By SAM SUMMERLIN TEGUCIGALPA Honduras (AP)—The Guatemalan War entered its seventh day today with most of the fighting still apparently raging over the propaganda airwaves and in the diplomatic arena.

Diplomats Now Wonder If Churchill Can Heal Rift Air Of Sharp Disagreement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Preliminary indications that the Eisenhower-Churchill conference opening here tomorrow will be held in an atmosphere of sharp disagreement.

Based on years on creation of an international army including French and German forces. Because of French inaction, American officials have thought the talks this weekend should consider alternative ways of arming West Germany outside the proposed EDC.

Word is now circulating, however, that the British—never too keen about EDC—have more interest in alternatives than the United States is ready for. American officials fear that any pressing for alternatives might endanger whatever chance still exists of getting EDC ratified by France.

Republicans Press For 1 Year Trade Act Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican Senate leaders passed word today that adoption of a Democratic-sponsored, broadened extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act probably would kill the 20-year program.

Majority Leader Knowland of California and Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.) of the tariff-handling Finance Committee it was learned, were using this argument to try to hold votes in line for a simple one-year extension bill already passed by the House.

Knowland and Millikin contend the House might well refuse a conference and let the law die if the Senate passes a broadened extension measure.

BULLETIN

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—A lone bandit robbed the Branch Banking and Trust Co. at Fremont today.

After his three-year proposal ran into difficulties there, Eisenhower last month let it be known he would go along with a one-year extension now but said he was not dropping his interest in the broader program. He said passage of the one-year extension would give Congress opportunity to study his plan further.

Millikin shot back that he had not discussed the matter with the President at all. The Colorado senator said the last time Eisenhower spoke on the subject, in a letter publicly released in May, the President expressed willingness to accept a one-year extension and renewed study of trade policy by the 1956 Congress.

Shower Honors Recent Bride

The home of Mrs. Paul Arnold, Grimesland, was the setting of a miscellaneous shower on Saturday night, June 19, at 8 o'clock, honoring Mrs. Wayne Brown, recent bride of Grimesland. The hostesses were Mrs. Paul Arnold and Mrs. Ella Griffin.

The bridal motif was carried out in the living room of the home. The table was decorated in green and white with green and white streamers festooned with silver wedding bells suspended from the ceiling to the corners of the table. On the table was a miniature bride and groom with a green and white umbrella over them carrying out the theme of the shower. The flowers used in the home were white and pink gladioli.

The honoree was beautifully attired in a rose sheer summer dress. On the arrival of Mrs. Brown the hostess pinned a corsage of white carnations with baby's breath, tied with green and white ribbon on her shoulder.

Approximately 50 guests were delightfully entertained with games and contests directed by Mrs. Dick Hodges.

During the party flash pictures were taken of the newbrides and their assembled friends.

Budget Decisions Still To Be Made

Assuming the Utilities Commission will turn over to the city $142,500 next year as it has this year, the city's budget will still be $8,185 out of balance.

As we see it, one of three alternatives must be chosen:

1. The city budget must be further slashed in spite of the fact that $66,490 already has been cut from the original budget proposal which was considerably less than departmental requests.

2. The Utilities Commission must turn over to the city sufficient funds to make up the lack of revenue which is now anticipated in the city budget.

3. If neither of the other alternatives is possible, the city rate must be raised sufficiently to bring in enough revenue to balance the city budget.

This last alternative, we believe, would be most unwise. We are sure it would be most unpopular.

If the Utilities Commission would agree to give the city the full $142,500 for the new budget, plus an additional $8,185, the budget could be balanced with the present estimated expenditure figures. This would mean Utilities Commission turnover to the city would be $150,685, instead of $132,500 which the Utilities has proposed.

If the Utilities maintains its present tentative position of turning over to the city only $132,500 for the coming year, the city budget as it now stands is $18,185 out of balance. If the Commission turns over to the city $142,500 as it did this year, the city budget as it now stands will still be $8,185 short on the revenue side.

Our suggestion at the moment is this:

The Council again review the city's proposed budget as it now stands to make sure it has been cut to the minimum. At the same time, the Utilities Commission reconsider its position and determine whether it will be able to turn over to the city more than the $132,500 it has tentatively indicated.

Saturday Is A Day For Decision

Saturday is no time for Pitt County voters to stay away from the polls.

Citizens who went to the polls the last Saturday in May and cast their ballots in the first primary did part of the job. The job must be finished in Saturday's balloting.

As The Reflector has said before, a second primary is not an election of secondary importance. For the voters of Pitt County, it is an election of great importance.

In Saturday's voting, two major county offices will be filled, one important district office will be filled, and two township offices will be filled.

A citizen who voted in the first primary has fulfilled only a portion of his privilege and responsibility to participate in the election of public officials. If he fails to return to the polls to vote in the second primary, he has left the final decision to other voters. And in every election, the final decision of the voters is the decision which really counts.

In the interest of continued good government for Pitt County, The Reflector strongly urges all registered voters to participate in Saturday's election. There are not as many races now as there were when the first primary was held, but so far as Pitt County is concerned, the decision of the voters is of great importance.

Every citizen of the county should keep this fact in mind: only those voters who go to the polls Saturday will participate in making the decision.

A Catastrophe Difficult To Imagine

It is difficult for the people of Pitt County to visualize the catastrophe which has struck residents of the Des Moines River Valley in Iowa.

Here in this county we read about serious floods along major waterways in other sections of the nation. We look at pictures of the damage; but somehow we never fully appreciate the plight of the people whose homes are destroyed, businesses wrecked and farms submerged by the raging waters.

The section in which we live is blessed with rivers which normally stay within their banks. And even in periods when they overflow, they usually flood only low-grounds that consist mostly of wooded areas that are little damaged.

Imagine the plight of Pitt County should the usually tranquil Tar suddenly swell beyond its banks and flood thousands of acres of farm land. Imagine the crisis which would exist if raging waters suddenly wiped out crops, wrecked homes, flooded business houses and drowned quantities of livestock.

There would be a time of crisis during the flood itself; but there would be no less severe a crisis during many months after the water receded, as people set about repairing the damage.

The people of the Des Moines River Valley are now facing the immediate danger of the flood. After the crest of the rivers have passed, they will face the equally sobering threat of financial ruin caused by severe losses.

Will Taxpayers Lose Again?

WASHINGTON—American taxpayers will be bled by between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 a year, if the politically powerful aviation lobby and its plan in Capitol Hill succeed with two schemes to thwart White House and Supreme Court demands for reduction of unnecessary subsidies in this field. It is a desperate behind-the-scenes battle.

Senator Pat McCarran, influential Nevada Democrat, and a long-time friend of Juan Trippe's Pan American World Airways, is quietly seeking enactment of a bill that will upset a Supreme Court decision for a more economical and businesslike computation of airline subsidies, especially in the trans-Atlantic skies.

A companion measure to McCarran's Senate Bill 3426 has been introduced in the House by Representative Carl Hinshaw, California Republican. It is House Resolution 9483. Both are daggers aimed at the taxpayer's pocketbook. Taxpayers may save themselves some money by voicing opposition in letters to their Senators and Representatives.

HIGH COURT RULING—Under the recent Supreme Court decision, the carriers' demand for subsidy payments must be based on the net profits and losses of all their operations. In the past, they have kept the profits from successful activities, and then billed the taxpayers for reimbursement on losing ventures. Here is how it has worked out:

Pan Am operates eight swanky hotels, country clubs, golf courses swimming pools, children's playgrounds, and luxurious bars. They attract the wealthy and sporting customers, not the ordinary flying passenger, but they run in the red.

Under the old system of computing subsidies, Pan Am could demand a big subsidy for their losses in these ventures. But Pan Am kept to itself the huge profits on actual operational activities. The Supreme Court says that this is an imposition on the taxpayers. So does Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, who figures that Pan Am and other carriers already owe Uncle Sam $50,000,000 in overcharges.

by Wilbur Morrison, Pan Am's vice-president in charge of South American operations.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr.'s anti-trust suit against Pan Am and Panagra, in which Trippe has a 49 per cent ownership, charges that the two companies monopolize air transportation between the United States and South America. Morrison will be a key figure in trial of the action.

ACTIVE PERSUADERS—The aviation lobby, which besieged Capitol Hill with highly paid ex-Cabinet members, former Republican National Committee members and former members of Congress since this fight began, has blocked a direct attempt to cut subsidy grants for the 1955 fiscal year.

Refusing to comply with the Supreme Court decision, the pro-lobby Civil Aeronautics Board asked for a 1955 budget of $140,000,000, in addition to an $11,000,000 backlog for subsidy handouts. Led by Representative John J. Rooney of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the House, the Appropriations Committee reduced this figure to $91,000,000. However, through the Senate Appropriations Committee approved the $108,000,000 total. When Senators Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia and John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts tried to reduce the total by $10,000,000, their proposal was rejected. Principal opponents were Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Appropriations Committee Chairman, Senator Ed Johnson of Colorado and McCarran.

A PYRRHIC SKIRMISH—Whereas Messrs. Rooney, Kilgore and Kennedy thought that they had won a victory by keeping the subsidy at $40,000,000 instead of $70,000,000, as CAB and its aviation favorites demand, it may be that they have won only a Pyrrhic skirmish. The Bridges majority seems to have put over another Pan Am joker.

Unless eliminated in Senate-House conferences, the Bridges bill stipulates that the $40,000,000 may finance subsidies for only seven months, or through January, 1955. Then, CAB and Pan Am may ask for a supplemental appropriation to underwrite subsidies for the remaining five months of fiscal 1955. Since subsidy payments average $6,000,000 a month, the 1955 overall figure would be just what CAB and Trippe asked for in the first instance, or about $70,000,000.

Against the aviation lobby and the members of the CAB, the taxpayer hasn't got a chance!

Somebody Told Me

Shucks, That Tower Is Safe

It wasn't my intention to write about my trip up the television tower to take the pictures that appeared in Tuesday's Reflector, but so many people have accused me of being crazy that I am forced to defend myself.

Actually, it's safer on that tower than it is in an automobile. Compare the statistics for yourself and you'll see that more people in proportion are killed in automobiles.

There is one factor that makes a trip up and down more thrilling to a newcomer than it is to the regular members of the crew. That is, the crew members will make an effort to scare a newcomer. As you ride up the tower there is a tall rope attached at the same place you are that keeps you from bumping into the tower as you ride up. The men holding the tall rope will swing you out as far as 40 feet, then back in within a few feet of the tower to make the trip more exciting. The crew members up the tower will bump the cable to make you wonder what's coming next.

And when the trip down starts Construction Foreman Bill Angle gets into the act. He lets the brake off the winch at about 300 feet up and the ground rushes up. At about six feet from the ground he applies the brake and 30 seconds later your teeth stop chattering.

Why did I go up only 780 feet instead of the full 804? On the ground I told Bill to take me to the top. But the sun was in his line of sight and he couldn't see exactly where I was. If I told him to go up further, I figured, he might wrap me around the pulley at the top. So I let well enough alone; 780 feet had to do.

Two joints of coaxial cable were on the cable when I rode up. After taking the pictures Bill let me back down to 650 feet, where three crew members were waiting for the cable. "Where do you want to get off?" they asked me.

"I'm not getting off of this cable," I told them in no uncertain terms.

"You got to We can't get that cox off the cable with you on it."

Well, if you gotta, you gotta, I figured, so I handed one of them the camera unhooked the safety belt from the cable and calmly crawled over on the tower. Yep, it was calm all right. My handprints are firmly imbedded in that steel and possibly even my footprints, too.

Booger Scates of Security Life and Trust Company said, "If the company had known you were going up they would have paid you half the value of your insurance to stay on the ground."

It's a peculiar desire that makes a man want to get that high in the air but I still insist that it's safer than riding in an automobile.

And I thank you.

HOPE AGAINST BLUE MOLD (Henderson Dispatch)

A State College plant pathologist offers hope to tobacco growers for relief in the next few years from the dreaded disease of blue mold. If he and his fellow researchers can come up with this discovery, it will take its place along with types of leaf already found that resist Granville wilt and black shank. Unless these latter benefits can be retained, says Dr. C.J. Nussbaum, there would be no net gain even with a blue mold repellent.

Every tobacco grower knows from sad experience what blue mold means to his efforts to produce a crop each season. Some years it is worse than in others. The present crop happens to be one that was not attacked in plantbeds to the extent others in the past have been. But the possibility always exists and often results in otherwise adds to the tedious process of growing flue-cured leaf.

Dr. E.E. Clayton, a scientist of the U.S.S. Department of Agriculture, has succeeded in crossing a tobacco plant with one of its wild relatives that grows in Australia. The wild plant resists blue mold and the cross retained this resistance. Dr. Hussbaum thinks relief from blue mold may be provided within two or three years—perhaps sooner, possibly a little later. Research has been in progress for several years and, while the goal is not in sight, there is bright hope that success will be achieved in the not too distant future.

Whether some chemical element will have to be introduced to achieve the objective sought was not indicated by the plant pathologist. Use of such an agent might accomplish the desired results. But would it have an ad-

'Average' School In N.C. Means $121,500 Investment

By LYNN NISBET

SCHOOLS — The "average" school house in North Carolina represents a capital investment of $121,500, has an average daily attendance of 276 pupils, with 9.3 teachers for an average teacher load of 29.65 pupils (of course, teachers and pupils cannot actually be split into fractions, but that is the way the thing works out on basis of 3,234 school houses; 892,667 average daily attendance of pupils and 30,100 teachers. These are the figures quoted in the past three issues of "North Carolina Facts," culled from official records in the Department of Public Instruction.)

The effects of geography and segregation and the extent of consolidation policies to date are noticeable in some comparisons. There are still a few two-teacher schools with very small enrollment and there are some with enrollment far above the average for the county. Halifax county, for example, has average attendance of 13,382 pupils in 74 schools, a school house average of 181, while New Hanover with 13,339 pupils as only 25 school houses with an average of 534 pupils each. Guilford with the largest number of school houses (99) has an average attendance of 361 and a teacher load slightly below 29; while Graham with fewest number of school houses (4) has average attendance of 884 and a teacher load of almost exactly 29. That can only mean that consolidation and bus transportation have eliminated a lot of little schools in the mountains, and that Mecklenburg has some schools smaller than any in Graham and some a lot bigger than the little county can boast.

Another comparison of comparable sized counties is Cleveland with 65 schools for 15,305 pupils and Pitt with 58 schools for 15,394 pupils, an average of 236 for Cleveland and 266 for Pitt.

WATER — There is no really serious shortage of water anywhere in North Carolina now, such as prevailed during two or three past summer when fields were burning up for lack of refreshing rains and many communities were desperately concerned about the low reserves in municipal ponds.

So far as your reporter has been able to learn there is no place in the state now where crops are suffering in the fields or where tooth-brushing, shaving and bath-tub water has to be rationed according to legally restricted minimum usage. Any householder who wants to make the lawn greener who wants it grow faster and require more frequent cutting is at liberty to do so anywhere in this part of the country. That does not mean the water problem has been solved, either from the immediate or the long range viewpoint. Residents of the City of Raleigh, for example, have plenty of water flowing through the city mains, thanks to the recently established reservoir on Swift Creek at Rand's Mill. The water smells bad and tastes worse on account of the influence of reservoir boundary vegetation. It is at least wet, and Raleigh City Manager Bill Carper suggests that complaints about odor

Two Steps In Selling

By ELMER ROESSNER

Neither Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense, nor Edmund F. Mansure, the General Services Administrator, have asked this department's advice about what to do with the $10 billion pile of government surplus, about which we have been writing for the last two days.

But little things like the lack of an invitation has never given us pause before. Beside, if we don't know everything about marketing, we know where to find most of the answers.

It would seem that if an organization has that much worth of goods to sell, the first step is to advertise it and the second step is to apply salesmanship.

When Mr. Wilson was head of General Motors, people were not invited to send their names in to get on mailing lists, nor were they told that if they did not bid for one of the first three cars offered, their names would be removed from the list. Yet that is just how the defense Department is selling off its surplus.

Mr. Wilson's organization sold a lot of cars—perhaps more than anybody ever sold before—but it did it by advertising in newspapers and magazines, by putting on shows and by turning loose a crew of well-informed, persuasive salesmen.

Some of the things that might be done are these:

Use advertising—trade paper, radio and TV as well as newspaper—to let all business know what the government has for sale. Don't make industry depend on Washington tip sheets or automatically expiring mailing lists to find out.

Put on exhibits of what the government has for sale all over the country. Commerce Department field offices, post offices and chambers of commerce could provide space.

Explore the possibility of making movies to dramatize bargains. If they were good enough, film houses and TV stations would run them.

Enlist some of the smartest marketing men to work on the problem, including persons of the stature of Elliott V. Bell, of McGraw-Hill; C.B. Larrabee, of Printer's Ink; Phillip Salisbury, of Sales Management, and leaders in trade associations and marketing and advertising organizations.

16,200 Visits To Famous Statue

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Capt. George Clancy has made 16,200 visits to the Statue of Liberty—and never yet been inside it.

"Too busy," he says crisply. "Never get the time."

For 6 years he has piloted a ferry boat from the Battery to Bedloe's Island, bringing literally millions of visitors to America's greatest national shrine. The round-trip is only about 3 miles, but in those years Clancy has journeyed almost twice the distance around the earth.

Today gave Clancy the proudest moment in his 46 years of living. He was at the helm of the "Miss Liberty," a new 480-ton excursion steamer, as she made her maiden trip through New York harbor. The three-deck vessel, which will carry 750 passengers, was added to its fleet by the Circle Line company because of the growing popularity of the Statue of Liberty as a tourist mecca.

Francis J. Barry, general manager of the Circle Line, said the $400,000 "Miss Liberty" is the first excursion steamer of its type designed and built in the United States in the last 25 years. "I can't see how they could improve on her," said Clancy, patting the wheel as if it were a living thing.

Clancy, a chipper little blue-eyed skipper (5-foot-5, weight 140), may be harbor-bound now, but he has quite a career to look back on. He was born in Ellchburg, Mass., and went to sea at 16.

"I've had 11 years of deep water experience," he recalled. "I've been around the world three times, and hit about every country on the globe. I've sailed under four flags—American, Norwegian, and Long-Term Prospects Bright For Clothing

The future of the clothing market is bright, says Ruth Jackendoff, economist for the Wool Bureau. Her studies of the influence of population trends on the clothing market have just been published as a booklet by the bureau. By 1960, the 15-through-25-year-old group will be 12 per cent larger than it was in 1950, and by 1970 it will be 46 per cent larger, Miss Jackendoff calculates. This is an important market since it includes so many men on their way up. The second largest increase will be among men over 65—a profitable market because they respond less to changing fashions.

MAY SALES DOWN 3 PER CENT; FURS UP 35 PER CENT IN APRIL

Retail sales in May were about 3 per cent below a year ago, according to the Department of Commerce's advance report. The total was about $14.3 billion.

Meanwhile, the Department's breakdown of April sales figures has come out. April sales were 1 per cent above a year ago. While most lines registered moderate gains, there were some setbacks. Among the declines, and their percentage drops, were: Delicatessens, 7; drinking places, 2; furniture stores, 4; lumber, building and hardware stores, 10; automotive group, 3; floorcovering stores, 10; stationery stores, 8; music stores, 10; camera and photographic supplies, 9; luggage and leather goods, 8; optical goods, 2, and office, store machine and equipment, 9.

WA-CH CLINIC BRINGS IN 500 IN THREE DAYS

A new record of sorts is being claimed by Hess Bros., Allentown department store. It promoted a three-day watch clinic, during which 500 persons paid 50 cents to have their watches checked for accuracy. Max Hess, Jr., the president, said he had never heard of more watches being checked under one roof in that length of time.

Clancy served with the Army Transport Service during the war. He also spent four years traveling with the Ringling circus as a side-show magician and animal trainer.

"I had 14 bears," he remarked, and let the matter drop, as if this country were enough to explain why he returned to the sea.

"Now I'm all settled down and married and get home at night," he said. Clancy met and wooed his wife—she's the daughter of the superintendent of the Statue of Liberty national monument—while she was commuting to and from Manhattan on his vessel.

Clancy has ferried all types of people out to the statue—"from children and senators to governors and movie stars, from Faye Emerson to United Nations officials.

"But immigrants seem to get the biggest thrill," he said. "Many saw the statue when they first came to this country years ago, and they have a desire to see that it looks like real close. Sometimes they cry. It stirs up old memories."

Capt. Clancy says his nine daily trips never get monotonous, and he doesn't feel rut-bound. "You're too busy," he said. "This is the busiest harbor in the world, and you're crossing all the big liners going in and out. You don't have time to think of anything else."

No impish Irish impulse to bypass the Statue of Liberty and chug his boatload of sightseers on down to Florida ever tempts the stout stern mind of Clancy. Or if it does, he won't admit it.

"Anyway," he said firmly, "I've already seen Florida."

RUTH EVELYN TOPPING
 Eleven Greenville teenagers — Pat Baker, Joe Stell, Martha Smith, Sue Tucker, Norma Basnight, Mary Will Long, Betty Sugg, Frances Smith, Nancy Brown, Nelson Blount, and Lloyd Bray — enjoyed a week at Louisburg College, site of the Methodist youth conference. They left on the 14th and returned the 19th of June.

"Finding God's Will for your Life" was the theme for the conference. Rev. Robert W. Bradshaw, former pastor at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, was the principal speaker. Rev. G. Robert Mackenzie, who is to be the associate pastor at Jarvis this fall, was camp director.

The two girls left last Wednesday for a wonderful experience at a girls' camp in the mountains. Let's do something!

Tuesday morning 78 teenagers met at the Memorial Baptist Church for a prayer meeting. After singing choruses, the young people heard the music of Garland Coffield and O.D. Hall, members of the Eddie Martin evangelistic team.

Many told how much the meetings at the tent had meant to them. Rev. Malloy Owen, adviser of the Y.C. led the discussion on ways that the youth of Greenville and Pitt County could bring others to Christ after the team has left Greenville.

Betty Tours Western U.S.A.
 Betty Gayle Raynor left with her family the first week in June to tour western United States. They plan to return home around the first of August.

Jane was a delegate to the camp on the Christian Church Conference grounds near New Bern the first week of the conference. Nancy and Alice Lee spent the second week (June 13-19) there.

"Each day we had morning watch, three classes, recreation, and vesper," explained Nancy. "The highlight of the whole conference was the candlelight consecration and communion service Friday night."

Doris Spends Summer at Morehead

 Maybe he didn't have a banjo on his knee, but three weeks ago Curtis Patterson was bound for Alabama.

First stop on the Pattersons' trip was Davidson College where Curtis plans to study this fall. They stayed in the Davidson guest house there.

Curtis, with his parents, drove his grandmother, who had been visiting them here, to her home in Decatur, Georgia. They also stopped in Atlanta.

From Georgia the Pattersons traveled to Alabama where they visited relatives for about two weeks. They returned home last Friday.

GHS Attends Music Clinic

Keeping Vigil On Gypsy Matriarch

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON JR.
 DALLAS (AP)—A gypsy matriarch lay in the hospital, and out on the lawn her dark-skinned tribe camped waiting and praying.

Sometimes the clansmen laughed aloud as their children darted squealing among the trees. Mostly they talked softly, in English to a rapid flow of Gypsy dialect when a stranger came near.

They kept watch over Mrs. Rosie Evans, 75, of Fort Worth, injured in a car wreck.

"She is our elder, the leader of our tribe," said Joe Evans, a Fort Worth coppersmith. "That is why we wait."

Evans is a slim, middle-aged man whose brown mustache almost matches his skin, is the oldest of the gypsy leader's seven sons. If she should die he would become the tribal head.

"No, of course I won't be the 'King of the Gypsies,'" he said. "That's foolishness. There are many gypsy tribes, and there is no 'King' or 'Queen.' That's just something people like to say about gypsies."

"But she is our mother—and she is a Queen to us."

Mrs. Evans suffered from shock, a broken ankle and foot and an injured hip and deep cuts across her knee and her forehead. She was hurt in a wreck near here Sunday night.

The tribe began gathering the next day.

There were about 30 gypsies keeping watch at Methodist Hospital—only part of Mrs. Evans' tribe. Besides the seven sons, she has four daughters, 30 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren, plus nieces and nephews.

"Sure, we're gypsies," Evans said. "My mother is a Cherokee Indian and my father was a Serbian, born in Chicago. My great grandfather came from the old country."

"But we've put a stop to that 'roaming gypsies' stuff. We have good homes and regular jobs. We live like anybody else."

"I'll tell you something though—there'll always be gypsies, always."

"And I'll tell you why," he said, glancing down and smiling.

"We're proud of being gypsies. That's why."

Kidnap Mystery Of 1912 Solved

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON JR.
 SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—A kidnap mystery dating back 42 years apparently was solved today by a telephone call from the victim now living in West Virginia.

Robert Thompson was only three years old when his father took him from the home of his mother here in 1912 a short time after his parents were divorced, and custody of their son given to the mother.

He was the object of a nationwide search at the time, but no trace of the child or his father ever was found.

The mystery was broken last night when Springfield police received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as Robert Wilson Pitman, 45, of Japonica Land, Woodrum Park, Charleston, W. Va.

"Pitman" told police that his father whom he had known as "Wilson Ambrose Pitman" died recently, and that he learned of his true name and past history from newspaper clippings and other papers he found in his father's effects.

The West Virginia man reported that his father assumed the name of Pitman right after the abduction and that until his father died, he thought that was his real name.

He telephoned police to ask them if his mother, Mrs. Rose Ethel Mason Thompson still was living.

Police located an aunt, Mrs. Ruth Rayson, who said that the kidnaped boy's mother, now Mrs. Rose Tracy, of Jericho Center, Vt., is in a hospital at Burlington, Vt., following an eye operation.

Police said the West Virginia man said he will come here and go to Burlington to see the mother he never knew.

He is married and the father of two children, police said.

Braves Win 13-9 In Coastal Loop

The Greenville Braves won last night's Coastal Little League game by a score of 13-9 over the Ficklen Giants.

The victory boosted the Braves into second place in the team standings with a 3-1 record for the year. The Tobacco Board of Trade Dodgers are still in first with a perfect 4-0 record. The Person-Garrett Tigers and the Giants are tied for third place with 1-4 records.

Catcher Harris, with three hits in four trips to the plate, led the Braves at bat. He was the only member of his team to get more than one hit.

The Giants pounded out 11 hits to outpace the Braves, but they were unable to make their base knocks count as much as the Braves did. Wilkes, with three for four, led the attack with Station, Newton, and Nichols adding two hits apiece.

Elks Entertain Little Leaguers

Greenville Elks Lodge No. 1645 was host at a fried chicken supper last night at its new home, near Pitt Memorial Hospital, for members of the Elks Little League baseball team and the co-managers.

Exalted Ruler Roger M. Collins pointed out that the Little League Elks team had won nine games in a row, to cap the honor of winning the first half of the season, and that this was an outstanding achievement in this league. He thanked Co-Managers Tom Rowlette and Arnold Averette for their good work in rounding the players into condition as a winner. The head of the Elks Lodge praised the 15 players for their good sportsmanship.

A welcoming committee of Elks greeted the co-managers and players and turned over the entire new Elks Home to the players for feasting and entertainment. Members of the Elks Little League team are: Billy Moyer, Denny Hardee, Billy Jenkins, J. G. Proctor Jr., Joe Moyer, Bobby Arthur, Bobby Briley, Ray Corbitt, Merrill Bynum, Linwood Whitehead, John Behr, Bill Green, Rick Suave, Harry Forbes and Joe Waldrop. Waldrop was sick and could not attend.

The Elks exalted ruler said sponsoring the Little League baseball team was one of several projects the Elks Lodge sponsors among young people of the community. In his short talk, Collins said Chairman Heber B. Tripp is making arrangements to send 12 worthy teen age boys to the North Carolina Elks Association's Summer Camp for Boys near Hendersonville this summer.

English Youth Meeting Trabert

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) London schoolboy Bobby Wilson meets Cincinnati stylist Tony Trabert today in a third round Wimbledon match that carries within itself much of Britain's future tennis hopes.

This is Wimbledon's classic David and Goliath match for 1954. It sends a fresh-faced boy who wants to run a drug store against an American who has the domination of the amateur tennis world almost within his grasp.

For all of his nonchalance, Trabert — current holder of the United States and French titles and top seed here — is hungry for the All-England championship.

"I feel good," said Wilson, "I am going to give the match everything I have."

Nobody but his most enthusiastic followers thinks the 19-year old English youth can eliminate Trabert. But every tennis fan in Britain hopes he will make a good showing.

Young Wilson took his high school examinations Monday and then rushed across London to get here in time for the first round. He's slightly built, has a kicking serve a change of pace and is a good retriever.

Yesterday, Wilson eliminated the top Brazilian player, Armando Vieira, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3. Aside from Wilson, this has been a bleak Wimbledon for the British.

Trabert yesterday defeated South Africa's Owen Williams 7-5, 6-2, 7-5. The American Davis Cup ace played well but netted about a half-dozen shots in each set and hit an even larger number just outside the corners.

In three days Wimbledon has yet to produce an upset. Most of the outclassed players have been eliminated and from now on every match figure to be a battle.

Art Larsen, San Leandro, Calif., southpaw, goes against Philippe Washer of Belgium this afternoon. Defending champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia should have too much power for M. A. Otway of New Zealand.

Top American women players were expected to sail right through the opposition today. Second seeded Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla. meets Miss J. F. Burke of New Zealand and defending champion Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif. opposes Edda Buding of Argentina in the top matches.

Democrats Win Capital Series

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats boasted the first no-hitter in Capitol Hill's "World Series" history today — but even so they were barely pressed to maintain their unbroken victory string over a fighting Republican nine.

The annual congressional baseball game went into its fifth and final inning last night with the GOP stalwarts out in front, 1-0, two out and nobody on base. Then came a Democratic deluge:

Rep. Harlan Hagen of California walked and stole second. Rep. Selminski of New Jersey tied up the game with a double. Rep. Eugene McCarthy of Wisconsin fouled off one pitch, took a ball, then walloped the third offering into the left field recesses of Griffith Stadium for a triple.

Final score: 2-1, in favor of the Democrats who have yet to lose since the charity series started seven years ago.

Rep. Don (Fireball) Wheeler of Georgia was the hurling pride of the Democrats with a no-hit stint. The only run off him was unearned.

For the Republicans it was Rep. Glenn Davis of Wisconsin on the mound — and pitching steady 3-hit ball until the roof fell in on him in the fifth frame.

At left is Britain's Chris Chataway, who finished second to Landy. Chataway also ran second to Roger Bannister when the fortnight-mile mark was broken the first time. The Lions continued to pull away in the North State League play while the second and third place teams continue to knock each other off.

The league-leading Lions, under the management of assistants Dave Dickerson and Bobby Winn, roared to their fourth straight win of the second half yesterday afternoon by whipping an aroused Kiwanis ball club 8-6. The Jaycees also won yesterday, taking over second place in the league, by the score of 3-0 over the V.F.W.

First Game

In the opening game of the double-header the Kiwanis surprised the Lions with a close ball game all the way. For a while it looked as if the Lions might lose to the spirited Kiwanians.

The Kiwanis knocked Tadpole Cates off the mound with a four-run outburst in the third inning and Aubrey Harrison took over. Harrison gave up two more runs in the three innings he pitched.

James Earl Henderson went all the way for the Kiwanis, giving up only six hits. Henderson's chief trouble was wildness in the crucial points of the game. Henderson walked seven during the game.

Mack Mackenzie was the leading hitter for the Lions with a single and a double in four trips to the plate. Donald Speight had two for three to pace his Kiwanis mates.

Second Game

In the second game of the twin-bill, little Budy Murray pitched his second consecutive shutout as he led his Jaycee mates into second place with a 3-0 win over the V.F.W.

Murray pitched the full six innings and gave up only two hits. The shutout gave Murray 13 consecutive scoreless innings pitched to his credit.

Burton Jenkins started on the mound for the V.F.W. and pitched an excellent ball game with two of three runs off him unearned. Jenkins gave up only two hits in the full six innings. The Jaycees scored twice in the fourth when two walks put runners on base with two outs. Stocks then drove a ground ball that the first baseman erred, and both runs came pouring across. The other Jaycee run came in the fifth on a wild pitch by Jenkins.

This afternoon there will be one game starting at 5 o'clock between the Elks and the Exchange. The boxes:

---AND A GOOD TIP FOR YOU

WHEN it comes to sales, every car maker aspires to be up at the top of his price class. Which is only natural. Popularity like that means success.

We know, because for years Buick has held such an envied position—the unquestioned sales leader in its class. And with good reasons in styling, room, power, value.

But today, folks like you have pushed Buick success even beyond such bounds.

Today, the top sales standings of a full generation have been changed. Today, latest sales figures for the first four months of 1954 reveal this phenomenal fact: In total national volume, regardless of price class, Buick is outselling all cars in America except two of the so-called "low-price threes."

That's a tip too good to pass up. That's the tip-off that Buick must have the hottest styling of the times and the sweetest performance of the year.

More important, that's the tip-off that Buick prices are well within the reach of more and more people—and that such prices buy a lot more automobile per dollar.

So why not look into the tomorrow-styled Buick that puts you so far ahead today?

Come in, or phone us this week for a demonstration. Then you can judge for yourself that Buick really is the beautiful buy—by far.

Earth And Mars Today An Arms-Length Apart

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Someday, perhaps not in this century man will explore space. Someday, when he cuts through the heavens like a celestial arrow, he will seek the red planet, Mars.

No planet in the sky has excited the imagination as much as Mars because of one tantalizing question: Does it contain life?

Today Mars comes closer to earth than it has in 13 years. Today the two planets are only 40 million miles apart—a mere arm's length in the infinite distances of the universe. As Joseph M. Chamberlain, general manager and chief astronomer of the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium explains it: the earth, traveling in a smaller orbit than that of Mars, has caught up with the other planet in their race around the sun.

Look, then, for Mars burning redly in the southern skies from early evening until sunrise. Observatories and backyard astronomers everywhere will train their telescopes on the red planet to-night and in the summer nights immediately following, seeking answers to "strange mysteries."

We definitely know several things about Mars. It's about half the size of earth, with an equatorial diameter of 4,200 miles. Its day lasts 24 hours and 37 minutes and its year 687 days with the seasons almost twice as long as ours. The surface gravity is only four tenths that of earth; thus a man who weighs 150 pounds here would weigh only 60 pounds out there. It's very cold on Mars with the average surface temperature about minus 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

Man's increasingly close scrutiny of Mars has come about, as Chamberlain says because "of all our neighbor worlds, Mars most closely satisfies standards of climate and topography which might allow for a few familiar life forms."

It has absorbed astronomers since Galileo. But interest in it has greatly increased since 1877 when an Italian astronomer named Giovanni Schiaparelli sighted thin lines on the planet's surface. He called them "canals" meaning channels. Almost immediately the public thought it meant "canals" and interpreted them as artificial and therefore the work of intelligent life. Thus began the popular idea that there was life on Mars.

Many scientists see no reason to believe the canal are the work of intelligent beings however. Rather, they say, the canal are the result of natural causes—fissures or volcanic cracks or glacial tracks. Other astronomers never have been able to see the canal and doubt their existence. As Mars draws near earth, scientists will seek many missing parts in the jigsaw puzzle. They will study its weather conditions. They will try with radiometers to determine the amount of light and heat radiation from the planet. Spectrographs, which thus far have failed to detect any water vapor in the planet's atmosphere, will be employed again.

Yet even this intensive study of the Martian world is but a preliminary rehearsal to September about 35 million miles from earth. Then mankind may hear the answers to the mysterious questions:

What lies under the surface of Mars? If there is not life as we now understand it, is it there in some earlier phase of evolution? Or is it possible that Mars contains the vestiges of a vanished civilization?

Lost Colony Will Begin Its 14th Season Saturday

By AYCOCK BROWN
MANTEO, N.C.—State Treasurer Edwin Gill, representing North Carolina's Governor William B. Umstead, will deliver a short curtain talk here Saturday night when Paul Green's symphonic drama

The Lost Colony, longest-lived of all our stage plays, launches its 14th season at Waterside Theatre, Fort Raleigh. The premiere this season will be the 63rd performance since the first in 1937. The show has been presented each year since then excepting 1942-45 when, during the War, it was suspended as a security measure to help perfect the coastal blackout system.

General Manager R.E. Jordan announced today that Melvin E. Daniels, of Manteo, one of The Lost Colony founders and vice-chairman of Roanoke Island Historical Association, sponsor of the show, will introduce Gill. While both Daniels and Gill are brilliant speakers, their remarks during the opening ceremonies beginning at 8 o'clock will last only a few minutes and the show will begin promptly at 8:15.

New Faces In Cast
While there will be new faces in the cast this year, most of the actors having such roles have been understudies for some in previous years. Ann Gilliam Martin of Cherokee, N.C., is playing Eleanor Dare, the female lead of the production. She had been understudy for this role several years ago while a member of The Lost Colony Company.

Returning for his tenth season in the leading role of John Borden is Robert Armstrong, a native of Alabama, who this year will play his 500th performance in this role. Armstrong, who studied drama and playwriting at the University of North Carolina, played a principal role in the Broadway production of "End As a Man" during the past winter, and also appeared in several seasons. Frederick Johnson, production and in between times, he worked on play scripts.

Mary Wood Long of Chapel Hill is cast in the dynamic characterization of Elizabeth, Queen of England this season. She was understudy for the part during the past several seasons. Frederick Johnson who has understudied Sir Walter Raleigh, is playing that colorful character role this year.

Fred Young, with The Lost Colony company for past four years is playing Old Tom Harris, the tragic-comic, philosophical role of a tavern bum who makes good in the New World, on 16th Century Roanoke Island.

John Lehman, Lost Colony choreographer who as Uppowoc the sensational dancing medicine man has added many new faces in the dance routines this year.

Easy Money Feeds Upturn Of Business

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Easy money is on the way today to nourish the hoped-for upturn in business.

Easy money is being offered to keep new homes going up, to encourage industry to produce goods for the fall and winter markets, to help move the crops to market. Easy money will also ease the pains of the U. S. Treasury, which will need about five billion dollars of extra funds by the first part of August—and altogether must borrow around 10 billion dollars by the end of the year. The Treasury wants the money to be available for borrowing—and it would appreciate interest rates being kept low.

The Federal Reserve Board is offering the easy money through its lowering of the reserve requirements for its 6,700 members banks throughout the country. Together they hold about 90 per cent of all the bank deposits in the nation.

Henceforth they won't have to keep quite so much of these deposits in reserve, and will have a little more to lend to business and agriculture.

At the moment most of these banks have plenty of money to lend. Their trouble has been mostly the other way—too few good risks eager to borrow from them. Many of the banks have been actively looking for ways to put idle money to work and have been competing for borrowers—always with the emphasis on the soundness of the risk, in this period of business uncertainty.

But the federal reserve is looking ahead to the August demands of the Treasury and to the fall demands of business and agriculture.

It wants to make sure that if there is a business upturn this fall it won't be cramped by tight money.

Federal reserve officials insist their move toward easier money and credit doesn't spring from nervousness over the outlook for business this fall—they just want to be sure that business will find it easy to expand if an upturn is a-borning.

For the banks themselves the first pressure will probably be on their interest rates. These rates are tied to the "prime rate" which they set for lending money to corporations with the highest credit rating. In March they lowered this prime rate to 3 per cent from 3 1/2 per cent.

But now businessmen can shop around and borrow more cheaply than that. Nonbank lenders are making short-term loans to companies with the highest credit ratings at anywhere from 1 1/2 to 2 per cent.

The U. S. Treasury just a year ago was paying around 2 per cent for 91-day borrowing. But now it is borrowing this short-term money at 0.635 per cent.

Debunks Critics Of Popular Book

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—An Oregon state senator and free lance writer debunks the saying that a book "can't be good if it's popular." Richard L. Neuberger spoke during the three-day Northwest History Conference in Helena. He described people who make life difficult for writers of "popular" histories, classifying them as "the fiends for accuracy cult, the native son cult and the purists."

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—John Holmes 31, placed this classified ad in the Hartford Courant:

Old world charm includes sagging floors, tortuous stairway and draughty fireplaces. Located in Higganum (ugh!), Conn. Dandy opportunity to toughen up wife and kiddies for future. If you think this ad is funny, wait until you see this farm. Telephone if a hollow laugh answers, don't hang up—that will be the owner."

Holmes, a salesman who has been living on the 100-year-old farm for three years, said he had several calls last night from people who want to look the farm over.

Candidate Wants No McCarthy Aid

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—Gov. Edwin Mechem, GOP candidate for U.S. senator, says if he has "anything to say about it" Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) won't campaign in New Mexico.

Mechem's declaration followed a Lincoln Day dinner statement yesterday from Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall that it will be up to each candidate to ask for McCarthy's help. Mechem opposes Sen. Anderson (D-NM).

Leave Fishhook Imbedded In Eye

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The fishhook lodged next to Roman Trzcinski's right eyeball will be left undisturbed for a while to see if nature will help in getting it out. The 12-year old boy's physician decided yesterday that the hook was too deeply imbedded in soft and delicate tissue in the eye socket next to the eyeball to be removed by a giant electromagnet at St. Luke's hospital.

The hook caught in Roman's eye Sunday when a fishing plug, cast by a friend, struck him in the face. Doctors said the hook will be watched to see if it works out where it can be more easily removed. Physicians said Roman is in no present danger of losing the sight of the eye. Studies of fermentation by Pasteur are regarded by scientists as among the most important on the subject.

For A Little While, Frenchmen Feared Another 'Indochina War'

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

TUNIS — A 5-year-old boy was murdered in cold blood, and suddenly Frenchmen wondered if they were going to have another Indochina on their hands.

The boy was the son of a Tunisian farmer who had been a member of a new "army of liberation" but had quit. The child was slain out of vengeance and as a warning to others.

In May this "army of liberation" known simply as the Fella-gahs and once considered only bandits, started a hit-and-run warfare against the French with naked terror as a weapon. The terror is still going on.

I have seen Indochina and I have seen nationalist movements in action in many parts of the world. In North Africa there are all the elements for a future bloody hit-and-run war.

The French say the Fella-gahs number only about 800 but admit they are now organized. Tunisians say the Fella-gahs number many more, an organized force which can march miles on almost no food under harsh conditions in a type of guerrilla warfare. To match that the French would need equally hardy native troops. Raising such a force is difficult—fear of reprisals against families is fresh in the minds of all Tunisians.

Fella-gah reinforcements are believed to train in a school near Tripoli, in Libya. This report came from many sources both French and Tunisian. They agree that the Fella-gahs are being trained with modern weapons, although they use leftover guns of World War II. The Fella-gahs are often ununiformed and often wear insignia of rank.

Some belief is expressed that North African soldiers captured in Indochina by the Communists have received "Political re-education" and sent to Tunisia to train and possibly even lead Fella-gahs. French sources say bodies of North African veterans have turned up among the Fella-gah dead in Tunisian skirmishes.

Other sources believe ex-Nazis from Egypt are active. Both Tunisian and French sources agree that the Fella-gah army is paid regular army pay and is trained by non-Arabs. Arms, say both French and Tunisians, come from Libya.

Until recently the Fella-gahs attacked in small groups of 20 slink-ing away into the night. Now the attacks are growing in strength. A pitched battle with a force of about 100 was reported recently.

The Fella-gahs live off the land, forcing themselves on colonists who are obliged to shelter them or suffer death — as some have.

Many of the things the Fella-gahs do are not characteristic of Moslems—wanting killing for political vengeance and the suicide of men facing capture, for instance. But the French say inspiration has been given the Fella-gahs from Moslem Cairo and the Arab League, whose stated ambition is to extend Islam's influence from Pacific to Atlantic. Radio Cairo has kept up insistent propaganda against the French in North Africa. It hailed French defeats in Indochina as victories for "liberation forces."

The French also suspect that there may be help from Communists, but they still cannot lay their hands on conclusive evidence. Fella-gah terror erupted suddenly in May after a six-month period without a single major incident in Tunisia. The French at once poured troops into the area. They stationed Foreign Legionnaires at big farms to protect farmers and deny supplies to the Fella-gahs.

To add fuel to a dangerous fire, French farmers of Southern and Western Tunisia are talking about organizing vigilantes to fight the Fella-gahs.

Meanwhile, nationalists are becoming more and more impatient with French promises and French unwillingness to accord anything more than token autonomy. The French are caught between two fires.

French colonists are angry at the attempts of Pierre Voizard, the resident general, to pacify Tunisians with "reforms." Many Tunisians are bitter too. They say the reforms are no reforms at all. The assembly of 42 elected Tunisians and 42 elected Frenchmen has no real power. There is a Council of Ministers, eight Tunisians and four French but the French retain over-all control.

Only about 10,000 Tunisians among a population of 3½ million have any conception of what the West is talking about when it speaks of democracy. Moderate Tunisians have wanted French help in a gradual transition to independence.

Not long ago, many nationalists would have been shocked at the idea of complete French withdrawal. But as tempers rise, there are fewer moderates. Many Tunisians now want full independence at once, rejecting any idea of co-sovereignty with France. Propaganda is pouring in on them from several directions capitalizing on the rising feeling.

Quicker Than A Wink, Flash Of A-Bomb Blinds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The light from an atomic explosion can cause fluid in the eyes to turn to steam and explode, four doctors from the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Field, Tex. reported today.

Rays from a bomb of the Hiroshima type can injure eyes 40 miles away, they told the American Medical Assn.

The physicians, Dr. Victor A. Byrnes, Dr. David V. L. Brown, Dr. Heinrich W. Rose and Dr. Paul A. Gibis, tested the effects of atomic light at the atomic tests on the Nevada desert. They used rabbits for subjects.

In exceptionally clear air and at night, when the eye is adapted to night vision, the light injured rabbit eyes as far as 49½ miles away.

Atomic light is the same as direct sunlight, but the first flash is 100 times brighter than solar radiation. Injuries to human eyes have occurred from direct exposure to sunlight. They are called eclipse burns. People who look at the solar eclipse June 30 should make sure to use heavily smoked glass.

The atomic light is so intense the doctors said, that it momentarily heats the fluid in the retina to steam. The steam pressure breaks the tissues suddenly in a little localized explosion. Some of the heat also is conducted to nearby tissues and additional damage is done. This happens only when the energy levels of the explosion are very high.

If you should happen to be looking in the direction of an atomic explosion when it happens, it won't do you any good to blink, the doctors said. The damage is done in a thousandth of a second. It takes a tenth of a second to blink.

Quiet Wedding For Film Stars Possible

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It will be a quiet wedding for Arlene Dahl and Fernando Lamas. That's what they claim.

I saw the two lovebirds in the commissary at 20th Century-Fox, where she was finishing up "A Woman's World." The redhead was ravishing in a low-cut dress, and the Latin lover looked dashing with his graying locks. After a brief separation, they decided they couldn't live without each other and announced plans to wed.

When will it be?
"We aren't saying," replied Miss Dahl. "It's our secret."

"Everybody expects us to have a big wedding," he said, "because I'm such a publicity hound. That's what they say. It doesn't occur to them that I have never had my own press agent. So how could I be a publicity hound?"

"When we get married, it's going to be done very quietly. I think Bob Taylor and Ursula Thiess did it very wisely."

It seems to me that Lamas and the Dahl are talking sense. If they really yearn for a quiet wedding, it can be done with little fuss. All they have to do is go somewhere out of town and retain some element of secrecy. That is, don't call every columnist before they leave.

This reminds me of Lana Turner's third wedding—or was it the fourth? She complained bitterly in her memoirs that the press made a mockery of the affair, turning it into a carnival. They recall the dozen strolling fiddlers who played Lana's favorite tunes and the sumptuous spread, which included a glazed ham on which "I love you" was spelled in pimientos. It would have been very simple for Lana and her husband—I think it was Bob Topping—to have had a quiet wedding. All they had to do was leave town.

It was the same with Marilyn Monroe and Joe DiMaggio. If they really wanted privacy, they could have wed in some hamlet, not in the heart of San Francisco.

All of which brings us to this issue: do movie stars really want to be alone?

Or, as it has been observed, why do actors strive most of their lives for recognition, then wear dark glasses so they won't be recognized?

Or, if they don't want to be stared at by the public, why do they drive red convertibles?

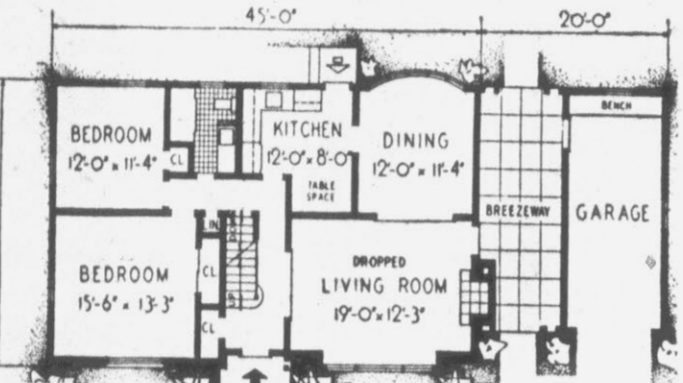

I think it is safe to say that those stars who really cherish their privacy can achieve it. The others may complain about the glare of public scrutiny, but you'd hear them squawk if it were turned off.

Prison Building For 'Meditation'

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) Col. Wyndham Manning, state prison superintendent, has coined a name for a $200,000 maximum security building planned at the penitentiary here.

He has named it a "meditation building" because, he says, "That's about all a prisoner will be able to do" while confined there.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures

THE ADD-A-ROOM campaign for enlarging homes centers attention on the advantages of planning a house for expansion. Here is a plan for a house that can grow with a family. It is easily constructed in stages. The main part of the house can be built with expansion attic. The breezeway and garage can be added when desired. The extra bedrooms and second bathroom upstairs can be finished when needed. If in the future more house is required, the breezeway and garage are readily convertible into rooms. This is Plan B-2442 by Alwin Cassens Jr., architect, 145 So. Franklin Ave., Valley Stream, N.Y. Building estimates can be based on the main part of the house covering 1,170 square feet.

(Further information and blueprints available from architect.)

ELIMINATE hand trimming of lawns along walls and flower beds by laying a row of bricks flush with the soil. This will provide a wheel track for your lawn mower and bring the blade to the edge of the grass. Better Homes and Gardens suggests laying the bricks on sand or a mortar base for permanence.

"Why not? You do like to time."

SEVEN DROWNED

CARLINGTON, Northern Ire-

CHAPTER SIXTEEN
CYNTHIA had been just about to look up when she heard someone come in. She went through the utility room, past the treatment booths, to the small waiting room.
For no one was there except herself, to see who had come in. She hoped it was not another distracted parent, wanting to talk about his or her sick child. Or some child who might have had a bad fall or an accident. For she was ready to look up and go home.

Her final conversation with Walt had left her with practically all the heart taken out of her.
"It's that man again," Norman said. He was standing there wearing his wide, contagious grin. And that same look was in his eyes the minute he saw her.

"Hello," Cynthia said. It was not much of a greeting. But she was taken by surprise. So much so that her heart, which she had just thought she had lost, started tumbling furiously.

"Hello, yourself. You look even lovelier than I remembered." He came forward and took both her hands in his. "Gee, I missed you.
Did you miss me at all?"
"Well, yes. I guess I did." She had to say that in order to please him. His merry expression could change to such a weebegone one, if only in fooling. Yet just because he liked to tease, and be gay, some of that anger began to subside. She did not feel quite so miserable. And come to think of it, she had missed him—in a way.

"Then it was worth my going,"
he said. And then, more soberly, looking around the clinic, with interest. "It really was. Everything's all set."
"All set?" He still liked to talk in riddles. She wondered why he had come straight here. She should send him for coming to the clinic.
But since Walt had left, what difference did it make?

"For the benefit program over TV," Norman explained. "The p was terribly excited about it. She got a lot of other people, singers and dancers and comedians excited too."

"But that's marvelous!" She forgot that she no longer cared about the clinic. Wouldn't Walt be thrilled? His dream was to come true, as she had told him it would.

Only it was thanks to Norman.
She must remember that.
"Let's take a look-see," Norman suggested. "Show me the joint. I want to see where you hang out.
And I want to get some idea of what is needed."

"I'll be glad to." She had forgotten that she had been so anxious to look up. Norman had a right to see the clinic. Although, she told him, there really was not much to see.

"This is Dr. Sellers' office, where he interviews and examines the patients. And these are the treatment rooms—that machine over in the corner is deep di-athermy, and here, in this other corner, is our Hubbard tank. We even have an X-ray machine, although it's not too modern a model.
And here is the plaster room—"
"Is one other, plaster room all that's actually needed?" Norman asked. He had been attentive, keenly interested.

"It's the most important," Cynthia said. "Of course someday I hope the clinic will have its own pool, a good-sized one, where underwater treatments can be given.
It would be so much more effective than just a Hubbard tank."
"Then you ought to have one."
"Oh, but a pool would be terribly expensive. I mean an inside one, well-heated, with d r e s s i n g rooms and all the other necessary equipment. And it would take more help than we have now. We would need an attendant or so and

"Then you ought to have them,"
Norman said again.
He not only said it as though he meant it; he said it as though it were as good as accomplished. He had called Walt a miracle man, but you would think all Norman had to do was wave a wand.

"I'm afraid that's too big a dream," Cynthia said. Even Walt had not dared dream that one up yet.

"No dream is ever too big," Norman said, with that look in his eyes. They were standing in the utility room, where all the supplies were kept; dust had crept, almost unnoticed into the building. It was lavender and gray—soft and keeping, like a garment to keep out light and cold and unhappiness.

Without knowing how it came about, Cynthia found herself in his arms. She found his mouth, demanding yet gentle against hers.
His arms held her so closely that she could not have told whether it was his heart or hers that now pounded so madly.

It was quite a long, long moment before she came back to her senses, gave herself a mental shake, and drew away from the shelter of those encircling arms.

"That was an unfair advantage."
Her voice seemed tremulous. She could not be trembling! An embrace, a kiss from Norman, could not do all this to her.

"All is fair in love—remember?"
"But you said if I were willing to be friends, you would—well, not try to sweep me off my feet."
"You can't blame me for playing all the chances I get, can you?"
"That's the only way to win."
"But you promised not to rush me." She never had felt quite this feeling of being carried away—lifted up on a magic carpet, to float in the clouds. It was only because, she told herself severely, she had felt, so let-down thanks to Walt, then so keyed-up, thanks to all that Norman thought could be done for the clinic. It was like riding a roller-coaster.

"I won't. Not any faster than possible." He grinned down on her.
"Remember, I've been away; I've missed you every waking hour bath and alcohol rub, and we had chatted for a while. She always wanted to hear all about Alan. She was as excited as a girl over our romance and the fact that he'll be home so soon now. She said she wished she could be strong enough to come to our wedding."

"She must have been a dear," Cynthia agreed. Yet she had had a long and useful life. She had been well beloved by many, even outsiders, like Nora. And Cynthia really felt that Nora had been on that one case too long.

Win Or Lose, A Lesson In Revolt

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Guatemalan officials and the anti-Communist invaders have been fighting their war with their mouths, both sides making claims, neither acknowledging losses, and censorship blacking out the facts.

I has to be assumed those who engineered the attack did some planning, both as to timing and the size of the force necessary to win. The next few days will show whether the planning was shrewd or stupid.

So far the invaders have been disappointed if they were depending upon wholesale desertions to their side from the Guatemalan army. And there is no indication the peasants flocked to join them either.

If this invasion fails, the Communists not only will strengthen their grip on Guatemala but the United States will suffer a severe setback in its desire to see all Latin America free of communism.

The war itself, but not its significance, is on a peanut scale. The invaders are reported to have perhaps 5,000 men—they may have more—backed by planes. Guatemala has an army of 6,000, backed by police.

The defending force may turn out to be larger than that if the 2,000 tons of arms, recently imported by Guatemala from Czechoslovakia have been used to arm the peasants and they fight for the government.

There's a lesson for the United States in the outcome if the troops remain loyal to the present government, the peasants rally behind their Communist union leaders and the invasion is repulsed.

For 14 years Guatemala had been under the dictatorship of Gen. Jorge Ubico, who had the support of the country's big landowners while the majority of the country's three million people lived in poverty.

In 1944 students and army officers, bent on social reform, overthrew Ubico. Two of the revolutionary leaders were Juan Arevalo and Jacobo Arbenz. Arevalo became president.

He accepted the help of Guatemala's Communists. His regime did put in social reforms, such as social security. Four years ago Arbenz was elected president. He had a land-reform program to break up the big estates and distribute them among the peasants.

While the Communists were helping Arevalo and Arbenz, they were also strengthening their grip on the country. For instance, they got control of the labor unions. They didn't try to take over altogether. That could wait.

The land reforms appealed to the peasants, but were backed by the big landowners and the United Fruit Co. which had large holdings in Guatemala.

But opposition to Arbenz, who had the Communists sitting at his elbow, developed among the rich conservative Guatemalans and army officers who feared their country would wind up in time completely under the Communists.

Many of them went into exile, including Col. Carlos Castillo Armas, who is now leading the "liberation army" operating from a base in neighboring Honduras.

The United States has a big, obvious stake in not wanting a Communist government in Guatemala. It would do more than just give the Russians a foothold on the American continent.

It would serve as a starting point to try to communize the rest of Latin America. And, in case of war with Russia the Communists would have airfields in Guatemala, 800 miles from the Panama Canal.

The problem which the United States has faced in Guatemala is wanting to win the allegiance of its people is the same it faces in most Latin American countries and among impoverished people everywhere.

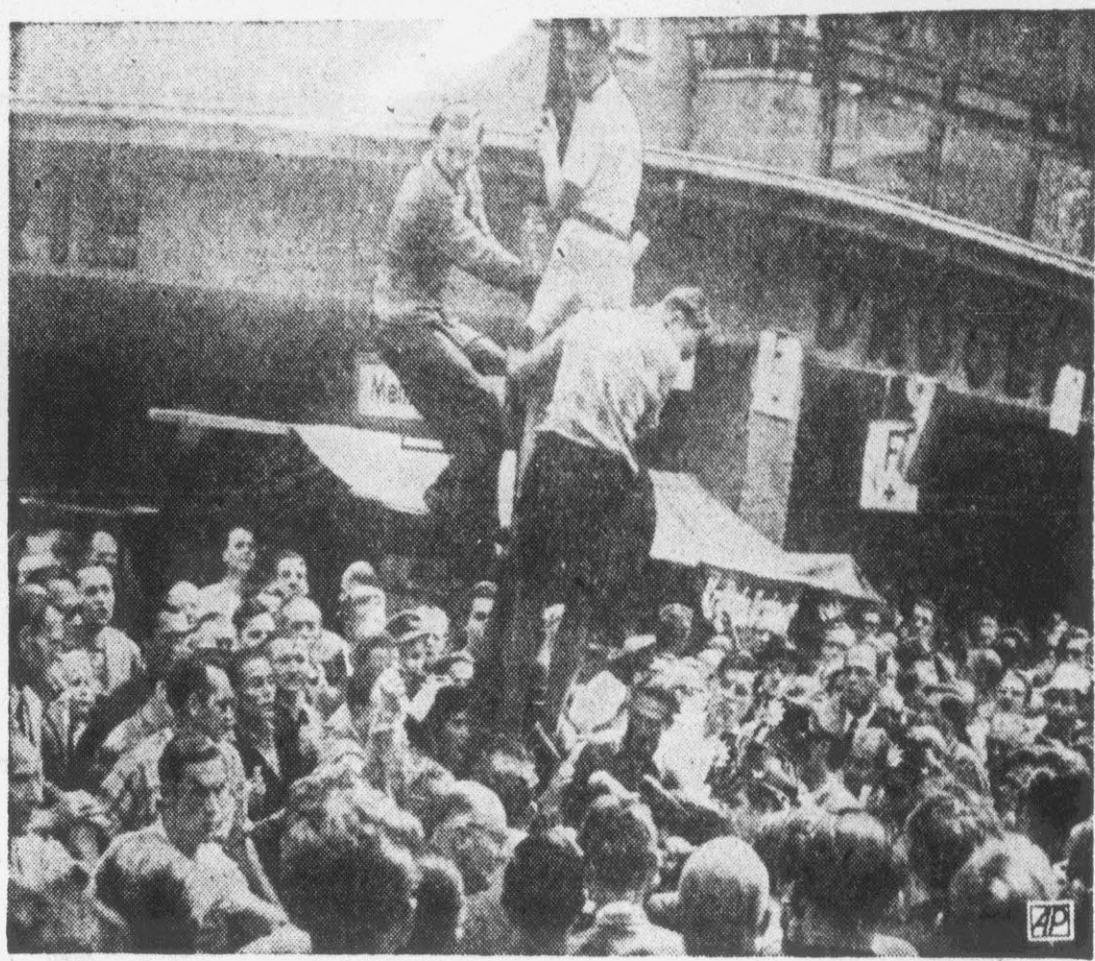

Where there are poverty and hunger, the Communists have willing ears for their propaganda and their promises to give the poor a better share in society in the form of land more food, and better health and living conditions.

Among people with nothing, promises are better than nothing, no matter how phony those promises turn out to be.

Unless the United States can offer a program, or induces the regimes it supports to offer a program, in which the poor can see benefit for themselves, it faces the prospects of the Communists making progress in all the impoverished areas of the world.

ONE WAY TO ESCAPE A MELEE—These West Berlin youths lost no time getting up the lamp post when they were caught in swirl of fight between West Berliners and Communist hecklers. It also afforded them a good view of the melee as helmeted police moved in to rescue the hecklers from the angry crowd. Routine Fighting Day In Indochina Is Hot, Hard

By FORREST EDWARDS

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—It started when 200 Vietminh guerrillas ambushed a French patrol. It ended with one village in flames and another raked from end to end by tons of bombs and artillery shells.

It between was a wild chase across reeking rice paddies under a blazing sun, clinging to the muddy side of a bucking tank that dived into irrigation ditches, chewed its way through paddy dams and stopped every hundred yards to hurl a half-dozen shells at Vietminh fleeing on foot or hiding in thickets.

"A pretty ordinary day in the jungle," as the way the English-speaking French sergeant, Michel Letrier, put it.

"You mean the heat or the fighting?"

"Both," he answered. The first 12 miles out of Hanoi on the French supply line to Haiphong seaport had been dull and slow.

Then a dust whirlwind spun around a bend in the road and grew into a French soldier furiously pedaling a bicycle and shouting: "The Viet. Ambush!"

The Vietminh had struck hurriedly and sloppily—less than half a dozen of the patrol had been wounded and more killed—and then split. Half fled through the fields on one side of the road, half on the other side.

Two American-supplied M24 tanks rumbled up from a position a mile down the road, swung their turrets and began pumping shells into clumps of trees a half mile from the road. Four others soon joined them. One shell cut a power line. It writhed and spat jagged electrical flashes in a rice paddy.

The lead tank, the Dunkerque II swerved off the road. Seconds later it was covered with mud as it clawed through a rice paddy.

There was not an inch of dry footing anywhere on the tank. And hanging on was a two-handed job. The rice paddy had been freshly fertilized. The stink was sickening.

Peasants in the paddy fled when the shooting began—all except one old couple. The old man dug into his clothes, brought out what looked like a pass and waved it as the tank rumbled past. The old woman looked at the ruined dikes that would have to be repaired and buried her head in her arms.

The tanks fanned out in a line a half mile wide. Every hundred yards or so, the squadron leader, Lt. Joseph Muraccioli, would order them to stop and he would search the area with his glasses. When he spotted the fleeing Vietminh, the turret guns would belch smoke and flame. Geyser-like eruptions would show where the shells landed in the mud.

Muraccioli and Sgt. Charles Desbrie fired rifles into suspicious-looking huts and tree clumps as the tanks kept up the chase.

The lieutenant began swinging his squadron to the right in an attempt to intercept rebels fleeing toward the Vietminh-infested village of Nhan Hoa Thuong, two miles away.

Just as it looked as if the tanks might get between the Vietminh and the village in time, they hit a seemingly bottomless paddy. The tanks settled lower and lower. Its treads churned but only dug the tank deeper into the mire.

Muraccioli grabbed the radio and relayed firing instructions to French artillery units. The first salvo bracketed the Vietminh village. Others raked it from side to side for an hour. Fighter-bombers speared over it, dropping 500-pound bombs.

"No use any more," the lieutenant said. "By now the Viet are all underground in the village. But maybe we killed some with our tank guns before they got there. See, the infantry is moving up to look for dead and wounded."

Using trails broken by the tanks, units of Vietminh and North African troops, commanded by French officers, were moving toward the tanks. They passed an pressed forward in thin, straggly lines. Then came the long job of getting the mired tank free.

Miles behind the Dunkerque, on the other side of the road from the ambush site smoke and flame rose from another small village. An artillery shell or bomb had touched off one straw-thatched hut and fire was leaping from hut to hut.

Later a French briefing officer reported: "Moderate losses to a Vietminh force that ambushed a patrol on the Hanoi-Haiphong road. Losses to the patrol were very light. There were no other losses in the action."

Chemical Used Against Boll Weevil Affects Peanut Flavor And Odor

J.S. Sugg, executive secretary of the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association today urged farmers not to use Benzene Hexachloride for treatment of boll weevil on fields adjacent to peanut fields or on land where peanuts will be planted within the next four years.

Sugg said that according to research by the State Experiment Station, off-flavor and odor of the chemical is carried into the peanut for as long as three years after the chemical is placed in the soil.

"Buyers detecting the flavor or odor of this chemical in the peanut reject them due to the fact that such peanuts cannot be used in the edible trade," Sugg indicated.

The secretary pointed out that toxaphene, aldrin, and certain other chemicals are equally as effective in controlling boll weevils and do not have the harmful effect on peanuts or other crops.

Sugg urged farmers to discuss the use of Benzene Hexachloride and follow the recommendations of their county agents for the control of boll weevil.

North Korean Doctors Displayed Fantastic Medical Treatments

By RENNIE TAYLOR
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The North Koreans had some fantastic medical treatments for their prisoners of war, a U. S. Army doctor reported today.

Greenville WARS ON ROACHES!

No more messy hand-sprayers, tell-tale powders! With new BLACK FLAG PUSH-BUTTON BOMB, just press button... and filthy roaches, ants, silverfish, spiders die quick and sure! Shoots a killing mist over infested areas. Loathsome, crawling bugs die on contact. Killing power lasts for weeks. BLACK FLAG goes 2 to 3 times farther, costs only 98¢! Double Your Money Back Guarantee.

Prisoners complaining of vitamin deficiencies were given bile from the gall bladders of butchered pigs. Maj. Alexander M. Boyesen, of the Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., told the American Medical Assn.

This treatment did a good job of keeping men away from sick call. For the treatment of pain a Chinese doctor used a series of short needles attached to spring vibrators. The needles were put into the skin around the painful area and made to vibrate.

"As you might suspect," Maj. Boyesen said, "some cases of back pain and headache were cured by this treatment." Another Chinese doctor decided all complaints of eye trouble were caused by glaucoma, a condition in which the fluid pressure in the eyeball increases. The Chinese medic treated all eye patients with salt water injections under the eyelid, the medical officer reported.

Maj. Boyesen who is from Bemidji, Minn., spoke of the experiences of himself and four other medical officers who had been captured. The others were Maj. Clarence L. Anderson of Long Beach, Calif., now at Letterman Hospital San Francisco; Maj. Sidney Esensten, now in private practice in Minneapolis; Capt. Gene M. Lam of Glenrock, Wyo., now at Brooke Medical Center, and Capt. William R. Shadish of Kew Gardens, N.Y., now at Walter Reed Army Center, Washington, D. C.

In the spring of 1953 food became so scarce that prisoners ate boiled weeds, Boyesen reported. Frequently the only medicines available were cough tablets for pneumonia and charcoal tablets for dysentery. Incisions for drainage of abscesses were made without anaesthesia and sometimes with improvised instruments, such as the metal arch support from a combat boot.

Virtually all deaths in the Communist war prison camps were caused directly or indirectly by starvation, exposure and harassment, Boyesen said. The average Chinese doctor would treat only the chief complaint of a prisoner, said the officer.

A patient suffering from both night blindness and diarrhea had to choose one of the two for treatment. In another report Dr. Louis H. Bauer of New York said a plan should be worked out so that all physicians would serve in the armed forces for a definite period shortly after graduation.

Dr. Bauer said the AMA reluctantly supported the present doctor draft law and that it is becoming unpopular. An alternative, he said, would be a wide education of the profession as to the need for military service.

Will Be Tried On Sedition Charge

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Col. Ahmed Shawky, former officer commanding the Egyptian Infantry Corps, will appear before the Revolution Court Saturday on charges of conspiring to foment sedition in the Egyptian Army and to arouse discontent among the military against the present regime.

The prosecutor's office issued an indictment against Shawky yesterday 24 hours after a special military court had announced sentences up to 15 years against 16 army officers accused of attempting a coup d'etat.

Will Punish Five Who Opposed EDC

PARIS (AP)—The Directing Committee of the French Socialist Party early today decided to punish five leaders who voted against the proposed six-nation European Army.

The committee denied the five the right to represent the party in parliamentary committees until the next general elections in 1956. Committee members of the French Assembly are designated by political parties and the five Socialists will probably be required to resign from the Foreign Affairs Committee where they recently voted against approval of the European Army Treaty. The balloting was a technical preliminary test.

Upholstery Leather Kit Makes Fancy Inlays Easy

LEATHER TRIANGLES in a new decorating kit come in three colors to form a mosaic type design. Adhesive is applied to the work surface in four-inch squares as shown here. After this has dried about five minutes the leather is pressed into place with edges and corners firmly glued.

AN OLD CARD TABLE is rejuvenated with a smart inlaid leather top. The colors used for this project were white, saddle and black. Cabinet door panels, valances and lamp shades are among other places for this decoration.

Good news for the do-it-yourself devotees is that kits and directions are getting simpler all the time. These days a real amateur will not be dumfounded when he attempts to piece together the jigsaw puzzle that comes under the heading of a project "that any smart handyman can cope with." Actually that seldom has been the case.

Tasks that are pictured as very simple for neophytes turn out to be difficult even for experienced home craftsmen, in many instances. Sometimes the manufacturer even suggests that the housewife can perform miracles with a "simple set of instructions." Sometimes she can. More often she can't. And even her husband has difficulty interpreting the directions.

One new kit, typical of those that are within the scope of tyros, contains leather and equipment for covering table tops, valances, headboards, lamps and other decorative objects.

The kit available in three sizes includes leather squares and triangles, that are pre-cut to form four by four inch squares. There is a specially prepared adhesive, especially for use on leather. Color schemes are available in two sets—black, saddle and white or a combination of emerald, turquoise and green.

Best In American Chess Defeated By Russian Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Russia's vaunted chess team, as expected, has conquered the best players America could muster.

The Russians clinched their victory last night in the fourth and final round of a 32-game tournament that stretched over eight days.

The score stood at 18½ to 9½ for the visitors playing here for the first time. Four more games will be completed today, but they can't change the result.

Samuel Reshevsky, America's only player of grand master rank, broke even against Vassily Smyslov, heavy weight of the Soviet squad. They drew all four of their games.

And 23-year-old Larry Evans, youngest U. S. player, came out ahead of Mark Taimanov. Evans won two of his games, lost one and drew one, to outscore Taimanov 2½ to 1½.

A win scores a point, a draw a half point. Each player played the same men four times.

Evans won last night with a strong attack on the King's side. "It was the best game I have played so far," he said happily. Prolonged applause greeted the announcement that Taimanov had resigned in defeat.

The No. 2 Russian, David Bronstein, swept all four of his games against Arnold Denker and alternate Arthur Dake. The Soviet's third-ranking man, Paul Keres, won three and seemed on his way to a fourth against Max Pavey when time ran out and it was adjourned to this afternoon.

In other results last night Russian Tigran Petrosyan defeated Arthur Bisguier and American Robert Byrne drew his game with Alexander Kotov.

Byrne's younger brother, Donald, still was struggling against Yuri Auerbach, champion of Russia, when the five-hour session ended. Byrne won two of his previous games and lost one.

The matches, played at the Hotel Roosevelt, drew large crowds.

Discarded Eggs Hatched Chicks

STANDISH, Maine (AP)—A batch of eggs discarded at the town dump hatched out 41 chicks after baking in hot sunshine, caretaker Bert Chaplin reported.

Chaplin said last night the chicks appear to be flourishing despite their unceremonious entry into the world.

chests may be decorated with these pieces of leather in an attractive design that may make the piece useful again. Doors may be removed from chests, decorated with leather and replaced when the job is complete. Bridge table tops may be rejuvenated with an interesting pattern. Some home decorators will enjoy a leather design on a window valance.

The kit is easy to use. The adhesive is applied, leather is pressed carefully into place so that edges and corners are firmly glued. Excess adhesive may be wiped off the leather with a damp cloth.

Kits have been made available by upholstery leather group members in three sizes—three, six and nine square feet.

Foreign Aid Bill Seen Sailing Into Heavy Weather

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some Republican congressmen today foresaw heavy sailing ahead for President Eisenhower's 3 1/2 billion dollar foreign aid program despite its approval virtually intact by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The committee scissored only seven million dollars from administration requests in approving yesterday a $3,470,608,000 ceiling for global assistance during the year beginning July 1.

Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio), a ranking member, termed the committee action a "vote of confidence in the President." He added this is the first time in his 16 years' congressional service that a committee has avoided heavy slashes in foreign aid.

The measure now goes to the House floor, probably Monday, and Vorys predicted that several members, including some committee members, would try to cut it. The Senate has not yet acted.

Appropriations will be voted later to carry out the authorized program. Rep. Ford (R-Mich.), a member of the Appropriations Committee, predicted that group would make "some cuts" when it starts considering the actual money bill in July.

The President, in a special message to Congress yesterday, called the program "essential" and said that, in the face of world tension, any cuts in it "would be unjustified and unsafe."

A few hours later the House Foreign Policy Committee announced that it had approved untouched these major items:

- 1. Global military assistance totaling $1,778,300,000.
- 2. Military - supporting aid to Southeast Asia and the Western Pacific, $45 million dollars. This includes authority to use anywhere in Southeast Asia $90 million earmarked for Indochina.
- 3. Global defense support, backing up the military buildup, $223,280,000.
- 4. Development assistance and point four aid to underdeveloped areas, 224 million, including 85 million for India.
- 5. Korean rehabilitation $241,300,000, including the American share of United Nations programs.

Report Truman Showing Progress

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Harry S. Truman continued to show progress in recovering from an emergency operation but his doctor declined to estimate how much longer the 70-year-old former President will remain in the hospital.

Dr. Wallace Graham said last night that normally a post-operative patient would be in the hospital 10 days. Truman's gall bladder and appendix were removed last Sunday.

Graham said his patient "just couldn't be doing any better."

Diseased Tobacco Plants Inspected

J. C. Wells, State College Extension Pathologist, is shown above (center) as he holds a tobacco plant infested with severe root knot. The specimen was brought in at a tobacco disease clinic held at the county office building yesterday morning. A total of 13 specimens were brought to the clinic 60 per cent of which were infested with black shank. Other diseases which the specialist saw were mosaic, sun scald, sore shin, potato deficiency, chlorine injury, and physiological breakdown. The 45 farmers attending the clinic were given an opportunity to observe nematodes and black shank fungus under a microscope. (Reflector Photo by Alvin Taylor)

Avoiding Any Stand On Guatemalan War

Most Latin-American governments have discreetly avoided taking any official stand on the Guatemalan war which exploded on their doorsteps last week. But many political leaders, newspapers and leftist student groups throughout the southern lands are busily fanning resentment against the United States.

Government leaders have generally adopted a wait-and-see attitude, apparently desiring to offend neither the United States nor the embattled regime of Leftist President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman.

But many individual legislators make no bones of their belief that the United States is backing the rebel forces which seek to overthrow Arbenz' Communist-backed government.

There have been demonstrations against the United States in many of its southern neighbors since the war broke out, but most of them have been sparked by student groups which are traditionally Leftist.

The general trend of official sentiment was reflected in Argentina, where President Juan D. Peron's majority bloc in Congress proposed that American Parliaments work together to bring peace and "economic independence" to Guatemala.

The proposal indicated Argentina plans to steer an officially neutral course. But the anti-Peron Radical party, which controls only 14 seats in the 158-member House, tendered its sympathies to the Arbenz government.

The governments of Chile and Uruguay refrained from taking a stand, even though their Parliaments had voted through resolutions espousing the Arbenz cause.

The vote in Chile's Chamber of Deputies was 34-15, with the rest of 147 members abstaining. Foreign Minister Roberto Aldunate later told newsmen his government would not indulge in "lyric statements," but would express its views in international organizations "which know the problem."

Uruguayan government leaders also were close-mouthed although their Colorado party fought hard in Parliament to defeat a resolution condemning "aggression in Guatemala." Despite this opposition, the resolution was adopted by two votes.

The government of Cuba—whose President Fulgencio Batista himself came to power on the tide of revolt—declined to make any comment. But earlier this week Ernesto de la Fe, a member of Ba-Excelsior has come out strongly against the Arbenz government, although Mexicans generally have sympathized with the Guatemalan president.

In Chile, Santiago's Conservative newspaper El Mercurio also has roundly criticized Arbenz.

McCarthy Given Heavy Support In Chicago Poll

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Tribune's poll on the McCarthy-Army hearings ended last night with 70,036 persons casting ballots and 91.2 per cent voting in favor of the Wisconsin senator.

The poll, by mail and telephone, was held for six days and followed the 36 days of hearings in the McCarthy-Army controversy.

Those voting in the poll were asked to vote yes or no on two questions:

1. Do you believe Secretary Stevens and Army Counselor Adams and their advisers proved their charges that Sen. McCarthy and his staff exerted improper pressure to secure favored treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine, former committee aide?
2. Do you believe Sen. McCarthy and his staff proved their charges that Stevens, Adams, and their advisers sought to end the inquiry into communism in the Army by threats to circulate an unfounded report about undue favors sought for Schine.

The Tribune reported today that of the mail ballots, 51,824 voted for McCarthy; 4,816 for Pentagon (Army); and 602 were undecided. In voting by telephone, 12,026 were listed for McCarthy; 716 for the Pentagon and 53 were undecided.

The total vote was 63,850 for McCarthy; 5,531 for the Pentagon and 655 undecided.

The Tribune said ballots were counted as "undecided" when the voter marked to show that he believed both sides had proved their charges.

Evangelist Reviews Work Of The Devil

To listen to the lies of the devil and falling to repent of sin is to wind up in hell with the devil, Evangelist Eddie Martin declared Wednesday night in his sermon on "His Majesty, The Devil."

The tent cathedral, scene of the Pitt County United Revival Crusade, held a congregation of 2,500 people for the sermon which was eloquent in its appeal for a comparison of the devil's device and Christ's assurance of salvation.

The devil asks one to stand in pride, while Christ invites one to his knees in humility; the devil says man is good, while God's Word declares man is sinful without Christ; the devil says one has plenty of time to get right with God, while God affirms that "today is the day of salvation, now is the accepted time," the preacher told his congregation.

The devil admits that sinners need salvation, but he is a procrastinator and urges one to "put off the day of salvation," the devil in mid-May was down 9,000 from mid-April.

C.H. Pritchard, Labor Department statistician reported that mid-May non agricultural employment totaled 975,600. This compared with 984,600 in April and 1,002,600 in May of 1953.

promises a good time, but he never tells of ruined lives, of broken homes, of terrible death-bed experiences, of wasted opportunities. Martin went on to say:

One never enjoys true peace of mind and joy in living until one becomes a follower of Christ, declared the evangelist in denouncing the lie that a person can not have a good time and be a Christian, for "God has made provision for man to live a Christian life, and God can do, He will do, and man should let God do for his soul what has been promised in His Word."

Martin said people are magnifying the hypocrites in the church who make a profession of Christian living, but by their worldliness are far from a vital Christian faith and experience, as he reminded his hearers that such a device of the devil will rob one of his fullest opportunity to live for Christ.

Too, the devil has people looking for some kind of feeling as an assurance of their Christian experience, Martin said, but he quickly noted that "men are not saved by feeling, but by faith in the Word of God and the blood of Jesus Christ, the Saviour of the World."

"Through saving faith we are made conscious of sins forgiven, of the joy unspeakable, the peace which passeth understanding, and the assurance of our salvation, for God always keeps his promise," Martin concluded.

On Thursday evening, Martin's subject will be "Sowing and Reaping," on Friday evening his sermon subject will be "My Life Story," and the concluding sermon subject on Sunday evening will be "Heaven." The Saturday night subject has not yet been announced.

Large delegations from Bethel, Grimesland, and other Pitt county communities were noted in the congregation Wednesday night.

The evangelistic party will conclude the three-week campaign here Sunday evening and will go to Tuscaloosa, Alabama, for its next revival crusade.
