Attorney General's Office Weighs Pitt Election Issue Re-Count Ruling Awaited

Pitt County election officials today were waiting for an opinion from the state Attorney General's office relative to the request of S. A. Whitehurst for a recount of ballots in the Pitt sheriff's race.

Whitehurst said he would prefer not to discuss the contents of the affidavits he will file with the Board of Elections until after they have been received by the board.

At the meeting of the Elections Board Tuesday, Whitehurst requested a recount in all 26 of Pitt County's precincts. He stated at the meeting his principal reason for requesting a complete recount was because of the situation which came to light in connection with the Bethel ballot box.

Rival Income Tax Cut Bills Defeated In Senate Struggle

WASHINGTON (AP)—Any chance for a general-income tax cut in the big tax revision bill appeared dead today after rival Democratic and Republican proposals both were beaten in a crossfire of political maneuvering.

The two defeats assured the Eisenhower administration of one of its biggest victories of the 1954 congressional session — enactment of the tax bill just about as it was recommended to the Capitol.

Forces Yield Most Of Prized Delta Area To Reds French Pulling Out

SINGAPORE (AP)—Much of the Red River Delta, key prize in the bitter Indochina war, was falling into the hands of the Communist-led Vietminh tonight without a fight.

French Union forces were evacuating swiftly from their hard-to-hold centers in the Delta area. The end to the savage 8-year-old struggle appeared to be not far off.

That automatically meant an area embracing thousands of villages peopled by around four million Vietnamese was dropping into the hands of the troops of Vietminh Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap.

Credit Women And Guests Hear Utilities Speaker

Credit Women of the Greenville Credit Women's Breakfast Club, with their employers as breakfast guests, held their second meeting of the month on June 26, 7:30 a.m. at the Woman's Club President Frances Cassick presided, and for roll call each member was asked to stand, give her name, her firm's name and to introduce her employer. Second Vice President and Program Chairman Mrs. Henrietta Johnson of Best Jewelry Company, in charge of the program, introduced Mr. John Clark club sponsor and chairman of the Greenville Utilities Board. Mr. Clark gave a very interesting and informative talk on the work, cost and production of the Utilities plant and the advantages to the City of Greenville in owning its own Utilities. He told how out of its surplus from eighty to one hundred forty-two thousand dollars annually was turned back to the City General Fund for city government and improvements, whereas, if owned by outside interests, not a penny of this would be available. He also spoke of the necessary foresight in planning by the Greenville Utilities Commission to keep in step with Greenville's tremendous growth and the increased consumption of lights, power, gas and water each year, and added that the recent tie-in with the Virginia Electric and Power Company was a step in this direction to prevent a cut-off in power in case of plant trouble where now he said, merely the flick of a switch would give uninterrupted service without even the knowledge of the consumers that such transfer of service had been made. Mr. Clark said that this service was here for us to use whenever needed and that newcomers, new businesses and new home construction now presented no utilities problem. He introduced Mr. Bloom, new superintendent of Greenville Utilities, who greeted the members and gave a resume of his work at the power plant and invited all citizens to visit the plant whenever they wished to see for themselves this important phase of the city's life.

She said that Mr. Marshall thought it might be necessary to make this talk in two parts and that he would come over from Rocky Mount for both meetings if desired, and that if possible Thursday morning instead of Saturday morning would be more convenient for him. President Cassick asked the club's wishes for this change, which was granted. The meeting adjourned with the Club Creed.

Former Pitt Girl Joins Staff Of Health Dept.

Mrs. Evelyn Ginsberg is shown at work this morning in the Pitt County Health Department. This is Mrs. Ginsberg's first day on duty as a staff nurse with the Pitt Health Department. Prior to coming to Pitt County she worked with the Sullivan County, New York, Health Department as a staff nurse. Mrs. Ginsberg is the former Miss Evelyn Whitehurst of Robersonville. (Staff Photo by Bob Boyette)

A former Pitt County girl who was trained and practiced nursing in New York City, joined the Pitt County Health Department as a staff nurse today.

Mrs. Evelyn Ginsberg, formerly of Robersonville, Route 1 (Parmelee), joined the Health Department staff today, replacing Miss Jacquelin Moore—who resigned last May 1 to become a nurse with the United States Air Force.

Mrs. Ginsberg graduated from Bethel High School in 1930 and from the Beth Israel Hospital as a registered nurse in 1933.

In 1933 she married Sidney Ginsberg. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Evelyn Whitehurst, daughter of Mrs. J. E. Whitehurst of Robersonville and the late Mr. Whitehurst.

Upon graduation Mrs. Ginsberg not only got married, but also became a staff nurse at Beth Israel Hospital—a position she held for two and one-half years.

After the tour of duty as a staff nurse she did private duty nursing for about five years in New York. In 1939 she began taking public health nursing courses at Fordham University in New York City.

In 1942, Mrs. Ginsberg became a staff nurse on the New York City Health Department. She remained there through 1943. Again in 1945 she took a position on the New York City Health Department and stayed through 1946, when she retired to "raise her family."

She has two sons, Gerald, 10 and David, 6.

Due to the health of her husband Mrs. Ginsberg began working again last February. She became a staff nurse on the Sullivan County, New York Health Department.

Mr. Ginsberg died in March, so Mrs. Ginsberg decided she would like to return to Pitt County.

She got the job vacated by Miss Moore so she left the Sullivan County department June 15.

Mrs. Ginsberg and her two sons reside at 201 South Library Street, which happens to be next door to her two sisters. One of her sisters, Mrs. Hugo Williams lives at 1202 East Second Street while the other, Mrs. Clarence Oakley, lives at 1204 East Second Street.

She said "I live on Library Street, but it happens to be right next door to my sisters. Why we have the same driveway."

When questioned on how it felt to be back in Pitt County, she only said, "Good."

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, director of the local Health Department, said he was pleased to get "qualified" people on the staff who are also local people" when questioned about Mrs. Ginsberg.

Miss Moore, who joined the Air Force as mentioned above, is Lt. Moore now—stationed at Parks Air Force Base, Calif.

Are We To Forget Lessons Of History?

President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Churchill apparently reached an agreement on a broad policy of peaceful coexistence with communism and the free world. What that principle of coexistence means, or how it will be reflected in the foreign policy of the United States remains to be seen.

The United States has been the world's leading opponent to communism since the days of World War II. The British government, on the other hand, gradually has modified its attitude toward communism and the Kremlin which dictates communist policies.

President Eisenhower, commenting on the meeting with Churchill, asserted the hope of the world lies in peaceful coexistence with the communist. But he added he would not be a party to "any agreement that makes anybody a slave."

We assume the President means he is willing to adhere to a policy of live-and-let-live between freedom and communism in the world as long as the communists adhere to the policy.

As we understand communism under the Kremlin dictatorship, however, its basic policy is to live and enslave. Certainly that is the policy international communism has followed since the close of World War II. Frankly, we see no hope of the policy changing in the near future.

Recall for a moment the bitter days of the past half century. Prior to World War I, the free nations assumed they could live with Germany, and that the German military government had no ulterior motives in the way of geographical conquests. We were so wrong.

The late Prime Minister Chamberlain returned from Munich assured that Hitler meant no harm and would adhere to the principle of live-and-let-live between his nation and his European neighbors. But Hitler proved true to his past rather than to his promises of future action.

At the time the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, Japanese diplomats were in Washington making peace overtures to officials of

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
WHAT PRICE EDUCATION?
Statistics show that a college education costs about twice what it did twelve years ago. The kind of education that continues through life is costly, too. People who wish to keep the cost down are willing to learn from the advice and experience of others. But some people insist on finding out everything first-hand for themselves; and such an education can be very costly indeed.

A young man of our community has just made a down-payment on this sort of education. Some months ago he set out to learn, as he said, "to drink like a gentleman." While he was still experimenting with this nebulous standard, he drove a girl home from a party one night. The police found the speedometer of his wrecked car stuck at over seventy.

He was not badly hurt. But the girl, after two months, is still in a coma. She has not spoken yet, except that from time to time, when some dim recollection of the accident apparently crosses the torn fragments of her mind, she gives a terrible scream. The man will be paying for this piece of education all his life; and still it will not be paid for.

Scholars who wish to learn all there is to know about a subject generally begin by inquiring what others have already found out. This is a wise practice for us all.

(Be careful how you drive over the coming weekend.)

Incipient Scientific Rebellion

WASHINGTON—The scientists' stampede to Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer's defense has reached such proportions here and abroad that it portends a threat to national security and prestige, in the opinion of the White House, the Pentagon and atomic experts at Washington. It has already lined up the scientific intelligentsia against the Government in the thermonuclear war with Russia.

According to members of the Gray Board and the Atomic Energy Commission, the scientists are laboring under a misapprehension. Time and again, during the hearings Gray Board members emphasized that they were trying only a single and eccentric individual, not a specific or separate group of Americans.

As they point out, the fact that Alger Hiss was a brilliant lawyer did not mean that Congress and the Department of Justice were investigating and prosecuting and slinging out the legal profession for condemnation. More lawyers and politicians than scientists have been placed on the grill at Washington in recent years. Yet, they are not sulking in their tents, quitting their professions or refusing to serve Uncle Sam.

ALARMING REBELLION—President Eisenhower and his defense aides do not know how to combat this incipient scientific rebellion and boycott, although deeply alarmed by its extent and emotional excesses. It may be that they will hold a council of eminent scientists to place the Oppenheimer decision before them in a new light. Or a "white paper" on the subject may be forthcoming.

It is Washington's belief that Oppenheimer's defenders cannot have read the voluminous record, especially his examination by Roger Robb, the Gray Board's counsel. The official feeling on the basis of this document is that Oppenheimer was given every possible break, in view of the mass of damning evidence developed against him. Board members believe they were lenient.

LENIENT WITH OPPENHEIMER—The Board gave almost no weight to the fact that Oppenheimer had deceived atomic security officers and the General the United States government.

Surely by now, we should have learned that a leopard does not change its spots; and a poisonous snake does not become another creature when it sheds its skin.

Modern history has shown positively the past actions of communism are much more reliable in evaluating future actions than communist promises of good intentions. It would be folly for us to be lulled into believing otherwise.

Ayden Outlook Reflected In School Bond Vote

The result of Ayden's school bond election held Saturday is significant not only to that school district, but likewise significant to all the people of Pitt County and North Carolina as well.

Voters of Ayden School District passed the $300,000 bond issue 420 to 326 in the first school bond election held in Pitt County since the United States Supreme Court announced its ruling that segregated schools are unconstitutional. It is one of the first, if not the first, school bond election held in the state since the ruling was announced.

By their vote, the citizens of Ayden School District indicated their preference to go along with plans for expanding school facilities to meet their needs. Obviously they felt the need for facilities weigh more heavily in the balance than the many unanswered questions which now surround the future of the state school system.

Money from the Ayden bond issue is to be used to erect a new elementary school and to renovate the high schools of the district.

By their vote, the citizens of the Ayden School District have indicated their conviction that progress of public schools can not stand absolutely still until the Supreme Court issues its decrees which will spell out the meaning of its ruling. We do not know whether the money voted by the Ayden School District Saturday will be spent before those decrees are issued; but even if it is not, the district will have money on hand to carry out a new building program when school officials decide the time is right to begin the program.

The Ayden decision is one to which residents of other school districts are likely to look when confronted by a question similar to the one resolved Saturday by Ayden School District voters.

Selected Shorts

"Could the FHA scandals, coming on top of the RPO disclosures, mean that the federal government has no business in the loan business? Well, yes—also that it has no business in business." The Freeman

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, MINN., DAILY JOURNAL: "There's no denying that the money from Washington comes in handy for the state agencies and subdivisions of government facing ever-increasing demands for service and improvements. The fact remains, however, that eventually all of the money for government functions comes from the taxpayers. There's no magical factor in government financing. No agency of government has access to funds other than those which are paid by or levied against the credit of the American public."

The Gray Board denied him future "clearance" for thermonuclear secrets for two reasons only. The first was that he undoubtedly delayed development of the H-bomb for four years even after Truman gave the go-ahead order. The second was that Oppenheimer "could go fishing for the rest of his life" without hurting or helping future developments in this field. He is not an "indispensable man" in preparing for a possible thermonuclear conflict.

DECISIONS BASED ON DR. TELLER'S TESTIMONY—The Board based these decisions on detailed testimony by Dr. Edward Teller, the Hungarian-born scientist known as "father of the H-bomb." A friend of Oppenheimer, he testified with obvious reluctance. But the following colloquy between him and Robb are the most important passages in the million words of testimony in this historic controversy.

Robb: In your opinion, if Dr. Oppenheimer should go fishing for the rest of his life, what would be the effect upon the atomic energy and thermonuclear programs?

When Robb explained that he referred to Oppenheimer's H-bomb assistance "after the war," Teller replied:

"I should say that committees could go fishing without affecting the work of those now actively engaged in the work. In particular, however, the general recommendations that I know have come from Oppenheimer were more frequently, and I mean not only and not even particularly the thermonuclear case, but in other cases, more frequently a hindrance than a help, and therefore . . . I think that further work of Dr. Oppenheimer on committees would not be helpful."

Now a new name has been injected in the speakership talk. Rumor has it that the Allied Church League and its closely associated Committee for Better Government are promoting Gordon Maddrey of Hertford for speaker. If a race develops between Moore and Maddrey it will be the first test of strength on the issue of a state-wide vote on alcoholic beverages.

Edwards, Moore and Worthington are from ABC counties; Holmes has consistently voted with

Somebody Told Me

Being In Front Of TV Camera

(Short-wave radio note: Remember John Horne, cousin to the Greenville Hornes, who lived in Greenville before World War II? John has been living in Denver, Colo. for several years and last night I talked to him through the facilities of WO-SYA.

How does the man in front of the television camera feel? Yesterday morning at 8:45 Amos Leggett and I had the opportunity to find out. After reading yesterday's column about our (Amos, Boo Ross, Roy Phelps and me) batch of 112 blue fish at Morehead, Kevin Conway had us appear on his regular weekday TV program, Let's Go Fishing.

As far as telling our fish stories, Amos and I had it made. Each of us would back the other up in whatever he said.

The amazing thing about being in front of a TV camera is that it gives you no fright; not even as much as a microphone. The atmosphere is so informal at the station that you don't stop to realize that there are potentially one million people on the other side of the camera. We figured at 8:45 in the morning there were considerably less than that.

The lens is the gadget that you have to watch. There are two studio cameras and three lenses on each one. The camera operators switch from one lens to the other in order to get the best shot, while the switcher in the control room switches from one camera to the other to improve the shot even more. The man in front of the camera can tell which camera is on by a pair of red lights that light up the live camera.

No doubt you have noticed amateur TV performers looking at the wrong camera. That's because they fail to watch the red lights. The camera operators are in constant communication with the control room. With a headphone and tiny microphone the camera operators receive instructions and by cupping their hand over their mouth can talk back to the control room.

Two monitors in the control room pick up the view of both cameras, regardless of which one is on the air, and the switcher takes his choice of the picture that goes out over the air.

A conventional TV set serves as a monitor in the studio. If you have the courage to look, you can see how you look in the living room as you are appearing on TV.

It takes a lot of imagination to stare into a lens only a few inches in diameter and visualize what's on the other side of it.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

RULES FOR HOSPITAL Visiting (Goldsboro News-Argus)

One of the greatest problems for Wayne Memorial Hospital is "visiting." The moment visiting hours open, throngs of people swarm into every corridor. It is not unusual for rooms to be completely filled with visitors, extra chairs brought in and two to four people stand or squat on the floor.

Goldsboro is noted for its friendliness, but in the matter of hospital visiting, friendliness can be overcome. Sometimes where there are two patients in a room, one patient most assuredly should not have company for his comfort and quicker recovery.

He can be tired out and made nervous by the visitors who flock in to see his roommate.

Many hospitals are adopting or have adopted a card system to control visits to the patients. As callers arrive at a hospital and ask about the room number of a patient, they are given cards of admission to the room. Only two cards are provided for any one room, reducing the number of visitors at any one time to that number. When callers have ended their twenty-minute visits, they turn in the cards at the visit-control desk in the lobby.

Why would it not be a good idea for this system to be studied thoroughly with the idea of adopting it for Wayne Memorial Hospital?

In connection with hospital visiting, Blanche Manor reprints a description of the Perfect Visitor who goes to see the sick at a hospital:

The Perfect Visitor tramples not on hard heels; neither does he shout.

He walketh softly and speaketh quietly, for ill people are easily disturbed.

The Perfect Visitor goeth home soon. He (or is it more often she?) might like to chat all afternoon, but is considerate of the weary patient—particularly in hot weather.

The Perfect Visitor talketh of the pleasant things in life; he smileth often and his demeanor is cheerful. Though at heart he may be a pessimist, he knoweth that the patient has his own more ominous troubles. Verily, he brings sunshine into the room.

The Perfect Visitor knoweth what a chair is for—he sits on it. He perches not upon the bed, joining the aching head or obstructing the restless foot.

The Perfect Visitor beareth with him no cold in the head. Through he is up and about and considers a sneeze or a cough as nothing, he inclineh not his germs upon the helpless patient.

The Perfect Visitor thinketh twice about gifts. If he bringeth flowers, he selects those of delicate fragrance—or perhaps a plant which lasts longer. He considers carefully the appropriateness of fruit or candy for those with troubled stomachs.

The Perfect Visitor is always welcome for he observeth visiting hours. Patient and nurses smile upon him, for he is as a precious jewel—above price.

Wilson Legislator On Inside Track For House Speaker

By LYNN NISBET SPEAKERSHIP

With all but three of four members of the House of Representatives already selected attention is centered on the speakership, the presiding officer of the 1955 session. The three or four doubtful seats are in counties where the Democratic-Republican division is so close it will take the November election to decide who will come to Raleigh.

It has been rather generally conceded that Larry I. Moore Jr., of Wilson has the inside track for the speakership. Alonzo Edwards of Greene, Sam O. Worthington of Pitt and Carroll Holmes of equians are recognized as receptive, but so far not active, candidates for the post. Before the May 29 primary, when reports from Wilson indicated, Larry Moore might be in danger of defeat, Worthington used the prospective speakership as an argument in his campaign for re-election in Pitt, while Edwards and Holmes assumed a watchful waiting attitude.

Now a new name has been injected in the speakership talk. Rumor has it that the Allied Church League and its closely associated Committee for Better Government are promoting Gordon Maddrey of Hertford for speaker. If a race develops between Moore and Maddrey it will be the first test of strength on the issue of a state-wide vote on alcoholic beverages.

Edwards, Moore and Worthington are from ABC counties; Holmes has consistently voted with the local option group. His county does not have legal liquor stores, but does permit sale of beer and wine. Maddrey has been for three sessions one of the staunchest opponents of the legalized sale of liquor.

The alcoholic beverage issue would be only one of a number of factors involved in the speakership contest, but if the race is made mainly on that point it will be the first indication of the composite legislative attitude.

REGULATIONS—One matter given casual attention by the lawyers at their recent convention is the need for a publication in North Carolina somewhat like the Official Register of the Federal Government. The purpose is to afford wider publicity about rules and regulations having the force of law adopted by the various administrative agencies.

There are a number of agencies, such as the Board of Agriculture, the Board of Health, the Highway Commission, the Wildlife Resources Commission and others, with ordinance making powers. The rules and regulations adopted have the effect of statutory law and violation may lead to arrest, fine and imprisonment of the violators. Yet there is no adequate provision for general publication or distribution such as required for acts of the General Assembly.

W.C. Lassiter, attorney for the N.C. Press Association, reported at the Lake Junaluska meeting that he had discovered there are 42 instances in which the Board of Agriculture alone can adopt enforceable ordinances. The action can legally be taken in a number of instances without any previous notice or hearing, and in only seven cases are public open hearings required.

Figures are not at hand as to number of cases in which the Wildlife Resources Commission may enact "laws" for governing hunting and fishing, but they are numerous. There are statutory requirements for posting or filing copies of the regulations, but provisions are utterly inadequate for general distribution of the information necessary for the convenience of the public.

An official register published at frequent regular intervals by the State and available to public officials without charge and to others interested at cost would go a long way toward solving the problem.

PROTECTION—It is axiomatic that ignorance of the law is no excuse for violating it. It is also true that lawyers who accept fees from clients for advising them are presumed to know the law, and the clients have a right to rely upon their counsel. At the same time it is admittedly unfair to expect lawyers to be mind readers with respect to actions of the 40-odd regulatory boards and commissions doing business in North Carolina. It is obviously unjust to fine or imprison a citizen for violation of a rule about which he has had no opportunity to learn and which his lawyer has had inadequate chance to know about.

When the alleged violation is

Business Today U.S. Drug Market

By ELMER ROESSNER
The United States maintains world leadership in industrial production and in atomic energy development through a "know-how" that involves perfection of the production line, automation and other replacements of men by machines. But it's not generally known that this same know-how gives America world leadership in the drug market.

One of the factors in this leadership is the contract manufacturers. Many of the big drug companies make all their own products. But a small drug company, or even a chain of retail stores, can go to a contract manufacturer and get research, compounding, packaging, labeling and shipping. Without these firms, each company with a formula to market would have to build a plant, buy machinery, hire a laboratory, assemble a manufacturing staff and make other investments.

There are two large companies in this field—Arner Co. of Buffalo and Strong-Cobb Corp. of Cleveland—and a large number of smaller ones. Arner calls itself the largest in the world and its machines turn out around 2 billion pills and tablets a year, plus a vast quantity of liquid and powder medicines. It markets nothing under its own label.

The facilities of the large companies are carefully designed for accuracy. The average pill or tablet contains three or four drugs and multivitamin tablets contain as many as 20 ingredients. The proportions in each pill must be more nearly exact than human care can make them. Precision machines do what flesh and blood cannot.

Some pills must be so made that the walls do not disintegrate until a specific time after swallowing. This time factor can be made fairly exact. Some companies, such as Arner, use synthetic gastric juice in which to test timing of pills.

Some pills contain two ingredients which must be released separately; manufacturers can put thin soluble walls in them to make this possible. These large laboratories also can help develop new medical products or test ones already developed. Without such laboratories, hundreds of products now on sale might never have reached market and the cost of hundreds of others would be far higher.

SOME METALS AMPLE, OTHERS FOUND SCARCE
The nonferrous metal market is far from steady, according to a committee report to the National Association of Purchasing Agents. Aluminum and cadmium supplies are ample; copper and silver markets are firm, and nickel is very scarce. Prices of lead and zinc, the report says, "can move either way," depending a lot on the government's stockpiling policy. Unstable political conditions in the Far East, government action on the International Tin Agreement, and stockpiling policies are tending to hold the price of tin near current rates, the specialists said.

AUTOS GET BIGGER SLICE, DEPARTMENT STORES LESS
Department stores, which made 7.9 per cent of all retail sales in the typical prewar year of 1941, are now making only 6 per cent of the total, according to a study of the retail trade by Calvin Bullock.

There are several reasons, one being that automobiles are pre-empting a much larger share of expendable income, having risen from 14.7 per cent in 1940 to 18.1 per cent in the 12 months ended last April.

BRITAIN KEEPING AD MEN OUT OF TELEVISION
In Great Britain it's considered unethical for an advertising agency executive to own an interest in any advertising medium. Now, Printer's Ink reports, this idea is being written into the law. The new Commercial Television Bill provides that agency personnel cannot be directors, officers or servants of companies providing programs for commercial tele-

Girls, Go Shoot An Elephant

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Any girl who falls to ambush a husband during the summer open season on bachelors can soothe her pride by going to Africa and mowing down an elephant.

Miss Beverly Putnam is organizing the first all-girl elephant safari in history. The 49-day trip, starting Sept. 10, will cost $3,120, plus $214 for a license that "allows one elephant only."

"But the ivory from an elephant ordinarily sells for about $300," said Beverly, practically, "so that should cover the cost of the license. It isn't necessary to buy an elephant gun. They can be rented."

Beverly, tall, pretty, dark-haired and 32, is no stranger to Africa. Since her childhood days in a convent, she had dreamed of adventure in far places. Last winter she hrew up her job with Scandinavian Airlines to lead a group of 14 girls on a 38-day safari to Africa.

The party, ranging in age from 27 to 60, included housewives, single girls, widows and divorcees. Two of the ladies took one long look at Africa, and headed back home. But a durable dozen stayed and had a fine time, banging away at the landscape.

"Only 6 bunted with guns—the rest used cameras," said Beverly. She herself bagged a buffalo, a zebra, two gazelles, a wildebeest and a hartebeest.

Can a dozen or more women actually have any fun together on a safari?

"Of course they can," said Beverly. "We'll have 5 white hunters and 45 native boys in the party."

"We'll have hot water at all times, plenty of ice cubes we take along a refrigerator, home-made ice cream, and fresh eggs every morning. The native chef specializes in dishes such as antelope soup and gazelle barbecues."

"The first three days are rough-personality-wise. You average 50 to 75 miles a day in hunting cars, and your bottom gets real sore. The sun gets you down at first, too, and sometimes the tsetse flies are bothersome.

"But there is so much else to make up for it the excitement during the day the night around the campfire, listening to the coughing of distant leopards and the howling of hyenas."

"The women soon learn to get along—if they are ever going to get along. Of course, sometimes there are some petty jealousies. The fight to get seats next to the white hunters at dinner time can become pretty fierce."

However, the possibility of romance isn't altogether ruled out. Africa is studded with all-male hunting safaris, and when they learn that there is an all-girl safari roaming the veldt, too, well—

"The men sometimes like to ride over to our camp in the evening and discuss the day's shooting," said Beverly.

"But why an elephant safari? I can't explain the fascination of an elephant," said Beverly, "but he does have a glamor. Tracking an elephant you are on foot, not in a car, and if he does turn and trample you, he can make a bigger mess of you in a shorter time than any other animal."

"But the girls will always be under the protection of a white hunter. He'll be at her side every moment."

If this trip turns out well, Beverly would like to run a series of low-cost tourist safaris for the poor working girls of America.

"You'd be amazed how many stenographers and secretaries dream of going hunting in Africa," she said.

Beverly also has hopes of leading further all-girl tiger hunts in India and all-girl diamond digging expeditions to Venezuela. But she has temporarily shelved her plans for an all-girl voyage to harpoon whales.

"A captain I discussed this with said a group of girls on a whaler would wreck the ship," she sighed.

City And County Offices Will Be Closed Monday

All city and county offices will be closed July 5, in observance of the 4th of July holiday.

City Manager James S. Hughes has announced that all city offices will be closed on Monday. All county offices will also be closed on that day, according to Mrs. Blair Wheelless, clerk to the Board of County Commissioners. This includes all county offices in the courthouse; the Tucker building; and the former Pitt General Hospital building.

However, Mrs. Wheelless said the County Commissioners will hold their regular monthly session Monday morning at 10 o'clock, despite the holiday.

According to Leonard Bloxam, utilities superintendent, the utilities offices will be closed July 5, "with the exception of a skeleton crew."

The Board of Directors of the Merchants Association has recommended that the stores of the city close Monday as the 4th of July celebration is one of the three holidays observed by the Association, the others being Thanksgiving and Christmas.

ABC stores will also be closed Monday.

In observance of the holiday, The Reflector will not be published Monday.

Sickness Delays Five-Year Cruise

OTTOWA, Ill. (AP)—The five-year cruise of the "Shebeen" has been temporarily delayed.

Its owner, E.G. Newton, had a slight heart attack when he reached Manitow, Wis. Newton and his wife spent years building the 54-foot sail and motor craft and planned a trip to the Atlantic, through the Panama Canal to the coasts of Oregon and Washington before returning to Ottawa.

Cupid Separates Old School Pals

PERU, Neb. (AP)—Oren Argabright, 21, and Ben Duerfeldt, 21, started their education together at a country school where both made the county honor roll and went on to high school where they topped their class scholastically.

They graduated together at Peru State Teachers College with highest academic honors in the class.

Now both are going to college teaching 1954 in Kansas, but their ways are separating. Argabright plans to be married. Duerfeldt says he'll stick to bachelorhood for a while.

Killings Resumed By Chinese Reds

HONG KONG (AP)—Purge and terror seem to be on the flood again in Communist China. A series of policy statements by the official Peiping Peoples Daily lately call for tightening up against "criminal elements, saboteurs... law breaching industrialists and merchants."

Similar statements preceded the slaughters of 1951-52 and the lesser killings last year. They seem to reflect break-downs in Communist controls, new resistances, wavering loyalties. The news of the purges are pouring in from independent sources, some of which say as many as a hundred are being shot at a time in some cities.

Children Told To Help Catch Spies

MOSCOW (AP)—Russian children are being told in their own newspaper that they can help catch spies.

Major soviet papers recently have been publishing frequent reports of "American-trained" spies and subversives captured in the Soviet Union. It is claimed that the Americans train Russian deserters and political exiles in West Germany then parachute them back into the Soviet Union. These reports are part of a new campaign of vigilance in which the people are warned of the "foreign danger to our motherland."

Now comes Pioneer Pravda, the paper for Russian small fry, with a full-page poem, illustrated with drawings, to tell how children can contribute to this vigilance campaign and catch spies.

Pioneer Pravda's poem tells about four little boys of the pioneer organization who went fishing. They met a man who also was fishing — and with a fancy rod and reel which the boys envied.

The man also had a camera, and offered to take the boys' picture. But he concentrated on getting the boys to stand where a big factory would be in the background.

The kids reported this and other developments to the police, who rested the man. The poem concludes: "You are good boys, You Pioneers. You we do not idle There on the shore. You caught a real big fish, Even though you had Primitive fishing tackle."

Both the highest point on the U.S. mainland, Mt. Whitney, 14,495 feet and the lowest, 282 feet below sea level in Death Valley, are in California.

U.S. farmers harvested 82,000 acres of carrots in 1953 with a value in excess of 51 million dollars.

Babies Can Take Change In Blood

Mink Auction In Denmark

"READY TO GO?" ... A long stole in Danish silver blue mink from furrier Birger Christensen.

"HELLO" ... A long coat of Danish standard mink from Birger Christensen, Copenhagen furrier.

By JETTE HARTMANN
COPENHAGEN—For the woman who loves mink—and rare is the one who doesn't—this Danish capt. turns itself into an international fur city three or four times a year. Buyers from all over the world flock to the auction tables to bid for new furs on display, the result of the 1953 production of Danish mink.

In the last 20 years Denmark has developed perhaps the largest and finest mink crop in Europe and each year in December and January the farmers' organization, "Danish Fur Sales," hold auctions. The mink is a member of the weasel family whose diet consist mainly of meat and fresh fish with the addition of vitamins. Since Denmark is surrounded by water, fresh fish is always abundant, and the farms scattered out over the country supply fresh meat regularly.

Danish climate is favorable for mink breeding. The cold forces the mink to produce tighter wool for warmth, and rain and wind encourage the development of strong top hairs to protect the underwool.

But climate alone cannot do the whole job—the farmer and his centuries-long experience in farming have done the rest. The Danish farmers have established an experimental farm where feeding stuffs, inheritance studies, size of animals and quality of fur are held under scientific control.

As a result, the mink farmer can produce fur from 100 per cent white through clear sapphire and all the different mutations to the brown standard mink. The Danish pastel mink has not only retained the light brown pastel shading of the wild mink but has also been improved to bring out the coveted bluish tinge in its underwool.

About 2,500 mink farms scattered throughout Denmark produce around 325,000 skins per year. The working of mink pelts is one of the most difficult processes in the fur trade; for the skin must be stretched lengthwise to accentuate the full beauty of the texture. From the time it arrives at the workshop as untreated fur until it is sent out as the finished product, mink undergoes a treatment which is applied to only a very few type of furs.

First, it is nailed to a flat board so that all wrinkles are smoothed out on the leather side, and then the short wide skin is stretched out of its original shape to form a long thin strip. These strips are assorted according to color and quality, cut and assembled to make up the various models, and finally basted together as a coat or stole.

The furrier then hands the work over to the seamstress who sews it up by hand. It often takes more than a month to finish a fur.

Home Furnishing Show Optimism Continues High

CHICAGO — The Summer Home Furnishings show is drawing to a close amid as much optimism — if a bit more reserved — as marked its opening nine days ago. Although cautious buying by retailers seems to be the keynote of this market, manufacturers and retailers alike say all indications point to greatly improved business during the last six months of the year.

Heavy fall ordering by retailers is foreseen. Donnell Van Noppen, Morganton, N.C., board chairman of the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Assn. told a news conference today that many manufacturers are going to "gamble by building up their stocks to meet a fall rush."

"Attendance at this market has been slightly below that of last year," said Van Noppen. "This indicates there is no rush or eagerness to buy on the part of the retailers."

"Sales have been better in the upholstered lines. Makers of occasional tables are not doing so well. Business in bedroom and dining room furniture is about the same as last year. In other words, business is pretty spotty and in general about the same as a year ago."

"Buyers are buying more cautiously. They seem to be buying for a period of 30 days—no longer. It's a wait and see policy. But optimism prevails among retailers and manufacturers. They expect a good, steady fall business."

Walter S. Marder of Porterville, N.Y., president of the National Assn. of Furniture Manufacturers, told newsmen he expects 1954 to be the second best year in the history of the furniture industry. He said business now is only 5 per cent below the 1952 high, but he added:

"I think this year will be the lowest on the profits for both manufacturers and retailers in more than a decade. Because the industry is giving better values to the consumers, we're feeling a very definite squeeze between the cost of manufacturing and distribution and the selling price."

Desai Regarded Nehru Successor

NEW DELHI — If Bombay state's chief minister starts packing his bags for a shift to Delhi it's a sure sign, say Indian politicians; that he has been tagged as heir apparent to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Thus far Morarji Ranchodji Desai has not reached for a single suitcase. But it's not, say his associates, because he hasn't been asked.

Morarji has two reasons for staying out of New Delhi, says an associate who has discussed with the chief minister. "First, he will become Nehru's deputy."

"In Bombay he is the boss. But in Delhi he would be just a small frog in a big pond, just one of the team under Nehru."

"But there is a more compelling reason. If Morarji joins the central government with the label of Nehru's heir apparent pinned to his coat he will be the subject of political sniping by every aspirant for that job in the Congress party. They may even gang up on him." It is no secret that Desai would like to be prime minister when Nehru steps down. But he is hopeful of making it in a single jump from the chief ministership of Bombay state.

As a member of the Congress party's Working Committee — and its treasurer — Morarji Desai is already a potent member of the ruling party's top command. A vigorous 58, he is young among the party's leaders.

Friendship Loses In Traffic Case

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—"I'm worried about my buddy," Earl D. Bucher, 21, told police. "He hasn't come home and I think he may have had an accident. His name's Jerry Shore."

Lt. C.J. Novotny said Shore was not reported in any accident.

"Maybe he was arrested then?" suggested Bucher. Novotny found that was true.

"Well, I think you got the wrong guy. I'm the one you want on that traffic warrant," offered Bucher. Sure enough, the officer discovered Bucher actually was the wanted man.

"Then you'll let Jerry go now?" "Now we can't do that. He's wanted in Denver on a forgery rap. That's why we picked him up. You just talked yourself into jail, my boy."

Weather Control As A Weapon Remains Possibility Of Future

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter
WASHINGTON — It may someday be possible to cause torrents of rain over Russia by seeding clouds moving toward the Soviet Union.

Or it may be possible — if an opposite effect is desired — to cause destructive droughts which would dry up food crops by "over-seeding" those same clouds.

And fortunately for the United States, Russia could do little to retaliate because most weather moves from west to east.

The possibility such a spectacular device as this might be used in some future total war "should not be discounted," according to the man who heads a group set up by Congress to advise it on the chances for success of plans to control the weather.

Capt. Howard Orville, USN Ret., who charted the weather for Doolittle's raid on Tokyo and helped prepare the forecasts for the North African and Normandy invasions, is chairman of an 11-member advisory committee charged by Congress with seeing that current efforts at rain making and rain suppression don't get out of hand.

It is Orville's personal view that if the United States would devote the same effort and money to weather experiments that it does to atomic development it could, in about 40 years, "increase precipitation over any area almost at will, using favorable situations."

However, he emphasizes that the advisory committee does not take it for granted weather control will or will not work.

In the law setting up the advisory group, Congress said application of scientific advances to the problem of weather "appears to be practical."

Primarily, Congress wants the committee to determine whether experiments, public and private, strengthen possibilities of large-scale weather control.

But the committee has a corollary job: to determine whether federal legislation is necessary to be sure that attempts at weather modification don't result in disaster, such as "catastrophic droughts, storms, floods and other phenomena."

And finally, Congress wants the committee to recommend to what extent the government should experiment with or engage in weather control activities.

Some federal work already is under way. Army Navy Air Force and Weather Bureau have research projects.

The Weather Bureau has been conducting extensive cloud-seeding tests in the Seattle area. Meteorologist Ferguson Hall, the man in charge, says results still are being evaluated. He adds, however, that as of now he does not think weather control on any kind of worthwhile scale will be worked out.

This opinion is echoed by one of the top scientists in the bureau, Dr. Harry Wexler, who maintains that if rainfall increases claimed by commercial rain-making firms were real "they would stand out like a sore thumb — and such has not been revealed, at least in the cases we have studied."

Orville sums up the work of his investigators this way:

"If the advisory committee finds that weather modification projects cannot produce important results, it will so report — and thus deter farmers and ranchers from spending their money unwisely. . . . If the committee finds out it can confirm the results claimed by reputable and scientifically competent operators — claims of rainfall increases of from 7 to 50 per cent and more — then, the dollar benefits to agriculture, industry and government, will be so great as to be 'incalculable.'"

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—The meeting between President Eisenhower and Sir Winston Churchill, judging from the two statements they issued, looks like an American-British standoff, with both sides yielding a bit.

United action in Southeast Asia—which is what Secretary of State Dulles had been talking about—has been delayed, Britain's Foreign Secretary Edes wanted it delayed. But a nonaggression pact in Southeast Asia—which is what Edes had called for—seems to have been brushed aside. Dulles and his State Department wouldn't buy it.

For the rest, the two statements were mostly generalities upon which the United States and Britain had agreed long before the meetings which ended this week. Dulles' idea that got delayed—just before the April 26 opening of the Geneva conference, which had been set up to discuss, among other things, an armistice in Indochina, Dulles rushed to the British.

The Communist-led Vietninh were kicking the French around in Indochina. Dulles urged the British to join the United States in united action to save Indochina. Edes didn't want any, he said, until he had a chance to see whether the Geneva conference could produce peace in Indochina. He didn't rule out the idea of a united action pact if Geneva failed.

Since the British wouldn't go to their aid, and the United States wouldn't either unless the British joined in, the French were left with the choice of fighting harder in Indochina or dickering with the Communist's for peace. They dickered and still are. Meanwhile the Vietninh forces in Indochina are trouncing the French.

The first Eisenhower-Churchill statement, which dealt with this problem, made clear the British and Americans were still unwilling to rush in to save Indochina. The statement said the United States and Britain would "press forward" with plans for united action: one kind of plan if the French didn't get an armistice and another kind if they did.

This was so vague and indefinite as to timing that Edes, who wanted delay, seems to have had his way. Edes' idea that got pushed aside—

In 1925-26 Britain, France, Belgium, Italy and Germany agreed at Locarno, Switzerland, they not only would not attack one another but would gang up on anyone who broke the agreement. Hitler broke it 10 years later by remilitarizing the Rhineland. When the others failed to stop him, the Locarno Pact dropped dead.

Just before coming here last week, Edes proposed a Locarno-type agreement for Southeast Asia. It would include the United States, Britain, France, the Southeast Asian countries Russia and Communist China.

This startled and irritated the American State Department. Edes added to the irritation by calling for creation of his Asian Locarno before Britain signed any united action agreement with this country on Southeast Asia.

His proposal in effect called for the United States to reverse its attitude on Red China. By signing such an agreement, the United States in effect would be recognizing the Communists as the rightful rulers of China. This it has refused to do. Besides, this country could hardly believe the Communists would live up to any such agreement when it suited them to break it.

The second Eisenhower-Churchill statement made no mention of Eden's Locarno idea. On the contrary the statement said the United States and Britain would not be a party to any agreement that would "confirm or prolong" the "unwilling subordination" of any "sovereign state now in bondage."

Since the United States doesn't recognize the Communists as the legitimate government of China, it regards China as being in bondage. Churchill seemed pretty clearly to be agreeing against a Locarno treaty in Asia. If so, then Eden had to yield.

Berserk Man Dies In Wild Gun Duel

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A 54-year-old man on convalescent leave from a mental hospital fought a death duel with 200 policemen in his West Side home yesterday and wounded eight officers before he was killed.

When the gunfire finally was stilled the body of Howard Ellis lay behind a bookcase barricade, riddled by 26 bullets. His dirty white frame house was splintered by thousands of rounds of ammunition.

Ellis' wife Janie, first target of his rage, suffered minor wounds in the left leg and left hand. One patrolman, Paul White, 39, was in critical condition with wounds in the chest, neck and arm.

Two others were listed in serious condition. They were Dora Ward, 27, shot in the head, and Marlin Lyon, 39, shot in the right side. Lt. Paul Pearcey, 60, was in fair condition. Four others were released after treatment for less serious wounds.

Five foster children who had been placed in the Ellis home by the Welfare Department slipped out of the house before the shooting started and were not harmed. Central state hospital said Ellis had been on leave for a year and a half and had been checked by monthly reports. The hospital said his June report was the most favorable since his release.

Mrs. Ellis said the trouble started when Ellis beat one of the foster children wards. She threatened to call the hospital and have him re-committed and he chased her from the house. She called the hospital and police from a neighbor's home, then started to return home.

That was when Ellis started shooting, wounding her. She fled again, and the first police to arrive found Ellis crouching behind a utility pole outside the house. He wounded Pearcey. The officers held their fire because there were children in the yard.

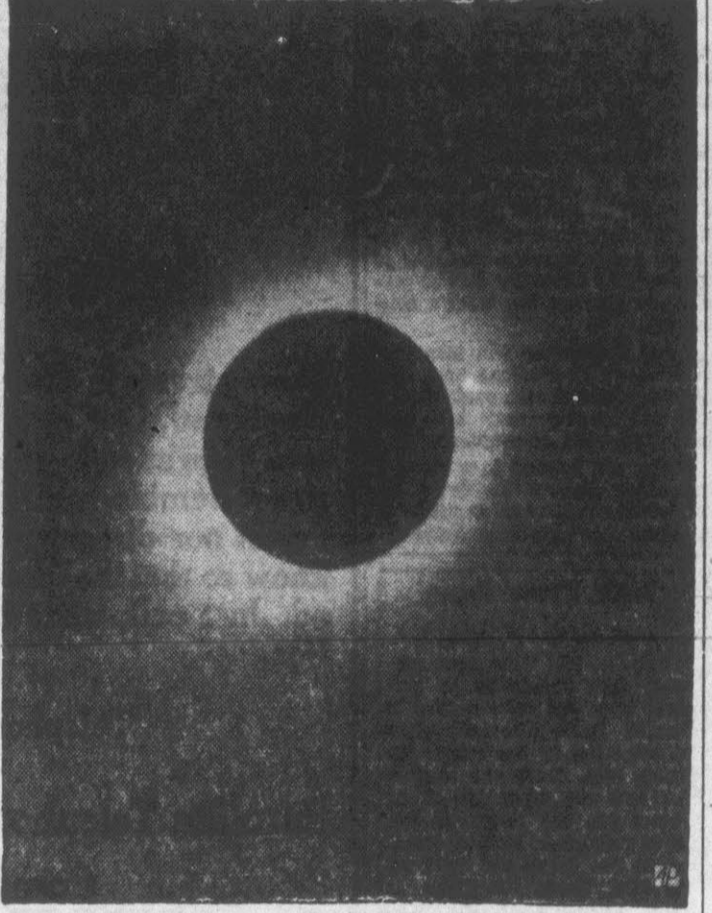

Ellis retreated to the house and the siege began. His wife said she had no idea where he got his shotgun, rifle and huge supply of ammunition.

Ellis kept up a heavy fire. Finally an armored car roared up to the back door, and three heavily armed officers leaped through the door and ended the battle.

"It just had to be that way," Mrs. Ellis said softly when they told her at General Hospital that her husband was dead.

Sewing Help: YOU In Plastic

MEASURING . . . Fitter takes two sets of measurements, makes pencil marks on tight cotton knit shirt.

MOLDING . . . Thermoplastic material is molded to the body, measured to assure even line at bottom edge.

PLASTIC YOU . . . Form is removed, finished covered in fabric and delivered on an adjustable stand.

By DOROTHY ROE, Associated Press Fashion Editor. It may be somewhat startling to see yourself in plastic, but it's an experience more and more women are having these days. Home seamstresses who take their dressmaking seriously find indispensable a dress form reproducing the actual line of their own figures. Here's how it's done. First the fitter at your local sewing center gives you a tight-fitting cotton knit sheath, something like the top of a fencer's suit, which clings to every curve of your body.

Then she takes caliper measurements to determine depth and width, and takes your individual figure measurement.

Measurements completed, she applies malleable thermoplastic material to your shirt-sheathed body in four sections—two in front and two in back. This literally follows every contour of your figure, as the operator's expert fingers smooth the plastic material into your exact shape.

The molding takes about a half hour, then the plastic form is cut at shoulders and sides and lifted from your body. It is sent away to be finished—that is, it receives several coats of paint, gets a covering of knit shirting material, is taped at the sides and waistline and mounted on an adjustable stand.

The finished dress form is delivered to your home in a few days, ready to be your dressmaking "stand-in."

Antiquated Cars To Make Tour

LAURINBURG, N.C.—Cars from another generation will tour from Laurinburg to Boone starting July 15.

The North Carolina Horseless Carriage Club, sponsors of the annual affair said an exposition will be held July 14 here with former Gov. W. Kerr Scott the featured speaker.

The next day the antiquated caravan will start for Boone high in the mountains, passing through Charlotte on the way. Two previous tours have taken the group to coastal destinations.

Such rugged remnants of the past as a 1911 Case, a 1907 Buick, a 1903 Oldsmobile, a 1904 Reo and a 1905 Knox will make up the 63-car caravan.

Air Of Urgency In Cold War Accord

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON — The United States pressed today for early creation of a anti-Communist pact in Southeast Asia while hailing a victory over international communism in Guatemala.

Secretary of State Dulles, cautioning that "communism is still a menace everywhere," pledged the support of the United States yesterday to the people of Guatemala in their efforts to build a "prosperous and progressive" and non-Communist nation.

Several hours earlier, United States joined Australia and New Zealand in a declaration that there is "need for immediate action" to bring about early establishment of a collective defense in Southeast Asia.

The three nations are signers of a mutual defense treaty. Dulles met yesterday with Australia's Foreign Minister Richard G. Casey and New Zealand's Ambassador Leslie Knox. Together they form a council set up by the "Anzus" pact, which takes its name from initials of the three countries.

Their declaration went beyond the agreement on a Southeast Asian collective defense announced Monday by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Churchill. The latter two said they would press forward with plans to secure Southeast Asia against communism whether the war in Indochina is ended or continues.

Diplomats agreed that the Anzus statement expressed a greater sense of urgency and implied that American consultation with the British government on future plans would be paralleled by talks with Australia, New Zealand and other nations having direct interest in stemming the Communist tide.

It was understood, too, that American officials believe concrete plans may be made shortly after July 10, when armistice negotiations between the French and Communist forces are supposed to be concluded. This would obviate waiting for the July 20 deadline for an Indochina peace settlement which was set by the new Mendès-France government at Paris.

After he met with Casey and Munro, Dulles went on nationwide radio and television networks to make a statement on the Guatemalan situation, which the Voice of America also broadcast over the world.

Dulles said "international communism" had sought for years to establish a Red front in the Western Hemisphere by building up power in Guatemala. He tied this operation directly to Moscow, saying the dramatic events of recent days — during which the pro-Communist government in Guatemala was overthrown — have exposed "the evil purpose of the Kremlin to destroy the inter-American system."

He also said this "intrusion of Soviet despotism was, of course, a direct challenge to our Monroe Doctrine — the first and most fundamental of our foreign policies." (The doctrine laid down by President Monroe in 1823 bars any extension of foreign power in the Western Hemisphere.)

"The need for vigilance is not past," he said. "Communism is still a menace everywhere. But the people of the United States and of the other American republics can feel tonight that at least one grave danger has been averted."

Looking to the future he said: "The United States pledges itself not merely to political opposition to communism, but to help to alleviate conditions in Guatemala and elsewhere which might afford communism an opportunity to spread its tentacles throughout the hemisphere."

Russia Proclaims Lead In Atomic Power Plants

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON — Russia might be able to use a lead in atomic industrial power development as a lever to outmaneuver the United States in the cold war between communism and the free world.

American atomic officials contemplated this prospect today in light of the Soviet's claim to have put into operation a nuclear power plant with a 5,000-kilowatt electrical power output.

While there was no immediate official confirmation of the announcement made by Moscow radio yesterday, there also was no disposition to deny that the Russians had succeeded in getting an atomic power plant into operation. Experts here well remembered the success of the Reds in producing a nuclear fission explosion in 1949—several years before the time generally predicted.

Those who look upon peaceful use of atomic power as an instrument of national policy contend: The nation which first succeeds in building practical atomic power plants capable of being assembled in components and shipped overseas will have an instrument to offer power-poor nations such as those of southeast and southern Asia, the Middle East, North Africa and in similar places.

If Russia should be ready first for the building and export of such plants, they say she would have a good bargain to offer small nations which might be wavering between the free world and communism.

This is one of the arguments of those who urge a speedup in the United States' atomic industrial power development program to telescope into something less than five years what they say would otherwise be a 10-year period needed to get nuclear power on a satisfactory going basis.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY), chairman of the Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy, said yesterday the Russian claim underlined a new need for amending the Atomic Energy Act to facilitate power development.

Cole's committee approved unanimously late yesterday a package of proposed revisions designed to carry out President Eisenhower's program for exchanging some nuclear secrets with foreign allies and for permitting private industry into the atomic field.

The bill contains these broad provisions:

1. Authority for the President to give foreign allies information on the external characteristics of nuclear weapons and to supply them data on civilian power.
2. Authority, under congressional curbs, to pursue the plan for a global atomic pool for developing backward areas outlined by the President last Dec. 8.
3. Authority for private industry to operate atomic facilities and handle fissionable material as a means of stimulating the development of peacetime atomic power in this country.

THE HIGH-LEVEL SQUINT

thinks he knows the forest — but has never met a tree

The SQUINT is an advertising executive who prefers to float above the rough-and-tumble of selling.

He thinks he gets the "big view" by closing his eyes to details . . . and thinks of the nation as a one-color map — where towns and people and needs are gratifyingly all alike.

And he advertises accordingly.

Fortunately the SQUINT is a rare creature. Most ad-men know that sales problems vary.

They know, for example that one town may buy twice as many girdles or puddings or toothpaste as another town even though incomes are equal — because regions are different, tastes are different, and people are different!

So most advertisers concentrate on areas that pay — instead of spending loftily in across-the-board campaigns.

Their "national" advertising starts at the local level — in newspapers!

All business is local . . . and so are all newspapers!

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

NORMAN put his arm around Cynthia, drawing her gently toward him.

She did not resist. Perhaps she should have. But again, why should she?

He found her sweet mouth, and his kiss was much longer, this time.

She did not try to keep him from kissing her, either.

As before she found herself almost visibly shaken afterwards.

"I asked you not to—" she began.

"Surely I've waited long enough." His arms still held her close. In the soft glow from the rose embers, her face was lovely.

All her sweetness, her fineness, showed in it.

"I don't believe I've told you how much I love you," he said.

"But if I could find all the words there are in the dictionary, they could not say it. I love you, Cynthia. I love you with all that is in me, and I know that it shall always be this way. I shall never stop loving you."

She could not help being moved by his words. It was a beautiful way to say I-love-you, and the words he was able to find said it convincingly.

She wished she could say to him, "And I love you. But not unless she was certain."

For the first time, she wondered if it could be possible that what she felt toward him might not be love. She admired him so much, respected his ability; they had worked side by side for so long.

Could he confuse all that with love? Should not love be reciprocated to be experienced in full?

"You don't have to tell me, yet," his eyes smile, back into her troubled ones now. "I'm not trying to sweep you off those sturdy feet of yours. I love you so much I can wait until you know your own heart. For I don't believe you do, Cynthia."

"You may be right," she admitted.

"You didn't mind my kissing you?" His eyes teased her, and his tone was his lighter, gayer one again. "Be honest, my sweet. You rather liked it, didn't you?"

She had to smile. She had to concede that much.

"Well, I wish that doctor of yours would hurry up and make love to you, so you could find out if you like his kisses, his lovemaking, as well as mine."

How did Norman know that? What had never kissed her?

Norman kissed her once more—lightly, this time—then he let her go. He asked if she would like to get up early next morning and go horseback riding. "We've seen everything we can on foot. There are some trails I'd like to show you, so you'll know all of Pleasantville," he added.

Cynthia said she would love it. She had not ridden in a long while. The only thing was, she had nothing appropriate to wear. "That's easy," he said. "You can borrow anything you like from Mom. I'll speak to one of the maids. Have her trot out a few. Blue-jeans or jodhpurs, whichever you prefer. Mom's taller than you, but otherwise they should fit."

Cynthia said that would be fine. She said that she also was looking forward to attending the little chapel in the near-by village; which his father had told her his father Norman's grandparent, had built.

"In fact," Cynthia said before saying good night, "I've enjoyed my week and so much, every minute of it, that I know I shall be sorry to have to leave tomorrow afternoon."

"You wouldn't have to," his eyes held that look she had come to know so well. "This could be your home."

To take away from the seriousness into which this had led them again, and so as not to leave her feeling that he was presuming too much, he finished lightly, laughingly. "In short, you may consider that a proposal of matrimony, Miss Cynthia Doyle. If you like, I'll even put it in writing."

"That won't be necessary," she replied, smiling. "You yet she was moved by his earnestness, his having done her the honor to ask her to become his wife. For it was an honor. Norman was a fine man. She could admire and respect him—and yes perhaps become much more attached to him in a shorter time than she cared to admit."

And she thought, before she went to sleep that night in one of the lovely guest rooms of Pleasantville, that Norman had given her an idea. She had thought she would give up trying to jolt Walt out of his shell, make him aware of her as a woman. But surely any woman, if she tried hard enough, could make almost any man kiss her, couldn't she?

That comparison might indeed be just what she needed. So that she would know her own heart.

Cynthia had no conception as to what Elizabeth Brandt had in mind for the clinic. Norman had told her that she could count on its being a very large order; one that would cover everything and continue indefinitely. And when the two women had the arranged-for conference in Mrs. Brandt's study, Cynthia found that this was indeed true.

"My idea is to form a board of governors and later, a board of directors," Elizabeth got right into the subject, without any preliminaries, as soon as they were seated. "I have already spoken to a few people—some that you met here at Pleasantville others after chapel services this morning. I found a most enthusiastic response."

Cynthia was properly impressed. Yet she refrained from commenting until her hostess had finished outlining the rest of her ideas.

Signals Crossed On Police Calls

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Charles Cogan was in the signal corps during the war and knows the difference between a radio and a record player. He told his wife she could not hear police radio calls on their record player. She insisted she heard them. It was a source of marital dispute for some days until one day Cogan, too, heard the calls.

Before deciding they were both crazy, Cogan checked with a radio repair shop where he was told it could happen in rare cases. The crystal in the arm of the record player sometimes acts as a receiver for a nearby station in a favored location. The signal, amplified by the record-player tubes can be heard if volume control is properly adjusted, he learned.

Famous Big Top Is Lost

COMING DOWN — The Carl Hagenbeck bigtop has been folded away for the last time.

By TOM STONE
AP Newfeatures

HAMBURG, Germany—The Carl Hagenbeck circus, remembered fondly by millions of Americans, has been drowned in red ink. The show started in a small way in 1887 but grew through the years. Later, when it toured the United States, it was one of the big big-tops.

At its peak it traveled in 120 railroad cars with 20 animals and performers and other employes to match Lorenz Hagenbeck, son of the owner, and Carl-Heinrich Hagenbeck, a nephew, say they could not pay expenses and maintain their 12-cent price for children's tickets. They closed the show rather than charge the children more.

The Hagenbeck name still remains in the circus world. There is Wilhelm Hagenbeck circus and a Willy Hagenbeck circus. But the Carl Hagenbeck circus owners turned down a Spanish bid for their whole show. They did not want to see it operate under another name. Now it's scattered all over Europe.

Some lions and tigers went to Paris. A soccer-playing elephant team, some zebras and horses went to England. One of the animal trainers is touring Africa with his tigers. A giraffe was sold in Italy. Many of the animals are staying in Hamburg, however—in the Stellingen zoo which the Hagenbecks operate.

Even if the tent were packed at every performance they could not meet the $1,066 a day to keep the three special trains on the road, the owners say.

Cat Stops Bus On Busy Street

NEW YORK (AP)—When a bus halted for a Brooklyn traffic light, a passerby shouted to the driver that a cat had leaped under the machine. The driver got out and could hear meowing, but couldn't see the cat. He unloaded his passengers and called police.

Two patrolmen and an agent of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals found the cat. But it took 55 minutes of maneuvering to induce the animal to leave the bus. Then the driver continued his trip.

Even Humor Has Mount Pleasant News

NEW YORK (AP)—Even humor in the Soviet Union is supposed to have "social content."

Soviet cartoonists, humorists and satirists find almost all their employment in propaganda work for their government. They get pretty caustic too.

This was underlined by a recent Krokodil cartoon lampooning former U.S. Defense Secretary James Forrestal's suicide following a nervous breakdown. It showed him bound in a straitjacket and landing on his head.

The U.S. government protested its cartoon. The Russians returned the protest note to the American Embassy in Moscow refusing to accept it as "unworthy."

In the foreign affairs field the chief target is always the United States. A cartoon in Komsomol Prayda showed a Soviet version of Uncle Sam unloading a large box on the shore of a country labeled Guatemala. The box bore the legend "United Fruit Company" and was half tipped over, with bombs, grenades and little saber-branding Guatemalan "rebels" all rolling out of it. It was intended to illustrate the Communist thesis that the United States started the Guatemalan uprising.

'Desegregation' Carried Too Far

NEW YORK (AP)—The director of the United Nations Division of Trusteeship, Dr. Ralph Bunche, is a Negro.

He is strongly in favor of desegregation. But, he told the 92d annual convention of the National Education Ass. last night, he thinks it can sometimes be carried too far.

He said he had accepted an invitation at the University of Arkansas after receiving assurances that the Fayetteville audience would not be segregated. Afterward, he said, the man in charge saw him to his train and sheepishly confessed:

"You know, when you wrote and asked about segregation we were in a spot. We had no intention of segregating the meeting, but the fact is that there are only about 15 Negroes in this whole county, and they are mostly sharecroppers who wouldn't turn out to hear Booker T. Washington himself. So, just to make sure you wouldn't think we were cheating you, we sent runners all the way to Little Rock and Pine Bluff to drum up enough Negroes to make a showing."

"I think that's carrying desegregation too far," Bunche told his audience, "and I think some of those Negroes who traveled 250 miles to hear me speak thought so too."

CATFISH QUEEN
SAVANNAH, Tenn. (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Ina Gene Turner, blonde of Tusculum, Ala., was named National Catfish Queen here last night at the start of the National Catfish Derby.

The program for Vacation Bible School was conducted Sunday night, June 20, at Mt. Pleasant Christian Church with about 70 boys and girls participating. Each of the five departments made a contribution to the program, including songs, poems, Bible verses, talks and a play, "Let's Go to Court."

The school began June 7 and continued through June 18 with a total enrollment of 80 pupils, 15 teachers and assistants. The teen-age department won the attendance contest with 93.2% present.

Teachers and helpers in each department are as follows:

Nursery—Mrs. Ozzie Wilson, Mrs. Woody Hagan, Mrs. J. O. Teel, Mrs. Lonnie Stalon.

Beginners—Barbara Jenkins, Lela Gray Harris.

Primary—Mrs. Nina Vainright, Mrs. Sarah Stancill Glasgow, Mrs. Walter Harris.

Juniors—Mrs. C. H. Hagan, Mrs. Clayton Stancill.

Teen Age—Mrs. J. L. Harris, Mrs. Charlie Harris.

Director—Mrs. Randolph Fleming, Assistant Director—Mrs. Clayton Stancill.

Special appreciation goes to the teachers, assistants, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Stancill, the women of the church, who served refreshments, and to all who helped make the Bible School a success.

Mrs. Mavis Allen of Greenville was guest soloist at church services Sunday morning, June 27. She sang "Hold Thou My Hand."

The annual picnic was held on Wednesday afternoon at Whichard's Beach. Many families attended and reported an enjoyable time.

There will be no church services at the church on Sunday, July 4. The minister, Mr. Clifton, will be away for a vacation. Bible School will be held at the usual hour and Holy Communion will be observed immediately following Bible School.

Stray Alligator Sent Back Home

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A 12-foot alligator is back in the Everglades after tying up traffic on U.S. 1 north of Miami for nearly an hour.

Sheriff's Deputies Richard Wright and Robert Laichak suffered rope burns in the battle to subdue the huge reptile which was first spotted by a motorist along the busy highway last night.

Wright said they couldn't figure what to do when they arrived, since there's a $300 fine for shooting an alligator.

"I lay there peacefully enough until three Humane Society workers arrived," Wright said. "But when we started to rope it, it went wild."

Four ropes were tossed over the creature's snout and neck. It whirled and lunged, snapping its huge jaws and thrashing its tail.

More than 100 persons assembled and shouted encouragement while perspiring officers struggled with the gator. Wright said it was more than a mile from where the gator was found to the nearest water.

"This alligator looked like the daddy of them all," said Charles W. Pusey, executive vice president of the Humane Society. "He was the biggest alligator I ever saw."

Pusey said he was turned over to conservation officers for release in Everglades National Park.

Washington (AP)—Prices farmers received for their products dropped 4 per cent between mid-May and mid-June, but the decline was felt largely by commodities not directly involved in the congressional battle over farm price supports.

Most of the decline in the farm price index announced yesterday reflected a decrease of about 17 per cent in price of hogs and an over-all decrease of 10 per cent in price of all meat animals. Prices of meat animals are not supported by the government.

Nothing Like Being Prepared
SHELBY, N. C. (AP)—A woman asked the sheriff's office here to issue a warrant charging her husband with non-support. "When did he stop supporting you?" the desk sergeant asked. "He hasn't yet," was the reply. "but I have just bought some new furniture and I don't think he is going to help pay for it." The warrant was denied.

Escapes Hailed Deputy's Auto
HARRELSVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Two fugitives from a North Carolina prison camp flagged a car near here yesterday.

Obliquely Deputy Sheriff Leon Perry stopped, picked them up and carried them to the Harrelsville jail.

High Scorer
Jeremiah Thomas Gaylor, Winterville, was high scorer among 22 candidates who passed the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy examinations held at the Institute of Pharmacy and the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy recently.

Gaylor won the honor with a score of 92.8 per cent on the examinations according to an announcement by H. C. McAllister, Chapel Hill, secretary-treasurer of the Board. William H. Patton, Hickory, was in second place with an average of 91.8 per cent.

THE PHANTOM

Music Composers Advised Stay Away From New York

By W.G. ROGERS Associated Press Arts Editor NEW YORK (AP)—The whole future of our music and its development is out in the country, not here in New York. "The American composer may be published here, but he's played out there. He's sold out there, he has time to write out there, he doesn't need to waste his energy living here and sitting the big city and fighting all its cliques." So we're told by a man right in the middle of the business, Ray Green, executive secretary of the American Music Center. It was organized 15 years ago and, in living up literally to its title, has no rival. Green mentions the first half-dozen or so important creative communities that came to his mind: "Louisville, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, the Atlanta-Birmingham area, Rochester, the University of Michigan, the University of Washington." "They've developed within the last 10 years," Green says, "and a lot of this growth has come since the war. An example of it is the hundreds of new operas that have been performed. We in New York don't know the names of the composers, but they keep cropping up. "And when they come to me and wish they were living in New York, I tell them, 'Don't do it.' " Green is here, lives and works here, has his 15-man board here. When the National Music Council, the International Music Council, the National Federation of Music Clubs or some other music organization has a problem, it's apt to drop it in Green's lap. He can supply premises for small meetings, he can locate missing composers, he can assemble catalogue of specialties, he has scores and recordings, he rents or sells music, he finds publishers, he does everything—he even writes music himself. Can't the libraries provide interested people with this kind of information? "Libraries get it from us." The organization began on a shoestring. There were five composers: Marion Bauer, Aaron Copland, Otto Luening, Quincy Porter and Howard Hanson, all still on the present enlarged board, of which Luening, of Columbia, is chairman. They had $500 granted by a foundation; their purpose was to "foster and encourage the composition and distribution of contemporary American music and its study and performance at home and abroad." They set up a library of scores for sale and rentals; they even got money for performances regularly from the Boston and New York symphonies. They "needed" other orchestras into using American music at a time when, as they recollect painfully, "it was easier for a European to get published here than an American." They played an important part in introducing to the concert public the music of Charles Ives, Carl Ruggles, Edgard Varese, Virgil Thomson, Walter Piston, and many others. They now have some 5,000 titles in their library. How do they make both ends meet? Green says perhaps they don't, they just pretend to. They are paid for assembling information, they receive some support from ASCAP and BMI, and there have lately been some college and university memberships. One recent project, a comprehensive catalogue of only American music printed only by American publishers, started off with a Rockefeller Foundation grant. Centers modeled on this one have been established in Amsterdam and Paris. Green came to the executive post after a sort of across-the-country career. Born in Cavendish Mo., he studied at the San Francisco Conservatory and the University of California. From 1946 to 1948 he was chief of music for the Veterans Administration. He is married to dancer May O'Donnell. One of his recent compositions, which are written out of native American inspiration and materials, is the newly recorded "Sunday Sing Symphony." The residents of Greenland are attempting to grow trees in some sheltered locations on the island.

Second Half Of Year Is Good For Consumers

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—The consumer — and aren't we all — can take a sunny view of the rest of the year.

Jobs should be a little easier to find. Wages and fringe benefits in many cases will be a little higher. Work weeks should average closer to 40 hours again — and therefore paychecks will be a little fatter.

It shouldn't cost any more to live, and bargains will be found for the looking. There'll be an abundance of things to buy and salesmen eager to get your trade.

Credit will be easier and money plentiful in the bank — meaning it'll be easier for you to get into debt. But the interest you pay should be no higher, if as high.

These prospects are based on the widely held belief that the slide from the war boom is around the bottom now, that after the usual summer doldrums, business in general will start up, noticeably, if moderately.

The layoffs that made the early months of the year a bad time for many American families are coming much less often now. The average work week has just started to reverse itself and lengthen again.

If businessmen are right in their belief that inventory trimming is about over, a return to normal ordering practices should increase factory production this fall. This would mean you'll work longer weeks or go back to work if laid off.

Hourly wage increases granted this year in some industries will mean fatter paychecks as working weeks lengthen.

So far this year the total paid out in wages and salaries is down from a year ago. But personal income has stayed high nationally because of an increase in other forms of income. Dividend payment totals are higher, and unemployment and pension benefits have increased. Tax cuts also help sweeten take-home pay.

Prices are just as likely to drop as to rise. Merchants and manufacturers have plenty of goods they'd like to sell. Rising cost problems may tempt them to hike prices. Competition and fear of your reaction is more likely to keep them from it. The majority

Elks Plan Send Dozen Boys To Summer Camp

Greenville Elks Lodge No. 1645 is planning to send a dozen worthy teen-age boys to the North Carolina Elks Camp for Boys near Hendersonville August 1 for a two-weeks' stay. Boys eight to 15 years old are eligible.

Camp Committee Chairman Heber B. Tripp said it is an all-expense free trip for the youngsters, including transportation. Boys to be selected for the encampment will be those who otherwise would be unable to go to a summer camp. Elks and others are invited to submit names and information about boys worthy to receive the camping trip. Chairman Tripp, Joe M. Dresbach and Dale Gidley will select the boys to go to camp.

Exalted Ruler Roger M. Collins, Jr., said the Greenville Elks Lodge sends a dozen worthy boys to the free summer camp in the western Carolina mountains every year. "This is only one of the numerous 'good neighbor' projects the Greenville lodge sponsors every year," he added.

Tripp said the boys are well provided for at the Elks Summer Camp. Trained counselors watch over the boys' welfare, hospital facilities, a physician and nurses are on duty at the camp, and varied forms of entertainment are provided for the youngsters.

The boys chosen by the Greenville Elks will travel in buses with boys from Wilson and Rocky Mount. The party under direction of a member of the Elks Lodge, will leave the Union Bus Station in Greenville Sunday morning, August 1, at 6:30 a.m. They will return August 15 about 7 p.m.

Disney To Tell Tale Of A Trip To Mars

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Want a trip to Mars? Walt Disney will take you there on TV this fall.

The amazing Mr. Disney, whose wonders never cease, is preparing a TV series called "Disneyland" for the ABC network. A monthly feature will be "The World of Tomorrow," and one of the subjects will show the preparation and actual flight to Mars.

The red planet is a timely topic, since it is veering close enough to the earth this month for astronomers to get their best squint at it.

To conduct his TV trip to Mars, Disney has hired Willy Ley, who knows as much about space travel as any human being. He formed a society for space travel in his native Germany in 1927, the same year Lindbergh made headlines with an earthy flight. He came to this country in 1935 and continued advocating flight into space by writing books and articles.

"A flight to Mars?" asks Ley in Germanic tones. "Of course it is possible. All it takes is time and money."

It could happen in 25 years he said. Or at least 25 years after the decision is made to attempt the project. He figures it would take a decade to establish the space stations, which are essential before the full trip can be attempted.

"Then it would be another 15 years to build and perfect the rocket to travel to Mars," he said.

What would Mars be like? "It would probably be three quarters desert, with very little water. The days would be pleasant—around 75 degrees in summer. But the nights would be fantastically cold. The complete day is only a little longer than ours—about 24 hours and 37 1/2 minutes."

How would humans exist on Mars?

"They would have to use space suits, of course, because there is no air on the planet. I don't think they would have to be weighted; that has been overestimated. A man would weigh one third less on Mars, but I think he could soon adjust to that."

The United States has about 70 per cent more children under 16 years old today than in 1940.

First Plans Announced For Little League Tournament

Region Five Playoffs To Bring Eight Teams

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Editor

Warren Carroll, Little League Baseball's Region Five Tournament Director, today announced preliminary plans for the Regional Playoffs which will be held in Greenville August 16, 17, 18 and 19.

The tournament will bring champions from North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia, North Florida, and South Florida to Greenville. The teams will represent sections in the Fifth region.

The sectional winners will be determined by playoffs in district competition. The district winners will be determined in area playoffs. Each area and there are 16 in North Carolina, will send one team to district playoffs, of which there will be four. The four district winners will advance to the sectional playoffs with the sectional winner advancing to the regional finals. The winner of the regional playoffs will go directly to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

Carroll said yesterday that final plans for area competition in North Carolina have not been set up although there are 52 teams in the state eligible for tournament play. There are 14 teams with limited franchise agreements, which prohibits them from taking part in tournament competition during a one-year probation period. Carroll pointed out the two exceptions to the rule regarding probation were (1) if a league is an outgrowth of another league and (2) if a league had a non-participating franchise last year.

Greenville's Little League program is affected by the first of the two exceptions since the two leagues this year were set up when the program became too large for one six-team league. Coastal Little League, on the other hand, is not eligible for participating since it is operating under a limited franchise agreement.

Play Each Other
Carroll said that the only thing definite regarding Greenville's area competition was that the All-Star teams from Greenville's two leagues would have to play each other to advance toward sectional playoff games. All-Star teams will be picked from the two leagues and rosters sent to Little League headquarters before area competition is started, however.

Dewey Scarborough of Durham has been named by Carroll as sectional director for North Carolina playoffs. Scarborough has already announced that the sectional playoffs will be held in Durham after area competition has been completed.

Other sectional directors named by Carroll include Danny Jones of North Charleston for South Carolina, John Braud of Decatur for Georgia, Clarence Johnson of Orlando for North Florida, Al Ecker of Fort Pierce for South Florida, Swede Umbeck of Auburn for Alabama, Charlie West of Columbia for Tennessee, and Charles Hoagland of Lexington for Kentucky.

The schedule of games for the regional playoffs as announced by Carroll includes eight games. Game one will match South Carolina and Alabama and game two will match Tennessee and Georgia with both games scheduled for August 16. On August 17, game three will match Kentucky and North Florida and game four will match North Carolina and South Florida. August 18's semi-final round will match winners of games one and two and games three and four. On August 19, a championship game and a consolation game will be played with the four semi-finalists participating.

Indians, Giants Pick Up Ground With June Wins

By BEN PHILGAR
AP Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians and New York Giants greeted July in first place today, but they probably were a little sorry to see June fade from the calendar.

In the last 30 days every one of the other 14 major league teams lost ground in the pennant race. Cleveland was in first place a month ago but added two games to its margin over Chicago and half a game over the third-place New York Yankees.

The National League race fell apart in June, leaving only the Giants and Brooklyn as solid contenders with Philadelphia an outside possibility.

The Giants turned in the best record ever compiled for the month of June in the modern history of the majors. They won 24 out of 28 games and moved from third place, a game and a half out of the lead, into a three-game advantage over second-place Brooklyn.

The Dodgers had an excellent 21-3 mark for the month but dropped from a single game behind to three. The Phils fell 6 1/2 more games off the pace; Cincinnati, 9 1/2; St. Louis, 11; Pittsburgh, 11 1/2; Milwaukee, 12 in a nosedive from first to fourth place and Chicago 17.

The ground lost by American League teams also was considerable although not as much as in the senior circuit. In addition to the half-game loss by the Yankees and the two games by the White Sox, the Philadelphia Athletics lost 5 1/2; Washington and Baltimore, 8 each; and Boston and Detroit, 10 each.

On the final day of the month the Giants whipped Brooklyn 5-2, Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh 8-0, St. Louis crushed Cincinnati 11-3 and Chicago broke an 11-game losing streak with a 9-7 decision over Milwaukee in the National League.

Cleveland shaded Baltimore 3-0, Chicago bowed to Detroit 4-3, Boston tripped the Yankees 6-1 and Philadelphia edged Washington 8-7 in the American League.

Johnny Antonelli won his 11th game and became the second left-hander to beat the Dodgers this season as the Giants made a 2-1 thriller with three in the eighth on four walks and a single by Whitey Lockman.

Robin Roberts applied his white-wash brush to the Pirates for the third straight time.

It was his 11th victory. He had 12 by this date a year ago.

Nothing comes easy to the Cubs these days. After losing 11 straight they built up a 9-2 lead over Milwaukee in eight innings only to have the Braves rally for five in the last of the ninth. The Cubs ended the month with 21 losses in 28 starts.

Rookies sparked for the Cardinals. Joe Cunningham, playing his

Braves Win 8-3 From Dodgers

The Greenville Braves last night moved ahead in the standings of the Coastal Little League with an 8-3 victory over the Tobacco Board of Trade Dodgers.

The Braves rallied behind three pitchers who let the Dodgers down with only two hits. The Braves had a nine-hit attack of their own with A. Harris, P. Langley, and W. Station accounting for two hits apiece.

The Dodgers' two hits went to L. Hardy and C. Atkins.

There will not be any Little League or Softball League activity at South Greenville Park tonight because of the Adult Night Program that has been planned by the Recreation Department. The program will include bingo, bridge, table tennis, volleyball, whist, croquet, horseshoes, dancing, checkers, dominoes, singing, and pinocchle. Free refreshments will be served to those who attend.

Negro recreation officials today issued an appeal for anyone with card tables please bring them to the park tonight. They will be returned immediately after tonight's program is completed.

All-Stars Take 7-3, 7-1 Wins

Greenville's Softball All-Stars won a pair of games from a similar group from Kingston in a special doubleheader at Guy Smith Stadium last night.

The Greenville team won 7-3 and 7-1. Credit for the victories went to L. E. Johnson and Dan Gordon.

Johnson, the Carolina Dairies ace, let the Kingston team down with only four hits in the opener. He was in trouble only once, in the third inning when Kingston's E. Grady drove out a three-run home run. After that, the Kingston team failed to get more than one man on base in any single inning except in the fifth when a Greenville error put a man on base and in the seventh when O'Quinn got the other Kingston hit.

Greenville came from behind in the contest to win. The actual winning run came in the fifth inning when Johnson and Tom Boyd put singles back-to-back and then waited through two infield outs for Paul Jones to drive out a three-base hit that chased them home.

Boyd, Johnson, and Ford McGowan got two hits apiece to pace the Greenville team. No Kingston player got more than one hit.

In the second game Gordon got solid backing in the middle innings to win easily over the Kingston team. By the time Kingston got its only run of the game Gordon had all seven of his runs behind him.

Ford McGowan had three hits in three trips to the plate to pace the Greenville batters.

Posts New Record

RALEIGH (AP)—Posting a new Raleigh Speedway record, Emmanuel Zerkbakis of Richmond, Va., led qualifiers last night in time trials for Saturday's 200-mile national championship race for modified and sportsman stock cars.

Zerkbakis averaged 85.43 miles per hour in circling the mile track in 42.14 seconds. The previous track record of 84.42 miles per hour was set Tuesday night by Jack Choquette of Montclair, N.J.

Zerkbakis won the outside pole position for the race, which carries a purse of $10,000. Choquette won the inside pole. The race will be limited to the 50 fastest cars. Time trials also will be held Saturday morning. Earl Moss of Creedmore was second last night with a time of 43.82 seconds. Next was Banks Simpson, Concord with 44.17. Fourth was Buddy Shuman Charlotte, with 44.19. Ten other drivers posted times.

Jack Westrope, leading rider during the 1953 Delaware Park meeting, will ride Jim Ryan-trained thoroughbreds during the Delaware meeting.

For New Fishing Thrills Try Shallow Water Sport

By DION HENDERSON
AP Newswriters

The fellow who takes up stream fishing after his teens may not catch many fish right away, but he's apt to keep clean.

There's no question about the lure of wading water, to novice and veteran alike. You seek out the quiet stretches of the stream, above the bridge where less hardy sculpin ply their lines. You find the fast current whooping through tree shaded banks, the soray of a little rapid where rocks jut to the surface, you step in at the lower end of a pool where the stream makes a wide curve and streams down toward you. You feel the tug of current on your legs, and the boots collapse tightly under the pressure and the coldness of the water through the bootles. There is the tinkling sound of fast water, and the drone of summer insects and it is hot beyond the trees but you have that air-conditioned feeling. You cast your fly ahead of you, perhaps at the overhange on the quiet side of the curving bank, and a trout—or smallmouth bass or crappie—rises and you flick the rod tip but he is gone. And it doesn't really matter. Man, you know you're living.

Of course your next cast may be in a tree, and your next step may be on a round, stone slippery as grease with moss, and the next sound you make may be a frantic yell at tepping into water 50 degrees colder than the air.

The fisherman new at this sort of thing can use some advice. He'll see most veterans wearing waders—waterproof pants that reach to the armpits. But he'll do better to do his first wading in hip boots, for two reasons. They're cheaper ($10 will do) and they present a ready reminder if he is tempted to venture into water too deep for him to handle. He might even hits in their snout. Kenzie Joyner also gave up four hits but errors on the part of his teammates led in both runs.

In the first inning with two outs David Garrison reached first on an error by the leftfielder and when the fielder threw wild into second Garrison went to third. He scored moments later when the Moose shortstop erred. Ed Smoot's ground ball.

In the fifth two hits in a row by David Andrews and Beverly Whitley put runners on first and second. An error by Kenzie Joyner put the runners on first and third. Andrews scored on a double play ball hit by Jack Whitley.

Jackson Williams with two for three was the only player on either team to get more than one hit.

Wimbledon's State Of Mind Holds Strange Tennis Lure

NEW YORK (AP)—There was considerable indignation, or at least amazement, among this nation's sports fans the other day at some news that came out of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, where for nearly a fortnight the world's best tennis players have been using up many hundreds of tennis balls.

It seemed that some 18,000 paying customers had sat and stood through a long afternoon of chilling rain without having seen a ball struck and then upon being prodded by the public address system, simply had gathered up their possessions and gone quietly back home. There were no rain checks to be used on another day. There were no refunds.

The general reaction we have heard and read is that if anything of the kind had occurred on this side of the big water there would

Camera News

A FAVORITE TARGET for camera fans in Williamsburg is the uniformed guide who demonstrates colonial firearms. In this shot, by a rare coincidence, a house-painter at work makes it look like he's firing at a second-story man.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Camera fans should be particularly grateful to the many far-sighted individuals throughout the country who have been imbued with the vision of restoring some of the historic settings in the early life of our nation. Through their dreams-come-true, photographers of today can step out of their present environment and take pictures of a bygone century and way of life. They can also choose a particular locale—such as the rugged West, the deep South or the colonial East—depending on which section of the country they plan to visit.

Recently, on a week's vacation with my family—and five cameras—I chose to visit America's best-known and largest restoration project—the historic town of Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

The trip was extremely successful from the picture taking point of view. Thanks to good weather, the photographic settings and my home-brought models, we not only exhausted our supposedly ample film supply but had to add to it.

But more than the photographs, we returned with a clearer view of the stirring picture of our early American patriots and their fight for freedom. From this town and these restored walls, hints has echoed, and amplified, the footsteps of George Washington, the words of Thomas Jefferson and the voice of Patrick Henry. It becomes living history.

Williamsburg has specific features that make life easier for a photographer, amateur or professional, from the rankiest novice to the most serious camera club member.

First and foremost there are no closed gates to enter in order to see, or photograph, the restored buildings in Williamsburg. One moment you're on a main highway and then, presto!—the years have turned back some 200 years and you're in a colonial community. You can drive or wander about the cobbled streets with its some 300 dwellings, craft shops, gaols, taverns and public buildings.

Craftsmen attired in appropriate garb and working with ancient tools; hostesses in colonial costumes; a town crier with bell and parchment; ancient carriages with liveried lackeys and guardsmen in colonial and British uniforms all add to the picturesque setting. They carry on their duties with just the right blend of being oblivious to the many cameras pointed their way though they'll stop and pose when they are asked to.

The second most important feature for camera fans in Colonial Williamsburg is its reception center. Here is where you can appreciate its physical layout by studying a large scale model and see continuous free movies and slide showings which explain its most noteworthy attractions. A map of the town and a schedule of the current week's events are also available for the asking.

By using these services and facilities, a camera fan could arrange a sensible schedule of picture taking. Sightseers do not have to pay a fee unless they wish to take guided tours inside the eight exhibition buildings. Incidentally, taking pictures inside these buildings is prohibited.

Officials explain that snaphooters have a way of slowing up the regular tours. They lag behind, distract attention and; if they use tripods, can cause accidents. Other tourists, with their attention on room furnishings, can trip on the tripods.

On arguing these points with the official photographer, an able cameraman appropriately named Tom Williams, I was left with the impression that exceptions to this general rule could be made. A serious photographer with a reason for photographing the interiors himself would find the officials cooperative.

Restored Williamsburg is a happy hunting ground for many hobbyists. Whether your enthusiasm is for gardens, architecture, antiques, archaeology, hand crafts, interior decoration, costumes or history—you'll find it here. And the common denominator for them all, forming a perfect blend with each or all of them, separately or together is photography.

Ambassadorship To Paraguay Is Going Begging

By FRED L. STROZIER
ASUNCION, Paraguay — A U. S. government job worth $15,000 a year and allowances is going begging.

It is the post of ambassador to this smallest South American nation. The job has been vacant since last October.

In recent years most of the work has fallen on a series of counselors of embassy—Archibald Randolph, John Shillock and now David H. Maynard. But they have lacked the rank to deal most effectively with tough problems.

Wealthy U. S. campaign contributors looking for a likely embassy quickly pass over Asuncion after one hurried look at the State Department's report on the post. The capital has a bare 300,000 population and the nation only 1,200,000.

There is almost no public entertainment, no good hotel, no good restaurant. Water comes from private wells, and there is no public sewage disposal system. Electricity and automatic telephones function irregularly. Mail, radio-telegraphic and telephone communications to other countries are slow.

To fill such an unattractive post in a hot, sea-level community, the State Department may have to draft an unwilling career man for the ambassador's job.

Paraguay is friendly to Uncle Sam, who has poured funds into the country for a tuberculosis hospital and for valuable farm projects to help raise the nation's low standard of living. This friendship has stood the strain of a violent April revolution, the subsequent selection of a provisional president and the nomination of a new strong-man general, Alfredo Stroessner, for the remainder of the presidential term.

MOSCOW — The Soviet armed forces are being told that the American B29 is not so tough and that Chinese fighter pilots can knock it down.

This is put forth in an article published in Red Star under the by-line of Chou Bao-tun, Hero First Class of the (Communist) Chinese People's Republic.

NICEST thing about the beaches these days is that the people there seem to feel as good as they look—and they look wonderful!

Full of life, trim of shape, they owe their slender waists and graceful figures mostly to their modern, wholesome diet habits. Their taste today is for food and drink that's lighter and less filling.

That's why Pepsi-Cola is more popular than ever. It's kept in step with changing fashions, changing tastes. Today's Pepsi is light, dry (not too sweet), reduced in calories.

Grocer Eggs On Bartering Trade

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—Harris Shultz, a grocer, says cash on the farm is drying up. On the fringe of Detroit, one of the nation's most heavily industrialized areas, Grocer Shultz trades with farmers on a barter basis. Mostly he takes eggs for staples.

Normally he gets only a few dozen a day, but the average has gone up to 15 dozen now. They've been accumulating so fast he couldn't dispose of them to henless customers. Once he had 200 dozen on hand.

Falling farm prices, he says, are shortening the farmer's cash and he's turning more and more to bartering.

Wringer Speeds Job Of Washing

POMPTON PLAINS, N.J. (AP)—Several members normally work a full day to fold some 2,000 voting information sheets the League of Women Voters mails out annually. This year Mrs. J.W. Worden Sr. did it all herself by feeding the sheets through her washing machine.

Mrs. Worden got the idea from her grandson, Donald Worden, who uses the same method to fold church bulletins.

Bearded Growth Evinces Queries

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. (AP)—Oce Goff, who is raising a beard for the city's centennial pageant is beating the kidders to the punch by handling out cars that read: "I am growing this beard for the Nebraska City Centennial Pageant."

"Yes, it's real!"

"You're right, it does bother me!"

"Right again, the wife does NOT like it!"

"I know it looks like hell, but I'm having fun."

A Smooth Summery Pie!

After a long, pleasant Sunday afternoon in the sun, there's something luxurious about inviting neighbors to sit on your back porch in the gloaming, with the lights slowly blinking in the sky. A quiet evening of talk, then into the dining room for hot coffee and the cool, delicious smoothness of banana coconut cream pie handsomely garnished and attractively served. And so easily achieved, too, in just half the time it used to take, when you make it with a vanilla pudding and pie filling mix.

Banana Coconut Cream Pie

1 package vanilla pudding and pie filling mix
 2 cups milk
 1/2 cup shredded coconut
 2 ripe bananas
 1 baked 9-inch pie shell
 1/4 cup cream, whipped

Combine pie filling mix and milk in saucepan. Add shredded coconut. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat. Cool only about 5 minutes, stirring once or twice. Slice bananas, reserving about a fourth for garnishing, and arrange in cold pie shell. Cover with the filling. Chill. Garnish with whipped cream, the remainder of the banana slices, and maraschino cherries.

Iraq Could Use Horse Collars, Wagon Wheels

KIRKUK, Iraq (AP)—Horse collars and wagon wheels could revolutionize the farming industry of northern Iraq.

That is the belief of a Montana county agent acting as a kind of agricultural ambassador for the United States among primitive farmers in the remote Kurdish country of northern Iraq.

Henry Botch came here from Missoula, Mont. nearly two years ago as a Point Four farm demonstration specialist. When he returns to America, he intends to leave here 13 well-trained young Iraqis to act as American-style county agents in this area.

"Before we teach them to use tractors, we first have to teach them to use wheels—ordinary wagon wheels," Botch says.

The Iraqi farmers usual procedure is to cut wheat with hand scythes and pile it on a wooden rack. When the rack is filled, a donkey walks beneath and it is tied to his back. The overloaded little animal then goes to the village a few miles away where the wheat is unloaded. The donkey returns to the field for another load.

A donkey pulling a four-wheeled wagon could carry five or six times as much wheat per trip as he hauls on his back. But farmers here always have moved their wheat by donkeyback, and they won't change until they have seen better methods with their own eyes.

That is why Botch is bringing into this area a few simple farm wagons of a type the farmers can build themselves. Once they see these wagons used, the American is sure they will begin building their own.

The same thing is true of good animal harness. The primitive type harness used by farmers here slows down their animals by choking them when they pull a plow or water pump.

If such simple devices are introduced Botch believes the Iraqi farmer can break out of a cycle of poverty in which he has been caught since civilized man first began farming the Tigris and Euphrates valley.

Oil refineries produce about 1,500 different products which have uses totalling many times that number.

CAP Squadron Plans Mission

Greenville Squadron, Civil Air Patrol members discussed field day exercises slated for this Sunday and the Sarcap mission to be held here July 11, at their meeting Tuesday night.

The weekly field day held at the local airport each Sunday is part of the weekly CAP meeting. Plans call for meeting each Tuesday night from 8 to 10 o'clock and on Sunday from 2 to 4 o'clock.

The Sarcap mission is a CAP training mission for Group III, which consists of squadrons in Eastern North Carolina. It is scheduled to be held here on Sunday, July 11, with the Greenville Squadron as the host unit.

Members present Tuesday also had a class of code and discussed CAP uniform pre-requisites. Lt. Homer Sanderson offered the local unit use of his theatre, the Meadowbrook Drive-In, on July 17, for making money for the Squadron. All he will receive from receipts on that date is the operating expense.

There were about 25 senior members and cadets present at the weekly meeting at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Looters Ransack Home Of Arbenz

GUATEMALA (AP)—Police say the plush residence of leftist ex-President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman has been ransacked of everything but some stale rolls and empty bottles in the kitchen — and a big pile of Communist literature stacked in the front lobby.

Looters took away furniture, rugs and the pictures from the walls.

Arbenz disappeared immediately after resigning last Sunday and is believed to have sought asylum in the Mexican Embassy here.

Consider Limits On Owning Dogs

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A proposed ordinance to limit the number of dogs in any household to three — and thereby cut down on howling and barking — will be considered by the City Commission Tuesday.

Commissioner Joseph N. Langan said yesterday that he knew of one property owner who keeps 27 dogs on his place.

The 25-room home, Sagamore Hill, built by Theodore Roosevelt in 1884, has been opened to the public as a shrine for the former President.

The Right Touch At The Right Time

When folks start saying, "It's really too hot to eat," that is when you must pay special attention to the foods you serve and the way you serve them.

Just such a time is the right time for a cool, cool Jellied Chicken Ring—luscious pieces of tender chicken combined with crisp vegetables and molded in lemon-flavored gelatin to make a main-dish salad that will tempt the most heat-jaded appetites. It can be prepared ahead in the cool of the day, too!

Jellied Chicken Ring

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
 2 cups hot chicken stock, free from fat
 1/2 cup diced cooked chicken
 1/4 cup chopped celery
 1/4 cup chopped green pepper (optional)
 2 tablespoons minced pimento
 2 tablespoons vinegar
 1 teaspoon grated onion
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 Dash of pepper
 Dash of Worcestershire sauce

Dissolve gelatin in hot chicken stock. Chill until slightly thickened. Combine remaining ingredients. Fold into slightly thickened gelatin. Turn into ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise. Makes 6 servings.

Case Hinges On Literary Ability

SUFFOLK, Va. (AP)—The literary ability of two Suffolk women may determine whether either faces an additional penalty on reckless driving charges as a result of an automobile accident.

Cars driven by Phillis Jean Culpepper, 21, and Mrs. Thelma Lee Baggett, 43, collided last week with only minor damages, but both women were charged with reckless driving.

After hearing the case yesterday, Police Court Justice E. Roland Custis reset the case for July 10 to pass judgment — after he reads two-page essays on "Who's Got the Right of Way?" he sentenced the two women to write.

(Continued from page four) ive Law, who suggested that protection of lawyers and citizens alike requires some better method of publicizing the ordinances. The recommendation was for a periodical official register, which would contain all the "laws" not included in the General Statutes and Session Laws.

Such a publication would serve the further purpose of relieving overburdened county officials, especially clerks of court and registers of deeds, from the necessity of maintaining files on a lot of material which is of State rather than county relevance, and for keeping of which they get no extra compensation.

Business Closes After 157 Years

WARE, Mass. (AP)—A firm that made tools used to build the frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides," launched in 1797, has gone out of business.

The Snell Manufacturing Co., which had been making hardware since 1790, closed down yesterday.

Big Forest Fire Believed Blocked

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—A 23-mile patrolled fire break line has halted a forest fire near here that has raged through 6,000 acres of woodlands in nearly five days.

Three radio-equipped planes were patrolling the area, in contact with 75 men on the ground who have been battling the blaze.

One of the planes was a heli-copter from Shaw Air Force Base. Another was a light National Guard plane from Columbia, and the third was a private plane from Sumter.

Eighteen pieces of heavy equip-ment, such as bulldozers and fire-break plows, were being used in the battle.

Winds of up to 25 miles an hour that constantly shifted sent sparks flying across firebreaks and natu-ral barriers into a 54,000-acre woodland tract yesterday.

The fire jumped U.S. Highway 501, necessitating that traffic be routed over State Routes 544 and 707.

Chances of bringing the fire un-der control seemed slim without rain, of which none was in sight.

The big tract that the fire began eating into yesterday has no natu-ral barriers to such a blaze. It consists of both old and new growth trees.

Serious fires also were reported in Edgefield and Union counties, and woods fires, mostly under con-trol, were reported from 11 other counties scattered from the moun-tains to low country counties.

No Cases Yet In Epidemic County

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—Caldwell County which this time last year was caught in the throes of a se-vere polio epidemic, hasn't had a single case this year.

County Health Officer Dr. Wil-liam Happer said yesterday that two cases recently thought to be polio proved false alarms. For the first six months of 1953 the county had recorded 71 cases.

Happer said that many of last year's victims still are hospital-ized while others are receiving fol-low-up treatment at home and at the county health center.

Report Truman's Progress Good

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Harry S. Tru-man's doctors say they now expect him to make continued progress in recovering from his operation and its after effects.

In last night's report a hospital spokesman said he was making substantial progress and his tem-perature had reached a normal level of 98.4 degrees.

Young Son May Have Answered Plea For Death

LEBANON Ore. (AP)—A 40-year-old father's plea for death finally was answered yesterday, and the coroner said the man may have used his 2 1/2-year-old son to fire the fatal bullet.

Marion Ezra Leavitt, 40, was found sprawled in the living room of his home. A .30-30 caliber rifle and the 2 1/2-year-old son, Clarence, were by his side.

"Daddy told me to kill him, so I pulled it," the boy told Coroner Glen Huston.

Huston said members of the family said Leavitt was morose over financial troubles and had been drinking. Huston said they all told how Leavitt had pleaded with everyone during the day to kill him.

Light Damage As Car, Truck Hit

A car and a truck were involved in a collision on a dirt road about two miles west of House Station about 6:30 last night when the driv-ers of the vehicles were said to be blinded by dust.

The car was operated by Benel Gaskins of Greenville Route 6 and the truck was driven by Leon Mc-Kinley Gilbert of 302 Boyd Avenue, Greenville.

Gaskins' car received approxi-mately $125 damage in the collision while damage to the truck amounted to about $10.

No charges were placed in the accident. Investigating Patrolman was D. E. Perry.

Discrimination Charges Studied

CHARLOTTE (AP)—City Attorney John Shaw was studying today charges of racial discrimination in the restaurant at Charlotte's new airport terminal.

Four Negro men appeared before the City Council yesterday, protesting that they were denied service in the restaurant Tuesday. They said unless some action is taken, they will seek a federal in-junction against the restaurant.

Under the contract by which the city obtained federal aid for con-struction of the airport persons who lease space there must adhere to all federal codes and regulations, the four contended.

They said unless the council give a "satisfactory answer" to their petition before the airport's formal opening July 10, they will file an action in federal court to halt operation of the restaurant.

One of the four, C. V. Bell, a lawyer said the four were denied service in the main dining room and the coffee shop. He said ac-commodations for Negroes consist of three booths in a small room off the coffee shop, where the restau-rant workers also eat.

Others in the group were T. H. Wyche, an attorney, Dr. R. A. Hawkins and W. W. Twitty.

Sorrow, Uncounted Dead In Flood-Wrecked Town

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON JR. PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Mexico.

This was a town of sorrow and uncounted dead last night.

The greatest flood in the history of the Rio Grande rolled down on Piedras Negras and past the levee that curled around it like a protecting arm.

Thirty-eight persons are known dead. But few believed last night these were all the dead. Uncon-firmed estimates ranged up to 500. Last night campfires flickered on the rough, mesquite-covered hills around what was a thriving farm town of 35,000 people across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, Tex.

These were the fires of the homeless; people who daily trudge back to their ruined houses in search of the dead.

At least one half — the half far-est from the river — of Piedras Negras still is flooded. The down-town section was in better shape. It is high, on the edge of the Rio Grande, and the water has receded from its white brick, two-story buildings with spires and shutters of red and blue.

Cars move through the paved down-town streets and merchants sadly take up the job of getting back to ruined businesses.

Away from the business section, the paving plays out and the streets are loblollie of sticky mud down which no automobile can travel.

These are the sections where adobe houses melted like toy mud huts made by children.

Open cesspools pock the town like sores. There is no pure water in the town.

H. G. Walker, a U.S. Public Health Service officer from Eagle Pass who has inspected Piedras Negras, said, "Sanitary conditions are horrible. The water system was never adequate and now there is none at all."

At first, Walker said, bodies were pulled out of mesquite bushes and buried quickly.

Will Have Large Sum Left Over For Tryon Palace

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—After Tryon Palace here has been re-stored, the state will likely have about one million dollars left from a trust fund to maintain and pro-mote the colonial structure as a tourist attraction.

John A. Kellenberger of Greens-boro, reasurer of the Tryon Pal-ace Commission, made this pre-diction yesterday at a meeting of the commission. The members heard a report of the progress of the restoration.

Tryon Palace was built by Royal Gov. William Tryon in 1767-1770. It is being restored with funds left in trust by the late Mrs. Maude Moore Latham of Greensboro. Her estate was closed as of last May.

Mrs. Latham, a son-in-law of Mrs. Latham, said that its present value for Tryon Palace restoration is $2,955,577.46.

Eric W. Rodgers, assistant di-rector of the State Department of Conservation and Development, re-ported that the state has appropri-ated a total of $227,000 for land acquisitions near the palace ground as required under Mrs. Latham's will.

The commission told that more land is needed, voted to ask the State Board of Conservation and Development at its Morehead City meeting July 19-21 to help in se-curing an additional appropriation of $100,000 from the 1955 Legis-lature for land purchases.

Architect William Graves Perry of Boston, was authorized to spend at least $145,000 more than he origi-nally requested for the palace structure. He said the additional sum will probably be needed to make the palace "more ornamen-tal" than was first planned. When completed, the central palace build-ing will cost about $700,000, Perry estimated.
