

Indications Are That Aug. 17 Will Be Confirmed Market Opening To Be Set

RALEIGH (AP)—Dates on which tobacco sales will begin on three belts will be set at a meeting here tomorrow. Advance indications were that Aug. 17 will be confirmed for the opening of the huge Eastern North Carolina Belt.

Meanwhile, Fred S. Royster of Henderson, president of the warehouse association, denied having made a statement attributed to him yesterday in a news story from Dunn. This dispatch quoted Royster as having said markets of the Georgia-Florida and the South Carolina-Border North Carolina belts had requested a delay in the Eastern opening because the southern belts will not have had sufficient selling time by Aug. 17.

Royster said this "is not true." He added, "No market in the South Carolina-Border Belt has made any suggestion to me that the Eastern Belt should not open on Aug. 17. Only one warehouseman from Georgia-Florida has suggested a delay from Aug. 17." The Dunn report quoted Buck Curran, a tobaccoist, as saying that six markets have organized a committee to oppose any delay in the Eastern Belt opening and that the six might withdraw from the Bright Belt association if there is a delay. The six markets are Dunn, Wallace, Clinton, Kinston, Goldsboro and Smithfield.

Council Also Votes Airport Sum, Will End Courtesy Parking City Budget Finally Adopted

Greenville's City Council, in a three hour meeting last night, transacted many items of business including final adoption on the city budget for the 1954-55 fiscal year. The budget adopted totaled $643,860 with a tax rate of $1.25 per $100 valuation. This is the same tax rate as last year's.

Other items of business transacted last night included voting to move the Kiwanis train from Guy Smith Park to the vicinity of Elm Street Park and appropriating more money to the East Carolina Airport Authority for the proposed airport.

Charles Wilkerson, representing the local Kiwanis Club, told the Council the train, in its present site at Guy Smith Stadium, was not paying its operation costs—much less the cost of buying the train.

He asked that the little train be moved across the street from Elm Street Park so it could be operated on a paying basis. "If this is not done the train will have to be returned," he said.

But Senators Want No 'Vaudeville' Over McCarthy Open Hearing Considered

By G. MILTON KELLY WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators picked to handle a new investigation into the conduct of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) indicated today a general belief their hearings should be open to the public, but with some restraints to avoid a "vaudeville show" atmosphere.

In advance of a planned second meeting to discuss plans, most of the six members of the special committee said for the record or in private talks they did not want a repetition of the televised McCarthy-Army hearings.

The subcommittee which conducted those 36 days of stormy sessions planned a meeting of its own today to seek agreement on machinery for writing a report.

And McCarthy himself went ahead with his own investigation of what he terms widespread Communist infiltration of defense plants.

McCarthy reserved comment on the committee's membership, and on the breakdown given his prompt request yesterday for a closed-door talk about the group's plans for investigating him.

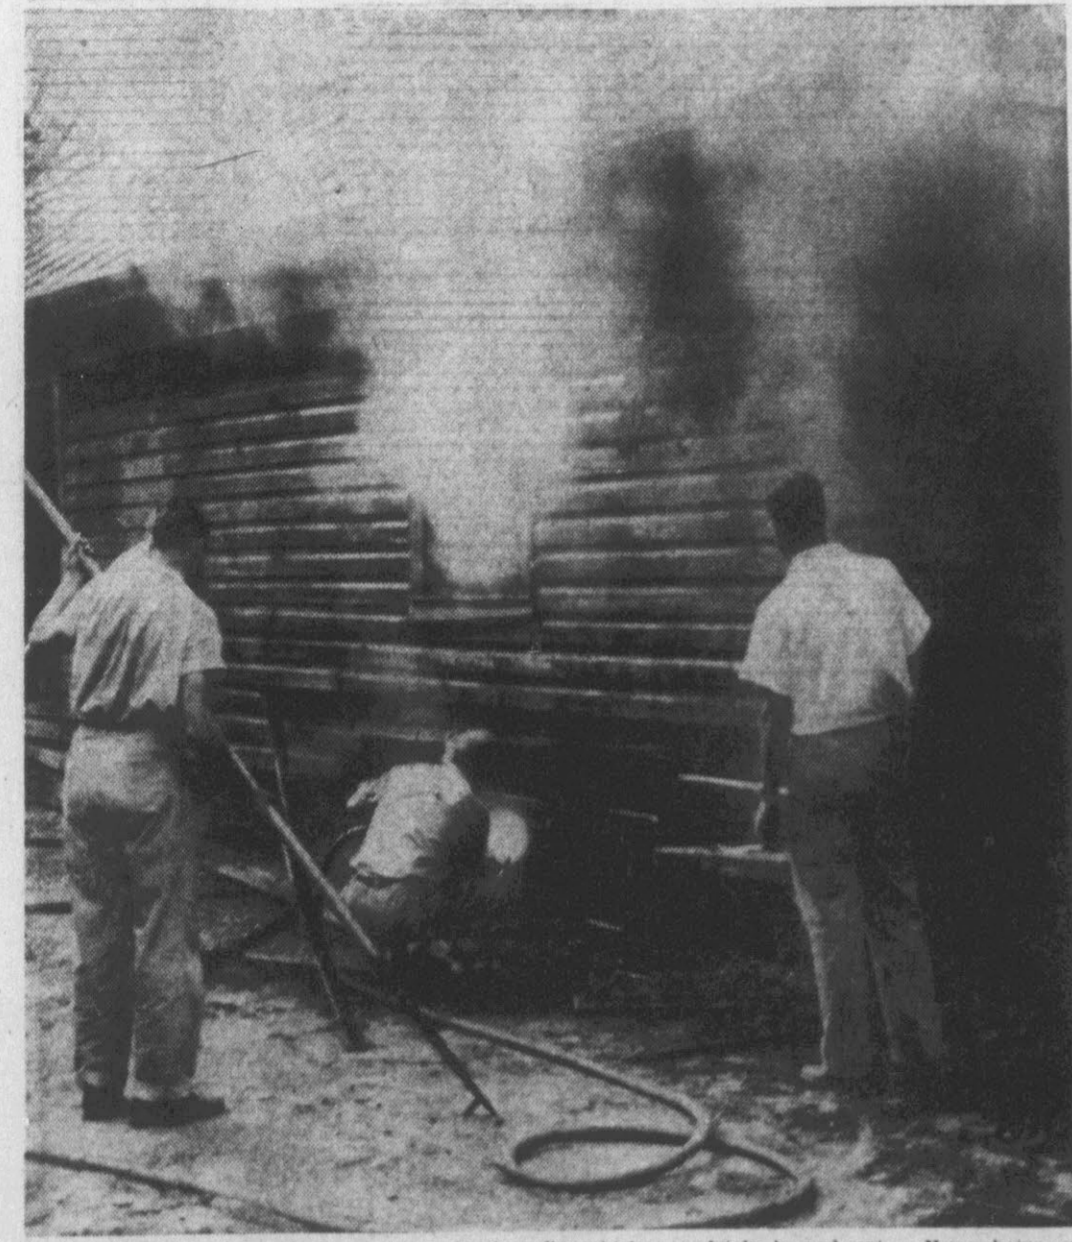

Watkins declared yesterday he and his fellow members are determined that the investigation will be "in the nature of a judicial inquiry" by legislators "who haven't prejudged the issues."

McCarthy announced the investigations subcommittee he heads would question witnesses from the Boston area in a resumption of that probe today. He declined to say in advance who the witnesses would be or what plants were involved.

Watkins said he personally is thinking in terms of non-televised hearings at which "Sen. McCarthy will be extended full opportunity to present his defense of the charges that have been preferred" and with provision for full coverage of the proceedings by the press.

Johnson told reporters "I don't think you can have closed hearings in a case of this kind. It must be in no case a star chamber."

Shower Is Given For Bride-Elect

Continuing a series of social courtesies extended Miss Edwina McMullan, bride-elect of August 22, Mrs. S. L. McCarthy, Mrs. J. L. Stocks, Mrs. W. E. Warren, and Mrs. Paul Hunsucker were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower last evening.

Mrs. McCarty's home was decorated throughout with arrangements of mixed summer flowers, green foliage and white bridal bells.

The honoree was presented with a corsage of pink roses.

Several games were enjoyed with prizes being won by Miss Helen Stokes, Mrs. Alex White, and Mrs. J. B. Jordan.

After the games, the honoree was presented gifts from the twenty guests present. From the hostesses she received a hand-painted tray.

Following the opening of gifts refreshments were served in the dining room, where the table was covered with a hand-crocheted linen cloth over pale green, and centered with a floral arrangement in white topped by miniature bride and groom. The centerpiece was flanked by two silver candelabra with white tapers tied with white ribbon.

Mrs. Warren served bridal cakes and Mrs. Hunsucker poured the punch. Guests served themselves to bridal mints and a mixture of salted nuts.

Miss Eva Anne Jackson became the bride of John Arthur Van Wagenen Jr. at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, August 3rd, in Memorial Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eva Mays Jackson of Greenville and Mr. H. F. Jackson of Edenton. Mr. Van Wagenen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Arthur Van Wagenen of Greenville.

The bride's dress was of white and powder blue with which she used white accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

The bride's mother wore a dress of powder blue with white accessories and a corsage of pink asters. Mrs. Van Wagenen, the bridegroom's mother, was attired in a dark blue and white dress. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Mr. H. F. Jackson of Edenton, Mrs. W. E. Hall of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Dan Carter and Miss Anne Braswell of Edenton attended the wedding.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors. A number of close friends and relatives attended.

After the reception the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip to unannounced points.

Miss Duke received an honor gift of silver.

One suspicious mother yesterday said her boy seemed to have an unlimited supply of quarters.

Detectives talked to the boys, who led them to four bags of silver, containing $981.65, stored between a bees' nest and a wasps' nest "to keep thieves away."

Police said the find apparently was part of $3,900 which disappeared from a Trenton, N.J., vending machine firm along with one of the firm's employes.

Names and ages of the boys were not disclosed. Nor did police say how much they spent.

Women Cautioned Not To Take Dior Style Dictum Seriously

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Before American women start doing anything drastic to hide their bosoms, I'd like to advise them not to take Christian Dior's no-bust dictum too seriously.

From where I sit, one fact emerges from the current flat-chested furore, a fact that has become more apparent each year since 1947, when this small, bookish Frenchman became an overnight celebrity as father of the "New Look."

Christian Dior is a showman in the P. T. Barnum tradition. The fashion business is one of cut-throat competition, with the laurels going to the designer who gets there fustiest with the mostest sensations.

For the last seven years, Dior has been there fustiest, creating nine-day wonders with drastic changes in the established silhouette, making women wonder whether to throw out all their old clothes, causing international controversy and getting front page headlines.

His first Paris showing at which the late and unamented "New Look" was born, was the only one which succeeded in changing the basic dress of the average woman. This was a natural result of the freeing of wartime restrictions, bringing back fuller, longer skirts after years when women had no choice except to wear short, tight ones.

Since then Dior has exploded a fashion bombshell at his Paris showing almost every summer and has become the most famous, successful and controversial figure in the international world of fashion.

Last year his edict of knee-length skirts brought on a rash of hysterical pro-and-con statements, sent buyers into a dither and elicited varying reactions from the general public, while, of course, making news on both sides of the Atlantic.

Grapevine gossip in the garment industry was that on the night before the opening, Dior surveyed his collection, decided that it had nothing that would produce sensational news, and ordered all the skirts shortened about six inches.

As now is apparent, the short-skirt tempest had no appreciable effect on the American hemline.

This year news that Dior had fall silhouette brought on a rash of editorial comment and crowded Indochina, taxes and McCarthy for page one space.

Hollywood sweater girls sneered, bra manufacturers shouted denunciations, store buyers lined up and took sides and American husbands laid down the law.

Then, a few days later, Dior announced that he hadn't eliminated the bosom; he had merely raised it. In fact, he had designed and patented a bra lifting the bosom from the current average 10 1/2 inches from the shoulder, to eight inches. A New York fashion editor covering the Paris openings did a little detective work among the Dior mannequins and reported that the new bras are "straight little cages that reach from waistline to above bosom height... as unshaped as a little girl's panty waist and without any suggestion of cups."

It seems apparent that raising the bustline to this extent also necessarily raises the neckline. All this hardly seems a silhouette that will appeal to American women—and certainly it draws no applause from American men.

My bet is that bosoms are here to stay.

No Slot Machine For His Wife

COLUMBUS Ohio (U)—Jack Kreske, owner of a Columbus plumbing supply firm, told police it was all his wife's fault.

"Every time we'd go out, she'd play the slot machines. Finally, I said, 'look, honey, I'll buy you one.'"

Kreske said he bought an "old, broken down machine for her, figuring we could fix it up and she could play it. She's the only one that's put a nickel in it since and it's been in our basement all the time."

Police, embarked on an anti-pin ball drive, confiscated the machine from the recreation room of Kreske's home yesterday. Now he faces a $50 to $200 fine and six months in the workhouse for possession of the one-armed bandit.

Three Follow-Up Evangelistic Rallies Planned August 13, 14, 15

The man whom Billy Graham considers "has no peer in evangelism today," Evangelist Jimmie Johnson, is coming to Greenville for three united evangelistic rallies, August 13, 14 and 15.

A part of the united follow-up of the Eddie Martin Crusade, sponsored in June by the Greenville and Pitt County Ministerial Associations, the three August rallies will be held in Austin Auditorium, on the campus of East Carolina College. Though the services are sponsored by "Youth Crusade for Christ," follow-up organization of the Eddie Martin meeting, the purpose is to reach the general public, of all ages.

Jimmie Johnson, one of the nation's top men in the field of interdenominational evangelism, comes to Greenville with the highest recommendation of the most famous evangelist of the world today, Billy Graham. Graham says of Johnson, "In my opinion, Jimmie Johnson has no peer in evangelism today. His evangelism is Church integrated, sane, sensible, Biblical, searching, and challenging. I have recommended him all over the United States. He and I have been friends for many years. In my opinion, he is one of the great men of God of our day. He has had a profound influence on my life."

Alabama born Johnson now makes his home in Fuquay, N. C. He has just completed a five-weeks "Crusade for Christ" in Fayetteville, sponsored by the Baptist Churches of the Fayetteville area. Over 900 decisions for Christ were recorded in the Cumberland County series.

Bob Gibbons, Duke University Junior, president of the youth follow-up of the Martin Crusade, announced the following youth committee appointments in connection with the Jimmie Johnson rallies: Tommy Bodkin, publicity; Kirby Branch, newspaper advertising; Billy Arnold, posters and handbills; Pat Baker, business area advertising; Charles McGowan, radio and television; H. W. Smith, Ayden and Winterville.

The first of the three rallies will be held Friday the 13th at 8 p.m. The second rally is Saturday night at 8, and the third and final one is Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Clyde Taylor of Wheaton, Ill. is son leader of the Jimmie Johnson team. Mr. Taylor is also an exceptionally good soloist. He will direct the Crusade Choir, which has been kept intact since the June Crusade, under leadership of Bob Gibbons.

Rev. Malloy Owen, chairman of the Youth Committee for the Ministerial Association, advisor to the sponsoring youth group, and Rev. Lee Willingham, vice-chairman and associate advisor, joined today in calling on the Christian people of all ages, of all churches, to "stand with the Christian youth of the county in attending and supporting these three rallies with one of the greatest evangelists of our time."

On TV Sunday
The Jimmie Johnson evangelistic team will be seen on Television Station WNCN, Channel 9, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the regular 30-minute broadcast "The Circuit Rider," sponsored by the St. James Methodist Church.

Movie Saturday Night
Another part of the over-all follow-up campaign of the Martin Crusade, the "Christian Movie Series," will continue this Saturday night, August 7, at 8 o'clock. "Reaching From Heaven," a production of the Lutheran Church, will be shown at the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville.

"Reaching From Heaven" is described as "telling in 80 dramatic minutes the story of how a congregation, by one incident, is shocked into an evangelistic program. A brilliant presentation of Christian witnessing, this picture carries a great lesson: God uses ordinary people to accomplish His purpose in the lives of others."

No admission fee is charged. "Youth Crusade" finances the movie series by free will offerings received at each showing. People of all ages are urged to attend. Local ministers see the Saturday cinema as "an excellent activity for the Christian family."

Auto Workers Reject Pay Cut

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Some 5,000 workers at Studebaker Corp. last night turned down a 15 per cent pay cut which International CIO United Auto Workers officials urged them to take to protect their jobs.

With only half of the firm's workers voting, a 3 to 2 margin was given against taking the decrease in a show-of-hands vote which followed a heated 2½ hour meeting.

Paul G. Hoffman, Studebaker's board chairman, previously announced salaries to top executives had been cut 20 to 30 per cent in what he called a multi-million-dollar economy drive which started last April.

He added that 12 per cent of Studebaker's executive personnel had been cut since the drive started and that the program has saved about 10 million dollars on an annual basis.

Addressing the workers at the meeting were Louis J. Horvath, president of Studebaker Local 5, and other international officials. All recommended the pay cut and other contract revisions.

The union officials said the cut would offer hope of stabilizing employment and increase overall take-home pay.

Most of Studebaker's departments have only been operating four days every fortnight since early this year. Employment has been cut in half.

"Most of the workers just couldn't seem to accept a pay reduction after averaging only $35 a week for the last six months," said Horvath.

The company made no comment after the union action.

Average wages at Studebaker are estimated at $2.37 an hour compared with $2.07 for Ford, General Motors, and Chrysler.

Hoffman said that had the union accepted the 15 per cent cut, it would have dropped labor costs of a $2,000 automobile by $60 to $75.

'Books and Stuff'

Literary event of the summer has just occurred: publication of William Faulkner's new book, "A Fable." It's not, as most of his books have been, about Yoknapatawpha County, Mississippi, but has a completely different background—France during World War I—and concerns a French corporal and his twelve companions in their search for peace. Interestingly enough, the structure of "A Fable" follows out the events of Christ's life in considerable detail, with the corporal, a representative of the Disciples, and a French general—his father—playing the part of God.

And for those who might be interested in Faulkner himself—we learn that his daughter Jill is getting married on August 21 and that he is in Brazil this week, as a sort of goodwill ambassador from this country, with another literary personage, Robert Frost. They're helping to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the founding of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and should lend a lot of prestige to the group from various countries which will be represented—and incidentally should give us a cultural lift in South America, something we badly need in those parts.

And speaking of poets, four new books of poetry have just come out, with varying appeals and points of view. From the Indiana University Press comes Padraic Colum's "The Vegetable Kingdom," poems about the beauties of nature and gardens in the spring. . . . And from Yale comes "An Armada of Thirty Whales," a book of highly modern poems written in the so-called "New Diction" of the fifties, by Daniel G. Hoffman, whom we remember as one of our fellow graduate students a few years ago in New Haven.

In direct contrast to these two books is "The Collected Poems of Oliver St. John Gogarty," the Irish poet who still clings to the Classics—and manages to make them live. Quoting Robert Hillier's review in the "Times" this week, Gogarty's "main classical virtue is the fact that he is always interesting, an adjective we should hesitate to apply to much modern verse." Amen to that. . . . And Kenneth Patchen has come out with another selection, "The Famous Boating Party, and Other Fables in Prose," a series of satirical poems and modern life in general.

... We choose Gogarty. . . . Since we're on modern poetry, we'd like to quote something very pertinent that Stephen Spender wrote recently about it. Spender himself is known as a poet of the "Avant garde," so he should know what he is talking about when he speaks of the "retreat" of modern poetry:

"There are certain recent inventions and ideas which no poet should—in his poetry—name. . . . To be civilized one must retreat from horror and assert the values of poetry at a certain distance. In the Nineteen Thirties Hemingway could still write about war in which individual values had some nobility and played a vital part. But in the decade of the unmentionable bombs he must write about catching a fish." Thought-provoking, no?

The J.B. Lippincott Publishing Company—East Washington Square Philadelphia—has just sent us a notice of their $2500 Fiction Prize Contest for Young Novelists. Anything goes, as long as you're thirty-five years old or younger—so if you dash off a novel before February 28, 1955, and can meet the age requirement, sent it in and maybe you'll win. The Lippincott Company or this Column will furnish further information if you want it.

Judges, incidentally, are Diana Trilling, Jacques Barzun and W.H. Auden. . . .

Future plans: The Literary Guild announces its September selection—"Love Is Eternal," by Irving Stone. It's about the marriage of Mary Todd and Abraham Lincoln—a very controversial and fascinating subject. Stone, if you remember, broke into the literary limelight twenty years ago with his biography of the painter, Vincent Van Gogh, called "Lust for Life," and he's been writing successful biographical fiction ever since. . . . We will be carrying a review of the current Literary Guild selection, incidentally, Vilhelm Moberg's "Unto a Good Land," at as early a date as our reviewer can finish it.

And concerning reviewers, we have one this week who writes about a current best seller. She's Peggy Hampton, former reference librarian at the College, and now head of the army library in Fayetteville. She writes us that she likes her new job, has to write a book column herself and also a weekly radio program—so she's pretty busy. . . . Her regards to all, and here's her review.

DIANE, By Herbert Best, New York: Morrow and Company, 1954. "Diane" relates the story of a lovely and carefree young girl of seventeen in a Jamaica setting of 1804. The Jamaica of that period is presented as a lush, tropic land filled with slaves, freed men, high society and low, in which anything could happen.

The story centers around Diane Moore, her father, Gowny Moore, who has built the large plantation called Gramercie, and her beautiful but dissatisfied mother, Greta. Gowny Moore suspects that he is being poisoned. He must discover whether it is his wife or Euan Orde, overseer of the estate, in order to protect Diane's future. Hension mounts in his race against time. After his death it is a question of who will win out in the end, Greta and Euan Orde or Diane and her suitor, Peregrine Sandys. The answer is finally located in the diary of Gowny Moore. In a dramatic but gory ending the villains receive the fate they richly deserve.

The author gives a vivid and glittering description of life in Jamaica during that time. Some of the characters are most interesting. Outstanding among them is Constance Kurgen-Fox, the "grande dame" type. There are also the young and very stubborn hero, Peregrine Sandys, crude but attractive Euan Orde, Surgeon O'Connell, and King Tom, to name a few others.

The novel will be popular and widely read. One can not help but wonder, though, how a man of Gowny Moore's type, who had carved a great island plantation with his bare hands and sheer determination, could accept his fate in such a docile manner.

Cary Grant Avoids 'Nuisance' Of Fans

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I love my fans," gushes many a movie star. Not so Cary Grant.

He says bluntly what most stars probably feel: Fans can be a nuisance.

There's a certain irony about actors. When they are young, they work like the dickens to be recognized. Then, when they reach stardom, they try to conceal themselves. After talking to Grant, I can understand why.

It all began quietly enough when I visited the set of "Catch A Thief." The elegant Grant, who has more style than any male star you can mention, was lounging in his dressing room. So I asked him about the freighter trips he and his wife take. She's Betsy Drake, the actress.

The Grants have traveled to all parts of the world on freighters, and I wondered why he favored them. He became eloquent as he described the voyage of a movie star on one of the luxury liners.

"To begin with," he began with, "there are 2,500 crew members on one of those ships. Each one of them has an autograph book of his own or else he is carrying one for his daughter or son. You have to sign each one of them."

"Then there's the ship's photographer. He sees to it that you pose for pictures with every other passenger obtainable. Then he sells them to the passengers for five bob or fifty cents or whatever. He makes his living that way."

"And of course every passenger has two cameras criss-crossed on their chests and they want a picture with you. If you're in the shade, they want you out in the sun; if you're in the sun, they want you in the shade."

"You try to get sleep, but the drunks are beating on your stateroom all night, wanting to buy a drink for you. Then at seven in the morning, the small fry are up and pounding the door for autographs."

"The result is that you either have a miserable time or you're rude. I'm rude. I tell them I never sign anything."

"Why should you be concerned about them? They never worry about me. They don't say, 'let's go to this movie so good, old Cary Grant can buy a meal.' One had picture and they'll drop you like a hot potato."

Contrasting the hectic life for a celebrity on a big liner is the pleasure aboard a freighter.

"There are generally 12 people aboard, and they're fascinating persons," he observed. "Real people—doctors, biology professors, a couple of Japanese girls. People I can learn something from."

Grant said the food is generally excellent aboard the freighters, the pace slow and the conversation congenial.

Primary Slated For Kentuckians

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—Voters of this border state tomorrow will nominate 10 congressional candidates in a quiet prelude to a keen U.S. senatorial race expected to match names—Cooper and Barkley—regarded by some Kentuckians as having political magic.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, Somerset Republican seeking reelection and former Vice President Alben W. Barkley, Paducah Democrat running to regain the senatorial post he had before being elected "Veep" in 1948, are without strong opposition in their primaries. Each is backed by his state party organization.

The 76-year-old Barkley and 52-year-old Cooper have been speaking for some time—although doing little formal campaigning—and leaders of both parties anticipate one of the most heated races in Kentucky history between the pair before the Nov. 2 general election.

In District primaries tomorrow, eight nominees for the U.S. House of Representatives also will be picked.

It's Mighty Good News For Pitt

Word that funds have been approved for construction of the new bypass highway and a new bridge across Tar River at Greenville is mighty good news for citizens of Pitt County.

A second bridge across the Tar here has been a dream for a long time. Its necessity has become more apparent in recent years as increasing traffic moving north and south through the city have caused the existing bridge to become the worst traffic bottleneck in the second highway division.

The benefits brought by the new bypass highway and bridge will reach far beyond the people of Greenville and surrounding area. Construction of the new traffic artery across the Tar will open the way for federal approval for the extension of federal highway 13 and 113 running to Greenville from the north, and continuing south through the state.

In all, the new project - which includes the bridge and approximately four miles of highway - is expected to cost approximately $620,000.

Aircraft Industry Takes Top Employment Spot

A dark horse has crept up on the outside, unnoticed by many people, to capture the lead as the nation's largest manufacturing employer.

It may be a surprise to some to learn the aircraft industry is now the largest manufacturing employer in the United States. For years it has been considered almost elementary that more people were employed in the vast auto industry and the mammoth steel industry than any others in this country.

Latest statistics show, however, that 823,000 workers are now employed in the aircraft industry in the United States compared with 786,000 in the auto industry and only 594,000 in steel.

Perhaps the air age has finally come into its own even over the automobile industry. In our opinion, however, we're still a long way from the predicted day when the family airplane will replace the family car.

Strength for the Day

STEADY HAND AT THE HELM
Some people seem always to be getting the worst of it in the struggle of life. They are buffeted about by one unfortunate circumstance after another. Many decide at last that such people are unlucky.

The truth of the matter is that every human being has to negotiate rough waters some time—and usually a number of times—during his lifetime. Everyone who has ever done any boating knows that in going through rough water it is necessary to manage the helm in such way that the boat does not get sidetracked and battered about by the waves. This requires a steady hand at the helm and some knowledge of navigation. It is hard for most of us to face the fact that the troubles of life in which we have become involved are largely our own fault. Perhaps we lacked knowledge of navigation, or perhaps our hand was not steady on the helm. Anyway we got ourselves into a position where the turbulent sea of life could about have its way with us. If we had informed ourselves better, and if our seamanship had been more skillful, we might have saved ourselves a lot of trouble. Storms come and go and we have nothing to do with situations of that proportion. But we are expected to guide our own craft through the storm and to do it with some skill.

Each painful experience should teach us something about the best way to handle ourselves in the next storm.

Oil Changes Egyptian Policy

By RAY TUCKER
This is the fifth article from Egypt by Ray Tucker.

CAIRO, Egypt—A brisk battle between the great international oil interests—American, British, Dutch—has developed as a result of certain geologists' belief that they will strike oil in the western Egyptian desert. It is the area where British Field Marshall Montgomery unloosed the thundering artillery barrage at El Alamein that drove Rommel into the arms of Eisenhower and heralded Hitler's eventual defeat.

Believing that the same subsurface structure responsible for Iranian and Arabian strikes extends beneath the Suez Canal and into North Africa, the Naguib-Nasser regime asked the world's leading geologists to make preliminary explorations. The new Government has revised its mineral and currency laws so as to attract foreign capital.

The scheme contradicts Egypt's new nationalistic spirit, which led to a "plague on both your houses" attitude to the United States and Russia. But this new, young crowd in control here is fairly realistic. They need Western know-how and manna. Egypt asked Aramco, which markets Arabian oil, to handle the still speculative venture.

Aramco is owned 30 per cent by Standard Oil of New Jersey, 30 per cent by Standard Oil of California, 30 per cent by the Texas Company, and 10 per cent by Socony-Vacuum. The Americans, British and Dutch monopolize Iran's output. That fabulous man of Armentian descent, Calouste Sarkis Gulbenkian, who has swung many of these oil deals for the big companies, has a 6 per cent interest.

BIG OIL COMPANIES BOWED OUT—But the giant firms declined Egypt's invitation. In the first place, they have too much oil in production and prospect now, despite current high prices for gasoline. They also thought that the Naguib-Nasser regime traffic load through Greenville, the opening of the new bypass is expected to take some 1,600 vehicles a day off the existing bridge, and to remove some 800 vehicles a day off Dickinson Avenue in the city. The result will make north-south travel through and around the city easier, and likewise make traffic movements on Dickinson Avenue much easier.

Highway officials, city officials and county officials who have worked diligently to bring this project to fruition are indeed to be congratulated for their contribution to better highway travel through this section which will be provided by the new bridge and highway.

It probably will be a couple of years yet before the project is completed, but the fact that the first $500,000 of funds for the project has been approved will allow us all to rest easier.

What Makes Greenville Keep On Growing?

If you want a riddle, try this one for size: What makes Greenville keep growing at an ever-increasing rate?

No big year-round industries; few small year-round industries; the city's location is smack-dab in the middle of an agricultural area; in most respects its pretty much like any other small college town. But it keeps growing.

New construction figures for the first half of this year showed some $1,124,800 was authorized, a little over $70,000 more than for the same period last year. And last year too showed a rise over 1952.

The outskirts of town are remarkably eye-catching with innumerable new homes, and most sections are seeing new homes going up.

You'd think the housing shortage of World War II days would have been caught up with long before now; and while the population is growing, the growth of construction seems to be more apparent than the increase in our citizenry.

Anyway, we like to watch Greenville grow, and suspect that there's a host of other natives (and near-natives) who feel the same way about it.

A POLICY THAT MAKES SENSE
There has been widespread misrepresentation, knowing or otherwise, of this Administration's electric power policy—and of the power policy of preceding Republican Administrations.

For example, it was recently charged that the Hoover Administration had been adamantly opposed to hydro-electric power development by government—and the inference was made that the present Administration follows a similar doctrine. Mr. Hoover himself replied. He said that he had "advocated multiple-purpose dams when justified for the past 50 years." He pointed out that one of the largest of these dams, Hoover Dam on the Colorado, had been almost completed during his administration, and that it was his administration that recommended and prepared the plans for Grand Coulee.

Then Mr. Hoover stated: "I never said that the government should get out of the electric power business. What I did say was that the Federal government must continue to construct multiple-purpose hydro-electric dams, but that the federal government should get out of the socialistic and bureaucratic empire building by way of operating the power houses and distributing power; that the federal government should sell its power at the bus bar to the municipalities, the states, and the private utilities; that is, should sell it at rates which would return interest and amortization to the federal government on its investment in power and pay state and local taxes which are now mostly tax exempt." Somebody Told Me

Consider Yourself Warned
If you can imagine, I've kept a secret from you since April! And before revealing it today, I'm going to give you the background.

Safe driving has always been a concern of mine. And everybody who is concerned about safe driving knows that speed kills. One Thursday night last April I was talking to Pfc. James Boykin of the State Highway Patrol about this very topic.

"Come on out to the car," he said. Sitting in the car, Boykin picked up the mike of his police radio and asked the office the number of traffic deaths to date, compared with the same time last year. Right now I don't recall the figures, but the percentage of lives saved was amazing. And you know about the emphasis on speed.

Boykin told me his own personal feeling about the job patrolling the highway; the responsibility that he feels for making people safety conscious. While Boykin was talking I thought about the slogan that Carl McKinney uses in signing off his morning radio show over WGTC: "Remember that when a cop gives you a ticket it's your neck he's trying to save, not his."

The whole situation impressed me. So I went home and wrote a column about it.

Less than a week later my next-door neighbor, Elmo Dupree, Amos Leggett and I went drift net fishing near Williamston. We were in Elmo's car and he asked if anybody wanted to drive.

"I will," I said. The only excuse I have for what is to come is that Elmo's car is considerably spryer than mine. The conversation was very interesting and I wasn't particularly noticing the speed.

Somebody Told Me

Consider Yourself Warned

When I saw the headline "Consider Yourself Warned" I thought, "What a warning!"

The ticket read 65 miles an hour; the cost was $23.05. The lesson was worth more than that. Since then I've learned to watch the speedometer no matter how unfamiliar the car is.

Amos, Elmo and I decided that there was no point in broadcasting the arrest. For weeks it was kept from Wife Rachel. Now I've decided that the lesson might do you some good if I passed it on to you. Consider yourself warned! And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

HARDSHIPS
(Washington Daily News)
A lot has been said in the papers recently about hardships which certain officers must face when they go to court as witnesses.

There is no doubt but what there are many hardships to be faced at times. Officers usually accept these hardships as a part of the job, but there is no necessity to make those hardships more severe than is humanly possible.

For instance in Washington there are three shifts on the police force. One shift goes to work at 7:00 o'clock in the morning and gets off at 3:00 in the afternoon. Another shift goes to work then and gets off at 11:00 o'clock at night. The night shift goes to work then and works until 7:00 o'clock the next morning.

Now that last shift, from 11:00 P.M. until 7:00 A.M. is often faced with the job of coming to court at 10:00 o'clock in the morning to appear as witnesses

Some Reshuffling Ahead For N. C. Democratic Team

By LYNN NISBET
TEAM — If the Democratic Executive Committee approves the recommendations of Governor Umstead, as it is confidently expected to do, there will be some shuffling in party offices but no disturbance of the fine working team of the past several years.

Everett Jordan, who has served as State chairman for five years, moves over to the berth on the National National Committee. John D. Larkins Jr., who has been secretary of the State committee, becomes the new chairman. Mrs. Mary Laurens Richardson continues as vice chairman. The other top officials are Mrs. B.B. Everett, national committeewoman. She had previously served as state vice-chairman.

Continuance of the working team, even though two of the horses are in different positions, assures continuing harmony with the national party organization. In his capacity as State chairman, Everett Jordan has maintained close liaison with the national group, undisturbed by changes in administrations at Raleigh and Washington. As national committeeman he will be in position to maintain that alliance.

Larkins has managed more Jefferson-Jackson dinners than any other North Carolinian, probably more than anybody in any State. That is primarily a national committee affair, although involved them. These conditions exist all over North Carolina. In Raleigh recently the picture was presented rather strongly. Officers are human and they need to get their rest. And every effort should be made by the courts all over North Carolina to cater to these officers so involved as much as possible.

Apparently there is no way to work out a perfect solution. Even cases which don't involve officers when they are off duty do involve officers who are on duty. And often times when these officers have to be in court, areas of the state and counties and cities are not protected as they would be if the officers were not in court.

Since there is no sure fire cure for all these problems, the only solution is to work out the best routine possible under the circumstances. And a little more understanding on the part of the public of these hardships often faced by officers would help a lot.

She Turned Her Back On Chicago

By HAL BOYLE
HILL CITY, S.D. (AP)—How can a middle-aged woman who has lost her husband and reared her children adjust to a world that suddenly seems empty?

That was the problem that faced Mrs. Arthur Wermuth, mother of Maj. Art Wermuth, the famous "one-man army of Bataan."

She found the answer by turning her back on the busy social life of Chicago and settling down in a cabin in this old small town, less than 500 miles from the Black Hills. She lives alone with her 8-year-old Dalmatian watchdog, "Sissy," and says she has found here a new peace and purpose in life.

"Ever since I came here," she said, "I have loved these hills so much that I could kiss the ground for the happiness they brought me."

Sitting in the loving room of her log home, Mrs. Wermuth, a vivacious, dark-eyed woman whose age is still her own secret, told her life.

"When I was in the third year in high school I had my appendix out," she recalled. "The surgeon had a son, who was also a doctor and helped him."

"I started hollering for the young doctor, and wouldn't let the old man take care of me. Before I left the hospital the son and I were engaged."

"I guess he fell in love with my insides," said Mrs. Wermuth, laughing then sadly. "But for more than 34 years no woman ever had a finer husband. He was a good man."

The young doctor became a famous overworked surgeon. In 1925 his wife talked him into coming to the Black Hills on a fishing trip, and each year after that they returned.

"In Chicago he belonged to the people, and the city finally killed him," she said. "But out here he belonged only to me—and ere we found peace together."

Widowed shortly before the war, Mrs. Wermuth spent 9 years traveling about the country with her daughter, Talia, who had become a professional dancer. They were tired, anxious years.

Her son had won fame by killing more than 100 Japanese single-handed in patrol actions on Bataan before being taken prisoner.

"For more than 3 1/2 years I worried every night that they would kill him in prison camp," she said.

After the war she settled here with her daughter, who is married to a businessman in nearby Custer. Her son is now in the insurance business in Denver.

"To this day we have never talked about the war," she remarked. "Some day, mother, I'll tell you about it," he said, and some day, when he is ready, he will tell me. But it is over, and now he doesn't want ever to hear about it.

"So far he hasn't even looked at the scrapbook I collected about his heroism, but some time he will. I also still have the gavel used in the House of Representatives to declare war on Italy and Germany. It was given to me by Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas. He said the gavel used to declare war on Japan had been stolen."

The shelves of her four-room cabin are crowded with souvenirs of her travels. The shelf above the fireplace holds the bronzed first baby shoes of her two children—and the skull of a gorilla, given her in Seattle.

Mrs. Wermuth now is a familiar figure in the Black Hills, and held in high affection for her acts of kindness. Even the crustiest old prospector waves as she wheels by on a trout fishing trip.

"No, I don't miss the city social life I used to know," she said. "Here they have something much better than society—a neighborliness you don't find in many places."

"The Rocky Mountains are so big they give you a feeling of loneliness. But the Black Hills give you a feeling of serenity and peace."

"I don't know whether you know what I mean by that, but you will when you are older." She reached down and patted Sissy, and the big spotted dog glanced up and looked at her thoughtfully. The two understand each other.

Effort — It is also probable that major efforts will be concentrated in the 9th and 10th congressional districts. Desperate effort will be made to recapture the 10th district, now represented by Republican Congressman Charles Raper Jonas. Information is that the Republicans have designs on the 9th district, where Congressman Hugh Alexander won in the last election by less than 4,000 out of a total of more than 133,000 votes.

Democratic policy is shaping up to save the 9th and recapture the 10th, while Republican strategy is to save the 10th and recapture the 9th. Since there is not a President or a Governor to be elected this year, and the other state-wide Democratic nominees are certain of election, chances are good that the names of Charles Raper Jonas and Chesley Sedberry, respectively the Republican and Democratic candidates in the 10th district, and Hugh Alexander and William E. (Bill) Stevens, respective Democratic and Republican candidates in the ninth, will be used

Banner Building Year

By ELMER ROESSNER
The decline in construction is still far in the future. This is becoming one more banner year in building.

The erection of plants is lagging behind last year, but this has been more than offset by a rise in commercial construction. For years forecasters have been saying that housing starts would fall to 850,000 units a year. Well, in the first half of this year, a total of 874,000 units was started. Of these, 564,100 were privately financed. That's more than were started in any half year since 1950.

There has been a shift in the housing pattern, however. There are fewer apartment houses and fewer owner-built homes being erected, but there are many more single-family homes being built by speculators.

Incidentally, the two-family house appears to be an expiring institution. Figures compiled by the F. W. Dodge Corp. in 37 states show that in the first six months of the year, only $78,000,000 worth of contracts for two-family houses was let—an infinitesimal amount compared with awards totalling $9,250,000,000 for all construction.

The Dodge figures confirm the fact that fewer plants are being put up; contracts for chemical and related plants were 72 per cent under last year; for ferrous metals, 56 per cent under; and for nonferrous machinery, 99 per cent under. However, there were increases in awards for food, petroleum, automotive and aircraft plants.

All types of commercial construction were higher than in the first half of last year, with increases of 95 per cent in commercial warehouses, 46 per cent in office and loft buildings; and 32 per cent in stores.

The Dodge report also shows a great, though not unexpected, increase in construction of educational buildings. Contracts awarded in the first six months of the year totalled $936,000,000, a new record for the period and 29 per cent above last year. Awards for building religious structures totalled $222,000,000, an increase of 28 per cent over the same period last year.

And still ahead of the country is a huge increase in construction of roads and highways. We have only begun to gnaw away at the hundreds of thousands of miles of new and improved roads the nation needs.

DO SOME EXECUTIVES... TELL TOO MUCH?... American businessmen are frank about most of their operations; they tell how they solve problems with a candor that constantly amazes visiting European businessmen.

Sometimes they may be a little too frank on their remarks. In a current trade magazine, the industrial relations director of a big company tells how he gets information over to employees, including such devices as using "an outside 'name' authority" by-line articles, books, etc. for employees.

If his employees can read—and many of them do—the director may run into a bit of trouble on his next campaign. The workers are very likely to ask, "What big name is this smart-aleck going to try to impress us with this time?"

This case is more typical than isolated. In many trade magazines there are frequent examples of exchange of information—but frequently the swap consists of some junior executive exchanging some of his company's valuable information for mention of his name in an article. When a junior writes on "How I Won My Big Account," he may be disclosing the details by which some competitor can win the account away from him.

HILL CITY, S.D. (AP)—How can a middle-aged woman who has lost her husband and reared her children adjust to a world that suddenly seems empty?

That was the problem that faced Mrs. Arthur Wermuth, mother of Maj. Art Wermuth, the famous "one-man army of Bataan."

She found the answer by turning her back on the busy social life of Chicago and settling down in a cabin in this old small town, less than 500 miles from the Black Hills. She lives alone with her 8-year-old Dalmatian watchdog, "Sissy," and says she has found here a new peace and purpose in life.

"Ever since I came here," she said, "I have loved these hills so much that I could kiss the ground for the happiness they brought me."

Sitting in the loving room of her log home, Mrs. Wermuth, a vivacious, dark-eyed woman whose age is still her own secret, told her life.

"When I was in the third year in high school I had my appendix out," she recalled. "The surgeon had a son, who was also a doctor and helped him."

"I started hollering for the young doctor, and wouldn't let the old man take care of me. Before I left the hospital the son and I were engaged."

"I guess he fell in love with my insides," said Mrs. Wermuth, laughing then sadly. "But for more than 34 years no woman ever had a finer husband. He was a good man."

The young doctor became a famous overworked surgeon. In 1925 his wife talked him into coming to the Black Hills on a fishing trip, and each year after that they returned.

"In Chicago he belonged to the people, and the city finally killed him," she said. "But out here he belonged only to me—and ere we found peace together."

Widowed shortly before the war, Mrs. Wermuth spent 9 years traveling about the country with her daughter, Talia, who had become a professional dancer. They were tired, anxious years.

Her son had won fame by killing more than 100 Japanese single-handed in patrol actions on Bataan before being taken prisoner.

"For more than 3 1/2 years I worried every night that they would kill him in prison camp," she said.

After the war she settled here with her daughter, who is married to a businessman in nearby Custer. Her son is now in the insurance business in Denver.

"To this day we have never talked about the war," she remarked. "Some day, mother, I'll tell you about it," he said, and some day, when he is ready, he will tell me. But it is over, and now he doesn't want ever to hear about it.

Some Reshuffling Ahead For N. C. Democratic Team

By LYNN NISBET
TEAM — If the Democratic Executive Committee approves the recommendations of Governor Umstead, as it is confidently expected to do, there will be some shuffling in party offices but no disturbance of the fine working team of the past several years.

Everett Jordan, who has served as State chairman for five years, moves over to the berth on the National National Committee. John D. Larkins Jr., who has been secretary of the State committee, becomes the new chairman. Mrs. Mary Laurens Richardson continues as vice chairman. The other top officials are Mrs. B.B. Everett, national committeewoman. She had previously served as state vice-chairman.

Continuance of the working team, even though two of the horses are in different positions, assures continuing harmony with the national party organization. In his capacity as State chairman, Everett Jordan has maintained close liaison with the national group, undisturbed by changes in administrations at Raleigh and Washington. As national committeeman he will be in position to maintain that alliance.

Larkins has managed more Jefferson-Jackson dinners than any other North Carolinian, probably more than anybody in any State. That is primarily a national committee affair, although involved them. These conditions exist all over North Carolina. In Raleigh recently the picture was presented rather strongly. Officers are human and they need to get their rest. And every effort should be made by the courts all over North Carolina to cater to these officers so involved as much as possible.

Apparently there is no way to work out a perfect solution. Even cases which don't involve officers when they are off duty do involve officers who are on duty. And often times when these officers have to be in court, areas of the state and counties and cities are not protected as they would be if the officers were not in court.

Since there is no sure fire cure for all these problems, the only solution is to work out the best routine possible under the circumstances. And a little more understanding on the part of the public of these hardships often faced by officers would help a lot.

She found the answer by turning her back on the busy social life of Chicago and settling down in a cabin in this old small town, less than 500 miles from the Black Hills. She lives alone with her 8-year-old Dalmatian watchdog, "Sissy," and says she has found here a new peace and purpose in life.

Stars Power 9-4 Win Over Jacksonville

Moye Gets Two Hits As Whitley Pitches Win

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Editor

Greenville's Tar Heel All-Star Little League team turned on all its power yesterday afternoon and then relied on little Jack Whitley's spectacular clutch pitching to gain an easy 9-4 win over Jacksonville.

The win moves the Greenville team into the finals of the district tournament with Rocky Mount's colored International League. That district finals game will be played today in Rocky Mount at four o'clock.

Jack Whitley threw a scare into the Greenville supporters the way they started the ball game in the first inning. Coaches Neely James and Ford McGowan went with Whitley on the mound but had Merrill Bynum ready to go in case Whitley weakened.

At Jernigan led off for Jacksonville and grounded out. Richard Scott then started off some fireworks with a single to centerfield. Ronnie Peaden then slammed a rifle shot single to leftfield. Big Billy Joe Morgan then stepped up and clobbered a pitch far over the left-centerfield fence to score three runs for Jacksonville. Whitley threw three pitches that Kenny Patrick just heard as they went by and then the little Greenville chunker forced Freddy Beacham to ground out.

The Greensies found themselves behind for the first time in the tournament. After two were out in the first Bynum walked and went to second on a passed ball. Joe Moye, one of the bright stars of the day, pulled a scorching liner into right-centerfield for a double on which Bynum easily scored.

Whitley Settles
After that one weak inning Whitley settled down and gave up only three hits and one run over the last five innings. The little right-hander, who pitched one no-hitter during regular season play, had the Jacksonville players practically eating out of his hand as they popped up or grounded out or just couldn't touch the ball at all.

Whereas Whitley was enjoying such success the Jacksonville pitcher, Freddy Beacham, found the going rather rough from the third inning on.

In the third the Greensies were trailing 3-1 and Harry Forbes was leading off. Harry had two strikes on him and then slammed a line drive single into right-centerfield. Bynum forced Forbes at second but Joe Moye was up to bat again. Moye waded out Beacham for a while, then powered another scorcher into rightfield and Bynum scored. Moye stole second and went to third on a ground out by Jeff Fountain.

With two outs it seemed as if the rally was over. Bill Clapp stepped up and started everything off and running again with a long double to right-centerfield scoring Moye with the tying run. Clapp went to third on a wild pitch and Billy Jenkins walked. Bobby Arthur lined a pitch into right-centerfield for his second hit of the day as Clapp scored and Jenkins held third. Jack Whitley sent a ground ball to the second baseman who erred the ball allowing Jenkins to score. That was all the scoring for that inning but Greenville came out of the frame on the long end of a 5-3 score.

Greenville picked up another run in the fourth and three more in the fifth as they just ran up the margin.

Morgan slammed another home run in the sixth inning for Jacksonville but it did not make any difference. Greenville had the game won anyway.

It was hard to pick any outstanding star of the Greenville team for the game. It was more of a team victory than any of the other games. Harry Forbes started two of the rallies with his and kept another one going with a walk besides playing errorless ball all night. Merrill Bynum scored three runs and drove in one. Joe Moye got two hits in two official tries and drew two walks. Moye also knocked in two runs and came up with several good fielding plays at first base. Jeff Fountain got two important singles to aid the attack. Bill Clapp got only one hit, but his hit was probably the one that broke the hearts of the Jacksonville players. Just as they thought they had the side retired, Clapp knocked in the tying run and later scored himself. Bob

Also-Rans Seem Scheduled To Decide American League Flag Race Results

By BEN PHEGAR
AP Sports Writer

The American League pennant chances of Cleveland, New York and Chicago now seem certain to be decided in games against the five also-rans rather than in hand-to-hand combat.

With less than a third of the season remaining, the schedule is running out of the so-called "crucial" Indians-Yankees-White Sox series. Cleveland has only five games left with the Yankees, who trail by a game and a half, and six with the White Sox who are five lengths back. The Yankees meet the White Sox just three more times.

But still to come for Cleveland are 13 meetings with Detroit. New York has 13 left with Philadelphia and Chicago faces Baltimore 11 more times.

Cleveland leads the league today because so far it has had better luck against the also-rans than either Chicago or New York. The Indians have whipped the "lowly five" 57 times while losing only 14. Against the same outfits the White Sox have a 54-19 record and the Yankees 50-21.

None of the three title aspirants has any particular home-or-away advantage. Cleveland's remaining 50 games are cut right down the middle, 25 at home, 25 on the road. The Yankees have 24 in New York and 23 away. The White Sox have 25 in Chicago and 21 on the road.

If Cleveland continues to win at its current .692 pace the Yankees would have to win 34 of their remaining 47 games to tie. The White Sox would need 37 out of 46.

The Yankees gained a 9-8 season's advantage over Cleveland yesterday by winning the final game of a three-part series, 5-2. The White Sox ran their current winning streak to seven games with a 5-1 triumph over Boston. Washington whipped Detroit 4-1 in the only other American League action.

The New York Giants held on to their five-game edge over Brooklyn although they lost 6-4 to Chicago. The Dodgers were walloped 13-4 by St. Louis.

Cincinnati at Pittsburgh and Milwaukee at Philadelphia were rained out. These were the first postponements in either league since July 7, although several games which had been started had to be called because of bad weather.

Mickey Mantle led the Yankee raid into Indian territory with two home runs. Joe Collins hit one. Rookie Bob Grim, with late inning help from Johnny Sain, posted his 14th victory. Sain gave up the only two Cleveland runs—a one-on homer by Larry Doby in the eighth.

The White Sox managed only five hits of five Boston pitchers but they got them when they counted most. Phil Cavarretta's two-run double in the first was the big blow as Bob Keegan won his 14th game.

A double by Wayne Belardi and a single by Al Kaline ruined Bob Porterfield's shutout bid with two out in the ninth at Detroit but the Washington right-hander choked off the rally in time for his 11th triumph. Mickey Vernon homered off loser Steve Gromek in the fifth.

Stan Musial, who always has looked upon Ebbets Field as a real home away from home, drove in seven runs in the Cardinals' one-sided victory in Brooklyn. Musial hit two home runs, his 29th and 30th, each with two aboard, and drove in another with a sacrifice fly.

Stan's first blast drove Prescher Roe an old St. Louis nemesis to the showers. Rookie Brooks Lawrence won his ninth game since joining the club in late June and had a perfect day at bat with three singles.

Back-to-back home runs in the eighth inning by Ernie Banks and Eddie Miksis boomed the Cubs to victory over the Giants. Frank Baumholtz also hit into the seats for the Chicagoans.

Lefty Jim Davis, last of three Cub pitchers, stopped the Giants after they had put two on with none out in the eighth, then got Monte Irvin to rap into a game-ending double play in the ninth.

Ernest Theoharis of Nashua, N. H. The fish weighs 11 1/2 pounds. It was caught on an 8 pound test line with flatfish as bait. The old record for a golden trout is 11 pounds. Theoharis used the big fish nearly half an hour before landing it. He said the fish measured 32 1/2 inches long and 17 1/4 inches in girth. (AP Wirephoto)

Ezzy May Try To Outslug Marciano

By JACK HAND
For Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody watched Ezzard Charles closely for signs of wear and tear after the 15th round besting he took from Rocky Marciano six weeks ago. The ex-champion was in town the other day to sign for the Sept. 15 rematch and there were those present who thought he might not last as long next time.

The egg-shaped lumps on his face had melted away long ago with most of the other traces of battle. If you looked real close you might see a mark here or there but he seemed more confident than ever.

In the hours after their June 17 battle, Ezzy was saying Marciano was not the best man he ever fought—that Jersey Joe Walcott was tougher and hurt him more than Rocky.

"I thought in the last rounds he'd fall apart. It seems I did. There's no doubt about it. It will take a perfect fight to beat him. I think if I fought like I did against Joe Louis it would be good enough."

Charles said he was given the best homecoming reception of his career when he came home to Cincinnati after the Marciano fight. It was a pleasant surprise to Ezzy to hear cheers ringing in his ears.

"I guess I made a mistake one time when I told the writers I didn't care about the cheers—I wasn't in any popularity contest."

Naturally, Charles wouldn't tip off his battle plans at this date. He will try to surprise Rocky in the Yankee Stadium ring. The impression here is that he will come out slugging, trying to take out Marciano in an early round. If that happens, it will be even better than the last time.

As Jake Mills, one of Ezzy's co-managers, said, "he don't figure to get hit on the garage again."

"I dislike night games, but don't disapprove of them. I think we should play either all day or night games. It's hard to get adjusted at the plate after playing a day game, then trying to follow the ball at night."

Sisler, who takes no credit for teaching Thomas, figures in a couple of years the big Lithuanian (he's 6 feet 3) will be one of the top top home run hitters in the majors. "He's a good pupil. He's strong and alert and that counts a lot in being a great home run hitter," says Sisler.

"At All-Star game time Thomas was hitting .303 for 84 games but had hit only 10 home runs. It was then that he said: "Now is the time to get going."

Thomas credits George Sisler, the Pirates chief scout, with helping him hit the longball.

"I was really depressed until Mr. Sisler took time out from his strenuous duties to teach me a few things," comments Thomas. "He was very patient. My one fault was mulling my head away. I guess Mr. Sisler spent more than two weeks with me last year straightening out my faults. I still have plenty.

That boy potentially is a great ball player. He can hit, throw and run. No ball park will hold Thomas' drives."

To back up that statement, Rickcy ordered Greenberg Gardens torn down at Forbes Field. The Gardens was an eight-foot-high barrier extending from left to center field to cut down the distance from home plate.

It was built in 1946 to accommodate Hank Greenberg's bat in his fading career. Greenberg now is general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

To back up that statement, Rickcy ordered Greenberg Gardens torn down at Forbes Field. The Gardens was an eight-foot-high barrier extending from left to center field to cut down the distance from home plate.

It was built in 1946 to accommodate Hank Greenberg's bat in his fading career. Greenberg now is general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Thomas credits George Sisler, the Pirates chief scout, with helping him hit the longball.

"I was really depressed until Mr. Sisler took time out from his strenuous duties to teach me a few things," comments Thomas. "He was very patient. My one fault was mulling my head away. I guess Mr. Sisler spent more than two weeks with me last year straightening out my faults. I still have plenty.

That boy potentially is a great ball player. He can hit, throw and run. No ball park will hold Thomas' drives."

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

THAT evening the doctor came to my room and told me: "I'm sending Russell in to the Paducah hospital. I think it might be best if he has X-rays taken. Since I'll have an ambulance for him, I hoped I might persuade you to join him."

"Not a chance," I said. "Why are you so eager to get rid of me, doctor?"

The doctor said: "I'm responsible for the welfare of passengers, and you need proper rest and medical care."

"I'm not sick," I said. "How is Russell?"

"All right, really. But I hate to take chances."

Then the captain came and I got out of the bed, where I had been sitting.

"I brought your mail, Mr. Wilde," Jellicoe said. "And here's a newspaper to see you."

The slim, dark man was about 30. I guess he had a tight, nervous face with thin lips that smiled only with an effort. He wore sodate clothes, and they were worn with that air of resolute unobtrusiveness that is a dead giveaway. The man was a cop.

"Would it be possible for me to speak to you privately for a few minutes, Mr. Wilde?" he said.

"I took the telegraph company's envelope from Capt. Jellicoe and looked at it before I answered. Through the cellophane window I could see that it had been sent from Philadelphia.

The doctor bowed himself out. Capt. Jellicoe stood smiling. Something amused him immensely.

"Alone would be fine," I told the cop. I stared at Jellicoe heartily. "I'm captain."

"Would you mind captain, please," the young cop said.

"You want me to leave?"

"If you don't mind," the captain muttered to himself and left.

"Let's see the buzzer," I said.

There was no surprise in the young man's face. He brought out a leather case and opened it. I didn't need more than once glance.

I sat numbly on the edge of the bed, feeling slightly sick. Cops wouldn't matter much, not local cops. But this was a federal cop, one of J. Edgar's boys and he would have no interest in whether or not I got Stewart. Whatever leads I had, they would want. And right now.

"Just a minute," I said. I ripped open the telegram.

It was from Grodnik and read: "Checking Sessions in Cincinnati. No trace of girl. Alarm out. FBI notified."

When I looked up, the FBI man held out still another yellow envelope, this one with the back flap wide open. "He sent you another telegram. Naturally, we were interested."

This one read: "Howard Sessions not known in Cincinnati. References faked. Have asked Louisville to trace. FBI notified. Good luck."

I folded them together and put them in a pocket. "You got here fast," I said.

He smiled and let it pass. "I wonder if you could come into town with me, Mr. Wilde?" he asked politely.

"For what?"

"A few questions. We'd like to get a statement."

"Can't you do it here?"

"Rather do it properly, if you don't mind." He smiled again, showing me nice white teeth, but no warmth.

"And if I do mind?"

"A little pointless now isn't it?" He sat on the edge of a chair and looked at me soberly. "As you said, we got here fast. Our Louisville office has been on the teletype all day to Philadelphia. I have a list of questions to ask. They'll take some time."

"If you know what's known in Philadelphia, you've got everything I know."

"We'll have to be sure of that," he said flatly. "I'd rather be nice about it, Mr. Wilde, but I'm afraid

I'll have to insist."

I stood up.

"Okay, let's go."

I went with the FBI man. We rode in a taxi for a few blocks and stopped at a small one-story post-office building. The FBI man rang the night bell and we stood on the steps waiting for the watchman.

"Not the police station?" I asked.

"We can keep this pleasant, if you want," he said.

We went in and walked past a long row of grilled windows to a corner office. The FBI man had the key in his pocket. He opened the door, flipped on the lights and stood aside for me.

It was a barren room with a steel desk and a chair near the door, another desk with a padded swivel chair in the far corner. On the floor stood a small cowhide suitcase and a square blocky case covered in dark canvas.

The FBI man rolled the swivel chair out from behind the desk for me. Then he lifted the canvas case, unsnapped the lid and raised it, displaying the double reels and simple controls of a tape recorder.

"I can bring in a secretary if you prefer. Rather use this. Makes a quick and simple record."

"Good enough," I said. "Provided you keep it running all the time we're talking."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I don't want any editing done, not if you're planning on making official use of that tape."

A small wintry smile tipped the corners of his lips. He didn't answer. He plugged in the power cord, switched on the motor and watched the brown tape begin threading slowly onto the empty reel. Then he attached a small universal microphone and balanced it on the desk in front of me. He pulled up a chair and leaned forward.

"Statement of Carney Wilde," he said, speaking very distinctly, "private detective of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Made to Malcolm Herbert, FBI special agent at Paducah, Kentucky, Tuesday, February 10, 1954. Statement made voluntarily with no element of coercion, no threats or promises of immunity. Will you confirm that, please, Mr. Wilde? But first your name and address for the record."

I stated my name and address. Then I got out a cigaret and began the usual search for my lighter. "I cannot confirm," I added, "that implied threats were not used to bring me off the Dixie Dandy."

Herbert rose quietly went to the recorder and switched it off. "We'd best get this straight," he said stiffly, with no heat. "The situation in Philadelphia was that you were wounded, and because you were not immediately available, our office did not question you about the robbery of the Jonas bank. So you could not be charged with deliberately withholding evidence. We don't know that you have withheld anything, but I'm going to find out. You are now being questioned by a special agent in official discharge of his duties. Refusal or unwillingness to supply information is a serious matter. The least that will happen is the loss of your license. And probably you will be prosecuted."

"And that doesn't constitute a threat?" I asked. I located my lighter and lit my cigaret. "Put all that on your recorder, along with the sugary bit about no coercion."

"You're going to be difficult, Mr. Wilde?" Herbert asked tightly.

"Not me," I said. "Ask your questions and get your answers. I'm not hiding anything. And from now on, leave that recorder running, or I'm going to insist on a police stenographer."

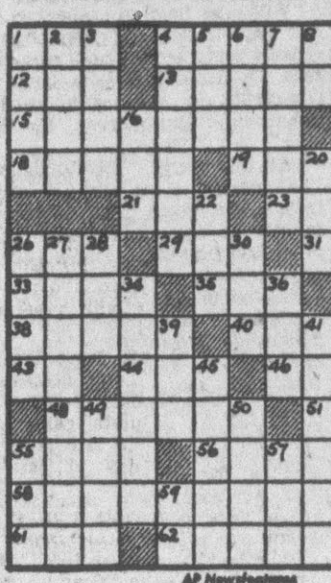

"Very well," Herbert switched on the machine and sat down again. "Tell me everything you know about the Jonas robbery."

Helicopters For Anti-Sub Work

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's Navy plans to form an anti-submarine helicopter squadron, using "dunking sonar" to track the undersea craft.

Informants said the helicopters will hover close to the ocean surface and lower the sonar listening gear beneath the waves. If they hear no subs, the sonar is wound up and the aircraft moves to another spot.

So far the navy hasn't been able to find the helicopter for the job. It needs one that can carry more equipment—depth charges as well as the sonar—and with greater endurance than present models. The Canadians expect U.S. manufacturers to come up with the answer.

Choosing the Best

PROVING ALL THINGS, HOLD FAST THE GOOD

Scripture—Matthew 6:19-34; Galatians 5:16-23; Philippians 1:9-11; 4:8; I Thessalonians 5:21-23.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL CHOOSING the best is the subject of our lesson today. What do you consider the "best" things in life? What makes you happiest or gives you the greatest satisfaction? Some people spend their lives trying to become rich; others collect things of different kinds. Both may boast over their success in their choices, but do such things make one truly happy? They may bring some satisfaction but not real joy. Small children also collect things—some collect live pets, others store away various things that take their fancy. It is the teacher's job to try to make them see that while their collections may give them pleasure, they are not the real treasures that make for lasting joy. "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal," said Christ. Rust, moths and time do play havoc with collections unless they are preserved with much care.

might have been happy have been broken up by wrangling over money matters. Next Jesus points out that even such necessities as food, drink and clothing are not the most important in life. "Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?" He asks. He speaks of the birds, that they do not store food, but they are fed; "Are ye not much better than they?" "Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature? And why take ye thought of raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" We must work for our food and clothing, it is true, but we need not consider them too important, and worry about them too much—the types of food we eat, the

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."—I Thessalonians 5:21.

And, after all, they are only collections of material things. We cannot take them with us when we leave this earth, but Jesus said further: "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." What are treasures in heaven? For the very young and those a little older, Love stands first; love of parents, relatives and friends; and also—and this is very important—all those with whom we come in contact at home, school, on the playground. Even if some do not "appeal to us," as we say, they deserve our interest, our consideration, our desire to help and understand. "No man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Mammon may mean money which most of us feel is very important, or other things which we may grow to worship or look at with feelings close to that sensation. The intense love of money may prove, indeed, the death of happiness. style of clothes we wear, so that they come to mean more to us than the real things of life. Jesus continued, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Paul writes to the Philippians: "And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge and in all judgment; that ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ; "Being filled with fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God." "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." To the Thessalonians Paul wrote: "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil." If we could get our young people to memorize these words of Christ and Paul, and not only to memorize them, but to hold them in their hearts, we would have no juvenile delinquency to deal with.

Report Army Is Facing Formosa

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A former Chinese Nationalist news agency said today a Communist army has been shifted to China's coastal Fukien Province opposite Formosa. There was no official confirmation of the report distributed by the Interior Ministry's Tatoo News Agency. It said the information came from underground contacts on the Red-held mainland. The U.S. 7th Fleet guards Formosa from attack and top officials in Washington reportedly agree privately that the United States would go to war in the event of a major Red attack.

C-of-C Also Strives To Build Good Will For City

(Another in the series of articles concerning local Chamber of Commerce activity deals with the Chamber's work in connection with advertising and public relations.)

Building good will for Greenville, its businesses and its citizens, and publicizing its institutions, and services and facilities which make the city attractive as a place to live and visit are the primary activities of the Public Relations Committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Chairman of this committee, Bancroft Moseley, cites a few of the activities the Chamber is sponsoring.

Sponsor Newcomers Party "With the help of other clubs and organizations, an annual newcomers party at which all new citizens are made to feel at home in Greenville is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce," Moseley said. "At this party," he explained, "newcomers to the city are entertained and given the opportunity to become acquainted with each other and long-time residents of the city."

Another project sponsored by the Chamber is the publication of a "Guide to Greenville," providing new citizens, visitors and others with a city map, general and historical information about the community, facts about the city and school, college, federal and state agencies, local organizations, and a classified business directory of the Chamber's membership.

Other good will projects cited by Moseley include advertising in school publications, the official shrine ceremonial program and the Northeastern District High School Basketball Tournament program. The Chamber of Commerce assists in the promotion of the Elks Bowl Football Game, and in planning and carrying out the program of the Greenville Tobacco Festival.

The local organization presents each player and the officials of teams participating in the Region 5 Little League Baseball Tournament, with an official Little League "T" shirt. This shirt carries wording appropriate to the event.

The Chamber also publishes a special pamphlet with which it fills requests from school students from all sections of the country for information on Greenville.

Uses Newspapers "As the city's advertising agent," Moseley stated, "The Chamber uses the newspapers in advertising the city as an educational, marketing, banking and trading center."

To attract industry and distribution plants it advertises in Thomas' Register of American Manufacturers and has advertised in State Magazine, the Manufacturers Record and other business publications.

The Chamber of Commerce cooperates with Greenville business firms by participating in an advertising fund for use by East Carolina College, and for general distribution through other Chambers of Commerce and travel agencies, the local organization prepares and publishes an illustrated folder giving historical and other desired information about the community.

Other Promotion Activities Some publicity and good will promotion activities used by the Chamber in past years include good will tours by businessmen in the trade area, mail campaigns in the interest of trade and tobacco market promotion, and a "Know Greenville" series of radio programs broadcast direct from the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Public Relations Chairman Moseley declared, "The Chamber accepts every opportunity to tell the Greenville story—in the preface of the City Directory, business publications, encyclopedias and market guides, for which it only has to provide the copy and photographs. "We are interested in letting other people know about our city, and what it has to offer," he concluded.

West Germany Is Finding Oil

BONN, Germany (AP)—Busting West Germany is outpacing all its neighbors in oil discoveries.

Five new oil fields have been discovered this year, pushing annual production to 2½ million tons. This is about one-third of the nation's requirements.

By 1955, oil experts predict West German wells will spout three million tons a year. Hitler's Germany produced only 400,000 tons of oil in 1938.

West Germany's crude oil production already is the biggest in West Europe. With estimated reserves of 80 million tons, the nation may be able to supply all its oil needs within 10 years, oil men say. Since the war, about 40 new oil fields have been discovered in West Germany. The biggest of these are in the Ems Valley along the Dutch frontier and in the northernmost state of Schleswig-Holstein.

Drillers are now boring along the Baltic coast, along the Upper Rhine between Frankfurt and Basel and in many other areas in search of new fields.

German refining capacity is expanding along with oil output. Investments of 750 million marks (17½ million dollars) in new plants have pushed capacity to over 10 million tons a year.

Of the 26 million tons of fish caught in the world each year, only about 4,600,000 tons come from fresh or brackish water says the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined sharply today in heavy trading but by afternoon prices were above their earlier lows.

Steeels, railroads and aircraft were considerably depressed. Motors, utilities, rubbers, chemicals, radio-television, airlines and mining issues were mostly lower. Oils and farm implement stocks were mixed.

Chrysler Corp., which halved its quarterly dividend after the market closed yesterday, did not open during the morning and into the early afternoon. Brokers reported a flood of selling orders and difficulty in matching them with buying orders.

Among the losers were Republic Steel, General Motors, Goodyear, Caterpillar, United Aircraft, Phillips, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, duPont, Westinghouse, Southern Railway, Tide Water Oil and American Airlines. Higher were Bethlehem Steel, Boeing, Zenith, Jersey Standard, Texas Co. and Loew's.

Kefauver Wins In Primary Test

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver kept his position as a presidential possibility yesterday as he and Gov. Frank Clement won assured re-election by crushing majorities in Tennessee's Democratic primary.

The winner of the Republican senatorial primary was Ray E. Jenkins, the Army-McCarthy hearing special counsel who didn't seek the nomination and said he wouldn't run if he got it.

The figures from 2,064 of the state's 2,591 precincts tell the Democratic primary story: Senate: Kefauver 526,424; Rep. Pat Sutton 137,386.

Governor: Clement 368,917; former Gov. Gordon Browning 151,824.

Kefauver, who won most of the Democratic primaries and lost in the convention in the 1952 presidential derby, said yesterday's victory over Sutton was a triumph over isolationism.

Sutton, who conducted a fast-paced helicopter campaign between marathon radio-television broadcasts, conceded shortly before midnight, saying he held "no ill will or malice."

Memphis political boss E. M. Crump, who sustained his first big political defeat in 1948 when Kefauver first was elected to the Senate, maintained a neutral stand in the Senate race this year, although Sutton said Crump had agreed to pass a quiet word in his behalf.

In the governor's race however, Crump pulled out all the stops in Shelby County on Clement's behalf during the last few days of the campaign.

Nevertheless it was a smashing personal success for Clement, who is the nation's youngest governor at the age of 34. His victory margin in the race for the state's first four-year term was impressive without the lop-sided Shelby County count.

A third candidate, Judge Raulston Schofield, drew more than 20,000 votes with a pro-segregation campaign.

Women Bow To Dress-Up Order

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The peek-a-boo war is over. The women lost. The colonel won.

Capitulating, U.S. Army wives and daughters here fell in line today with orders of Col. John Dille to avoid exposing too much of their charms.

Col. Dille, commander of the Frankfurt detachment, fired instructions at American Army women here to refrain from wearing bare mid-riff sunsuits, low-cut strapless dresses and beach shorts in public.

One blast was aimed at women who go to the PX (post exchange) with curlers in their hair.

They look awful, he said. The feminine counterattack was powerful.

Storming mad, some Army wives screamed their objections.

"The idea, telling us grown women what we can wear and can't wear," said one. "You never hear of us going around telling colonels what to wear."

"He's got a nerve," said another.

But the colonel, a decorated veteran of the North African campaign, stuck to his guns.

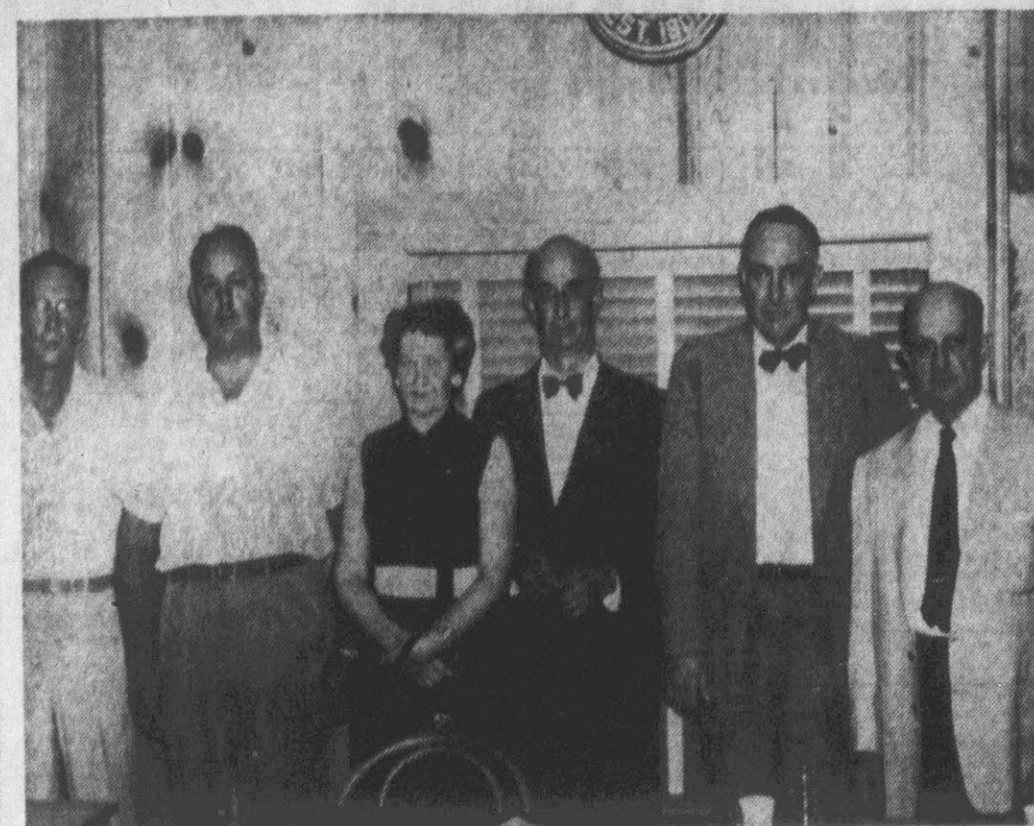

"Somebody had to tell them," he said. "You should have seen the worst offenders against good taste."

After the initial jolt, the women began to surrender, one by one.

"Maybe the colonel was right," said a young mother as she entered the Frankfurt PX looking like a fashion plate.

"I think Dille is a dilly," said another. "Some of us did look pretty bad, wearing everything from blue jeans to beach suits right out on busy streets."

Temperature Up To 102 In City

Greenville was one of the hot spots in North Carolina yesterday when the temperature was 102 degrees - not the highest of the summer.

About four-tenths of an inch of rain fell here last night.

Lowest temperature last night was 71 degrees, and at 8 a.m. today it was 75.

A stiff northwest breeze was prevailing during this morning.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 95. Lowest that night 78, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 80.

Mrs. Carl E. Malden, observer for the local U. S. Weather Station, said the highest temperature of this summer was when the mercury registered 103 degrees during the afternoon of June 27. A thunderstorm, including rain, wind and hail, followed the hot wave. The mercury took a precipitate drop and at 8 a.m. next day the temperature was only 62. The hail damaged crops in the fields in this section.

Elderly Man Is Stabbed In Chest With Ice Pick

An elderly Negro man was in serious condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning as a result of ice pick wounds in the chest allegedly inflicted by his step-son.

Police identified the injured man as Willie Johnson, 66 years old.

Police Lieutenant H. E. Wooten said today that Johnson identified his attacker as Joe Junior Moore of 1914 B. South Pitt Street. Johnson said that Moore is his step-son. The victim was stabbed several times in the chest: He was unable to tell officers last night why the attack took place.

Wooten said that Moore will be charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

The stabbing last night was investigated by Patrolman H. F. Lawson.

Local Taxpayers To Be Heard By Board Monday

Pitt County Commissioners will sit Monday as a Board of Equalization and Review to hear complaints on tax valuations set on property in Greenville township.

During this week, property owners of Greenville township have had the opportunity to confer with county tax officials and compare valuations placed on property in the township.

Officials said today they anticipate more individuals will appear before the Board of Equalization and Review from Greenville township than from the other township for which the board already has met.

Monday's meeting of the Board of Equalization and Review will be the last meeting of the board until August 30, County Auditor Reginald Gray said today.

After hearing complaints from Greenville township Monday, Gray said, the Board of Equalization and Review will not meet again until August 30 at which time it will hear complaints on property valuations in Ayden, Winterville, Grifton, Swift Creek, Grimesland and Chicod townships. On August 30 also, Gray said, the board will consider complaints on the valuation of machinery and equipment from business firms throughout the county.

A total of 38 people have registered complaints over tax valuations with the Board of Equalization and Review at its meetings on July 26 and August 2. In addition to those, Gray said, approximately 150 property owners have consulted tax officials for information on property valuations and to compare their valuations with that of comparable property in the county.

Guests were then recognized by Chairman P. B. Pollock.

The balloting for the officers, delegates and committee heads for the coming year took place following the report on the nominees by E. L. Mosley, chairman of the Nominating Committee.

The group passed resolutions voicing appreciation to the officers of the NCSSEA from the county through the state level. They pledged support in behalf of the candidacy of Retiring Area Chairman Pollock for presidency of the state organization. In addition the resolutions passed recommended to the nominating committee that in the future it announce its candidates ten days prior to the area meeting.

The resolutions noted with appreciation the effort of Governor William B. Umstead, the Council of State and the heads of departments and agencies of the state government in the development of the state's resources and the building of a sounder economy through a balance of agriculture and industry and providing through the state's institutions of education, health and public welfare greater commonwealth. Other resolutions had to do with internal affairs of state and area divisions of the NCSSEA.

The Resolutions Committee report was given by James Butler.

Miss Hilda Gordon gave the Membership Committee report, J. A. Merritt the Legislative Committee report, C. J. Cole the Grievance Committee report and Captain S. H. Mitchell, the Auditing Committee report.

The group heard brief remarks by Ralph Moody, state president of the organization and Clifton Beckwith, state executive secretary.

Two Bound Over On Charges To Superior Court

Two men were bound over to Superior Court after a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court this morning on charges of committing a crime against nature.

The two Jimmy T. Bundy, 30-year-old Negro, of Greenville and Jerry S. Harrington, 24-year-old white man also of Greenville were spotted by ABC officers H. B. Lilly and Glen Perkins last night on Ninth Street.

Lilly said today that Bundy broke away when the officer turned a flashlight on the two and that he, Lilly, gave chase. After a struggle the Negro was apprehended and the pair was turned over to local police who booked them on charges of crime against nature.

The two were brought before Judge Charles H. Whedbee for a preliminary hearing this morning. They will be tried in Superior Court on the charges.

Youth Convicted On Theft Count

A 16-year-old Negro was convicted of larceny of a watch from Mrs. Morton's bakery in Recorder's Court this morning and fined $25 and costs and placed on two years probation.

Convicted was Willie David Spellman of 1015 Mack Street who was arrested by Detective Lieutenant N. H. Byrd and charged with larceny of the watch from Thomas Smith who is employed by the bakery.

The youth apparently entered the bakery at 6:45 a.m. this morning and took the watch. Byrd said the watch was recovered.

Declines Comment On Courtesy Parking's End

President of the Merchants Association, B. D. Johnston, declined comment this morning on the move last night by the City Council to abandon courtesy parking effective Nov. 1.

Johnston did say he is waiting until after a meeting of the Merchants Association Aug. 16 before making a statement concerning the City Council's action.

The courtesy parking plan was inaugurated by the Merchants Association in April, 1953.

Controversy over the situation arose when a consulting engineer from North Carolina State College after a survey of the local traffic situation, recommended the courtesy plan be abandoned.

Last month the City Council failed to take any action on the recommendations of the engineer, Prof. W. F. Babcock, pending a recommendation from the Merchants Association. The Association, however, declined to make any recommendation to the Council concerning the courtesy parking.

Charles White, member of the Board of Directors of the Merchants Association and chairman of the Off-Street Parking Committee for the City Council, said this morning that though he has been "one of the staunchest supporters" of the courtesy parking, he and his committee had recommended the suggestions of the traffic engineer be followed.

"I think," he said, "if we hire an expert and bring him here to study our traffic problems, and to advise us as to their solutions, we should at least give his recommendations a trial."

White noted, however, Babcock had recommended the abolition of courtesy parking, along with other changes, be made prior to the opening of the tobacco market here.

"He planned to return during the tobacco season and make another survey after some of his recommendations had been put into effect," White explained.

"The Council's decision to wait until November to abandon the courtesy parking makes it impossible for the engineer to make his final survey, but nevertheless we will go along with that decision."

White's committee, composed of members of the City Council, Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce, went on record last month as approving all of Babcock's eight recommendations.

At the July City Council meeting the group asked the Council to put three of the eight recommendations into effect as soon as possible. These three recommendations included the abolition of the courtesy plan, the development of a new parking meter layout and the posting of signs stating whether the area is a one-hour or a two-hour zone.

his party. There the fight will be the Democratic party against Jonas, rather than against the Republican party. The 21,000 majority given Jonas in the last election was attributed to several factors, not the least of which was the personal popularity of the Republican candidate.

Next in order perhaps were the revolt against the Truman administration, the popularity of General Eisenhower and the admitted weakness of the Democratic congressional candidate.

Reports from the Young Democrat Club's rally at Hickory last Saturday indicate that while Senators Sam Ervin and Alton Lennon discussed partisan issues, Congressional Candidate Sedberry "lore into" Charles Raper Jonas, and his record in the Congress.

There is nothing new in the situation of a candidate being stronger than his party. On the national level Herbert Hoover was in 1928 and Franklin Roosevelt was every time he ran for President. On State level Max Gardner was stronger than his party in 1928 and Kerr Scott was in 1948. Essentially government in the United States and in North Carolina is by parties, but often personalities affect more votes than party affiliation.

County Schools Ready To Open

County schools are "just about ready" for opening on August 25, it was learned this morning at the Board of Education office.

It was reported the school organization for next year is nearly complete, with only details of organization and administration to be ironed out.

This will be done, the office said, at a meeting of the county school principals Aug. 23, two days prior to the opening of the schools.

Though the opening day "may be a little earlier than in some eastern counties," the office said, "it is so set that a full four months of school may be completed before the Christmas break."

This facilitates the keeping of both financial records and those of the students, the report explained.

With the cooperation of the highway department, county school improvements have included this year preparing the school driveways for better movement of traffic.

The school drives have been widened and sanded by the department to facilitate transportation in those areas.

Work on the drives at schools north of the river has been completed, with the remaining drives to be finished prior to the school opening date.

School lunchroom operations will begin Sept. 1, it was reported.
