Maybank Charges Republicans Trying Make Demo Scandal In Housing Probe

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Maybank (D-SC) charged today Republicans are trying to "make Democratic scandal" out of the Senate Banking Committee's probe of swollen profits and other alleged irregularities in government housing programs.

Maybank, senior Democrat on the committee, said the "real money" in "windfall" profits "was made by the Republicans in the East and by some very prominent Republicans." He said he could name names but hoped he would not have to.

Conceding that past Democratic administrations hired a "few bad administrators," Maybank said in an interview the two-pronged investigation by the Eisenhower administration and the banking group of reported housing abuses back to post-World War II days "seems to be aimed at pinning all the blame on the Democrats."

The inquiry is aimed at finding evidence of collusion and other illegality in cases where builders and promoters of big apartment house projects pocketed "windfall" profits through the device of overestimating their construction costs in applying for government-insured mortgage loans. Also under study are reported abuses in government insurance of loans for home improvement and repairs.

The Federal Housing Administration handled both the apartment construction program, now out of operation, and the home repair program, which still is functioning.

Maybank's charge of "politics" followed testimony yesterday that Wilson W. Wyatt, housing expediter under former President Truman, showed one apartment builder how to make a windfall profit. This allegedly occurred after Wyatt left the government. Wyatt, a former mayor of Louisville, Ky., has been a close political associate of Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 Democratic presidential candidate.

Wyatt's name was injected into the hearing by William F. McKenna, deputy housing administrator in charge of the Eisenhower administration's own investigation of housing irregularities.

Wyatt issued a statement in New York denying McKenna's charge.

"No windfall profit was ever contemplated," he said. "I have no advice as to how to make such a profit and none was actually made. Actually the builder lost money on the project."

Maybank demanded that Wyatt be given "every opportunity" to refute McKenna's allegations before the Banking Committee.

Committee Chairman Capehart (R-Ind) has said it is "very unpleasant to expose prominent people" but that "there's going to be many of them exposed in the next 60 days." His committee is under "lots of pressures," he said, to call off the probe altogether.

Final Plans For Travel-Study Tour Being Made

Final arrangements are now being made at East Carolina College for a travel-study tour to the West Coast, according to an announcement by Dr. Ed. J. Carter, director of the college Bureau of Field Studies.

Thirty-four students are expected to make the tour, which will begin July 19 and extend through August 17.

A series of orientation lectures on the social, economic, and geographical background of the area covered by the trip will be given on the East Carolina campus June 15-18 and will include approximately thirty hours of instruction by faculty members of various departments of instruction at the college. Dr. Carter will serve as instructor during the trip.

A chartered air-conditioned bus, provided by Circle Tours of Raleigh will be used for the tour, which will include about 8,000 miles of travel. Stops along the way will be made at hotels and motels.

The itinerary includes visits to the Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs, the Sequoia National Park, and other places of interest. Among special events will be attendance at a bull fight in Mexico and a baseball game and an opera in St. Louis.

The travel-study tour is educational in purpose, and students are enrolled on a credit or non-credit basis. As the trip progresses participants will collect materials and data and plan for their use in the classroom; and organized discussion groups, critiques, interviews, and lectures will be held.

Jail Term Grew As He Talked

OWOSSO, Mich. (AP)—John Penyska opened his mouth three times in Circuit Court yesterday. Each time it cost him 30 days in jail. Judge Michael Carland told him to pay his wife Sally back alimony or serve 30 days in jail.

"I'll take the days," mumbled Penyska.

"That won't wipe out the debt," said the judge.

Penyska voiced a protest. "Maybe 60 days would be better," said the judge.

"Make it 90 as long as I'm going to jail," Penyska barked.

The judge complied.

Money Allotted For Vast Federal Highway Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks today announced apportionment of $75 million dollars in federal highway aid for what he said would be "the greatest surge in highway construction in the history of America."

The money will be doled out to the states and territories during the fiscal year beginning a year from tomorrow as they put up matching funds and make highway improvement expenditures.

Weeks said early earmarking of funds "will have a favorable impact on the economy."

Under the new program, Weeks said, federal spending for highway aid will approximately equal income from federal gasoline taxes.

Of the total, the primary highway system will get over $15 million dollars, interstate roads 175 million, secondary roads 210 million, and urban roads 175 million.

New York got the biggest allotment—over $6 million dollars. Vermont got the smallest—4 million.

The state-by-state breakdown included: Georgia, $20,349,497; North Carolina $12,112,832; South Carolina $11,294,468; Tennessee $18,368,480 and Virginia $16,825,904.

Will Be Buried In Cement And In Slanting Tomb

ONARGA, Ill. (AP)—A war veteran's body will be buried tomorrow in a slanting tomb and packed with cement but no one in Onarga knows why.

Frank Grove 69, a soldier in the war with Spain, the Mexican border expedition and World War I, died yesterday in a soldiers home in Washington.

A decade ago he built a tomb standing at a 45-degree angle. He often showed the tomb with pride to his friends but none of the elderly Onarga residents recalls why he built it on an angle.

Elmer Natterstad, Onarga mortician, said he has been instructed to remove the body from the casket, wrap it up in canvas and encase the body in fresh cement. He said he will carry out the instructions.

The tomb has this inscription: "He was well born and is sealed in cement beneath."

Airport Project Must Not Be Ditched

A crippling, but perhaps not fatal, blow has been struck the proposed joint airport for several Eastern Carolina counties and towns.

County Commissioners of Nash County dealt the crushing blow this week when they refused to appropriate that county's share of the $5,000 for the cooperative four-county airport program.

Obviously, with one of the four counties involved in the program reneging, the four-county airport as such is a dead duck. Perhaps, however, some of the work which has so far gone into the project may be salvaged, and some of the pieces patched together again if the other three counties wish to continue the program.

The program to provide the counties of Pitt, Nash, Edgecombe and Wilson, and the cities of Greenville, Rocky Mount, Tarboro and Wilson with a major joint airport was undertaken about two years ago. Last year the General Assembly created the Eastern Carolina Airport Authority which was to construct and operate the four-county airport.

The fact that one county has now decided not to go along with the program has, for the time being threatened to killed the program for the other three as well.

Ballot Recount Is Important Question

For the first time in many years—if not actually the very first time—a candidate has demanded a recount in a Pitt County election.

Candidate Sam A. Whitehurst, who sought the nomination for sheriff in recent primaries, made known his request for the recount yesterday when the Board of Elections met to canvass the returns of the second primary.

The Reflector can appreciate the position of Mr. Whitehurst in requesting a recount of the ballots in Saturday's second primary. In the contest for the office of sheriff, the official returns certified by the Elections Board yesterday showed he was defeated by incumbent Ruel W. Tyson by 44 votes.

In an election where 10,200 votes were cast, that is a mighty close margin. Yet, as we understand the provisions of

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
POWER
When I was a young man, I sometimes operated a small telephone switchboard. On one corner there was a crank connected to a small hand generator, and when the power failed, it was possible to maintain service by turning the crank. It took a lot of cranking to provide even the small amount of current necessary to keep the switchboard operating.

Even with a large efficient hand generator, it would be impossible to provide the current used in the average house very long. By cranking furiously, you could keep quite a few lights going, but when the furnace and the refrigerator came on, and when someone started cooking on the electric stove, you couldn't do it. You would be only too glad to connect into the main power line.

Yet many people are trying to run their lives with only a hand generator. They know of no power higher than themselves, and so they crank away as hard as they can. When some demand on them for more spiritual power than they can produce comes along, they cannot meet it, and drop exhausted.

But the eternal power line is there, with power enough for us all, and more. And we are summoned by God through Christ to draw upon it. "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

Bureaucratic Blunders Go On

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Bureaucratic blundering in the Budget Bureau, which is the Eisenhower equivalent of the "Roosevelt brain trust," has been responsible for recent inconsistencies and policy reversals that embarrass the White House. The budgeteers, who number many New Dealish hang-overs, have given the President wrong advice, although he must share some blame.

It was Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes, for instance, who ruled that Alger Hiss must receive eventually his $700-a-year pension, despite the circumstances behind his conviction. To assume such a legalistic attitude in the face of the Stevens-McCarthy sensationalism signifies almost incredible stupidity, which Eisenhower and Congress had to repudiate.

In even more important matters, involving grave questions of national security, the bright young men in the Bureau have made such highly questionable decisions that they were reversed by the White House, Congress and the National Security Council.

BUDGET BUREAU'S VOICE, PRESIDENTIAL COMMAND—The Budget Bureau's responsibility lies in the fact that all major matters of policy, especially when they involve expenditures of money, must be "cleared through" this agency. Hughes consults so regularly with Eisenhower that the voice of the Budget is the command of the White House.

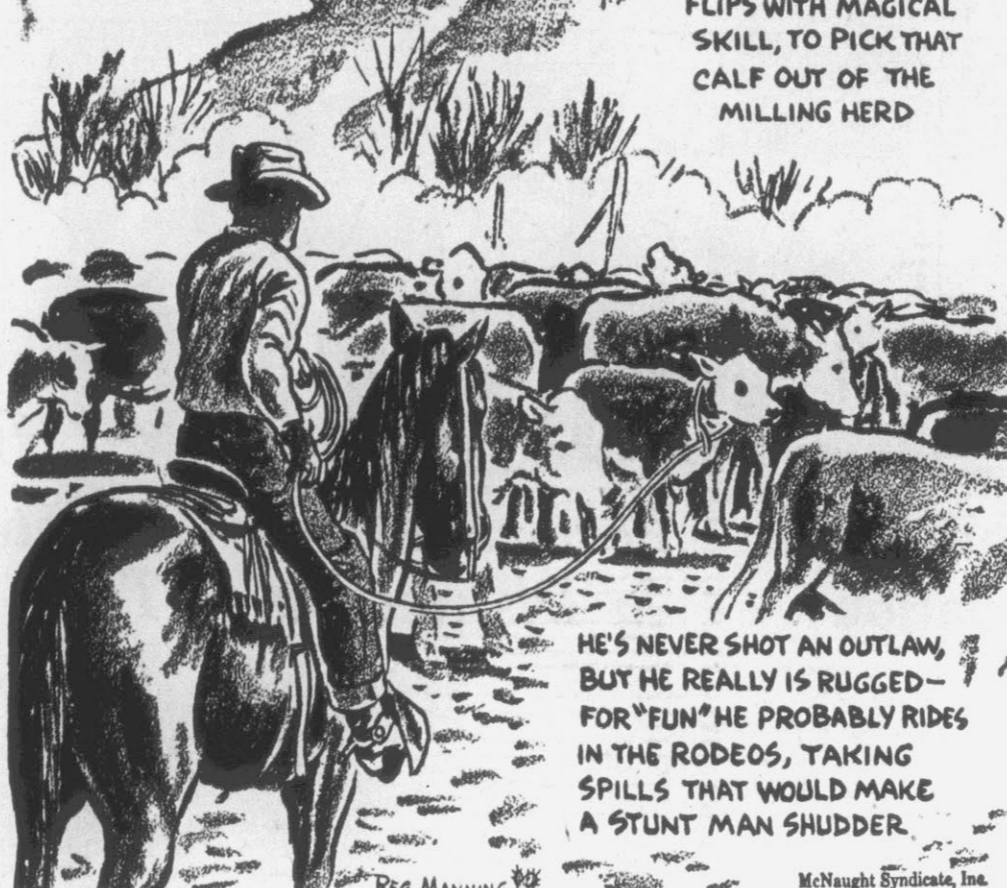

Budget informs Congress and all executive agencies whether proposed legislation or action is or is not "compatible with the Administration's program," usually in writing. F.D.R. started this system of centralized control and clearance, and Ike has continued it for want of a better check. It also comports with his chain-of-command ideas.

The budgeteers, however, rightfully attribute some responsibility to the White House. They try simply to apply Ike's general economic and political philosophy—private enterprise versus government expansion, Federal economy, a balanced budget—to specific

Somebody Told Me

This Is A TRUE Fish Story

This is a true fish story. The statement "All fishermen are liars except you and me, and I'm not so sure about you" is well put, but in this case I can point to three witnesses for proof—Amos Leggett, Bob Ross, and Roy Phelps.

Yesterday at Morehead we caught 112 blue fish trolling close in. Now comes the part of the story that you might not swallow: That catch is very scant. Last year on the same boat we caught 174 in the same fishing time: one-half a day. For the next statement I refer you to Amos Leggett, who was on the same boat one day last fall when the catch was over 600!

Amos and I had been on the boat before yesterday and all the way down we told Roy and Bob of the catch we were going to experience. "The blues aren't running too well," I told them. "The operator of the boat told me they ought to catch 100 yesterday afternoon," Bob and Roy would look at us with smirks, thinking if we hit 100 they would be amazed.

At 4:00 o'clock we had 12 blues! And we left the shore at 1:15. Bob would look at Amos and me, and we would look at each other. Couldn't understand where the blues were.

When they hit, all four of us were usually pulling in two at a time. Roy would get one on the line and let him stay there until another one hit. Bob Ross, who is famous for catching no fish, admitted that his jinx had been broken.

What's the financial damage? This particular boat charges $20 for the one-half day, but here's the interesting point: As close as we trolled, it could be done with a small boat for a dollar. Another important factor: The fish do not start running until late in the evening and you could leave Greenville after lunch and still get in a good catch.

And then there was supper at the Rex. Amos and I had heard of a pizza pie, but had never seen or eaten one. "You haven't lived until you've done it," Bob Ross said. Roy seconded the motion so we ordered four pizza pies.

The people at the next table marveled at the sight when it arrived. A pie about two feet in diameter, consisting of cheese and tomato sauce, mushrooms, anchovies or pepperoni, depending upon your choice.

Amos and I are glad to have lived in the estimation of Roy and Bob. But no more pizza pie for us. Please bear in mind that the Rex is one of the finest restaurants we have ever been in, and we like all Italian food; in fact, pizza pie is good if you are hungry enough.

The people at the next table got a laugh when Amos said, "I never have seen one before and don't care if I never see one again."

It's just like a lobster: everybody ought to eat one for the experience.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

ANTIDOTE TO DOUBT
(Christian Science Monitor)
If Adlai Stevenson has the gift of whimsy and of deftest humor, he also has the greater gift of pulling together the welter of events into a prespective the eye can span and the thought can grasp.

Evidence of both gifts is woven through his recent address before one of the sessions of the Columbia University Bicentennial Conference. His remarks, he began, "could be very crudely entitled: 'Hooray for America' and 'Look Out, America.'" Amplifying, he takes more pious leaps from the dignified to the impudently colloquial: "I think America's record is terrific—if I may borrow a word from junior son"; and then: "What's the matter with us anyhow?"—asked in a voice which brought laughter from the distinguished assemblage.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
PROGRESS—Consensus among several dozen lawyers with long and varied experience is that the recent meeting of the North Carolina Bar Association made definite progress toward improving the administration of the justice in the courts of this State.

While there was some objection voiced to nearly every suggestion for specific remedies for admitted ills, feeling prevailed that the differences were far less significant than the united determination to do something. The tenor of all public speeches and most of the off-side conversations was concretely put into words by Judge Chester Morris, who said: "The public has developed a sort of contemptuous attitude toward the administrative procedures in our courts. Improvement of conditions is the responsibility of the bench and the bar. If they don't act, somebody else will; and the results might be distasteful to lawyers and disastrous to the public interest."

COURTS—The lawyers discussed and adopted resolutions about numerous statutes, rules of procedure on appeal and better relations between the bar and State administrative agencies on the one hand and the public on the other. Major consideration, however, was given to reconstruction of the system of courts with special emphasis upon lessening the travel time and increasing from six months to one year the assignment of presiding judges to districts; and to the continuing problem of revising justice of peace and traffic court.

Basis of the Superior Court proposed changes is a re-districting plan submitted and strongly advocated by Chief Justice M.V. Barnhill on behalf of the judicial Council. The plan and the accompanying map met general approval in principle, with some reservations as to detailed drawing of district lines.

RE-DISTRICTING—Briefly, the plan is to re-divide the State into four major divisions, instead of the present two, and to set up 30 judicial districts instead of the present 21. With two districts given two regular judges each, the number of regular judges would be increased from 21 to 32. The judicial re-districting would not disturb the existing lines of solicitor districts, which remain at 21 in number.

Judicial re-districting occasioned one of the hottest and most prolonged legislative fights in 1953. The plan then proposed was defeated by narrow margin, although it was approved by majority vote in the Senate. The far-reaching implications are expected to bring on further legislative battling. Subject will be next spring this subject will be one of the most talked about lawyers. Majority opinion among those attending the Wrightsville Beach convention seemed to justify prediction that while the Judicial Council map might not be adopted intact, the idea will be approved and the State re-districted during by the 1955 Assembly.

ROTATION—A companion piece to the re-districting program is modification of the rotation system. Senator Sam J. Ervin, with experience of both Superior and Supreme Court benches, and Judge Chester Morris endorsed in principle the re-districting plan but emphasized the importance of longer assignments of presiding judges to one district. Increasing the number of divisions from the present two of 49 and 51 counties each to four or more with a maximum of 25 counties, will result in cutting down travel time and expense and permit judges to stay in a district a full year instead of six months.

Senator Ervin went a step further and recommended giving all judges resident in the division concurrent jurisdiction in all cases which do not require the intervention of a jury.

J.P. AND TRAFFIC—The lawyers generally did not react favorably to the proposal for an entirely new and separate system of traffic courts. Opinion favored revision of the Justice of Peace system to assure more competent administration, increase respect for this type of court in all cases and extend jurisdiction to many traffic violations now outside the JP scope.

POLITICAL—Public discussions meticulously avoided any reference to the political aspects of the proposals, but in private talk politics was recognized as a controlling factor. Previous attempts at re-districting and JP reform have run into political road blocks in the General Assembly, only a few of which had any relationship to Democratic or Republican parties.

Sitting judges often opposed re-districting because they had established contacts in all their present counties, and solicitors have joined in the protest because they have not wanted the judicial and solicitorial lines changed so they would not be competitors. Legislators have been jealous of their existing prerogative to name as many justices of the peace as they desired, and in some instances the remaining influence of the old time magistrate or country squire has affected legislation. That is why a number of those who commented on the proposals made at the Bar Association meeting endorsed the plan "in principle," but reserved the right to differ on detailed effectuation.

There is every indication that some steps will be taken by the next General Assembly, and that real progress is being made.

Business Today

Department Stores

By ELMER ROESSNER
The average department store did not do very well in the year ended January 31. Two studies of department store records, one by Harvard Business School and the other by the Controllers' Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association show that.

The Harvard study, under the direction of Professor Malcolm P. McNair, showed department stores made a net after taxes of 2.6 per cent of sales, compared with 2.4 per cent the year earlier. The N.R.D.G.A. study indicates a net of only 2.3 per cent of sales, the lowest return in more than 20 years, except for 1938.

The difference in the findings result from using different samples. The Harvard study was based on reports from 364 department store firms; it made a separate analysis of reports from 85 specialty stores. The N.R.D.G.A. study was based on reports from 469 "departmentalized stores."

The variation between the sets of figures is small and they add to these facts; department stores are able to retain only a small part of the money they take in and, if it were not for income from sources other than their own sales, their income would be small, indeed.

Maybe it's their own fault. Raymond F. Copes, general manager of the Controllers' Congress, noting that sales volume in 1953 was only 7 per cent above 1947, said, "Matching his increase against the overall economic pattern of growth experienced in the last six years, the observation must be made that departmentalized stores are not maintaining their 1947 share of the market."

Both reports are available to retailers; the N.R.D.G.A. book, of 330 pages, is $7.50, $12.50, or $17.50, depending whether the buyer is a member and whether or not he is eligible; the Harvard report is $4, whether you went to Harvard or not.

PROMOTION HELD NEEDED FOR ECONOMIC RECOVERY
The strong stimulation of increased advertising and aggressive merchandising is necessary to convert the moderate revival of business into a full recovery, Richard P. Doherty writes in his

Bulletin Advisory Service for Radio and Television Executives. The year as a whole, he writes, "will undoubtedly be the second or third best year in the nation's history. Our national recovery from present levels will be gradual and un spectacular but will move steadily upward."

INCOME UP, BUT BUYERS CONSERVE THEIR CREDIT
Sales at retail stores have moved at a "fairly steady rate" so far this year, averaging for the first four months 2 per cent below the dollar volume for the same months last year, the Department of Commerce reports. "Consumer income after taxes, higher than in the early months of 1953, has been a major factor in this relatively favorable showing," it notes. "However, the comparative weakness which has characterized durable goods sales has reflected a less urgent demand for large unit expenditure items, such as automobiles, and a lessened willingness on the part of individuals to incur installment debt."

NEW LEAFLET TELLS HOW TO GET A PATENT
If the inquiries that flow into this department are an indication the Small Business Administration has just published a best seller. "What's more, it's free—even though it consists of four pages."

It is a "Management Aid" leaflet and "Know Your Patenting Procedures" and it is written by Evelyn M. Schwarztrauber, of the managerial division, SBA.

It explains the difference between patents, trademarks and copyrights—something some correspondents do not seem to appreciate—and it tells what steps to take to get a patent on a device, design or new variety of plant "other than tuber-propagated, which is asexually produced." It does not tell how to get a trademark or a copyright.

The loyal correspondents of this department who are inventors; will please write to the Small Business Administration, Washington 25, D.C., and ask for Management Aid No. 49. Please don't write to Miss Schwarztrauber, Mr. Eisenhower or Herr Roessner. Write to SBA.

Imagine Leo, A Man Of Charm

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The marital romance of movie star Laraine Day and Leo Durocher, manager of the New York Giants baseball club, is a victory of later love over dislike at first sight.

The first time Laraine, who looks like the girl every man hopes to wed, met Leo was in one of those velvet skip-rope Manhattan night clubs.

"Everybody crowded around to talk to him as if he were important," she recalled. "I didn't know who he was, but I certainly did dislike him."

The feeling was so strong that two years later, when Laraine saw Leo boarding a plane on which she was a passenger, she hoped he wouldn't sit by her because she dreaded having to talk to him. But Leo sat down and did most of the talking.

"I looked over at him after a while," said Laraine, "and suddenly thought to myself, 'This is the man I'm going to marry.' He didn't know it—but I did."

Soon after that they were married. As a girl Laraine hated baseball so much that she would umpire a game at school to keep from having to play it. But today she watches some 77 baseball games a year.

"It's making a nervous wreck of me," she said. "I don't feel like an average fan. Winning and losing affects our lives. It's our future."

"When we lose a game, I'm much more upset than Leo. He doesn't bring the game home with him."

"The Giants win, we take in a movie. We never go out after the game. But it's not because he feels miserable."

"He says, 'People always ask you how you lost—they never ask you how you won. But if you've lost a game, there is no point in losing it over and over again."

Laraine, who recently completed a leading role in "The High And The Mighty," has adjusted her film career so as not to let it conflict with the job of being Mrs. Durocher.

"Everybody makes a picture a year, acts in four television dramas, serves as a panelist on the TV program 'I've Got a Secret.' But she goes to spring training with Leo, attends every home game here, and when the team takes to the road flies out to their California home to be with their children, Chris and Michele.

"Before I married Leo I wanted to win an academy award," she said. "Now all I want is for us to win the pennant. My work is secondary."

Laraine has done a wonderful public relations job for her husband's ball club. She is popular with the players and their wives. The sports writers like her, and the wives of the sports writers like her, too, for her pleasant, honest, friendly manner. In the jealous world of baseball her task hasn't been easy. Laraine has won out by being simply what she is—a good wife who backs her husband all the way.

"People who meet Leo for the first time are always surprised to find out he isn't a roughneck," she said. "Why, Leo dresses beautifully, and he is always gracious and charming."

"That may sound like I'm in love with him. But I don't always agree with his baseball strategy. The thing about Leo is that he can talk you out of a game. He could be a success at anything he went into."

Ex-Revenuer Is Found Guilty Of Tax Evasion

NEW YORK (AP)—Joseph D. Nunan Jr., once the nation's top tax collector, has been found guilty of income tax evasion. A Brooklyn federal court jury convicted the former commissioner of internal revenue yesterday on all five counts of an indictment charging him with evading payment of $91,066 for the years 1946 through 1950. The 55-year-old Nunan faces a possible total sentence of 25 years in jail and a $50,000 fine. He was continued in $1,500 bail pending sentencing July 22. Federal Judge Walter Bruchhausen told the jury of seven women and five men the verdict was "justified by the evidence."

collector from 1944 to 1947, when he resigned to return to the private practice of law.

The indictment charged him with reporting income of $416,144 for 1946-1950 when it actually was $543,396. He thus paid taxes of $200,437, when he should have paid $291,523, the government said.

The defense contended the money on which he was accused of failing to pay taxes was inherited by his wife and was not subject to tax. Nunan claimed he withdrew his assets of $170,000 from the bank in 1933 and kept the money in a tin box, banking it again in 1940.

Testifying in his own behalf in the trial, he said he became tax collector for the Brooklyn district "through the fortunes of politics." "As collector I was primarily an administrator, not particularly an expert on tax laws," he said. "Washington liked the way I ran my office and made me U. S. commissioner."

The 16-day trial was highlighted by the testimony of gambler Frank Erickson and James P. Finnegan, former tax collector at St. Louis and a pal of former President Harry S. Truman. Finnegan is now serving a sentence for misconduct in office.

Erickson testified he lost a $1,800 bet to Nunan that Truman would not be re-elected President in 1948. He said he gave Nunan, who was backing Truman, odds of 9 to 1.

Nunan claimed he did not report the winning on his tax return because other gambling losses during the year balanced it off.

Finnegan, who testified Nunan once gave him $1,000 in cash for a new station wagon and paid the balance of $408.23 by check, said of himself and Nunan "We were close friends."

Nunan was indicted on the tax evasion charge Dec. 2, 1952, and a week later pleaded not guilty. The indictment stemmed from an investigation by a special federal grand jury.

A charge of perjury, which resulted from the grand jury inquiry, is still pending against Nunan.

Eve Likes To Think Her Role Doesn't Fit

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is Eve Arden really Our Miss Brooks and vice versa?

Now that may sound like an odd question to you, but it's an issue that has fascinated me. I'm always interested in measuring the disparity, if any, between real-life actors and roles they play.

But many others are far removed from the public's conception of them. Jack Benny is not tight-fisted, as witness his outlay for his daughter's wedding. Jane Russell is no slinky siren, but a wholesome girl with a strong religious inclination. Reporters have found Danny Kaye is not the gay buffoon; he can be cold and cutting.

The issue is complicated in Eve Arden's case because she has two identities with the public. In one, she is the Eve Arden of films, the friend of the heroine who can always be counted on for a caustic remark at the end of the scene. In the other, she is the more gentle Miss Brooks, a much-harassed schoolteacher on the prowl for Mr.

Boynton, another faculty member. I discussed all about Eve's alter ego with the real Miss Arden, the one who is pregnant. We sat in her car in a drive-in restaurant on the Sunset Strip while she munched a late-afternoon hamburger—"I'm always hungry."

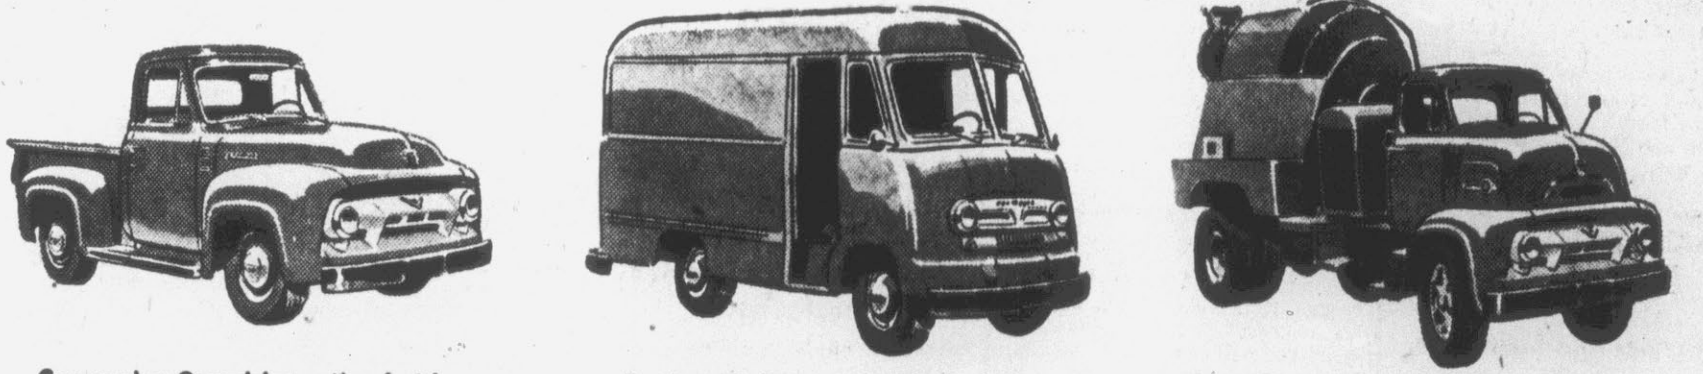

"I can't tell you much about the movie roles I played, because I've never cared for the character I generally played in films.

"I certainly don't think it was me. I really think I'm kinder than that. My friends will tell you that I'm a very mild person.

"And I don't think Our Miss Brooks is me either. I don't believe I'm that harassed. At least it's a different kind of harassment. In Miss Brooks, I'm harassed by people above me—the principal, for example. In real life, my trouble comes from people under me—the housekeeper, the dressmaker, and so forth.

"And though Miss Brooks is no dope, I like to think that I am a little more hep than she is."

Nurse Lady

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
AS YET, Mrs. Brandt had not brought up the subject which she had written was the main reason for this week-end invitation. Perhaps she was waiting for an appropriate time—and until her young guest was acclimated and at ease. Or again, she may have decided to postpone any discussion until she had decided how deserving the clinic, and its representatives, might be.

Cynthia was just as glad to have a little time too. She had determined to put the clinic—and Walt—out of her mind. So far, she had succeeded. She felt as though she had shed one layer of her life to put on a fresher, newer one. Almost like the renewal of spring, as Norman had said.

The big colonial house, although tucked away from the main line of traffic was not without other guests. People kept dropping in, sometimes at the cocktail and tea hour, or again during the day lingering on into the evening for bridge or chess or a game of ping-pong in the large recreation room on the third floor, which Norman told her had been his and Jim's playroom when they were boys.

"Your family may live in the country," Cynthia remarked, "but I can't see how they would ever have a chance to be lonely. They have so many neighbors and friends."

"Dad draws people like a magnet," Norman said. "And everyone admires my mother. They know what a remarkable person she is. For it's Mom who runs things. Dad retired quite a few years ago. He doesn't want anyone to know it but a heart condition made him take life easier. His friends do know this—even if he thinks they don't—and that's another reason they stop by to chat and get his opinion and advice and keep his mind off himself."

"It's so different from the farm where I grew up," Cynthia admitted this as being her reason for finding Pleasantridge quite gay in contrast. Yet it was not a surface gaiety; it was genuine and warm. Everything, in spite of being so well organized, was kept on a simple scale.

"Oh, Mom does lots of actual hard labor herself," Norman bragged, when Cynthia explained something of this contrast with the farm in Indiana, where work began at daylight and lasted until it became too dark to continue the many chores. "You ought to see her in overalls personally tending a heifer or mare when one of the animals comes down with some virus Mom takes great pride in her livestock. She has experimented with the development of a rare new breed. They are a cross between the best characteristics of the stocky English Shorthorn and the humpbacked Indian Brahman."

Norman pointed out one exceptionally fine bull yearling; deep-chested, cherry-red in color with its odd, yet distinguishing small hump. He told Cynthia that it had won several prizes, was worth at least twelve thousand dollars.

She was properly impressed. Though she confessed she preferred the ordinary shy, sweetfaced young calves. She could not imagine Norman's mother assisting at the birth of one. Or wearing overalls of blue denim. Yet she imagined that Elizabeth Brandt would still maintain that queenly air.

Cynthia had an opportunity to wear her new blue-green dress. There was a more formal party Saturday evening, with about sixty invited guests. She did not have to wonder if the dress was appropriate and becoming—Norman's eyes told her that. And she must have measured up to Mrs. Brandt's yardstick of approval and passed whatever tests her hostess might have had in mind. For after the last guest had departed, Mrs. Brandt explained that they had been invited for the express purpose of meeting Cynthia.

"Oh, dear, I'm just as glad I didn't know that!" Cynthia felt the warm color flooding her face. She hoped that these friends and neighbors had not been asked in to give Norman's newest girl the once-over, as Rox would call it. Then she felt rather silly as his mother went on to explain.

"I wanted them to meet you because of those ideas in regard to your clinic I mentioned in my note. I assure you she will take it on as a lifetime job. So you can't blame her for wanting to make certain it would be worth while."

So she had passed the test. Cynthia wondered what Walt would say at the clinic being called hers! "I'm afraid it's too late," Elizabeth Brandt added, "to discuss this matter tonight. Suppose we have a talk in my study tomorrow after dinner—before Norman drives you back to town. Dinner on Sunday is at two."

"And of course my dear," she added further, when Cynthia said that would be agreeable "we hope you will be coming quite often to Pleasantridge."

The smile she gave the nurse was so friendly and sincere that Cynthia was made to feel that she had succeeded in winning over Norman's mother, too.

"I told you they'd like you," Norman said, after both his parents had said good night and retired, to leave the two young people by the big fireplace in which only the embers of logs now smoldered.

"I'm glad if your parents like me personally," Cynthia said. "Only I must admit it's been something of a strain to feel that I've been on approval. If I wasn't all right, I gather, I was to be sent back. And the clinic would be shipped along with me."

"Now, don't feel that way!" He put a hand on one of her shoulders made her look into his eyes. "Mom has given more time and thought to these ideas of hers than anyone would believe possible. When she goes into anything, she does it thoroughly. If she has decided to adopt the clinic as another project, I assure you she will take it on as a lifetime job. So you can't blame her for wanting to make certain it would be worth while.

he dropped this serious subject. (To Be Continued)

Reds Experience School Troubles

HONG KONG (AP)—The sons of the peasants and workers in Red China are no shining lights as scholars. The Peiping Ministry of Higher Education has put out a set of orders on how to cope with students whose "low cultural foundation" made them "unfamiliar with the ways and methods of study." The Reds, in a forced enrollment, put more than 22,000 such children into middle schools in 1951-52 on a quick-course schedule to "develop technicians." Last fall the first 1,500 finished the short courses and were dumped on the colleges. A high percentage of them have proved deficient in "language and analytical geometry... with rather poor knowledge of mathematics, physics and chemistry."

The teachers are told to "form special classes," to "improve teaching methods and strengthen after class coaching activity."

PCA Prosopic Chromatic Analysis

What Is It?

PROSOPIC CHROMATIC ANALYSIS is a complete, scientific facial analysis. For example, artists all agree that, for beauty and symmetry, the distance between the eyes should be approximately the width of one eye so that if you have a broad bridge your eyes appear to set close together. If you have a broad bridge, Ridgeway's Opticians will fit you with spectacle frames that will slenderize it, creating the illusion of harmonious and graceful proportions of your facial features. We think you'll appreciate PCA—another outstanding Ridgeway optical service.

Turpin, Bratton Out Of Top Ten In Ring Rankings

NEW YORK (AP)— Two former champions, middleweight Randy Turpin of England, and Johnny Bratton of Chicago, are out of the first 10 rankings for the first time in years in the latest Ring magazine ratings of boxers.

Veteran Light Heavyweight Danny Nardico also was dropped out of the elite group as Editor Nat Fleischer gave every one of the eight divisions a good going-over today.

Turpin, ninth a month ago, and Philadelphia's Gil Turner, who was 10th, were dropped to make room for Argentina's Eduardo (KO) Lausse (10th) and Germany's Gustav (Bubi) Scholz (9th). France's Pierre Langlois jumped from sixth to fourth.

In the welterweight class, Bratton was removed and Al Andrews of Superior, Wis., joined the group in the ninth position.

Nardico, of Tampa, Fla., lost out when he was stopped in four rounds by flashy Paul Andrews of Buffalo, N.Y. The 24-year-old Andrews leaped from seventh to fourth. Oakland Billy Smith took over Nardico's No. 8 spot.

Among the heavyweights, Tommy Harrison was replaced in the big 10 by veteran Harry (Kid) Matthews of Seattle, and Earl Walls of Toronto and Dan Bucceroni of Philadelphia traded the No. 7 and 8 berths with Walls now seventh.

Percy Basset of Philadelphia once again became the No. 1 featherweight contender as the result of his 11th round TKO of Lulu Perez and Carmelo Costa's upset of Mexico's Baby Ortiz. Ortiz had been ranked first a month ago. Belgium's Jean Sneyers is now second. France's Ray Farnoch third. Perez fourth and Ortiz fifth.

In the flyweight ranks, Leo Egan of the Philippines, who lost a close decision to Champion Zolush Shiral, advanced from 3 to 1. His countryman, Tanny Campo, dropped one notch to second.

Among the 118-pound bantams, France's Andre Valignat took over fifth place from Cleveland's Nate Brooks who fell to sixth.

September Bout Said To Be Out For Marciano

By GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK (AP)— A great silence has settled over the heavyweight situation only a fortnight after Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles engaged in their blood bath, and what you hear is that they will not fight again this year. The talked-of return in September is said to be definitely out.

It's a delicate subject and neither side likes very much to talk about it, but the obstacle is the same, one which has caused Marciano against his natural instincts, to be one of the most inactive of the champions—the income tax. He would be able to take home only small leaveings from another bout this year, scarcely enough to justify his risking the title.

Rocky would like to fight more often, and it is no secret that the sooner he gets Ezzard in the ring again the better he will like it. But he will never argue the wisdom of the man who made him champion, his manager, Al Well. One report is that the second edition of one of the greatest heavyweight battles in history may be held at Miami in February.

There appears no chance whatever that the two major leagues will do anything more important than play a ball game at Cleveland and American and National League clubs play a certain number of scheduled games against each other during the regular season as a means of stimulating new interest in the game has drawn almost a blanket blast from Hank's fellow nagnates.

Probably the chief fault being found with the plan is that it would throw into the discard all batting and pitching and fielding records that have been set over the long years—make them meaningless in the future.

Another objection nearly as pungent is that the two pennant winners might meet in a final series just as the regular season ends, and one of them give the other a frightful mauling. Nobody would want to go to the World Series.

Bright Leafs Win Over Fordomatics

The Bright Leafs jumped off to a winning start in the second half of the Recreation Department's PONY League activity by defeating Fordomatics 2-0 last night behind the two-hit pitching of Richard Earl Nobles.

Fordomatics' hurler, Walker Allen, gave up only five hits to the Bright Leafs but he gave up three of them in the second inning when the Bright Leafs scored their first run. The other Bright Leaf run came in the third inning when Allen gave up a single to Bobby Edwards who stole second and third and scored on a ground out.

Nobles pitched no-hit ball for the first three innings of the game. He gave up the first hit in the fourth when Lynn Jorgensen singled with one man out. The other hit came in the seventh when Dick Heller singled with two men out. Between the two hits, Nobles retired eight men in order and had only five men reach first throughout the game.

The victory for the Bright Leafs shows them into a tie for first place in the league standings with a 1-0 record for the second half. Redmen also, have a 1-0 mark. The Fordomatics and the National Guard have 0-1 records for the second half.

There will be no activity in the league tonight but tomorrow night the Redmen will meet the Bright Leafs in a showdown battle for first. Friday night, Fordomatics will meet National Guard in a battle for third place. The two games were switched from previous schedules at the request of team officials.

Champion Rawls Picking Suggs

PEABODY, Mass. (AP)— Defending Champion Betsy Rawls picks Louise Suggs to win the next Women's National Open Golf Tournament which begins tomorrow at Salem Country Club.

Betsy, a 26-year-old miss who majored in physics at the University of Texas and has been specializing in the study of the flight and roll of a golf ball ever since, calls the top five as follows: 1. Miss Suggs, 2. Patty Berg, 3. Babe Zaharias, 4. Betty Jameson and 5. herself.

"That forecast is based on what we have done this year in competition," Miss Rawls says. "I'll try my best to upset my own prediction. Meanwhile, I'm not worrying about where I'll finish."

Betsy, Louise and the Babe, who has met and defeated cancer and has returned to a golf career some said would be beyond even her marvelous record of achievements within the last year, have dominated the tournaments. Each has won twice in the last eight.

Single rounds of 18 holes will be played tomorrow and Friday. Two rounds are scheduled for Saturday with the 40 lowest scorers qualifying for the last day.

If putting proves to be the most important factor in the open, Mrs. Zaharias may agree with Betsy Rawls' choice of Louise Suggs.

The Babe says she expects Miss Suggs and Miss Berg to be the sharpest putters on Salem's tricky greens.

Two late withdrawals—amateurs Bee McWane of Birmingham, Ala., and Nan Berry of Quincy, Ill., reduced the field to 57 of which 21 are professionals.

Today the participants get one more shot at the 6,393-yard layout before competition begins. So far Fay Crocker from Montevideo, Uruguay, has been the most consistent golfer with rounds of 75-74.

Cardinals Option Alston, Burgess

CINCINNATI (AP)— The St. Louis Cardinals last night announced the option of first baseman Tom Alston and outfielder Tom Burgess to Rochester of the International League.

Coming up to the parent St. Louis club is first sacker Joe Judge, 22, who has a .328 average with the Triple-A team.

Manager Eddie Stanky got a look at Cunningham last night in an exhibition game with Rochester.

Alston, the Redbirds' first Negro player from Greensboro, N.C., is the second $100,000 rookie to go to Rochester. Pitcher Memo Luna was the first. Alston was hitting just .244.

Al Rosen, slugging star of the Cleveland Indians, is the Ohio distributor of a canned soft drink.

Forgot The Ump And Giants Won

NEW YORK (AP)— Leo told me to stop fighting the umpire. He said if I had to get mad at anybody, I should get mad at the pitcher. So I did."

A jubilant Jim Rhodes was stretched out on the rubber table in the clubhouse last night trying to explain to reporters how he won the game for the New York Giants over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

It was Rhodes' pinch hit with the bases loaded and two out in the bottom half of the 13th inning that scored two runs and gave the Giants their thrilling 4-3 victory that increased their league lead over their interborough rivals to two games.

"Loes (pitcher Billy Loes) threw me two fast balls, both way a double," he said with gestures, "but the ump (Plate Umpire Frank Secory) called 'em both strikes. The second one missed the plate by the length of this Coca Cola bottle."

"Sure, I was mad, and I guess I told him a thing or two. That's when Leo (Giants Manager Leo DuRoche) came out to talk to me. 'Forget the umpire. Get ready for the next pitch,' he said as he was walking back to the dugout. I sure was ready. It was a real good fast ball—real good. It was the most important base hit I ever got in my life."

Men's Semifinals Taking Spotlight

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)— The men's singles semifinals took the spotlight today at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships—and the one everybody is talking about here pits America's Bjorge Patz against Egypt's Jiroslav Drobný.

These two veterans know just about every variation in each other's play. Their last five matches all went five sets and totaled 290 games. They met here last year too, and the battle raged a record 4 hours and 20 minutes before the Czech-born Drobný ousted his Los Angeles rival 8-6, 16-18, 3-6, 8-6, 12-10.

If that match isn't enough to satisfy the appetite of the fans, the other semifinal sending top-seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati against Australian Davis Cup ace Ken Rosewall should take care.

Trabert, the 23-year-old former collegian who hopes to turn professional if he can win this and a couple of more big ones, reached the peak of his game with a straight set victory over Mervyn Rose, another Aussie, Monday.

Both Baltimore and Milwaukee regained major league franchises after 52 year intervals.

Giants' Miracle Finishes Holding Them In Top Spot

The New York Giants apparently are going to stay in first place until they run out of miracles. So far their supply has seemed almost unlimited.

They pulled another one out of the hat last night, beating their bitter rivals, the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-3 in 13 innings when Dusty Rhodes delivered a two-out, pinch-hit single with the bases loaded and the Giants a run behind.

It was the 10th time this season that the Giants have won in their last chance at bat.

Three weeks ago yesterday a ninth-inning double by Monte Irvin drove in two runs for a 6-5 victory over Milwaukee. Two days later, still in Milwaukee, rookie Bill Taylor delivered a pinch home in the 10th for a 1-0 victory that moved the New Yorkers into a first-place tie with Brooklyn.

Nineteen games later they are two lengths in front of the Dodgers. During that time they've won 16 and lost 3, and six of those victories came in the final inning.

Brooklyn twice tried to steal the script last night. Trailing 2-0 after eight innings, the Dodgers kept the game alive as Jackie Robinson singled with one out in the ninth and rode home on Roy Campanella's two-out homer over the left-field grandstand. In the top of the 13th rookie Don Hoak sliced a homer into the nearby right-field seats.

But in their half of the 13th the Giants sandwiched three walks around two outs and Rhodes turned the crowd of 51,464 into a bedlam with his hit up the middle.

Elsewhere in the National League the Chicago Cubs lost their 11th in a row 7-0 to Milwaukee; Philadelphia whipped Pittsburgh 4-0, and Cincinnati crushed St. Louis 11-4.

Cleveland picked up a game on Chicago in the American League and now leads the White Sox by two games. The Indians beat Baltimore 5-1 but Chicago had to settle for a split in a twin bill with Detroit, winning 5-0 after losing 10-3. The New York Yankees stayed three games back with a 14-5 triumph at Boston. Philadelphia shaded Washington 3-2.

Art Houtteman of the Indians broke a five-game Baltimore winning streak with a five-hitter. One of the Orioles' hits was a single by Dick Kryhoski, who stretched his streak to 19 games, longest in the majors this season.

Detroit jumped ahead of the White Sox in the first game as Harvey Kuenn opened with a home run and the Tigers added a dozen more hits in piling up their seven-run winning margin. Sandy Consuegra checked them on three safeties in the ninth which was shortened to eight innings by the league curfew.

Mickey Mantle paced the Yankee assault on the Boston pitching corps with four hits in five times up, including a triple. Harry Byrd, unaccustomed to such robust support, weakened in the closing innings and needed help from Tom Gorman. Arnold Portocarrero, a likely

28 Racing Autos In 200 Mile Race

DARLINGTON, S. C. — Thirty eight AAA Indianapolis race cars will contest the July 5th AAA 200 mile Independence Day Sweepstakes at Darlington's International Raceway.

Entries closed Saturday, midnight, for the big holiday event. Time trials Friday and Saturday of this week will determine the fastest 30 of this field and they will face starter Bill Vandewater at 2:00 p.m. Monday.

Three last minute entries swelled the total to this figure. Manuel Ayulo, Los Angeles, was named to drive Peter Schmidt Special. The Cumur number 48 and Sid Street Special of Kansas City were entered without drivers named.

Constituting what is probably the finest field of cars and drivers ever to contest a national AAA event in the South, Darlington comes at a time when the Major League of racing faces a deadlocked fight for the lead in the National championship. Bill Vukovich, the Indianapolis winner, was tied by Jimmy Bryan, for the lead, when Bryan won the spectacular Langhorne (Pa.) 100 mile July 20th.

Jack McGrath, Indianapolis record holder is within striking distance of the lead. The Darlington 200 will resolve this title chase.

Besides Bryan and McGrath, Mike Nazaruk, Troy Ruttman, Don Freedland, Jimmy Reece, Larry Crockett and Chuck Stevenson, all in the first ten in national standings are entered. Stevenson, winner of the last two Mexican Road Races was also the victor at Milwaukee. Johnny Parsons and Walt Faulkner, previous Darlington winners, are also entered as is Marshall Teague, AAA stock car champion. Sam Hanks, defending AAA champion will drive the Bardahl Special.

NO FOREIGN MOTORS

No motor other than American make has been able to make the starting field in a AAA championship auto race, with the exception of Indianapolis, since 1937. A German Mercedes won at Roosevelt Field that year. An Italian Ferrari is being prepped for the Darlington (S.C.) July 5th AAA race.

Business Upturn By Fall Awaited

B. SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Having shot the rapid without major damage, businessmen at midyear look for pleasanter sailing come fall.

The summer doldrums may help in a number of cases. The factory shutdowns for July vacations should trim inventories a little more, let new orders and consumer demand build up.

For fall the outlook is for more new orders on the books, better sales, fewer layoffs, high weekly work hours, with factory employment rolls either at their present levels or rising if orders come in as now seems likely.

Most retailers seem confident now that in the next six months they can equal sales volume of a year ago. Some think they can surpass it. If so, it'll be a merry Christmas.

Few in industry and trade, however, look for sharp gains. They think rather that the long decline in business is over or about so, that the adjustment will continue here and there in some industries till fall that after Labor Day there are likely to be more plus signs than minus ones in the economy.

All but the most ardent booster, however, look for the upturn to be moderate and its pace as measured, and pleasant, as a wedding march.

This confidence is a reversal in chief, thinking of six months ago. The year started on a pessimistic note with worry increasing as the early months brought a string of factory layoffs and shortened work weeks.

Industrial output continued its downward slide until May, a total drop of 10 per cent.

Factory sales dropped 8 per cent, with the sales of durable goods down 12 per cent and the soft goods selling about as well as ever.

In sections where the economy is based largely on the manufacture of durable goods the winter and spring were not happy ones.

Some manufacturers aren't out of the woods yet. As a whole, they've knocked down their inventories of raw materials by 10 per cent and pared their stocks-in-process a little, but it's only since late spring that their stocks of finished goods have stopped piling up.

The two saving notes in all this are:

1. The consumer goes on buying about as much as ever, although shifting considerably from one class of goods to another and becoming more insistent in looking for a bargain.

2. Earnings hold much better than output and sales.

Tax cuts help in both instances. The consumer has the benefit either of less of an income tax bite on his paycheck, if he's drawing one, or of unemployment benefit payments if he isn't. On some goods, moreover, his dollar goes farther in the stores because of the excise tax cut.

Many a company expects its profits statements for the last half of this year to reflect rising sales and thus to top the same period of last year when sales were dropping.

Music Workshop Set July 6 For State HD Clubs

RALEIGH—July 6 will mark the beginning of a home demonstration first in North Carolina.

That's the day the music workshop at Catawba College in Salisbury is scheduled to begin. Mrs. Vernon James of Elizabeth City, chairman of the state home demonstration music committee, says the purpose of the four-day workshop is "to give volunteer music leaders the background and inspiration they need to return to their communities and build music appreciation programs among their people."

Dr. Arnold Hoffman of the State Department of Public Instruction is in charge of class arrangements. Assisting him will be Miss Bobbie Pritchard, Miss Doris Kimmel, Miss Pauline Bell, and Mrs. Ruth Parker, music specialists with the State Department of Public Instruction.

Japan's Careening Economy Has Slowed Its Mad Rush To Ruin

Editors: President Eisenhower in a speech last week called Japan the "Key to the defense" of the Western Pacific which must be helped lest it fall under Communist domination. Here is a summary of what Japan is doing to help itself.

By JIM BECKER
TOKYO (AP)—Japan in the past three months has slammed the brakes on the downhill plunge toward bankruptcy and social chaos.

The long skid toward disaster has not stopped for the nation which President Eisenhower this week called the "Key to the defense" of the Western Pacific. But the pace of the skid has slowed.

If the drivers keep their nerves—and the nation stands the strain—they may get Japan's careening economy under control and avoid the twin catastrophes of runaway inflation and a billion dollar foreign trade deficit.

The hands at the controls belong to hard-bitten Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and his conservative-minded Liberal party. But government economists see a little hope.

Eisenhower in a speech to the National Editorial Assn. said Japan must have help and the chance to trade if it is to be kept out of Red hands.

Japan is trying to help itself with an "austerity" program. In the past three months Japan, which must trade to live has begun to sell more abroad while holding down on things it buys. It is the first trade upturn for Japan in years.

As a result, shaky businesses are tumbling and the man in the street is finding it harder to make ends meet. But the government insists "austerity" is the only way to pull this teeming island empire back from the brink of disaster.

This is Japan's economic problem: It is buying products, mostly raw materials for factories and food for the people, from other countries at the rate of $2,300,000,000 a year. But Japan is selling abroad only about $1,200,000,000 a year.

U. S. military spending here amounts to about 700 million dollars a year, but this is dwindling since the truce in the Korean War.

Now Japan has only 800 million dollars in foreign currency in reserve to buy the things she needs from abroad.

To halt the alarming drain the government first tackled inflation by reducing the budget and the supply of credit. This will help increase exports by cutting prices of things Japan sells.

It also helps to cut imports by taking from circulation the money people would use to buy luxury goods.

"We have not tried hard enough to sell our products overseas," says Nobuhiko Ushiba, chief of the Trade Bureau of the Trade Ministry.

First to be cut were imports of luxury items. The streets of Tokyo are crammed with sleek new expensive American automobiles. This prosperous facade covered a crumbling economy.

While some U. S. observers call the government program "too little and very late," Ushiba said that "we have stabilized our imports at around the two billion dollar annual level."

"We must now strive for exports at the two billion dollar level in the next few years," he added.

That goal is not regarded as impossible since it would be but 80 per cent of Japan's prewar trade.

Government economists, architects of the "austerity" program, see an increase in unemployment and propose a social security program of unemployment insurance and the like to ward off unrest.

Eisenhower said Japan also must be allowed to trade with Red China—its ancient market. But government economists believe this trade would be only a fraction of Japan's total even if all restrictions are lifted.

Instead Japan is concentrating on building up industries where it can best compete in the free world—optical equipment, cameras, textiles, machinery, toys, canned fish and plastics.

The economic story being written today seems to be that the Japanese are going to draw their belts tight and very possibly pull through their blackest postwar period with out large-scale help from the outside.

DETROIT (AP)—Moving the brake pedal to the left foot would cut down rear-end accidents, says H.P. Bruns, auto engineer. He estimates it would cut 15 feet off stopping distances at 20 m.p.h.

Brun says it takes 3/4 of a second to take the right foot off the accelerator and depress the brake. But in cars with automatic transmissions, it would take only second to use the left foot to do the same job, he told the Michigan Safety Conference.

Memories Dear To Former Star

BLOOMFIELD, N. J. (AP)—In the '20s Will Oakland was a famous singer, a millionaire and the darling of society. Today, at 71, Oakland lives alone in a boarding house on an old age pension and a veteran's allowance. He lost his fortune in the depression. "The world doesn't owe me a thing," the veteran showman says. "I've got my health, my memories, what else could a man ask at my age?"

After appearances on several recent TV shows Oakland said: "I tell you, when I heard that applause again a chill went up and down my spine."

In remaking its map of Illinois recently, the U.S. Geologic Survey found that previous maps had shown Peoria, Ill. a mile away from its true position.

Do Taxis Need Radar System?

OMAHA (AP)—The cab driver snorted with disgust at a message heard over his two-way radio. "That's the third time today our operator has had to tell a driver where those apartments are." "What's wrong with that?" asked his passenger. "They're right across the street from our office," replied the cabbie.

So we ask you to take the wheel of a Buick ROADMASTER like the one shown here—for it is, we have found, the automobile chosen more and more by those who are definitely moving ahead in the world.

You will find it a car that fairly breathes success.

From its size and its breadth and the magnificent modernity of its styling, you know it is a car of custom stature—and so does the watching world.

The wondrous windshield is a pride in itself. You don't just see the view—you command it.

You will find it, too, a car of luxurious obedience.

From the moment you ease your foot down on the pedal, you take immediate mastery of the road and of distance.

And you know it—in the silken whip of Twin-Turbine Dynaflo, the might of Buick's greatest horsepower, the magic cushioning of coil springs on all four wheels, the exhilarating ease of Buick Safety Power Steering at your hand.

But with all this, you buy with prudence when you buy a ROADMASTER.

For—though it is, and looks, custom production—it sells for the lowest price-per-pound in the fine-car field. And so wise an investment makes you feel even more like the man you are.

Drop in, or phone us this week, and we'll gladly arrange a demonstration.

BUICK SALES ARE SOARING!

Latest figures for the first four months of 1954 show Buick now outselling every other car in America except two of the so-called "low-price three." Better look into Buick if you want the beauty and the buy of the year.

July Referendum On Wheat Control

U.S. farmers will be allowed to plant 55 million acres of wheat in 1955, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation secretary for Pitt County James Meredith said today.

Meredith said the 55 million acre figure is the level specified in the controlling legislation under conditions of excessive supply.

The ASC secretary said that an announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson received by his office: 1. proclaimed a national marketing quota for the 1955 wheat crop, in accordance with legislative provisions; 2. announced a national wheat acreage allotment of 55 million acres for 1955; the level specified in the controlling legislation under conditions of excessive supply; 3. set July 23 as the date for national referendum among wheat growers on acceptance of the proposed marketing quota; 4. announced that in 1955 wheat growers and others would have to comply with all acreage allotments established for a farm, and that bigger producers—with larger totals of diverted acreage—would also have to comply with a "total acreage allotment, in order to be eligible for price support on any crop produced on the farm."

price support which is in effect. The secretary indicated that farmers who are not within their allotments are not eligible for price support and are subject to the marketing quota penalties on excess wheat.

If quotas are not approved by wheat growers in the July 23 referendum, the law provides for wheat price support level at 50 per cent of parity for farmers who stay within their allotments, according to Meredith.

In the referendum last summer for the 1954 crop, producers approved marketing quotas by a vote of 390,221 to 57,536.

Cabbies Fighting Sovietized Taxis

By ALLEN JACKS
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Belgrade's independent, non-nationalized taxi drivers are fighting a tooth-and-nail battle to stay that way.

Their strange weapon: keeping fares down.

The drivers, who jockey ancient rattlers of many makes, are battling for survival against shiny new streamlined American cabs operated by a state-owned "enterprise." And the independents seem to be winning—by forcing their nationalized competitor to operate at a loss.

The capitalist-Communist feud, unequal but not unique in Communist Yugoslavia, began six months ago when the enterprise launched a new, modernized taxi fleet. It sold all its old jalopies and imported 24 medium-priced American cars.

With import duties and a complicated government tax called a "factor," each car cost about $20,000, or a total of $480,000 for the fleet. The enterprise had only $70,000 in cash from the sale of its old cabs. It obtained a $275,000 subsidy from the city of Belgrade, and borrowed the balance of $135,000.

Now reports Belgrade's Evening News, the enterprise is in "serious financial trouble." It can't pay off its debt. It can't get an additional subsidy. And it needs to double fares to meet current expenses alone.

That's where the independents come in. Higher fares, they say, would put everybody out of business, including the enterprise. Even the present fare (25 cents a mile), say the independents, is too high for the average passenger. They blame the situation on excessive taxation.

This leaves the enterprise on the brink of disaster, and the independents know it.

Harmless Bugs Still Nuisance

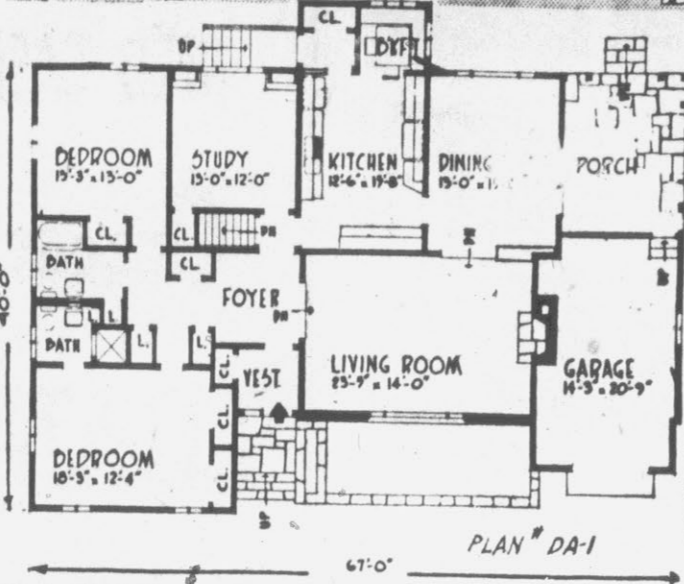

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—Lappocoris Trivittatus is plaguing Battle Creek. The harmless little bugs don't bite, undermine houses, create offensive odors or carry disease. But they're bugs—and are welcome.

Less formally known as box elder bugs, they are members of the sap sucking family of insects. Their favorite is the box elder tree.

The best method of getting rid of them, experts say, is to cut down the box elders. A less drastic method involves a spraying with DDT.

In 1940, U.S. women with less than 5 years of schooling who were 45 to 49 years old had an average of 4.33 children, indicating they were almost doubling themselves in the population while college graduates had only 1.23 children, providing little more than half their numbers in the new generation.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures
SPACIOUS, this house is planned for expansive living. All rooms are over size. The study provides for a third bedroom until children grow up, then can revert to a library, music room or hobby room. The garage is readily expandable to two-car capacity with porch enlarged accordingly. This is plan DA-1 designed by David J. Abrahams for the Architects' Home Plan Bureau, Box 141, Bethlehem, Conn. The house covers 1,945 square feet without garage and porch.

Russia At Last Gets Ice Cream

MOSCOW (AP)—The Malenkov government, pledged to give the Soviet common man more to eat and drink, says it is making good this summer on the ice cream front.

The press admits there is a long way to go before consumer goods are housing the desired level. But Soviet Trade, organ of Anastase Mikoyan's Ministry of Trade, says tons of ice cream are being produced.

"Ice cream is demanded more and more by all," this paper observes. "There has been a considerable increase in sales over last year. The number of sellers has been increased from 3,030 to 3,420. In addition there is more ice cream in restaurants and cafes. On hot days the volume sold in Moscow averages 160 to 170 tons and on June 13 it hit a record 200 tons."

Last week the government closed down Moscow's best known bar, the Kottal Hol and changed it into an ice cream parlor open from noon until 11:45 p.m.

Accused Pleads Pocket Defense

DARLINGTON, S. C. (AP)—To Circuit Judge J. Henry Johnson, the murder defendant's story was just like scores of others he had heard. The other fellow looked like he was reaching for a gun, the defendant testified.

"I hope," Johnson remarked, "I will live to see the day when manufacturers no longer put hip pockets in men's trousers."

Even Clients Unsure Of Value In Rain-Making

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter
WASHINGTON (AP)—The debate over whether to renew a contract with a rain-making firm was getting hotter and hotter at a meeting of officials in San Diego County, Calif.

Mayor Lloyd Harmond of Coronado threw in this comment: "A day of prayer would be more effective and would save taxpayers money."

His honor later qualified the remark to some extent but it underscores the mixed reactions turned up in an informal Associated Press survey of rain makers and rain making.

Commercial cloud-seeding firms have been in operation since shortly after Dr. Vincent Schaefer succeeded in producing man-made snow in a laboratory experiment at Schenectady, N. Y., in 1946.

Some of the firms are manned by top-flight scientists. They have been tried by local communities, farmers' organizations, public utilities and others. The firms generally claim they're able to produce—through seeding clouds with dry ice or silver iodide—increases in precipitation up to 50 per cent above what might normally be expected. One of them claims a more than 300 per cent increase during a job in Dallas, Tex.

The AP survey shows the reactions of clients vary. Most are simply undecided as to whether they got their money's worth, but of these some still are stringing along. In other instances rain-making firms have been rehired for several seasons.

Property owners who suffered damage from excess rainfall insist upon taking the rain makers' claims at face value. Suits totaling two million dollars have been brought against cloud seeders by some residents of New York state who claim they were hurt by too much rain. Three damage suits are pending against a prominent Western cloud seeder as the result of a flood in El Reno, Okla., in 1953.

On the bouquet side for the rain makers, the survey turned up such remarks as this one by President A. S. Cummins of the California Oregon Power Co., the first power company in the nation to launch an organized long-term plan of cloud seeding in its reservoirs: "We have had three good years. We think we've seen definite results. We can't prove it statistically, but we're satisfied. We expect to continue the experiment for another two years."

In the Sacramento area of California the number of farm groups sponsoring rain-making ventures has dropped from eight to four since 1951. But all three major power companies in the area are continuing full-scale rain-making efforts.

In several Wyoming counties drives are under way to raise funds for cloud-seeding projects. So far the farmers don't appear to be so interested as in past years.

Arizona farmers have spent several hundred thousand dollars on such projects in the past but can't make up their minds whether benefits resulted.

In New Mexico there was great enthusiasm several years ago but no projects are under way now. Ranchers and farmers say they think rain making might work but they see no immediate hopes.

Farmers in Yakima and other counties of Washington, organized as the Horse Heaven Water Development Corp., have given a commercial cloud seeder a new contract lasting until June 1958. Rain-making ventures have been under way every year since 1950 in Horse Heaven. A spokesman for the group told The Associated Press: "Statistically, I presume, it would be impossible to prove the success or failure of the operation at this time. However, we have had four good crops in a row, and the farmers in the territory seem to be satisfied."

One commercial operator, William J. Hartnett, president of the Weather Corp. of America, St. Louis, says he believes cloud seeding "has been overrated for farm purposes."

But he contends that utility companies, through increased water levels in reservoirs, can increase kilowatt hours without building new plants.

Dr. Irving P. Krick of the Water Resources Development Corp., of Denver—easily one of the world's busiest cloud seeders—says that since 1950 he has conducted more than 150 projects in the United States and six foreign countries. Areas of operations have ranged in size from 500 to 32,000 square miles.

He says expectable increases in rainfall vary with the operational season and the geographical area (in general the colder the clouds, the more rain which can be made by dry ice or silver iodide seeding). He says his firm has achieved rain increases ranging from 20 per cent in the southern United States, Mexico and Central America in the springtime to between 70 and 80 per cent in mountain snow operations in the United States in the winter.

Among a group of five of Krick's clients contacted by The Associated Press, three indicated faith in the techniques, another said there was "convincing evidence of some benefit," and the fifth said "no clear-cut evaluation was possible."

The city of Dallas, Tex., accepts Krick's claim that he and his associates increased the water in the Dallas watershed by 363 per cent in 1952-53.

North American Weather Consultants of Altadena, Calif. report about 30 commercial jobs since 1950, involving areas of about 4,100 square miles each. Average rainfall increase claimed: 33 1/2 per cent.

On the East Coast, Wallace Howell Associates of Cambridge, Mass., reports "we feel we have succeeded" in increasing rainfall on a number of jobs in the United States, Canada, Peru and Cuba.

Casinos Bone Up On Their English

BADEN-BADEN, Germany (AP)—The groupiers at Baden-Baden's famous gambling casino are boning up on their English. Once French, German and perhaps Italian sufficed. But these days the "Spielbank" sees more Americans than anyone else by their officers and civilians stationed in Germany or part of a huge tourist crowd.

As a result, this looks like this watering place's best year since before the war. A tropical garden in the Black Forest, the town of Baden-Baden has attracted kings, nobles and shoe manufacturers, butchers, bakers and candlestick makers for many generations.

The hotels are jammed. So are the places where maladies are treated with a series of "baths," hot, saline waters that gush from the earth and apparently have some properties to alleviate arthritis, rheumatism, gall bladder troubles, and even nervous tics.

The French still more or less "occupy" the area—it's part of their zone—but these signs are fast disappearing. The visitor taking a "cure" is now king.

Some doctors scoff at the baths. But old-timers who have been coming here for years are still ambling around at incredible ages, able to pack away three square meals a day; without burping and they contend there's something to it.

The bouncing American now holds sway in the gambling house, plus the newly rich German industrialist. Many come from all parts of West Germany for weekends of golf and spend their evenings in the casino. German marks are the going currency, roulette the favorite there. Bets average from one mark (23.8 cents) to 10 marks.

The daily exchange runs upwards of a million marks.

Fewer Cases

RALEIGH (AP)—Polio has shown a big decline in North Carolina.

Through June 25, only 43 cases had been reported this year as compared with 100 cases in the same period in 1953, the State Board of Health reported yesterday.

Last year, 70 of the 100 cases were recorded during June. Only 15 of the 43 cases this year have been recorded in June. The board said that a large proportion of the June, 1953, cases occurred in Caldwell County. So far this year Caldwell hasn't recorded a single case.

New Hanover has reported five cases, including four for June and one in April. The board pointed out, however, that five cases in a population of over 60,000 "is no cause for alarm."

Talks Concluded By Chou En-Lai

HONG KONG (AP)—Premier Chou En-lai returned to Communist China today after attending the Geneva conference on Asia and meeting with top officials in India and Burma.

The Red leader's plane stopped for an hour at this British crown colony for refueling before flying on to Canton and Peking.

Concluding their Rangoon talks, Chou and Burmese Premier U Nu issued a joint communique last night pledging to "strive their utmost for promotion of peace."

They expressed hope, particularly, that peace can be restored satisfactorily in Indochina.

The communique also announced that Burmese-Chinese relations would be guided by the same principles agreed upon by Red China and India to cover their relations on Tibet and reiterated by Chou and Indian Prime Minister Nehru at the end of their weekend conference in New Delhi.

These, the communique said, are "mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity and sovereignty, nonaggression, noninterference in each other's internal affairs, equality and mutual benefit and peaceful co-existence."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices moved gradually lower in early afternoon today after a higher opening.

Once again, the oil issues were under some selling pressure. Also lower were the steels, motors, electrical equipments, airlines and mail orders. The aircrafts were active and managed to hold to the plus side. Rails and chemicals were mixed.

Losses of a point or more were registered by Honolulu Oil, Ohio Oil, Amrad, Standard Oil (NJ) and Continental Oil. The petroleum shares have been weak for some time because of price cuts in gasoline and fuel oil prices.

The steels were uniformly lower, although some quarters said the industry would raise prices $3 to $4 a ton to cover new wage boosts.

United Fruit showed a good gain on developments in Guatemala. W. R. Grace, which also has interests in central America, traded around the high of the year.

Matheson Chemical showed a small gain following approval of plans to merge with Olin Industries. Allied Chemical, up sharply in recent sessions, declined today under profit-taking.

Lower stocks included General Motors, National Distillers, Dow, American Can Consolidated, Edison, Southern Pacific, 20th Century-Fox and General Electric.

Ask $35,000 in 2 Damage Suits

Two suits involving a sum of approximately $35,000 have been brought against Lang Grain and Seed Company, Inc., as a result of a fire in Farmville last November.

One suit, involving more than $25,000, has been brought by A. C. Monk and Co. Inc., and Affiliated PM Insurance Company. The complaint alleges that due to the negligence of an employee of the Lang company, a fire was started in a tobacco storage warehouse leased to A. C. Monk Company, the resulting damage amounting to a sum of $25,516.19.

The plaintiffs claim that on Nov. 21, 1953, a truck belonging to the defendant, and loaded with "dry corn shucks and other inflammable material," was parked next to the warehouse without permission.

The complaint alleges the truck was left unattended by the driver, the resulting fire was caused by his "negligence" and the Lang Grain and Seed Company is liable for the action of its employee.

The other suit has been brought against the Lang company by R. A. Fountain, R. A. Fountain Jr. and J. N. Fountain, owners of the storage warehouse, and Merchants and Business Mens Mutual Insurance Company.

The plaintiffs allege that as a result of the fire the warehouse was partially destroyed and damaged in the sum of $9,199.50.

In the complaint it is claimed the fire was caused by "negligence on the part of the defendant's driver or employee."

In yesterday's account of the suit in The Reflector, it was erroneously reported the warehouse belonged to the Monk company. However, it has since been learned the warehouse was leased to the Monk company.

Also in yesterday's Reflector it was reported the Affiliated PM Insurance Company was an affiliate of the A. C. Monk company, while actually the insurance company is an independent organization.

Says Self-Help Programs Should Match Studies

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Dean E. L. Lafferty of Lees-McRae College said here yesterday that a college self-help program "should be administered in as efficient a manner as the academic program."

Dean Lafferty spoke at the sixth annual Junior College Work Conference. The meetings ended today.

Dean Lafferty said a self-help program may exist to make work available to the student who must earn part of his college expenses, to give the college a labor supply not otherwise available, to enable the college to operate at less expense to the students, as a means of subsidy to certain students whereby the selected student receives more pay than the worth of the work he does, and as a training laboratory for the student.

But he said he thought the most important reasons were to give financial aid and to serve as a training ground.

Truman Said No Longer In Any Critical Stage

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Harry S. Truman's condition was reported as "better" last night although he was described as somewhat tired after a restless day.

The former President's recovery from an emergency operation June 20 has been hampered by an intestinal inflammation. His recovery appeared highly satisfactory for a few days after his gall bladder and appendix were removed in the operation. Then he was harassed by secondary infections and a hypersensitivity to drugs.

Yesterday, however, Dr. Wallace Graham, his personal physician, said he was no longer in a critical stage and that his condition is now "fair, but guarded."

In last night's report, a Research Hospital spokesman said the 70-year-old Truman had been somewhat nauseated and restless but "as a total picture for the day he was perceptibly better."

Hold-Up Man Is Squirted; Fled

BALTIMORE (AP)—George Frantum, a service station attendant, told police he was washing a car yesterday when a man approached him from behind and said, "Give me your money."

Frantum said he whirled around and squirted water in the man's face. The would-be holdup man gave a yell and fled.

No Tangible Sign Of New Effort To Save Indochina

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lawmakers found few tangible signs today in a statement by President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill of any immediate new American-British effort to save Indochina and her neighbors from the Reds.

Churchill said here on his departure for Ottawa yesterday that his five-day talks with Eisenhower had shown the unity of English-speaking peoples is "unbroken and unbreakable."

"I am sure that if we hold together, with all those who come to help us from every land and not only to save ourselves but also to preserve the cause of freedom in the world," he declared.

There was in Congress general agreement with this and approval of the Eisenhower-Churchill statement of principles issued shortly before Churchill left. But some senators professed to see more importance in the remark of British Foreign Minister Eden that the conference of leaders had laid the foundation "for the work we have yet to do."

Sen. George of Georgia, senior Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in an interview he believed that "some good was accomplished by the conference, but the British haven't changed their minds."

George added he thinks the British remain unconvinced that united action is possible or desirable in Southeast Asia and are resigned to French concessions to the Communist-led rebels in Viet Nam.

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) commented that the Eisenhower-Churchill statement of principles "leaves completely unanswered the pressing problem of the developing fall of Viet Nam behind the Iron Curtain."

Churchill and Eisenhower said in a statement Monday they had agreed to "press forward" with plans for a free nation alliance in Southeast Asia. But indications were that this would be preliminary planning only, and that the British were sticking to their position that no formal steps should be taken until the outcome of French-Communist peace talks on Indochina.

The United States had taken the position that an international conference to draw up such an alliance should be called at once.

Further discussion on plans for a Southeast Asian anti-Communist alliance was expected at a meeting of the Asian Council—an organization created by the 1951 Mutual Defense Treaty among Australia, New Zealand and the United States. The meeting was requested by Australia's minister of external affairs, Richard G. Casey, whose government is pressing for speed in bringing a Southeast Asian alliance into existence.

Secretary of State Dulles was due to attend for the United States. New Zealand Ambassador Leslie Knox Muir is the New Zealand member of the council in the absence of his foreign minister.

In their statement yesterday, Eisenhower and Churchill said their two countries will continue "in intimate comradeship" to work for a just world peace. They held out "the hand of friendship" to nations which by "solemn pledge and confirming deeds" show they want peace.

Promising not to entertain any treaty which would prolong the bondage of captive states, the two leaders pledged "every peaceful means to secure the independence of all countries whose people desire and are capable of sustaining independent existence."

Eisenhower and Churchill said the cause of peace would be advanced by "general and drastic reduction, under effective safeguards, of world armaments of all classes and kind."

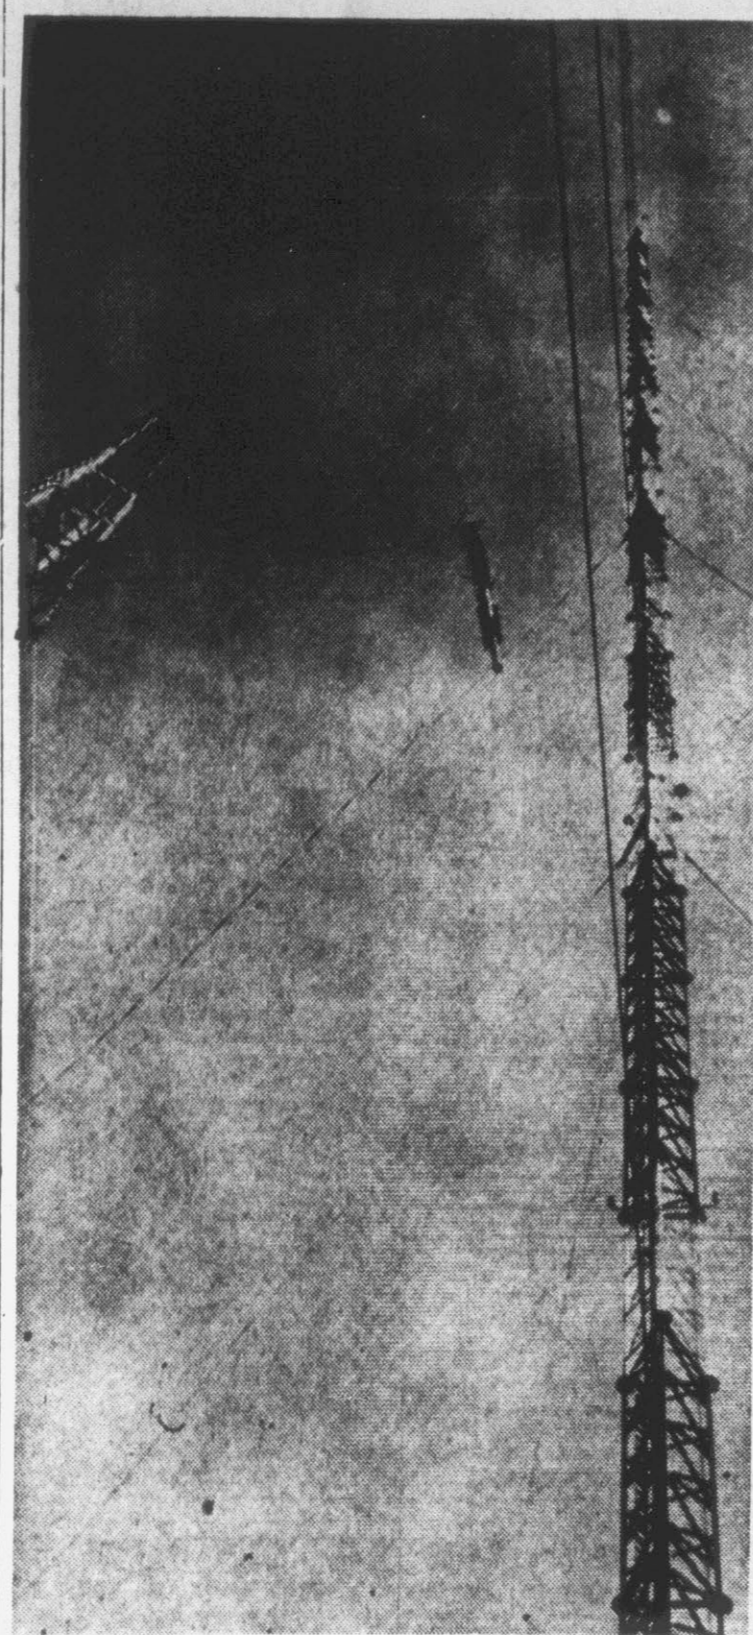

They promised continued support to the United Nations and urged the establishment of regional associations of nations, pledging aid in such enterprises "when desired by the people of the affected countries."

Sen. Cooper (R-Ky.), a former U. S. delegate to the United Nations, said this statement on regional associations seemed to him to keep open the road to a possible future Pacific pact such as has been suggested by Dulles.

But the Kentucky senator said that as he interprets the language, there is a condition that the countries directly affected must share the initiative in formation of any such association.

"While the leaders have undoubtedly reached a closer understanding, any accomplishments in this field lie ahead of us," Cooper said.

Most Of Laredo People Calm In Face Of Danger

By DAVE CHEAVENS

LAREDO, Tex. (AP)—Most of Laredo's 60,000 residents shrugged off the worst flood threat in history and slept soundly last night with the hungry Rio Grande gurgling at their doorsteps.

At 11:30 p.m. radio station KVOZ relayed official advice to the effect that the muddy, debris-choked river, gorged from upstream cloudbursts, had reached 58 feet and was not expected to exceed 60 feet in the next few hours.

The nonchalant Laredoans could go on to bed and to sleep. Most of them did. On a drive around the residential area this reporter saw only darkened homes and no signs of panic or even mild fear.

"It's the calmest place I ever saw," said Highway Patrol Sgt. W. S. Butler, state disaster liaison officer.

"There's been no exodus, no panic. Everybody seems to be taking it in stride."

There was little sandbagging or moving of goods from downtown business houses because most of the store owners were gambling that the river would not rise the five or six feet it would take to put muddy water in the downtown streets.

But for 1,000 persons in the 400 families who have been evacuated from homes near the river, trouble was piling up. They were housed and fed in four schools thrown open for refugees.

Many of them were like 14-year-old Benigno Layton, who lived with his father and mother, seven brothers and a sister on San Leonardo Street, less than a stone's throw from the roaring river.

They moved to a basement room in downtown Central School yesterday bringing only some of their furniture. Benigno works in a tortilla factory, his father is jobless, and their adobe (mud brick) home has been devoured by the river.

Benigno said it was pretty tough but his family had come through other floods. Mrs. Ray Stubbs, chairman of the Webb County Red Cross relief committee, with Mrs. Harold Pugh put him to work setting up cots and running errands, and he was still on the job at 2 a.m. while his family slept.

Out on State Highway 202, the last remaining auto link between Laredo and the outside world, a few Latin-American families were camping. One, father, mother and two children slept in their blankets by the roadside.

Here in Laredo, the long advance warning of the flood made it possible for most evacuees to find shelter with relatives or friends.

While most of Laredo slept, a smooth-working combination of local officials, state police, the military and state defense workers stayed on guard all night.

Five Learn High Price For Fleeing Road Gang

Five prisoners learned yesterday that the State of North Carolina sets a rather high price on escape from the Highway Department's road camps.

The five were tried before Judge Dink James in Pitt County Recorder's Court and given additional sentences for escaping from road gangs. They were among 27 persons who heard their cases tried and judgments passed by Judge James.

Two of the escaped convicts filed notice of appeal to Superior Court when their sentences were pronounced by Judge James. Edward Earl Stepps, sentenced to two additional years, and Alvin Koonce, sentenced to one extra year, were the two who appealed. Russell Taylor, Clarence Willie Myers, and Dock Benson Jr. accepted their six-month sentences without notice of appeal. The sentences for the three who did not file notice of appeal will begin as soon as their present terms are concluded.

Myers is presently serving a sentence of five years for highway robbery. Taylor has a 7-10 year sentence for armed robbery, and Benson is in the process of serving 20 years for a crime against nature.

Other cases heard yesterday by Judge James were constituted mainly of violations of motor vehicle laws. Those cases were as follows:

Woodrow Payton, no operator's license and improper lights, continued until July 13; Albion Ray Brown, speeding (70 m.p.h.), guilty, prayer for judgment continued and suspended upon payment of costs and suspension of driver's license for 15 days; Theron Coley Vainwright, speeding (80 m.p.h.), transferred to Superior Court for jury trial under bond of $100;

David Leroy Pinkham, driving drunk, continued; Lewis Junior Johnson, non-support, continued; Harry Edgar Mobley, careless and reckless driving, guilty, $25 fine and costs, license suspended for 90 days; Matho Harper, assault, not guilty; W. D. Little, worthless check, court found defendant had wilfully refused to comply with sentence imposed June 22 (60 days suspended upon payment of costs and amount of check), sentence to be placed in effect unless defendant complies with court order immediately;

Michael E. Ellovich, speeding (65

Progressively Larger Nat'l Income And Wider Distribution Advocated

CHAEI HILL, N.C. (AP)—A Brookings Institute economist says "We must strive for a progressively larger total national income and see that it is widely distributed."

Speaking at the Economic Education Workshop here yesterday, Col. Charles A. H. Thomson, education director of the Institute since 1951, said "Our economy must offer every capable individual opportunity to earn his own income. And most important, our society must allow maximum development of the capacities of every individual."

He said that eight times the standard of living for twice the population is the potentiality of the American economy. Saying that this was not a prediction, Col. Thomson said "We must be clear about our goals and must observe certain requirements."

"We must base individual rewards primarily on work performed. We must increase economic security to a point well short of the absolute security of the slave state," he declared.

Telephone Office Pays $14,163 In Property Taxes To City And County

The Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company through its local manager, Frank Harrington, today presented checks to the county of Pitt and the city of Greenville amounting to $10,163.33 and $4,801.41, respectively.

These amounts representing the estimated ad valorem taxes for the city and county are based on the valuations of the company's property in the city and county as determined by the State Board of Assessment on other than real property and the local valuation of the "Substantial defects of character and imprudent and dangerous associations, particularly with known subversives who place the interests of foreign powers above those of the United States, are also reasons for disqualification," said the report, and it added:

"We find Dr. Oppenheimer is not entitled to the continued confidence of the government and of this commission because of the proof of fundamental defects in his character."

"We find that his associations with persons known to him to be Communists have extended far beyond the tolerable limits of prudence and self-restraint which are to be expected of one holding the high positions that the government

WNCT Resumes Telecasts Today

Television station WNCT officials announced at noon today that the station will return to the air this afternoon.

The television station left the air at the close of the broadcast day last Sunday and since that time has been off while the TV antenna was transferred from a temporary from which the station has been operating since last December to the new permanent tower, which has an overall height of 874 feet.

Navy To Modify Launching Gears

NEW YORK (AP)—The Navy will modify the plane-launching catapults on all but two aircraft carriers as a result of the May 26 explosion aboard the carrier Bennington. The disaster cost more than 100 lives.

A Navy official said yesterday all carriers affected by the modification plan have catapults operated on a hydraulic principle, except the Intrepid and the Hancock, which have steam catapults.

Although no official cause for the Bennington disaster has been announced, the Navy believes the explosion and the fire started in the catapult.

Obsolete Plane Crash Kills Two

MOOREVILLE, N.C. (AP)—An obsolete Army plane crashed in a field about five miles from here yesterday killing two Charlotte men aboard.

The victims were Serrell Kirkwood Rensing Jr., 25, and George Shaw Overcash Jr., 32, both of Charlotte.

Harold Miller, a Piedmont Air Lines co-pilot and owner of the Miller Airport, a mile from where the crash occurred, said he saw the plane start down and heard it hit.

Nearly half a million U.S. people work in banks, nearly double the number so employed in 1936.
