Mrs. Baker Leads W.C.T.U. Program

Mrs. Ernest Clark was hostess to the W.C.T.U. meeting on Friday evening at 7:45, July 30. The president, Mrs. Lela Carson, presided. The meeting was opened by singing the hymn, "Everybody Ought To Knock." Mrs. A. W. Baker was in charge of the devotional. Silent prayers were said. Scripture reading was taken from the Acts 9 chapter. Mrs. Baker gave a very interesting message on Paul receiving his spiritual vision. After the scales of spiritual pride and self righteousness had fallen from his eyes his vision had a deeper penetration, better than the physical. Mrs. S. L. McCarthy, director of the Flower Mission and Relief department gave a report.

Mrs. Lela Carson, director of the radio department announced that Mrs. McKenney advised the W.C.T.U. radio programs may be resumed very soon.

The election of officers was discussed.

Mrs. S. L. McCarthy was elected delegate to the State Convention which will convene at Wilson on October 7, Mrs. A. W. Baker is alternate. The eighteenth National Convention of the Womens Christian Temperance Union will assemble at the Phoenix Hotel at Lexington, Ky. From September 16-21. Mrs. Lela Carson, State director of the Flower Mission and Relief department was one of the elected delegates to this Convention. The meeting was closed with a hymn, "Bless Be The Tie" and a prayer by Mrs. Mary Ward.

The hostess served delicious refreshments of ice cream, mints and cookies.

Jay-C-Ette officers are Kay Whichard, president; Phoebe Dail, vice president; Dot Aldridge, recording secretary; Becky Hughes, corresponding secretary; Ola Rouse and Daphila Lautares, directors.

"Misuse" Of Power Was Not All Bad

Former President Hoover's attack on what he termed the "misuse" of presidential power in the past 20 years can not be discounted altogether, yet it must be considered in the light of conditions which existed in the two-decade period to which he referred.

There are few people who will deny the executive branch of government at times infringing on the power of the legislative during the 20 years in which President Roosevelt and President Truman were in the White House. There were times, indeed when these two leaders overstepped their bounds. Yet the actions were taken at

Gratifying Response To C-of-C Membership Drive

It should be gratifying to all Greenville citizens to see the one-day membership campaign Tuesday netted the local Chamber of Commerce 36 new members.

The Chamber of Commerce of Greenville is the city's number one agency for promoting the city, bringing its facilities and advantages to attention of "outsiders" and attracting new residences, businesses and industries to Greenville.

Like any other similar effort, it takes time and money to carry on the operations of the Chamber of Commerce. Its efforts reach into many varied fields of activities. The results of its work are sometimes difficult to pinpoint, yet the continuity of its program over a period of years pays off for all the residents of the community by helping to build a larger, better, more progressive community.

Directly or indirectly, every citizen of the community benefits by the work of the Chamber of Commerce. The greater support - financial and otherwise - it has from local businesses and professional men, the better job a Chamber of Commerce can do for the community which it serves.

The 36 new members which joined the Chamber of Commerce in Tuesday's membership drive will strengthen the organization and its work for a better community. The response from local businesses and professional men in the recent membership drive should be gratifying not only to long-time supporters of the Chamber of Commerce, but likewise to all the citizens of the city.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
NATIONAL UPS AND DOWNS
Have you ever noticed that trees usually begin to die at the top? This is not always true but generally so. And society usually begins to die at the top also. The nobles of France showed their privileges, and the day came when an injured people kept the guillotine going with regularity. The nobles of Russia let their governmental and social life decay, and the empire was succeeded by the tyranny of communism. Centuries before all this, the privileged classes of Rome had misbehaved themselves and ruin overtook them.

The western hemisphere has by no means reached the zenith of its glory. We shall no doubt go much higher materially before we finally take a nose dive - if we ever do. But certainly there are signs today on the part of dissipating, drinking, carousing, pleasure-loving groups which bode ill for the future of all the culture. The common people are improving all the time - improving themselves in every conceivable fashion. But when they get to the top, even those who have had humble origins, begin to wither and die.

The reason for this is easy to understand. Privilege involves responsibility, and when that responsibility is shunned, privilege turns to poison, and individuals and nations begin a slow decline into oblivion and death.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON - The people of the United States and all their material holdings, ranging from the greatest corporation - Standard Oil of New Jersey - to their kitchen iceboxes, are worth approximately $2.5 trillion at present levels of value.

That is the estimate of Raymond W. Goldsmith, eminent economist, who is the only man ever brave enough to try to figure out our national balance sheet. He submitted it to a conference of the International Association for Research in Income and Wealth at Castelgoleldo, Italy, last September. He obtained his data from governmental and private sources - banks, insurance companies, corporations, etc.

Mr. Goldsmith estimates tangible assets at $979.3 billion as of 1949, and intangible assets at $1,516,200,000, for a total of $2,015,000,000. Government economists believe that the increase in values since the pre-Korean War year of 1949 has raised that total to the $2.5 trillion mark.

times when decisions at the moment were important. Former President Hoover is a great leader of the American people despite of the bitter taste which remains from his Republican administration. He is a statesman and one of the nation's foremost authorities on American government. At the same time, Mr. Hoover is a firm believer in the old-line philosophy of the Republican party, and therefore unable to reconcile many of the policies and actions of the New Deal and Fair Deal Democratic presidents.

We can not help but think that the same misuse of power charged the two Democratic presidents by Mr. Hoover would have been the work of Republican presidents had they been in the White House during the trying two-decade period and faced the problems of the moment realistically.

In times of extreme emergency - such as the early '30s when the nation faced economic collapse, and in the '40s when war was upon us and the aftermath of war threatened to wreck the free world - it was necessary for the president to take drastic action at times in order to cope with the problems at hand.

Certainly The Reflector can not support all the actions taken by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. It would be fallacy to assert that their overstepping of bounds at times have not set precedents which may some day be dangerous if an individual sought to usurp the office of chief executive.

The nation must constantly guard against the misuse of power by any of the three major branches of government. At the same time we must see to it that the welfare of the nation is not lost in a maze of bureaucracy and red tape when important decisions of the moment are vital to the nation.

A Fitting Name For A New Aircraft Carrier

It is quite fitting, we think, for one of the nation's new Forrestal-type carriers to be named "Kitty Hawk" in honor of the birthplace of flight.

Governor Umstead and members of the North Carolina delegation in Washington have conferred with the Secretary of the Navy concerning the matter, but so far no announcement has been made by the Navy.

We are sure the Navy finds many things to take into consideration in choosing the name for a major warship. We suppose there is a great deal of political pressure brought by many sources which believe the name they suggest for a new ship is the most appropriate.

Being North Carolinians, we are biased naturally toward the name of Kitty Hawk. It would honor the state as well as honoring the place where the first successful flight took place half century ago. Carriers in the past have been named for great American leaders, important battles on land and important sea battles. It is certainly fitting that one be named in honor of the event which gave aviation to this nation and to the world.

U.S. Valuated At $2.5 Trillion

WASHINGTON - The people of the United States and all their material holdings, ranging from the greatest corporation - Standard Oil of New Jersey - to their kitchen iceboxes, are worth approximately $2.5 trillion at present levels of value.

That is the estimate of Raymond W. Goldsmith, eminent economist, who is the only man ever brave enough to try to figure out our national balance sheet. He submitted it to a conference of the International Association for Research in Income and Wealth at Castelgoleldo, Italy, last September. He obtained his data from governmental and private sources - banks, insurance companies, corporations, etc.

Mr. Goldsmith estimates tangible assets at $979.3 billion as of 1949, and intangible assets at $1,516,200,000, for a total of $2,015,000,000. Government economists believe that the increase in values since the pre-Korean War year of 1949 has raised that total to the $2.5 trillion mark.

TANGIBLE, INTANGIBLE ASSETS - Tangible assets consist of the following, and all these figures represent millions: Residential structures, $209.7; non-residential structures, $198.7; residential lands, $38.7; non-residential land, $121.3; producer durables, $104.2; consumer durables, $99.3; inventories, $67.9; livestock, $13.2; monetary metals, $28.9. He does not include subsoil assets in his total.

Somebody Told Me

Do Backgrounds Make Success?

Who has the best chance in life to make a success on his own, the child of wealthy parents or the child of poor ones? Many believe that chances are about equal, because the child with less has to learn how to work and work is the essential to success.

This has always been an interesting question for debate to me, so I took particular notice of the statement of a writer I follow by the name of William Feather. Williams says: "Since I am the son of penniless immigrant parents, I should perhaps be the last person to disclaim the notion that the son of poor parents has a better chance in America than the son of wealthy parents. A better way to put it would be to say that the son of middle-class parents who live a cultural and law-abiding life is more likely to succeed than a thousand sons born in a tenement of illiterate parents."

My authority for this statement is Richard B. Morris, a professor of history at Columbia and editor of the new Encyclopedia of American History.

Morris says, "At least 204 of the three hundred notable Americans (or slightly more than two-thirds of the total) came from privileged backgrounds, from families of wealth, social position, or strong cultural interests. Those who rose from poverty numbered not more than 84. The large majority came from middle or upper middle class homes and enjoyed childhoods not clouded over by economic insecurity."

Professor Morris concluded, "The image of the barefoot farm lad who achieved fame and fortune dies hard." In other words, the conclusion is that the way to make a man successful is to forget the theory about bringing him up like a mule.

So the problem presents itself: If you have the means, do you turn over to the child most of what he wants, or do you make him earn his way? Perhaps the answer is to do both; make him earn some but and the same time give him plenty.

No doubt the professor quoted here is right, but it seems to me that plenty of men with half a chance or less have made good when the silver-spooners have failed.

And I thank you. JACK EDWARDS

What Other Editors Are Thinking

MEN MUST RETALIATE, MASSIVELY (Charlotte Coast)

Air out that rascally coat, boys, mix up some bathtub gin. Dust off Mencken, Fitzgerald too. The '30's are roaring again.

Christian Dior, the Frenchman who probably has cost American males more than was spent on the Marshall Plan, Indochina War, and a year's advertising on filter-tip cigarettes and anti-knock gasoline, has laid down the law again. He had his fashion show recently in Paris. And there the menquinquies were, wearing their walnut on their hips, flat-chested, just like in those pictures of three decades ago in the family album.

It is useless for men to thrash about and threaten not to pay the bill for this return to flapper foolishness. The return is practically inevitable, for the simple reason that Dior says so. And the bill payment is inevitable, because Mama will say so.

However, consistent provocation of the American male cannot result in continued appeasement of feminine whims. So many Munichs, and no more. After all,

It should, under normal circumstances, be utilized as sparingly as an A-bomb. But if the ladies return to the flapper days, and if they decide to wear with the outrageous garb of that day the new kind of "hats" now on the market, massive retaliation must be meted out.

In other words, when that day comes American men, knobby-kneed, hairy creatures that they are, must don Bermuda walking shorts.

Beaufort Countians Determined To Give Bath Its Due

Creek, Pamlico River and across Pamlico Sound for a weekend at Ocracoke.

HISTORIC - Year after next will mark the 250th anniversary of the founding of Bath as a town in 1706. The purpose of the picnic last Friday was to stimulate interest in a proper observance of that occasion. John Whalen, retired business man of Wilson now living on the Pamlico river a few miles east of Bath, gave a brief outline of tentative plans. It is hoped an outdoor drama written by Kermit Hunter or some other capable author can be presented in a theater to be located on the point just east of the town. The 250th birthday celebration would inaugurate a long range program of restoration of the old library, the courthouse which was the State capitol, and other historic shrines including St. Thomas Episcopal church, the oldest church in North Carolina.

The present church building was built in 1734, and while some restoration and substitution of materials in the walls, floors and roof have been made, it is essentially the same building that stood there 220 years ago. The county seat was moved to Washington before the Revolution, and the old courthouse and State capitol has been completely destroyed. The library is still functioning, but in a "modern" building of about 100 years. Plans and descriptions of the original buildings are available so they can be duplicated. The same is true of other old houses around the town.

It is doubted that any books are now in the library which were there more than 200 years ago, although there are some very old volumes. It is historically provable that the silver candelabra on the St. Thomas altar were donated by King George II and the bell in the church tower was a gift from Queen Anne, recast some years ago, but the same metal.

MONEY - Lack of money was the main reason that these old historic places fell into such delapidated condition. It will take much larger sums of money to restore them. Bath is still a small community without much money among its residents. It is the hope of sponsors that, the Bath

ADVERTISING RUNNING... 9 PER CENT AHEAD OF LAST YEAR.

The other day advertising was mentioned here as one of the contributing factors that prevented a serious recession this year. The size of that factor may be measured by the Printers' Ink Index. A report in the current issue shows the total spent for national advertising in the first six months of this year was 9 per cent greater than in the first half of 1953.

IN BETWEEN, OF COURSE, THERE IS BEEF HASH

Beef is plentiful and the price is down - well, a little bit. In response to appeals from cattlemen and the Department of Agriculture the National Association of Food Chains is urging members to step up advertising for red meat.

It has mapped four campaigns: September 30 to October 9, for beef stew and pot pie; October 14 to 23, ground and chopped beef; October 28 to November 6, roasts and pot roasts; November 11 to 20, ground and chopped beef.

"TV STORE" TRAFFIC... HELPS BANK TOO... In-store traffic can be as important to a bank as to a department store, a large New York bank decided.

So four years ago the Institution (Bankers Trust Co.) entered upon a calculated "traffic" campaign. It has offered baseball schedules, income tax guides, subway token holders and other premiums. Each time one of these give-aways has been advertised in newspapers and other media, between 30,000 and 50,000 persons have been attracted into the bank offices.

Business Today Tax Experting Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER
The biggest boom in the country today - outside of promoting penny shares in uranium companies - is in tax experting.

When we referred to the new Federal tax bill a month ago as the Tax Experts' Gravy Train Act, we didn't know how right we were.

Everybody is getting in with sponges as well as ladies. All the big tax publishing companies are rushing out digests, manuals, complete text, explanations and interpretations. Millions of dollars of these books and other materials will be sold before the end of the year.

Trade associations are calling conferences and getting out bulletins. Half the hotels in the country will be scenes of seminars at which putative experts attempt to explain how each industry and each company can avoid (don't say "evade" or you'll get thrown out of the meeting!) as much tax as possible under the new ground rules.

Meanwhile, the three-cornered struggle for the fees for tax advice is growing hotter. In one corner are the tax accountants. In another corner are the tax lawyers. And running all over the place are the self-appointed, tax advisors: real estate men, notary publics, barbers out of work, club house politicians, retired professors, young promoters, old promoters.

Both the lawyers and accountants agree that the self-styled experts shouldn't spoon up their gravy. In most states, anybody can hire a vacant store, paint "tax consultant" signs around and be in business. Sometimes overnight experts and tax payers to fudge a little here and there; a taxpayer convinced he was saved $100 is a patsy for a $50 fee. But these experts pick up only chicken feed. The lawyers and accountants are battling over the big multi-thousand-dollar fees.

Various bar associations contend that giving any sort of advice on taxes is practicing law, and that any nonlawyer so engaged violates the law. Only two months ago a California court held a certified public accountant enrolled to practice before the Treasury was guilty of the "unauthorized practice of law," and in several other states judges (former lawyers) have looked askance at any CPA activity that does not consist of adding a column of figures.

The current "Journal of Accountancy" is bustling with indignation and advising CPA to go after Senators, Representatives and state legislators and give them the what's-what about tax advice.

But just why accountants and lawyers should fight is not clear. The next tax law makes more changes than have ever been made before at one time. That ought to make enough gravy for everybody's potates.

SALARY VARIATION... MYTTIE DEBUNKED...

The size of the company, its location and the nature of its business has less to do with rates of pay for Administrative and technical men than is popularly supposed.

The American Management Association surveyed 32 companies in 16 fields, of varying size and in urban and rural localities, and found the average variation in salaries in 20 positions was only $4 per cent. This difference was not much greater than the spread in individual companies.

He Owed, And Paid $1 Million

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) - "It takes a damn good man to owe a million dollars," said Eugene T. Barwick.

It takes a pretty good fellow to go on from there and earn a million dollars, too. On both counts Gene Barwick is quite a guy.

Now only 40, Barwick in five years has parlayed $4,500 cash into a 30-million-dollar yearly business in tufted carpets. This has given him a reputation of being one of the top boy wonders of industry.

While some rug manufacturers were using their product to deaden the sound of their own falling tears, Gene has built his carpeting firm to a point where it is now the fifth largest in the world.

"But we believe there is room for a 100-million-dollar-a-year business in tufted rugs and carpeting," he said, "and we are willing to be the first."

Barwick figures he can do this if he can make wall-to-wall carpeting customary in the American home, and if he can mass produce carpets cheaply enough so that a housewife will feel she can afford to change them every time she changes her draperies.

Small tufted cotton rugs boomed during the war period, but many manufacturers thought housewives no longer would buy them when wool was more plentiful.

"They liquidated," said Barwick, "and they were wrong."

In 1948 Gene, who had served as a naval lieutenant in the Aleutians during the war, quit his job with a Chicago mail order firm. He had been buying its carpeting for years and, felt he knew the kind women wanted - inexpensive but durable.

"I met a bedspread manufacturer who had gone broke for $70,000," he said. "And I taught him how to make tufted cotton carpets."

"I had only $4,500. I invested $2,500 in a latex-coating machine that would keep the carpets from shrinking. Then I took to the road and the other $2,000 went into selling expenses. Did it work? It had to work."

It worked so well that in mid-1950 the firm was doing a three-million-dollar business. The partner, deciding no good thing lasts forever, sold out to Barwick.

Gene kept right on expanding, went into debt developing new and more efficient machinery. Now he has five plants in Georgia, machines that can turn out a 9-by-10-foot tufted cotton, nylon or rayon carpet every 29 seconds. Weavers from Scotland and England come to study his new techniques.

"The worst thing a fellow can do is to worry about being exposed," said Barwick. "Why watch a parade if you can be in it? And if you get in it, you might as well try to lead it. But you produce carpets cheaply enough so that a housewife will feel she can afford to change them every time she changes her draperies."

In 1948 Gene, who had served as a naval lieutenant in the Aleutians during the war, quit his job with a Chicago mail order firm. He had been buying its carpeting for years and, felt he knew the kind women wanted - inexpensive but durable.

Gene has an honest enjoyment in his success, his fine home in Atlanta, his three children. He likes to golf, too, but last year he traveled 140,000 miles himself selling his carpeting - although he has 30 salesmen on the job.

"I believe I talked to four times as many rug buyers and dealers as any other mill executive in the country," he said. "Any man ought to work hard if he owns his own business. That is what is wrong with too many businesses today - they are run by professional managers who don't even own stock in their own concerns."

The other side of that picture is that competition stimulates business, and those projects which are more advanced have made the people conscious of the educational and economic value of "little Williamsburgs" which make the task of getting adequate finances somewhat easier.

John Whalen pointed to the contrast between Williamsburg and Bath. "They have $44 million, while we hardly have $44 hundred," he said. The Tryon Palace project also had an angel in the person of Mrs. Latham and the State has put several hundred thousand dollars into that deal. If there is a former resident or a descendant of the Bath community with enough money and ancestral pride to underwrite the deal the local sponsors would like to have his name and address.

Virgil Trucks Sets Fast Chisox Pace

By BEN PHEGAR
At an age when most fast ball pitchers are relaxing with their press clippings, Virgil (Fire) Trucks of the Chicago White Sox is blazing his way to his best season in the majors.

The 35-year-old speed merchant needs only three more victories to equal his previous high of 20. In his present form this looks like a cinch.

Trucks, who broke into organized ball in 1938 and reached the big time in 1941, has been the sensation of the American League the past two seasons. After a miserable 5-19 record with Detroit in 1952, he posted a brilliant 20-10 mark last year, dividing his services between the old St. Louis Browns (5-4) and the White Sox (15-6).

His work won him top honors in the Associated Press poll for the "Comeback of the Year."

Except for 1952 Trucks has been a consistent winner. Even in his bad year two of his victories were no-hitters. Last season, when he reached 20 for the first time, he won his 17th game on Aug. 23. He pitched five shutouts over last year.

Now he's 12 days ahead of that pace. He whipped the Baltimore Orioles 1-0 yesterday for his 17th triumph and his fifth shutout against five setbacks.

Trucks gives full credit for his improvement to Manager Paul Richards of the Sox.

"It's a real pleasure to work for him," Trucks said. "I feel I'm really doing my best and I'd like nothing better than to win 20 again."

Trucks' performances so far this season include two one-hitters, against Boston May 1 and Detroit July 6. The Orioles reached him for nine but their most serious threat fizzled in the eighth when Minnie Minoso made a fine running catch of Jim Bredeweser's long foul fly with the bases loaded and two out.

Bob Kuzava, making his first appearance for Baltimore since leaving the New York Yankees, was charged with the loss.

The White Sox failed to gain in the pennant race since Cleveland and the Yankees also won. The Indians edged Detroit 2-0. New York beat Philadelphia 3-1. Boston pounded Washington 10-1 in an afternoon game but lost to the Senators at night 5-4.

Cleveland leads the Yankees by three games and the White Sox by seven.

In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers clipped the idle New York Giants' lead to 3½ games with a 3-2 squeaker over Philadelphia. Third-place Milwaukee moved within seven games by shading St. Louis 6-5 in a game shortened to seven innings by rain. Cincinnati hit five home runs, beating Chicago, 8-1.

Ted Williams hit a pair of two-run homers, his 21st and 22nd of the season. In Boston's daylight triumph, his career total now is 359, good for a tie for sixth with Johnny Mize on the all-time list of home run sluggers.

Football Starts

Coach Bill Kittrell of Greenville High School announced that football practice would begin Monday, August 16 at the N.Y.A. center.

Coach Kittrell asked that all boys that have not been in touch with him yet about playing should do so as soon as possible. Coach Kittrell will be at the N.Y.A. center from 2 through 4 o'clock every afternoon through the week.

The team will practice twice a day at 9 o'clock in the morning and in the afternoon as well until school starts.

The complete Greenville High football schedule for the coming year will be announced this week.

Played 70 Holes On His Birthday

MORGANTOWN, W.V. (AP)—Dr. R. C. Spangler, professor of botany at West Virginia University, played his annual round of birthday golf yesterday — 70 holes in honor of his 70th birthday.

Spangler toured the Morgantown Country Club in 328 for an average of 84.3 for each 18 holes. He one-putted 21 greens.

The professor started his marathon at 8 a.m. and, with an hour and a half off for lunch, wound up at 7:30 p.m.

Archie Planned 14th Round KO Against Johnson

By MURRAY ROSE
NEW YORK (AP)—A spectacular "called shot" technical knockout over able Harold Johnson in the 14th round added luster to light heavyweight champion Archie Moore's great record today.

Now the 37½-year old fistic marvel will seek to fatten his bankroll with a Sept. 23 title fight in Omaha against either Joey Maxim or Jimmy Slade.

Maxim, beaten three out of three by the magnificent Moore, appears more likely to get the payday. His wily manager, Jack (Doc) Kearns will meet sometime today with Charley Johnston, Moore's manager, and members of the Omaha Centennial Committee to talk turkey.

After stopping the fast-punching, solidly built Johnson in a dramatic come-from-behind fashion for his 19th straight victory, Moore said he'd like to fight either heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano or Don Cockell, the British heavyweight king.

Manager Johnston, a realistic soul said "Marciano has that Sept. 15 title fight with Ezzard Charles and I know Cockell doesn't want any part of Archie. We want the dough and they're offering Archie $100,000 to fight in Omaha. We're ready."

Moore was ready, too, when Johnston told him to go out and "get" Johnson in the 14th.

"I'll knock him out in this round," Johnston said Moore told him. He did in just 56 seconds.

The crouching champion tore after his tiring rival staggered him with a right to the chin, and then rained blows on his sagging rival. Johnson fell on his back in his own corner.

The Philadelphia Negro clambered up at six but his legs were rubbery. Referee Ruby Goldstein stepped in and stopped the slaughter.

Although Moore was trailing going into the 14th, (two of the three officials had him behind), the 175-pound ruler said he had no doubts about the outcome.

"I knew I'd get him," said Archie.

Region Five Starts Play On Monday

Regional Director Warren Carroll announced some of the teams that would be in Greenville for the Regional Tournament starting August 16 today.

In Tennessee, Columbia defeated Knoxville to win the Sectional Tournament there and will come to the Regionals. In South Florida, Broward defeated Key West for the right to play in the Regionals. In North Florida Lakeland won out. In North Carolina Mooresville defeated Durham for the right to represent the state of North Carolina here.

In South Carolina, Columbia and St. Andrews are playing for the Sectional championship. In Alabama South Birmingham is playing in the finals of the Sectional Tourney. The Birmingham team is not the same one that won the Little World's Series last year in Williamsport. In Kentucky, Muhlenburg and Middleboro are playing in the finals.

The eight teams that win their Sectional championships will be in a single elimination tournament in Greenville August 16 through 19. The finals will be played on Thursday 19, with the winners and consolation brackets finished off.

The winner in Greenville goes straight to the World's Series in Williamsport. Birmingham won in Greenville last year and then went to Williamsport and won there.

Fine Fireman by Pap'

Jim Hughes comes by his role of "fireman" for the Brooklyn Dodgers most naturally. His daddy was a Chicago fireman. And then, too, his record with the First Marines in the Palau Islands during World War II indicates that Big Jim is a fine man to have on your side when the going gets tough. Hughes was the workhorse of the Dodger mound staff last season and Manager Walter Alton counts on him as his first bullpen ace.

"Hughes is to our club what Joe Black must have been to the 1952 Dodgers," said Alton following Hughes' 39th relief chore. "Jim has saved 18 games for us to date, and won five. That's a total of 23 games in the bank. He could be the difference in a very close race, especially if the Dodger pitching staff doesn't gain a little more stability."

Hughes reminds one of Hugh Casey for he is built along the same husky lines. There are times when he put out fires with the neatness

Indians Thrive Under Pressure Of Final Stretch

NEW YORK (AP)—Cleveland's reputation of folding in the stretch may wind up only a forlorn hope of the New York Yankees if the Indians continue to thrive under pressure.

Al Lopez' surging crew if traveling at a phenomenal 700 pace, but what's more important, psychologically, they're winning the close ones.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press show Cleveland has the major leagues' best record in one-run and extra-inning games.

The Indians have won 22 games and lost only nine by the margin of a single tally. In 13 overtime contests, they've produced 10 victories. Including its 2-0 victory over Detroit yesterday, Cleveland has captured 11 games by two runs and dropped four.

The Yankees have done well enough in the one-run games with a 21-10 mark, but have floundered in extra-innings with five triumphs against five setbacks.

The Chicago White Sox, in third place, have won only 15 of 34 one-run tilts and two of six overtime tussles.

In the National League, Brooklyn has an 18-11 record in one-run games for the top state while the pace-setting New York Giants are in front in the extra-innings department with 8-3.

Greenville All-Stars Outhit And Outpitched Five Rivals

By WAYNE BISHOP
Reflector Sports Editor
Sports Shorts:
Greenville's Little League team went just as far this year as any Greenville team has ever gone. The team last year also got knocked out in the first round of the State Tournament.

Each year the Greenville All-Star team has won one more game than the year before. The first team won two games, the second year three games, the third year four games, but this team stopped the cycle and won only four.

Although the team didn't go all the way to the State Championship it still has the district trophy now.

The Greenville certainly outhit and outpitched their rivals during the five games. The Greenville pitchers allowed an average of 3.20 earned runs per game. The opposing pitchers gave up an average of 5.20 earned runs per game.

The Greenville team had a squad batting average of .279 while their opponents were hitting .212. Merryl Bynum led just about every phase of hitting among the squad. He had the highest average of .467, scored the most runs with six, and got the most hits with seven.

The individual averages for the players were Bynum (.467), Forbes (.417), Stancil (.400), Clapp (.333), Moye (.333), Arthur (.250), Fountain (.231), Jenkins (.200), Duff (.200), James (.125), W. Litley (.000), and Wilfong (.000).

One of the poorest showings of sportsmanship seen by this writer was shown by the Durham fans and an official at the State tournament game. The fans were continuously heckling Greenville pitcher Joe Moye. When the Greenville managers reminded the umpires of the Little League rule that positively states that there should not be any heckling of a player, the announcer on the public address system made a sarcastic remark as to what the discussion was about. The fans really turned loose in full force then and heckled Moye the rest of the game.

It's a shame the grown people can't abide by rules that aid the youngsters. It seems that some people have forgotten the real purpose of Little League ball.

3. You get a bigger allowance from our volume business

$2,317.88* and for only delivered locally!

In Buick today you find the fresh modern beauty that will pattern the styling of other cars yet to come. That's a major reason for Buick's soaring success this year. But note the low delivered price shown here — that's the clincher. No other car at so low a price gives you this advanced styling — plus Buick's great room, comfort, ride and V8 power.

Of this you can be sure: the new Buick you buy today will look modern next year, too — because that broad panoramic windshield will be appearing on other cars as a 1955 feature. So with the new Buick you buy now, you'll stay right up in the style parade for years to come — and command a higher resale price when you trade it in.

Regardless of price class, Buick today is outselling all other cars in America except two of the "low-price three." That's fact. So with this tremendous sales volume, we can offer you a higher trade-in allowance when you buy a new Buick. Come in, see and drive Buick the beautiful buy. Then see for yourself how our volume business means a far bigger allowance for you.

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
I STOPPED at the purser's office. Inside Mr. Grenier sat at his ornate desk, late sunlight making a halo of his pale hair.

"Russell asked me to wait for him here," I said.

"Of course," Grenier smiled. He rose, indicated a chair and politely waited for me to sit down.

"Hope I'm not interrupting anything," I said. "I could just as easily wait in my room."

"No no. Not at all, Mr. Wilde. In fact I'm pleased to have an opportunity to speak to you. Confidentially as it were. You've seen our little family here at its worst, Mr. Wilde. It happened that I had a long talk with Mr. Russell this afternoon. He explained a number of things to me. All of which compels me in decency and candor to extend my sincere apology for the discomforts caused you by officers of this boat. It is shameful."

"Nothing that happened calls for anything like that," I said in an embarrassed tone. "Let's forget it."

"If you don't mind, sir," Grenier said, "I'll just glance through these menus for approval before I forget. The chef will need them soon."

"Never again so help me. Ellen, is your job always that bad?" Ellen shook her head wearily. "I've never known anything quite like that," she said.

Mr. Grenier came around the desk with a sheaf of papers in his hands. He bowed ceremoniously to Ellen and excused himself.

Russell said: "Nearly everybody wanted a picture taken. Word has got around that Ellen is a real live professional and her pictures are going to be in Vacation."

Ellen said: "I took 24 pictures. That's all the bulbs I had. How many was the captain in, Russell?"

"Twenty-four," Russell growled. "So the captain is eliminated," I said.

"Doc Riggs held the reflector for me," Ellen said. "He said he would permit his picture to be taken. Mr. Ed. Boltinck dropped out of the one we arranged for him. He wanted to go get the missus. He and Bebe got back just as I used the last bulb."

"And Dr. Dunbar just flatly refused," Russell added. "Two solid hours down there and what answer did we get for you, Wilde?"

I said: "You got just what I wanted. I know who slugged Russell."

"Who?" Ellen asked.

"Intuition, Wilde?" Russell asked.

"The boat's moving," I said. "What do we do with this guy until we get to New Orleans? You don't have a brig on the boat, do you?"

"No," Russell shook his head. "No brig. No way to restrain him short of docking at a town and getting the police. And Jellieco would resign before he'd make an unscheduled stop."

"So what do we do?"

"Carney," Ellen yanked at my hand. "Aren't you even going to tell us who it is?"

I said: "We'll have to pretend we don't suspect a thing. Can you do that? If you have to eat at the same table, make small chatter, maybe dance with him? Do you really want to know? Or would you rather wait till New Orleans and have me tell you when we're ready to pick him up?"

Russell kept quiet. He knew the question was strictly for Ellen.

"All right, Carney," she said. "There was no trace of a question. 'Come get me in half an hour.' She touched me lightly on the cheek and then left. When the door closed, Russell said: 'You want to tell me, Wilde? I can keep it to myself, but don't tell me unless you want to.'"

"Boltinck," I said with no hesitation. "You must have suspected yourself."

Russell shook his head soberly. "No. So help me, no. I was figuring Doc Riggs."

"Doc's a phony," I said. "But not that kind. I prowled his cabin. Doc is Dr. Joseph Riggs Treadway, a big wheel in the folklore business. I guess he gets a bang out of playing the con-man and all-around scoundrel when he takes a vacation. Naturally, he wouldn't dare have a picture taken with the wrong name on it. That would

Turnpike Groups Arrange Meeting

RALEIGH (AP)—Turnpike authorities of North Carolina and Virginia have tentatively set a meeting for Aug. 19 at Nags Head.

The two authorities, planning a scenic turnpike along the beach from Nags Head to Virginia Beach, may set dates at the meeting for advertising for and opening bids on the toll road.

Arrangements also may be made for the sale of bonds to finance the road after the bids have been opened, according to North Carolina Highway Chairman A. H. Graham.

By CLARK FLICK-STEGER

BONN, Germany, (AP)—A vast project to boost food production in West Germany is ready to go into operation.

Known as the Luebke plan, it calls for thorough and speedy mechanization of farms, construction of more modern farm houses, barns and silos and intensified use of waste land throughout the country.

The plan also aims at consolidating the scattered plots owned by many farmers into unbroken fields better adapted to machinery. And it calls for better educated farmers with more up-to-date agricultural knowledge.

To pay for all this, West Germany's new minister of Food, Agriculture and Forestry, Dr. Heinrich Luebke, advocates easing the tax burden for farmers and giving more and cheaper long-term farm loans.

From 1945 to 1948, West Germany imported roughly 70 per cent of all its food. Since then agricultural production has soared and today is 16 per cent above the pre-war level.

Nevertheless, densely populated, highly industrialized West Germany still consumes 35 per cent more food than her farms produce. Closing of this gap is the ultimate aim of the Luebke plan.

Increasing farm production in Germany is a problem that at first sight appears almost unsovable. Virtually every square yard of fertile soil already is being tilled, and the problem is mainly one of intensifying production by boosting the yield per acre—a long and costly process.

One of West Germany's foremost agricultural experts, Dr. Andreas Hermes, who heads the powerful German Farmers Union, endorses the Luebke plan wholeheartedly. It will require a lot of money, patience and utmost caution, he says. His experts estimate that 10 years will be necessary and that the cost probably will exceed six billion dollars. The cost factor will, in itself, compel the government to go slow in view of the scarcity of capital in West Germany today.

Some quarters advocate eliminating small farms entirely and allowing them to be absorbed by the big ones which operate more efficiently.

Neither Luebke nor Hermes will consider such a radical solution. Both believe the small farm, as a family enterprise, is justified. They say the small farmer should concentrate on specialized products, however, and stop trying to compete with the big fellows.

The farmers themselves are not enthusiastic over the Luebke plan. Traditionally conservative, most would prefer to keep things the way they are—unless they are shown they can profit from a change.

accomplish in a lifetime. He defies the tradition of Cecil B. DeMille, who works in piteous and is followed by a platoon of flunkies. I found Kazan in sloppy attire, chatting with passersby in a studio street. He was finishing up "East of Eden," and he looked tired. He admitted he was.

"I'm worn out," he said. "I started 'Ten and Sympathy' last July, and I've been working ever since. I went right from there into 'On the Waterfront' and then to this picture." So what is he going to do next? "Quit."

"Yes quit. I'm going back to my farm in Connecticut. I've got four children and I miss them I'd much rather talk to them than anyone else around here. I don't think I'll do a thing for six months. I'm tired." This will be an expensive vacation. Kazan could name his price with any movie or play producer in the business. But he prefers to pick and choose. And he won't work unless he is his own boss.

I asked why he didn't also produce on the stage. "That's different," he replied. "In the theater, the producer has a lot of work to do afterward. He has to take the play and publicize and do all kinds of things. Not so in pictures. Once you've got the picture made, the producer's function is over." The reason why pictures aren't better than they are, he opined, is schedules.

"There are a lot of good things you could do if you didn't have to hurry along," he commented. "George Stevens does it. He takes his time until he runs up a bill of three million dollars or so. But then he's got a great picture."

He said he spent 10 weeks on "Waterfront," a lengthy schedule in these times. But by shooting in the actual locales he still managed to bring the film in under $900,000. It will make a mint.

Kazan (he pronounces his first name E-lia) was born in Constantinople. His father was a Greek rug importer who settled in New York in 1913. Elia went to Williams College and Yale Drama School. He first found fame as an actor starring with Ingrid Bergman in "Liliom" among other things. I asked if he would ever act again.

"No," he replied. "I'd be embarrassed."

Obeded Law, But Cost Her $2,500

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Peggy Huston complied with traffic laws yesterday but she told police it cost her a $2,500 diamond ring. The woman reported that as she gave the arm signal for a left turn the ring apparently fell off her finger. She discovered her loss moments later, returned to the intersection but couldn't find the ring. A coiled steel spring weighing a pound can be made to lift a pound weight about 32 feet.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday conditions, such as stress and strain, cause this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to solid or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. School Calendar For New Term Released Today

The school calendar for the 1954-55 school term has been released by the County School's Office.

On Wednesday, August 25 the county schools will open. Next item on the calendar comes Friday, November 5 when the Northeasters District of the North Carolina Education Association meets in Greenville.

Thanksgiving holidays this year consist of two days. The two dates are November 25 and 26. The two week Christmas holiday begins on Friday, December 17—running until Monday, January 3.

After the long Christmas vacation there will not be any other holiday until Monday, April 11 when Easter Monday will be observed.

To conclude the calendar the school closing date is set for Monday, May 23.

For the benefit of dividing the period into months the calendar shows the first school month ends Tuesday, September 21; the second month ends Tuesday, October 19; the third month on Wednesday, November 17 and the fourth month on Friday, December 17. This gives four complete school months prior to the Christmas.

After Christmas the fifth month will end Friday, January 28; the sixth month on Friday, February 25; the seventh on Friday, March 25; the eighth on Monday, April 25 and the ninth and final month on Monday, May 23.

Fight Over Relaxing Atomic Energy Law To Be Renewed

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is heading into another fight on a bill to loosen up the law on atomic energy and its uses. The Senate recently finished a two weeks' battle on the subject.

Democrats who made the first fight are lining up for the new one. Several points in the bill irritate them. One of them covers patents. This is an ABC of the patent dispute.

Briefly, the patent law says: An inventor — an individual or a firm — can get a patent on an invention for 17 years. During that time the inventor alone has the exclusive right to use that invention for his own profit. He can, if he wishes, sell it or let someone else use it also, either free or for a fee. At the end of 17 years the patent expires and the invention becomes public property and anyone can use it.

At this moment no private firm has atomic patents. Because of the secrecy involved and the terms of the 1946 atomic energy law, the government has had complete ownership of all atomic developments. It holds over 700 patents.

The government's AEC—Atomic Energy Commission—not only did its own atomic developing in government-owned plants but had the help of some big corporations working under contract.

Because they were working for AEC, those firms could not under the 1946 law get any patents on discoveries they made. But at least they got knowledge on atomic development, with the government paying the cost.

The bill the Senate is about to consider would allow private business to develop atomic energy not only for the good of the country but for private profit. President Eisenhower doesn't want a few firms which had AEC contracts, to get a monopoly through knowledge gained while the government paid them.

So a bill, which the House passed July 26 to let private industry develop peaceful atomic power for private profit, said among other things:

The AEC would carefully examine any application for an atomic patent. If the AEC was convinced the discovery resulted from work done for the government, no patent would be granted, and the discovery would become public property.

Some Senate Democrats argued this wasn't tight enough protection against eventual monopoly by a few big firms. After much debate, the Senate voted this provision:

Any firm granted an atomic patent, for the first 10 years after obtaining it would have to grant a license for its use by anyone who wanted it. For a fee, of course. A firm which got the license could use the invention for the full life of the patent. This was called "compulsory licensing."

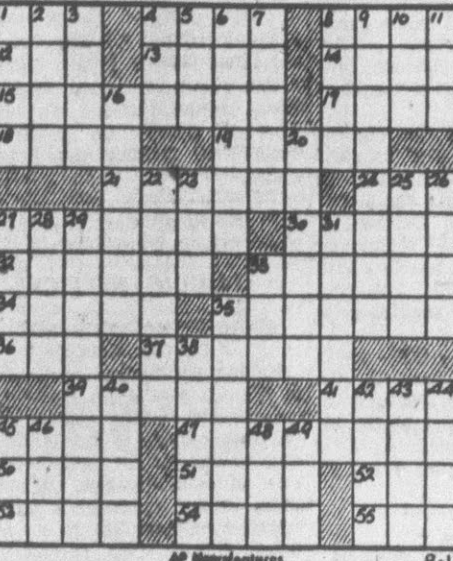

Some Republicans argue this, violates the constitutional provision which says a patent holder shall have exclusive rights to his discovery.

Since the House and Senate bills differed on this and other points, a committee from both houses was set up to work out a compromise. They came up with a bill which did this on patents:

It knocked out the Senate's "compulsory licensing" provision and kept the House provision: that

The AEC could reject any patent on an invention resulting from work for the government.

Then the compromise bill added this:

Since any firm holding an atomic patent and wanting to build a power plant would have to get AEC permission, AEC should give preference to a patent owner who agreed to let other firms use it.

Senate Democrats say compulsory licensing is the best protection against monopoly and want that to become part of the new law. The House passed the compromise bill with hardly a murmur Monday. The Senate may tackle the compromise tomorrow or Friday.

New Prehistoric Man Discovered

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — French scientists, who have been digging in this part of Africa for more than 80 years, have been rewarded by two jawbones which may belong to the earliest tool-wielding humans yet unearthed.

This ape-like creature has been named "Palikao man" after a village near the diggings. He appears to have roamed the southern shores of the Mediterranean as many as 600,000 years ago.

Prof. Camille Arambourg of the Paris Natural History Museum heads the expedition. Scientists working with him say this is the first time remains and tools have been found in the company of fossil animals which can be dated so early. They belong to what scientists call the Acheulean and Chellean or Abbevillian periods. The famous Peeping man and Java man are of later date.

Palikao is about 10 miles from Mascara, a busy commercial town in a rich fruit-growing region famous for its wines. There has been a great deal of digging there since 1870. Recently Arambourg decided to dig deeper than anyone had gone before. He found a rich bed of animal fossils and prehistoric tools — and the two jawbones.

From 1949 to 1953, there were 29 fatal boxing injuries in the United States.

Syracuse Paper Refuses Support New Polio Drive

NEW YORK (AP)—Refusal of the Syracuse N. Y. Post-Standard to support a second polio fund drive this year has brought a reiteration by fund officials that the raising of 20 million dollars is imperative.

Basil O'Connor president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said in a telegram to the newspaper "a great program created by the people is in jeopardy and the proper care of those who will have polio this summer is in danger."

The Post-Standard said in a front page editorial yesterday that Syracuse already had given "a whopping $158,000 to the polio drive in January" and a further appeal now was unfair to other worthy causes. The newspaper said:

"In the last year for which statistics are available, polio with a death rate of only 1.1 per 100,000 raised 51 million dollars nationally whereas heart disease, with a death rate of 494.4 raised a mere $6,700,000. Cancer with a death rate of 139.6 raised 16 million dollars."

"It polio is able to raid this community without consideration to the needs of others, it may well sound the death knell of organized, scientific fund raising on a basis which is fair to all and in which all share according to needs."

In reply to the death rate figure, O'Connor declared the polio foundation spends much money to care for persons who get polio but do not die of it.

will be unable to meet their payroll unless they receive money owed them by various foundation chapters for care already given to patients.

The foundation said the Central Carolina Convalescent Hospital, Greensboro, N. C., has reported that 51 chapters at the end of July owed it nearly $100,000 for patient care and that unless some of this were paid promptly it would be unable to meet its payroll on Aug. 15.

Later the hospital announced it would meet the payroll.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—The stock market slipped a little lower on balance today in a reaction from the higher performance yesterday.

Aircrafts were the first to come under selling guns, and they displayed losses running to around a point. Most minus signs in the list were small. Gains went to about a point at the best.

As prices backed down in an irregular manner, the pace of trading slowed considerably at a rate around 2 1/2 million shares for the day. That compares with 3,440,009 shares traded yesterday in a rising market.

Lower on balance with the aircrafts were the steels, motors, airlines, and the railroads. The oils had some good plus signs but weren't outstanding.

Among lower stocks were Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Zenith Radio American Telephone and Southern Railway.

Higher were Studebaker, Curtiss-Wright, Radio Corp., Consolidated Natural Gas, American Tobacco, General Dynamics, Corn Exchange Bank, New York Central, and Kern County Land.

RALEIGH (NCDA)—Hog prices steady to 25 higher. Tops of 22.50 at Fayetteville; 22.25 at Hillsboro, Jacksonville, Siler City, Micro, Freeman, Elizabethtown, Taber City, Whiteville, Kenly, Beaulieu, Wilson, Goldsboro, Burgaw, Bailey, Lillington, Clarkton, Kingston, Benson, New Bern, Smithfield, Newton Grove, Mount Olive, Dunn, Clinton and Lumberton; 22.00 at Tarboro, Enfield, Hamilton, Weiland, Scotland Neck, Colerain, Wilmington, Windsor, Rocky Mount, Rich Square and Woodland.

Board Formally Adopts New Farmville Budget

FARMVILLE—The local board of commissioners formally adopted the 1954-55 budget at their regular monthly meeting last week and set the tax rate for the coming year at $1.35 per hundred dollars evaluation.

They also authorized the tax collector to begin advertising 1953 delinquent taxes preparatory to holding a tax sale on September 13. The commissioners adopted the prevailing schedule B privilege tax for 1954-55.

In addition the board received bids for gas, motor oil, washing and greasing, general repair work, tires and tubes, automotive maintenance and repair parts for the coming year.

Parker Pontiac, Inc. was awarded the gas, motor oil, washing and greasing contract and Moore-Speight Service Station received the general repair work, tires and tubes, automotive maintenance and repair parts contract.

The commissioners voted to move a blinker light from the corner of Horne and Walnut Streets to the corner of Fields and Wilson Streets. They agreed to place a stop light at the Horne and Walnut intersection.

The board took under advisement the issuing of a beer license to Charles Edward Brawford of 1008 Statonburg Street, Wilson, until the chief of police could be consulted on the matter. Brawford plans to operate an establishment in the Walker building.

Proposes Street Markers' Fund Be Appropriated

GRIFTON—Bob Levine appeared before the Board of Commissioners at their monthly meeting last week and proposed that the town appropriate approximately $200 toward the purchase of street markers for the town.

Levine said that the Lion's Club will assume all other expenses of installing the markers. Levine also said that the Lion's Club will number the homes within the city limits. A committee consisting of Levine, Bill Mahler and Joe Goolsby was appointed to make a survey of the town and assign numbers to the houses within the city limits and present the set-up to the town board at their next meeting for approval.

The town clerk, Frances Riley, was instructed to notify Levine of the next board meeting.

Edward Bright, Grifton school principal, appeared before the board on behalf of parents of children living on the opposite side of N.C. Highway 11 from the schools and requested that something be done to provide safe crossing at the intersection of N.C. 11 and Queen Street. Bright also read a letter from the attorney general which stated that if the highway was built with federal funds, approval of the State Highway and Public Works Commission would be required to install a traffic light at the intersection.

The city clerk was instructed to write the highway department to determine if the highway was built with federal funds.

The board authorized Mayor Sam Nelson to sign a ten year contract with the Carolina Power and Light Company for the supply of electricity for the new water pump now being connected into the city's system.

The mayor also proposed that a letter be written to White Construction Company requesting that they finish paving Gordon Street as provided in a previous paving contract.

Returning members of the Fountain Elementary School faculty are Mrs. Koma Lee Walker, first grade; Mrs. Robert Mercer, second grade; Mrs. Emily Meyer, fifth grade; Mrs. Benny Phillips, fifth grade; Mrs. Jean Satterwhite, sixth grade; and Mrs. Carl Tanner, eighth grade.

A faculty meeting will be held at the school Tuesday, August 24 at 2 o'clock.

Firemen Called To Four Blazes

Firemen were called to four blazes yesterday this morning. Two of the calls were to grass fires, one to a burning auto and one out-of-town to a burning tobacco barn.

Yesterday afternoon about 5:00 o'clock the department was called to Tenth Street Extension when some trash caught fire. The firemen had barely extinguished the blaze before a box alarm was turned in on South Pitt Street where a grass fire was extinguished in a field.

Last night the firemen were called to 314 Reade Street at 10:05 when an automobile belonging to Herman Randolph, Negro, caught fire. The car was a total loss.

This morning at 6:03 o'clock the department dispatched a truck to the Floyd Harris farm where a tobacco barn was burning. The barn was a total loss but two nearby barns were saved by firemen.
