Indian bush which retains water in front of their doors and windows.

The mats are moistened several times daily and any breeze spreads cool air through the room.

The bulk of Delhi's inhabitants simply move into the open with the heat. The native string beds or "charpoys" are moved into the gardens or even the open streets. Public parks are filled with sleepers who bring picnic meals and enjoy chats with their neighbors until midnight brings a sufficient drop in temperature to permit sleeping.

France Faces Another Grave Crisis

Government crisis has become the rule rather than the exception in France.

Unstable government conditions in that nation have taken a heavy toll in the nation's advancement and rebuilding program since World War II. They have proved a major stumbling block to the positive program by the free nations of the world.

Former Premier Laniel has been forced out of office at a critical moment just as his predecessors. The Indochina situation must be resolved by positive action of one kind or another if it is not to be lost to communism. France's economic situation must also be bolstered. Her military plans must also be formulated and followed through.

For the most part, France, since World War II, has been much as she is today.

She has been a nation apparently without a plan. The six major parties in France seem to have distinct ideas as to how France should regain her stability. With the coalition necessary to establish a government in France, it is difficult for even a cabinet to agree upon major policies to be carried out. Even if major policies are adopted, no government in France has remained in office sufficient time since the war to formulate and execute a comprehensive program.

When it begins to appear that the government of one premier may take decisive action which is needed, the factions in the government withdraw their support, and it becomes necessary for France to form a new government.

It is an unfortunate situation for the people of France, and likewise for the nations of the free world who have regarded France to as one of the cornerstones of the free world bloc.

New Tank Is A Distinct Asset

Completion of the new 800,000 gallon water tank in the northern section of Greenville is a fine asset to the area of the city north of the river.

For several years, residents and business people in that section have been requesting such a tank. For more than a year, the local Utilities Commission has had the erection of the tank in its plans. Now, both the requests and the plans have been fulfilled.

The greatest advantage of the new supply of water on the north side of the river, will of course be the added fire protection it affords. The section has grown rapidly in recent years, but its fire protection has been seriously handicapped by lack of water pressure in the fire mains.

Now that the tank has been completed, the area should not suffer from low water pressure, for fire protection or other uses.

The new tank is a distinct asset to not only to the northern section of Greenville, but to the city as a whole.

This Show Has Been On Too Long

The Army-McCarthy investigative hearing has lost all value in point of discovering the truth of charges and counter-charges that set it off.

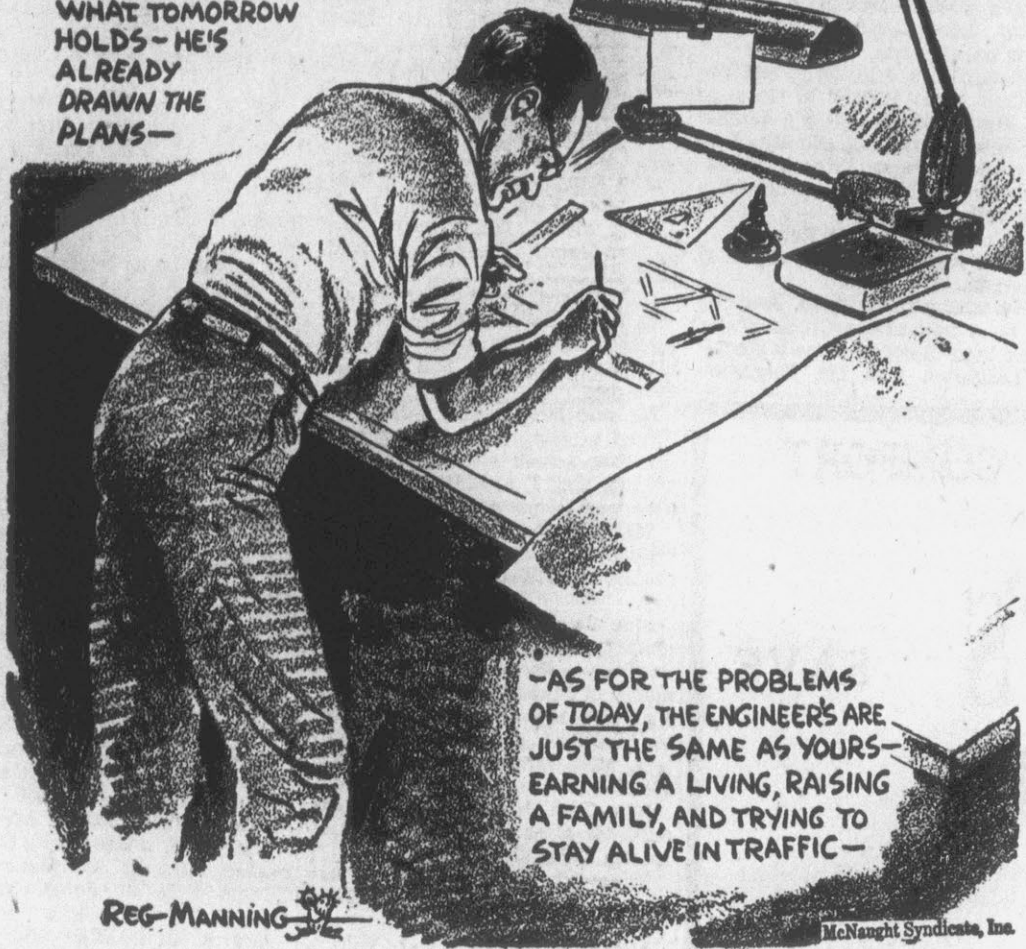

Neither side has fared well in the rowdy sideshow, though the Wisconsin Senator might have lost much sympathy for his cause by reason of distasteful tactics. There have been too many contradictory statements and injection of extraneous accusations that becloud all issues and seemingly tend to drag attention from the more important chains of reasoning.

Too, it has become evident the investigative powers of the Senate subcommittee can be used as a weapon, and are used as a weapon, against men who oppose McCarthy and his tactics.

Functions Of DSA

By ELMER ROESSNER
One of the newer wrinkles of the Eisenhower Administration is the Business and Defense Services Administration in Secretary Sinclair Weeks' Department of Commerce.

The objectives of this division are to gear government and business operations. "Gear" is a cliché and one of your reporter's favorite abominations; nevertheless, there's no other word that expresses better the scheme of the DSA.

This Administration has some 27 sections, each doing something different. But in taking on so many jobs at once, it seems to have an overall plan and to be getting more done than might be expected.

Its objective can best be capitalized thusly:
If you are a businessman and have a problem involving the government, get in touch with the DSA representatives in the regional offices of the Department of Commerce, or its headquarters in Washington, where it functions under the direction of Charles F. Honeywell, administrator and refugee from practical business.

The chances are 99 to 1 that the DSA won't be able to solve your problem by itself, but the odds are about the same that it will be able to put you in touch—leading you by the hand if necessary—with the government agency that can help you.

For instance, a camera manufacturer thought it should sell more in post exchanges; the BSA put the company in touch with the proper purchasing agents and now more men in uniform are arguing as they go. Several American industries, chigger-bitten by foreign competition, have been put in contact with exactly the persons who can get their case before effective authorities. The BSA has helped many manufacturers get in touch with government buying agencies.

The AB—no, the BSA—has several other functions. It arranges industrial conferences at which trade and government men work out industry problems for the first time, trade association men sit in. It wrestles with standardization problems; at the moment it is trying to get the Armed Services to reduce the number of specifications to 100,000 containers from eight to two or three. It is also trying to get government out of business—and that's a story we'll try to cover here tomorrow.

GROCERS WANT MORE

Grocers, independent and chain, want manufacturers to allow them more money for handling those coupons good for free or cut-priced goods. Spearheaded by Safeway, which has carefully calculated its costs, grocers are asking manufacturers to increase the pay per coupon. It is now generally 2 cents. Safeway's analysis shows that it costs the chain 2.23 cents to handle each coupon. At that rate, it must cost corner grocers 3 or 4 cents per coupon, since they do not attain chain-store efficiency.

That's true. However, each coupon brings in the normal profit on the item, as well as the 2-cent handling charge. That's why a store will not refuse to cash coupons; it would lose a profit as well as the 0.23 cents. And before a retailer complains further about coupons, he might well consult a business psychologist.

Are Casseroles Next Big Issue?

By SAUL PETT
(For HAL BOYLE)

NEW YORK (AP)—Once a settlement or truce is reached on the question of how often should a husband do the dishes or who will write the family checks or who will give the baby the 2 a.m. feeding or just how much clothes a woman really need or who's going to drive the children to Sunday School, the next war between the sexes, I think, will be fought over the delicate issue of casseroles.

Women like casseroles. Men don't. This, of course, is a dangerously broad generalization but, rather than waste time proving it, let's try to explain the basic cleavage.

By nature, man is essentially a realist who prefers hard fact to between-the-lines interpretation, a conservative who clings to the status quo and frowns on sudden and unwarranted change, a skeptic who grows uneasy in the face of something he can't immediately recognize or understand.

By nature, woman is indirect, subtle, imaginative, escapist and coy. A woman is never more coy than when she has cooked a coy casserole. I submit, are coy. They reflect the basic "tease" in women, the urge to attract by the mysterious, the tendency to persuade us that there is more to a dish female or culinary than meets the eye.

If one thinks enough about it, one is tempted to philosophize on the connection between casseroles and the promise of a painted eyebrow arching up and away, or the scent of a subtle perfume or, even a false undergarment. But perhaps we better not go into that.

Casseroles symbolize woman's reluctance to face the fact that yesterday's roast beef or chicken or lobster or veal or tuna fish is still yesterday's roast beef, etc., now defrocked, sliced up and hidden like a poor relative under a melange of whipped potatoes, noodles or rice.

A woman is simply a grown up girl dreamer. She must still pretend. She rejects repetition as drab. She is still a little girl caught in a Cinderella fantasy. Oh, yes, yesterday's chicken was good, but still it was only chicken. Today, we must have something more exciting. We must mix it with other things, disguise it and submerge it and out of the pot we will now get eight prancing horses drawing a sparkling gilt carriage which will contain a dashing prince charming who will take us out of all this, give new meaning to our lives, etc.

It is often said—and accurately, I suppose—that a housewife, like anybody else, needs to feel creative. But they don't act out this urge on something less basic, like making ash trays or taking up hand weaving or collecting glass miniatures of 18th century poets?

I have often been told by a woman to whom I am related by marriage that casseroles are also a fine way of "stretching" food. And to this, I have often responded in a whisper, of course that no matter how much you shake it, mix it or assimilate it, you still get only so much roast beef and that much more noodles. Who you kidding?

Economical? I wonder. After you've painted in an entirely new background, after you've hired new actors disguised as mushrooms, almonds, cheese or wines, you've got, maybe, a show that looks different but it cost just as much and still has only the same amount of ham.

Easier to prepare? I don't know. I've seen an awful lot of pots, an awful lot of slicing and mixing and balancing go into casseroles.

Easier to serve? On this one point, I can't argue. I take the word of experts that all the labor involved in casseroles is involved in the preparation. But once all the working parts have been collected from their separate pots and thrown into the one melting pot to cook, the chef has very little to do. The casserole is then off on its own and requires very little watching. A woman has more time to spend with her guests and accordingly feels less like a second class citizen who has to grab her martini on the run in the kitchen while everyone else is relaxing in the living room.

All right. But then why not serve sandwiches? That gives the cook even more time in the living room. Or, if you must make casseroles, just don't make them for your husband. Just make them for guests you don't expect to entertain again.

Somebody Told Me

Outlook Is Half The Battle

Most of us complain when things go wrong, so for contrast Saturday afternoon I decided to crow because everything seemed to be just right.

After a refreshing swim Saturday afternoon I came home feeling like a million dollars and sat down to the short-wave radio. "The first person I hook," I told myself, "I'm going to tell that I've got it made in the shade."

So within a few minutes I had a Dayton, Ohio, station on the hook. "Would you like to hear from somebody," I asked him, "who has it made?"

"I'm curious," he said, "to hear more about that situation of yours and I must say that I'm glad you're better off than I am. What a combination this was! Two men talking, one who's sitting on top of the world and the other who probably should be but has a dim outlook."

This character didn't discourage me a bit. Nothing could. "I was 30 yesterday," I told him, "and don't feel a day over 18. Been swimming and picking up children on my shoulders just as if I were all man. Never felt better in my life."

The more I poured on the bright side the more this character talked about his woes. "I don't have a due bill to my name," I continued, "and I have a few dollars in the bank; very, very few." Then I went on to tell about my family and the satisfaction from that angle.

About that time in the conversation the telephone rang and it was one of my customers who wanted me to come down town and open up the store for him. That was all this pessimist needed to spur him on. "I know how that is," he said, "I'm in the television repair business and people worry me to death. Sometimes they come and get me and expect me to get their sets fixed in time for them to avoid missing the next program. I'll tell you, dealing with the public is something to contend with."

By this time I was beginning to feel really sorry for this man. And it inspired to write this column: Outlook is half the battle. Granted, at times it's very hard to keep looking on the bright side, with effort it can usually be done.

The next man I talked was a brighter individual by far, but I didn't bend his ear with the story of how I have it made. The previous contact had taught me a lesson. Feel good and enjoy life, but don't broadcast it too much, lest somebody will try to talk you out of it.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

A TWO PARTY SYSTEM

(Washington Daily News)
The United States operates politically with a two party system. The two parties, Democratic and Republican, are close enough to each other in numerical strength to be vigilante of each other at all times.

Some states have a clear cut two party system. In our own North Carolina, we have two parties, but the Republican party is so weak in the state as a whole that it doesn't exert the influence or vigilance that it could if its number were larger.

Two strong parties naturally give better government than a one party system could ever do. Two parties keep each party on its toes. However, in North Carolina we have been blessed greatly by our government in a state which has a two party system on paper but in reality we have a Democratic party evenly divided in factions.

We've been fortunate in our state government because at election time our factions for the most part consolidate and elect Democratic officials. But there is one factor in a two party system which is overlooked so many times. That is the matter of voting. If we, for instance, go to North Carolina's tenth congressional district which is now represented by a Republican Charles Jonas of Lincoln, we find that this district has six counties. They are Burke, Cabarrus, Lincoln, Mecklenburg, and Mitchell. This district is the strongest area for Republicanism in our state. Mr. Jonas is our only Republican congressman from this state.

But when we look at the voting figures we see a strange picture for North Carolina. In some election counties in this district will see better than 90 percent of the registered voters going to the polls on election day to vote.

Now in our own First district, less than 25 per cent of the voters will bother to go to the polls to vote because the election of a Democrat is assured. While we are as Democratic as anyone, we see a better expression of democracy exemplified in the tenth district than in our own district. We realize the more citizens who take time to express their wishes at the polls, the better democracy we'll have in government.

The western counties turn out better at primary time as a rule than we do in the East. The voters there take their primaries and elections more seriously.

Here in the Pamlico area we live in the very heart of the Democratic stronghold. Republicans don't even bother to put up a full slate of candidates in municipal and state elections. It is a tribute to the Democratic party that we have good government, but we are certainly not proud of the small percentage of voters who turn out at primary and elections times.

Organization Backing And N. C. Political Candidates

By LYNN NISBET

PROSPECTIVE There are many people in North Carolina who like to think, or charge, that Governors and United States Senators are handpicked by a small group of self-appointed "bosses" of the Democratic party years ahead of their election.

That is not the case, but it is true that prospective candidates for these high offices must start a build-up a long time in advance if they expect to win. North Carolinians do not accept for these offices men or women about whom they know very little, as is the case in some other States—especially in the middle and western sections of the country.

There have been instances when the "organization" backed men for high office after years of build-up, and there have been instances when candidates successfully promoted themselves against the organization's choice. Bob Reynolds did that when he was nominated for U.S. Senator over Cameron Morrison in 1932, but Reynolds had already been in two state-wide campaigns—for Lieutenant Governor in 1924 and for Senator in 1928. Kerr Scott did it in 1948 when he was nominated for Governor over Charlie Johnson, but Scott had already been three times elected Commissioner of Agriculture. Luther Hodges did it when he was nominated Lieutenant Governor in 1952, but he had been a highway commissioner and an important figure in Rotary and industry.

More often than not the organization-backed men have won, largely because they were better known to the rank and file of the voters, not because they were sponsored by the organization. It has happened that independent insurgents later were adopted by the organization. Outstanding example of that was the case of Max Gardner, who lost the governorship when he bucked the organization in 1920 and won it without a primary contest in 1928.

1956 - Outcome of the 1954 general election having been pretty well assured by Democratic nominations and executive appointments for major offices, the politically minded are projecting their thinking to 1956 and 1960. In both those years a Governor and a complete Council of State must be elected; in 1956 a U.S. Senator from the west and in 1960 a Senator from the east also must be chosen. It is presently a safe bet that in 1956 Senator Sam Ervin will be re-elected, and that incumbents on the Council of State will have no serious trouble. The offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor are wide open. The east-west rotation for these offices has been to all intent and purpose abandoned, so candidates may come from anywhere.

Luther Hodges, incumbent Lieutenant Governor, who lives at Spray, slightly west of the accepted dividing line, is rated the most active candidate for Governor. L.Y. (Stag) Ballentine, incumbent Commissioner of Agriculture, who lives at Varina, east of the mythical line; and Hubert Olive, who lives at Lexington, considerably west of the line, and who unsuccessfully challenged Governor Umstead of Durham, right near the line but recognized east, in the 1952 primary, are frequently mentioned as potentialists in the 1956 gubernatorial race. So is Alonzo Edwards, nationally known farm leader, who lives at Hookerton in the deep middle east. It is quite likely that the 1955 Legislature will develop other strong contenders for the governorship in 1956.

There is presently little likelihood that Senator Sam Ervin will have serious opposition in the 1956 primary, although neither Hubert Olive nor Capus Wayne can be counted out of that contest on basis of present showings. Candidates in 1956 will depend to considerable extent upon actions of the 1955 General Assembly and the 84th Congress.

1960 - Long range projection to 1960 is much more hazardous than speculation on 1956, but it is remembered that nobody has ever been elected Governor or Senator with less than six years build-up. By that time the east-west rotation business may have been completely forgotten, with possible reversion to the situation which old timers say maintained many years ago when the Governor and both Senators lived in the same county. That is, hardly likely, but there may be some interesting developments.

Alton Lennon, despite the fact some of his would-be friends sacrificed him in the recent senatorial primary polled a vote that entitles him to recognition for future consideration. He might get in the governor's race in 1956, but is more likely to be a candidate for Congress from the seventh district, and a contender for the Senate again in 1960.

It is easy to find in eastern North Carolina and among politicians and newsmen at Washington the positive belief that L.H. Fountain, who won the congressional seat from veteran John Kerr in the second district two years ago and mopped up with his opponent this year, will be to reckon with in the 1960 senatorial race against Kerr Scott. (His friends say he beat one Kerr and he can beat another one.)

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

We often continue to put off until tomorrow things which need desperately to be done today. For instance, when we see a fat man walking down the street, his abdomen protruding until he cannot look down and see his shoes, you know that he is falling to do—perhaps putting off—something which needs desperately to be done. When the rich pastry is passed and someone reminds him of his waistline, he smiles pleasantly and says, "The waistline—tomorrow."

When the old rascal John Falstaff was dying, he cried out, "God, God!" and Mistress Quickly assured him that it was not yet time to think about such things. So whether we are John Falstaff or John Doe, we go through life putting off a lot of things which ought to be done right now—the writing of our wills, reconciliation with our enemies, making our peace with God, remembering the waistline and doing something about it. These things, we feel, can all wait. There will be plenty of time to attend to such matters later.

So we say, and some may be so foolish as to believe what they say. But death and retribution and hypertension have a way of quickly catching up with us.

Are you putting off doing something about the waistline—or anything else which needs your attention today?

Sec. Benson Still In Trouble

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's valiant effort to solve the problem of almost $7 billion worth of agricultural surpluses has won enemies for the Administration in normally Republican states without lightning or ameliorating the burden.

His failure explains why the House Agriculture Committee voted 21 to eight against the Eisenhower-Benson program for 75 per cent rather than rigid 90 per cent parity prices for unsold commodities—an action which will undoubtedly be ratified by both the House and Senate in defiance of Ike and Ezra.

The Benson experiment has had almost a three months' trial, for his reduction of price supports on dairy products from 90 to 75 per cent went into effect on April 1. It was supposed to provide a preview of what would happen, if Congress should ratify the Administration's farm program.

ANTICIPATED BENEFICIAL EFFECTS—Benson had argued that his plan, both the experiment begun on April 1 and the long-range program, would have three beneficial effects. According to his theory, they would result in the following economic developments:
(1) The reduction in the government's loan or purchase prices would cut production of surplus crops and result in more diversified farming.
(2) The lower retail prices on dairy products, especially butter, cheese and milk, would result in greater urban consumption.
(3) The reduced prices would enable him to dispose of large blocks of surpluses overseas or in the domestic markets.

Therefore, so he calculated, the surpluses would slowly but gradually disappear. American agriculture would be enabled to stand on its own earth again, with gains for both the producers on the farms and consumers in the cities.

REDUCTION'S NEW HIGHS—Instead of dropping, production of dairy products has reached new highs since April 1. Even the nonpartisan hens have not responded to Benson's call. They laid 183,000,000 more eggs last April than they did in April of 1953. Milk production hit a record figure last April. The output over the same month a year ago was up by 435,000,000 pounds. As a result, there will be more dried milk, butter and cheese for Benson to buy at the 75 per cent figure than he had to buy at 90 per cent. He may pay less a pound for it, but his total outlay will be greater than ever before.

The explanation lies in the fact that a controlled economy has not worked. If the government reduces the farmers' return (subsidy) per unit of production, he simply builds up his herds and flocks and preserves his income through mass output. So do Henry Ford and General Motors.

NONE OF EXPECTED SALES INCREASES—Nor has the Benson reduction of parity prices stimulated retail and urban consumption. After the first flurry over special sales of butter, when the price fell from 80 to 70 cents or less, there has been no important increase in sales of this product. Consumption of the far cheaper margarine continues to grow. Nor has there been a perceptible jump in the buying of eggs and milk.

Ben's hope of selling surpluses overseas has vanished. He has offered to sell 325,000,000 pounds of cheese at 25 cents a pound on the world market, or 15 cents less than Uncle Sam paid for it. But there are no takers. He cannot dispose of butter and dried milk at bargain prices abroad. There are no bidders, dairy-producing countries overseas are now supplying their own needs. Secondly, the State Department frowns on this kind of dumping lest it antagonize friendly nations like Denmark, the Netherlands, Australia and New Zealand, and South America.

Benson, in view of his earlier optimism, must feel like a fellow who can't win, even though he holds four aces.

Teen-age Turnout

By RUTH EVELYN TOPPING
 Lou, Jane Travel to
 "Tower-Topped" Manhattan
 Early this morning Lou White and Jane Fuller chapter of Miss Frances McFadden, Director of Christian Education of the Memorial Baptist Church, took a train from Rocky Mount bound for "tower-topped" Manhattan.

During their week's stay at the Tull Hotel in New York City they will take a Manhattan Island boat tour, see Radio City, attend movies and plays, shop, and have a wonderful time in general.

 Rachel Steinbeck travels on July 9 "deep in the heart of Texas."
 She will visit her cousin in Houston.

Meeting her cousin and her aunt and uncle in West Virginia, Rachel will go with them to the Lone Star State by car.

Visiting Galveston beach, swimming in the numerous pools around Houston, watching bow-legged cowboys, and playing golf will be the activities Rachel and her cousin have planned.

 her relatives in Texas.

What's Your Most Wonderful Experience?

What is the most thrilling, exciting, wonderful experience you've ever had?

Sunday night over one hundred people, half of them leaders of Greenville High School, had the most wonderful experience they shall ever have — they accepted
 Christ as their Savior.

Where did this exciting event take place? It all happened at the Eddie Martin tent near the hospital. Eddie preached that night on "The Second Coming of Christ" and made it so real that before the night was over everyone wondered if Christ was on his way back to earth then.

Eddie Martin and his team composed of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Martin, father and mother of Eddie; Garland Coffield, co-evangelist and song leader; and O.D. Hall, the talented young organist and pianist — conduct services each night at the big tent at 7:30 o'clock. The choir, made up mostly of GHS students and other, young people, practice at 7 o'clock. Anyone is welcome to join the choir.

The evangelistic team was invited to Greenville by the Greenville Ministerial and Pitt County Ministerial Associations. They will stay in Greenville for three weeks. They pull out the last of June, so don't miss a single service.

Tonight Eddie preaches on "The Christians' Payday." See ya at the tent!

Kitty, Ann Attend Girls' State

Kitty Collins and Ann Worsley declared that they had a most marvelous time at Girls' State.

Sunday, June 6, they arrived at Woman's College in Greensboro where the convention was held. All of the 271 girls from all parts of North Carolina roomed in the Wiel-Winfield dormitory of W.C.

Four lectures a day until Wednesday took up most of the girls' time. They studied citizenship and state government.

The whole convention was divided into two parties, Nationalist and Federalist parties. They held party conventions and elected chairmen. Finally they elected a governor of the whole convention and other state officers.

Early Thursday morning Kitty and Ann with their companions took one of the eight chartered,
 police escorted busses to Durham.
 There they visited the Nurses' socety. Duke chapel, and were greeted by university officials. Next the busses took them to Raleigh.

In Raleigh they had regular sessions of Senate and house of Representatives. They were greeted by Mrs. Umstead, Thad Eure, secretary of state, inaugurated the girl governor.

The girls lunched at State College and visited the governor's mansion.
 They had a time of recreation at the bowling alley.

Chapel Hill was the next stop for the 271 girls. They saw a show at the Planetarium and dined at the University of North Carolina.

 Friday, back at W.C., the girls tried a case in their Supreme Court. The highlight of Friday's activities was the formal banquet session when pins and attendance certificates were presented.

Jo Ann Visits Niagara Falls Jo Ann Hales with her cousin and aunt and uncle traveled by car through the mountainous side of Virginia, Pennsylvania, and on up to New York State.

Spending two days at Niagara Falls was loads of fun according to Jo Ann. "The falls are prettier from the Canadian side," revealed Jo.

Shopping at Macy's and Gimbels, visiting Radio City, touring the Statue of Liberty and the Empire State Building, and going to the movie "Johnny Guitar," were the experiences of Jo Ann and her relatives in New York City.

On their way home they visited stores in Baltimore, came through Washington and Virginia. They arrived in Greenville last Wednesday after a week of fun.

Youth Attend Conference
 Sixteen young people spent a week of fun, fellowship, and worship at a Pioneer Conference at the Presbyterian Camp at Bogue
 Sound last week.

Jane Blue, Mary Ann Bryant,
 Becky Basnight, Sandra Phillips, Wesley Topping, Carl Bestedt, Dickie Haar, Jimmy Jenkins, Billy James, Charles Ross, Carl Whitfield, Jimmy Churchill, Faye Hardee, James Ray Cox, Carolyn Craft, and Clara Faye Crawford were the delegates from Greenville.

Ginger Returns to Baltimore Ginger, King, formerly of Baltimore, Maryland, left the day after her graduation June 2, to visit her old high school friends in Baltimore.

She drove her mother and baby sister up to their old home. Ginger visited the high school, for there, school is not out until June 22.
 Most of her friends, now married, welcomed her home.

Shopping and swimming were the main activities of Ginger's week "back home" in Maryland.

Three Attend State-Wide Conference
 Three Greenville young people,
 Dennis Bullock, Sylvia Satterthwaite and Sally Beard, attended Synod's Conference — a state-wide Presbyterian conference — at Flora Mac-Donald College in Red Springs, N.C.

They arrived at the campus
 Monday, June 7 and returned home
 Saturday, June 12.

Dennis exclaimed, "I wouldn't have missed it for anything!"
 Sally Beard and Sylvia Satter-thwaite are to be editors of "Albemarle Sound," the Presbytery's newspaper, for the next two years.

Personal Note
 To Police Dept.

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—A teen-age boy was in—and out—of trouble throughout his high school career because of his interest in motor scooter races.

He graduates this spring, and sent a personal invitation to the Norman Police Department for the commencement ceremonies with this notation:

"For your information, I made

No Family Cat
 Dug That Hole

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mrs. Irene Showalter saw the family cat scratching at a hole in the back yard yesterday.

So the South Baltimore housewife went out and chopped at the hole with a hoe, thinking it might be a rat hole. Then she decided to wait until her husband came home from work to investigate further.

But by the time Showalter came back the back yard was minus a chunk of earth four feet in diameter and at least eight feet deep.

Police said the cave-in might mark the site of an old well.

More Effects Felt By Bond Market Changes

By ARTHUR MERIMS
(For Sam Dawson)

NEW YORK (AP)—Anybody who has ever invested in American enterprise via the stock market probably needs no prompting to make "bullish" or "bearish" predictions. But ask him about the bond market and his response is likely to be — "huh?"

Most people would be amazed to learn how intimately their lives are tied to fluctuations in the bond market. Few guess that bond interest changes usually affect them for more than stock gyrations.

A housewife who discovers that her gas, electric or telephone rates have just been increased seldom realizes that the utility company, which floated a new bond issue at high interest rates, is passing those increased borrowing costs on to her, the consumer.

The man refused a mortgage on his home by his banker is unaware that the bank's funds may already be heavily invested in high yielding bonds which are considered more secure than his home mortgage might be.

Different from a stock, which represents ownership in a business, a bond is simply a loan, a promise to return the full amount of a borrowed sum plus interest in a fixed number of years. When you buy a series "E" or "H" savings bond, for example, you lend the U.S. government your surplus cash for nine years and eight months. And you charge Uncle Sam 3 per cent interest for its use.

But savings bonds, which never change in face value and are not transferable, are not considered part of the "bond market." Only debt certificates which can legally change hands, hence rise or fall in value, are legitimate segments of the bond market. These include marketable government securities, corporate bonds, state and municipal obligations and foreign dollar bonds.

The fundamental barometers of interest rates throughout the country are marketable government bonds issued by the Treasury. If a U. S. note sells at a discount, then a similar municipal obligation must sell at a greater discount, a corporate bond at a still greater discount. When you make a personal loan, under these conditions, the borrowing costs are apt to be extremely high.

The logic of the bond market results from the fact that the government bond is a nation's most secure investment. That's because it is backed by all the resources a country possesses. Any other form of debt is of less merit than the national debt. Hence, if the government is forced to pay a relatively high borrowing cost, a corporation's costs will be still higher. Such a situation occurred in May 1953 when the Treasury was forced to pay 3 1/2 per cent interest to float 30-year bonds at then current market conditions.

Right now, interest rates are considerably lower. This is evident from the current price of that same 3 1/2 per cent government bond. Today that $1,000 bond changes hands at $1,100 and yields only 2.68 per cent interest.

Further confirmation was found in last week's sale of 10 million dollars of Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. bonds. The utility was able to sell 30-year mortgages at a net interest cost of 3.195 per cent, less than the federal government had to pay a year ago.

Army-McCarthy Hearing In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here is a brief rundown on the Senate Investigations subcommittee's inquiry into the dispute between Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and top Army officials:

The Original Charges—Secretary of the Army Stevens and Army Counselor John G. Adams accused McCarthy and two subcommittee aides, Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr, of using improper pressures to win favored Army treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine, a subcommittee consultant who was drafted.

McCarthy and his aides in turn accused Stevens and Adams of trying to use Schine as a "hostage" in efforts to cause McCarthy to halt or divert an investigation of alleged subversives in the Army particularly at Ft. Monmouth, N.J. They also accused Asst. Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel of seeking to discredit the subcommittee.

The subcommittee dismissed Carr and Hensel as principals on a 4-3 party-line vote May 26.

Pertinent Past Testimony — Stevens denied trying to halt McCarthy's probe but testified he objected to methods he said gave a distorted picture. He said McCarthy's aides subjected him to threats of an "exceedingly serious" nature in seeking Army favors for Schine.

Adams testified Cohn threatened that if Schine were sent overseas Stevens would be "through as secretary" and the Army wrecked. He said Cohn brought pressure that was "extremely hard to bear."

Cohn said Stevens and Adams repeatedly sought to stop the Ft. Monmouth probe. He said Adams referred to Schine as "the hostage" and once said he would "stop at nothing" to block subcommittee questioning of members of the Army's top loyalty board.

McCarthy denied under oath seeking favors for Schine. He said some testimony by Stevens and Adams showed they had had memories or were in error. He testified Army officials filed "blackmail" charges against him and his aides to prevent exposure of those who "coddled" Communists.

McCarthy portrayed Stevens as a "fundamentally honest" man who was "mousetrapped" by others into a plot against McCarthy and the Republican party.

Yesterday's Highlights — Carr, temporarily replacing McCarthy on the witness stand, testified he believes the McCarthy camp charges are truthful. He contradicted in detail some earlier testimony by Stevens and Adams and pictured Adams as persistently demanding that the McCarthy investigation of the Army be sidetracked.

Carr said Adams repeatedly offered to do favors for Schine if

Governor Forgets Dog In Tax List

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Gov. Robert Crosby of Nebraska, who has been campaigning for honest reporting of tax returns in the state, filed his own personal property tax schedule, then followed it up a few days later with a correction. He had forgotten, the governor said, to list his pet boxer dog, Prince.

"It's down there (on the tax form) between 'chickens, ducks and geese' and 'fur bearing animals' and I missed it," the governor volunteered.

the inquiry were halted. He quoted Adams as often referring to Schine as "the hostage" but said he couldn't be sure when Adams was joking.

He said he knew of no Army retaliation against Schine after McCarthy refused to halt the investigation.

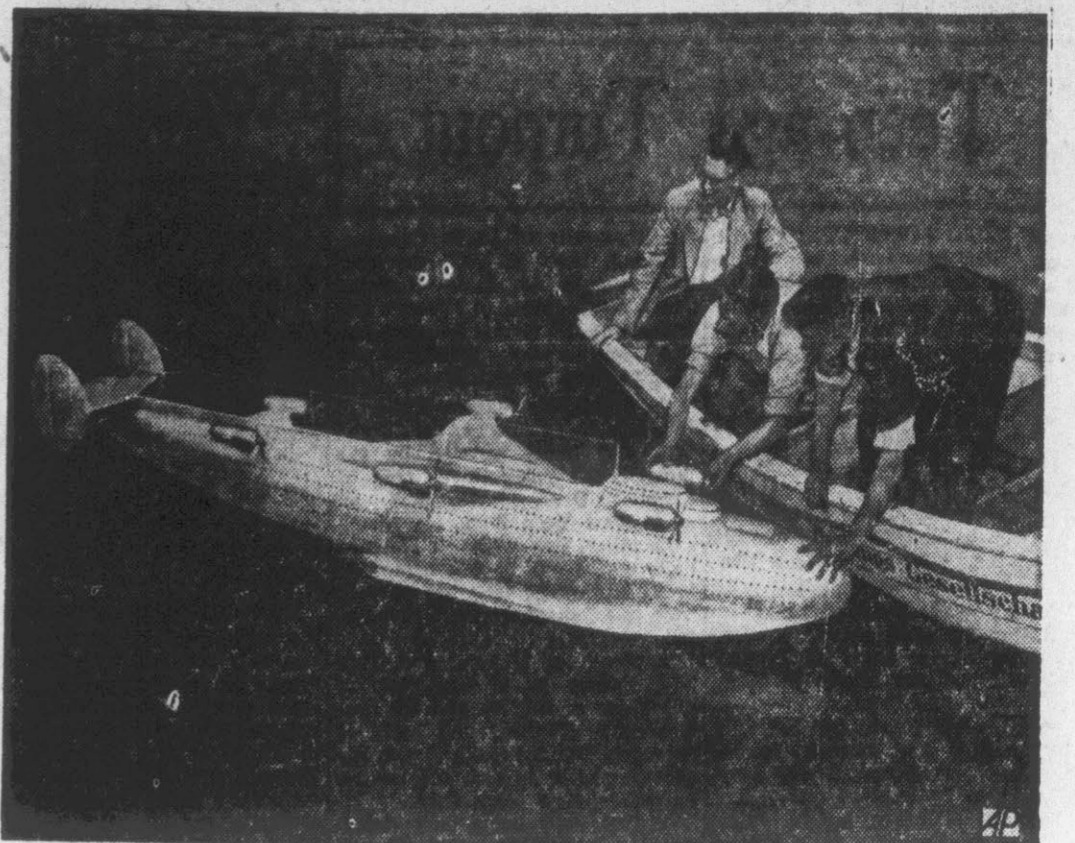

Sen. Symington (D-Mo) touched off another noisy quarrel with McCarthy by saying the McCarthy subcommittee files were "the sloppiest and most dangerous" to security he had ever seen. Symington had held high government positions since 1945. McCarthy accused the Missourian of making a "dishonest smear" of subcommittee aides working hard and loyally against Communists.

Star Has No Yen To Sign With Studios

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This may hurt Hollywood's feelings, but here's a star who has no yen to sign with the studios.

He's Ralph Meeker, member of the torn T-shirt school of acting and star of "Picnic," the prize-winning play that is appearing here. The hit of Broadway as the animalistic hero of the show, he has been sought for film roles by the studios. As of now, he has no plans for pictures.

"This may sound like heresy," he comments, "but I'm not eager to sign up with any studio. If I do, I'll end up having to do pictures I don't like. It's either that or go on suspension, and I wouldn't want that. I like to eat."

"I like the stage. I would like to do some pictures, but I'd also want to be able to do plays when I wanted."

I saw Meeker at his hotel, the famed Garden of Allah, which is said to be haunted by the shades of F. Scott Fitzgerald, Robert Benchley and other literary greats who once lived there. The actor is in characteristic condition: he lolled beside the pool in a brief bathing suit.

Throughout most of his career, Meeker has worn less clothing than Marilyn Monroe. In the original "Mister Roberts" cast, his costume as one of the marauding sailors was one strategic strip of paper. He replaced Marion Brando as the bare-chested Pole in "A Streetcar Named Desire," then came to Hollywood to play a prizefighter, among other things. During the first act of "Picnic," he wears only tight jeans.

Do such exhibitions embarrass him?

"Not any more," he said. "I was embarrassed in 'Roberts' because my costume was practically nothing. But I found out that if I was embarrassed, the audience was too. So I got over it."

"The only trouble is with the theaters. Some of them can be pretty cold backstage. When I'm playing a drafty theater in the wintertime, it's pretty hard to get across the idea that I'm sweating on a hot day."

Meeker left a good-paying contract at MGM to return to the stage, and I asked him why.

"Because I wasn't happy with the pictures I was getting," he said. "Some of them were pretty miserable—like 'Somebody Loves Me' and 'Gloria Alley' and 'Code Two.' I got one pretty good one in 'Jeopardy' and 'Naked Spur' wasn't too bad. But I was unhappy and asked to get out of the contract again and again. They finally let me go."

A. Story Batson

A. Story Batson, self styled "private detective," the man who gathered the evidence, and made the so-called investigation of the office of Sheriff in 1938 below, in part, from official records is a record of this man's activities after he left Pitt county. This is the man who went outside the County and hired witnesses, and brought in to help him from outside the county, a group of men of the same calibre as himself. No, I did not cooperate with this man, nor his hirelings, because I did not feel that a man of this type was capable of law enforcement responsibilities. I did cooperate with the ABC Board in helping to stop the illegal flow of Bootleg Liquor in Pitt County, but refused to swear in said A. STORY BATSON as a deputy, or to allow him to serve warrants in the name of the Sheriff's Office.

MEMORANDUM
Re: State vs. A. Story Batson
220 North Carolina 411,
17 S. E. 2nd 511

Defendant was tried and convicted in the Superior Court of New Hanover County, of an attempt to commit barratry and appealed to the North Carolina Supreme Court, November 26, 1941.

Bill of indictment charged defendant with "on or about the 26th day of July, 1939, and on other times and days during the years 1939, and 1940, with wilfully, and a mean and selfish intent to stir up and excite divers quarrels, strifes, suits, and controversies among the honest and quiet citizens of this state; that the said A. Story Batson was and yet is, a common barrator, stirring up, moving and procuring strifes, quarrels, suits, and controversies among the people, to the common nuisance of all the people."

Barratry is defined by the Court as "The offense of frequently starting and stirring up suits and controversies."

"Persons who indulge in barratry are those pests of civil society that are perpetually endeavoring to disturb the repose of their neighbors, and officiously interfering in other men's quarrels, the huckstering in litigious discord."

"The attempt to commit the crime of barratry is sufficiently evidenced by the testimony in this case given by the persons named in the bill which tends to show that the defendant went, uncollected, to see each of these five (5) persons named in the indictment, and urged each of them to institute separate suits, and offered to assist these persons in the conduct of these suits, and to receive his compensation from the collection made therein; together with testimony of other witnesses . . . as well as the letterhead used in the business of the defendant which reads in part, "We specialize in Murder, Robbery, Divorce, Criminal, Civil, Commercial."

The defendant admitted to the Court that he had heretofore served time.

Defendant was sentenced to be confined in the common jail of New Hanover County for a term of eight (8) months, and assigned to work the roads under directions of the State Highway and Public Works Commission.

Trial Judge, R. Hunt Parker
Opinion, by Justice Schenck . . . No Error

This was the man brought into Pitt County by my political enemies in an effort to bring discredit to my office. I am publishing this memorandum in an effort to show, you, the people of Pitt County, just what type of man I was up against in defense of myself in 1938. For twelve years the people of Pitt County Honored me by electing me to the office of sheriff. For many years, in addition to law enforcement duties, my office was charged with the responsibility of collecting county taxes. Without the advantages of modern twoway radio systems, and present day cooperation of SBI, my administration I believe speaks for itself in the prevention of crime, and the apprehension of criminals in the county. I might add, that during my administration the sheriff was also required to act as jailor, to enforce the liquor laws, and supervise highway traffic until the Highway Patrol was organized.

Robert Young Is Buckling Down To Railroad Job

By STEVEN V. DAVID
NEW YORK (AP)—The new regime of Robert R. Young buckled down today to the formidable task of running the nation's second largest railroad, the far-flung New York Central system.

Young and his board took over yesterday, an hour after they were officially proclaimed winner by 1,064,000 shares in their proxy battle with the management headed by William White.

The new board quickly elected Young as chairman — at $1 a year — and named Alfred E. Perlman, 51-year-old executive vice president of the Denver & Rio Grande Western, as president and chief executive officer.

Today, a spokesman said, Perlman will call in key operating men of the Central to talk over the road's problems. The Central is outranked in size only by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

White stepped down as president, as he said he would if Young won, as soon as the official tally of shareholders' votes was announced at Albany.

He promised to cooperate with the new management "in effecting an orderly transition."

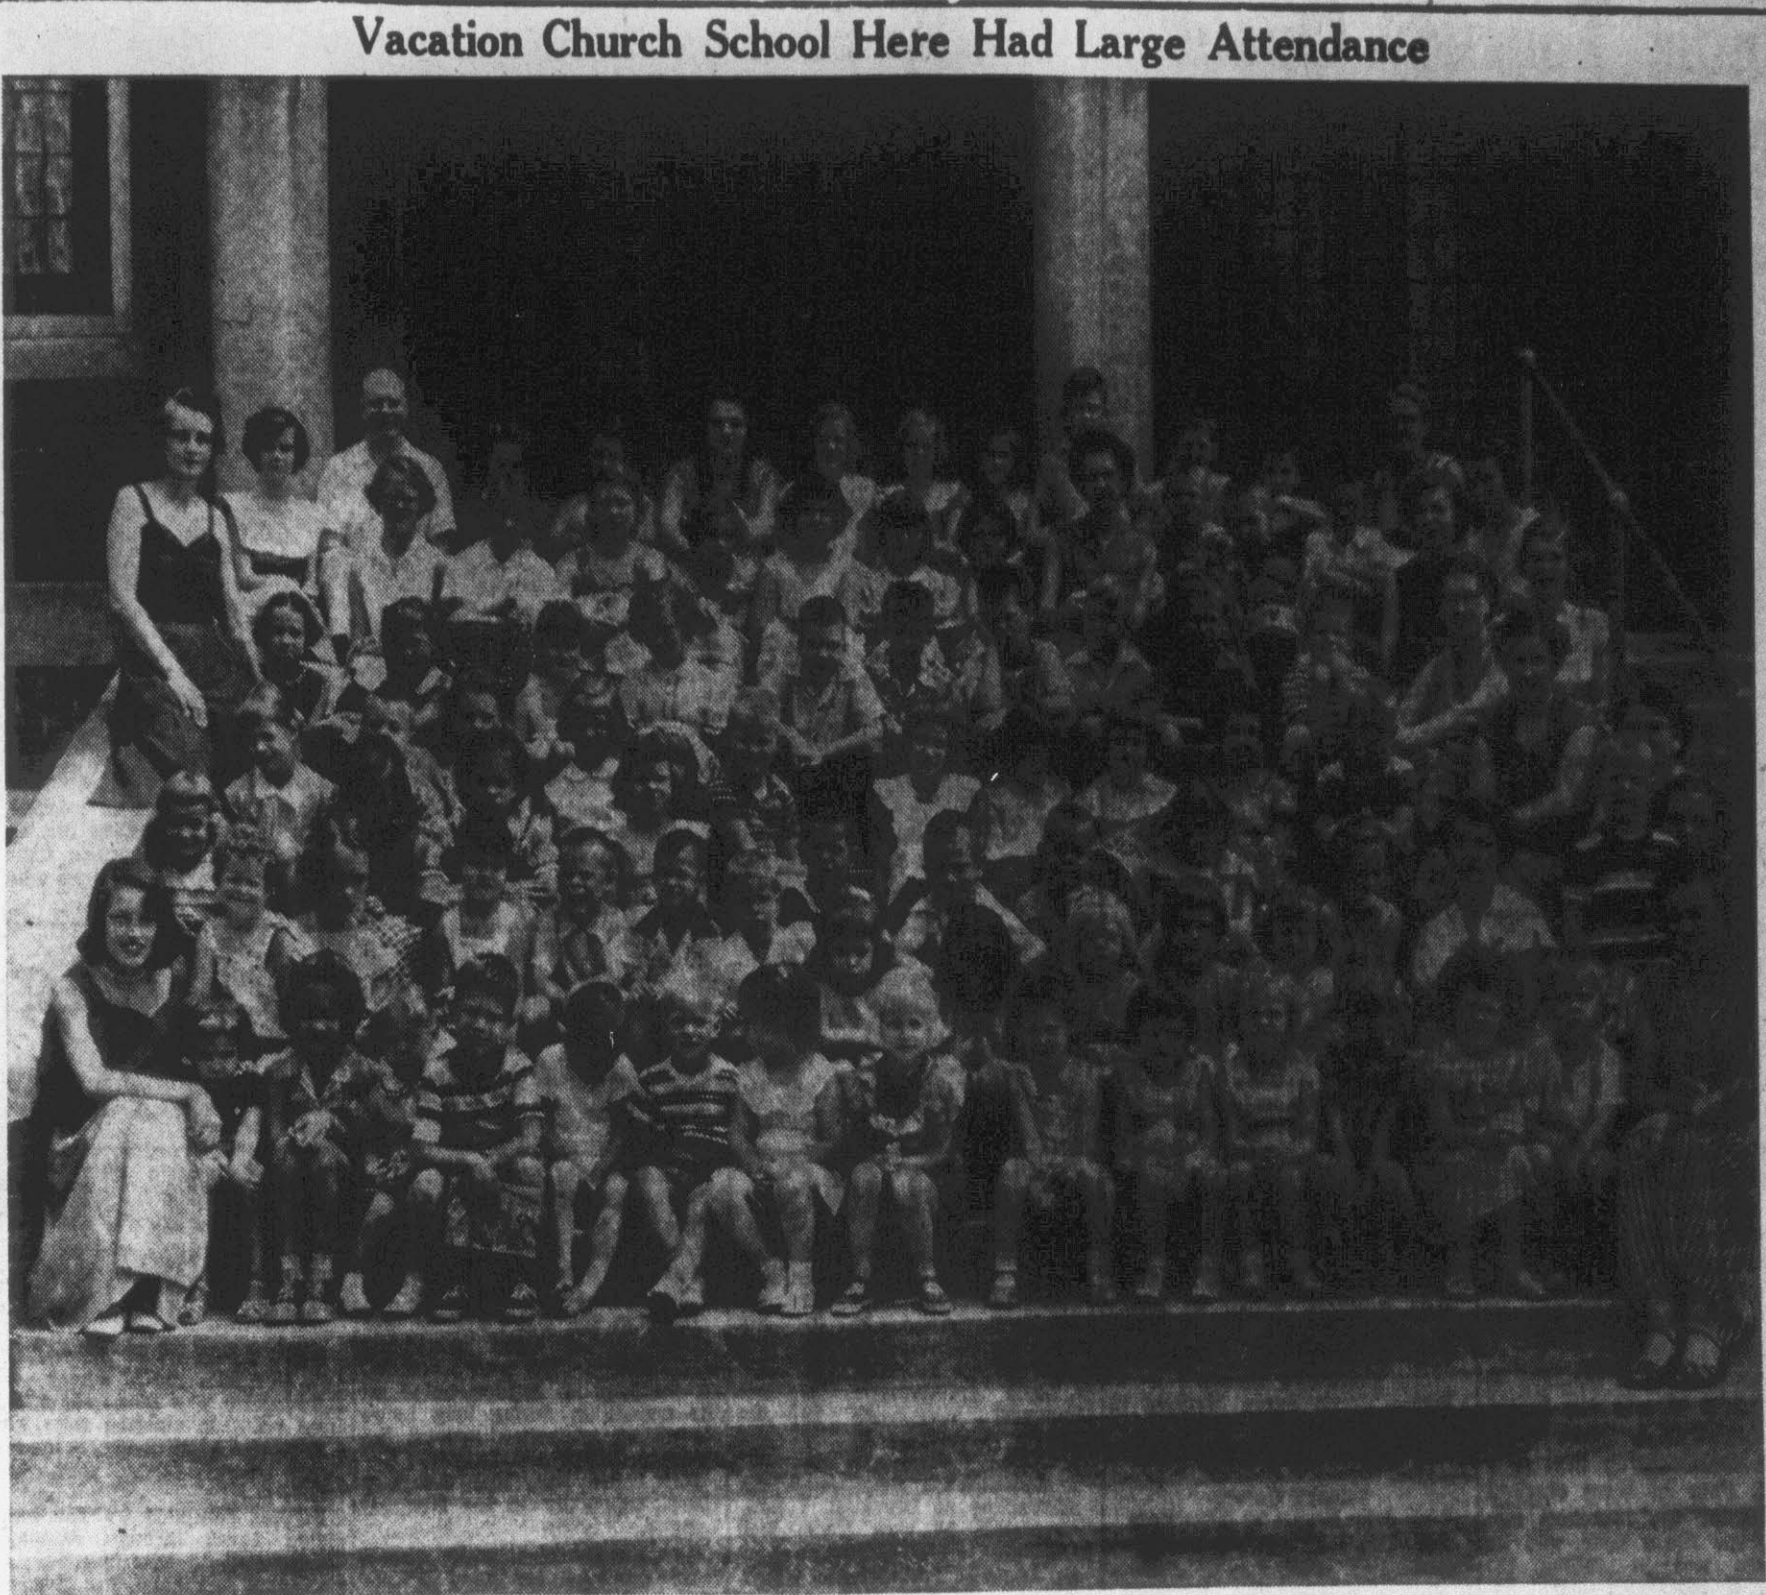

In a statement, Young thanked those who supported him and declared: "We offer the warm hand of conciliation to those who willingly or unwillingly worked against us."

Young said that all of the industry's 41,000 passenger cars and most of its 1,800,000 freight cars "can be replaced by more efficient types and more than pay their cost out of savings." He added:

"Industrywide planning for and agreement on improved and standardized equipment designs, volume purchasing, freight and passenger terminal adaptation to the motor age, the greater use of each other's facilities, accounting, reservation and ticketing simplification and many other cooperative projects are long overdue."

Perlman said in a statement that "we will not revolutionize the railroad overnight but we will build a firm foundation upon which will rise a progressive and modern structure of which we can all be proud."

What salary Perlman will get as president was not disclosed. White received $120,000 a year.

Doubt Simone's Acting Ability

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Immigration and Naturalization Service has ordered British actress Simone Silva to leave the country within 60 days.

Miss Silva is the actress who caused a few photographers to fall into the Mediterranean when she stripped to the waist to pose with Robert Mitchum on the French Riviera.

Herman Landon, district immigration director, said that although the actress entered the United States on a pleasure visa, she signed a movie contract and is receiving a salary.

Miss Silva asked for a work permit last week but Landon said "she did not make a sufficient showing to conclude that she is a person of unusual ability and talent or professional attainment."

Al Petker, independent film producer who says he gave her a film contract, said he would appeal the decision, which he characterized as "ridiculous." He said her acting ability had been amply established by the nine movies she made in England.

Ex-Foes Vowing Rocky Can't Lose

By GAYLE TALOT
GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP)—By a happy coincidence of timing, it was possible to hold here at Rocky Marciano's training camp the first annual meeting of one of the most exclusive little boxing clubs in the country.

The membership is confined to those fearless experts who picked Roland LaStarza to defeat Rocky in their championship duel here last fall. Four of them managed to be visiting the Marciano menage at the same hour, and no time was lost in calling the doughy, if nameless, group together.

All four, as it turned out, still had the same jobs they held nearly a year ago when they predicted that LaStarza, the boxer, would outsmart the crude puncher, Marciano, for 15 rounds and win the decision. None of them had even been threatened.

"I still think it was a good pick," insisted the largest member of the group, stubbornly. "I had LaStarza well ahead on points until Rocky caught him in the 11th. I thought he was outboxing Rocky good."

"That's right, agreed a lodge brother. "I never apologized to anybody. The only place we went wrong on Roland was not realizing he had gone stale. He came in three or four pounds less than anybody expected him to. Didn't you think he looked stale?"

"Yeah, I thought so," put in a new voice, "but only after Rocky started hitting him in the belly toward the end. Those punches made him plenty stale. This guy hits awful hard. He keeps on hitting hard for a long time too."

There ensued a considerable discussion of LaStarza's merits as compared with those of Ezzard Charles, who is to sample the Marciano torpedoes on Thursday night at Yankee Stadium. The membership agreed without a dissenting vote that Charles is a far fiercer challenger than Roland was.

"This guy's been around," pointed out the delegate from Chicago. "He can box and he can punch. Compared with him, LaStarza was just a good amateur. Roland can't be much when he loses to that fat British fellow, Don Cockell."

"Any of you fellows going to pick against the champ this time?" asked one of the group.

The man looked around hopefully, still dead game if he could get a little moral support. All he received from his fellow members were three emphatic shakes of the head, all negative. One had the gloomy feeling that the Marciano Can Be Licked Club was a dying organization.

Surkont And Law Sought By Clubs

NEW YORK (AP)—Max Surkont and Vern Law, the only Pittsburgh pitchers who have won more than two games, appeared to be the players most sought after today in the hours before the midnight deadline on major league baseball trades.

The St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs both have talked deals with the Pirates involving the pitchers but so far nothing concrete has developed.

The Cubs, 11 games out of first place, probably could not be considered strong pennant contenders unless they could land both men, but the Cardinals, 6 behind, might still be dangerous with the addition of only one consistent pitcher.

Chicago beat Surkont last night but the right-handed veteran still has a 5-7 record with the last-place Pirates. Law beat St. Louis in his last outing and has a 5-6 mark.

Baseball Clubs Wondering Where Good Old Days Are

STANDINGS
The major league ball clubs were on the move again today wondering what ever became of home sweet home.

Back in the Old Days—that elusive period when everything was better—the teams counted on building up a nice bulge on the opposition during long home stands tonight—The Dodgers against Milwaukee's Braves, whose 14-6 mark is the best record in the league, and the Giants against the Cincinnati Redlegs, who are 11-11 away from home.

In the American League, Cleveland, Chicago and New York, 1-2-3 in the standings, own winning records both at home and away. Of the other five Philadelphia is even at home and the others haven't been able to keep on the plus side regardless of where they've played.

Just as the Giants' prospects look bright, so do the immediate hopes of the league-leading Indians. Cleveland has the best home record in either league—16 victories and 6 defeats—and opens a 13-game home stand tonight, against Washington.

Cleveland stretched its lead to two games over Chicago yesterday by beating Boston for the fifth straight time. The score was 13-7 with the Indians unloading 22 hits against Bill Henry, Tom Herrin and Tom Brewer. The game was the only action in the American League.

In the National League's single contest, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Pirates at Pittsburgh 6-5. Hank Sauer's 20th home run, with Ralph Kiner on base, gave the Cubs the deciding runs.

The road clubs took the honors in the inter-sectional battles just completed. In the National League the East, led by New York and Brooklyn, mopped up in the West, 32 games to 17. The touring Western teams beat the East 30-27 in the American.

Today the Yankees hit the road in Baltimore, Boston is at Detroit and Philadelphia in Chicago in addition to the Washington-Cleveland contest. The National League program of three games includes St. Louis at Philadelphia plus the Braves-Dodgers and Reds-Giants engagements.

Redmen Hold First Position With 8-4 Win Over Fords

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Writer

Coach Junior Yohn's Redmen continued on their league-leading ways last night in Pony League action as they dumped the fall-end Fordomatics 8-4 at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Redmen lunched on Bob Bilbro of the Fords for six runs in the four innings he pitched aided and abetted Walker Lee Allen for the other two runs in the fifth and sixth.

John Wesley Hudson started on the hill for the Redmen and hurled a creditable game until he weakened in the sixth inning. An error and two walks loaded the bases with only one out. Coach Yohn sent in ace relief hurler Billy Boyd Cox and the Redmen's stopper struck out the next two batters to retire the side. Cox kept up the brilliant relief hurling by striking out the side in the top of the seventh.

For Hudson it was his first game of the year. The slender sidearm had recently undergone an eye operation and returned to play ball last week. Besides pitching a fine game, Hudson slugged out a single in three trips to the plate.

Arthur Andrews and Walker Lee Allen were the only players that got more than one hit during the game. Allen of the Fords had a double and a single in four trips while Andrews had a double and a single in three official times at bat.

Both teams hit the ball well at times and going into the last of the fifth the score was tied at 4-4. The Redmen put on their power at that point. Andrews led off with a single and Johnny Johnson followed with a walk. Cox singled and Charles Staton singled to score two runs. Staton scored when Hudson's ground ball was errored by the third baseman. The Redmen picked up one more insurance run in the sixth.

The win keeps the Redmen on top of the league with a 5-1 mark. The National Guard is in second place and the Bright Leafs in third. The Fordomatics remain in last place.

Tonight at 7:45 the National Guard and the Bright Leafs play for possession of second place.

Democrats Picked To Win Seventh Intra-Party Game

WASHINGTON (AP)—Politics and baseball mix tonight as a picked team of Democrats sets out to defend a six-year winning streak against an up-and-coming Republican team in the annual congressional baseball game.

The game, set for five innings under the lights at Griffith Stadium, Vice President Nixon will throw out the first ball. Rep. Glenn R. Davis (R-Wis) will try to make Washington fans forget Walter Johnson with his pitching performance, while Rep. W. M. (Don) Wheeler (D-Ga) will be seeking to emulate Christy Mathewson. Both played ball in high school. But that was a long time ago. They're up in their late 30's.

Wheeler has been beating the Republicans with regularity ever since he came to Congress in 1947. But the GOP hopes were stirred when they defeated Wheeler in a practice game at Daytona Beach, Fla., last April.

"We have taken the fire out of Fireball Wheeler," said Rep. Bishop of Illinois, the 63-year-old GOP playing manager, "and we can do it again."

Democratic starters included Reps. Rivers of South Carolina in center field and Alexander of North Carolina in left.

Burdette, Garver Stingy With Runs

NEW YORK (AP)—Milwaukee's Lew Burdette, the 27-year-old right-hander who made the switch from relief to starting roles with a minimum of difficulty, is the National League earned run leader today.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press through Monday's games disclose that Burdette, an ex-Yankee farmhand, has given up 21 earned runs in 94 innings for a 2.35 ERA. Ned Garver of Detroit, with 15 earned runs in 95 innings, tops the American League in earned run supremacy with a 1.42 average.

Burdette's won-lost record is 6-5, while Garver has won four and lost two.

Runner-up to Burdette is Philadelphia's Curt Simmons (6-1). The stylish southpaw has allowed 23 earned runs in 88 innings for a 2.31 mark. Another lefty, Johnny Antonelli of the Giants (6-2), is third, having yielded 21 earned runs in 94 frames for a 2.39 ERA.

Rookie Gene Conley of the Braves holds down fourth at 2.43, followed by Philadelphia's Robin Roberts, 2.73, the Giants' Ruben Gomez, 2.87, and Milwaukee's Warren Spahn, last year's pacesetter, 3.03.

Washington's Bob Porterfield, (7-5) trails Garver in the American League ratings with a 2.07 ERA. The Nats' ace has permitted 24 earned runs in 105 innings. Third-ranking Allie Reynolds of the Yankees (7-1) has yielded 18 earned runs in 75 innings for a 2.16 mark.

Cleveland's Mike Garcia and Bob Keegan of the White Sox are tied for fourth at 2.27, followed by last season's leader, Ed Lopat of the Yankees, 2.39, and Virgil Trucks of the White Sox, 2.56.

Tar Heel Leads

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP)—Herb Browne of North Carolina, seeded No. 1 in the Eastern Intercollegiate tennis championships, led the favorites into the third round today.

Browne breezed through his first and second round matches yesterday. In the morning he easily took Bill Ziegler of Penn State 6-1, 6-3.

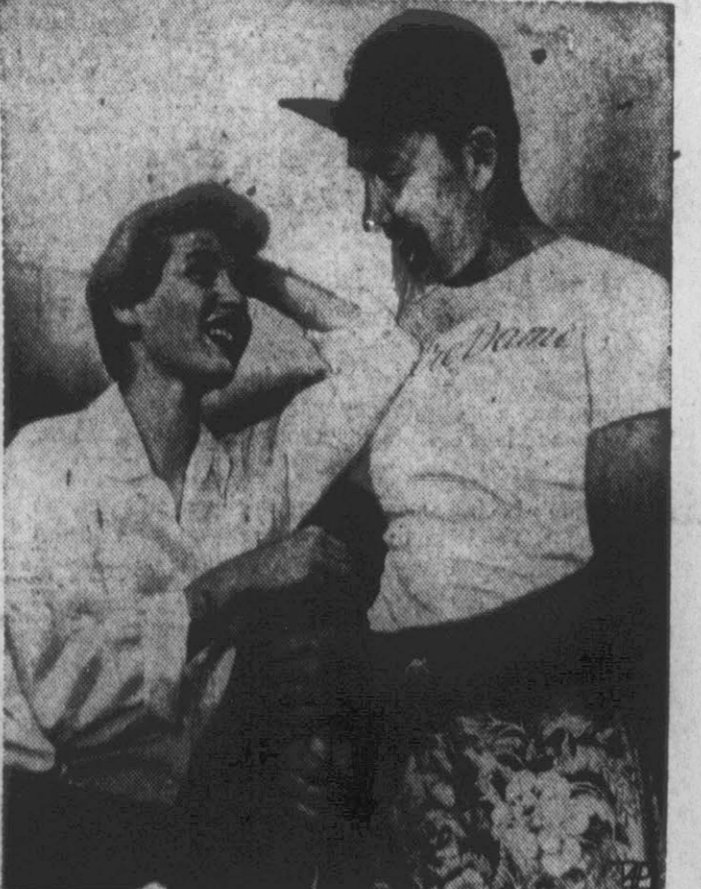

In the afternoon he handed Frank Wagner, Pratt Institute, 6-1, 6-1, without a workout.

Fifty players from 23 colleges east of the Mississippi are entered in the tournament which will end Friday.

Williams III

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, Boston's power-hitting outfielder, was still confined to his hotel suite today with a virus infection that will keep him from joining the Red Sox for an indefinite period of time.

Williams has been out of action for nine days but only yesterday, when the team explained for Detroit for the start of a Western trip, was the seriousness of his ailment revealed.

WOMAN UNAFRAID—Mary Lee Wheeler, St. Mary's College softball captain, is unawed as she meets Notre Dame's Johnny Latner in skirt, before benefit game at Notre Dame, Ind.

There's A Catch To Sneed's Entry

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Sam Sneed is entered in the British Open golf tournament this year, but there's a catch in it.

The West Virginia professional, winner of the British crown in 1946, has announced he will play at Royal Birkdale July 5-9 only if he captures the U. S. Open this week.

Sneed, troubled with a neck and shoulder ailment, is one of the favorites in the U. S. Open at Baltusrol, Springfield, N. J., starting Thursday.

Counting Sneed, 15 Americans are entered in the British event, which has drawn a field of 349 players from 11 countries.

Other top U. S. pros entered are Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., former U. S. Open champion and Ryder Cup captain; Jimmy Demaret of Klamath Lake, N. Y.; Gene Sarazen of Germantown, N. Y., winner of the British Open in 1932, and Jim Turnesa, 1952 U. S. PGA titlist.

Leading amateurs include Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, runner-up to Ben-Hogan at Carnoustie last year; Frank Strafaci of Garden City, N. Y.; Jimmy McHale of Philadelphia and Robert Sweeney of Palm Beach, Fla.

Hogan won't defend the crown he won last year at Carnoustie.

White Sox Star Leading Voting In All-Star Poll

CHICAGO (AP)—Orestes (Minnie) Minoso, Chicago White Sox outfielder, maintained the individual vote-getting lead in the second tabulation of returns in the All-Star baseball poll.

Minoso has 2,014 votes in the poll, which determines all starters except pitchers for the annual inter-league contest at Cleveland July 13.

Balloting, which began Friday, ends at midnight July 3.

The White Sox have three other leaders in balloting for the American league team — shortstop Chico Carrasquel first baseman Ferris Fain and third baseman George Kell.

Stan Musial, St. Louis Cardinals outfielder, is leading the National League voting, with 1,922 votes.

Farm Agent Says Downy Mildew Spreading In Wilmington Area

State College Extension Service has reported that downy mildew is well established and spreading rapidly on cucumber, cantaloupe, squash and watermelon in the Wilmington area, Pitt County Farm Agent Sam Winchester reports.

Winchester indicated that when an outbreak of the downy mildew is noted in the southern part of the state it can usually be expected to move up into this section.

"Only dry weather or thorough and timely use of fungicides can prevent the disease," a letter from the Extension Service said. "We suggest that cucumber and cantaloupe growers in all areas of the state, who do not wish to gamble on the weather, prepare to start control measures immediately."

The letter recommended a dust containing 5 per cent metallic copper derived from basic copper sulfate for controlling downy mildew of cucumber and cantaloupe.

"Where anthracnose is also a problem an alternate schedule of copper dust with zinc dust (eight per cent Parzate or Dithane X-78) is suggested," the State College letter continued.

The letter noted, however, that Anthracnose should not be a serious problem where the proper crop rotation and seed treatment practices have been followed.

"The unusually early report of downy mildew on watermelon may be an indication that this crop may suffer some damage this year," the letter continued. "In most years watermelon escapes serious damage. Because copper dust sometimes causes injury to watermelon, zinc dust or the alternating schedule above is suggested for grow-ers who wish to protect their watermelon crop."

It warns against applying fungicides to any of the cucurbit crops when they are wilted and suffering severely from drought.

"Downy mildew cannot spread under such conditions and wilted plants may be more subject to chemical injury by fungicides," the letter concludes.

Winchester recommended that cucumbers be dusted not less than once every ten days and in addition, after each rain that is heavy enough to wash the dust from the vines.

"Early in the season 15 to 20 pounds per acre per application are usually sufficient," the farm agent indicated. "Later, when the vines are larger, 35 to 50 pounds per acre per application may be needed."

"Both the upper and the lower leaf surfaces must be covered thoroughly for control of downy mildew," Winchester continued.

"It is easiest to get a thorough coverage early in the morning or late in the evening when the air is quiet. The dusting equipment must produce a good 'fog' of the finely divided dust particles."

Winchester recommended that the runner of the vines be trained to run length wise of the rows as soon as they start to run to make dusting easier and to avoid possible injury to the vines.

The farm agent said that tribasic copper sulfate dust containing five per cent metallic copper prepared and ready for use should not cost more than about $10 to $20 per acre, depending upon the number of applications needed.

"During the years when downy mildew is severe and prices are high dusting is very profitable," he indicated. For example, in 1946 when the average price of fresh market cucumbers was $2.20 per bushel, the profits from dusting in tests conducted by the Extension Service were about $190 per acre."

Winchester stated that such results could not be expected every year but since the disease causes some damage every year dusting could be profitable.

"Certainly every grower should be prepared to start dusting when the disease threatens and to continue as long as market conditions warrant," Winchester concluded. "It is a cheap form of crop insurance which no grower can afford to pass up."

Uneasy Quiet For U.S. Labor Scene

Editor's Note—An uneasy quiet prevails on the labor scene today. But major contract negotiations in the offing give promise of fireworks ahead. As big unions and management prepare to get together, Norman Walker, a veteran of labor coverage for The Associated Press, examines the whole labor picture and tells what to expect in this first of four articles.

By NORMAN WALKER
WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—Strikes are running at a postwar low, but don't count on things staying that way.

Major contract negotiations are getting under way in the steel, rubber, telephone, electrical manufacturing and maritime industries, to name a few.

Any of them could touch off a new wave of strikes.

The coal industry is an example. With production dragging because of a loss of export markets and reduced fuel requirements in the depressed steel industry the United Mine Workers, headed by John L. Lewis, is letting months tick by without exercising an option to seek higher pay.

Behind the present relative labor peace is an awareness that nobody is really sure what is going to happen to business.

Employers are chary about making commitments that will boost their labor costs. Instead, they want to batten down costs and get more work for wage dollars spent.

They're trying harder than ever to get rid of "featherbedding" practices that cost employers money without getting production.

Unions defend these practices as necessary to protect worker rights. Unions seem to be almost as concerned about job security—keeping the jobs workers have—as they are about getting increases in pay or other benefits.

Some of the steam is gone out of the drive that saw workers getting higher wages year after year during World War II and in the postwar period.

Pay increases are still coming but are harder to get, and smaller. On the average pay raises are running 5 to 8 cents an hour.

Now caution, stiffer haggling on the part of both employer and union, is the watchword in management-union dealings.

A veteran conciliator in the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service told this reporter that labor disputes appear harder to settle now than at any time in the past dozen years.

The situation is spotty. Some types of business are better off than others. Some unions are getting considerably more than others.

During the first three months of this year a great many contracts were settled without any pay raise at all, merely extending former agreements. Yet some employers shelled out heavily, wanting no labor troubles while business was good.

Many union and management men closely following the situation say that, next to the business lag, the reason for so few big strikes these days is that President Eisenhower is keeping aloof from labor disputes.

Under some former administrations employees charged that unions often fomented strikes, or strike threats, to give the government an excuse to step in and help get them more than they'd normally expect in collective bargaining.

Many students of the labor situation sincerely feel that labor-management relations are constantly maturing and that this, too, is an important reason for fewer labor troubles. Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said recently:

"Every year about 100,000 collective bargaining agreements are peacefully negotiated or renewed in the United States. The few strikes make headlines, but the numerous peaceful settlements are not news."

"Hundreds of thousands of individual grievances are settled without a work stoppage every year. There is a great deal of industrial harmony in this country and far more cooperation between labor and management than we sometimes realize."

Another important factor in keeping labor peace is arbitration. This is the method of putting an argument up to a neutral party for a decision binding on both sides.

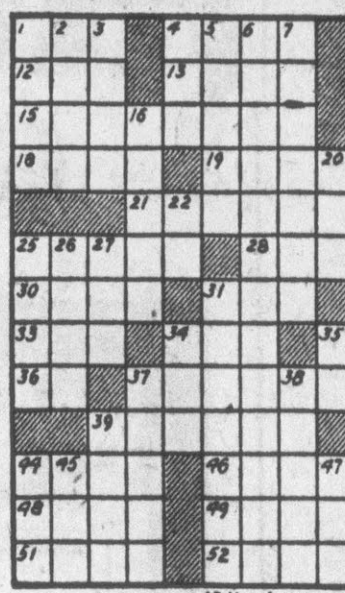

Use of arbitration has grown tremendously in recent years. Neither side is ever completely satisfied with the outcome, but it is widely accepted as a way to interpret existing contracts and, to a lesser extent, to fix new wage rates and other contract terms.

Long-term contracts are paying off too. The five-year agreements in the auto industry for instance, have assured smooth labor relations. Those agreements expire next year. The steel industry had a five-year moratorium on pension negotiations, but it expires this June.

Students Make Weather Interesting Class Project

ARLINGTON, Va.—Fourth grade pupils at the Matthew Maury School have made a class project out of the weather. Home-made instruments give them basic data and they are so enthusiastic they like the rain because it gives them something to measure. Now some boys are asking their dads to help set up home weather stations.

Frank Federico, one of the fathers, a shoemaker, helped with the station in the school yard. Four telescopes, a sink strainer and two broomsticks were cobbled into a gadget to measure wind speed. A vane shows wind direction. An open tin can on a broomstick is marked for rain measurement. The inside of a thermos bottle, the lid of a tin can, a glass tube and a bottle top made a barometer. Federico also provided a dew-point thermometer and rigged a wet bulb thermometer. Another old broomstick holds parallel wires. The children sight along them at clouds to check upper-air wind direction.

Miss Marguerite Bean, the teacher, has been taking up each of the instruments in turn, explaining how they are used. On the classroom wall is a big chart showing the daily readings from each.

Her 34 pupils find the readings fun and she hopes they soon can make their own weather forecasts. She says that reading, writing and arithmetic are being learned at the same time the weather data is recorded. The pupils use their new knowledge for class themes. And accuracy, an essential in weather readings, is also learned. Art classes are beginning to turn out pictures of clouds and even weather stations.

The boys helped assemble the instruments in the Federico basement. Now they are set up in a neat box on a post, which holds them at the proper height for the children.

The class takes the project seriously and has named a committee to supervise the work.

Nurse Lady

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

Norman Brandt and nurse Cynthia Doyle had first met at the scene of an accident near Washington, D.C. He'd tried to "date" her, to pay her court, but Cynthia's romantic interest centers a bit on Dr. Sellers with whom she works at the clinic. It was not until the doctor discovered that he had a rival for Nurse Doyle's esteem, that he began to see her as a woman as well as a nurse.

And at least she had her shoes on, she thought, as she looked around for Norman. He was waiting. He was perched on a high stool at the counter chatting chummily with the fat proprietor, Papa Pinelli, as everyone called him. The restaurant did not have much class, but the food was excellent. And Papa Pinelli was related to the Mancinis.

CHAPTER EIGHT
SINCE she could not let Norman Brandt call for her at the apartment because of Roz, nor at the clinic, because of Walt, Cynthia had said she would meet him at a little Italian restaurant in the neighborhood.

"I was afraid you wouldn't show up," Norman said, getting off his high stool to greet her. His eyes smiled down into hers as though to say Here we are in on another secret.

recognized Cynthia, as almost everyone in the neighborhood knew the "Nurse Lady" by sight. She sometimes ate in his restaurant with Nora when they did not feel like cooking. It was not swanky enough for Roz. She would have turned up her nose at the red and white checked tablecloths and the clientele. As it was early and a week night, the place was almost deserted. Norman said, if it suited her, he believed a booth would be cozier than a table.

"And we want to be cozy," he said, after they were settled in a booth and Papa Pinelli had taken their order. "We want to make up for all the time we've lost. Start at the beginning, Cynthia, and tell me all about yourself."

This was not the conversation she had planned.

"There's nothing really to tell," she said. "I come from a small town in Indiana. A large family, three brothers and two sisters—"

"Don't tell me there are more at home like you!"

That was an oldie, but she had to smile. She told him one sister was older married, with three youngsters of her own; the other was still in school, studying to be a teacher. And besides these, there were her mother and dad, a grandmother who made her home with them, and numerous aunts and uncles and cousins, all living within a stone's throw.

"It sounds nice," Norman said approvingly. "It sounds American—and wonderful. Why did you ever leave it to come to Virginia and make other people's kids well? Though I'm glad you did; otherwise, we might never have met."

Why did he have to take everything she said and give it that personal twist? No, this was not the way she had planned things at all. This intimate little booth, with its soft lights—she should have insisted on sitting in the center of the room at a table.

"That's the reason I came tonight." She might as well get to the point. "To tell you that we can't do this again. We can't be friends. So you must stop trying to be."

"In order to stop me," he said, "you'll have to present your case. Which reminds me, why didn't you show up at the police station?"

"Officer Masters came to see me," Cynthia told him.

"Hum, so you made another conquest!" His eyes were teasing now. "And I suppose I don't have to ask why you've avoided me ever since, and why I had to hunt the hospital in the hope of running into you. But you came this evening! So you see unless the case you present is a very good one, I refuse to accept it. In fact," he added leaning over the table so that his eyes could look more deeply into hers, "I'm hoping that we shall become much more than friends, Cynthia."

"I suppose you say these same things to every girl you meet, accidentally or otherwise."

"What gave you that idea?"

She could have told him, but she had resolved to try to be subtle, not just blurt out, "Because of Roz; I'm sure you must have said these same things to Roz." Since she could not, she fell back on the offensive Walt had used.

"Because you're that kind of man."

He gave a little laugh. "How do you know what kind of man I am?"

"I have to go by the evidence."

"Give me one exhibit, please."

"Well, Exhibit A," she said, since he had asked for it, "could be that you did not tell the truth. You weren't driving that car."

"If you knew that," his smile broadened, "why didn't you tell your pal, Officer Masters?"

"I suppose you had some reason for saying you were at the wheel. And it was too late then, for me to tell."

"And here I thought you did it to save me from a long sentence of bread and water and hard manual labor." He chuckled. He filled her half-emptied glass of red wine; refilled his own. "That would have been hard to take," he added, "when I can be enjoying the delights of Papa Pinelli's cooking. And the pleasure of looking at you. You're the loveliest girl, Cynthia, I've ever looked at, by the way."

"I couldn't be as pretty as Reba Raye," she reminded him. "It was she who really hit little Julius, wasn't it, Norman?"

"I have to stick to my story too," he returned. "But shall we say that it would have been most unfortunate had it been Reba? You see she's slated for the biggest break she's ever had. And Reba's father worked hard for it. She's just been signed up for a TV show at a fancy figure. To have had publicity at this time might have brought her a broken contract. Headlines in the papers. You know how it is when anyone is a celebrity."

"I imagined it was something like that," Cynthia admitted.

"You mustn't judge Reba too harshly," he said. "She was almost hysterical. That's why it took me a few minutes to get her to stop the car. I promised her I'd keep her out of it if possible. And she's tried to make up for it since. She insisted that I get special nurses and move Julius into a private room and see that everything possible is done for the kid. Luckily," he finished, with a wry grin, "Reba can afford it. With her TV contract."

Baby Saved By Quacking Ducks

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Ducks' quacks saved the life of a 19-month-old Little Rock baby.

Tiny red-haired Beth Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton Cook, fell into a private lake Saturday and was discovered moments later by her mother.

The mother's attention was called to the spot when several ducks sounded a "quacking" alarm.

Artificial respiration and the use of a resuscitator by the Little Rock fire department revived the girl.

Electric Co-Op Burns First Note At Meeting

TARBORO—The Edgecombe-Martin County Electric Membership Corporation at its 17th annual convention here last Saturday, burned its first note in 1936 for $32,000 to the Federal Rural Electrification Administration.

President J.W. Eubanks of Hassell, when he struck the match to burn the note, said, "This is a great occasion for us since we paid our first note to the government in full, and one that will be repeated in the years ahead until we own our own electric system debt free."

Edgecombe-Martin corporation was organized in 1936. Since then it has grown until now it delivers electricity to 4,232 member-owners in the rural areas of Edgecombe, Martin, Nash, Pitt, Halifax, Beaufort, Bertie, and Wilson counties.

Last year the cooperative corporation added 30 miles of electric lines to its system and extended service to 141 new members. The cooperative corporation now has 986 miles of transmission and distribution electric lines, Manager G.L. Rucker of Tarboro stated.

The 400 members present elected J.W. Eubanks of Hassell as president; H.N. Davenport, vice-president; R.V. Knight, secretary, and Rudolph Sexton, treasurer.

Directors for the coming year are J.W. Eubank of Hassell; H.N. Davenport, Route 1, Balfboro; R.V. Knight, Route 1, Tarboro; M.V. Scott of Pinetops; W.J. Eason, Route 3, Tarboro; H.P. Jenkins, Route 1, Pinetops; C.W. Mayo, Route 1, Tarboro; W.L. Aushon, Route 1, Robersonville; Noel Lee Jr., of Pacolus, and R.L. Eason, Route 1, Elm City.

William T. Crisp, executive manager and general counsel of Tarheel Electric Membership Association, said that for two consecutive years the administration had presented Congress with a greatly reduced budget for electrification loan funds. "And for two consecutive years the Congress has taken the unprecedented action of repudiating that restricted budget and increasing it by many millions of dollars," he said.

He cited the administration's request for $100 million in electrification loan funds for 1954-55. Already, he said, the House has increased this figure by $45 million and the Senate has increased it an additional $35 million. The measure is now before a Senate-House conference committee for final action.

"It is difficult to understand why the administration has consistently requested less funds than our borrowing needs require," Crisp said, "particularly when one considers that the repayment record of the cooperatives has been virtually perfect to date."

No cooperative in North Carolina is in default on its repayment schedule and over $2,000,000 has been paid ahead of schedule, the speaker added.

Sen. George To Back One-Year Pact Extension

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today he would support a one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act because he said "the President has backed down on his own proposal" for a three-year extension, together with new tariff-cutting authority.

The Senate Finance Committee set up a closed-door meeting to consider the one-year extension bill passed by the House last Friday. The law actually died at midnight Saturday, but Congress in past years has extended it retroactively and appeared likely to do so again this time. The law's expiration has no effect on trade agreements already negotiated.

When George said in an interview that Eisenhower had "backed down" on his own trade plan, the senator obviously was referring to the fact that the President last month let out word that he would settle now for a simple one-year extension of the trade agreements act.

This happened after Republican leaders in Congress made no move to enact his proposals, which called for new presidential powers to cut tariffs 5 per cent in each of the three years of the trade law's added life.

However, when he indicated he would accept the one-year extension, Eisenhower stipulated that early hearings be held on his full trade proposal and that Congress act on it as soon as possible after the next Congress meets. Furthermore, he emphasized at his news conference last week that he was not backing away from his original position.

George, a member of the Finance Committee, said some Democrats want to make an issue of the original Eisenhower trade request when the bill gets to the Senate floor. He inferred he would not join in such a move.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Civil Defense authorities in this important seaport city were well pleased yesterday with the public's reaction to a mock atomic bomb attack that "killed" 161,526 persons and "injured" 20,000.

But there was a note of dissatisfaction from one unidentified young woman, who went through the bombings of London in World War II.

"The alarm wasn't half as loud as it should be," she said firmly.

NO FIRE DAMAGE
Firemen were called to a home on South Greene Street yesterday afternoon when an oil stove flared up.

The fire was extinguished when firemen arrived and no damage resulted.
