Senate Balks At Imposing Debate Limit

Cloture Motion Defeated

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Senate balked today at an attempt by the Senate GOP leadership to put a blanket limit on debate on the atomic energy bill but showed a willingness to limit talk on individual amendments.

A motion to impose cloture and thereby limit all future debate to one hour for each senator was whipped by a 44 to 42 roll call vote. Adoption would have required 64 affirmative votes.

Then on the first amendment to come up, the Senate agreed unanimously to halt debate after two hours discussion—an hour for each side.

The amendment by Sen. Lehman (D-Lib-NY) related to the international cooperation provisions of the bill. Lehman proposed to delete a provision he says ties President Eisenhower's hands.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif), the GOP leader, tried at first to get a debate limit of 30 minutes, but finally proposed the two hour limit.

That was after Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) agreed to go along, Morse said, though, with reference to an announcement by Knowland on the Senate floor that U. S. planes had shot down two Communist aircraft in the Pacific, that:

"I am not greatly motivated to enter into any blanket agreement by any argument that we ought to proceed with great haste to consider this bill because the international situation has worsened."

Rather, he said, the subject matter of the bill, which contemplates some sharing of secrets of use of atomic weapons "should cause us to go slower than before."

"I think," the Oregon senator said, "we ought to take a long look at this bill before considering any let down of our security in the atomic energy field."

The cloture motion by Knowland appeared likely to be only the first of a series of moves to cut short the talk.

In advance of the vote, Knowland told the Senate he had "no illusions" about a chance to win, and warned of "even more drastic" steps possible if he doesn't.

"If there was ever a time when cloture was in order," he said, "in my judgment this is the time."

He gave no hint as to what these "drastic' steps might be.

Before the Senate met, Knowland had conferred at the White House with President Eisenhower and told reporters afterward that "there will be no surrender" in the efforts to pass the administration bill.

He said the President and Republican congressional leaders agreed also that the delays in the Senate should not be permitted to block the administration's legislative program "even if it requires that Congress continue in session several additional weeks."

There was a suggestion from Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, in the brief debate before the vote on cloture that something in the way of a shortening of the debate might be worked out.

Johnson announced that he would not vote for cloture but he asked that his Democratic colleagues confined themselves to "reasonable discussion" on four or five "basic issues" and let the matter come to a vote.

Johnson suggested working out a schedule for "reasonable discussion" of several key amendments, to be "followed by vote on the issues at stake."

Johnson asked Sen. Anderson (D-NM), one of the leaders of the group fighting the bill, whether he thought such an arrangement might be acceptable to a majority

Nurse Of Dien Bien Phu Is Welcomed

NEW YORK (AP)—Lt. Genevieve de Galard-Terraube, heroine of Dien Bien Phu, told a welcoming crowd at Idlewild Airport today that "I do not deserve this honor, for I have only done my duty."

The 29-year-old nurse, acclaimed for her work among the wounded of the ill-fated Indochinese fortress, arrived by plane from Paris at 8:52 a.m (EDT) as an official guest of the United States.

A reception committee and Jean Deladade French consul general in New York, greeted her at the airport, and the consul general presented her with a large bouquet of roses. A throng of spectators cheered as she emerged from the plane, dressed in a white uniform and blue beret.

She told the crowd that her thoughts still go to those who were killed at Dien Bien Phu. As she spoke in English she occasionally referred to notes.

"I am deeply moved to be here," she said, "and I feel very grateful for the honor which President Eisenhower and the Congress of the United States have shown me by inviting me to come to this country.

"I wish first of all, to express my thanks with all my heart. I do not deserve this honor, for I have only done my duty.

"This honor is intended, through me, for all those whose life I was proud to share in Dien Bien Phu, and for the nurses, for all the nurses, who devote themselves to the best of their ability to alleviating the sufferings of the wounded.

"You can understand that at this very moment my thoughts go to all those who were killed in that far distant land, to those who are still over there, all deserving much more than I the honor which you do me.

"My thoughts are with their families so close, under the present circumstances, to the American families who have gone through a similar ordeal as the result of the Korean War.

"A few days ago in Paris I was at the airport receiving the wounded men flown back from Indochina on U.S. planes. I bring you their thanks and the expression of their families' deepest gratitude."

Says West Suffered Disaster In Indochina Outcome

Stevenson Assails Failure

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, breaking a five-day silence on the Indochina peace settlement signed in Geneva last week, yesterday charged that right-wing Republicans have "successfully identified negotiation with appeasement."

In his first and only major speech on an Alaska vacation, the unsuccessful Democratic standard bearer in the 1952 presidential campaign said of the Indochina settlement:

"This is the sorry sequel of all the foolish, boastful Republican talk about liberation of the enslaved nations, about unleashing Chiang-Kai-shek, seizing the initiative, a new look on foreign policy, no more little wars as in Korea, and, finally, that threatening talk by the secretary of state and the vice president about massive atomic retaliation which scared our Allies half to death, if not our enemies.

"All these bold words and ringing slogans of the past two years sound a little hollow now. The 'new look' collapsed at the first test. The administration was not prepared to fight, nor could it negotiate, because the right-wing Republicans have successfully identified negotiation with appeasement.

"Unable to fight, unable to negotiate, unable even to speak with a coherent tongue, U.S. foreign policy defaulted and France salvaged what she could out of the endless, weary war in Indochina."

Not only did the Communists add valuable and strategic area to their domain, Stevenson said, but they threw the Western Allies "into confusion and dissension, Russia's greatest goal and dearest dream."

The former governor of Illinois said the Indochina settlement, which calls for the partition of Viet Nam into Communist and pro-Western halves, ended the shooting but Communist China "has staked out another menacing salient into free Asia and enveloped 13 million people."

"In Indochina," Stevenson said, "the West suffered its worst disaster since the loss of China."

The blame, "the original sin," for the "misfortune" in Indochina rests with France, Stevenson said.

Noting that England and Holland, at the conclusion of World War II, granted independence to many of their Asian possessions and by so doing prevented Nationalist uprising which the communists would exploit, Stevenson said:

"Had France done likewise and granted genuine independence in orderly, sincere stages to Viet Nam there very likely would have been no war in Indochina."

But he said the "blame for the collapse of our policy in Asia remains our responsibility."

"And, he warned, "we shall fail again and again unless we profit from this experience."

Clash Occured In Rescuing British Airliner Survivors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. carrier planes shot down two Red Chinese fighters which jumped them as they were searching over the weekend for survivors of the British airliner downed by the Communists Friday.

The State Department announced the incident today with a denunciation of "Chinese Communist brutality" in attempting to interfere with a humanitarian rescue.

In a quick follow-up, Adm. Felix Stump, commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet, told a news conference U.S. fliers are under instructions to be "quick on the trigger" if a hostile pass is made at them.

Stump said the policy is this: "If any U.S. plane is attacked or approached with obvious hostile intent, it will fire back. In other words, you don't have to wait and get your head blown off to shoot back."

In Congress, there were prompt expressions of support for the action of the U.S. airmen.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) said: "If the Chinese Reds attack rescue ships on the high seas, there was no other alternative for the U.S. planes but to shoot back. We must let them know that we are ready to protect all of our rights."

The incident was announced to the Senate by Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader, and Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ), a Foreign Relations Committee member.

It brought swift expressions of anger against the Reds and bipartisan appeals for unity.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, said: "Regardless of the details, the fact still remains that the Chinese Communists are shooting at our men. There can be no partisanship or divided loyalties on such an issue."

Sen. Neely (D-WVa) said the news "should have a sobering, a reuniting effect on every American worthy of the name . . . It means that Communist China has made another warlike attack on the United States."

Adm. Stump identified the carriers which were sent to the rescue areas as the Philippine Sea and the Hornet, and described them as part of a task force engaged in "fair weather training" in the Pacific.

He would not give details as to the types of Chinese and American planes which took part in the incident.

Reporters were advised they could expect a more detailed statement later from Secretary of Defense Wilson.

Stump said that orders to fight back if attacked have been traditional throughout U.S. history "in peace or war."

The admiral said the American planes were "well without the territorial limits" of Red China when the attack took place. There was some discussion over whether these limits were three or 12 miles off shore.

Stump commented that "the three-mile limit is very well recognized although some claim different territorial limits."

However, he did not say just how far off shore the U.S. planes were flying at the time of the attack.

Stump, whose headquarters are at Pearl Harbor, disclosed there are four U.S. carriers in the Southeast Asia area. In addition to the Philippine Sea and Hornet he named the Boxer and the Tarawa, soon to be replaced by the Yorktown. He identified the organization as Task Force 70.

Asked whether he thought this force was 'strong enough to take care of itself" under any eventuality, the admiral said "I think so."

In response to another question as to whether he thought the Communists would be more careful about plane incidents in the future, Stump said:

"I would hope so but I don't know how much trouble they want."

Stump said a number of planes had been attacked or shot down in his command in the past but added each of these incidents had been fully reported.

There have been incidents involving U.S. reconnaissance or weather planes and Soviet aircraft in the Far Pacific.

First word of the latest incident came from the State Department.

A department announcement said there were no casualties on the American side, and emphasized that the Red planes made their attack "over the high seas."

It said:

"The United States plan to protest most vigorously against this further evidence of Chinese Communist brutality and their belligerent interference with a humanitarian rescue operation being conducted over the high seas."

The American fighters were from the two United States aircraft carriers ordered into the area Saturday to "protect further rescue and search operations" launched after Chinese Communist fighters shot down a British Cathay Pacific airliner on a flight from Bangkok to Hong Kong.

The Communist Radio announced today that the Peiping government was apologizing to Britain for the attack on the airliner. It said the Red pilots thought the plane was Chinese Nationalist.

Ten persons, including three Americans, apparently lost their lives after the airliner crashed into the sea. Latest reports indicate eight survived.

Following is the text of the State Department announcement made in the name of Secretary Dulles and read to a news conference by Press Officer Henry Suydam:

"As I announced on Saturday, July 24 the secretary of defense has ordered two United States aircraft carriers to proceed to the scene of the Chinese Communist assault upon the British commercial airliner which resulted in the death of three Americans and the wounding of three others.

"The mission as stated then of these ships and their planes was to conduct and protect further rescue and search operations in the vicinity of the tragedy.

"This government is now informed that two United States carrier-based planes of the rescue type, while conducting their missions of mercy and seeking possible survivors, were attacked over the high seas by two Chinese

Texas Governor Shiver Facing Runoff Election

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Allan Shivers, who led Texas Democrats' bolt to Republican Dwight D Eisenhower in 1952, apparently faces a runoff election in his bid for an unprecedented third term.

His opponent: Ralph Yarborough champion of the "Loyalists" who stuck with Democrat Adlai Stevenson in the presidential race.

Unofficial returns from Saturday's first Democratic primary gave the conservative Shivers a 17,158 lead over Yarborough not enough in the four-man race to avoid an Aug. 28 second primary.

Yarborough, 51, who had condemned Shivers breakway from the party in 1952, predicted victory for himself Aug. 28. "The Democrats of Texas," he said, "will vote to regain control of their party."

Shivers appeared equally confident.

"I welcome the opportunity to continue the fight for Texas," he said. "We will keep running a good, hard, clean fight in this runoff and with the help of the people of Texas we will win it."

A runoff election is required when no candidate has a clear majority over all others. Arlon B. (Cyclone) Davis and J. J. Holmes polled 2.72 per cent of the vote tabulated thus far by the unofficial Texas Election Bureau and that was apparently enough to force a runoff between the two top men. Some 60,000 to 80,000 votes were still out.

Rhee Predicting Thailand 'Next'

McDHORD AIR FORCE BASE, WASH. (AP) — President Syngman Rhee of South Korea predicted last night that Thailand "will be the next victim" of Communist aggression.

The Korean President, stopping at this western Washington air base en route to an official visit with President Eisenhower, described as "an unfortunate thing" the manner in which the Indochina action was settled.

"It is unfortunate that we have let Indochina go," he told reporters. "What more are we going to lose?"

The Korean President landed after a 22-hour flight from Seoul. He was accompanied by Mrs. Rhee and a party of 12.

When asked the purpose of his trip to Washington, the 79-year-old President said:

"I would rather keep silent until I have talked with President Eisenhower. I'm quite sure we have things to talk over."

Defends Critic Of Consolidation

GREENSBORO (AP) — Chancellor Edward K. Graham of Woman's College has come to the defense of a historian who says consolidation of Woman's College, State College and the University of North Carolina has failed to live up to its goals.

Dr. Graham said in an interview yesterday that newspaper critics of Hugh Lefler, history professor at the university, have not stuck to the issue.

The three units were consolidated during the depression years of the early 30s when O. Max Gardner was governor.

Lefler told the Greensboro Rotary Club last Monday that consolidation has not achieved what Gardner predicted—saved money, ended overlapping functions, or prevented any of the three divisions from reaching the status of a full university.

Dr. Graham said Lefler was correct. He also said that the consolidation idea was a good thing, and "there is no reason to believe that Hugh Lefler is not in agreement on this point."

Dr. Graham said "The way to judge consolidation is to look at the strength of the three institutions that make up the university now, and then realize how much weaker they might have been if there had been no consolidation. . . The question is whether or not important duplication has been ended. The vital thing is that we are not now trying to give all the courses at all of the institutions. I don't know of any move in higher education in North Carolina that has been more significant than consolidation."

Military Advisers Hold White House Conference

Far East Policies Reviewed

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—A White House gathering of military advisers in advance of a visit from Syngman Rhee today heralded a series of conferences expected to have an important bearing on U. S. policy in the Communist-troubled Far East.

Rhee, President of South Korea, was due in Washington late today. He begins talks with President Eisenhower and other U. S. officials tomorrow.

Several hours ahead of Rhee's arrival, Eisenhower summoned to a luncheon meeting Secretary of Defense Wilson and Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Also invited was retired Gen. James A. Van Fleet, recently returned from a survey of military assistance needs in the Far East.

The meeting followed closely announcement of tentative plans for a conference in August or September of Western and Asian nations on formation of a Southeast Asia defensive alliance.

From the views of the three advisers the President can assemble the individual strategic and supply requirement problems of Japan, Korea, Formosa and the Philippines and start patterning them to those foreseen for the nations on the southeastern flank of Asia if a defensive alliance should be obtained.

Rhee is likely to ask, according to Seoul dispatches, for military equipment and transport to equip at least 10 and perhaps 20 more divisions than the 20 South Korea already has. He also is expected to seek a boost in the rate of U. S. economic aid, now running at 200 million dollars a year.

Eisenhower in turn is reported planning to ask the fiery nationalist to forget, at least for the time being, his dream of Korean unification, and also to soften his attitude toward his old enemy Japan.

The new and strategically valuable position of the Reds in Northern Indochina imposes a critical factor in defense planning but officials believe it will not adversely affect the long-range, three-year program for military assistance to Korea, Japan, Formosa and the Philippines.

At the Pentagon, it was said that no change in money allocations is contemplated under the military assistance program for this fiscal year.

Officials said a sudden cutback now might alarm nations which the United States hopes to bring into the Southeast Asia alliance. And the fluid situation throughout the area would make it militarily unwise.

Beyond this there was the recent news conference discussion by Wilson which indicated the program for cutbacks in military strength was being reviewed.

Ruling Held Up

RALEIGH (AP) — No decision from the State Board of Elections on the contested Pitt County sheriff's race had been announced by mid-afternoon today.

The State Board met in Raleigh this morning at 10 o'clock, but their morning session was devoted entirely to hearing lawyer's arguments on a contested constable race in Rutherford County.

When the Board recessed for lunch shortly before 1 o'clock, it was expected they would still be tied up with the Rutherford County case after it reconvened at 2:30 this afternoon.

A spokesman said they were not expected to consider the Pitt case until sometime this afternoon.

The State Board of Elections met in Greenville in an all-day session July 8 hearing witnesses in the contested Pitt County sheriff's race. Following that session, it was announced that the Board would meet in Raleigh today to render its decision in the case.

Commissioners Are Sitting Today

Pitt's County Commisioners, sitting as a Board of Equalization and Review, convened this morning in the Comissioners' Room in the County Court House.

The Commissioners were sitting for taxpayers of Stokes, Belvoir, Bethel and Pactolus today.

During last week the taxpayers of those townships had an opportunity to visit the County Tax Office to make comparison of the assessed valuation of their property against other property under the revaluation program completed in Pitt County.

This week a similar opportunity is being afford taxpayers of Farmville, Falkland, Fountain and Arthur townships. The Board will meet for these townships next Monday.

A similar opportunity will be given taxpayers of each townships before the Board of Equalization and Review sits for their townships.

Charge Arson To Greenville Man

Zeb Dee Hines, 32-year-old Greenville Negro, was arrested Saturday night and charged with arson.

The arrest of Hines came shortly after the local fire department was called to a fire at 1012 Fleming Street. Officers arrested Hines in the yard of the Fleming Street School near the scene of the blaze, and said he confessed setting fire to the house. The confession was made in the presence of local policemen and members of the Greenville Fire Department, the Police Department reported.

Officers quoted Hines as saying he broke into the house owned by Shade Wilson and went to the room which his girl friend Odessa Gaskins occupied. Officers said Hines told them he took some clothes, put them on the bed and set fire to them. The fire department estimated the damage to furniture and clothes in the room at $150.

The elderly owner of the house was downstairs when the fire was set, officers said.

Hines was held without bond by local police, and was slated for a hearing before Municipal Judge Charles Whedbee today. Arson is a capital offense in North Carolina.

Officers who questioned Hines said he apparently set fire to the clothing and contents of the room as a result of an argument between him and the Gaskins woman.

Fourteen Injured In 2-Car Collision Near Wilmington

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—An auto carrying four Camp Lejeune Marines collided head-on Saturday midnight with another containing 10 persons from Burlington and Mebane. All 14 persons were injured.

One of the Marines, Carl Mellberg, 21, was charged with reckless operation of an automobile resulting in serious injuries.

In the other car driven by Robert Wilkerson, 19, of Mebane were Patsy Willis, 20 Patricia McDaniels, 18, William Oakley 21, and Carol McDaniels, 20, all of Burlington, and the following Mebane residents: Nancy Keck, 19; Mrs. Sylvia Buckner 19, Esther Payne, 17, Jerry Caviness, 18, and Don Buckner, 21.

Arrested 103 At Big Cock Fight

FULTON, N. Y. (AP)—State troopers arrested 103 persons at a cock fight in a densely wooded area near this central New York city yesterday.

Dr. Robert P. Williams, 52, of Rutland, Vt. suffered a fatal heart attack at the scene. Police said he was among the spectators.

Police said 108 birds were confiscated.

Inquest Slated Tonight In Grifton Gun-Slaying

A 72-year-old Grifton Negro man is in Pitt County jail today after admitting the slaying of his 36-year-old son-in-law Saturday night in a Grifton store.

Members of the Pitt County sheriff's department and Grifton police and Coroner Griffin M. Rouse, who investigated the shooting, identified the dead man as Matthew (Matho) Harper.

Henry Marvel Harper, father-in-law of the dead man, was arrested by officers at his home in Grifton shortly after the shooting in the store run by Ruth Harper, wife of Matthew Harper and daughter of Henry Marvel Harper.

Officers said there were several witnesses to the shooting, but they had been able to obtain little information as to what led to the shooting. They said the shooting apparently culminated a long-standing discord between the two men.

Matthew Harper was shot twice with a .32 calibre pistol, once through the heart and once in the side.

Officers said information they had been able to obtain indicated Matthew Harper was in the store operated by his wife when Henry Marvel Harper entered the store and fired twice at him. He died instantly, officers said.

They said the elder Harper admitted the shooting when he was taken into custody at his home. Coroner Rouse set an inquest into the slaying for 7:30 tonight in the Pitt County Courthouse.

Two People Injured As Auto Skids Into Ditch

Two people were injured early Sunday morning when a car skidded out of control on Highway No. 11 near Bethel.

The car, driven by Mary Alice Broadway of Grimesland Route 1, was traveling south on N. C. 11 about 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning when it skidded on the wet pavement, going out of control and into the ditch.

Both Miss Broadway and a passenger, Harold Keeter of Greenville Route 3, were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital. According to the hospital officials today both are still patients, but their condition is reported as "good."

Miss Broadway received cuts on her face and was 'shaken up." Keeter reportedly received cuts on the lip and face.

Second Wreck

A second wreck reported by Perry told of a pickup truck driven by John Henry Taylor, 55, of Martin County that ran into a ditch on Highway 903 near the Martin-Pitt County line at 10:25 Sunday night.

Perry said one end of the truck was still on the highway when a car driven by James Lowell Everette of Farmville crashed into it.

Perry reported Everette was driving south when he met another car and did not see the end of the truck jutting out.

There were no injuries, but the estimated damage to car was reported at $150.

Patrolman Perry arrested Taylor, charging him with driving a motor vehicle while drinking. He will be tried in the Pitt County Court.

These were the only accidents reported by the State Highway Patrol in Pitt County over the weekend.

Selecting Candidates At Half-Way Mark

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, July 26 (AP)—Selection of candidates for Congress and state offices reached the halfway mark with primaries tomorrow in Arkansas and Louisiana—and incumbent casualties still stand at the low figure of one senator and three representatives.

Contests within parties have been traditionally free of real tests of national issues, which must await the November elections for an accounting of popular thinking at midterm of the first Republican administration in 20 years.

Last Saturday's Texas primaries brought to 23 the states that have nominated candidates to date.

The two major parties have now picked candidates for 16 Senate seats out of the 37 to be filled next November (5 of them for unexpired terms); 242 of the 435 House memberships at stake and 17 of the 34 governorships to be voted on.

Sen. Lennon (D-NC) is the only incumbent senator to be defeated in a primary. Reps. Lucas (D-Tex-Crosser (D-Ohio) and Angell (R-Ore) are the only House casualties to date.

In the last nonpresidential year primary voting — in 1950 — there were 3 Senate (2 Dems., 1 Rep.) and 6 House (4 Dems., 2 Reps.) defeats. In the presidential year of 1952 the primary losses were 2 Senate 1 Dem., 1 Rep.) and 9 House (6 Dems., 3 Reps.).

The midway mark in primary contests is being accompanied by a step-up in the political tempo as both parties gather momentum for the final showdown in November.

In the Democratic camp, National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell announced the third campaign-planning session for party chiefs over the next two months: A farm conference at Sioux Falls, S.D., to take stock of what Mitchell called "the negative Eisenhower-Benson program for the future." Featured speaker is the party's titular head, Adlai E. Stevenson.

The other strategy meetings are to come off at Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 6, where fund-raising will be a prime topic, and at Indianapolis Sept. 17-18, where Democratic National Committee members will go over a wide range of issues.

Republican stalwarts are busy trying to line up some organized labor votes Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, leading the drive, plans to address at least seven major union gatherings between now and November. He also has prepared a radio-TV script which GOP members of Congress seeking reelection can send to stations back home. Mitchell's theme: "The Eisenhower administration is pro-labor."

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

"Since World War II, eight Asian nations, numbering over six hundred million people, have won their independence,' notes Mrs. Frank G. Brooks, of Mount Vernon, Iowa, national president of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, Methodist Church. "Six of these nations are in Southeast Asia. The 'unchanging East' is now the center of changes which may be decisive for all the world. Contemporary world events are forcing us to rethink the whole nature and strategy of missions. The frontiers of missions are wider than they were four years ago, for there are more places in our national and international life where man's fears, suspicions, and hatreds are manifest. The dominant fact facing missionaries for Christ in foreign fields today is the almost overwhelming number of problems that are arising out of the political and social aspirations of peoples emerging from the fast-crumbling colonial sway of the West. One of the most encouraging signs in the foreign enterprise is the enthusiasm with which vigorous younger churches, in several countries, are themselves sending missionaries to other lands."

The National Board of the Young Woman's Christian Association is engaged in a three-point Centennial program which emphasizes; the rededication of the membership to the organization's Christian purpose, the strengthening of membership, and the raising of a $5,000,000 Centennial Fund to support the work of the Association both in the United States and overseas. As the result of advance gifts solicitation, a total of $1,097,957 had been received toward this goal as of December 31, 1953.

Big Bond Issue Voted In Raleigh

RALEIGH (AP) — Raleigh voters have approved $3,100,000 in bond issues but rejected a $750,000 issue to build a new city hall. Berlin—America's new immigration law is a bitter disappointment to the 3,000,000 Russian refugees scattered throughout European countries. Under the new law only 1,700 Russians may enter American ports annually, and not more than 170 shall enter in any one month. Every rumor of Bolshevist collapse is eagerly received by the groups which still believe conditions similar to those which existed before the war will be restored in Russia and that they will be able to return and claim the property which Lenin and his associates seized in the name of the Communist government. But the younger exiles are impatient over the long delay and each month there is less disposition to accept the promises of the old-line political leaders that the Bolsheviks will be overthrown.

Robber Escaped With $4,000

DURHAM (AP)—A gunman robbed Tops Service Station here of $4,000 early yesterday morning and police said his description fits that of the man who robbed a 5-and-10-cent store here of between $60 and $65.

J. A. Hunter attendant at the service station, said the man approached him as he counted his cash, pointed a revolver at him and ordered him to hand over the money.

He described the man as a "casual-like, dirty, potbellied man of about six feet tall and dark complexioned."

M. D. Huggins, manager of Marion's 5 and 10 cent Store, was robbed in the same manner Saturday night. In each case, the robber advised the victims to sit still for three minutes before calling police.

Peiping Steps Up Anti-American Propaganda War

TOKYO (AP)—Red China today intensified its anti-American propaganda attacks, warning that it is tightening coastal defenses and will shoot down any approaching Chinese Nationalist planes.

Several Peiping radio broadcasts heard in Tokyo carried the same theme — praising the Indochina cease-fire denouncing talk of a U.S.-Chinese Nationalist alliance and belittling the Nationalists—whose United Nations seat the Reds want.

One broadcast said, "We will shoot down, as we did before, any planes if the United States orders Nationalist Chinese troops to fly planes to challenge us."

The stepped - up offensive of words coincided with Red China's apology for shooting down a British airliner off Hainan Island Friday. In a conciliatory note to Britain, which recognizes the Reds, the Communists said they thought the plane was Chinese.

Another broadcast said defenders of the Red coastal islands of Amiy, Kintang and others have "pledged to keep their arms ready and to be constantly prepared to smash any U.S.-Chiang (Kai-shek) scheme."

"The United States plan to conclude a so-called bilaterial mutual security pact with Chiang Kai-shek has added to the vigilance of the frontier defense units of the Chinese People's Liberation Army and heightened their determination to liberate Taiwan (Formosa)" Peiping said.

It quoted a Red commander as saying, "Sometime ago the United States sent military personnel to the remnant Chiang Kai-shek forces on Choushan Island, along our seacoast. Since then they have time and again taken part in and directed armed provocations and forages along our coast . . . Now they are openly scheming to sign an aggressive military pact with the Chiang brigands."

Navy Begins Big Scale Maneuvers

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The Navy today began what it said was the largest maneuvers since World War II along the length of the West Coast.

More than 50 ships, carrying 18,000 personnel, started moving from San Diego and Long Beach, Calif.

A condition of total war was assumed, with a foreign power threatening the coast and endangering shipping.

The plans called for the force to shepherd a vital convoy from southern California ports to Seattle and back, fighting off attacks by enemy warships, including submarine packs, and airplanes.

The exercise will end Aug. 13.

Young Escapee Is Wounded In Leg

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Sheriff G. O. Womble says that James Buchanan, 16, who escaped from the Eastern Carolina Training School here Saturday was wounded as he tried to enter a nearby filling station later in the day.

Womble, a native of Gastonia, was sent to the training school about a month ago for breaking and entering. He escaped by lowering himself from a window with a bedsheet. He was captured when he appeared at a hospital for treatment of a leg wound.

Women Travelers Can Upset Customs Men

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Women travelers sometimes cause more headaches among the U. S. Customs inspectors than professional smugglers, says Mary Gordon, a decorative young woman who makes a business of issuing feminine travel advice for an airline.

There's the lady who can't find her luggage keys after her bags are all lined up on the customs counter.

Another gives a blow-by-blow account of how she shopped for each souvenir she's bringing home from Europe for Aunt Tessie, Uncle Herman and the ladies of the Wednesday Afternoon Bridge Club, asking the advice of the weary inspector as to the authenticity of each.

Also the avid recipe collector who can't understand why she can't take home samples of the more exotic fruits and vegetables she has gathered up abroad.

When told that plants and produce from abroad may be pest-infested, these ladies always state indignantly that of course they have been very careful to wash everything.

If you want to be popular with the Customs men, as well as smoothing the way for yourself, says Mary, here are some useful tips:

1. Keep all your foreign purchases in one bag so they can be checked easily against your declaration. Many travelers take an empty collapsible bag along, to hold the purchases they expect to make.

2 Save the sales slips for all articles to be declared. If the amount on your customs declaration is questioned, you may need them.

3. If you exceed the $200 duty-free allowance accorded overseas travelers every 30 days don't try to conceal your excess purchases. The Customs inspectors know all the tricks.

4. Be sure to seal the stoppers or corks of any bottles of perfume or other liquids you plan to carry in your luggage. It's no fun, for either you or the inspector, to open a bag whose contents are saturated with Scotch or cologne.

5. Read over the Customs regulations before you start your return trip, so that you will know exactly what you may and may not bring home with you.

6. Before you reach the port of entry, list the articles you have purchased. The plane stewardess ship's purser or steward usually passes out the customs declaration forms shortly before arrival. If you're driving, your own advance list will save time.

7. Don't make a scene if the inspector asks you to open any article of luggage for inspection That is his job.

8. And for goodness sake, have your luggage keys handy

About One-Third Of High School Graduates In N. C. Attended College In 1954

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College has recently collected information indicating the number of graduates in white high schools in Eastern North Carolina in 1953 and the number of these graduates attending college in 1954.

Answers to his inquiries suggest that those entering college make up approximately a third of the number of graduates.

President Messick requested information from all county and city superintendents of schools from Durham County eastward. A few did not have the data available, while a goodly number did not answer. Among those who sent information the number of graduates for the white schools in 1953 was 4499, and the number going to college was 1462, or 32.5 percent.

In individual administrative units, Durham, which reported 262 graduates with 150 going to college, leads the group.

Others are listed below, with the number of graduates being listed as the first figure each time and those going to college being listed immediately following:

Wilson 143 and 69; Hoke 38 and 20; Rocky Mount 158 and 85; Fremont 17 and 8; Pitt 252 and 108; Fayetteville 161 and 68; Lumberton 80 and 33; New Hanover 348 and 139; Hyde 32 and 12; Red Springs 28 and 10; Sampson 343 and 117; Laurinburg 74 and 24; Pamlico 78 and 25; Lenoir 78 ad 25; Carteret 141 and 45; Martin 146 and 42; Elm City 49 and 13; Greene 117 and 30; Gates 39 and 10; Edgecombe 87 and 22; Onslow 250 and 63; Wake 422 and 106; Jones 62 and 15; Franklinton 26 and 6; Wayne 241 and 57; Pender 100 and 23; Scotland 50 and 10; Nash 284 and 5 ; Beaufort 181 and 35; and Durham County 212 and 36.

A few of the units included statistics on Negro schools as well. Red Springs led with 30 and 17. Others reporting were Fairmont 43 and 18; Durham City Schools 158 and 54; Greene County 62 and 15; Kinston 73 and 12; Elm City 18 and 2; Hyde 23 and 1; and Dare 3, with none going to college.

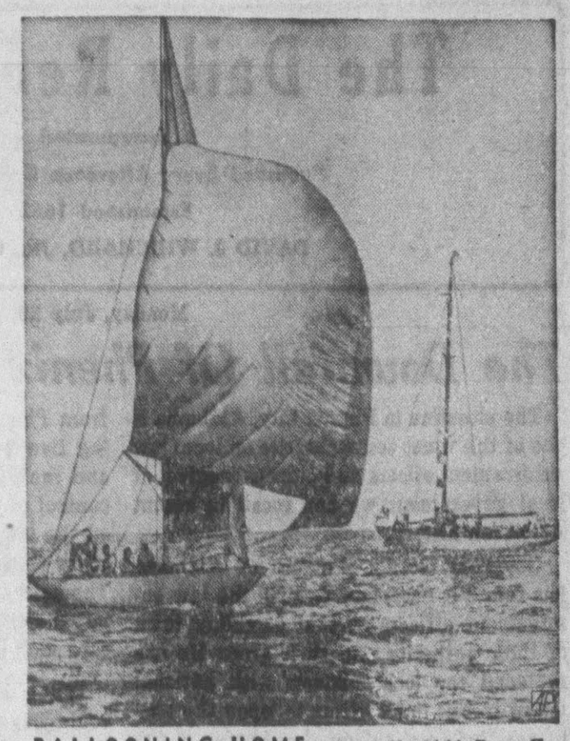

Must Improve In Handling Weed

RALEIGH (AP)—Flue-cured tobacco growers in this country must improve on-the-farm grading and handling practices to hold the position of their product in world markets.

Two officials of Tobacco Associates, Inc., yesterday urged growers to "equal or surpass" foreign producers in quality and grading and handling.

J Henry Vaughan of Elm City, chairman of the board, and E Y. Floyd of Raleigh, secretary, said foreign manufacturers have increased complaints about the "mixed" condition of American leaf in recent months. They said there has been "a noticeable and steady decline in percentages of our tobacco used abroad caused by the manufacturers' preference for tobaccos which are marketed in uniform conditions as to quality, type of leaf, and size of bundles."

In preparing the current crop for market, Vaughan and Floyd urged growers to: 1. 79fi,invseparately lugs, cutters, leaf and tips; 2. pick out carefully all green, red, dead and burned leaves for sale separately; 3. Carefully pick out all string and foreign matter; and 4. tie in uniformly sized bundles with butts about the size of a half dollars.

Suggests Attempt At Making Tobacco Safe

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—A try at making cigarettes safe from any threat of heart disease and cancer was proposed today by Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond of Yale University.

The answer, he said in a paper for the sixth International Cancer Congress here, could be to develop new types of strains of cigarette tobacco free of the agent or agents which some scientists suspect may be causing or contributing to heart trouble and cancer.

This might be accomplished in two years, but it might take as many as seven the specialist said.

Hammond is a biometrician at Yale and also director of statistical research for the American Cancer Society. He and Dr. Daniel Horn reported last month that men aged 50 to 70 who smoke a pack of cigarettes daily are about twice as likely to die of heart trouble or cancer of all types as nonsmokers.

Smoking a pipe or cigars seems not to carry much if any risks, said Hammond, a pipe smoker himself. The danger from cigarettes, he went on, could be in the special types of tobacco which have been developed for cigarettes.

These tobaccos, he speculated, could contain one or more chemicals which adversely affect the heart, blood vessels lungs or other tissues of some people.

From the viewpoint of the public, "the happiest solution is to make smoking safe," Hammon declared.

Development of a "harmless strain of tobacco plant" would be more practical, he asserted, "than to use a highly toxic strain and then attempt to remove the harmful ingredients from the tobacco by chemical means or from the smoke by a filter or condenser."

He said the chemical composition varies considerably in different types of tobacco, even in different batches of the same general type.

Man Jailed On Assault Charge

One Negro was hospitalized Saturday night and another lodged in Pit County jail after a fight resulted from an argument over a light bulb, officers reported today.

The Pitt County Sheriff's department said Louis Burnette, 31, was arrested early Sunday morning. They said he is charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill James Perry, 28. The affray occurred in the Ballards Cross Roads section.

Officers said both men are from near Roper and were working with a crew harvesting tobacco in Pitt County.

Officers charged Burnette with assaulting Perry with a flat iron. Perry, officers said, was taken to Pitt Memorial hospital for treatment. They said the man suffered a fractured skull.

Some 500 Students Still Require Rooms

There are still about 250 women and probably an equal number of men who have not yet been placed at East Carolina College for the coming year, President J. D. Messick announced today.

The president urges anyone having any room available to accommodate some of these students to contact the college.

The college, the president said, has been forced to reject a great many of its applicants for next year.

In order to ascertain where these rejects may apply for next year, letters are being sent to several college presidents requesting information as to the room presently availabl in those colleges. The colleges still having accommodations for students will be rocemmended to the East Carolina rejects, President Messick said.

A portion of the letter being sent to the college presidents from Messick follows:

"We have so many applicants from new students this fall that we just can't take care of them and I'm writing a few colleges to see if they have any room so that in writing our students we can mention any place or places where they might possibly obtain accommodations."

July's Rainfall Is Sharply Above Total For June

Rainfall in July through the 25th totaled four and one-third inches in contrast to the light precipitation of one and one-third inches in June.

The highest temperature yesterday in the Greenville area was 89 degrees. Lowest last night 67, and at 8 a.m. today it was 77.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 87 degrees. Lowest that night 58, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 71.

The Downfall Of Phenix City

The situation in Phenix City, Alabama is one of the worst commentaries on local law enforcement oficers and citizens' neglect of local government we can recall in recent American history.

Governor Gordon Persons of Alabama has found it necessary to strip the law enforcement officers of that gambling town of their authority and their arms. He has replaced the local officers with national guard troops in an effort to 'open the way to new information' on the slaying of the man who had been nominated for the state attorney general.

It is evident by reports which have come from Phenix City since the infamous slaying five weeks ago, that organized crime and racketeers have held almost complete control of the city. Whether they controlled the law enforcement officials as well as other things in the city, we do not know. The act by which the governor of Alabama put the city under martial law would indicate such is the case.

What has happened in Phenix City could have happened in any of a number of towns or cities across the nation. It is the result of the citizens of a community shutting their eyes to disregard law and order, and forfeiting their good government to the domination of racketeers and czars of organized crime.

The people of Phenix City could have prevented organized crime from getting control of their city had they nipped the movement in the bud. Apparently the majority of the people of that community were passive to the first inroads of organized crime. Gradually more and more people climbed on the easy-money bandwagon. Before they knew it, the control of the community was in the hands of organized crime rather than in the hands of the people.

The pattern is not new. It has happened before, we suspect. But the Phenix City case is the most pointed to come to the attention of the American people in a long time.

If good government is to be maintained, it must remain in the hands of the people. It can only remain in the hands of the people if the citizenry carefully guards its rights, and conscientiously executes its responsibilities.

There are far too many communities across the nation which are unconsciously vulnerable to a fate similar to that of Phenix City simply because their citizens are passive toward good government. Too many citizens are willing to leave their responsibilities to their government to others. Organized crime could not have gained control of Phenix City had the citizens of that city been on their toes to uphold good government.

How many other communities are following the same passive path to destruction?

A Measure With Which We Agree

Some sources will cry "injustice" when they talk of the action of the House Civil Service Committee which voted unanimously to deny government retirement to any federal employe or member of Congress convicted of lying about communist associations or engaging in subversive or felonious activities.

Of course there are some arguments which can be made against such a measure; but in our opinion the measure is certainly justified.

For some reason, a good many people have accepted the practice of lying under oath lightly. They have the attitude it is all right as long as one can get away with it. Certainly it is a despicable practice, but, there again, the matter of telling the truth is a matter between a man and his conscience.

A federal employe or member of Congress who would lie under oath about communist associations, or engaging in subversive or felonious activities is contributing to the undermining of the American government and the American liberties. They do not deserve retirement or other benefits made available to loyal employes of the federal government.

The proposal of the House Civil Service Committee not only will provide a more severe punishment for perjury in connection with such important matters; it will afford an additional persuasive element for those who are tempted to lie under oath to tell the truth.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

MAYBE

Someone has said that everything creative in life is built on a "maybe." The scientist begins his investigations on a hunch. He starts to work on the basis of the feeling that certain things are facts awaiting discovery. An English physician put a culture on a top shelf and forgot about its being there. When finally he came upon it, it had developed a condition which sent through his mind the thrilling conviction that here was something that might kill deadly germs which coursed through the blood stream. The physician's name was Fleming and the thing he found was the basis of penicillin.

Spiritual life starts with a "maybe." The great fundamental doctrines of Christianity cannot be proved—that is, proved as problems in mathematics are proved. They have to be taken on faith, and their proof comes in their consistent use. If they are found to work, they are "proved"—that is, proved to the extent that religious people demand proof. They are not proved mathematically; rather they are proved pragmatically.

What joy there is at a wedding and at christenings, yet the word "maybe" drifts like an eerie ghost above the festivities. Marriage is a venture in faith. Every birth is a venture God is making. It represents His hope that another soul can be developed worthy of eternal life.

Maybe! Maybe! Maybe!

Sweden would have to rely, he said, on education and enlightenment to combat the abuse of alcohol. Since Sweden is one of the countries with a semi-Socialist government which tends to believe in regulating everything, the change may be significant."

National Whirligig

Limit On Govm't Involvement

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower has served notice on organized labor that henceforth the Federal Government will handle only major disputes which jeopardize national well-being. The Labor Department and National Labor Relations Board will intervene only when labor-management controversies threaten national health and security.

No legislative enactment or revision of the Taft-Hartley Act was necessary to achieve this important shift in policy. It required merely a change of personnel and philosophy at the White House and within the two agencies entrusted with these problems.

Before Ike took command, Roosevelt-Truman pro-labor appointees were only too anxious to interfene in even the most minor difficulty. Their intervention ranged from the "sick chicken" incident, which resulted in the destruction of NRA, to Harry S Truman's attempted seizure of the steel mills.

INTENTIONS OF NLRB—In several recent decisions and regulations, NLRB has done a Pontius Pilate act with respect to minor and local labor arguments. It has washed its hands of them.

NLRB informed the disputants that it intends to assume jurisdiction only when their quarrels involve interstate commerce business in a big way, whether the demand for Federal intervention is lodged by labor or management.

Under the old theory, and, of course, this Eisenhower philosophy is still to be tested in the courts, almost any commercial activity was deemed to fall under the heading of interstate commerce. Therefore, it was subject to Federal jurisdiction, no matter how strained the judicial interpretation might be.

The NLRB was generally responsible for all this petty litigation because of the fact that it was so eager to get into the labor-management act.

NEW PHILOSOPHY DEMONSTRATED—The NLRB, as reorganized by Eisenhower, has demonsrated its new policy in several generally unnoticed rulings. It has refused to take cognizance of disputes involving restaurants, gasoline stations and garages which handle used cars as a sideline.

The food, the gas and the automobiles may cross state lines and assume an interstate coloration, although of an extremely faint hue. But the reoriented NLRB thinks their operations are too limited, too unimportant in the vast stream of national business and industry, to warrant Federal action.

By contrast, the Roosevelt-Truman NLRB used to intervene in strikes involving a building, if the tenants sold their goods or services beyond the boundaries of the state in which the structure stood. And, strangely, the courts usually upheld the Government in these borderline cases.

CURRENT MOVES—Roosevelt-Truman referees rushed in wherever there was a controversy involving a defense plant. Ike's people will not move unless the defense contract concerns the manufacture of more than $100,000 in supplies for the Armed Forces.

If a firm making tanks, airplanes, warships or atomic weapons is struck, Uncle Sam will take over because of the national defense considerations. But the Government will not step in when the contract calls for only $90,000 worth of soldiers' neckties and handkerchiefs.

ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION—This new policy accords with Eisenhower's philosophy of getting the Government out of involvement with labor and management. He hopes to keep these family squabbles far from the White House doorstep.

Somebody in Ike's politico-legal circles must be getting smart. As this new program suggests, they have tipped him off on how to solve national problems by administrative rather than by legislative action.

Attitudes On Eggs

By I IER ROESSNER

Among the things your taxes have paid for, folks, is a study of the attitude toward shell eggs of 300 households of two or more persons in Birmingham, Ala., and Indianapolis, Ind.

The facts were collected by a research company, paid by the government, under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture.

The research discloses that nearly all households served eggs at the table (as recognizable eggs) one or more times during the week. The average in each city was slightly over an egg per person per day. In Birmingham more eggs were used by high-income than by low-income families; in Indianapolis, the use of eggs was the same in both brackets. But in both cities the proportion of the total number of eggs served at the table was the same for families with different incomes. (Honest, we aren't making this up; we are quoting directly from a Department of Agriculture release.)

The use of eggs in batters and dough was greater in Birmingham than in Indianapolis, reflecting the more frequent making of hot breads by Southern families. In Indianapolis use of eggs in batters an doughs by higher-income families was less than by those with lower incomes even though the proportion of households baking was similar. The greater use of commercial mixes by the high-income families may have been an influence.

It adds up to the fact that people on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line eat eggs.

Your taxes—and this is called to our attention by the Tax Foundation—also pay the cost of city services in Boulder City, Nev. (pop. 4,000), even though Boulder-Hoover Dam has been completed for years. Federal revenues also pay city costs in Coulee Dam, Wash., where they run twice as high as in other cities of the same size in that state; Los Alamos, N.M., Richland, Wash., and Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Two years ago there was some talk that one of the political parties, if it won the election, was going to stop spending tax money for booklets telling housewives how to wash dishes, and the like. It must have been the Democrats, because booklets of that genre still keep coming. In recent weeks we hav been notified that the Superintendent of Documntes has the following booklets available at prices quoted:

"Studies in Watermelon Loading for Rail Shipment," 20 cents; "The Dentist in Civil Defense," 15 cents; "Manpower Resources in Mathematics," 20 cents; "Marihuana—Its Identification," 25 cents; "Kansas-Missouri Floods of June-July 1951," 60 cents, and "Wasps, How to Control Them," 5 cents.

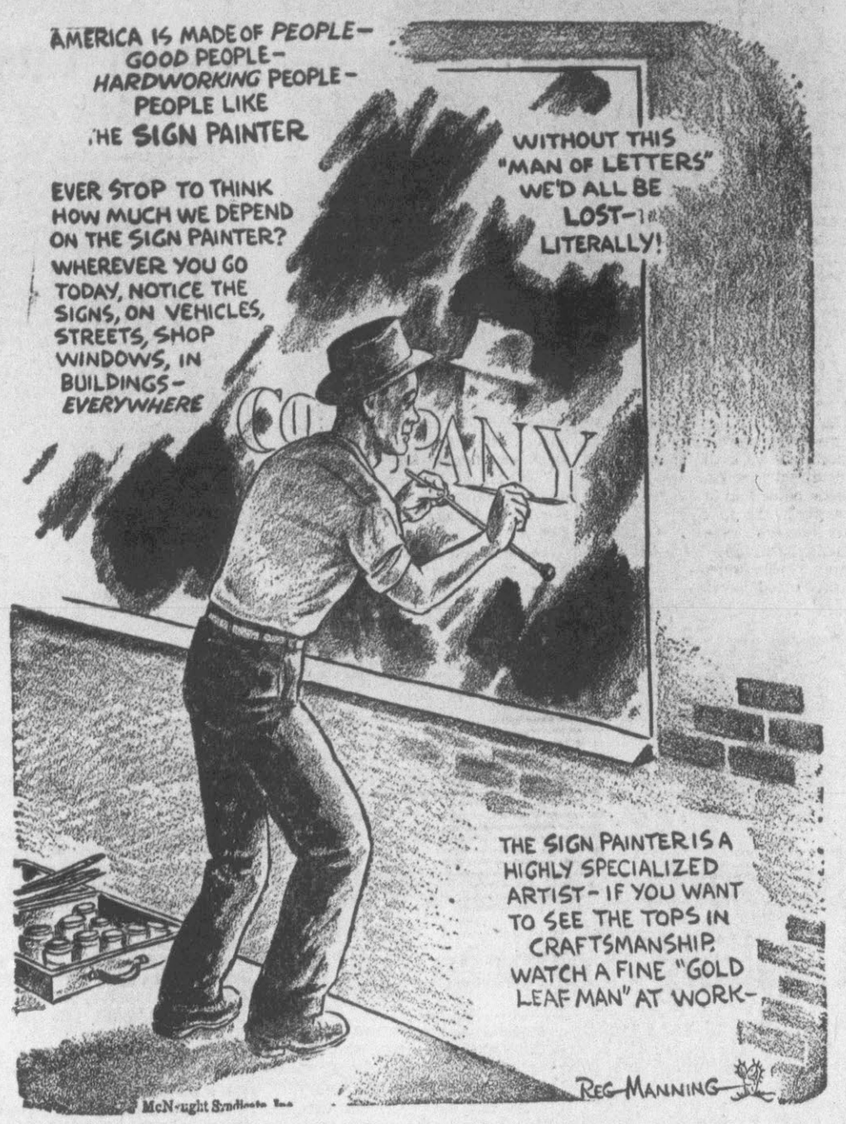

"WHOLESALE PLUS".... ..... IN FOOD, APPLIANCES..... ..

"Wholesale plus" is not a completely new idea in marketing. It has been used many times, rarely with sustained success. Now it is being tried in two interesting nd diverse experiments.

Paul Ream, operating three gocery stores in Utah, is selling at 10 per cent over wholesale cost. He doesn't spend any money having goods put on shelves; he just marks prices on cartons and leaves it to shoppers to get the things they want, bring them to check-out counters and pay the wholesale price, plus 10 per cent, plus tax. Sales have zoomed from $5,000 to $50,000 a week.

Clyde Blaylock, manager of an appliance store in Marietta, Ga., got tired of discount-house competition from Atlanta, and is selling appliances in original cases at cost plus 10 to 15 per cent. Profits so far are meager, but he's stopped the drift of sales to Atlanta, he says.

The 'Ordinary' Americans

Findings In Recently Completed Mid-Year Crop Survey

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — The remarkable fecundity of America's farm lands will be graphically demonstrated again this year, if weather and other crop conditions continue favorable. My survey of the over-all picture indicates that the total outturn of all crops will be only moderately under the world record established in 1948.

WHEAT MISSES THE BILLION-BUSHEL MARK

For only the second time in eleven years, 1954 wheat production may fail to exceed 1,000,000,000 bushels. Although the winter crop—now about harvested—has done well, with an indicated crop of around 759,000,000 bushels, black stem rust has hit the spring crop in the Dakotas and Minnesota, cutting yields down in that territory. However, I forecast adequate total supplies. I predict also that sizable amounts will enter storage under Government loans. This could result in temporary higher prices later on.

Prospects for most of the other grains are quite promising. I expect output of oats to hit a record high of over 1,500,000,000 bushels. The flaxseed crop may be the second largest on record, and the hay crop the third largest. A big barley crop and a sizable rye outturn also are indicated. This is a favorable development for cattle, hog, and poultry raisers. Incidentally, I predict that the number of cattle and hogs on farms next January 1 will be relatively large.

BUMPER CORN AND SOYBEAN CROPS

Corn farmers really went to town at planting time last spring; in fact, they planted nearly a half million acres more than planned in the March intentions. The second largest crop on record is currently indicated; but what the final outturn will be remains to be seen. Much depends upon the weather between now and harvest time. With the hog-corn ratio still at favorable levels, a large corn crop could be profitable for hog producers.

I have long been intrigued by soybeans—one of the nation's most versatile crops, with a phenomenal growth curve in recent years. I should not be surprised if farmers put more acreage into soybeans this year than ever before, because of diversion of acreage from crops under allotment programs, attractive prices, and favorable planting conditions. This could mean a large crop and downward pressure on soybean prices at harvest time.

COTTON AND OTHER FALL CROPS

Heavy supplies of U.S. cotton would have glutted markets and severely depressed prices during the past year had it not been for Government loans. Yet, the basis has been laid for an improved statistical position in the 1954-1955 season. Cotton farmers more than complied with the Government's rigid control program. Acreage in cultivation on July 1 was sharply under a year ago and the ten-year July 1 average. Total supplies, nevertheless will be sizable, but prices will be well propped at 90 per cent of parity.

Other fall crops, with the exception of potatoes, promise to be in large supply. Potatoes, however, should be in good balance with requirements, barring further damage to the Maine crop. Baked bean lovers can look forward to full pots. Rice pudding devotees also have nothing to worry about, since a record outturn of this grain is indicated Production of sugar beets this year is likely to be far above the ten-year average. This will further complicate the problem of a world over-supply of sugar; but U.S. prices may be well controlled by the Federal Import Quota Program.

WHAT ABOUT PRICE SUPPORTS AND FARM INCOME?

The Government's price support program will have to be revamped. Under the present system, farm surpluses have mounted to fantastic levels at the taxpayers' expense. While it will require a high degree of political courage to do the right thing, I believe that we are on the way. If farm price supports are to continue, they certainly should be directly geared to the size of the crops produced. This means a flexible system, which is the only thing that makes sense.

As far as farm income is concerned, I believe that the 1955 outlook is favorable. Although there may be a slight decline as compared with 1954, the farmer's net income will still be substantial, and a strong bulwark to the national economy. Farming is an essential industry. Its people are industrious, sensible, and highly religious. I do not believe they ask for or need any special privileges; but they are entitled to a just share of the nation's economic prosperity.

Fayetteville State Teachers College Economically Run

By LYNN NISBET

FAYETTEVILLE — Fayetteville State Teachers College, oldest Negro college supported by the State and first of the teacher training colleges to be established, is also one of the most economically operated. In fact, economy may have been over-emphasized in some instances—such as failure to spend a little money on the dining hall roof and incurring serious damage to the walls.

The college was established in 1867. Early in the present century it was moved to its present site of about 100 acres of land in the northwestern edge of the city. The property is carried on budget books at a valuation of $487,000—but since 1947 allocations for permanent improvements have exceeded $1,364,000. The school has enrollment of 631, all taking courses leading to training for teaching in the elementary schools.

Enrollment has been restricted to Negroes, although a few whites have applied for admission. Two or three white wives of Negro soldiers at Fort Bragg have been accepted for the next term.

Major physical needs are for addition of a physical education room and other enlargements of the gymnasium; a new music and art building and housing for married teachers. Money was appropriated for teacher cottages a few years ago, but was diverted to other more urgent needs.

President J.W. Seabrook called attention of the budget group to comparative figures showing that Fayetteville had received less money both for improvements and operation costs than any other of the teacher training colleges.

At Fayetteville and later at Pembroke Indian College there was very little said about the Supreme Court segregation decision, but it was obviously in the minds of the conferees as sure to have some bearing upon the future of these and other institutions. One question is whether the State will have continuing demand for Negro teachers.

CONFEDERATE HOME — The Confederate Women's Home at Fayetteville is a problem child for the budgeters and legislators. Established to care for indigent widows of Confederate soldiers, the home has long since outlived that purpose. It has been extended from time to time after it appeared there was no longer need for it The last Legislature gave it a new lease on life until 1960, when it will be closed unless further extension is granted.

Of the 30 women "guests" now in the home, only one is a Confederate widow. The others are daughters, whose average age is between 80 and 85. No major improvements are considered for the building, in view of its probable short life; but a few repairs are needed—such as new tile on the dining room floor and repairs to the porch. Operation costs are increasing as guests become older and require more medical and nursing care.

PEMBROKE — The real white elephant among State institutions continues to be Pembroke Indian College. A full fledge college with an enrollment of 135 and 19 faculty members, only a dozen of the whole group living on the campus, raises per capita costs to more than $900 a year. This compares with less than $600 at the University at Chapel Hill.

The institution is located in the western edge of the town of Pembroke in Robeson county, on a 50-acre tract of land. The book value is $190,824—but as in all other cases that is only a fraction of what has been spent there within the past six years. The 1947-49 and —53 Legislatures appropriated $655,000.

In face of the conditions and expensive operation the budget folks seemed not disposed to plow more money into the plant. That attitude does not agree with the ideas of Dr. J.W. Wellons, the president, nor does it deter him from making big plans and asking for relatively big money.

BIG IDEAS — There is a girls dormitory recently renovated and put in good shape, with capacity for 16 students. Last year it housed seven. The boys'dormitory of equal capacity las tyear had one student and one professor living in it.

Dr. Wellons thinks that opening the college to whites as well as Indians, pursuant to fact of the last General Assembly, will boost enrollment to such extent there will be need for much larger dormitories for which he request $465,000. A swimming pool is asked for at a cost of $110,000. Smaller items, renovations and repairs run total requests for the physical plant to about $600,000.

The records show that enrollment has remained fairly static for several years. Since 11 white white pupils were counted during the past session, it means the Indian enrollment is falling off. The budgeteers could not see much justification in that condition for the tremendous expansion program planned. Their attitude was that if the present facilities are utilized to overcrowding, as is the case at State and other colleges, and there seems demand for additional rooms—then will be time enough to talk about the project.

Now She Shuns U.S. Cheesecake

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Denise Darcel, who once sold Camembert on the streets of Paris, is now wary of American cheesecake.

Not cheesecake, the food-but cheesecake, the art form. She says she positively no longer will pose in the chesty postures that first won her attention when she arrived here in 1946, billed as "the most beautiful girl in France."

She feels there are at least 1,000 girls in America who could match her in the cheesecake realm merely by drawing a deep breath.

"At first I do this because they told me to, and I don't know better," she said. "Now I know better.

"I have something else. I have talent. I want to perfection my career. I like to be the dramatic actress and to do the comedy. When you can make the people to laugh, you can also make them to cry."

Denise has proved her point. After flopping in Hollywood initially, she got a job behind a sales counter in Beverly Hills and started working her way up in show business all over again.

Today she gets up to $5,000 a week in night clubs, co-starred recently in the film, "Vera Cruz," and now has a top spot in the Friday night Du Mont TV network show, "Gamble on Love."

But if you want to be her bosom buddy, don't praise her figure—even though she has trimmed off 25 pounds. Praise her historical knowledge. She had to quit school and go to work at 12. Now she is brushing up on her education—and her English—by taking morning classes at Hunter College in European and American history.

"I want to be a bright woman," she told me earnestly over a corned beef and cabbage luncheon at the Plaza. "And I just love history. Do you think sometime they will teach me about "A gyp? What gyp?"

"No, no, no. Not a gypt. Eeestairs—or do you say in the basement? Anyway, where you wear the skirt. The blouse is upstairs."

"I was very upset when eet was printed that I said that if monneey grows on trees, then I weel be weeling to marry an ape.

"I reely wan' to marry and have babies, but I don' ask any husban' to support me. All my life, since I am 12, I work. I much rather to be happy in a small cafe with a man I love than in El Morocco with a reech man I don' love."

Somebody at the table sneezed; somebody else murmured, "God bless you."

"Do you know why they say, 'God bless you'?" asked Denise. "A few hondred year ago when somebody sneeze it was a symptom of the bubonic plague. And people make the sign of the Cross and say 'God bless you,' because they theenk he is dying.

"I theenk I learn that in school —or was it in a taxi? I forget who tole me. But when you make a hiccup, nobody say 'God bless you.' So why if you make a sneeze?"

Since Denise looked so svelte, I told her she really owed it as a matter of loyalty to the fans of her cheesecake past to let them know if she still felt in shape after dieting off 25 pounds.

"Well," she said, laughter lighting up the blue candles of her eyes, "I am a size 14 dress upstairs, a size 10 dress in the middle, and a size 12 dress downgyp'—where they have the Peramids and the dead mummies."

Just to see if she really were studying her history book, I asked her what happened in the year 1066.

"The battle of 'Astings—Weelyam the Concurrer, he wheep Eengland," she said triumphantly. "Now you tell me—wot happen in 1649?"

I couldn't think of a thing.

"The Toleration Act by Lord Baltimore was signed," she said, "It geeves religious freedom in Marylar[illegible]."

Denise, who wore a very high-necked polka dot dress with a demure white collar, insisted she was really vexed about the glamour girl publicity buildup which she believes got her off to a false start in this country.

Worth Noting

ONLY FEW LINES... .... BOOST SALES IN MAY.... .....

May retail sales were under both May, 1953, and April, 1954, as the flash reports indicated. Figures by lines, however, show a few bright spots. Grocery store sales were up 1 per cent over a year ago; meat markets, 3 per cent; fruit stores and vegetable markets, 9 per cent; eating and drinking places, 1 per cent; furriers, 14 per cent; service stations, 7 per cent; fuel and fuel oil dealers, 5 per cent; florists, 1 per cent; book stores, 5 per cent, and sporting goods and bicycle stores, 7 per cent. That leaves quite a few lines behind the minus sign.

Neighbors Help Harvest His Tobacco

Neighbors of Bender Little, Negro, of Grimesland, Route 1, are devoting their Saturday mornings to harvesting the tobacco crop of the invalid man.

Little was taken ill early this year and has since been unable to do the heavy work required around his farm. His next door neighbor, Lyman Hardee, realizing Little's situation, banded together the neighbors in the area and the group is now donating their service on Saturday morning to harvesting the tobacco crop on Little's farm.

One Saturday morning recently more than 30 individuals were in the fields at one time harvesting the five-acre tobacco crop.

"It looked like a sight to be seen last Saturday morning," Little said of the operation. He was able to sit on his front porch and watch the primers at work in the tobacco field directly across the road.

Little noted that 15 primers were at work in the field at one time. Four loopers were at work at tobacco barns and later two additional loopers were added. Others donated their services at other tasks.

The neighborhood project will be continued each Saturday morning until the entire tobacco crop is harvested and in the barns. Little says that the group is able to complete the work each Saturday in three hours time.

Negro County Agent James T. Goode notes that it is not goine to cost the Littles one penny to harvest their tobacco crop.

He figures that with labor costing approximately $1 an hour and with 31 persons working three hours each Saturday morning the cost of the labor donated each week amounts to $93.

"This should be an inspiration to other communities to do likewise should such an occasion occur," Goode says.

Goode states that the entire operation will take five or six Saturdays.

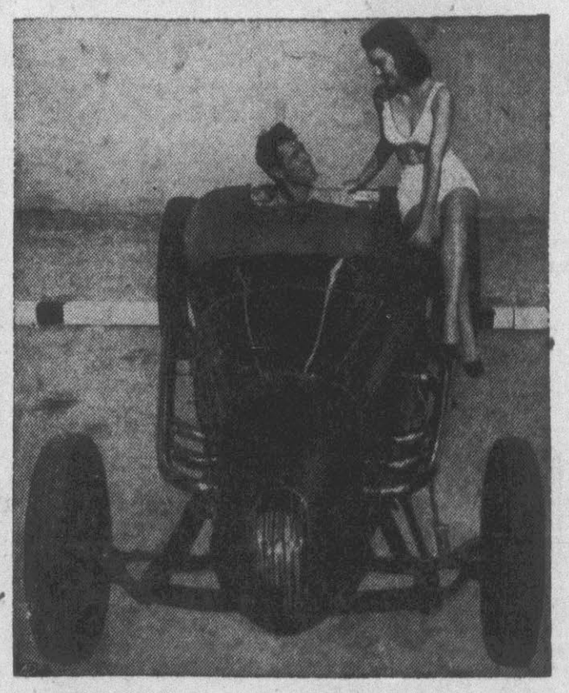

Thelma Little is shown as she looks over tobacco which was recently taken from the curing barn by neighbors who are assisting her and her invalid husband. The neighbors are donating their time each Saturday morning to harvest the crops. The Littles have a five-acre tobacco allotment.

Bender Little of Grimesland Route 1 is shown on the porch of his home. Little has been in bad health and unable to work most of this year. His neighbors are devoting their Saturday mornings to assisting Little by putting in his tobacco for him. One Saturday over 30 persons were working on his farm. (Reflector Photos by Alvin Taylor)

Hot Rodders Act To Underscore Safety

BOY TELLS GIRL—Specially developed cars like this often are engineering achievements. But now the hot rodders are organizing nationally to make them safe as well as fast.

By JAN HARTNETT
AP Newsfeatures

CHICAGO—The Automobile Timing Assn. of America is organizing the nation's hot rods in a move to rid the highways of the menace of the "shot rods."

The ATAA is a non-profit organization which came into being in 1953 to operate a ½ mile "drag strip" speedway on an abandoned air strip at Half Day, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. The organization's expenses currently are underwritten by Arnold Maremont, a Chicago manufacturer of automotive products and a racing enthusiast.

Maremot says his company backs the ATAA program for its role in fostering highway safety and in developing future automotive engineers. This year's expanded racing program calls for supervised racing in 15 cities in eight states.

"The true hot rodder is proud of his title," Maremont says. "To him the public menace is the "shot rodder," who roars down public highways in a souped-up, defective jalopy thinking only of speed and never safety."

Maremont says ATAA now represents some 5,000 hot-rodders in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana.

"We expect to go national soon," Maremont says. "Enthusiasm is so great that when ATAA invited 26 hot-rod leaders to a planning meeting in Chicago, 53 showed up." ATAA officials have been receiving inquiries about the "drag strip" program from several states.

"Unlike the reckless 'shot rodder,' Maremont continued, "the hot rodder builds for as combination of high speed with maximum safety. We feel that a "drag strip"—a safe, off-the-street area—will provide a controlled meeting place where the hot-rodder could educate the 'shot rodder' in building for safety first, speed second."

A "drag strip" is a straight half-mile course. Usually it is laid out on abandoned air strips or unused sections of four-lane highways. In a "drag race" two vehicles race down the course. Their speed is electrically timed for the first quarter mile; the second quarter is used for safe deceleration.

Stiff ATAA safety regulations guarantee that every car is in perfect operating condition before it is permitted on the strip. Safety belts and crash helmets are standard equipment. In 25 Sundays of racing at Maremont Speedway last summer there have been no accidents. Some races drew up to 3,000 fans and 300 entries. One ATAA contest at St. Charles, Mo. in November attracted 140 competitors and 2,000 spectators.

This summer Maremont will award a trophy and a university scholars ,p to the owner of the best-engineered entry in the Bonneville National Speed Trials. This "World Series of hot-rodding' is held each year on the salt flats near Bonneville, Utah.

Phenix City Vice Dens Are Raided

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP) — National Guardsmen and state troopers turned their attention to the notorious bridge area here yesterday in the second consecutive raid on Phenix City vice dens.

Hundreds of spectators watched as the militia added to a growing pile of confiscated gambling equipment, weapons and narcotics.

The martial law order issued by Gov. Gordon Persons Thursday directed that all private citizens as well as police officers turn in all firearms and other weapons.

The military took over all law enforcement after the governor's unprecedented proclamation declared that Russell County officers were either "unwilling or unable" to enforce the crackdown brought on by the slaying of Albert L. Patterson, Alabama,'s incoming attorney general.

The Montgomery Advertiser yesterday quoted Russell Circuit Solicitor Arch Ferrell as saying that he is "the prime suspect" but denying he "either pulled the trigger or knows who pulled the trigger" when Patterson was murdered in an alley June 18.

Ferrell has been relieved of all official duties in Russell County and is under indictment by a Birmingham grand jury on vote fraud charges.

Reported Theft From Smokehouse Is Investigated

Members of the Pitt County Sheriff's department are investigating the reported robbery of a smokehouse belongng to Tommy Elks of the Eastern Pines sections.

Officers said Elks reported yesterday one ham, one shoulder and several sides of meat were missing from the smokehouse. They quoted Elks as saying the theft was discovered yesterday morning. He had not been to the smokehouse since Tuesday, they said, so the exact date of the theft could not be established.

Bloodhounds were taken to the scene by officers yesterday but were unable to pick up a trail leading from the smokehouse.

Suspended Term In Liquor Case

Jesse Hall, 40-year-old Negro of 106-B First Street, was sentenced to six months in jail today suspended on payment of $450 for possessing 19 one-half gallons of non-tax-paid liquor.

Hall gave notice of appeal after being tried in Police Court this morning.

Pitt ABC officers found the liquor Saturday night and charged Hall with illegal possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

Copyright, 1954, by Bart Spicer. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

A dated scrap of paper marked "Delta Lines, Cabin 5." sends detective Carney Wilde aboard a luxury boat cruising from Cincinnati to New Orleans, in the hope of apprehending one Charles Alexander Stewart. This youthful clerk had absconded with funds belonging to a bank in Philadelphia, and in the course of his flight, had killed a policeman.

CHAPTER SEVEN

I EASED the key gently into the lock of Miss Pomeroy's room and turned it. Then I pulled the key out silently and put it away. I went in fast. I had my hand on my .38 in the shoulder holster when I stepped over the threshold. I shut the door and stepped warily toward the bathroom, peeked inside quickly. Nothing. I took my hand away from my gun. There were twin beds. A luggage rack stood at the foot of each, and both of them held two suitcases. A fur-lined tweed coat hung across the two nearest me. In the corner near the bathroom was a large stuffed pigskin kitbag. Miss Pomeroy really did have a lot of luggage. The trunk was against the far wall.

It was a big airplane-cloth wardrobe in tan with chocolate stripes. It was opened vertically, the opening facing away from me. I moved forward.

I pulled the trunk away from the wall and used my right hand and right foot to spread it open farther. The two halves slid apart with a thin metallic jangling of empty clothes hangers. The sound was harsh and almost startling in the still room.

A gun jabbed into my back while I was still leaning heavily on my ribs.

"Stay just like that," a voice said in a wavery tone, a voice made thin and tight with tension. "Who are you?"

I turned my head and looked at the gun that was only inches away. A small gun probably a .32, but big enough. It was bigger than the one Stewart had used to shoot me. It was a frightened moment before I looked up to see who was holding the gun.

Miss Pomeroy stood tautly poised like a fencer, both feet squarely on the floor, her knees slightly bent, her whole body concentrated on the gun she held pointed toward my belt buckle. Dark eyebrows were pulled into a straight line and her full soft mouth was thinned with tension. She held an open handbag in her left hand, held it high, ready to flip it into my face as a distraction if I tried to rush her.

I wasn't going to jump the gun, but I was thinking how easy it would be if I didn't have a bad shoulder. And if my nerve had been better. She stepped back briskly, as if she could read my thoughts.

"We need more light," she said, almost to herself. She slid her handbag under her right elbow, clamped it fast and then fumbled along the wall for the switch, her eyes never once leaving mine. I shifted my weight slowly to both feet, but I kept my right hand flat on top of the trunk, blinking my eyes when bright overhead lights came on.

Miss Pomeroy wore a heather tweed suit, cut to fit snugly on her tall slim body. I could see a small triangle of blue sweater at the neck. She was very tall for a woman, five-feet-nine, possibly more, but she still wore high heels on her cordovan pumps. With those heels she was a scant two or three inches shorter than I was but everything was perfectly in proportion.

I looked at her. And she was the promised land. It was a sharp, unexpected feeling, just as distinct in its way as the pain in my shoulder. Her eyebrows lost their hard straightness and her forehead showed new lines of bewilderment. Her mouth was no longer tense.

"What are you doing here?" The voice dwindled to a soft whisper, with none of it previous harshness. She was lovely, I thought.

"The empty trunk," I said. "The purser was curious about it. There's a fugitive we think might be on board and we—"

"And you," Miss Pomeroy said, "represent the purser."

"Sure," I said stupidly.

"That's a lie," she snapped, and any hint of unsureness was gone from her voice. "You're a private detective from Philadelphia. Your name is Carney Wilde and you're a very rough fellow. Oh, I know you Mr. Carney Wilde. All about you. Now I think we'll call whatever passes for police on this boat."

The bewilderment was all mine now. I muttered, staring at her, "How do you—"

"I took your picture once," she said watching me warily while her left hand moved in long swift arcs across the wall searching for the telephone. "You were quite the man of the hour, all because you had beat a confession out of some poor young man. The cops all thought you were fine." Her dark blue eyes told me her opinion was different.

"I never beat a confession out of anybody," I said hotly.

"Not even Gerald Dodge?" she asked, her lips scornful.

"Not even Dodge," I growled. "We proved he was a murderer, three times a murderer. He went for the high pillow. Do you remember all that, too? Or do you just remember I clouted him once while we were playing guessing games?"

The telephone was on the other side of the door from her and she was getting farther away with each movement.

"The phone's on the other side," I said. "The man you want is the purser. Tell him to come down here and bring Russell with him. And while you're about it, you—"

Miss Pomeroy staggered forward, almost going to her knees. Only a convulsive effort kept her on her feet. I jumped forward, stumbling against the trunk, but managing to snatch the pistol from her hand while she was still off balance.

"Russell's here. Been outside all the time."

The assistant purser tried to grin at me but wobbled into a nervous grimace. He had shoved open the door timing it just right to stagger Miss Pomeroy.

"Good boy," I said.

Miss Pomeroy held herself erect with one hand against the wardrobe trunk. Her open handbag had fallen to the floor. I went forward and picked it up.

"You hold this." I pitched the girl's pistol to Russell. I upended the handbag over the bed, shook everything out, looking for her wallet. Miss Pomeroy kept hers in a zipper compartment that was difficult to open with only one hand. Inside it was a flat packet of money all in 50's. About $500 or $600, I guessed. With the cash was a red morocco card case and that was what I was after.

Miss E.J.Pomeroy lived in Narberth, a close-in suburb of Philadelphia. She was a member of the Camera club, the Red Cross, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Reserve Officers of Naval Services. A deck of business cards said she was also E.J.Pomeroy of E.J. Pomeroy and Associates, commercial photographers. Nothing else looked interesting in her bag except a small unset diamond in a twist of tissue. I put everything back as neatly as I could.

Then I took the gun from Russell and tossed it on to the bed.

I said to Miss Pomeroy: "What I said before is perfectly true. There may be a fugitive on board this boat. A murderer. He reserved this bedroom almost six weeks ago for this cruise. Then, at the last minute, you showed up in his place. With an empty trunk. I suppose I should go about this another way, but I was afraid that your conversation with Sergt. Kebble would have put you out of any notion of co-operating. So I asked the purser to bring you to his office while I had a look around. What brought you back so soon?"

"Couldn't figure it," Russell said. "We were halfway up the stairs when she gave a little gasp and turned around, heading back here. I couldn't catch her in time."

"Glad you came back," I said. I asked Miss Pomeroy why she had returned so quickly.

She shrugged. "The purser came a few minutes ago to look at my ticket. I assumed he would want to see it again. I'd left it in my coat so I came back for it. And found a thug in my cabin."

I reached back for the heavy, fur-lined tweed coat, hauled it around to find the pocket and pulled out a wadded mass of papers. The top one said "Delta Lines" and it was an official receipt. I didn't look at the rest of them.

"Fair enough," I said. I got up and walked aimlessly across the floor, staring out at the dull water and the icy shoreline. "But what about the empty trunk?"

"What about it?" Miss Pomeroy snapped.

"An empty trunk is rather unusual," I said softly. "Most people going on a trip take a full one. What did you fill yours with, Miss Pomeroy?"

"Nothing."

I glanced over my shoulder at Russell. "It wasn't empty when she came aboard," he said flatly. The good humor was gone now and he turned to stare suspiciously at Miss Pomeroy.

Clothes In Quantity For Young Actress

By HUBBARD KEAVY
(For BOB Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If you, young lady, were in Debbie Reynolds' shoes (any of her 142 pairs) you would have to have scads of clothes, too. You would keep them in closets too small, in boxes under all of the beds in your tiny house and in the garage made into a guest room.

You would have four very formal formals and at least 20 short formals. You would wear your formals about once a year because as a movie starlet you couldn't let your admirers down by wearing the same outfit too often.

You'd wear a size five dress, but if you couldn't find fives you'd buy sevens and have your mother alter them. You'd watch for sales and buy in quantity. For instance, the other day you would have bought 20 pairs of shoes (sizes 4 and 4½) because they were on sale. You'd have taken only 45 minutes for this sizeable purchase.

If you were Debbie you'd have "oh, a whole mess of cocktail dresses and suits—maybe 15 in all." And you'd remember what you wore each time you went out with Eddie Fisher, because if you were Debbie you'd be dating Eddie.

You'd have drawers full of slacks and pedal pushers, of shorts and T-shirts, boxes of sweaters (some not yet out of their factory wrappings) and a dozen swimming suits. "Funny thing," you'd say if you were this girl, "when I couldn't afford swimming suits I always had one faded one. Now that I can afford them, people give them to me."

In your wardrobe also would be 30 skirts and I know because I counted them for you, 45 blouses. And an uncounted number of winter suits and jersey blouses which I couldn't count because they were in the cedar chest I was sitting on in Debbie's bedroom.

You wouldn't have too many furs because you don't like them too well. The demands of the business would require two: "a beaver coat for winter and a platinum mink stole are all I have." You'd have two dressy evening sweaters, both in white, one trimmed in white mink and one in gold leaf.

All of your $750 weekly salary wouldn't be spent on clothes, if you were Debbie. Only a very small portion of it, actually because your mother would make more than half your dresses. And you'd keep on wearing things for years and years because your height and weight would stay the same.

Jewelry would be unimportant; a few pieces of costume jewelry. That's all that would be in your jewel box except an even dozen fraternity pins (no two alike) but "they're not jewelry—heck, they're—well, you know how fellas are."

You'd choose simple things in gay, happy colors. You wouldn't want stuff that is too frilly "because men don't like girls like me to be TOO feminine, do they? What I mean is, skip the ixy-poo."

(I know about this interpretive writing, boos, but I'm a square—can't dig that ixy-poo.)

Predict Leprosy To Become Rare

BRAZZAVILLE, French Equatorial Africa (AP)—There is hope for the 56,000 lepers in French Equatorial Africa that progression of their disease will be stopped and a near certainty that the following generation will hear of leprosy as a rare disease like the plague in Europe or America.

The French Equatorial African health service, made the prediction in a report on a new campaign against leprosy. The campaign has been made possible by use of sulfone drugs which have revolutionized the traditional methods of caring for lepers.

Big Business Sees Profits Still Firm

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Record earnings by some corporate giants are more than offsetting the more sober plight of half of the nation's business firms.

Early birds reporting on their second-quarter net income after taxes show today that more than half are running behind their 1953 figures. And 6 of the 49 to report so far operated in the red in the last three months — while only one did a year earlier.

But so rosy are the reports of some of the big boys that lumping the earnings of the 49 you get a net income total 7.4 per cent higher than the same companies chalked up in the April, May and June period of 1953 — a period which for the nation's business generally saw an earnings peak until that time.

Of the 49, there were 23 with rosier statements this year and 26 who did better the year before.

Good gains in profits this year are reported by Du Pont and General Electric, although each had lower volume than a year ago. The end of the excess profits tax gets a large share of the credit.

Operating costs too are down for a number of firms—reflecting the use of new and more efficient equipment, and management economies.

Continental Can and Container Corp. also shows good earnings increases. Others on the plus side include cement companies, utilities, food processors and building material firms.

The majority of banks whose earnings statements are now available also show earnings gains this year.

But six companies report their operations in red ink for the three months just ended. Five of them are in the depressed textile industry and one makes railroad equipment.

Considerable decline in profits from a year ago are reported by some companies making steel, brass and machinery. Slight drops in earnings are reported by others in the aluminum, business machine, rayon, and piping business, as well as some other steel concerns.

None need be taken as typical of its industry. This appears to be a year of wide divergence between industries and between company results within industries.

Air Force Opens Own Recruiting Branch For Area

Under a reorganization plan of the armed services recruiting organization, the Air Force has inaugurated a recruiting branch of its own.

Technical Sergeant Dallas Quidley Jr., USAF, has been assigned as recruiting officer for the Greenville area and will be in Greenville on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The office of the Air Force recruiting station serving Pitt, Martin, Bertie, Washington, Tyrrell and Dare counties is located upstairs in the Greenville Post Office building.

Sergeant Quidley, in announcing the change in recruiting procedures, said the Air Force is "in dire need of Aviation Cadets and Aircraft Observer applicants. High School graduates are now eligible for these commissioned positions."

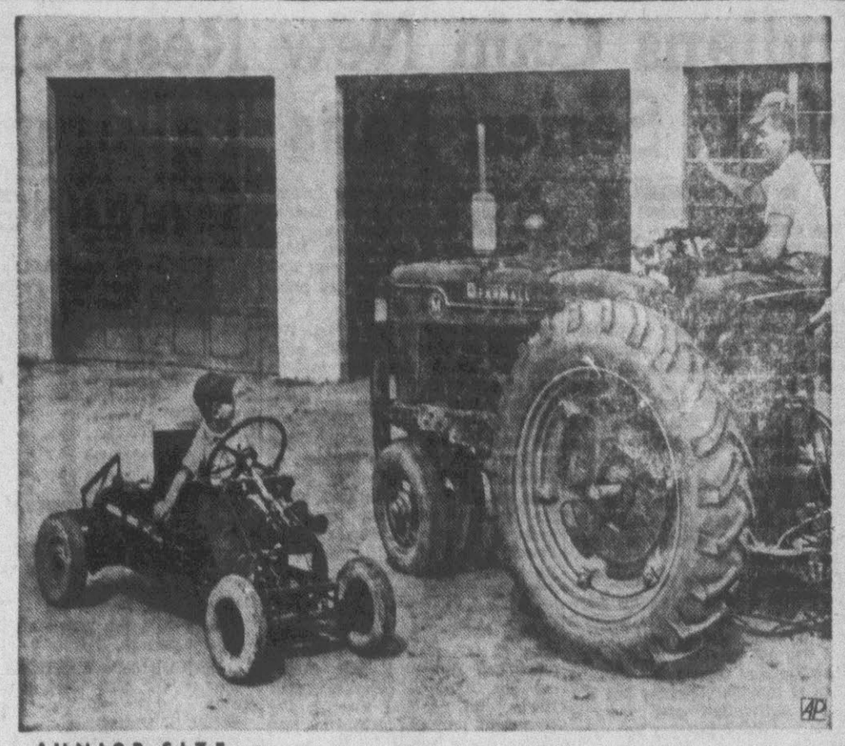

Dictator Monkey Quickly Dunked

SANFORD, Fla. (AP)—When Jiggles, a spider monkey, and three buddies set up a monkey-dictatorship and tried to corner the food supply for all the monkeys, an opposition party formed quickly and tossed Jiggles into the moat around the monkey island at the zoo.

Arnold Hood, zookeeper, says that everytime he tries to put Jiggles back on the island the result is the same—he's tossed in the water by the outraged monkeys.

Now Jiggles, languishing in a private cage, is for sale.

Damages Topped Value Of Auto

DETROIT (AP)—Traffic Referee Rollin D. Shull ruled it wasn't up to him to decide whether a $340 automobile could sustain $550 damages.

Jack Lichtig complained James Andrews ran a red light and did $550 damages to Lichtig's car. Shull asked what Lichtig's car cost when he bought it and got $340 for the answer, but Lichtig quickly added: "A garage says says it'll take $550 to fix it up. That's all I know."

Shull fined Andrews $20 for reckless driving; ordered damages fixed in civil court proceedings.

Indians Gain New Respect Following N. Y. Series; Fans Talking Pennant

By JOE REICHLER
(AP Sports Writer)

The Cleveland Indians failed to sweep the Yankee series in New York yesterday but they have gained a new-found respect all over the American League.

Back home today after a successful road trip, the league-leading Indians found the home town fans talking pennant for the first time this season. Before, when they returned home in first place, the cynical Cleveland populace would greet them like this:

"Why get steamed up? They never win the big ones. They wilt before the Yankees. Especially in New York. They'll blow it again down the stretch."

The Indians arrived in New York Friday with a thin half-game edge over the Yankees and left Sunday night a game and a half ahead. That was not exactly wilting.

The Yankees nipped the Indians 4-3 in 11 innings yesterday but the Tribe's satisfaction over victories Friday and Saturday was not dimmed.

Casey Stengel, Yankees' manager, muttered:

"This has got to go down to the last weeks. Cleveland is not going to blow up. They got too many good players for that."

The Indians are obviously a much better club than the one that finished second to the Yankees in 1951, 1952 and 1953. As Stengel pointed out: "For the first time in years they've got a strong bench and good second-line pitching to back up the big three."

In the National League, the New York Giants' lead was whittled down to four games yesterday as the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers defeated St. Louis 2-1 while the Milwaukee Braves were walloping the Giants 7-5 for a sweep of the three-game series. The Dodgers meet New York at Ebbets Field tonight.

Chicago's surprising Cubs downed Philadelphia twice, 6-1 and 2-1. Pittsburgh and Cincinnati divided a doubleheader, the Pirates winning the opener 4-2 and the Redlegs taking the nightcap 3-2.

Chicago's third-place White Sox climbed to within six games of the pace-setting Indians in the American, sweeping a twin-bill from Boston 5-2 and 4-2. Jack Harshman, rookie Chicago lefthander, struck out 16 Red Sox batters—two short of Bob Feller's major league record—in the opener.

Washington protected its fourth-place hold by beating the Detroit Tigers 11-3. Frank (Spec) Shea won his first game of the season. Philadelphia's Athletics buried the Baltimore Orioles deeper in the cellar with 9-4 and 6-4 victories.

Cleveland enjoyed a 3-1 lead over the Yankees until the seventh. Mike Garcia, seeking his 13th victory, was chased in that inning when the Yankees tied the score on pitch hitter Eddie Robinson's double with the bases loaded. Rookies Bob Grim of New York and Ray Narleski of Cleveland battled on even terms from the eighth until the 11th, when the Yankees filled the bases on walks to Mickey Mantle and Gene Woodling and an infield single by Irv Noren. Andy Carey hit past a drawn-in infield to break up the game.

Clem Labine, making his second start of the season for Brooklyn, outpitched Harvey Haddix, Cardinal ace. Labine permitted four singles and no runs through the first eight innings but hits by Ray Jablonski and Red Schoendients and walks to Stan Musial and Joe Cunningham after two were out scored a St. Louis run and filled the bases. Jim Hughes replaced Labine and struck out Rip Repulski on three pitches to save his 17th game for the Dodgers.

Andy Pafko drove in three runs with his 11th homer and a bases-loaded single to spark the Braves to their third straight victory over the Giants. Pafko's single off reliever Ruben Gomez in the seventh drove in the tying and winning runs.

Bob Talbot's ninth- inning single followed Dee Fondy's run-producing double in a two-run rally that gave the Cubs a 2-1 victory over the Phillies and a sweep of the double-header.

Pitcher Howie Judson won his own game with a tie-breaking single in the seventh to give the Redlegs a split after Frank Thomas had paced Pittsburgh to a first-game victory with a homer and three singles.

The White Sox followed up Harshman's sensational strikeout performance by defeating an old nemesis—Ellis Kinder—in the second game with a two-run seventh inning rally that broke a 2-2 tie.

A seven-run eighth inning in the first game and a four-run seventh in the second enabled the Athletics to come from behind twice against the Orioles.

Falkland Beats Winterville In Two TBL Games

FALKLAND — Falkland's baseball team won two Tobacco Belt League games from Winterville over the past weekend. On Saturday at Falkland the local nine won 9-6 for their eleventh straight victory at home while on Sunday at Winterville Falkland won 8-3.

In Saturday's game Falkland trailed 5-0 when they came to bat in the second inning. Winterville had scored four runs for four hits and one error in the first inning and one run on two hits in the second.

Falkland scored twice in the second inning on a double followed by a triple.

Coming back in the third inning Falkland scored another run on two more hits.

Winterville used a hit batsman and a double for their sixth tally in the fourth inning.

From there on Saturday it was all Falkland. In the fourth one more run was added to run the score to 6-4.

Coming back in the fifth Falkland iced the game on two home runs—both two run round trippers. Paul Jones started Falkland's half of the sixth with a ringing double to left-centerfield. Cotton Webb grounded out short to first, but Ed Stokes blasted a long round tripper over the trees in left to score two runs and tie the game at 6-6.

After Ralph Caldwell struck out Red Painter got a single. Bob Boyette followed with the second home run of the inning—a line drive down the left field line. This hit would probably have only been a double except the leftfield hesitated while thinking it a foul ball.

Falkland added an insurance run in the seventh on an error, stolen base and a single.

Clyde Owens, pitching his first game, was the winning pitcher. He allowed 10 hits, striking out seven.

Max Pollard was Winterville's starting and losing pitcher. He was relieved in the fifth by Tom Boyd.

On Sunday it was entirely a different type game with a pitcher's duel going for five innings. Through the first four innings Falkland had gotten only one hit off Bobby Coggins and Winterville had managed only three hits off Ken Hall.

In the fifth Tom Hamill led off with a single for Falkland. He was erased at third on Webb's fielder's choice to short stop. Ed Stokes then blasted a triple to right-centerfield scoring Webb with the first run.

Another Falkland run was added in the sixth on one hit. In the seventh Falkland broke loose for four runs to sew the game up as two walks, two hits, a hit batsman and a sacrifice fly accounted for the four runs.

Two more runs were added in the eighth inning as Paul Jones tripled after Ken Hall had singled. Jones came home on an error by the third baseman.

Winterville made a desperate effort to get back in the game by scoring three times in the eighth inning. Hobgood started the rally by getting a walk. After Boyd flied out to rightfield and McDowell struck out four successive singles by Pollard, Mellon, Dash and Tripp scored the three runs. Hall struck Robinson out to end the rally and the day's scoring as both teams failed to put a run across in the ninth.

Prior to the two weekend games Falkland had won 16 and lost eight. Winterville had a 15 and 9 record. The two wins dropped Winterville three games behind Falkland in the battle for positions in the playoffs. Robersonville and Williamston lead the league.

This weekend Falkland meets Pinetops in a pair of games. On Saturday the contest is slated for Pinetops. On Sunday the two teams meet in Falkland.

Trainer-Driver Del Miller with Stenographer, a well-liked filly for the coming $115,000 Hambletonian trot on Aug. 4 at Goshen, N. Y.

Driver-Trainer Again Has Fast Hambletonian Entry

AP Newsfeatures

GOSHEN, N.Y. — The Kiteshaped Good Time Park here will be the jewelled arena of harness racing on Wdnesday, August 4, with the running of the $115,000 Hambletonian stake.

Newport Star, an Axiomite colt owned by Octave Blake of South Plainfield, N.J., was reported to be a certain winner before the stake race last year. But, an obscure young filly named Helicopter came through to push Newport Star out of the winning post. This year Newport Star is attempting a measure of revenge in his full brother, Newport Dream, who is a new Dream ill have Del Cameron, 34, as his trainer-driver and Cameron drove Newport Star when it lost to Helicopter.

Another prime entry in the Hambletonian is Stenographer, a small filly owned by Max Hempt, of Camp Hill, Pa. She won $58,000 last year. She is the co-holder (with Princess Rodney) of the world time trial mark of 2:01 for juvenile fillies (the old record of 2:02 had stood since 1929).

If reports of Newport Dream's recent ailments are true, Stenographer, a Del Miller-trained filly, may make it two years straight—the first time any gals from the same string have repeated since '37. Miller trained Helicopter who won last year.

The most recent compilation of probable starters in the 29th edition of the trotting world's "Kentucky Derby" are:

Plan Tribute To Billy Joe Patton

GRENSBORO (AP) — The North Carolina section of the PGA will honor Billy Joe Patton, the state's and perhaps the nation's most famous amateur in October.

Patton, of Morganton, nearly won the Masters and later took the North and South Amateur title and finished low in the National Open. He will be guest of honor at a special dinner during the Carolinas PGA event at the Green Valley Golf Course here, Oct. 5-7.

He has not committed himself to play the tournament but has consented to play the first day at least.

Club Owners In Annual Meeting

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league club owners held their annual midsummer meetings today and the executives had to worry not only about new player demands but faced a problem from within as well.

Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, has come up with the revolutionary idea that American and National League clubs play interleague games to count in the standings.

Most of the owners shuddered at the thought and Greenberg's proposal had little chance of getting even a luke warm reception.

"It would spice the schedule," Greenberg said. "In a year where one team makes a runaway of the race, more or less killing off fan interest, an interleague schedule would help keep baseball interest alive.

"Fans in Cleveland read about the Musials, Kiners, Robinsons and other stars in the National League, but never get to see them. An interleague schedule would bring them all into Cleveland. I see nothing whatsoever detrimental about it."

Each club in one league would play each club in the other league four times—two games at home and two away. Greenberg said it has worked out fine in the National Football League between the National Football League between the Eastern and Western Conference teams.

The winter baseball problem also faced the owners. With the players, it's a matter of dollars and cents. They want to negotiate directly with the clubs in the Caribbean leagues, and, further, demand permission for an unlimited number of players to perform in the loops.

Under present rules, the Caribbean owners deal with the clubs, not the players, who figure they could drive a better bargain themselves. Also, only three established major leaguers are permitted to play with each Caribbean club, all o fwhich are centered in Cuba, Puerto Rico, Venezuela, Panama and Mexico.

Farmville Meets Non-League Foe Saturday Night

FARMVILLE — Two teams from different leagues in Eastern North Carolina will battle here Saturday night at 8:15.

Farmville's entry in the strong Central Carolina League will meet Falkland of the Tobacco Belt League in an exhibition contest.

Farmville holds second place in the Central Carolina with 20 wins and eight losses while Falkland is one game out of first in the Tobacco Belt League with 18 wins and eight losses.

The starting pitcher for Farmville has not been announced, but Falkland plans to start Clyde "Mullet" Owens, an East Carolina College proluct. Owens has won his ony start for Falkland.

Softball League Begins Tourney With Six Teams

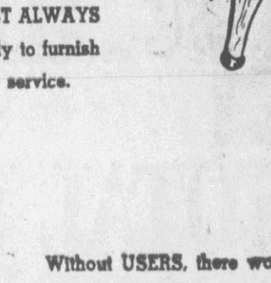

The Recreation Softball League announced a double elimination tournament starting Tuesday night at 7:30.

The tournament will round out the full scale of play in the softball league this summer. Only six of the eight teams in the league are entered in the tournament. The National Guard and the Jolly Rogers did not enter.

The tournament starts with two games on Tuesday, the first one starting at 7:30 between the Graniteers and the Southern Bread. At 9 o'clock Tuesday the Home Builders and the Harris Super Markets play.

On Wednesday the tourney will get into high gear with a triple-header. At 7 o'clock Wednesday the Carolina Dairy will play the winner of the Graniteer-Southern Breal game. At 8:15 Garner-Wynne-Manning plays the winner of the Home Builders-Harris Super Markets game. At 9 o'clock Wednesday the losers of the Graniteer-Southern Bread game and the Home Builders-Harris Super Markets game square away to eliminate one of the teams.

Vic Seixas Hints He Is Near End Of Line

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Vic Seixas, the nation's No. 2 amateur, says that after the National Championships next month he plans to sit down and "consider how much longer I'm going to play tennis."

Seixas, a Philadelphian who will reach his 31st birthday during the National Championships at Forest Hills, hopes to gain his first National crown as a birthday present Vic says that at his age he does not "expect to improve. It's just a matter of how long I can hold my peak."

He looked great yesterday in winning the Pennsylvania State Grass Court championship for the sixth time with a 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4 over Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., the nation's third-ranked player.

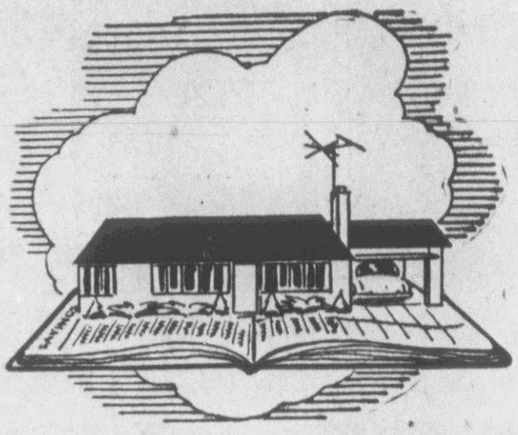

But Vic said after the match that while his mechanical game was near the peak he reached in winning the Wimbledon championship last year, his mental attitude wasn't the same. He's taking this week off and then plans to go after the Eastern Grass Courts doubles championships with No. 1 ranked Tony Trabert. All the while, Seixas said, he'll be trying to regain the mental attitude necessary to capture the National title.

He declined to predict the outcome of the tourney, noting that Trabert and Australians Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall were also expected to enter.

Vic said that almost every year he has considered quitting the steady tennis grind that takes the country's top amateurs from their homes for about nine months every year. Vic has always continued on the tour because his game has improved or held steady Now, Seixas seems a little dubious of his ability to keep in top form.

"I'll probably be available" for the next Davis Cup matches, Seixas said, hinting they might be his last. He and Trabert have tried for the past two years to bring the cup back from Australia where it has rested for four years.

Seixas proved yesterday that he plays good doubles without Trabert as he tamed with Ham Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., to win the state men's grass court double's championship from Ed Moylan of Trenton, N.J., and Jerry DeWitt, San Francisci 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, 8-6.

The interesting Case of the Three Legged Stool and Your Telephone Company

Now everybody knows that a three-legged stool with three stout legs is a strong and happy stool. And just like the three-legged stool, your TELEPHONE COMPANY stands on three legs that MUST ALWAYS be strong and sturdy to furnish the best telephone service.

Without USERS, there would be no telephone service, for it would be of no value. And the more users there are, the more valuable your telephone service is to you.

Without CAPABLE EMPLOYEES, your telephone company could never perform its job of providing the most efficient service possible.

Without INVESTORS, no capital would be available to buy new poles, lines or telephones. Further expansion or improvement of service, or the replacement of depreciated facilities, would be impossible.

TO BE OF VALUE, ANY THREE LEGGED STOOL MUST ALWAYS HAVE THREE STRONG LEGS.

Idaho Potato King Has No Land; Ships Plenty

AP Newsfeatures

TWIN FALLS, Iwaho — Joe Marshall, the "Idaho potato king," doesn't own a single acre of land, yet he ships thousands of choice potatoes every year.

Marshall deeded his land to his children some 14 years ago and now manages a number of farms. His name on potato sacks is well known in the market.

He raised his first potatoes in 1908. The product wasn't too good. Through careful selection of seed, he developed the familiar oval russet potato marketed today. But he didn't really get started in the potato business until after a two-year stay in Utah from 1919 to 1921 when an irrigation contracting job misfired.

"I returned to Twin Falls just $36,000 worse than broke," he says.

He started farming in earnest. It was in 1922, 1923 and 1924 that he started acquiring the potato king title.

There's no mystery about growing choice spuds. Marshall insists. "All it takes is good seed, good land and proper care."

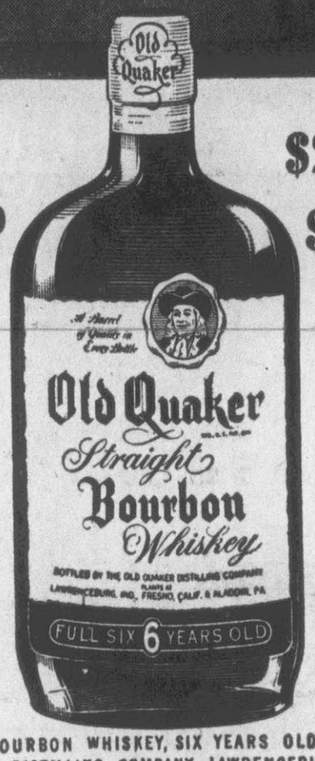

Marshall is 80 but still active. For an operation the size of his, you'd expect a fair sized office staff, but his office is one small filing cabinet in his home and the pockets of his overalls.

Hosing Down The Kids In Summer Has Its Hazards

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

The hotter the day, the more tempting a nice cool spray of water. Children love to put on bathing suits and run in and out of the spray of the lawn sprinkler.

It's fun and it seems harmless enough. However, there are a few hazards, especially for tiny tots.

If the day is very hot—and it's on such days that this idea comes up—the difference in temperature between the air and the water may be very great.

Little children chill quite easily. If a child becomes thoroughly chilled with this water play he's very likely to come down with a sore throat the next day.

It may seem like a paradox to get a sore throat from chilling when the thermometer is hovering in the high 90's. It's the sad truth just the same.

Older children seem much better able to withstand a reasonable amount of chilling without bad effects. But the little tots, the twos, threes, fours and even fives, have not built up much resistance to this kind of abuse. Not all, of course, but a fair number develop colds and sore throats are chilling.

Since it's such a lot of fun to play in the spray, is there anything to do to make it safe?

Yes—avoid chilling.

Have your sprinkler play when it isn't so blistering hot. On a warm sunny day—not a very hot one—there's less danger that the air temperature and water temperature will be so far apart as to cause chilling.

Also if there is any way you can run a bit of hot water through the garden hose you have the problem solved for any day.

If you're going to permit it anyway, and take the chance, at least be handy with a towel and dry the child off quickly as soon as he comes out of the water. This at least cuts down the hazard, though it does not eliminate it.

If instead of a sprinkler you have a backyard wading pool, it's easy to see that the water isn't too cold. If you just put the pool in the sun for an hour before the children play in it, the shallow water will warm up. If your pool is in the shade, fill it with warm instead of cold water.

Plenty Of Talk And No Eating

OMAHA (AP)—Much talk and no eat.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Gov. McKeldin of Maryland has asked President Eisenhower to give up his golf as his favorite recreation —at least long enough to try some Maryland duck hunting.

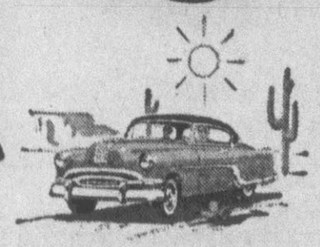

McKeldin sent the President Maryland's No. 1 hunting license yesterday and expressed hope he could find time to use it. The governor holds license No. 2.

Ladies Of This Town Are All 'In The Pink'

PINK LADIES . . . Comparing notes on experimental pink coats are (seated l. to r.): Mrs. Henry Beal, Mrs. Richard Hunger, Mrs. Robert Lee, Miss Marilyn Campbell; standing: Mrs. V. Lee Grover and Mrs. Wanda Ferguson.

AP Newsfeatures

RANGELEY, Maine—There are 40 women in this little town wearing the same pink coats.

There is no embarrassment, no hasty retreat as one wearer approaches another, or a dozen, or 39. There are smiles and considerable discussion. That's the way it's supposed to be. In Rangeley, at this particular time, it's quite distinctive to be wearing one of these pink coats.

It's all part of an experiment. Rangeley, at 1,540 feet above sea level, is New England's highest village and it's halfway between the North Pole and the Equator. The lake summer resort was selected as a testing ground for the orlon acrylic fiber garments. Wanted was a place where evenings are cool enough to require a "topper" in June, July and August.

When the test is ended, the women can keep the coats, in return for reports on their comfort and durability.

The ladies were selected on the basis of varied size, weight and occupation. Each got two coats, differing only in fiber, a calendar on which to record the hours each garment is worn, and a detailed questionnaire.

What does the fabric manufacturer want to know?

How does the material "feel" to the women? How about wrinkling, soiling, cleaning?

The women wear each coat on alternate days. The objective is to compare one with the other, from a consumer viewpoint.

Choosing the women wasn't easy. Nearly everyone wanted the coats. But the testers were chosen from among housewives, school teachers, waitresses, telephone operators, store and bank clerks and stenographers. Their ages range from 19 through 59.

The coats are worth $35 to $45 each. In fact, one question is: "How much would you be willing to pay for one of these coats?"

"The test is a bit of work, but a lot of fun," says Mrs. Robert Lee. "I'd like to get all my clothing this way."

"They're very warm without being bulky," says Mrs. Norma Wilbur.

Rangeley has a normal population of about 1,250. Figure two-thirds of them children and half of the adults women—about 215—that's a lot of pink coats per female capita.

French Courtesy Lacking In Autos

PARIS (AP)—Frenchmen have a reputation for courtsey, but they never earned it in automobiles.

L'Union Routiere, an association of French businessmen interested in highways, is determined to do something about this. The remedy is being sought in another traditional characteristic of the Frenchman his delight in collecting gold coins. L'Union Routiere is offering a goldpiece, worth about $7.75, every day to the most courteous driver it can find in Paris.
driver it can find in Paris.

The result has been somewhat more thoughtfulness in the rush hours, and a large amount of publicity for L'Union Routiere.

To watch for the courteous driver, the organization fitted out a white sedan. Whenever its driver spots a particularly courteous automobilist he takes down the license number and calls the campaign's publicity man, who immediately checks its owner with the police and grinds out a press release.

The first efforts were a little discouraging. In 135 minutes of olations and two smash-ups. It cruising, there were 28 traffic vitook an average of two hours hard searching to find a driver worthy of the gold piece. And then the day's good deed usually turned out to be something pretty ordinary, like stopping to let an old lady cross the street.

British Drinkers Declining Since World War II

LONDON (AP) — In Britain beer drinking is a national pastime—like cricket and betting on soccer pools—but the number of drinkers is on the decline.

The British treasury's "Bulletin for Industry," says the consumption of beer dropped 8 per cent while the eating of food went up sharply. With the menfolk showing up less at the neighborhood saloon the womenfolk were appearing more frequently at the gorrecy store. Food consumption rose by 1.5 per cent.

Whisky sales are down to half what they were before World War II. Wine is two-thirds what it was in 1939. But the traffic in gin is about double.

There are all sorts of explanations for the drop in beer. For one thing, there are more consumer items for sale in ships and the family money is going for them instead of in dribiets at the bar.

North Indochina Isn't All That France Might Lose

By CARL HARTMAN

PARIS, July (AP)—North Indochina is not all France stands to lose in Asia.

Also slipping are the first toeholds of the once-great French empire on that continent—the little trading stations France has held on the Indian coast for more than 200 years.

First conquered by the French in the 17th century, they were expanded into broad inland holdings. Then they were lost to the British retaken, lost and restored once more as tiny enclaves in British India.

For nearly a century and a half, the sleepy, primitive towns of French India remained French by sufferance of the British Empire. Their main industry reputedly was smuggling.

Now only two of the five original colonies, Pondichery and Karikal, are still under French control. They cover about 165 square miles, with a total population of no more than 300,000 amidst the hundreds of millions of the great Indian subcontinent. Both are on the east coast of India's Madras Province

In the past five weeks, the French have moved out of Mahe and Yanaon, two smaller posts, under pressure from enthusiastic Indian Nationalists. Chandernagor a suburb of Calcutta, was taken over by India in 1950 after a referendum.

Similar votes in the other areas have been delayed. The French maintain under their Constitution a local vote must precede the cession of any territory. The Indians are reluctant to have the vote.

The French believe the Indians fear such a vote might be thought a precedent for holding a referendum in Kashmir, where the Moslem majority might be against the present Indian control and in favor of joining Pakistan.

The Indians claim a referendum is not needed in the French-held towns because local councils already have declared for India. They also say the French wouldn't permit a fair vote.

French officials in Paris say they are not reluctant to get out, but they want to go in an orderly fashion.

$125 to $175 Per Week

I want two neat appearing men with cars to represent an old national concern, one of the largest financial institutions in the country. If you are willing to work hard for $125 up per week and you are able to work in the 50 mile area of Greenville Monday through Friday, don't pass up this ad! If you are a man of average intelligence, I want to talk to you. I know what you are probably thinking, as you read this ad, the same as I thought myself many times when I was job hunting. . . . That it is just another ad with a lot of promises. Believe me, fellows, it is not! It has been 10 months since I joined this firm and I regret to this day it wasn't 10 years ago. I have made more money in the past 10 months with this firm than I earned with other firms in the past five years. I don't care what your previous experience has been—whether it is selling magazines, books, vacuum cleaners, appliances, picture coupons or any other type of sales work. If you are able to open your mouth and talk to me, I will show you how easy it is to earn up to $175 per week with this company. Experience is not necessary, we give you complete training. If you are accepted you will be backed by millions of dollars in advanced advertising. This advertising will keep you busy constantly calling on prospects in this territory with qualified leads sent in by people demanding that our representative call on them. This is a job with security for the rest of your life. Get in on the ground floor! You owe it to yourself to answer this ad. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain. Come in and let me prove to you that this is what you've been waiting for. of Democrats.

Anderson replied that if Johnson "came forward with a program of that kind, we wouldn't have near the trouble we have had."

Johnson said he hoped he could get an agreement on such a plan and Anderson came back that "I'd be happy to join him in such an endeavor."

Sen. Holland (D-Fla) told the Senate he was voting for the cloture petition because that mechanism "should be used to break futile filibusters."

He said the debate had "long since exceeded a reasonable time."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said that if a filibuster was in progress it was because "the majority leader has driven us into all-night sessions."

Sen. Hill (D-Ala.) argued that the long sessions had prohibited reasonable discussion of actual issues in the debate by tiring out senators.

"There has been no real deliberation," he said.

The bill has been before the Senate for 10 days. Knowland kept the Senate in session for 86 hours, with a single 25-minute recess, last porters h might make a second week. Knowland indicated to retry later for cloture.

He said some senators have told him they would not vote for a cloture today, but might change their minds "because of the extreme obstructionism" if the marathon debate continues.

He said he was determined "we are going to continue in session day and night until we vote on the amendments and the bill" and that President Eisenhower has approved that course.

Lady Trucker Is Highest Scorer

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—A lady trucker who was not an entry drove through the obstacle course and scored more points than any of the men yesterday in the Wisconsin State Truck Driving Contest.

After three men, including one four-time champion, were picked as top drivers in a field of 47, someone urged Mrs. Bernice MacDonald, part-owner of a Ripon, Wis., trucking firm, to try out one of the trucks. She piloted the big vehicle through the course and was awarded 390 out of a possible 400 points.

The best effort by the three champions was 328.

See Signal To New Aggressions

TAIPEH (AP)—The National Evening News, an independent newspaper, today called the shooting down of a British airliner off Hainan Island Friday a "danger signal for further Communist aggression in the South."

The Chinese Nationalist paper described the incident as "a new Communist challenge that resulted from the Indochina settlement" and added, "It is quite apparent that Soviet Russia has converted Hainan into a major base for aggression."

Sec. Eden Wants Steps To 'Prevent Reoccurence'

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today Britain wants immediate measures to prevent a recurrence of Red China's attack on an unarmed British passenger plane over the China Seas.

Eden spoke in the House of Commons almost simultaneously with a U.S. State Department announcement that U.S. carrier planes had shot down two Chinese Communist fighters which attacked them while they were searching for survivors of the British air liner.

Eden gave no immediate indication whether he knew beforehand of the Communist planes being shot down.

He said Britain was gratified at the cooperation and assistance in rescue and search operations given by aircraft of the United States services.

He told the commons: "In the judgment of her majesty's government and in view of the clear markings on the aircraft attacked, we consider that disciplinary action should be taken by the Chinese government against those concerned."

Britain welcomes Red China's "prompt offer to make amends for this savage and inexcusable attack upon an unarmed passenger aircraft," he said.

His statement today came after Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor party opposition and a former prime minister, said: "This is not the first time on which attacks have been made on civil aircraft by members of foreign air forces who ought to be better informed.

"It does seem to be absolutely inexcusable in this case. Should not the strongest representations be made internationally for the avoidance of these incidents?"

British sentiment for giving Communist China the Chinese seat in the United Nations showed signs of souring. British newspapers hotly protested the attack on the air liner

Communist fighter aircraft, apparently of the same type as shot down the Cathay Pacific commercial airliner.

"The United States planes returned the fire and the two Chinese Communist planes were shot down. There were no casualties on the United States side.

"The United States plans to protest most vigorously against this further evidence of Chinese Communist brutality and their belligerent interference with a humanitarian rescue operation being conducted over the high seas."

The announcement did not identify the area of the shooting. But the British airliner was shot down some 30 miles south of the Red-ruled island of Hainan.

Over the weekend, top American officials had made it known they would demand stiff compensation for the three Americans lost: Leonard Lee Parish, of Iowa Park, Tex., and his two sons Lawrence, 4, and Philip 2.

His wife and daughter, Valerie, 6, also were aboard the plane but survived.

Mothers Club Holds Picnic, Games For Children At Park

The Mother's Club of Fleming Street School was hostess to approximately fifty children Sunday evening at South Greenville Recreation Park.

The children played games while the mothers prepared a repast. Sandwiches, potato chips, cheese whips, pickles, cookies, cake, punch and candies were on the menu.

Members present were Mrs. Hines, Mrs. Willoughby, Mrs. Wooten, Mrs. Reaves, Mrs. Maye, Mrs. Cherry, Mrs. Daniels, and Mrs. M. W. Grimes.

The club decided to have its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Mary Moore on Monday night, August 2.

No Money, But Lots Of Friends

CHEROKEE, N. C (AP) — Carl Standingdeer, once called "America's Most Photographed Indian," was buried near here yesterday. A cluster of photographs which made Standingdeer famous draped the coffin.

Hundreds from 12 states attended the 73-year-old full-blooded Cherokee's funeral. One of Standingdeer's most famous remarks was:

"Standingdeer hasn't got much money, but Standingdeer has many friends."

Found Cases Of Bootleg In Auto

Two Greenville Negroes were arrested by State Highway Patrolman D. L. Minshew of Farmville Saturday afternoon after the officer found two cases of bootleg whiskey in the car in which they were riding.

Minshew said he stopped the car on highway 43 between Bruce and Falkland. The officer said he had seen the car approach a checking station, but turned around and went the other way. He followed the automobile and stopped it.

Minshew identified the driver of the car as Otil Lee Tucker, 21, of 108 South Side Street, Greenville, and the other man in the car as Robert Lee Belcher, 41, of 202 West First Street, Greenville.

After checking Tucker's driver's dicense, Minshew said, he opened the trunk of the car where he found 24 half-gallon jars of non-taxpaid liquor. Tucker was charged with possession and transporting bootleg whiskey, and Belcher was charged with aiding and abetting in the transportation of non-taxpaid liquor.

Both men were taken to Farmville where Tucker was released under a $500 bond, and Belcher was released under a $200 bond. The car, owned by Tucker, was confiscated and held by the Farmville Police Department.

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—Betty Jo Ring of Lexington, 24-year-old high school teacher who won the Miss North Carolina beauty contest, today started a week's expense-paid vacation here as one of her prizes.

During her stay on the coast she will pose for photographers, yacht down the Inland Waterway, fish at sea, and tour the Cherry Point Marine Air Base on Friday.

Miss Ring was crowned Miss North Carolina at Burlington nine days ago. She will represent the state in the Miss America contest at Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

She was accompanied on her trip by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Ring, and by Joe (Scoop) McCrary of the Lexington Dispatch, who is handling press and photography arrangements.

Young Soldiers On Furlough Die In Plane Crash

IRONTON, Mo. (AP) — Four teenage Michigan soldiers, en route home on their first furlough, were among the five persons killed in an explosion and crash of a private plane in the rugged Tom Sauk Mountain area of Missouri Saturday.

About 150 searchers were unable to find most of the wreckage and bodies until late yesterday.

The soldiers, who had just completed basic training at Camp Chaffee, Ark., were Pvt. Earle W. Simmons, 18 Grand Rapids; Pvt. Kenneth M. Vandenberg, 19, Byron Center; Pvt. Frederick W. Vanderlugt, 19, Grand Rapids; and Pvt. Jack R. Hill, 19, Grand Rapids.

The pilot hired to make the trip, was identified as Fred Murphy of Fort Smith, Ark.

Cause of the explosion was not known.

Recommend N.C. Adopt Division

RALEIGH (AP)—A special advisory committee has recommended that North Carolina take over the entire 30th Infantry Division of the National Guard.

The advisory group, headed by Brig. Gen. Claude T. Bowers of Warrenton, unanimously voted for the plan over the weekend. At present 50 units of the 30th are in Tennessee.

The National Guard Bureau in Washington has advised Tennessee it could take over the entire 44th Infantry Division which is being dropped by Illinois. This would give North Carolina the option of acquiring the entire 30th.

North Carolina has been given 18 months to effect the change, Hicp would mean converting many guard units in this state to infantry units.

The general's committee will work out details of redesignating, reassigning and where necessary reactivating, new units. The committee has promised to report its findings to Adj. Gen. John Hall Manning by Aug. 1.

"My mother lived to be 111, and my grandmother 112,' she scoffed.
