Final Approval For Tax Overhaul Bill Seen Next Week

By CHARLES F. BARRETT WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders today predicted final congressional approval, possibly next week, for the biggest tax overhaul program in 75 years.

A House-Senate conference committee late yesterday agreed on a compromise version of the big bill to cut taxes next year for millions of individuals and many business firms...

President Eisenhower has hailed the plan as the cornerstone of his entire domestic program, predicting it would encourage business growth, remove scores of inequities and lead to more and better jobs.

But Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) served notice today he would renew, when the measure returns to the Senate for final action, a running fight many Democrats have waged against one provision in the bill—a cut in income taxes on dividends received by corporation stockholders.

On this politically touchy issue, the conference committee agreed to permit taxpayers to deduct their first $50 of dividend income. In addition, they could subtract 4 percent of their remaining dividends directly from the tax bill they otherwise would pay.

This was a compromise between a more liberal House plan which allowed a deduction of $100 and a tax credit of 10 percent on dividend income; and a more restricted Senate provision which would have permitted only $50 exclusion.

Sen. George (D-Ga.), senior Democrat on the Finance Committee, said the final bill has "many good features and many dubious ones, but the good outweighs the bad."

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.), who got a 71-13 Senate vote for his amendment to strike out much of the House-approved dividend tax cut, said the dividend compromise "doesn't sound too good from where I'm sitting."

Douglas, however, said the percentage tax cut on dividends is "a special privilege to only 1 percent of the population."

Critics Of Atomic Legislation Beaten Badly On Test Vote Senators Talked All Night

By RUSSELL BRINES WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of the administration's atomic legislation fought on doggedly today though worn by an all-night session and beaten badly on a test vote which upheld President Eisenhower's order for a new private power plant in Arkansas.

Republican Leader Knowland (Calif.) served notice he would keep the session—which began at 10 a.m. (EDT) yesterday—going right on into Sunday if necessary to pass the bill.

Knowland spoke of the long debate as a filibuster but opponents denied they were trying to talk the measure to death.

They were plainly out, however, to dramatize the issue and build it up to importance in the election campaigns. Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) told newsmen he would stump the nation to call "the people's attention to the capture of the Eisenhower administration by the private power trust."

At 10 a.m. (EDT)—the 24-hour mark of the session—Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) was in the midst of a speech he had begun at 5:16 a.m. Fewer than half a dozen senators were in their seats and one of the Senate's two women members, Sen. Bowring (R-Neb.), was presiding.

Many senators had remained close by through the night, however, napping on cots set up in cloakrooms or on couches in their offices. And through the night, there were always a few spectators in the public galleries.

The big test vote, taken before midnight, defeated 55-36 an attempt to block Eisenhower's order for a new private power plant in Arkansas. A second vote 54-35, then clinched it by giving affirmative approval for the plan.

This issue had thus been disclosed when Morse, who holds the Senate's long-distance speaking record of 22 hours and 26 minutes, gained the floor for what he said would be a "relatively short speech" of five or six hours.

But Morse pounded away at the power provision, calling it a "give-away to private monopoly."

There seemed scant prospect of any final vote before late in the day at the earliest. Sen. Gore and Hill (D-Aia) were definitely set to follow Morse with speeches. Others were expected also to want the floor.

Morse started with a 41-page prepared address which took him about three hours. When he finished with that, he referred to it as the "first part of this speech."

He was next going to "turn for a few hours," he said, to a provision of the bill which would specify the chairman is the "official spokesman" for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Administration supporters have said such a designation was needed for administrative purposes and did not mean the chairman, as present Lewis L. Strauss, would be granted undue powers.

Morse said the "official spokesman" phrase must either have no meaning, "or, if it has meaning, it is undesirable and dangerous."

"Of all the departments, commissions, agencies and offices," he asked, "... has anyone ever heard of any of them having a formally and legally designated 'official spokesman'?"

Knowland was absent briefly during the morning. On returning, the Republican leader told Morse he'd taken some time off to get freshened up a bit.

"I think this is one of the most successful speeches I have ever made," quipped Morse.

Sen. Ervin (D-NC) chimed in that he'd found Morse "so stimulating that it has robbed my capacity to sleep."

Morse's daughter, Judith, kept vigil from the visitors' gallery. She and a red rose she had given her father to wear in his lapel both seemed little the worse for the marathon stand.

Morse fortified himself from time to time by sipping water, fruit juice and hot tea.

S. Carolina Girl New Miss U.S.A.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Miss South Carolina, a Dixie coed who is all woman, today is the new Miss U.S.A.

Miriam Stevenson, 21-year-old college senior from Winnsboro, S. C., won last night over 46 other entrants for the title which will pit her against 32 foreign beauties for the Miss Universe crown.

Miss Stevenson's first words to newspapermen after she won were: "I can't believe it."

Asked if she knew she would have to lose her southern accent now that she has won a movie contract with Universal-International Studio she answered: "Sho nuff."

Of voluptuous build, the wholesome-looking winner has perfect measurements: 36-inch bust and hips and 24-inch waist. Her 120 pounds are well distributed over a 5-foot-6 frame.

She had come here without luggage except for an evening gown which she had designed herself and a bathing suit which contest officials gave her. That was all she needed.

Her luggage, lost on an airliner that brought her here last week hasn't caught up with her yet.

She scored heavily in the bathing suit and evening gown competitions but it was her naturalness and humor in the poise and personality talk that won her the judges' nod.

Contestants were asked to give a brief speech on "the most important thing in my life." Miss South Carolina brought down the house when she told the big crowd at Municipal Auditorium that the most important thing in "mah life was to get mah luggage back."

Runners-up in the contest were in this order: Miss Virginia, Ellen Whitehead, an 18-year-old Chatham Va. brunette; Miss New York State, Karin Hultman, 22, of Rochester; Miss New York City, Renee Roy, 23-year-old actress, and Miss Texas, 20-year-old Betty Lee of Austin, one of the tallest girls in the contest.

She also wins a new convertible, plus a number of other prizes.

Tonight she and the foreign beauties will go through preliminaries of the Miss Universe contest. Judging will last late into the night, with the finals tomorrow night.

Butler told the visitors that the picture is now changing. He called attention to the Dupont plant at Kingston as an example of the industrial progress being made in this area.

Butler stated that the progress of the state schools had had much to do with the changes in industry.

He spoke briefly of the college and invited the group to make a tour of the campus following the luncheon.

Dave Modlin, county FHA supervisor, introduced Ralph Turner, farm management specialist from the state FHA office. Marion Perry, secretary of the local office, W. A. Anderson, of the Department of Agriculture who is escorting the group; Marion Holland, FHA field representative; and Ralph Harris, former FFA county supervisor for Pitt County.

In addition Arch Flanagan, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, explained briefly to the group the process of raising tobacco.

The group is being accompanied on its tour by W. M. Anderson of the U.S. Department of Agriculture who is attached to N. C. State College. They will be in the United States for approximately three months.

Indicted Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry W. (The Dutchman) Grunewald, reputed Washington wire-puller, was indicted here today on charges that he had repeatedly in denying tax-fixing activities under the Truman administration.

The indictment, returned by a federal grand jury, accused Grunewald of committing perjury 10 times in recent appearances before the jury itself and in testimony during April, 1953, before a House Ways and Means subcommittee investigating tax scandals.

The multiple charges in the indictment carry possible penalties up to $10,000 in fines and 70 years imprisonment.

Grunewald, 52, who became an associate of prominent persons in the capital and a man of mystery, made some appearances before the grand jury late last year when he was completing a 90-day jail sentence for contempt of Congress.

West German FBI Director Mysteriously Gone Suspect Official Kidnaped

BERLIN (AP) — Police announced today Dr. Otto John, West German anti-espionage chief, went to Communist East Berlin with a friend Tuesday night and that a note left behind indicated he would not return.

The West Berlin police announcement followed by a few hours a statement by the West German Interior Ministry that John was believed kidnaped by the Communists.

John was last seen boarding a taxi in front of his hotel on the evening of July 20, the Ministry said, and "neither he nor the taxi has been seen since."

"All clues gathered up to the present time," the ministry said, "indicate that Dr. John is the victim of an abduction into the Soviet zone."

John's official title is chief of the Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution. The office is charged with guarding against treason espionage and activities endangering the Democratic state, though its powers are more limited, it handles duties much as the Federal Bureau of Investigation does in the United States.

News of the 45-year-old executive's disappearance was met with consternation comparable to that which might arise in the United States if FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover should drop out of sight.

John's office deals mainly with Communist and other anti-Democratic organizations in West Germany.

The missing official went to Berlin last week to attend the reelection of West German President Theodor Heuss and the 10th anniversary observance of the July 20 bomb plot against Hitler.

Communist secret agents have forcibly abducted 24 West Berlin residents since the fall of 1949. West Berlin's anti-Communist League of Free Jurists said recently. The league said 98 others were lured into the Soviet sector and arrested.

John was a member of the resistance group that planned Hitler's assassination.

Police theorized that the Reds may have staged an elaborate trap for the official, well known to them for his direction of anti-Red activities.

On its face, it appeared to be another in the long series of carefully staged kidnappings which have beset West Berlin.

Foreign Farm Loan Officials Visit Pitt Office

A group of foreign farm loan officials visited the local Farmers' Home Administration yesterday to study the record system of the office.

The group, on a three-month tour in the United States with most of the time being spent in North Carolina, spent the morning at the FFA offices. They were entertained at a luncheon at noon yesterday and conducted on a short tour of East Carolina College campus before departing for New Holland yesterday afternoon.

Marion Perry, county office clerk of the FFA, explained the various files kept on FFA loans to farmers to the group during the morning period.

At 12:30 the group attended a luncheon where each of the visiting dignitaries introduced himself.

James Butler, alumni secretary of East Carolina College, spoke preceding the luncheon. He pointed to the industrial progress made in Eastern North Carolina and noted that until recently only five per cent of the state's industry was east of Raleigh.

Butler told the visitors that the picture is now changing. He called attention to the Dupont plant at Kingston as an example of the industrial progress being made in this area.

Butler stated that the progress of the state schools had had much to do with the changes in industry.

Washington would like to see Western unity lightened and strengthened in the wake of the Geneva settlement. In fact, President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles give every evidence of regarding this as essential if the security of the non-Communist world is to be held against relentless expansive pressure of the Communist world.

The State Department is understood to be seeking to speed up consultations with Britain France and other friendly governments on the formation of a Southeast Asian alliance. However, Britain is reported still to be taking a "go slow" line.

There is no fear here of a Communist renewal of open military aggression in Indochina. The fear is rather that the Reds will use political and economic pressures and subversive tactics to undermine South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos and eventually take them over. Authorities say the best way to counter this is to strengthen those states in every possible way, and primarily by creating a defensive alliance of Western and Asian nations for their protection.

Secretary Dulles was quoted as having told the House Foreign Affairs Committee at a closed session yesterday that this country had helped to obtain terms at Geneva "which would, to a degree, mitigate the effect of the military settlement upon the peoples of the Indochina area."

There was little comment in Congress, and no disposition to picture the settlement as anything but a gain for the Reds,

Teen-age Turnout

By RUTH EVELYN TOPPING
Fellowship To Have Watermelon Party

Tonight at 7:30 the Senior High Fellowship of the First Presbyterian Church will have a watermelon social at the manse on Ninth Street.

The members will play games, have watermelon, and close with a worship program.

Last Thursday the fellowship met and enjoyed an ice cream party. After games they made peach ice cream in a freezer.

The evening closed with a worship program led by Miss Oleene Pleasants, Director of Christian Education at the Presbyterian Church.

Club Receives New Name
The club that all the Christian youth of Greenville and Pitt County have formed has been named Youth Crusade for Christ.

Each Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the youth meet in one of the churches in Greenville and are led in Bible study, singing, and prayer by Rev. Malloy Owen and Bob Gibbons, president of the club.

Prayer cells are formed in different areas of the city and are composed of about twelve members. They meet with their leader when and where they choose for prayer.

Vivian Travels to Charleston
Vivian Powell plans to travel to Charleston, South Carolina Sunday to spend a week with her aunt and uncle.

On the Isle of Palms, where her relatives reside, Vivian will spend most of her time swimming and visiting.

Sally Spends Summer in Mullins
Sally Beard is spending her summer in Mullins, South Carolina. She left Greenville June 30 and will return in time to start school in the fall.

Each summer Sally's family move to Mullins, so she is living with them there.

Wilson Beckons to Sylvia
Wilson beckons to Sylvia Satterthwaite as she spends three weeks of her summer there. At her cousin's invitation Sylvia went to Wilson July 12. She plans to return home this Sunday.

Swimming has been the main activity in Sylvia's vacation there. Bus Carries Twenty-Eight To Ridgecrest

Twenty-eight young people from Pitt County will board a chartered bus today and will travel to Ridgecrest, a Baptist conference grounds near Asheville, N.C.

They will attend the Training Union Conference classes there. Also on their list of activities are swimming, hiking, playing tennis and taking tours.

Their chartered bus will be on hand to take the group on tours to Chimney Rock, Biltmore Estate, and Mars Hill. They will return home July 28.

Delegates from Greenville are Naomi Gibbs, Carolyn Tripp, Pat Finning, Jane Perkins, Betty Jones, Julia Tracy, Iona Jones, Barbara Fleming, Catherine Moore, Annette Dunn, Barbara Conway, Kitty Collins, Joanna Hardee, Nell Lee, Beverly Dunn, Margaret Phelps, Lou White Winstead, Joy Jordan, Alice Goodall, Tommy Bodkin, and Miss Florence McPadden, Director of Christian Education at the Memorial Baptist Church.

From Farmville are Blanche Satterthwaite, Jane Joyner, Nan Williams, Barbara Paramore, and Henri Pearl Johnson. Going with the group also are Lelia Davenport from Paoctolos and Doris Cole from Winterville.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Dillard Haas; a daughter, Mrs. Hugh Frohbieter of Rawlins, Wyoming; four grandchildren; and five great grandchildren.

"We've Traveled 10,300 Miles!"
"We've traveled 10,300 miles!" exclaims Betty Gayle Raynor, who returned Monday from a tour of the United States. The Raynors covered territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to Mexico. They visited almost every principal city in America.

"San Francisco's Chinatown fascinated us," recalls Betty. "And in Detroit we watched the assembly lines put out cars every 55 seconds."

At Tacoma, Washington the Raynors visited four days with relatives. They could see snow-covered Mt. Rainier was another attraction the Raynors enjoyed at Tacoma.

Other stops on their trip were Niagara Falls, Hollywood, Grand Canyon, Yosemite Park, and Mexico. "We had a wonderful time!" adds Betty.

Going-Away Parties

Compliment Mrs. Hall

Several courtesies this week repaying farewell honor to Mrs. Fred Hall, who leaves next week with her husband and their seven-year-old daughter Tamara for Charlotte. The Halls, who live at 562-A Co-tanche Street, moved here about 14 months ago from Greensboro. Mr. Hall's company, Chapman & Wilhelm Co. of Charlotte, has transferred him to that city.

Tuesday night Mrs. William T. Smith entertained Mrs. Hall at her home at Colonial Court with a bridge and canasta party. The hostess served delicious refreshments preceding the games. Afterward the honoree was invited into the dining room where the table was covered with an array of lovely gifts awaiting Mrs. Hall.

Those making up the four tables were Mesdames Emil Eason, Jay Kroll, A. B. Taylor, Jack Stanfield, Charles Ramsburg, Terry White, W. H. Woolard Jr., James Lafferty, Lacy Harrell, Robert Burnette, Brooks Beddingfield, W. J. Bundy, M. W. Maxwell, D. W. Griffin and J. W. Westbrook. Guests invited for refreshments included Mesdames A. A. Hines, A. T. Schmidt, Cora Powell, Marshall Duval and J. B. Spliman.

Other parties this week planned for Mrs. Hall included a dinner party at Silo Crill Wednesday night, given by Mr. F. A. Jordan and fellow members of the Hobby Club, including Mrs. M. W. Maxwell, Lloyd Bray, W. J. Bundy, F. P. Hendrix and Mrs. Ethel Burnette. Mrs. Hall's daughter Tamara was presented a miniature hand-painted cup and saucer by Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Hall received a lovely plate, also hand-painted by Mrs. Jordan.

Mrs. W. H. Woolard Sr. honored Mrs. Hall at a luncheon on Thursday.

Last Rites Saturday

For Rev. Oscar Haas

Funeral services for the Rev. Oscar C. Haas, retired Methodist son Funeral Chapel at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. His pastor, the Rev. W. M. Howard, will officiate. Mr. Haas died at his home, 214 Greene Street, Tuesday night.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Dillard Haas; a daughter, Mrs. Hugh Frohbieter of Rawlins, Wyoming; four grandchildren; and five great grandchildren.

Dessert Bridge Party Honors Brides-Elect

A dessert bridge honoring Misses Mitzi Sue Taylor, Shirley Manning, and Edwina McMullan was given last night by Miss Janet Watson and Miss Mary Ann Stark at the home of the latter.

The house was decorated with arrangements of mixed summer flowers. The bridge tables were adorned with bouquets of summer flowers with various shades of pink.

During the dessert hour, an ice course was served. Later in the evening iced drinks, mints and nuts were enjoyed.

The hostesses presented the honorees with gifts of crystal. They also remembered Mrs. Rudolph Scheller, Niagara Falls, Hollywood, Grand Canyon, Yosemite Park, and Mexico. "We had a wonderful time!" adds Betty.

Demo Women To Carry Hatboxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic women all over the country with hatbox in hand will ring doorbells on Democratic Women's Day, Sept. 22, in a fund raising campaign for Democratic candidates in the November election.

Mrs. Katie Louchheim, director of women's activities of the Democratic National Committee announcing the drive yesterday, said it will have as its slogan "Drop a dollar in the hat — help elect Democrat."

Actress Glad That Husband Is No Actor

By DOROTHY ROE
AF Women's Editor

Blonde, diffident Eva Marie Saint skyrocketed from television actress to an overnight sensation in moviedom because of the fire and tenderness of her love scenes with Marlon Brando in the new film "On the Waterfront."

Off-stage, her heart belongs to Jeffery Hayden, handsome young television director who has been her husband since 1951. She gets a faraway look in her eyes when she speaks of him, like this:

"Thank God he's not an actor!" Not that Eva has anything against actors. Some of her best friends are actors. She speaks with real admiration of the talents of Brando and others with whom she has played romantic leads. But she adds:

"As husbands, no!" Asked why she feels so strongly on this subject, Eva ponders seriously for a moment and replies: "Well, I guess I feel you can't have two actors in one family. There would be too much professional jealousy, and that doesn't work in a happy marriage."

"Then, I suppose I feel I'd never know whether an actor meant it when he said he loved me, or whether he was just acting."

It's no problem for Eva to throw herself into a TV or movie love scene with an ardor that keeps her audiences on the edge of their seats.

"That's just acting," she says carelessly. "It's easy. It doesn't mean that I would have any interest in the man after the scene was over. The woman in the love scene isn't me—it's the character I'm playing. I don't see why people can't understand that."

"When you see an actor play the part of a murderer in a play, you don't assume that he must be one in real life. But the public never seems to be able to grasp the idea that two trained actors can make love with conviction on the stage and be completely indifferent to each other after the scene is over."

"I guess it's because people are just naturally so sentimental at heart that they can't bear to think a love scene that moves them so deeply isn't for real."

Eva says Jeffery never is jealous of her make-believe lovers in television or movie work. Says she: "He understands that I'm an actress when I'm on stage, but that I couldn't bear to continue the role in real life."

Nobody Took The Wedding Chimes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The wedding chimes disappeared from the Church of the Immaculate Conception and it was assumed that somebody had stolen them.

Police were notified by the Rev. Victor Bazzanella and a search was started. But the priest himself solved the mystery a few hours later.

He said he was informed his own parishioners had the chimes taken out for repairs and had forgotten to tell him.

Old Copy Of Newspaper Mourns Death Of Washington The Great

"On Wednesday last, the mortal part of WASHINGTON the Great—the Father of his country and the Friend of man, was consigned to the tomb with solemn honors and funeral pomp."

Thus reports a replica of the Ulster County (N.Y.) Gazette, the early American newspaper is dated Saturday, January 4, 1800 and labeled Volume II, Number 88.

"A multitude of persons assembled from many miles around, at Mount Vernon, the choice abode and last residence of the illustrious chief. There were the groves—the spacious avenues, the beautiful and sublime scenes, the noble mansions—but, alas! the august inhabitant was now, no more. The great soul was gone." The paper continued in flowery style characteristic of "burlesque" of the day.

"His mortal part was there indeed, but ah! how affecting! how awful the spectacle of such worth and greatness, thus, to mortal eyes, fallen—'Tis fall! fall! fall!"

The newspaper is owned by W.W. Caudle of 121 West Seventh Street. Caudle says he bought a home in Rurward, and found the paper in the house.

Before he acquired the home, it was understood to have been owned by Miss Hannah H. Rhett, who was nearly 80 years old when she died.

Caudle noted that Miss Rhett made a hobby of collecting very old things such as the newspaper and various paintings, much of which she obtained in Europe.

Although the paper is labeled "copy" at the top of the front page, the copy itself is old.

"In my opinion it would be 100 years old or more itself from the looks of it," Caudle says.

News of Washington's death did not make the front page of the four column paper, however.

The account of his entombment was carried on page three. The front page of the paper was devoted to an account of the activities of Congress and reprints from London papers concerning affairs in Europe.

The inside two pages were edged in black however, presumably in mourning for the death of the ex-president.

Merchants of the day apparently believed in the value of advertising. One ad announces that John Tremper, has commenced business in the mercantile line, and has a general assortment of dry goods and groceries, which he will dispose of very cheap for cash or produce only." the advertisement not-

"Cash paid for wheat and fur."

Another ad announces that the owner has a "Stout healthy, active, Negro wench. Any person inclined to purchase, may know the particulars by applying to John Schoonmaker, Jr. at Rochester."

Still another notice says: "Taken out of the store of Abraham I. excellent Gun—marked S.B.—Any person giving information so that Hasbrouck, about a year since, and shall receive two dollars reward and reasonable charges paid by John Weist."

Syngman Rhee To Soon Visit U.S., Hear Dreams Die

By MURRAY FROMSON
SEOUL (AP)—Stubborn old President Syngman Rhee leaves Saturday for Washington, probably to be told that there is almost no hope of realizing his fondest dream—a Republic of Korea embracing the Communist-ruled north.

Ostensibly the 76-year-old President is going to Washington discuss a new unification policy with President Eisenhower, since the Geneva conference failed. And publicly he still rallies South Korea's 22 million people with the cry "go north."

But an informed government source says privately Rhee has all but abandoned hope of seeing this divided and war-shattered peninsula reunited before he dies.

"President Eisenhower's Far East advisers almost certainly have told him that North Korea must be written off as a loss to the Communists, observers here say.

Intelligence reports from North Korea indicate Red China has turned the area into a vassal state, tied tightly to Peking both politically and economically.

If unification is all but a dead issue, the agenda for the top level "Washington talks slated to open Monday will include the urgent need of pumping more vigor into South Korea's economy and strengthening its army.

Rhee is expected to demand a greater voice in the spending of U.S. millions on Korean rehabilitation. And there have been reports that Eisenhower would approve a buildup of the 20-division ROK army.

Eisenhower has called in some of his top experts on Korea for conferences before Rhee's arrival.

The roads built by ancient Rome still form the skeleton for the highways of Europe.

Pravda Already Calling For New Korea Parley

By STANLEY JOHNSON
MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda called today for new Korean negotiations and U.N. membership for Communist China as a follow-up to the Geneva agreement on Indochina.

The Soviet Communist party organ hailed the Indochina settlement as a great Communist victory and declared that Geneva had exposed the "bankruptcy" of American foreign policy.

The paper said in a three-column front-page editorial that "the U.S. delegation prevented" a peaceful solution in the earlier Geneva talks on reuniting Korea but public opinion "demands the governments concerned continue their efforts to revive the discussion."

As a result of Geneva, Pravda said, "it is now clear to all how bankrupt are attempts by American diplomacy to prevent the Chinese people from entering the international arena and taking the place due them among the great powers."

"The peoples demand that China should take its lawful place in the United Nations," the paper declared, "and it will take it however much certain thick-skulled American politicians, bound by material interest to Chiang Kalshek fight against it. If this does not take place, the United Nations will be unable to fulfill the tasks assigned it by its charter."

(The United States opposes admission of Red China to the U.N. on the ground it has never abandoned its role of the aggressor in Korea. The Western Allies broke off the Korean phase of the Geneva conference June 15 after the Communists refused to agree to U.N.-supervised elections to reunite the divided peninsula.)

Pravda's editorial was chiefly a blast at the United States. It mentioned Britain and France only briefly.

The editorial said the Geneva agreement banning foreign military bases in Viet Nam "deals a blow to the plans of American aggressive circles, which were counting on the inclusion of South Viet Nam plus Laos and Cambodia in an aggressive pact and creation there of military bases directed against the countries of the Democratic camp."

The paper claimed the United States was defeated in efforts to

Edward G. Robinson Still Plays Gangster

By HULGARD KEAVY
(For Bob Thomas)
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Here we are again, Edward G. Robinson and I, where we started 25 years ago. He is playing a gangster and I am writing about glamor, gangsters and girls.

"This is some coincidence, eh?" said Edward G. "We've been here about the same number of years and here you are, temporarily back on your old beat while I am temporarily back to my old racket—I mean, line."

Edward G. says he feels the same as he did so many years ago and I assure him I am as spry as when I began this dodge. But we look at each other a little critically, and he sees my hair is thinner and I see his is too. But I am not wearing a scalp dolly because no one cares how I look except my wife and she is getting used to me.

I well remember the filming of "Little Caesar," in 1930 (it was released in '30) because it was one of the most exciting sets to visit. Edward G. played the role to the hilt and was a pleasure to watch; and a set where there's gunfire always is interesting. That gangster film set the pace, made Edward G. a star and, for its producers, millions. But being released now, in company with 1931's "Public Enemy," it will make over more millions than it did originally.

Robinson tried to analyze the success of "Little Caesar."

"That guy wanted to get ahead and he did it in his way," he said. "We all want to get ahead. Even though we despise his methods, we secretly applaud his desires. There's a little of Little Caesar in all of us—the urge to be big shots."

This reunion of small significance has to be interrupted frequently by a director's demands.

Complaint Has Reverse Twist

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Police said a man complained last night about a peeping blonde at his window.

He said the blonde looked to be about 18 years old, wore a white blouse and full skirt and could run like the dickens.

He said he chased her a good 50 yards, but she got away.

The Chicago fire of 1871 made 100,000 people homeless.

Win Top Honors In Livestock Test

Two Pitt County 4-H members won top state honors in the livestock conservation contest at 4-H Club week in Raleigh yesterday.

The two, Jimmy Hendrix of the Winterville-Greenville club and Teddy Allen of the Farmville Senior 4-H Club, gave a team demonstration which won the honors.

The demonstration was entitled: "The Prevention and Control of Internal Parasites in Swine."

The pair were competing against contestants from six districts which had previously been held all over the state.

They will now compete in the national contest at Chicago during the National 4-H Conference in November.

The team was coached by C. J. Goodman, assistant county agent.

Let's Get The Pie Before We Slice It

The report of the engineering firm which has made a survey of the state's inland waterways may be disappointing to some because it does not advocate the immediate establishment of inland ports pinpointed here and there in the Coastal Plain.

Probably the most significant thing is that the report recommends the development of the economy in the section in order that the economy may support inland ports and further development of inland waterways in North Carolina.

It also suggested ways of raising state revenue which could be put into a program of developing the inland waterways which the state has long neglected.

The principal business at hand right now, it seems to us, is for the sections interested in inland waterway development to give careful study to the exhaustive report made by the engineering firm, and come up with suggestions as to how a development program can be implemented.

Pitt County would like to see its port facility reactivated as soon as possible, just as other localities on the inland waterways would. Yet, there will be little accomplished now if the various cities and counties begin vying with each other for favorable priority ratings.

That can come later, if, indeed, it need come at all.

The thing now is to get a program for inland waterway development from the paper stage to the actual work stage.

First of all, the program is going to take

First of all, the program is going to take to get the proposed $500,000 a year for the development program if all the interested parties in the program pull together. It will be next to impossible to get the money from any source if the parties start fighting over how they are going to slice the pie before they get it.

If this inland waterway development program is to be carried out, it is going to take a great deal of cooperative work by the area as a whole as well as a great deal of individual work by the various counties and municipalities interested in the project.

What Has The Free Word Gained?

What has the free world gained by the end to the war in Indochina?

To be sure, it has stopped—at least for the time being—a war which has been going on for eight years. The cease fire has brought an end to a shooting war between the Free World and Communism anywhere in the globe.

They are accomplishments for the moment; but we can not bring ourselves to be enthusiastic about their contribution to world peace in the long run.

Perhaps it is because Korea is too fresh in our minds. Perhaps it is because we are not yet convinced communism has any goal other than ultimate world conquest.

The cease fire in Korea released communist troops and war materiel there fore action in Indochina. Will the cease fire in Indochina enable the communists, elated by another victory, to focus their military aggression upon another nation in the Far East or elsewhere in the world? It may be a pessimistic view to take, but we would not be surprised to see the communist forces relieved by the Indochina cease fire put to work for conquest somewhere else.

The Free World has given up another bit of valuable real estate to communism. It has abandoned another segment of the world's population (13 million people) to communist enslavement. From the realistic viewpoint, these can only whet the communist appetite for more.

A man cannot afford to let a maddened bear to devour his sheep one by one. If he does, it is only a matter of time until the entire flock is gone; and the man and the bear must come to grips in a death struggle. As each member of the flock falls, the rest of the flock becomes more disturbed. They lose confidence in themselves and in their leaders, and become easier prey for the bear on his next trip of death.

Nehru Chose To Ignore The U. S.

The United States took a sort of back-handed nose-thumbing this week from India's Premier Nehru who paid tribute to the foreign ministers of Britain, The Soviet Union, France and Communist China, and representatives of the Vietnam, Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia for signing the Indochina cease-fire agreement.

Nehru pointedly ignored the United States in the praise and sources said it was because the U. S. representatives did not sign the agreement.

Frankly, we think the United States should not have signed the peace agreement. The Indochina conflict was not our war any more than in a general sense in which any conflict between communism and the free world is a war in which the U. S. is an interested party.

Nehru's action probably elated his communist suitors; but it should not cause too great a concern to the United States.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
PEOPLE COME FIRST
Horace Mann, the great educator, once delivered an address at a boys' reformatory and made the statement that if the entire reformatory system of the United States changed only one boy for the better, it would be worth all it cost. Someone at the close of the speech rallied Mr. Mann on this extravagant statement and said: "Wasn't that a bit exaggerated? Do you think all this expense and labor would be worth while if it saved only one boy?" "Yes," replied Horace Mann quickly, "it certainly would be worth all of that if the boy in question were my boy."

How free and easy we can be with other people's money, other people's destiny, and other people's lives. When Napoleon returned from the Russian campaign and was asked if he was not appalled at his military losses, he replied jauntily, "Why should I be? We lost only 250,000 men and most of them were Germans." We should always try to think of war in terms of our own loved ones. We may favor some military expedition, but remember that the expedition is going to take its toll in blood. We may cry out for the authorization of some public work which will cost millions of dollars, but remember that the citizenship of the country has to pay that bill.

Always try to think of a problem in terms of persons—and remember that people have feelings.

Tax Collectors Doing Better

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Although gold statistics can never measure accurately the status of morale among public servants, a sharp increase in the collection of taxes reflects a tremendous improvement since Congressional Committees and the Federal Court sent so many former Internal Revenue officials to jail.

T. Coleman Andrews, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, estimates that, despite a lowering of tax rates and a smaller staff, his field men will turn in more cash and checks than they did when they knew that the men at the top were financially and politically dishonest.

It is estimated that more than a score of former Internal Revenue heads have been imprisoned or convicted of accepting graft or evading taxes. The latest to be found guilty, of the latter charge, is Joseph D. Numan, Jr., who headed the Bureau under Truman.

Key figures in the Boston, New York, St. Louis and other offices, all appointed for purely political reasons, have been prosecuted and sentenced. From top to bottom, the personnel has been weeded and cleaned out.

PAST ACTION—Even where no criminality was involved, political favoritism toward important contributors to campaign funds destroyed the morale of the service's 54,000 employees. Commissioner Andrews has described the following incident as typical of "many that have come to his attention."

When a prominent Democrat was summoned to a Bureau office in a certain Southern state, and informed of a heavy delinquency assessment, he blew up with indignation. Without saying a word, he grabbed the phone and told the switchboard operator: "Connect me with Joe Numan!"

such practices do not improve morale or lead humble employees to "give the old college try for Uncle Sam." GOOD WORK OF CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE—It was the much criticized system of Congressional investigations which resulted in the ousting and conviction of so many dishonest and inefficient officials in Internal Revenue and Treasury. A House Ways and Means Subcommittee headed by Representative Gordon Canfield of New Jersey, was responsible for the original exposure. Grand and petit juries finished the job.

Although the Canfield investigators operated without headlines or sensational tactics, it was one of the first Congressional groups of this kind to be denounced by former President Truman. He accused it of "political conniving." In commenting on its revelations of graft in the Boston office, Truman said:

"All my appointees are honest men!" Many of these "honest men" are behind bars, or out on appeal.

INTERNAL REVENUE BUREAU'S NEW LOOK—Commissioner Andrews' principal difficulty is to obtain able executives for the top positions. The highest pay he can offer them is $14,000 a year. Moreover, many refuse to subject themselves to the brutal treatment and criticism that becomes the lot of so many public servants.

As a result, Andrews has had to resort to promotions of men with long and varied experience in the service. Many of his directors and deputies have come up through the ranks. Together, with the housecleaning, this has transformed Internal Revenue into an honest and hard-working agency.

An Andrews aide adds further proof of the extent and character of this reform with the comment: "Since February, 1953—(when Andrews was appointed), this office has never had a visitor, a phone call or a letter, suggesting that we pull our punches or arrange for a 'tax fix.'"

Somebody Told Me

Skinny Folks Are Better Off

Say you're skinny? Then I say you're quite fortunate and should realize it. It's simply a matter of the trait most of us have: wanting to be something we're not.

Take a look at the things I did to gain weight:

1. Drank milk when I didn't particularly want it.

2. Took exercises to whet my appetite when my lazy bones didn't want to respond.

3. When on a special diet, which included plenty of butter, yeast, special kinds of meat.

4. Even tried getting more sleep one time, but that didn't work.

5. Made the supreme sacrifice. Gave up the golden weed. Smoke now on occasion, but do not have the habit.

Now, in spite of all I can do,

I'm getting that lap of meat hanging over my belt. Listen, Skinny, you don't know when you're well off. Take a look at the contrast:

1. Have created a real thirst for milk and have to restrain to keep from drinking it up from the babies.

2. Take exercises, but have so much more weight to drag around that it's twice as exhausting.

3. Diet? What a joke. Have become obsessed with eating. Walk in the house like Dagwood and check the stove to see what's in store.

4. Sleep? Still don't get enough, but it doesn't seem to curtail the pounds that come.

5. Ashamed to go out on the beach in a bathing suit because you're skinny? Forget it. How would you feel at the age of 30, feeling 18 at heart and having the carcass of a 40-year-old? How would you feel on the beach with a protrusion hanging over the waist-line?

They used to tell me it's a lot harder to take off than it is to put on, and I would laugh. Now I see that's the understatement of the year.

A lady went into the butcher shop and asked to see a 15-pound roast. The butcher showed it to her and asked if the quality looked OK. "I don't want to buy it," she said, "I just lost 15 pounds and I want to see what that much meat looks like."

Skinny? Be glad of it. You'll live ten years longer.

And I thank you.

What Other Editors Are Thinking

WHAT'S THUNDER? Greensboro Daily News

Lynn Nisbet, writing in his Raleigh correspondence to after-noon newspapers, quotes an article by Henry Belk in the Goldsboro News-Argus to take off on recollections of interesting explanations given by old folks of other days when kids asked what caused thunder.

Editor Belk starts off with Washington Irving's explanation of the little Dutchmen playing nineties in the Catskills and the noise of their bowling balls reverberating through the mountains. Then he brings the explanation home:

A Wayne county woman remembers that her mother used to tell the children that the noise of thunder resulted from the angels playing with watermelons. A little brother of hers even when six or seven years old when peals of thunder came would clap his hands and gleefully shout

"It won't be long till watermelon time."

From there on Lynn, who came from Sweet Union as did Henry, takes over. He recalls that the parents used to tell their children when they heard thunder that the corn wagons were rolling over the bridge. Then Lynn branches off into another childhood explanation directly associated with thunder, i.e., when it rained while the sun was shining, the children were told the Devil was beating his wife. That's the way we heard it over in Cleveland too only it was expanded into the Devil's beating his wife around the stump and that you could hear it if you'd stick a pin in the ground and put your ear to it. As in Union we also heard that rain during the sunshine meant that it would rain again the same time next day.

But with us there were other thunder explanations and superstitions. Thunder was caused by the clouds hitting together.

The first thunder in January or February meant that Winter was broken. Thunder soured the milk. If you had milk in the crock or churn on the hearth corner, with a wet cloth over it as used to be, and it thundered, it wouldn't be any good for churning; you wouldn't get any butter but only clabber. One of our Randolph compatriots tells us that the saying in his area was that you shouldn't eat ice cream made during a thunder storm as it was poisoned or contaminated. So these superstitions or explanations about thunder must be numberless.

Incidentally does Lynn, Henry or anybody remember how when the dogs barked endlessly at night or engaged in a long or distant chase that had no explanation some older vouchsafed: Up the lane and down the level, Grandpa's dogs done treed the Board's Functions Summarized By Word 'Development'

By LYNN NISBET

DEVELOPMENT—Opinion has prevailed in some quarters for a long time that the name of one of the State's major departments could be shortened without detracting from its significance. Orderly development is based upon conservation of natural, human and economic resources.

Reports of the director and the several division heads made to the Board of Conservation and Development at its meeting in Morehead city this week show that while conservation has not been ignored, primary emphasis has been placed upon promoting development through adequate utilization of resources.

Governor Umstead has made industrial expansion a major objective of his administration. The reports show a fair degree of success along that line, despite the handicaps of economic recession and intensified competition from other areas of the country.

The C&D department functions through seven divisions. To greater degree than ever before the efforts of these divisions have been coordinated to support the objective of expanding industry and to channel activities through the office of Director Ben Douglas, who has accepted personal responsibility for operation of the Commerce & Industry division as the keystone of the departmental structure.

The other six divisions (Advertising, Commercial Fisheries, Forestry, Mineral Resources, Parks, Water Resources, Inlets and Coastal Waterways) are required by the obligations required by the first part of the departmental name. But "conservation" implies standing still, or holding ground.

"Development" connotes advancement and emphasis has been upon that phase.

The Board allocates supervision of each division to a committee of five members, but policy must be adopted or ratified by the full board of which the Governor is chairman. Each division has a chief who is responsible to the director and the board for the administration of his particular part of the overall job.

Division reports are briefly summarized in alphabetical order. ADVERTISING—The purpose of advertising is to attract interest. The actual selling of a product is the obligation of salesmen after the advertisements have made the initial contact. On that basis the advertising division (Hugh Morton committee chairman, Charles Parker division chief) has done a good job. Nationwide distribution of publicity material, including newspaper and magazine advertisements, printed folders, pamphlets and booklets, motion picture, radio and television programs, drew during the first six months of this year a total of 95,602 inquiries. That averages to about 750 for each working day of the period. These inquiries were processed at Raleigh and many thousands of them forwarded to local agencies for follow-up.

COMMERCE & INDUSTRY—The salesmen in the division of commerce and industry converted these initial contacts into $59 million of new industry building. Of course, it is understood that the industrial development reported during the first six months of this year a total of 95,602 inquiries. That averages to about 750 for each working day of the period. These inquiries were processed at Raleigh and many thousands of them forwarded to local agencies for follow-up.

A significant item in the C&I division report (R.M. Hanes committee chairman, Dallas T. Daily division chief) is that almost half the new business represents expansion of established plants, indicating satisfaction with North Carolina's industrial climate. The report shows 55 new plants for $30 million, 56 expansions for $27 million, adding up to employment for 8,100 additional workers at nearly $17 million new payroll money. Another important fact is that the new industries represent wider diversion into electronic and chemical fields, and wider dispersion throughout the state.

The tourist business has been accepted as an "industry" (it produces some $350 million a year) and there has been substantial growth in that area. The 1954-55 yield may exceed half a billion dollars.

COMMERCIAL FISHERIES—This is the one activity of the department which is localized along the seaboard. The report shows less production than last year, but plans are in the making for processing seafoods in order to keep at home the major profits available from the industry. (Cecil Morris is committee chairman, C.G. Holland, acting division chief.)

FORESTRY—This is the place where conservation probably is more important than development. Forest fire control and scientific cutting of timber ranks in importance with reforestation through the distribution of seedlings from State nurseries. The division (Walter Damtoft committee chairman, F.H. Claridge division chief) channels activities to aid industry in production of timber for buildings and furniture and pulpwood for paper.

City-Suburban Ties

By ELMER ROESSNER

The interrelationship between city and suburbs grows more complex. Even when suburbs supply their own protection and services they frequently become a drain on the city. Its residents use city streets and other facilities; they require protection when they visit the city. On the other hand, suburban merchants, paying less taxes, often undersell retailers in adjoining metropolises.

"Annex them!" is the usual solution advanced by city residents. "If part of our tax money is spent for their benefit, they ought to pay the same taxes that we do." And sometimes economic pressures are used to bring about annexation. A suburb needs a larger water supply and can obtain help only from a city; then the city may refuse to help out unless the suburb consents to election. Sometimes a suburb is too small to support some full-time service, such as refuse collection; the city will collect its refuse at an outrageous fee — or do it for nothing after annexation. Last year 434 American communities extended their borders by annexation or consolidation, according to the International City Managers' Association.

But sometimes it is the city that gets stuck financially on these deals. A suburb has been paying a very low tax rate, but giving itself very little for it. The city annexes it and the tax rate seems to skyrocket. But the suburb gets a lot of gravy for the extra fare.

A Western city had its eye on a growing suburb not long ago. The residents in the suburb worked in the city, "taking money out" and spending it in stores in the suburb; the residents used the freeway without having paid for it. Well, said the urbanites (especially those merchants who felt they were losing sales to suburban stores), let them join up and pay full city taxes. If they don't join, we will stop selling them water!

There was a big campaign, petitions were signed and battle lines were drawn. Then, mysteriously, the whole matter was dropped.

The annexation proponents had sharpened their pencils. They counted the families and the children in the new development, and discovered that, from the number of children under six, that the city would have to build a million-dollar school next year and another one in 1956. And about the time the city had got those millions back in taxes, it would have to put in a high school. And meanwhile, the costs of police, fire and other protections would go up and up.

These facts haven't dawned on the suburbanites yet. But after they do, their tax rates are going to be two or three times as high as those living inside the city limits.

FEWER, BIGGER CLIENTS... FOR AD AGENCIES...

Considerable change has come over the advertising agency business since 1950, according to Printers' Ink. The agencies had fewer clients last year than in 1950, but they were doing a larger volume of business per client, the magazine, says on the basis of a survey by Ira W. Rubel. However, the ratio of profit to income declined.

The number of agencies charging for services has increased, the survey indicates.

Optimistic Note In A-Bombing

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—My frivolous thought for the day recently cast a feeble ray of optimism on the effects of an atomic bombing. It could, I thought, just happen to do a little good for a very few survivors by destroying (1) birth certificate records and (2) marriage license records.

The boon would be great to women in their 40s who long to be 31. Who could deny their claim to eternal youth if the record were destroyed. To some women the claim of youth appears so precious that apparently they would gladly forfeit their stocks, bonds and bank accounts to a helicopter.

Then there is the case of some married couples. Imagine John and Mary wandering back to the wreckage, and suppose that Mary has been tired of married life with John for some time. As they approach each other in the smoking ruins, John cries, "Darling!"

Mary scowls at him and says, "Get away from me. Who are you anyway? John, aghast, exclaims, "Your beloved husband." Smiling triumphantly, Mary says, "Prove it, you heel!" And there goes another marriage.

This frivolous thought occurred to me as I was strolling down the west bank of Fifth Avenue on my way to chat with a fellow named Charlie Costigan.

Costigan, who lives in Oradell, N.J., was preoccupied at the time installing a 30-ton door on a massive vault in the new Manufacturers Trust Co. building. This vault, by the way, sits right up from the building behind what will be one of the world's biggest sheets of plate glass. Thus if a burglar ever starts tampering with Charlie Costigan's big door he'll attract quite an audience on Fifth Avenue.

Costigan is a lean, limber, quick man who looks 60 and is 60 years old. The Mosler Safe Co., which employs him and his crew of men to go around the country installing vaults, says there are only a half-dozen men in the nation who can do the job that Charlie does.

This hasn't gone to Costigan's head. He is, in fact, remarkably modest. When confronted by the statement he "flips vault doors like pancakes," he smiles helplessly at the floor.

"I am," he says, "A traveling mechanic."

The obvious fact about a vault is that it's no safer than its door. If you've ever put on a screen door you know it's a tricky operation. And when you visualize a 30-ton door that must fit to a hundred-thousandth of an inch and swing at the pressure of a finger you can imagine the highly exacting nature of Costigan's work.

"It is," he says, "all a matter of balance." While we talked, his crew was jacking up the 30-ton door and cribbing it preparatory to the big moment when they'd swing it across the opening and Costigan would delicately set it in place.

Finally I put the big question to Costigan. "This vault would withstand an atomic bombing—wouldn't it?"

"Why, yes," said Costigan thoughtfully. "Yes, I think it would."

Then, I told Costigan about my frivolous thought, my Fifth Avenue fantasy. He listened politely, but gradually he took on the expression of a man who feared another was putting words in his mouth.

Slowly he backed away. "Well," he said, "I've got to get back to the job."

He was happy to get his hands on something solid like a 30-ton door that had to fit to a hundred-thousandth of an inch.

Slow, Sound Buildup For Coming Cooler Weather

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP)—Heat waves rolling across the nation find industry today in the middle of a summer lull—but with confidence teamed with caution to set the foundation for what could be a slow and sound buildup when cool weather comes.

Many factories are closed for summer vacations. Others are closing for annual inventories. Torrid weather keeps customers away from stores in many cities. The summer breather—or the search for some cool air to breathe—is evident in many lines of industry and trade.

Businessmen are taking it calmly. They expect a pickup in a month or so. And from now on they'll have the advantage of better looking statistics to bolster confidence.

So far this year the business statistics have been compared on a year-ago basis with record-setting periods in 1953. But the trade downturn started a year ago, so that from now on any gains in industry and trade will look even better as they are compared with declining figures of last fall and winter.

Confidence teamed with caution has been the hallmark of the year-long recession. It has distinguished it from other recessions.

Confidence and caution might look like strange teammates at first glance, but they work well together.

Business wariness kept inventories from going too high during the boom. Prudence caused businessmen to hold down inventories when trade slackened with the end of the Korean fighting.

But trust in the essential soundness of the nation's business and particularly in the generally bright prospects for the future kept manufacturers from cutting back too sharply either on production or on plans for expansion and modernization to be ready for the pickup so many of them expect.

Without this confidence—and without the caution that kept confidence from turning into runaway speculation—the adjustment of business to a peacetime economy could have been sharp. It could have developed its own chain reaction and exploded into a really painful business setback.

Businessmen apparently are using the same combination of caution and confidence in approaching the fall prospects. Most of the manufacturers and merchants appear to expect better production and better sales figures this fall. But they aren't rushing to build up inventories in expectation of a boom.

Fears of a real depression which began to crop up about this time last year and flowered into full debate before the year's end have been set aside now by almost everyone.

Need Diplomacy To Help Indians

By EUGENE LEVIN
 NANGAL TOWNSHIP, India (AP)—It takes know-how to build dams the size of mammoth Bhakra. It also takes patience and diplomacy.

This is the lesson being learned by American and Indian engineers tackling the Bhakra Dam, which may rank as the world's highest when completed in eight years. It is part of the Nangal-Bhakra development project on the Sutlej River in the Himalaya foothills 225 miles north of New Delhi. Originally it was designed to stand 680 feet high but additional excavations will add to the height.

India is paying the bill of 327 million dollars. American engineers are under direct contracts in no way connected with the U.S. economic aid to India. Their leader is Harvey Slocum of Alhambra, Calif., veteran construction boss at such big U.S. dams as Shasta and Grand Coulee. Between 30 and 45 Americans have been working here at various times.

In their advisory capacity, the Americans often have found themselves in the actual role of supervisors. The Indians were nominally in charge, but the more experienced Americans were able to assert considerable influence.

Slocum and most of the Americans have managed to maintain good relations with their Indian fellow workers. Where their advice has not been accepted they have taken the view that Bhakra, after all, is an Indian project.

Bhakra Dam has been an Indian dream for 40 years. Almost all the preparatory work is finished, and before the end of this year construction of the dam itself will start. Slocum describes it as possibly the most difficult dam ever undertaken, because of the remoteness of the site, the area's geological structure and the lack of sufficient trained personnel to supervise a 73,000-man work force.

DENTON, Ga. (AP)—A pair of ducks that can't swim are living evidence of the drought in this area.

When they had reached the age of eight weeks without ever seeing a puddle big enough to paddle in, their owner, Eddie Williams, 6, decided it was high time they got a chance to do what's supposed to come naturally to all ducks.

He filled a tub with water, tossed them in and stood by to watch. And a good thing he did, too. Eddie barely saved them from drowning.

Now they apparently consider water a death-trap for dry-land ducks and won't go near the dangerous stuff.

Science Fiction Air At Center

By LEIF ERICKSON
 ALAMOGORDO, N. M. (AP)—The fantastic has become routine in little more than five years at Holloman Air Development Center.

Any week and every week rockets can be shot 90 miles up into space, carrying incredibly complex electronic instruments to ask questions and get answers on what's what up there.

For instance, one mission of the last 20-foot Aerobee rocket whooshed upwards from the White Sands desert floor was checking wind velocity and direction in the upper atmosphere.

The rocket itself hurtles upward at supersonic speed—not very much less than a mile a second or 3,600 miles an hour.

The wind check instruments and tiny vanes mounted in jeweled bearings. What they find out is recorded by electronic method.

All the rocket checks—on temperature, radiation, light and chemical changes—have a military purpose. Missiles are being developed that fly or will fly in these altitudes.

Instruments to guide these missiles must be perfected. How upper atmosphere conditions affect this guiding gear must be learned.

The Air Force Cambridge Research Center, at Cambridge, Mass., assigns rocket missions to such schools as Michigan, Colorado, Utah and Rhode Island universities and correlates the findings.

The Holloman center provides the testing ground. The 68th Test Squadron provides the men whose routine duty is to shoot Aerobee rockets 90 miles toward the sky.

Holloman, an abandoned wartime B29 base whose barracks were blowing apart in the desert winds in 1947, now is a massive science fiction layout of radar cones, blockhoused instrumentation centers and airstrips.

Today, Only Five Teams Have 'Ideas' About Reaching World Series In Fall

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Sports Writer

By now only five teams have serious ideas about reaching the World Series this fall but a whole host of others in both leagues are still scrapping to see who will help cut up the swag.

Players on the first four teams in each league share in the World Series receipts. It's generally conceded among all but the diehards that either the New York Giants or Brooklyn will be the National League representative against Cleveland, the New York Yankees or the Chicago White Sox.

But a check of the standings shows dog fights in both circuits immediately below these private pennant races.

In the National League four teams are bunched a game and a half apart from third through sixth place. Philadelphia holds third by a percentage point over Cincinnati and Milwaukee with St. Louis still a big factor.

The American league is running with a five-team "second division." Fourth place Detroit is a fat 22 lengths out of the lead and 17 1/2 behind the third place White Sox. But the Tigers hold only a single game edge over Boston and Washington and just eight games separate them from the tallent Baltimore Orioles.

In the upper brackets yesterday Cleveland took a half game lead over New York when the Yanks crumbled before Chicago 15-3 while the Indians were playing their second straight tie in Boston. Rain halted the 7-7 contest in the top of the ninth inning.

The Giants maintained their seven game advantage over Brooklyn with a 2-1 triumph at Chicago. The Dodgers tripped Cincinnati 8-1. St. Louis outscored Pittsburgh 13-12. Philadelphia defeated Milwaukee 6-1 and Washington shaded Baltimore 6-5 in other action.

Brooklyn's Carl Erskine turned in the outstanding pitching performance, retiring the last 23 Cincinnati batters in order after Bob Borkowski homered in the second inning. He got plenty of support for a change with Carl Furillo's five-hit spurge leading the 15 hit attack. Erskine gave up two hits and struck out 10.

A pinch single by Bill Taylor drove in the winning giant run in the ninth inning at Chicago. He scored Hank Thompson who had singled and moved around on a sacrifice and an infield out. Sal Maglie checked the Cubs on four hits.

The White Sox scored early and often against the Yankees, opening with five runs in the first and closing out with five in the ninth. Minnie Minoso and Johnny Oats collected four hits each. Virgil Trucks stayed long enough to become the first American League pitcher to win 13 games but he wilted from the heat in the seventh and needed help from Morrie Martin and Harry Dorish.

Home runs by Jim Hegan, Al Rosen and Larry Doby lifted Cleveland from a 6-0 deficit into a 7-6 lead at Boston but the Red Sox pushed across the tying run in the sixth and kept it that way until rain equaled the National League record. Pittsburgh used five hurlers.

The Athletics' victory over Detroit broke a 10-game losing streak. Sonny Dixon lamed the Tigers and Joe DeMaestri, Lou Limmer and Jim Finesgar hit home runs for the winners.

Washington wasted an early lead against Baltimore, then won in the ninth when an easy roller dribbled through Jim Bredwiser's legs with the bases loaded and one out. The loss was another heartbreaker for Don Larsen, who now has lost a dozen games.

Dodgers Of 1920 Had Ties, Too

NEW YORK (AP)—If the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox think they are having trouble reaching a decision after two straight ties, they might consider the plight of the 1920 Brooklyn Dodgers.

On May 1, 1920, the Dodgers and the old Boston Braves played a 26-inning 1-1 tie, longest tie game on record. The next day Brooklyn played a 13-inning tie with Philadelphia. And on May 3 Brooklyn and Boston battled 19 innings before Boston won 2-1.

Brooklyn's Idol May Join Giants

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn faithful who cried with Ralph Branca when he threw that never-to-be-forgotten pitch that Bob Thomson whacked for a pennant-winning home run three years ago, may see their former idol wearing the hated uniform of the New York Giants.

The former Dodger fireballer, who recently was released by the Detroit Tigers, has received an offer from the Giants to pitch for their Minneapolis farm club in the American Association. Branca is holding the offer under advisement with the hope that he can catch on with a big league club.

Branca currently is working out with the New York Yankees. Only 28, the native New Yorker hopes to convince either the Yankees or the Giants' brass that he still can pitch winning baseball in the major leagues.

"The Giants were kind enough to offer me a spot with Minneapolis," the big righthander said, "and believe me, I appreciate their offer. But I hope to convince them that I can still pitch in the majors. I'd like an opportunity to pitch for one of the New York clubs."

"I'm still young and my arm is as strong as it ever was. All I lack right now is control. I'm sure I can correct that with enough work."

Carolina Dairies Win Over Southern Bread

RECREATION SOFTBALL

Standings	W	L	Pct.
Carolina Dairies	8	1	.889
Home Builders	7	2	.777
Southern Bread	5	3	.625
Harris Super Markets	4	4	.500
Graniteers	3	4	.429
Garner-Wynne-Mining	3	5	.375
Jolly Rogers	1	7	.125
National Guard	1	7	.125

Last night's results—Jolly Rogers 10, National Guard 1; Carolina Dairies 9, Southern Bread 3. Tonight's games—Southern Bread vs. Graniteers, and Harris Super Markets vs. National Guard.

Sore-ankled L. E. Johnson came out last night to probably pitch the Carolina Dairies softball team into the championship of the softball league when the Dairies team backed him with nine runs in a 9-3 victory.

In other action last night the Jolly Rogers won their first game of the second half and gained a tie for seventh place with the National Guard by beating them 10-1 behind Don Carson's four-hit pitching.

In the second game of the night and the most important one, Johnson was definitely thrown off his top form by the ankle he injured in an all-star game in Rocky Mount Saturday, but he still had enough stuff in the pinches to win easily.

Dressen-Dodger Issue Re-Raised

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It was inevitable that the time would come when the owners of the Brooklyn Dodgers would be reminded that they had fired a pennant winning manager, Charlie Dressen and installed in his place a big, quiet fellow named Walter Alston who never had before directed a big league club.

The time is now. As the once proud leaders suffer through an extended slump and fall further behind the flying Giants in a National League race that threatens to develop into a runaway, the abrupt change of pilots that shocked the baseball world last fall again has become a burning topic of conversation and conjecture.

Would the Dodgers still be on top if the scrappy alert Dressen were at the helm? Or was the likeable Alston presented with a ball club that, because of age and recurring injuries to key men, was ready to fade before the onslaught of the first determined rival? Did Dressen foresee what was coming and demand a two-year contract for his own protection?

If you think you know any of the answers, consider yourself a member of the debating club. The only clue we have to offer comes from a former big league star, later a manager, who has had an opportunity to study the methods of both Dressen and Alston.

"They're both good managers," he said, "but of an entirely different type. Alston still looks a little bewildered to me though, maybe a bit overwhelmed by what's happened to him. I don't doubt that he's a sound baseball man, but I've seen him make some mistakes that Charlie never would have made."

"I don't believe he thinks quite as fast as the little guy did. It wasn't the bunk about Charlie stealing your signals. He could hurt you, and I'm convinced he helped some of his batters by calling pitches for them. He had the horses, sure but he helped them win a lot of close games."

Whether Dressen suspected that worse times were coming, and so precipitated the row that wound up with him managing Oakland instead of sounding his shrill whistle in the big show, one can only guess.

As for Alston, he isn't saying much of anything. No particular inference is to be drawn from this, though, as he had very little to say before the roof began caving in upon him. They say that he, like his players, only looks a little more stunned day by day as misfortune dogged his team.

Only once, apparently, has the rookie pilot permitted his temper to show through. That was when, after a recent loss to the Giants, he ordered the entire club, pitchers and all, to engage in special batting practice until dark. No member of the team could recall this having happened before.

Stiff-Necked Snead Had To Climb Tree

ST. PAUL (AP)—Sam Snead, maneuvering with a sharp list to starboard and a grouchy look that was the natural result of a stiff neck had to climb a tree on the 15th hole to make a reasonably good score in the first qualifying round of the 36th PGA championship.

Ed "Porky" Oliver, suffering from a painful kidney ailment that has forced him to drop out of several recent tournaments, holed putts from all over the course for a five-under-par 66.

And 28-year shot 71 or better over the barren, un-hardened Keller course to turn the opening round of the nation's toughest test of professional golf into a race against par for the 64 available places in the match play bracket.

That was the story as 135 of America's leading pro golfers second round of the PGA tournament with the prospect that a 36-hole total of 146 or better would be needed to get into the showdown stage of match play, starting tomorrow.

Snead's "shot" from a post oak tree was the high spot of the opening round in which the pros took Keller's par of 36-35-71 to pieces, just as had been predicted.

The West Virginia wallpaper, suffering from a recurrence of the stiffness in his neck that plagued him all through the Open championship, almost pulled out of the tournament. But he decided to give it a try and until he hit the 225-yard 15th, Snead was doing very well.

There his tee shot drifted and the ball lodged in the fork of a tree, some 15 feet above the ground. Sammy, stiff neck and all, had to go up there after it. He knocked it out and got a five on the par three hole for a creditable score of 35-38-72.

Cox Pitches 20-0 Win Giving Two Hits To Aberdeen

By WAYNE BISHOP

Big Billy Boyd Cox fired a brilliant two-hit shutout past the Aberdeen Pony League team yesterday afternoon and watched his teammates pound out enough runs to keep four Aberdeen hurlers sweating. The final total of 20 runs came on 15 hits for the Greenville team.

The win keeps Greenville in the Eastern Pony League playoffs. Raleigh, last year's state champs, bumped off Tarboro 8-0 yesterday to remain in the tourney also. Raleigh and Greenville meet today at 5:30 for the right to go against Rocky Mount in the finals Friday.

Richard Earl Nobles was the chief cause of concern to the Aberdeen hurlers with three hits and four runs batted in. Nobles also scored four runs to personally account for eight of the runs.

Hendley held the powerful poles of Greenville scoreless for the first inning; then the roofs fell in. Greenville mauled the Aberdeen chunkers Hendley, Boyette, and Farmer for ten runs in that second frame and the game was all but in the bag. The only issue in doubt was how many runs would the slugging sluggers score.

Two runs in the fourth, a single in the fifth, and seven more in the sixth put the game in a deep freeze.

While the fans were witnessing such sluggers coming from one dugout the tables were switched when the other team came to bat. Whereas the powerful mad maulers from the Green city stamped up to take their cuts, the Aberdeen squad went out dragging their bats behind them. Only two Aberdeen players got to first on safe hits. Wilson Teal and Terry Farmer both got singles off Cox.

The Greenville-Raleigh match starts this afternoon at 5:30. The winner goes against undefeated Rocky Mount Friday night. If the winner of the Greenville-Raleigh match defeats Rocky Mount in the first game Friday, a second game will follow. Since it is a double elimination tourney the Rocky Mount team would have to play again.

The score by innings:
Aberdeen 000 000 0-2 4
Greenville 0(10)0 217 x-20 2

Seems To Be Some Doubt About...

Stanky's Apology, In Eyes Of Terry Moore

MILWAUKEE (AP)—There seemed to be some doubt in the mind of Philadelphia Phillies' manager Terry Moore last night about the sincerity of the sugar-and-cream apology made the other day by manager Eddie Stanky of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"He said the same thing in 1952, right after he got the job, but the reform didn't last long," said Moore, who was involved in the fracas last Sunday at Busch Stadium in St. Louis. Moore, a Cardinal coach in '52, was released a short time later by Stanky and the two haven't been exactly friendly since then.

Moore chuckled when someone mentioned that the Cardinals had beaten the Phillies, 5-1, Monday night under the direction of coach Johnny Riddle while Stanky was under suspension.

"Yeah," said Moore, "and things were a lot different in the dugout."

Newton Reports To N.Y. Giants

SALEM, Ore. (AP)—The New York Giants professional football team today announced the arrival of Jeff Newton, rookie end from the University of North Carolina, to join the training camp squad.

Newton, 21, is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 192 pounds. He scored two touchdowns against Notre Dame last year.

Trinidad Boxer Upset; Claims He Can Do Better

By CARL BELL

CHICAGO (AP)—Upset by tank like Moses Ward of Detroit in his American debut, British middleweight and light heavyweight champion Yolande Pompey still feels he's the new blood this country's televised boxing is seeking.

"I just couldn't get started," said the powerful but somewhat slow puncher from Trinidad after dropping the 10-round decision before national TV cameras in Chicago Stadium last night.

"I've fought better fighters and I can do better."

It was only the second defeat in 31 pro starts for Pompey who went into this one a heavy favorite.

Ward, who posted his 19th victory in 26 fights, came out of the free-swinging scrap with ample respect for the West Indian.

"He's a very good puncher," Ward declared. "His left jab is as hard as the rights of a lot of fighters. It hurt me in the seventh round when he drove me to the ropes in the corner."

The low-slung Detrotter piled up his winning margin early and without Pompey's determined bid in the last three rounds.

Ward made Yolande wince with a right to the head in the second, and brought blood to the British champion's nose with a flurry of left and right hooks in the third.

In the sixth Ward worked Pompey into a corner and let fly with a punishing series of blows to the head.

"I thought I had him then," the Detroit slugger said later. "But he rolled out of there. He's plenty clever."

Pompey came to life in the seventh, his best round, forcing Ward to the ropes with his strong, straight lefts. But by then the invader needed a knockout, and he couldn't deliver.

The British champ continued to bore in the rest of the way. However, neither could cause further damage with their weary punching.

Judge Edward Hintz and Referee Gilmer scored it 94 points to 92 in favor of Ward. Judge Frank McAdams called it a 92-92 draw.

Correction

The Daily Reflector erroneously reported yesterday that the Little League city championships would be played Monday, July 26. The game between the two leagues, however, is not to be classified as a city championship. It is one of the earlier games of the tournament play. The game between the two Greenville leagues will be played August 2. The winner of that game plays Williamson for the right to advance in the tourney.

Before a team wins the State championship it must play in district, area, and the state playoffs. Then comes the regional playoffs in Greenville on August 16-18.

You get Tomorrow's Style in Today's Buick

It's a Million Dollar Ride—and no foolin'!

YOU can see for yourself the gay and gorgeous styling that's sure to be the fresh note next year, too.

And you can easily learn that here is power a-plenty—the highest V8 power, Series for Series, in the annals of Buick history.

But what you can never know, till you try it yourself, is the feel of a Buick in motion.

It's a ride as precision-soft and firm as only coiled steel can make it.

Yes, coil springs on all four wheels. And a full-length torque-tube drive for true tracking. And a massive X-braced frame for solid steadiness. And specially calibrated shock absorbers, V-braced struts, wide-rim wheels, a unique front-end geometry—plus a host of other betterments too numerous to mention.

You feel the result of this advanced engineering every mile you drive—in what is literally and figuratively a Million Dollar Ride.

You feel it in the superb and buoyant cradling. You feel it in the serene levelness of your going over ruts and ridges. You feel it in the precise snubbing of jars and jounces. You feel it in a new kind of steadiness, handling ease, curve control.

Only thing for you to do, we believe, is to come try this miracle of motion—and we'll be glad to oblige.

That way you'll also learn firsthand about the style, the power, and the value that have made Buick such a best-selling success this year. For Buick today is out-selling all other cars in America except two of the so-called "low-price three."

(Smart tip: With Buick such a beautiful buy this year, think what a winner it's bound to be at trade-in time! Come see us this week!)

Pet Raccoon Ate 71 Young Chicks

WATERVLIET, Mich. (AP)—Nancy a pet raccoon really hated to eat and run — but that's the way it had to be.

Clarence Cowgill told sheriff's deputies he spotted Nancy making a bee-line from his chicken coop without stopping to apologize for breakfasting on 71 of his 2-month-old chicks.

Nancy rushed down the road to her home with the Earle Blanchans. But instead of going to her pen, she apparently thought the attic would be a safer place for a chicken-stuffed raccoon.

In trying to get her down deputies awoke 13-year-old Alice Brock who said: "I could have gotten Nancy down if you hadn't scared her. She's afraid of strangers."

Nancy was put back in her pen. The volume of traffic in Connecticut was 2.4 per cent higher in February 1954 than in the same month of 1953.

Herds Of Deer Worrying Army
FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (AP)—Invaders are causing consternation at this Army electronics proving ground. Brig. Gen. Emil Lenzer commanding officer, called in experts from the State Game and Fish Commission for help.

He told them herds of deer are coming down from the mountains each night to eat the newly planted shrubbery and lawns at the post.

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

When Charles Alexander Stewart absconded with funds from a bank in Philadelphia, he placed Carney Wilde's sleuthing career in jeopardy. Wilde was responsible for the security policing of the bank. It was up to him now, to find the thief who had disappeared after killing a policeman in the course of his flight. Wilde's troubles mount, when his girl, Jane Grodnik, elopes with his friend, Penn Maxwell. Jane's father, Captain Grodnik of the local police, is as displeased with the match as is Carney, but they good-humoredly bow to the girl's choice.

CHAPTER FOUR
LIFE in Philadelphia was going to be difficult for me when I got out of the hospital—and it would be very unprofitable, too. I knew I didn't really care much whether the boat trip was a useful idea or not. Just having a legitimate excuse to get away from Philadelphia for a while was good enough for me.

"Can you give me a letter or something?" I asked. "In case I run into..."

Grodnik's grim face cracked into a wide grin. He pulled out a long official envelope and gave it to me. "Got the superintendent to write it for you," he said. "Show it to any cop and you'll get the best cell in the house."

"Captain," I muttered, "I'm beginning to think you know too much about handling me."

"I'm an expert in dangling carrots," Grodnik laughed. "And no jacks can resist them."

I sat back and stretched my good arm. "We're going to look a little foolish if Stewart got to South America or wherever before we even started."

"We look sort of foolish anyway," Grodnik said sourly. "Okay, captain. When does the boat leave?"

"Tomorrow night."

"I sat up quickly. "Can I make it?"

"Easy," Grodnik said. "A train tonight or a plane tomorrow. I reserved a de luxe bedroom on the boat just in case. It's waiting for you."

"Fine," I said. "I'll catch a train tonight. I don't care much for flying over the mountains during the winter. You'll have to help me pack. And we've got a date at the Bellevue this evening, too. Remember?"

Slowly the laughter died from Grodnik's face. But he nodded agreeably.

As the train came into Cincinnati, the porter tapped at my door, pushed it open. "Take the bag, sir?"

"Let's wait till the car is clear," I said. "See if you can get one of the redcaps to come for me, will you?"

Last night we had come to a working agreement; the porter to contribute extra service, such as breakfast in my compartment; me to contribute 10 bucks and gratitude. The deal was still working.

I lit my last cigarette, crumpled the pack and bounced the wadded paper idly in my palm. I had slept well on the train; I'd managed a fairly smooth shave with only one hand to use and my breakfast had been sizeable and very good. A sensible man would have counted his blessings and smoked his cigarette with considerable pleasure. I stubbed mine out in the ashtray and glowered at the window.

Last night had been a busy time and I was ready for sleep before I got on the train. Just 12 hours out of the hospital had worn me to a nub. They'd been active hours. Maxwell's wedding reception was something of a trial, with Capt. Grodnik frowning and snarling at everyone, his wife crying softly whenever she tried to speak, and Jane and Maxwell smirking at each other. The captain and his lady came to dinner with me afterwards and then I had to pack a bag and get to the station in time to catch my train. Grodnik came along to help, and he became progressively more annoying as the evening progressed. His daughter had deserted him, he insisted, and that's all he needed to develop a fine load of piteous intensity. It was a sincere grief; he actually was deeply hurt, but sincere or not, I was ready to clout him long before I reached my train.

Grodnik had reason to lament, a meager reason, but justifiable in a fashion. I had my reasons too. Less justifiable and all the more painful because of that. Jane Grodnik's obvious happiness with her marriage made me remember the past year and remember things no man can recall pleasantly. With Jane I'd been close to something I wanted. Where and how it had slipped away from me—from us—I couldn't remember. There wasn't anything worth remembering, not any one act or omission that gave the clue.

And that was the worst part of all. Once I had had a girl and a business. Now I had a business, at least for a while longer I had a business. And if I lost that, too, it would be my own foolish fault, just as the loss of Jane was my fault. None of that made for pleasant thinking.

"Ready now, sir, if you are," the porter said. He slid my bag from the rack, put it in the aisle outside and lifted my heavy coat, holding it ready for me to pull on.

I buttoned my jacket and got up, holding my right arm out for the coat sleeves. I had brought my double-breasted blue coat because it could be draped across my padded left shoulder loosely and would still cover me in front with the overlap. The porter adjusted it carefully and fumbled in the pocket for the two buttons he had sewn together last night. He fitted them into the buttonholes and tugged at the coat to make it hang straight.

By that time I had my wallet out. I held it up and the porter rifled the bills thoughtfully, selected a 10. He nodded and tucked it inside the sweatband of his hard cap.

Have You Seen The 6 In 1 Jet Sprayer?

One nozzle that sprays a swath width of 50 feet (14 rows of tobacco or cotton) evenly—a nozzle that just doesn't stop-up. Will spray an acre in 5 minutes. Tobacco does not get too high or too large for good coverage with the 6 in 1 sprayer.

6 in 1 has more power—2.5 h.p. gasoline motor, hypo pump, Neoprene hoses, quick cut-off valve, drum and rack and all other necessary fittings.

6 in 1 has no belts or pulleys to break or get out of line—no adjustment to make when your crops need spraying. Mounts on regular tobacco truck.

6 in 1 Jet Sprayer lists for only $174.50.

Shattered Town Loses Industry

CHESTERTOWN, Md. (AP)—The main industry of this town of 2,000, shattered by a series of powder blasts last Friday, is dead. Eleven were killed and more than 40 injured. Now survivors among the Kent Manufacturing Co.'s 300 employes face unemployment.

Philip G. Wilmer, company president said yesterday: "There will be no operations in Kent County."

Lights Went Out As Baby Arrived

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—A baby was born last night in the Middletown Hospital just as the lights went out in the operating room.

A storm had cut a power line. Emergency lights were switched on soon after the boy, son of Chardele and William Smith of Middletown entered the world. The hospital reported mother and child were doing fine.

Only One-Fifth Of North Carolina's Elderly Folk Get Old Age Assistance

Only one-fifth of the elderly persons in North Carolina were found to be receiving old age assistance on the basis of a strictly budgetary determination of need in a study recently conducted by the State Board of Public Welfare.

Findings of the Board concerning the characteristics of persons receiving old age assistance have just been released.

Plan of Old Age Assistance

Old age assistance is one of the plans administered through the State Board of Public Welfare whereby persons 65 years of age and older who are in need may receive cash aid in the form of a monthly grant.

Federal, state and county funds make up the grants, with the county paying in about one-ninth of the amount.

In Pitt County approximately $275,000 is paid out annually to aged persons. The county itself bears about 9.5 per cent of this cost.

Eligibility For Aid

To be eligible for assistance, a recipient must have lived in North Carolina at least one year, and must have minimum needs for food, clothing and shelter which are greater than the resources available to him.

In addition, he must be willing to give the county a lien on any property he may own.

Findings Of Study

Among the more important findings of this current study made under the direction of Robert Mugge, director of the State

Board's research and statistical service, are the following:

1. While 65 years is the minimum age for receiving assistance, most recipients tend to be much older, and dependency on public assistance increases with age. The average age of applicants for this type of aid is 69 years, while the average age of all recipients is 74.3 years.

2. Over three-fifths of all recipients are women, and the recipient rate for women is more than 40 per cent higher than the recipient rate for men.

3. Most Care For Selves
Eighty per cent of the recipients are able to take care of themselves in the home, while the other 20 per cent require considerable care from others because they are bedridden or have physical or mental handicaps.

4. A great majority of the recipients (80 per cent) live with their husbands or wives or other relatives. Over half of the recipients or their spouses have responsibility for their homes, but only about 14 per cent own the homes in which they live.

5. Nearly half of the recipients are living with one or more children. While 47 per cent of the elderly men are living with their wives, only 18 per cent of the aged women have husbands with whom they are living.

6. Homes Not Crowded
The homes of recipients of old age assistance appear to be no more crowded than homes in the state are generally found to be. While, according to the latest census report, 11 per cent of all dwelling units in the state have an average of one and a half persons per room, only 9.7 of the recipients live in homes as crowded.

7. Modern living conveniences are found much less frequently in the homes of recipients of old age assistance than in other homes. This is especially true of plumbing facilities. Only 16 per cent of the recipients have telephone service in the homes in which they live, the report indicated.

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

When Charles Alexander Stewart absconded with funds from a bank in Philadelphia, he placed Carney Wilde's sleuthing career in jeopardy. Wilde was responsible for the security of the bank. It was up to him now, to find the thief who had disappeared after killing a policeman in the course of his flight. Wilde's troubles mount, when his girl, Jane Grodnik, elopes with his friend, Penn Maxwell. Jane's father, Captain Grodnik of the local police, is as displeased with the match as is Carney, but they good-humoredly bow to the girl's choice.

CHAPTER FOUR

LIFE in Philadelphia was going to be difficult for me when I got out of the hospital—and it would be very unprofitable, too. I knew I didn't really care much whether the boat trip was a useful idea or not. Just having a legitimate excuse to get away from Philadelphia for a while was good enough for me.

"Can you give me a letter or something?" I asked. "In case I run into..."

Grodnik's grim face cracked into a wide grin. He pulled out a long official envelope and gave it to me. "Got the superintendent to write it for you," he said. "Show it to any cop and you'll get the best cell in the house."

"Captain," I muttered, "I'm beginning to think you know too much about handling me."

"I'm an expert in dangling carrots," Grodnik laughed. "And no jackass can resist them."

"I sat back and stretched my good arm. 'We're going to look a little foolish if Stewart got to South America or wherever before we even started.'

"We look sort of foolish anyway," Grodnik said sourly.

"Okay, captain. When does the boat leave?"

"Tomorrow night."

"I sat up quickly. 'Can I make it?'"

"Easy," Grodnik said. "A train tonight or a plane tomorrow. I reserved a deluxe bedroom on the boat just in case. It's waiting for you."

"Fine," I said. "I'll catch a train tonight. I don't care much for flying over the mountains during the winter. You'll have to help me pack. And we've got a date at the Bellevue this evening, too. Remember?"

Slowly the laughter died from Grodnik's face. But he nodded agreeably.

As the train came into Cincinnati, the porter tapped at my door, pushed it open. "Take the bag, sir?"

"Let's wait till the car is clear," I said. "See if you can get one of the redcaps to come for me, will you?"

Last night we had come to a working agreement; the porter to contribute extra service, such as breakfast in my compartment; me to contribute 10 bucks and gratitude. The deal was still working.

I lit my last cigaret, crumpled the pack and bounced the wadded paper idly in my palm. I had slept well on the train; I'd managed a fairly smooth shave with only one hand to use, and my breakfast had been sizeable and very good. A sensible man would have counted his blessings and smoked his cigaret with considerable pleasure. I stubbed mine out in the ashtray and glowered at the window.

Last night had been a busy time and I was ready for sleep before I got on the train. Just 12 hours out of the hospital had worn me to a nub. They'd been active hours. Maxwell's wedding reception was something of a trial, with Capt. Grodnik frowning and snarling at everyone, his wife crying softly whenever she tried to speak, and Jane and Maxwell smirking at each other. The captain and his lady came to dinner with me afterwards and then I had to pack a bag and get to the station in time to catch my train. Grodnik came along to help, and he became progressively more annoying as the evening progressed. His daughter had deserted him, he insisted, and that's all he needed to develop a fine load of piteous irascibility. It was a sincere grief; he actually was deeply hurt, but sincere or not, I was ready to clout him long before I reached my train.

Grodnik had reason to lament, a meager reason, but justifiable in a fashion. I had my reasons too. Less justifiable and all the more painful because of that. Jane Grodnik's obvious happiness with her marriage made me remember the past year and remember things no man can recall pleasantly. With Jane I'd been close to something I wanted. Where and how it had slipped away from me—from us—I couldn't remember. There wasn't anything worth remembering, not any one act or omission that gave the clue.

And that was the worst part of all. Once I had had a girl and a business. Now I had a business, at least for a while longer I had a business. And if I lost that, too, it would be my own foolish fault, just as the loss of Jane was my fault. None of that made for pleasant thinking.

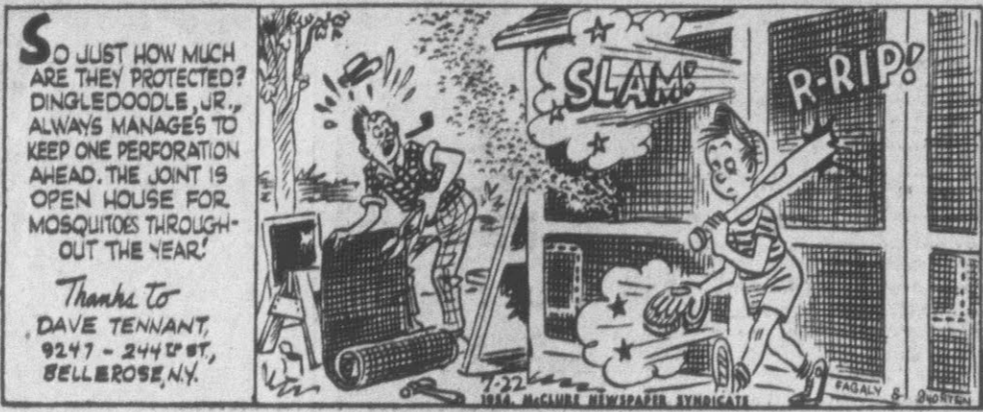

"Ready now, sir, if you are," the porter said. He slid my bag from the rack, put it in the aisle outside and lifted my heavy coat, holding it ready for me to pull on.

I buttoned my jacket and got up, holding my right arm out for the coat sleeves. I had brought my double-breasted blue coat because it could be draped across my padded left shoulder loosely and would still cover me in front with the overlap. The porter adjusted it carefully and fumbled in the pocket for the two buttons he had sewn together last night. He fitted them into the buttonholes, and tugged at the coat to make it hang straight.

By that time I had my wallet out. I held it up and the porter raked the bills thoughtfully, selected a 10. He nodded and tucked it inside the sweatband of his hard cap.

"I thank you, sir," he said. "I said, sitting up on the edge of the bed. 'There are three suits in that bag. Take the jackets and also the one I've been wearing. And the overcoat. You'll have to widen the sleeves for me.'"

"Widen them?"

"Just the left sleeves," I said. "They won't slide on over my cast." I turned to let him see my left arm and shoulder and waited for him to figure it out.

He fiddled around my shoulder, measuring with a short length of knotted twine. He took the jackets from my bag slit one seam to see how much material was inside and then we agreed he should stitch in an additional strip in all the sleeves.

When I was alone, I went to the window and looked out at the rooftops, trying not to think about anything. The boat left at 3 that afternoon. It was barely 10 o'clock now.

Have You Seen The 6 In 1 Jet Sprayer?

One nozzle that sprays a swath width of 50 feet (14 rows of tobacco or cotton) evenly—a nozzle that just doesn't stop-up. Will spray an acre in 5 minutes. Tobacco does not get too high or too large for good coverage with the 6 in 1 sprayer.

6 in 1 has more power—2.5 h.p. gasoline motor, hypo pump, Neoprene hoses, quick cut-off valve, drum and rack and all other necessary fittings.

6 in 1 has no belts or pulleys to break or get out of line—no adjustment to make when your crops need spraying. Mounts on regular tobacco truck.

6 in 1 Jet Sprayer lists for only $174.50.

Lights Went Out As Baby Arrived

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — A baby was born last night in the Middletown Hospital just as the lights went out in the operating room. A storm had cut a power line. Emergency lights were switched on soon after the boy, son of Chardele and William Smith of Middletown entered the world. The hospital reported mother and child were doing fine.

Only One-Fifth Of North Carolina's Elderly Folk Get Old Age Assistance

Only one-fifth of the elderly persons in North Carolina were found to be receiving old age assistance on the basis of a strictly budgetary determination of need in a study recently conducted by the State Board of Public Welfare.

Findings of the Board concerning the characteristics of persons receiving old age assistance have just been released.

Plan of Old Age Assistance
Old age assistance is one of the plans administered through the State Board of Public Welfare whereby persons 65 years of age and older who are in need may receive cash aid in the form of a monthly grant.

Federal, state and county funds make up the grants, with the county putting in about one-ninth of the payment.

In Pitt County approximately $75,000 is paid out annually to aged persons. The county itself bears about 9.5 per cent of this cost.

Eligibility For Aid
To be eligible for assistance, a recipient must have lived in North Carolina at least one year, and must have minimum needs for food, clothing and shelter which are greater than the resources available to him.

In addition, he must be willing to give the county a lien on any property he may own.

Findings Of Study
Among the more important findings of this current study made under the direction of Robert Mudge, director of the State

Board's research and statistical service, are the following:

1. While 65 years is the minimum age for receiving assistance, most recipients tend to be much older, and dependency on public assistance increases with age. The average age of applicants for this type of aid is 69 years, while the average age of all recipients is 74.3 years.

2. Over three-fifths of all recipients are women, and the recipient rate for women is more than 40 per cent higher than the recipient rate for men.

Most Care For Selves
3. Eighty per cent of the recipients are able to take care of themselves in the home, while the other 20 per cent require considerable care from others because they are bedridden or have physical or mental handicaps.

4. A great majority of the recipients (80 per cent) live with their husbands or wives or other relatives. Over half of the recipients or their spouses have responsibility for their homes, but only about 14 per cent own the homes in which they live.

5. Nearly half of the recipients are living with one or more children. While 47 per cent of the elderly men are living with their wives, only 18 per cent of the aged women have husbands with whom they are living.

Homes Not Crowded
6. The homes of recipients of old age assistance appear to be no more crowded than homes in the state are generally found to be. While, according to the latest census report, 11 per cent of all dwelling units in the state have an average of one and a half persons per room, only 9.7 of the recipients live in homes as crowded.

7. Modern living conveniences

are found much less frequently in the homes of recipients of old age assistance than in other homes. This is especially true of plumbing facilities. Only 16 per cent of the recipients have telephone service in the homes in which they live, the report indicated.

Work, Sleep, Play In Comfort

Without Naggng Backache
Naggng backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used occasionally by millions for over 60 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Death Has Taken Away Husband And Three Sons

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Once there were five in the fishing Smith family.

Then in the early 1930s Mrs. Mary Smith's husband drowned at the family fishing site near Tyonek, 60 miles west of Anchorage. His body never was recovered.

The widow, with three sons to rear, continued to go annually to the fishing grounds, superintending operations during the season until the boys were able to take over.

Three years ago one of the sons, Roland, drowned at the same spot his father had perished.

Last year, another son, Byrne, drowned on a hunting trip on the Olympic Peninsula in the state of Washington.

Gerard, 36, the last of the sons, carried on. Monday, his dory, its bow stove in like it had struck a barge or scow, was found at the spot where father and brother had died. His body has not been recovered.

Now Mrs. Smith, almost totally blind, alone remains.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market headed higher with a big rush today but lost a great part of its forward momentum by early afternoon.

The steels and oils were in heavy demand with gains going to between 1 and 2 points while the straits were under pressure with losses of that amount.

Trading in the first hour was unusually large at 630,000 shares, and the pace of the entire day was better than 2 1/2 million shares. That compared with 2,510,000 shares traded yesterday in a higher market.

Higher stocks included U.S. Steel Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Follansbee Steel, Chrysler, Goodrich, American Telephone, American Tobacco, Vanadium General Foods, Great Northern Railway, Royal Dutch Petroleum, Texas Co., and U.S. Gypsum.

Lower were Goodall-Sanford, Union Carbide, Boeing Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Mack Truck, and Northeast Capital.

High Winds Hit Coastal Town

NEW TOPSAIL BEACH, N.C. (AP)—Severe winds lashed this small coastal community last night. Five persons were reported injured, none believed seriously.

Roofs were torn off 19 houses. Nearly 20 other dwellings also were damaged as well as a number of boats and automobiles.

Highway Patrolman E. P. Simmons said damage probably would run into thousands of dollars.

Oil Tanker Hits Train; One Killed In Blast, Blaze

UNION MILLS, N.C. (AP)—A highway oil tanker struck a train here today and the resulting explosion and fire killed one man, seriously injured two burned down the railroad station and destroyed half a dozen freight and passenger cars.

The truck driver burned to death in the cab of his tanker as horrified spectators looked on. Intense heat prevented their reaching him. The explosion set afire the Southern Railway station in this Rutherford County town and spread flames along the rear cars of a 15-car southbound combination passenger and freight train.

Two rural mail carriers, Hugh Simpson and Don Hemphill, who dashed in an attempt to save the truck driver were burned when an explosion tossed oil in every direction. They were rushed to Rutherford County Hospital at Rutherford.

The lone passenger car was next to the end of the train, en route from Marion to Rock Hill, S.C. It and the caboose, two box cars and two coal cars burned fiercely.

Fire fighting equipment rushed in from Rutherford County Spindale and Forest City and helped Union Mills firemen prevent the flames from spreading from the depot to the postoffice and four other adjacent business structures.

The truck, enroute to Spruce Pine, carried fuel oil.

A member of the train crew said that there were no passengers aboard the coach. He added that all members of the train crew escaped.

The sound of the explosion, the rise of heavy smoke and the sirens of incoming fire trucks attracted hundreds of spectators who blocked traffic for miles around this town of about 900 population.

Lost Last Fight To Save Partner

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Death, high on a utility pole on a storm-swept country road, has ended the 30-year partnership of two veteran electric linemen.

Sixty-eight-year-old Reber Brown lost his last fight to save his buddy, Harry Finks, 69.

Finks was on a pole near Reese Station early yesterday, repairing broken lines during a thunderstorm, when a swinging wire sent 6,900 volts of electricity through his body.

Brown called for help on the slippery, wind-tossed pole to his partner's dangling body and tried to give him artificial respiration. When help arrived Finks was taken to a hospital. He was dead when he got there.

Finks and Brown were well known as team of linemen in Central Ohio where they worked for the Ohio Midland Light and Power Co.—Finks for nearly half a century, Brown for 30 years.

They both were eligible for retirement and had "planned to quit but somehow never quite got around to it."

They had had their brushes with death before. About a year ago, Finks got some "pretty bad burns." Brown was hurt last month when his spurs slipped and drove his shoulder against a pole.

Both times, one helped the other to safety.

But now that Finks is gone, Brown says he is retiring.

"That was my last day," he says. "I'm not going back any more."

PARKING METER VOTE NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Cards of political candidates have been causing traffic trouble. Norman has been collecting its parking meter fines in little boxes put on meter posts. The cards fit neatly into the boxes. Police are finding them stuffed full of "vote for me" pleas.

Agree To Call Meeting On Southeast Asia Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and other friendly nations have agreed to call an international conference late next month to write a defensive alliance designed to protect the non-Communist lands of Southeast Asia against Communist conquest.

Highly placed diplomatic authorities said an announcement of the meeting is expected shortly.

The agreement was reached, these officials said, among Secretary of State Dulles, Under Secretary Walter Bedell Smith, British Foreign Secretary Eden and others at Geneva after it became certain that the fighting in Indochina would be ended by negotiated peace with the Communists.

Some officials told a reporter the meeting probably will be held some place in the Asian area and that the level of representation—foreign ministers or persons of lesser rank—is yet to be determined.

The United States originally proposed that 10 nations make up the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. They were the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, the Philippines and the Indochinese states of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

The British wanted to bring in as many additional Asian nations as possible, including India Burma and Pakistan.

The makeup of the projected meeting remains to be worked out. If Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam are permitted by the Indochina peace terms to agree to attend they will undoubtedly be included. But even if it is finally decided they cannot attend, American officials said privately that the defensive alliance can be written to protect them as well as countries like Thailand which would be members.

Britain has been deeply concerned to obtain India's cooperation so far as possible and it is understood that the London government is planning to consult with Indian Prime Minister Nehru as well as friendly governments of other Asian nations, in the hope of obtaining their sympathetic understanding and moral support if not their outright participation.

In fact, the participation of Pakistan has been considered probable.

Because of the British government's "go slow" attitude arising out of Britain's solicitude for India it had been generally expected in diplomatic quarters here until this morning that no conference could be held for several months at least.

To fill in the gap, the Western governments and Far Eastern co-operating countries had agreed to issue a few days a declaration stating their intention to negotiate a pact.

Informants said that the declaration plan has now been replaced by the plan to call the conference much earlier than had previously been considered possible.

Municipal Building Weather Different

City employees, police officials and employees of the Greenville Utilities Commission are enjoying a new type of weather in the City Municipal Building today.

Air conditioning, which has been in the process of being installed in the building, was turned on yesterday at noon. According to Hayward Willis, superintendent of buildings and grounds, the new system had lowered the temperature in the building from in the eighties to 72 degrees in about 45 minutes yesterday.

Most people seem to be quite content and happy with the new system; however, the city manager's office seems extra cool. Efforts are being made to get it regulated. Workmen installing the system still have to paint some and install vents so it is still a few days from completion, but the employees at least are enjoying working in cooler atmosphere.

Funeral Friday For Mrs. Warren Cobb

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Marinda Nichols Cobb, 81, of Farmville, died Wednesday night at 9:10 in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville following declining health for six months.

Funeral services will be held from the Farmville Funeral Home Friday afternoon at 4 p.m.

Interment will follow in the Nichols family cemetery near Bell Arthur. Mrs. Cobb was a member of the Farmville Methodist Church.

She was the widow of the late Warren Cobb. She is survived by two half-sisters, Mrs. Bryant Sorrey, Great Bridge, Va., and Mrs. Eugenia Nash, Pentress, Va.; one brother, H. L. Nichols, Farmville; one nephew, Major William Nichols, Washington, D. C. completion, but the employees at least are enjoying working in cooler atmosphere.

About the oddest thing about the condition in the building is the weather forecaster in Utilities' Superintendent Leonard Bloxam's office. The forecaster shows a change in the weather to "fair" but it is the belief at City Hall that the air conditioning system may be making the forecaster a little untrue as weather outside this morning is definitely not fair.

The new air conditioning system was installed by General Heating and Air Conditioning of Greenville. This company held the low bid recently when contracts were let on the joint project financed by the City of Greenville and Greenville Utilities Commission.

One Injured As Autos Collide In Pitt Wednesday

One person was injured when two cars collided on the White Road at 5:15 p.m. yesterday.

Injured was James Ray Jackson of Winterville Route 2. He received lacerations of the chin and a possible rib fracture in the accident. Jackson was operating a vehicle which was involved in a collision with a second car driven by John Edward Relyea of Bell Fork.

Investigating Patrolman Bill Whitehurst said the two cars were meeting on a curve on the dirt road when the collision occurred.

Damage to Jackson's car amounted to $500 and to Relyea's auto, $200. Investigation of the accident is incomplete.
