Advocate End Of Courtesy Parking

Greenville's Off-Street Parking Committee, after hearing a report yesterday by Professor W. F. Babcock on Greenville's parking problems, are recommending the Merchants Association Courtesy Parking plan be abolished.

Babcock, a consulting engineer of North Carolina State College, reported to the committee the results of a recent off-street parking survey made here. After hearing his report the committee, composed of members of Greenville City Council, Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce, went on record as approving all of his recommendations.

After hearing the engineer's recommendations the committee voted to ask the City Council to put three of the eight recommendations into effect as soon as practicable. These three recommendations include abolishing the courtesy plan, developing a new parking meter layout, and posting of signs stating whether the area is a one-hour or two-hour meter zone.

Babcock's Report In discussing his results of the survey Babcock said, "Many shoppers do not place a coin in the meter when they park their vehicle. A large number of shoppers and workers are given one additional period of parking without a violation. Data indicated a relatively large group of long time parkers (over two hours) were merely taking the envelope from the windshield every two hours. This obtaining an additional courtesy parking privilege."

Engineer's Conclusions In his report he gave the following conclusions: "Although the parking situation should be studied in more detail during the tobacco season, there are certain preliminary conclusions and recommendations that can be made on a tentative basis."

1. At the present time the Merchants Plan is increasing the magnitude of the parking problem rather than decreasing it.

2. There are an excessive number of two hour meters.

3. No attempt should be made to provide off-street parking in any magnitude until the on-street parking problem is operated in a more efficient manner.

His Recommendations "The following recommendations are suggested for immediate activation as a trial during the 1954 tobacco season," he added.

1. The Merchants Courtesy ticket system should be abolished.

2. A parking layout should be developed.

3. From the legal and enforcement point-of-view a one-hour parking meter should be used only one hour. Additional use of coins in the meter to be considered a violation; similarly a two-hour meter should be used a maximum of two hours.

4. Signs should be posted stating the one-hour and two-hour parking limits.

5. Policemen should check registration numbers at definite intervals to enforce one-hour limit.

6. Special emphasis on the one-hour limit and registration check should be made on Evans Street from Third to Fifth Street and on Fourth and Fifth Streets between Washington and Cotanche Streets.

7. Two-hour parking meters may be used on Dickinson Avenue beyond Seventh Street as a means of eliminating the all-day parker from this street.

8. No changes are suggested at this time for the short time parking and loading zones. These will be treated separately."

Same Support

WASHINGTON (AP)—The average support price for 1954 flue-cured tobacco will be 47.9 cents a pound, the same as it was last year.

The Agriculture Department said yesterday that the average is the minimum level announced April 29. Had there been an increase of tobacco parity prices as of July 1, the average price would have been changed.

Government support prices will vary by grade, from 13 cents a pound for certain nondescript to 73 cents a pound for top grades.

There will be a differential of 5 cents a pound for tied and untied tobacco. Untied tobacco will bring the lower price.

Court Reinstates Two Lattimore Perjury Counts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals today upheld the dismissal of two perjury charges against Owen Lattimore, including the key count, but ordered two other counts reinstated.

The court agreed with U.S. District Judge Luther W. Youngdahl that the key count, charging Lattimore swore falsely when he said he was not a Communist sympathizer or promoter of Communist causes, was invalid.

The court also upheld dismissal of a charge that Lattimore committed perjury when he told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that it was not necessary for him to have the permission of Communist authorities for a visit to Yenan, then the Communist stronghold in China, and that he made no prearrangements with Communists in order to get in.

The court upheld dismissal of the key count by a vote of 8-1. Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens dissented.

"We are of opinion that this first count of the indictment is void for vagueness," Judge E. Barrett Prettyman said in speaking for the majority.

"The word 'sympathizer' is not of sufficiently certain meaning to sustain a charge of perjury. The count is that Lattimore said he had never been a sympathizer whereas he had been a sympathizer. There is no definition of the term 'sympathizer' or of any concrete specification of its content either in the indictment or in the statute. Without such definition or specification the term has no certain meaning."

The counts the court reinstated were based on this testimony by Lattimore:

1. He did not know that Asia-ticus, a writer for Pacific Affairs, a magazine of the Institute of Pacific Relations which Lattimore edited, was a Communist. Asia-ticus is alleged to be a German Communist, Hans Mueller, who was a protégé of Communist Gerhart Eisler.

2. Also that he never published articles in IPR magazines by persons he knew to be Communists, other than from Russian contributors.

The charges Judge Youngdahl let stand were based on these statements by Lattimore:

1. He had no reason prior to 1950 to believe that Ch'ao Ting Chi was a writer for the IPR and is reported to be a Chinese Communist official now.

2. A luncheon Lattimore had with Soviet Ambassador Constantine Oumansky took place after the Nazi invasion of Russia on June 22, 1941.

Terrorists Are Given Sentences

Maximum Prison Sentences, Up To 75 Years, Imposed By District Judge

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four Puerto Rican terrorists who shot up the House of Representatives March 1 and wounded five of its members today were given maximum prison sentences ranging up to 75 years.

A fiery brunette, Lolita Lebron, 34, self-styled leader of the group, received a sentence of 16 years and 8 months to 50 years.

Her three male companions received sentences of from 25 to 75 years each.

U.S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff said he felt maximum sentences were justified because the crime was "so heinous, so infamous, so daring and so atrocious as to shock the conscience of the nation."

The longer sentences for the three men resulted from the fact that a jury convicted them last month on five charges each of assault with intent to kill and five charges each of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Mrs. Lebron was convicted only on five charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Before hearing their sentences, the four Puerto Ricans protested anew that they merely staged a demonstration in behalf of Puerto Rican independence, and did not intend to kill anyone.

In their own minds, the Puerto Ricans said, they did not feel they were guilty of any crime.

Judge Holtzoff took a different view. He called the pistol attack on the House "dastardly, wicked and ruthless." Except for the skillful work of surgeons, the judge said the Puerto Ricans would have been before him to hear death sentences instead of sentences on lesser charges.

Their lawyers said they would file notices of appeal.

The men are: Rafael Cancel Miranda, 26; Andres Figueroa Cordeiro, 29; and Irving Flores Rodriguez, 28.

All are from New York City, as is Mrs. Lebron, 34.

Testimony was taken during the dramatic two-week trial from the four defendants and from five wounded congressmen—Rep. Clifford Davis (D-Tenn.), five Cliffords (R-Mich), George H. Fallon (D-Ma), Ben F. Jensen (R-Iowa), and Kenneth A. Roberts (D-Ala.).

Dulles Says U.S. Would Use Veto

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the United States would use its veto, if necessary, to keep Red China out of the U.N. Security Council.

Dulles expressed complete confidence that the Chinese regime would be unable to gain admittance to the fall session to any of the principal U.N. organizations, including the Assembly.

At a news conference, Dulles denounced the Peiping regime for flouting the United Nations in Korea, supporting the Communists in Indochina and generally failing to fulfill international obligations.

Dulles said firmly, in answer to questions, he did not believe there would be any occasion for the United States to withdraw from the United Nations if Red China is admitted as Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) has proposed.

Talk of pulling out of the United Nations, he said, strikes a note of defeatism which is entirely unjustified because the United States and like-minded countries have a powerful case for blocking Red China's membership.

President Eisenhower said yesterday he is "completely and unalterably opposed under the present situation to the admission of Red China to the United Nations."

His stand was believed to have ward off likelihood of any early Senate action to put Congress on record with formal notice of American withdrawal if Red China should be admitted, as suggested by Knowland.

Knowland himself has been cooling on his idea and Sen. George (D-Ga.) said in an interview he does not now expect such a proposal to be offered.

George, who is senior Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he would oppose such a move because it "might deprive us of freedom of action at a critical time."

New Dental Drill Nearly Painless

NEW YORK (AP)—A new super-sonic dental drill, claimed to be virtually painless and almost noiseless, may be available in dentists' offices within several years.

The device, shaped like a miniature riveting machine, was demonstrated yesterday at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center.

The actual drilling is done by an abrasive liquid dripped to the edge of the drill, which vibrates at 25,000 times per second.

Commercial production of the new tool is at least a year away, and dental schools and clinics will get it first.

The City Council will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Council room at City Hall.

The agenda for the regular monthly meeting includes two items of unfinished business; the formal ordinance designating the zoning commission and a resolution for Route 313.

The first item of business on the docket is the tentative adoption of the 1954-55 budget.

Other new business scheduled to be discussed is the adoption of a business license ordinance; consideration of a request by C. J. Cannon to permit parking on both sides of Ficklen Street and Dickinson Avenue to 9th Street; and consideration of a request by B. B. Sugg to remove some of his property from the First District.

Wake Farmers To Ask Federal Emergency Aid

RALEIGH (AP)—Wake County farmers whose crops were dealt a severe blow by hail and wind Monday have voted to seek national emergency aid.

The action was taken yesterday at a mass meeting at which the farmers were told that something may be salvaged from the ruins of the storm damage. More than 500 men and women attended the meeting in Bethany Baptist Church on the Rolesville-Wendell road.

Harold Nau, tobacco specialist of the North Carolina State College Extension Service urged the farmers to "get out there and do something as soon as possible" about their tobacco crop. He added "How much you can get from your crop depends upon the weather from now until the fall."

He said that between 30 and 40 per cent of the normal yield could be expected in cases of "100 per cent damage" from hail, if normal weather prevails with average rain fall until harvest time.

'Emergency' Action In Griffon Water Shortage

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector Staff Writer

GRIFTON—The Board of Commissioners declared a "special emergency" involving the health and safety of the people and their property as a result of a serious water shortage which left Griffon without a water supply from 6 o'clock to 9 p.m. several nights recently.

The commissioners passed an ordinance prohibiting the use of water from the town system for non-essential purposes until the current situation is relieved.

Mayor Sam Nelson said today that steps are being taken to place a recently-drilled well in operation.

In connection with alleged irregularities at the Ayden box, subpoenas have been issued for Clyde W. Cannon, S. F. Peterson, J. Clarence Whitehurst, G. R. Dall, H. Kirby Smith, John Throver, all of Ayden township, and R. H. McLaughlin Jr. of Winterville township.

From Bethel township subpoenas have been issued for Mrs. Clara Ward Roberson, E. G. Ward, W. P. Knippen, and W. T. Ward.

Subpoenaed from Pactolus township are J. B. Barnhill, J. R. Chauncey, M. Dall Laughinghouse, Joe

Harvey Farmer, and James Tripp. Peel said this morning the 16 people have been called to testify before the Board of Elections in order that the board may "hear their side of the question."

None testified

None of the precinct officials or others called for tomorrow's hearing testified at the hearing of the Board of Elections held Tuesday night.

The announcement of the new hearings tomorrow came today on the heels of a writ of mandamus served on the Board of Elections yesterday ordering that the board not open the ballot boxes of the three precincts in question for a recount until the appeal of Ruel W. Tyson to the State Board of Elections has been acted upon. The writ was signed by Superior Court Judge J. Paul Frizzle of Snow Hill.

A spokesman for the Board of Elections said today the board will continue its investigation of alleged irregularities so far as possible in keeping with the restrictions of the writ.

Report Evidence Points To Violation Of Election Laws

Whitehurst, and testimony of witnesses which the Elections Board called at the request of Whitehurst.

On the basis of the affidavits and testimony Tuesday night the Board said in its list of findings:

"That from the evidence offered at this hearing, it appears that various irregularities were committed and the elections laws violated in the conduct of the primary election in Bethel, Ayden and Pactolus precincts on June 26, 1954, and that according to some of the evidence some of the acts were of criminal nature and that the complaint and charges impugned criminal responsibility on the part of some of the elections officials and others participating in the elections. And that the Board of Elections should investigate, in order to ascertain the truth or falsity of said charges and complaint."

The board also found that the "evidence introduced by S. A. Whitehurst" is "sufficient to warrant the Pitt County Board of Elections in ordering a recount of the ballots in Ayden, Bethel and Pactolus townships."

The board in its statement of findings went on to say the evidence introduced is sufficient to warrant the board's inquiry into the manner in which the primary was conducted and to investigate "all irregularities and violations" charged in the complaint and "ascertain the truth or falsity of said charges to the end that the cloud of suspicion surrounding said boxes may be removed and the accused persons may be exonerated or the complaints against them verified by such investigation."

More Missiles Germany-Bound

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force plans to send to Germany this fall a second squadron of about 600 officers and men equipped with Matador guided missiles.

The first piloted bomber squadron went to Germany in March, and is stationed at Bitburg. The Air Force announcement last night did not say where the second will be based. It is the 69th Squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. Richard W. Massey of Kirkville, Mo., and now is training at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla.

The Matador, powered by turbojet engines, has a range of between 500 and 1,000 miles. It is capable of carrying an atomic warhead.

Miami Police Said Working Around The Clock Push Hunt For Child-Killer

MIAMI Fla. (AP)—More than 30 men were questioned and seven were being held by police as homicide detectives sought today to crack the kidnap-murder of 7-year-old Judith Ann Roberts.

Lt. Chester Eldridge, head of the homicide bureau, said however that his men were without a "definite" suspect.

The police still had about 40 men listed for questioning, all known sex perverts and child molesters.

The body of blue-eyed Judith Ann was savagely beaten and ravished when found yesterday a few blocks from Miami's City Hall at Dinner Key.

"We will work around the clock until this vicious killer is in jail," said Eldridge.

A report that the FBI was calling signals in the case was denied by Edward J. Powers, special agent in charge of the Miami office. He pointed out that the FBI lacked jurisdiction because the case was not taken across state lines and there was no ransom demand.

Commissioners Of Pamlico And Beaufort Meet Here With Highway Division

County Commissioners of Beaufort and Pamlico Counties met here yesterday with Highway Division Commissioner Maynard Hicks and other members of the division staff.

The session was the first in a series of meetings this month between highway division officials and county officials to discuss the highway program in the several counties which comprise the Second Highway division.

During the meeting, the highway program which was completed in Beaufort and Pamlico Counties in the past fiscal year was discussed, and the proposed program for the new fiscal year was outlined.

"They seemed to be very well pleased with what has been done and the prospects for the coming year," Hicks commented following the meeting.

The Commissioners said he and other division officials will meet with the county commissioners, superintendent of schools and chairman of the board of education of each county in the division in the next several weeks.

A meeting with officials of Jones and Lenoir Counties is slated for July 14, and with officials of Carteret and Craven Counties on July 21. Hicks said a definite date has not yet been set for the meeting with officials of Pitt and Greene Counties.

No Change For Australian View

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—Prime Minister R. G. Menzies said today there has been no change in Australia's opposition to the admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

Menzies was commenting at a press conference on New Zealand Foreign Minister Clifton Webb's statement that the time has arrived to bring the Chinese Reds into the U.N.

Menzies said there had been no change in the attitude he expressed last September when he said: "I do not discuss recognition of my enemy while I am in the field with him. The problem of Communist China does not arise at this moment."

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—Two hundred British paratroopers were dropped east of Ipoh, Malaya's chief tin-mining center, today in a drive against Chinese Communist terrorist gangs operating in that area.

Park Attendance Setting Record

RALEIGH (AP)—Attendance at state-owned parks set a new record for the first six months of this year, according to State Parks Supt. Thomas W. Morse.

An attendance check is made at 11 of the state's 15 parks. The report for the first six months showed a total of 708,232, an increase of 241,007 over the same period last year. The previous high mark of 573,967 was set during the first six months of 1952.

Ft. Macon State Park in Carteret County had the biggest attendance this year with 213,779. Morrow Mountain in Stanly County was next with 96,890, followed by Mt. Mitchell with 85,456. Hanging Rock in Stokes reported 74,706.

soon. The well was completed June 1 but a pump had not been obtained for the new water supply as yet.

Nelson indicated that the company which is to furnish the pump is being consulted and if it cannot be made immediately attempts will be made to set up a temporary pump at the well site.

He said that the new well will give a minimum of 200 gallons of water per minute and enough water is available in the gravel pack well to pump a maximum of 400 gallons per minute if needed.

The mayor noted that the town has two turbine pumps in operation, each of which pumps 150 gallons a minute. He said that even with a minimum of 200 gallons per minute from the new well an ample water supply will be provided.

"We are working just as hard as we can to get the water supply as quickly as possible," Nelson stated.

For four or five nights recently Griffon's water tank ran completely dry from 6 to 9 p.m. leaving the town without water for health and fire protection.

As a result the special emergency was declared and the ordinance prohibiting non-essential use of water was passed by the Board of Commissioners.

Nelson issued the following proclamation concerning the situation: "Due to the seriousness of Griffon's water situation and the uncertainty of when the new well can be pressed into operation, I appeal to each and every citizen to do his utmost to conserve the water supply."

The mayor said that citizens "are cooperating very nicely in the program to save water."

Oldest Survivor Given Check-Up

HOUSTON (AP)—Walter W. Williams, Veterans Administration doctors say, "is practically blind, has lost a few pounds and his hearing is bothering him."

But the 111-year-old Confederate veteran, holdest of four Civil War survivors is in pretty good shape, everything considered. Dr. R. S. Wolfe said the old soldier's condition had changed little in the last year.

Williams comes to the VA regional office here for an annual checkup. He lives at Franklin, Tex. 50 miles north of here.

"We would like to furnish him with a hearing aid," Wolfe said, "but we simply haven't the money." He explained that federal law does not provide for care of Confederate veterans.

Farmville Police To Install Radio

FARMVILLE—A two-way police radio will be installed in the local police station in the near future, Chief of Police L. T. Lucas said today.

The radio equipment was approved in the city budget by the Board of Commissioners in a special meeting last week. The commissioners called for bids on the unit at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Lucas said the radio system will be installed in the police station located in the Town Hall and a second sending-receiving unit is to be placed in the town's police car.

The chief noted that the station will be able to contact the Williamson State Highway Patrol radio, the Greenville Police Department and other law enforcement agencies in this area.

Lucas said that it is hoped that installation of the new radio equipment will be completed by August 1.

Faith In Fellow Man Is Shaken

BALTIMORE (AP)—Ben Cohn, 54-year-old insurance collector, lost $155 and some of his faith in the fellowship of man here yesterday.

hoodlums who attacked him on a sidewalk at 2:30 p. m. while passers-by ignored the whole thing.

"I could see people across the street," he said. "They saw me struggling. I can't get over it. If they only had called the police."

The insurance collector couldn't call police. One of his attackers had his throat caught in an elbow vise. Cohn said he lost $125 of company money and $30 of his own money.

Big Ammunition Supply Seized

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Army troops seized two million cartridges from the home of a member of the federal police yesterday and took them to the national arsenal. Officials said no arrests had been made.

The owner of the house said the ammunition was "part of a private investigation made several months ago." He said the cartridges were discarded government ammunition of various calibers.

Several Methods Open To Barring Red China

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—This is an ABC on how the United States can try to keep Red China out of the United Nations.

When the U.N. was created at war's end Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists were the government of China. As such they were given U.N. membership. At that time the Chinese Communists were a minority group, not a government.

Later they drove Chiang off the mainland to the island of Formosa. He set up shop there, claiming he was still the real government of all China. The Reds, occupying all the mainland, said they were the government.

The United States, refusing to recognize the Reds, has supported Chiang with arms and money. But 17 of the U.N.'s 60 member nations—including Britain, Russia, India, the Netherlands—have recognized Red China.

The U.N. has two main bodies: Security Council and General Assembly. All 60 U.N. members sit in the Assembly; 11 also sit in the council. Chiang's Nationalists sit in both council and Assembly.

The council is in continuous session, the Assembly meets at intervals. It doesn't meet again until Sept. 21. The fight over Red China, when and if it comes in 1954, is almost certain to be in the Assembly, not in the council.

The commission also passed a motion stating that city employees are not to authorize expenditures exceeding $100 except recurring monthly bills unless the expenditure is approved by the Commissioners.

The motion also stated that money is not to be spent or obligated unless there sufficient funds in the exact lowest breakdown of the budget to which the obligation should be charged and that funds are not to be transferred from one subdivision of the budget to another without approval of the commissioners.

The board voted to increase the price of the water tap-on fee for a 3/4 inch line from the present $15 to $30. The new charge will become effective September 1.

A resolution complimenting Charles Tucker manager of the municipal swimming pool for his efficient operation of the pool was passed by the board.

Permission to sell beer at retail was granted to George Swinson who operated the Walker building at 412 South Main Street.

operate more or less independently of each other and have different voting rules. In both places, this year at least the United States appears now to have enough friendly votes to keep Red China out.

But this could happen: The Assembly might vote the Nationalists and seat Red China while the Security Council blocked Red China and let the Nationalists keep their seat.

Take the Assembly first: Say someone moves to seat Red China. The United States could ask the vote on this motion be postponed. The decision would be by a simple majority of the 60 Assembly members. The United States might have enough friendly votes to win even on a majority vote.

But suppose it loses on this vote. That doesn't mean Red China walks in. If the majority voted against postponing a vote the United States could invoke Article 18 of the U.N. Charter when the actual vote on seating Red China came up.

This says that on any "important" question like setting a new member, Assembly approval must be by a two-thirds vote. All the United States would need then would be one third of the votes, plus one, to keep Red China out. It could probably do that.

But Russia could argue that Article 18 does not apply because China is already a member and that the only issue was whether to seat the Communists instead of the Nationalists. If the Assembly agreed with this view, and held Article 18 did not apply, a simple majority would decide whether to admit Red China. The United States might run into trouble on that.

Now take the Security Council: Five of its 11 members are permanent: the United States, Britain, France, China, Russia. The other six, elected from the Assembly, hold their seats on a rotating basis. At present the six are Brazil, Colombia, Turkey, Lebanon, Denmark and New Zealand.

The council votes on two kinds of questions: (a) procedural (or minor) like setting up a committee to study something and (b) substantive (very important), like telling both sides in a war to stop shooting and withdraw.

Any substantive question, like letting Red China into the Security Council, can be killed by any one of the five permanent members with a simple veto. The United States and Nationalist China, both on the council, would cast vetoes.

So Russia is never likely to agree that membership for Red China is a substantive question. Instead, if it brings the question up in the Security Council at all it is almost certain to try to make it a procedural matter.

The U.N. Charter provides for no veto on a procedural question, which can be approved if 7 of the 11 council members vote for it. But the Communists could hardly win that way now because of the council's makeup.

Since 7 of the 11 votes would be necessary to seat Red China, the United States could block that if it could round up five votes against. It seems to have those five votes now, but may not have that much strength next year after new temporary council members are chosen.

Special Education Needs Topic Of Conference At East Carolina

Children with individual problems need special help and encouragement in the schools and are receiving in increasing degree the types of training which will aid them toward happier and better lives, a conference on special education held Wednesday at East Carolina College brought out.

What is being done to help children with defects of vision, hearing, and speech; the crippled child; the mentally retarded child; and others and what expansion and improvement of the special education program should be aimed at for the future were discussed by a group of visiting specialists and of college faculty members.

Dr. R.W. Everhart of the East Carolina education department acted as conference chairman.

The Speech and Hearing Clinic in progress at the college this summer was open to visitors during the morning. Those present had an opportunity to observe practical demonstrations of group and individual therapy and a "social situation" at which clinic pupils entertained members of the conference in the dining room of the Flanagan building.

Participating in this program were ten pupils receiving help at the clinic; seven student teachers of special education now enrolled at East Carolina; and Catherine Furbee, teacher of special education in the college summer school.

Group meetings directed attention to three aspects of special education, guidance, the problems of the mentally retarded, and eye problems of children.

Mrs. Burnetta Blatt, nurse consultant for the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, New York, described a "Total Eye Health Program for Children of School Age," and Felix S. Barker, director of special education in the North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction, outlined the program of special education in this state.

Others who participated in the program included Dr. Hazel E. Taylor, Dr. Judson White, Frank G. Fuller, Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College; Mrs. Verdi Sugg of Wilson; Mrs. Eula Great-house of Rocky Mount; and Mrs. Katherine Whitchard of Greenville.

Experts estimate that Americans have twice the spending power they had in 1940.

Farmville Board Asks For Bids In Monthly Session

FARMVILLE—The Board of Commissioners, at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night, called for bids from local garages and service stations for gas, oil, washing, grease and general repairs on all city equipment.

Town Clerk Cleveland Paylor said firms may bid on any part of the services. The commissioners also called for bids on gasoline from wholesalers with the stipulation if such a contract is awarded, the company receiving the contract will erect an over-head tank and pump to dispense the gas.

Paylor stated that a comparison will be made to determine if buying from wholesalers will effect a saving over the method which has been used in the past of buying from service stations.

The board also called for bids on a two-way police radio to be installed in the police station.

They were told at the meeting that two acres of the area which has been designated for use as a colored cemetery is ready to be opened and drained. The commissioners plan to open the area for sale of lots by fall.

W.A. McAdams of the Utilities Department reported that water and sewer lines will be available in all sections of town by September 1. Under the existing plan all persons owning only one house will be required to have water works installed by September 1. Those with two or more houses are to have water works installed in half the houses by September 1 and in the other half by September 1, 1955.

Accuracy Is More Important Than Time

Pitt County citizens are going to wait about three weeks longer before the row over contested returns of the June 26 second primary in the sheriff's race is finally resolved.

It is unfortunate that the chain of events in the election have developed as they have. Accompanying publicity Pitt county has received has done the county no good in the eyes of the rest of the state. Nevertheless, Pitt will doubtless profit in the future by the unfortunate experience.

Regardless of preference between the two candidates involved in the race, the people of the county want to be sure that the candidate with the most votes is the candidate who receives the official nomination.

It is certainly to be desired, for the future welfare of the county, that every possible consideration be given by local and state election officials to the position of each of the two candidates. Only if such is the case will the final result—whatever it is—remain unquestioned in the minds of the people of the county.

Regardless of the desirability for speed in settling a matter of this sort, we believe it is more important in this case—since it has developed as it has—that emphasis be placed upon the thoroughness of the considerations rather than the rapidity with which the situation is resolved. No valid grounds for complaint from the standpoint of either of the principal parties in the dispute, or any citizen, should be left when the matter is finally resolved.

There are certainly many legal aspects of procedure in such a situation which the average citizen does not understand. Certainly there are many technicalities in the state elections rules pertaining to such a case with which we have not previously been familiar, and even now are not sure we comprehend.

In the best interest of the county, we believe the matter should be allowed to run its course; and that the citizens of the county should not jump to hasty conclusions before the final decision is reached.

We are confident that the vast majority of the citizens of Pitt County—regardless of preference for an individual candidate—are more interested in being sure that right triumphs in the final analysis.

Parking Meters—Revenue Or Regulation?

Parking meters, and regulated parking have been much in the news throughout North Carolina in recent years. Hardly a week passes that parking tickets or parking meters do not make the news pages in one form or another.

This business of metered parking started on the basis of two things: The need of growing towns and cities to get maximum use of parking space on the streets; and the need of municipalities for additional revenue.

Parking meters provided an easier means of regulating parking. At the same time they provided a new windfall of municipal revenue.

According to court decisions handed down in parking meter cases in North Carolina, it is the accepted principle that the meters are legal so long as their primary function is that of regulating parking and traffic. They are illegal on city streets if their primary function is to provide revenue.

The municipalities of the state, of course, have kept the meters by maintaining the former is the primary purpose of the meters.

In view of that, we can not help but question the new device which is being tested in Gastonia. It is a gadget which will prevent the "free parker" from taking advantage of time left on the meter by someone else's nickel. It's a device which makes the meter show "violation" when a vehicle moves away from the parking space.

We hardly see how this new device can be primarily for the purpose of keeping traffic moving. Indeed, it seems to us its primary function is to get another nickel for the municipality.

And while we are on the subject of traffic regulation vs. revenue in the parking meter situation, we would pose this question.

How many cities, do you think, would have parking meters for regulating parking if it were legal to feed slugs to the meters rather than nickels?

EAST ROCHESTER N. Y., HERALD: "The subsidizing of the highway transportation industry at the expense of the public is a cost which should be charged to the taxpayers."

WEST POINT, MISS., DAILY TIMES LEADER: "We talk of billion: as if our weekly pay checks were calculated in eight and nine figure numbers. From the county seat to the federal government itself we have become lost in a maze of financial figures that should stagger us, but mean little to us."

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
HAWKS ARE NO SOLUTION
In recent years the pigeons around a public building in one of our cities have become a perfect nuisance. Every conceivable plan to get rid of them has failed. The authorities have laid traps and thought up a lot of silly plans for frightening the birds away. But still they have remained and still they multiply. Recently, however, there has been a decided dropping off in the number of these pigeons. The cause is said to have been the presence of hawks that swoop down and get the young birds. Many people think this is a real deliverance. But is it?

As a general principle, it never pays to try to do away with one evil by employing another evil. Across the pages of history are written the accounts of hundreds of projects whereby kings and parliaments tried to rid their nations of evils by the clever employment of other evils not so virulent. In the end the cure turned out to be as bad—and frequently worse—than the disease.

The way to get rid of pigeons is to get rid of them, and until some satisfactory means can be found for doing this, they have to be endured. And the way to solve the problems of life is to solve them, not to try to circumvent them by substituting something easier to endure.

Hawks are no solution for too many pigeons. Neither are the crazy plans of all kinds of ameliorationists, who plan not to cure the source of our social and political troubles but to make them less painful.

Threat Tightened GOP Ranks

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's threat to refuse to be a candidate for the White House at the end of his first term has apparently forced a nominally Republican Congress to enact a sizable portion of his legislative program, far more than seemed possible before Sherman Adams envisaged the dire possibility.

When the legislators adjourn at the end of this month, it is probable that Ike will have obtained greater and more favorable action on his domestic and foreign proposals than his two predecessors did since the start of World War II in 1941. In view of the fact that the Democrats enjoy a majority in the Senate, and are in a minority of only three in the House, this will be a notable achievement.

It will be all the more surprising because, in certain respects, Eisenhower has demanded that Congress reverse the trend and the field which it had tracked during the last 20 years.

Ike has been no miracle man, at the White House or on Capitol Hill; and his executive ability is yet to be tested in a major crisis. But he will have done a fairly workmanlike job, if present developments are any criterion.

IKE'S ELABORATE PROGRAM—Eisenhower obviously advanced too elaborate a legislative program at the start of this session. He hit off more than the politicians can chew in a re-election year. But here, briefly, is what he proposed on major problems, and here is what he is likely to get from Congress:

LABOR: His request for Taft-Hartley revision satisfied neither labor nor management, which suggests that it was an impartial or middle-of-the-way program. It was snickered. But both sides seem to be satisfied. In current contract negotiations, there is a strange peace and quiet along the labor front.

TARIFFS: Eisenhower lost his fight for enactment of the extremely low-tariff Randall Program. But he gained a one-year extension of the present reciprocal tariff agreement pending a further study of the effects of the Randall proposals. As a matter of fact, they will have such a far-reaching effect on industry and employment that they need at least a year's re-examination.

FOREIGN AID: It has been transferred from economic to military assistance, in view of foreign countries' recovery. It has been reduced by 40 per cent in the two years since the GOP came to power. And it will be cut off entirely within a twelve-month, unless our European Allies show greater co-operation in the cold war with Russia.

Finally, Eisenhower obtained Senate ratification of the treaty for power and navigation development of the St. Lawrence River after a 30-year delay and battle over this project.

Eisenhower has not performed any legislative or executive miracles, it is true. But it may be that the American people are weary of miracles, crises and sensations at Washington.

AN ECHO OF PAST—The elimination of the Communist beachhead in Guatemala is strangely reminiscent of the manner in which the United States gave midnight recognition to Panama so that we could build the famous canal.

When the Diaz military junta visited Ambassador John E. Peurifoy, who was lodged out in his golfing clothes at the moment, he demanded to know their attitude toward Guatemalan Communists. Their answers were not satisfactory, and he so reported to Washington.

Two days later Diaz was out and a regime committed to cutting and jailing the Reds was in. That night, Secretary Dulles appeared on radio and television to express his satisfaction at the Peurifoy-promoted outcome. John Foster needed this anti-Red feather in his cap, in view of our diplomatic defeat at Geneva.

Somebody Told Me He Finds Navy Life Agreeable

Back in the late '30's at Greenville high school there was a student by the name of Bill (W. W. Jr.) Lee who decided he wanted to become a Naval officer. In 1948 Bill graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis and after six years of service is just as pro-Navy as ever. And he remains that way even after four trips to Korea.

Now a full lieutenant, Bill is in Greenville for three weeks prior to enrolling in the Naval Post Graduate School in Monterey, Calif. His course there for two years and possibly three will be Mechanical Engineering.

Bill's wife, Edwina, formerly of Long Beach, Calif., and their two daughters (Edwina, two and a half, Nell White, one and a half) are helping him enjoy his leave here.

During the last six years Bill has been at sea most of the time. What is there to do in spare time aboard ship? On a heavy cruiser, like the Helena on which Bill took of his trips to Korea, there is room for gymnastics. Mostly, the boys box. But on a destroyer like the DeHaven (as in Gloria DeHaven, Bill says), on which Bill took the other two trips, there's very little to do because there's no room. Mainly, on both ships, it's movies which run every night for the boys' entertainment.

The most eventful thing about his four trips to Korea was combat. On the first trip Bill's ship was involved in the push that ended in Pusan. "That was my first experience at shooting and being shot at," he says. "We were hit twice, but there was nothing serious about the damage."

Bill missed Hong Kong, Formosa and Okinawa. The availability of high-quality, tailor-made clothes at reasonable prices in Hong Kong interested Bill so much that he loosened his pocketbook and stocked up. To illustrate the point: tailor-made shoes are available for $8.

On a ship, what's the difference in an Annapolis graduate and a non-graduate? "None," Bill says, "except that when a new officer comes to the ship who is an Annapolis graduate he may be put into any job with assurance that he's had the proper training. If he's a non-graduate, you have to check his previous experience."

Continued tomorrow.
And I thank you.

Business Today Factor Of Religion

By ELMER ROESSNER
Religion is rarely thought of in terms of business and, surely, it cannot be classified as an industry. Nevertheless, religions have an economic phase and, in total, it is much greater than generally supposed.

This is brought to mind by the recent revision of construction estimates by the Departments of Labor and Commerce. One of the items includes construction of religious buildings, $25,000,000, compared with $472,000,000 in 1953. In addition, private educational construction is estimated at $20,000,000, compared with $426,000,000 in 1953; private social and recreational construction, $215,000,000 compared with $163,000,000, and hospital and institutional, $315,000,000, compared with $317,000,000 in 1953. A large part of the private educational and institutional outlays, and a small part of the social and recreational spending, is probably being done for or by churches. It is not unlikely that religion is a billion-dollar-a-year factor in the prosperity generated by construction.

There's employment, too. The National Council of the Churches of Christ estimated, in 1952, that there were 181,123 clergy with charges in the United States. This includes Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths, but not a few groups that do not publicize data, such as the Church of Christ, Scientist, and Jehovah's witnesses. The figure does not include clergymen without charges and members of various orders. Nor does it include probably an equal number of persons employed in non-religious capacities, ranging from gardeners to engineers. Nor does it include the large total of employe in religious schools and colleges. For an idea of the size: there were 118,271 teachers in private elementary and secondary schools in 1950.

Religious bodies spend for other things than education and the maintenance of clergy and employes. A National Council survey showed that 47 bodies received a total of $1,286,633,160 in a year; this did not include Roman Catholic or Jewish figures, which might have shifted the total over $2 billion.

In addition to all this, there are religious businesses, including the printing of books and magazines, the manufacture of religious goods, the conducting of religious camps and many other commercial enterprises.

So here are organizations spending a billion a year in construction another billion or so for benevolences and congregational expenses, providing subsistence or employment for more than a million persons—and still it's neither a business nor an industry.

TAX ASPECTS OF VACATION CHARTER
Commerce Clearing House has turned a statistical eye on the tax phases of vacations. Taxes on transportation, luggage, cameras, films, phone calls and telegrams are down, it points out. The levies on cigarettes, gasoline and alcoholic beverages is the same.

In seven states and the District of Columbia, vacationers will contribute more to local kitties, chiefly because of increases in non-Federal cigarette and gasoline taxes.

Travelers wishing to avoid being hooked on state sales taxes should plan vacations in Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Delaware, Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Texas, Nevada, and New York outside New York City.

U. S. INDEX DROPPED; RESEARCH TIME CUT
Federal economy is worsening the shortage of American scientists, George J. Easter, leading industrial scientist and research director of Electro Refractories & Abrasives Corp., charges. The government dropped the inventions index from the Official Gazette April 6. Now scientists must wade through the material without an index.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

BREAD AND BUTTER LANGUAGE
(Johnson City Press-Chronicle)
How much do Johnson City citizens know about their tax dollar? Very little we'd be willing to wager.

The average individual makes no effort to find out, and the average city commission makes little concentrated effort to tell him. Both are being very unwise. An informed citizenry forms valid opinions based on facts. An uninformed citizenry, lacking facts, feeds on rumor.

If citizens won't go to the trouble to learn the fiscal facts of life, what can City Hall do about it?

It can do a lot. Many progressive communities over the nation are taking long strides toward bridging the gap between City Hall and Main Street. They are making "events" out of budget hearings, and they are holding periodic public meetings—some call them "gripe sessions"—to enable Mr. John Q. Public to get things off his chest. Many also are purging some of their written reports of legal language and making them understandable to the layman. They are taking government to the people.

When it comes to budgets, the mere issuance of a statement of anticipated revenues and anticipated expenditures—the legal-paper sort of thing required by law—is wasted effort. It should be accompanied by a two-plus-two-bread-and-butter explanation of the facts of fiscal life. The taxpayer should be told, in his own language, how his government stands and what it intends to do.

We note that one of our neighbors, Bristol, Va., has made a beginning in this connection. We have in hand a budget booklet issued by that city for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1954. It not only lists anticipated revenues and expenses by departments, but breaks down the budget for each department too. The interested citizen, by examining the booklet, may determine just what items go into the overall budget of any department. He may determine the salary of the janitor as well as that of the city manager. He may find out how much his government spends for such mundane items as postage stamps and stationery as readily as what it appropriates for such major things as streets and schools.

It's a very comprehensive booklet. It hardly achieves the layman's language, but it has all the figures in understandable form.

We note that by a City Council resolution, Bristol, Va., had several hundred of these booklets printed. They were made available to the general public, and some, we understand were mailed out to folks for their information and suggestions.

By these methods, and others, any city hall may add to the information and interest of its citizens. We believe the results will fully justify the efforts.

Unauthorized Purchases And State Campaign Deficits

PURCHASES—State Auditor Henry Bridges is investigating reports from several points that certain State agencies are purchasing fuel oil and probably other supplies from dealers who do not have the contract for supplying the materials this year. One report was that substantial purchases had been from a man who had the contract last year but lost it in this year's award. The auditor said both the dealer and the buyer are taking a chance on having payment withheld, since such transactions are illegal.

Auditor Bridges has instituted another safety check measure. He is distributing rubber stamps to departments and institutions to be imprinted upon all invoices noting that the merchandise, materials or services covered by the invoices were received with date and initials of the receiving agent. Hereafter the auditor's office will not approve for payment or write vouchers for invoiced items unless the invoices bear the receipt.

DEFICITS—Among the numerous deficiencies in the law requiring report of contributions and expenditures by candidates in the primary and general election is lack of requirement for reporting contributions to make up deficits.

The report filed by Senator-nominate Kerr Scott after the recent primary showed expenditures of approximately $16,000 above contributions. Terry Sanford, Scott campaign manager, said he was not greatly concerned about the deficit "because he knew friends would make it up." In the light of experiences of successful candidates in previous primaries that seemed a safe assumption.

It is known that there have been some meetings of friends at which the deficit was discussed. Unconfirmed and completely unconfirmed rumors have it that deficit was substantially over-subscribed. Similar rumors have been current in other campaigns. Whether the additional was paid and by whom and who got it are questions that cannot be answered, because the law requiring reports does not extend to deficit contributions.

LOOPHOLES—That is only one of many loopholes in the statute as it relates to honest reporting of contributions and expenditures. The law requires the report to cover items handled "during the calendar year." Any moneys received prior to midnight of December 31, 1953, did not have to be reported as contributions for the campaign. The law also requires a final report 30 days after the primary. Consequently contributions or expenditures made after that date do not have to be reported.

There is an open question about requirement for including promises of money and obligations incurred but not discharged before the 20th day. Custom has been to ignore uncollected promises and unpaid bills.

Omission of requirement for pre-January and post-primary deals enables candidates to completely by-pass the intent of the financial reporting law, without impugning the letter of the statute. Obvious intent of the law, an integral part of the Corrupt Practices Act of 1931, amended in 1921, is to let the people know who wanted a candidate elected badly enough to contribute large sums to his campaign expenses. Just as obviously it is important for the people to know who had chosen a candidate far enough in advance to make a contribution the year before the primary; and who was eager enough to get on the inside by helping to make up a deficit.

Any candidate might have received as much $100,000 from one source before December 31, 1953, or after June 30, 1954, and be entirely clear of violating the law by not reporting either item.

That is why a lot of folks think the financial reporting law should be repealed—or enough teeth put in it to make it serve its avowed purpose of informing the people as to who paid for the campaign. The 1951 Legislature removed the previous absurd limit of $12,000 for candidates for Governor and Senator. The next step in order to make reports speak the truth would be to remove the time limit during which amounts must be reported.

It requires no political genius to understand that those who make large contributions well in advance, or make up deficits after the nomination is clinched, are in position to exercise larger influence upon the elected official than are those who participate only in the heated activities during the intense period of the campaign.

Capitol Square folks enjoyed the cooler weather Tuesday following Monday night's rain. But several comments were heard that the

Civic Band To Be Organized Here

Under sponsorship of the Recreation Commission, a local civic band will be organized and will hold its first rehearsal Wednesday night. James E. Rodgers, band director at Greenville High School, will be the director. Between 60 and 70 members are expected at the first rehearsal. The purpose of the civic band is to give townspeople college students, college faculty members, ex-high school band members and present members of the high school band a chance to participate in a musical organization during the summer months. Rehearsals will be held every Wednesday night at the high school band room and several outdoor concerts are already planned and probably will be held at the Elm Street Park. Rodgers says that a number of people have been contacted and anyone interested in joining the band is asked to contact him or to be at the high school band room Wednesday night at 7:30.

Small Jet Makes Its Test Flight

EL SEGUNDO Calif. (AP)—The Douglas A4D Skyhawk, America's smallest jet combat plane, has made a successful 45-minute test flight. Douglas and the U.S. Navy said the flight was at Edwards AFB in California's Mojave Desert last June 22. Test pilot Bob Rahn was quoted as saying the flight was "beyond all expectations." Although less than half the size of some jet fighters, the Skyhawk is capable of carrying an atom bomb in takeoffs from an aircraft carrier. Three-fourths of all U.S. bank employees are machine operators or clerks.

Mother Indicted On Arson Counts

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va. (AP)—A 23-year-old Meadow Bridge mother was indicted here yesterday on three counts of arson. Mrs. Gloria June Vandall was accused of burning her 7-month-old illegitimate twin sons and her 4-year-old niece in a fire at her home in April, 1953. She gave herself up last April and confessed to starting the fire. Police said she told them she wanted to get rid of her sons to marry her present husband. The niece was staying with Mrs. Vandall at the time. Later the woman denied the story, saying she "just made it up" because she was angry with her husband. Rescued Two Of Children; But Wife, Boy Die

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP)—Robert Kneuse awakened last night, smelled smoke and rushed into the living room where his wife Madeline had been resting on a couch. He found her covered with flames. He tried to drag her from the house, but failed. Neither could he reach the bedroom where his three small children were sleeping. Driven back by smoke and flames, he ran to summon a neighbor, and he and the neighbor chopped a hole in the wall of the children's bedroom. They brought out two of the children, Mary, 3, and Margaret, 2, but were unable to find Robert Jr., 6. Firemen later recovered the bodies of the 35-year-old mother and her son. The two small girls were dead on arrival at a Milwaukee hospital. Fire Chief Franklin Wirth said the fire apparently started in the couch in the living room. There are about 56 million vehicles on U.S. roads — 72 per cent more than in 1940.

Aussies To Keep Racial Policies

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—Immigration Minister Harold Holt has reiterated Australia's determination to retain restrictive immigration—the "white Australia" policy. A government statement issued over Holt's name yesterday followed newspaper suggestions that India would soon ask Australia to allow a small annual quota of Indians to enter Australia. "Our policy of restriction is not based on any notion of racial superiority but on frank, realistic recognition that there are important differences of race, culture and economic standards which make successful assimilation unlikely," Holt's statement declared.

Young Delinquent Minority Growing Into Big Problem

By STAN REDDING
Houston Chronicle Reporter

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Should you decide to check, your eyes might be opened a bit at the activities of Houston's teen-agers.

You might find your teen-age son—as I found somebody's teen-age son—dancing drunkenly around the floor of a tavern a half-empty bottle of gin clutched tightly in his arms in lieu of a girl.

You might find your young daughter—as I did someone's—slumped in the arms of a known teen-age law breaker, her eyes dazed by drink.

You might find them "slumping" in any one of hundreds of Houston and Harris County taverns as I did.

Or maybe you'll just find him, her or them packed tightly in an automobile—its trunk full of food beer—speeding madly down a highway. Or parked on a lonely lane, perhaps, an ideal place for "drinking and necking."

These children represent a very small minority of the teen-agers in Houston and Harris County. For each child I saw there are dozens of others who are content to follow accepted behavior standards.

But this "minority" is becoming an increasing problem across the land. For want of a better word they call it the problem of our "juvenile delinquents."

And your child is eligible to join this "minority." I know. I have seen them.

There are some 5,000 retail outlets for beer in Harris County. There are 700 retail liquor stores in the same area. To police these places and similar establishments in 13 other counties, to enforce the law, the state furnishes a grand total of 12 liquor agents.

"Sure, we investigate a lot of complaints concerning juveniles frequenting these taverns and buying beer," says Tom McPhaul, agent in charge of the Houston District Liquor Control Board. "But it is virtually impossible to make a case concerning a juvenile."

"I don't know where this juvenile situation will end up," McPhaul says tiredly, "unless the parents take a hand in it with us."

A study of Houston police records shows that juvenile cases handled by the Crime Prevention Division are on the increase. Of these, 2,428 were handled last year as juveniles who committed an offense punishable by jail or prison terms on the adult level.

Thus the "juvenile delinquents" compose less than 2 per cent of all the children in Houston. Assume that an equal number go astray but are not caught or are straightened out by other than police agencies. Officials agree that is a more than "fair assumption."

That means that less than 4 per cent of Houston's children are delinquent. But before you begin thinking the situation isn't so bad after all listen to Lt. Leo Horton of the Crime Prevention Division:

"Those 2,428 kids are a serious problem on any scale. They are worthy of all the attention we can give them."

What can be done in this city about juvenile delinquency?

There is no one solution no more than there is one cause. But there are things that can be accomplished.

The U. S. Children's Bureau estimates that 5 per cent of a community's total police force should be assigned to work with children. The Houston force is nine men and women short of that standard.

The USCIB says a probation department should have one counselor to work with every 30 children handled. The Harris County department has 11 probation case workers, each with 80 active cases to handle!

But the big item is an institution for boys within Harris County. Such an institution for younger boys, 10 to 14, will soon be available. Pushing the fight for this project was Domestic Judge J. W. Mills, one of the leading figures in the fight against delinquency.

Judge Mills, who thinks that broken homes contribute much to delinquency, is seeking legislation to drop hasty marriages and to stop the trial of divorce cases where the husband and father does not appear to contest divorce or seek child custody.

He also urges citizens as a whole to interest themselves more in the various social agencies, civic groups and community organizations coping with juvenile delinquency.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A U. S. Army battalion in Germany wants a buffalo for mascot. It probably won't get one, though.

"It would really help morale," one soldier said.

Pyle passed the request on to the Arizona Game and Fish Department, where a spokesman said shipping a Buffalo to Germany would be "too expensive."

Life Insurance Policies Growing More Popular

By ARTHUR MERIMS (For Sam Dawson)

NEW YORK (AP)—Unanimity in the highly competitive insurance business is rare. But on one subject all industry leaders agree—the growing popularity of life insurance protection since World War II has been phenomenal.

Life insurance in force climbed from 122 billion dollars in 1941 to 304 billion at the start of this year, an increase of 194 per cent.

The number of life insurance companies increased by more than 300 in those years to total 800. And more than 24 million new policy holders were added to the lists.

Payments to policy holders and beneficiaries amounted to $4,540,929,000 in 1953, nearly twice the annual payments in 1941.

The Institute of Life Insurance claims that 79 per cent of all U. S. families own some type of life insurance. Seven per cent of these families put 10 per cent or more of their disposable income into insurance premiums. And in the $5,000 to $7,499 income group, 93 per cent are life insurance owners.

Every state reported gains in life insurance ownership since 1941. But in three states—Arizona, New Mexico and Florida—the increases were well over 300 per cent. Smallest percentage increases were in Massachusetts and New York, where insurance in force doubled.

Delaware is the state with the most life insurance in force per family—$9,100. Connecticut families average $8,200 and New Jersey residents rank third with $8,000. Families in Mississippi have the least amount of life insurance—$2,400 on the average. Arkansas families are second from the bottom, holding $2,700 worth.

"While these varying state gains reflect such things as vast movements in population, industrial development and increased income levels, they also demonstrate that families in all sections of the country endeavor to keep their financial protection in line with changing needs and improved living standards," the institute commented.

record $10,300,000,000 of new life insurance last year, but men were still the chief buyers and owners. Men accounted for 71 per cent of last year's purchases and 76 per cent of insurance in force when 1954 began. This is exclusive of fit like insurance?

Credit life insurance which guarantees repayment of outstanding loans in case the insured borrower dies, was barely noticeable before World War II. Now it totals $8,706,000,000.

Group life insurance has increased fourfold since 1941. It now totals $79,768,000,000 under 40 million certificates in 93,000 different contract groups.

NORTON, Kan. (AP)—Norton has a new $80,000 municipal swimming pool—minus the water.

The city expects to overcome the shortage later this week through an expanded water system.

WATCH THE BEAUTY!—And watch that foot way out in front. You won't like it when you see the print.

AH, THIS IS BETTER—Simple background, graceful pose and pleasant expression all add up to a pleasing pin-up.

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures
 Beauties at the beach are in seasonal focus, these days, for eyes and cameras. Here's subject matter that most adults appreciate and of which we see countless examples by professional cameramen. However, the usual results by the average, amateur photographer are quite disappointing despite the ingredients of glamor, sunshine and carefree activity.

In the amateurs' defense, we must concede that professional photographers have several advantages that make for better pictures. They are likely to have experienced models or actresses who know how to pose properly. They also have good cameras and know-how in the matter of exposure and focus.

Camera fans can improve their beach pictures with their present cameras and available models by paying more attention to the little tricks of posing, expression and lighting that have proved successful to others. As a start, save clipping of pictures that interest you and analyze them. Study the lighting, posing and action and see if you can figure out the exposure and other shooting angles.

A principal fault with most attempts at glamor photography by casual snapshots is body distortion. Most of us are aware that when we shoot a person whose feet extend toward the camera, they will loom up in the picture way out of proportion to the rest of the body. This is true also of knees, arms and elbows and becomes increasingly evident the closer the camera is to the subject.

Distortion can be avoided by careful selection of camera angle and not shooting too close.

Pin-up poses are enhanced by smooth curves and the graceful lines of arms and limbs; they are marred by harsh angles and opposing lines. Don't have the subject's arms or legs bend to form right angles to the camera.

To avoid the appearance of added body bulk, don't let the elbow touch the body at the waistline. Arms, too, should cross the body above or below the waist for a slimmer silhouette.

Minimize body bulges caused by the pressure of leaning on something. Support weight on the arm or leg furthest from the camera. To slenderize the hips, they might be angled away from the camera. Hands can express grace by the way the fingers curl. An object should be held, not clutched. Their worst angle is with the flat back or the flat palm facing the camera. A hand shouldn't disappear in the sand or a beach blanket lest it look amputated.

A bathing beauty's expression is an important part of the picture and must be carried out by both face and body. A gay look and a tense body are not a convincing combination. This is apt to happen if awkward poses are held too long. It might be better to relax and redo the pose several times in order to catch a spontaneous combination.

Most good glamor pictures have one thing in common—simplicity. Among them you'll find no clutter of people, foliage or beach paraphernalia. Sure, you can use a suggestion of umbrella or a colorful beach ball but you can't beat a background of plain sand, sky or water. Each element can be taken straight or you can mix them, depending on your camera angle. Even on a crowded beach you can get up high, shoot down and get a sand background; get low, shoot up and get a sky background.

Beaches and water are both natural reflectors of the sunlight. This presents a common danger to photographers in bathing suits and the pictures they shoot. They can each get "burned up" more readily due to over-exposure. A bather can protect himself from the sun's rays. You can compensate in exposure by: 1. Shoot faster at the same lens opening. 2. Use a smaller lens opening at the same speed. 3. Use a medium yellow filter at the same speed and lens opening. 4. Use a slower film.

The noon day sun is least satisfactory for beach pictures. The light directly overhead casts deep, unflattering shadow pockets on the face and the range from highlights to dark shadows is greatest. Side-lighting and back-lighting make for more interesting pictures but make sure that no sun hits the lens. Either use, or improvise, a sunshade or shoot in the shadow of some object.

A final word of warning about the beaches' prime assets—sand and spray. They become a menace as far as the camera is concerned. There's no better way to gum up its works so it requires more than ordinary attention during shooting and extra protection at other times. And after a day at the beach clean out the camera and case. Blow out or remove the sand particles with a camel hair brush.

Prefers Jail To Giving Up Her Mink And Jewels

BOSTON (AP)—Mrs. Mildred Prevoir, a pretty 33-year-old brunette would rather serve a term in jail than give up her mink coat and jewels.

So she informed Municipal Court Judge Jennie L. Barron yesterday when the judge offered her this choice: "Give up your mink coat and jewels or spend six months in the common jail."

Mrs. Prevoir's attorney however, appealed the sentence. The woman had pleaded guilty of defrauding an insurance firm of $800 by filing a false lost report on a diamond studded wrist watch. Police said she pawned the watch and used the money to make a down payment on a mink coat.

Judge Barron offered to give Mrs. Prevoir a suspended sentence if she would "assign the coat and jewels as security for restitution."

Play-Goer's Fun Is Adopted By Its Cast

By HUBBARD KEAVY (For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—I have just talked with a man who holds a unique distinction: he has been "The Drunkard" 183 times. "The Drunkard," that theatrical phenomenon, was 21 years old last night. Seymour Hess, an extrovert whose business is reviving ailing business firms, was there—for the 7,816th performance and his 183rd.

For the benefit of a few folks lately arrived from Seam and for some more who have learned to read since my last annual report, "The Drunkard" has astounded everyone by running so long. It is not improbable that a play would go on for 21 years; it is impossible. But "The Drunkard" has done it. It paints in the broadest melodramatic terms the evils of drink. Hard drink, that is. Beer is served free throughout the performance to all spectators over 21.

I will not try again, to explain "The Drunkard." Maybe champion Hess can:

"There is nothing else like it in the world. It is a play in which the audience takes part by cheering the heroine and hissing the villain."

After Hess paid his way into 150 performances, producer Mildred Ilse gave him a gold lifetime pass. Now he gets in for free, but he always takes guests. Last night he got in for free but bought 48 tickets for his friends.

Why does he go so often? Because, more than any other spectator, he takes part in a large and loving way in the goings-on. Through the years he has devised

Strong Defense In Biting Case

BOSTON (AP)—Isaac Trinkham, 51, presented a strong defense in Municipal Court yesterday when accused of having bitten the left thumb of George McPhee so severely that hospital treatment was required.

"How would I bite anybody?" Trinkham asked Judge Jennie L. Barron, and opened his mouth to expose toothless gums.

The court continued the case.

Cool 'n Easy

It's hard to be polite and wait when Mom is fixing cold instant chocolate milk. Her impatient offspring watches her between sips—only two sips—as she makes up one for herself. It's so easy—she spoons the instant cocoa mix right from the package into the milk and twirls the spoon till the cocoa dissolves. Next time he'll make it himself—it's more fun that way!

Cold Chocolate Milk

1 glass cold milk
 2 to 3 heaping teaspoons instant cocoa mix
 Pour milk into a tall glass. Add cocoa mix and stir well. Or shake in shaker. Makes 1 serving.
 For variety, try adding a dash of ground cloves and a shake of cinnamon, or a couple drops of peppermint extract to the milk.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Plans for an $8,000,000 school of aviation medicine at Brooks Air Force Base here have been canceled. Col. James Lang of the U.S. District Engineers office at Galveston said last night.

was designated last January to draw up plans and specifications on the project.

"They may have shifted it to some other location," Lang added.

Nurse Lady

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN
CYNTHIA shut the door to Walt's office before he could change his mind. She flung her nurse's cape around her, got her purse. She would surprise him. She would bring back a hot sandwich, roast beef or barbecue. He would eat it. She would see to it that he did. It was up to her to look after him, not only as his assistant nurse, but because he was the man she probably would have to look after the rest of her life.

Besides, she told herself, as she hurried back, bearing her purchases carefully on a tray, she wanted to put Walt in a good frame of mind before Norman's mother arrived for that interview. She wanted him to make some attempt at being gracious and appreciative.

If only, she thought, he would put his best foot forward, for once. And again she wondered, as she opened the door into his private sanctum once more, if she would have to keep endeavoring to get him to do this for the rest of her natural life.

Summed up thus, it loomed as a rather forbidding prospect.

"Here we are!" She assumed a forced cheerfulness. She set the tray down on his desk, almost on a pile of papers with a flourish. She whipped off the snowy-white napkin. "Now there, doesn't that look tempting? And I brought two cups and an extra sandwich, so we can have lunch together."

She felt somewhat as she did when trying to persuade one of the children to try something difficult that would benefit them. Well in a way, Walt was nothing but a child. Most men were.

"Hum . . . Well, I must say it looks rather tempting." He took time to remove the papers to a safe distance. He relaxed a little, leaning back in his swivel chair. He watched Cynthia as she poured the steaming fragrant coffee.

He had not commented on her sharing his lunch, nor had he invited her to sit down. But she did. She even pulled the extra straight-backed chair, reserved for those who came to see Dr. Sellars professionally, closer. She gave him her warmest smile, although inside she did not feel any too happy.

"I knew it would taste good," she told him. "It will be good for you, Walt. And I hope it will put you in a good humor."

"What do you mean by that?" He put down his cup and looked at her as though he really did not know.

"I mean that I want you to try to be as courteous and as charming as you can, Walt to Mrs. Brandt."

"Oh. So you want me to play the little gentleman?"

"I usually know how to conduct an interview. So you need not be so concerned. I suppose it's because she happens to be related to that Brandt fellow . . . Though I can't for the life of me see why, for that reason, I should attempt to be especially charming."

He was trying to be stubborn, Cynthia knew. Maybe she should have used more tact. She realized that it was going to take time for her to learn how to handle Walt when it came to the social graces, though she could manage him nicely when it came to anything connected with the clinic. Well, this had to do with the clinic, as he would soon find out. So she could smile and pretend she thought he was being nice.

"Just do it for me," she said. "Because I ask you to. Although not for the reason you gave. I should think," she smiled her sweetest for him now, "that alone would be enough—because I ask it of you, Walt."

"Hum . . . Well, that's different." The scowl slowly left his face. He did not smile, but he did not look so stern or grumpy. He put down his cup; no doubt the coffee, too, had begun its soothing influence. "Because you ask me I will be as charming and as polite as possible."

"Thank you, Walt." She felt better.

It was as well the matter had been taken care of, as just then the phone began ringing. Cynthia waited a while; then, since they both had finished lunch, she put the dishes back on the tray and left the office. She would not have time to return the tray; she had to give a treatment in about ten minutes. From then on her afternoon would be full. She determined to try to concentrate all her thoughts and emotions on her work. She must not allow these personal issues to distract her. She did not want to make it difficult to work with Walt just because their relationship had changed.

If indeed it had! she said to herself.

But of course it had. It was just that it took time to become adjusted; for Walt to realize that things no longer were as they had been. And hadn't he promised to do what she asked, just because she had asked it of him?

She kept so occupied that although she was aware when Elizabeth Brandt arrived, and that she was closeted with Walt in his office for much longer than half an hour, Cynthia did not know exactly when she left. She had no way of knowing how the interview went off. She would not know until the last patient was dismissed, the clinic closed.

She would not be in any hurry to leave. For surely Walt about that meeting.

Yet all he said, when he came into the waiting room where she was putting things to rights, was, "Oh, so you're still here."

"Yes, I waited for you." Cynthia was determined not to let him put her off. "Tell me, how did the interview go?" she asked.

"I was polite—and charming," he answered rather grimly. He had walked on past her to wash his hands at a basin and to remove and hang up his white coat.

"I really ought to shake him," she thought—damn it, someday I will! However she managed to make her voice sound calm and cheerful. "Well, aren't you going to tell me all about it?"

Pulling on his gray suit coat, he came to stand in front of her. He was so tall so big, so good to look at that she told herself it was no wonder it was easy to forgive him his manners. Or to imagine oneself in love with him.

"You know all about it—before I did," he said. "You could have told me what it was all about."

"Elizabeth—Mrs. Brandt—suggested that I let her tell you herself. But isn't it wonderful, Walt, all those wonderful plans?"

"I suppose so."

"Aren't you thrilled and excited?"

"I'm not sure." Now he looked away from her. He took a turn about the small room. Stopping again beside her, he said, "I'm not so sure I like the idea of outsiders coming in, running the clinic—and me."

"No one will ever do that." She could not help being disappointed in his reaction. He ought to be glad for the children's sake; he shouldn't think about himself.

"Not if I can help it," Walt said. "I started this clinic. It's my life-work."

"That's why you should be thrilled. Think of all it will mean." It could be his life-work, but he could let others share in it. He need not make it his whole life. Yet she could see what he meant; he did not like the thought of the clinic's not being altogether his own. It was the way some men would feel about the woman they loved.

"I know. Yet I'm not sure I want the clinic to grow that much. It will mean taking in more help, even another doctor or so."

"But you'd still be the head, Walt. It would be good to have an internist. Perhaps even the clinic's own orthopedist. And they would come under you."

"I suppose you're right," he admitted somewhat grudgingly.

"If the clinic grows large enough, it can take care of every child that needs its help. Not just those in the immediate vicinity, but children from the surrounding counties." She pointed out all the advantages. She felt certain that as soon as Walt accepted the plan in his own mind he would view it in a different light.

"I suppose you're right about that, too." This admission was not given so unwillingly.

"Then you didn't turn it down? You told Mrs. Brandt to go ahead with her ideas?"

"What else could I do?" He spread his hands in a wide gesture. "She didn't leave me much choice."

Says House Republicans Under Heavy Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Abernethy (D-Miss.) said today he has been told House Republicans were subjected to "terrific pressures and stringent disciplinary action" to line them up last week for flexible farm price supports.

Abernethy is a member of the House Agriculture Committee and a backer of the present system of rigid price supports, which the House refused to extend, voting instead for a flexible plan modified somewhat from administration proposals.

"Many Republicans quietly complained that every possible method of disciplinary action was exercised to whip some of their colleagues in line," Abernethy said in a statement.

"It was strongly rumored . . . that officials in the offices of the Republican National Committee had told members who were lined up to vote for the committee bill that unless they voted with the administration . . . that no money would be made available for their forthcoming campaigns," Abernethy said one Republican

Charges Mount Against Arbenz

GUATEMALA (AP)—Charges of murder and mismanagement mounted today against ousted President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman. The latest accusation sought to tag him with the 1949 slaying of his arch political rival—armed forces chief Col. Francisco Javier Arana.

In a move paving the way for Arbenz's arrest should he leave the Mexican Embassy where he is reported hiding, a tribunal of the ruling junta heard a friend of the slain man, Jose M. Palacios, formally charge the ex-President with masterminding the assassination.

Arbenz and leaders of his regime already face assorted charges of murder, torture and looting. In addition, the junta is trying to find out what happened to a million dollars which Arbenz's treasurer, Roberto Garcia Ortiz, said he turned over to the short-lived military regime which succeeded the leftist President.

Palacios blamed the Arana slaying on Arbenz and his agrarian department chief, Maj. Alfonso Martinez, who pushed through the Communist-backed regime's disputed land reforms.

Both Arbenz, who was then defense minister, and Arana had been considered strong possibilities to succeed President Juan Jose Arevalo, who was not permitted by the Constitution to run again. Arana was considered the more popular of the two.

Arana was machine-gunned at a nearby resort in July 1949, touching off a bloody army revolt in which Arbenz led the pro-Arevalo army faction.

The other faction protested Arana's death and demanded Arbenz's overthrow. It was led by Col. Carlos Castillo Armas, who was later jailed but escaped into exile and led the June 18 revolt which smashed Arbenz's regime. Castillo has long charged that Arbenz masterminded the assassination of his army chief.

Interior Minister Jorge Serrano told newsmen the new regime is trying to sift through some 2,000 suspected Reds now in Guatemalan jails to weed out the small fry and concentrate on the leaders.

In its quest for missing funds, the government was told by Garcia Ortiz that under orders from Arbenz's Finance Ministry, he turned over one million quetzales (a million dollars) to Col. Carlos Enrique Diaz during the one-day Diaz-headed government following the President's resignation.

Diaz is believed to be a refugee also in the Mexican Embassy.

Other sources have said that during the week preceding Arbenz's ouster funds were withdrawn from various banks and government agencies and turned over to the presidential and executive offices.

Teacher Fired For Being A Communist

WAYLAND, Mass. (AP)—Miss Anne Hale Jr., 46, who claims she is a descendant of Pilgrim John Alden, has been fired as a public school teacher for having held membership in the Communist party.

The School Committee voted 2-1 to fire her last night. The dissenting vote was cast by Chairman William A. Waldron, who immediately announced his resignation as chairman until after the town elections next March.

The second-grade teacher, under suspension since last spring, was charged with being unfit to teach, conduct unbecoming a schoolteacher and membership in the Communist party.

Her attorney, Oliver S. Allen, said he has not decided yet what future action he will take in Miss Hale's behalf.

Waldron said he would have voted for Miss Hale's dismissal if her refusal to answer questions were one of the charges, but he said the charges against her were not substantiated during a series of public hearings last month.

His committee colleagues—Cornelius J. Maguire and Harvey C. Newton—noting that the Communist doctrine favors overthrow of the United States government, said:

"We cannot believe that Miss Hale in her years of activity in the Communist party did not learn this doctrine or hear it advocated or know of the distribution of literature advocating it."

Miss Hale admitted she was a Communist from 1945 to the latter part of 1950 but said she never advocated the overthrow of the government by force and violence.

At the time of her suspension Miss Hale sent the following letter to the parents of the 28 children in her class with a request that it be read to the youngsters:

"Dear children:
"Your family will tell you that different people have different ideas about how the country should be run.
"I have been working for a long time in the best way I know to make sure that the liberty and justice for all of which we speak every morning, is always with us, and that it will grow better.
"Those who don't agree with me may say harsh things.
"Just remember these things, which I am sure you know—I love my country and I love you."

Beauty Blocked From Big Chance

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Tearful 21-year-old Rika Dialina unpacked her bags today, her dream of becoming Miss Universe of 1954 shattered.

The brunette beauty was scheduled to leave tomorrow for the Long Beach, Calif., competition, but the U.S. Embassy declined to issue a visa, saying investigation of her background is not completed.

An embassy spokesman emphasized a visa had not been refused, just held up pending a check of the Cretan girl who won Greece's beauty contest and title of Star of Hellas.

The embassy spokesman added, however, that there was no chance of the investigation being completed in time for her to compete in the finals July 25.

A reporter for the evening paper Apoyevmatini, which sponsored the Greek contest, said the investigation is centered on an illustration drawn by Rika for a book written and published by a Communist.

Rika admitted illustrating the book but insisted she is not a Communist or a fellow traveler.

Apoyevmatini's reporter said Cretan authorities said she had an excellent record as a Nationalist and had no Communist background.

The embassy spokesman said the McCarran act excluded visas for persons who write or assist in producing Communist literature.

Greece will still be represented in the contest. Either Effie Androulakaki or Effie Melas, second and third place winners, will make the trip.

Humble Home Furnished With Looted Treasures

LONDON (AP)—Humble John Nevin, whose tiny dwelling made some of the stately homes of England look like poorly furnished barns, drew three years in prison yesterday for looting a museum of 2,000 exhibits.

Nevin, 58, had been a trusted porter at the Victoria and Albert Museum since 1930. He made 9 pounds ($25.20) a week.

In suburban Chislewick he and his wife Mary lived in an outwardly modest four-room house which rented for 25 shillings ($3.50) a week.

But the interior, police witnesses said yesterday, was opulent beyond belief.

A beautiful piece of old Flemish tapestry was used as a bedspread. The window curtains were made of exquisite lace. The carpets and rugs were princely products of the looms of Persia and India. The tables were rare antiques. Objects d'art, jewelry, glassware and pottery stood on every shelf and in every corner.

A garbage can held 21 jeweled sword hilts and a jade figurine.

And when 54-year-old Mrs. Nevin washed the dishes, her apron was a piece of 18th-century tapestry.

Detectives said Nevin had piled up his treasure over a period of 20 years by carrying pieces home from work under his clothing. He took the antique tables apart, smuggled out the legs and tops separately and then put them together again. He wrapped the tapestries and lace around his body.

Museum officials discovered the thefts during a recent inventory of their exhibits, which number about one million. They put a nominal value of 3,500 pounds ($9,800) on Nevin's loot, but said much of it was priceless and irreplaceable.

Said Nevin's lawyer, F. H. Lawton:

"He thought the museum didn't know how to look after the articles

Over-Time For Conversation

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Mildred Miller went into a drugstore in her neighborhood at 11 p.m. to make a call on the pay phone there. At 11:45, Druggist Henry Milton noted she was still talking.

"I forgot about her after that," Milton said, "and we closed the store at 12:30."

Some time after that, passersby were attracted by a woman banging on the drugstore window from the inside. She shouted that she had been locked in the store.

Police called the owner, Lynn Abelson, and his wife drove to the store to let Mrs. Miller out.

"I'm so embarrassed," Mrs. Miller said. "I don't know what you're thinking, but you can search me."

"That won't be necessary," Mrs. Abelson said. "One woman can understand another woman's problems."

Bus manufacturers estimate that the United States will need 25,000 new school buses each year for the next three years.

as well as he did. He has got this silly idea in his head that his appreciation of this kind of article is greater than that of the museum."

Sentencing of Mrs. Nevin, accused of receiving stolen goods, was deferred pending a report from a probation officer.

Iranians Protest Pravda Attack

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The Iranian Foreign Ministry has protested to the Soviet Embassy against a Pravda attack on Iranian oil policies.

The protest said the Iranian government was striving to remove differences between Iran and the Soviet Union and that the Soviet government should not permit an official newspaper to publish "such an insulting article."

Pravda had said: "Aggressive plans of the United States" are intended to "regain domination of foreign oil companies and drag Iran into the aggressive bloc of the Middle East and Near East."
