Wyoming Senator Wounded

Bullet Believed Self-Inflicted; Recently Had Been Under Medical Care

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D-Wyo.), former governor now completing his first term in the Senate, was found shot in the head today and Capitol police said the wound apparently was self-inflicted.

Hunt had been in ill health. Hunt's administrative assistant, Mike Mansour, found the 61-year-old senator in his private Senate office about 9:15 a.m. (EDT) and later said his condition was very critical.

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D-Wyo.), former governor now completing his first term in the Senate, died at 12:21 p.m. (EDT) today.

The senator was rushed to Casualty Hospital. After treatment in the emergency room he was taken to the operating room at 10:55 a.m. (EDT). Mrs. Hunt arrived at the hospital a short time after the senator was admitted.

Both Capitol police and homicide detectives from Washington's Metropolitan Police Force were called to Hunt's office.

Leaving Geneva Sessions Sunday

GENEVA (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and U.S. Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith will leave the Geneva conference tomorrow.

A U.S. announcement said Smith was flying back to Washington at the request of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to make a personal report on the Indochina peace talks.

Two Inland Towns Also Said In Control Of Liberating Army Guatemala Ports Captured

By SAM SUMMERLIN TEUCUIGALPA, Honduras (AP)—Two strategic Guatemalan seaports were reported in the hands of invading anti-Communist "liberation army" forces today.

Local informants of the liberation army identified the two ports as Puerto Barrios on the Caribbean and San Jose on the Pacific. The army, under command of former Guatemalan army Lt. Col. Carlos Castillo Armas, said two inland towns also may be in control of the invaders.

These towns were identified as Zacapa, which lies near the Honduras border between Puerto Barrios and Guatemala City, and the smaller town of Retalhuleu, in the southwest corner of the country near the Mexican border.

Urges Expanding Of Farm Exports

CAROLINA BEACH, N. C. (AP)—Kenneth W. Ingwolson of Washington former U. S. director of food and agriculture for West Germany, said here yesterday that the expansion of agriculture exports is vitally necessary to provide high incomes for American families and stem the tide of communism in the world.

By REX THOMAS PHEONIX CITY, Ala. (AP)—Crime fighting Albert L. Patterson, Alabama's newly nominated attorney general, was gunned to death in his parked car here last night just as he had predicted he might be.

First word of the fighting was announced here by rebel spokesmen after several days of open mobilization of Col. Castillo's troops throughout Honduras.

In Guatemala, Foreign Minister Guillermo Toriello told a news conference "the battle for Guatemala" had begun. The only fighting he reported, however, was the bombing of San Jose. He said the planes were of unidentified nationality.

George said the $100 exemption hike would be offered as a substitute for a provision in the omnibus bill to give substantial relief to stockholders on their dividend income. This section has been attacked by some Democrats who claim it would be a boon to the wealthy.

Adm. Radford Points To Areas Of Uncertainty Military Planners Confer

By ELTON C. FAY QUANTICO, Va. (AP)—Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said today America's military planners cannot be certain when "the next war" might come—or if it does, whether it would be short and "violently destructive" or a "long drawn-out affair."

Radford was scheduled to lay this and other military planning problems on the line before the nation's defense leaders in a secret session of the Defense Secretaries' Annual Conference here.

In excerpts from his prepared remarks that were made public, Radford made clear he believes the uncertainties of the world situation "where we have to place greater reliance on combat-ready forces in being." He also said atomic power by itself is not enough.

lution of atomic plenty and mammoth destructive power, a power which staggers one's imagination." But he added:

"On the other hand I reject the concept that atomic power is, by itself, adequate to meet all our military security needs. We cannot afford to rely exclusively on one weapon, or on one service, or anticipate one kind of war, nor should we fail to maintain Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine forces adequate for national security."

The President, a former five-star general always ready for an opportunity to get back to the familiar military surroundings, arranged to motor down from the White House this morning, spend the remainder of the day and drive back over the East, 35-mile route to Washington late tonight.

Secretary of Defense Wilson was official host at a luncheon to which it was expected the President would address some informal remarks. Late in the afternoon—after time for golf—the President was invited to an outdoor barbecue.

Umstead Hall will provide living quarters for 310 students and will help fill an urgent need for more dormitory space on the campus. According to plans, each room will be used by two students and will be provided with two closets, metal beds, and oak furniture.

Among other reports received, Edwin Gill said the successful campaign for state treasurer cost $6,581.71 while contributions amounted to $5,325. The contributions included $250 from Brandon P. Hodges of Asheville. Gov. Umstead named Gill treasurer when Hodges resigned from the job.

Abortive Ambush By Vietnam Hit

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—A thousand Communist-led Vietminh guerrillas were pounded by French planes, artillery and tank guns in an abortive ambush along the Hanoi-Haiphong supply lifeline, the French high command reported today.

Morning business sessions before the President arrived were concerned with discussions of progress and problems in research and weapon technology and included also a scheduled discussion by Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, on the requirements that tense world conditions place on the armed forces.

Yesterday John M. Hannah, assistant secretary of defense for manpower, outlined a plan to draft men into the reserves to create a three-million-man pool of trained fighters ready to go in case of war.

Hannah said the plan, which resembled the universal military training program previously received coolly in Congress is now being studied by the National Security Council.

Hannah said the new program would call for drafting men to meet requirements of Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force reserve units. Induction of men into the compulsory reserve, Hannah said, "might well be done by lot by the local draft boards." Youths could be selected for this duty at 18 1/2, when they become liable for military service.

Timothy H.D. Club Has Picnic
The Timothy Home Demonstration Club met with their families at Roadside Park near Vanceboro on Wednesday afternoon at 5:00 for their annual picnic. Everyone enjoyed an hour of fun and games. A table of good things to eat and drinks was spread.

The club is glad to report that they had seven members to attend the picnic at Farm and Home Week in Raleigh last week.

Have Picnic in Rocky Mount
BETHEL—The Holiness Church had their annual Sunday School picnic on Wednesday afternoon at Riverside Park in Rocky Mount. The group met at the church at 1:30 and left soon afterwards.

When they arrived at the park the children visited the museum and zoo which was very educational. Then they went to the amusement section and enjoyed riding on the train, merry-go-round and other rides.

Their picnic lunches were then spread and invocation was given by the Rev. J. L. Russell. There were approximately 75 who enjoyed the festivity.

Honored on Birthday
BETHEL—Harry Latham celebrated his birthday on Wednesday, June 16, with a swimming party and a picnic supper at the Tarboro Municipal Pool. The group met at 3:30 at the Bethel Elementary School where his mother, Mrs. W. C. Latham, had provided rides for the children. Those who drove cars besides Mrs. Latham were Mrs. Robert Weeks, Misses Mary Ann Manning, Shirley Ann Hardy, Carolyn Cooper, Becky Keel, Maris Weatherby.

After swimming for an hour, the hostess served ham and pimento cheese sandwiches, potato chips, assorted cookies and soft drinks on the grounds. Harry then opened his many nice and useful gifts. There were 50 who attended one of the most enjoyable parties of the season.

Christian Church Announcements
The morning service of the Christian Church begins at 10:45 and closes at about 11:30 during the summer months and the worshippers are requested to observe the change of time. The pastor, who has been in a Christian Youth Fellowship conference as vespers speaker this past week, will preach Sunday morning on "The Divine Invitation." Special music will be rendered by some members of the choir. Leon Brown Fleming will preside at the organ.

The intermediate conference will be held this coming week at Camp Caroline beginning Monday. A number of the Chi-Rho group of the Eighth Street Church will be in attendance.

The members of the church and Sunday School of the Christian Church have been supporting the city-wide evangelistic meeting. Many others are encouraged to attend each evening throughout the coming week at 7:30 which will be the last week of the meeting. This is a union meeting of the Protestant forces of Greenville and all Pitt County.

Immanuel Baptist Announcements
Tomorrow morning at the closing assembly of the Sunday School, the teachers of the Vacation Bible School will present their pupils from the Beginner, Primary and Junior Departments in a special program, giving the highlights of what they learned during the school this past week. There will be a display of the work of the children in the Sunday School annex. The bell for assembly will ring at 10:15 instead of 10:25, allowing enough time for the program before the beginning of the Morning Worship.

At the Morning Worship hour, the pastor, J. A. Nelson, will speak on the subject "The Responsibilities of Fatherhood." There will be special music by the choir, using the anthem "God So Loved the World" by Stainer. This will be under the direction of Miss Jeanne Pritchard, guest choir director for the summer.

At 6 o'clock, the young people will meet for fellowship and refreshments, and the Training Union will follow at 6:15. There will be no evening worship, but the members of the Immanuel Church are urged to attend the revival services now in progress at the big tent near the Pitt Memorial Hospital. This evangelistic campaign is sponsored by the churches of Greenville and Pitt County. Eddie Martin, the evangelist, will speak Sunday night on the subject "The Unpardonable Sin." He is bringing messages each night that the people of Greenville and Pitt County need to hear. If you have not heard Eddie Martin yet, plan to come Sunday night and bring a friend with you. These services will continue through next Sunday night, June 27.

Bride-Elect Is Honored At Shower
Miss Barbara Barrow, bride-elect of this month, was honored at a miscellaneous shower on June 10 at 7:30 o'clock by Misses Helen Odum and Jo Ann Timberlake at the home of the latter.

Miss Barrow was presented with a corsage of white carnations with blue ribbon. The floral arrangements of summer flowers in the house also carried out the same theme of blue and white.

Games were played and enjoyed by all, after which refreshments of lime-ice punch, sandwiches, nuts and potato chips were served by the hostesses.

Miss Linda Whitehurst received the door prize of cream satchet.

College Music Faculty Member Gets Honorary Doctor's Degree

ROBERT CARTER
Robert Carter, faculty member of the East Carolina College department of music, received this week from the Chicago Musical College the honorary degree of doctor of fine arts.

The degree was presented to him in Chicago at the annual commencement exercises of the college and was granted in recognition of his outstanding achievements as a musician and a teacher.

Since 1949 Dr. Carter has been a faculty member at East Carolina. During this time he has appeared in a number of recitals at the college and elsewhere in North Carolina. He has been an active participant in the work of music organizations in North Carolina.

He is a graduate of the Chicago Musical College, where he studied with such well-known teachers as Dr. Rudolph Ganz, now president of the institution, and Dr. Glenn Dillard Dunn, noted critic. Later he studied with the celebrated teacher Olga Samaroff. He has taught in Virginia, Tennessee, and Florida and in addition has been accompanist for a number of well-known singers.

At present Dr. Carter is serving as president of the North Carolina Music Educators Association. His experience as an adjudicator in national music contests has been extensive. This month he is acting as chief judge for the National Guild of Piano Teachers in auditions conducted in New York City. In North Carolina he has judged in the State High School Music Contest Festival and the annual contests sponsored by the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

On Friday night at her home near Ayden Mrs. Chester Hart entertained the members of her bridge club.

At the end of play a novelty pitcher was given Mrs. Clarence Hart, high; low was won by Mrs. Joe Tripp. Mrs. R. H. Worthington was remembered with a dainty handkerchief for guest high.

Courtesy Is Extended To Bridal Couple
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hunsucker, recent bridal couple, were extended a courtesy on last Saturday evening when they were honored at a buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Tyson.

The guests were greeted informally upon their arrival and invited into the den where they were served grapefruit juice and tomato juice appetizers.

They were then directed to the dining room where the bride's table was laid with a green tablecloth under a lace tablecloth which was centered with a bride and groom arrangement with floating daisies and gardenias around them. This arrangement was flanked by pairs of silver candlesticks with burning green tapers tied with white ribbons. Auxiliary tables were marked with handpainted placecards signed with green paint and bearing an original motif. Each table was centered with a single white candle in a silver candlestick tied with white ribbons entwined with a gardenia. Mrs. R. H. McLawhorn Jr. and Mrs. Powell Speight assisted the hostess in serving the supper which consisted of chicken salad on lettuce, garden peas, stuffed celery, beets, candied yams, hors d'oeuvres, potato chips, hot rolls, butter, ice tea and strawberry shortcake.

Mrs. Hunsucker was presented a gardenia corsage upon her arrival. The honored couple was given a silver bread tray as a remembrance. Sixteen guests were present.

30 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
June 19, 1924

On Tuesday morning at the Country Club, Mesdames J. B. James and S. T. White were hostesses to the members of their Sewing Club having as an honor guest Mrs. Jap Suttle of Shelby, house guest of Mrs. C. S. Forbes.

Upon arrival the guests were served a tempting drink from a beautifully decorated bowl which was arranged on a table in the center of the reception room. The reception room was attractively decorated with sweetpeas and gladioli.

For nearly two hours the guests divided into three groups, enjoyed sewing and conversation. At half hour intervals they would change chairs which would place them in another group. In this way all the guests became acquainted with each other.

Covers were laid for 32 on individual tables and at 1 o'clock a delightful luncheon was served.

The favors, miniature corsages of sweetpeas and roses, were given each guest.

Eddie Martin Tells Congregation To Seek Forgiveness For Sins

Evangelist Eddie Martin pleaded with his congregation of over two thousand last night for sinners to humbly seek forgiveness before God no longer calls. Rev. Martin used as his subject "God Broke Up the Party."

Lined up for special mention were cocktail drinking, card playing, dancing, pride, wine and liquor drinking, worship of money. In speaking of the worship of money he said some men feel they must work seven days a week but really they do it because they worship the almighty dollar. Pride came in for emphasis when he said, "If there is anything God hates, it is pride. Those who think that attending a tent meeting is too common for them are suffering from pride, in the evangelist's opinion."

"Too busy and too proud to take time to be saved, but you will call the preacher when you get on the operating table over there at the hospital. Talk about your soul while there is still life in your body," he urged.

"There comes a time when God's holy patience wears out. There may be such a thing as God's speaking to you the last time. Do not go on rejecting God," he pleaded in closing.

Pitt's Highway Patrolmen Go From Door To Door To Promote Safety Campaign

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Seven highway patrolmen assigned to the Pitt County area are currently paying personal visits to every rural home in the county as a part of the patrol's continuing safety campaign.

The officers tell the residents in their area that they are appealing to them in the interest of highway safety. They urge them to caution their children to observe safe practices on the highways and in towns whether they are walking or riding. Adult members of the families are asked to drive carefully, or, if they ride with someone else, to urge them to drive with care.

Contacting Residents

Corporal C. E. Whitfield, Pitt County patrolman stationed in Greenville, says there are approximately 1065 miles of state maintained roads in the county. He says that the patrolmen are contacting the residents along each of the roads.

"We go to every house along the way," Whitfield stated. "It doesn't make any difference whether it's a big home or a tiny tenant house."

At present the patrolmen have practically completed their coverage of the primary roads in the county and they are beginning to cover the secondary and dirt roads.

"Every house and every store and service station in the rural areas will be contacted personally by the highway patrol," Whitfield emphasized.

The corporal said that the following procedure is followed when a patrolman visits a home: "The patrolman stops at a residence and addresses an adult member of the family explaining that he is assigned to the area and is trying to cut down accidents. He asks their cooperation and requests that they ask other members of the household to cooperate."

Asked to Caution Others

"Where the patrolman finds in talking to the family that they do not own a car, he asks them to caution other drivers when they are riding in a car," Whitfield continued.

The corporal stated that the program is being well-received in the county.

"Not a single incidence of anyone contacted refusing to pledge their support has been encountered," he emphasized.

The corporal told a story of one person who he contacted in the safety drive for which the program hit particularly close to home.

"I was making home calls and I stopped at a house to talk to a lady who had three children," Whitfield related.

"I explained to her that we were making an all-out effort to cut down on fatalities and I had noticed that she had three children and lived on a dangerous highway which was heavily traveled.

"I asked her to watch the children very closely and not allow them on the highway," the patrolman continued.

Whitfield stated that tears came into the woman's eyes.

She told him: "Nobody in North Carolina can appreciate the efforts of the highway patrol in trying to cut down wrecks and save lives on the highways any more than I. My mother and my only brother were killed last year in North Carolina by being hit head-on by a drunken driver who was on the wrong side of the road."

Contact 40,000 Persons

Whitfield estimates that approximately 40,000 persons in Pitt County will be contacted either directly or indirectly during the safety campaign. In addition to covering the rural areas the patrolmen will cover the small towns in the county. Only Greenville and the larger towns will not be reached.

Whitfield sums the safety program up by saying: "We are taking the traffic problem to the people."

The patrolmen and the areas which they are working include: D. E. Perry, Bethel area; W. E. Whitehurst, Ayden area; D. L. Minshew, Farmville area; J. M. Davis, J. W. Boykin, S. H. Newman and Whitfield, Greenville area.

Program Statewide

The program is being carried out throughout Troop "A" of which Pitt County is a part and for that matter throughout the state.

Captain S. H. Mitchell, commander of Troop "A" says that the 103 patrolmen assigned to the troop which covers the eastern section of the state are carrying on the house-to-house campaign just as it

Patrolmen not only visit homes in the rural areas with their safety messages but they also talk to store and service station operators along the roads. Patrolman Jim Davis (right) talks to Blanco Ross, operator of a service station on the New Bern highway. (Reflector Photos by Alvin Taylor)

Mitchell indicated that highway deaths are 96 below last year in North Carolina.

"We are hoping to make it 100 this month," he continued.

In fact, the captain stated, there is a possibility that the goal of 100 deaths below last year might be reached before this article is read by the public.

The troop commander said he definitely attributed the drop in highway deaths and accidents to the present and to other safety programs carried on by the patrol and to the cooperation of the public.

Evangelist Lives Leadership Role

By EDWINA McMULLAN

"America's greatest need today is fully surrendered, on fire, uncompromising, fearless preaching from the pulpit," a man who once tried to talk the Lord out of "calling him for the ministry declared in an interview last week.

"The people are ready to follow the leadership of men on fire for the Lord," asserted Evangelist Eddie Martin, who tomorrow begins his final week of crusading in the big tent on West Fifth Street here.

The evangelist is being sponsored in his United Revival Crusade here by the Greenville and Pitt County Ministerial Associations. The campaign is the first united evangelistic effort on a community-wide basis in nearly three decades and the largest such campaign in Greenville's history.

Services, which on the opening night June 2 attracted a crowd of 1,700, are now being attended by audiences ranging upward to 3,000. "A little over 200 conversions" have been recorded thus far, according to Martin.

Martin works with an evangelistic team of five which includes co-evangelist and music director Garland Coffield; pianist O. D. Hall; tent man W. C. Ramey; and his own mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin.

Martin's father serves as his "advance man," going to a city three weeks ahead of the scheduled campaign, leading out in prayer, enlisting labor to erect the tent and stimulating advance enthusiasm.

Mrs. Martin serves as a follow-up worker, visiting homes and answering questions of the converts to help strengthen and tie them to the church.

Evangelist Martin attributes his being saved to his mother. "When I was 16 and a sophomore in high school," he explained, "my mother, who had become a Christian only eight months before, gave me a gospel tract to read. This tract told of the second coming of Christ.

"It so impressed and convinced me that one night I fell on my knees and begged the Lord's forgiveness for my sins. This receiving of Christ was the beginning of a real, happy, joyous life for the Lord."

On graduating from high school Martin went to work in a lumber yard at a salary of $18 per week. He soon left this to go into the insulation business in Lancaster, Pa., his present home, and after three and a half years he had built up a profitable trade.

"During these years I was faithful in my church attendance and I worked with the young people's groups and the Bible classes," he said.

"I learned that I had a responsibility to share my Lord with others that they might be introduced to Him and become saved. This love and concern for others at length became so great that the Lord began to speak to me about giving up my business and going into the ministry."

"It was then that I waged the greatest battle of my life. I tried to talk the Lord out of it; I even tried to buy my way out. I bought 50 new baptismal robes for the church and financed a missionary. "But it didn't work. I got so I couldn't sell; I lost interest in my business. It began to seem insignificant and trivial. I felt I was wasting my time. I finally realized that it was not my money that the Lord wanted, but me."

Martin then applied to the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago for admittance, and after giving his business to a friend, he went there for four years of study.

During these years he began preaching on week ends and in the summers. In the winter he did personal work among the Chicago slum and honky-tonk districts.

The second World War was in progress when Martin graduated from the Moody Institute, and he applied for a chaplaincy, but was denied for lack of the seven-year requirement of college and seminary training.

So he took his wife, whom he had married right after graduation from Moody, and went to Columbus, Ga. where he did personal work, trying to reach the servicemen on the streets.

He became associated with the Pocket Testament League, which distributed New Testaments to servicemen, and for three and a half years, under the authorization of the chief of chaplains, he toured the service camps. With a supporting group of singers he held special programs for religious emphasis, reaching approximately 100,000 different men a year.

When the war was over, Martin went into church evangelism. "I am definitely a church evangelist," he declared. "I do no independent work; I only come to a city when invited by the churches."

Martin arranges his own itinerary, keeping booked two years in advance. He holds five tent campaigns yearly and seven other campaigns in churches, schools, and municipal auditoriums over the country.

The evangelist came to Greenville from his last campaign in Paris, Texas, where he had the largest evangelistic crusade in the history of that city and the second most successful campaign of his career. The most successful revival he has ever conducted was in Jackson, Tenn., last year when there were "over 1200" conversions.

In Paris crowds of 7,000 attended the services, with over 800 conversions being recorded.

The campaigns are financed by collections taken up at the services. Prior to the revival, Martin explained that he and the minister in charge work out a contemplated expense budget. Collections are then taken in every meeting until this budget is met.

"All finances are handled by a reputable local administrator," appointed by the ministerial association Martin said. The evangelist personally underwrites the budget, accounting for any deficit.

At the close of each campaign, if the budget money has been raised, a love offering is taken for the evangelist and the singer. The other members of the team are on a salary.

Sixty per cent of Martin's own personal income during the year is channeled through the Eddie Martin Evangelistic Association, a non-profit organization approved by the Federal government for the advancement of religious causes.

Martin said that expenses for the average city-wide campaign, such as the present one here, usually amount to approximately $6,000, making the yearly total for the tent revivals around $30,000.

He said that about half of the Greenville campaign budget has been met thus far, "and I anticipate a great week next week."

Martin said he felt that the campaign was "going rather slow" here "possibly because the people from the churches seemed a little skeptical of the program at first. However, he feels that now this 'skepticalism' has been overcome."

"Greenville's greatest need is a revival in the hearts of those people who are already Christians, but who have grown cold and indifferent to the love and service of God," the evangelist declared.

"I believe our greatest contribution here," he continued, "will be the strengthening of people who are already Christians, bringing them to the assurance of salvation, sending them back to their churches with a passion for lost souls, and a desire to live closer to the Lord and be more faithful to their church programs."

"Our ministry to Christians will overshadow the decisions we get from the unsaved," he asserted.

He expects to have around three or four hundred conversions before the crusade ends June 27, and hopes for a crowd of about 4,000.

One of the highlights of the local campaign, the evangelist noted, has been "the attendance of young people. The first Sunday night, we didn't have ten young people at a meeting. Now we have hundreds."

"Our volunteer choir which is composed of around 100 members, consists almost entirely of high school youngsters."

Martin's next campaign when he leaves Greenville will be in Tusculoosa, Ala. From there he will go to Meridian, Miss. and Lexington, Ky. for revival crusades.

He plans three more campaigns in the fall: in Louisville, Ky., Columbus, Miss., and Seminole, Okla. His next appearance in this area "will probably be in Rocky Mount in 1955."

Greenville's Public Librarian Is Moving On

By EDWINA McMULLAN

As of today Greenville's public library is without a head librarian. After three and one half years of service at the Sheppard Memorial Library, Mrs. Bessie W. Scott leaves to become a field worker with the North Carolina Library Commission.

Mrs. Scott leaves "tomorrow or Monday" for her headquarters at Raleigh. Working out of the capital city, she will serve as consultant for 35 eastern counties.

Though she is looking forward to her new job, Mrs. Scott expresses regret at leaving Greenville. "I have found Greenville a delightful place, she declares. "The people are so friendly, and we have received such excellent cooperation in our library activities."

As yet no successor to the head librarian's position has been named. Mrs. Scott's service at the Sheppard Memorial Library here has been marked by extended library activities and increased volume circulation.

Since her arrival the book collection at the library has been enlarged by approximately 15,000 volumes. Circulation, which during Mrs. Scott's first year here was 129,251, has run during the past 11 months "something over 220,000."

Though she has worked to improve the overall facilities of the library, Mrs. Scott's pet projects have been the Bookmobile and work with the children of the community.

Emphasis which has been placed on the Bookmobile has resulted in a circulation increase of 129,000 during the past 11 months and the addition of approximately 30 new titles in the county. During Mrs. Scott's first year at the library the Bookmobile circulation was 41,000; the present circulation amounts to 170,000.

Favorable results have also been obtained from work with the young children of the city. Each summer a reading program has been organized for the children in order to encourage their reading during the summer months.

Mrs. Scott reports that this year there are approximately 180 youngsters in the Reading Club "and they have already reported on 250 books."

During two of Mrs. Scott's years here, the American Heritage Discussion Group has met at Sheppard Memorial Library. This organization forms discussion groups all over the country "to talk about our American heritage and its contemporary applications," according to Mrs. Scott.

Sheppard Memorial is one of 20 North Carolina libraries which sponsor the program.

With 22 years of library service behind her, Mrs. Scott remarks that she enjoys her work "tremendously. I like the variety of work that comes up," she explains. "It is so interesting because you never know from minute to minute what is coming up next."

"We deal with people from preschool age to retired businessmen, and we must try to suit all tastes and needs, and deal with all interests and activities."

"One of the most rewarding aspects of the job," she declares, "is that you can definitely see the results of your work."

Mrs. Scott first became interested in library work soon after her graduation from Randolph-Macon Library Association for two years,

Housewife Is At Home Among Clouds In Swift Jet Airplane

By RICHARD J. SINNOTT

BOSTON—An Air Force jet plane streaked through the New England skies recently with a blue-eyed blonde housewife named Barbara Cloud at the controls.

Barbara, one of the few women, to have flown a jet, piloted the T33 over its 500-mile course in less than an hour. The flight was arranged by the Air Force Research Center at Cambridge to emphasize the important role a woman can play in national defense.

Since 1949, the tall, slender housewife has received scores of awards from local and national aviation organizations. One national magazine (Today's Woman) voted her its Woman of the Year.

The daughter of an oil company executive, Marshall T. Jones, Barbara was born in Shanghai, China, 32 years ago. Her family returned to Washington, D.C., when she was 3 years old.

In 1941 she came to Boston to attend school and met her husband, John Stuart Cloud, a commercial photographer.

Barbara had no interest in flying until five years ago when she and her husband purchased a small island at Sebago Lake, Maine.

"We wanted to go there every weekend," she explains, "but it was too tiring by automobile, so we did the only sensible thing—we bought an airplane."

"Until then neither one of us had ever flown—not even on a pleasure trip. Now we think it's the only way to travel."

The second-hand plane the Clouds purchased soon became more than transportation. It was an invitation to do things in the skies she had never dreamed of as she performed her household tasks.

As she logged hour after hour of air-time, she gained confidence and began to enter aviation events. Winning her first trophy surprised her—today trophies are a habit.

Currently Barbara is New England secretary of The 99s, an international group of women pilots.

She is also a member of the board of directors of the Aero Club of New England and an active participant in the Civil Air Patrol.

"More women—particularly housewives—should take up flying as a hobby," Barbara believes.

But isn't flying as a hobby rather expensive for the average housewife?

"Not at all," says Barbara. "I think flying is actually cheaper than owning a family automobile. Most people buy used planes; the upkeep is cheap and 'tie-down space' (garaging) is only $10 a month."

"I startle many women when I advise them to fly as a hobby, but the membership of The 99s includes school teachers, hotel hostesses, college girls, even three grandmothers... and housewives."

"Besides having an interesting exciting hobby, just think of the possibilities women who fly have in aiding civil defense. It's a wonderful way to aid the military—and still have a lot of fun."

Collapse at Geneva Underlines West's Weak Position

French Weak Link In Defense Chain

By TOM WHITNEY
Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer

THE fall of the Laniel cabinet and the new French government crisis underline the fact once more that France is the weakest link in the West's anti-Communist chain of defense.

At Geneva, the deadlocked Korean negotiations were broken off and will not be resumed until the United Nations Assembly convenes in New York this September. "We believe," said the West statement, "it is better to face the fact of disagreement than to raise false hopes and mislead the peoples of the world into believing that there is agreement when there is none."

Vietminh drives from all directions hammer at the last French stronghold in Indochina's Red River delta.

Strong elements on the non-Communist side of the fence in France today are willing to make almost any arrangement at all with the Communists to withdraw French forces from Indochina.

Strong elements in France are adamantly opposed to ratification of the European Defense Community and the participation of German troops in Western European defense for which this agreement provides.

If Indochina falls and the French disclaim EDC, the West will have suffered most serious breaches in the defenses against Communist expansion which have been constructed at such great pains over so many years.

Both those catastrophes loom as possibilities.

Indochina stands now, after the fall of Dien Bien Phu, about where China was after the Chinese Communists took all Manchuria in early 1949. The situation is not quite on the verge of collapse but it can soon become so. One thing is certain: If the French government does not want to save the situation there no one else will be able to.

German Troops Needed
In Europe it is obvious that no effective defense force can be built by the Western powers which will stand a chance of stopping the Russians, unless it includes Germans. That's what EDC is all about.

Should Indochina go and should EDC fall through, there will ensue an international crisis. Repercussions will explode all over the map.

France has a lot of different troubles, but the fundamental maladjustment which most affects her allies is the fact that France inherited a great power role whose consequences it is not willing or able nowadays to accept fully.

France's rulers in the past, for instance, acquire a far-flung empire. Nowadays this empire is one big headache. Indochina is torn by war. India demands the small cities which the French acquired there in the 18th century. In North Africa conflict with Arab nationalists in one form and another has become permanent.

Question of Sacrifices
The French might be able to deal with all these situations if they were willing to make the necessary sacrifices in manpower and resources. But they aren't willing. At the same time the French brand of colonialism never has left them room for such graceful exits as the British have made from untenable positions time and again.

In Europe too, France wants a great power role—but without the sacrifice that entails. The French want to continue to have a veto power over remilitarization of Germany but they are not willing to sacrifice enough to become the armed power

Europe—and the western world in general—is to be protected against the danger of Communist aggression without use of West Germans.

It is possible of course that the French will have a change of heart. They may conceivably get a strong and determined government out of the current crisis though this seems unlikely. It's possible in any case that they will ratify EDC. It is even conceivable that Indochina will not be entirely overrun by the Reds.

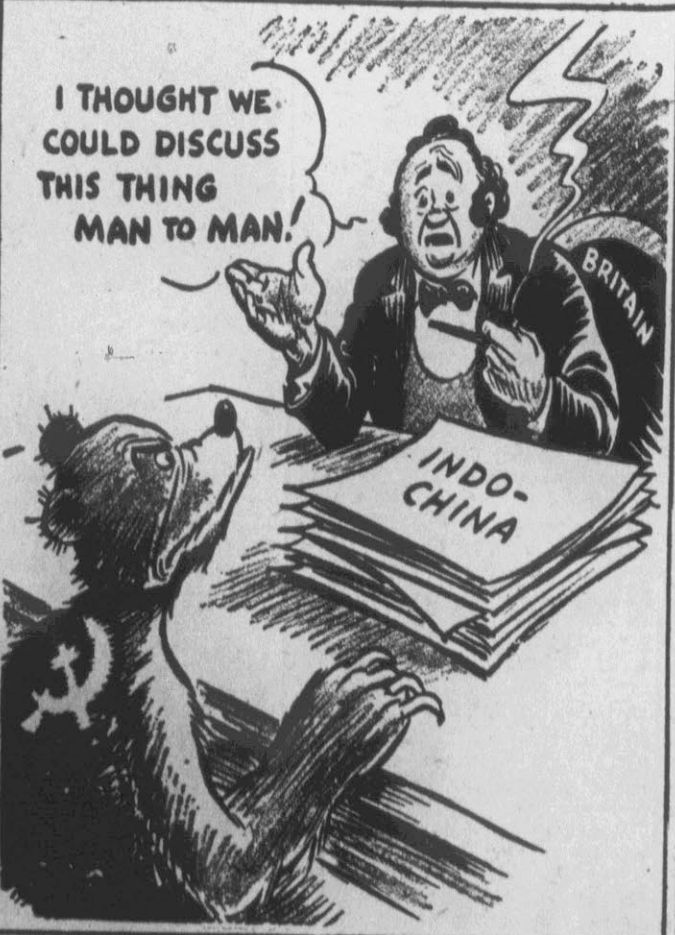

Allies Are Attentive
France, of course, will continue to retain a voice in great power councils. Right now, precisely because of her weakness, France's voice is listened to more attentively in those councils than for some time past.

At the end of the 19th century a famous statesman labelled the Turkish empire "the sick man of Europe." The French empire now seems the most active contender for this title.

Quotes

Harold W. Dodds, Princeton University president: There are many people in the United States who "seem willing, even eager, to discard our slowly attained, bitterly earned ethical and legal code of civil rights, including the Ten Commandments."

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, NATO commander: The United States "may end up behind the eight ball" if it relaxes building Western defenses.

Visit

Informal Big Two Talks
Britain's Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will visit President Eisenhower next weekend at the White House.

It will be an informal meeting without any agenda but Secretary of State Dulles, who will take part in the talks, said alternatives to a European Defense Community will be considered along with the Southeast Asian situation.

The meeting comes at a time when Britain and the United States no longer see eye to eye on various aspects of foreign policy and the way to stop communism.

On the Indochina crisis, the two governments have been taking different approaches, particularly at the Geneva conference. EDC is a critical issue because of the current government crisis in France and the American desire for French participation in a collective defense set-up.

The President, as supreme Allied commander in Europe, came to know Churchill well during the war, but this will be their first meeting since the Bermuda conference.

Sir Winston Churchill leaves Windsor Castle after investiture as a Knight of the Garter, Britain's oldest order of chivalry founded six centuries ago. It was revealed this week that the prime minister, who will visit President Eisenhower in Washington next weekend, suffered a stroke a year ago which paralyzed part of his body. Doctors despaired of his complete recovery and the Bermuda conference of the Big Three had to be postponed but Churchill doggedly fought back and regained his speech and use of his paralyzed muscles. Intimates say Churchill's last great goal is to go down in history not only as a great war leader but as an architect of lasting peace.

Building

Up Not Down
The government has taken a new look at 1954 building and, reversing an earlier forecast, now predicts that construction will set an alltime record of 36 billion dollars this year.

The Commerce and Labor Departments' new prediction is based on a survey of five months of record-setting construction. This year's total will run about 2 per cent more than 1953's 35 1/4 billion dollars, highest so far.

Trend Reversed
Last November two government agencies estimated construction this year would fall about 2 per cent lower than the 1953 record. The dollar total predicted last November for 1954 was 34 billion, 2 billion under the new forecast.

Reason for the optimism, says the report, is the continuing high level of residential building so far this year. However, most other major categories of building, with the exception of federally financed construction, also showed predicted gains over 1953.

At 36 billion dollars, the construction industry would account for almost a tenth of the nation's total production, measured in terms of dollars.

Construction also is a spur to many other related lines, some of which, like durable goods and household appliances, are currently lagging. Thus the forecast indicates no slackening of employment in these major fields during the balance of the year.

Cries of 'Perjury'
As the drama unfolded, it became obvious that somebody was lying, and cries of "perjury" erupted frequently in the jam-packed Senate caucus room.

But as the hearings droned on week after week some of the participants appeared to mellow. At one point, after all the angry charges hurled at Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens by the McCarthy camp, Sen. McCarthy engaged in this exchange with Counsel Ray H. Jenkins of the Senate inquiry subcommittee:

Jenkins: "Senator, you like Bob Stevens, don't you?"
McCarthy: "Yes, I do."

Again, discussing a point of testimony by Army counsel John G. Adams, McCarthy said: "I would not say Mr. Adams committed perjury."

On the Army side, a monitored telephone call between Stevens and Sen. Symington (D-Mo) had gone a long way to soft-pedal if not actually torpedoed Adams' charges against McCarthy and had dealt the Army its worst setback of the inquiry.

HEARING: What Will Be Result?

Split Verdict Foreseen

As the McCarthy-Army drama moved toward its final curtain on TV, it became evident that there is ever to be a conclusive verdict it probably will come from that invisible jury "the great American public."

With the big controversy on Capitol Hill finally running out of gas, talk in congressional corridors was that antagonists on both sides have suffered barked shins and perhaps a few permanent black eyes.

As Army Special Counsel Joseph N. Welch put it, neither side seemed to have scored "a 100 per cent clear-cut victory."

In the beginning, way back last April 22, the hearings in the "Who lied?" extravaganza resounded with stern admonitions that conflicting testimony would be sent to the Justice Department and that the maximum penalty for perjury is a $2,000 fine and five years in prison.

Up to Subcommittee
All through their testimony, McCarthy and 27-year-old Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel of the Senate investigations subcommittee, steadfastly insisted that their original charges were correct—that Stevens and Adams used Pvt. G. David Schine as a "hostage" in an attempt to halt McCarthy's Red-hunting probe of the Army.

Cohn flatly refused, however, to say whether Stevens or Adams were "guilty" of perjury. He insisted it was up to the inquiry subcommittee to decide questions of guilt or innocence.

The committee, of course, could do that. But the odds against a conclusive verdict were rising out of sight as the inquiry drew to an end.

What May Come
Speculation as to the outcome centered on these major possibilities:
ADAMS—Hired by Secretary Stevens last fall to serve as liaison man with the McCarthy subcommittee, Adams has now lost his usefulness in that role and will probably go.

It was Adams who testified he drew up the basic charges against McCarthy at the "suggestion" of Sherman Adams, White House chief of staff, at a secret high-level meeting last Jan. 22.

STEVENS—In the past, cabinet officers have been politely dropped some time after incidents which destroyed their effectiveness have blown over. This could happen to Stevens.

Split Along Party Lines

As for the official "verdict"—Veteran reporters of the Washington scene predicted the seven-man subcommittee will split as it had on almost every issue through the hearings and come up with a four-man Republican report giving one version and a three-man Democratic report of a vastly different hue.

Others thought the answer might come from a line in The Song of Solomon:
"Come now, and let us reason together . . . though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow."

Under oath, Stevens swore (1) that he didn't know who prepared the Army's "chronology of events" and later (2) that he was fully responsible for its preparation.

Which was right?

Domestic Program Faces a Log-Jam

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER said the other day, in urging passage of his new farm aid program with its flexible price controls, that he wasn't interested in playing good, or winning, politics. It's hardly likely that the members of Congress who are up for re-election this year were listening very hard.

N. Y. Central

Young Takes Over

Control of the nation's second largest railroad passed this week into the capable hands of a short, white-haired Texan whose Midas touch has turned businesses ranging from stocks and bonds to railroading into gold.

For 57-year-old Robert R. Young, victory in the bitter proxy battle for the $2,600,000,000 New York Central marked the end of a carefully thought out campaign that began quietly eight years ago. It also may have signalled the start of an even bigger fight—for the realization of Young's long-cherished dream of a giant transcontinental railroad system.

Transcontinental Link?

"A hog can ride across the country without changing trains, but you can't." So said one of Young's paid ads when he was crisscrossing through rail passenger service coast to coast. Now many railroad men believe he may use the Central's 2,867 locomotives, 154,000 cars and 24,000 miles of track as the nucleus of a transcontinental web which would provide direct service from the East to California.

His immediate goal: a streamlining operation which would pull the Central's passenger service out of the red by making it competitive with airline, bus and private auto transportation.

In the scramble for stockholder votes, Young promised Central shareholders more efficient and profitable operations, improved service and higher dividends—promises which were ridiculed by the road's outgoing president, William White.

Young's board—first in the Central's 123-year history to include a woman—elected 51-year-old Alfred E. Perlman to succeed White as president. Perlman had been executive vice president of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad.

Conspicuously absent from the new board were representatives of the Morgan and Vanderbilt banking interests.

What they want to do, legislative program or no legislative program, is to go home July 31 and start rebuilding fences.

To do that, they have to pass the money hills. If there is time for anything else, and they like it, they'll do it—but not if it's too much trouble, likely to take too long, or create too much controversy.

They have been making rapid progress with the money bills. Aside from foreign aid, most of what remains in this field is largely routine.

Since the administration is not agreeing with those legislative leaders who want to cut off foreign aid to France and Italy if they don't go through with organization of the European Defense Community, this measure may not cause as much dispute as expected.

Since extension of unemployment and social security benefits is something which can appeal to any vote-seeker's heart, these measures may be squeezed through somehow.

Controversial Measures
The controversial measures, such as Taft-Hartley, government health benefits and the farm program, are likely to get left.

One gain was in public housing. The Senate had voted approval of 140,000 public housing units as requested by the President but the House had rejected any public housing at all. This week the House Rules Committee lifted its ban against any compromise in conference with the Senate on the issue.

Agriculture Secretary Benson says the President should veto an extension of the rigid price control system if Congress merely comes up with that instead of a revision to obtain the flexibility the administration wants. But if that's all Congress will do now—and many members will be in trouble at home if flexibility is adopted—the President would be in no position to end the program entirely, for that wouldn't meet his measure of what would be good for the country, either.

The broad tax revision program, though designed to eliminate inequalities and give a theme to what is now a medley, contains little popular appeal, since the major horizontal reductions which were contemplated already have been made.

Why the Public Appeal?
Just why then, since some of these measures are so controversial, does the President appeal to the country over the head of Congress for their enactment?

Basically, of course, he believes they need to provide the sound economy which the country must have if it is to be able to face an extremely dangerous international situation.

Presumably, he would also like to demonstrate at the last minute before the elections that the Republican party is not as disrupted as it appears, that it can and will respond to leadership and responsibility. He cannot afford to let it become known as a "do nothing" party.

Feeling of Futility
There is, however, among Republican party workers at the below-speechmaking levels, and in certain Republican Congressional circles too, a certain feeling of futility. A good many are heard to say that the party has already lost control of Congress.

They are inclined to blame McCarthy. But there is an awareness, too, that the political tide runs against the controlling party in off-year elections.

Eisenhower seems to think some of this could be offset by a demonstration of solidarity behind the legislative program—by a party which has somewhere to go and shows it knows how to get there.

A lot of other party workers think it is not much use; that people are not interested by complicated programs, especially if there is any tinge of austerity attached. They think if there is one way to skin it in November it will be by emphasizing that the much-predicted depression has, as it seems now, become merely a long plateau of prosperity.

BALTIMORE, (AP)—"I'm down in the dumps," said Rosa Ponselle. In such a setting the word "dumps" had an odd ring. The huge white Italian villa was luxuriously trapped in Renaissance furnishings. Drawers were stuffed with mementoes recalling one of the most fabulous careers in music history.

"One of my dogs died this morning," the great soprano explained. "Then something went wrong with the chimney and the sparks set fire to my hedge, the caretaker wasn't on deck when I needed him, and Lloyd Garrison showed up late so we're behind schedule on editing the recordings."

"The recordings were done at 'Villa Pace,'" the Ponselle home named after the aria which highlighted her success in "La Forza del Destino," her 1918 Metropolitan debut opposite Enrico Caruso.

When the former prima donna finished reciting her troubles, everyone expressed sympathy about the dog, Barbara Nuttall, a friend and pupil assured her steps were being taken to have the chimney fixed. Lloyd Garrison, an admirer who made the recordings, explained his delayed arrival. A newsman mumbled condolences about the domestic help situation. Shakeh Vartianian, another friend and pupil expressed a feeling that everything would work out beautifully.

Ponselle then mounted a balcony overlooking the spacious entrance hall, three French poodles took their customary stations at her feet, and the editing began.

For the next half hour Villa Pace vibrated to the voice of Ponselle. The golden notes of Schubert's "Ave Maria" swelled and overflowed a background of organ music while the small group of listeners, including the dogs, sat transfixed, "the voice is right there," cried Miss Vartianian when it was over. "One top voice," beamed Maestro Messimo Preccia of the Baltimore Symphony.

What do you see, Sonny? A plane, streaking across the sky? A pony, galloping into the sunset? A sailboat, gliding across the lake? If I were to look into those glasses, I might see other things. For you are viewing the world with the eyes of youth . . . while mine is the sight of age. I, too, can marvel at the speed of a plane, the grace of a pony, the beauty of a sailboat. But in all of them, I sense a force much greater than that of the man who pilots the plane, saddles the pony, or rigs the sail. You are learning about that force when you go to Church each Sunday, and understanding it will be one of the greatest assets in your life. It will teach you to keep things in their proper perspective so that, when you get to be my age, though your sight may be dimmer you will see so much . . . so very much . . . more.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the sake of his community and nation. (3) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday . . .	Jeremiah	1-7-18
Monday . . .	Daniel	1-8-17
Tuesday . . .	Luke	12-13-21
Wednesday . . .	Luke	12-22-34
Thursday . . .	John	2-12-26
Friday . . .	Acts	3-1-10
Saturday . . .	Acts	3-25-32

Second Primary Is Important To Pitt

Pitt County's task of completing its slate of officials for this year's general election is yet to be finished.

The first primary is history; but the important second primary is to be held June 26.

Traditionally the second primary in this section of the state has been a bob-tailed affair. It has been so not only from the standpoint of fewer candidates on the ballots, but also from the fact that fewer vot-

More Such Savings Are Sorely Needed

The House passed a bill introduced by North Carolina's only Republican Congressman, Charles Jonas, which is expected to save taxpayers ten million dollars annually.

More legislation such as Jonas has presented is needed to cut down waste in the federal government. Ten million dollars may be just a drop in the bucket to the federal government, but it sounds like a whale of a lot to taxpayers.

Jonas' bill provides for the pooling of all government cars. It would also crack down on government officials using official cars for personal pleasure.

It has been estimated that under the provisions of the new legislation, some 10,000 of the 260,000 government cars would be eliminated. Their elimination, as we understand it will not impair the efficiency of the work in which the vehicles are required.

Undoubtedly, there are many other such situations in the vast bureaucracy of the federal government in which operation costs could be cut. It seems to us that representatives should spend more time seeking to improve such operation methods with an eye to the end that government costs can be reduced and taxes come down.

If solons can find methods to cut out a $10,000,000 annual waste and another there, it would not take many to make an appreciable dent in the bulky federal expenditures.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
OUT WITH THE MESSAGE
Mr. H. Allen Smith, the humorist, has written an amusing observation on the clergy.

"Whatever the clergy say is law! All they have to do is to say that the world is flat, or round, or upside down, and the people say 'Amen.' All that they have to do is to say that the world is really an oyster, and the people nod and get out the horse-radish. If I had it to do over again, I think I'd go in for holy orders. I'd get a lot more respect for my opinions around the house."

There are several hundred thousand of us who wish that the amusing Mr. H. Allen Smith were correct. There was a time when the minister was called "parson," meaning that he was the outstanding person of the community. He is still very highly respected, but he is not highly enough respected. Curiously enough, the average minister does not respect himself as highly as he should. He is inclined to bow and scrape a bit before scientists and other erudite people. This he should not do, for the minister is God's proclaimer of truth. He has something vastly more important to say than has the scientist, the economist, or the politician. He is doing disservice to the faith when he tries to make his teachings conform to every new modern idea.

Let the minister out with his true message, and we shall have a revolution overnight to the glory of God.

Our System Of Near-Tyrants

By RAY TUCKER
Every Saturday, Mr. Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"What chance is there," inquires Mrs. G. H. of Norfolk, Va., "for passage of the Flanders resolution for removal of Senator McCarthy as Chairman of the Mundt Committee? And why, as the televised hearings show, can the mere Chairman of a Senate Committee enjoy such one-man control? Is he an untouchable?"

Answer: The system of Congressional chairmanships is an inscrutable and an imponderable thing. It is difficult for the ordinary citizen to understand, and few appreciated its sinister implications until they saw and heard how it operates via television. After 30 years here as a newspaper reporter and observer, I find it difficult to understand or approve.

ALMOST SACROSANCT—The Chairman of a House or Senate Committee is the nearest thing we have to a tyrant in the United States. He is almost sacrosanct. He may refuse to call committee meetings, if it suits his personal or political purposes.

He may refuse to hold hearings on proposed legislative measures. Even after his committee has outvoted him on a specific piece of legislation, he may put it in his pocket and not give the House or Senate membership a chance to vote on it.

It can then be dragged from his committee for a floor vote only if 218 members of the House sign a petition for such action. They rarely do. In the Senate, it takes a majority vote to get the bill out of committee.

It is seldom that a majority of Committee members, or the House and Senate, will override or overrule a Chairman. He is a dangerous man to antagonize. He can, and frequently does, do important favors for needy members. He can make or break younger members by the way he handles measures which may mean their defeat or their re-election.

CONGRESSMEN'S HOPES—The reason why members do not defy or dethrone a Chairman is that every Senator or Representative hopes to become a ers take enough interest to cast their ballots in a second primary.

In the first primary three weeks ago, approximately 12,500 of the 17,600 registered voters of the county went to the polls. If the pattern of past years is followed next Saturday, not more than the number who voted in the first primary will cast second primary ballots.

For Pitt County citizens, there are three important races which must be decided next Saturday. The voters of Pitt must decide which of the two men will hold the office of sheriff for the next four years, and which of the two men will serve from the fourth district on the County Board of Commissioners for the next four years. In addition, Pitt voters will have an appreciable voice in deciding whether a Pitt County man or a Carteret County man will be solicitor of the fifth judicial district for the next term. Pitt County's voice in the district race will be directly in proportion to the number of local voters who go to the polls.

The second primary is equally important as the first primary so far as these races are concerned. In fact, the second primary is more important in these races, for the result of the voting next Saturday will determine which of the candidates will hold office. It behooves the citizens of Pitt to exercise their right to vote in the second primary.

Th first primary, so far as these races are concerned now, was only a preliminary thing. In Saturday's voting the chips will be down. The candidate which gets the most votes in each race will be the elected official.

Those citizens who neglect to vote Saturday are, for all practical purposes, giving up their right to help decide who shall hold the office of sheriff, who shall be the fifth member of the County Board of Commissioners, and who shall be solicitor of the judicial district.

The second primary, so far as these races are concerned, can by no means be considered of secondary importance.

MERCHANTVILLE (NEW JERSEY) COMMUNITY NEWS says:

The "average man," to whom we are referring, sees no reason why any loyal American citizen should not be willing to "confess his past"—if it is past—and admit he had been nudged or too emotional in some of his associations with Communist fronts. The "average man" thinks, too, that the safety of our country is more important than the imaginary suffering of people whose loyalty to their country is diluted with theories.

Anyway, we hope that the "average man" feels, for that's how we feel about the search for our enemies, regardless of how it is conducted. . . . There is no doubt about the "average man" being confused, when he tries to figure just where he stands. But there is one thing on which his mind is settled: That there have been too many Communists in Government service and there must be no let-up in this job of cleaning out the country's enemies.

GLASGOW (MO.) MISSOURIAN says:
If all the wasted energy being consumed at the Geneva Conference and the McCarthy hearings could in some manner be bottled up and saved for constructive purposes, we'd have no need for atom bombs.

chairman some day through the operation of the seniority system. He also hopes to enjoy the power which a chairman possesses, since he has seen as an apprentice how important it can be. Thus, he has a vested interest in this sort of feudal chairmanship system.

There is a more practical reason why Committee Chairmen enjoy this exalted status. As a rule, he works on the job, and comes to know the problems assigned to his charge—taxes, tariffs, agriculture, labor, rivers and harbors, national defense, etc.—in more detail than the members on his committee. He becomes a specialist while they are legislative dilettantes.

SHOULDERS MAIN BURDEN—Busy with other affairs, his colleagues are quite willing to permit him to do the hard, dirty and laborious work. This has been especially true with respect to McCarthy's investigation of alleged Communist infiltration of the Government. He held the criticized one-man hearings because the other members were too occupied, or too disinterested to attend. As he says, it is "my" committee, "my" staff, "my" crusade and "my" files. Thus, although many Senators agree with Senator Flanders that McCarthy should be called to account for his questionable and condemned financial deals, the Vermont Senator's resolution is scheduled for the political pigeonhole.

MUNDT'S ATTITUDE—"Will you tell me," asks Mrs. T. K. of Springfield, Mass., "why Senator McCarthy is permitted to describe Senator Flanders as 'senile' and Senator Symington as 'sanctimonious Stu.' Isn't that what you might call highly unparliamentary language?"

Answer: The only explanation is that Chairman Karl E. Mundt, besides being a personal and political crony of McCarthy, is an amateur in parliamentary law. If McCarthy used such improper language on the Senate floor, he would be forced to take his seat and his remarks would be stricken from the Record.

The same rules govern Committee hearings. But for the reasons I give, Chairman Mundt does not see fit to apply them. He is pro-McCarthy, and he believes that South Dakota voters are. After all, politicians must eat, and Mundt is up for re-election next November.

Electronic Secretary Is Here

Yesterday afternoon I saw a gadget that comes in the category that makes you say, "What will they think of next?"

You can call three business establishments in Greenville any time of the day or night and get an answer, record your message, and be given a pleasant "good-bye" when no one is in the office. That's what I said: when no one is in the office.

This secretary is called the Electronic Secretary and is made in Milwaukee. Any telephone subscriber who wants one may have it for $18 a month. So far, the three in Greenville are in the offices of Jack Wallace, Realtor; College View Cleaners & Laundry; and Coastal Refrigeration Company.

Here's how it works: When the subscriber leaves his office he turns the Electronic Secretary on. With the set on, from then on it's an automatic process. When the phone rings a professional recorded voice answers and says something like this: "Hello. This is the automatic telephone answering service in the office of Mr. Jack Wallace. There is no one in the office at this time, but Mr. Wallace will be back soon. Please leave your name and number and Mr. Wallace will call you when he returns. If you have a message, you will have 30 seconds in which to record it. Please begin speaking at the sound of the tone."

At the end of the 30 seconds the voice says, "If you did not have time in which to finish your conversation, please hang up and call again. Good-bye."

Jack has a different record for weekends, which states that he may probably be reached at his home and gives that number. Coastal Refrigeration has four records. One is to state that all employees are out for lunch. The other three are for night service and give the name and telephone number of the particular one of three service men who might be on duty that particular evening. One of College View's records is designed for the time that employees are working the plant but no one is in the office. In such cases, they refer the caller to another phone number in case they want to talk to anyone in the plant.

The Electronic Secretary will record 120 30-second messages without resetting. A dial on the front will indicate exactly how many conversations have come in during the time the office is unoccupied. Want to hear the voice? Wait until Jack has time to leave this afternoon. Then call 5113 and when the recording time comes up tell it that you read about it in this column.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

THE FLOP AT GENEVA (Henderson Dispatch)

In the words of Walter Bedell Smith, under secretary of state and U.S. delegate to the Geneva conference, that conference has reached the point of "frustration and disappointment." Adding our own appraisal and that of others, it has turned out to be a flop. But there is little in it of the disappointment referred to by "Beedle" Smith. If he or others expected great things of it, they are entitled to the rating of pessimist indeed. For our part, we never thought it would be much more than a sounding board for Moscow propaganda, and that is what it has turned out to be.

The Communist line at Geneva has been no different from that at all other similar meetings, namely, to grab everything in sight for Russia in its consistent maneuvering toward world discord, unrest and ultimate domination from Moscow. There never was any prospect that the Kremlin parrots would accept anything not wholly to their advantage.

Actually, the conference has accomplished exactly nothing. Nothing, that is, of a constructive nature. It has served as a vehicle for Communist reiteration of a stand and a strategy already well known to all men.

Nothing has happened that could in the least justify a relaxation by the United States of its defense program. If anything, there is now all the greater reason to step up the arms undertaking in the certainty that anything different will be risking catastrophe. There must be all the preparedness within reason as a safeguard to this country's security.

Soviet Russia has demonstrated again a strategy and a cunning that has tended to battle the free world. It's not that the Kremlin is that much smarter than any one else. It is, rather, that the Reds are wholly unscrupulous in their methods, in contrast to a policy of democracy and liberty on the part of the nations of the free world. There is no program of aggression among the western powers; with Russia it is paramount.

Another week or two will be required for the formalities and technicalities of winding up the Geneva conference. For all intents and purposes, however, it has run its course. For that matter, the world would have been as well off had it never been held in the first place. The whole effort has been one grand flop—as was expected before the sessions ever began some six weeks ago.

Tax Rules Tighter

By ELMER ROESSNER

Once again, the Internal Revenue Service is tightening up on business deductions for travel and entertainment expenses. It has sent a new ruling to Internal Revenue officers, warning them that "some taxpayers are erroneously claiming personal, living or family expenses as business deductions," and that "instances have been found in which taxpayers have claimed fictitious deductions, or have otherwise made excessive claims with willful intent to defraud."

However, in spelling out IRS policy, the warning Revenue Ruling 54-1995, does not insist on a receipt for every dime. However, it explains, "This is not intended to require or permit that the taxpayer be relieved of the burden of proof in such matters, nor to sanction any failure to comply with the record-keeping requirements of the law."

It adds: "Close approximations of items not fully supported by documentary proof can very frequently be reached by reconstruction through resort to reliable secondary sources of information and collateral evidence."

"For example, in connection with a claimed item of traveling expense, it might be possible for a taxpayer to satisfy the examiner that he was in a travel status a certain number of days. . . . In such cases, rail fares or plane fares can be ascertained with exactness and automobile costs approximated on the basis of mileage covered. A reasonable approximation of meals and lodging might be based upon receipted hotel bills or by applying a daily rate (determined upon the basis of actual costs prevailing in the particular community for comparable accommodations) to the provable days of travel items such as tips, taxi fares, and the like can be based on a reasonable appropriation."

The ruling also states: "Disallowing amounts claimed . . . merely because there is available no documentary evidence which will establish the precise amount beyond any reasonable doubt ignores commonly-practiced business practice as well as the fact that proof may be established by credible oral testimony. On the other hand, it is not Service policy to allow a percentage or other arbitrarily-computed portion of deductions of this character merely for the purpose of settlement."

BOOK TELLS WHERE TO SELL TO GOVERNMENT
A new "U.S. Government Purchasing Directory," edited especially for smaller business, has been published by the Small Business Administration. Copies are 50 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D.C.

The greater part of the book consists of lists of things military and civilian agencies buy, followed by code numbers that indicate which agencies purchase that product. For instance, there is: "Yerba mate, 411, 414," which means that the herb is purchased by the Public Health Service, and by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Only one agency, the Tennessee Valley Authority, purchases lehrs, industrial. About 4,000 products are listed.

NIRMS DON'T FEAR H-BOMB, BUT FEW TAKE CHANCES

Four out of every five companies replying to a poll by Purchasing said they have steps to protect their records against an atomic bombing. Microfilming of records for outside storage was the most common step. Storing additional sets of records and drawings, branch plant expansion and creation of Civil Defense units followed in that order.

However, these precautions are apparently being taken, in a large measure, as a matter of form. Seven out of 10 firms reported that they did not think the H-bomb threat is serious enough to permit security considerations to outweigh economic factors. BOOKMARKS SHOW UP AS AD MEDIUM
Add unusual advertising media: bookmarks.

Los Angeles County is using bookmarks in its 100 branch libraries as a medium to advertise Civil Service positions open. The idea could be adapted for use to promote civic affairs in other localities.

Where France, Germany Differ

By HAL BOYLE
PARIS (AP)—What is the difference between France and Western Germany today?

Nine years after the end of the last war the average American soldier abroad prefers to be stationed in Germany, the old enemy, rather than in France, the old ally.

This preference annoys some French, affords the Germans a hearty Teutonic chuckle.

The average American tourist, like the U.S. soldier, also quite often is more impressed by Western Germany rather than any other country in Europe.

Whv? Both soldier and tourist, if pressed for a one-sentence answer, probably would reply "It's more like home."

The phrase "more like home" covers more than the superiority of German over French plumbing. Some Frenchmen feel Americans would prefer hoes over heaven if the devil would just put in more bathrooms. But the impression Western Germany makes on a U.S. visitor can't be dismissed or explained merely as a psychopathic admiration of better plumbing.

There is a great difference in spirit between the two lands. The visiting American today finds few scars of war left on the face of France, but detects many scars in the Frenchman's heart.

The war scars still stand on every hand in Germany—although rebuilding is going on everywhere—but the German keeps whatever postwar bitterness he has pretty much to himself.

The French give an impression of being tired and resentful and envious, like an old beauty who can't quite forgive time for taking away the empire of her charms.

The Germans are like a club fighter who, knocked kicking, gets up off the floor and asks, "where do we go from here?" They want to hit the comeback trail as a people. The visitor gets a feeling the Germans know where they are going, the French wistfully and fearfully are trying to hold on to something they are losing.

The most striking difference between Germany and France is the difference between this atmosphere of self-confident pain and this misma of painful self-doubt. The French still yearn for glory, and demand it on the basis of past performance, and the Germans are back on their feet reaching for power.

In a recent talk to a group of former war correspondents, Dr. Ludwig Erhard, German economics minister, spoke of his hope for a unified Europe that would submerge old rivalries and add:

"It has often been said that Germany is the most American country in Europe. There may be something in that, and, if there is, it lies in a mutual dynamic expansive spirit that can lead us to better times."

That, I suppose, sums up the real reason visiting Americans feel more at home in Germany. They feel the pulsing dynamic growth about them; in France they sense an uneasy static condition of the mind and heart.

Americans still like to go ahead, they hate standing still. In Germany they hear the sound of busy hammers, in France they too often only aware of an anvil chorus of complaint.

Nine years after the war this is the difference an ordinary American visitor feels between Germany and France. Unfortunately, it is a difference that does not make him feel too happy about the future of politics in a world divided.

Real Issue In Dog Track Case Is That Of Jurisdiction

By LYNN NISBET

DOG TRACKS—The Real issue involved in the case pending in the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals on the Dog racing tracks in Currituck county is the question of jurisdiction. The more evident matters of whether pari-mutuel betting authorized by local statute violates the general laws of North Carolina, and the obvious question of the right of a community to vote for or against a system which majority of the communities evidently do not want, have been lost in the shuffle.

These issues have been passed upon by the State courts all the way up to the highest tribunal. A lot of people concur in the State court decisions and a lot of people disagree with State court decisions. The fact remains that North Carolina State courts have passed on the issues presented and, have rendered their decisions.

There is rather general feeling that this question is one for the State Courts. In like manner there is general feeling that matters pertaining to public schools operation should be determined on State level and in State courts. Regardless of whether the average citizen likes the rulings of State courts there is general feeling that the Federal courts have no business interfering in the dog track or school cases. So it is that many people who think the voters of Carteret and Currituck counties have the right to authorize pari-mutuel betting at dog tracks, still concur in the opinion set out in the brief by the Attorney General's department that the Federal court has no jurisdiction in the cases now on appeal respecting operation of these facilities.

The real issue is not whether pari-mutuel betting is legally or morally wrong. It is whether the State Court shall adjudicate such matters or the Federal courts will assume authority never contemplated in earlier years they should exercise.

SOVEREIGNTY—Harry McMullan, North Carolina's attorney general, is a nationally recognized champion of State sovereignty in matters affecting enforcement of laws against crime and administration of government. For years he has been protesting and filing petitions and pleadings against Federal court intervention in cases involving infringement only of State laws.

More than two years ago your reporter wrote a piece quoting McMullan as saying that a large part of the time and energy of the integrity of the Fourth Carolina constitution and statutes against encroachments of Federal courts. The tendency has increased, but the attorney general is just as zealous as ever in maintaining the prestige of State court intervention in purely State matters of the National Association of Attorneys General, and as member of the continuing committee of that organization, Harry McMullan has been a leader in the fight to prevent Federal court intervention in purely State criminal cases by unjustified use of writs of habeas corpus and certiorari.

Even when he disagrees with decisions of the State courts and thinks the Federal courts might decide the issues more nearly according to his own personal ideas, he still insists that North Carolina courts are competent and should be allowed to handle their own business.

The record will show that in most instances the final decisions of Federal courts have affirmed verdicts of the State courts, the intervention having served only to delay and prolong the processes of administration of justice at considerable financial and emotional expense to the people of the State. So it is now that Attorney General McMullan and his staff of associates and assistants contend that whether the dogs run at Moyock and Morehead City is no part of the business of the Federal courts but is a matter to be determined by the General Assembly of North Carolina, the people of the affected communities and the State courts established to interpret and enforce the laws.

LEGISLATURE—Prospects now are there will be no serious contests for official legislative positions next January. Under rotation rules speakership in the House of Representatives goes to the east, and president pro-tem of the Senate to the west. Larry I. Moore Jr., of Wilson is slated to be speaker without more than token opposition—if indeed any body offers against him. Luther E. Barnhardt of Cabarrus has the inside track for president pro tem in the Senate. He will be in his sixth consecutive term and will outrank other senators in tenure.

Ray Byerly of Sanford is expected to be back as principal clerk of the Senate, and Mrs. Annie Cooper of Raleigh in that capacity on the House side. Through the years they have proven to be efficient, courteous and competent and it is likely that anybody will have the nerve to oppose them for continued service.

There will probably be changes

Rural Communities See Burst Of Activity; Beautification Is Goal

RALEIGH — "Most of the men you saw digging with a shovel this spring weren't digging for fishing worms," says John H. Harris, in charge of horticulture for the State College Extension Service. "They were most likely digging holes for trees or shrubs."

Harris, known to thousands of North Carolinians as "The Tar Heel Gardener," for his weekly newspaper columns and radio broadcasts, says the average person probably saw many men working in groups with perhaps their wives helping, "or at least bossing the job."

Individuals and groups from the coast to the mountains have been busy this spring beautifying their homes, churches, schools and even the whole community, says Harris. Beautification has been the main project of many home demonstration clubs, civic clubs, church group and other community organizations.

For example, during the winter and spring months more than 20,000 home demonstration women studied landscaping in their club meetings. In addition thousands of garden club members, home economic girls and vocational agricultural boys were also busy increasing their knowledge of landscaping, says Harris. "And they didn't stop with meetings and talk — they went to work."

Take the group in Lillington for instance. Johnny Blachman, agricultural teacher, spark-plugged a group of interested citizens in giving the whole town a face lifting. Entrances to the town, churches, schools and the court house were the big projects. Reports from county agents tell how communities all over the state are getting together to beautify their surroundings. From C.C. Greene, and A.E. Addington in Ashe County, comes this report:

"The Mill Creek community is doing a fine job of improving its church grounds. Recently 35 men and women spent the entire day setting shrubbery, seeding the lawn, and beautifying the church grounds."

They also report that "several other community organizations have already completed or are in the process of completing improvement projects on churches, cemeteries, roadsides, etc. The Helton community is trying to attract a doctor. The Green Valley community group has worked to dredge streams in the watershed, and the Baldwin organization raised $360 in 10 minutes after Sunday School on April 11 to improve the church grounds."

John Arts in Gates County reports that 4-H Club members in his county are concentrating on improving mail boxes. This project, incidentally, has spread like wildfire over the state. Close to 100,000 copies of a mimeographed sheet on how to build a mail box support have been mailed from the Agricultural Extension Service office in Raleigh.

Roadside improvement is being

Says Effect Is Misunderstood

EDENTON — There's been a lot of misunderstanding about the acid effect on soil of anhydrous ammonia, says C.W. Overman, county agent for the State College Extension Service.

Overman says Agricultural Experiment Station tests show that 152 pounds of dolomitic lime are needed to counteract the acid formed by 100 pounds of anhydrous ammonia. In other words, says Overman, if 100 pounds of the nitrogen gas were used per acre every year for five years, only 700 pounds of lime would be required to offset the acid formed by the anhydrous ammonia. "Therefore the acid forming feature of anhydrous ammonia is insignificant," says Overman.

carried on in Alamance County, says County Agent J.W. Bason. "Evidence of roadside improvement growing out of the County Progress Program can be seen in different sections of the county."

"In this connection, the most recent piece of work on roadside beautification can be found along the highway in Snow Camp where C.C. Stuart has planted a hedge of multiflora rose bordering his drive and the main highway adjacent to his property."

"In addition to beautifying the roadside this planting is placed to serve as a pasture fence also."

Farmers in Orange County, according to County Agent Don Matheson, have given $500 of their prize money won in the 1953 "County of the Year in Rural Progress Contest" toward the landscaping of the historic old Orange County Courthouse. Both Negro and white vocational students came in one day and dug the holes for shrubs.

J.N. Honeycutt of Pender County says, "Don't forget the many individuals that have spruced up their home grounds. Mr. and Mrs. V. S. Covil of Burgaw are good examples. They have made outstanding improvements to their farm in the Mt. Holly community since moving there four years ago. A big change in the appearance of their home site has been made. Their house has been remodeled and painted, their yard completely landscaped, and their farm buildings repaired and a new coat of composition shingles added."

The landscaping of rural churches and cemeteries is rapidly getting to be a popular community activity, says Harris. J.A. Glazener in Transylvania County gives this report:

"The people in Little River community have tackled the beautification of their church grounds and cemetery with typical enthusiasm. The old eroded hill-top cemetery was an eye sore to the community. They tackled this first. Most of the graves were leveled, steep banks graded, half dead shrubs and trees removed and the entire area fertilized and seeded in grass. Walls are now being built and the grounds are being graded around the church."

What does it all mean? Harris says that if the trend continues, North Carolina will be a much more attractive state — and soon.

Skipper Fearing For His Family

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A Polish tanker captain granted political asylum by Nationalist China said today his wife and two daughters in Poland will be punished cruelly for his defection.

"They will be thrown out of our flat; my wife won't be able to get a job and maybe will be imprisoned; my two daughters will be expelled from school," Capt. Leonard Masowski told a news conference.

Masowski and 11 other officers and crewmen aboard the 8,207-ton tanker Praca seized last October by a Nationalist gunboat east of Formosa, were granted political asylum yesterday.

The skipper said a dispute with the political officer aboard the Praca would have meant 10 years in prison for him had the other 11 refugees would have been jailed because they are his friends.

The political officer and 17 other crewmen are to be repatriated to Poland by the International Red Cross.

Albritton Berry Found 'Firmer'

WHITEVILLE — Why does the Albritton strawberry weigh more than some of the older varieties?

Charlie Raper, Columbus County farm agent for the State College Extension Service, says an inspector at the Whiteville market told him the Albritton weighs five to 10 pounds more per 24 quart crate than the Massey variety. Hearing the remark a buyer explained that the Albritton was a much firmer berry and as a general rule has no hollow places inside. This is one of the reasons it holds up better in shipment and has become a buyers favorite, says Raper.

Begin Series Of Tobacco Field Days June 29

RALEIGH — The 1954 series of Tobacco Field Days at N.C. Agricultural Experiment Station test farms gets under way June 29 with morning and afternoon programs at Whiteville, it was announced yesterday.

R.R. Bennett, H.H. Nau and S.N. Hawks, Jr. tobacco specialists for the State College Extension Service, said all tobacco farmers, warehousemen, fertilizer dealers, and tobacco company representatives are urged to attend the program at one of the test farms.

Those attending the field days will have an opportunity to observe a demonstration of several tobacco harvesting machines in operation, high analysis fertilizer tests, topdressing results, variety tests, hail damage, cultivation tests, disease resistant varieties and a seasonal history of hornworm study, among other things.

Farmers from certain counties have been asked to attend certain tours in order that the test farm facilities not be crowded.

The schedule:

June 29 Tobacco Test Farm, Whiteville, 9 a.m. — Columbus, Hoke, Brunswick, New Hanover, Pender, Sampson; 2 p.m. — Robeson, Bladen, Scotland, Cumberland.

July 1, Tobacco Test Farm, Greenville 9 a.m. — Pitt, Lenoir, Greene, Jones, Nash, Beaufort, Wayne, Craven; 2 p.m. — Martin, Edgecombe, Wilson, Carteret, Gates, Pamlico, Onslow, Bertie, Washington.

Mourns Unpaid Telephone Bill

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Two guests at the Senator Hotel checked out by a rear window yesterday. Their default of payment of the $8 room bill didn't bother Night Manager William Holived very much.

It was the unpaid $55 bill for a 1,000-mile overseas telephone call to Nassau in the British West Indies that rankled, he told police.

Warns Weevils In Many Fields

RALEIGH — North Carolina cotton farmers were warned today that boll weevils are present in many fields now even though cotton is still small.

George D. Jones in charge of entomology for the State College Extension Service, said some fields are showing large numbers of weevils, while in others they are very difficult to find.

A few bollworms have been found in Scotland and Pitt Counties, but their numbers are very small as yet. Aphids have been present in a few fields but are not a general problem. The numerous lady beetles and larvae on most plants seem to be holding the aphid population in check, said Jones. Thrips may also be found in many fields but generally are believed not to present a serious threat.

But the boll weevil is again expected to take a heavy toll of North Carolina cotton — if growers fail to apply insecticides according to recommendations. Some growers have already started applying insecticides. A few fields were treated in Anson, Scotland and Robeson Counties during the first week in June, said Jones. When weevil numbers are near, or about one per 100 plants at the time of squaring, growers may want to begin treatments and continue to make applications at seven-day intervals, said Jones. The entomologist said checking each cotton field regularly is the only safe rule to follow.

A recent weevil survey showed that all of the fields checked in Robeson, Scotland, Bertie, Pitt, and Cumberland Counties were infested.

STOP HORNWORMS WITH RHOETHANE TDE

as these successful tobacco growers are doing each year.

RHOETHANE is the original TDE insecticide that kills hornworms with safety to the user, crop handler and smoker. RHOETHANE has proved its value as a hornworm killer during several seasons of heavy, widely-spread infestations. RHOETHANE also controls budworms and flea beetles.

You'll find RHOETHANE sprays easy to mix and apply. You can choose between RHOETHANE Wettable Powder or 25% Emulsifiable Liquid. RHOETHANE dusts are also sold by leading dust formulators. Be ready for hornworms with genuine RHOETHANE dusts or sprays. Tell your dealer now to be sure to order a stock of RHOETHANE insecticides for your needs.

Signs Seen Pressures On Pocketbooks Easing

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Pressure on the pocketbook is easing a little here and there as summer comes. There's hope today that before the hot weather is over, you may see still lower prices—if only slightly lower—on a few of the things you buy.

Competition among salesmen, and a growing abundance of raw materials and manufactured goods are the underlying causes. Wholesale food prices have already dropped. Talk of lower prices for still more foodstuffs is being heard.

WINDOW ON RED CHINA

View of Hong Kong taken from The Peak, overlooking the harbor where freighters and British naval vessels lie at anchor. On far side is Kowloon on the Chinese mainland. Two large modern skyscrapers in center are bank buildings. At left is the National City Bank (U.S.), and at right, the Shanghai and Hong Kong Bank (Communist-backed), which was purposely built higher than the U.S.-owned bank in order to overshadow it.

In a troubled Far East, Hong Kong sits back to back with Communist China and remains complacent. It shows little or no sign of the tinder-box tension that grips the rest of Asia. It's still a noisy, bustling, colorful metropolis, still remains, despite restricted trade between Red China and the free world, one of the greatest trans-shipment ports in the world.

Hong Kong suffers more from growing population pains than it does from fears of war. A flood of refugees from Communist China has pushed its figure to some 2,300,000, most of whom live in Kowloon, on the mainland. As of old, its harbor teems with hundreds of picturesque junks and sampans, launches, tugs, yachts and naval craft, freighters and sleek liners. Foot and ricksha traffic crowd its narrow streets. Majestic, multi-colored, mysterious Hong Kong still remains the crossroad and the gateway to the East and the West, and traffic goes through.

It is only when you drive 20 miles north from Hong Kong, go through Kowloon and the New Territories (a piece of mainland behind Kowloon, plus 75 scattered islands, which were leased to Britain in 1898 for 99 years), do you reach Communist China and the first signs of the bamboo curtain — a high steel wire fence, pill boxes and grim Chinese sentries armed with burp guns. The border is at the railroad station of Lowu. People going between the two countries, like laborers, a few visitors and diplomats, disembark at this point and cross the border on foot. After a thorough processing routine in which their baggage and papers are checked, they are allowed to go on.

Staton Pitches One-Hitter As Redmen Stretch Lead

Elks Win Again In Little League To Stay Unbeaten

Right-hander Charles Staton fired a one-hit shutout masterpiece past the National Guard PONY League team last night, fanning 17 batters along the severe inning route, as his Redmen teammates supported him with three runs for the 3-0 win.

Not a single batter reached as far as third base safely off the Redmen ace Staton walked two and hit one batter besides giving up the one hit.

Left-hander Bobby Pridmore pitched a good ball game also. He and Staton were locked in a shutout duel until the last of the fifth when the league-leading Redmen reached Pridmore for three runs.

Roberts led off with a single off Pridmore in the fifth and Godfrey Oakley walked. After two were out Arthur Andrews smashed a ringing double to drive home both runners.

After that Pridmore was just as tough as ever but the damage had been done. Pridmore struck out five and walked only three in going the route.

Staton pitched hitless ball for the first three innings until Sammy Crawford hit a blooper single in the fourth. The hit was just out of reach of the infield.

Arthur Andrews and Johnny Johnson led the Redmen at the plate with two hits each. That pair got two-thirds of the hits of their whole team.

The win put the Redmen way out in front in the PONY League race this half. Coach Junior Yohn's block-busting powerhouse has won six while losing one. The Brights are second with a 4-3 mark.

The National Guard are third at 3-4 with the Formatics last with a 1-6 record.

Friday's Games 7:30—Harris Super Markets vs Jolly Rogers 9:00—Graniteers vs Garner-Wynne-Manning

Action in the first half of Greenville's Recreation Softball League ended last night, appropriately enough, with Home Builders struggling from behind to register a 9-8, extra-inning victory over Southern Bread.

In the first game of last night's doubleheader at Guy Smith Stadium, the Graniteers rolled as expected to a 10-4 victory over Jolly Rogers.

The games last night did little to change the complexion of the final standings. Carolina Dairies had sewed up the championship Thursday night with a 9-1 record. Graniteers boosted themselves into second for keeps last night with an 8-2 mark.

Home Builders' victory last night threw them into a tie for third place with Garner-Wynne-Manning. Both teams have 7-3 records. Southern Bread was in fifth place with a 3-7 record, a half-game better than sixth-place Jolly Rogers 2-8 record.

National Guard and Harris Super Markets, the two teams that got into the league during seventh place with identical 1-7 records.

In last night's action, second baseman Sonny Scott of the Home Builders came through with a pair of timely hits to insure his team's victory. He had a single in the sixth inning that scored pitcher Don Gordon with a run and then came back in the eighth inning with another single to score Gordon with the winning run.

Dodgers Leading Coastal League

The Tobacco Board of Trade Dodgers are leading play in the Coastal Little League with a record of three victories and no losses.

The Greenville Braves are in second place, a game behind, with a 2-1 record. The Person-Garrett Tigers and the Picklen Giants are tied for third position with records of one victory and three defeats.

Next week's schedule has the Dodgers and the Tigers meeting Tuesday, the Giants and the Braves playing Tuesday, the Dodgers and Giants playing Thursday, and the Braves and Dodgers playing Friday.

All Coastal contests are played at South Greenville Park. Starting time for the games is 6:30 p.m.

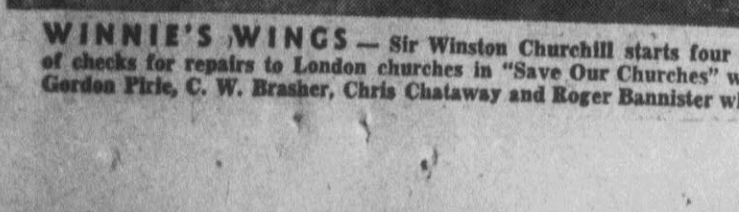

In last night's action, the Braves won 10-9 from the Giants.

Four games are scheduled for next week in the Negro Men's Softball League. On Monday, the Riverdale Rats meet the Progressive Dodgers to start the week's play.

Twentieth-Century Club meets the Dodgers and on Wednesday the Bachelor Benedicts play Riverdale. Thursday, the Dodgers and the Benedicts meet.

All of the softball games are played at South Greenville Park. They start each night immediately after Little League games are completed.

Last night, the 20th Century Club defeated the Bachelor Benedicts 16-10.

By WAYNE BISHOP Reflector Sports Writer Little Denny Hardee started the Elks off on the right foot for the second half when he twirled a snappy two-hit shut-out at the Moose and his teammates supported him with 13 runs.

The win gave the Elks their first win of the second half and their tenth straight win of the season without a loss. For the Moose their record in the second half is now 0-1.

Little Hardee pitched no-hit ball for three and two-thirds innings but then an interference on the catcher gave Donnie Joyner a hit in the fourth. Then in the sixth Kenneth Joyner slapped out a base hit the real way.

Hardee never was in any trouble during the game as he walked only one batter. His teammates played errorless ball behind him and only the two batters that got hits and the one that walked reached base on the little Elks hurler.

Kenneth Joyner started on the mound for the Moose and was shelled for six runs in the first inning. The Elks came back in the second to score five more and wrap the game up.

In all, the Elks smashed out 16 hits off the nine-year-old southpaw. Merrill Bynum led the hit parade with four hits in five at bats. Bobby Arthur and Joe Moye each had three hits for the Elks.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock will be a doubleheader with the Lions meeting the Kiwanis and the V.F.W. versus the Jaycees.

Minoso Increases Lead In Voting

CHICAGO (AP)—Orestes (Minnie) Minoso Chicago White Sox left fielder, today increased his lead as the highest individual vote collector in the All-Star baseball poll.

Minoso's total reached 27,908 in the latest tabulation of returns. He has an advantage of 2,796 votes over his closest pursuer, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Musial has been named on 25,112 ballots. The voting will determine 18 starters for the 21st annual All-Star game in Cleveland July 13.

The balloting contest opened on June 11 and will continue until midnight July 3. There were no major changes in the latest compilation of returns.

Tourney Finals Coming Monday

Completion in the annual city tennis tournament arrowed down to just a few as the finals are coming up Monday.

Yesterday afternoon Jack Pickett eliminated P. R. Ashby in three sets in the quarter-finals. Pickett won the first set, but Ashby came back Pickett won the final set to take to deadlock it after the second set.

In doubles yesterday George MacMillan and Tommie Lupton reached the finals by beating Raby Edwards and Ben Wolverton 6-1, 6-3.

All other matches were caught by rains and could not be played. This afternoon the boys finals will be run off at 2 o'clock between Boyce (Butch) Cox and Joe Dunn.

Also this evening will be a semifinal round between Jack Pickett and Joe Sawyer. Several doubles matches are scheduled for this afternoon.

Monday afternoon the finals in the junior singles, the men's singles, and the men's doubles will be held.

The 37-year-old campaigner, who won her first major title 20 years ago, has finished second in three of her last four tournaments.

Today she has a chance to win her first crown of the year, meeting Louise Suggs, petite 28-year-old Atlantan, in the 36-hole showdown for the Women's Western Open. The winner will get $1,000. The runner-up gets $500.

Louise who has won five tournaments this season, tops the women's money parade with $6,943. Miss Jameson is fourth with $4,403.

CGA Juniors Play For Title Today CHARLOTTE—The championship in the Carolina Golf Assn. Junior tournament will be decided here today between Burnham Upler of Spartanburg, S. C., and Bobby McCarty of Camden, S. C.

The 36-hole finals over the Myers Park Country Club course were left to the two South Carolinians after two Tar Heels fell from play yesterday.

McCarty eliminated Buzzy Basinger of Charlotte, with par golf, one up.

Upler downed Teddy Garrison of Morganton 2 and 1 in the other semifinal game.

Pitchers Take Honors For Performances Last Night

Santee Leads Relay Team To New Record At Lejeune

By BEN PHLEGAR Associated Press Sports Writer If some of the major league's best pitchers turned up with aching backs today they had a good excuse.

They'd been busy taking bows for last night's games when in every active park in the two circuits there was at least one hurler who had covered himself with glory.

At the Polo Grounds it was Harvey Haddix of the St. Louis Cardinals. The pint-sized lefthander snapped the New York Giants' six-game winning streak with his third straight shutout, 5-0.

At Forbes Field Vern Law, one of the National League's brightest rookies, allowed Milwaukee only three singles and won the game 2-1 for Pittsburgh with a bases-loaded single in the last of the ninth. Warren Spahn, Law's mound foe, was no slouch either, giving only five singles.

Corky Valentine, another rookie, outduelled Curt Simmons as Cincinnati shaded Philadelphia 2-1. Simmons, the victim of the Phils' weak hitting in his last two outings in which they have scored once, drove in the only run for the losers. Wally Post collected four hits and drove in both runs for the Redlegs as Valentine carefully spaced seven safeties.

The joy in Flatbush came from Don Newcombe's first complete game since May 7. The big right-hander turned back Chicago 6-3 as the Dodgers chipped the Giants' league lead to a single game. Newcombe struck out eight, all in the last six innings. Gil Hodges homered twice.

The National League had no monopoly on the outstanding performances by pitchers. In the American League Cleveland beat Detroit 2-0, New York shaded Chicago 7-6, Philadelphia edged Detroit 2-1 and Washington outlasted Baltimore 7-5 in 13 innings.

Marjorie Burns Wins Title Again WAYNESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Miss Marjorie Burns of Greensboro successfully defended her title here yesterday by defeating Mrs. Billee Miller of Mount Airy 6 and 5 in the North-Carolina Women's Golf Assn. tournament.

Miss Burns led five up after the 18-hole morning round. She stayed even with par and won just one more hole, all that was needed to close out Mrs. Miller on the 18th.

The morning round saw Miss Burns card birdies on three of the last four holes. After shooting a one-over-par 38 on the front in the morning for a three-up lead, Miss Burns lost Nos. 10 and 12 to whittle the lead to one hole.

She chipped in from off the green on the first of the last 18 for a birdie three only to have Mrs. Miller dunk a 25-foot putt to halve the hole.

No. 6 was Miss Burns' only hole in the afternoon, which she took with a birdie 4. Mrs. Miller was only one-over par in the afternoon but was unable to overtake the steady, long-hitting Miss Burns.

Linville Tourney Starting Today LINVILLE, N. C. (AP)—The 17th annual Linville Country Club four-ball tournament was scheduled to get underway here today with a bountiful supply of Charlotte and Reidsville golfers.

Erwin Laxton and Phil Hazel will meet Edison Foard and Stan Errod, all of Charlotte, and Fletcher Wall, Lexington and Benny Gooden, Reidsville, will pair against Foy Brady and Pat Brady, both of Reidsville.

Zulueta Waiting For Title Fight NEW YORK (AP)—Orlando Zulueta, the clever Cuban lightweight with the talented left hand today was bidding his time waiting for Paddy DeMarco and Jimmy Carter to get on with their title fight, after evening an old score with Johnny Gonsalves.

Zulueta won a unanimous decision over Gonsalves in 10 rounds in the stillness of Madison Square Garden last night. The International Boxing Club didn't announce any attendance figures but there couldn't have been more than 1,500 people.

Referee Ray Miller scored it 7-2-1. Judge Tony Rossi 6-3-1 and Judge Jack Gordon 5-4-1, all for Zulueta who weighed 134 1/2 to Gonsalves' 134 pounds. The Associated Press card also was 5-4-1 for the Cuban.

CAMP LEJEUNE, N. C. (AP)—Wes Santee, the world's second fastest miler, led the crack Quantico mile relay team to a new Marine record of 3:21.3 yesterday in the All-Marine, All-Navy track championships here.

The former Kansas University star, running a spectacular final lap in the relay, figured in breaking three records during the annual meet that opened Thursday.

Santee ran the mile in 4:07.0 Thursday and yesterday turned in a 1:51.3 in the 880, both records.

He is slated for 12 weeks infantry training in a platoon leaders' class, having entered the Marine Corps last Monday.

Joe Schatzle, James Allen and Tom Voorhees, were his relay teammates.

The Navy set 13 records in their division to six for the Marines.

In the 220 and 440 hurdles, two Camp Pendleton, Calif., Marines broke old marks. Clayne Jensen and Don Smith turned in times of :24.2 in the 220 and :55.1 in the 440 respectively.

Joe Tyler of the USS Hancock broke his second record by winning the two-mile steeplechase in 10:39.1. Yesterday he did the three miles in 15:22.7.

Fred Lucas of the San Diego Naval Training Center ran the 220 in :21.7, topping the old mark of :21.8 set by Bill Boyd of the training center in 1953.

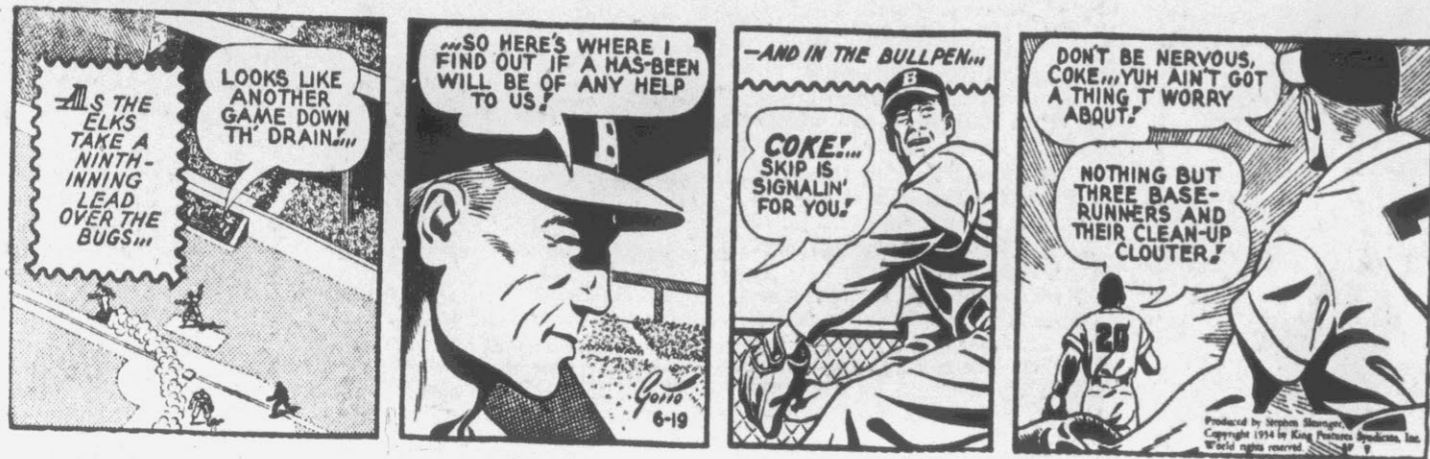

Another San Diego sailor, Ron Drummond, won his third event of the meet and broke the Navy record with 110 ft. 2 1/2 in. heave in the hammer throw. In Thursday's competition he set a Navy discus record of 189 ft. 4 in. and won the javelin throw at 164 ft. 3 in.

Americans Surprised By Choice Of New Premier

By PRESTON GROVER
PARIS (AP)—Pierre Mendes-France came into office as premier to the great surprise of Americans here, and they don't know quite what to make of him.

Almost none of the top figures in the American embassy had ever talked seriously to him. They knew about him at second hand, as did many French and American businessmen here. But until he actually was voted in as premier yesterday few could believe it was going to happen.

The surprise has called for a "reappraisal."
"We may find it is a good thing, after all," one American diplomat said.

The explanation is this: Mendes-France promised in winning Assembly support to negotiate for a cease-fire in Indochina by July 20 or get out of office. That puts a big burden on him and his new team in negotiating with the Communists in Geneva. It has one disadvantage. The Communists may try to hold off until the end of the month's time the premier allowed, in the hope that he will accept poor terms just to stay in office.

But one American diplomat saw another prospect. He thought it possible the Communists might choose to give him and his team better terms just to keep him in office. By keeping him in power they have gained one round in their battle against the European Army pact. Mendes-France has promised he will begin negotiating for compromise arrangements on this treaty. That might throw the whole thing into the soup. The four nations including Germany which already have ratified it may choose to scuttle it rather than to try to fit it into shape to please France.

All these things are for the future. The immediate prospect is for a peace in Indochina and the American diplomat's view was that Mendes-France is in an especially good position to negotiate on that. First, he has long advocated dealing directly with the Communist rebel leader in Indochina, Ho Chi Minh. That should get him perhaps a friendlier reception among the Communists than former Foreign Minister Georges Bidault has had. Moreover the American pressed out that many Frenchmen would take it for granted that Mendes-France was likely to get the best possible settlement out of Indochina. Hadn't he fought long and hard to deal directly with Ho Chi Minh? Wouldn't the Communists appreciate it? The American diplomat thought Frenchmen would ask these questions and come up with a "yes" answer and there would be less recrimination about the settlement reached.

But aside from Indochina, there are other questions Americans are asking about Mendes-France. Mendes-France has been a very bright and talented young man, the kind who thinks twice as fast as an average man. Such bright minds tend to worry diplomats and businessmen.

One strange problem arises with the new premier's determination to end the war in Indochina quickly. By stopping the war, he will be killing—or crippling—the goose that lays golden eggs for France, even though the country will bless him if he does it.
The United States has been contributing more than three-quarters of a billion dollars a year to help finance the war in Indochina. France spends it for supplies and for pay to Indochinese soldiers. (French soldiers don't get American money, even for fighting in Indochina.)

Dollars are dollars no matter where they come from, and the supply of dollars assures that France won't have a dollar gap—that shortage of free exchange—such as plagued her until a year or so ago.

Of the 785 million dollars allotted France for Indochina in 1953-54, France has received so far only 88 millions because the U.S. Treasury demands complicated receipts and proofs of purchase before shelling out the money.
But other purchases have been ordered and, even if the war stops, the United States probably will be obliged to pay for them. In any event, even a cease-fire would require continued heavy policing by the military in Indochina, just as it has in Korea. But the end of the war will start a shrinking of the dollar supply and France would begin to face that fact in a year or so.

'Sociable' Gent Drank Too Much

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Filling station operator Isaac O. Campbell was on trial, charged with driving while drunk.
The last of many character witnesses was asked whether she had known him socially.
"Oh yes," replied the willing witness, "he's social every time I see him."

Churches Meet In Dance Halls

OMAHA (AP)—Omaha churches are holding services in a ballroom, cafe and night club.
Members of the King Catholic parish hold their current services in a ball room at an amusement park.
St. Timothy's Lutheran Church members congregate at a cafe—a fried chicken establishment on week days.
And the Underwood Presbyterian members meet in what used to be a gambling emporium.
All three congregations are building their own edifices.

Scott Donates 'One Good Cigar'

Exchangites To Assist Festival

At the Greenville Exchange Club's weekly supper meeting Friday night, the club voted to provide some entertainment for the "Tobacco Festival" to be held here Thursday August 12. President Ed Parkinson presided.

"Tobacco Festival" Committee-man Bancroft Moseley was a guest of the club. The club will provide entertainment on the lot adjoining the telephone office near Five Points. The program will include a string band, dancing and some novelty acts.
Evangelist Eddie Martin, who is conducting religious meetings in a tent on the western suburbs of Greenville, was guest speaker at the club's weekly supper meeting. The minister used as his theme, "The Husband As Head of the House." Program chairman Robert S. Moyer introduced the speaker.
Exchange Secretary Jack Wallace reported that the entire club membership attended the tent meeting in a body.

Near-Centurian Of Grimesland Dies Of Old Age Infirmities

GRIMESLAND—Mrs. Mary Marzillo Floyd, reputed to be between 95 and 100 years old, died suddenly last night about midnight while sitting up and talking with members of her family.
Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse quoted Mrs. Floyd's daughter Mrs. Alice Wiggins, as saying her mother was close to 100 years old. The elderly woman had lived with her daughter on the Julian A. Elks farm near Grimesland many years. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.
The coroner ruled that the woman died of the infirmities of old age.

74-Year-Old Charged Possession Of Bootleg

A 74-year-old Negro man was arrested by A. B. C. officers at his home last night and charged with illegal possession of non-tax-paid liquor.
Raymond Duffy was picked up at 11 N. Washington Street after officers had seen him coming out of a patch of woods near the Tar River with bootleg whiskey.

FOOD IN TOYS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—In an effort to stimulate children's interest in different foods, a manufacturer now is making squeezable plastic food containers, in the shape of tomatoes, teddy bears and bunnies. The containers were featured at the American Management Assn. packaging show here.

McCarthy Issue Seems Dormant In Senate Race

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—Despite the advance rally, it looked today—48 hours before Monday's Maine primary—as if Sen. McCarthy might not have much impact after all on a contest in this state for the Republican nomination to the Senate.

The candidates are Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Skowhegan, seeking a second term, and Robert L. Jones of Biddeford, a freshman office seeker.
McCarthy looked like a potential issue when Jones at the outset of his campaign praised the Wisconsin Republican's concepts of Americanism. But as the campaign progressed, Jones made few references to McCarthy.
Mrs. Smith did not refer at all to the Wisconsin senator by name. She criticized conditions making for discord in government.
Up to now the campaign has produced only one major issue—the 56-year-old woman senator's Senate record.
Jones called his opponent a "do-nothing, say-nothing senator." Mrs. Smith campaigned without referring by name to her 34-year-old Biddeford rival. She changed her 1948 slogan of "don't trade a record for a promise" to "don't trade a record for a smear."

Airman Facing Murder Charge In Wave Slaying

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP)—Carl Strickland, 21-year-old Patuxent Naval Air Station airman from Rocky Mount, N. C., is being held without bail for grand jury action in the slaying of a Wave.
The body of the victim, 26-year-old Irene Marian Conole, was found on a beach at nearby Point Lookout the morning of May 29.
She had been raped, beaten and cut with a broken bottle. The actual cause of death was given as drowning.
Judge Wilson H. Knight rejected defense pleas to dismiss charges in a hearing here yesterday. Defense counsel William M. Loker Jr. argued there was no positive evidence Strickland had been with the Rochester, N. Y. Wave after they left a tavern at 1:30 a.m. the day of her death.
Strickland admitted to police he had been with Miss Conole the night of May 28. But he said they picked up a hitchhiker at her request and he left the two of them on the beach.

Research Farm Tour Scheduled Next Thursday

A farm tour of the Coastal Plains Vegetable Research Farm at Faison is set for June 24 between 1:30 p. m. and 4:30 p. m. County Agent Sam Winchester announced today.
The farm agent stated that those attending will have an opportunity to observe research being conducted on the following crops: cantaloupes, cucumbers, lima beans, snap beans, Irish potatoes, peppers, squash, sweet potatoes, sweet corn, tomatoes, and watermelons.
"Special emphasis will be placed on plant production practices, the new 64-bushel sweet potato storage house, vegetable diseases, fall vegetable production and the farm tour," Winchester noted.

Dealers' Group To Hear Retailer

One of the top retailers in the appliance industry will be guest speaker at a meeting of the local Appliance Dealers Association next week, according to D. E. Oglesby, chairman of the group.
H. B. Price Jr., vice president of the National Appliance and Radio-TV Dealers Association, will address the local appliance merchants at a dinner meeting Tuesday at 7 p. m. at the Greenville Golf and Country club.

Price, who is president of Price's Inc. of Norfolk, Va., has earned a reputation as one of the most progressive and aggressive merchandisers in the appliance industry on the strength of the appliance and television merchandising program conducted by his chain of retail stores in the Norfolk area.
Price has been honored as the Electrical Appliance Brand Name Retailer of 1951 by Brand Names Foundation. He serves as president of the Norfolk Retail Merchants Association, is vice president of the Community Chest, and is a leader in the YMCA and other civic and social service groups.
All appliance dealers of Greenville and nearby towns are invited to attend the meeting. For reservations telephone 2452. Oglesby stated that all reservations must be made not later than Monday at 10 a. m.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Friday, two women pleaded guilty to the charge of affray in the Dixie Lunch Cafe, near Five Points, Friday morning.

Testimony was that "some jealousy between the two women existed," and that "Mrs. Annie Mae Jones, of near Falkland chosen Mrs. Lena Davis of 612 Dickinson avenue, in the Dixie Lunch Cafe and that they then engaged in an affray, damaging some furniture."
Police officers testified that they separated the women and arrested them.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee sentenced each woman to 30 days in jail, sentence to be suspended on payment by each of $12.50 to the Dixie Lunch Cafe for damage and that they each pay $15 court costs. The defendants paid up and were released, the Police Court record shows.

The court's judgment also provides that the two women "must not threaten or harm or interfere with each other for two years."
Charles Mayo, Negro, careless and reckless driving, 30 days suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for 30 days.

Ernest Eaton, Jr., Negro, assault on a female, 30 days in jail, to be suspended on payment of $15 on costs, and the judgment provides that he is not to harm or molest Mary Ann Wilkes.

For non-support, the court found Ernest Eaton Jr., Negro, guilty of non-support. Judge Whedbee gave him six months on the roads, to be suspended on payment of $10 for support before release. The judgment also provides that he is to pay $8 a week beginning June 26, 1954, for support of the child.

Willie Green, Negro, drunk, $10. Ada Clark, Negro, 1204 Factory street, possession of non-tax paid whiskey for purpose of sale, six months in prison, sentence to be suspended on payment of $150 fine, costs deducted. The court also placed her on probation for five years, and the judgment provides that she is not to possess any intoxicating liquor.

Thomas Brown, Negro, assault on a female, not passed with leave. W. Hill Brown was found not guilty of hit-and-run driving.

Border Permits Now Available

Border permits are available for those who want to enter Canada this year for the tobacco curing season, W. B. Dillingham, manager of the Employment Security Commission office, said today.
Dillingham indicated that persons applying for the border permits will be required to show evidence that they have a job in Canada before the permits can be issued.

Kyzer Attending Chapel Hill Meet

Willard T. Kyzer, local Chamber of Commerce manager, left this morning to attend the Southeastern Institute for Chamber of Commerce Executives meeting in Chapel Hill next week.
Kyzer serves on the Board of Directors of the Institute. He plans to return to Greenville after the Monday morning session, going back to Chapel Hill for the meeting Wednesday. He will return home Wednesday that day's session.

My Husband Is In Love With The Undertaker

Dedicated to the man who insists
A "Thousand" is enough

My husband's in love with the Undertaker:
You ask, "How do I know?"
Well, it's plain to be seen; in fact, I confess.
He as much as told me so.

He came home one day awhile ago,
His face lit up with glee;
And he said, "I've bought some life insurance,
For I'll die some time, you see."

And I asked him how much he had taken;
"Oh, a thousand dollars," he said;
"It's not very much, but when I die
It's enough to bury me."

How proud he was as he talked that night;
Said he, "When I meet my Maker,
There's one thing for sure, I'll leave enough
To pay the undertaker."

And then I thought of my poor health,
And of our small children, three.
And I said to him, "But listen, Jim,
What will you leave for the kiddies and me?"

"Now there," he said, as he scratched his head.
"I guess you don't have to fret;
There'll be money, you see, to bury me,
And you won't have to go in debt."

I knew that he could, so I told him he should Buy a thousand or two for his own!
And I said, "It's not fair, and you ought to care
For your family, if left alone."

But try as I might to make him do right
He stubbornly held to his view;
And then he said, "Why after I'm dead
I don't have to take care of you."

And he wouldn't consent — he had enough
He thought he had done quite well
He'd insured the undertaker,
And his family could go to h——
