Women In The Church

Women in the Church
By MARY FOWLER

The Woman's Division of Christian Service, Methodist Board of Missions, has recommended to Congress legislation, concerning food surpluses held by the U. S. government, embodying these principles: 1) use of surpluses to relieve those who lack purchasing power to buy necessary quantities of food in surplus ("We urge emphasis be placed on methods of accomplishing this which do not call attention to the individual recipient; food for welfare camps as well as school lunch programs, for example, achieve results without invasion of personal privacy"); 2) make surpluses available, for famine and disaster anywhere in the world; 3) make surpluses available free to technical assistance programs for use in pilot projects in nutrition and health; and 4) the establishment of international food reserves.

"No nation on earth desires war," says Miss Georgia Harkness, noted theological professor of Berkeley, Calif. "If we can keep our hysteria down and our confidence up; if channels of negotiation, even where negotiation is fraught with great difficulty, can be kept open; if we can be led to give both our sympathy and our goods in larger measure to the relief of hunger and homelessness, and the sending of assistance to lift the living standards of underprivileged people of the earth; if we insist resolutely enough upon action to halt the armaments race, there need not be a third World War. None of these conditions is beyond possibility."

"To Rekindle the Gift," a color film on the work of Methodist women around the world, was photographed at mission stations in the Philippines, Japan, and Louisiana, and is now being shown in churches by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the denomination. Among the actual persons featured in the film are Miss Nellie Dyer, a missionary to Korea who was imprisoned by the communists; Miss Dorothy Edwards, a young missionary to the Philippines who conducts a mobile medical clinic in North Luzon; and Miss Alice Cheney, an educational missionary at Aoyama Gakuin, Methodist school which trains young Japanese from primary grades through college. McDonnell Methodist Center and Dulac School in the remote bayous of Louisiana are pictured in the home missions sequence of the three-reel film.

Mrs. Culbreth is the former Miss Josie Ray Sessoms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Givron Sessoms of Lumberton Route 5, and Mr. Culbreth is the son of Mrs. W. J. of Greenville, sister of the groom. They wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendant in pastel-pink organdy, and their head-dresses were of pastel-pink. They carried nosegays of bleibled blue summer flowers.

Owners Just Quit

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you see a well-dressed man walking down the street with his jaw down to where his second vest button would be if this were vest time, he may be a magazine man. Of course, he might be someone practicing to be a prophesying economist, he might be a rejected suitor, or he might be someone who sunk a pre-season wad on the Orioles. But he could be a magazine man.

The mass-circulation magazine publishing business has been going through the most curious sort of economic wringer in the last few weeks. About 20—we've lost actual count—big magazines have been folded up.

In practically every case, the magazine had a large circulation and was profitable.

Its advertising was large and expanding.

And it was making money on the verge thereof.

Yet the owners choose to fold them. It may be assumed that before they punctured them, they tried to sell them and couldn't.

A puzzlement, eh?

The explanations have been as confusing as they have been varied. But this much seems clear: Magazine production costs are higher than they have ever been; wages, paper and other requisites show no signs of leveling off, while income is threatening to.

If you have a magazine that's breaking even now, the chances are six, two and even, that it won't be in the money in 1957.

There are contributing reasons: There are so many consumer magazines being published, and newsstand areas are so small, that even the best ones get only a winking space. The growth of television threatens to cut into magazine revenue two ways: once because ad budgets are being tilted from magazines toward TV and once because former magazine readers keep staring at someone they refer to as "Jackie Gleason."

In some cases, there are special pressures. Some film magazines have been shuttered not because of TV today but because of the potentials of TV tomorrow. And some men's magazines have been shelved—and more may be—because the publishers don't know what Time Inc.'s new sports magazine, coming out more than four times as often, will do to circulation and advertising.

But don't get the idea that magazines generally have the itch. Aggregate circulation and aggregate revenue appears to be at an all-time high. But there appears to be a shaking out process right now, separating the girls from the old ladies.

And what ever happened to Godey's Ladies' Book?

TRADE MAGS GROW: ONE SPONSORING SHOW

Another side of the magazine picture: Trade magazines appear to be doing exceptionally well; in fact, there's a gas going around the publishing field that some consumer magazines would be better off if they became trade publications.

Three new trade publications are being launched into the automation field, as was recently reported here. And one of them is getting off with such a head of steam that its publisher is sponsoring the nation's first automation show in New York next November. The publisher, John Diebold, says 80 companies will put on exhibits.

Oh No! Not In Here!

Two Conferences Of Importance

Meetings held on opposite sides of the world over the past week-end could go a long way toward shaping the future of the world.

In Washington, President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill discussed policies of the United States and Great Britain in international affairs, aimed at stopping the creeping tide of communism.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Nehru and communist China's Premier Chou En-lai conferred on Asiatic problems.

Objectives in both the conferences are obvious.

In Washington, President Eisenhower and Churchill are seeking to mend any rift which may have developed in the U. S. Britain opposition to communism. They are seeking to iron out differences in order that the two leaders of the free world bloc may present a solid front to other nations in the Western camp.

The Red Chinese premier, in his talks with Nehru, obviously would like to swing the free Indian government from its stated position of neutrality closer to the side of the Chinese Communists. In the recent months of East-West tension in Asia, India apparently has been drawn closer to the side of its powerful Red Chinese neighbor. Chou En-lai would like to strengthen the bond of friendship between the two most powerful Asiatic nations during his visit.

Asiatic affairs appear to be the primary subject for discussion in each of the conferences, focusing the world's attention on the growing importance of Asia in the balance of power and community of nations.

Results of the two conferences will not be known in concrete terms for a long time, but agreements reached between Churchill and Eisenhower; and agreements, if any, reached between Nehru and Chou En-lai will be important in shaping international affairs in years to come.

Going To Bat For Its Mail Service

The little community of Seven Springs has evidenced its determination to keep its Sunday mail service. It is going to be interesting to see how the Postmaster General will handle the case.

The postmaster of Seven Springs was recently notified on that the Sunday mail service to Seven Springs was being discontinued as a part of the economy drive in the Post Office Department. The volume of mail, he was informed, did not justify the $136.21 the Post Office Department spends annually to have mail delivered from La Grange to Seven Springs on Sundays.

keep the Sunday service if possible, sent the postmaster general a check for $136.21

Seven Springs citizens, determined to to cover the cost of the Sunday mail service. In spite of the fact the check was returned to the citizens, it is our guess Seven Springs will continue to receive its Sunday mail service. The citizens have shown their willingness to go to bat for their Sunday mail service.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HEAVEN RIGHT NOW

The Chinese use the word "heaven" much more than we do. In fact the Chinese speak of a day as "a heaven." A day is a heaven, two days are two heavens.

There is a great deal of wisdom in this ancient concept. Every day is an opportunity God has given us. Every day is our day of grace. Every day ought to be a "heaven" for us, and would be were it not for the fact that we are often selfish, avaricious, lustful, ill-tempered, and dishonest. Some of these vices in some form or other either at times into the lives of every one of us. They are like the serpent which glided into the Garden of Eden and destroyed its heavenly peace. All was love and obedience in the Garden of Eden until sin entered. It was a heaven on earth in which God walked with man in the Garden in the cool of the evening. Then came sin, and the heaven became a hell.

Here is something to keep in mind as we face each day. Each day is supposed to be a heaven. Each day is an opportunity given to us by God. Each day is a period in which we can commune with God and serve our fellows.

A day? Ah yes, says the Chinese, a day is a heaven. Here is a bit of ancient wisdom upon which we may well reflect.

Revolt Over Patronage Tie-Up

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Republican members of Congress and the district clubhouses have finally revolted in earnest against the Administration's long delay in supplanting Democratic officeholders with men and women of the true Party—namely, the GOP.

Through Attorney General Herbert G. Brownell, who doubts as a political adviser at the White House, they have served notice that they are fed up with the patronage log-jam. They presented their problem to him because they have found Sherman Adams, Presidential chief of staff, strangely indifferent to their demands. He listens politely, but does nothing.

CONFERENCE, A BLIND—The recent conferences between Congressional delegations and Brownell were supposed to involve the filling of 30 new Federal judgeships created by Congress, as well as prospective vacancies. But this announcement was simply a blind, for GOP members have no complaint on this score.

President Eisenhower has been choosing good Republicans for these posts, as well as for District Attorneyships. He seeks to restore a balance in the judicial branch of the Government, which had become about 90 per cent Democratic during the 20-year Roosevelt-Truman era.

The members really laid down the law to the AG on the retention of so many Democrats in $5,000 to $12,000 jobs at Washington and throughout the country. Although they figure that there are about 200,000 non-Civil Service positions, all of which are open to their faithful friends, qualified or unqualified, they charge that only about 2,000 have changed hands since Ike took office 17 months ago.

WANT IKE TO ACT ON PATRONAGE—They pointed out to Brownell that 1954 will be a difficult year, with a good possibility that the Democrats may capture both Senate and House. Organization morale, they said, is shot because 1953 promises of jobs have not been kept. They also warned that Ike would have a better chance of getting his legislative program enacted, if he loosened up on patronage before the current session ends.

Include Safety In Plans For Holiday

Most people hereabout already making plans for their July 4th holiday week-end.

For many families, the annual mid-summer holiday is going to mean a trip to the beaches, to the mountains, or to visit relatives many miles away.

In planning for this holiday, families should not forget to include the important factor of safety in their plans.

A record number of automobiles are expected to be on the highways this week-end. Unless more than usual precautions are taken by the drivers of these automobiles, the number of highway accidents will shoot up sharply to spoil the holiday plans of many a family.

Highway safety officials and the Highway Patrol of North Carolina already are reminding the people of the state to drive carefully during their holiday jaunts. The reminders will continue through the week-end; but the safety factor, in the final analysis, will remain in the hands of the motorists.

Highway Patrol records for Troop A, of which Pitt County is a part, show that highway accidents in the area covered by this troop are 44 per cent below the accident total for the same period last year. It is to be hoped that the highway record for the coming holiday week-end will show an accident reduction equal to the year's average so far.

When planning your holiday travel, plan a little extra time for safety. It may make the difference between a happy holiday for your family, or a tragic one.

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—While most of the economists and business counselors last December forecast a depression for 1954, I constantly insisted that 1954 would be a "fair business year." This you will find in my Forecast which then appeared in this paper.

GENERAL BUSINESS

(1) Despite my general optimism with regard to prospects for business during the last half-year, there will be many cross-currents. The improvement over the first six months will be no one-way street. Some industries will lag, or fall behind. Others are slated for betterment. Building has held up well, and was the backbone of business in the first half of 1954. The momentum generated should carry through the balance of the year.

(2) Also deserving of attention is in line for continued high activity, or for improvement, are the following industries: Electric power output, aircraft production, rubber manufacturing, household equipment, electrical equipment, petroleum, natural gas, shoes, and autos and auto parts. In particular, auto output will not match the first half, with competition keener in the last half than at any time since the 1930's.

SALES AND INVENTORIES

(3) Due to slip further down, or slated to show the least improvement, are the following industries: Machinery, machine tools, railroad equipment, metal fabricating, steel and iron, and autos and auto parts. In particular, auto output will not match the first half, with competition keener in the last half than at any time since the 1930's.

(4) As in the case of general business discussed above, sales prospect will rule selective. With purchasing power holding well, demand for food products and soft goods will remain at a brisk pace. The public, however, have learned something about watching their pennies. They have become more price-conscious. For this reason, I predict that the mass distribution, such as the grocery and variety chains, will run ahead of the others saleswise, during the last half-year.

(5) Retail sales in general, although about 4 per cent lower dollarwise, have held up during the first half in terms of physical volume as discounts and other concessions reduced the actual receipts. This is encouraging since it shows that consumers are still willing to spend if the price is reasonable. In terms of units, retail sales will hold up through 1954. Inventories will constantly be reduced during 1954. The retailers who do best in 1954 will be those with the best parking facilities for their customers.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK

(6) I forecast that the more liberal attitude on the part of the Eisenhower Administration will surely continue through November and perhaps until the 1956 elections. During the past six months rumors have been spreading to the effect that President Eisenhower will not run again; but there is no agreement at this writing by either party as to who the next candidates will be.

(7) The President has won his conflict with Senator Bricker; the House approved his Tax Bill; the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill has been passed, to the relief of all; and he has so far kept out of the McCarthy-Armey row. I forecast that for the balance of the year he will leave domestic affairs to his associates and devote most of his time to helping Mr. Dulles ward off trouble with Russia and China, and avoid another "Korea."

(8) During the first six months of the year a "New Look" has developed in connection with defense expenditures. Appropriations for foot soldiers and certain classes of airplanes have been cut in favor of items for atomic warfare and guided missiles. Best authorities agree that we will get more protection and fighting strength from this change with less cost. As a promise "to get our boys out of Korea" was a great factor in electing Dwight Eisenhower as President, he naturally will hesitate to send U.S. foot soldiers into Indo-China, at least before the coming November elections.

WAR AND PEACE

(9) There will be no World War in 1954 started by Russia or the U.S.A. In the last half of 1954, however, the United States will move closer and closer to the position occupied by Great Britain during the 19th Century. The United States will prepare to engage in small wars anywhere in order to prevent outbreak of a world conflagration.

(10) I predict that the United States in the last six months of 1954 may pass the United Nations act to try to form a "defensive" league of nations interested in Southeast Asia. The purpose: To keep the rice, tin, and rubber of that area from falling into Communist hands. Most of the arms and military know-how needed by such an alliance of anti-Communist nations in the Far East will be furnished by Uncle Sam. This means that cuts in arms expenditures, already scheduled for the last half of 1954 by the Administration, may not be put into effect. The Korean situation will remain about as is—"much talkie, no shootie"; but Indo-China will constantly become a greater threat.

(11) Do not forget Europe and the Middle East. France is torn by internal dissension and a blow-off could come there anytime. West Germany is growing more impatient with French bickering over the Saar and over the formation of a Western European army including German participation. Russia will strive mightily to widen the split between France and Western Germany by holding out the "bait" of reunion between East and West Germany.

(12) Friction between the Jews and the Arabs in the Middle East is being encouraged by Communist agents. The smoldering fires there could break into flame at any time, requiring a hurry-up call for Uncle Sam's fire department.

STOCK MARKET OUTLOOK

(13) Of course, some day the market (especially the Dow-Jones Industrials) will get on a bad wallow with very much lower prices. In the other hand, this may not come during the next few months. Up to this time the high yields of stocks have not appealed so much to investors, owing to the personal tax on both dividends and on income in general. Although stock yields compared with those of twenty years ago are higher if personal taxes are not considered, yet when these personal taxes are deducted, today's yields have not been attractive.

(14) The new Tax Bill and the increased buying for pension funds and investment trusts have, however, increased the demand for common stocks and could hold the market up for some months to come. I forecast that it will be very important to make careful selections of stocks. Don't buy stocks just because they have gone up heavily in price and appear cheap.

(15) Unfortunately, many small concerns will find it more and more difficult to compete with their big competitors. Not only can these big corporations make goods cheaper and have better means of distribution, but they can spend a huge sum on advertising, which a smaller concern cannot do. This will be especially evident during the next six months. The companies which will prosper most are those which have inaugurated effective labor-saving machinery, spend more money on research and on well-directed advertising.

(16) Automobiles will continue to be hard to sell and easier to buy during the last half of 1954

Both the automobile stocks and the cars will be in less demand. There will be more bargains in used cars, discounts on new cars, especially cars of the "independent" manufacturers.

(17) Canada will continue to boom during the second half of 1954, but this may be a good time to take profits on Canadian investments.

MONEY INFLATION, AND INTEREST RATES

(18) When Mr. Eisenhower assumed the Presidency with his Cabinet of "9 millionaires," they proclaimed a new monetary policy which would increase the value of the dollar and raise interest rates. Either fortunately or unfortunately, the economic situation caused a reversal of this policy. The value of the dollar shows no increase over January 1st and this has been hailed by Wall Street as a sign of further inflation. Wall Street has boomed certain common stocks accordingly. Interest rates during the second six months of 1954 should average about as at present.

(19) The fear of involvement in Indo-China is strengthening the commodity markets. This takes some of the pressure off of Secretary Benson and those who have been resisting increased tariffs. I forecast an upward movement in many commodity prices—other than farm prices—during the balance of 1954.

(20) Money supplies are on the rise again now. They will continue to expand during the last half. Inflationary effects on the price level will be limited as our capacity to produce is now large.

Remember, the surest way to squelch an inflationary fire is with a flood of goods. Inflationary effects of the expanded money supply could also be nullified by the change in the Government's method of collecting the corporate income tax. The new tax law may put the large corporations

Amendments And The Constitution Of North Carolina

By LYNN NISBET

AMENDMENTS — The Constitution of North Carolina has been amended more than 100 times since its original adoption in 1868. Some of the amendments were material and greatly changed the tenor of the provisions. Majority of them were in the nature of clarification and modernized interpretation rather than basic change in meaning.

The five amendments to be voted upon by the people at the November general election this year fall within the latter class. So do all but two of those ratified within the past 15 years. One exception was the amendment of 1944, which clarified a similar amendment of 1942, providing for an enlarged State Board of Education appointed by the Governor, instead of the former executive board made up of elected members of the Council of State.

The other, and far more significant in basic import, was that adopted in 1952 providing for executive appointment of members of the General Assembly in case of vacancies, replacing the former requirement that no person could serve in the Legislature except by vote of the people of his county or district.

PENDING — The first on the list of five amendments now pending might be classed as basic in import, although essentially it does not change the idea of legislative representation. It provides that no county shall have more than one State Senator, regardless of population. Presently, the constitution fixes membership in the Senate at 50 to be elected from districts, with proviso that no county shall be deprived unless its population justifies more than one Senator. The pending amendment does not change the population basis for apportionment of Representatives. The proposed change more nearly conforms to the Federal constitution, under which each State has two Senators, regardless of population, and Representatives are apportioned on basis of the census.

The Federal concept is that Senators represent the States, while the Representatives in the Congress speak for the people. Under the proposed plan in North Carolina, Senators would represent their districts and Representatives the individuals making up their constituency. Under the Federal system several States have two Senators and only one Representative, while others have two Senators and as many as 45 Representatives. If the pending amendment is ratified North Carolina might well have some counties with one Senator and five Representatives, while other counties had one Representative and only a fraction of a Senator.

MODERNIZATION — The other four pending amendments tend only to bring up-to-date governmental policies which have been outmoded.

No. 2 on the list would transfer the power to grant parole to prisoners from the Governor to a constitutional Board of Paroles, leaving in the executive full authority over commutations and pardons. That is distinction without much difference from practice during the past quarter century. Since the parole commissioner was set up as an adjunct of the Governor's office, chief executives have accepted almost without question recommendations for parole, but have given careful personal study to commutation of sentences, revocations in capital cases and absolute pardons for prisoners. There are those who hold that granting a parole, which does not release the prisoner from supervision, is actually a matter of prison administration rather than executive clemency.

No. 3 — amendment on the list would eliminate "short terms" existing by reason of appointment to elective offices other than U.S. Senator. Exception of the U.S. Senate is due to provisions of the Federal constitution. For all other offices the effect of adoption of this amendment will be that when the term for which the original elected official will expire on January 1 after the next general election, the executive appointment would hold until that date, making it unnecessary for candidates for these offices to pay two filing fees and have their names appear twice on the ballot.

Actually, that is nothing more than an extended clarification of the amendment ratified two years ago providing that appointments to vacancies occurring within 30 days of the election should hold over until the next succeeding election two years later.

No. 4 amendment provides that retired justices of the Supreme Court shall be subject to recall for special duty on the high court in case of temporary incapacity of a sitting justice, instead of requiring them to take the status of emergency Superior Court judges. Essentially it is nothing more than a logical extension of the present emergency judge provisions of the constitution and the statutes, and involves no basic change in policy.

No. 5 amendment would reduce the residence time for voting in a precinct from the present four months to 30 days, leaving State residential requirement at one year. That is further concession to the mobility of population and logically follows prior amendments reducing state residence from two years to one and eliminating the six-months county residence.

LEGISLATION — The fact is that all five of the pending amendments, as well as most of those ratified in recent years, are essentially legislative and administrative, rather than fundamental in a system of government. More and more people are coming around to the belief that the constitution should be completely rewritten and greatly shortened so as to set out basic principles, leaving effectuating legislation to the General Assembly.

Further fact is that every amendment to the Federal constitution since that regulating election of the President and Vice President, ratified in 1804, and at least 90 of the more than 100 amendments to the State constitution since 1868, have been legislative in character. Possible exception in the Federal list would be provision for popular election of U.S. Senators, ratified in 1913.

booths. This was fine for those initiated camera fans who could understand, and evaluate, the newest improvements. However, it usually overwhelmed the beginner and it didn't show him—or her—how easy it was to take pictures.

Recently, a different type of photo trade show was tried out in Boston. They eliminated the usual display of products, booth after booth, and put the emphasis on picture taking by everyone. The theme: Photography is Fun—for the Family.

To replace the commercial booths, the dealers had various photogenic backgrounds and settings that invited snapshooting in color and in black-and-white. Among them were: a circus scene a beach scene with real sand and umbrella, a colorful garden, a baseball grandstand, a barnyard, a dude ranch and a magician's setting. These were all lit by powerful overhead floodlights and each had an appropriate model or participant.

Maybe it was due to the summer scenes, but this type of show brought a lot of cameras off shelves a bit earlier in the year than usual for some snapshooters. Naturally it had a direct and obvious appeal for the year-round camera fans. But, as a special attraction for the people who have no cameras, a large number were made available on a free loan basis. Some beginners' problems, from loading film through shooting pictures, were solved on the spot by the many experts handy.

I photographed some of the photo fans in action. One of them asked me to send him the picture I took. Incidentally, no photographer should promise to send prints unless he fully intends to follow through. In return for some prints mailed off, I received pictures in return and some pertinent comment from a typical camera fan, Frank Hodgdon of Cambridge, Mass.

"The idea of popularizing picture taking for the whole family," he wrote, "was what the public wants in a photo show. I attended the show on two days and shot about 60 pictures for personal fun. Some of the most interesting ones I hope to enter in my local camera club contest."

"The leading of camera and gear was a good idea. One of my pals borrowed a strobe light and is very enthused. He is buying a unit shortly on the strength of the results."

"For those I know who went, this type of photo show was a success and I hope it will continue."

Those were my sentiments, too.

Philippines Eye Fiber Market

MANILLA (AP)—The Philippines have eyes set on the world fiber market. Ramie is the island's best bet although abaca, cotton, jute and kenaf are getting attention from government agronomists now experimenting in a 1,282-acre plantation at Davao on Mindanao.

Philippine ramie plants are among the world's tallest, 10 feet or more, have high tensile strength and convertible into various textiles.

Another fiber the islands hope to place on a better competitive position is jute which grows wild. The threatened decline of jute production in Pakistan because of a food shortage there is expected to give Philippine jute a place in the world market.

Movie Dimensions Continue Embattled

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — The battle of the dimensions still rages.

This week saw much activity in behalf of new movie techniques. Paramount's deluxe huckster, William Holden, was circling the globe to sell the studio's process, VistaVision. RKO was demonstrating its superscope throughout the United States.

And in Hollywood, the press trooped out to see two new developments. One was the long-awaited Todd-Ao process, in which "Oklahoma!" will be filmed.

It's good. Mighty good. In fact, it may be the best. The screen is broad, slightly curved and taller than the ribbon-like cinemascope. It excels in clarity. The film is 65mm instead of the normal 35mm. And the film runs through the camera at 30 frames per second instead of the usual 24.

These factors, plus a great big-eye lens give a picture that seems as close to real life as anything I've seen on a movie screen.

The other showing was the improved methods of cinemascope. Its parent 20th Century-Fox, showed some films using a new lens that seems to eliminate the fuzziness that plagued early cinemascope films. The depth of focus is pleasing to the eye.

It's time for our semi-annual refresher course on new dimensions and what is happening to them. Pay attention now!

Cinemascope — it squeezes a wide scene onto normal film. A special lens projects the result on a broad screen. It is still the most used of the new techniques.

Cinerama — three projectors throw a continuous scene on a huge, semi-circular screen, giving the audience a sense of being in the picture. It is doing great business in a dozen cities, but is limited to a roadshow operation.

Vistavision — the image is received on two frames of normal film. The bigger negative can be blown up to fit any size screen and still retain clarity. This has not yet been seen by the public.

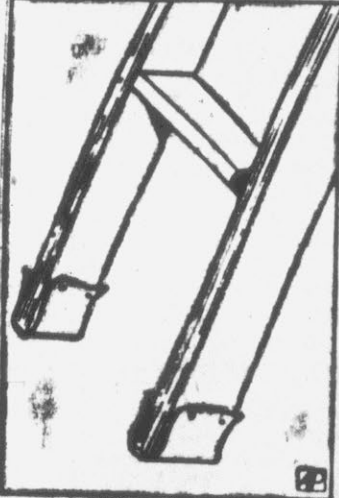

Superscope — a trick lens can convert any kind of film to fit all screen sizes. It is still unseen by the public.

Todd-Ao — a mammoth lens, 65mm film and big screen combine for utmost clarity. This also appears destined for limited, roadshow use.

3D — the viewer looks through polarized glasses at two images, achieving an illusion of depth. Not much life left in 3D.

A total eclipse of the sun can occur only when the moon is close to the earth. Eclipses which occur at times in the moon's cycle when it is far away are annular — a rim of the sun showing around the moon's shadow.

Elks' Billy Jenkins Hurls No-Hit Win Over Pepsi Cola

Injuries Help Orioles' Player

By GEORGE BOWEN
BALTIMORE (AP)—Injuries have hampered Billy Jenkins of the Baltimore Orioles whose 18-game hitting streak is the longest in the American League today.

Kryhoski, dramatically, drove in both winning runs yesterday with two outs in the 7th and 9th innings for 4-3 and 3-2 victories by the Orioles over the Philadelphia Athletics.

His ninth-inning singles in the second game was his only saving of the contest to keep his streak going.

The season, his sixth which included major league stands with the New York Yankees, Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns, started dismally.

A wrist was fractured in spring training and on the same day the Baltimore Orioles bought Eddie Waitkus from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Fortunately for Kryhoski when he was ready to play again, Waitkus was hitting poorly and the big blond got back the first base job. But then Kryhoski again was hit and a rib broken.

Waitkus took over, started to hit and Kryhoski had to warm the bench—even after his rib healed.

The injury jinx popped again, this time falling on Waitkus' foot and Kryhoski went back to first. His bat started to boom immediately and besides hitting safely in his last 18 games, the big 29-year-old from New Jersey is batting a healthy .294 for 45 games.

He has driven in 25 runs, half as many as he did in 104 games for the Browns in St. Louis last year.

Kryhoski is supposed to be a poor hitter to pitchers who throw from his same left side. But Jimmy Dykes, who has been substituting other right hand batters for lefties when the opposition uses southpaw pitchers, has been going with Kryhoski all the way.

Waitkus also bats lefthanded and is hitting over .280, including a ninth-inning pinch hit double yesterday which developed into the tying run to set up Kryhoski in the first game.

Waitkus is rated a much classier fielder than Kryhoski, but the way Dick is hitting Eddie will have to tick it out.

No-nitters are getting cheaper than wood shavings in a lumber yard, or so it would seem around Greenville's Tar Heel Little League.

In the period of five days, three no-hitters have been pitched. Jack Whitley of the Pepsi-Cola opened the fantasy with a marvellous performance against the Moose on June 22. Two days later Merrill Bynum fired a hitless job against the Exchange. Then Saturday Billy Jenkins, an Elk teammate of Bynum, came through with a spotless job against the Pepsi-Cola to lead his team into first place in the No-Hit League.

The 5-0 win gave the Elks a 3-0 record to lead the race for the second half championship of the Tar Heel League. The loss dropped the Pepsi-Cola team into second with a 2-1 mark.

In the first game of the afternoon the Exchange benefited from the brilliant pitching of Bill Clapp and Jackie Harrington to win a 3-0 victory. It was the first win of the half for the Exchange and moved them into third place in the league with a 1-2 record ahead of the Moose's 0-3 mark.

In throwing his masterpiece, Jenkins walked three batters and struck out seven. His Elk teammates backed him up with errorless ball in the field. Jackson Williams was the only Pepsi-Cola player to reach second base safely. Williams reached first on an interference called on the Elks' catcher. He advanced to second on a wild pitch but died there when Garrison struck out to end the inning.

The Elks ran into a rather tough opponent in Robbie Wilford until he was weakened in the last inning. Harry Forbes and Merrill Bynum with two hits each led the Elks to bat.

In the first game Bill Clapp struck out nine Moose batters out of the 12 outs in the first four innings. Clapp gave up one hit in the fourth inning and surrendered to Jackie Harrington on the mound after that. Clapp had pitched two innings against the Elks earlier in the week and could not pitch but four innings because of the rule that will not allow a Little League pitcher to pitch more than six innings in a week.

Jackie Harrington took over for Clapp and pitched one-hit, shutout ball over the last two innings.

Emmett Koonce went all the way for the Moose and gave up only three runs. Koonce gave up ten hits but was tight in the pinches to keep the score down.

Larry Roberts got the big hit of the day, a home run in the second inning. Jeff Fountain led the hitting with three for three.

Today at 5 o'clock the Pepsi-Cola and the Moose play again at Little League Park.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The world's eight top amateur tennis players were pitted today in Wimbledon's quarter-finals—and experts still were jittery about naming the future champion.

It is the most open all-England tennis tournament since World War II. Most of the excited fans were not at all sure that No. 1 seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati would make the final round.

Even London bookies, who will lay betting odds on almost anything, were uncertain whether they had the right man in the favorite spot.

"He was even in the betting before his match against Sweden's Sven Davidson," said one bookie. "Now Trabert is still the favorite—but at longer odds of 6-4."

Trabert, his hands bleeding and blistered, scrambled to a five-set victory over Davidson 3-5, 12-10, 6-0, 7-9, 6-3 last Saturday.

All the quarter-finalists are in the seeded list with the first five "seeds" still in there swinging. Today is the time when fans will be looking for the upsets. So far form has run a true course.

Trabert tackles Mervyn Rose, Aussie left-hander, who shines at doubles, but is overshadowed by fellow countrymen Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad in the singles.

Second-seeded Hoad, 19-year-old Aussie star with a booming service, takes on Czech-born veteran Jaroslav Droby, who now lives in Egypt.

Defending champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, seeded fourth, had a hard battle against Belgium's Jackie Brichant before making the quarter-finals.

Seixas goes against Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Paris. Patty is in top form and is capable of upsetting the champion.

The final seeded match is between Rosewall and Rex Hartwig, another Australian.

In the women's singles, champion and top-seeded Maureen (Little) McConolly, San Diego, Calif., meets Britain's 19-year-old Angela Buxton.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The world's eight top amateur tennis players were pitted today in Wimbledon's quarter-finals—and experts still were jittery about naming the future champion.

It is the most open all-England tennis tournament since World War II. Most of the excited fans were not at all sure that No. 1 seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati would make the final round.

Even London bookies, who will lay betting odds on almost anything, were uncertain whether they had the right man in the favorite spot.

"He was even in the betting before his match against Sweden's Sven Davidson," said one bookie. "Now Trabert is still the favorite—but at longer odds of 6-4."

Trabert, his hands bleeding and blistered, scrambled to a five-set victory over Davidson 3-5, 12-10, 6-0, 7-9, 6-3 last Saturday.

Animal Babies Get Needed Help At Feeding Time

By RAY KOHN
NEW YORK (AP)—Some animal babies need a helping human hand when it's feeding time at the Bronx Zoo.

Right now the bottle-and-formula "club" consists of Kenneth the wanderer monkey; Roughy and Toughy, two baby seals; a pair of recently hatched eagles, and a Japanese sika fawn whose mother died after its birth.

The case of Kenneth has the personal attention of Miss Mary Murphy, a nurse at the zoo's hospital. Kenneth was born 11 days ago and his mother — from Ceylon — wouldn't have anything to do with him.

So Miss Murphy mixes up a regular baby formula for the tiny monkey, which he gets every two hours. He spends his day on Miss Murphy's desk. At night, he accompanies her home on the subway.

Roughy and Toughy the seals were fished out of Alaskan waters about a month ago. Although they weigh between 20 and 25 pounds, they're not old enough to know how to eat.

For them it's a formula concocted of one can of evaporated milk, a pint of salad oil, one and a half tablespoons of cod liver oil and seven finely ground smelts. A zoo keeper hand-feeds them with a syringe and rubber tube.

When they learn to eat the smelts that will become their diet. Too little to occupy the big seal pool, Roughy and Toughy splash around in a pond designed for ducks.

The eagles? They were hatched on June 11 and 12, and don't even know how to stand up. They're being hand-fed on chopped eggs, meat and fish.

The fawn is being cared for by Gilbert Stratton, zoo watchman. Stratton, who was raised on a farm, commented:

"It's just like having a calf in the house again."

This last line on animal characters features Denise the deer, who had no feeding problems but just got fed up with corral life in Central Park Zoo.

Denise, a pretty red European doe, slipped out of her enclosure earlier in the week and took a romp through Central Park and ended up in a garage near Broadway.

Nobody was hurt in the deer roundup except 2-year-old Denise, who bit her tongue during the excitement.

UCLA Net Team Wins Ass'n Crown

SEATTLE (AP)—The University of California at Los Angeles ranked first in American collegiate tennis for the third straight year today after Bob Perry and Ron Livingston won the doubles crown yesterday to close out the 1954 NCAA net tournament.

The team title actually was decided earlier in the week by the potent Uclans but the four-set victory of Livingston and Perry over Jacques Grigny and Allen Cleveland of the University of Southern California gave UCLA permanent possession of the Penick Bowl.

The UCLA pair whipped the Trojan duo, 6-4, 6-0, 3-6, 8-6.

Ham Richardson of Tulane won the singles crown Saturday, defeating Perry, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3.

Wolverines Face Gridiron Relapse

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Folks just aren't coming out to see the University of Michigan play football like they used to do.

The decline in attendance has been vivid in recent years. Michigan's peak year was 1949 when 563,363 saw six home games. Last fall the figure dropped to 368,128.

Coach Bennie Oosterbaan is having his troubles too. He is returning only two players who started last season's final game. They are halfback Tony Branoff and quarterback Lou Baldacci.

Whiskers Help

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Danny O'Connell, hard-hitting infielder for the Milwaukee Braves, believes he helped win three successive games off his teammates by a whisker.

The Braves beat the Dodgers 2-0 in Brooklyn and Danny regarded his failure to shave as a good luck sign. The next day he again skipped the razor and the Braves whipped the Brooklyn 5-1. The following day the Milwaukee club, with bewiskered O'Connell in the lineup, knocked off the Pirates 4-2.

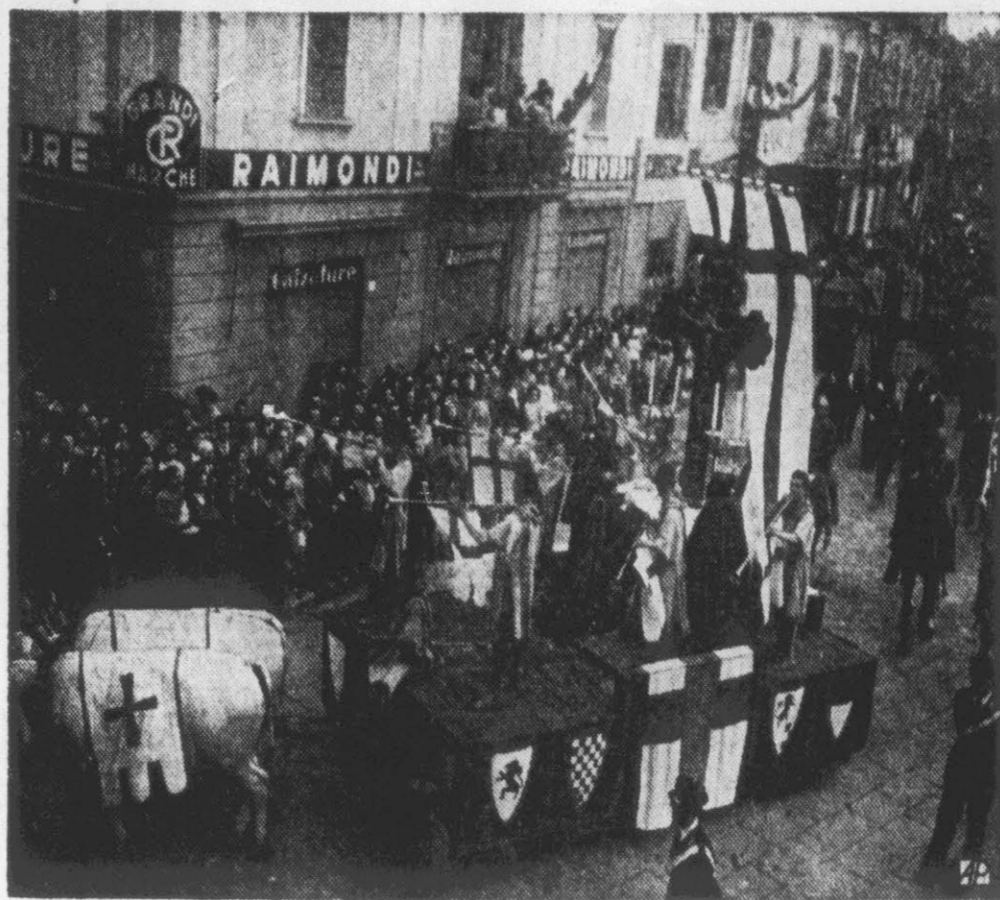

When the Braves dropped their next contest to the Pirates by a 3-2 score

Shiite Moslem's Holy City Lures Devout In Life, Death

By WILTON WYNN
 BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — In life and in death, the holy city of An Najaf lures the Shiite Moslems. A steady stream of humans crosses the frontier every week from Iran, a predominately Shiite country, in final pilgrimage to the hallowed soil of the town in southern Iraq. Cars, buses and trucks carry them to An Najaf, where the dead are buried near the tomb of Ali, son-in-law of the prophet Mohammed and most revered leader of the Shiite religion. To the Shiite Moslem, An Najaf is even more important than Mecca. Its normal population of less than 100,000 is frequently swelled near the 250,000 mark by pilgrims moving in from Iran all parts of Iraq, Lebanon, and more distant pockets of the Moslem world. The Shiites sometimes are called the Protestants of Islam. During the first century of the Islamic era, they broke off from the orthodox, or Sunni, Moslems and have been separate ever since. They are supreme in Iran, claim a small majority in Iraq and have a strong concentration in southern Lebanon. Shiites generally are less friendly to Christians than are Sunni Moslems. Here in Baghdad, the most beautiful mosques are controlled by Shiites and Christians are barred because of the tradition that infidels are unclean. A Shiite in Baghdad will give a Christian a drink of water on a hot day, for instance, but he will immediately wash the glass thoroughly and disinfect it, as if a dog or a leper had drunk from it. Temporary marriages are a special convenience for pilgrims going to An Najaf and the nearby shrines at Kerbela. These pilgrims frequently stay for months. Under Shiite law, the visiting men may marry Iraqi Shiite women for an agreed period of time, after which the marriage automatically is dissolved without need for a formal divorce. These marriages can be for 6 months or 10 years. Always the man pays an agreed sum to the woman. This sum may be only a token payment of a few coins or a substantial fortune. Any children resulting are the legal children of the father. These temporary unions are blessed by the Shiite mullahs, or clergymen. Women entering into such marriages remain completely respectable socially. Among Shiites the practice is defended as a realistic, moral means of controlling normal human passions which otherwise would be perverted into immoral channels. An Najaf is a center of Shiite learning as well as a holy shrine. Students come from all parts of the Shiite world to study under the learned men there concentrating mainly on the Arabic text of the Koran.

Ring Recovered After 23 Years

CLINTON, N. C. (AP)—Dr. J. M. Chesnut, a Clinton druggist, lost his Masonic ring while bathing at nearby White Lake resort. Bathing near the same spot, 11-year-old Claudia Herring of Roseboro, N.C., was diving and bringing handfuls of sand to the surface. That's right, she brought up the ring with Chesnut's name inscribed on it. Dr. Chesnut lost the ring in 1931—23 long and watery years ago. Nurse Lady

ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CHAPTER NINETEEN

IT WAS the middle of the week following her telephone conversation with Walt when Cynthia received a letter. She did not recognize the handwriting, which was neat, not too small, and had a few feminine flourishes. She could not imagine whom it could be from, and found herself even more unprepared when she found that the letter was from Norman's mother.

Norman might have warned her that his mother was going to write. However, he had been off to Washington again and so perhaps had not known it.

Dear Cynthia, the letter began. My son has told me so much about you that I feel I can address you by your first name. Norman has also told me some of your ideas in regard to the clinic for those dear little children. I have a few ideas of my own. So I am writing to suggest that you spend this coming week end, if convenient, with us at Pleasantridge Farms. I am looking forward more than I can possibly tell you to knowing you, Cynthia.

Yours sincerely,
ELIZABETH BRANDT

Now what was she going to do about such an invitation? Of course she could reply with a little note regretting that this week end would not be convenient. And implying that no other week end would be, either. She did not believe she wanted to meet Norman's family, visit in his home—not just yet anyway. On the other hand, for the sake of the clinic she ought not refuse such an invitation.

"Of course you can't refuse it!" Ros said, when later that day Cynthia decided to ask the advice of her roommate. "Heavens, I wish such an opportunity had come my way. When a man's mother asks a girl to come get the once-over, it shows the situation is getting serious."

"That's exactly why I don't feel I should go," Cynthia said.

"I think it's a lovely letter,"

Nora said. "I don't see any reason why you shouldn't go, Cyn." Nora spent every other week end with Alan's family. "It seems to me," she added, "it would be a good way to know Norman better. You can tell so much more about a person when you know his family. Only last week Alan's mother said how happy she was, and relieved, that Alan was marrying a girl they knew so well."

"Now, see here," Cynthia said. "This letter doesn't say that Mrs. Brandt wants to look me over as a prospective daughter-in-law. If I thought that I wouldn't go. The only reason I thought maybe I should is that she may have some ideas in regard to the clinic."

"You and your old clinic," Ros said. "It's in your blood almost as bad as it's in Walter Sellars'. If you don't watch out it will make you dry up, or freeze up, like him." After all, Ros had promised Norman she would try to help his case, with Cynthia.

"I love the clinic," Cynthia said, "but I hope it won't come to be the only life I'll ever have."

"Alan doesn't want me to go back to nursing," Nora put it. It was impossible for her to talk for long about any other subject than Alan and their future together. "But I think I should take a case now and then, not only to keep my hand in, as one never knows what may come up, but because then I could help save toward the house we want to build."

"If you want some other life, you'd better start working at it," Ros advised Cynthia. "If only for that reason, and to put the same sort of an idea into Doc Sellars' head, you ought to accept this invite to Pleasantridge Farms. Sounds kind of ritzy doesn't it? I bet it's one of those big country estates, set way back among the trees with cattle and horses grazing in the clover and baby lambs frolicking about. Nothing elegant, but the genuine country-gentry style."

"I guess I'll accept Mrs. Brandt's invitation," Cynthia decided. "After all it would hardly be courteous not to. And you never can tell what may come of it."

"I hope you draw the winning ticket out of the bag," Ros said. She shrugged her lovely shoulders, widened her eyes. "I'd be green with envy, darling; only I met a new man last night. He's simply rolling."

"Rolling?" Nora asked.

"In greenbacks, honey—bun," Ros informed her. "And I have a date with him this week end. Wish I had something to wear, like that honey of an evening dress you just bought."

"You're welcome to it," Nora offered generously.

"When it's part of your trousseau I've got plenty of nerve," Ros admitted, "but not that much."

Cynthia was thinking that it was just as well she had gone on that shopping spree she had not bought an evening gown, but she had bought a most attractive dinner dress. It was the loveliest color, sort of between a blue and a green. It had a circle of tiny pearls around the choker-neck, and was cut in a low V at the back—quite daring, in fact. It was ankle-length and the skirt swung full and gracefully.

When she had bought it, she had

It probably was nothing like that, yet even such a description as Ros's made Cynthia homesick for the country. The farm she had been reared on had been far from plush, but it had been a productive, comfortable midwestern one. There had been wheat and corn, cattle and hogs, and chickens—and yes, horses, too, if not thoroughbreds, that she had ridden and loved as a girl.

And come to think about it, Ros could be right about the rest. If she spent a week end with Norman's family at their country place, Walt might begin to get it through his somewhat thick skull that the friendship between her and "that Brandt fellow" could become serious.

"I guess I'll accept Mrs. Brandt's invitation," Cynthia decided. "After all it would hardly be courteous not to. And you never can tell what may come of it."

"I hope you draw the winning ticket out of the bag," Ros said. She shrugged her lovely shoulders, widened her eyes. "I'd be green with envy, darling; only I met a new man last night. He's simply rolling."

"Rolling?" Nora asked.

"In greenbacks, honey—bun," Ros informed her. "And I have a date with him this week end. Wish I had something to wear, like that honey of an evening dress you just bought."

"You're welcome to it," Nora offered generously.

When she had bought it, she had wondered if she would ever have an opportunity to wear it. She had thought she might have, if Norman should take her somewhere swanky to dine and dance. She did not believe it would be too dressy to wear for dinner in his home. Not if Pleasantridge Farms was anything like Ros's description. And she could take along her old black crepe which always looked conservatively nice, and had fortunately, just come from the cleaners.

After she had posted an acceptance to Mrs. Brandt, Cynthia wondered how to break the news to her "boss" that she was going to be out of town over the week end.

She decided to call Miss Whiting and tell that good lady, who surely could be relied upon to pass it on to Dr. Sellars.

She explained to Miss Whiting that Dr. Sellars had said he might call her in an emergency. "So I thought it might be a good idea to let him know where I can be reached. Have you a pencil and paper? You may want to write it down. And if Dr. Sellars wants to know with whom I'm staying had taken time to get paper and pencil and write down the address, you can tell him that Pleasantridge is the Brandt's country estate."

"I'll be sure to tell him," Miss Whiting promised cheerfully. "We are just getting along splendidly, Miss Doyle. So do feel free to have a pleasant time."

Cynthia thanked her; she recognized that "splendidly"; it had been Walt's term. Well, let him think that his ex-assistance nurse was having such a certain vacation that she would certainly want to postpone as long as possible her return to duty. Let him wonder if the wedding, and trousseau, she had so casually tossed into their last delightful conversation might be connected with this week end and "that fellow Brandt's" family.

Let him think anything he darned please. If only he would think about her.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, Real Estate Editor

Plastered dry walls are one of the newest and smoothest developments in modern building technique. Heretofore you took your choice between plaster and dry walls. Now you can have both the speed and economy of dry wall construction and a coat of quick-drying (paint it the next day) plaster, thanks to an invention by Vito Busatti.

This new material is a white mortar dry-mix preparation which can be applied as thin as 1/32nd of an inch over gypsum wallboard, plasterboard, rocklath, concrete, cinder block, brick clay, adobe, iron and steel.

If this material is all that it is cracked up to be, it will be a welcome addition to the shopping list of the do-it-yourself handyman, who wants to finish his basement, add rooms in the attic or obliterate seams and nail dimples in dry wall panels.

The inventor recently won approval of his new plaster from the New York Board of Standards and Appeals. That approval made it legal to use the stuff in skyscrapers. Joseph Platzer, former commissioner of housing and buildings for New York City, called it to our attention.

"It can be troweled to a marble-smooth finish even by the most inexperienced hand," said Platzer. "It dries rock-hard without cracking, chipping or peeling and it can be wallpapered or painted in a matter of hours with no special sealing or priming coats."

He pointed out that home builders, using gypsum wallboard and a single coat of the new plaster, are saving the tedious and costly problem of taping, filling and sanding joints, as well as the prime coat of sealer needed on the porous paper surface of wallboard.

"In labor time," he added, "it takes two mechanics and a helper only two days to completely plaster the average 5-room dry-wall home with this material. The next day the painter can move in."

A companion joint filler, developed by the same inventor, eliminates the taping and filling of joints in dry wall construction when you don't want to plaster. This filler also can be used as a tile cement for bathroom fixtures, for cracks around bathtubs and as a wood filler. It is rated to resist a surface pull up to 162 pounds per square inch.

Both the new plaster and the filler are given high moisture resistances. While the plaster is not waterproof, its inventor claims that dampness does not affect its strength. This makes it possible to use it directly on basement walls without the use of furring strips, lath, panels, or other surface preparation. It can take the place of masonry paint whether the foundation is stone poured concrete cinder block or brick.

Although iron was once used exclusively for the cores of electro-magnets, silicon steel now is widely used.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—The stock market was slightly higher in early afternoon trading today. A few stocks scored wide gains. Trading was at a good pace. On Friday, when 2,060,000 shares changed hands the market hit a new high since Oct. 23, 1929.

A handful of stocks in widely varied industries moved up around two points or more at one time. They included United Fruit, which has large holdings in Guatemala, Du Pont, Outboard Marine, U.S. Gypsum, International Business Machines, and Eastman Kodak.

On the other hand, a weakening of prices for gasoline and fuel oil sent most petroleum shares lower. Off around a point in early afternoon were Cities Service, Amerasia, Phillips, Lion Oil, Sinclair, and Seaboard Oil.

Once again the electrical equipment issues were a active and strong. Both General Electric and Westinghouse gained good-sized fractions.

The motors were generally higher and Chrysler was active. Kennecott was under pressure among the coppers. Several rail shares dipped on poor earnings reports.

Fractional shares were posted by Bethlehem Steel, Goodrich, Zenith, American Telephone, Dow Chemical and Phelps Dodge Lower were Alexander Smith, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, New York Central, Reynolds Tobacco and Union Carbide.

Temperature Highs In Carolina Are Shattered

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Yesterday's blistering heat shattered temperature records throughout the Carolinas as the mercury climbed well above the 100-degree mark.

A reading of 108 at Florence tied the all-time high record of 1925 and gained for the city the somewhat dubious distinction of being the hottest place in the nation.

And if knowing it helps any, there were two places in North Carolina which enjoyed air-conditioned comfort. With an assist from Atlantic breezes, Cape Hatteras recorded a high of 89, while in the western mountains, Mount Mitchell boasted a high of 72.

Wind and thunder storms in three Tar Heel communities brought relief from the heat but left considerable property damage.

In north Mecklenburg County a freakish storm disrupted power and telephone lines uprooted trees and damaged roofs. Gusts, estimated up to 90 miles an hour twisted metal fencing at a drive-in theater and flattened its giant screen.

At Washington, on the coast, a severe windstorm destroyed a warehouse and unroofed another, smashed plate glass windows and damaged roofs. Rain and hail as "big as a half dollar," accompanied the storm.

At the Cherry Point Marine Base several temporary structures were collapsed by strong winds, communication wires downed and minor damage caused to a number of aircraft.

Hailstones measured 1 1/2 inches in diameter and the wind velocity at times reached 79 miles an hour. Nobody was hurt in any of the storms.

Raleigh's record was broken with 104. The previous high for June 27 was 101 in 1952.

Columbia broiled in 106.7-degree weather, which the U.S. Weather Bureau recorded officially as 107. The all-time high was set in June, 1953 at 107.4.

At mid-afternoon the reading at Charlotte was 103 a new record for that date. A trace of rain failed to bring relief.

Thundershowers in the upper reaches of North Carolina brought temporary relief and the Weather Bureau while promising cooler air from the north today said it still will be hot.

Greensboro recorded the hottest day in its history as the mercury climbed to 102.4 degrees, melting the previous all-time record of August, 1932 when it reached 101.1.

Swimming pools, air-conditioned theatres and other cool recreation facilities were crowded throughout the two states, as relief was sought from the sizzling young summer.

Charleston had a high of 102 and Greenville, S.C., 101. Spartanburg had an all-time high of 104. The previous high was 103 in July, 1952.

Asheville, which advertises normal temperature of 73 admitted a high of 95 degrees, the hottest day of 1954 there.

A high of 105 was recorded at Orangeburg and Dillon had a 107 reading, while the top temperature at Anderson was 106.

on a pay-as-you-go basis, squeezing their cash holdings.

(21) Any psychological inflationary flare-ups that may take place as a result of war scares, big or little, will be long-lived. They will definitely be dangerous to follow up. A word of warning: Don't get drawn into any speculative moves in commodities or stocks based on the outbreak of a small war. If the need arises, our Government will move with lightning swiftness to put controls into effect. They are already "triggered." The only real danger of any federal tax increases will come with the outbreak of another war.

LABOR, BUILDING, AND REAL ESTATE

(22) As to unemployment, I will say that this has increased some over last year, but if considered on a per-capita basis, it is even less than that of five years ago. Look for a moderate reduction in the ranks of the unemployed during the last six months of 1954.

(23) The improvement which I expect in employment should not, however, be sufficient to make union leaders careless. Jobs will still be very much in demand. This should mean that the last half will see no prolonged strikes.

(24) Most union-management settlements will be made with a moderate amount of give and take. Any wage advances will be limited to the neighborhood of a reasonable hourly figure, plus some additional fringe benefits. The Administration and the Labor Leaders will not try to revamp the Taft-Hartley Bill during the last six months of 1954.

(25) My forecast as to the various classes of real estate is as follows:

(a) Large commercial farms will experience a further sag in their land values during the last half-year as farmers' gross income dips lower.

(b) Small farms on the fringes of big city suburbs should hold or rise in price as people get further away from city centers. This move could become an avalanche in the event of really serious war scares.

(c) I look for vacant land in the suburbs to hold its value well. In the big cities it may be another story, unless the land is suitable for parking purposes.

(d) Business properties in the big cities may ease somewhat in price during the last six months of this year. Suburban business properties can be expected to hold up. Demand for more shopping centers will be noticeable during the months to come.

(e) Home property (especially the older houses, particularly in the cities) will continue sagging in price. In the suburbs, the bigger houses, even of recent vintage, will be harder to sell. Most salable home properties will be the newer houses in the middle and lower-price brackets with emphasis on the "ranch houses" so-called.

(f) In the last half-year, construction will still be a powerful support to our economy as it has been for so long. Seasonally, building will be strengthened by continued liberal credit terms. Some boost to building could come in the second half if civilian defense moves create a "dispersal scare." If this happens, look for a rush by many factories to move operations into areas far from bomb-vulnerable cities.

CONCLUSION: I cannot end this Forecast without reminding readers that we are living in a truly New Era, comparable only with the year I. A. D., 1954 years ago, or the invention of printing 500 years ago. The H-Bomb, in the hands of any ambitious dictator, could bring about unparalleled conditions. These changes could make the things, about
