Twenty Senators Listed For Committee Choice

Selecting Probe Body

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leaders combed a list of about 20 senators today in the hunt for what they called a middle-of-the-road committee to investigate the conduct of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

High on the lists compiled by Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic chieftain, were reported to be the names of Senators Millikin (R-Colo.), George (D-Ga.), Russell (D-Cal.) and Byrd (D-W.Va.).

Knownland had called for the naming before the day is over of three Republicans and three Democrats to serve as a special group to sift 46 accusations—some of them duplications—offered as the basis for a move to censure McCarthy.

PCA Prosopic Chromatic Analysis
What is it?
 PROSOPIC CHROMATIC ANALYSIS is a complete, scientific facial analysis. For example, an artist's conception of graceful and harmonious proportion is the perfect heart-shaped face, so that if you have a prominent high cheek bone or a square jaw, Ridgeway's Opticians will fit you with a spectacle frame that will create a long flowing cheek line. Draw a hump on a short line which is extremely obvious, then lengthen the line and see how it blends into insignificance when the line is lengthened (try it yourself with a pencil and paper). We think you'll appreciate PCA—another outstanding Ridgeway optical service.

Timothy Church Is Scene Of Boyd-Stokes Wedding Sunday

In a candlelight ceremony Miss Sybil Elaine Stokes became the bride of Ernest Boyd at Timothy Church near Ayden Sunday, August 1, at five o'clock. Rev. C. D. Hamilton of Fountain officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Stokes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Stokes of Route 2, Ayden, and Mr. Boyd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Artis Boyd of Vanceboro.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. Alton Gardner of Ayden, pianist, and Mrs. Bill Parrish of Wendell, soloist, presented wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Marion Stokes, the bride wore a street length dress of white with over-skirt and bolero of white lace and matching lace mitts. Her picture hat trimmed in illusion veil was also of white. She carried a white leather Bible topped with an orchid.

Miss Mary Ellen Roqueplot of Farrell, Pa. and Washington, D. C. was the maid of honor. Her sheer pale green dress was cut on off-the-shoulder lines and she wore a matching picture hat. Her flowers were pink carnations.

Ralph Morris of New Bern was best man and the ushers were Edward Stokes of Ayden and Robert Ross of New Bern.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of lavender lace with matching accessories. The groom's mother wore a blue silk dress with matching accessories and both wore orchids.

Mrs. Boyd graduated from Chicod High School and recently has been employed with the FBI in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Boyd received his education in Vanceboro and is now employed at the DuPont plant near Kinston. The couple will make their home in New Bern.

NEW SECRETARIES
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has signed a bill authorizing the appointment of two additional assistant secretaries each for the Army, Navy and Air Force. This would give each of the departments four assistant secretaries instead of two.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR August 4, 1924

The hard surfaced road between Greenville and Washington has been completed, with the exception of two bridges, and will be opened to the public within two months. With the completion of this road Pitt County will have one of the most perfect road systems in the state and can boast, "All paved roads lead to Greenville."

London—The Anglo-Russian treaty negotiations collapsed according to authoritative information, on refusal of Soviet representatives to accept articles of the agreement which they insisted left the way open for England eventually to demand compensation for foreign property nationalized by the Soviet government. In other words it was a clash between communism and capitalism, although there had been many evasive discussions of other features of Article 14 which the Russians found objectionable.

Lost Job, But Gets Gas Well

SIDNEY, Neb. —Eight months ago August Jurgens, 49 was laid off his job. Bad? Jurgens says certainly not for now he owns a gas well as a result.

When he couldn't find work in town Jurgens decided to try farming at which he once worked. Wanting only some land so he could "have a place to work," he swapped two houses for the land.

It wasn't long before an oil company asked if it could drill on his land. The company brought in the gas well.

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the most difficult jobs of housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glaxo with a brush about twice a year. It maintains a high luster, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run, besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glaxo is available at Belk-Tyler's on the third floor.

Discount House Sales

By ELMER ROESSNER
Discount house sales may total $10 billion this year, according to an estimate of one organization fighting them. While this is probably based on guesswork, it seems certain that these establishments will have their biggest year so far.

Two factors work in their favor. One is the high total of inventories which cause manufacturers, distributors and even other retailers to channel goods to discount houses; the other is the rise in consumer reluctance to part with more dollars than necessary.

Several millions of dollars are being spent to combat discount selling. Many of the companies that fix the retail price of their products under so-called fair-trade laws keep batteries of investigators and lawyers busy hailing discounters into court. General Electric has initiated almost 400 actions and Shaeffer Pen has 150. Shaeffer also spends about a million a year buying up its pens offered on the discount market. Sunbeam, Revere Copper and Brass, Kelvinator, Towle and others also use the courts to compel sales at only fixed prices.

Associations are active, too. Name-calling is common; associations have called discounters "pirates," "predatory price jugglers," "pushcart peddlers" and worse. Some urge members to boycott manufacturers who sell to discount houses; others try to stiffen their members for competition based on service instead of prices.

But it is not likely that discount houses will be exterminated. When a manufacturer becomes desperate to reduce his inventory, he will sell to discounters. Some manufacturers specialize in supplying discount houses. And even when a manufacturer brings a court action against a violator of fair trade laws, the violator may use that fact in his advertising to prove that he is cutting prices. And every retailer who gives discounts to friends, employees and other groups is participating in discount selling and giving comfort to the idea that only saps pay regular prices.

Richard E. Westervelt, writing in New York University's Journal of Retailing, says the discount houses' pattern of development is following the historical design of the department store, the chain and the supermarket: "First, the new retailer appears on the scene; second, his operation receives public approval; third, his fellow merchants cry that he is unfair; fourth, there is an attempt to wipe him out by legislation and, finally, everyone learns to live with him."

MELLORINE COMING
THE WAY OF MARGARINE
Speaking of recurring patterns in business, the pattern of oleomargarine is being followed by Mellorine-type deserts, according to the Department of Agriculture. Just as margarine is like butter but it is based on vegetable oils or fats, Mellorine is like ice cream, but made of vegetable oils or fats.

In 1952, only four states permitted Mellorine-type deserts. Last year nine states okayed it, and production doubled, to 22,494,000 gallons. The name "Mellorine" was copyrighted by the Texas State Department of Health, which permits its use in other states when the product meets certain standards.

AIR CONDITIONERS
BLOW UP HOT DEBATE
Ordinarily, air conditioners make people cool. But some air conditioners are making some people hot.

That is because the manufacturer is offering them to its stockholders at 40 per cent off list price.

The owner of a share of a company might feel he was entitled to its products at wholesale price, just as a grocer would feel free to take home a can of his store's beans. But this deal is creating much excitement, with dealers and trade publications declaring that the company is fostering discount selling and cheating dealers out of their rightful profits.

Stumbling Blocks To This Area's Progress

It is bitterly disappointing to many citizens of Pitt, Edgecombe, Wilson and Nash Counties that the commissioners of Wilson and Nash Counties have killed the project which was on the verge of bringing a joint area airport to this section.

It is regrettable the commissioners of Wilson and Nash did not come through with financial support for the project after having endorsed it previously and appointed representatives to the Eastern Carolina Airport Authority.

The governing boards of Pitt and Edgecombe Counties and the cities of Greenville, Wilson, Rocky Mount and Tarboro evidenced their recognition of the necessity of air service for this section by appropriating funds with which to begin work on the airport during the current fiscal year.

Whatever their reasons for turning thumbs down on the joint airport, the commissioners of Wilson and Nash Counties have killed chances for an area airport for this year at least. Their action came this week just four days before final details on the airport plans were to be sent to the Civil Aeronautics Administration for federal aid in constructing the airport this year.

In effect, the boards of both Wilson and Nash Counties said lack of public support for the project in their respective counties was the reason for their not appropriating their share of the funds. The Wilson board postpones further consideration of the matter for at least a year. The Nash Board ordered a referendum on the issue in Nash County in November. Frankly, we doubt those boards correctly evaluated the feeling of their citizens toward the joint airport project.

Discouraging as it is, the present situation should not put an end to efforts to secure an area airport for this section. It is apparent such an arrangement is necessary if this section is to have the adequate air service which is vital to its future growth and development.

Even in the face of the action by Nash and Wilson Counties, it would be most unwise for the idea of an area airport for Eastern Carolina to be abandoned altogether.

Another Set-Back For Controversial McCarthy

The overwhelming vote of the Senate - 75 to 12 - to have its special bipartisan committee investigate the activities of Sen. McCarthy is another decided setback for the controversial Wisconsin solon.

The proposal for the committee investigation falls short of the demands by Sen. Flanders that the Senate censure McCarthy for his activities. Yet, it is apparent that the vast majority of the Senate feels McCarthy's activities should be investigated.

Most of those who voted against the special committee investigation idea did so not because they sided with McCarthy, but because they favored Flanders' original proposal rather than the watered-down version offered by Republican Leader Sen. Knowland.

What will come of the bipartisan committee report will remain a matter of conjecture probably until January. It is extremely unlikely that any report will be made by the six-man committee before the Senate adjourns for the summer.

The Reflector is firmly of the opinion Sen. McCarthy has been far off base in many of the tactics he has used in his communist hunts. We feel the Senate and the administration long ago should have called McCarthy's hand. It has become increasing apparent the administration and Republican leaders are reluctant to do so. Therefore it is merely a matter of guess as to what sort of report will be made by the three Republicans and the three Democrats hand-picked by Vice President Nixon to do the investigating of McCarthy's activities.

If the investigation of McCarthy shows nothing else, the very fact that the Senate has voted overwhelming to have the investigation indicates there is grave question about McCarthy's activities.

Well Now, This Sounds Unpleasantly Familiar

Red China has announced the next piece of international real estate she expects to pick up at the expense of the free people of the world. This time the target is Formosa.

What was it the international leaders were saying a week or so ago? The settlement in Indochina would satisfy the communist appetite?

Well, it probably will not be long until we find out for sure.

A marauding bear is usually satisfied with one sheep at a time from the flock. But he doesn't stop feeding nightly on the flock until he has wiped it out entirely . . . or the farmer wipes out the bear.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
The observation has often been made that we are in a period of great moral decline. And certainly we are. Yet when compared with past ages, we are at least comparatively upright.

The Roman historian Tacitus wrote centuries ago that virtue in the Rome of his day meant a death sentence. Juvenal also spoke of Rome as the sewer of the world. Yet even the Romans looked down upon the Corinthians for their immorality. The greatest of Greek philosophers spoke tolerantly of vices which today we hesitate even to mention.

We are alarmed today at the amount of drinking in this country, but it is nothing compared with the drinking in the United States a hundred to a hundred and fifty years ago. And that drinking was mild compared with the drinking in continental Europe and in the British Isles during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. A writer who has specialized in the history of crime wrote a book a few years ago and took the position that real gangsterism in New York ceased just about the year 1900. He regards present-day criminals as little play-boys.

But the reason we are so alarmed about our present state is that we have higher ideals than ever before. A little evil can wreck us as a nation. Drinking is a hundred times more dangerous now than it was a century ago. Therefore we have to behave now, whether we want to or not.

Arabs And Policies Of U.S.

By RAY TUCKER
This is the third article by Ray Tucker from Egypt.

CAIRO, Egypt—The United States has become extremely unpopular throughout the vast Arab world, which constitutes very weak front line against Communist aggression, militarily and economically, but which owns the land on which the Western Allies need Army, Air and Navy bases. We also need their active support for a sentimental and historical viewpoint. We cannot afford to have them favor the Russians in resentment.

The Arab peoples, according to their spokesmen in this ancient capital of Islamic belief, like us, personally and collectively. American business men and newspaper correspondents get along far better with the Arabians, from here through the Middle East and India, than do the representatives of any other nation.

But the officials and the people despise the U. S. foreign policy as conducted by both the Truman and Roosevelt Administrations. Though utterly anti-Communist, they are skeptical of our attachment to such hated "colonial and imperialistic" powers as Britain and France.

BACKING OF OUR ALLIES—On the ground that we cannot afford a break in the solidarity of the Anglo-French-American Alliance in Europe and the Far East, Washington backed the British in the Iranian oil dispute and also London's now ended controversy with Egypt over future occupation of the great military and air base, 150 miles northeast of Cairo, which is regarded as essential to the protection of the Suez Canal against Russian invasion of the Middle East. We support also the unpopular French occupation of Tunisia and Morocco.

It is easy to sit in Washington and write about backward peoples' resentment of foreign occupation, colonialism and imperialism. They are only words, words—theoretical terms. It requires a visit to this section of the world, and talks with people from officials to hotel door dragomans, to realize the bitterness which we are building for ourselves.

To support Anglo-French foreign policies, for

This New Yankee Infiltration

(Special note: Failure of Saturday's column to appear was the second miss in the five and one-half years of its existence. First time I delivered it too late; this time I was out of town and a friend delivered it too late.)

There's a comparatively new sign of Yankee infiltration into the South! And it's already at the serious stage.

The old-time Southern expression, "Hey," used as a greeting, is on the way out and the Yankee expression "Hi" is on the way in.

Ask a dozen Greenville natives which expression is their choice and 12 of them will tell you that they have always said "Hey," and will continue to. But walk down the street and you'll find plenty of people influenced by this Yankee expression.

The Yankee contends that

"Hey" is an expression designed for shouting at people; not for greeting them. My contention is that the tone of a Southern voice could not be misconstrued in such a way.

Charles Williams of Greenville, a student at East Carolina, explained the real roots of this new infiltration: It's coming from high school and college. Charles says, "Before going to college I always said 'Hey' but so many of the students say 'Hi' that I've found myself saying it, too."

High school students are picking it up, too. In fact, it's becoming a widely-used expression and I've considered saying it. But on close consideration it simply sounds too Yankee-fied for me.

Are we willing to put aside this Southern expression in favor of Yankee-talk? Obviously a few of us already have. A few of us have decided that it's more stylish. Ever heard of the Yankees taking up any of our Southern expressions? Are we going to pay them the compliment of taking up theirs when they do not return the compliment?

This is a serious situation. Good thing this column doesn't reach into Yankeeeland. Why, I wouldn't even want them to know that we are confronted with the problem. With that ammunition alone the Yankees could really take us for a ride.

Never saw a Yankee transplanted into the South who wanted to go back. Yet, most of them like to ride us down the river. Let's cut out those "Hi's" and eliminate the opportunity for a riding.

And I thank you

What Other Editors Are Thinking

Referendum On Segregation (Henderson Dispatch)
Veteran Legislator Sam Worthington of Pitt county comes up with the suggestion that if the Supreme Court has not acted on its implementation of the non-segregation decision by the time the 1955 General Assembly meets, a referendum should be ordered in the State to allow the people to determine whether it will be accepted. This is indeed something new under the sun. But we have an idea it will find favor in many quarters.

In the first place, however, we seriously doubt if the legislature would submit the issue to the people. It would be a radical departure from custom, and a challenge to the Supreme Court. If this issue, termed "Legislation by Judges," were to move to ultimate and final determination in this manner, what would there be to prevent other court decisions from going the same way? Yet here is a basic issue without precedent that has run the gamut of the highest judicial tribunal.

Should a popular vote such as proposed by Mr. Worthington be adjudged in order, it would seem that the Supreme Court has acted further as if it had not. In other words, if this issue is to be determined in such manner, it could be done regardless of the future course of the court.

Purpose of the suggested referendum, we take it, would be to circumvent the Supreme Court. Those who would favor it would presumably expect a verdict contrary to the court's ruling last spring. But whichever way it might turn, the voice of the people as a whole would be an act of finality. That would be a court of last resort. If the result were against segregation, it would mean North Carolina was ready to accept the shift. If the opposite, at least the wishes of citizens would be known, although repercussions could be expected even then.

In such a referendum, more would be at stake than merely the issue of segregation. Authority of the Supreme Court would be challenged, regardless of the outcome, for it would mean that body's decree in this instance were not accepted without an expression from the people. It would be a test of the people's willingness to abide by this segment of the basic structure of the republic. And that would be of equal significance to the question of segregation itself. Such a popular vote most likely would attract the greatest number of citizens to the polls that ever participated in an election in this State.

There is no other answer," he said crisply. "The Indian simply must adjust."

He estimates that of the 30,000 Indians in South Dakota there are 150,000 in the entire country only 15,000 are integrated in the pattern of our civilization.

Some 11,111 Ogalala Sioux now crowd the reservation, and they are selling off their acres to white ranchers at a rate that in 12 to 15 years will leave them completely landless.

"There are 1,700 families on the reservation now, and it will support only 600 families," said Reifel. Only 200 families are gainfully employed full time. The rest have to be subsidized one way or another.

"As the superintendent sees it, the biggest trouble in upgrading the Indian economically is his failure to put the same value on time and thrift as his white neighbors do.

Education And Indian Problem

By HAL BOYLE
PINE RIDGE, S.D. (AP)—The vanishing Redskin is no longer vanishing. But lo, the poor Indian, is still having a tough time.

"Our population is increasing about 3 per cent a year," said Ben Reifel, superintendent of the Pine Ridge Reservation, the second most populous in America. But a rising birth rate has only accelerated the Indian's task of surviving a white man's world.

Reifel, a former Army officer and Harvard graduate, is the son of a full-blooded Sioux mother and a German-American father. He feels the only possible solution of "the Indian problem" is education.

"There is no other answer," he said crisply. "The Indian simply must adjust."

He estimates that of the 30,000 Indians in South Dakota there are 150,000 in the entire country only 15,000 are integrated in the pattern of our civilization.

Some 11,111 Ogalala Sioux now crowd the reservation, and they are selling off their acres to white ranchers at a rate that in 12 to 15 years will leave them completely landless.

"There are 1,700 families on the reservation now, and it will support only 600 families," said Reifel. Only 200 families are gainfully employed full time. The rest have to be subsidized one way or another.

"As the superintendent sees it, the biggest trouble in upgrading the Indian economically is his failure to put the same value on time and thrift as his white neighbors do.

"With the Sioux," he said, "right now is important, not tomorrow. Time has no economic concern to them, and they have no interest in saving.

"This is because in the old days the buffalo provided them with everything—food, shelter, clothing and bone utensils. They had no way of storing food, and since they followed the buffalo they had no reason for building up material possessions.

"They lived each day as it came, but they can never become assimilated in our cultures until they develop a consciousness of time."

Another difficulty in uplifting the Indian's standards lies in the fact that women of marriageable age outnumber the men on the reservation.

While most Indians agree with Reifel that education and acceptance of the white man's goals in life are the only way they can hope to lift themselves from abysmal poverty, many feel the federal government has not done enough to help them.

"Long before Columbus came, the Indian was a soaring golden eagle," one elderly tribesman said.

"But the white man envied the golden eagle his freedom and coaxed him down from the clouds and trapped him. He told the Indian that a golden eagle was nice, but he would be better off if he were a great white eagle."

"The white man said he would help the Indian become a white eagle, and started pulling out his tail feathers and his wing feathers, but when he pulled out a golden feather he didn't replace it with a white feather."

"Now the white man has tired of his game and says, you are a white eagle—why don't you fly? But the Indian is no longer an eagle at all. He has no feathers left, and he can't get off the ground."

The Butner Unit Of The N. C. Mental Hospital System

By LYNN NISBET
BUTNER — The Butner unit in the North Carolina Mental Hospital system is unique. Primarily it is a hospital for the care and treatment of some 2,000 patients suffering from mental illness. In many respects it is a sort of self-contained community including widely diverse business enterprises conducted by the State Hospitals Board of Control and private owners.

The property was acquired from the Federal Government after abandonment of the military training camp at close of World War II through a combination of Federal grant purchase at purely nominal rate and purchase on basis of ad valorem appraisal. End result was that North Carolina got a general hospital which was converted to special tubercular facilities at much less cost than a new one could have been built. The State also got in the same deal a modern water and sewer system, paved roads and streets and thousands of acres of land.

Estimates of the value of the property which the State got for a million and a half dollars range all the way from $5 to $10 million. Besides the hospital proper the State has some a training school for some 200 maroons assigned to Caswell; an alcoholic center where patients voluntarily come for treatment; and a first offender "youth center" camp for honor grade youthful prisoners.

HOSPITAL — The Butner hospital justifies its name. The perhaps greater degree than at the other institutions emphasis is placed upon treatment rather than custodial care. The ratio of patients cured to the extent they can return home is higher here than throughout the system. The medical and nursing staff is fairly adequate and physical equipment meets essential requirements. The death rate here is said to be the lowest of any comparable mental hospital in the country.

While emphasis is on hospital treatment, the Butner situation has put the Board of Control into many kinds of business.

BUSINESS — A good deal of the extra land acquired in the original purchase from the government has been sold, constituting a real estate business. The water and sewerage systems which serve the entire community are operated by the hospital as a public utility. There are sizeable farming and cattle raising projects, and an extensive forestry management operation. Warehouse and cold storage facilities are used for the benefit of other State agencies and are leased to private firms. The hospital still has some 1400 acres of land which can be sold without interfering with expansion plans.

To meet the needs of the growing program the hospital board asked for eight staff homes at $15,000 each, and 20 employees cottages at $7,500, and $232,630 for additions and betterments of existing properties.

TUBERCULOSIS — The visit of the advisory budget commission to the Eastern Sanatorium at Wilson completed the circuit of tubercular sanatoria. In one sense the presentation of current and prospective needs here was a sort of "wrap up" of the whole program.

It is difficult to separate the institutions except on geographic lines. For administrative purposes ordinary patients are assigned to the parent unit at McCain, the Eastern at Wilson and the Western at Black Mountain on a basis of convenience. Cases requiring unusual treatment or special surgery are moved to Gravelly Sanatorium at Chapel Hill, where proximity to the University Division of Health Affairs and Memorial Hospital afford facilities and skill not available at the other units. For some years prior to last fall the incidence of tuberculosis was declining and the special efforts made within the past two decades to combat the disease had apparently succeeded in getting it pretty well under control. Dr. H.S. Willis, general superintendent, and his staff associates are frankly concerned about the rapid rise in incidence during the past six months. Figures are not at hand to determine whether this rise is general throughout the country or represents a temporary phenomenon in North Carolina. The sanatoria doctors hope it is a temporary flurry that will not continue, but they are watching the situation very closely.

HOSPITALS — The sanatoria system has a total of 1650 beds occupied by patients and a potential of 2,000 beds. Some 200 beds are presently unoccupied, largely because of inability to obtain doctors, dentists, nurses and other trained personnel. There is a relatively small waiting list of patients seeking admission, and about 100 in county sanatoriums which will be closed as soon as the State institutions can accept the patients. Overall policy is to close down the inadequately equipped small units and to strengthen by increased State aid the larger county hospitals where medical and surgical treatment can be provided.

The 8-story 700-bed Negro "wing" at Wilson is the newest and most modern of all the TB hospitals. The first floor is for administration, kitchen, laboratory, etc. Five of the seven bedroom floors have been activated. The other two will be put into service as soon as trained personnel can be obtained.

There has been allocated a half million dollars for a 65-bed extension and plans have been drawn for it. Some months ago when it looked like TB was on the decline, the sanatoria board decided not to build the addition, but asked that the money be held intact in case need should develop. The rapid rise in TB cases this year has the trustees wondering if the decision to postpone building was wise. Other than asking that a lock be put on the half million to keep it for quick use if need should be demonstrated,

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
I MOVED down the double line of white-painted doors, making almost no noise on the thick carpet. I unlocked my door and pushed it back. It struck something soft and springy and bounced shut again. Next time I shoved it open with my foot slowly and silently, keeping well back against the corridor wall, one hand on my 38. The door stopped again. And then someone groaned.

I reached in cautiously flipped on the light and looked down. The man wore a thick heavy blue overcoat with a wide collar that hid his face from me. One hand lay flat out forward on the rug. Near it was a small package of razor blades and just beyond my foot was a rakish officer's cap with a silver badge that read, "Assistant Purser."

As I stared, Russell groaned again. His hand moved slightly and left behind a thin, shiny streak of blood.

I made sure that Russell was breathing easily before I left him. I couldn't lift him off the floor with only one hand but I did fold his right arm back as a pillow for his head. Something turned in my stomach when I saw the wet pininess above his left ear. Automatically I picked up the pack of razor blades and put them in my pocket.

I closed the door and ran down the corridor toward the staircase that led up to the officers' quarters. Even a river boat must have a doctor, I thought.

And all the time, while I was shifting Russell while I was running down the hallway and then while I stopped outside Grenier's sleeping cabin and banged on the door, I was thinking just one thing. That was me on the floor of my room.

That was Carney Wilde lying there. Dark blue overcoat, much like mine in a dim light. Much the same build. When Russell had got back from his trip to Evansville he had stopped in to deliver my razor blades. He would have a passkey. What had he thought? That I was asleep or maybe he'd seen me still on deck with Ellen. No matter. He'd used his passkey to get in and whoever was waiting had thought it was me coming into bed. So Russell had stopped the club that had been aimed at my head. That was me lying there.

The door to Grenier's cabin opened and the purser looked out sleepily. He belted a robe with fumbling fingers.

"I went inside. 'Get a doctor quick,'" I said. "Russell's been hurt."

Grenier reached along the wall for the phone that hung there, and dialed.

"What happened?" he asked. "Somebody clouted Russell in my cabin," I said. "Get the medic and bring him with you. I'll go back and make sure the kid's all right."

Grenier nodded. He inclined his head toward the phone and spoke into it with tight, hard phrases. I went out and walked quickly back to my room. And I wondered why I had come running to Grenier's cabin, completely forgetting I had a telephone in my room. Panic, I suspected and it wasn't a pleasant thing to think.

I unlocked my door again, opened it and stood there in the hall waiting for the doctor and looking down at Russell, who lay still, breathing rhythmically, almost snoring, on the floor.

The doctor swabbed off Russell's battered skull, peered at his eyes, fingered him here and there to test reflexes, and then shot him in the arm with a hypodermic.

The captain breathed: "Is he dead?"

"No, no," the doctor growled. "He will have to be put to bed. His condition may be serious. He can't be moved."

"He can stay here," I said. "If that seems safe to you."

The captain said: "Why shouldn't he be safe here? What's happened anyway?"

"Struck with a blunt instrument," the doctor said. He and the captain pulled off Russell's outer clothing.

While they were rolling him out of his coat, Russell opened his eyes wide, stared blindly and muttered: "Hit me. You . . ."

The doctor eased Russell's trousers off, then tucked blankets around the boy's shoulders. He got his bag and searched in it for a wicked-looking needle, which he threaded expertly. He bent over Russell again stitching together the ragged gash above the boy's ear. Without looking up, he asked me: "Do you know how this happened, sir?"

"I'll get the facts later," he said to me. "Do you honestly think this was a deliberate attack?"

I nodded bleakly.

"Very well, then I'll stay here for the night. Those big chairs are quite comfortable. This boy needs to rest. Everybody out."

"But is he all right?" Captain Jellicoe demanded. "Shouldn't he have X-rays or something?"

"Too dangerous to move him," the doctor said. "He may be all right after a week in bed. I'll know more when I look at him in the morning. Now get out of here and . . ."

"But the police?" Jellicoe said in a worried tone. "This is a criminal . . ."

"That's only my guess, sir," I said quickly. I didn't want any hick sheriffs blundering around. I tried to convince the captain. "We can't be sure about it. And whose jurisdiction is this anyway? Kentucky? Indiana? And what county in which state? Or is the river federal property?"

Jellicoe rubbed his chin. "I'm not sure. We never had a . . ."

"Let it go," the doctor said. "You know you wouldn't wreck your precious schedule if Russell were dying. Now get out."

"You can have a bed in my cabin Wilde," said Grenier, who had come in. "Maybe you'd best get your toothbrush and razor."

I collected my gear and joined the captain and Grenier in the hallway.

The captain walked away, and Grenier said: "Come along. I'll have to make a report on this and I'd better get the facts while they're fresh in your mind."

Grenier kept me awake two hours, sitting on the spare bunk in his cabin going over my account of what had happened that night, every move I had made. Finally when he said he had it all,

"Not sure," I said. "Russell came in here and somebody waiting for me clipped him on the head. Is it bad?"

"Just hit once," the doctor grunted. "Quite enough too."

"Whoever struck him thought Russell was me. Then he must have seen the cap and realized he had the wrong man. So he wouldn't hit more than once."

The doctor scowled. "You sound like a persecution complex to me. How do you know a man was waiting for you? It could just as easily have been a sneak thief."

"That's possible," I admitted. "Maybe you don't know why I came aboard this hooker, doctor. And if you don't you're the only one who doesn't. The captain announced it to everyone else. And considering that, I don't think this was a casual sneak thief who hit Russell."

"I'll get the facts later," he said to me. "Do you honestly think this was a deliberate attack?"

I nodded bleakly.

"Very well, then I'll stay here for the night. Those big chairs are quite comfortable. This boy needs to rest. Everybody out."

"But is he all right?" Captain Jellicoe demanded. "Shouldn't he have X-rays or something?"

"Too dangerous to move him," the doctor said. "He may be all right after a week in bed. I'll know more when I look at him in the morning. Now get out of here and . . ."

"But the police?" Jellicoe said in a worried tone. "This is a criminal . . ."

"That's only my guess, sir," I said quickly. I didn't want any hick sheriffs blundering around. I tried to convince the captain. "We can't be sure about it. And whose jurisdiction is this anyway? Kentucky? Indiana? And what county in which state? Or is the river federal property?"

Jellicoe rubbed his chin. "I'm not sure. We never had a . . ."

"Let it go," the doctor said. "You know you wouldn't wreck your precious schedule if Russell were dying. Now get out."

"You can have a bed in my cabin Wilde," said Grenier, who had come in. "Maybe you'd best get your toothbrush and razor."

I collected my gear and joined the captain and Grenier in the hallway.

The captain walked away, and Grenier said: "Come along. I'll have to make a report on this and I'd better get the facts while they're fresh in your mind."

Grenier kept me awake two hours, sitting on the spare bunk in his cabin going over my account of what had happened that night, every move I had made. Finally when he said he had it all,

Clapp, Bynum Pace Stars To Win

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Editor

Bill Clapp pitched superb ball and Merrill Bynum provided the punch as Greenville's Little League All-Stars downed a surprisingly strong Williamston team 3-2 at Elm Street Park yesterday afternoon.

Since Jacksonville defeated Kinston 5-4 yesterday, Greenville and Jacksonville will meet in Greenville tomorrow afternoon at five o'clock.

Greenville plays Jacksonville at Elm Street Park Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The winner goes into the district finals with the winner of the Rocky Mount-Tarboro game.

Yesterday's game was a thriller as both teams got locked up into a tight pitchers duel. Greenville drew first blood in the second inning. Bynum was the first batter in the second inning and pitcher Jerry Rawls reared back and threw him a fast ball. Bynum stepped into it and laced a line drive far over the left-centerfield barrier. Jeff Fountain drew a walk off the still shaken Williamston pitcher. After Billy Jenkins struck out on three straight pitches, pitcher Bill Clapp drew a walk, sending Fountain to second. With Bobby Arthur at the bat Rawls threw a wild pitch that advanced each runner a base. The next pitch hit the ground right in front of the catcher and he could not come up with it as Fountain scored and Clapp went to third. With Arthur still at bat Rawls pitched another low inside pitch and Clapp scored when the catcher could not find the ball.

That was all of the Greenville scoring of the day but it seemed to be enough.

Clapp allowed a single in the first but sent the side down in order in the second. In the third inning Durwood Hughes led off with a bunt single. Harrison popped up and Billy Windley forced out Hughes. Hugh Raynor then connected with a long drive that had extra bases written all over it into deep left centerfield. Bynum raced over to his right and jumped high into the air to spear the ball in the pocket of his glove. It was by far the most spectacular fielding play of the tournament.

In the next two innings Clapp set Williamston down one-two-three. In the top of the sixth with one away Windley walked. Hugh Raynor doubled over Bynum's head and out of the park on one bounce for a ground rule double. Gordon Cowan then stepped up and singled into right to drive home Windley and send Raynor to third. With Jerry Rawls at bat Williamston then tried the old double steal and it worked to perfection with Raynor scoring from third.

Clapp settled down from there to strike out Rawls and Billy Wynne.

Clapp struck out seven and walked four in pitching the win. The Greenville ace gave up four hits. Merrill Bynum picked up two hits in two tries today to run his tournament record to five-for-five.

Greenville plays Jacksonville in Greenville tomorrow afternoon while Rocky Mount's International League plays Tarboro. The winners of these two games meet for the district championship.

Coaches Neely James and Ford McGowan of the Greenville team seemed well pleased with the game. Coach James commented, "I think the boys played a better game than they did Monday. This team can go places as long as the boys do not quit trying and hustling."

The Williamston people considered the game a sort of moral victory. It looked like an entirely different group of boys than the one that got mauled 15-0 last season.

Game time Thursday is five o'clock.

Berra Sparks Yanks In Big Uphill Fight With Indians

By JOE REICHLER
AP Sports Writer

Cleveland's best chance of slowing up the New York Yankees' pennant drive is to cool off Yogi Berra's blazing bat.

In his last seven games, the Yankee catcher has hit safely 14 times in 27 times at bat for a torrid .519 average. The Yankees have won six of those seven games.

Two weeks ago, Berra was hitting .287. Today he is at .306—and climbing.

It was Berra who proved the difference in New York's 2-1 victory over Cleveland. The triumph sliced the American League leaders' margin over the Yankees to 1 1/2 games.

With Mickey Mantle on second and Iru Noren on third in the third inning, Berra cracked a single off Art Houtteman and scored both runners. That was the ball game. The Indians, who had drawn first blood on Larry Doby's first-inning home run, couldn't budge Whitey Ford after that. The young left-hander permitted only one hit in the last five innings.

The National League race remained unchanged. The league-leading New York Giants maintained their five-game advantage over Brooklyn with an easy 7-1 triumph over Chicago's crippled Cubs. The Dodgers had to go all out, edging the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 as Carl Erskine bested Vic Raschi in a pitching duel. The third-place Milwaukee Braves, 10 lengths off the pace, outscored Philadelphia's Phillies 3-1.

The Chicago White Sox served notice they were still in the American League race by drubbing the Boston Red Sox 6-2. The victory advanced them to within six games of the Indians.

In other games played under the lights, Cincinnati overpowered Pittsburgh 7-2 and Philadelphia's Athletics downed the Baltimore Orioles 6-2. Detroit shut out Washington 2-0 in the only game played in daylight.

Ford turned back the Indians on four hits for his 11th victory. He fanned six and did not permit a runner to pass second after the fourth. The Indians' best scoring chance after the first inning came in the fourth when they loaded the bases with two out. Ford, however, struck out Jim Hegan.

Don Mossi started for Cleveland but was forced to leave after the first inning because of an upset stomach. Houtteman, who took over in the second, was charged with his sixth defeat against 10 victories.

Except for the third inning when Ford singled and scored on a triple by Wally Moon, Erskine was complete master of the Cardinals.

Erskine himself drove in the winning run. After hits by Jackie Robinson and Rube Walker, sandwiched around a walk to Walt Morin, had produced the tying run in the fifth, Erskine came through with a single to score Morin.

The Giants swatted Bob Rush for 12 hits, including Hank Thompson's 19th home run with two on base, to extend their latest winning streak to five straight. Ruben Gomez spaced five hits and struck out seven for his 10th victory.

Back-to-back doubles by Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron, followed by Joe Adcock's single, produced two fifth-inning runs that enabled the Braves to break a 1-1 tie with Philadelphia. Andy Patko's 13th homer also helped Warren Spahn register his 11th victory with a six-hitter. Murray Dickson took the defeat.

Veteran first baseman Phil Carrazita drove in two runs with a double and single, and scored another to give rookie southpaw Jack Harshman all the runs he needed to beat the Red Sox.

Three hits apace by Chuck Harmon and Jimmy Greengrass and shutout pitching by lefty Joe Nuxhall until the ninth featured Cincinnati's victory over Pittsburgh. Ray Boone drove in both Detroit runs with his 15th home run and an infield out as southpaw Billy Hoelt blanked the Senators with five hits.

The Athletics made only five hits off three Baltimore pitchers but took advantage of the five errors to pick up six unearned runs, all they got, as they moved to within two percentage points of the seventh-place Orioles.

Southern Beats Harris Markets

Southern Bread defeated Harris Super Markets last night in the first round of the Area II softball playoffs.

The Bread pushed across six runs while pitcher Dan Gordon was holding the Harris team to one run and two hits. By winning the game the Bread plays Carolina Dairies tonight at 7:30. The loser of that game plays Harris Super Market in the 9 o'clock game. One team will be eliminated and the two remaining teams will finish the double elimination tourney.

The Bread smashed out nine hits in rolling to the victory. Two runs in the second insured the win. Caravan doubled and scored on Phillips' single. After James McRoy walked, Smith Worthington singled Phillip home.

Allbrook's double in the second and Cherry's single in the third were the only hits the Bread could get off Gordon.

Merrill Bynum produced the power and the spark behind Bill Clapp's pitching yesterday afternoon. The big ballhawk pulled in the most spectacular fielding play of the tournament and smacked a long home run over the left-centerfield fence for Greenville's first run.

Bright Leafs 5 3 .625
National Guard 4 4 .500
Fondomatics 0 9 .000

Bright Leafs picked up two additional runs to make the score 4-1 as the Redmen came up for their last hit.

Two hits, two errors, and two walks sent three runs streaking across the plate for the Redmen.

In the top of the eighth the Bright Leafs grounded three straight balls to the Redmen infield.

Cox led off the last of the eighth for the Redmen with a single. Station walked but Johnny Johnson forced Cox at third. With runners on first and second Arthur Andrews grounded to shortstop Richard Nobles, who erred the ball allowing Station to score.

The game ends the season for the Redmen. The Bright Leafs play the National Guard tonight to round out the Pony League schedule.

Cox led the hitting in the game with three singles.

The Redmen also swept the first half title to be undisputed champions of the league.

Fireman Billy Boyd Cox had to clean up again after Charlie Station went wild in the second. Cox put out the fire and held the Bright Leafs enough to allow his team to win 5-4 in the eighth inning.

Station worked the first inning, striking out the side but giving up a pair of walks. In the second inning the first two batters reached base on errors and the next two were walked by Station. Coach Yohn called in Cox and the able relief artist retired the side without another run.

In the fourth the Redmen came back to tie the score on successive hits by Cox and Station. In the top of the fifth the Bright Leafs picked up another run to give them a 2-1 advantage. Leading 2-1 and batting in the top of the seventh the

C-of-C Civic Activities Have Extensive Range

By EDWINA McMULLAN
Reflector Staff Writer

(This is the second in a series of articles concerning various phases of the local Chamber of Commerce activity).

"Civic activities of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce are those matters of city-wide importance, many of which involve close cooperation with the city administration and departments of the city government," according to Civic Committee Chairman H. Frank Steinbeck.

The civic activities of the local chamber include projects dealing with education, health, city planning and zoning, recreation and government.

Chairman Reviews Projects
A resume by Steinbeck of a few of the civic projects in which the Chamber of Commerce has participated reveals since the organization was reorganized in 1938 it has "actively supported every program which has been advanced for the betterment of the city's educational system."

This includes bond issues for new construction and tax levies to permit supplements in teachers' salaries to enable the city to attract more experienced and better trained teachers, that the city schools might keep pace with Greenville's growth.

The group has also supported the expansion programs of East Carolina College, "in order that it may more nearly meet the needs for higher education in this area," Steinbeck said.

Group Supports Recreation
The local Chamber of Commerce has "encouraged and actively participated in supporting the city administration in the development of a community-wide, professionally directed, recreation program," the Civic Committee chairman declared.

"The Chamber realizes," he said, "the importance of a well developed recreation program for the city. This is one of the most important factors in promoting the growth of Greenville, and in providing for the wholesome use of leisure time of our youth and adults."

The Chamber, he continued, has supported the efforts of the city schools and East Carolina College in developing their athletic programs. It has also assisted the Women's Club in establishing the Federal Art Center in Greenville, and has cooperated with the club in carrying out other cultural projects.

Aids Hospital Campaign
The Chamber of Commerce assisted in organizing and in carrying out the county-wide campaign for the Pitt Memorial Hospital, and it has been an active supporter of the Red Cross Blood program.

The construction of the fire substation in West Greenville, which assures that section of better fire protection, was a project initiated by the Chamber.

Fire prevention week in Greenville is sponsored each year by the Chamber's Civic Committee in cooperation with the local Fire Department and the city schools "in an effort to reduce losses in the fires," Steinbeck stated.

Work With City Officials
"Our group," he said, "worked with the city officials in preparing a zoning ordinance and is now urging that zoning be extended at least one mile beyond the city limits to promote orderly growth."

The Chamber of Commerce is also participating in investigations of possibilities of developing needed parking facilities, and its program includes efforts for cleaner alleys and regulation of pest control practices to protect the public.

Rotary Governor Visits Ayden Club

AYDEN—Dr. Ralph Wellons, District Governor of Rotary District 278, was honored guest at the meeting of the Ayden Rotary Club last Friday night. Prior to the regular meeting Dr. Wellons reviewed in detail the accomplishments of the club for the last year and the plans of the club for the coming year. He urged special projects in each area of club work to celebrate Rotary's Golden Anniversary. He expressed his gratitude to the club for work done in the past and was very pleased with its plans for the coming year.

In the regular meeting Dr. Wellons said this should and would be Rotary's greatest year. He urged that each member think, this year, of what Rotary has done for him and of what he can do for Rotary. He expressed the hope that every school in North Carolina would be permitted to share in the learning and living of Rotary's "Four Way Test," a series of thoughts that will be before the people of the State quite a bit in the coming year. Dr. Wellons pointed out that peace would surely come to the world if, in all their actions, the citizens of the world followed this "Four Way Test" and asked themselves, when they planned some action, "Is it fair, . . . Is it the truth? . . . Is it beneficial for all? . . . and Will it build good will?"

Local President Roy Turnage Jr. had as his guest his wife, Cora Bob, who acted as hostess to the other visiting Rotary Anne, Mrs. Wellons. Rotarian Alton Johnston was a visitor from the Greenville Club and Elliott Dixon was guest of the Ayden Club. Elbert Davidson won the "On Time" prize, and Bob Booth won the "Fellowship" prize.

Bees Stung 40 Pool Bathers

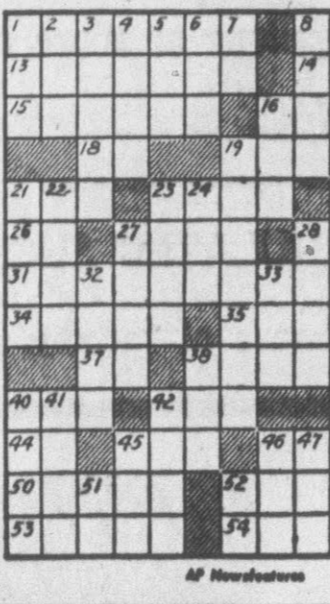

HACKENSACK, N. J. — Honey bees, who have found a happy hunting ground among the bare-skinned at the Arcola Pool, better carry on their buzz business somewhere else in the future.

The pool obtained a temporary injunction against the nearby Holly Ho Inn, where five bee hives are kept, ordering the Inn owners to show cause why they should not confine the bees to their own back yard.

Pool operators claimed the bees have stung 40 bathers.

This May Be Judy's Last Hollywood Role

By JAMES BACON
(For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"A Star Is Born" finally wound up shooting the other day after 10 months and some six million dollars—about double the time and cost intended.

The film may well be Judy Garland's greatest—and last—movie. One producer, who pleads anonymity, discloses that it is doubtful if any Hollywood studio ever will hire Judy again.

"I understand that her performance on screen is worthy of an Oscar," the producer says.

"I also know that her performance off screen is worthy of Mario Lanza. I know that she has aged Jack L. Warner 10 years."

The same source reveals that Warner threw up his hands when the budget passed 3 1/2 million. He told Judy and her producer husband, Sid Luft, to get their own financing. Apparently they did because the picture is now finished.

"What took so long for 'A Star Is Born'?"

"Well," answer the producer source, a close friend of Judy's, "Judy only worked when she felt like it. Unfortunately, there were many days when Warner had hundreds of people standing around while Judy sulked in her dressing room."

It was reminiscent of the trouble Metro had with Judy in "Annie Get Your Gun" but that time MGM quickly tired of Judy's shenanigans and replaced her with Betty Hutton.

Warners, of course, deny that any such trouble ever existed with Judy although admitting that the studio put up an iron curtain around the set during shooting. The set was closed to the press during much of the production schedule.

Signature Upset Plan To Acquire Driving License

DETROIT —Women screamed, tables flew and there was an awful rumput at police headquarters yesterday, but Miss Moore, 18, didn't get her pal's driver's license.

Moore had all the credentials—even his friend Ivan Buford Harmon's wallet.

Everything went smoothly when Moore identified himself as Harmon until he signed his buddy's signature. A patrolman spotted the difference in handwriting and bedlam broke loose.

Desks were overturned by Moore, chained poles to keep crowds in line were scattered and the crowd was in a frenzy until Moore was subdued.

Moore who was held for fraudulently obtaining an operator's license, said he didn't think his pal could pass the written test.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK — The stock market turned down sharply today when a sudden wave of profit taking produced a late tape for half an hour. A recovery movement began when the selling flurry ended.

Trading started fast with prices generally higher. Aircrafts continued yesterday's advance and most other sections were either steady or slightly higher.

After the first hour, steels began to soften with Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet, reported ready to merge, losing ground.

By 11:41 a.m. the tape was four minutes late and Youngstown had lost five points. Other steels were also off sharply. Aircrafts lost most of their earlier gain (as much as three points in some cases) and motors, copper mining and railroad securities were under heavy pressure.

The tape cleared at 12:04 p.m. and prices began to firm slightly. The trading pace slowed almost as suddenly as it had spurted. Nearly all prices were above the lows reached when the tape was late, but the market continued considerably under yesterday's closing quotations. Exceptions were aircrafts, which turned upward again.

Among the decliners were U.S. Steel, Goodyear, International Harvester, Radio Corp., Home-stake, Union Carbide, General Dynamics, Westinghouse Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Loew's.

Holding firm were Boeing, Ont-

Eight Clubs Represented At JC Meet

Approximately 100 Jaycees representing clubs of the ninth North Carolina district gathered here last night for the first quarter district meeting.

Greenville Jaycees were hosts for the meeting which included a supper and a business session.

Eight of the 10 clubs of the district were represented at the meeting, and club president's reports were presented by Frank Dail of Greenville, Harold Rouse of Farmville, John Rafferty of New Bern, Jasper Bell of Morehead City, Warren Perry of Kinston, Jim Godwin of Havelock, Wayne McCasie of Jacksonville and Clarence Carrowan of Washington.

Among the officials of the North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce present at the meeting were President Bill Henderson of Reidsville, district vice president Jake West of Kinston, national director Red Gurganus of Williamston, and international director Dan Saied of Greenville.

State President Henderson, in a brief address at the meeting urged Jaycees of the ninth district to continue to stimulate interest in the individual clubs in local and state projects of the organization.

A number of reports on district Jaycee activities were presented at the meeting. Jim Lanier of Greenville reported on the Miss North Carolina pageant; Bill August of Kinston reported 13 delegates from the ninth district were among the 275 North Carolina Jaycees who attended the national convention in Colorado; Charles Horne of Greenville reported on the proposed change in the State Jaycee directory this year; Carl Vottl of Kinston reported on the plans for the Jaycee fire prevention campaign; Sonny Greer of Morehead City reported Jaycee membership in the 10 clubs of the district has reached 500; Bob Page of Jacksonville reported on extension work in the district; and

Policeman Back On Duty After Assault By Brick

A city policeman who was assaulted early Sunday morning while chasing a Negro on Pitt Street returned to duty yesterday morning.

Patrolman V. C. Ackert was hit with a brick sometime between 12 and 12:30 Sunday morning while attempting to question several Negroes standing on the corner of Greene and Second Streets. He was off duty at the time.

Lieutenant H. E. Wooten, who is acting police chief in the absence of Chief S. G. Gibbs who is on vacation this week, said the officer reported that he was returning from a trip at the time of the incident and saw the group standing at the corner of Greene and Second streets.

Ackert told Wooten that some members of the group made a "wise remark" and he stopped his car and told them to wait a minute. Wooten indicated that Ackert told them that he was an officer and said he had his badge at the time but did not have a gun. He was in civilian clothes.

Wooten said that the officer indicated he chased one of the group who broke away and when they got to First and Pitt streets the Negro threw a brick which knocked Ackert unconscious.

The acting chief said Killey Blount, 19-year-old Negro, had been arrested for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in connection with the case. Wooten stated that Blount did not deny hitting Ackert with a brick but he did deny knowing that Ackert was an officer.

Ackert's Story

Patrolman Ackert said today that he was riding along the street when he heard the group of Negroes cursing and talking loudly at the corner. "I stopped and identified myself and told them who I was," Ackert said.

The patrolman stated that one of the men said: "I don't give a . . . who you are."

Ackert told him he would have to carry him in and one of the group broke away. He chased him down to Pitt and First streets where he, Ackert, was hit by a brick.

Wooten indicated that Chief Gibbs investigated the incident on Sunday night. Wooten quoted Gibbs as saying that Ackert told him that he had had "two or three beers" that night.

Ackert was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital and released Monday morning. He returned to duty yesterday.

Wooten indicated today that no action would be taken in the case until the return of Chief Gibbs.

He said that he was only acting as chief during Gibbs' vacation and that any action taken on the case will have to come from Gibbs.

Blount has been released under bond. His trial has been set for Monday, before Judge Charles H. Whedbee in Recorder's Court.

Guarded

BOSTON (AP)—State and local police today continued guarding the Walpole, Mass., home and Cape Cod summer retreat of Joseph N. Welch, Army counsel in the recent Army-McCarthy hearings, after word from Washington that an attempt might be made to kill him.

The armed guard was set up last night after Washington police informed Boston authorities that the man was reported by his wife to have left his home in Montgomery County, Maryland, with a German Luger pistol.

Police quoted the woman as saying her husband has had a grudge against Welch since 1941. Washington police did not say from what incident, if any, the grudge stemmed.

Wolf's Whistle Broufht A Wolf

PASADENA Calif.—Miss Olga Maltzberger, 50, always uses the traditional wolf's whistle when she calls her cat. But this time, she told police yesterday, she got a wolf.

When he ventured into her yard she ordered him away, threatening to call the law. A neighbor did put in a prowler report, and the man fled before a squad car arrived.

Won 50 Cents, But Lost Life

TOLEDO, Ohio—Delmar R. Willingham, 38-year-old painter, won 50 cents yesterday but lost his life. He leaped from the Anthony Wayne bridge into the Maumee River on a bet and drowned.

Willingham lost a game of pool and then two games of shuffleboard to a drinking companion, Nies Niemi, whom he had met several hours earlier at a tavern here, police said.

"There must be something I can beat you at," Willingham told his companion. "I'll bet you I can jump off the bridge."

The two rode to the bridge and Willingham then dove off, yelling: "It's a long way to Tipperary," police said.

Final Plans Mapped For Entertainment

Final preparations and arrangements for the complete entertainment program for the Tobacco Festival have been made. Publicity Chairman Milton Logan announced today.

Ten groups are sponsoring a variety of programs with a number of featured artists.

Each group has been assigned a specific time during the Festival for its entertainment. Complete schedule of activity for the celebration, with corresponding times will be announced later.

Among the entertainers to be featured on Aug. 12 are Garland Bachelore and the Golden Weed Jambores, with Uncle Fud, sponsored by the Exchange Club; Hal Lemmond and his Songs of the Island Band, sponsored by the Lions Club; and R. C. Fields and his orchestra, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Kiwanis Club will sponsor three events: the Slim Short Show, Arthur Bowen and the Bar X Boys, and WGTM James and Tom and Myrt and Midnight.

A program by Marie's School of Dance will be sponsored by the Business and Professional Women, who are also backing a performance by Cary and Fred, a brother and sister team who will render Hawaiian music, and the Rhythm Girls composed of Estelle Dunn, Louise McGowan and Mary Dawson.

Dick Carter and his band will be sponsored by the Moose and Elks Clubs.

Rough and Ready Fire Department are sponsoring Will Perkins and the Rhythm Aces, while the Rotary Club is bringing Jerry Ball, pianist here for the festivities.

Various games and contests will be held by the Recreation Commission, with a grand prize of $500 to be awarded.

In addition to the other entertainment featured at the Festival the Rotary Club will hold a community sing.

All festivities this year are to be held on Evans Street in the downtown area, with activity beginning at 2 p.m. and continuing until 10 o'clock that evening.

Telephone-User Is On Probation

BOSTON (AP)—Mona Lisa Taft, 18, a student of voice, has learned that making day and night telephone calls to an impressario is no way to impress him.

Superior Court Judge Edward J. Voke placed the girl on probation yesterday after she promised not to call Boris Goldovsky any more.

The girl said she was seeking a singing part from Goldovsky, head of the New England Opera Theatre.
